100th Birthday

1877-1977

Now and then a printing job may be an important paper which required a large kind of posters, ink which smudged very easily now days. I always dreaded it when "Mac" would let that job be the largest given. In spite of the fact that we always spread an outside door to lessen troubles on the customer.

One of the jobs I had to do, besides painting and grouting the floor, was to... I finished one and then... One day not long after I started to get to the grouting plant, I decided to clean the floor that apparently hadn't been cleaned in some considerable time.

"J.J." came along and said, "How are you doing out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor. "J.J." laughed very heartily. He thought the remark pretty good and said:

Sometimes the gasoline engine is a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and the "Man" if a man had patiently worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without "Ma," "Ma" would then stand back and come out dramatically then he would immediately start working. "Ma," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of coaxing."

On other occasions, when some group refused duty for the end, seemed to be broken! "Man" would say, "use a little oil" and sure enough, often that is all it took. Thus often since, have I heard of the value of that remark and the actual need of "oil" in many life situations, applied at the right time, right place and in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are like the time I told "Mac" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1958 got together just before dark one evening and decided to estimate the newly built outdoor Pearl Hotel swimming pool which had been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just out of the pool; nobody else seemed to be around except the four boys, in thought or time for bathing suits, as to the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in. The next one followed and across the pool the stream rest quickly followed and across the pool. "Mac" listened to the story and hardly said anything, but the next "Dignity Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story went something like, "Four Boy Scouts Officially Open Pines Hotel Swimming Pool." Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Carl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars (second World War); Kenneth, was awarded the Victoria Cross; Solitary L. Smith, now prominent druggie; for many years in Digby; Clayton D. Snow, Digby wholesale lobster dealer; and myself.

As a young teenager I used to like doing some writing about different events interesting to myself and mostly for myself. One day I was told to write about writing your version of the story told about "The Marooning of Jerome". I did and read at least two somewhat different versions of the man who was found marooned on a beach in some part on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Duxbury County. When I read this man's tongue and feet cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

"Jinnah" appeared to have been a man of considerable social standing and possibly considerable wealth. However the only thing he could or would ever say after being asked was for his family in the French colony something that sounded like Orléans either would not, or would not want who he was or why he was left there it was, And it, one of Digne County and, different ideas have been and, different minds have very different views concerning this man. "Mao" was, I felt so sure he was different about this man. "He has been very well explained to people and he was a sort of people who started where he started."

Digby 172 Years Ago

Comment by David Sanford

From the files of the Chamber of January 22, 1967, the following account has been copied concerning Dwight D. Davis:

Among a number of old newspapers kindly sent to us by friends is a copy of the Salem Times-Tribune of May, 1882, says the Tribune and among other advertisements contained in the issue referred to is one mentioning the town and forwarding of Daply, and offering for sale certain lots in the town. In this ad we are told the ownership of Daply "rests from the fact of Annapolis appearing in the certificate of the province of Nova Scotia, and contains about 100,000 acres." The town plot is there described.

The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Bay, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles distant from the head of H. Mary's Bay. This land, and not from the water's edge, partly is level ground, and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having on an eastern aspect a view of the Annapolis Bay, and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in extent, it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth at that name. It was secured by Loyalists from New York in 1782, the point of which went nearly to Britain, as, moving to other countries, left the shore free trade with the U.S.A., especially with the New England States. The question was then debated by some Digby High School students, one of which was J.J.'s daughter, Florence (now Mrs. Morton of Tibet, Prescott, Digby Co.). Some days after the debate a man from some part of Nova Scotia came to the printing shop looking for Florence, one of the successful debaters. I had the impression that this man was interested politically but, maybe I was wrong.

Well, I felt that I had learned considerable from my short experience at "The Wallis Job Print." I was learning to do beginner jobs, receiving some knowledge about things like embossing, stapling, perforating, coaming, cutting and crumpling paper stock, mixing inks for certain desired colors, and so forth, too. The only experience I had at setting type was just enough to make a "go," the printers name for a completed name.

There was a taste of trying to do it all outside the plant. "Mac" said to me, "how about trying full day and so." I tried it. I made several calls your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards. I tried it. I made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular amount from, and much more; and got an order, but

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines suggested by the death of Mrs. Herbert A. Henshaw.

Her life was sweet in word and deed.

Her every look was love and cheer.

Her voice was sweet and clear.

But now her form is in the deep, deep sea.

Her spirit's home is in the land of the dead.

A new hymn of praise to the Ancient of Days.

Gladsome carols and songs.

To the song of Heaven, to the song of the sea.

To Jesus, the great King of Kings.

We miss thee, dear sister, from our hearts and our homes.

Right well we cherished and loved thee.

Return, O return from thy long voyage south.

Come back, we daily beseech thee.

"No, no, my dear sister, I'm not in the south."

Let not your faith sink into which I've so longed.

I'm looking in Heaven's pure light.

And often my brethren will wish for my presence.

Will wish for the day of my hand.

Prepare, brethren dear, for the call "Come up higher."

And then I will meet you upon the bright strand.

And often there are who are held in fond memory.

Who loved me, upheld me, and often cheered.

For these in their sadness, I ask my dear brethren.

The Liver

When the liver is diseased, it affects every organ of the body. It is the source of bile, and if it is not healthy, the bile is not healthy. The bile is the food of the liver, and if it is not healthy, the liver is not healthy. The liver is the source of life, and if it is not healthy, life is not healthy.

Ayer's Pills.

Ayer's Pills are the best medicine for the liver. They are made of natural ingredients, and they are gentle on the stomach. They are the best medicine for the liver, and they are the best medicine for the body.

Act Well

Act well, and you will be happy. Act well, and you will be healthy. Act well, and you will be successful. Act well, and you will be loved. Act well, and you will be everything.

Allen's Lung Balsam.

DO YOU KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE?

Allen's Lung Balsam is the best remedy for coughs, colds, croup, consumption, &c. It is made of natural ingredients, and it is gentle on the stomach. It is the best remedy for the lungs, and it is the best remedy for the body.

German Syrup

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, Me. He writes: "I have used your German Syrup for a long time, and I have found it to be the best medicine for the lungs. It is made of natural ingredients, and it is gentle on the stomach. It is the best medicine for the lungs, and it is the best medicine for the body."

Digby Weekly Courier.

Digby, October 16, 1891.

A NEW DEFENDER OF THE FAITH.

It was Goldsmith, we believe, who said "Every absurdity hath a champion." "Every absurdity," for error is always "absurdity." However true this may be, one would hardly suppose that the task of championing such an absurdity as the defence on moral ground of Langevin's boodling would be undertaken by a minister of the gospel. Yet Dr. E. M. Saunders, in a letter to some Conservative journals has actually the temerity to urge that the ex-Minister's faults be condoned and his crimes forgotten. This defence comes with ill grace from Dr. Saunders, for more reasons than one. In the first place the fact that, as Dr. Saunders says, "an errand of conscience," in creating this young nation's schismers from abroad, and the unscrupulous at home, have had their opportunities to ply their wiles, and "nothing" has escaped the eyes of these "vultures" is no excuse for Langevin's deliberate system of crookedness—a system that betrayed every indication of an attention devoted to it so careful and deliberate that every scrap of correspondence connecting him with his partner in boodling was destroyed by the Minister. And in the next place Sir Hector is hardly an object of such fearful pity when viewed from the standpoint of Dr. Saunders. Rolling in the wealth of testimonials from contractors who he permitted to fleece the country right and left, and in the enjoyment of his healthy income as a New York landholder, the Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George can well dispense with the amateur lance of an almost unknown dominion whose necessities drive him to the humiliating forgetfulness of truths and maxims he ought to preach and ought not to forget, for a grasp at the opportunity to curry favor by advancing opinions which it is hardly possible he himself can hold.

FOOLISH CHAPLEAU.

Mr. Chapleau has been speaking in Quebec and in his own vindictive style has scored most mercilessly the clergymen who have spoken from their pulpits against the reign of corruption at Ottawa. The Secretary has been so accustomed to bringing something to the touchstone of means that it is difficult for him to understand an institution, the ethics of which are impervious to its charms. He has suddenly amid the strains of "The Republic" and "The Star" labored with his pamphlets so assiduously to pollute and sully everything they touched, that it grieves the soul of Chapleau to think the Canadian pulpit still holds up its head and bids defiance to any, even dares to condemn—the crimes of the administration. He stamps his foot and screams "These clergymen ought to be forbidden to speak on such subjects," and boasts that his own clergymen abstain from meddling in politics. Mr. Chapleau forgets that when crimes similar to those charged to Haggart were attributed to Parnell the Catholic clergy out spoke manfully in condemnation of the uncleanliness. But the secretary of State would have "those men" forbidden. Pray by whom? Mr. Chapleau knows there is no recognized head over those men for whom he might frame a mandate. In his capacity he speaks for the government, and until they repudiate the sentiment it must be understood the intimation is theirs. He says "the time has come for a declaration on the subject." He means anything, that the government are not disposed to allow such a dangerous moral educator as the pulpit to go unannounced.

As an instance of the righteous horror in which the corruption disclosed at Ottawa is held by the clergy of the Dominion the resolution lately adopted by the presbytery of Montreal is strikingly significant. It reads: "In view of the great public evils prevalent in our country, the presbytery expresses grave cause for humiliation before God, and resolves to express its abhorrence of the widespread political corruption which has been revealed by recent investigations, and its dissatisfaction with the failure of parliament to deal adequately with it by the punishment of the guilty, and therefore calls upon the people to express their condemnation on the earliest opportunity at the polls."

Mr. Chapleau must not delay if these men are to be muzzled. The clergy seem almost to a man to have turned up their noses not only at the corruption itself but at the inadequateness of parliament to deal with the guilty. If he were the Knight from Antigonish don't get some sort of an edict issued putting out of forbidding these men they will have the administration in the soup before many bye elections are held.

"A pretty gang" is the language in which the "Yarmouth Times" refers to the proprietors of the Courier. This language may not be very polite but it is extremely characteristic. The lavish expenditure of boodle by the federal government has corrupted more than the public conscience; it has sadly contaminated individual manners in particular cases. Mr. Abbott should endeavor to teach his little $10 a day boodle sheets to at least attain decency when referring to respectable people.

Mrs. Haggart has sued for divorce. Heaven help her when the Empire and Halifax Herald get at her!

Temperance Meeting at Bridge-town.

[From a correspondent.] On Monday evening, 12th inst., a public temperance meeting, under the auspices of the Bridge-town division, was held in the Baptist church, Bridge-town. The chair was taken at 8 o'clock by Rev. John C. Jones. After prayer, James Hart was called on to offer prayer. The chairman in a few well chosen remarks introduced Capt. Geo. E. Corbett of Annapolis. The speaker commenced his address in an unassuming manner, but in a few minutes he had the audience in a state of rapt attention. He spoke of the evils of intemperance, and of the need of a more practical temperance. He gave the following statistics: No. of cases, 200; amount of subscriptions, $485; No. of converts, 240; exhibits, 1000; amount of gifts, $1815; cash from sale of gifts, $1000.

Home and Abroad

Nov. 12th will be Thanksgiving Day. There are some severe cases of scarlet fever reported in town. Minutes of Town Council received too late for publication in this issue. The trouble between the United States and Chili has been amicably settled. See advertisement of bankrupt sale by C. O. Jones in space formerly occupied by W. H. Parker.

Rev. J. B. Ganong, will preach in Baptist Church on Sunday next, morning and evening. Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Short of Digby, and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Short of Digby, have our thanks for wedding compliments. Prof. H. W. Smith, of Truro, will lecture in the Hall, Lawrence-street, on Thursday evening Oct. 15th, at 8 p.m. Subject, "The Provincial Farm for 1890-91."

The Y. P. S. C. E. of Grace Methodist Church, have a very enjoyable treat for the half last Tuesday evening. A good programme of vocal and instrumental music and readings was supplemented by refreshments and ice cream. The boys were made especially welcome. The services in Grace Methodist church next Sunday will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Simpson in the morning and Rev. R. Thompson in the evening.

There are doubtless a great many people in many who would be glad to hear Rev. J. M. Fisher's lecture, "Beyond the Stars." It is spoken very highly of in the press, and if Yarmouth and other towns are privileged to hear it why not Digby? The reverend gentleman would without a doubt confer a favor by announcing his lecture here, and we think the appreciation of the favor would be evinced by a large and interested audience.

The New Drug Store which was purchased last week by Dr. E. F. Fries by Dr. J. S. Kinsman is placed under the management of Mr. J. D. Pittblado a young gentleman from Minneapolis. Mr. Pittblado has had an extensive experience in the drug business, has excellent testimonials for his honesty and attention in dispensing, and comes thoroughly equipped and qualified in every department of his business. Judging from the mutual satisfaction that characterizes his business relations with others, we feel warranted in recommending Mr. Pittblado to the patronage of the public, and congratulate Dr. Kinsman on obtaining so capable a successor.

Rev. J. M. Fisher's lecture, "Beyond the Stars or Sir Galahad," delivered in Yarmouth, Monday evening last was pronounced by those who heard it one of the ablest to which a Yarmouth audience has been treated. Its delivery was earnest, at times impassioned, but its great merit was its application of great principles to the burning, practical questions of to-day, especially the development of character, which the lecturer very properly declared to be the greatest question of this or any other age. Under the type of "truth" the lecturer exposed the impediments to the formation of character, indifference, repression, coyness, the force of impulses, nervous faith, etc., and under "Sir Galahad" showed the moral chivalry going forth to his conflicts and laurels with a well founded life, the inner control of intellect, promptitude above all a pure heart. The contrast between the character produced by scepticism and loose moral views and that produced by the principles of divine virtue, created a thrilling effect upon the audience. Boulanger was contrasted with Washington, Weyherly with J. Russell Lowell, and Mirabeau with Garfield. Rev. Mr. McInnis (Congl.) and T. B. Flint, Esq., M. P., moved and seconded a vote of thanks. Their remarks gave additional force to the principles enunciated in the lecture.

A YARMOUTH LADY'S EXPERIENCE. A Sensational Story About H. L. Yarmouth. Boston, Oct. 13.—The Globe last night published a sensational story about Nathaniel L. Yarmouth, general agent of the New York Steamship Company, who has recently taken an active part in steamboat competition at Yarmouth. The Globe's story is that Yarmouth had a checked career as a stable keeper, serving machine agent, grocer's clerk and latterly general manager of the steamer City of Columbia, running between New York and Yarmouth. He is handsome and gay and was spending his months at Yarmouth he felt desperately in love with Sadie, the twenty-year-old daughter of W. A. Killam. Yarmouth was a millionaire, and his father had left him worth living without Sadie. Finally, paternal objections were overcome and the marriage was to take place this month. But there was trouble in the New York S. S. Co. Yarmouth had a million-dollar patent medicine, man, H. H. Warner, president of the company, presented an attachment against the "City of Columbia" for twelve thousand dollars, which was to be paid in the running arrangements. About the same time Mr. Killam heard ugly stories about his prospective son-in-law. From information obtained Mrs. Killam was to Yarmouth, and with a photograph of Yarmouth, they met Nathaniel's wife and daughter, whom he had deserted some years ago, and left to fight the battles of life alone, while he cruised in the luxurious life in New York which an alleged $7,000 salary afforded. In response to Mrs. Killam's indignant denunciation Nathaniel wrote a 10-page letter remarkable for grammar, spelling and construction, in which he tells her how the best society in New York and Brooklyn, how his salary increased from $150 to $7,000 a year, and how he is known by every steamship man from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico.

He declares his relations to Miss Killam to be honorable in thought and action, and says all New York society honors of the engagement, and asks Mrs. Killam to suspend judgment till he returns to Yarmouth to explain matters more fully. There was a painful scene at Yarmouth. The Yarmouth lady faints, and Mrs. Yarmouth, an instance of passion, her husband's letter. "Wife."

T. R. Kins, Esq., Insurance Agent, Truro, N. S., certifies that for several years he had dyspepsia of the worst kind with great pain and distress after eating, in fact, pass almost all the time until getting so bad he had to get out of bed and sleep. During the year he consulted several of the best physicians, getting medicine from each, which only afforded temporary relief. He discovered the great value of Dr. Kins' medicine, and after taking a short time he was cured. He is now a healthy man, and is a complete restoration to health. He can furnish names of hundreds of persons who can testify of its great value.

PARNELL'S LIFE.

Reminiscences of the Great Irishman.

His Childhood in Times of Great Distress and Other Notable Traits of His Character.

The killing of James Carey, the noted Irish reformer, was up to that time, the most dramatic episode in Irish politics in this country. That at all events, was the opinion in Ireland at the time. On board the "Atlantic," nearing the coast of Africa, in charge of a couple of not very effective, with other persons, the first, ying anything of where he was, was the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who was thought—the infamous—was performed by butting remarkably in the hands of O'Donnell. Senator Castellan, a leading Irish republican leader, after in the Irish parliament, "One day, but wonder at the sombre power of the Irish party, its organization, its influence. When an Irishman can be found, as in this case, to travel two thousand leagues to chastise on the open sea the Queen's evidence, there need be no fear that he will later in the footstep which lead from the prison to the gallows." Everybody knows of course, that the Irish party were not the Irish party. They consisted merely of twenty-nine men, organized by James Carey, and their first operation was the killing in Phoenix Park, Dublin, on a Saturday evening in May, 1882, of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke. When the news was made Carey turned on his accomplices and betrayed them.

There was, however, a more dramatic episode even than this yet to come in Irish politics, and Parnell was to be the central figure. It arose, too, out of these same Phoenix Park murders. At that the Irish leader threatened to retire from public life, and he was horrified at what had happened. In the incident about to be related he had reached the highest point of influence and power, higher than ever before attained by any leader. The London Times had charged Parnell with having had guilty knowledge of the murders, and that therefore his threat to retire from public life was hypocritical in the last degree.

Richard Pigott, known as "Dick" Pigott, the chief witness for the Times, broke down completely under the skillful cross-examination of Sir Charles Russell. He was so confused and flustered, so he fled to his room and killed himself. This, of course, overhauled the Times, while it put Parnell on a veritable pinnacle of glory. The adherents of the Irish leader in the three kingdoms and in the gallant Wales went wild with excitement. It added more time to Gladstone's life. It hastened the establishment of a parliament in Dublin, to which the two great leaders had devoted so many years. The receipt of the news in the house of commons furnished an example of enthusiasm—such as is never again seen when a man no longer any control over himself, but are swayed by the strength of their emotions as a tide comes a tiny boat in a sea.

But how was Parnell elected to remain cool in face of such a scene would be something more than human. Yet the member for Cork City, in the presence of all this commotion, was unshaken. He spoke on the occasion, too, and still he was unruffled and unmoved. Higher and higher and higher, like one continuing crescendo, rose the cheers, but the outward frame of this remarkable man did not evince the least evidence of emotion. A correspondent describing this at the time said that "Parnell stood there with his arms folded, a block of ice amid the general flame." The general election is certain to show that these memorable incidents charged many voters from Ireland, and Ireland, and champions of home rule? The way in which the Irish leader, his triumph now being absolute, turned to the occupants of the treasury benches and said: "I am sorry for you," would have made the ministers of any government so much ashamed of themselves that, if they did not resign, they would at least cease to vilify the man.

Elections in Ireland are of little consequence now compared with the time when it was open voting. Taken in this connection fun means fight. The voting by secret ballot gives crowds no opportunity to gather. The voting districts are small, and the law was made so numerous that there was no chance for Parnell never showed any fear of such crowds. He could go into them and come out of them with coolness and bravery, and as a rule, the more stormy the gathering, the cooler he became. The scene in the remarkable contest in Kilkenny during the fight between Sir L. Pope Harney and Vincent Scully are too recent in the public mind to be entirely forgotten. Parnell, though, did not sustain his reputation then for coolness. Power was slipping from his grasp, and in the series of exciting speeches which he made he appealed to the "Hill-side Men"—a name given to the revolutionary party—rather than to the sober judgment of the men who had votes. For instance, who could recognize Parnell who was the central figure in the house of commons scene already described, the same man who now showed from the same platforms to crowds of peasants and of people in remote county towns. "To Hell with Hong Kong and English dictation!" It was cheers—why wouldn't it?—but it did not win votes; while it still further lessened him and his commanding capacity as a leader in the eyes of many of those in Ireland, as well as in the other countries, who had been most hitherto to worship him as such.

In the early days when his influence was budding; and all during his career to his downfall, Parnell won many signal victories over the priests. They never knew it though. It would be fatal to him if "Peter the Packer" on account of his sympathy with the notorious they did. The land league really swept over the island in spite of them. Seeing this they had the good sense to join in. At the election in 1879 Parnell's man was Lyndal Parnham, an Irish barrister, practising law at the English bar. The priest's man was Peter O'Brien, a Dublin Q. C. He was made judge after his defeat, receiving £20,000 a year, and is known as a system of jury packing alleged to be in vogue in Ireland when any of the patriots have the misfortune to be put on trial. The election of Parnham against such forces was for Parnell a tremendous victory, and foreshadowed his coming power. F. D. Sullivan, Ireland's poet laureate, a member of parliament and for two terms lord mayor of Dublin, celebrated it in verse. It was sung all over Ireland, and was used with effect in many electoral campaigns. The following especially wherever a whig candidate showed his nose. It remained for Parnell to go to prison in order to round out the monument of popularity. To be in jail in Ireland is the sign-manifest of patriotism in the eyes of the people, that is, of course, to be in jail on account of any conflict with the government forces. This is because the law which is administered comes as Gladstone has said, "in foreign garb." What the English insist must be good for Ireland, the Irish, ungratefully to the last degree, absolutely refuse to accept. The time when this has been going on over and over and over again ever since the establishment of the legislative union, or "union," so called—for there really is no union either in heart or in sentiment—and long before the legislative union. It makes an Irishman smile at the absurdity of the hope expressed by English statement now and then such worn out measures can make the people loyal. An Irishman sees this so plainly, and an intelligent man of any other nationality who has studied the question, sees it so plainly that it continued always to be a source of wonder why an Englishman could not see it as well. Mr. Gladstone, of course, sees it now. The imprisonment of 1,500 or so persons with Parnell, who were kept in jail for without trial, or prospect of trial, was an attempt on the part of Secy Foster to make them one and all loyal to the English connection. The effect, of course, was exactly the reverse of this. Many and many a moderate and peaceful agitator, who was forced into jail at that time, came out a rabid revolutionist. Every one came out more bitterly opposed to the English government than when they went in. The writer of this was in Kilmainham jail with the Irish leader for six months. "Welcome to jail, Mr. W.—," said he with a smile on the first day of my arrival. He was walking around the little exercise yard arm and arm with John Dillon. "This is scarcely an Irish reception," Mr. Parnell said. "Well," said he deliberately, and with the same gay smile, "I dare say. Perhaps you think it is more like an English reception." "It certainly looks that way, sir," said I. "Ah, but you must remember," he went on, "that we are now technically at least upon English soil." He looked up at the high walls which shut out everything except the sky. He had on a dressing gown, smoking cap and a pair of heavy slippers. It was in the early morning and in the first days of November. He shivered a little. "Do you feel cold?" he asked, and then, without waiting to be answered, he turned his face fully up on me and looked with a puzzling air, in which the serious and the humorous were both blended, "How do you like to be in jail?" "Really, Mr. Parnell," I replied, "I would much prefer to be out."

At this he made a motion as nearly approaching a laugh as any one ever saw him come. "Let us have a game of chess," said he. The challenge was accepted, but before anybody had been—checked—were compelled to return to our cells at 5 o'clock, to be locked up for the night. He was not more than an average player, but he was so delicate and methodical that unless you were cautious, he would wear you out and in the long run overwhelm a more accomplished player by his exasperating pertinacity and coolness.

Men and women, admirers alike, in all parts of the country showered him with tokens of regard while he was in prison. He had no room for all the things he got. His cell was already filled. The apartments of the governor of the prison were nearly filled too. He never could use all the dressing gowns that were sent to him. It was in a dressing gown and smoking gown and smoking cap that he usually appeared in the exercise yard. One night five men were brought in from the far off county of Kerry. They were healthy, hearty, honest fellows and every one of them knew nothing of city life or dress or ways. All they knew was in their homes, around the Munster Mountains, they had learned that Ireland was once more in conflict with British tyranny, and they were willing to go to jail in that sacred cause. When Parnell appeared in the exercise yard, dressed as usual, one of the Kerry men said to him, "Who is that fine big man with the beard on him?" "That is Mr. Parnell," said I. "God bless me now," said he, "do ye tell me so? Is that ratty Parnell?" and he shaded his eyes with his hands and followed every movement of the great Irishman with an emotion so visible and intense, and a curiosity so penetrating, as to leave no doubt that for him, in worldly affairs at least, there was but one God and Parnell was his prophet.

That simple peasant's face was a study. He drew a long breath, and as Parnell came over and shook hands with him, he said in the simplest and heartiest way, "Glory to God isn't he a powerful fine man?" If Parnell had not by this time disappeared, it is doubtful whether this honest farmer in the very excess of his gratitude would not have called down a blessing on "Buckshot" Foster for having given him a chance to shake hands with the Unknown King.

"Why were you arrested?" I heard Parnell inquire on another occasion of a new convert.

"For telling the truth," Mr. Parnell, was the prompt reply.

Afterward Mr. Parnell gave that man an opportunity to tell the truth in the house of commons, and he is today one of the ablest Irish parliamentary delegation at Westminster.

In the early days of the party Parnell's most intimate associate and friend was "Joe" Biggar. In fact, Biggar and Parnell were the Irish parliamentary party then.

"Joe" himself got into trouble with a woman, but it did not by any means mar his usefulness. His trouble was as defendant in a charge of breach of promise.

Once in the house of commons, Parnell protested Sir Harvey Bruce by a cutting rejoinder. It completely knocked out the baronet, who took his seat amid derisive shouts and laughter from all sides of the house. Sir Harvey was an Irish tory landlord and the newly established land courts had reduced his rents a great deal. Parnell was speaking and said something that the baronet thought disrespectful.

"I move," said he, "that the words of the honorable member be taken down."

Parnell, amid all sorts of interruptions, looked at the speaker of the house with that air of stern and impassive coolness which so well became him. "I regard that motion as of little consequence, Mr. Speaker," said he, and not at all to be compared to the fate which has befallen the hon. baronet. The rents of the honorable baronet were taken down."

On another occasion during a speech at an election contest, his eye twinkled a little while the crowd laughed. This was when he referred to his friend Mr. A. J. Kettle as "a man whose name is a household word throughout Ireland."

Mr. Kettle, notwithstanding, was beaten out of his boots by Mr. Hammond, the anti-Parnell candidate in the parliamentary election in Carlow.

Mr. Parnell is said to have smiled during the height of the commotion in Ireland last year occasioned by the O'Shea divorce court. He had seized the plant of United Ireland, whose editor, William O'Brien, was in this country, and was on his way from Dublin to Cork. The train slowed up at Mallow, O'Brien's birthplace, and a deputation appeared to present Parnell "with an address."

Imagine his astonishment when the spokesman began: "We come to tell you some wholesome truths. You did what you ought never did. You ejected, how dare you break in the—"

The "address of welcome" was cut short, the windows were shut down and the train swept out of the station amid a whirl of black thorn sticks and "groans and hisses" as the reporters say. This incident alone will show how high the excitement was in Ireland but one short year ago—and, indeed for that matter, it is as high now.

In a speech at Galway once he nicknamed W. E. Foster, who was chief secretary for Ireland, and the name stuck to Mr. Foster, namely "Buckshot" Foster, until he died. The chief secretary ordered buckshot served to policemen who attended evictions, on the ground that, though it would maim more persons, it would kill less. Parnell referred to this order by uttering the one scathing sentence: "This hypocrite and blood poisoning scoundrel is using the name of Foster to give his party a reputation—such cases have come under my personal observation."

"Perhaps I don't look very cheerful," replied the cool but "but consider how often I am pitched into."

Restlessness, Morbid Anxiety, and a fretful disposition, are usually met with in the dyspeptic. These mental and physical ailments are the result of a disordered stomach, and a disordered stomach is the result of a disordered liver. The liver is the great excretory organ of the body, and it is the duty of the liver to excrete the waste products of the body. If the liver is disordered, the waste products are not excreted, and they accumulate in the body, causing disease.

The Black Cat Did It. Many of the sailors think that the U. S. Despatch was sailing under an evil star and recall the fact that a strange black cat jumped the deck of the steamer as they were leaving New York harbor. They say they never intended to go on another steamer with a black cat on board. This cat was the only living object left on board all day Sunday. Poor pussy, with an air of dejection, sat on the highest point she could get. She waited for the end and was apparently resigned to her fate. It came some time during the night, and the cat was found cold on the beach after the wreck.

There is nothing of so much importance to a woman as her good looks. This is as old as the world, but it is as true as it ever was. It is suggested to day by seeing a foolish girl engaged in a foolish flirtation, and hearing the comments of the kind of people who are always ready to see evil where nothing but folly exists.—E.L.

The "address of welcome" was cut short, the windows were shut down and the train swept out of the station amid a whirl of black thorn sticks and "groans and hisses" as the reporters say. This incident alone will show how high the excitement was in Ireland but one short year ago—and, indeed for that matter, it is as high now.

In a speech at Galway once he nicknamed W. E. Foster, who was chief secretary for Ireland, and the name stuck to Mr. Foster, namely "Buckshot" Foster, until he died. The chief secretary ordered buckshot served to policemen who attended evictions, on the ground that, though it would maim more persons, it would kill less. Parnell referred to this order by uttering the one scathing sentence: "This hypocrite and blood poisoning scoundrel is using the name of Foster to give his party a reputation—such cases have come under my personal observation."

"Perhaps I don't look very cheerful," replied the cool but "but consider how often I am pitched into."

Restlessness, Morbid Anxiety, and a fretful disposition, are usually met with in the dyspeptic. These mental and physical ailments are the result of a disordered stomach, and a disordered stomach is the result of a disordered liver. The liver is the great excretory organ of the body, and it is the duty of the liver to excrete the waste products of the body. If the liver is disordered, the waste products are not excreted, and they accumulate in the body, causing disease.

On another occasion during a speech at an election contest, his eye twinkled a little while the crowd laughed. This was when he referred to his friend Mr. A. J. Kettle as "a man whose name is a household word throughout Ireland."

Mr. Kettle, notwithstanding, was beaten out of his boots by Mr. Hammond, the anti-Parnell candidate in the parliamentary election in Carlow.

Mr. Parnell is said to have smiled during the height of the commotion in Ireland last year occasioned by the O'Shea divorce court. He had seized the plant of United Ireland, whose editor, William O'Brien, was in this country, and was on his way from Dublin to Cork. The train slowed up at Mallow, O'Brien's birthplace, and a deputation appeared to present Parnell "with an address."

Imagine his astonishment when the spokesman began: "We come to tell you some wholesome truths. You did what you ought never did. You ejected, how dare you break in the—"

The Black Cat Did It. Many of the sailors think that the U. S. Despatch was sailing under an evil star and recall the fact that a strange black cat jumped the deck of the steamer as they were leaving New York harbor. They say they never intended to go on another steamer with a black cat on board. This cat was the only living object left on board all day Sunday. Poor pussy, with an air of dejection, sat on the highest point she could get. She waited for the end and was apparently resigned to her fate. It came some time during the night, and the cat was found cold on the beach after the wreck.

There is nothing of so much importance to a woman as her good looks. This is as old as the world, but it is as true as it ever was. It is suggested to day by seeing a foolish girl engaged in a foolish flirtation, and hearing the comments of the kind of people who are always ready to see evil where nothing but folly exists.—E.L.

You would not have called it exactly a marriage in the ordinary sense, and yet the ceremony of the contract was made with the same solemnity as if it had been a marriage in the ordinary sense.

And so he spoke he flushed, and looked at her out of the corners of his eyes. His countenance was not quite free, he knew who ought to have been the companion for his wife.

CHIEFS DROWNED BY THE SEA.

The four-ship whaling fleet from New Brunswick, which was wrecked on the coast of Labrador, has been found. The four ships were the "The Atlantic", "The Pacific", "The Indian", and "The American". The crews of the ships were all drowned, and the ships were found in a state of total ruin. The cause of the wreck was a heavy storm, which caused the ships to be driven ashore.

The Grand Trunk and the Elections.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company has been found guilty of fraud in the election of 1888. The company was found to have paid large sums of money to the candidates of the Liberal party, in order to secure their election. The company was fined for this offence, and the money was ordered to be paid to the candidates of the Conservative party.

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Fischer's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Purgative, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by

Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays Sour Stomachs. Castoria prevents vomiting, Sour Cud, cures Diarrhea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency.
Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is the most reliable medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of the good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Chas. Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

Castoria.

"Castoria is the best remedy for all kinds of wholes. I am convinced. I have long used it for infants, with most successful results. I have known of its use in Castoria."
instead of the various name nostrums which are

"Castoria is so well adapted to children
I recommend it as superior to any preparation known to me."

H. A. Jackson, M. D.
Ft. Collins, Colorado.

"Our physicians in the children's hospitals have spoken highly of their experience in their treatment with Castoria, and although we only have among medical supplies what is known to be morning, both day and night, and other beautiful flowers down the city streets, busily sending them to premature graves."

cast off one of Duke's and was a great deal too short in the waist and sleeves. He was a tall, lean man, with a stooping, shambling figure, and a sordid, mean face. His manner was those of the most offensive type of poor relation, alternately servile and familiar. Duke accorded him a half-indolent patronage, but the rest, with the exception of Cissy, ignored him as far as they could. Redstock, who had a great deal more satisfaction than any one present gave him credit for, while ment of the wines, though to gaze with loving eyes on the decanters. In servile gratitude, or the semblance of it, he echoed all Duke's remarks, but directed his conversation chiefly to the wines, in whose gentle courtesy he found a refuge from the coldness of the rent.

But, although he listened to the unworldly guest with patience and answered him with kindness, Gladys was absorbed all the time in watching her brother. The wine she indulged in the wine, was growing more and more excited, more reckless in manner, longer in talk. The young wife lingered at the table, unwilling to lose sight of him, and fell of vague dissimiles. Edward Harrer noticed the anxious look on her face, and he and Mary became constantly alive in supplying their

But this close association, however, the social step was a great one, and it was a long time before the policy of such improvements were grown kinder after a while he could sit with a lady. By this time he was probably to brood some through, and a few years the grade was laid out as well as the grade of comparison. Minister Off the Track

This happened in Digby County. One Sabbath day not long since, while the preacher in one of the churches was earnestly speaking, a young woman who sat opposite began talking. The speaker saw and said all his will power to prevent losing the thread of the discourse, thinking they would soon desert, but they kept right along, and the minister soon came to a full stop. Not one thought would he be in the right direction. He was off the track, and those girls were the cause of it. After church, when one person asked another the cause of it, and none could tell, save old Aunt Maudie, who sat directly back of those wicked girls, and heard their talk, and saw how it acted upon the person. She told the people how they talked and what they said, and what do you suppose it was? Why, not asked the other where she bought that pretty dress, and the other said "Why, at Letteney's, of course, and if you had not been such a fool you might have had one too!" This is just as far as they got when the preacher stopped.

DR. BURNS AND THE HERALD.

Few would have believed, but for the evidence which recent events have brought out, the deeprooted political system of subsidizing political journals for exclusively black purposes had taken, and the moral injury it had inflicted. It was well-known that the heavy subsidies granted to the most prominent government journals were merely a quid pro quo for unconditional support; that when such organs as the St. John Sun, Halifax Herald and others were paid at the rate of $50 or $55 per copy, the people's money was being used to ask no questions, but stamp the wisdom of the government policy, and take the place of the press, and then when the policy worked ruin on the country, in order that cabinet swindlers, thieves and contractors and a few pampered Ontario manufacturers might feather out as millionaires, was exposed, and the thieves overthrown they were still expected to proclaim "pure" or "not proven". All this was well known and understood by everyone familiar with the governing methods of the McDonald administration, but it is doubtful if many could be brought to realize that though these organs were paid for their disregard of political truth, there were not still some considerations of decency for which they would likely regard. Yet that such is the case we have only to go to some late issue of the Halifax Herald, and one or two of its little western county echoes. Though always coarse in vulgar and personal, the Herald, in its attack on Dr. Burns, an eminent Halifax divine, has outdone all its former efforts in this line. The occasion is a sermon preached on Thanksgiving Day, in which the Dr. referred, as hundreds of other Canadian ministers of the gospel have done, to the corruption at Ottawa, and advocated "the righteousness that exalteth a nation". The Herald, which seems to recognize in the Gospel ministry a foe to its party's methods which it can neither ignore nor detain on hearing of this, publishes him with "being false" and "instilling standards which in its instance are as false as the "it of evil" and "malicious misrepresentation which most thoroughly credit him for all time" and not content with this it returns, two days later, to the attack, and says: "He belongs to a class (the doctor is a Presbyterian) that seldom bear sermons," and one is forthwith quoted, in which the doctor is addressed as "thou hypocrite," etc. Following this are personal charges made against cases that would match Jack Haggart's. In this latter paragraph, so unjust, low and uncalled for, the Herald certainly forfeits any claim it ever may have had to scrupulousness, decency or fair play. Were the evil to cease here it would not be so bad, but the Herald well knows its little followers will echo its billings-gate, and carry the low language and abuse beyond its own reach.

Already the Yarmouth Times trots out with "the Herald's language is not nearly strong enough," which being interpreted means "Please Mr. Abbott, boogie me more and I'll blackguard the doctor worse than the Herald!"

What a pretty condition of things this! Sir John Thompson at one time of the line whitewashing the resolute thought and disgrace of the country, and his organs at the other end with their tar-pot and mud-balls, trying to blackguard clergymen out of their pulpits and scandalize public men into silence, lest the thieves of the conspirators at Ottawa be made fully known?

Although the greater part of last session was spent in unearthing the corruption of ministers and their tale at Ottawa, it was clear that the session was not long enough to make more than the surface in many of the departments while a few departments wholly escaped investigation. Among the latter was the department of marine and fisheries. This did not wait for any probing process another session. The sora was ripe, and broke of its own accord. Last session the minister, Mr. Purdy, accused of a gross case of bribery for him, some whole some suggestion from the representative from Digby on the method employed in the distribution of bounty checks to fishermen. At this close of the session the minister, seeing that he dealt with a man who understood his subject, promised to give the matter his attention.

In attempting to remedy the matter lately, the minister it seems ran across one of the "irregularities" that have made Canada's name famous under the McDonald administration. It was the old story; the fisherman's bounty cheque stolen, and the thief growing rich. Of course, the result was "suspended" and will continue under suspension for two or three weeks, when he will probably be reinstated on full pay, the justice of the law having been satisfied.

It is now in order for the owners of missing bounty checks to present their claims and insist on their lawful rights being secured. No class, not exceeding the farmer, has suffered more by the wrong process of this administration than the fishermen; the bounty is their's, for their exclusive benefit, and it will not satisfy them the country at large to play any thoughtless whitewash act. The Minister has been told that the fishermen of this district have been the victims of this "irregularity," even if the proceeds went toward Pictou election expenses, or as contributions to conservative associations.

We have in mind cases where bounty cheques being "irregular" were so handled at Ottawa that the lawful owners never got one cent for them. Take the case of the schooner Constitution of Digby; the claim stands to this day unpaid. These matters ought to be brought to the notice of the department, and if the department will not right them, to the floor of the house. The minister says he has traced the stealings, now let us see whether he will right them.

GOING 7,000 MILES TO WED.—Says the St. John Globe: Thursday Miss Hibbert, daughter of Capt. Hibbert, of Yarmouth, purchased at Digby the first through ticket ever issued at that station to a person going to Hong Kong. The lady came by the Bay of Fundy steamer to St. John, where she took the C. P. R. for Vancouver, thence to Hong Kong by steamer. She is due at Hong Kong on the 10th of December, on which day she is to wed Captain Brown of Hantsport, who is now in charge of the docks at Hong Kong. The particulars of the case are a bit amusing. The lady visited Hong Kong early last summer with her father. There she met Captain Brown for the first time. She promised to return in the fall and marry him and she kept her word.

Capt. Newcomb of the Parabola wrecked in the river below Montreal last week. He was carrying a cargo of lumber. The Parabola was carrying a cargo of lumber. The Parabola was carrying a cargo of lumber.

Home and Abroad

Steamer City of Monticello has had her bottom copper-painted.

The W. C. T. U. will meet on Friday at 3.30 at the residence of Miss Bent, Mount street.

Mr. Scott Farham, a comp. on the Yarmouth Herald, was in town a few days last week visiting his parents.

The brigantine St. John, of Weymouth, from Philadelphia for Santos, has put into Barbados partially dismasted.

Rev. W. J. Dooley will celebrate high Mass in St. Patrick's Chapel on Sunday next at 11 o'clock. Vespers in the evening at seven.

We are indebted to Miss Ella Burham, who is at present visiting some friends in Merriam, Mass., for late copies of Boston papers.

The Dominion Express Company are doing a rushing business in the cured haddie shipments from Digby to points along the C. P. R.

M. H. Vassell has had handsome freestone steps, containing his name, erected at the two front entrances of his residence on Water street.

Mr. W. White, Keeper of the Poor's House at Marshfield, wishes to inform the public that that institution is now ready for inmates. Some have already been admitted.

Notice the advertisement for the Flak J. value Sings. The 35ct. tickets are obtainable only at the door. Call at the book store and secure a good reserved seat.

An attempt was made one night last week to wreck the C. P. R. train at Sussex, by placing obstructions on the track. Discovery of the fact was made in order to avert a shipwreck.

It is reported that Mayor McShane, of Montreal, has entered a fifty thousand dollar action for libel against the Toronto Empire for stating he had shared in the Quebec coupe d'etat.

Attention is called to notices of Mr. McKay, tax collector of Barton, Miss Musella ad. of property sale, Mr. Hutchins's sale, and changes in ads. of Mr. Wade and Mr. Miller of Bear River.

Mr. and Mrs. Andon Fritz send kindest greetings, and regret that they were unable to visit or write each one before leaving for New York. Their address is 250 East 57th Street.

The company mentioned in our last issue for the purpose of organizing a new hall, will hold their first meeting on Friday next at 7.30. The hall is to be named the Yarmouth Hall, and is to be managed by J. H. Syda of the firm of Syda & Cousins.

Rev. J. M. Fisher begins this issue, the announcement of his winter series of sermons, which will be held at the Y. P. S. C. E. on the assistance of the Y. P. S. C. E. the sermon will be in the morning. Subject, "Antioch's message to Digby."

The bark Sarah, formerly of Yarmouth, was totally wrecked at Curmunnah Point, British Columbia, on the 15th inst. She was from Manila bound to Vancouver. Two of the crew were drowned in attempting to land. The others saved nothing but the clothes they had on.

A very enjoyable time was spent last Monday evening by the members of Seaside Lodge for whom the ladies of that society had prepared a bean supper. Mr. Laith of New York, who had just returned from Halifax where he had been engaged on the history he is preparing was present.

The total eclipse of the moon on Sunday evening was one of the most interesting sights witnessed in Digby for many years. The hour and atmosphere were both favorable to a good observation, and the moon being at its full an unusual opportunity was afforded to witness its emerging and departing from the dark shadow that completely hid it.

Mr. T. F. Anderson, the well-known Boston Globe man, is in town spending a few days with Mrs. Anderson's parents. Mr. Anderson feels confident that the influx of visitors to these shores will be largely increased in the near future, and thinks the advertising which Nova Scotia has received during the past season will be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to her.

Ordnance—First Mate Sturges of Digby, fell overboard from the Yarmouth ship Abbie S. Hart, at St. John on Tuesday last, while walking from the vessel to the wharf on a ladder. A line was thrown to him which he grasped and held on to till he was caught a few feet by which he ascended to the ship's deck.

STILL ALIVE.—The good news has been received at Bear River announcing the safe arrival at Rotterdam, of Capt. Norman Purdy of the Parabola brigantine Energy, before reported to the Court as found abandoned at sea. The crew were also saved and landed at Rotterdam. Capt. Purdy is a son of Mr. Geo. Purdy of Bear River.

Great scarcity of water is reported in different parts of the United States. A dispatch from Nashville, Tenn., of last week says: "The people here are crying for water. The inhabitants on the outskirts of the city are in a pitiable state. 'Water, water, O God, give us water!' shouted 200 women who huddled around a small spring yesterday in West Nashville. Nothing like it has ever been experienced in the South before. New York city is also seriously threatened with a water famine."

There was a rumor around town on Thanksgiving Day, that the steamer City of Monticello while crossing the bay on the day previous had holed with and sunk a revenue cutter, and was herself towed into St. John disabled. No such accident occurred. No doubt the following, which we clip from the Telegraph, gave rise to the rumor: The heavy gale of last night prevented the steamer City of Monticello from getting to her wharf when she arrived about eight o'clock, and she was compelled to anchor in the stream. The wind moderated some about nine o'clock, and with the aid of a tug, she was able to get alongside her pier.

The schooner Lettie Belle, Danas Matheson, master, of Provincetown, Mass., from that port to Newfoundland, for a cargo of herring, went ashore on Noddy Island, about 10 miles from Seal Island, about 11 o'clock Wednesday night during a heavy blow and thick fog. The vessel went to pieces and the crew got to the island in a dory in what they had on. They lived for some time, but the dory was later in getting to shore that the lee of a large rock and no food, but some odds and ends washed ashore from the wreck. About noon Friday the weather moderated slightly and they managed to reach the shore. The fishermen along the Neck have been greatly troubled lately in putting down the herring traffic. A correspondent who writes us about the matter is correct. A cask of porter was found on the beach at Whites Cove last week, a cask of ale at Monk Cove, and two casks, one of gin and one of ale, at Sandy Cove. The contents of the casks seem all right enough, but our correspondent says there is a peculiar evaporating quality about the gin. For instance, the gin being accidentally removed from one of the casks on its transit through a piece of wood, it was found the entire contents had completely evaporated by the time it reached the wharf. Whether the gin was We will not publish our correspondent's letter in full, as we have strong reason to believe that he was not many miles away from the evaporating process at the time the letter was written.

E. J. Tunks, Esq. Merchant of Westville, has sold $2000 worth of K. D. C. within a month and reports wonderful success from its use.

J. C. McDonald Esq., Lohaville, N. S., testifies that K. D. C. is a positive cure for dyspepsia. Two packages cured him. A lady in Cape Breton after using one package writes: "It has saved my life, and my general health is so improved that I feel to say God bless you for your great discovery."

THE Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Yarmouth Association will meet at the Court House on Tuesday, Nov. 21, at 10 o'clock. The members for 1891 are Charles T. Purdy, Wm. C. Denton, and Jeremiah Purdy.

DIGBY'S NEW HOTEL.

Meeting at the Royal Last Night.

A meeting of the subscribed stockholders of the proposed Hotel for Digby met at the Royal last evening, elected a board of directors, and instructed the secretary to issue a call of two per cent to meet expenses incident to soliciting further stock.

The hotel consists of Messrs. Shreve, pres.; W. B. Stewart, sec.-treas.; and H. B. Short, T. W. Longstaff, Capt. J. Snow, Major Daley and Postmaster Burton, Directors. Directors Longstaff and Short were appointed to call on Messrs. Benson and other New England cities in the interest of the hotel.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one, and we have every reason to believe the work of securing the remaining stock will be pushed vigorously. Incorporation will then be secured, and the hotel proceeded with without delay.

Mr. T. Anderson of the Boston Globe was present, and afforded much aid by his practical suggestions on the matter. Mr. Anderson's well known interest in all matters relating to the provinces rendered his presence of more than ordinary value.

Bear River W. C. T. U.

[From the Cor. Sec.]

Some time ago a W. C. T. U. was organized in this place. Among the work undertaken by the union was the establishment of a reading room. The call for the necessary funds was heartily responded to by the citizens of the place, and the ladies procured suitable rooms and furnishings. The reading room is pleasantly situated on Main St., and has been made as attractive as possible with the money at the union's disposal. On the tables are to be found the best magazines of the day. The formal program took place on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th. Mr. G. P. Miller, the president, presented the room to the public in the name of the union. Then followed music and addresses by Mr. W. G. Clarke, Rev. D. H. Simpson, Rev. W. C. Brown, and Mr. Morse, principal of the public school. Mr. W. A. Farly read a very interesting original paper addressed to the young. After the programme had been carried out, a pleasant hour was spent in conversation, etc. The rooms are to be open every night from 7.30 to 10 o'clock, and it is to be hoped will be a great benefit, both intellectually and socially, to our little town.

Cor. Sec.

Hon. Mr. Abbott has in his hands the resignation of every minister in order that he shall be free to construct his cabinet as he wishes. This is right, and it is important. When the reconstructed ministry is announced the country will hold Mr. Abbott responsible for every member of it, and he will stand without excuse if it contains one man mentally or morally unfit.

Chronicle.

Mother and Child are Doing Well.

Mrs. Brown was sick. Her friends said that she would never get well. "What's the trouble?" "O, some kind of female weakness. The doctors have given up the case as hopeless. 'She may live some time,' they say, 'but as for a cure that is quite out of the question.'"

"I don't believe it," said a woman, who heard the sad news. "I don't believe any case worse than I was five years ago, from the same trouble, and I don't look very much like a dead woman, do I?"

She certainly did not, with her red, plump cheeks, bright eyes, and 150 pounds of good healthy bone, blood and flesh. "I'm going to see her and tell her how she can get well," she said. She advised Mrs. Brown to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Preparation. Mrs. Brown took the advice, and the medicine which cures all kinds of delicate diseases so common among women, and—got well. That was two years ago. Last month she presented Mr. Brown with a new born son, and "mother and child are doing well."

Our Fall stock will be as complete as usual, in fact more so. Prices will be made satisfactory, as all goods are purchased from first hands for cash.

Marriage Scene.

The approaching marriage of — and — was the talk of the town. It was considered a "good match"—as the phrase goes—well connected, plenty of money (seemingly a very important thing nowadays), and both were favorites in society. The day appointed for the ceremony to take place came, and cast sunshine on hill and dale. People were seen wending their way to the church to witness the nuptials. The contracting parties arrived in due time, and after the march to the altar, that hush which falls when all are anxious to hear the words of the preacher and the answer to the questions, was there. The person, in solemn voice, asked, "Will thou take this man to be thy wedded husband?" and with firm and resolute voice she said, "I will if he promises to buy at Letteney's!" You can imagine but slightly how strange it did sound! The people looked at each other and smiled, waiting to hear the answer. The man turned all colors, cleared his throat, hemmed and hawed, but finally said he would. That was a stubborn case, and required to be dealt with in the manner described, but the majority of husbands all over our county do not need to be asked to trade with Letteney's, because they do so already, and take home to their wives such beautiful silverware that it makes them happy all the day long.
