The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of St. Mary's Bay. This laid out from the water's edge, partly on level ground and partly on the declivity of a modern till, dry and pleasant, and having with an eastern aspect, a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth of that name. It was settled by Loyalists from New York in 1763, the most of whom went early to farms, or, moving to other countries, left the whole

There was a taste of trying to sell job printing outside the plant. Work was a little slack one early fall day and so "Mac" said to me, "how about trying your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards?" I tried it, made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular house, but lost much time and got an order, but

The Utter Folly and Absurdity of our Present School Law respecting Discipline.

To the Editor of the Courier.

The recent unearthing of the bones of a dead and profane man, who had lain undisturbed in the virgin soil of our Academy--and which, no doubt, under the present school law respecting discipline, will be found in that of many other Academies in this Province--until they burst forth into such disgusting prominence as to meet the eyes of the trustees and clergy of various churches in our town, was deemed necessary to examine and indicate to the children to whom this Academy and Academy had been traced, in a most striking manner, the utter folly and absurdity of the present school law every part of which is so full of errors and contradictions as well as the abilities of the scholars sent to him for instruction. What will all the boys and girls who are allowed to acquire that pollution of mind which has already made such inroads upon the school, which is the contrary, should be the sanctuary of every child. Shall the few who contaminate the pure-minded and see the children of the pure-minded who would never dream of such words and expressions, escape with impunity? Shall the children of the pure-minded and see the children of the pure-minded who would never dream of such words and expressions, escape with impunity? Shall the children of the pure-minded and see the children of the pure-minded who would never dream of such words and expressions, escape with impunity?

His Honor Judge Savary Avoids the Question.

To the Editor of the Courier.

Sm--In justice to myself and the cause which I have undertaken to plead, will you allow me to express the great disappointment I have experienced at the unchivalrous and temporizing manner in which His Honor Judge Savary has treated the urgent problem connected with the poor house and farm.

"Comparisons are odious," so runs the old adage; but the striking similarity which has existed throughout the history of the "Digby Woman" and His Honor Judge Savary, justifies comment on my part.

I asked the "Digby Woman" (we repeat the name) to give the heroism signature, the injurious and malicious libels which she so unobviously circulated in the Halifax Herald respecting the "Digby Woman" and her husband, and she replied that she "preferred" not to do so.

only prevent Digby from following the example of Annapolis and thereby save nearly $11,000 every three years, besides providing for the poor a more civilized manner than the practice which now disgraces her; but he would demand the presence of other countries out of existence.

Calling on the Dead to Build a Poor House.

To the Editor of the Courier.

Sm--I am the man spoken of by the Rev. Mr. Anselme in your issue of the 10th inst. as the keeper of the poor in Digby, and I wish to contradict what they say, for what they said of me is not true, and I can prove it. Now they speak of lived with me from the time he was put on the town till he died, eleven years. Mr. Anselme stated him and attended Mr. A's church. It is not true that Mr. A. could not see him only when his keepers were present. Mr. Anselme advised the overseer to keep him in his house till he died. It was cold and suffering there, then Mr. Anselme said he would let him go. Mr. A. knew it, but he did not want to let him go. He was put in the hospital, and he died there. His story about the woman who was buried in the box is not true. His story about the woman who was buried in the box is not true. His story about the woman who was buried in the box is not true.

Roger Amero's Case.

D. B. Woodworth, M. P., received a letter from a clerk of petty council enclosing a despatch from Sackville West, her majesty's minister in Washington, acknowledging the governor-general's despatch respecting Roger Amero and stating it had been forwarded to the United States secretary of state with the expression of the hope of governor-in-council that he may see fit to recommend it to the favorable consideration of the state authorities of Mass.

The Boston Advertiser says: In 1882, Roger Amero was "lured" down along the coast by a villain named by men whose desire to get a reward offered for the detection of a criminal was stronger than their wish to avoid injustice to the innocent. He was subjected to what the community now considers unjust and unnecessary imprisonment. The fact that the legislature of 1884 failed to regard his petition for compensation with favor should not stand in the way of doing justice now.

Adoption of the Nile Expedition.

General Wolsey has forwarded to the war office a significant report made out by the medical staff at the Khartoum expedition.

The report states that if the Sudan be maintained, fully one half of the troops will die or be disabled by the heat before autumn. The whole tone of this peculiar report, which is undoubtedly directly inspired by General Wolsey himself, indicates that a decision having been reached to that effect, the public is being prepared to witness an early withdrawal of the whole British force from the Sudan to Egypt.

The report also states that the Nile-Khartoum expedition. It is announced that General Graham has been ordered by the government to at once open peace negotiations with Osman Digma, or the sheiks between Suakin and Berber, possessing the power and control of the natives. It is stated that General Graham has been instructed to secure such terms as will enable him to evacuate the country at once.

Whether in pursuance of these particular instructions or not, General Graham withdrew his whole force back from Tamai to Suakin, leaving only a small contingent at General McNeill's zereba. It is believed that no operations will be undertaken against Suakin. The heat is actually intolerable in the west of Tamai, which is itself almost beyond the influence of the water of the Red sea. The officers and men belonging to General Stewart's force are completely disgusted over the results of the expedition, and are all anxious to be at once recalled home. The disgust of the magnificent fellows who have come all the way from Australia to help maintain the mother country's prestige is almost simply supreme and indescribable.

RIEL'S REBELLION.

Death of a Halifax Man.

FALL OF FORT PITTE.

A telegram from a special correspondent in the Chronicle, says: "While the men were at dinner Private F. Marwick, belonging to Captain James Fortune's company of the 63rd, who had been suffering from bronchitis, died suddenly of the caps. The contingent reached Winnipeg Wednesday morning."

Winnipeg, April 21.—The Halifax battalion arrived at Port Arthur at 10 o'clock this morning. They are expected to reach here shortly after midnight.

Winnipeg, April 21.—A telegram from Clark's Crossing this afternoon announces the return of S. L. Beaman, transport officer, from his visit to the rebels. He was accompanied by Chief Factor Macdonald, of Port Arthur. They had a long trip, having traveled over 200 miles since last Monday. They arrived on Sunday. They spent the night at the hotel. He has 175 police and about 80 volunteers. The latter are badly armed. The rebels are in the hands of the police. The rebels are in the hands of the police. The rebels are in the hands of the police.

The troops are moving from Clark's Crossing in two directions, under command of Gen. Middleton. One moves north on the east bank of the Saskatchewan, and the other column takes the west bank. The march will occupy two days and the troops will take five days to reach the rebels. The rebels are in the hands of the police. The rebels are in the hands of the police. The rebels are in the hands of the police.

The report that the rebels are in the hands of the police is untrue. The story having doubtless originated from offering a reward of $500 to the Indian scout prisoners if they would rescue the settlers now prisoners in the hands of the rebels. It was a "hoax" and the rebels are in the hands of the police. The rebels are in the hands of the police. The rebels are in the hands of the police.

CLARK'S CROSSING, April 21.—A despatch just received from Battleford says the messengers just returned from Fort Pitt say that the fort has fallen. Two police have been killed and it is feared the whole party has been massacred. An Indian told the messenger that the Indians had gone down the river, but this is not credited.

TORONTO, April 21.—The Mail's Battleford special says: Two messengers have arrived from Fort Pitt. They bring a terrible story, though there is still a glimmer of hope that our force may be verified. They found the place utterly wrecked and abandoned. An Indian told them there had been a fight and two police killed and that the police and others in the fort had taken to the river. They have been on five days and have not been here long ago. It looks as if the whole party had been captured or killed from the river bank. The story of their escape is extremely improbable, as the Indians are not likely to take to the river to escape. The Indians have started and threaten to take this place. Troops were promised for our relief three weeks ago but have as yet have turned up.

Very Latest.

A FIGHT WITH INDIANS. CLARK'S CROSSING, April 22.—News from Battleford says the Fort Pitt police, twenty-one in number, had a fight on Wednesday last, with about 800 Indians of Big Bear's and Little Poplar's bands. One police was killed, and the Indians were wounded. L. Ansel, of the Halifax, was wounded. Four Indians were killed. The Indians then ran away.

Winnipeg, April 22.—The Halifax battalion arrived here this morning at six and will parade after breakfast and go into quarters at once.

A life saved for thirty-five cents! A lady in Boston had a daughter and almost died from strangulation, but was instantly relieved and finally cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. Every family should have a bottle ready for instant use.

There has been a new aristocratic convert in the person of Monsignor Capel, of the young and only brother of the Duke of Hamilton, and presumptive heir to the titles and estates, was received into the Roman Catholic church recently at Nice. Queen Victoria fulfils the biblical description of taking up her bed and weeping when she changes her residence. It appears the Queen always sleeps in a wooden bed of a particular shape and made up in a particular manner. As the Queen's Majesty goes to a strange place a bed and its furniture are despatched from Windsor for her use. Two were sent off a couple of weeks since from the workshop at the castle, the one for the Queen's cabin in the yacht, the "Victoria and Albert," and the other for Victoria to Aix-les-Bains. There is already one of the Queen's beds at Darmstadt. It was sent out when she went there last year.

IRON in medicine is analogous to the importance of iron in the industrial arts. Its use is indicated in all wasting diseases, where there exists no fever, and where the red globules of the blood are diminished. When impaired digestion exists, or other functions are deranged, whereby the tissues lack nourishment, then the speediest and safest cure is brought about by giving Iron. It directly increases the red corpuscles and changes their pale and shrivelled condition to redness and fullness; through them the system is more highly organized, and the conditions necessary for digestion and renewal of tissues are secured. ESTEY'S IRON TONIC is the most important medicine, and is now recognized as the king of Tonic and Blood Purifiers. Those suffering from Dyspepsia, Low Spirits, General Debility, Muscular Weakness, Nervous Exhaustion, Loss of Muscular Power, Sleeplessness, Heartburn, or Impure Blood are cured by taking a few bottles of ESTEY'S IRON & QUININE TONIC.

TRY IT! In a very short time you will find your appetite improved, your spirits become more cheerful, your digestion and renewal of tissues are secured, and you will feel and know that every fibre and tissue of your body is being braced and renovated.

Sea-Weed as a Manure.

In the sea towns and in the districts penetrated by tide-water streams and coves, sea-weeds of various kinds are much used for fertilizing the land. There is great difference in the character and value of this marine vegetation, the most valuable coming from rocky shores and deep waters, and the less valuable from the flats and bays, where the water mingles with the tides. The Fel-grass (Yostera marina), which is not a true alga, or seaweed, grows abundantly both in shallow, brackish water and in the sea, but is the least valuable of seaweeds. The Rock-weed (Enteromorpha) takes its common name from its strong attachment to rocks and boulders that are found on many parts of the coast. The Ribbon-weed (Laminaria), also called Kelp, and the "mosses," so beautifully colored, grow in moderate depths, and are considered the best of all for dressing the land. These weeds are torn up from the bottom by the storms in winter and spring, and borne by the tides and winds in immense quantities to the shores, where they are stowed until within reach of the farmer's teams.

The value set upon this fertilizer differs very much in the localities where it is within easy reach. In some places the beaches are leased, and the wrack is carefully gathered, and removed periodically to the yards, or to the fields where it is to be plowed in. In other districts all that lodges below high-water mark is free to the first comer, and is removed in boats and scows. It is just as good for gathering. Large quantities of it are taken from the shores of islands, and sold in the neighboring parts, at from one or two dollars a ton. The analysis of the ash of these weeds shows a long per cent of potash, and it is found to be a valuable fertilizer for the potato and the turnip, and other root crops. In the villages, where the weed is landed and offered for sale, there is an increasing demand for it for use in village gardens, as well as upon the farms, which have been into the country six or seven miles. Mixed with the mud taken from shallow coves, when it is gathered with rakes in scows, it makes a good absorbent for the cow yard and pig sty. It is sometimes used as a dressing for grass land, but this must be attended with considerable loss of ammonia, as it decays rapidly. The most economical use of it is, to spread it broadcast upon land that is to be immediately plowed for corn and potatoes, or other main crops. American Agriculturist.

Planting Trees.

A writer in the Eastern Chronicle, says:—"The proper way to plant trees is to prepare a deep, rich bed of mellow soil at least five feet in diameter and fifteen inches deep, and have the land sufficiently drained to carry off all standing water. Make the hole large enough to admit the roots, without any cramping or bending, and deep enough so that the tree will stand the same depth it did in the nursery. The fine surface soil should be reserved to cover the roots, and should be carefully worked in among them with the hand. If the ground is dry, it is a good plan to put some water in the hole when it is newly filled. After the saplings are planted, they should be tramped over all the roots. Never use manure in contact with the roots. When trees are planted, they should be mulched by covering the ground with straw, litter or other refuse, about six inches deep, for a space of five feet in diameter to remain the first summer. This keeps the earth moist in a time of drouth. Grass should not be allowed to grow about young trees, but the ground should be kept cultivated for a space at least one foot farther than the spread. This can best be done by planting some root crop such as potatoes. Above all cattle must be kept out of the orchard."

A Prevalent Vice.

Surely profanity is one of the glaring vices of the day, and nowhere is it exercised more freely than in a country village. In cities, profane swearing is not common in the streets. The individual in such communities acquires a respect for the rights of his neighbors, and among multitudes he has to be cautious in regard to the prejudices of all. Any such act as obtaining or swearing in the street would soon arouse the attention of the policeman as the representative and agent of public sentiment. In many country villages a different state of things seem to prevail. Profanity is not regarded as a thing to be ashamed of, but as a sort of manly accomplishment. In the bar-room, and the corner grocery the air is blue with strange oaths flung out not in anger or by way of exclamation, but merely to strengthen, adorn and emphasize discourse. An expletive is the rural American's great figure of rhetoric. It serves to describe a girl's beauty, to estimate a horse's speed, to measure the yield of a wheat field. It is the climax of invective against an enemy, the chief argument in a discussion, the point of every witicism. Two men cannot meet in the street without adding to each other's health choice specimens of profanity. Plenty of decent people passing by must feel shocked, but they are powerless to express their indignation, for profanity has got to be a country habit. This vice of indecently swearing, setting aside its indecency, tends to corrupt the use of language and destroy its capabilities for expressing any strong emotion. A bad habit, neighbor; master it, or you become its slave.—Exchange.

HUMOROUS.

"You're opaque," said an exasperated spectator at a concert to a huge fellow standing in front of him. "No! I'm O'Callaghan," was the serene reply.

A Scotch minister said recently, somewhat sarcastically, of a toper, that he put an enemy into his mouth to steal away his brains, but that the enemy, after a thorough and protracted search, returned without any.

A Boston girl who is teacher in Colorado writes home as follows: "I have forty scholars of all ages and teach almost everything, grammar, history, physiology, mathematics, manners, morals, common sense, and personal cleanliness, fancy work and general civilization."

MAKING IT EASY FOR HIS EMPLOYER.—A merchant went to his head clerk and said: "John, I owe about $10,000, and all I possess is $4,000 which is locked up in the safe. I have been thinking that this is a long time to make an assignment, but what plausible pretext I can give my creditors I know not. You have plenty of brains; think the matter over, and let me know your decision in the morning." "Thank you," replied the clerk, "I have thought the matter over, and I have decided to let you have the safe open, the $4,000 gone, and in their place a letter which reads as follows: 'I have taken the $4,000 and have gone to Canada. It is the best excuse you can give your creditors.'"

Editors have their peculiarities as well as other people. They practice and inculcate brevity, which is a virtue. They are absent minded, which is a failing. It is not strange then, that one should send a note to his lady love like the following: "Dearest, I have carefully analyzed the feelings I entertain for you, and the result is substantially as follows: I adore you! Will you be mine?" Answer: "Then after a moment of thought, he decided in a day, and wrote: 'Write only on one side of the paper. Write plainly and give real name, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.'"

Dull Great Men.

Descartes, the famous mathematician and philosopher; La Fontaine, celebrated for his witty tales; and Buffon, the naturalist, were all singularly deficient in the powers of conversation. Marmonel, the novelist, was so dull in society that his friend said of him, after an interview, "I must go and read his tales, in recompense to myself for the weariness of hearing him." As to Corneille, the greatest dramatist of France, he was completely lost in society, so silent and embarrassed that he was often himself a witty couplet, propounding but through the mouth of another. Wit, on paper, seems to be something widely different from that play of words in conversation which, while it sparkles, dies; for Charles II., the witliest of monarchs, was so charmed with the humor of "Hudibras," that he caused himself to be introduced in the character of a private gentleman to Butler, its author. The witty king found the author a very dull companion, and was of opinion, with many others, that so stupid a fellow could never have written so clever a book. Addison, whose character has long been considered the model of style, was shy and absent in society, preserving, even before a single stranger, formal and dignified air. In conversation, Dante was turned into a satirical Greek, and after seldom talked or smiled. Rousseau was remarkably trite in conversation—not a word of fancy or eloquence warmed him. Milton was unsocial, and even irritable, when much pressed by the talk of others.

The Washington correspondent of the Medical Journal says that we may look for cholera, if at all, through Spanish channels, and our outpost of observation should be Havana. While the season of alarm at this time, there is very reason for extreme vigilance. The secretary of state has instructed consuls to notify the department, by cable, of any outbreak, and the information will be given at once to the Associated Press.

The Cape Ann Advertiser says: "Two new and singular phases of the Fisheries have been seen in our port lately—an English vessel with the Grand Bank coming here with loads of fresh halibut and selling them to our great companies, and other Provincial vessels coming here to fit for southern mackerel seining trips."

To persons whose skin is delicate or sensitive to changes in the weather, winter or summer, Eczema, or itchy skin, is a common ailment, and is characterized by its constant, non-irritant character. It may be caused by a variety of causes, but is generally due to a deficiency of the sebaceous glands, or to a condition of the skin which is obstructed perspiration, or to what may go by the name of "itchy skin." It is characterized by its constant, non-irritant character. It may be caused by a variety of causes, but is generally due to a deficiency of the sebaceous glands, or to a condition of the skin which is obstructed perspiration, or to what may go by the name of "itchy skin."

The Fashions.

Flannel suits for young ladies are made mostly with kilt skirts and sailor blouses.

The pretty Gretchen dress is now worn by girls from eight to twelve years of age. Striped muslins or gingham made with high neck, long sleeves, and a pleated white muslin front of about six inches in breadth, finished with straps of the dress material across the waist are very becoming to these small girls.

Young ladies of sixteen years of age will wear the Spanish jacket as a part of their Spring and Summer dresses.

Some of these jackets hang too in the front, over a vest; and the back is closely fitted same as a basque.

One of the fashionable trimmings for these garments are the closely strung buttons, like those of English officers' coats. For this purpose brass buttons, steel, bronze and jet, of small size, round and slightly pointed in the middle, are the favorites.

This trimming is also used for bordering the vest fronts and basques of various dresses.

The yoke waist is popular with misses for dresses of cotton goods. Some of these yokes are tucked or else striped with insertions.

The present style of buttoning dresses behind for girls of twelve or fourteen years will be continued for the present.

Some dresses for girls of sixteen or eighteen years are made to button in front, though many young ladies of nineteen or twenty have some of their prettiest dresses fastened behind.

The prettiest jackets for misses are made of bright colored serge. The poppy-red serge will be exceedingly pretty to wear with light summer dresses.

Blue serge jackets are trimmed with white ermine or ermine trim. The soft curve that is on the nape of the neck, when the hair is worn high, are called "scooping locks."

When natural they are very pretty and becoming, but no lady should be so foolish as to attempt to curl her hair in this manner.

Light tan-colored knit gloves are the most stylish to wear with any dress.

Black or navy blue stockings are still worn by little girls with dresses of any color.

A bride should wear white stockings and white slippers with a white wedding dress.

Bluish gray is a very stylish color. Golden-brown continues to be popular.

The Confederate Bond Craze.

HOW THE UNEXPENDED BALANCE ABROAD WAS DISPOSED OF.

CHARLESTOWN, S. C., April 30.—The News and Courier explains the mystery of the Confederate bond craze as follows: "Judah P. Benjamin, secretary of state of the confederacy from 1862 until its collapse, was the originator of the plan by which a demand was created for the bonds. At different times the Confederate Congress voted large sums for secret service, the principal deposits being in London and Paris banks. The funds were placed to the credit of citizens of Great Britain and France, who were friendly to the South. At the close of the war there was an unexpended balance of $5,000,000. Mr. Benjamin consulted with these agents as to the disposition of the money, and it was agreed that it should be surrendered to the United States. The question was then how to disburse the money so as to best benefit those entitled to it. It was concluded that the people who had given their means to the Confederacy for its bonds were entitled to the money, and the bonds were advertised for, and to cover the real object of the movement it was hinted that the bonds were to be held by speculators, and that suit was to be instituted against the United States for their payment."

"The Curse of Scotland." A few evenings before the battle of Culloden, there were gathered in the apartments of the Pretender, at Inverness, a few of his friends, for the purpose of playing cards. In the course of the evening the nine of diamonds belonging to the pack with which they were playing was lost. On the night after the battle, which resulted so disastrously for the Pretender's forces, the Duke of Cumberland entered Inverness, and as was his established custom, took up his quarters in the apartments which had been recently occupied by Charles Edward. On the following morning a scout brought word that a small force of the defeated army had taken refuge in a deep gorge among the mountains. The Duke at once directed an officer to take a number of men surround the party, and to put every man to death who was found in arms. The officer, reluctant to carry out the infamous order, decided to take the command without having received a written order. The duke looked around the room to find a piece of paper on which to write the order, when some one picked up the lost card, and presented it to the duke, who wrote the order on it, and handed the card to the officer. The soldiers departed on their errand of butchery, and so well did they execute the duke's command that not one of the devoted first men of Scotland escaped. Hence it is said that the nine of diamonds is called 'The Curse of Scotland.'—Selected.

No Compensation for Amoro.

THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE DECIDES HE WAS JUSTIFIABLY ARRESTED AND DETAINED.

Boston, May 13.—In the legislature to-day, leave to withdraw was reported by the joint judiciary committee on the petition of Rogers Amoro, for compensation for arrest and detention on March 18, 1883. The committee report that they have made a new and full investigation of the matter; that the evidence against him warranted and demanded his arrest, extradition and detention; that many persons in this state and Nova Scotia believe him guilty, and that his own actions, statements and admissions immediately following the manner were largely instrumental in causing his arrest. The committee state their belief in Amoro's innocence, but do not think under the circumstances he is entitled to compensation.

The attempt of the present British Premier to reconcile his policy to the country on the brink of a colossal and inevitable war with the unctuous approbation of peace societies and prayer meetings would be droll, were it not pregnant calamity. It may yet prove the worst of her many disabilities for a land war with Russia that fate has placed her at this juncture under the guidance of a statesman to good to be a zealous patriot, of an uprightness so extreme that he topples over backwards, and of a conscience so sensitive that he would rather spit his brains out than less exactitude than save an empire by an act of dogged Palmerstonian decision.—N. Y. Sun.

IT LEADS ALL.—No toilet preparation is made or ever has been made that gives the same satisfaction as Philodermis for Chapped Hands, or any roughness of the skin.

"I see the French have taken unbrags," said the old Gosling, as he read the paper, his eyes were full of tears. "More fools the Chinese for not fortifying it better," said Mrs. Gosling.

THIS IS RELIABLE.—R. N. Wheeler, Merchant, of Exeter, was cured of a severe attack of inflammation of the lungs by Hagar's Pectoral Balm. This great throat and lung balm cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, bronchitis, and all pulmonary complaints.

"No, my daughter," said a millionaire manufacturer, "I'll never consent to my marrying a bank cashier. Your rigors are too delicate to stand the rigors of a Canadian winter."

HEADACHE.—Headache is one of those distressing complaints that depends upon nervous irritation, bad circulation, or a disordered state of the stomach, liver, bowels, etc. The editor and proprietor of the Canada Presbyterian was cured after years of suffering by using a small quantity of the virtue of Burdock Blood Bitters.

"George," said a young girl to her brother, "you can do me a great favor at the party to-night if you will."

"What is it?" demanded the brother.

"I am to wear my new kid shoes and striped stockings, and if you will just sign out 'ras' I will do as much for you some day."

Mrs. W. J. Lang, Bellamy, Ont., writes: "I was one of the greatest sufferers for about fifteen months with a disease which is similar to ulcers, causing extreme pain. I tried everything that could be done through medical skill, but without relief. As a last resort, I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil and in ten minutes found relief. I continued using it, and in a short time my ear was cured and hearing completely restored. I have used this wonderful healer successfully in cases of inflammation of the lungs, sore throat, coughs, colds, cuts and bruises, &c., in fact it is our family medicine."

The editor of The Deadwood Roarer attended church for the first time last Sunday. In about an hour he rushed into the office and shouted:

"What the blazes are you fellows doing? How about the news from the seat of war?"

"What news?"

"Why, all this about the Egyptian army being drowned in the Red Sea. Why, the precher up at the church was telling about it just now, and he said it was a victory for the South. It's not a word of it in this morning's paper. Hustle round, you fellows, and get the facts, or The Snap Shot will get a beat on us. Look spy there, and run an extra edition while I put on the bulletin board 'Great English Victory in the Sudan.'—San Francisco Post.

To the aged and infirm, the nourishing and invigorating properties of Purophosphor Emulsion give renewed strength and buoyancy of spirits. Always ask for Purophosphor Emulsion, and be sure you get it.

The construction of a monster war balloon of seven tons ascending force, having a diameter of 60 feet and length of 185 feet, has been ordered by the United States Government. It is said to be the most destructive engine of war known, the inventor, General Thayer, claiming that in one night he can lay a city in ashes.

Mrs. James Doane, Gilbert's Cove, Digby, N. S., says: "About three years ago I was attacked with Rheumatism, which commenced in my knee, extended through my legs and arms to all parts of my body. I was unable to move, and for some time was almost distracted with pain. I was unable to find more than temporary relief till April last, when I tried Graham's Kidney-Exhalator, one bottle of which cured me. My husband has found Graham's Catarrhine an exceedingly good remedy."—32 41

"There are no less than 3,000 white opium smokers in San Francisco to-day," remarked a well informed police officer to a reporter of the Chronicle recently. "In that number," he continued, "are included men and women from 40 years of age down to boys and girls of 14 years. The terrible vice is on the increase." This is one of the evils arising from Chinese emigration.

The first Nova Scotia banker of the season, sch. Maria, of Pubnico, N. S., arrived here yesterday, from Western Bank with 17,000 lbs. codfish, and 80 gals. oil. This is but the beginning of an extensive business of the same kind to follow, although the duties to be put on after July 1 may cause a reduction in its value. WORDS FAIL. "Words fail to express my gratitude," says Mr. SEAY CARTER, of Nashville, Tenn., "for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Having been afflicted all my life with Scrofula, my system seemed saturated with it. It came out in Eczema, Erysipelas, and Pustules, all over my body." Mr. Carter states that he was entirely cured by the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and since then, feeling his age, eight months ago, he has had no return of the scrofulous symptoms.

All baneful infections of the blood are promptly removed by this unequalled alternative.

THINK OF IT NOW!

"Although much is said about the importance of a blood-purifying medicine, it may be possible that the subject has never seriously claimed your attention."
Almost every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. When this develops in Scrofulous Sores, Eczema, or Eruptions, or in the form of Rheumatism, or Organic Diseases, the sufferer knows that change is terrible. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that will thoroughly eradicate this evil from the system.

As well expect life without air as health without pure blood. Cleanse the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

THE LAST HYMN.
The Sabbath day was ending in a village by the sea.
The benediction touched the people tenderly,
And they rose to face the sunset in the glow,
Lighted west,
And they sang their hymns, and their dwellings for God's blessed hour of rest.

But they looked across the waters, and the storm was raging there.
A fierce spirit moved above them—the spirit of the air,
And it bled and tore them, and they trembled, till they thundered, groaned and boomed,
And alas! for any vessel in their yawning gulfs entombed.

Very anxious were the people on that rocky coast of Wales Left alone to the menacing merriments should be telling awful tales,
When the sea had spent its passion, and should cast upon the shore
Bits of wreck and swollen victims, as it had done heretofore.

With the rough winds blowing round her, a brave woman strained her eyes,
And she saw along the billows a large vessel lost and rife.
Oh, it did not need a prophet to tell what the end must be!

For no ship could ride in safety near the shore on such a sea.

Then pitying people hurried from their houses and through the beach, Oh, for power to cross the water and the perishing to reach!

Helpless hands were wrung for sorrow, tender hearts grew cold with dread,
And the ship, urged by the tempest, to the fatal rock shore sped.

"She has parted in the middle! Oh, the half of her gone!"
God have mercy! Is Heaven far to seek, for those who drown?

Lo! it did not need a prophet to tell what the end must be!
For no ship could ride in safety near the shore on such a sea.

SELECT TALE.

Friends in Need.

"What! real, wild Seminoles, Mrs. Ayer?" I said. "Is it possible that you saw them in those days when they were at war with the United States?"

"Yes, I saw them at that period," she replied; "but it was very fortunate for me and mine that I had also seen them before. I have every reason to thank an Indian's powers of memory."

"And you were in Florida at the time of the cutting off of Major Dade's command, and of Col. Taylor's battle with the Seminole warriors?" I interrogated.

"O yes; we had the news of all such occurrences at first hand; and some of that news was dreadful, I assure you."

"You went to Florida before the war broke out, I suppose."

"Yes, I had never seen an Indian in my life until then; but after we took up an abode on the plantation they occasionally came strolling about us."

"My little boy, Edward, instead of being frightened at their appearance, took a great fancy to them; and I think he would have been delighted to go off and live in a wigwam."

"My little Gertrude (that is, Mrs. Farnham) got used to them almost as though they were acquaintances; she could have one of the papooses for her own. I could not wonder at her fancy, as I saw them peeping from their mother's backs with their small black eyes."

Sometimes we heard rumors of war, and these kept me always in apprehension of danger; for I knew that the Seminoles had once been troublesome, and feared they might be so again, though the peace, as I was told, had then lasted nearly twenty years.

At length there was a long period when none of them visited us—those in our neighborhood seemed to have gone farther off. I did not now think that this had a hostile significance; it was probably in the ordinary course of things. At the time, however, I felt nervous lest they might be meditating war.

Our plantation stretched along the St. John's river, and was the very last upon the bank of the river known as the "Indian country."

But to me the "Indian country" seemed all about us—the savages being as likely to appear from one point of the compass as another.

It was some three months after their usual visits had ceased, when one day I was a little startled upon perceiving four canoes as full of Indians as they could swim, paddling in towards the shore at the foot of our little park of flowers and young orange trees.

By the river bank grew a long row of older and larger orange trees, and between these I could get glimpses of the dusky shapes beyond. My husband was absent at the time, and this fact gave me a very anxious sense of responsibility.

In a few minutes the entire company landed, approaching the house in the noisiest, ghostly way of me Indians, and the first to enter was a man in a white shirt and trousers, who, I thought, was a white man.

I and my little ones were not, after all, to fall the first victims to an Indian massacre at the outbreak of some new and terrible strife.

I soon discovered what was wanted. One of the squaws could speak a little English, and she informed me that they were in a state of great distress for the want of provisions.

The Seminole braves had gone upon a long hunt, and the scanty store of food they had left behind had been destroyed by a forest fire, which had burned the half dozen wigwags that made up their poor little hamlet.

Our manner of life was rough and primitive, but of food the plantation had an abundance, both animal and vegetable; and I at once ordered our negroes to prepare a liberal quantity for the little army that had come in upon us.

They sat out under the trees by the door and ate as only hungry people eat. It did me good to see them, especially the children. I thought of my own darlings. What they had been born Indians and were thus suffering!

The little papooses were lighter-colored than new copper coins—in fact, almost white. Edward and Gertrude were bewitched with them, and ran up to the door to find the children presents for those baby Seminoles. I had always been careful not to tell my children any horrible Indian stories, and hence their confidence.

There was one sick child among them, and I took it to the young squaw who could speak English; and I gave her medicine for it, telling her how it must be administered. It revived considerably that very day, for the chief cause of its illness had been a lack of proper food. It was a papoose three years old, whom the mother carried very tenderly between the canoe and the house.

Gertrude came to me with tears in her eyes to ask if she might not give that little girl her doll.

"Yes, dear," I said; "give it to her and welcome."

The visit was not repeated; and we judged that the Indian hunters must have been successful in their quest of game. Soon, however, we heard rumors of Seminole outrages.

Was war really beginning? We were all deeply distressed. The idea that my children were in danger from the Indian tomahawk put me in complete agony. Should the trouble really assume the proportions we feared, it would be necessary to leave the plantation.

Neither of them could speak a word of English, but they shook hands with him, and then proceeded to make certain marks upon our house and outbuildings. This done, they went away paddling rapidly off into the distance.

"What is the meaning of this?" I asked of my husband.

"Anno," he replied, "it means, also, that we may stay here as long as we please, and not a word of our heads will be hurt."

For a moment they reappeared. They had risen, but it was only to be whisked swiftly along and again lost to sight.

I was far from them. But what were those other objects just below the spot where they had been? Surely there were men in the water! I could make out four dark heads.

There was a quick, splashing struggle; and then the swimmers turned for the shore. You may imagine something of my feelings when I saw that they were upholding both the children.

The current carried them far down the river, and they gained the bank, and now I perceived that it was lined with Indians. It did not take me long to reach the place and clasp my poor little dripping treasures.

Among those present were the very women and children whom I had fed, including the young and comely-looking squaw whose child had been ill, but was now a plump little thing, perfectly well.

The men clustered about me with friendly looks, while one of the women came and took my hand. Neddy and Gertrude, who had been there, had received due attention before I was able to get ashore and soon recovered their strength.

A deputation of warriors accompanied us to the open ground of the plantation. Then turning they vanished in the forest. They had food enough in camp, and so declined my offer of refreshment.

My husband's face turned that night, and he was soon much better.

"I told you," he said, "that they would not forget Neddy's top or Gertrude's doll and you see that I was right."

"I thanked Heaven that it was so."

How Riel Can be Tried.
As a great many persons want to know what the provisions of the law are respecting the trial of a person charged with the commission of crimes of the nature of those committed by Riel, a correspondent at Ottawa says: I have taken some pains to study out the law bearing on Riel's case. Chapter 14 of the act respecting the trial of persons charged with treason or other offences against the Queen's authority, provides in section 2 that if any person be a citizen or subject of any foreign state or country at peace with the Dominion of Canada, or commits any act of hostility therein, or enters Canada with the design or intent to levy war against her Majesty, or to commit any treason, felony, or other offence, or to do any act which may be deemed to be an offence against the provisions of the act, such person shall be sentenced by such court-martial to suffer death, or such other punishment as the court may think fit.

Another section provides that every citizen or subject of any foreign state or country who offends against the provisions of the act, such persons shall be sentenced by such court-martial to suffer death, or such other punishment as the court may think fit.

For a moment they reappeared. They had risen, but it was only to be whisked swiftly along and again lost to sight.

I was far from them. But what were those other objects just below the spot where they had been? Surely there were men in the water! I could make out four dark heads.

There was a quick, splashing struggle; and then the swimmers turned for the shore. You may imagine something of my feelings when I saw that they were upholding both the children.

The current carried them far down the river, and they gained the bank, and now I perceived that it was lined with Indians. It did not take me long to reach the place and clasp my poor little dripping treasures.

Among those present were the very women and children whom I had fed, including the young and comely-looking squaw whose child had been ill, but was now a plump little thing, perfectly well.

The men clustered about me with friendly looks, while one of the women came and took my hand. Neddy and Gertrude, who had been there, had received due attention before I was able to get ashore and soon recovered their strength.

A deputation of warriors accompanied us to the open ground of the plantation. Then turning they vanished in the forest. They had food enough in camp, and so declined my offer of refreshment.

My husband's face turned that night, and he was soon much better.

"I told you," he said, "that they would not forget Neddy's top or Gertrude's doll and you see that I was right."

"I thanked Heaven that it was so."

The Digby Weekly Courier.

Digby, N. S., June 12th, 1885.

It would appear by the despatches, that the Government of Mr. Gladstone has met with a decided defeat in the effort to increase the beer and spirit duties.

Nothing more objectionable to the great body of the English people than an increase of the tax on beer and spirits could be proposed, and when the Government was staggering under the attacks made upon its foreign policy, the opposition of the wealthy and powerful corporations controlling these interests were too much to be withstood even by Mr. Gladstone, hence his defeat.

Whether the conservative party will feel themselves prepared to take charge of the ship of state, remains to be seen. The elections are not far off, and the same power that has overthrown Gladstone, may return a sufficiently strong conservative party to power to carry on the government.

Speaking of Railway completion, the Bridgetown Monitor understands that "the English Company is the only one that offers to put any considerable amount of money into the enterprise without asking for a large guarantee by the government on their bonds, both the other proposals submitted asking for heavy guarantees." It is therefore believed that the English proposal will be the one entertained most favorably. Our contemporary is in error in giving the distance between Digby and Annapolis at 25 miles. It is 18 miles.

The Supreme Court met on Tuesday, Judge Wetherbee presiding. For the first time within recollection there were no causes for trial, we may mention that during the last sitting of the County Court at Clare, the same thing happened. We are not exactly sure whether the spirit of litigation is dying out or not, but we are sure that this shows a pleasing absence of criminal occurrences.

Judge Wetherbee in his charge to the Grand Jury, referred to the insecure condition of the jail at Clare, from which a prisoner had recently escaped. He thought it would be much better to have one jail instead of two, and if the county did not make it secure, the Judges had power to see that it was done. He referred to the discussion that had been going on regarding the treatment of the poor, and strongly advised the erection of an almshouse.

YARMOUTH had a grand time celebrating its 124th birthday on Tuesday. It comes in the most agreeable month in the year, when all places are looking their prettiest, and when there is none of that fog which the Times very naively says they "occasionally have later on." There were lots of visitors, and everything, so far as we can learn, passed off in a most satisfactory manner.

Our Band boys, who went there at the request of the Yarmouth fire brigade, speak in the highest terms of the treatment they received. From the firemen, from Mr. Wier of the American House, from Joseph Kinney, Esq., M. P., and from the citizens generally, they received many kindnesses, which will not be forgotten.

RELIGIOUS.

EPISCOPAL VISITATION.—The Right Reverend, the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, after holding a Confirmation in the morning at Barton, in the parish of Weymouth, on Thursday, the 4th inst., was conveyed by Rev. John Ambrose, Rector of Trinity Parish, Digby, to Marshalltown, where, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon he confirmed five male and two female candidates. He expressed himself much pleased with the increased proportion of male candidates, truly observing that the sex most exposed to danger and temptation was generally less ready than the other to rightly estimate their peculiar need of Divine help, and less ready to make their open profession of religion, and to seek the seven-fold gifts of the Holy Spirit in the ancient and apostolic rite of Laying-on-of-Hands.

Next day, after his favorite walk around the Raguette and to the Joggin, in the morning, the Bishop held a Confirmation in the evening at 7 o'clock, in Trinity church, Digby. Here, as in Marshalltown, the church was filled with an attentive congregation. Nine male and fifteen female candidates received the Laying-on-of-Hands, accompanied as we trust—with the gifts, as of old, so needful to all, and so sure to all who rightly seek them. The Bishop here, as in Marshalltown, after congratulating the faithful on the material progress of the parish, very clearly pointed out the blessedness of that most necessary accompanying edification of the inner man of the heart, which is, in the sight of God, of great price and indispensable. The Bishop's concluding sermons were also, in both cases, a masterly setting forth of the doctrines of God's church, with their accompanying responsibilities. The Offertory, in both churches, was for the Clergymen's, Widows' and Orphans' Fund.

On Saturday morning, the 6th inst., the Bishop's concluding service in this parish was an early re-blessing of the Holy Sacrament. His Lordship's arduous labors in his lengthy visitations along the Atlantic coast and elsewhere in the Province, over rough roads, in all weathers, seem to have made little or no perceptible inroads on his vigorous constitution after so many years, during which he has had the comfort of seeing so large an improvement in the material and spiritual advancement of the many parishes under his supervision.

One of the candidates ordered to the sacred ministry of the Church, at Yarmouth, on Trinity Sunday, was Mr. Alton Bent, of Granville, a former member of the Baptist body, and one of the candidates confirmed at Bear River on Sunday last, was a son of Rev. Mr. Fozzy, the respected minister of the Adventist of that place. This young man, we learn, is now studying for Holy Orders in the Church of England.—C.M.

On Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Hearty received twenty candidates into full communion with the Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Brown, pastor of the Baptist congregation, has taken a vacation of three weeks; his health having suffered somewhat from too close attention to his pastoral duties.

He served with this troop for a short time while doing garrison duty at Quebec, and a vacancy occurring while under orders for active service, Mr. Daley was fortunate enough to receive the appointment of first lieutenant, for which there were many aspirants. As soon as it was known that he was going to the front, it was determined to send him a revolver as a souvenir suitable to the occasion. The necessary amount was quickly subscribed, and T. C. Shreve, Esq., R. C., presented it with some appropriate remarks, which were briefly responded to by Lieut. Daley. The Digby Brass Band, of which he was a member, escorted him to the steamer playing, "Will you be Home Back Again," and other appropriate airs.
