

1877- 1978

1877-1977

Now and then a printing job had a page or two of parchment paper which smelled very odd some days. I always dreaded it when "Man" would take you to the largest press in spite of the fact he was always opened as outside door to lessen circulation on the main plant.

One of the jobs I had to do, besides painting and grouting the floor, was to... I finished one and then... One day not long after I started to get to the grouting plant. I decided to climb the floor that apparently hadn't been checked or even considered.

"J.J." came along and said, "how are you making out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor. "J.J." laughed very heartily. He thought the remark pretty good and whole.

Sometimes the gasoline response is a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and the "blame" is fix-it man had previously worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without results. Man would then stand back and come quite dramatically then he would immediately start working. "See," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of coaxing."

On other occasions when some group refused duty for the dead, seemed to be brokenhearted, I would say, "use a little oil" and sure enough, after that is said, "use a little oil" and sure enough, after that is said, it took. They often since, have I heard of the value of that remark and the actual need of oil in many life situations, applied at the right time, right place and in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are, like the time I told "Mac" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1918 got together just before dark one evening and decided to mutilate the newly built outdoor Pease Hotel swimming pool which had just been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just out of the pool, nobody else seemed to be around except the four boys, no thought or time for bathing suits, so in the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in. The rest quickly followed and across the pool they swam. "Mac" listened to the story and hardly said anything, but the next "Digby Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story was something like, "Four Boy Swims Officially Open Pease Hotel Swimming Pool." Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Carl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars, second world war and Korea; was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Smith, now prominent draughtsman for many years in Digby; Clayton D. Snow, Digby wholesale importer and himself.

As a young teenager I used to like doing some writing about different events interesting to myself, and mostly for myself. One day "Mac" said to me how about writing your version of the story told about "The Marooning of Jerome". I took it and read at least two somewhat different versions about the man who was found marooned on a beach in some point on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Duffy County. When I read this man's torso had been cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

"Jerome" appeared to have been a man of considerable social standing and, possibly, of considerable wealth. However, the woman could or would ever say after being told the story by some family in the French about something that sounded like the either, yield not, or would not, who he was or why he was left there it was, and, one of Dugre County and different ideas have been years concerning this man. "Mie," said, I felt no urge to be different about this man. The have been very well equipped words and he was a sort of

Comment by David Sanford

The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and extends miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of W. Mary's Bay. This laid out into the water's edge, partly on level ground, and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having on an eastern aspect a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in extent. It terminates with the Fort and River's mouth at that name. It was secured by Leyden's tract (New York) in 1642, the grant of which went nearly to fiction, as, moving to other countries, left the shore

POETRY.
OUT IN THE COLD.
Turned out in the sombre twilight,
Out into the bitter cold,
And the pitiless sleet as it sweeps the streets
Is piercing her garments old,
And she looks on her breast is crying,
And her little ones clust'ring round
In a vague fright at the falling night,
And clutching her tattered gown.
For rent was not forthcoming,
And she could not find a room,
And she did not know her want and woe
As early she toiled and toiled,
He couldn't be losing his money—
Why should he care?—
'Tis only the storm King's wrath unfurled!
She has sewed in the dawning sunrise,
She has stitched in the gathering gloom,
And her eyes have grown dim and her fingers
As she worked in her dreary room.
But the pay was very meagre,
And the months were many to fill,
And the fatherly heart lay far apart
In the graveyard on the hill.
So she stands in the deepening darkness,
And her tired and aching head
Is sobbing with pain and the sad refrain
Of her children's cry for bread,
And she sees the laughing children
Ride past in their robes of fur,
And the city is bright with its mansions tonight
But there's never a home for her.

THE OLD HOME.
In the quiet shadows of twilight
I stand by the garden door,
And gaze on the old, old homestead,
So cherished and loved of yore,
But the ivy now is twining
Untraced on the faded wall;
And no more the voice of the children
Is echoing through the hall.
Through years of pain and sorrow,
Since first I left that part
The thought of the dear old homestead
Has lingered around my heart;
The porch, dimpled with roses,
The garden, bowing with reeds,
The gables' drooping eaves,
And the songs of birds at twilight
Amid the orchard leaves.
And the forms of those who loved me
In the happy childhood years
Appear at the dusky windows,
Throned in vision, dim with tears.
I hear their voices calling
From the shadows far away,
And I stretch my arms toward them
In the gloom of twilight gray.
But only the night winds answer
As I cry through the dismal air;
And only the mist comes swooping
From the darkness of the air
Yet, when I think of my childhood
Is calling from far away
And the faces of those who love me
Smile through the shadows gray.

SOLD OUT.
One of the many business letters that are thus:

LOWER ECKHART, Feb. 16, 1889.
J. R. Norton, Bridgetown, N. Y.
Dear Sir,—Please send me at once one quarter dozen of your Dock Boat Purifier, as I am all sold out and call for more. It is the best selling medicine I ever had in my store. The people speak well of it, and many have told me that it has done them a lot of good.
Yours truly,
R. P. SOLEY.

AN editor in Iowa being asked
"Do you pay for your paper?" said a good man do not; that they take the

High-Pressure

Living characters these modern days
seize a huge palm-leaf fan, and, returning, wave it back and forth
solemnly, and I felt her pat my shoulder, as she said:
"There, there, do cry, can't ye?
She'll pull through, Mr. March, if she'll only cry." And I knew that mother was walking the floor dis-traciously.
I noticed curiously the pattern of Mrs. Dawson's print wrapper. It was purple, with a little white sprig, and one of the big pearl buttons had burst from the capacious bosom, and to this day I hate the color of purple.
I saw all these things in a dim
way. Then I felt as if I were someone else, and I mentally looked at myself, laden and death-like, all the while crushed out of me, lying straight and still in an incongruous
blue muslin, with Mrs. Dawson's shawl thrown over me, and I thought:
"Poor girl, how sorry I am.
What if it were I, and it were my John who was dead?"
Then I thought, with intense surprise: "Why, it is I! And John, the John who once held me
close and kissed me, I don't know where."
At this period, Mrs. Dawson shook her head ominously. I think she spoke to me several times, and I did not answer. Why should I?
And she said to poor mother, who was aimlessly walking back and forth:
"Miss March, I guess I'd call Dr.
Kinney, if I was you. It's unnatural for her to be like this. I don't like it."
Then I looked up at her dully
and spoke for the first time. "No,"
I said. "I don't want him. I want
Mr. Easton—maybe he can give me some comfort." And my benumbed mind went wandering on in the dark, searching for something to cling to, until the spell was broken
by a hurried coming in, and Mr.
Easton, dark and thin, stood looking down at me compassionately. I believe he had a prayer-book in his hand, but he probably saw it was useless to talk to or pray with me
as anything but a child. I remember saying to him in an awe-struck whisper: "I have lost John, and so lost everything!" Mr. Easton was rather unpopular in the congregation. He was unsocial, ascetic, and what is commonly called "stunned," but now he knelt by me, and taking one of my passive hands in his, he first won my attention, and finally, when I vaguely began to believe that John was with God, and that both were definitely somewhere,
I felt into a convulsive fit of tears,
that probably saved my reason.
He was very good to me that first awful week, and I began to understand that he was unloved because unappreciated. June turned to July, and I began growing a little stronger, but for long months
I felt the effects of the shock I had suffered. Mr. Easton's kindness was most unobtrusive. He sometimes would send me books; gradually he fell into the habit of coming over and reading aloud to me,
evenings, as I lay on the sofa, for I was not strong enough to sit up long and, while I would catch a few words now and then, my mind
would be picturing, back of my closed eyelids, that awful shipwreck
over and over again. One evening,
I saw it all so distinctly that I started and cried: "Oh, stop! I cannot see anything yet but those awful waves. And I can hear nothing but those cries as the ship sank. Oh,
do you think I ever can forget?"
Mr. Easton had closed his book,
and he walked up and down the room slowly and softly. A flush of pain rose suddenly over his dark thin face. He paused near the window, and, pushing aside the curtain,
he looked absently out into the warm dark night, and I saw his lips move as if he were repeating something. Then he turned and came hurriedly up to the sofa. He put his hand out, and then suddenly drew it back and stood regarding
me in a loud whisper:
"Do tell her, for gracious sake,
and have it over with," and then
seizing me in his strong arms, sent
me gently on the hair cloth sofa.
Mother burst out crying, and
puts her arms about me and sobs:
"Prepare yourself for the worst,
Milly. Oh, Mrs. Dawson, do tell
her, I can't!"
I am awe-struck and bewildered,

read the whole article through, but glancing at me, she rushed franti-

MILLY'S STORY.

It is one of the loveliest June days
the earth ever saw. Each separate blade of grass seems to rejoice in the glorious sunlight, and my whole heart is in tune with the day, as I saunter slowly along the village road
with one hand in my pocket, holding tight the dear letter that has made me so happy since the noon
mail came in; for John is coming home at last, and we are to be married and live happy ever after, as my fairytale stories used to end, with the bliss of Prince Charming and his princess. A poor little princess this time, I think rather ruefully—more like the king who wed a beggar
maid, our story is; for dear Daddy
was only a farmer on a small scale,
though every inch a gentleman, and when he died, three years ago, my mother and I had a hard struggle for a little while. Of course we took summer boarders, as everyone did,
and even of course we lost money,
and then we made only I shall never regret that hard summer, since it made me John, and, although our courtship was sealed by the final question being asked when I was picking peas in the vegetable garden, it was none the less sweet and romantic for that. My John is Dr.
John Westerly, and he was staying in Donnybrook, making some investigations about the malaria region,
for a pamphlet he was writing. He boarded with us, and, brilliant, successful and rich as he was, he loved poor little me, as I am sure no one was ever loved before. When I think of the lovely accomplished woman he must have known and look at myself critically I cannot think it true; but it is, and he is coming home from Paris, where he has been studying in the hospitals
for a year—is even now on his way.
When the happiness of it comes over me I can scarcely keep from singing along the street, as I return
from my walks.
How lovely the world is. How good people are, I think, and old Mrs. Mallocks beams and nods to me from her window.
As I draw near our gate, I can see distastefully that mother has shut
all the sun out with closed blinds;
well, very soon I let a flood of light
in, and glorify the rooms.
"Mother," I call out gayly, running up the steps of the porch, "it's too early for flies. What makes you shut the house up so?"
I rush to the sitting room and open the blinds. Then, turning around, I see mother, white and tear-stained and looking half dead, with a newspaper in her hand.
Mrs. Dawson from next door says
in a loud whisper:
"Do tell her, for gracious sake,
and have it over with," and then
seizing me in his strong arms, sent
me gently on the hair cloth sofa.
Mother bursts out crying, and
puts her arms about me and sobs:
"Prepare yourself for the worst,
Milly. Oh, Mrs. Dawson, do tell
her, I can't!"
I am awe-struck and bewildered,
but my one thought is that the bank
which holds our few hundred dollars has broken, for we have no near relatives, and I have just heard from

HE STUCK A STEADY THING.
The car was quite full, and I sat down in a seat with a rather intelligent-looking man who had a new-paper in his lap. He was pleasant and remarked that "it looked some-like snow," which was a fact. Then he abused the railroad company for not providing better cars and making better time, and we were soon
very friendly. It is always a great pleasure to meet a man on a train
who will abuse the company with you and act as if he cared to make it pleasant for his fellow-travelers.
We found fault with the company
until we were tired, and then he said he was going to Alleghany.
He was going to settle down there,
he said, and stop roaming around.
He'd traveled a good deal in his time, but he'd concluded it didn't pay, and hereafter Alleghany was his home. He'd struck something there that he thought was sure to be a steady thing for several years
at least, and he didn't see why he might not as well stay right there.
In fact, he'd firmly made up his mind to do so, and no consideration would induce him to move. He said if I ever happened in Alleghany to hunt him up, and I promised to do so. He would be glad to see me he explained, any day. I wasn't going to be outdone, so I told him
if he was in New York at any time to come in and see me. He looked at the water cooler vaguely, and said he probably wouldn't be that way much, as his duties in Alle-ghany would keep him pretty closely confined. We chatted some time very pleasantly and found fault with the company some more, when he asked me cheerfully if I would please take off his hat and place it on the rack above, as it was getting rather warm in the car.

I looked at him as inquiringly as I knew how, but not learning anything that way, I asked him gently
why he didn't take off his own hat.
He wriggled his arms around a little, and the newspaper slipped off his lap, and I saw he was wearing a pair of adjustable steel handcuffs.
He also had shackles on his ankles.
A man in the seat behind rose and took off my companion's hat and put it on the rack, explaining as he did
so that he was the county sheriff,
and that he was taking my friend to Alleghany to serve a twenty-year term in the penitentiary for young-ing his brother over the head with a brick. I then went back and sat with a fat woman who was carrying a basket of eggs in her lap.—Tribune.

I wondered at his caring to talk to me; at his religious kindness, I believed it, in being willing to try
and interest the poor pale woman,
with all her fresh beauty gone, that my glass showed me, the listless
black-robed girl to whom life looked so poor and empty. He stayed half the afternoon in our cool little parlor, and when he went out I tried to thank him for the kindness
and show him that I appreciated
his unselfishness; but he checked
me summarily and departed for a toilsome walk in the hot August sun, to visit some sick man several miles along the shore. After he left, I went wearily around the room, tidying the little arrangement a visitor makes. Mother had gone over to Mrs. Dawson's, and I was alone. I heard a step on the porch, and moved slowly to the door, and in one moment I was clashed in John's arms! For the first—and probably the last—time

in my life, I was guilty of fainting;
but John merged the lower into the physician, and brought me to my senses very quickly. Why should I try to describe a scene that was sacred to us both. Let it suffice me to say that heaven seemed for once to be on this earth, that the measure of my former suffering was
the measure of my present joy.
Half an hour later, I knew all: how John had been picked up, quite unconscious, after floating hours, clinging to a plank and some rigging,
by a small brig bound for a little Dutch port; how he had been delirious from fever for weeks; and how he had started for home, even when the Dutch doctor had assured him he was risking his life, and had come to me before anyone knew of his arrival even. He had begged the German doctor to cable
to me, and had assured me
it was done. Whether he had made some mistake in my address, or what, we never knew;
but I had not received the message.
That evening I wrote a note to Mr.
Easton, begging him to come over,
the next day, and rejoice with us.
Mr. Archer's little boy, where he boarded, brought me this reply the next morning:
"My Dear Miss MILLICENT:
I am leaving Donnybrook for some time, perhaps for always, and I start to-day, so I shall not see you before I go. Do not think me cruel
if I say it is sometimes easier for me
to mourn with those who mourn
than to rejoice with those who rejoice; but believe that my prayers
are for your happiness always.
And, when you think of your own great grief and pray for those who suffer, remember me.
Always faithfully yours,
CUTBERT EASTON."

There came a sudden little stab of pain through my heart as I read this—a sudden access of light on things that had puzzled me, which almost blinded me for a moment. I handed the note to John silently. He had told me of Easton's kindness.
He read it through grimly and a faint flush tinged his cheek.
"What do you think of it," I inquired.
"How old is he?" asked John, before he replied.
"I don't know—twenty-seven perhaps."
"Well, then, I think he may get over it," he replied bitterly; then,
with a rush of generous feeling:
"God help the poor fellow. I pity him, Milly. It was a sad return
you made for his kindness—wasn't it? Don't grieve over it. I know you never intended to make him
care for you."

"Oh, John," I sobbed, "I never thought of it till I got this note."
A tear fell on the paper. Was John a little jealous? Perhaps so.
For he took the note gently from me and threw it in the fire. Yet I truly think he was sorer than I.
John and I are married now, and I have never seen Mr. Easton since.
I heard, not long ago, that he was devoting himself to mission work
in the city.

I never could have loved him,
even if I had not seen my John; but I never, morning or night, fail to pray remorsefully for the man whose happiness I unconsciously wrecked.

A sea monster has appeared near Manitowish, Cuba. Intelligent persons who saw it, calculate that the monster measures about 150 feet long by 40 feet wide. It is of dark gray color, with white spots the size
of dinner plates all over the back.
Its head, fins and tail are identical with those of a shark. It was roaming around the entrance of Manitan-zas bay for three days and was the terror of fishermen, who declared that they had never seen anything to compare with it. This monster is supposed to be the great tiger
shark seen several years ago in the Indian ocean.

The main barracks of the Halifax
citadel were partially destroyed by fire on Sunday night. The fire originated from a fuse and caught in the roof. It was a large three-story building with wooden roof, capable
of accommodating five hundred men,
and was occupied by three batteries
of royal artillery. The men lost most of their kits and their small arms were badly damaged. There was great confusion among the military but the civic fire department
worked bravely and confined the fire to the upper story. The burning building was within forty feet of the magazine, in which it is said three hundred tons of powder are stored.
The loss is $5,000.

Roscoe Conkling came to New York a little more than three years ago and easily filled the first place
at the bar all by himself. In one year
he made $100,000, or just as much as he had made (and ended by losing)
in all the years of his public life.
He was sought whenever two corporations fell out, whenever there was a suit by or against the people.
His earnings were enormous. In three years he died and left more than $800,000—a quarter of a million of which he gained by the large sum that he had earned.
There never was such a dazzling record of money-making in New York.
No study of history will show another case of a man's coming to New York penniless, and at the end of three years dying and leaving almost three-quarters of a million
earned or made by his own efforts and judgment.

This powder never varies. A marvel
of purity, strength and wholesomeness.
More economical than the ordinary kind, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short-weight, adulterated
preparations which are offered for sale.

queer looking satchel under a seat.
It was taken to the superintendent's baby boy in it, not over a month old,

in a long white slip and with flannel skirts packed about his feet. The old valise had been lined with cotton and in the snug nest the baby slept contentedly. The valise also contained a half filled milk bottle smelling strongly of paragon. The baby was turned over to the police matron.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would head only three words of mine, I could have saved the world. These words would be--'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effective, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of rheumatism."

EMIN PASHA'S ROMANCE.

The Wonderful Career of the Mohammedan Jew Ruler.

Africa is essentially the land of mystery; and it is, perhaps in accordance with the fitness of things that the two travellers who have of late been most conspicuously associated with the opening up of the Dark Continent should be, to some extent, men of mystery. Concerning the birth and early days of Henry Morton Stanley there has been a lively controversy in the newspapers; and it is now generally reported that his real name is not Stanley, but Rowlands. As for Emin Pasha, his real name is Edward Schnitzer, and he was born at Oppeln, in Silesia, in 1840. Yet there is a great difference in the degree of mystery that surrounds Stanley and Emin. Although Stanley is not Stanley, all the leading incidents in the career of the discoverer of Livingston and the founder of the Congo state are perfectly well known. Ever since he reached full manhood Stanley has been a public character. Emin, on the other hand, is still a man of mystery. His assumed name is a household word all over the civilized world; his marvelous devotion and quick pick have been where quick action was needed, and where quick action was needed, his name has been a household word. But it is extraordinary how small is the amount of trustworthy information that is obtainable about him. There is no man of anything like equal celebrity of whom so few facts have been made public. Nevertheless, he has had an adventurous history, and a creditable one. Of the episodes of his career, which are known to his intimates, not one, perhaps, does him more honor, or is more characteristic of him as a man, than the episode which led to his marriage.

In 1864 Dr. Schnitzer, who had then just taken his degree at Berlin, made up his mind to travel in the East, in order to study Oriental habits and languages. He had but little money. He had, however, indomitable energy, and good fortune followed him. On his way eastward from Trieste to Antivari he learned that the Turkish government was in urgent need of quarantine doctors; and on reaching Antivari he was offered and accepted the post of medical quarantine officer there. At that time he was in his twenty-sixth year, of slender build, below middle height, sallow of complexion, bright of eye and apparently nearly twice his real age. His habits as well as his physiognomy betrayed his Hebrew origin. In ten months he made such progress with his Eastern studies that he was already able to pass even among Orientals for an Oriental. He had learned to speak and write Turkish and Albanian with perfect fluency and correctness; and at the same time he had made himself a master of Italian. His talent for languages was in fact, so exceptional that in 1865 he acquired Persian and Arabic, and in 1867 English and French, so thoroughly that he often involuntarily misled his visitors as to his nationality. In the last named year Schnitzer became body physician and confidential adviser to Ismael Pasha, Vali of Scutario--the same Ismael who, in 1853, had defeated the Russians at the battle of Ottenitz; and not until Ismael died did the friendly connection come to an end. So fully, indeed, did the Vali trust the young doctor that he admitted him even into his harem, to attend during his illness, upon his wife, a Hungarian lady named Hanum. Schnitzer was allowed to continue his visits after Hanum's recovery. Schnitzer was a man of considerable education and her husband, though no Pasha had fewer prejudices, was sensible enough to recognize that a Hungarian wife could not justly be treated exactly like a Turkish one; while Schnitzer on his part, behaved with scrupulous loyalty to his patron, and was regarded with ever increasing affection and respect by the Vali. Schnitzer, in fact, made himself so necessary that Ismael openly alluded to him as his right hand, and the Albanians commonly spoke of the doctor as the Deputy-Vali. But Ismael, like many a Turkish governor, had numerous enemies, and these were powerful enough to procure his disgrace. One day a Turkish frigate anchored in the mouth of the Bujana, one of the Salona's side-decks, and without any warning whatever, Ismael Pasha was taken on board and carried as a state prisoner to Constantinople. All his property was confiscated; and if his wife, Hanum, had not managed to conceal her jewels she would probably have starved. Under Dr. Schnitzer's escort she followed her unfortunate husband to Stambul; but soon after her arrival there Ismael was sent in chains to Trebizond, where he was kept in a state of great misery for more than four years. During the whole of this period he was daily and almost hourly attended by Schnitzer; who not only endeavored to lighten his misfortunes, but acted as his secretary and drew up for him numerous appeals to the Sultan and to the Great Powers at Pera. Not, however, until 1873 did these appeals produce any apparent effect. Then, as suddenly as had come the order for the Pasha's arrest, came the order for his release and restoration to imperial favor. Ismael was appointed Governor of Janina, in Lower Albania, and in due course, with his wife and the ever faithful Schnitzer, he went to assume his position. A year later Ismael, whose health had suffered from his long imprisonment, died, and it became Schnitzer's duty first to bury his old friend and then to arrange affairs for his old friend's wife. The doctor had, it seems, already exchanged Judaism for Mohammedanism, and assumed the name of Emin. He had, moreover, become greatly attached to Hanum. It is not surprising, therefore, that he considered that he should facilitate the carrying out of his various obligations by marrying the patron's widow. As soon as the needful formalities had been attended to, and the period of mourning had elapsed, he put his project into practice, and the wedding was celebrated at Constantinople, we believe, the summer of 1875. Such is the story of Emin's marriage. It has been stated that his wife was a "relative of the celebrated Pasha of Janina,"--a description which applies with more accuracy to a companion of the great Ali Pasha who was murdered in 1822 than to the widow of Ismael Pasha; but Ismael was one of the most celebrated soldiers of his day, and as he was also, for a short time, Pasha of Janina, the assertion, though misleading, is not altogether incorrect. Emin, we understand, has now been for some years a widower. He is still a Mohammedan, and, in spite of much that has been said to the contrary, he has never professed Christianity. He is, however, a man of the greatest tolerance and breadth of mind; he never obtrudes his religious belief; and many of those who have most closely associated with him have suspected his creed as little as his nationality. The linguistic studies, which he began in 1865 he has continued ever since; and he is now credited with a thorough knowledge not only of Hebrew, Arabic, Turkish, Persian, Albanian, Italian, English and French, but also of Koptic, Chaldean, Somali, Suahili, Berber, Galla, and many African dialects which are scarcely known to the dictionary maker or grammarian. In these studies he has shown the same perseverance, the same indomitable energy and determination to overcome all obstacles, which has characterized his marvellous work in Equatorial Africa. --St. James Gazette.

THE QUEEN ON FRENCH SOIL.

Where the Queen will stay during her Continental Visit.

The Queen has exchanged the Royal Windsor for the charming Biscayan watering-place of Biarritz. As the Countess of Balmoral, our venerable Queen hopes to pass a month in retirement at the princely chateau selected for her residence within sight of the Pyrenees. Accompanied by Princess Beatrice and her husband, Her Majesty reached Portsmouth Harbor on Tuesday evening. After the illustrious voyagers had embarked on board the Victoria and Albert, the Royal yacht put off into the stream to anchor for the night. Her Majesty dined and slept on board, and yesterday morning, after the arrival of a special messenger from London with despatches, accompanied by a yacht flotilla, the Victoria and Albert sailed for Cherbourg, which was reached the same evening. Disembarking at the French port, Her Majesty was to leave by rail for Biarritz, where she was timed to arrive this afternoon. Elaborate arrangements have been made at the Chateau La Rochefoucauld for the reception of the Queen. The surrounding park has been laid out as an English garden, the chateau being placed in communication with a neighboring villa which will act as an annex for the accommodation of the Queen's suite. The approach of the Queen's Majesty had excited considerable interest on the frontiers of France and Spain. The Queen Regent of Spain will proceed to San Sebastian to meet the English Sovereign, who will thus not only have an opportunity of seeing, but of actually nursing the young King. Beneath sunnier skies Her Majesty will be able to indulge her love of outdoor exercise, and her fondness for sketching new scenes. --English Exchange.

A CURE FOR LUMBAGO.--That painful complaint can be quickly cured by the right remedy. Miss Mary Jane Gould, of Stony Creek, Ont., says: "I was troubled with lumbago, and could not get relief until I used Hagar's Yellow Oil. One bottle of which cured me entirely."

PARIS, March 22.--The Italian press are preaching a crusade against gambling on the Riviera. A Genoa paper says the increase of this vice is making a hell of that earthly paradise. It gives authentic statistics showing that at Monte Carlo alone during the past three months there have been fifteen duels and sixteen suicides all directly traceable to the gambling quarrels.

FATHER HAD QUINCY.--We find Burdock Blood Bitters excellent for weakness, and equally so for headache. Father also suffered severely from quinsy, which B. B. by its tonic and purifying properties, completely cured."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that it is recommended as a superior to any purgative known to man." --H. A. Bennett, M.D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. It is a safe and pleasant medicine. The CENTRAL COMPANY, 17 Murray Street, N. Y.

Belding's Lintiment and Cleansing Compound can be obtained at the drug stores of J. Chalmers and R. P. Stark & Co., and at G. I. Letteney & Bro. Parties at a distance can have the same mailed to them by addressing J. C. Cox & Co., Digby. Cash must accompany all orders. Price of Lintiment 20 cents; Cleansing Compound 25 cents.

Gen. Boulanger will visit London in June.

I have been troubled for five years, with Kidney disease and Liver complaint, and my left leg badly affected, and the catheter in my head. I have tried six different doctors, and all kinds of patent medicines, and found no relief. I sent for Dr. Reeves and took four bottles of his medicine, and I must say that I am restored to perfect health.

Ms. Victoria Surveyor.

December 23, 1888.

In the House of Assembly Hon. Mr. Longley has introduced a bill entitled an act respecting county court judges, criminal courts.

The bill is intended to provide for the speedy trial of persons committed by justices for trial on indictable offences. The county court judges of the province by this measure would be given criminal jurisdiction should the person charged with such indictable offence assent to be tried summarily before such judge without a jury. The bill does not apply to offences of a capital character. Under the present law it is a source of considerable expense to the various municipalities to have persons in jail sometimes for a long period awaiting trial in the supreme court.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS--Are you disturbed at night and broken of your sleep by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of teething? If so send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor, crying, fretful baby, and soothe him to sleep. It is a safe and reliable remedy, and is used by all mothers; there is no mistake about it. It cures Dysentery and Diarrhoea, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind colic, softens the Gums, relieves Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and authors of the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

It is a fact, established by the Testimony of Thousands in the Province, that

DR. NORTON'S

Dock Blood Purifier

COMPOSED BY an old and experienced Doctor of Forty Years practice in the United States, has made more cures of

Dyspepsia, Kidney, Liver and Blood Diseases

than any other medicine now or ever sold in this country. It unlocks all the clogged avenues of the blood, carrying off all the impurities and foul humors, overcomes that tired feeling; creates a good appetite and gives strength to every part of the system by purifying the blood, which is the life of man.

Testimonials from many who were thought to be incurable by some of our best Doctors, but who are now well by using this medicine accompany each bottle.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Western Counties Railway.

Tuesday, April 17th.
Sir John Thompson moved that bill (No. 127) in reference to the Western Counties Railway, be read a second time.
Mr. JONES (Halifax) moved that the other day to the Minister of Justice, in connection with this bill, the remarks which had been made very generally respecting the advertisement regarding the contract, and the advertisement came out on the 18th March, and tenders were called for; notice was given that the specifications could be seen on the 28th of March, and that tenders would be received on the 8th of April. It appeared to those who looked into the matter that eleven days was a very short time to allow competitors to examine plans and specifications for a work involving the expenditure of half a million dollars, and it did look upon the face of it, as if there was some intention on the part of the government, or some predetermination on the part of the department, to give that work to some person who had the favor of the Minister.
It was not considered by those who were competent to speak upon the subject, that the time was sufficient for the competitors or contractors to come here, and examine the plans and specifications and in their tenders.
With regard to the bill, of course, it is all right.
Sir John Thompson—I did not know until the hon. gentleman mentioned it the other day, that the time had been so short as he said, I will make enquiries and be able to explain before the third reading of the bill. There has been no predetermination, and I am not aware that any Minister has given a reason why so short a period was allowed. The hon. gentleman remembers the explanation I gave when the bill was introduced. We confirmed in 1887 the agreement with this company, which authorized the Minister of Railways to enter upon the work and spend the $500,000 which was provided for in the agreement for the completion of the railway between Annapolis and Digby. In order to remove any doubts it has been considered desirable that there should be parliamentary authority, irrespective of the confirmation of the agreement for the execution of this work, and to make applicable the Expropriation Act, the Railways Act, and other enactments bearing upon the subject. It may be necessary, in order to accomplish some slight diversions, to expropriate some small pieces of land.
Motion agreed to.
(In the Committee.)

Sir Richard Cartwright—Has this contract been awarded to which the hon. member for Halifax (Mr. Jones) referred? I suppose the First Minister has charge of that business at present.
Sir John A. MacDonald—Yes.
Sir Richard Cartwright—Has the contract been awarded?
Sir John A. MacDonald—I do not know.
Sir Richard Cartwright—Because there is no doubt that so short a time, 11 days would make the tendering a farce.
Sir John A. MacDonald—We will ascertain about that.
Bill reported, read the third time and passed.

A SOCIAL AND COMMERCIAL REVOLUTION.

The Change that the Opening of the Short Line to St. John Will Cause.

It is said that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's "Short Line" to the Maritime Provinces will be opened by the 1st of July. We trust their expectation will be realized. Dominion day would be an excellent day for opening a new line of railway connecting between the upper and lower provinces. As the opening of the line to St. John, N. B., will be made in a night, the importance of the opening of this short cut can scarcely be exaggerated. It might be well for the railway authorities and the citizens of Annapolis to consider the advisability of celebrating the opening of some formal manner. There certainly should be excursion trains each way on that day, and even if the trains were to run free for the first day they would find the generous result in subsequent profit. The great trouble with this Confederation of ours is that the people do not know each other. Differences of race and language have kept quiet in the past, and the time needed to make a trip from the upper to the lower provinces by the Intercolonial railway has limited travel between the two sections to politicians, merchants, commercial travellers, and other persons principally on business. The construction of a railway bringing Montreal and St. John within easier reach of each other is going to work a social and commercial revolution. Thousands will flock in the hot summer months to the upper provinces to the cool pleasant retreats on the Bay of Fundy. St. John, St. Andrews, St. George, St. Martins, Digby, Yarmouth, Weymouth, and other beautiful and healthy resorts will be resorted to by thousands and those who would spend a summer by the seaside, such as are not excellent anywhere on the continent. Our friends in the neighboring republic appreciate the summer attractions of the Maritime provinces and gather by the thousands from a central point, the Bay of Fundy such as St. John, or Shediac on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, it is an easy matter to visit Halifax or the beautiful Annapolis Valley or Cape Breton. As regards the business traffic which the new line will draw to itself it is only necessary to compare the short and cheap route with the long, circuitous and expensive extension to the Atlantic coast, but it will, by cheapening freights both ways, do much to swell the commerce between ourselves and the people by the sea. Montrealers will do well to take an early opportunity after the opening of the road to spy out the land and satisfy themselves of the possibilities for new trade which the Short Line will open up.

THE MODUS VIVENDI.

The terms of the Modus Vivendi, or in plain English, a limited lease of fishing, conditions, grants, etc., will be continued this season by the Canadian government and are as follows:

1. For a period not exceeding two years from the present date, the privilege of entering the bays and harbors of the Atlantic coast of Canada and Newfoundland shall be granted to the United States fishing vessels by annual licences at a fee of $4 dollars per ton for the following purposes:
The purchase of bait, fish, lines, and all other supplies and outfits.
Transshipment of catch and shipping of crews.
2. If, during the continuance of this arrangement, the United States should require the duties on fish, fish oil, whale and seal oil and the coverings, packages, etc., the said licence shall be free of charge.
3. The United States fishing vessels entering the bays and harbors of the Atlantic coast of Canada and Newfoundland for any of the four purposes mentioned in Article 1, of the Convention of the 24th of October 1818, and not remaining therein more than 24 hours, shall be required to procure a licence at the custom house, providing that they do not communicate with the shore.
4. Forfeiture to be exacted only for the offences of fishing or preparing to fish in territorial waters.

Vital Wicks.

"There are three things the lamp of man's life: brain, blood, and breath," thus writes an eminent American author. The most frequent derangements occur in the blood and the liver, by which, when in healthy condition, the blood is purified. Look out for the terrible chain of diseases that owe their inception to torpid liver and consequent impure blood. When the symptoms of liver and kidney troubles, indigestion (dyspepsia), constipation, and dropsy, make their appearance, the system is in immediate need of a course of Dr. Parke's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Parke's Golden Medical Discovery has been tested and proven in the case of tens of thousands of cases. It purifies and enriches the blood, restores lost vitality, and effectually eradicates the seeds of most maladies that visit mankind.

Our VANDERBILT CORRESPONDENT.—From Esquimaux, B. C., Mrs. A. B. Cameron writes that being very much troubled with Dyspepsia she tried two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters, which gave great relief, and hopes that others may be induced to try it also and receive like benefits.

My sister has been troubled with severe headache, but these pills have cured her."

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—MANFORD, Iowa, April 7.—Robert Shideler and wife were driving to town yesterday when a spark from Shideler's pipe ignited the clothing of his wife, and as the wind was blowing a stiff gale, she was enveloped in flames in an instant. Terror-stricken she jumped from the buggy. Her husband did all in his power to subdue the flames but to no avail. The grass took fire around them and Mrs. Shideler was completely enveloped in a fiery shroud and died before her husband's arms could reach her. Shideler's hands were burned to the bone and it is feared they will have to be amputated. His physicians say he may die.

Decreasing the Death Rate. The mortality among consumptives has been materially decreased of late years by the use of Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda.

In its Parliamentary Review the Halifax Critic speaks thusly:—Oh that missing link! Yarmouth has cried for it, Digby has sighed for it, Annapolis has lied for it. The representatives of Annapolis have always pretended that they desired to see the missing link finished, but most of the good Port Royalists are keen enough to know that it will reduce Annapolis from the position of a railway terminus to that of a railway side station. However, from a provincial standpoint the link will be of great advantage, and Yarmouth cries and Digby sighs will now be quieted, as its construction is to be undertaken as Government work.

MOTHERS.

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, cures pain, cures diarrhoea and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mother's friend. 35c doses 3c. 1y

Laurel Dumont, Riel's lieutenant, held a meeting at Ratoche. He was of the opinion that Sir John should have called on him while at Ottawa. Amnesty had now been granted to the rebels, and that meant they should get cattle and every other thing lost confiscated. A committee was appointed to get up a petition and forward it to Regina. If Lieut. Governor Royal refuses to sign it, Dumont would go to Ottawa himself. "We must have our claims paid," said Dumont, "the Metis were not to blame for the trouble. They were led into it and their claims must be paid." Dumont also addressed the Indians in Cree.

The subsidies proposed by the Dominion government for the ocean mail service on the Atlantic and Pacific, are $500,000 for a weekly steam service between Canada and the United Kingdom; $25,000 for a fortnightly service between British Columbia, the Australian Colonies and New Zealand; and $15,000 annually for a monthly, or $25,000 for a fortnightly service between British Columbia, China and Japan, provided the government of Great Britain and Ireland gives in the latter case a subsidy of $45,000 for a monthly or $75,000 for a fortnightly service. These subsidies are liberal and should ensure an efficient service on both oceans.

This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers and faithfully carried out for many years.

A Bridge Twenty-Three Miles Long

Some years ago plans for a tunnel under the British Channel were put before the public and the vast project would doubtless have been executed but for the caution of the government authorities, who feared the dangers of an invasion through such a roadway.

Now comes a project which seems to be a bridge, for a bridge about twenty-three miles long, from Cape Grimes to Folkestone. The estimated cost for a bridge 100 feet wide, with four lines of rails and a carriage-way, is $7,000,000. Even if the cost should be several times this amount, it is likely that the traffic would justify the expenditure.

An odd mixture of words, but the sufferer from constipation, indigestion, impure blood, biliousness, and other such ills can be cured if he will, without taking any of the usual, old-fashioned pills. He is superseded in one day by those wonderful-working, yet tiny, little globules, known as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. No gripping, no drastic purging; do not cause constipation afterwards, as the old-style pills do. One little Globule a dose.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

OUR AMERICAN COUSINS.

The kindly feeling and good fellowship which citizens of the United States exhibit towards the subjects of Her Majesty, is in complete contrast to the hostility which the same people through their government, show towards the British people and nation.

Whenever either people need assistance or protection in foreign countries, it is always found that they hasten to afford it in a most friendly and brotherly manner, as though it were the most natural thing in the world to do. This has been exemplified scores of times; in China, in Egypt, and wherever the necessities of the case called for the exhibition of this feeling, it has been invariably shown. The latest instance of this kind was during the recent hurricane at Samoa, when three American and three German men of war were lost, while the only British vessel, the Calypso, escaped.

As the British ship was slowly and doggedly forcing her way out, she passed quite near the American flag ship Trenton, whose crew greeted them with three hearty cheers, putting new heart into the crew of the Calypso, who believed it almost impossible to escape. They also lent them boats to coal their vessel with, and finally gave them one. In return the British commander presented Admiral Kimberly with a complete diving apparatus, and the officers of the Calypso presented to the officers of the Trenton thirteen sheep, as the men were living on canned meat and coconuts. Such brotherly conduct has been and will be repeated again and again.

But while such is the individual feeling, how comes it that the United States government acts with such thinly disguised hostility towards that of Britain, and that their politicians when appealing for popular support feel it necessary to show a similar animus. When Mr. Blaine was in England, he was treated with the most boundless hospitality and kindness, but immediately on his return he participated in the presidential campaign, and then nothing was so bad to say about England, and no incident too great to hurt its government. In the New York Senate the other day, the Hon. Oliver Morton, premier of Ontario, visiting the legislature in session at Albany, was refused admission to the floor of the house, and some Senator Murphy, gave as one of his reasons for opposing his admission, that he objected to any country being extended to any dependent of the British crown. The ungracious course pursued by this man was probably due to personal dislike of Great Britain, but it is evidenced by the result, that it was approved of by a majority of the senate. Suppose the case were reversed, and an official occupying a similar position in the United States received such discourteous treatment at the hands of the legislature of Ontario, the American press would resent it as a national insult, and as a slap at the nation represented by the visitor. This is not a pleasant state of things, but it is one that we have used to recognize for a long time past, and has been shown to exist in too many instances to be capable of denial. To a very large extent this may be traced to the intense hatred of Britain, which exists among Irish Americans, and to the intense desire to secure the Irish vote, which is usually given to the party showing the greatest amount of Anglophobia. This desire leads to a truckling to the Irish party, even to the extent of expelling a British minister, and endangering the peaceful relations of the two countries.

Another cause is the everlasting fourth of July oration, in which the revolution and all the causes which led to it are annually rediscussed, where facts are distorted and pictured in most extravagant language. These occurrences of a past age might now cease to be dish up annually, to inflame the minds and excite the feelings of a generation which ought to have outgrown such things. Their fitting place is in the records of the past, they are not in harmony with things as they exist to-day. No real feelings of mutual respect and no friendly political relations can obtain between the two nations until there is a change in this respect, and the misfortune is, that the feeling is re-echoed upon us in the Dominion, and we suffer from it on account of our connection with the British empire.

THE WEYMOUTH TIMES SOMEWHAT MIXED.

Our much esteemed contemporary the Weymouth Times, in its issue of the 24th ult., contained the following paragraph:

"The Weymouth correspondent of the COURIER, in his notes to that journal last week, tries to crawl out of the position he placed himself in by suggesting a rest in the matter of temperance agitation. It is a hope, to see those whose highest interests in temperance is manifested in a disposition to turn their backs on the cause, and to be in the good graces of the workers in this noble cause. It shows that they know on which side is the right, though unwilling to do battle in its behalf. We are glad to learn that our friend had a temperance picnic instilled into his mind in the days of his youth," we hope he will not forget those lessons, and trust the gentle correction we have given may lead him to ponder those early instructions, and not depart from them in more mature age."

We drew the attention of our correspondent to the above, in the words which the Times has quoted and credited to us, under the heading "Tastes Differ." Here is also the editors opinion of his own production:—

TASTES DIFFER.
The Weymouth Times is greatly exercised over the COURIER's correspondent at that place. Doubtless that gentleman will find in this last notice, much food for serious reflection.—Digby Courier.

"Our attention has been called to the above article which appears in the last issue of the COURIER. What its significance is, is beyond our ken, but our correspondence can find no fault with such claptrap as the article referred to, we cannot, we prefer something more substantial."—Wey. Times.

No doubt the editor of the Times felt sad when he read his own production; we felt sad when we read it, and could make no more out of it than he did. But to call it "claptrap" it was very unwise to say that. Even though it were true, your readers would have made allowances for you, as we did. You can't do everything at once, and perhaps the Times will improve as it gets older.

WEYMOUTH NOTES.

(From a Correspondent.)

The Meteghan River Milling Co. succeeded in getting their drive of logs down on the river to within 3 or 4 miles of their mills at the bridge when the drive stranded, owing to the very shallow water, and has remained there ever since. Mr. H. E. Oakes, who is superintending the drive, is in hopes though that the rain on Monday will assist them in floating, and thus get over the poorest places in the river, if they expect to have their logs in by the end of the week. The water has been extremely low all the spring, and as there has been no melting snow to keep it up, and heavy rains, it is almost impossible to get the logs down the river. The company succeeded in getting a good lot of logs.

Mrs. Rice, who was so ill for the last two weeks, died on Sunday last. Her funeral took place on Wednesday from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Hogan. The remains were interred at Church Point. Mrs. Rice had reached the age of 84, and has been intimately and industriously connected with our town for over 40 years. The bereaved family have the hearty sympathy of the entire place.

The many friends and acquaintances throughout the county, who knew the late Mrs. Rice, will regret to learn of her severe illness at his home in Denver, Col. Word was received by his father on Tuesday, that he was very ill with hemorrhage of the lungs. The news was very surprising to his friends on account of the encouraging report of his health from late letters. We sincerely trust that the hopes that are still held out for his recovery may not prove delusive. Clifford Jones, his brother, is with him.

There is to be a public meeting in the hall on Saturday next, at 2 p.m., for the purpose of giving an expression as to the "foot farm." It is to be hoped that there will be a full meeting. It is hoped that the resolutions that may be presented and passed, may be of the same character and equally as expressive as those of the Digby meeting. They ought to be.

We were glad to see Mr. G. D. Campbell at his wonted place of business last week, and we have no doubt that he is just as glad to be seen there. Mr. C. looks none the worse of his severe attack, except that one hand looks less formidable than formerly, and is busy as ever "booming" things, feeling in excellent spirits.

The Misses Campbell have returned from Windsor, where they have been visiting friends.

The Ball, under the auspices of the Siasiboo Snow Shoe Club, on Thursday evening last, is reported to have been a grand success. The dancing was kept up from 7 o'clock, and that it was one of the best of the kind ever given in the place. The dancing was kept up until 11 o'clock, and the music was excellent, and all went "merry as a marriage bell."

Marshalltown in Favor of a Poor House.

A meeting called in accordance with a resolution of the Municipal Council, in January last, to consider the best method of providing for the poor, was held at Marshalltown on the 30th of April, 1889. N. B. Wescott, Esq., was appointed Chairman, and George L. Marshall, Esq., Secretary. The following resolution, moved by Robert Marshall, seconded by W. H. Haines, was passed unanimously:

"Whereas, The present system of providing for the poor of this district is very unsatisfactory to the rate payers thereof,

And whereas, The system of caring for such unfortunate is considered by many as not being in accordance with the laws of humanity,

And whereas, In the several counties of this province, which have adopted the poor house and poor house system, it has been found to be the most economical as well as the most humane way of caring for such unfortunate.

Therefore resolved, That this meeting instruct the Council of this district to use his best endeavors in the Municipal Council to procure a farm and poor house in some suitable locality in this Municipality, for the better support of the poor and the harmless inmate who are now supported in the insane hospital, at Halifax, at a much higher rate than they could be kept in such poor house.

DIGBY ACADEMY.—The following pupils of the Academy have passed from the 1st year to the 2nd:

	Average.
Laura Macdonald	92
Cor Wernum	92
Frank McBride	88
Harry Bacon	79
Emma A. Hixman	69
Edith Gault	68
Sadie Durkee	61
Annie M. Stalling	55
Ernest Kenesly	56
Charles Kenesly	53
Jennie Turnbull	51
Willie Barker	50
Harry Piden	50

The following have been admitted to the Academy at the recent Entrance Examinations:

Imports from Boston per steamer Cleopatra April 26th and 30th: 5 boxes paint, 1 case millinery, J. F. Saunders; 125 lbs cornmeal, E. Burnham; 1 box medicine, J. Chaloner; 1 box, 6 letters paper, 2 bbls, 1 box glassware, G. L. Letteney & Bro; 3 bags seed, 2 crates glassware, J. F. Stark & Co; 2 crates oil, Turnbull & Welsh; 86 empty egg cases, 21 do lobster crates, 2 cases household goods, 3 cases nursery stock, 11 B. Short.
Exports to Boston per steamer Cleopatra April 26th and 30th: 60 cases canned lobsters, Digby Cannery Co; 2 bags hake, 20 crates hake, 20 crates hake, 13 crates live lobsters, 1 case fresh halibut, 13 crates hake, 23 cases eggs, S. Henshaw; 10 cases eggs, H. B. Churchill; 11 bbls potatoes, H. Nichols; 4 bbls potatoes, 3 do turnips, J. Lent.

D. B. B.—The promenade concert and dance given for the benefit of the Digby Brass Band last night proved to be a very enjoyable event to those participating. The evening was clear and cool, and the music of the "Old One Circle Orchestra" was quite enhancing. The dainty basket lunch furnished, made a happy intermission. Although the numbers were few—about twenty-five couples—the music was selected and the orchestra a pleasant time. The receipts covered expenses.

Home and Abroad.

Dr. D. N. Morrison of Freeport was in town on Thursday and made a call.

The supplementary estimates contain a grant of $8,000 for the breakwater at Grace Cove.

Mr. R. G. Monroe lost a very valuable cow on Saturday night, from drinking milk three or four days before.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Pictou Municipal Council, the Warden began the proceedings with prayer.

The Rev. A. D. Mearns and family have returned to Digby from Chester. They will reside here permanently.

News has been received of the serious illness, at Denver, Col., of Mr. Guy C. Jones, son of Forbes Jones, Esq., of Weymouth.

Two of Digby's students at Dalhousie College, A. C. L. Oliver and Frank Bacon returned home on Saturday last.

The Methodist congregation is considering the advisability of erecting a new parsonage on the grounds west of their church.

Capt. Amos G. Potter, so long and favorably known as Pilot on the International Co's steamers, has retired from his position on that line.

The partnership heretofore existing between John B. Mill and Hugh E. Gillis, of Annapolis, as Barristers and Solicitors, has been dissolved.

Mr. Alfred Bell, farmer of Shelburne Road, brought us quite a basket of full grown strawberries, which he had just picked on the 20th of April.

We are having a continuation of fine spring weather. Under the stimulus of frequent showers and sunshiny, every species of vegetation is coming on rapidly.

About 100,000 barrels of apples have been shipped from Nova Scotia to England. The Utuata, which cleared from Halifax Tuesday, took the last shipment of the season.

Mr. Lovetia Hilton, a well known and much respected resident of Barton, has been for some time suffering from rheumatism. He is unable to transact any business on account of this affliction.

In consequence of some repairs to the church not being completed there will be no Presbyterian service here on Sabbath next. The will, however, be served at Bay View at 11 a. m.

John S. McLennan, a well known merchant of Halifax is dead. He was a strong worker in Sunday School, Christian Association and evangelistic labors generally. He did a large business, and was highly respected.

Capt. Shortland, R. N., shows that his greatest depth of water between St. John and Digby is 43 fathoms; between Quaco and Port George 49, and between Martin's head and Black rock 29 fathoms.

Grand Manan and River Island the depth is 112 fathoms.

Capt. John Daley, and his son Harry, returned from a fishing trip on the waters of the Siasiboo last evening, with as fine a lot of fish as we have ever seen from these waters. One dozen thrown upon the scale tipped the beam at 10 lbs.

The schooner Mary Rose, of Weymouth, N.S., from Yarmouth for Boston, struck a rock off light, Boston Harbor, stranding a hole in her hull, and five men were injured, and off, and landed here. Efforts will be made to get the schooner off.

Harry Burrill, conductor of the W. C. R. freight train, fell from a flat car, at Weymouth, on Tuesday, and struck upon a piece of timber, fracturing himself severely. George Williams, baggage master of the regular train, is now conductor of the freight.

We want items of news from all parts of the county. There are persons abroad from every section, to whom the Courier is indebted for news from home is received. It is also an advertisement of your locality, and keeps you in touch with the rest of the world.

The League meeting was held on Friday evening last. It was decided to hold the meetings during the coming season, once a month, but the special night on which they would be held, was not decided on.

Mr. J. A. Smith was appointed president of the League, and Mr. W. Van Rensselaer vice-president for the present term.

At the summer carnival, which is to be held at Halifax in July, prizes are offered for a four card crew, open to the provincial towns. As this competition Digby might win, and Mr. W. Van Rensselaer is one of the necessary funds could be provided to send a crew there, if they were prepared for it. The material is here for making a good crew, if we feel like trying.

Capt. J. A. C. Clifton received his ship's thanks to his numerous customers for their patronage, this spring, and also to those who have given him their clothes to make, instead of going to Yarmouth. Come along boys! I can work cheaper and give you as good satisfaction as Yarmouth, with all their bluffs.

Master I. E. Bill, the Boy Preacher, delivered his celebrated lecture, on "Loneliness as seen by boyish eyes," in Bear River, Saturday evening, March 3rd. Mr. Bill is expected of the eloquent young speaker. He is desired and hoped also, that he will fill the Smith's Cove or Bear River pulpit on the Sunday following, May 10th.

THE BAY SERVICE.—During June, July, August and September, it is intended that the Montserrat shall make weekly trips to the coast. It is probable that return trips will be made on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, while summer boarders at Digby and tourists will be accommodated by late sailings from St. John on Saturday with return on Monday.—Sun.

It is expected that work on the railroad will commence in a week or two. An effort will be made to have the "link" completed by December, but it is very doubtful whether it can be completed before next spring. The rails will be laid from the present station to Annapolis. There will be no extension across the Raquette, and no railway wharf built this year. This was not for the better, as the work would be done. The railroad, without suitable terminal facilities, leaves us almost where we were before. We have an opinion, and a very decided one, on this subject, and will probably have more to say about it.

We learn with regret of the death of Mrs. Grace Rice of Weymouth, which occurred there on Sunday evening last. She was stricken with paralysis about a fortnight before her death, and gradually grew weaker until the end, passing away quietly and peacefully, and retaining her faculties until the last. This estimable lady has many friends throughout the province who will lament her death, and the loss of the venerable buildings of the world's metropolis, and the historic memories which they awaken.

His obsequies will be held on Monday, and will be held in the presence of a large number of friends who could not help themselves, and will be greatly missed. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family in their loss.

The "Boy Preacher," Ingram E. Bill, lectured in the Baptist Church on Tuesday evening, to a large audience, on the subject of "Loneliness, as seen by boyish eyes." No one can listen to him, without being convinced of his ability and wonderful powers of memory. In despite of a very decided limp, and a voice which has not yet attained the depth and strength which a few more years will bring to it, he at times held his audience spell bound, as he described in glowing and eloquent terms, some of the venerable buildings of the world's metropolis, and the historic memories which they awaken.

NEW YORK'S BIG SHOW.

The First Day of the Centennial Celebration—President Harrison's Reception at Ellipse—Both, New Jersey.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 29.—The Centennial celebration in commemoration of the inauguration of the first president of the United States, may be said to have commenced here this morning with the arrival of President Harrison. On the 23rd of April, 10 years ago, General Washington arrived here after a tedious journey of six days from Washington. This morning President Harrison arrived at 7.25 a. m., having covered the same distance surrounded by the ease, comfort and elegance of a palace car, within six hours. It was cloudy and rainy, but later on the clouds lifted with a guarantee of fair weather and a beautiful rainy April day. People of the city were astir early, and long before the presidential train arrived, crowds gathered at the Union depot and along the streets leading to Governor Green's residence where President Harrison was to take breakfast. Buildings were gaily decorated with flags and bunting. The arches spanned the streets at different points, one called the living arch on which were 49 pretty girls dressed to represent 42 states and 7 territories, who threw volleys of flowers at the president as he passed under the arch. The line of march followed as near as possible was the historic route taken by Washington 100 years ago. The parade and procession were the most magnificent ever witnessed here. Nearly 50,000 were in line.

New York, April 29.—At an early hour this morning the various vessels that had been assigned to places in the grand naval parade, began to take up their positions and by 10 o'clock most of them had come to anchor either one side or the other of the main channel in the upper bay. The naval division was in single column, 300 yards apart. The length of the column was about two and a half miles. The merchant marine formed in double column. After being reviewed by the presidential party and other invited guests, the several lines got underway and steamed up the bay—a grand naval procession.

The crowd which thronged the principal streets all day yesterday increased hour by hour as the time for the formal opening of the exercises of the day drew near, until the lower part of the town became a sea of humanity overflowing in every street and every public place.

The Old Doctors

Draw blood, modern doctors think it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity of the blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being

Recommended
above all others, we used it, with marvellous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned."
— J. J. Armstrong, Weymouth, N.S.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time." — E. L. Pater, M.D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it as the best blood-purifier." — W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"Ayer's medicine continues to be the standard remedy for skin diseases, and is the best blood-purifier." — T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.

MUNICIPALITY OF CLARE.

The half yearly meeting of the Municipality of Clare, was held at the court house, Clare, on Tuesday, the 7th day of May, A. D., 1889. Present, all the Councillors of the Municipality. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Upon reading report of Theodore Thebeau and Ramis Doveau, committee appointed at the last January meeting to enquire into the necessity of laying out a public road from near Leon J. Deveau's to the shore. It is ordered that the report be entertained, and that the said committee be and be directed to proceed and lay out said road and report to the next January meeting of the council.

Upon reading report of Maximine Comeau and Syrian J. Comeau, committee appointed at the last January meeting of the council, to lay out a road from Estache Comeau's line road near Raymond's mill, and on the North side of the Meteghan river to Joseph R. Comeau's mill. It is ordered that the report be accepted, and that the same be recorded and known as a public road.

Upon reading application of parties in Forest Glen and Boar's Back, requesting that cattle be allowed to run at large in a certain district, and after considerable explanation from different parties, it is ordered that the application be not entertained.

Upon hearing Marc Saulnier and Charles Thimothe in regard to their purchasing a lot of the Clare Commons, stating that they could not now get all the land that they expected. It is ordered that they be refunded the sum of $100.00 in full of all demands for what the said lot fell short, and that the same be paid from the gross amount of the sale of said Commons.

Upon reading report of committee at the last May meeting, 1888, laying out a road from the Lower Mills, on Meteghan river, to Oak Lake, and the Ponds Comeau road, which was referred at the last January meeting, to the May meeting, said committee might furnish the council with a plan of said road, and the necessary plan having been furnished, it is ordered that the same be adopted, and that the same be recorded and known as a public road.

Messrs. C. C. Richards & Co.,
Gents.—Having used MINARD'S LINIMENT for several years in my stable, I attest to its being the best thing I know of for horse flesh. In the family, we have used it for every purpose that a liniment is adapted for, it being recommended to us by the late Dr. J. L. R. Webster. Personally I find it the best allayer of neuralgia pain I have ever used.

Good For ALL.—Dear Sirs:—I can recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil as a sure cure for rheumatism, from which disease I suffered for some time. It was cured with two bottles. It is the best thing I can get for man or horse. J. Mustard, Strathroy, Ont.

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep this remedy within reach at all times.

Mr. G. W. Macaulay, Pavilion Mountain, B. C., writes: "Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is the best medicine I ever used for Rheumatism. Nearly every winter I am laid up with Rheumatism, and have tried nearly every kind of medicine without getting any benefit, until I used Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It has worked wonders for me, and I want another supply for my friends."

The rock on which many a constitution goes to pieces is Dyspepsia. The loss of vigor which this disease involves, the maladies which accompany it, or which are aggravated by it, the mental despondency which it entails, are terribly exhaustive of vital stamina. Its true specific is Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which likewise overcomes bilious malady, female ailments, and those coupled with impurity of the blood.

Catarrah, Catarrh, Deafness, Hay Fever.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and catarrhal tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to two applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. DIXON & SONS, 303 West King St., Toronto, Canada. Scientific American

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should carefully read the above.

Belding's Liniment and Cleansing Compound can be obtained at the drug stores of J. Chaloner and R. F. Stark & Co., and at G. I. Lettney & B. Parties at a distance can have the same mailed to them by addressing P. O. Box 33, Digby. Cash must accompany all orders. I sent for Dr. Reeves and took four bottles of his medicine, and I must say that I am restored to perfect health.

"HUNTER, TOMM & BLAIR."

"If Mr. Hunter was in Pittsburgh, was the gentleman down stairs?"

"I followed that gentleman home to Wandsworth that night. I watched his house next morning and I saw him depart in great glee for he was to be married. He took a constable with me and searched his rooms. In a small safe I found a steel gambol for the left hand, Tommy Field's ticket-of-banque license and several bank notes, stolen, with a large quantity of gold from the murdered bank clerk. It was upon this money that the friends proposed founding the new and greater business."

Wilson had told me that the marriage was to be at Kensington parish church—the parish in which the bride's father lived. I reached that in time, and never saw a paler or more melancholy bride in all my life. I arrested Owly in the porch for the murder of the bank clerk. He had the bad taste to struggle in the sacred building.

I had his gauntlet on my left hand; and with it I nearly crushed the life out of him. He was sent to penal servitude for life for manslaughter.

Grafton was an odd accomplice of his, who was trying to live the so-called honest life of a money lender; whose chief income came from inquiry fees that were never earned. I knew him in Wakefield—where I first met Field—so hawk Egerton. I did not recognize him, however, and he disappeared during his friend's trial. Owly got his consent to marry his daughter by means of threats of exposure. She soon became Mrs. Wilson, and, to her father's credit it should be said, he never let her know anything of his guilty ante cedents.

I haven't given you exactly her name, because I am pretty certain she will read this true account of "The Hand of Steel."

U. S. COAST DEFENCE.

The U. S. Senate Committee are Alarmed at the Evidence.

At a meeting of the senate committee on Canadian trade relations, General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the department of the Pacific, made a statement so startling that the members of the committee were amazed, and for alleged prudential reasons, interrupted the general, in order to exclude reporters. He stated emphatically that not only San Francisco, but the entire Pacific coast was entirely at the mercy of any foreign foe; our so-called defenses were worthless, in short we were without the means of resisting the attacks of alien nations. These statements had of course been made in the presence of the committee, and were prepared for the evidence of the truth, adduced by General Miles. He gave us history of the fortifications of San Francisco harbor among those of the Columbia River, Puget Sound. He said it had never possessed any defenses although its ports are within sound of the guns of the Columbia River. He said the defenses of the Columbia River at Fort Canby and Fort Stevens are practically useless. The same statement of affairs was said to exist in San Francisco harbor. The statements of General Miles that a naval vessel of a foreign power, with a golden armament, could lay on the Golden Gate and throw shot weighing 1000 lbs. The fort, situated at the centre of San Francisco, a distance of fully 8 miles, seemed to make a profound impression. With similar guns on each of our fortifications any such attack could be readily resisted. General Miles explained in detail the fortifications of the harbor and how they could be made efficient. He assured the senators that the harbor was considered impregnable. Such a natural harbor, he defended, and estimated $25,000,000 would be sufficient to make them coast defences all that could be desired. The British have made very extensive and costly defences on Vancouver Island, considering it, evidently, one of the most important of British possessions. The island fortunes, there, are in General Miles' judgment, valued independently of their proximity to the United States. In other words, England might give up Canada, but she would never relinquish Vancouver, which is her point of vantage on the Pacific.

High-Pressure

Living charactersizes these modern days. The result is a fearful increase of Brain and Heart Diseases—General Debility, Insanities, Paralysis, and Infancy. Chlora and Morphia augment the evil. The medicine best adapted to do permanent good is Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood, and revitalizes the blood, and thus strengthens every function and faculty of the body.

"I have used Sarsaparilla, in

A Cure

for Nervous Debility caused by an inactive liver and a low state of the blood.—
—Henry Bacon, Xenia, Ohio.

"For some time I have been troubled with heart disease. I never found anything to do me good until I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have only used this medicine six months, but it has relieved me from my trouble, and enabled me to go to work."—J. P. Carzanet, Penn., Ill.

"I have been a practicing physician for over half a century, and during that time I have never found so powerful and reliable a medicine as Sarsaparilla, purified as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—Dr. M. Maxstarr, Louisville, Ky.

Queen's Birthday in Weymouth

The celebration at Weymouth on Friday last, was pronounced by every one, a success. The attendance, the fine weather, the good feeling, the good order, and the general good time for a holiday, exceeded the anticipations of the most sanguine.

Those who were indifferent as to whether they saw the celebration procession in the morning at six o'clock or not, and had made up their minds to turn over and take another snooze before arising from their peaceful slumber, were startled by the explosion of five o'clock, explosion followed explosion in quick succession, such as to alarm the sleepiest. The procession formed at Oakes' corner and marched to the Point and returned. The rain, from 7 to 11 A.M., prevented many who would have joined the procession, from doing so. It was, however, a good attempt, and, although gotten up in the spirit of the times, the day was a success. The procession was well received, and the spectators thoroughly enjoyed their duties.

Weymouth was looking at its prettiest, even in a rain storm. Very little attempt had been made at any special decorations. Flags were flying conspicuously from all the principal residences and business places.

The energetic clerks of Messrs. G. D. Campbell & Co., and Messrs. C. S. Burdell & Co., had carefully decorated their respective stores with appropriate bunting and mottoes. But whatever art and busy hands had failed to do, nature, out of her supernatural liberality, had done. The abundance of foliage, reflected by the early shower of rain, was laughing in the sunshine. The air was redolent with the fragrance of myriads of buds and blossoms, and the clouds, like a heavy apron, as to satiate the desires of the most epicurean.

The early train from Digby brought a large number of excursionists in spite of the untimely character of the weather at that early hour. The excursionists, however, did not begin to break away, and the train to shine forth, and through the medium of them both a beautiful fine day was the result. Teams from all parts of the surrounding country now began to pour in, and by the time the train from Weymouth had arrived, a "large" day and a "large" crowd.

The sports in the forenoon, although not participated in to the extent they might have been, were nevertheless thoroughly enjoyed. The Milton Brass Band arriving by the express from Weymouth were serenaded by the W. B. and the two bands discoursed sweet music alternately through the day.

The forenoon was for the most part spent watching the sports, listening to the music, having refreshments and filling in the time after the genuine old-fashioned picnic style. In the afternoon the centre of attraction was the large race on the turfs. A large crowd had congregated here and brought back pleasant remembrances of old horse racing days. The test was for the best two out of three in a mile and a half. The first trial, for horses within the country, brought four entries were made. These were for horses owned by James Brown, Joseph Elford and Jeremiah McLaughlin of Weymouth, and Louis W. Taylor of Digby, each of whom acted as his own jockey. The first trial brought a "large" day and a "large" crowd.

The anti-vaccinationists in England are inclined to feel grieved. They have at last forced an official enquiry into the charges constantly made against the common remedy for the spread of smallpox. A Royal Commission has been appointed to enquire into the effect of vaccination in reducing the number of deaths from smallpox, whether any other means can be used for that purpose, and what is the extent of the evil alleged to be due to the use of the vaccine. The report will be a very interesting one when it comes.

"One Foot in the Grave" How often do we hear the story of some poor pilgrim of life's thorny path, whose tottering step, pallid face, unnatural glitter of the eye and hacking cough, and its accompanying involuntary pressure of the hand over the lungs, the constant dread of consumption—that causes the remark? Too frequently, alas! and in the interest of such unfortunate, this is pointed to, to assure them that their steps would lead no longer toward that narrow path that leads to all—that is, until life's allotted space is covered—from any such cause, for the scientific remedies of Dr. R. V. Pierce, resulting in the "Golden Medical Discovery," have wrought Nature a remedy which never fails to cure a cure of our race (which is really no thing more nor less than Scrophulous of the Lungs), if taken in time. Druggists sell it.

For Ladies Only. Ladies—why is it, that when your husband or your children are ill, you consult the best physician at once, and for them day and night, wear yourself out with sleepless watching, and never bemoan the helpless doctor's bill, if only the dear ones are restored to health; while day after day, week after week, you endure a dull pain in your back—that terrible "dragging-down" sensation—and do absolutely nothing to effect a cure? In a few years you will be a helpless invalid, and your young brood—your husband and motherless children will follow you to the grave. Perhaps delicacy prevents your consulting a physician—but even this is not necessary. Poor sufferer, tell your husband or your motherless children, that you never fail—and ask him to stop to-night, and get you a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has cured thousands of women suffering from weakness and complaints similar to your own.

gent, whose very look was wont to make the recruits tremble in their boots, stepped toward them with a soft almost bashful smile on his lips, and stooped, we all took off our caps and leaned eagerly forward. How we all went! Big Lurly tender-hearted Tom J.—when the sergeant Looked on him and laid the oldest boy, all rosy and flushed with sleep, into his arms! The little fellow opened his blue eyes and stared vaguely around, then clasped his arms about Tom's neck and gave a long sigh of content.

The sergeant stooped again with a look of satisfaction. "The little-un is asleep, sure?" he said, as he lifted him gently and went. The next moment he staggered under his light burden and almost fell. A hoarse groan burst from his lips. The little head with its tangled mass of yellow curls rolled heavily to one side; the little arms hung inertly down; the sergeant's hands were they supported the tiny neck we all dabbled in blood!

The stray shot had done its cruel work well! It had ploughed across the small white throat and the baby head was almost severed from the little body. The little-un was indeed asleep for sure!

A kind of frozen terror swept over the group gathered in that old field. No man dared for awhile to

When he did he saw there an expression that he has not forgotten yet if he lives.

Ten minutes before we were already to toss up for the privilege of carrying those little chips home. But now every man of us lunged back dumb and unprepared. And the sergeant and Tom turned slowly and tramped away through the falling shadows to lay the living and the dead together in that waiting mother's arms. We followed silently, with uncovered heads.

When the Federal officer in command heard that the children were lost, he offered to disarm his men, stack their guns with ours and join in the search. And more than once that night our pickets were challenged from the other side and anxious inquiries made for the little ones. When the answer went back across the hush and the silence of the night we could feel, though we could not see, the look that swept over the faces of our foes. And that look made us all akin!—Bartlett Moore in March Wind Awake.

“WALL OF FLIES.”

The Persians have a proverb to the effect that a small fly will upset a big man's stomach. When the small fly is multiplied by millions, he is undoubtedly a brave man who will attempt combating such a host.

the battle there, in 1882, presented a remarkable gathering of flies.

The fort seemed to be covered with a dark pall. At about 150 yards distance from this dark mass, I heard a loud humming noise, and as I approached nearer, the sound increased in volume, until it became a roar. It came from a wall of flies, one mile long, ten yards high and forty yards wide; this pall represented a line of dead and unburied Egyptians.

To go round the fly wall was out of the question; so I put spurs to my pony and urged him through. The brute several times refused to stir. At last he was driven, and noise, and a hot steam began to get him, head on, and never shall I forget the passage through those forty yards of flies. They presented such a firm front that I could feel the pressure, heavy enough to compel me instinctively to grip the saddle closer with my knees.

I had to close mouth and eyes, and it was no easy matter to endure the strong stench emanating from the mass. My pony was so terrified that I could not stop him until we had got far beyond the black mass, and into clear desert air again.

I looked behind me now and again as I continued my journey, and there in the blazing sun, lying that same dark pall.

Mr. Parpetus Boileau, Ottawa says: "I was radically cured of piles, from which I had been suffering for over two months, by the use of Thomas' Electric Oil. I used it both internally and externally taking it in small doses before meals and on retiring to bed. In one week I was cured, and have had no trouble since. I believe it saved my life."

The Old Doctors

Dear blood, modern doctors denounce it; hence the increased demand for Alternatives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity, of the Blood; and it is equally well understood that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied sassa-parilla, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that no effective no blood medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it, with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned."

J. J. Armstrong, Wilmar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time."—E. L. Foster, M. D., Manassas, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommended it as the best blood-purifier."—W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"Ayer's medicines continue to be the best recommended in spite of all competition."—T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.

Digby Weekly Courier.

Digby, N. S. June 14th, 1889.

In a letter to the Times, Judge Savary states that the preliminary Dominion electoral lists are now being compiled, and applications, supported by a statutory solemn declaration, will be received till August 1st. Of course those already on the list, or on the assessment roll for sufficient real estate, need not apply; but as for others, it would save him much trouble if they would come in early. He is authorized to sell to those interested, a few copies of the old list for each polling district at 50c. or 60c., according to length.

Any British subject, 21 years of age, possessed of the following qualifications, is entitled to vote:

- Owners of properties, in cities, to the value of $200 and upwards;
- Owners of property, in towns, to the value of $200 and upwards;
- Owners in other places, to the value of $100 and upwards;
- Occupants of the above property:
- Farmers' sons and owners' sons, if resident upon the property of their father or mother for a year;
- Tenants and the sons of tenant farmers paying not less than the following rents, $2 per month, $6 per quarter, $12 per half year, or $24 per annum;
- Fishermen, owning $150 worth of land, boats, or tackle;
- Indians having improvements to the value of $150;
- Persons residing one year in Canada, and earning an income of $500 a year and upwards;
- Annuitants receiving $100 a year and upwards.

Now is the time to apply, and see that your name is placed upon the list, and you can easily tell by looking at the above summary, whether you have a right to a vote or not.

On Sunday, at the Baptist church, the Rev. J. S. Brown preached his farewell sermon to a large congregation. His discourse was more than usually forcible and earnest, and both pastor and people felt deeply the touching character of the service.

In the six years during which Mr. Brown has held the pastorate of the Baptist congregation in this town he has won to an unusual extent the friendship and good will of those of other denominations. He has discharged his duties as a citizen, as well as those pertaining more particularly to his sacred calling, in a manner to win the approval and commendation of all. In every movement, having for its object the advancement and well being of the community, socially as well as morally, he has been an active and valuable assistant. Like his predecessor he has worked earnestly and zealously for the suppression of liquor selling among us, and his intelligent co-operation has been largely due to the determined stand taken by temperance men during the past year.

In the new sphere of labor to which he is called, he will carry with him the best wishes of all the people of this town for his future happiness and success.

The celebration of Yarmouth's 125th birthday, on Tuesday, was attended by at least 6,000 people, who enjoyed themselves in a most orderly manner. The arrangements were good, except that the committee having charge of the weather, permitted a dense fog to envelope the pleasure seekers and cause a damper over their enjoyment. These local races were participated in by companies from Yarmouth, Windsor and Digby; and was won by the Yarmouth boys, Windsor coming in for second prize. The 100 yards amateur dash for the Wanzel medal was won by Fisher, of Montreal, in 11.25 secs. C. Munro, of Yarmouth, was second and F. Thompson, of Windsor, third. The 100 yards professional race was won by Fox, of Windsor, with Wood, of Joliette, second. The 220 yards amateur was won by C. Munroe, of Yarmouth, Fisher was second. The half mile amateur was won by Fitzmaurice, of Yarmouth, with Crawford second. The foot races were all remarkably close contests. In the evening the firemen were invited to a lunch. The whole thing was a decided success, and visitors were delighted with the programme.

The adjourned meeting of the society for the prevention of cruelty, was held in Trinity school house on Friday evening last. The by-laws prepared by the executive committee, were adopted. A considerable number of ladies and gentlemen were enrolled as members. The S. P. C. may now be considered fairly started on its merciful mission. Any cases of cruelty can be made known to the secretary, Mr. E. Belden, or to the agent of the society, Mr. G. A. Viets.

A much larger number of persons were present at this term of the supreme court than has been usual of late years. Care, the Islands, in fact all parts of the county were represented. There is not on the whole so much litigation as formerly, although representatives of the legal profession, are not less numerous than of yore. Many persons settle their disputes by arbitration in preference to going before the courts.

The great railway meeting, called for the purpose of promoting the construction of a line of railway from Annapolis to Liverpool, was held at Caledonia on Thursday last week. Lengthy resolutions were passed favoring its construction, and calling upon both Dominion and Local Governments for the usual subsidy of $3,200, from each. There is great need of railway extension to the southern shore, and we are glad to see that the Dominion member from this county, has been lending his aid to Messrs. Freeman and Mills in their efforts to procure the necessary assistance.

Last Wednesday a terrible railway accident occurred at Annapolis Island. A train containing 1200 Methodist Sunday school children, came into collision with another train, 70 dead and over 100 wounded children have been taken from the ruins, and others are buried in the wreck.

This railway bridge at the Barrington has almost rebuilt, put in first order. The work has been done under the supervision of Mr. E. J. Murphy of the W. C. Railway.

Sad Drowning Accident.

It is our painful duty to record one of those drowning accidents which have occurred with too much frequency in our Basin. Yesterday afternoon Gusto J. L. Daley, son of Mr. John Daley, one of our best known citizens, accompanied by Harry McBride, a son of Mr. John McBride, left home in the afternoon in a sail boat, to carry two gentlemen across to Granville. The wind was blowing from the south-west and squally, as it usually is, when blowing from this direction. When on their return home, and between the buoy and Bon's Point, their boat was seen to capsize, and suddenly disappear. As soon as possible, boats were rowed to the scene of the accident, which was some distance from the shore; but long before they arrived, the boat with its unfortunate occupants had sunk to the treacherous waters. The boat's rudder, together with an oar and bailer, were picked up.

Both were promising lads. Daley was about 19 years of age, and McBride some 3 years his junior. A searching party left town this morning, but the scene of the accident, but no lifelines of the recovery of the bodies or boat, have reached us up to the time of going to press.

A party of fishermen purpose grappling in the vicinity with their trawls to-day.

Mr. John Daley is from home, attending the meeting of the Masonic Grand Lodge at Pictou. The greatest sympathy is felt for both families, in the calamity which has thus suddenly overtaken them.

SUPREME COURT, DIGBY.

The Supreme Court opened at Digby, on Tuesday, the 11th inst. Judge Wetherbe presiding. The bar consisted of J. W. Binney, Q. C., T. C. Shreve, Q. C., Mr. Chesley, Mr. Monroe, Mr. C. P. Smith, Mr. Wade, Mr. Jones, Mr. Armstrong.

The following cases were called:

CIVIL DOCKET.
Handpiker and Adams—Mourne for plaintiff, $100; defendant, $100.
Wheelock and Denton—Harris for plaintiff, $100; defendant, $100.

CRIMINAL DOCKET.
The Queen and Denton—Indictment for larceny; jury returned verdict of not guilty without leaving box.

The Queen and Mullan—Obtaining money under false pretences; not guilty.
The Queen and Graham—For placing obstructions on line of railway; guilty, sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary at Dorchester.
The Queen and Doucette—For obtaining valuable securities under false pretences; indictment quashed and prisoner discharged.
The Queen and Vantassel—For prison breach; Verdict of guilty, some law points reserved and prisoner admitted to bail in $2,000.

PERSONALS.

Rev. J. S. Brown who has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist congregation here, has been called to the church in Lunenburg. Mrs. Thomas Hutchings, who has been residing in Digby with her sister Mrs. J. P. Jones, for the past six months, left for Halifax yesterday, to visit her husband, and accompany him to Cape Breton.

Capt. William Jones of Weymouth, and Daniel Newcombe of the N. B. Railway, were here on Monday, en route to St. John.

Home and Abroad.

The steamer Evangeline brought 113 passengers from Annapolis on Monday.

There will be service in the Presbyterian Hall every Sunday afternoon at 3.30.

Geo. A. Barker was, on Tuesday, elected Mayor of St. John, by a majority over C. A. Evans, of the opposition.

A change has been made in the time-table of the W. C. Railway, and trains arrive half an hour earlier than before.

The Nova Scotia Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons holds its annual communication at Pictou, during the present week.

The Baptist association meets at Liverpool on the 15th of June, and the Methodist conference on the 19th of the same month.

A child of Mrs. Mosher, living at the Eastern Passage, near Halifax, 17 months old, had its eye scratched out by an angry cat.

J. Primrose, Surgeon-Dentist, is at present practicing at Bear River for a few days. Those desiring his services are requested to call early.

B. B. Marshall, of the Digby Hair Dressing Room, has been appointed agent at this place, for Ugar's Steam Laundry, St. John, N. B.

Rhodes & Curry, of Amherst, are the parties to whom a contract for building the new post office and customs house at Annapolis has been awarded, for $13,250.

The American fishing schooner Matte Winship, seized in Cape Breton, and since released on security of 75 tons and six years old, has been sold to the Government.

It is stated that Mr. W. E. Brown, formerly in the service of the Provincial Government of Nova Scotia as civil engineer, has lately accepted an appointment for a similar service for the Dominion Government in the construction of "The Missing Link" between Digby and Annapolis.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. Co.—Commencing next week the steamer "New Brunswick" will leave Digby for Boston, direct, every Tuesday and Friday p.m., arriving in Boston early the following afternoon. Returners leave Boston every Monday and Wednesday morning.

BOARD OF HEALTH.—The districts assigned to J. A. Clifton as Sanitary Inspector, is from Sydney street south, in the town of Digby; and to Geo. C. Beaman, from Sydney street north to the Town of Digby. Those having complaints to make, can refer to Inspectors of their respective districts.

On Wednesday there was quite a gathering here of Salvation Army officers. A district conference was held in the afternoon, and in the evening there was a grand jubilee in the hall, to which an admission fee of ten cents was charged. On the platform there were Major and Mrs. Deakin; Staff Capt. Betty; Capt. Wheeler; Capt. Lester; Deputy Mayor, Vail and Fradshaw; Lieut. Hind, McLean and Osmond.

Strawberries are likely to be plenty this year, and are beginning to come into market in considerable quantity. The cherry crop will not turn out so well as at first promised to do. Caterpillars have done much damage to the trees. These pests are, however, closely followed by robins and other birds, who devour them in enormous numbers. The hay crop will be a large one, and the grass is in many places ready for the scythe.

A company to be known as the Westport Fisheries Co-operative Company, has been formed with a capital of $3,000, and is now asking to be incorporated, with Westport for its head quarters. Its objects will be carrying on of a grocery, dry goods and general supply business, and for freightage between Canadian and foreign ports. There will be three hundred shares of ten dollars each.

Robbie W. Ford, Jas. D. Sullivan, Ernest Haycock and Ezra B. Bailey are the provisional directors.

E. H. Armstrong, Barrister of Weymouth, is solicitor for the company.

WEYMOUTH NOTES.

(From a Correspondent.)

The W. B. B. made their first appearance in public in their new regiments on Wednesday evening. They marched down to Weymouth and honored Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Weymouth with an old time "serenade." They were hospitably entertained by the general host and hostess, and we have no doubt that the exchequer of the band feels the better of the visit.

The band is progressing rapidly and look well in uniform caps and forbes, but they would look much better with uniform coats. Anyone, therefore, who should feel disposed to contribute these articles would earn the unenviable gratitude of the band and will be entitled to a "serenade" at least twice a week until the first of the year.

While mentioning the band I am compelled to notice that no band stand yet fills that handsome little flat iron corner near the hotel. It is not true that something was done towards securing its erection. It will not cost much and will be quite an acquisition to the place.

G. D. Campbell, Esq., returned on Saturday last from the U. S., where he had been in New York, Boston and other American cities. He looks much the better of his trip. Mr. C. was informed made arrangements while away for the construction of an artificial hand which he will have made as soon as his handless arm will allow. The physicians he consulted spoke in the most complimentary terms of the operation performed by Mr. C.'s physician here.

A searching party left town this morning, but the scene of the accident, but no lifelines of the recovery of the bodies or boat, have reached us up to the time of going to press.

A party of fishermen purpose grappling in the vicinity with their trawls to-day.

POETRY.

THE WANDERER'S FAREWELL.

BY STILLSON SNOW

Farewell, my own dear native land,
I now must leave thy shore;

I linger on thy tide-worn strand
To view thy charms once more.

Farewell! when I am far away,
My thoughts to thee shall turn,
And by the light of fancy's ray
Thy beauties oft discern.

Thy purpled hills and verdant plains
Shall oft before me rise,
For while the love of life remains
My childhood's home I'll prize.

The woodland path where oft I've strayed
In the sweet month of May,
When gentle breezes round me played
And all was bright and gay.

Shall oft before my vision rise
When I am pressed with care;
I'll ne'er forget thy sunny skies,
Though forced to roam afar,

The dear old cottage on the hill
Round which the roses bloom
Shall linger in my memory still

In spite of care and gloom.
The play around I'll remember, too,
Where, with my playmates, I
Bid all my childish griefs adieu,
Beneath thy pleasant sky.

The little group I'll seem to see
At the old school house door,
All full of merriment and glee
As in the days of yore.

And can those dear familiar scenes
Fade from my memory?
Ah; no; thy dearest still shall seem
When I am far away.

For bound by love's endearing tie,
Where'er on earth I roam,
My spirit shall hover nearward hie
Across old Ocean's foam.

Forever, my own dear native land,
I now must leave thee shore!
I linger on thy banks no more
To view thy charm once more.

the first place, as we judge by their coming to God's house for this purpose, and whose object is to ensure a payment of a liberal sum at death, which is to be applied to the maintenance of an annuity if preferred, or to a member reaching the age of 70 years for the remainder of his life,—a society which has its sick and burial fund not only for the member himself but also for his wife or child,—a society like this which even provides a means by which a member may bequeath the benefit of the annuity on the sick fund, shall for me be so assisted, by having his dues paid for him, as not to lose his membership, must be a valuable help to any requiring self-denial and sympathy and brotherly example in the saving of his means against the day of helplessness, old age or death, so that he may provide for his way for his own and especially for his wife and children.

It is also to be noted that many a man who merely supports his family and pays

his bills, now in the time of his health, but saves nothing for old age and infirmity, or for the support of his family in case of his decease, would—by joining a society like this—make a point of paying a small monthly dues to it, and would thus, without feeling those small but regular payments, insure himself and his family against the time of need, and relieve his mind

It is not a matter of surprise that society doing such good work has reason for thankfulness in that its membership is largely and continually increasing, and notwithstanding the large sums which it distributes in the shape of insurances, benefits, &c., finds its means of good increase in a corresponding degree. Brethren, how apt we all are to

But so, no doubt, did a very large proportion of those 15,000, who lately at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, were swept away by a horrible death, even when they imagined themselves most secure. But three days ago two fine, promising youths amongst us, with every prospect of length of days, suddenly reached

May the young in this place take warning that as no period of life is exempt from the call of death, it is most unwise and unsafe to put off the preparation for eternity to a more convenient season. Whatever tempts you to do this and to neglect your religious duties must be something that you love more than you love God, and I would warn you that He Who may call you away at any moment, and will judge you, is a jealous God. He has said, "I love them that love Me, and those that seek Me early shall find Me." "My

But, dear brethren, do not these sad visitations of God around us, and in our midst, shew us how frail and uncertain our own condition is?
How soon may other families in this place be mourning for loved and lost ones. How soon may the earthly prop and stay of any family amongst us be removed, and the helpless children of the improvident be thrown upon the stinted and uncertain charities of a cold world.

Brethren, bear ye one another's burdens, in charitable combinations such as this, when necessary and available. Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. If you are in a state of salvation, it is only because you have

When men made members of Christ and are living according to the vocation wherewith you are called. If in this way you are members of Christ you are also members one of another. You are members of one Body, and therefore have a Christ-like sympathy, one with another. You encourage one another in what is right, you strive to recover your erring brother when you see he is wandering, you help the poor, and the

Al! dear brethren, there is no brotherhood like the brotherhood of Christ. In this we find the truest love and sympathy, for the love of Christ toward us is its moving principle, and "the love of Christ constraineth us." It holds before

our eyes the great love which brought God the Son down from Heaven to take our human nature
upon Him, to suffer and to die for us, and thus become the second Adam, the Redeemer of the whole human race. He knows our infirmities for He bore them all. He knows how our natural selfishness
and the temptations of the world

above all things, and our neighbor ourselves. But he is always at hand to plead for us and help us.
And He sends the Holy Ghost to strengthen us to resist temptation
and fulfil all our duties, and to comfort us in all our trials. And for this reason, if we fail to call upon Him, to follow His holy example, to help our weak or poor brother, we are left without excuse. For to brotherhood in Christ, nor its great responsibilities, but seek every day to live by the rule of that true charity, that at the great day of account we may be accepted in the Beloved, and enter into His rest, and the inexpressible glories of the Beatific Vision for evermore.

The Church of England directs her minister to do at so solemn a time. I quote from her office for the Visitation of the sick:—"Then shall the minister examine whether he repent truly of his sins, and be in charity with all the world; exhorting him to forgive, from the bottom of his heart, all persons that have offended him; and if he have offended any other, to ask them forgiveness; and

See how careful our Worldly is to relieve the sick man of Church anxiety, in order that he may give his whole mind to spiritual matters. Observe how lovingly she helps him to do the best he can for those he leaves behind, after providing for the settlement of his honest debts, so that if possible he may owe no deeds done in the body. A religion which concerns itself only with the soul is not in sympathy with some of the tenderest feelings of a man's nature, which often afford a clue to the best channels for the admission of God's love. A religion which deals only with the body is of little use to the earth earthy, and is no better than mere infidelity.

Let us remember that we ought to

General opinion among well posed people is that the loss of life at Johnstown is between 3,000 and 4,000 people. It was generally given out that Johnstown and the boroughs adjoining had a population of 35,000, but conservative people put the population at between 25-

000 and 28,000. The supposed official reports sent in by different people are conflicting and put the number of bodies recovered anywhere from 1100 to 1800. There is no telling how many bodies have been recovered. Things in general are brightened up wonderfully. A number of stores have been started up anew and large quantities of flooded goods sold, chiefly as relics.
