

Welcome to the Digital DIGBY COURIER

1877-1978

100th Birthday

The hundredth anniversary of the Digby Weekly Courier has brought to mind some fond memories as contained in the following historical chapter of the writer. But first, I wish to congratulate the current editor of the Courier, Mrs. J.M. (Edith) Wallis, for a job well done over the years and still being well done, good service rendered with great fortitude.

According to any record, I have at hand, the Digby Courier, in one hundred years of publication, was controlled under the same family management for 42 years, 1931 to 1973, under the control of Wallis Print Limited. The late J.J. Wallis became editor of The Courier the second time, in 1929, and at the same time of the business, which he had been running for some time previously and which became Wallis Print Limited sometime between 1929 and 1931.

I well remember the last year of the twenties when I worked in the office of the son with the husband and father of the late J.J. Wallis, the Courier. Sometime in 1928 or early 1929, the late J.M. Wallis (Mac), son of "J.J." engaged me to work every day after school hours, Saturdays, and for some months after finishing school. The place of work was in the building of the present Digby town hall on First Avenue. J.J. Wallis then worked occasionally at the print shop but mostly across the street at the Courier office which was then located on land in the general area where The Royal Bank of Canada is now.

Wallis Job Print operated in 1929 with a staff of four consisting of J.J. Wallis, J.M. Wallis, Miss Eva Haynes, who later became Mrs. George Kicup, and myself. I was engaged as a printer in the left Eva's job was to run the printing plant but mostly at the Courier office. "Mac" worked nearly full time at all the different jobs at the Job Print, and I worked at various duties, most of the time being spent at operating printing presses.

We worked ten-hour days, six days a week. "J.J." and "Mac" sometimes worked overtime. I worked only the regular hours being paid a weekly wage which was comparatively good for those times and my lack of experience. I received four or five dollars a week for working after school hours to six o'clock and on Saturday all day, and nine dollars a week for full weeks after finishing school. A two or three dollar a week raise was offered to me in the fall of 1929 for me to stay on at printing, but I had made up my mind to enter a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, starting salary of $300. The bank salary figured out about the same per hour as for the printing job. Nevertheless, the congenial atmosphere of the printing plant those days, and, experience however short, were helpful and appreciated by me.

"J.J." was very jovial in his occasional trip to the Job Print and did considerable kidding all in good fun. "Mac" was a witty person who mixed in a good natured sarcasm now and then for one reason or another. Eva most always had good answers to all the kidding she was called upon to take, and, generally held her own in a quiet sort of way, always busy setting type. We four all got along very well indeed. However, I do remember that some days did seem long and weary because of the monotony of some repetitious jobs.

In spite of the great demand for printing those last boom days of the twenties, business generally being brisk, it looked to me that people had to work long and hard to make any decent profit. There was including treatment of the hands. However, nails and finger ends were used and I was soon back to work.

Now and then a printing job had a dose on parchment paper which required a special kind of printers' ink which smelled very bad those days. I always dreaded it when "Mac" would do that job on the largest press, in spite of the fact that we always opened an outside door to lessen the effects on the constitution.

One of the jobs I had to do, being the junior and printers' devil on the staff, was to clean up now and then. One day not long after I started my job at the printing plant, I decided to clean the floor that apparently hadn't been cleaned in some considerable time.

"J.J." came along and said, "how are you making out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor. "J.J." laughed very heartily, he thought the remark pretty good and suitable.

Sometimes the gasoline engine or a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and after "Mac" the fix-it man had patiently worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without results, "Mac" would then stand back and cuss quite strenuously, then he would immediately start working. "See," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of cussing."

On other occasions when some gadget refused duty for me and, seemed to be broken, "Mac" would say, "use a little oil," and sure enough, often that is all it took. How often since, have I thought of the value of that remark and the actual need of "oil" in many life situations, applied at the right time, right place and, in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are, like the time I told "Mac" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1929 got together just before dark one evening and decided to initiate the newly built outdoor Pines Hotel swimming pool which had just been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just east of the pool; nobody else seemed to be around except the four boys; no thought or time for bathing suits up to the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in, the rest quickly followed and across the pool they swam. "Mac" listened to the story and hardly said anything, but the next "Digby Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story went something like, "Four Boy Scouts Officially Open Pines Hotel Swimming Pool." Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Earl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars (second world and Korean), was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Smith, now prominent druggist for many years in Digby; Clayton D. Snow, Digby wholesale lobster king merchant; and myself.

As a young teenager I used to like doing some writing about different events interesting to myself and mostly for myself. One day "Mac" said to me "how about writing your version of the story told about 'The Marooning of Jerome'." I had heard and read at least two somewhat different stories about the man who was found marooned on a beach at some point on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Digby County. When found this man's tongue had been cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

"Jerome" appeared to have been a man of some considerable social standing and possibly of some considerable wealth. However the only thing the man could or would ever say after being found and cared for by some family in the French shore was, something that sounded like the word "Jerome". He either could not, or, would not, write anything about who he was or why he was left the way he was. Well, it was, and is, one of Digby County's mystery stories, and, different ideas have been expressed over the years concerning this man. However my response to "Mac" was, I felt no urge to write anything more or different about this man. The mystery seemed to have been very well explored in the mind of many people, and, he was a sort of curiosity for many people who visited where he lived for many years.

Three years later, I was quite a young man, and I was back in the street that I had lived in, and I was clanking my powered up car, and I was thinking of "Jerome", and as I remember it, I was thinking of "Jerome". "J.J." was noted for his sense of humor and his ability to make people laugh. One day in 1928 during the time Mr. Wallis was editor of the Scott Act (Prohibition Law) he was about and advocated by some people, and I was attending a boys' conference in the town of Digby.

Digby 172 Years Ago

Compiled by David Sanford

From the files of the Courier of January 23, 1867, the following account has been copied concerning Digby in 1800.

"Among a number of old newspapers kindly sent to us by friends is a copy of the Saint John Gazette of May, 1802, says the Telegraph and among other advertisements contained in the issue before us is one describing the town and township of Digby, and offering for sale certain lots in the town. In this area we are told the township of Digby extends from the Gulf of Annapolis westward to the extremity of the province of Nova Scotia, and contains about 130,000 acres." The town plot is thus described:

"The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of St. Mary's Bay. This laid out from the water's edge, partly on level ground and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having with an eastern aspect, a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth of that name. It was settled by Loyalists from New York in 1783, the most of whom went early to farms, or, moving to older countries, left the whole free trade with the U.S.A., especially with the New England States. The question was then debated by some Digby High School students one of which was some Digby's daughter, Florence (now Mrs. Melvin O. Tibert, Freeport, Digby Co.) Some days after the debate a man from some part of Nova Scotia came to the printing shop looking for Florence, one of the successful debaters; I had the impression that this man was interested politically but, maybe I was wrong.

Well, I felt that I had learned considerable from my short experience at "The Wallis Job Print". I was learning to do beginner jobs, receiving some knowledge about things like: embossing, stapling, perforating, counting, cutting and trimming paper stock, mixing inks for certain desired colors, and so forth, but, the only experience I had at setting type was just enough to make a "pi", the printers name for a confused mess.

There was a taste of trying to sell job printing outside the plant. Work was a little slack one early fall day and so "Mac" said to me, "how about trying your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards?" I tried it, made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular house, and got an order, but, it was much time and got an order, but, side to be bought proved by about who now reside detached, built dwellings with, and orchards, at some fishery and. It has communal parts of the communal provisions in a cheap, built readily to be from many circumstances, probability of place of some shipbuilding, the West India a cheap and of residence. This advertisement, at the December, I were to be a No. 100.

Digby, December 8, 1893.
PROHIBITION IN CANADA.

If ever there was any serious doubt entertained of the strong hold which prohibition had secured in the heart of the Canadian people that doubt is now well nigh dispelled. In two provinces, Ontario and Prince Edward Island, the people have taken their position, and in both cases the majority in its favor have been overwhelmingly large, as may be seen from the following figures.

It is scarcely necessary to contrast this means of ascertaining public opinion with that of the royal commission, since the latter was a mere ploy to affect interests. The one may be divided in its opinion or prejudice in its researches; the other reflects the broadest public sentiment, the feelings and wishes of the entire populace, unacted by none but the best desires, and stimulated by nothing except the well-being of home and country.

To those who oppose prohibition, the results of the entire populace, unacted by none but the best desires, and stimulated by nothing except the well-being of home and country.

It is not to be supposed that prohibition will be a very large majority, and who can still say the country is not ready for prohibition when the electorate clamors for it?

The bounty is dispensed under conditions only. The three children must all survive, and there must be proof that the parents, though respectable, are too poor to maintain the unforeseen demands made upon them by the appearance of triplets.

Digby Weekly Courier

Digby, February 2, 1894.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

The few of death's a: gnat's whip. To hard the wretch to order. But where's your year long grip. Let this year be your last. Perhaps the eagerness to avoid the prevalent Russian epidemic has taken such hold of our legislative councillors at Halifax that the quarantine which recommended a hundred years ago as a means of no longer safe and consequently a feeling to be guarded against. At all events it looks very much as if a majority of that honorable body were endeavoring to shake itself clear of any sentimental emotions on that score, even if it became necessary to hire a couple of lawyers for the purpose.

The last few days have added a chapter to Canadian history which will stand a blot on Nova Scotia government and Nova Scotia manhood. A chosen band of honorable—in honorable—a body so far beyond suspicion as to be exempt from responsibility—a Bulwark of No-bility against plebeian rashness—through a majority of its votes has now lowered its standard and has been clear of any sentimental emotions on that score, even if it became necessary to hire a couple of lawyers for the purpose.

For some years past, in deference to a well expressed wish throughout the country to abolish the Legislative Council, Mr. E. J. Fanning has been strengthening a basis he could, the appointment party in that chamber, by appointing to vacancies only such men as pledged themselves to support abolition at any and all times when introduced. No vacancy has been filled of late years without this pledge, with the result that sixteen out of twenty members of the Legislative Council have been pledged to its abolition. The written pledges of twelve of those men are now published. Yet by a majority of vote the Council, composed of twenty members, has refused to accept of this pledge and has, a few days ago, given the measure the three months' notice.

Seven of the members pledged by Mr. Fanning and one by the Holmes Thompson government, and against the bill, thus repudiating their pledge. Five of the late appointees repudiated their pledge, and we are proud to see Digby's honor vindicated in this. Mr. Fanning has supported the bill.

The weakest feature of the repudiation is the failure of rather except set up the pledge as a mere situational. The objection would hold good as a reason for honorable resignation of the office: it is ridiculous when pressed while the beneficiary holds on to the office of the contract. If the pledge is unconstitutional at the office obtained on the strength of that pledge should be vacated. This, in the case where the pledged appointees repudiate their pledge, is the subject, is the only proper course. To remain and reap the pecuniary benefit of an office obtained, as the appointees claim, through unconstitutional pledges is certainly an ignominious and an honorable course for trusteeship to pursue.

But there is another phase of the subject. At the moment when the pledges fit to be legislative councilmen. It is safe to allow them to determine even if they have little hand in shaping the legislation on province. There are questions on province seems to us it would not be out of place to ask the consideration of the Lieutenant Governor.

There is one satisfaction to be derived from the refusal of the Council to redeem its pledges. It has demonstrated the second and third correctness of the popular impression concerning the necessity of its existence, namely, in adding faithfulness to its usefulness it has made the demand for its abolition a moral as well as economic necessity.

The Auditors' Abstract of the town finances for 1893 is now published. The total receipts amount to $10,615.91 against $8,742.70 in 1892. A temporary loan of $2000 in last year's receipts contributes largely to this difference. The expenditures amount to $11,223.19. In 1892 they were $11,112.12. The balance in 1892 cost $21.12, last year it was $1015.21. Street cleaning cost $240 less than the previous year. Police service cost $50 more than in '92.

There is a decrease in the fire bill of $370 owing to the decrease in interest charge of $147.50 in '92. Charges under "Schools" amount to $230 more than the previous year. The expenditures amount to $11,223.19. In 1892 they were $11,112.12. The balance in 1892 cost $21.12, last year it was $1015.21. Street cleaning cost $240 less than the previous year. Police service cost $50 more than in '92.

The items under the head of "General" amount to $377.35. This includes money paid for Scott Act and "General" charges in '92 were $136.40.

In 1892, $2213.95 were paid on the Scott Act, which is not corresponding charge for last year. A contingent account appears for 1893 showing expenditures amounting to $159.54. The total receipts are $10,615.91 against $8,742.70 in 1892. A temporary loan of $2000 in last year's receipts contributes largely to this difference.

The Board of School Commissioners with a small balance of $3.27 from '93 show the receipt of $346.40 and the expenditure of $347.16. There is a balance on hand of $7.24.

The Legislature. Wednesday's Chronicle says: The legislative council chamber was yesterday thronged with people who were interested in the question of abolishing that chamber. The debate on the question occupied a considerable portion of the afternoon session, and was participated in by Messrs. Murray, Baker, Owen and LeBlanc. When the vote was taken on the question of abolishing the council, the result was 12 yeas and 10 nays. The result of the vote was 12 yeas and 10 nays. The result of the vote was 12 yeas and 10 nays.

There is a balance on hand of $7.24. The result of the vote was 12 yeas and 10 nays. The result of the vote was 12 yeas and 10 nays. The result of the vote was 12 yeas and 10 nays.

To the Editor of the Courier.

A thoughtful and delightful memorial cluster at the great departed Canadian Exposition. Nothing shall be left to the world. When a nation shall come, no one can predict. LaGrippe and its Treatment.

Three years ago when La Grippe first visited this country, the great struggle was how best to treat it. After thoroughly studying a number of cases I found in due season a sweating stage as early as possible which by hot water baths, hot lemonade, or other still, hot fluids, and molasses (milk is not) drinking as large a quantity as possible while well covered up in bed. This induced sweating reduced the temperature and relieved pain; the morbid trouble was the bronchial trouble which is generally sure to follow La Grippe, sometimes begins at the onset. For this I made a cough mixture that stimulated the mucous membranes, at the same time was soothing and heavily charged with quinine.
For this purpose I mention what has since become so immensely popular and is known as Dr. Miller's Cough Syrup, I use Cod Liver Oil, the richest of such a course of treatment could best be told by those who have been victims of Grip, as could be shown by hundreds of testimonials.

During the present epidemic, this constitutes the main treatment among those who learned to live, that such a time as Miller's Cough Syrup has increased 50 per cent since the Christmas holidays.

pectable dealers.

Digby Weekly Courier

Digby, February 9, 1894.

There is some healthy food for thought in the present tariff revolution in the States and its attendant difficulties.

In the autumn of 1892 the American people, in a political contest where the tariff issue unquestionably overshadowed every other, most unequivocally decided in favor of a reduction in customs duties.

This change, fraught with a significance of the magnitude of which neither its friends or foes ever dreamed, occurred, unfortunately for itself, at a time when the Republic was enjoying a period of unusual prosperity, and still more unfortunately on the eve of a currency panic occasioned by the contraction of the banking institutions were beginning to feel the loss of the gold which the treasury silver had crowded out, when the manufacturers called for a high tariff to protect them from the competition of the foreign goods.

ANALYSIS OF THE PROBLEM

The present need of the town is water for fire protection of which the town is absolutely unprotected, and with this need is an equally imperative one, that it is not desirable to increase the taxation in order to create the supply.

Upon the above facts I submitted my report to the town council, and it was decided to submit a former scheme, submitted for my consideration, I certainly estimated my approval of a system by gravity as preferable to any other method.

The report from Prof. Butler on his preliminary observations, which I submit for your personal, should be ample professional authority to indicate that a system of gravity by gravity is obtainable and I cannot conceive any justification for not adopting his proposition, but your unwillingness to assume such a financial burden is a matter for your consideration.

"What is it an auction?" asked the

The Canadian Sledge Dogs

Mr. Cameron in his talk with a reporter recently told of his dogs that were used for sledging during the winter in the northwestern territories of Canada.

Six or eight dogs are used on each sledge, and they are fed only on meat and bones, and that in the winter the sledging is done in the barns. At that time about four hundred of frozen fish are given them.

Every time a dog is run down for the sled, and the men must look to it that they are ready to jump on the sledges, for the very instant the dogs are at a break neck speed.

Strange as it may seem the drivers do not dare feed the dogs unless they are in harness. Otherwise they would scatter and nothing more would be seen of them. They are driven with one long rein attached to the leader. A whip with a very short handle and a very long lash is used to urge them on. The dogs seem to feel that the faster they go the quicker they will come to the spot where food and warmth await them. They are not afraid to travel often as far as ninety miles a day.

How to Catch Mice.

Take a jar or tin bucket and fill it about half full of water and place it where mice are in the habit of haunting. Take a board 18 or 20 inches long one end of which lay on the floor or ground, as the case may be, and the other end on top of the bucket. Sprinkle a handful of seed or corn meal on the board. This will not sink, but will remain on top and hold the water from going down. Sprinkle wheat, corn or any other kind of seed on the top of the board, and the mice will come to the bucket and jump in to get it, and soon perish.

I have tried this plan with quite satisfactory results. The trap is always set and when a mouse comes there is no getting out. Of course it should be noticed every day or two, and the drowned rodents removed, and the water changed to catch rats in this way, but think if

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. The left edge of the page shows the binding structure, including what appears to be a vertical crease or fold line. The overall tone is a warm, off-white or light beige.

PROHIBITION.

We do not consider it necessary at this time to say much to the electors of the county on the prohibition vote. The electors are already well informed by the press and by the many speakers who are to be heard on Thursday. Every elector is bound to vote for the party which he believes to be the best for the county. The electors are to be heard on Thursday evening of an overwhelming victory in Digby County for prohibition.

Lord Rosebery, England's new premier, attains to high political fame at a comparatively early period in life. The premier was born in London, 1847, and educated in Eton and Oxford. In 1878, on the death of his grandfather, he succeeded to his title.

The new Liberal leader is best known to the English public as a close student of educational questions, on the subject of which he has frequently distinguished himself in the Lords, and on his share in the "University Extension" movement.

At the age of 27 he was elected president of the social science conference at Glasgow. Six years later he was elected lord president of the University of Edinburgh. The following year (1884), he received the appointment of under secretary of state for Scotland, but this office he resigned two years later. In 1885 he was appointed lord of the foreign seal, and in 1886 secretary for foreign affairs under Gladstone.

Lord Rosebery was again appointed secretary for foreign affairs. The circumstances have set for the new premier. The Lord is a constitutional monarch, a one which Rosebery, himself a peer, will hardly be expected to resist. The Liberal Councils are both in a sense, pending and promise ground for future quarrel with the Lords. Then the growing strength of Radical sentiment, and the conservative reaction, that a leader in the Upper House can but ill control. Then Home Rule and the agitation for church disestablishment will have to be accounted with. Lord Rosebery's bed is not one of roses.

NOMINATION DAY.

Yesterday was Nomination Day, and the weather being dry, a goodly number gathered in front of the Court House to see the candidates. Chairman Dr. Jones announced nominations whereby the time was given to each candidate to make a statement. The first speaker was Mr. Jones, who was nominated for the position of Justice of the Peace. He was followed by Mr. Smith, who was nominated for the position of Justice of the Peace. The nominations were then closed.

Montpelier, Vt., March 3.—The state supreme court has decided the case of the state versus John O'Neill, a liquor dealer. The court has sentenced O'Neill to five years imprisonment for selling liquor to minors. The case was heard in the Vermont Supreme Court.

VILLAINY UNEARTHED.

OR

The Judgment of the Higher Court.

By Thomas F. Anderson.

From the time that Pemberton

was a doomed man, so far as public opinion was concerned, and it would take many a column of cold

type and long months of time to wipe out the black stain that this

lightning stroke from the ink

presses had tattooed upon his brow.

Some of the papers, to be sure,

found some excuse for the deed of

suicide, in face of the fact that no

revolver or trace thereof could be found; but not withstanding this,

the inevitable came, and late that night, Delbert Pemberton was under arrest on the charge of probable murder. In 10 short hours he who had held his life so high for 50 years, whose past and intelligence

had been for an instant questioned,

and whose social prestige was the envy of all his associates, had become a bankrupt and a suspected peripatetic

in the eyes of the community.

Next morning witnessed the second trial of one of the greatest journalistic races of the period, for it was over, then, plainly apparent that the columns of the Monitor affair was to be a veritable nine days' wonder.

The morning Monitor spared no space in its description of the affair,

but in its description of the affair,

the Monitor, or rather the reporter Kingdon, appended an interview with Mrs. Angier, the house keeper, in her own language, a story which was so full of interest, that the dead man's picture, "Mr. Warden came in about a week later night," that it agitated him, "and he was in the hall way."

"He looked terribly worn and

and it rather alarmed me when I saw him. Dinner had been waiting for an hour, but he said he didn't care to eat. He was very pale and upstairs to his own apartment and did not want to be disturbed during

the evening."

"He went right up and that was

all. He was very pale and lives over in the east side had sent for me to come and see her as

her baby was very sick, and I soon as I could got ready. I started to quit her a visit, taking along with me the servant girl, for company. It was just about nine o'clock when we started to leave the house, and just as we opened the door to go out we saw a man standing in the hallway. He was very pale and seemed business men in the city, was arrested last evening on suspicion of being the principal instigator in this case. He was very pale and seemed business men evening on suspicion of being the principal instigator in this case.

The Judgment of the Higher Court.

From the time that Pemberton

was a doomed man, so far as public

opinion was concerned, and it would take many a column of cold

type and long months of time to

wipe out the black stain that this

lightning stroke from the ink

presses had tattooed upon his brow.

Some of the papers, to be sure,

found some excuse for the deed of

suicide, in face of the fact that no

revolver or trace thereof could be

found; but not withstanding this,

the inevitable came, and late that

night, Delbert Pemberton was under

arrest on the charge of probable

murder. In 10 short hours he who had held his life so high for 50 years, whose past and intelligence

had been for an instant questioned,

and whose social prestige was the envy

of all his associates, had become a

bankrupt and a suspected peripatetic

in the eyes of the community.

Next morning witnessed the

second trial of one of the greatest

journalistic races of the period, for

it was over, then, plainly apparent

that the columns of the Monitor

affair was to be a veritable nine

days' wonder.

The morning Monitor spared no

space in its description of the affair,

but in its description of the affair,

the Monitor, or rather the

reporter Kingdon, appended an interview with Mrs. Angier, the house

keeper, in her own language, a story

which was so full of interest, that

the dead man's picture, "Mr. Warden came in about a week later

night," that it agitated him, "and

he was in the hall way."

"He looked terribly worn and

and it rather alarmed me when

I saw him. Dinner had been wait-

care to eat. He was very pale and upstairs to his own apartment and

did not want to be disturbed during

the evening."

"He went right up and that was

all. He was very pale and

lives over in the east side had

sent for me to come and see her as

her baby was very sick, and I soon

Worst Kind of Scrofula.

Prizefighter. I had an abscess on my neck and scrofula of the very worst kind. The abscess was so large that it would not heal. I got so weak that I could not walk the house without taking hold of something to support me. The doctors treated me with mercury and I lost much of my strength.
I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the abscess healed in eight days. I am now stronger than ever.
