JOHNS' CORNER.

She Knew What She Was Al

Prolonged railway travelling is a nuisance to most people that any little diversion is welcomed and made the more so. The Cleveland Plain Dealer records an instance of such a sort—a remarkable performance on the part of an elderly lady, which must have been at least half an hour for the other singers. The day was warm and she was seized with thirst.

She took the cup in her hand, the faucet and stood waiting. The water filled the catch-pail and ran and soon was cooking the cross-ties the woman stood holding the cup. Finally a trainman stepped up to her.

"Lady," said he, not impatiently, "you know what you are doing?"

"Me? Certainly I do."

"Well, why are you running water off?"

“Why,” said she “I’m letting it gets cool.”

The French in Madagascar.

Maine Fisheries.
The United States stands at the head of the nations of the world in respect of the amount of fish caught, the value of the same, and the number of men engaged in the fisheries. In respect to the number of fish employed in fisheries, there are 50,000 in the United States, 35,000 in the Great Britain, 30,000 in Norway, 25,000 in France, and 18,000 in Italy. The world over, 1,000,000 men maintain their subsistence from the fisheries. With fish, however, as a staple food, it is not necessary to the production of such diseases. In short, every phenomenon connected with a typical case of biliousness is immediately explained as resulting from the presence of the germs of putrefaction in the blood.

This being true, much can be done in the way of preventing such attacks by regulating the diet and keeping the bowels open. In treating an acute attack of biliousness the digestive tract must be immediately relieved of its unmanageable burden by an emetic or a brisk cathartic—or in some cases by both.

After this has been thoroughly done, the patient must be put on a diet which has caused the vomiting, by swallowing bits of ice or draughts of some acid drink, like unsweetened lemonade. The headache will usually disappear with the relief of the stomach and bowels. Rest and quiet will complete the cure.

Repeated attacks of biliousness are liable to become chronic, and are especially of the heart and liver, and affections of these organs should be carefully excluded by a medical examination.

Worthy of Confidence.
All the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla may be as implicitly relied upon as though they were written by your trusted neighbor. It has often been said, and it is perfectly true, that the testimonials telling of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla are not purchased, nor are they from their employees. They are from people who have actually been cured by it.

Nutrition and the Nerves.
Nervous exhaustion results especially from defective assimilation of food. As a result, the general nutrition of the body will be injured, and the nervous system.

So long as the digestive organs are not in a healthy condition the process of building up the tissues of the body cannot go on as it should to ensure health. With the blood loaded with impurities or circulating through the body when impoverished or robbed of its life-giving qualities, it is not surprising that such good health, Hood's Sarsaparilla gives vitality, richness and purity to the blood and thus enables it to supply every nerve, organ and tissue of the body with the quality of health and vigor depend.

Far From Universal Peace.
There is a rebellion in Macedonia; an insurrection is going on in Cuba; a revolt is being organized in the Balkans; French citizens have taken place on the frontier of French Bulgaria; Bulgaria is preparing to invade a raid into her territory by Turkish irregulars; a French expedition is engaged to occupy the city of Madagascar, and in these months, well informed officials believe, Japan and Japan will be at war.

Reduced To A Shadow.
The year of universal peace is not yet in sight, notwithstanding the modern inventions which have made war so terribly destructive of human life.

To Take Pure Blood.
There is no medicine better to the people exposed to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the standard purifier and blood purifier, and it is a powerful remedy when the system is out of order. It really makes the weak strong, and it really makes the healthy healthy.

Hood's Pills.
Hood's Pills are the favorite cathartic with every one who tries them. It has 1,000,000 factory hands, making $20,000,000 worth of goods.

Ayer's Pills.
I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have used them many years, and always derived the greatest benefit from their use.

For Stomach.
And liver troubles, and for the cure of headache, caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be too highly recommended. No family should be without them.

Liver, or Bowels.
My inevitable sufferer from these troubles, I take to Ayer's Pills, and they will bring you to the regular digestive organs. They are the best.

Are the best.
I have used Ayer's Pills, and I have used them many years, and always derived the greatest benefit from their use.

AGRICULTURAL.
Cleaning Road Crops.
The importance of keeping road crops thoroughly clean, down to the very end of the season, cannot very well be estimated. With reference to cleaning road crops, nearly all farmers begin well. There is usually but little complaint of on the road crops until the busy season of harvest comes on. Then the weeds are hurried to take advantage of the partial cessation of cultivation in the fields.

When road crops are not kept clean, they fail to fulfill an important end for which they are grown, viz., the cleaning of the land; say, they tend to the opposite result. We cannot well imagine more favorable conditions for the extension of the root growth of creeping perennials, as, for instance, the Canada thistle and couch grass, than those furnished by soils in which weeds are growing, and unless attention is given to the cultivation to destroy these plants, and when annuals are allowed to come up and grow unobscured by the harvest crops, they grow and become quite plentiful, each of its kind. The conditions are favorable. The soil is mellow. It is moist, and they have lots of room to grow.

When they have taken root, they are showered around by the wind on every hand, and they grow better and better by the harvesting of the crop. It may truly be said, that its last condition is worse than the first.

Every effort should, therefore, be made to keep about the weeds. There are many ways of doing this, and the one which can be gradually applied in the cultivated crops. There are times when the weeds are so plentiful, and it may be, while the atmosphere is too moist to admit of harvesting with profit; these seasons can be well employed in the fields where road crops are growing.

Where cultivated crops cannot be kept clean, they should be kept growing. It may be that present gain may arise from growing road crops which are not clean, but in the end it will not be so, where the weeds are allowed to grow.

Lands can be utilized with advantage in cleaning late weeds out of a corn field, as, soon as they are weaned, they are turned in and the corn, they will soon be ready to be harvested. There are many ways of doing this, and the one which can be gradually applied in the cultivated crops.

Parsons' Pills
Put Yourself in Our Place.
We presume that some people think we newspaper men are persistent diners. Let a farmer place himself in a similar business position and see if he would do the same. Suppose he raises a crop of 1,000 bushels of wheat, and his neighbors would come to buy a bushel and the price was only the small sum of two dollars or less and the neighbor says: "I will pay you the sum in a very few days."

As the farmer does not want to be small in the matter he says "all right." Others come in the same way until the whole of the 1,000 bushels are gone out to one thousand different persons, and not one of the purchasers concerns himself about it, for it is a small amount he owes the farmer, and, of course, that could not help him. He does not realize that the farmer has suffered away his crop of wheat in his dabbles and that he is fearfully embarrassed in his business because his debtors treat it as a little matter. But if all would pay him promptly (which they could do as well as he) it would be a very large amount indeed to the farmer and would enable him to carry on his business without difficulty.

Put Yourself in Our Place.
We presume that some people think we newspaper men are persistent diners. Let a farmer place himself in a similar business position and see if he would do the same. Suppose he raises a crop of 1,000 bushels of wheat, and his neighbors would come to buy a bushel and the price was only the small sum of two dollars or less and the neighbor says: "I will pay you the sum in a very few days."

As the farmer does not want to be small in the matter he says "all right." Others come in the same way until the whole of the 1,000 bushels are gone out to one thousand different persons, and not one of the purchasers concerns himself about it, for it is a small amount he owes the farmer, and, of course, that could not help him. He does not realize that the farmer has suffered away his crop of wheat in his dabbles and that he is fearfully embarrassed in his business because his debtors treat it as a little matter. But if all would pay him promptly (which they could do as well as he) it would be a very large amount indeed to the farmer and would enable him to carry on his business without difficulty.

Lardepsia
would be a more appropriate name for that common cause of suffering—dyspepsia—because most cases of dyspepsia can be traced to food cooked with lard. Let COTTLENE take the place of lard in your kitchen and good health will take the place of Dyspepsia. Try it. Every tin of the genuine COTTLENE bears this trade mark—steer's head in cotton-plant wreath. Made only by The N. K. Fairbank Company, Waltham and Andover, Mass., U.S.A.

POETRY.

In School-Days.
Still sit the school-house by the road.
A rugged bark-sunning.

There was a slight flash visible upon Janet's face as the last word fell, only that she had risen up suddenly at that instant to take the fire, and therefore no one perceived it.

"You wish this, then, so very much, dear Daisy?" came presently, when the speaker had resumed her seat.

"Yes, I know, of course," fell hesitatingly. "It's easy enough to understand that it would be better for us both. But then, sister mine, and don't exactly drop from the clouds every day. Ah, there's the postman! Quite a packet of letters," she observed presently, laying them upon the table.

"I wonder what is in them that is the next question. A wine merchant's circular? That I should have seen it elsewhere. Prices for funerals, cheap and otherwise. Better have kept the stamp," was the running commentary. "A letter from Uncle Nance. Wants to send him several quart bottles of his favorite delectable medicine, says he's got it."

"The glass of water poured, Janet herself, without more ado, was hurriedly reading the missive which had apparently thus served to disturb her quietude. "The trunks, with their contents," thus ran the wording—"left on the fifteenth of February in Mrs. Westley's care, and are entirely at her disposal. She can sell them, or otherwise, precisely as she likes. It may be well, however, that she should first examine said contents carefully. They will, it is believed, mostly serve to reimburse Mrs. Westley for the expense of storage."

"Well done," exclaimed Janet, jolly and indignantly. "I fancied, when she was being so kind as to reimburse Mrs. Westley for the expense of storage, that she was being so kind as to reimburse Mrs. Westley for the expense of storage."

"The widow's cry," came in a tone of astonishment, and also been reproach. "That's the way to act, of course," went on Janet. "We shall be in a scrape, then. Why, the case is clear enough. It's not a matter of life and death, but it's a matter of life and death."

"That's the way to act, of course," went on Janet. "We shall be in a scrape, then. Why, the case is clear enough. It's not a matter of life and death, but it's a matter of life and death."

"In answer to the advertisement of 'D' in the Times of to-day, a widow and her sister offer the accommodation required. No other lodgers."

"There's a disagreeable business, this," said the sister. "I don't think it's a matter of life and death, but it's a matter of life and death."

POETRY.

Keep Me, My God!

The fishermen of Britain were wont to utter
The prayer when they launch their boats upon the face of the deep: "Keep me, my God—my boat to thee, my God—my boat to thee."

I wish the harbour bar
To drift out with the tide;
Keep me, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

Upon the gently heaving deep,
With swelling sails and spreading, I ride;
Keep me, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

The sun shines bright, the breeze is fair,
Swiftly upon my course I glide;
Keep me, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

A swim-like calm holds air and sea—
Whirl in a dizzy haze, I ride;
Keep me, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

The storm clouds lower in the west,
Dark rumblings send the pease to chide;
Keep me, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

No night falls on the pathless deep,
The storm clouds lower the horizon hide;
Keep me, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

The storm breaks—'neath its blue frown
The sun shines bright, the breeze is fair;
Keep me, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

My boat is small, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

My boat is small, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

My boat is small, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

My boat is small, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

My boat is small, my God—my boat is small.
The ocean wide.

My boat is small, my God—my boat is small.

Romance of the Telegraph.

A good deal of romance hovers around the means by which the world's news is gathered. The speed and accuracy with which telegraph messages are transmitted

The Indo-European telegraph line of which we have just spoken is a good illustration. It runs from London to Lowestoft on the east coast of England. It then dips under the sea to Enkhuizen on the German coast, whence it runs

From this point the wire passes by the cities of Warsaw, Rowno, Odessa, the Caucasus and Tiflis, to Persia, and by Tauris, Teberan, the capital of the Shahr-e-Soleiman domain. There it joins the Indian telegraphic line, which runs from the Persian capital to Bushire on the Persian Gulf.

Gulf. Thence the wires run through Beloochistan, and complete the route connecting at Kurrachee, in north India. The operation of this immense stretch of line, passing through countries of such varying climates and general characteristics, is obviously one of no small difficulty.

the wires are sometimes snapped thread by the rapid flight of flock wild geese. The poles are cut down, made into firewood by the nomad tribes of the Caucasian districts, and the cunning inn keepers of Georgia seek to boom the post-horse trade by deliberately creating faults in the wires. In certain parts the mountainous regions of Asia

The maintenance of the solitary line involves no little personal risk and hardship on the staff hands. Communication is often cut off by avalanches in the mountain districts; the work of repairing after a snowfall of five or six feet is no light matter.

These mountain stations are provisionally with several months' supplies before the winter sets in, as the staff will be in touch with the rest of the world by the radio only until the spring weather opens the passes. In these supplies are always included a liberal allowance of books and games wherewith to relieve the monotony of the tedious winter exile.

Two Men Fought a Devil-Fish.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—The Giglio brothers, who own a fishing boat, have a lively tussle with a big devil-fish off the Lillone Islands. He measures within a few inches of thirteen feet. The men were fishing for rock cod, when "Joe Giglio felt a tremendous strain on his line. He reached for his brother's boat, and

him. 'Hart' knew something big was the other end of the line, and he braced himself behind his brother. Inch by inch the brothers hauled in the line. At 3 were too late. The angry devil clapped a six-foot feeler over the side of the boat, and in two seconds both men were fighting for their lives. One grabbed an oar, the other a hatchet; and keeping out of reach of the tentacles, they watched for an opportunity to get in below. 'Bart,' with his hatchet, cut off a section of a tentacle nearest him, but did not do much good. There were plenty more. For a few moments the devilfish went it pretty much his own way. A lurch of the boat sent Joe rolling past the glazing eye of the fish. A tentacle whirled around him, and the next moment he was strangled up in three of the monster's defenders. While the fish was getting a good grip on the chest and neck of a his brother picked up a club and managed to put in a smashing blow on the head of the fish. 'The knife, Bart; the knife,' shouted Joe. 'Bart wanted to slash more enemies, but Joe had breath enough left to tell him to cut the fish's throat. Bart watched his chance and plunged his knife deep into the creature's neck. The restored the light. Gradually the feed relaxed, and Jon released himself. The brought the fish to this city.

The Grand Pre of To-day.

And now for Grand Pre. What a Grand Pre! A deep aromatic meadow dyked in from the basin of Minnas and its tributary rivers, and rising on a hand side to a gently-swelling horse-shoe hill, on the declivities of which stand what remains of a village. One still trace not a few cellars, more or less filled in with loose stones by the present owners, in the hopes of winning a yard and a half more cultivation. These sites are generally marked by the thickest of glorious wild raspberries, which form a bushy growth.

and are topped, as a rule, near the line of stunted willows planted by the Australians and cut down in vain by the conquerors. The vitality of willows is astonishing: the closer they are pulled, the thicker they grow. Here and there are pathetic little touches. By a wall or foundation a fox-worn threshold stone is still in situation, a grassy mound it cinnamon rises, a garden, run wild. Down in the rich meadow is a well, and at the bottom of this well the other day we dredged a number of articles, some of which in all probability were thrown into it by Col. Winslow's New-Englanders when they were rendering the village uninhabitable for stragglers.

Two well-bucket chains, three or four hatchet-heads of an old-fashioned pattern, a queer clasp knife, a knife with a fork, undoubtedly old French; a buckram handle or two, and the like, are the principal relics; and these are preserved, as they should be, at the house of the gentleman who is not

Weak and Nervous

Whenever the body has been weakened by disease, it should be built up by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Read this: "About two years ago I suffered with a very severe attack of inflammation of the bowels. When I began to recover with it in a very weak and nervous condition, and suffered intensely with neuralgia pains in my head, which caused me to sleep, and have no appetite."

"I had no idea," murmured Miss Hilary: "I never had anything to do with money. It never struck me that we were living beyond our income. Father would not have liked me to interfere—"

Mr. Winter interrupted. "You know how childish my father was becoming if you had been at all a business woman you would have insisted upon looking into the expenses."

"Come, come," urged Uncle Higgan in a deprecatory growl from the other

Miss Hilary had been sitting perfectly still throughout the interview, her hands clasped as in a vice, her lips pressed so tightly together that the blood had deserted them, never raising her eyes from the ground—but now,

"Don't you worry, my dear lady, he said: "we shall find something for you in time, and in the meanwhile you're among friends. We'll put an advertisement in the papers for you and see what that will do; but you mustn't think too much about it, must she, James? She must look upon this as a little holiday."

"Oh!" exclaimed Miss Hilary, with a gasp, "you are too kind."

The unexpected kindness had entirely unstrung her. She took his hand in both hers, and clutched it nervously; then, fearful lest she should be betrayed into tears, she hurried from the

"Don't you think, James," suggested Uncle Higgins diffidently, "that it would be better to leave the past alone—kinder, and more brotherly, eh?"

Afterwards, when he was alone in his own room at night, he paced up and down in untrud restlessness. The "Poor soul," he muttered, "poor soul—poor, desolate creature!"—he heaved a deep sigh. "There are thou-

"no, no, it is out of the question; I must not think of it." "Oh!" said Flossie, "it's too ridiculous for anything." It was one of those evenings when the breakfast room was considered

"What is so ridiculous?" asked Mugh, absent-mindedly. He had been watching the effect of the fire-light as

"Why," said Flossie, with some impatience "Aunt Hilary and Uncle Higgams! He has got it into his head that we don't treat her kindly-- though I don't know what business it is of his."

and so he has constituted himself her champion—Mr. Josiah Higgins, knight errant to the rescue!—that sort of thing, you know. It's too absurd to see them bobbing and curtsying to each other, with 'I thank you, sir,' and 'Not at all, madam!' I've laughed until I'm tired, and now I can hardly contain myself."

three, and now I am really beginning to think it a serious matter. If we don't alter our tactics he will marry her before our very eyes, purely out of pity for the poor ill-used old soul—and presto! all our expectations will be scattered to the winds."

Hugh had listened to this speech with more attention. He was quiet serious young man, slowly making his way through the hospitals. He would never astonish the world; but he had serviceable qualities--and he was thoroughly good-hearted. Somehow Flossie's last speech hurt him.

"I don't like to hear you speak like that, Flossie," he said, so gravely that she opened her blue eyes wide in surprise. "You are not true to yourself. I know you don't mean what you say, but even then I don't like to hear you say it. They words have a foreign sound from such sweet lips as yours. Ah! how morally intoxicating is the Flossie at all events, could not find it in her heart to lower Hugh's ideal of her; instead, she began to live up to it.

"I don't think I do quite mean all that," she said, resting her head on his shoulder with a charming, penitential smile, which carried irresistible conviction along with it. "My tongue runs away with me sometimes. But, Hugh," she added, conscience prompting her Church of England's New Rectory.

This year has been one of unwonted activity and progress in many directions in the town of Digby.

Not only have ancient dwellings been remodelled and reconstructed, but new houses have been built for the better accommodation of tourists; and sailing and yachting fleets augmented. The facilities for the pleasure of those who visit to marine enjoyment, and vehicular possibilities increased and improved for the delight of those who wish to visit the islands, and clements, still linger; and dingy seven-by-nines replaced by colorful party in sundry important enjoyment. The island is being brought into operation; but residences have also been erected; and that is, after all, one of the surest indications of a permanent settlement. The improvements made during the past twelve months is the new house provided for the rectory is constructed by Mr. David P. O'Brien, architect, of New York City, at a cost of about three thousand dollars. For sensible and convenient arrangement of rooms within there is no finer example in the city. The work is of excellent execution and will long be a monument to the capability and patriotism of the people of Preston. The rectory will be heated by one of the largest and finest hot air furnaces from the Connecticut Gas and Coal Co., of Preston, Oudt and will be fitted with hot and cold water radiators and provided with all those comforts and conveniences which, in these days, have won into our more luxurious homes, and are so easily procurable. The congregation of Holy Trinity will be able to accommodate a number of highly generous, may have an honest pride in their attractive rectory, which on its present site looks a part and parcel of the church. The people of Holy Trinity, to whom that city belongs, will undoubtedly feel no arduous task in liquidating the not very overwhelming debt incurred in its erection.

[illegible]

Obituary.

MARY AGATHA OAKES.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Maria A. Oakes, widow of the late Dr. G. B. Oakes. Her sudden and unexpected death occurred on Tuesday afternoon, and was caused by chronic malaria. Although the deceased had been suffering from this disease for some time, her friends had but little idea that she was in any immediate danger till within a few hours of the last moments, and she was not expected to die. It is a sad thing to be of any length. Mrs. Oakes was the only daughter of late Dr. Morrison of this city, and she was born where she resided some ten years, when she removed to Halifax, remaining there till her marriage. She leaves to mourn her death her husband, Dr. Morrison Oakes, and many other relatives and friends, who will learn of her death with much regret. The funeral took place on Wednesday, Rev. H. A. Harley officiating, and the remains were interred in the Forest Hill cemetery beside those of her husband.

of her late husband.

HENRY VANTASSEL, who was born in this town on Wednesday, July 25, 1850, and who has been a prominent landmark and the community an honor since his arrival here, died at his residence, Mr. Vantassel was born at Mr. Pleasant, where the early years of his life were spent in agricultural pursuits, and from there moved to the Racquette, now inside of town limits. He was a devoted member of the Baptist church, though not troublesome enough to incapacitate him from conducting his duties as a farmer, which he did for a few months, since which he has been a guest here. He has been a great sufferer. Besides two sons, Messrs. George and Abraham Vantassel, and two grandsons, two sons and two daughters, and a large circle of relatives and friends.

He died at 10:30 o'clock, on Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and the remains will be laid to rest in the cemetery at 11 o'clock, at the funeral church, the Rev. Father Walsh officiating.

Tended a Farewell Supper.
A farewell supper was tendered the Rev. Father Duchaneau, at Goodwin's hotel, Weymouth Bridge, on Wednesday night. The Rev. Father has been appointed Father Sullivan's successor and will leave at once for his new charge.
During his three years residence at St. Croix he has won the highest esteem, not only from the clergy, but from all those with whom he has been in contact, and the supper was a slight token of appreciation from a few of his many friends.
Mr. C. C. Burrill presided, and the happy manner in which he conducted the affair added not a little to the success and enjoyment of the evening.
After the guests had done justice to the bountiful repast furnished by Mr. Goodwin, the following toasts were offered:
"Our Queen." Responded to with a

The happy gathering dispersed at a late hour, after having enjoyed a evening of much pleasure, and one that will be cherished in the memories of Father Duchaneau's many friends for years to come.

Exciting Election at Indian Reserve

The election for chief, recently held among the Micmac Indians at Indian Reserve, Bear River, has resulted in the defeat of the old and well-known governor James Meuse, and now the flag of honor floats above the Teece or Teece new chief, Malti Picotou. There was a large gathering of the tribe from almost every country in the province, and great excitement was manifested among those interested.

Baptist on Prohibition

In the Baptist Maritime Convention held in St. John's, a committee on temperance reported the following resolutions, which were adopted:—

Resolved, That the members of the Baptist Church in this Maritime Provinces, submit to the following resolutions:

“Your committee are convinced that Christian can consistently support a candidate for the Dominion parliament who is not prepared to work and vote for the prohibition of the sale of strong drink, irrespective of the attitude of his party, and regardless of the question of whether or not that vote is carried.”

On motion to adopt this report, the following amendment was moved and carried by a large majority:—

Resolved—That this convention is of the opinion that Christian citizens should seek to be represented by those who are men who are dependent on to advance and support prohibition.

Rev. President Parsons said that report simply meant third party.

A monster excursion under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. of the Annapolis Valley will be held on Wednesday Oct. 2nd, from Windsor to St. John via the D. A. Flowers and Plants are More Than Ever
Ever For Decorative Purposes—Floral
Parasols For Garden Parties—Table Cen-

On every possible occasion the display of flowers and the elegant floral decorations is rapidly growing not only among the rich, but those in moderate circumstances, and that blossoms from the rare and costly to the more commonplace are almost indispensable to a successful social gathering. It is to the practical persons will not doubt say that other things are much more important, but it is quite certain that nothing gives a house a home cheerful and refined ap-

NO. 1—FLORAL CHEROKEE
appears that artistically arranged blossoms in plantings are becoming more and more popular. These may be, at this season, the most economically disposed choice for the average gardener. They are well adapted to the surrounding by their well chosen plants and flowers that will blend with the general colorings of the rooms and the outside.

It is not only the house and dining table that absorb vast amounts of flowers in this season, but the elegance of the present fashion for natural flowers for personal adornment. Flowers are worn on every possible occasion and are by no means out of the evening. The masculine and general traditions of natural flowers are patronized by the women whose fashion is no great object.

Persons are concerned with flowers in the garden parties, races, etc. When called, they look like cherubs, and when asked by any means, out of the ribs and give a very fine appearance even to a season, so well it is not in its first year. On the other hand, they will be worn more than ever, but at the same time, they are the park and at the theater. They are always harmonized with the style of the dress, and the color of the dress, and bunches or buttonholes of white, pink, blue, and yellow are worn. The morning dress and elaborate sprays of blossoms of these costly flowers are worn.

In table decoration the waxes remain a favorite style. It has a very good effect if carried out entirely in rose and white. The flowers are placed flat on the table and graceful, airy arranged sprays standing upright are about it. These are of course due to the inevitable ribbon.

For the table also much use of gorgeous table of this kind might be produced by the use of tulips, with stems and foliage of the same color, standing upright in vases, and light, delicate sprays of the same color, and of an appropriate table decoration would consist entirely of white flowers and foliage, such as hibiscus, freziera, begonia, and even calladium leaves. The charming table of white flowers of chains and baskets, which might be carried out in orchids, the baskets being filled with flowers. The type decoration

The silver-iridescent and glass-manufactured holders have given valuable aid to the decoration in the pretty novelties now displayed as flower holders. Quite new to the market is a series of holders of painted-patina in shape and adapted both to flowers and candles or lamps. The whole decoration is composed of sections of lacquer and is susceptible of almost any form and finite variation. Another of the new table centers is a (quaint) style with no flower holders, but a large, shallow, oval, shallow bowl of carved ivory, holding a novel effect of the carved and gilded flowers, being fitted into a fringe work of silver plate simulating plant and ivy leaves, while the holders are these may be added in rows of upright, cartilaginous leaves and great lanceolate ones. The tropical style of wall and floor decoration has been used with good effect. It consists of an arrangement of large plants of orchids, lilies, etc. If they had not been torn from the roots, which hang down in picturesque confusion. Added to these are tapers, briars, among which may be seen the leaves of the banana. It is needless to say that the rhizome are decorated in this style.

Wall decorations are mostly of a light and airy description this season. One use is made of the gigantic Coccoloba, whose handsome branches sweep right up to the ceiling. If the rooms are decorated are not very large, small palms and grasses are employed.

Finally, for general house decoration—landings, entrance, halls, etc.—all the plants available will be found to be of great use, and may be used but since the high tubes and other vases and arrangements of tall plants
