

1877- 1978

One of the jobs I had to do, besides putting and printers devil on the staff, was to... I cleaned one and then... (one day not long after I started to get to the printing plant, I decided to clean the floor that apparently hadn't been cleaned for some considerable time.)

"J.J." came along and said, "how are you making out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor. "J.J." laughed very heartily. He thought the remark pretty good and said:

Sometimes the gasoline engine stopped a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and the "Man" if fix-it man had patiently worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without results. Man would then stand back and come over dramatically then he would immediately start working. "See," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of coaxing."

On other occasions when some papers refused duty for me and seemed to be broken, I would say, "use a little oil" and note remark after that all it took. Now often since have I heard of the value of that remark and the actual need of oil in many life situations, applied at the right time, right place and in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are, like the time I had "Mae" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1968 got together, put before dark one evening and decided to invade the newly built outdoor Pines Hotel swimming pool which had just been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just out of the pool, nobody else seemed to be around, and the four Clothes were taken on shore, the four boys, no thought or time for bathing suits, so in the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in. The rest quickly followed and across the pool they swam. "Mac" intended to the story and hardly anything, but the next "Digby Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story went something like, "Four Boy Swims Officially Open Pines Hotel Swimming Pool." Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Carl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars (colonel and major), was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Kornman, was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Smith, now prominent druggist for many years in Digby; Clayton D. Snow, Digby wholesale hardware dealer, and myself.

As a young teenager I used to like doing some writing about different events interesting to myself and mostly for myself. One day I was asked to contribute about writing your version of the story told about "The Marooning of Jerome". I did and read at least two somewhat different versions of the man who was found marooned on a beach at some point on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Dublin County. When I read this man's tale, he had been cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

"Joe" appeared to have been a man of some considerable social standing and possibly of some considerable wealth. However, the only thing I could remember was that after being told something that sounded like the French about either you'd not, or, would that, were, who he was or why he was left there, it was, And is, one of Digby County, and different ideas have been put forward concerning this man. However, "Mae" was, I felt no urge to say anything different about this man. The fact that I have been very well explored by many people, and he was a sort of a person, people who wanted to be like him, and free trade with the U.S.A., especially with the New England States. The question was then debated by some Digby High School students one of which was J.J.'s daughter, Florence (now Mrs. Abbott of Thet, Freeport, Digby Co.). Some days after the debate a man from some part of Nova Scotia came to the printing shop looking for Florence, one of the successful debaters. I had the impression that this man was interested politically but, maybe I was wrong.

Well, I felt that I had learned considerable from my short experience at "The Wallis Job Print." I was learning to do beginner jobs, receiving some knowledge about things like embossing, stapling, perforating, counting, cutting and trimming paper stock, proving make for certain desired colors, and so forth, but, the only experience I had at setting type was just enough to make a "go," the printers name for a confused state.

There was a taste of trying to sell not just inside the plant. Work was a little slack one early fall day and so "Mac" said to me, "How about trying your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards?" I tried it. I made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular house, and much time I just got an order, but side to be bought proved by about who, now ready detached, but meetings with and articles, at some fishery was. It has common parts of the same provisions as the crew, but is ready to be from their maintenance, probability of shore of some depending, to the West India and by and of tenders.

had brought him a considerable fortune during the French war at the beginning of the century. One daring venture, the despatch of three vessels from Halifax and St. John laden with supplies for the British army at Cadix was immensely successful, as it enabled her seeing that the chinees were ten to one against the little fleet escaping the enemies cruisers. Another famous venture was an expedition to Hayti, which was then as usual, in an unsettled state, and the compact with the king of the island whereby Mr. Collins became a sharer in the benefits of a coffee monopoly held by his Haytian majesty. During the war of 1812 the balance of prize taking was decidedly in favor of the British, and the town of Liverpool was made rich for the time by the sale of American merchantmen. Though no other privateer captured so many vessels as Mr. Collins' Packet, according to the account of Canadians, yet other records show that a number of Liverpool cruisers were exceedingly successful. The account referred to, it may be observed, is a much more glowing one than the history given by Mr. More of the exploits of the Liverpool Packet. According to the latter authority the little privateer brought in from her first cruise two ships, from her second a valuable Spanish prize and another ship, from her third and fourth fifteen prizes. Mr. More tells of another cruiser owned by sixteen Liverpool merchants which made but one cruise of three weeks and gave her owners $1200 each from the sale of her prizes. The laws of war have somewhat changed during three-quarters of a century, but if Great Britain should ever again have enemies on the sea, the grandsons of the sailors who manped these profitless cruises will no doubt be prepared to give such an account of themselves as circumstances and international law may permit.

The True Character Becoming Known.

The following is an extract from the evidence taken in New York the other day in the libel suit of O'Donovan Rossa, against Mr. Cassidy, Proprietor of the Catholic News :

"One of the first things that filled me with contempt and loathing for O'Donovan Rossa was a scheme which he and 'Red' Jim McDermott suggested. When the Marquis of Lorne, who had just married Queen Victoria's daughter came here they dined at Delmonico's. Rossa proposed that a bucket of filth be secured, and when the happy bridal pair were dining McDermott or some one else should make his way inside “You’ve got to be a little more serious over the table,” Cassidy opposed that scheme! I opposed it! “I opposed it!” shouted Rossa, “and you know I did!” “I know nothing of the sort,” retorted Cassidy. “On the contrary, I have been informed that some one did lurk about Delmonico’s on the night in question, but for some reason the filth was never thrown. Probably there was no opportunity. Lawyer Frank Oliver, cross examined Cassidy about the filth, while Rossa flunked under her breath. Cassidy said that he learned all about the scheme the day after it had failed, and therefore could not have done anything to thwart it had he wanted.” Comment is unnecessary.

A good suggestion is furnished our rulers in the attempt now in progress in New York to establish “a caterpillar” day. The plan is to ask every boy and man to lay aside other business and spend one day in killing these pests. It can easily be seen how valuable such a concerted movement would be. As it is now, though the importance or consciousness of some outward organs these insects are allowed perfect liberty to destroy and multiply and neighbors as well as the owners of said orchards have to suffer. If therefore on the first appearance of the grub in the spring the authorities could induce all males throughout the country to take a hand in de-destroying men, not only would our chards, benefit that year but their increase would be much retarded if not altogether stopped.

OUR FISHERIES.

Before a very long time the whole question of our fisheries, of every kind, will need to be the subject of a government commission of enquiry. Shortly but surely they are becoming a less reliable and more uncertain industry, affording smaller returns to those who follow them for a livelihood, while the conditions under which they are pursued are becoming yearly more difficult. Any one who has had a knowledge of them for the last fifty years will know this to be true. The cod, haddock, halibut, herring and mackerel fisheries are not what they once were, and some, like the mackerel, are almost extinct.

Generally speaking this has been the fisherman's own doing, and the direct result of the reckless and careless manner in which he has pursued his calling. The decrease in the number of cod, haddock and halibut about our coasts, is due, without a shadow of doubt, to trawling, which captures and destroys indiscriminately with its miles of hooks, the spawning and breeding fish, in common with everything else. This matter of trawling has been much discussed, but both in theory and practice it has been proved to be an objectionable mode of fishing. Fortunately the price, especially of the two latter kinds, haddock and halibut, has so increased of late years that the greater scarcity of the fish and the greater expense in taking them has been more than met by better prices in the market, while less trouble has been taken in caring them.

Mackerel at one time were to be found schooling in every direction about our coasts, and were among the most plentiful of our food fishes. But the purse seine, and the reckless scattering of gurry in the waters they frequented, have produced their natural results, until scarcely a school of these valuable fish is to be found where they were once obtained in such abundance. Fish do not like to be continually hunted and driven about any more than land animals do, and mackerel especially have been chased from place to place, until they become as fisherman know, wild and unapproachable, and do not follow the coast line and enter the bays and harbours as they once did. Taking them with hand lines will have to be again resorted to, and if the cleanings are not thrown overboard, as there is no need of doing, it may be that they will return in something like their old quantities.

Another branch, the herring fishery, which furnishes material for the celebrated "Digby Chickens," a most deliciously prepared fish, is nothing like what it once was. The whole number of herring smoked in both Annapolis and Digby counties only amounted to some 12,000 boxes last season. For many years the vessels which lined the shores of the Basin, from Goat Island, which was the principal seat of the industry, to the entrance of the Basin, were allowed to contain dead and decayed fish, poisoning the waters and producing the usual result of driving them away. This has been done in spite of all the efforts of the fishery overseers to prevent, and now this particular line of herring cannot be taken as they once were.

It is exceedingly difficult from the very nature of the industry, to enforce any laws that may be enacted for this purpose without the co-operation and assistance of the fishermen themselves, and this is so impossible to obtain. All are not equally regardless, but the majority seem to think that any rules which may be made for this purpose, are troublesome, vexatious and unnecessary, and that it is no one's duty to comply with them.

The visit of the Shah of Persia to England has been viewed with a good deal of interest, and his oddities have afforded the English people much amusement. The vexatious and annoyances which attended his previous visit, led the government and Royal family to look forward with anything but pleasure to a repetition of it this season.

On a previous visit, and during his stay at the German capital, the whole burden of entertaining the Oriental potentate fell on the shoulders of the Empress Augusta, whose poetic hankerings for the Orient, however, were subjected to a severe shock. Thus to this day she loves to relate in her shrill and high-pitched voice, how, during the grand state banquet given in his honor at Berlin, whenever he got some food which was not to his taste in his mouth, he would coolly remove it from his jaws and place it on Her German Majesty's lap, to the intense horror of all present. Her magnificent robes at the close of the banquet, presented a most wonderful aspect.

On his arrival in England he was quartered at Buckingham Palace, and while in London he sorely tried the Prince of Wales by tempering by coolly placing his hand on the bare shoulders of the Princess of Wales while talking to her. Having been entertained by the Duke of Sutherland at the latter's magnificent country seat at Troham, he coolly suggested to the Prince of Wales that it would be in every way advisable to put the Duke to death, on the ground that he was much too powerful for a subject.

Over $150,000 were required to make Buckingham Palace habitable again after his departure. The furniture had to be burned, while not only the silken panels, tapestries, carpets and paper hangings had to be thrown into the flames, but it was even found necessary to entirely remove the plaster off the walls, and the parquet floors of the rooms which he had inhabited. The slaughter of a live sheep for sacrificial purposes in one of the Queen's daintiest boudoirs was one of the most pardonable of all his offences, and the stench of the rooms occupied by His Persian Majesty was so intense and unbearable that quantities of disinfectants had to be used before even the palace attendants could muster up courage to attempt to clean up matters.

Weymouth Notes.

Prof. W. S. Vallance assisted by Miss Vallance, gave one of their literary and musical entertainments here on Tuesday evening last, and the audience of the W. B. B. A. good house greeted them with full of expectation. We would perhaps be going beyond the pale of our jurisdiction were we to attempt a criticism of the approved manner of their entertainment, or the enthusiasm. After the very flattering comments of both the English and Canadian press, we have come to the conclusion that we know nothing about music and music and of distinction in the readings that was to say the least, painful. The songs by Miss Vallance although intended only as a secondary attraction, did not at any time transcend the occasion.

Miss Sadie Patton, of Yarmouth, intending giving one of her popular "Readings" in Glasgow Hall, next Wednesday evening, the 24th inst. Miss P. is well and favorably known here as a Yarmouth resident, and we trust she may be greeted with a full house.

Sunday-school picnics have been the order of the day. Some three or four have found their way to our beach, all of which have been largely attended.

Meas. Kinney and Newcombe have taken up their beautiful grounds for picnic purposes, and as they are convenient, they have been well patronized.

A large number attended the picnic at Marshall's Corner on Friday last, under the auspices of the Olive League. Sports of various kinds were provided, and a pleasant afternoon was spent. The boys of the League, under the direction of Mr. Halsey, had an athletic competition, in which the following took first place:

100 yard dash (under 15), Charley Morse. 100 yard dash (under 10), Ed. Buggles. Animal Race (men), Colin Campbell. Bag Race, Archie Morse.

Sack Race, Robert Buggles and Charles Morse. Steeple Jump and Blind Race, Fred Jones.

Our village has been crowded with visitors—good accommodations being at a premium. Our place presents attractions as a popular summer resort that cannot be overestimated, and if some popular resort was provided and advertised, we have little doubt as to the result.

Rev. J. E. Donkin, successor to Rev. T. C. Hooper, arrived on Saturday last, and the Methodist church.

Wm. Law, M. P., and wife, Henry Lovitt and wife, Capt. Scott and wife, Mrs. John Lovitt and daughter, Geo. Geo. and family, of Yarmouth, R. S. Hooper and Robert McDonald, of Waltham, Mass., have been spending a few days here. Geo. and Alex. Hood, of the Waltham Watch Factory, arrived home on Saturday last, and will spend their vacation here.

Mr. A. S. Hood, representing the Canada Life Assurance Co., is in town and will remain for a few days.

The curate Mr. Allison arrived on Wednesday evening.

Joseph Rice, of Bridgetown, photographer, is at the rooms Oakes' Corner, and will remain for a short time.

Dr. James Primrose, Dentist, is at the house of Mr. Dittmar Dunbar, and will remain for a few days.

D. A. A. NOTES.

The Annapolis eleven are "unclevened" and "Goat Island" is too neutral for us. They are not our eleven here. For the present at least the game is off. Base ball is now the popular play—spectators, by their presence, prove it.

On Monday afternoon, a scratch match was played on the grounds, before interested spectators, and to the surprise of many, the Digby nine showed that they can get to "first" without "called balls." A fine practice was made Wednesday afternoon. Grateful appreciations of the interested in whom I have lately been shooting or ordering to shoot small birds in or about the town, as well as certain gentlemen a little lower than those of the long robe (i. e.) in legal argument, to sections 17 and 22 of chap. 65, Revision of Laws, Digby, under the preservation of useful birds and animals.

"The killing of robins, swallows, sparrows and other small birds and birds of song which frequent the fields and gardens and the selling and offering for sale and the keeping in possession of small birds when killed shall hereafter be unlawful. It shall be the duty of all justices of the peace, stipendiary magistrates, constables, policemen and market clerks to enforce the provisions of this chapter, by the use of any necessary force, for the preservation of useful birds and animals whenever the infringement thereof comes under notice, under a penalty of not less than ten dollars for each omission of duty."

The statute, (see 20th section) lays down a penalty for violation of 17th sec. viz.: "Any person offending against the seventeenth and nineteenth sections shall for each offence forfeit one dollar in addition to ten cents for each bird &c., &c."

All persons offending, and the law's engineers and foremen mentioned above, will take notice and govern themselves accordingly, otherwise stand under.

Nova Scotia Summer School of Science.

The Summer School of Science will meet at Parrsboro, July 22nd, 7.30 p.m. The attractions of the school this year, are greater than on any previous occasion. The most talented instructors in the various departments of Natural Science, will be present, and direct the classes in the study of Botany, Zoology, Geology, Chemistry, Physics, Mineralogy, Physiology, Astronomy and Elongation.

It is expected that some prominent educationists from the United States will be present during the session.

A course of public lectures will be delivered by the following gentlemen:—David Allison, Esq., L.L.D., Pres. A. W. Sawyer, D.D., D. D., Prof. Chas. McDonald, M.A., and Prof. J. Burwash, D. Sc.

Parrsboro is one of the most beautiful situated seaside resorts in Nova Scotia; and the abundance of game of all kinds in the neighborhood, it is called the "Paradise of Scientists." Besides affording educators a superior opportunity to study and observe the methods of teaching, the Summer School is one of the best places in the Maritimes, for the tired teacher to recuperate at a low expense. The people of Parrsboro have voted one hundred dollars to provide an excursion and banquet for the school. Amherst has contributed a sum nearly equal, and a number of towns for a similar purpose.

The Summer School has already been chosen the Chateaufort of Nova Scotia. It is indeed a place where the student, teacher, and professional man may receive the greatest good at the smallest expense.

Board may be secured in Parrsboro at $3 per week. Reduced fares are obtained on all railways and steamers, to those attending the School.

A steamer will leave Wolfville for Parrsboro, on Monday, July 22nd, at six p.m., after the arrival of the express train from Annapolis. This special arrangement has been made, to accommodate those who wish to reach Parrsboro for the first session. Further information may be obtained from

Catarh, Catarrh, Deafness, Hay Fever.
A NEW HOME TREATMENT
Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and catarrhus nasalis. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhus nasalis and hay fever are permanently cured, in from one to two weeks. The mode of using the remedy is simple. In two weeks. N. B.—For ca-tarrhus nasalis, the remedy is applied to the nasal cavity. For catarrh of the eye, the remedy is applied to the eye. A pamphlet explaining the new treatment is sent on request of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, West King St., Toronto, Canada.

Nothing so suddenly obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Coughs, colds, sore throat etc., if attended to in time are easily cured, but if allowed to run their own course, they generally prove the forerunner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the common ailments date their affliction from a neglected cold, and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure to cold winds, are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious remedies for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Biddle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which from the lungs from viscous phlegm
by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state.

Digby, N. S., Aug. 10th, 1898.

We had a call this week from Mr. A. J. McMillan, organization commissioner for Manitoba. He is visiting the lower provinces to make known the advantages connected with Manitoba and the northwest as a field for emigration. If more of our own people who move to the States would go to our own provinces, it would be much better, but at the same time we would like to see emigration directed to Nova Scotia as well. We have lots of room for a large population, and people who possess any means might well think of us as well and have far more comfort if they would make up their minds to buy farms in western Nova Scotia, and settle there.

A few days ago fishermen belonging to Pictou, who were off that place fishing, observed a large French warship steaming ahead in close proximity to the breakers which are round in this vicinity. The fishermen immediately notified for the ship and informed them on board of the danger they were in. The engines were reversed and not a bit too soon, as the ship's bottom scraped over the rocks. Had she continued on her course five minutes longer she would have been dashed to pieces and those on board perished.

The carnival at Halifax last week, is spoken of in the highest terms by all our citizens who went there. The number and variety of sights and amusements was so great that it was scarcely possible to see them all. The press representatives were right royally entertained, and the people of the city generally, did everything in their power to make the week pass pleasantly. It was a great success in every way.

Quite a display of pyrotechnics was made on Saturday night on Montague street by Mr. Tresselt, the American gentleman who has taken Capt. Watt's cottage for the season. The night was a suitable one and many persons were drawn thither to witness them.

The meaning of the word "limited" as applied to corporations.

It has become somewhat common nowadays to see the word "limited" in parentheses, after the titles of corporations, and it is safe to say that people generally do not understand the significance of this term, though, of course, business men and others, who are conversant with the changes, may, therefore, be of general interest. The old principle of corporations created by legislative act was that the entire property of every stockholder in the corporation was limited to the share of the corporation which he held. This principle is still in force, and is still liable for the debts of the corporation. This system made every shareholder responsible for the management of the corporation, and in consequence of this, many men, who were not business men, became interested in the shares of corporations. To remove this objection the principle of limited responsibility was introduced, and in order to make the corporation liable for the debts of the corporation, the separate property of the corporation was made liable for the debts of the corporation. The English law requires the word "limited" shall be in every case by the company, and in order to make the corporation liable for the debts of the corporation, the separate property of the corporation was made liable for the debts of the corporation. The English law requires the word "limited" shall be in every case by the company, and in order to make the corporation liable for the debts of the corporation, the separate property of the corporation was made liable for the debts of the corporation.

The most noteworthy exception to the general rule is the case of the national bank, but even in this instance liability is limited to an amount equal to the par value of the shares held. The national bank shares held, in the national bank, but even in this instance liability is limited to an amount equal to the par value of the shares held. LAUNCH ON THE BAY SHORE.—A large three masted schooner was successfully launched from the shipyard at Parker's Cove on Saturday, the 10th inst. She is built first class materials, is well fastened, and was rigged when launched. She is owned by Capt. Groves, James Schaffner, and others, and bears the name of "Granville." She will register something over three hundred tons, and will be employed by her owners in the carrying trade to Brazil or other South American ports. May her owners find her a profitable ship and reap a full reward of their enterprise.

The owners of the three master recently destroyed by fire will once proceed in the construction of other of similar rig and tonnage. To this end, we are informed, they have rented the yard belonging to the Mills estate to the west of the village. The frame timbers will soon be in the yard and the work of building commenced.

The people of the Methodist church met on Sunday last by the Rev. Mr. Dismick.

The annual session of the Nova Scotia African Methodist Episcopal church, was commenced in Yarmouth last week.

Valuable papers have already been drawn by parties who have purchased at E. B. Coman's establishment.

It has been decided by the militia authorities to have the Nova Scotia camp at Aldershot, beginning on the 3rd of September.

Mr. Coleman VanNieuwen is handling some fine fish from the Digby, which is out on Digby Neck. It is for sale on the following terms.

We have received the prize list of the annual exhibition to be held at Yarmouth on the 10th and 11th of October. Prizes to the amount of $25,000 are offered.

Another large lot of Dry Goods from Montreal is expected at E. B. Coman's in a few days. People will find it to their advantage to call and examine his goods.

The St. John Gazette, of Friday last week says: "Nova Scotia apples are already being brought in in great quantities. Fruit exports has commenced early this season."

The Hon. Archibald Fitzgerald, of Fredericton, and his brother Robert S. Fitzgerald, of Digby, spent a few hours in town last week in calling upon their relations and friends.—Monitor.

Four thousand persons are said to have visited the camp meeting of the Methodists recently held at Berwick. The numbers attending these well conducted gatherings seem to increase yearly.

These winning Dry Goods, Prints, Cottons, bleached and unbleached Cotton, Cotton Flannels, Towels, Napkins, Pillowcases, Laces, Hosiery, etc., etc., can save money every time by buying from E. B. Coman.

The ship "New Brunswick" arrived on Thursday and brought 160 passengers, on her return trip to Boston she had 132 passengers. Travel by the "New Brunswick" is never better than it is this season.

Our public schools will be reopened on Monday, the 13th. The Academic Department will be opened on Tuesday, the 14th. Mr. Smith, the principal, is to return from his vacation on Monday.

The Annapolis cricket eleven were to have visited Digby on Thursday to play a match, but the weather being unfavorable they did not appear. It is expected that they will arrive to-day, and commence play if fine.

In the Methodist church on Sabbath first Rev. R. Brown, M. A., will preach in the forenoon, and Rev. Dr. Todd, of Wilfrid, in the evening. At both churches special collections on behalf of the Organ Fund will be taken up.

The cottage and grounds on Montague Street, belonging to Capt. Chas. Burns, are for sale. The property is very desirable property, in the best part of the town, and will, no doubt, find a ready purchaser. See advt.

Good News to the Public.—At E. B. Coman's is the place to buy Dry Goods, Gent's Furnishings, and other household necessities ever offered in Digby. Prices, consisting of Silver Watches, Clocks, Gold Chains, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ladies Corsets, etc., etc., given away to purchasers.

The children of Trinity church Sunday school had their picnic at Victoria Bridge on Tuesday. The weather was all that could be desired. They were conveyed to and from Deer River by the steamer Evangeline, for which Capt. Corbett, with his usual generosity, and brought 160 passengers, on her return trip to Boston she had 132 passengers.

The Bermuda Royal Gazette of July 20th says: "The terra schooner Grace Gover, Jordan master, from Digby, Nova Scotia, with cargo, arrived in Hamilton harbor Monday evening. Captain Jordan having suffered severely during the last week from indigestion it was deemed prudent to keep up for Bermuda for medical advice. Later advices state that Captain Jordan died on the 2nd August."

Quite a curiosity can be seen at the New Drug Store in the shape of a sponge, native grown. It was found attached to a trawl while fishing in the Bay. It is about twelve inches high and is firmly grown to a small stone. A casual observer would imagine it to be a bunch of coral, but on examination would be quite satisfied that it was a sponge of enormous size. It is considered a rare specimen and would be a valuable addition to any collection of curiosities in this province.

A Westport correspondent writes: "The top of a vessel's after house has been blown off by the explosion of a boiler. The vessel was in the harbor and the explosion was heard for miles around. The vessel was damaged and the crew were injured. The cause of the explosion is not yet known."

As will be seen by advertisements in another column the International S. S. Co. of the 17th inst. commence making an extra Saturday night trip from St. John to Boston by one of their large steamers, leaving St. John on Saturday night, and arriving in Montreal on Sunday morning, giving passengers from Digby three direct trips each week to Boston by the I. S. S. Co's. fine steamer.

Home and Abroad.

Those interested in the sale of Dittmar's Cornmeal, if they think proper, send a delegate to Digby, on Saturday, 24th August, at 2 p.m. sharp. The potato crop in Yarmouth is almost a total failure. In some parts of this county the crop is likely to be lost. On the whole the crop is likely to be lost. A block of quartz has been found in size was brought into Halifax this week from the Annapolis mine which is supposed to contain more than $3000 in gold. The Monitor says: Judge Savary spent several days here last week in connection with his labors as Revising Officer for the County. Dr. Fritz, Dentist, will be at Weymouth, Bridge, Monday, Aug 30th, to examine a child. Office at residence of Dittmar Dunbar, Digby. A vacancy in the pastorate of the Baptist Church here, is to be filled by the Rev. W. H. Richardson, of Barrington, who has been for the last few weeks supplying the pulpit. Dr. J. Primrose, Surgeon Dentist, will be at Weymouth, B. I., next week, where he will be practicing his profession for a few days. Those requiring his valued services should call at his office at once. The palace steamer "State of Maine" leaves St. John for Boston direct, every Saturday morning after arrival of steamer Monticello from Digby, and arrives in Boston at 4 p.m. on Sunday. This forms one of the quickest and most pleasant routes from Nova Scotia to Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Crocker of Wakefield, Mass., are visiting friends at Weymouth. Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Crocker of Weymouth are also visiting friends at Weymouth. Crocker will return home on Wednesday, and Kinney, Plumpton, St. Mary's Bay. A female thief aged about 16 is going the rounds in the vicinity of Weymouth, lifting cash and dry goods. She was arrested on the railway line by Mr. F. Kinney one day last week, and a warrant was issued for her arrest. She was recovered, containing $24.00. A lot of other valuable goods was also recovered. Mr. Daniel R. Kinney, son of Isaac Kinney, Esq., who has for some months past been confined to the Weymouth Hospital, from tumor and other trying afflictions, has been removed to his home, at Weymouth, under the care of his parents, where he is now convalescing rapidly, and gaining strength.

The Baptists of Smith's Cove intend holding a grand tea-meeting, in their church vestry, on Tuesday the 3rd of September. Capt. Corbett will convey extra carriages to the Evangelists, and a brass band will be in attendance. Every body who wishes to have a pleasant time had better go.

The Tribune says: "The Windsor public schools re-open next Monday. Mr. J. A. Smith, a native of Newport, at present teaching in Digby, has been appointed principal. He is very highly recommended for the position. He will not take charge till late in the week."

Mr. Truett treated our citizens to another pyrotechnic display on Sunday evening. Three balloons were sent up which were very brightly lighted, the fourth and largest one was very much inflated preparatory to its ascent when it burst, and the crowd was very much startled. The display, which Mr. Truett has provided at his own expense, have afforded much enjoyment, and should be severely punished if the perpetrator can be found out.

The annual summer excursion and picnic are gradually getting to be an old story. In Weymouth, N. S., on the 1st of August, a large number of people went to the beach, and had a very pleasant time. The excursion was very successful, and the people were very much enjoyed. The excursion was very successful, and the people were very much enjoyed.

PHYSICAL BASIS OF BRAIN WORK.

It is often forgotten by those indulging in work which requires a continuous exercise of brain power, that physical exercise is as essential to the welfare of the mental system as food and drink are to the physical organism. Popular opinion is too apt to assume that brain matter is developed at the expense of muscular and muscle at the expense of intellectual development, and that a man cannot be good for both at once; but there seems to be little real doubt, in opposition to this somewhat widespread idea, that the mental and physical powers of man should be developed together, the welfare of the former especially depending greatly, except in isolated cases, upon the strength of the latter.

Historically there would seem to be no doubt that the brain and muscles have both been developed together, the welfare of the former especially depending greatly, except in isolated cases, upon the strength of the latter.

THE LAW OF COMPENSATION.
The sun delights to spend its rays Upon some ugly spot, To make a rainbow of a haze, Or gild a chimney pot.
The monarch ocean condescends And o'er a petty isle lends Its beauty to a shore.
I know that all this isn't news, Yet may it help you when You wonder pretty women choose To marry ugly men.
THE WIND AND THE LILY.
The Lily lifted her milk-white bloom, And she brightened the air with soft perfume, And a warm breeze came from the sultry vale And kissed her petals so pure and pale.
With a fearless heart she reared her head, For she thought there was naught from the Wind to dread; And she wrapped her round in her spotless pride, While she shed her fragrance on every side.
Then the Wind grew stronger and warmer And he kissed her cup with an ardent air, And her petals dropped in the burning air, While her beauty waned with a mute despair.
Then the Wind passed by with a careless smile, And he sought new buds in the little while; Yet he gave no wealth to the perfect flower, But he took from her beauty, and pride and power.

The Old Doctors
Draw blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-acidities, but to impurities of the blood; and it is equally well known that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. SELECT TALE.
THE POISONED POTION.
From London Society.
"Jack, dear, who is Sir Robert Ballantyne? Oh, he's a great analyst and writer on chemistry, but better known as the highest authority on the treatment of affections of the brain."
"And what have you been writing to him about?"
"I happened to look at the letters you left on the hall table this morning."
"Well, I only asked him. I wasn't aware that you knew him."
"Oh, yes, Ballantyne and I are very old friends."
"But I never heard you mention his name before."
"Indeed I!"
"This dialogue had been conducted with an evident anxiety on the one side, and reserve on the other, by no means characteristic of the speakers."
Jack Rivers had always been frankness itself, and Dolly the most light hearted and unsuspicious of wives.
Their married life, indeed, had been one of unalloyed happiness, though undertaken against the advice of all their friends and relations. Dolly's father had been furious at her engagement to a "beggary clerk," and had refused to attend her wedding, or to give any assistance toward the young people's household expenses.
Jack's relatives, too, after his neglect of their solemn warnings against marrying a penniless girl, when Miss Argent, with her £20,000, might have been had for the asking, had "washed their hands, as they put it, of the whole concern."

In spite, however, of poverty and isolation, the young wife had never regretted her marriage, nor considered herself other than the happiest of women, till within the last few weeks preceding the above conversation.
The last few weeks! When and how Dolly's misgivings were first aroused, she scarcely knew, but at the time when she put the question to her husband about his letter to the specialist, they had already assumed a definite form.
She felt convinced that Jack had something on his mind, and she, moreover, suspected the cause of his trouble. It was not only that his habits and manner had gradually changed; that he omitted the customary little attentions to his wife, or starting vacillantly, or looking at her with a strange irritability, that he looked himself up in his study after dinner, or went out late, with the unsatisfactory explanation that he wanted to read at the club. It was not alone that he came to bed at irregular hours, only to toss and tumble through his weary watches. All this was nothing to the revelation made one awful night, when Dolly, listening breathlessly at his side, heard his muttered words. She knew he was awake and not dreaming. Why, then, should he talk of murder and poison, and seem to be balancing in his mind the comparative merits of alternative modes of death? What could it mean? Could the terrible explanation which had previously puzzled her mind be true and true this irritability, this abstraction, and this sleeplessness, the symptoms of a weakening mind, of approaching insanity?

Such being the suspicion already entertained, the result of Dolly's discovery that her husband was in correspondence with a brain doctor, may be imagined. Evidently, she thought, Jack knew his danger and was asking for assistance, and what was the duty of a wife in such circumstances? Surely to ascertain the nature of the advice given in reply, and to carry it out with all the discretion and devotion possible. Therefore she opened the first letter that came from Sir Robert. It ran thus:
"Dear Jack: Though delighted to hear from you again, I must admit that I am very sorry for the reason which occasioned your letter, and if I thought my remonstrances would have any effect, I should recommend you most strongly to abandon your intentions altogether. I, however, promise to keep your secret and to give you my best advice on the professional point you put."
"I should recommend arsenic, and to give the impression of accidental death, you should employ a drug which is used both in medicine and in murder. Arsenic, moreover, has a special advantage from the fact that it is often taken for the benefit of the complexion. I should suggest its administration in small doses, at considerable intervals. Too sudden a death might lead to investigation, which would be avoided if the symptoms were those of a gradual and progressive illness. This is important, because if your beautiful heiress becomes acquainted with the suspicious circumstances attending the death of No. 1, she might naturally object to becoming No. 2. But once more, I advise you to give up your project altogether. It is a very heavy risk, especially to one in your position."

"You are ever,"
"ROBERT BALLANTYNE."
"Your beautiful heiress!" How dare her husband make use of such terms! And about a woman, too, whose claims to good looks he had always denied.
"Your beautiful heiress, indeed!" Strange that at such a time these words should rivet the attention of her reader almost to the exclusion of every other consideration; that at the moment of the discovery of a deliberate plot against her own life, Dolly's mind should dwell less on the awful nature of the contemplated crime than on the motive for its commission!
The idea that Jack should plan her death with the object of marrying her former rival seemed by far the darkest feature in the terrible revelation. For the meaning of the allusion was easily apprehended. "Your beautiful heiress" could have referred only to the girl whose partiality for the attractive Jack Rivers had been notorious.
Kate Argent, indeed, with her handsome face and fortune, had been a seriously disturbing element during Dolly's engagement, and her existence had not been forgotten. And thus in the first transport of jealousy and the real horror of the situation was overlooked, and the discovery accepted rather with indignation than alarm. But not for long.

By the time that she had restored the letter to its envelope and replaced it among her husband's other correspondence, she fully realized the danger of her position. And what should she do? She had no friends in London whom she could confide in, and she had no money to enable her to flee to any other place.
What should she do? Should she make her discovery public, and throw herself on the protection of the police, or should she conceal her knowledge of her husband's intentions, and await some favorable opportunity of escape? Something at any rate must be done. But what is this—this strange sensation which seems first to numb her heart, and thence to radiate through every nerve and pulse? Dolly was awake and perfectly conscious of her surroundings; she was sitting in her own room, among her own familiar furniture and ornaments. She could see the sunlight on the wall playing with the shadows of the laburnum leaves. She could hear the tick of the clock, and the loud chirping of the sparrows at the window, and the distant roar of the street traffic. She could smell the faint perfume of the mignonette in the flower boxes on the sill. But she could neither stir nor speak. No movement resulted from her frenzied efforts to rise, and when, in agony at the discovery, she tried to call for help, but no sound followed. Though acutely sensible of the horror of her position and of her own helplessness and danger, Dolly sat dumb and motionless; and by degrees the senses of sight and hearing, hitherto clear and accurate, became dim and distorted. The well-known objects surrounding her took strange and fantastic shapes, and the customary sounds assumed new and unnatural meanings. Dolly was no longer in her own little room in the little lodging in the Borough. Those blossoms which surrounded her were not the counterfeit flowers of chintz and carpet, nor that monotonous hum and roll of distant wheels. They were real flowers, and they fringed the margin of a bright river that glided by to the cadence of its own soft singing. And along its banks walked Dolly, and Jack was with her, but how sadly altered! He moved silently at her side. There was no caressing touch, no look of love in his eyes, no tone of tenderness in his voice; and at every step he seemed to force her nearer to the river's brink. Then the aspect of the river itself changed, and its rippling seemed to utter sounds of warning and woe. The lights that had decked its shadows disappeared, and the flowers that had edged its margin drooped and faded. The stream once glittering in its brightness, and borrowing further beauty from the earth and sky, grew murky and opaque. Strange shapeless monsters seemed to writhe and wallow beneath its surface; and still Jack pressed closer to her side, till the narrow pathway crumbled under her feet, and she fell headlong into the depth of the rushing torrent. Then ensued an immeasurable period of rapid transit through seething waters, and afterward of silence, of darkness, of insensibility, of annihilation.

When Dolly returned to consciousness and found herself in her own bed, she at first imagined herself to be waking after an ordinary night's rest. She was, however, soon convinced by a sense of prostration and indefinable fear that something unusual had occurred. This conclusion, moreover, was confirmed by the presence of two strangers, who presented the appearance of a nurse and doctor in attendance on her. Before, however, she had time to satisfy herself of the truth of her impressions she relapsed into insensibility. On re-awakening she found an interval, not of her surroundings. The doctor, indeed, was not visible; but from a conversation which she overheard she had little doubt that some interested intruder in the adjoining room the nature of her own malady. The voices of her own were low, the door between the bedroom and dressingroom was nearly closed, and yet with a morbid acuteness of hearing Dolly caught distinctly the meaning of every whispered word, and recognized the questioner's voice to be her husband's.
"And you forbid me to see her even for a moment?"
"Most positively. Through the whole of the delirium this extraordinary dread of you has been a dominant idea. If he caught sight of you now I could not answer for the consequences."
"But I thought you said the crisis was past, and that she would probably wake again in a perfectly rational condition?"
"Quite so, and in ordinary circumstances you would naturally be the first person she would be allowed to see; but I must tell you honestly that these are not ordinary circumstances."
"What do you mean?"
"I mean this. Rightly or wrongly, your wife has the gravest suspicions about you. She believes you to be engaged in some conspiracy against her life."
"But surely you attach no importance to what people say in their delirium?"
"Not generally, but this is a peculiar case. There has been a logical coherence in her ravings throughout her illness, which convinces me that her distrust of you was the cause, and not the consequence, of her attack of brain fever. Till I am removed it would be madness to let her see you. As it is, if she happened to overhear your voice, the result might be very serious. You must be contented for the present to leave her with me."

"But what about the meaning of the delirium?"
"And what about the meaning of the delirium?"
"Not to-night. She is still in a state of great prostration. Tomorrow when she has had some natural sleep and taken some nourishment it may be different."
The doctor was justified in his fear of the effect on his patient of the sound of her husband's voice, as was proved by the condition in which he discovered her on re-entering the sick room. He was mistaken, however, in his belief that the explanation of her agitation would necessarily be deferred. As soon as he had taken his place at the invalid's bedside, she introduced the topic herself.
"Even during the short period which had preceded Dolly's relapse into unconsciousness, the appearance of her medical attendant had attracted her favorable attention. Beyond the expression of kindness, the faint perfume of the mignonette in the flower boxes on the sill, but she could neither stir nor speak. No movement resulted from her frenzied efforts to rise, and when, in agony at the discovery, she tried to call for help, but no sound followed. Though acutely sensible of the horror of her position and of her own helplessness and danger, Dolly sat dumb and motionless; and by degrees the senses of sight and hearing, hitherto clear and accurate, became dim and distorted. The well-known objects surrounding her took strange and fantastic shapes, and the customary sounds assumed new and unnatural meanings. Dolly was no longer in her own little room in the little lodging in the Borough. Those blossoms which surrounded her were not the counterfeit flowers of chintz and carpet, nor that monotonous hum and roll of distant wheels. They were real flowers, and they fringed the margin of a bright river that glided by to the cadence of its own soft singing. And along its banks walked Dolly, and Jack was with her, but how sadly altered! He moved silently at her side. There was no caressing touch, no look of love in his eyes, no tone of tenderness in his voice; and at every step he seemed to force her nearer to the river's brink. Then the aspect of the river itself changed, and its rippling seemed to utter sounds of warning and woe. The lights that had decked its shadows disappeared, and the flowers that had edged its margin drooped and faded. The stream once glittering in its brightness, and borrowing further beauty from the earth and sky, grew murky and opaque. Strange shapeless monsters seemed to writhe and wallow beneath its surface; and still Jack pressed closer to her side, till the narrow pathway crumbled under her feet, and she fell headlong into the depth of the rushing torrent. Then ensued an immeasurable period of rapid transit through seething waters, and afterward of silence, of darkness, of insensibility, of annihilation."

be sure of its truth? Might it not be itself a fiction devised for the purpose of a allaying her excitement? Moreover, was it probable that Jack would confide the history of his novel and correspondence with Sir Robert Ballantyne to this new acquaintance? Was it likely, when he had never mentioned the subject, even to his wife, that he should communicate it to the doctor, who, no doubt, was the local practitioner summoned at the time of her attack of illness?
Convinced by these considerations that she was the victim of a deception, Dolly put a further question.
"But how do you know all about my husband's book and Sir Robert Ballantyne's letters?"
"My dear Mrs. Rivers, I am Sir Robert Ballantyne."
And well for Dolly that it was so, and that the services of such a skilled physician had been available during her illness.
Her condition, indeed, had at first seemed hopeless, but care and skill eventually triumphed, and from the moment when the cause of Dolly's apprehensions was removed, her recovery was rapid and uninterrupted.

The nature of the first meeting between husband and wife with its strange mixture of mirth and tears can only be indicated; Dolly's contribution was met by a hearty acknowledgment of Jack's share in the responsibility for the mystification. Not that he could be fairly blamed for the solicitude on his wife's behalf, which had been alike responsible for his literary enterprise, and for the secrecy observed regarding it.
The notion of the "Poisoned Potion" had indeed originated in its authors desire to increase his income, and furnish his wife with the comforts to which she had been accustomed.
While anxious for her enjoyment of the book of his success, he had determined to spare her the anxieties preceding its accomplishment.
A mutual misunderstanding had ensued. Dolly ascribed to the wrong cause her husband's restlessness and preoccupation, while he attributed his wife's evident anxiety to the privations to which she was subjected.
The "Poisoned Potion," Jack's sensational novel, appeared with its appetite for "mysteries" was at its zenith and was admitted to be the success of the year. Dolly's father has now little reason to be ashamed of his son-in-law, no longer the "beggary clerk," but one of the most prosperous authors of the day, Jack's relations, too, who "washed their hands" of the whole concern, profitable establishment in one of the most fashionable streets of Mayfair.

SHE MISSED THE STEAMER.—It is not often that a wedding is delayed by the tardiness of the bride, but the people of Digby, who have been counting on one of these important events that was to come off in that town this evening, will be disappointed. The bride, a well known Digby lady, has been in the city a few days, and she was to have returned home this morning by the steamer City of Monticello, but she only reached the wharf in time to see the steamer swinging off. She blames her coachman for the delay. Telegrams were sent to the expectant groom informing him of the mishap and stating the young lady would cross to-morrow, when the event will no doubt be celebrated and the married life of the young couple will not be the less happy for having been delayed a day.—St. John Globe, of Sept. 4th.

The payment by an English syndicate of $5,000,000 for the privilege of manufacturing and selling a certain well known patent medicine is one of the latest investments of English capital on this side of the Atlantic. Many of the leading breweries have passed into the hands of Englishmen; they now own large interests in the most important mines and railways, they are negotiating for the purchase of some of the leading dry goods houses, they own vast tracts of farming country, and they are seemingly disposed to buy up whatever has money in it. If this goes on much longer an important fraction of the United States will have passed under English control.

A SOLDIER OF THE WEST RIDING REGIMENT, stationed at Halifax, committed suicide at McNab's Island, on Wednesday last, by shooting the top of his head off with a Martini Henri rifle. He placed the muzzle of the gun in his mouth and by means of a strap attached to the trigger and his foot, discharged the contents through his head. The verdict of the jury was in effect that the deed was done while suffering from mental depression.

A LINE FROM GLADSTONE.—My little son aged two, was seized with diarrhoea, followed by piles, two doses of Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry gave relief and half the bottle completed a cure. Mrs. J. A. McIntire, Gladstone, Man. This medicine is a specific for all summer complaints of children or adults.

SWEET SIXTEEN.

This is the Courier's birthday number, and we celebrate in a quiet way our sixteenth anniversary. We are pleased to be able to say that we have nothing to complain of as to the number of our subscribers or the increase of our lists. Our untiring efforts to supply a reliable, useful and creditable paper which shall maintain and represent the varied interests which surround us, have not been unappreciated. But while we may fairly congratulate ourselves on the increase of our subscription lists, we have to lament that so many are delinquents in the matter of paying the small sum which is charged for the Courier for one year. We know that some think it just as well as the sum is only one dollar a year; to let it go for two or three years and then pay the whole thing at once; but those one dollar subscriptions form a large part of our receipts, and upon their prompt payment annually, we are dependent for that success, to which we think we are justly entitled. We are having annually greater facilities for performing every kind of job work, and our business in that line is steadily increasing. In a short time we shall have increased accommodation in our premises, and the larger room which our extending business requires.

We have been appointed managers, at this end of the line, of the Westport and Digby Telephone Co., an office will be the head quarters for telephone communication with the Neck and with the Islands. This connection will, in all probability, soon be perfected by the laying of the submarine cables across the Petite and Grand Passages, when this prosperous and important section of our country will have constant communication with the rest of the world.

In the meantime our country is steadily, if slowly, progressing. Needed wants are gradually being supplied, and each closing year leaves us further on the path of progress and improvement than it found us. To contribute towards this progress, and to hasten this improvement, is our earnest aim, and we feel that in so doing, we shall retain that support and patronage which in the past has been so fully accorded us.

A HARD CASE.

Instances more or less similar to the one narrated below are not uncommon, and should teach old people in similar circumstances not to be too ready to part with their property.

Mr. John L. Smith, of Smith's Cove, brought to our office this week, some magnificent samples of apples grown on his own farm. They were of the Alexander variety, and some of the measured thirteen inches in circumference. When proper care is taken in the cultivation, Digby is not behind other counties in the production of fruit as regards either size or flavor.

"The Naked Truth." Whilst Truth was one day bathing in a limpid river, falsehood happened to pass, and noticing the garments of Truth on the bank of the stream, conceived the idea of exchanging his dirty rags for the clean, white garments of Truth. He came from the bank and commenced to dress himself, but, alas! he found that he had no clothes, and he was left in the same state as when he first appeared.

"What's the matter with you?" asked a fisherman who was passing by. "I have lost my clothes," replied the man. "Then you are a fool," said the fisherman, "for you have lost your clothes, and you are now a naked man."

PERSONALS.

F. W. Hutchinson, son of I. C. Hutchinson, of Digby, left on Saturday for the commercial college at Boston. Mr. Dean Ruggles, of the dry goods firm, of Ames & Ruggles, Worcester, Mass., and son of Benj. H. Ruggles, Esq., of Worcester, made a call in passing on Mr. W. C. Barron, representing the Ontario firm of T. Milburn & Co., who is in Digby on Monday.

Mr. John Walsh, of the firm of Tumball & Walsh left on Saturday, accompanied by Mr. Welch for an extended trip through Western Ontario via New York and Buffalo. Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Henry Hinkinson of Weymouth were in town on Wednesday.

WESTPORT NOTES.

(From a Correspondent.) John Donoherty, Esq., of Port Wilmot, accompanied by his wife, arrived by the Alameda on Thursday last, on their brief tour. They are guests of B. H. Ruggles, Esq., Mr. T. M. Lewis lectured in the temperance hall. Quite a number were present.

Mr. Chas. C. Smith, of Westport, but now residing at Boston, arrived by steamer last week. The fishing business continues dull. Vessels are starting and but light catches. The telephone line has been completed for some months past, and the company has been anxiously waiting for the government to lay the cables across the passage; probably they may come some time this month. The shareholders were promised that this line would be in operation by the last of July, yet the instruments are at Digby, instead of being placed at the ends of the line between Westport and Tiverton.

BARTON NOTES.

(From our correspondent.) Our village presents quite a busy appearance at present. The merchants appear to be doing a good business. Mr. Gordon, Barton's business is still being carried on, but his presence in the store is much missed. Mr. Hilton has for years been known as one of our most active business men along the Bay, and one who has always dealt honestly with his many customers. We are sorry to state that some three years ago Mr. Hilton had a severe attack of rheumatism from which he has never recovered. During this time he has suffered terribly, at times being scarcely able to move. We had the pleasure recently of seeing Mr. Hilton on his way from his store to his house. We trust that he will again be able to enjoy good health.

Miss Joseph and John D'Entremont arrived home from St. John last week, having completed their work on the new ship launched by Messrs. Burdell & Co.

The Rev. Mr. Clakney has recently occupied the house owned by Mr. Thomas Woodworth. Capt. James Abbott, master of the bk. "Fionn," has been spending a few days at his home in Barton, while his ship is being repaired. He is a well known and popular man, and is much liked by the people of Barton.

Mr. Thomas Morgan, of St. John, N. B., is visiting his many friends at Barton and Brighton. Mr. Harry Breacher, of Melrose, Mass., has been visiting his friend, Mr. Alfred Worthylake, of Brighton. We understand that some small boys entertained the school children here on Thursday night of last week, and played, as they supposed, some "tricks," however these "tricks" resulted in some damage of property, as well as showing their ignorance. That they were the school children is evidenced by the fact that they were all dressed in their school clothes.

A number of our young folks met at the residence of Mr. John D'Entremont, on Saturday evening last, for the purpose of playing cards. The party was very enjoyable, and it is intended to hold these meetings on Friday or Saturday evening, as the weather permits.

Digby Academy.

It is announced that Mr. Edward Fulton, B. A., of St. John's, Colchester Co., has been appointed principal of the academy. He is highly recommended by the Faculty of Dalhousie College.

We are pleased to note that Mr. Nichols, Hill College, who has been attending the academy for two years, has been admitted to the Freshman class of Acadia College without further examination, having completed successfully the necessary matriculation subjects.

Also that Com. Wornell, another student of this town, obtained Grade C license, the license he applied for at the late examination of teachers. The academy requires no further recommendation as to its status.

Our teachers are attending the Teachers' Association at Annapolis this week.

WRECK OF THE "SHARON."

Word was received in Halifax Saturday night of a terrible disaster which had taken place on the coast of Nova Scotia. The wreck of the ship "Sharon," a steamer, had been found. The details of the disaster are very strange, but from Mr. Ross, a passenger on the ship, it is gathered that the "Sharon" was on her way from Halifax to Boston, and was carrying a large cargo of goods. The ship was wrecked on the coast of Nova Scotia, and the crew and passengers were rescued.

Mr. Ross, the only survivor of the "Sharon," is now in Halifax. He is a very brave and intelligent man, and he has given a very interesting account of the disaster. He says that the ship was on her way from Halifax to Boston, and was carrying a large cargo of goods. The ship was wrecked on the coast of Nova Scotia, and the crew and passengers were rescued.

REMARKABLE 15 YEARS' EX-
DUCTION TO BOSTON.

Now Selling at Populating Manufacture.

From the Boston Globe, Sept. 1st, 1889.

There is one important phase of the Canadian question that has failed to attract the public notice it deserves. While statesmen and politicians on this side of the border are preoccupying upon annexation and of our common country, and while philosophers and writers are drawing eloquent word pictures of future unmitigated greatness a certain portion of the people on the other side of the border are putting the same question in a more practical and important way:

 "What have they been doing, today or many a day, in fact for years. Day after day and month after month for decades and a half, a continual stream of people, whose circumstances of birth or residence have made them known as Provincialists, has been flowing New Englandwards with steady and increasing force."

and children, seeking new distance and prosperity at the eastern gateway of the United States. They have come not because of oppressive laws, not because their birthplaces are not fertile or fruitful for they are not—but merely because that restive spirit which takes possession of man's mind when he finds, or thinks he finds, that other people are progressing faster and acquiring more material wealth than he—the same spirit, in truth, that sends across the ocean in every foreign vessel that points its bows toward these shores a great colony of people who

Thousands of those who have settled here have become naturalized citizens, others are prospective of becoming such, while others still have tried in vain to remove their own staid and conservative natures with the unwonted whirl and pressure of American life, and have gone back to their native land content to stay there.

FOUR IRON REFINERS.

Industry that Presumes to Assume Immense Proportions.

The development of the iron deposits of Pictou county promises to make this county industry in the near future.

There are two companies commencing work up the river, some 15 miles from New Glasgow. One is an American and the other a provincial and British capital. The latter is representative of the latter being now in the old companies in connection with the first.

The American company has surveyed a road from their works at New Glasgow, some 10 1/2 miles to the river.

They claim forty square miles of iron and coal property. It is intended to erect blast furnaces, the ore being converted into pig iron.

The process into pig iron, the company claim abundance in the area, which they will use for their own use. The works will cost about $200,000.

A subsidy is granted the company that will extend the road for some 10 miles, passing through a rich agricultural district, and no railroad within its borders.

The company also mean business, claiming one year that they

The part of the country where these mines are located will become a second Pittsburg and the natives of New Glasgow are waiting when colored men and Trenton will be one of the leading business and industrial centre of Nova Scotia.

The hours of work varied from sunrise to sundown at Albany and New York; or, as money then counted a day; at Lancaster, a month; elsewhere in America, laborers were content with a summer and $3 in winter. More men were glad to be hired a day. None by the end made more than $6. High-Pressing Living characterizes these modern days. The result is a fearful increase of brain and heart disease. General Debility, Insomnia, Paralysis, and other ailments, are the result of this evil. The medicine has adapted to do permanent good is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood, and gives vigor to the system, and cures every form of debility and disease of the blood. "I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for years. I have found it invaluable."

A Cure

for Nervous Debility caused by an inactive liver and a low state of the blood. — Henry Mason, Meigs, Ohio.

"For some time I have been troubled with heart disease. I never found anything to help me until I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have only used this medicine six months, but it has relieved me from my trouble, and enabled me to resume work." — J. E. Chapman, Perry, Ill.

"I have been a practicing physician for over half a century, and during that time I have never found so powerful and reliable an alterative and blood-purifier as Ayer's Sarsaparilla." — Dr. M. Massart, Louisville, Ky.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Price $1 per bottle, 50¢ worth 50¢ a bottle.

UNIVERSAL LUXURY IN AMERICA

The enormous growth of luxury in New York in very recent years, is indeed, a like every observer who has travelled through the town with his eyes open. Extravagance has become a popular gospel. We are a long way behind London yet, but London is the only city in the world where spendthrift lavishness goes abroad as splendidly lavishly as it does with us. The infection here reaches all who have any money to spend. The difference between the man of millions and the man of thousands is only one of degree. The same instinct for indulgence of a man for spending money, animates and controls both. Frowny women, serve here in tenement houses, grocers, and on their beauteous fingers, the testament plan with exorbitantly costly imitations of the splendors of Fifth Avenue parlors and boudoirs. The shop-girl, living as one of half a dozen in a bedroom in a cheap boarding-house, appears in her everyday attire the splendor of Miss McElmsey, who has a new outfit for every week in the year. The counter-jumper has his clothes made in imitation of those of the supporters of the Knickerbocker Club. Jones, on an income of 25,000 dollars a year, and with a family, houses himself in a 6000 flat, and brown, who makes 1000 dollars a year, spends 2,500 dollars for house rent and keeps a carriage and a retinue of servants.

This does not mean that the mass of people in New York are making more money than ever, but they are spending more. Where they once hoarded they now waste. Where the Browns and Joneses and Smiths were once content with a family circle seat at the opera on holiday nights, and four visits to the theatre a year, they now require orchestra chairs for every novelty. Where the Mrs. Browns and Mrs. Joneses and Mrs. Robinsons were once satisfied to make their own dresses, with a sewing woman who went out by day to do the rough sewing, they now patronize a modiste, who makes, at any rate, is supposed to make—annual visits to Paris, and professes to dress her clients on models furnished by Worth and Felix and Pingat.

At the fashionable jewellers they will tell you that their most profitable customers to-day are those who ten years ago did not even venture to look in at Tiffany's window.

There are diamond brokers in the very slums, and makers of French boots and millinery in the districts blackened by factory smoke and grimed with the squalor of the rookeries of the town.

Only yesterday, lounging among the mazes of murky East Side, I found myself reading, in the shadow of a goal wall, the sign of an "English Taylor and Hatter Maker," at whose door dirty children peeped, and other with a dead cat, while there is no street so low or poor that it does not boast its "Bootmaker from London." Even in the poorest shopping streets the same condition of affairs prevails. Tawdry imitations of costly dresses, which are dear even at the prices asked for them, usurp the place of durable and useful fabrics. Pinchbeck jewellery, imitation pearls, diamonds of glass and silk umbrellas of varnished cotton, invite the patronage of a crowd that must shorten its allowance of bread to indulge in these vulgar and worthless superfluities.

The only difference between Broadway and the Bowery, between Twenty-third, and Fourteenth, and Grand Street, is in the quality of the goods they offer for sale. While Croesus invests a fortune in Melloni's, Millets, Daubigny's at the great picture sales, Cloc wastes his hard-earned cash on the frightful sold by the mock auction dealers. Maecenas fills his portfolio with the rarities of the printseller's shop, while his boot-black adorns his walls with pirated copies of the masterpieces his betters buy at more than their weight in gold. There was at one time in London a rage for living for appearances, at no matter what ultimate cost, that all the novelists and moralists of the day satirized in their keenest terms. The same vice of small vanity and false pride has found its root in New York and put out its bait for all manner of men and women to snap at, and they take hook as greedily as a black bass will snap at a tempting fly. —Pittsburgh Bulletin.

At Deane's Door

My little boy had a diarrhoea and came very near dying. After the failure of every remedy else we used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry which caused a quick cure, and I know of two others who were cured by the same remedy. — F. M. Mackay, Hiller, Ont.

John W. Mackay, Jr., son of the California millionaire, is having a yacht built to be propelled by naphtha, which is to be the largest boat about with such a motor. It will be lighted with gas, as Mr. Mackay has an invincible repugnance to electricity.

Good Advice.—To be healthy and have lots of life and vim, to control in daily life plenty of sleep, and regulate the bowels, bile and liver with Burdock Blood Bitters, a sure cure for constipation, rheumatism, dyspepsia, all blood humors, scurvy, and all broken down conditions of the system.

The motion lately made by the House of Commons by Mr. Tabor, here in favor of abolishing the hereditary principle in the House of Lords, comes near success, that a change of less than thirty votes from one side to the other would have turned the scale. Scarcely any attempt was made to defend the hereditary legislators.

A Lark From Gloucester.—My little son aged two, was seized with diarrhoea followed by piles, two doses of Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry gave relief and half the bottle completed a cure. — Mrs. J. A. McIntire, Gloucester, Mass. This medicine is a specific for all summer complaints of children or adults.

The strongest man in Maine is said to live in the town of New Limerick, Arnscoot county. His name is Alexander Willette, and he is noted for and wide as a man able to carry a log on his shoulder with ease. Recently he won a bet by picking up a newly-felled log, forty-six feet in length, and carrying it some distance. No two of the other men in the camp could even lift the stick. —New York Sun.

Whereas.—Whereas much disease is caused by wrong action of the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood, and whereas Burdock Blood Bitters is guaranteed to cure all dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney complaint, dropsy, rheumatism, sick headache, etc. Therefore, Be It Resolved that all sufferers should use B. B. B. and be restored to health.

The trial of the smokeless powder by the field artillery of the Twelfth Army Corps recently in its manoeuvres before the King of Saxony at Zeithain-Rodera was perhaps the most conclusive yet attempted. After several hours of cannonading, the air over the battle ground was perfectly clear. Not even a puff of smoke showed itself. It is said that the new powder requires bronze cannon, and that all the steel guns will have to go.

The use of calomel for derangements of the liver has ruined many a fine constitution. Those who for similar troubles, have tried Ayer's Pills testify to their efficacy in thoroughly remedying the malady, without injury to the system.

Catarh, Catarrh, Deafness, Hay Fever.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrh deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to two applications made at home by the patient in two weeks. N. B. For catarrh discharges peculiar to females (white) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents to A. H. Dixon & Sox, 303 West King St., Toronto, Canada. —Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrh troubles should carefully read the above.

C. C. RICHARDS & CO.,

Gents.—I have used your MINARD'S LINIMENT successfully in a serious case of erup in my family. In fact I consider it a remedy no house should be without. — J. F. CUNNINGHAM, Cape Island.

St. Say ALL.—That MINARD'S LINIMENT is the standard liniment of the day, as it does just what it is represented to do. — 52 1m
