The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of St. Mary's Bay. This laid out from the water's edge, partly on level ground and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having with an eastern aspect, a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth of that name. It was settled by Loyalists from New York in 1763, the most of whom went early to farm, or, moving to other countries, left the whole

I tried it, made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular house, and got an order, but

TRADE BUILDS TOWNS

That community profits most that keeps the largest percentage of its trade at home. By the same token, the citizen who buys away from home is helping some other community, instead of his own, to grow.

Business is the lifeblood of the community. A city or town can grow no faster than its business grows. And the retail trade is a vital part of this business.

Many patrons of mail order houses and out-of-town stores do not realize the extent they injure their own community and themselves by diverting their trade from home town merchants. They do not realize that they lose far more than the few cents they may save in the immediate transaction.

Industries bring money to a community, but the community benefits only when that money is spent at home. It gets no benefit from the money if it passes directly from the pay envelope to the mail order house, the degree it does benefit being in direct ratio to the length of time it remains in local circulation.

The well-meaning housewife reasons with herself that Digby merchants will not miss the few cents accompanying the mail order or the small purchase in the nearby town. She is at fault only in that she does not reason far enough. Those few cents would remain at home and that small purchase would be made in a local store if she multiplied them by the number of housewives in the community.

Almost anything that can be purchased away can be obtained here, and with equal economy.

THOUGHTS AND THINGS

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

Around our breakfast table this morning the conversation turned upon this year's World's Fair at Chicago, with all the assembling of the oldest and the newest and the best achievements of all nations. "Isn't it a wonderful thing," said one, "that in this year of economic depression, when things seem all at their worst, there should be a World's Fair, showing the best from everywhere?" And it is really a wonderful thing. One could marshal a seemingly invincible array of facts and arguments against such a venture in times like these, when money is hard to find, markets dismally dull, millions living on the dole, unemployment epidemic, when the best minds of the day seem groping hopelessly to find the way out and the rank and file of folks sighing for the dawn of better times. But it is in this year that a city in the heart of the American continent flings its doors wide open to all the world's peoples, and says, "Come, show your best!" It sounds like a challenge to the depression, an energizing belief that a passing slump is not a permanent crippling of the physical, mental and moral powers of mankind any more than it is an exhausting of the infinite resources of a creative deity.

It is a striking parallel that in 1893, the year of the first Chicago World's Fair, the times were very bad. A credible magazine, describing that year, writes thus: "A severe depression has swept over the United States. Stocks are selling at panic prices. Union Pacific is in the hands of a receiver. The wise men of Wall Street are convinced that prosperity is gone forever. But prosperity was not gone forever. Think of the wonderful years since. The World's Fair was an impressive symbol of faith in 1893; it is an impressive symbol of faith in 1933."

The other day I heard Farmer Ned, who sometimes has his gloomy moods, bewailing the temperance situation throughout the land. "Look at it all," he said: "every province in Canada one the back of a great reaction; once prohibition in all but one, and today government control in all but one. Once we seemed in a fair way towards being a sober nation from coast to coast, and now sane men upon the watch tower speaking of Canada steadily becoming alcoholized. And look at the United States. Thirteen years of prohibition, and then reaction. The slashing votes already recorded look like winning prohibition of the slate altogether. Has the progress of a generation been thrown into the discard. It seems to me sometimes as though we temperance people might as well give up. And Farmer Ned really felt about it all. I have no doubt there are a good many Farmer Neds over the land. But there are thousands and tens of thousands more who have faith and hope and vision to see forces at work that will one day rise above all this slump, and who are going on building, building, building the city which has foundations. In this worst year of the depression there is a World's Fair in the centre of the continent. This is the year for the World's Fair spirit in the temperance cause."

SENTENCE SERMONS

Rev. Roy L. Smith.

It Doesn't Take—

—A very big man to create a big disturbance.

—Many skunks to raise an awful smell.

—A wise man to find faults.

—A clever person to start trouble.

—Much of a danger to scare a coward.

—A long conversation to reveal a shallow mind.

—A smart man to defy his own conscience.

WEYMOUTH GIRL SAVES YOUNG LAD FROM DROWNING

While in swimming at Journey's Creek, on Wednesday afternoon last, Audrey Blackadar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Blackadar, of Weymouth, saved little Junior, the son of Professor and Mrs. Pothier, of Bathurst, from drowning.

Junior, who, with his mother, is spending the summer with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Comeau, was playing on the bank of the river, when he slipped on the grass and fell in. He was going down for the third time when Audrey, who was watching him, swam to his assistance and, grasping him by the hair, pulled him to safety.

THE THINGS DIVINE

By Jean Brooks Burt.

These are the things I hold divine:

A trusting child's hand laid in mine.

Rich brown earth and wind-tossed trees,

The taste of grapes and the drone of bees,

A rhythmic gallop, long June days,

A rose-hedged land and lovers' lays,

The welcome smile on neighbor's faces,

Cool, wide hills and open places,

Breeze-blown fields of silver rye,

The wild, sweet note of the plover's cry,

Fresh spring showers and scent of box,

The soft pale tint of the garden phlox,

Lilacs blooming, a drowsy moon,

A flight of geese and an autumn moon,

Rolling meadows and storm-washed heights,

A fountain murmur on summer nights,

A dappled fawn in the forest hush,

Simple words and the song of a thrush,

Rosiedown and a mate to share

With comrade soul my gypsy fare,

A waiting fire when the twilight ends,

A gallant heart and the voice of friends.

Paul H. Stehelin, one of this year's graduates of Dalhousie University, who has been awarded with Livingston and Smith, in Annapolis Royal, was admitted to the Bar of Nova Scotia last week, and intends to practice in Yarmouth. Mr. Stehelin is a son of Major and Mrs. E. J. Stehelin, of Church Point, and was one of the contestants for the Smith Shield, at Dalhousie last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Grant and son, of Bathurst, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Mullen, at Weymouth North on Sunday.

FAITH

Lord, give me faith!—to live from day to day,
With tranquil heart to do my simple part,
And, with my hand in Thine, just go Thy way.

Lord, give me faith!—to trust if not to pray,
With quiet mind in all things Thee to find,
And, child-like, go where Thou wouldst have me go.

Lord, give me faith!—to leave it all to Thee,
The future is Thy gift, I would not lift
The veil Thy love has hung 'twixt it and me.

—Oxenham.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Therefore let thy voice rise like a fountain for me night and day."

For what are men better than sheep of a flock, or good men better than angels, if they know not their own minds?"

Both for themselves and those who call them friends?

For so the whole round earth is every day bound by gold chains about the feet of God."

—Rumi.

FRIENDS

"The greatest business in all the world is that of making friends."

In fact no business on the street pays bigger dividends.

For life is more than stocks and bonds.

And love by rate per cent;

And he who gives in friendship's name

Will reap as he has spent.

Life is the great investment,

And no man lives in vain

Who guards all of his friendship

As a miser would guard his gain.

Then give to the world a welcome

Each day whatever it sends,

And may no mortgage e'er foreclose

Our partnership as friends."

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Tis the hand you grasp with honest clasp,

That gives you a hearty thrill.

'Tis the mind you pour into other lives

That comes back your own to fill."

Try a TESTED Medicine

On November 16, 1932, in a doctor's office in a Canadian city, a woman was given a blood test. It showed a low haemoglobin content and such a low count as to indicate that the case was decidedly one of anaemia.

The physician who made the test knew the formula of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the patient was instructed to take two of them after each meal. On December 16, one month after the first test, the haemoglobin had increased from 68 to 75 per cent, and the red corpuscles from 2,880,000 to 2,944,000.

The patient had more color and felt better. In two months more the haemoglobin increased to 85 per cent, and the blood count to 4,400,000. The patient feels better, stronger, and more energetic every day.

If you are pale, tired, easily and lack "pep", start right now to build up your haemoglobin with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the clinically tested medicine for anaemic conditions. You'll feel a different person in thirty days. The pills are sold by all druggists, fifty cents a box.

Some History and Some Other Things

—BY G. R. T.

Some of our readers may be surprised to learn that the town and township of Digby bore another name in the earliest days of its settlement. Mr. I. W. Wilson tells us in his History of the County that the place was named "Conway" in honour of General Sir Henry Seymour Conway and the territory comprising some one hundred and twenty-five thousand acres took in the townships of Digby and Weymouth and the portion for this land was granted by the British Government November 21, 1765 to Alexander Mc-Nutt, James Clarke, Mienel Clarke, Anthony Henderson, William Mitchell and Sebastian Zouberbuhler for a plantation, upon the condition that family families should be settled therein within one year and to each family an allotment of five hundred acres was to be made. Failure by the grantees to fulfil these stipulations would render the grant liable to forfeiture. Apparently the venture was a failure and we find that McNutt and his associates having failed to locate the required number of settlers a Notice of Escheat of Conway Grant was published at Halifax
March 13th, 1768.

Many Loyalists desired to move to Nova Scotia and the British Government encouraged them to do so by guaranteeing three years' provisions with lumber, bricks and nails for building purposes. The Provincial Government made efforts to provide vessels for transport of the Loyalists, and eventually Rear Admiral the Honourable Robert Digby of the British Fleet despatched one of his ships the "Atlanta" to convey the first detachment to their future home. Leaving New York in May, they arrived at Conway June 1st, 1783.

Devoutly thankful to Admiral Digby for permitting the "Atlanta" to remove their company so comfortably and promptly to the "Land of the Mayflowers" all citizens united in entreating the Government to insert the name "Digby" in the forthcoming grant instead of "Conway".
On February 20th, 1784 the Government granted to approximately three hundred settlers, lands in the former township of "Conway" the name of which was then and there changed to "Digby" and has been called Digby ever since.

Concerning Briar Island and Long Island, which form the town of Westport, Freeport and Tiverton, Mr.
Wilson has written in his History according to Wilson "Briar Island, four miles long and one half mile wide, is the westernmost land belonging to Nova Scotia. Thickly settled, it is adorned, enterprising and picture-scaped. Westport is one of the foremost fishing stations on the western coast."

"Briar Island was visited by fishermen at an early date (not recorded). David Welch, Sr., a native of Maine, U. S., settled on a voyage to this island in the spring of 1769.
He was accompanied by his wife and family. They were afterwards joined by Robert Morrell, also of Maine, but for a time a resident of Sissiboo.
Finding fish plentiful, allowing ample means of subsistence, they remained, becoming pioneers, the first of the county unknown to other sections of the county until the arrival of Loyalists in 1783.

Eleven families cast their lot on Briar Island in 1783. In addition to Welch and Morrell, Messrs Hubbard and Ellis settled on the island before the arrival of the following Loyalists: Samuel Buckman, Jacob Medford, Richard, Eliot Davis, Christian Kingsley, Captain Luffit, Peter Punter, Andrew Coggin, Alexander Long, Eliza Payson, Mitchell Linton, Jonathan Payson, Dennis Sullivan, George Laford,
Moses, John, William and Simon
Rice, (brothers), William Bailey,
John Jacob, George and Robert Morrell. Some time later Thomas Webber, son of Captain Joseph Webber of Granville, removed to Briar Island.

In the final chapter of the history,
Mr. Wilson records the following: "A grant of 400 acres of the state soil, situated on the shore of November 10th, 1784, was issued to Major Thomas Huxford, Capt.
Roger Pyle, William Musells, Johnathan Crabbe, and John Luf-fitt, Jonas Atkins, William Grant, Michael Lincoln, Johnathan Bishop, and Joshua Hankey in several and single lots, and the land was divided among their respective heirs and assigns, a certain island (or tract more or less) together with all woods, underwoods, timber and timber trees, lakes, ponds, fishings, waters, water courses, profits, commodities, apparatuses, heronries, whatever thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining, saving and reserving all minerals of gold, silver, copper, lead and iron."

"The apportionment among grantees as shown on the document gave Thomas Huxford 400 acres, Roger Pyle and William Musells 20 acres each, Jonathan Crabbe and John Ross 180 acres each, William Luffitt, Jonas Atkins and others the remainder."

"No record of the Township of Westport being legally established was found. The Court of General Sessions appointed officers for the Settlements of Long and Briar Islands" until 1839.

The earliest mention of Township of Westport in county archives appeared in apportionment of county taxes of two hundred and sixty pounds, assessed by the Grand Jury at General Sessions in December, 1839. At that time the appointment of township officers for Westport commenced and continued to the present. Hence the Township was practically founded in December, 1839.

Mr. Wilson does not state whether Major Huxford and Captain Pyle and their associates were settled on the land at once or on them under the terms of the Government grant.
Perhaps they found some of the thousand acres mentioned in the grant, under water or could it have been possible that they were disappointed over the absence of woods, timber and timber trees or perhaps they found the island fairly well settled by the Loyalists who came to the Island in the previous year (1783) at all events the names of these grantees nor the names of any of their descendants do not appear elsewhere in this book.

According to Mr. Wilson the first telegraph office in the county was opened at Digby, December 3rd, 1855 and was located in a building owned by Edward M. Marshall on the south side of Water Street near the steamboat pier. John Robinson was the first operator, and received a salary of $25 per annum. He was succeeded by his son, Chas. B. Robinson, who remained in charge until July, 1859 when the office was transferred to Miss Mary E. Smyth, who held the position as operator until 1863 when she was succeeded by Wm. B. Stewart, who held the position until the office was taken over by the Western Counties Railway in 1879.

The first telegraph office at Bear River was opened in 1875 (name of manager not given) and the first office in Weymouth was opened in the post office at North Weymouth in 1888 with C. Dwight Jones in charge as manager and operator.

Turning from "ancient" history to books of the year, here is one that may interest you if you are one of the kind that buy all the latest health foods and mouth washes offered by radio and magazine advertisers. The name of the book is "1,000,000 Guinea Flies" and tells of the dangers in Everyday Food, Drugs and Cosmetics, as written by Arthur Kallert and F. J. Smith, directors of Consumers Research Inc.
These writers give you interesting information on everything from Absorber Jr., to Z-z-z-z, including hair restorers and electric belts and tell you about the hundred million (or less) Americans who act as unwitting test animals in a gigantic experiment with poisons conducted by food, drug and cosmetic manufacturers.

Another book that will hold your attention and give you an insight into the ways of United States Senators and Representatives is "Washington Swindle Told" written by William P. Helm, a newspaper correspondent of seventeen years experience in Washington, D. C. This book gives the home-town folks and the world at large interesting information about the travelling expenses of Congressmen and their assistants and attendants. The U. S. Government allows its Congressmen a million dollars for forty consecutive days
of Congressmen and their assistants and attendants. The actual cost of transportation including Pullman does not, in any case, exceed nine cents per mile, leaving a mere item of 31 cents per mile available for the Congressman's private purse. On the long trip from San Francisco to Washington and return the Government pays the Senator from California the sum of $1292.30 for railroad and Pullman fare while the thousands of other Californians make the round trip at any time of the year at a cost of $274.70 the difference in favor of the Senator being over $1018.04 which he never sees fit to return to the Treasury Department—a tidy bit of honest graft. But that is not all, the boy out special investigation and junkies are very liberally treated also; in many cases bills for large amounts are turned in by the chairmen of committees without vouchers or itemizations. After reading this book you will not wonder if returning missionaries I would say wonder why anything is not done about it.

If you would get an insight into the ways of the Japanese, in their daily walks of life in their native land, much of which is not told by returning missionaries. I would read "Meet The Japanese" by Henry Albert Phillips of Reading, England. The author is a writer and lecturer. The Japanese are a remarkable people—we have many of them in California, most of them in the south part of the state and where they are engaged extensively in truck gardening, berry growing and fishing. All very industrious, peace-loving and progressive. They are permitted to own land in California, but have no trouble leasing all the land that they wish to cultivate. The Japanese are the public school and learn quickly—they are usually neat and clean and quiet. After graduating from California schools some of the boys and girls—whose parents can afford the cost—are sent back to Japan to complete their education but as a rule they do not care to stay there, being a Japanese in Japan and living according to Japanese standards is too much for these American born Japanese and they are always glad to get back "home."

While all the rest of the country seems to have been either burning up or sweltering, the weather in San Francisco area has been delightfully cool, some days cool enough for a lightweight overcoat. Cherries are ripe and plentiful, early peaches are in the market. It is the good old

Weymouth Boxes
Carry Off Many Prizes

The members of the Weymouth Boxing Club, L. W. Jones, Manager, and Steve Barr, Trainer, went to Annapolis Royal on Dominion Day where they participated in the boxing bouts, in connection with the Airport Opening. The boys were most successful, carrying off all but one of the prizes.

Hector Barr won from J. Jackson in six rounds; J. Risseau won from Bill Crooks on a foul in the first round; Ed Jaycock won from Tom Jackson. Arthur Jones won from Earl Sabeau by a knockout in the second round; Austin Saulnier won from Camille Mussey, Harry Arnold won from George Saulnier, and Ed Mitchell, of Bridgetown defeated
Arnold Barr in four rounds.

The Weymouth boys were outweighed ten to twenty-one pounds in each contest. Weymouth took all prizes but one and that by a questionable decision. Hector Barr, Ed Jaycock and Ed Mitchell, the latter out-weighting Barr by 21 pounds. Arthur Jones scored the only knock-out of the evening over Earl Sabeau, of Bridgetown, in the first part of the second round.

FLIES ARE "BABY-KILLERS"
And They Multiply by Millions

One solitary house fly, allowed to settle on a piece of food, multiplies in a baby's comfort, can deposit germs that will kill a little baby. Last year, at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, it was proved conclusively after intensive research that the invisible poisonous specks deposited by flies are responsible for "Summer Complaint," the most common of infantile maladies, which takes toll of hundreds of infant lives during the summer months. The common house fly, the most common of all insects, is a nightmare to parents of children who suffer from colic, diphtheria, dysentery and other deadly ailments.

With hot weather flies arrive and one here they start to breed and multiply. They are everywhere. They tell us that just as Malaria is combated by destroying Mosquitoes, so can the cause of typhoid and dysentery be saved by destroying flies. Ordinary precautions such as protection of food, screening doors and windows, covering breeding places and not to breed. All the flies must be killed for absolute safety.
One of the simplest ways to effect this is to use Wilson's Fly Pa-sticide in the house during the summer, 2 or 3 hours every day. The pads, kept moist every day, on porch or veranda, will also keep flies which enter the house when screen doors are opened. When it is so easy to combat this menace there is no reason why, with a little care, the risk to human life should not be reduced to a minimum.

CENTREVILLE RATEPAYERS VOTE TO CLOSE SCHOOL

At the annual school meeting, held in the schoolhouse, at Centreville, on Monday evening, after a heated discussion, with regard to the advisability of having a school there, for the ensuing year, a standing vote was taken, of 14 to 6 in favor of closing the Centreville school.

Trustee Kenneth P. Dakin, who strongly advocated voting money to continue to support a school, finally moved that the meeting be adjourned till some future date, when Inspector Foster could be present, and the ratepayers could discuss the matter with him.

Centreville has, for many years, maintained a graded school of two departments. There are 140 children, in the section, of ages ranging from 5 to 14 years.

Governor-General Visits Boys' Farm

The annual chusing exercises of the Boys' Farm and Training School at Shawville, Que., were held on Tuesday. This is shown in top photograph of the lay-out. Lower left, the Governor-General is shown shaking hands with Major Ralph Wilcock, D.S.O., superintendent of the School, and at the right His Excellency is acknowledging the plaudits of the boys from the steps of the special train. It was the first time in 25 years' existence of the School that a Governor-General of Canada had taken part in the closing exercises of the institution. His Excellency, addressing the boys on the arrival of the special train, stressed character as being of vital importance to success in life.

BAND NOTES

On three of its Sunday afternoon matches the Band has made a halt to play a few sacred selections for the invalids or aged people confined to their homes along its route. This kind of act is highly appreciated by those who have been cheered by the music.

Comments on the music played from the Manhattan verandah after the Governor-General's reception last week leave no doubt as to the necessity of raising the band stand if listeners are to get full benefit of the playing. Everybody noticed the difference. The suggested plan if carried out, contemplates moving the stand farther from the street and closer to the north end. This will give large audience space in front and will be appreciated by any speakers who may use the stand, besides resulting in a wonderful improvement in the music.

The money which the Band can raise by concerts and other engagements will not be sufficient to meet its expenses and its present condition. Perhaps some of our public-spirited summer visitors would be glad to assist this promising young organization in completing its equipment. Such assistance would be highly appreciated.

Though it is rather late to mention it, the Band management is pleased to acknowledge the quick and generous response of auto owners in donating use of cars for the music's recent Weymouth trip. It requires a fleet of cars to carry 45 players and their instruments but they were readily supplied by the individuals and by the Digby Garage, Digby Motors and Dunn's Service Station.

The Director wishes to invite all visiting musicians to call on him, and would be pleased to find a chair for them at any concert or practice if they play any band instrument. He will especially welcome any criticisms and helpful suggestions.

Band music sounds great over the water, and many people enjoy the concerts from canoes and motor boats, but the nerve-racking "phut, phut" of unattended exhausts on the motor boats is a nuisance to the listeners near the stand and to the players.

Address of Welcome

To Governor-General

By request we are publishing the address of the Hon. Mr. Borden, Mayor of Digby, presented to the Governor-General on his visit to Digby, on Thursday last.

To His Excellency

The Earl of Bessborough, P.C., G.C.M.G.

Governor-General of Canada.

May it please your Excellency:

Upon this, your first visit to the shores of Western Nova Scotia, the citizens of Digby, through their Council, take pleasure in extending to your Excellencies a most cordial welcome.

Digby, with its central location in the Maritime Provinces, its unparalleled summer climate, its excellent accommodations for visitors, the charm and beauty of its natural scenery, together with the hospitality of its people, has become the premier tourist resort of the Province of Nova Scotia, and the regular playground of the North American Continent. Since its incorporation in 1849, Digby has grown and controls its public utilities, comprising Water and Sewer Systems as well as an Electric Light Service with hydro development.

As the representative of His Most Gracious Majesty King George V, Your Excellency will find here a true and loyal band of British Subjects who enjoy the freedom and liberty afforded under the British flag, while in the western section of this country will be found descendants of the French Acadians, no less loyal than their English-speaking neighbours with whom they live in perfect harmony. This true spirit of loyalty was abundantly manifested at the out-break of the great world war, when our volunteers were supplied with sea service in answer to the call. Seventeen of those who served the Empire on the battlefields never returned, and a suitable memorial has been erected to their memory.

The present year marks an event of out-standing historical interest to our people, as the 150th anniversary of the landing of the United Empire Loyalists. This year and our neighbours have welcomed the new England States, landed on the spot where we are standing to-day on the 1st day of June, 1783, the direction of Admiral Robert Digby, in whose honour the Town received its name. Provisions and building materials were supplied to these new colonists, who immediately prepared homes for themselves in lots granted to them by the British Government, and followed the pursuits of fishing and farming, always maintaining their loyalty to the British Crown.

I have the honour to be,

Your Excellency's humble servant,

P. W. Holdsworth, Mayor of Digby.

Digby 6 July 1933.

Deep Brook W. M. A. S. Holds Annual Meeting.

The annual business meeting of the Women's Missionary Aid Society of Deep Brook was held on Wednesday last week with Mrs. Howard Adams. The programme, under the direction of the president, was well prepared. The Scripture lesson and prayer was by Mrs. (Rev.) Frank Smith, of Oxford. Mrs. Sherman was called upon to give a report of the report of the Western Baptist Association held at New Germany. This was the half-yearly met box opening. The amount of the afternoon offering, including the gift of $35.00 from Mrs. C. H. Eawton, for the support of a Bible woman in Mrs. Ralph Gullison's field, Bonaparte, India, was $47.00. Election Day Tues., Aug. 22

Tuesday, August 22nd, has been proclaimed Election Day for the Provincial Election. For the month voters in the province of Nova Scotia have been speculating between themselves when the election would be held. It is the hope of every self-respecting citizen, regardless of politics, that many of the corrupt practices of past elections will not be in evidence this year, but somehow, we are afraid that this is a forlorn hope—elections always seem to be won by hook and by crook.

Two well-known Digby County men have been selected to brave the storm of ballots. May the best man win. From now on both of these gentlemen will be subjected to the dirtiest kind of mud-slinging—their names will be exaggerated to such extent as to make them appear as the worst kind of criminals out of captivity. In spite of all the Election Act has to say about it, voters will be bribed to vote and not to vote, and as usual, the matter will be "laughed off" and one side will help the other of using all the corrupt measures.

In our mind, the above paragraph describes an average election, and also explains why, at times, it is such a difficult matter to secure suitable candidates to represent the people in the local legislature and the House of Commons. It is generally, not making any particular reference to Digby County. The kind of man sent to represent the people is a man who is not a subject himself a target for all the dirt and abuse that will be thrown in his direction. He knows that every mistake he has made from the time he was able to walk will be exposed and enlarged upon. If he lets an unimpaired man stand in his back yard, he will be accused of buying votes in that way. Before his nomination he may have made a practice of doing good to the people, but now he will be accused of buying votes in that way. Before his nomination he may have made a practice of doing good to the people, but now he will be accused of buying votes in that way. Before his nomination he may have made a practice of doing good to the people, but now he will be accused of buying votes in that way.

Addresses Kiwanians

The Digby Kiwanian Club held their weekly luncheon at the Mountain Gap Inn, Jossing Bridge, Monday evening. Next week the club will start on their summer schedule of luncheons at the Pines Hotel. Since leaving the Princess Helena a few weeks ago, they have met at the Pines Hotel, at the Harbor View House (Smith's Cove) and the Mountain Gap Inn. They will return after their summer season to the Pines Hotel.

Before the address of the evening P. Courtney Purdy, Principal of the Digby High School, was read. He spoke of July 1st, and thanked the members of the club for the part they had taken in the events. The Kiwanian trophy, was by the High School Athletic Society was passed around for inspection. Kiwanian Wright also told of the successful Kiwanian Club of the Lake and thanked the Kiwanians on behalf of himself and the Scouts for their part in providing the "cass."

The speaker for the evening was Rev. Denton J. Neilly, of Nashua, New Hampshire, who gave as his subject "Stepping Stones to Success." Mr. Neilly, who is a regular visitor to Digby, is well known to Digby Kiwanians, he having spoken before them on other occasions and is a frequent visitor at their luncheons.

Before starting on the subject of his address, Mr. Neilly made a few remarks on the general conditions of things in Canada and in the United States particularly. He said that inflation measures of the Roosevelt Government are looking favorable so far. Many factories he referred particularly to the shoe factories in Lynn, and the cotton factories in New England. He said that many were working overtime. He also made mention of the fact that the steel and shoe sectors of the United States are doing well. He called back every worker they had employed during the earlier days of prosperity.

In his speech as a reason that the merchants feared prices would soar due to the inflation measures, and they were looking for a market to be lower. The demand, he said, is only for the immediate things—many of the machine shops are still idle. There is a call for the things requiring time.

"With courage and confidence," said Mr. Neilly, "we will eventually overcome our misfortune. We have prospered in comparison with the earlier days of our history."

At last week's luncheon of the Kiwanian Club, Mr. Alfred Boden was the speaker. His subject was "Two World Wars in Comparison." He referred particularly to the birth of Confederation in Canada (July 1st) and of Independence (July 4th) in the United States of America.

Mrs. Wm. Hutchinson, while working in her garden a few days ago, had a very unfortunate fall and break her shoulder blade.

Miss Helen Turnbull, R. N., of Montclair, N. J., is expected to arrive today and visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eber Turnbull.

Miss L. C. MacLean, formerly assistant operator on the C. N. R. Telephone Exchange, was a guest of J. L. Peters, of Digby, during the week.

We are glad to report that J. L. Peters, who was stricken with "stroke" some time ago, is improving, although, we understand is still unable to receive visitors.

Miss Patricia, Miss Eleanora Wallis and Ralph Wright are attending the Maritime Young People's Convention of the United Church at Seckville, N. S.

S. W. Titus was a recent visitor to Saint John, returning with his grandson, Richard, who will spend the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Titus at the "Hillcrest," Warwick St.

Mrs. J. G. Amos, of Auburton, accompanied by her three little girls and son, Ralph, spent the past week guests of her father, David Hazelton and Mrs. Leander Handspliker.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Horne (nee Cargill) of Digby, were week-end visitors in Digby. Mrs. Horne is well known in Digby where she has many friends, for several summers being on the staff of the Myrtle Hotel.

Rev. Joseph W. B. Stewart, of Philadelphia, Pa., arrived on Tuesday on the New York to join Mrs. Stewart at their artistic cabin at Smith's Cove. As they were in Europe last summer, they are very welcome this year.

Last Thursday evening, Guy Morehouse, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harris, East Ferry, brought eighteen and one-half from East Ferry and Tidville to Digby to see "Eddie Cantor." All report an enjoyable time, and in many cases it was the first time the "kids" had ever seen and heard a talkie picture.

Mrs. E. C. Sallows was the hostess on Tuesday evening at seven tables of contract bridge, in the lounge room of the Pines Hotel. Honors were won by Miss Wilda Davis, Mrs. J. W. Merkel and Mrs. O. Wright.

The lucky prize was won by Mrs. J. W. Saylor. Larry Cochrane's orchestra playing added much to the evening's entertainment.

They expressed themselves as being particularly pleased with the Baby Clinic—the first that Lady Bessborough has seen.

Cherries Plentiful This Season

It is now cherry time in Nova Scotia's Cherry District—around Digby and Bear River. Cherry trees are loaded with this luscious fruit and the earlier varieties are ripe and on the market. The crop is said to be the largest in years, and cherries will be almost given away before the season is over. It is on this week—just at the opening of the season one could buy a quart box in Digby for the sum of ten cents.

There are many places in Digby town where cherry trees are shade trees along the streets. Out in the Acadia Valley the woods are full of cherry trees, not the small wild varieties, but big, sweet, juicy red, black and white ones. In most places famous for land owners have no objections to your climbing a tree and eating all you are able to hold, but in past years they have had to put more or less of a stop to it on account of thoughtless persons who persist in climbing the trees and tearing off limbs and branches for those below. In some instances this has caused serious injuries to the cherry trees.

The strawberry season is about over in this section, but it was a good season, and the crop was a large one. In almost every home stew pots are simmering on the kitchen range filled with these fresh fruits, strawberries or cherries—Mrs. Housewife is putting away her winter supply of preserves, jams, jellies.

STANDARDS OF PROSPERITY

One of the best achievements of the people has been in the enlargement of the list of what are considered human necessities. And it is a surprising fact that while the range of necessities has been vastly enlarged, the level of costs for the individual items tends to decrease.

Franklin Hobbs, economist, told a Chicago convention of architects recently that the average general price level now is 27 per cent below that of a century ago. But that does not mean that it is cheaper to live now.
In fact, Mr. Hobbs estimated that it costs the average individual about 10 times as much to live now as it cost the average individual to live 100 years ago.
"It costs each of you," said Mr. Hobbs, "three times as much to live now as it cost you in 1900 even though you live no more extravagantly now than you lived then. The difference in the cost is the amount required to buy the things that were not in existence in former times but now have come to be regarded as necessities."

There is vital significance in these observations. There is a reason why each revival from a period of depression promises a wave of prosperity greater than ever before enjoyed. The scope of activities supplying what humanity regards as its needs continually broadens. Once it was sufficient to provide simple shelter, food and clothing for the great mass of the population and general well-being was thought attended to. History records that a king set as his ideal of prosperity for his people that every peasant should have a wheel in the pot on Sunday.

But right now the ideal of normal good times is that every family should have its car and a good many should have two or three; that every house should have a radio, a telephone, electric lights and energy for operating labor-saving devices, an oil heater and mechanical refrigeration, besides an abundant supply of clothing, and other elemental comforts taken for granted.

GOLD

Economists have long expounded the theory that gold mining remains a profitable industry during the panics and depressions because at such times the purchasing power of gold increases, putting the precious metal at a premium. Their contention has been supported by the events of the last three years.

The excess gold is pouring in from the hills of the gold producing countries, where thousands of men and women have turned prospectors to make a living, if not a fortune, through placer mining.

Jobless men, representing all classes from grizzled professionals to college amateurs, are washing gravel from mountain streams for pay dirt. They average not less than $2 a day and there is always the possibility of striking it rich. Every placer striker cherishes the hope of finding some day the mother lode or a pocket of nuggets.

Gold can relieve many wants, including the want of employment. It has provided real unemployment relief in many places.

The hay fever song: "When I'm looking atchoo."

For the artist's model 'til the dawn of another nude day.

Oh for the good old days when you could kiss a girl and taste nothing but girl.

More men of standing would run for office if politics wanted men who stood anywhere.

Cheer up, you folks who have been complaining of the heat.
You can soon scold the cold winds and snows.

A newspaper uses the term
"the Gulp Stream." Referring, no doubt, to the flood of American tourists into Canada.

Now that science has discovered a link between the brains and shoulder blades "Julius Caesar" will have to be revised thrustily: "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars but in our shoulder blades."

We two, cast up together on the beach,
Both clinging to a floating spar of
hope,
With fingers cramped and aching, Toward truth, a truth with which our souls may cope.

Flotsam and jetsam from the tide of men—
Leaving behind the sea of our dis-pair,
Upon the sands we rest awhile, and then Arise, to gather Freedom's driftwood there.

BUILDING

We may not leave a costly monument
Of veined marble, standing fair and high;
Yet, underneath the heaven's arching
lent,
We all are building for eternity.

I would not build upon the shifting sand,
Nor write in sand my simple epitaph:
Sea-shells are hollow—higher, firmer land
Perpetuates the human epitaph.

Sea-shells are hollow—and the sands run out
From underneath Life's transient,
A monument of vain, elusive doubt Bears but the mark and fabric of a dream.

So, let us strive to carve upon Time's rock
A heritage of love—"in memory"
Nor fluent tides—nor sudden storms'
wild shock,
Can dim or change its graven equity.

36 Jackson Ave., Everett, Mass.

Temperance
Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service
Council and Temperance Alliance)

Neighbor Ben takes great pride in he seems to have little but scorn for what he calls his self-control. And the man who cannot drink without going on to get drunk. But I am afraid myself that he is seeing only one side of things and hardly realizes what a battle the other fellow is fighting and so often losing in order that he might have his glass when he wants it. Sometimes, indeed, I wonder whether or not he is a little bit like Cain of old, who in unbrotherly spirit scornfully flung out the question, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

But I really saw a tear in his eye the other day when a friend told a group of us the story of a good Nova Scotian who represents the best among the hardy fishermen who go down to the sea in ships and do business in great waters. He lives many miles away from any legal liquor store. He has a fine home with wife and children whom he loves and for whom he braves the deep. While he stays in the home area there is no better father or husband, no better fisherman, no better neighbor.
But let him go to the county town and he comes home drunk, a shame to himself, a sorrow to his wife and children whom he loves. One day a neighbor called to take him to town as a needed helper. "If you go to town with daddy," said his little girl of four, don't let him get anything to drink." His good wife came out and pleaded with her husband not to go to town. "You know," she said to him, "it will be the same thing over again," referring to the last time he came home to have a three days' spree. And the neighbor, telling of it afterwards, said, "I didn't have the heart to take him to town
I told him to stay at home and keep sober for the sake of his family." I got another man to come to town with me. I wish I could tell the story with the vividness of my friend. When he had finished good Neighbor Ben just turned his face away but not before I saw the signs of deep emotion in his eyes.
It was the first time I had seen him really touched by the weakness of a brother man. I think it was one of his best moments, too.

"I hadn't the heart to take him," said that fisherman's neighbor. He had heard the pleading call of the child and the mother, and it touched his heart. I wonder if our hope for the future does not largely lie in our fine, strong neighbors Ben being touched in heart by that same call of the child and the mother

At a college a professor met two students outside the grounds during one of the hours for study. He walked up to one of the students and, taking out his notebook to jot down the reply, asked:
"Pray, sir, what might your name be?"

"Julius Caesar," said the student.
"What, sir? Do you mean to say your name is Julius Caesar?"

"Sir, you did not ask me what it is, but what it might be."
There is a good story about Mr.
Stanley Baldwin. He was speaking just before the election at Worcester, when he was interrupted by a man who shouted: "What! Vote for the Conservatives? I don't think!"
"No, quite so," answered Mr.
Baldwin.

"But, of course, if you did think, you would."
and the youth and the man who is down but wants to rise. Then shall we not hear them say: "I have not the heart to ask that a business shall be legalized for my pleasure or profit when it means such loss and toll and tears to other lives. No, I have not the heart to ask."

No citizen is so powerful, none so humble, that the city or town in which he lives is not an aid to him
in some way.

Broadcasting has rivaled the telephone and telegraph, but not as yet
the newspaper. To a certain extent it must be admitted a blessing and as a whole it represents a real contribution to the world in pleasure and service, and it will progress
as time goes on. But the language difficulty must be solved. When broadcasts are made from one country to another, where different languages are spoken, no one can get much out of listening when an address is made in a language not understood.

Cities and towns that know what they are doing and where they are going generally get somewhere.

It is not an uncommon occurrence
to encounter a motorist driving at night with one light, and sometimes no light at all. There is absolutely no excuse for this practice and the offender should be dealt with in such a manner as to make him appreciate that while he should guard his own safety, he also has a clear duty to consider the safety of others.

People will go miles to get to a good live town to trade.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Force may subdue, but Love Gains; and he that forgives first, wins the laurel; Love is the hardest lesson in Christianity; but for that reason it should be most our care to learn it.

—William Fenn.

Too many people are prone to visualize economic and political conditions as if they were bound by their own community.

Newspapers are always the greatest asset of a community. They are ever alert to report things of a constructive nature which tend towards greater growth, development and prosperity.

There is nothing more detrimental to society than the tolerance of lawlessness (where there is not actually a misplaced tolerance) on the part of a state to uphold the laws.
From this point of view petty breaches are as important as big ones, and may be even more so if their continual repetition brings authority into general contempt.

No citizen is so powerful, none so humble, that the city or town in which he lives is not an aid to him
in some way.

Broadcasting has rivaled the telephone and telegraph, but not as yet
the newspaper. To a certain extent it must be admitted a blessing
and as a whole it represents a real contribution to the world in pleasure and service, and it will progress
as time goes on. But the language difficulty must be solved. When broadcasts are made from one country to another, where different languages are spoken, no one can get much out of listening when an address is made in a language not understood.

Cities and towns that know what they are doing and where they are
going generally get somewhere.

It is not an uncommon occurrence
to encounter a motorist driving
at night with one light, and sometimes no light at all. There is absolutely no excuse for this practice and the offender should be dealt with in such a manner as to make him appreciate that while he should guard his own safety, he also has a clear duty to consider the safety of others.

People will go miles to get to a

"Fresh from the Gardens"

I was greatly amused, as you, will be, on reading the following description by an English author who spent last winter in Canada, and then told the folk "over home" all about it in a magazine, "Hockey," he writes,
"is a combination of football, golf, soccer, prize fighting and taut war.
It is a crime wave on ice."

"If," he continues, "one man dashes into another on a slippery street, knocks him down and bashes him between the eyes with a crooked stick, it is premeditated assault. If one man dashes into another, knows him down and bashes him between the eyes with a crooked stick in a rink, it is first-class hockey. Hockey is a game which comes from the great open spaces of Canada, where men are ice hounds and women are fancy skaters. It is played between two teams of six men each, none of whom carries a thing about his physical future. It is played with a small rubber heel, the aim of each team being to deliver it into a cage guarded by youth whose people evidently never gave him any good advice." Such is our great Canadian game as seen through the eyes of a Cockney journalist not yet know!

Ad in a Vienna paper: "My dear wife, Frau—is lost. To anyone who finds her and keeps her, I will give a reward of one thousand marks."

"Please, ma'am," said a domestic,
"there's a poor man at the door with wooden legs."

"Why, Bridget," answered the mistress in a reproving tone, "what can we do with wooden legs? Tell him we do not want any."

A BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY

ADVANTAGES:

- 1.—The thoroughness of its courses, including all grades from I to XII.
- 2.—The exceptional opportunities it affords for the study of French, special attention being paid to conversation and composition in that language.
- 3.—The attention that it pays to the moulding of character.
- 4.—The training that it gives in Art, in Music, in Plain and Fancy Sewing, in Light Domestic Duties.
- 5.—Its exceptionally low rates, notwithstanding the fact that the board is of very good quality.
- 6.—Its accessibility, not only to pupils from the Maritime Provinces, but also to students from Boston, New York and vicinity, it being only an hour's journey from Yarmouth, the terminus of the boats from those cities.
- 7.—Its delightful and healthful situation, removed from the distractions of town life, which makes it an ideal spot for study.
- 8.—The fact that it is an examination station, which permits its pupils to write the provincial examinations in familiar surroundings—a circumstance which tends to lessen feelings of nervousness evoked by new situations.

What a Lot of Clothes They Wore When Bathing . . . in the days when Surprise Soap was first made

- Half a century ago Surprise Soap helped women do their heavy, weekly washing quickly and thoroughly, exactly as it is doing in hundreds of thousands of homes today.
- Surprise Soap gives plentiful, rich suds that reach every atom of dirt and loosen it so effectively that, after rinsing, soiled garments of everyday wear are revived into fragrant, gleaming cleanliness.
- Because there is less rubbing with Surprise Soap, the filmy wisps of daintiness that women wear today, last longer. There is another reason for this, too: Surprise is absolutely safe. Its pure ingredients are so skillfully blended that they will not harm the finest of garments.

School Principal Presents Report

The closing exercises of the Digby Academy held in the Elbow Theatre on Friday, June 30, were largely attended. A. J. Dillon, Chairman of the School Board, presided over the meeting.

Speakers were Mayor Holdsworth, "Confederation," and Mr. Boden, who spoke in appreciation of the splendid work accomplished by the teachers and scholars during the year. Following is the Principal's report.

Principal's Report, 1932-33

Enrollment of Entire School, 1932-33 352

The above statistics reveal that we have had not only a record enrollment but a phenomenal attendance as well during our past school year.

We are fortunate indeed in that we have had no serious problems with regard to attendance, due to the fact that there have been no real epidemics and the constant efforts of the staff coupled with that of the attendance officer in keeping careful check on absentees. I might also mention in this connection that where a needy child was without shoes, the Kiwanis Club has responded most generously, nor must I fail to mention the very efficient work carried on by our school nurse, Mrs. Sturgeon. She has devoted many hours of her time to school and home visits, and her very appreciative of her splendid work.

The sum of $117.00 was raised for prizes by the following means: namely, a donation of $50.00 by the School Board and $67.00 donated by the citizens of Digby who were deeply interested in the work carried on by the Academy. The response to our appeal for such contributions has been most gratifying to both the School Board and myself.

I should like to express on behalf of the staff and myself our appreciation to Mr. Boden for the kindly interest he has taken in our school during the year. Personally it has been no small source of strength to realize that I could always rely upon his valuable help and assistance. I have required any advice whenever I have been in doubt, and he has most faithfully visited the school during the year, bringing ever with him a cheery word, a kindly smile, and a ready willingness to make the way less hard, and a constant source of inspiration showing that our work was appreciated, and that he was deeply interested in our problems and our success. I feel too, that I should be remiss if my duty if I failed to extend to him the thanks of the High School students for the many hours of entertainment which he has brought to them through his interesting and educational talks on a range of subjects far too wide to enumerate. I trust that we may continue to enjoy his friendship and interest in the coming years as well as in the past.

Excellent work has been carried on in the physical education, due chiefly to the help of Dr. G. V. Turnbull. Through his efforts we were able to sponsor a Field Day last July for the academy students. Because of his untiring work it was a huge success. This year on July 1st, we are again sponsoring another such day only wider in its scope. Dr. Turnbull has interested the Kiwanis Club in our efforts and they have awarded a cup for annual competition in the town. The school field has been further improved and anyone aware of the enjoyment derived by the young men and boys of the town from their use of this field can not help but feel that the work has been a most worthy one, commendable of the further support and interest of the citizens. We entered four boys on the track team at Acadia which met May 20. Although we were not successful in placing in any of the events, it was a valuable experience for the boys. Our boys' and girls' basketball teams each enjoyed a trip to Yarmouth and the Yarmouth team was entertained at Digby. This contact with other schools was very valuable to our boys and girls in widening their interests and shows what is being done by others.

I have been accorded a most hearty cooperation and support by the members of the staff. We are most fortunate in having our school staffed by such a splendid group of efficient teachers who are a great asset to the town, both professionally and socially. The license qualifications of the staff is high. There are now two academic and seven First Class teachers. A splendid spirit of co-operation exists in our school and also between the teachers and members of the School Board and was evidenced when the teachers voluntarily voted for a reduction in their salary during this period of difficult school financing. We regret that owing to ill health, our Miss Hesse-Turnbull was obliged to sever her connection with the staff after a period of 26 years of most efficient service. We all trust that she will be so improved in health that she will be able to resume her duties in September. Mrs. Fred May, a former Academy teacher, has capably filled the vacancy made necessary by Miss Turnbull's illness. We also welcomed another new member to the staff this year, Mrs. Arnold Turnbull, who was called in to take charge of our beginning of the half year. In both Mrs. May and Mrs. Turnbull, the Board has made a valuable acquisition to the teaching staff. It is with excitement that we learn of Miss Curry's intention to sever her connection with the Academy at the close of the year, after a period of service of eight years. In losing Miss Curry we have sustained a real loss. The vacancy caused by Miss Curry's resignation has been filled by Miss Jean Anderson, this being the only change in the staff anticipated during 1933-34.

Again I should strongly urge that another member be added to our High School staff, thus making our school an accredited school and enabling us to give students the Grade XII subjects for which no provision is made at the present time.

Miss Anderson we have another University trained teacher, and could the School Board see their way clear to transfer her to the academic departments, we would then qualify as an accredited school. I trust that the School Board will give this matter their serious consideration.

It is with considerable pleasure and pride that I am able to report to you that there have been absolutely no problems arising out of school discipline. This, I feel, reflects great credit to the members of the staff, for without their assistance and co-operation, such efficient discipline could not be achieved.

The School Board deserves great credit for the creditable use of funds which they keep the school building, Dr. Sloan, Chief Inspector of the province, has inspected this building on finding the building so well cared for and felt that it was indeed a credit to the School Board. The Board has provided very efficient janitor service and the building is always comfortable even during the winter months. I trust, however, the time is not distant when the town will be able to provide more adequate accommodation for our school, for on or about the school year, Mr. Chairman: may I express to you my sincere appreciation for the sympathy, help, and friendship which you have accorded to me during my service as principal under your chairmanship of the school Board, and express the wish that it may continue for some time to come.

Respectfully submitted,

F. Courtney Furdy.

Between Ourselves

Well, I got to the Barton and Brighton Community Club's Clam Bake and Beach Party last Friday evening, and, for good measure, took a couple of my good friends along with me. The weather man did his hardest to spoil the evening, but the good old community spirit down the Bay is more than any weather man can buck up against. There was a mighty good crowd there (although I understand, on account of the weather, only about half of the number expected), quantities of clams and other gate-and-just-of-all-the-nicest-kind of people who did everything possible to give us a fine time.

The disagreeable weather forced this out-of-doors party to break up far too early, but that could not be helped—the weather is no respecter of persons, look at the way he treated the Governor-General here—but our party did not break up at that point. Before we left, Jack Russell and his wife asked us to come and spend the rest of the evening with them, but I won't go far enough to say what time we arrived home. To you folks of Barton and Brighton, let me again say "thanks" from the three of us. We all agree that you gave us one of the best times we have had in many a day, and hope that it will be our pleasure to meet with you on others of your good times to come.

Do you know that it is just little things like this little party I have just told you about that makes the fellow living in "these out of the way country places" give his brain just a wee bit of exercise, and a more often than not he is inclined to turn around and give the city chap a merry hahn.

Our towns and villages may be small, some of them perhaps don't even deserve a dot on the map, but we know that each town or village is nothing more or less in spirit than a large family. We know who our next door neighbor is and who his wife is, and perhaps a lot more we shouldn't know, but that's all in the family. Our friends are the whole community and none of us are afraid to hall anyone on the streets. Best of all, we know they are friends who are in our troubles and rejoice when good fortune smiles upon us.

True, there are times when we have our little scraps, our jealousies and our misunderstandings, but they all go to make life more interesting. We know that the most important "things" in our community are people. Mr. Jones, Mr. Smith and Mr. Brown—in the larger centres people don't count—the most important things are usually Broadway, the jail and the court house—where, who represent the human race "don't amount to nothin' nohow."

Everybody was pleased with the splendid reception given the Governor-General and his gracious lady last Thursday. The whole town seemed to have turned out to see them, and, honestly, I don't believe I have ever seen a better display of bunting in this town before. Not only did the business houses on the front street outfit themselves, but our residential streets were well trimmed up for the occasion.

Next week sees two big events in Digby—the Maritime Fire Chiefs' Association Convention at the Myrtle Hotel and the Golf Tournament on the Pines Course.

On Friday afternoon I attended the regular monthly meeting of the Digby Children's Aid Society, of which I have the honor of being secretary. I think most people would be greatly surprised if they knew just what this society is doing in Digby County, and of the vast amount of work that has to be left undone because of a lean treasury. Just now this society is finding it difficult to carry on because of financial reasons. At another time (although not likely in this column) I hope to give a more detailed account of what the Children's Aid Society has done, and is doing. In the meantime, although no formal appeal has been made for funds, I am going to suggest that some of you big-hearted people mail a dollar or so to the Children's Aid Society's Treasurer, S. S. Ayman, at Digby. It will be appreciated. Remember, these little children who are wards of the Society, are unable to help themselves—it is up to us to make citizens of them—we cannot afford to neglect them.

On Sunday the congregation of the United Church at Clementsport will celebrate the seventy-second anniversary of their present beautiful church building.

This year they have renovated the interior, all of which speaks well for the people who look with confidence to Sunday's services trusting the generosity of interested friends will enable them to realize funds to help them wipe out the indebtedness.

The special attraction for the day will be the Yarmouth Male Choir, under the direction of Prof. A. Roy Williams. This choir, so well known throughout the provinces, is well worth travelling a long distance to hear. The special preacher will be the Rev. W. H. Langille, D. D., a former pastor of the church. The present pastor, Rev. T. P. McEldan, will speak in the evening.

The church has a seating capacity of about 400, and expects that every seat will be occupied, both morning and evening. Some History and Some Other Things

A few lines from I. W. Wilson's "History of Digby County" concerning the first hotels established in the county.

"At Digby about 1784, James Reid opened a commodious hotel on the southern corner of Water Street and Mount Street, immediately north of the Baptist Church. Another was founded by Robert Ray on Cruickshank Corner."

"In 1789 James Smith moved from Little Island to the east side of Bear River where he established a hotel on the farm afterwards known as the "Crouse Lot" under the auspices of the Government, to enterprising stage teams, passengers and others travelling by land between Annapolis and Digby via Hessian Line and the Joggins."

"In 1804 the General Sessions granted to Martin Blackford a license to run a ferry across Petite Passage on Payment of the County Clerk's fee; also a Tavern License gratis as a subsidy for attending the sessions. He was allowed to charge each passenger a fare of one shilling sterling, equal at that time to twenty-five cents."

"About 1835 Jeremiah S. Everett, of Sissiboo, kept at House of Entertainment at Everett Settlement, now Plympton."

"Amos McCormick, of Digby, was landlord of a hotel on the site later occupied by the "Royal." Mr.
Wilson does not give the date of McCormick's hotel operations, but it must have been somewhere between 1835 and 1844."

"During 1836 the Provincial Government erected a bridge across the Sissiboo, at the site of the present bridge. "While this was progressing William H. Jones, son of James A. Jones, and notwithstanding later occupied by Dittmars Dunbar and erected the house in which Dunbar resided. Mr. Jones opened a cowdardice, stating that he would not go without Deborah. The general admitted his need of Deborah's presence to keep up his courage. There is a story told in his answer, "I will be sitting in the chair, and I will be the journey that thou takest shall not be for time honor; for the Lord shall send Sisera into the hand of a woman." Sisera resolved to strike. Credit for the determination is due to Deborah. Barak merely followed.

"And Deborah rose and went with Barak to Kedesh. His timorous spirit sustained by the presence of the proprietress, Barak called Deborah and Naphthali to Kedesh. He himself went with ten thousand men, and Deborah went up with him.
Here Barak's wife was waiting to give a sentence is inserted to show that Barak was general in name only: the real leader was Deborah."

A Woman's Victory, 13-15

It was Deborah who chose the hour for the battle to commence. She said unto Barak, "Up; for this is the day in which the Lord will deliver Sisera into thine hand: is not the Lord gone out before thee?" So Barak went down from Mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him. The enemy was routed and the leader, Sisera, fled away on foot. Barak had the honor of being the victor, but the credit was really due to Deborah.

In recent years there has been much discussion as to the place of women in the world. Of course, the courage there is no doubt--witness the fortitude of nurses in bombed areas or the fearlessness of the Russian women who defended Leningrad.
The woman's power of sacrifice let the War testify. Or this incident might give rise to a debate on the place of women in government.

Clearly Deborah shows that ability is not limited to one sex. It would also be fitting to mention what public men owe to the women of their distances of their wives. But let the emphasis of the lesson be laid upon the place of women in the Church.
It was Deborah's faith in God that gave her such confidence and courage.
"Hath not the Lord God commanded?" she asked. "He hath not said, 'I will be with thee?' Her hymn of triumph began, "Praise ye the Lord."
Should not the fidelity of women in religion shame the men into greater activity? Barak fought, spurred on by the example of a believing woman.
Can full-grown men be content to have their religion remain in the wife's name? One woman missionary stayed in a war area to administer relief when all the male consults fled. It is certain that an ever increasing opportunity will be open to women in religious service.
May the men not unload the duty but be moved to greater faith and consecration by the example of women! "She hath done what she could" was the commendation of Christ. That is the standard for men.

Questions for Discussion:
1.-In time of war should women as well men be combatants?
2.-Should Deborah be described as a heroine to twentieth century young girls in Christian Sunday School?
3.-Which did more for mankind, Deborah and Joan of Arc, or Florence Nightingale and Frances Willard?
4.-What do you think of the patriotism which leads women to send white feathers to men in wartime?

Tourist Season Showing Improvement

Digby Neck people say that the tourist traffic in that section, for the season of the year is well up to the mark, and considerably ahead of that of last year. Local hotel people also say that they are well satisfied with the season to date; most of them say that they too find traffic about the same, and in most cases a little above that of last year. A SATISFYING AND GRATEFUL BEVERAGE AT EXTREMELY LOW COST

It is one of the great merits of tea that it is not only a pleasant and healthful stimulating beverage, but a very economical one as well. Indeed, there is no beverage known apart from water that costs so little. A cup of tea costs less than one-sixth of a cent, yet if you use such a satisfying and gratifying tea as Morse's Standard Tea, you do not have to spend more. Morse's Standard Tea is made of the finest tea leaves, and the price is 40 cents a pound. If you stand still, you will see that so far as the tea leaf is concerned, the cost of a cup of Morse's Standard Tea is only one cent. The tea is a "good old family tea of the Maritimes" that long since established a firm place for itself in the affections of Maritime tea drinkers. It acquired that prestige because its cup quickly clicks with the critical taste of the Maritime people with respect to tea and its distinctive quality has been maintained to this day. It offers remarkable value at 40 cents per pound package.

The Yates Studio is known as the Little Art Gallery and deserves the name. Its walls are covered with really beautiful Nova Scotia watercolor paintings. It will repay a visit of inspection. 50c.

Short Drives From Digby

Within a radius of twenty miles of Digby are some of the most picturesque and delightful drives one could possibly imagine. The roads wind through fertile farm lands with loaded orchards or along the banks of noisy streams winding between rolling wooded hills.

As a suggestion a drive of twenty miles along the shore of the St. Mary's Bay where on your right is the ever changing waters of the Bay, now blue, now green, and in the distance stretches the long arm of Digby Neck. On the right lies heavy wooded hills and verdant green farm lands. Thus we arrive at the town of Weymouth, once a famous shipbuilding centre in the days of "Wooden Ships and Iron Men," when the Bluenose clipper ships sailed the Seven Seas. If we stop to look over the town we will find many places of interest — Len's Place where you will drop in to buy a cigar, you will find many other things such as the latest newspapers from Home, and a wide assortment of Novelties and Souvenirs. Near the end of the Bridge is Harold's Store carrying the well-known Rexall line of Drugs and in connection a very unique Ice Cream Parlor tastefully arranged and the only one of its kind in this section. Across the hill is located Goodwin's Hotel, the popular stopping place of the Tourist and commercial men. Mr. J. A. Goodwin, the genial proprietor, has maintained a standard for his house placing it in the front rank of Nova Scotia hostilities. Here in connection is the famous Finnish Baths and the visitor may enjoy facilities not to be found in any other resort in the Maritimes. The building has dressing room and heating room where invisible steam rises from heated stones until the temperature reaches 140 degrees, causing the body to discharge through the perspiring pores all poisons. From the heating room one may plunge directly into the salt Sissiboo River or into the shower rooms for a salt shower.

Among the clients who regularly patronize this health-giving bath are gentlemen of the medical profession and the clergy who are enthusiastic in their praise. This health-giving bath leaves the body thrilling with a feeling of newness. The charge for this service is moderate and varies according to number in the party. The Goodwin has always been famous for the excellent quality of its food especially fresh fish and those wishing to go fishing can be supplied with Guides if desired.

Sissiboo Lodge at Weymouth North, is the ideal place for those who feel in need of quiet peaceful surroundings as a tonic for tired nerves. The excellent home cooking will make you feel like a new person.

Another homelike place with modern conveniences is the Barton House, situated at Barton, halfway between Weymouth and Digby. Here the view is delightful and the accommodations all that could be desired.

A drive through the shady wooded road to Digby Neck will make a delightful impression on the visitor. At Sandy Cove is a very popular resort and at Hillcote Farm you will find both rest and recreation here. A few minutes' walk takes you to the sandy beach of the Bay of Fundy and in the other direction to the tepid waters of Sandy Cove. This house owes its popularity to the quality of the meals and its wide, cool verandahs.

The Sypher House, overlooking the Bay, is also noted for hospitality and good meals. Here, many old friends meet during summer holidays. Bonnie Brae Croft, on the hill, as the name implies, extends true Scottish welcome to all who are fortunate enough to cross the threshold.

Should you wish to sojourn amid Nature's grandeur with steep, rocky, rugged hills as a playground and before you the placid waters of the Basin, then the Silver Glades Inn at Point Prim, is the place you want to stop at. The scenery has a charm all its own and the service is the best that is possible. This place is reached by a beautiful drive around the Shore, on what is known as the Light-house Road.

CANADA'S PLAYGROUND

This map shows a portion of Digby and Western Annapolis Counties within a radius of twenty miles of the town of Digby. It gives you an idea of the location of the town, of Bear River, Smith's Cove, Annapolis Royal, Weymouth and other prosperous villages along the highways and byways—all within easy reach.

The map also shows you where the vast hinterland of forest, stream and lake country, for which this section is famous, is located—a regular Paradise—where big game and sporty fish abound—experienced guides who know these woods, and who are ready to give you the best time of your life, are easily obtained.

Also, if you are interested in deep sea fishing, the waters of the Annapolis Basin, the Bay of Fundy and the Saint Mary's Bay are all close at hand, with boatmen who know the sea, and where you can enjoy the best fishing, are always ready to take you on a little cruise.

If you like hiking, well, look at the roads on this map—all of them lead to places that will interest you—whether motorizing, hiking, hunting or fishing—you can make Digby and the surrounding country your headquarters. You will find the most hospitable kind of people who will do everything possible to make your stay even more pleasant than you even hoped for. It's a wonderful country and we just know you are going to enjoy every minute of your visit.

Throughout the delightful summers of sun-swept Nova Scotia the mercury rarely rises above 80 degrees in the shade at high noon. The climate possesses remarkable tonic qualities, being tempered to the right degree of coolness by sea breezes. The cool nights are conducive to sleep and put new life into the tired worker.

The whole countryside is a Mecca for artists, with endless varieties of scenic beauty and the loveliest shore scenery on the Bay of Fundy. A wonderful country of mountain and glen, cliff and torrent, apple orchards, sequestered lakes, curving beaches and fantastic seaside villages.

You may enjoy canoeing, boating, bathing, tennis, golfing, baseball, bird shooting, big game hunting, salmon and trout fishing—(there are no preserved waters). An all-round summer's recreation at a moderate cost.

All hotels and summer boarding houses in the vicinity of Digby are equipped with hot and cold running water, baths and electric lights.

Golf Courses are located at Digby and Annapolis Royal.

Digby, The Perfect Summer Resort

Second to None In The Dominion; Delightful Countryside; Scenery Is Unexcelled.

Visit the Switzerland of Nova Scotia and Historic Annapolis Royal

As an ideal Summer Resort Digby ranks second to none in the Dominion, this statement being borne out by the fact that the same visitors from the United States and Upper Canada have returned here each summer for twenty years and more, because they find rest, recreation, cooling salt breezes, no mosquitoes or black flies, and no hay fever.

Here too, are accommodations to suit every taste and every purse as you will see by the advertisements on this page.

Should you wish to combine luxury, comfort, service and beauty of surroundings, there is no equal to the Lour Lodge Hotel. This hotel is situated on the waterfront commanding a view of the Digby Basin that is unequalled anywhere, and this hotel owns and maintains the only salt water bathing beach in the town, with bathing houses a minute's walk from the hotel. The lawns are large and perfectly kept, and well shaded by spreading trees. Eleven well-built and nicely furnished Cottages equipped with Bath and all modern conveniences are part of the property and are available for parties or families. Two tennis courts and croquet grounds are also connected for the use of guests, while within five minutes' walk is located one of the prettiest and best laid out Golf Courses in the Dominion. The cuisine is the greatest attraction this hotel offers and the tables are laden with the best of everything that is produced in a land of fertile farms and orchards and where sea foods can be procured fresh daily.

Other places worthy of mention where accommodations may be had are the Armstrong Cottage which is a real comfortable private home with large, comfortable rooms, home cooking and a place where a good rest can be enjoyed. Acacia Cottage has a really wonderful view from the verandah; the table is all one could desire and people who once stay here, always come again.

Hawthorn Inn, located on rising ground overlooking the Basin, has the features of a modern hotel coupled with the quietness and privacy of the family home. A short distance farther on Mrs. Titus who owns the Hillcrest Inn, has opened her lovely home for the accommodation of visitors and is located nearer to the Golf Course than any other Inn in the town, and from the windows of her bedrooms the view is marvelous. The Waverley Hotel, directly opposite the railway station, is a home for both tourist and commercial men and is the favorite stopping place for those travelling by train or boat.

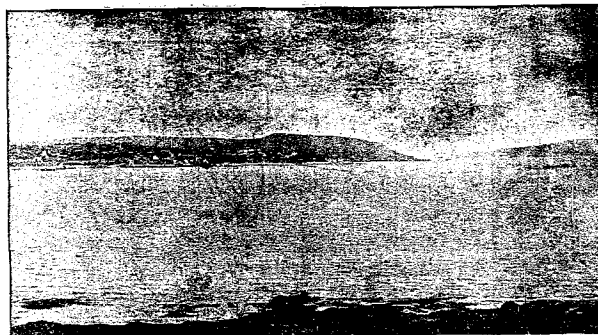

We will now leave Digby town behind us and travel to other beauty spots. By taking route No. 1, we arrive at Smith's Cove, on the opposite side of the Basin from Digby. From here is a clear view of the gap in the hills which is the outlet of Digby Basin and is known as Digby Gut, through which the waters of the Bay of Fundy are reached where deep sea fishing is a sport enjoyed by many visitors. Here is the latest Harbor View House and Cottages, the largest Cabin Colony in the Maritime Provinces and in a fair way to becoming the most popular. Here everything for the comfort as well as the entertainment of the Visitor is provided, deep sea fishing parties or motor trips arranged daily. Out-of-the-Way Inn as the name implies, is a delightful summer home just a little way off the main highway where noise and dust are unknown, where we can assure you of spending a very enjoyable holiday. The Locusts, a large private home with an air of rest and refinement, with large shady lawns at front and rear, cool screened verandahs and charmingly appointed sleeping

FROM the verandah of the Lour Lodge Hotel, this magnificent sheet of water can be seen at its best. Sixty square miles in area, it makes a scene which is said by travellers to rival that of Naples, Italy.

ing quarters; also a vegetable garden from which the table is furnished.

We now drive on over a winding road gradually becoming more hilly, and then we enter what is known as the Switzerland of Nova Scotia—Bear River. Here the scenery is magnificent, the climate delightful, the days enjoyably warm and the nights refreshingly cool, with the breezes coming through the Valley with the Fundy Tide.

Hillside hiking, auto rides by the sea or over the mountains, canoe trips into the vast hinterland of forest and stream, are a few of the attractions of this beauty spot of the Province.

River View Lodge, under the management of that most genial host, Mr. B. C. Clarke, offers accommodations De Luxe. The view of River and Hills as seen from the Lodge is one not equalled east of the Rockies. The Lodge and Annex contains large comfortable rooms most tastefully decorated and furnished, and in connection is a large cherry orchard and vegetable garden. This Lodge is open from May 15th to October 30th, and also caters to the sportsman, since Bear River is the gateway to a vast unspoiled territory of lakes and streams in the heart of virgin forest abounding with moose and deer, and the lakes and streams teeming with salmon and trout. Experienced guides and a complete hunting or fishing outfit can be procured at the Bear River Trading Company Limited, a large, modern department store in the village.

Should you arrive by train at Bear River Station, ask for the Harris Taxi Service and you will be assured of prompt and courteous attention, and ask him to drive you to the Indian Reservation which is a very interesting experience, for here the Micmac Indian, the original Tribe of Acadia, live as their forefathers lived when the first white man came to these shores. The Grand Central Hotel, situated directly opposite the Post Office, is a modern hostelry and the Kosy Knook or former Commercial House caters to the Visitor or commercial man and offers as attractions a wonderful view from verandahs and a large cool dining room where the best of meals are served.

From Bear River we travel through a country of rolling hills and fertile farm lands with a splendid view of the Basin and Annapolis River until we arrive at the old historic town of Annapolis Royal. Here the first European settlement in Acadia was founded by a French gentleman, DeMonts, as early as 1604 and named Port Royal. In the succeeding years of the conquest of America, Port Royal changed hands many times either through conquest or by Treaty until the year 1710 when it was finally taken by the English and named Annapolis Royal in honor of Queen Anne, the reigning sovereign of England at that time. The old Fort and guns still remain frowning defiance over the waters of the Basin and are viewed by thousands of visitors each year. Annapolis is also the Gateway to that famous Valley of Orchards from which come the most luscious apples in the world.

Situated a step from the Old Fort is the Hillsdale Hotel and Cabins, artistic in design, luxurious in appointment, spacious, and comfortable, with suites occupied by Royalty during visits to Canada.

We also commend the attention of those desiring meals to the Gertrude Norris Tea Rooms where a limited number of guests can also obtain sleeping accommodation.

We have now reached the end of the Trail as far as we are concerned and we feel sure you have enjoyed your stay with us in Digby and surrounding country. If you have when you go home tell your friends what a wonderful vacation land we have here and ask them to see the sights you have seen for themselves next year.

Before closing there is one other attraction that has proved a source of delight and entertainment as well as pride to the people of Digby and that is their Town Band. Consisting of fifty instruments and under the direction of Bandmaster Paul Yates they hold concerts regularly at the Band stand and render selections that delight the ear of all who are privileged to hear them.

DIGBY The Tourists' Happy Hunt- ing Ground

The Ideal Place for a Vacation; Excellent Accommodations for the Summer Visitor

No other Vacation centre in the Eastern part of Canada has such a varied appeal and certainly no other enjoys the popularity in these times of depression.

Here the sun shines almost daily, but the intense heat is modified by cooling salt breezes of the Bay of Fundy, acting like a powerful tonic to jaded appetites and ragged nerves. Here also the curse of hay fever is unknown.

Situated on the shore of the landlocked Basin and nestling under verdant green hills Digby ranks second to none in the Maritime Provinces for beauty and cleanliness.

If you are a lover of History, here you will find many things of Historical interest. At Annapolis Royal the European countries first established a foothold and on the placid waters of the Basin the great towering sailing Ships-of-war of England and France struggled for the possession of Acadia.

Today, on this Basin, the Tourist may indulge in every kind of water sport. If you care to go sailing, speeding or fishing, crafts of all kinds may be easily obtained. Not the least of attractions is that of deep sea fishing in the waters of the Bay of Fundy.

Among the other attractions worthy of note is the nine-hole Golf course located only a few minutes' walk from the centre of the town or from any of the hotels or lodges.

Accommodations in Digby are all that can be desired and no other place in the Province offers such a selection to choose from. For those seeking rest and relaxation from the cares and worries of business life, we recommend a couple of weeks spent at one of the many private homes and hotels in the town.

Many of these places have their own vegetable garden, and in some instances, their own orchard, so that with a table loaded with Fresh fish and vegetables, fruit in season as only Digby housewives can cook them, and plenty of rich milk and cream, it is truly a spread that would tempt the appetite of the most fickle. For places such as these we recommend The ELMS, located on Mount Street, around the corner from the Baptist Church, and here we know you will enjoy your stay. Another such place, is the Raymond House, also famous for excellent meals and comfortable rooms. For a real bang-up good dinner that will last long in your memory, try the Eureka Cottage, near the Station, and for a real enjoyable afternoon tea served in the English style, amid the flowers and trees, visit the Racquette Garden on the road to the "Pines Motel." There is also a gift shop here where souvenirs can be purchased.

All of the Stores listed on this page carry an exceptionally high class of merchandise at reasonable price. Imported English Goods, Novelties, Souvenirs, or groceries. If you are a motorist, then you will be treated right at Dunn's Service Station.

Altogether, we feel sure you will enjoy your visit in Digby and will return again.

SLAVES OF CUSTOM

The late Vice-President Marshall, of the United States, declared that what that country needed was a good five-cent cigar. But what is needed worse during July, August and September is a comfortable hot-weather costume for men, not only in offices and workrooms but in the streets, in clubs and social gatherings.

Summer is hard on poor custom and convention-bound masculinity but its lot in this respect has improved greatly in recent years. Man has at last taken to light-weight suits and has dared to discard the conventional vest. The younger generation has gone so far as to throw away hats and roll their hair down to the tops of low-cut shoes.

Now that equality between the sexes is more or less a fact, why should it be proper for women to appear in public in three or four pieces of sheersiest silk and improper for men to appear at dinner or in the drawing room in his shirt sleeves? When masculinity acquires the courage to wear straw hats by the temperature rather than by the custom calendar, it may dare to blue-pencil the page 1 etiquette book prohibiting removal of the coat in public.

How a man must suffer if he has a sheik complexion and a bald spot.

Nature balances things. Only the sharp ears get the cutting remarks.

Another way to exterminate our wild life would be to do more spanking.

One reason why we girls have better complexions is because somebody uses soap on them.

The way to be happily married is to obey the laws and pay no attention to the in-laws.

If only those who like to pluck flowers along the highway would get the blooming idiots.

Another sad sign of the times is the disposition of newly-weds to buy a one-seated car.

The way to have some of the best families ask you to call gain is to be a bill collector.

BUT THE PAPERS KEEP ON

"At no time in the history of the press have newspapers passed through so difficult a period as they have been going through during the past three years. Not only were they caught in the business depression that seriously reduced their circulation, but in their most important source of revenue, that of selling advertising space, they met with keen competition from the radio. Yet in the face of this serious situation, only the newspaper, of all publicity mediums, remains the firm foundation upon which the country leans for the support of its morale."

Above is from the Essex, Ont. Free Press, but applies with equal force all over Canada, and it is certainly a tribute to the printers and publishers generally to say that through their economy, efficiency and diligence they have been able to keep going. Any publisher can elaborate on this from his own experience.

THE DOCK DREAMER

Harvey McKenzie

Down at the docks on his lonesome beat,
With broken shoes on his shuffling feet,
Watching the tugs as they come and go,
With a grizzled grin and his eyes aglow;
For he's dreaming of soft sapphire seas,
Far tropic isles and ocean breeze—
And longing again for that lagoon.
Or a fiddle's rasp in an old saloon;
But his watch is over, his days are done,
As he sits alone in the noon-tide sun,
Seeing 'em still where his fancy strays
Those gallant ships of his sailing days.

Between Ourselves

St. Swithan's Day passed without rain. According to the old legend which many will swear by and cuss at, we are not supposed to have rain for forty days! That's nice, but at the first of the week at any rate, the weather didn't behave that way.

A couple of days ago I had a visitor in the office. He talked politics, not an unusual topic to discuss these days. In the course of our conversation he repeated a remark he overheard on the street to the effect that the Courier was one of those independent papers that prints a few lines of anything pertaining to the interests of the Liberal Party, and a column on anything that has to do with the Tories.

What aysknowaboutthat!

Such a thing may have happened once or twice—if so, I will assure my talkative friend on the street that it was quite unintentional. In fact, I have never seen the editor of the paper with the shop with a yard stick measuring up Liberal and Conservative copy—or as my friend might put it, "separating the sheep from the goats." We have more important things to do in this office. However, since this remark came to my ears, I did take the trouble to measure up the space given the two conventions at Weymouth (the only political news we have published in months) and found that the Liberals had nearly three times the amount of space that we gave the Tories.

While I am on this subject I am going to say that the Courier does not publish anything pertaining to the interest of either party. Any thing of political nature that goes into our columns is for its new value only, unless it is paid advertising. Our aim in life is to publish a newspaper free from political obligations, a local paper devoted to the interests and welfare of the community we serve. Personally, I don't think that any fair-minded person who takes the trouble to read our paper is justified in accusing us of being politically minded.

Now, that I have told you a little of what one visitor to our office had to say, I might just as well go on with what another told me. This one has been knocking about the Maritimes quite a bit, and got to discussing conditions as he found them. Like most of us, he thinks there is a decided improvement, but he said, he never saw so many acute cases of "depression blues" as he found in Digby. Our most successful chauts and business men, he told me, are not so down-hearted—in fact, many of them are quite optimistic about the future. He said the men on the street who talk most of the hard times around here and they are talking in great shape.

I am sorry not to have seen more Digby folk at the 72nd Anniversary service of the Clementsport United Church, on Sunday. It certainly was a wonderful service, and those of you who have heard the Yarmouth Male Choir, under the direction of Professor A. Roy Williams, know that this choir is almost unexcelled in the Maritimes. This choir had charge of the music for both services.

Have you driven over to the Pines recently? That road, especially in the vicinity of the Racquette Bridge, is a disgrace to any civilized community.

"The man who knows HOW will always find a place in life, but the man who knows WHY will always be his boss."

—Ye Junior Ed.

BACHELOR DECIDES TO REMAIN SINGLE

State Attorney J. Stanley Bradbury, of Robinson, Ill., said he had discovered five or six reasons why he wished to remain a bachelor. All of them came into his office. They included:

Two sons gave their father a beating when he refused them a car.
A stepson threatened to kill his mother with a butcher knife.
Parents asked advice on how to keep their daughters home nights.
A woman complained her husband had beaten her, but she didn't wish to have him arrested.
A husband complained his father-in-law had a young bride locked up at home and was waiting for him with a shotgun.

FRILLS WITH ECONOMY

(Elsie W. in Canada)

Perhaps in no country can the American dollar be stretched to better advantage than in China, where the standard Mexican dollar is now worth only from 25 to 30 of our cents. A sitting room, bedroom and bath with meals can be secured in the best hotels in Peking for $50 a month in American money. House-keeping, if it is conducted without too many frills, may be even cheaper. I have heard of three American professors, for example, who went to housekeeping in a modest, but comfortable, seven-chamber house (the chieh is a unit of 10 feet) for which they paid $7.50 a month. Their cook received a salary equivalent to $3.50 a month, and their total monthly expenses came to about $25.00 apiece.

A member of the American legation staff has rented a beautiful house, unfurnished, for $20 a month. The house has a drawing room 20 by 25 feet, a dining room of the same size, a large bedroom, a "foreign" bathroom and, across the wide courtyard, a guest room, a kitchen and servants' quarters. This contented householder pays his cook $4 a month. He entertains lavishly because of his legation connections and the total expenses, including food, servants and all other incidentals come to less than $100 gold a month.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

I saw them having their Field Day, those boys in their teens. And fine lads they were, every one. They tried their strength and speed to the limit as they sprinted down the stretch, flung themselves over the balanced bar breast-high or out up on that greensward, ten, twelve, yes sixteen feet. They put that eight-pound shot anywhere from fifteen to thirty feet, and the baseball pierced the air from their defiant throw until from one chap's fling it touched the two hundred feet mark. And how they delighted in it all. Were they not matching their strength against the forces of nature and winning out inch by inch, their zest rising with every inch of gain? And if at last they found their limit—well, next time they'll mark new limits. It was exhilarating just to watch them in their Field Day sports.

Three things came to my mind as I watched those promising teen-age lads. First, I had the wish that they might be saved in the coming day, and years from the habits that sap and sough their vital powers of body, mind and spirit. If only they will keep themselves clean in limb and love and loyalty, what may they not become in this fair world? And then I seemed to see the vast array of bidders that will right ahead confront them on every hand, their interest and enlistment. The avenues of knowledge and fellowship and service are everywhere open and marked with beckoning signboards, pointing the way out into the haunts of men on this side and beyond the hills of dream. But there are seekers too, who care for these bright lads only as they may be made to serve their own ends. What, for example, does the gambler seek from them but money for their own tilt? What, indeed, in these days of advancing knowledge concerning the injury of narcotics and alcoholics can the cigarette maker, the brewer and distiller, instill in our boys but their habits of use that will make their own trade flourish, no matter who or what may suffer? If they really knew, many of them would give over their trade to the cause. And the third thing that came to

'Tis easy enough to be pleasant. When life flows along like a song; But the man whose while is the one who will smile.

When everything goes dead wrong. For the test of the heart is trouble. And it always comes with the years. And the smile that is worth the praise of earth.

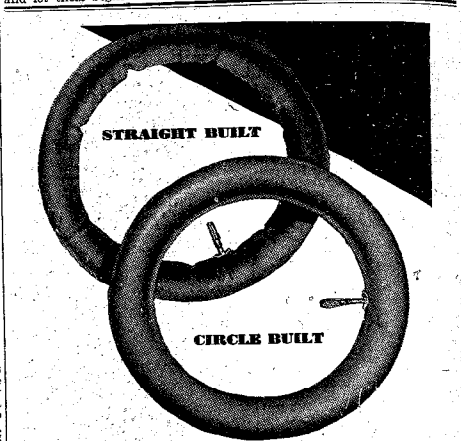

Is the smile that comes through tears.

my mind was the possible achievement of a line-up of the teen age boys across Canada in a campaign for clean speech, clean habits, clean living. Let them but stand up against the use of those things that have the body, mind and character, and let them begin now, when "the world is waiting for the sunrise" of better things. What better could they do for their country—for God and home and native land?

Start Using IPANA Today!

FOR WHITE TEETH—HEALTHY GUMS

● A soup . . . breaded cutlets . . . a delectable dessert. How delicious are today's foods—but how soft! Gums get almost no stimulation. Beware of "pink tooth brush!"

● "Pink tooth brush" can open the way for gingivitis, Vincent's disease, and even pyorrhea. It may endanger sound teeth! So, twice a day, rub Ipana into your gums.

AND
PINK TOOTH
BRUSH

● Under this Ipana regime, your teeth will become brilliantly white. You'll be much more attractive when you smile! And you can forget about "pink tooth brush."

STRONG, white teeth depend upon firm, healthy gums . . . To be healthy gums need stimulation. Chewing should give it to them...but today, with the soft, creamy foods we eat, our gums do not get this exercise. And so, they become weak and flabby.

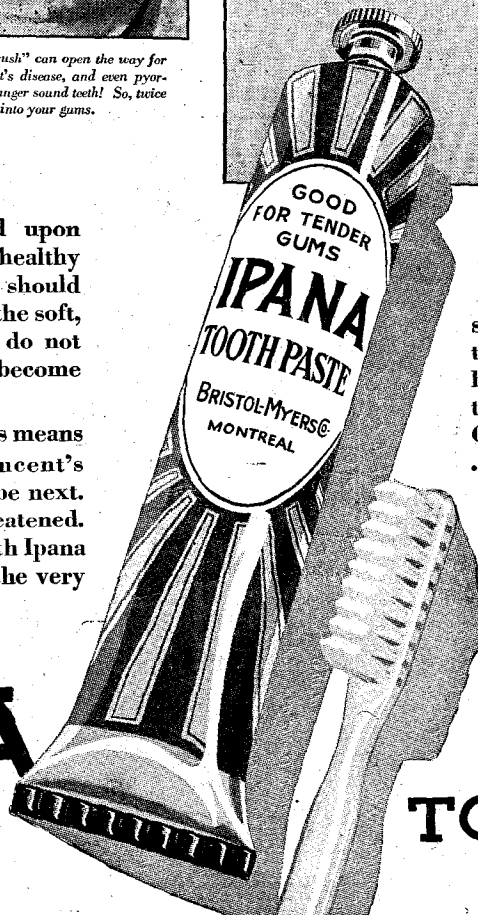

"Pink tooth brush" appears. This means serious trouble, gingivitis, Vincent's disease, or even pyorrhea, may be next. Sound white teeth may be threatened. Combat "pink tooth brush"...with Ipana and massage. Give your gums the very stimulation they lack. First clean your teeth with Ipana the usual way. Then, on brush or finger, apply a little more Ipana to the gums. Rub it in. Do not rinse it off. Give ziratol . . . the toning agent in Ipana . . . ample chance to do its work.

Before the first tube is gone your gums will be firmer, healthier . . . not so "touchy." Your teeth will sparkle with new whiteness. Keep on with Ipana and massage and soon you can forget "pink tooth brush."

MacGregor Building Damaged by Fire

On Saturday last, the MacGregor Building at Jew Cove, occupied by the grocery store of Ross C. Small, and by Benjamin Theriault and Mr. MacGregor, was damaged by fire. The blaze which originated on the roof of the building, is thought to have been started by a spark from a passing locomotive. Considerable damage was done to the roof and the contents of the building by fire and water. Mr. Theriault and his family, who occupied the upper flat, were forced to flee to the Rice house on First Avenue.

NO POLITICS IN HOSPITAL AFFAIRS

To the Editor of the Courier, Sir:—I wish through the columns of your paper, to say that there is no truth whatsoever in the report that is being circulated that I am using my position on the Digby General Hospital Board, to induce members of the Hospital Staff as to how they shall vote in the forthcoming Provincial Election.

Having traced this report to its source, I would not, personally, pay any attention to it, but would take it from whence it came as a bit of mud slinging at election time, when a public institution like the Digby General Hospital, which depends for its very existence on the good-will and support of the Town and country-side, is brought into the matter, charging me as using this as a political football, it is time the lie was nailed.

The statement that Walter Barnes made, that I canvassed him on the street for the vote of his daughter, who is employed at the Hospital, is without foundation, as I never intended the matter to him in any way. The story has grown and distorted, passed on from one to the other, so it now appears that I threatened this young lady that she may lose her position at the Hospital, if she did not vote for me. This kind of talk is being viewed with alarm by the supporters of the Hospital, hence my statement.

When I spoke to Mr. Barnes on the 26th inst., about the above matter, he further stated, before a witness, that I was making false trips to the Hospital for the purpose of canvassing the members of the staff for the vote. I wish to state that this is absolutely untrue and I challenge anybody to truthfully prove that I have ever at any time, directly or indirectly, canvassed members of the Hospital staff, or anybody employed by the Hospital, as to how they shall use their franchise.

As above stated, I am making this statement to safeguard the interests of the Hospital.

Respectfully,
—M. C. Denton.
Member of Hospital Board.

ANNUAL SERVICE AT ST. EDWARD'S CLEMENTSPTON, TO BE HELD AUGUST 18

The annual decoration day and memorial day services of the old St. Edward's Church, Clementspton, will be held on Friday, August 18th. At this service, two tablets, one in memory of the late Rev. J. T. Harris, and another in memory of the late E. F. Morse, will be unveiled.

This annual service, held in the quietest of the United Church of Canada every year, is one of the most impressive services of its kind held in the province. The old church was built in 1784 by the Rev. J. T. Harris, a Waldensian and Hessian soldier who was brought out to fight on the side of the British during the American Revolution. They were given a grant of land near Clementspton, where they erected their church.

Originally the church was Lutheran, but a few years after its erection was decided over to the Anglican population on condition that the service in the German language would be given every year. This custom was observed until the German-speaking people of the community had gone to their reward. Later, the Anglicans of Clementspton built the St. Clement's church where they now hold their regular services. In more recent years the annual service at St. Edward's was revived by the presence of Rev. A. W. L. Smith, although the service now is given in the English language.

Rev. A. W. L. Smith has done a great deal to restore the old church, and build up an historical museum within its walls. The church, with its quaint box pews and gems of historical interest, is well worth visiting.

WHEN ARE THEY GOING TO FIX UP THE RACQUETTE ROAD?

Last week we called attention to the condition of the road around the Pines Hotel. We called it a public disgrace that this week it is even worse than that. It is past time that something was done about it. Every visitor to Digby, regardless of what hotel they are stopping at, usually makes it a point to go over to the "Pines" and give the hotel the once over. Driving on a road such as the road around the Racquette cannot help but give our tourist a poor impression of our town, and of the Nova Scotia roads in general. We are not blaming our town officials altogether for the present condition of that road; we are aware of the fact that the road to the Pines Hotel comes under the supervision of the Provincial Highway Department—but, it is time somebody not busy to take steps to remedy this disgraceful condition.

BAND NOTES

The Digby Civic and Junior Bands have played five concerts during July for which they were paid by the town. Two of these were given on Sunday afternoons and three on Thursday evenings. In addition to these paid concerts they have played without pay for the Pines Hotel, the Pines Hotel comes under the supervision of the Provincial Highway Department—but, it is time somebody not busy to take steps to remedy this disgraceful condition.

No player receives a penny for his work, and yet forty or fifty men and boys each worked 33 hours, (more than four full working days), at rehearsals and concerts during the month. Why did they do it? The answer is "just for the love of it," but that is far from true. Business men in the Band have sacrificed business hours, and the young men have given up better fun just because of their loyalty to the Band as an organization useful and profitable to the town of Digby. It is simply a case of well-directed public spirit.

On or about August 23rd, the Band will assist in a big event at the close of the season. Aid and three children, of Newark, N. J., are spending a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Harry C. Turnbull.

The Band acknowledges with appreciation a generous cash gift from Jonathan and Israel Letteney. The Band had the pleasure of helping the former celebrate his 88th birthday last Sunday.

Nine of the crew of the fishing schooner lost their lives in this collision. The survivors were brought to Digby by the "Gypsum Prince."

A small clay pipe, perfect in every respect, was dug up from the bottom of the Basin by the dredge, which is operating here, last Thursday evening. Farmers Harvest Heavy Hay Crop

The harvesting of the hay crop, which in some localities is the best vest for several years, is now in full swing. Wet weather early in the month somewhat delayed operations, but the fine weather of last week enabled the farmers to make good headway with the work. By the last of the month if favorable weather prevails, the greater part of the crop will be in the barns. Grains are looking particularly well with a promise of good crop. With plenty of feed the farmers may be able to hold their stock for better prices.

ENDURANCE

The deed of endurance determination can always win the admiration and applause of men, for in it is revealed a quality needful in every man's life story. To be skillful or shrewd or fortunate may be the privilege of the few, but to carry out against odds and stick it out when weakness invites surrender is the sort of conduct that life asks of every man. Those who have watched the flying men make records of endurance have paid at last their principal tribute to the men and their courage rather than to machines and the skill that has kept them in the air. The final achievement is a triumph of human courage over the drag of physical necessities, a victory of the spirit over the world in which it lives.

Life itself is an endurance test, whose goal is uncertain and whose reward is in doubt. Few of us could surely determine its purpose or foresee its outcome. Yet with few exceptions, men take up its challenge, determined to do the difficult thing and during that, despite the countless opportunities for surrender to ease and indifference that come to them. Refueled now and then with fresh hope and the comforting contact of friendly encouragement, they spend their strength to the limit to leave behind a record of achievement. This is the spirit that has lifted man from the dust of which he is made and given him a place in the world and of his own destiny.

"EXPECT THE UNEXPECTED"

"Use your horn; that's what it's there for," is the advice of an experienced driver to motorists in an effort to prevent automobile accidents. He urges them not to steal up from behind people without some signal of this kind. They are to use it whenever the slightest occasion demands it.

But they should also be urged to use their heads, and what is supposed to be in them. They should give evidence also of some consideration for the rights of others on the road they should keep in mind that public highways are not private lanes, and that someone is always likely to drive into their path from some side street or road.

There are many things which motorists must keep in mind if automobile accidents are to be averted. In the speech of the motorist there ought to be no such word as "unexpected." The unexpected is the very thing they ought to be expecting. It ought to be as clear as day and as inevitable as winter's snow to all of us that driving a motor car is no child's play; it ought to be done only by painstaking and responsible persons, able and willing always to give their most serious attention to the business in hand.

TOLL OF THE WATER

Reports of drownings disclose the considerable hazards of swimming time. To the toll of the old swimmin' hole and the beach is being added that of the bathing pool. The week-end drowning list is as inevitable as the week-end toll of automobile fatalities.

Seemingly, it is impossible to make swimming wholly safe. The best of swimmers may be attacked by cramps and sink as helplessly as the worst of swimmers. And yet most drownings could be prevented with the exercise of a little caution. Lovers of the water take too many chances.

If no one went swimming in deep water, that alone would greatly diminish swimming casualities. There would be a further diminution if no one went swimming alone. Going with companions, bathers are assured of help in emergencies. There are few drownings in crowded pools or on crowded beaches. Carelessness in the water and while bathing is inexcusable. The appalling number of fatalities should be warning enough. Water sports are among man's finest pleasures and recreations, but they are, at the same time, a constant menace to human life. Danger lurks where least expected.

All play and no work is too expensive to think about nowadays.

Many a home budget has been knocked into a cocked hat by twins.

It may not be too soon to begin assigning "weeks" of various kinds for 1934.

In addition to flippers radio sets have attained high rank as farm equipment.

"GIDEON"

Golden Text:—"The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"—Psalm 27:1.

Lesson Passage:—Judges 7: 4-7, 16-21.

And I would sing the song of all creation. A brave sky and a glad wind, blowing by. A clear trail and an hour for meditation. A long day and the joy to make it fly. A hard task and the muscle to achieve it. A fierce noon and a well-contented gloam. A good strife and no regret to leave it. A still night and the far red lights of home.

—H. H. Bashford.

Numbers and Efficiency, 4

The army of Gideon was reduced in numbers from thirty-two thousand to ten thousand and again from ten thousand to three hundred fighting men. For the kind of warfare in which they were to be engaged, a small force was better than a large one. Also for a surprise attack in which great daring was required, it was better to have picked men. It is not true, as a general rule, that the reduction of numbers increases efficiency. For instance, a congregation of six hundred members may be a more efficient organization than a congregation of a thousand members, if the thousand members are made up of merely nominal Christians, but a congregation of a thousand made up of active and earnest Christians, may be a much more effective spiritual force than a congregation of only six hundred members. They can undertake and accomplish projects that would be impossible for the smaller congregation. Often it is true that a reduction of numbers results in more effective work, but that is not due to the fact that fewer people are at work, but to the fact that more concentrated work is being done. If the larger number could work with equal earnestness, a proportionately larger service would be rendered. The thing to fear is not large numbers, but slackness, whether the numbers be great or small. Jesus was content to work with a few disciples, but he viewed the winning of the whole world. A small following is not necessarily proof of superior piety. A church that is alive can hardly be too small. Numbers are often the index of spiritual earnestness.

The Need for Alertness, 5-7

There have been many opinions as to what the best really has been Gideon applied to his ten thousand soldiers and by which the three hundred were finally selected. The most probable is that those who laid down no drink were adjudged careless. They did not take sufficient precaution against ambushed enemies and were therefore discharged. The three hundred would not turn their eyes to the ground long enough for an enemy to surprise them. They stooped down by bending their knees and kept their eyes on the places from which an enemy could possibly spring, and lifted the water to their lips with their hands. These men were on guard against attack. A Christian needs to be on guard constantly against temptation. Those who regard themselves as immune from attack are courting danger. Just when one least expects it, temptation may come from within or from without. Jesus warned his disciples to watch and pray lest they enter into temptation.

A Master of Strategy, 19

Gideon's fine generalship is shown by his readiness to use new tactics. He was not the slave of precedent, but a creator of precedent. To overcome an army by carrying lights is a new idea. The Midianites were not prepared against an attack of this kind. Gideon studied the psychology of his opponents, as well as their methods of warfare. In Christian work, occasionally, a leader surprises his generation by doing something that is so simple that it has never been thought of before. There is need for novelty, daringly unexpected methods, in Christian work. Perhaps in no field of Christian work is there greater need for wise strategy and farseeing generalship, than in the work of Missions. To adapt missionary methods to the thought life of the people of the different nations, to use international conditions for the furtherance of the gospel, to strike out on some new policies that have never worked before, requires vast knowledge and superb courage. The Christian church has always needed a few Gideons who will startle mere routine workers by their willingness to hazard themselves in unconventional ways.

"And of Gideon," 20, 21

"The sword of the Lord and of Gideon." The faith and courage that rallying cry have been an encouragement to many. Sir Robert Nicoll stressed the second part of the battle cry. "The sword of the Lord," but forgetting to add, "and of Gideon." We propound ideals of a nation purged of social evils, of a world submissive to God and his Christ. We pray for the ideals to be realized, but have we the heart to fight for the realization, have we the heart to think out plans of campaign, have we the strategy, as well as the daring, which will ensure the victory? In too many of our churches an evangelistic or special reform campaign that calls for audacity and self-sacrifice meets with the coolest reception from the majority of the members. Where is the good, say these, of attempting the impossible? It is all very well to be enthusiastic, but it is no common sense. Let the church do its own little work in its own little way, and that is all that little people require. But the Lord's work is not a little work; it is a big work that for its doing demands men and women of high courage.

Questions for Discussion:

- 1.—Are large or small congregations more efficient?
- 2.—Why do members of the organization placing Bibles in homes call themselves "Gideons"?
- 3.—"Here's my heart and here's my hand." For I'm a member of Gideon's army.
- 4.—Is this negro spiritual true to the original story?
- 5.—The sword of the Lord and of Gideon. What was the appeal of this battle cry?
- 6.—Do you prefer to go with the majority or with the minority?

MARRIAGE LAWS IN NOVA SCOTIA MAY BE REVISED SOON

To conform to the high standards exacted by other provinces throughout the Dominion, the marriage regulations of the Province of Nova Scotia will be changed if, the present plans of a group of the leading clergy, social workers and others interested are carried out. This decision was reached at Sydney at a largely attended meeting and will be presented to the Provincial Government for their consideration. Under the proposed amendments there will be no runaway weddings, nor unions of mentally or physically unfit, and all prospective bridegrooms will be required to produce a clean bill of health before the ceremony can take place. HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Richard Gaudet, of Weymouth North, had a narrow escape from drowning on Friday, when he fell into an unused well on the "Beachwood" property at Weymouth North. Richard, who was picking cherries, went to walk from one tree to another and not knowing the old well was there, walked directly into it. This well which had not been used for years had been covered over with old tree limbs which had rotted away and the grass and bushes which had grown up around it completely concealed it from view.

Young Gaudet, after falling into the well, managed to grasp a rock in the side of it, and held to it until his cries for help were heard.

The Rand family living next door heard his cries and Messrs. Fred Rand, John Raymond and Harold Coggins went to his assistance, and had some difficulty in locating him, but finally with the aid of a strong pole managed to get him out.

MISSSES TRAIN BUT CRASHES INTO POST

Coming suddenly upon the fast freight that was standing on Denison's Crossing, at the west end of Kenilworth, about 12:45 Saturday night, Harold Blackadar, of Weymouth, swung his car sharply to the left, colliding with and snapping a crossing sign post and damaging his car, but escaped injury himself as did his companion, Howard Bourgeois. There is a cut in the high way leading to this crossing and Blackadar did not see the motionless cars until his headlights focused full on them only a few feet from the track.

—Rev. Roy L. Smith—

To Really Believe In—
—Some hero tends to make a man heretic.
—God gives a man some element of divinity.
—Our friends, is to give them the best there is in us.
—One's country, he must be ready to help him in his faults.
—A doctor, he must take his medicine.
—A religion, we must be willing to stake our life on it.

METEGHAN

Mrs. Adolphe Melanson, of Bronx, N. Y., who is at Bellevue's Cove, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marin Bellevue, was here last week to attend the wedding of her daughter-in-law, Miss Elise Melanson to Willie Robicheau, of this place.

Between Ourselves

Before I go to writing very much this week, I'm just going to tell the folks of the Digby Evening Department what I and, as far as I am able to find out, everybody else in town thinks of them in their prompt and efficient action last Saturday in saving the MacGregor building, and who knows, perhaps a good portion of the side who are due each and every one of them.

I know, and they know, that there has been many times when they were severely criticized, but they know as well as I do that those who know best the way to fight a fire—like those who know best how to run a newspaper, or preach a sermon—have never tried it, and no task is easier than to stand on the side and make a fine show of those who are doing the actual work of fighting fires or whatever it is.

The Digby Fire Department got into action in record time last Saturday. They had what might have been a very bad fire checked in the time possible, and yet, but it did not seem for their prompt and efficient action, what might have been—would have been. We owe a debt of gratitude to our fire department for their noble work on Saturday, and on many other occasions in the past. We can always depend upon them. We know that they will do the best they know how to do, whenever they are called upon—they will risk their lives if necessary, and we ask any more of them? Are we showing gratitude when we stand by with our mouths wide open finding fault with every little thing they make in the excitement of the moment? Think that over, Mr. Citizen.

As I have said (and many have said before me): "The easiest thing in the world to do is to find fault with the other fellow who is doing the best he knows how"—and more often than not, he is doing it in our interest. We are all members of our mayor, our preachers, our town clerk, our road makers, our members of parliament, our fire departments and quite frankly our critics. Often we are fully justified in doing so, and more often we do so for want of something to say at the moment, or because we hate him than we like to agree, or agree, as the case may be, with our neighbor. It is always the cheap way to test his character for John Public at whom most of the bricks are aimed.

Last summer while a Digby minister and his good lady were away on a well-earned vacation, a visiting preacher occupied the pulpit one Sunday. We all of us knew that he had to say and listened attentively to his message. After the service he said one or two of the congregationalists. "If I were only had a preacher like that!"

Last fall I was away on a well-earned (or) Sunday I found myself in the same town where the visiting preacher, referred to above, was his church. Remembering the sermon he had preached in hearing him preach again. I went to church, and behold, a stranger occupied the pulpit on the particular Sunday. I listened to his sermon and enjoyed it, but, on leaving the church, I heard members of that congregation say to one another, "My, if we only had a preacher like that!"

And I suppose there are many of you who sometimes hear of the Annapolis "Spectator," the Liverpool "Advance," the Yarmouth "Herald" and some of our own well-known newspapers, you see their pages, and sigh and exclaim: "My, if we only had a paper like that!"

I'm not finding fault with faultfinders and critics. We all find fault at times, and it is well that we do. Most especially we enjoy fault-finding with those whom we think are pretty well satisfied with themselves—and it is well that we do. With others, as we are in our own glorified opinion of ourselves.

"Some people put on airs while others merely whistle them."

MY PRAYER

Great God, I ask thee for no meager self
Than that I may not disappoint myself.
That in my action I may soar as high
As I can now discern with this clear eye.
And next in value, which thy kindness lends,
That I may greatly disappoint my friends,
Howe'er they think or hope that it may be.
They may not dream how 'thou'st distinguished me.
That my weak hand may equal my firm faith,
And my life practice more than my tongue's faith:
That my low conduct may not show, nor my relative lines,
That I thy purpose did not know, or overrated thy designs.
—Emily Prentice.

GROWTH

—Edgar A. Guest—

By the choice we make
Of the road to take
By the things that we do or say;
By the yes or no
To the cry: "Let's go!"
We are fashioned from day to day.

By our will to bear
What comes of care,
By our spirit to work or play,
By the little tasks
Which life always asks
We are fashioned from day to day.

We are known to men
By the notes we pen
Of comfort and help and cheer,
And the minutes we spend
To play the friend
To one who needs friendship here.

Oh, it isn't by fate
That men grow great
But it's choosing which road to fare;
It's seeking what's right
By day and by night,
And sharing another's care.

In case our readers are wondering what has happened to "G.R.T." we offer the explanation that he has been busy, that's all, very busy; and we are glad to say he expects to be back with us in a few weeks, with more of his interesting Reminiscences.

ST. JOHN'S GARDEN PARTY

St. John's Garden Party held recently on the grounds of River View Lodge, was the usual happy success, although financially rather below par, due to prevailing conditions.

With the weather man smiling, bags waving on the breeze, and the ladies in their smartest uniforms, dispensing good music, the guests were all in holiday mood, and never have the ladies of St. John's offered a more tempting meal.

The tables which themselves were new this year, were groined under the good things and were most attractive with their baskets of flowers, new dishes of plain ivory and new shellware.

The various booths—fancy work, aprons, toys, candy, etc., were fairly well patronized, and the "Fortune Teller" was most popular. The "Duck House" was a novelty this year, and Mr. and Mrs. Duck soon quacked themselves out of business.

Adding greatly to the charm of the affair this year, was the presence of His Grace Archbishop Worrell, Primate of all Canada, and Mrs. Worrell, who were spending a short vacation at Annapolis Royal. The treasurer reports receipts of $1878 gross, with about $100.00 clear.

DEDICATION AT BEAR RIVER

Last Sunday afternoon His Grace Archbishop Worrell was present at the hearty service at St. John's Church and dedicated the handsome new Reredos which beautifies the church.

"To the Honour and Glory of God and in loving memory of the late Rev. W. S. Smith (father of the Rector) and the late W. M. Romans."

His Grace paid high tribute to the service both had rendered to the Church, especially mentioning the many years in which Mr. Smith had been a lay Reader throughout the Diocese. His Grace also referred to the long and successful business career of the late Mr. Romans, and his high standard of citizenship.

The new Reredos, gift of the Junior Warden, Major A. M. Simons, was also dedicated at the same time. It forms a fitting complement to the Reredos and was graced with lovely flowers, so that the Altar looked beautiful.

In his address, the Archbishop referred to the great improvements there had been in the church since his first visit in 1885. He also spoke in appreciation of the earnest work of the congregation, even if not numerically large, and of their active co-operation with their energetic Rector.

ANCIENT MICMAC CUSTOMS REVIVED AT BEAR RIVER

Shades of the days when Indians alone roved Nova Scotia's forests were seen at the Indian reservation, Bear River, Tuesday, 3,000 people drawn from all parts of Nova Scotia and the United States. Presenting a series of ceremonial members of the reservation revived all the old Micmac customs of their forefathers, the function beginning in the morning and lasting throughout the day.

Food cooked over the camp fires by Indian guides, was served during the day. Rev. Father Leo Murphy, who assisted, reviving the annual custom that has been allowed to lapse for a few years, was made an honorary chief during the day's ceremonies, as also were Rev. Fathers W. P. Stone and J. McKenna, of Prince Edward Island.

Assisting in the event was Joseph McKenna, bank manager here, who was directly responsible for the celebration, while the committee in charge comprised Louis Peters, John Pictou and John McEwan. John Paul, chief of the Micmacs in the western section of the Province, was in charge of the ceremonial order, while an interesting figure was Hon. Chief John Paul, a great prizefighter in the district. D. J. Gallagher, who is interested in work among the tribes in New Jersey, also assisted in the event.

Temperance
Table Talks
By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

"Figures cannot lie." The oft quoted words mean that actual records kept in scientific fashion form a truer basis for conclusions and judgments than mere personal opinion, which is so easily colored by prejudice. Well, I have been looking somewhat carefully into some life insurance data in a volume that claims a place in the average library, and it is simply amazing what delight those cold figures seem to take in poking the ribs of some old fashioned popular beliefs.

Here I am told that a few years ago careful examination was made of the records of no fewer than forty-three life insurance companies in the United States and Canada. The policy-holders were classified and the mortality or death rate figured out accordingly. Those who had behind them a history of heavy drinking, but who had reformed without treatment, showed a death rate higher than the average. Those who ought to scare us against heavy drinking, even though afterwards we reform. But, of course, most folks do not reform. They are prejudiced. Well, let us see what the story of these 43 life insurance companies have to say. Here in the classification are those who took the equivalent of only two glasses of beer or one glass of whiskey a day. Surely that looks innocent enough, and yet they showed a death rate 18.5% higher than the average. Those whose daily amount was four to six glasses of beer or two glasses of whiskey when accepted had a mortality rate 86% higher than the average. Is it any wonder that insurance companies have become very careful as to the drinking habits of their applicants? In a book entitled "How to Live" written jointly by Dr. Eugene L. Fisk and Prof. Irving Fisher, this statement is found: "Steady drinkers who exceed two glasses of beer or one glass of whiskey daily are not, on the evidence, entitled to standard insurance, but should be charged heavy extra premium."

Trish Hand at Dory Fishing

After months of the poorest fishing known in years, the fish appear to have struck inshore and good catches were landed at Centreville last week, one boat bringing as high as 4,000 pounds. Oswald Banks, whose motor boat was out of commission, returned to old time methods and fished from a dory. His week's catch netted him $29.00, his only expense being the price of the bait used.

The Maritime Fish Corporation, of Digby, which has been the only firm buying fish at Centreville, this season, stopped taking fish on Thursday ostensibly to await the arrival of a cargo of salt.

Obituary

Thomas E. Spittle

Thomas E. Spittle, well-known milk dealer, died Thursday night of the Addison-Gilbert hospital, Gloucester, Mass., at the age of 62 years. He was taken to Gloucester on Thursday afternoon, but was so weak that it was not performed and he passed away about 10 o'clock. Spittle, who was born in Digby County, but went to Gloucester when young and remained in that city ever since, was married to May J. Concoran, of Essex. He conducted a dairy business for over 30 years, then turned it over to his sons who now operate it under the name of Spittle Brothers with their plant in Essex. The deceased retired from active business several years ago. Surviving him besides his wife are a sister, Annie, wife of Peter Cummings, of Royalton, Vt.; four sons, Jacob, of Salem, N. H.; Deland, David, of Gloucester; three daughters, Ellen, wife of Murray Hull and Miss Harriet Spittle, both of Gloucester, and Ethel, wife of George Towne, of Essex, no six grandchildren. He was a member of Cape Ann Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, and Starry King Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Essex. Funeral services were held at his late home, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, being buried at Spring Street cemetery, Essex.

Cherry Sunday Draws Crowds to Bear River

July 23rd was "Cherry Sunday" in Bear River, and from all along the South Shore, the Yarmouth County "Fruit" visitors poured into the village in every conceivable kind of conveyance, bicycles, motorcycles, motor trucks, loaded with passengers, automobiles—and even old Dobbin was ignored.

The number of visitors was a record, and many never saw a cherry before. The visitors were of all ages and greater profusion; almost everybody ate until they ran out of their teeth; they filled their baskets, their kettles and even cardboard cartons with Bear River's luscious cherries.

Many of the visitors "bought a tree" at a price of anywhere from a quarter to one dollar and upwards—some didn't bother to buy at all; they just picked and ate, while others bought them by the box, basket, barrel or peck.

In this section around Digby and Bear River there are thousands of cherry trees in great quantities. The cherries are grown and picked every year. Many of the trees receive very little cultivation, and are in a more or less "wild" state. Some of the quarts are picked and sold, thousands of quarts go to waste on the trees each year.

Miss Mary Daley is visiting relatives in Yarmouth.

Classified Advertisements

HAIRS IN A HORSE'S TAIL

"When I ask about the points of a horse, I don't want to be told the number of hairs in his tail," said Lincoln.

When you want to buy a horse you don't care to hear any such purposeless facts. When you want a good horse, you care to know the pedigree in the genealogy of its maker. When you want to engage a plumber you do not care how good a bridge engineer he is. You want facts, vital, terse, direct—

Such as are given by the pithy little ads in the Courier's Classified Section.

You will like these classified ads because they come straight to their point. Directness is their outstanding virtue. They are indexed for quick reference, so that they ask for only a little bit of your time in finding them and in reading them.

And reading them regularly will show you that they usually ask for only a little bit of your money!

Model Coach-work of Young Canadian Craftsman Brings Praise from Nation's Leaders in Old London

Taking "time off" from his arduous World Conference duties, Rt. Hon. B. Bennett, Premier of Canada, joined Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, in an inspection of the miniature model Napoleonic coach shown here. The small model was constructed by David Tennant, of London, Ontario, and won the first junior award in the Pacific Northwest last year's Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild Competition. The coach is a reproduction of the display of his coach in Ontario's show window in the Strand, Old London, this summer, and the exhibit attracted wide attention in England. Tennant has entered another model in this year's competition and hopes to win one of the two under-21 scholarships which are to be given exclusively to Canadian members of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild.

BAPTIST GARDEN PARTY WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

The Garden Party of the United Baptist Church which was held last Wednesday afternoon on the lawn of Mrs. John Roop, was a decided success financially and otherwise.

An ideal day, lots of bunting waving in the breeze, the bright costumes of the guests and also bright sunshine all helped to make a very attractive scene. The various booths of fancy work, handkerchiefs, candles, ice cream, and especially the "Woodworth Table" set, 10c, 10c, and 15c. articles were very popular and all were well patronized.

The long tea tables too, were very pretty with large baskets and vases of beautiful roses, not forgetting the very appetizing food which brought forth many complimentary remarks. The gross receipts for the afternoon were $138.24; net $124.00.

A FANCY FROM FONTENELLE

The Rose in the garden slipped her bud,

And she laughed in the pride of her youth, full blood,

As she thought of the Gardener standing by:

"He is old, so old! And he soon must die!"

The full Rose waxed in the warm June air;

And she spread and spread till her heart lay bare,

And she laughed once more as she heard his tread:

"He is older now! He will soon be dead!"

But the breeze of the morning blew and found

That the leaves of the blown Rose strewn the ground;

And he came at noon, that Gardener, old,

And he raked them gently under the mound.

And I wrote the thing to a random rhyme:

For the Rose is Beauty, and the Gardener Time.

A CORRECTION

The Courier, Digby.

Dear Sirs:—I am very sorry that your compositor changed the spelling of a word in the article "Dedication of Bear River." What I wrote was "compliment," which made no sense of the connection between the Rose Table and the Berwick.

Sincerely,

Alfred Porter.

BEAR RIVER BRIDE HONORED AT SHOWER

On Friday evening, July 28th, a delightful Surprise Shower was tendered at her home, to one of Bear River's popular girls of the younger set, Miss Helena Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green, who on Tuesday morning, August 1st, became the bride of Frank W. Wightman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wightman, of Smith's Cove, Digby County.

The rooms had been beautifully decorated with sweet peas and roses, in the bride's absence, and from the chandelier was suspended a huge basket, also richly decorated with flowers, filled with lovely gifts, while a number were secreted about the room, causing much merriment in the finding.

"THEY SAY"

Public health authorities and reputable physicians are performing a worth while service by their warnings of the dangers of quacks, patent medicines and get-rich-quick specialists. These warnings cannot be given too often nor too loudly.

Man is a reasoning animal who forgets to reason when the situation most demands it. The trust and faith which the average person places in heresy statements regarding patent medicine advertisements, get-rich-quick specialists and others of their ilk, is one of the paradoxes of human intelligence.

Than "they say," no two words when applied to the healing art do more damage. "They say," prescribes more medicine than all the doctors in the country; and, incidentally, kills more people.

"They say" that a certain old lady can remove warts by the pow-wow process; "they say" that this and the other is good for headaches; "they say" that the highly advertised medicine in the ornate package will cure twenty different diseases; "they say" that the widely advertised doctor can cure any disease in any stage. "They say" and "they say." And millions of otherwise sensible men and women, without asking other proof, look up the sorceress, patent medicine or quack and spend their money to be cured of a disease they probably were never afflicted with.

The wise person will seek for a more solid foundation for his health condition than "they say." When something goes wrong with his physiological machinery he will consult a thoroughly competent physician.

AUGUST

Now comes the month when summer drags its days of weary heat slowly toward the cool of autumn. July is gone. September waits ahead, August, the early afternoon of summer, is upon us.

Hot days and humid nights have laid their steaming hands on the Northern Hemisphere in weeks just past, and hot days are still to come. August often brings the peak of summer heat. But August heat is easier to withstand, somehow, perhaps because relief is just around the bend. Besides, the days of August bring a new note in nature, a note for which the months just gone have marked the way. Fledglings take to wings, berries ripen, spring crops bow to the harvester and those leaved flowers which forego the urge to quick, lush bloom put forth their richer blossoms in a world of vanished daisies. Rural roads are perfumed with scent, lines of orchards with the apples blush with the early touch of ripening.

Summer approaches the time when it will turn over to the days of autumn the completion of that task which it received from spring. August is a season of nature's pledges nearing redemption and not even the leftover heat of burning July can make us unaware of the autumn days which lie ahead.

BUMBLEBEE TIME

Perhaps the most misunderstood and least appreciated member of the insect family who really deserves no little credit is the bumblebee. Because he seems to be a man of leisure, who spends his summer gorging himself instead of storing up honey for the coming winter, he has been called a parasite and a vagrant.

In Australia and New Zealand he is held in as great respect as he commands from the barefoot boy, who, though he admires the throaty hum and beautiful gold and black fur coat, treads warily in the clover lest he step on one of Mr. Bumblebee's sharp needles. These two countries learned his true worth when they attempted to transplant clover there. They discovered that without the bumblebee's aid in pollination their clover would not grow, so the bumblebee, who was not a native of those parts, was imported.

For those who do not know that the world while he eats and bumbles, the bumblebee is the very embodiment of man's mid-summer longings. He is as typical of mid-summer as are brown-eyed Susans.

It is not the bumblebee's fault that he is improvident, living from hand to mouth. He knows that with the end of the flowering season he will die, so lives accordingly. Does the condemned man save part of his last meal for the next day?

All in all it might have been the part of wisdom to leave gizzards back in the crossword puzzles.

"The writing of books," says Joseph Hergesheimer, "is perhaps the dullest of all possible tasks." Good gracious! doesn't the man ever read?

Between Ourselves

The boys in the shop have warned me to "go easy" this week. They have more than enough to keep them busy outside of getting out the paper, I guess I had better listen to them, and keep my column as short as possible, although there are a number of things I would like to write about.

This issue of the Courier is "VOL. LX, NO. 1"—in other words, we are commencing our 60th year. That's quite a record, and naturally we are proud of it.

It is not necessary for us to go into greater detail in regard to our birthday—we only hope that sixty years from now the Courier will be going stronger than ever and that whoever sits in the editor's chair will find his job as pleasant as we find ours. We also hope that the editor of the Courier 60 years hence need not have many subscribers who forget when their subscriptions fall due.

As I said at the beginning, I have been asked to cut my little say short, but before I sign off I do want to tell you folks, our readers, our correspondents, and well wishers that all you have done for us, your suggestions, your criticisms and your contributions have been greatly appreciated. Without your help and well wishes it is hardly probable that the Courier would have rounded out fifty-nine years of publication. We know we will have your assistance in the future as we have in the past. The Courier is your paper—it is not the mouthpiece of any political organization, of any clique, or propaganda.

RADIO SYSTEM FOR POLICE CARS INTERESTS MAYOR

Demonstration Provided by Lloyd G. Morse Proves Complete

Mayor J. Fred Manning was so interested in the possibility of establishing direct radio communication between nine police cruising cars, a police ambulance and the central police station, during a demonstration, Tuesday, that he overlooked the name of the Lynn man, whose radio research can make this possible. The demonstration which literally startled the Mayor and Chief James H. Broad, was provided by Lloyd G. Morse, 108 Laxton Ave., owner and operator of station WCAA, Charles G. McAuley, 8 Town's Court, owner of station 1KJ, who the Mayor thought was host of the demonstration, was a guest.

It was Mr. Morse that the Mayor, after the demonstration, asked to make an estimate as to what such a system would cost Lynn, and who indicated that if the cost appeared within reason the Lynn police department may have the first three-way radio communication system in the country, for the demonstration yesterday showed that the police car and the station could not only converse as simply as by telephone, but two or more cars could converse with each other.

The units used by Mr. Morse yesterday appeared about the size of the ordinary automobile radio, or to those not familiar, about the size of a small "Over night" case, or portable typewriter case. Constant communication can be maintained. Each unit is in a small carrying case, with a total weight of about 20 pounds. A small loud speaker received the message from the central station or other car and a small microphone mounted near the driver of the car, carries his message.

In yesterday's demonstration, the mayor and chief kept up conversation with the automobile going at all speeds possible. The units used in the demonstration were made by Mr. Morse at his home, but as the demonstration was for practical purposes he could give the mayor no figures on the probable cost.

Mr. Morse has been a licensed operator since 1919 and accredited as being one of the pioneer operators in Lynn. He has been an instructor of radio and naval radio operating procedure in the Naval Reserve for the past eight years. By means of his well equipped station at his home, Mr. Morse has received and sent messages by code and conversation from and to operators in all parts of the world—Daily Evening Item, Lynn, Mass., July 19, 1933. (Editor's Note—Lloyd G. Morse is the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Arch Morse, of Lynn, Mass., formerly of Weymouth, and has many friends here with whom the Courier joins in congratulating him on his success.)

A number of people from Weymouth and vicinity motored to Bear River on Tuesday of last week, to attend the Indian Carnival.

WEYMOUTH NORTH HOME IS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

"Bayside Farm," the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lent, at Weymouth North, was struck by lightning about 9:30 o'clock on Sunday morning, during an electrical storm which visited Weymouth and vicinity on Saturday and Sunday.

A water pipe in the cellar was burst, and as Mr. Lent was coming up the cellar stairs from attending to that, the partition near the cellar stairway burst into flames but they were immediately extinguished. Several rooms were filled with smoke and fumes of brimstone, but no other damage was done to the house. Had it occurred in the night, or had the family been away, considerable damage would undoubtedly have been done.

The hydro line, at Weymouth North was also damaged during the storm, but was immediately repaired.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

How fast the summer is gliding away! Vainly we wish we could make it linger, so that we might taste more deeply of the joys of golden hours of warm sunshine and all the riches they bring in their train. As the hours slip into the irrevocable past they breathe of hope as well as regret, for we know another summer is coming.

Life itself glides by quickly, but its passing brings a growing radiance to those who know that awaiting them is another life, whose possibilities are immeasurable. Such a knowledge even makes this life sweeter. Happy are they who have attained unto it.

Miss Audrey Whyllie, of Halifax, is visiting friends at Weymouth North.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE OLD FOLKS

THAT anyone attaining old age should have to be dependent on charity, or endure unnecessary privation, must be repugnant to every right-thinking citizen, and two important measures for the protection of the old and needy stand to the credit of the Harrington Government—a Parent's Maintenance Act, and provision for Old Age Pensions.

WHILST the latter have had to be deferred, for financial reasons, since 1931, the present upturn in trade and industry makes it possible for the Pensions Scheme to be put into effect. The Government, as announced by Premier Harrington, in his manifesto, will have an Old Age Pensions system in operation within a year.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE CHILDREN

THE welfare of children has ever been a matter of concern to the Harrington administration, and no longer is it possible for outside experts to report, as in the days of the old Government, "THE WIDESPREAD APATHY TOWARDS PUBLIC EDUCATION IN NOVA SCOTIA CHILLS ONE LIKE AN EAST WIND." Since 1925 the public school system of the Province has been thoroughly overhauled and, under the Harrington Government, the children of Nova Scotia now enjoy educational facilities equal (not vastly inferior) to those of other provinces. Nor are the children of needy parents handicapped, for provision has been made by the Government for school books to be supplied free of cost in such cases.

IN ADDITION, through the work of the Ministry of Public Health, the physical welfare of the children of the Province is guarded as never before. Tuberculosis, for example, which has hitherto taken such heavy toll of young life, is being steadily wiped out by preventive measures, such as travelling clinics and public health nursing services. As a result of the constructive efforts of the Harrington administration, children today are enabled to leave school far better equipped, both mentally and physically, than in the past.

FOR THE SAKE OF ALL NOVA SCOTIA

AND not only has the welfare of the old folks and children been continually studied by the Harrington Government, but the welfare of all Nova Scotians—irrespective of age, political views, or influence. It is the one Government which has been truly representative of the people, truly concerned with the best interests of the Province, truly and far-sightedly constructive in its legislative measures.

PAYING THE PRICE

(Los Angeles Times)

Gertrude Ederle, swimmer of the English Channel, is broken in health. She has never got rested from the heroic ordeal. Her hearing was permanently impaired and now it appears that her health is also.

Miss Ederle swam the English Channel in the fastest time ever recorded by a woman. She was in the water more than 15 hours, back in the summer of 1926. When as a heroine she landed at New York, that city kept holiday. A riotous salute and parade engulfed her. Whistles screeched and horns tooted along her Broadway triumphal entry. Ticker tape enmeshed her and Mayor Walker was at his wit's end in acclaiming her. One streamer read: "It took Washington to cross the Delaware, but it took Trudy to cross the Channel!"

Her victory seemed complete. But the honor is empty. She paid the price and has nothing left. Not even roses in her cheeks! She used up almost all her allotted heartbeats in training for the event and its successful conclusion.

Not long ago she told Charles Padock of the Pasadena Star-News: "If I had known what the victory was to cost, I would have stopped before I started."

Transportation Problems
To Be Considered

As will be noted in our advertisement columns today, R. T. MacLeireth and Ira P. It is understood that at this session, it is proposed to enter the appearances of all persons who may attend and to hear a general explanation of their views on the transportation problem. The red-gold sun sinks quietly. Into the ocean's heart. After a fevered, sultry day. The evening breeze starts. And I, in wistful solitude, Speak with my heart.

Wake up your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

Your liver is a very small organ, but it certainly can put your digestive and eliminative organs out of order by refusing to pour out its daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. You can't completely correct such a condition by taking salts, oil, mineral water, laxatives or anything else. The only way to get your liver working again is to get a liver stimulant.

Married

Deveau-Comeau

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Mary's Church, Church Point, last week, when Miss Alex. Comeau, daughter of Mrs. Omer Comeau, of Little Brook, became the bride of Albert Deveau, Salmon River. Rev. Father Deyveau officiated. The bride was attired in white satin with orange blossoms and veil, and carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Comeau, who wore a dress of pale green satin with accessories to match, and carried a bouquet of roses.

The groom was supported by his brother. After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the bride's home where breakfast was served. They also had a largely attended dinner, where parents and many friends were invited. In the afternoon they motored to Salmon River, where a reception was held for them. They were recipients of many presents. The bride had also been at numerous showers given in her honor. Mr. and Mrs. Deveau will reside in Salmon River.

MEETS DEATH WITHIN SIGHT OF HOME

Within sight of his home and in five feet of water, Ulysse Comeau, a young man of 33 years of age, met death at Crosses Cones a few days ago. There were no witnesses to the accident.

At the time the young man left his home to attend to his eld traps set in the river near his home. After a few hours' absence a search started by members of his family and his dead body was found floating in the water. An inquest was held and the coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by accidental drowning.

The funeral was held on Wednesday and was attended by a large number of people from Grosses Cones, where his home is located, and Church Point.

The deceased is survived by his aged father, Joseph Comeau, two brothers, Edward and Desire, and two sisters, Mrs. Elisee Boudreau and Mrs. Camille Comeau. Rev. Fr. Deyveau, P. F. officiated.

THE SCHOOL BOY TELLS WHAT AN EDITOR IS

Don't know how newspapers came to be in the world. I don't think the Good Lord knows, for He ain't got nothing to say about an editor in the Bible. I think the editor is the man who links you and me, and about and stayed in the bushes until after the flood and then came out and wrote the thing up and has been here ever since. I don't think he ever died. I never seen a dead one, never heard of one getting licked.

If a doctor makes a mistake he buries it, and people dissent say nothing. When the editor makes a mistake there is a big swearing and a big fuss, but if the doctor makes a mistake there is a funeral, cut flowers and perfect silence.

A doctor can use a word a yard long without anybody knowing what it is, but if an editor uses one he has to spell it.

If a doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for it, but if the editor goes he gets a charge of buckshot.

Any old college can make a doctor, but an editor has to be born.

SCHOOLBOY HOWLERS

The Tower of Babel was the place where Solomon kept his wives. A connoisseur is a person who stands outside a picture palace. Ambiguity means having two wives living at the same time. A haddock is another name for a dinner tapper. A haddock is a sort of fish; it is also a place where they keep horses. A river hdd is where the fishes sleep. The tributaries of the Nile are called juveniles.

We have heard many fish stories, some of them tall and some long, but the Yarmouth Light vouches for the truth of this one. A summer visitor at a certain well known resort close to Yarmouth, whilst out canoeing recently, observed a large trout near the surface of the water, and made a heavy splash at the fish with his paddle. This resulted in the trout being partially stunned, and, rolling to the surface, was grasped by the fisherman with his hand, and successfully landed in the canoe. When put on the scales the fish weighed one and a half pounds. Fishing by hand should be one of the future advertised attractions of this great vacation land of ours."

The Christian religion is the greatest force in the world for good when applied, yet the Christian religion was the outcome of what no doubt appeared at that time, one of the greatest failures recorded. Was not the death of the Man who was forsaken by His friends and suffered a malediction of the law on the cross, considered at that time to be the result of failure, but is not that today the sign of success of that failure, giving to us all an inspiration, particularly to those who have done their best and failed, fill the eyes of the world?

A man may be a failure from the standpoint of possessing wealth and affluence, and yet may be the greatest success as a molder and builder of things that are lasting and worth while—a real benefactor to society. The monuments that adorn our squares and the tablets erected in public places to the men of the past were not put up because of their worldly possessions, but as a tribute to what they gave—successful service.

A Buyer is wise to patronize the ambitious merchant because he will serve you better—you can tell who the ambitious store-keepers are—they advertise.

Canadians to Visit Mysterious Bali

Bali, that mysterious tropical island off the coast of Java where Ezo would have been almost over-dressed and native boys—although they have never heard of him—look like Gandhi, will be more than a name but no less a mystery to a number of lucky Canadians by this time next year.

For Bali, literally unknown until a motion picture director took his cameras and microphones there a year or so ago, has been added to the itinerary of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain's 1934 world cruise sailing from New York January fourth.

Balinese, simple and unaffected, acted a charming love story for the screen. But they had to be taught what a kiss was. They live in a land of temples, although education is not a strong point they can still count the few white people who have ever visited the island. They cannot count the number of dogs they own. They save the bodies of their dead, until the last member of a family dies and cremate them all together. They worship bats and have 500,000 in one sacred cave. When priests send word that devils are abroad every man, woman, child and dog must stay within doors so nothing will impede the demons' quick departure. They love to dance, and on March 9 and 10, 1934 are specially performing traditional dances for the Empress of Britain's world cruise passengers.

In addition to Bali, new world cruise calls will be made by the big, white liner at Semarang, Java, and Zambanga in the Sulu Archipelago. The cruise will visit 23 ports in 24 countries covering 30,000 miles in 130 days.

The pictures show a temple in Boelele, a youth and his mother (top right) and a typical scene outside a native house where a circumcision is about to be held.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

Experience teaches. A century ago life insurance companies, such as there were then, balked at accepting a life risk for a man who did not drink alcoholic liquors. In those days the drinking man was the normal man, and the abstainer an odd fish who, by his oddity, so it was thought, courted disease and death. That is all changed now and the tables turned with a flop against the drinker. The family doctor of those days accepted the current tradition that there was nothing like whiskey and brandy to set one up and so for almost every sort of ailment the "wee drappie" was prescribed as a matter of course. Well both medicine and life insurance have grown up. Last week we heard some echoes from the life insurance world, and noted the change in experience has brought. And so, too, the medical world has learned and changed, for today alcohol is all but "taboo" as a remedy for human ills.

Take tuberculosis for example. Once alcohol was considered as its sworn enemy and therefore freely prescribed. It is now looked upon as one of the great predisposing factors in producing this disease, so impairing the tissues that they yield more easily to the attack of bacilli. In wine producing France it has been discovered that the districts consuming the most alcohol have the highest death rate from tuberculosis. A few years ago the Phipps Institute, Philadelphia, published statistics covering a period of two years which showed improvement under treatment for this disease was from 30 per cent. to 50 per cent. better in abstainers than in those who used alcohol. In the two years the death rate averaged nearly 140 per cent. greater in alcoholics than in non-alcoholics. It was found, too, that an alcohol-using parishioner told against the recovery of the patient, mortality being 80 per cent. greater in these than in those whose ancestry was free from its use. When the International Congress of Tuberculosis met in Paris a few years ago, it passed a unanimous resolution stating that the fight against tuberculosis must ever be combined with the fight against the use of alcoholic beverages.

All this has an important bearing on our own Nova Scotia problems. As a people we are making good progress in our public health program, not the least along the lines of the fight against tuberculosis. The Kentville Sanatorium is known far and wide for its splendid service. We are extending the sanatorium idea and equipment to other hospital centres in the province. But hand in hand with the health problem goes the liquor problem. The consumption of liquor by the people generally must be reduced if the fight against tuberculosis is to be successful. We must test our educative and legislative methods in dealing with the liquor problem by the measure in which they discourage and lessen alcoholic drinking. Would it not be a sound suggestion on our wisdom, not to speak of our morals, if by our health program on the one hand we waged a valiant fight against tuberculosis, while by our liquor program we should be establishing a fruitful nursery for the same disease on the other?

"RUTH"

Golden Text—"Let us love one another: for love is of God."—1 John 4:7.

Lesson Passage—Ruth 1: 6-10, 14-19a.

Love flew in at the window. As wealth walked in at the door. "You have come for you saw wealth coming," said I. But he flattered his wings with a sweet little cry, "I'll cleave to you, rich or poor."

Wealth dropped out of the window. Poverty crept through the door. "Well now you would find follow wealth," said I. But he flattered his wings as he gave me the lie, "I cling to you all the more."—Tennyson

Hard Times and Literature. 6 Hard times may produce great literature, or, at least, may call forth deeds which in time will find their way into literature. The Book of Ruth is a touching story, skillfully told. When Jewish rabbis were urged their people to read the scriptures, they would say that the Book of Ruth was too pleasant for reading on the Sabbath. The book may not have been written until the days of Ezra and Nehemiah, but it has its setting in the days when the judges judged in rough, rude times. "The Book of Judges is full of war and tumult; and the Book of Samuel full of more war and tumult. Men hate and steal and lie and kill, until the heart is sick of the havoc which sin has wrought among men. But between these two books, as a beautiful valley full of flowers and fertile fields, and with a gentle brook singing down through the meadows as often found between two mountain ranges, is the Book of Ruth, a wonderful story of love and holy character, filling all that part of the Old Testament with its fragrance."

Yet the story has famine in Bethlehem. The book is a story of no doubt or governmental relief. The population shifted from one place to another in search of bread. The hard times led to emigration from native land to the territory of strangers of different speech and religion. The root of the problem was lack of production while in our day depression has resulted from over-production. Then the only escape was through personal initiative, but in a machine age, governmental supervision becomes inevitable. A wise statesman has said that for the future the problem is not production but government.

Common Sense Standards, 7-9

Naomi was a woman of sentiment quite akin to her two daughters-in-law, but being a middle aged woman she talked hard common sense. When Ruth and Orpah accompanied her as she started to return to Bethlehem, Naomi reasoned with them in a matter-of-fact fashion. She told them to return to their mothers' houses. She hoped that God's blessing would rest upon them. She held out the hope that both might contract happy second marriages. She kissed them and they wept aloud. Naomi had common sense on her side. The young women could hardly be expected to give up home, kindred and religion for one of a different race. Yet Naomi's heart was probably whispering different words from those her lips spoke. Her two sons had been married to these two women of Moab. The graves of her two sons and husband were in the land of Moab. To say farewell finally to Orpah and Ruth would seem to her to be bidding farewell to what had been sacred to her. For the worldly advantage of the younger women, she urged them to return. Her unselfishness caused her to repress her sentiment and make a common sense presentation of the case.

Sentiment and Self, 10-15

Orpah took the conventional course. She admitted the force of the common sense arguments of Naomi. She could really make out a good case for herself. She knew that she would not be welcome in Judah and Naomi had no way of supporting her. The presence of a Moabite widow would be an added burden upon Naomi. Because of race differences and prejudices there would be little likelihood of a second marriage. She would be far better back at home with her own kin and kind. Of course she would go through the formality of offering to return with Naomi, but in her own heart she knew that she was going back. "She wept appropriately, kissed her mother-in-law and went back, thinking of herself and not of Naomi and Ruth, justifying her sensible action all the way home and she faded out of the picture forever. Naomi then urged Ruth to follow Orpah back to safety in the land of Moab.

Ruth's Immortal Words, 16-18

A modern woman has suggested that these words of Ruth would of themselves form a "superb wedding toast." They are among the most beautiful words ever spoken. Wherein lies their charm? They are simple, sincere and beautiful. They express the spirit of friendship at its best. They rise in affection above the divisions of race, boundaries and religion. They show that personal relationships may be established which transcend all divisions. Ruth was willing to leave her homeland, to go into a strange country, to forego marriage and motherhood, to take Naomi's religion, even to be buried in a foreign land, all for the sake of her reverence and love for Naomi. Orpah might well say that such a sacrifice was not common sense. "That is Ruth's undying glory that she did not calculate in terms of self-interest. She loved and naught but death could separate her from the one she loved. Her immortal words should be memorized by every last person on earth in every generation. They are the high water mark of Old Testament literature.

Back to Bethlehem, 19

Naomi, who had left Bethlehem with her husband and two sons, returned alone except for the presence of a foreign woman, one of the tribes of Moab. Yet history was in the making in the arrival of the two travel tired women. For Ruth married Boaz and became the grandmother of the great King David. And Matthew tells of Ruth, through David, entering into the ancestry of Jesus. This story told in the days of Ezra and Nehemiah was a rebuke to narrow nationalism which forbade intermarriage among people of different nations. It shows how the stream of heredity may be enriched. It has especial significance for students of social effects of immigration in North America. But the highest lesson is the simple religious faith which helped people through woe, sorrow and change, for both Naomi and Ruth had faith in the unseen God, the God who is a Spirit.

Questions for Discussion:

- 1.—Would you give up your nationality for friendship?
- 2.—How has business depression affected the opportunities of women in industry?
- 3.—Ruth had sentiment; Orpah had sentimentality. Discuss this.

Are you superstitious? Well, I see where a chap in New York has it all doped out just why the United States has been, and is, experiencing such bad luck. He has discovered that "America is under the curse of Friday," and points out that Columbus set sail on a Friday, left the Canary Isles on a Friday, first sighted land on a Friday, and began his return journey on a Friday. Now whaddya know about that?

THE BEST Lower Priced TIRE The ROADCRAFT

(MADE BY GUTTA PERCHA)

In the ROADCRAFT Tire, the value you get is outstanding.

BECAUSE

The ROADCRAFT costs less than many other tires.

BECAUSE

The ROADCRAFT has the famous Guttapercha construction that gives greater mileage and greater safety.

BECAUSE

The ROADCRAFT has now the tough Resisto Tread—slow-wearing rubber, long-life tread design. The tread pattern, of extra width, gives exceptional grip on the road for maximum traction, and braking power.

BECAUSE

The ROADCRAFT is the tested quality product of 50 years of experience. The rubber industry in Canada. There is no substitute for experience.

BECAUSE

Roadcraft and Gutta Percha Tires are sold with a guarantee, for 12 months from the date of purchase for passenger car service, against any condition that may render the tire unfit for further service, where such condition is due to ordinary wear and tear, or injuries thereto caused by blowouts, cuts, bruises, rim cuts, under inflation, wheels out of alignment, faulty brakes, or any other road hazard.

Ask a Gutta Percha dealer to show you this great lower-priced tire. Then put ROADCRAFT on your car. You will get more mileage, and greater safety in every mile.

GUM CUSHIONS

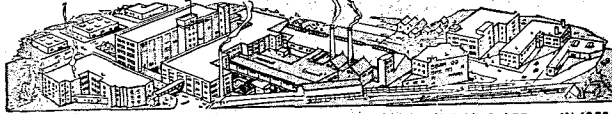

An Extra Value

ROADCRAFT Tires have Cushions of pure gum rubber moulded in between the plies of cord fabric, making a "bearing" that reduces friction and wear at these points as effectively as ball bearings do in machinery.

What is Your Little Baby's Life Worth?

Do you know that in the past, hundreds of infants have been needlessly sacrificed every year to the ravages of the common house-fly?

At the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto last year, it was proved conclusively after months of intensive research, that "Summer Complaint" or Infant Diarrhoea is directly caused by the invisible poisonous specks spread by the common house-fly, everything with which they come in contact.

If every Mother and every Father could be made to realize this tragic fact such a war would be waged against house-flies that they would soon become curiosities.

A little common sense and care is all that is needed to give the protection that will save these valuable little infant lives.

Cleaning up all unsightly and unsanitary places around the home, keeping food covered so that flies cannot settle on it, using screens on all doors and windows will help. But the most efficacious method of all, of course, is to kill the flies themselves as they are quickly and thoroughly effected by the use of Wilson's Fly Pads for an hour or two daily during the Season. They will keep the dwelling absolutely free from these dangerous and disgusting pests. Just as was waged against the Mosquito to combat Malaria so must war be waged against the common house fly to eliminate infant mortality from "Summer Complaints."

Reserve Friday afternoon, August 11th, for the Y. O. N. Bridge and Tea, to be held at the Pines Golf Club House. Everybody welcome.

Mr. Anderson left yesterday for Boston but will return in time to attend the annual convention of the Nova Scotia Union of Municipalities, which meets at Liverpool on the 28th, 29th and 30th of this month. He states it was his privilege to attend this body some thirty years ago.

Yarmouth Herald Presents Centenary Edition

The Yarmouth Herald is to be congratulated on its Centenary edition of August 8th. With that issue the "Herald" celebrated the commencement of its first century of service—and one hundred years is a long time in the life of any newspaper.

The Herald is one of the oldest papers published in Canada, and has the unique distinction of having been controlled by the same family for three generations. The paper was founded by the late Alexander Lawson, who was succeeded by his son, the late J. Murray Lawson, and in more recent years by his son, Donald, a grandson of the founder.

A century in public service is the fine record of the Yarmouth Herald, one of the brightest of Nova Scotia's weekly newspapers. Again we congratulate the Herald and its publishers on their splendid achievement, and it is our wish that after another century has rolled by, the Herald will be going stronger than ever.

Mrs. G. R. Erb, of Saint John, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baxter.

Miss Mary E. Beaton, who has been visiting her mother at the Adams' Cottage, returned to Boston on Saturday.

Miss Kathleen Hartwell, of Boston, who has been spending the winter months in Mexico, arrived last week to spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Harris, at the Racquette Garden.

DR. KIRKUS GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS OF GERMAN SITUATION

That "Hitler has magnetism, courage, conviction, and offers a programme leading to a definite conclusion," was a statement made by Rev. F. M. Kirkus, D.D., of Wilmington, Delaware, and Digby, in an address to the Digby Kiwanis Club, at the Pines Hotel, on Monday.

The subject of Dr. Kirkus' address was, "Impressions of the Existing German Situation." He spoke from the impressions he had gathered, largely based on his experience covering sixteen months of residence in Germany, and subsequent to his leaving there (less than a year ago), on letters from friends, mostly Americans, who had remained in Germany during his residence in Germany, was in charge of the American Episcopal church in Munich, Bavaria.

He said that he found the Bavarians people just like other human beings all over the world—kind, happy, peace-loving and friendly. Everybody (judging by American standards), seemed poor. As a people they face privation and deprivation, a far better spirit than Americans. "I saw more signs of want and distress every day in Munich than during the whole winter in Philadelphia, but I heard more complaining about hard times in a week at Munich than I did in sixteen months in Munich," he said.

Dr. Kirkus stated that the Germans he met were tough, patient, admittedly defeated and distressed, but determined to bring their nation back to the place which was formerly held in Europe. "I have never met a German who would admit his government's responsibility for the world war," he said, "but they apparently have no hatreds or fixed enmities except for France, which seems to be deep-rooted."

The Germans are intensely patriotic and nationalistic. Their politics were in a state of dire confusion. His impression was that the old people were rather hopeless and the young people baffled and perplexed, while those of middle age, who hold the reins of power and direct the activities of their country, were about as sane and sane as they could be. They were making progress under existing conditions, but everybody seemed patriotic in the best sense, showing no disposition to desert Germany and seek their fortune in other lands, and rather to stand or fall with their country and work with all their might for her rehabilitation.

In his reference to Hitler, Dr. Kirkus stated that less than three years ago he was regarded in Germany as a sort of nonentity or upstart; today he is the man of the hour in Germany. He told how in 1931 he, with a friend attended a Hitler meeting. He judged that 7,000 people, more than half of them young men, were present. They were in the audience. He told how the present German chancellor held his audience spellbound for nearly two hours.

"I have no guess even to the secret of his power. An orator, a good deal of a demagogue, almost all the bad qualities on the surface a political leader can have. Yet his following has grown by leaps and bounds, and people who once denounced and despised him are now among his followers. He has magnetism, courage, conviction, and offers a programme leading to a definite solution."

He urges the young men of Germany to get right to work—anything, rather than nothing. "The blots on the picture are Jew-baiting, literary bores, debt repudiation, domination of the church by the old family tea of the Maritimes; the substitution of a dictatorship for a representative form of government; coercion of Austria, etc."

"It looks now as though Germany stands alone—but all Europe is in a state of mutual suspicion," he said. "Every nation is bent on Economic Nationalism, which is sort of an enlarged selfishness. Selfishness is the key-word of all our times, and Christian Charity is the key word to their solution."

STILL SOLD AT THE OLD PRICE.

Tea consumers are particularly interested in the tea market these days when the primary markets in India and Ceylon are advancing at such a rate and it is more than satisfactory for them to know that "the good old family tea of the Maritimes," as Morse's Standard Tea is known, is still available at the old price of 40 cents per pound package. Furthermore the good quality that made it famous is maintained too. More than ever it is true that at 40 cents it offers exceptional value. The blenders of Morse's Standard Tea have on hand a considerable quantity of the tea which entered into this blend, which had been bought at the prices which prevailed before the advance in the primary market began. As long as this supply lasts Maritime tea consumers will have the advantage of being able to buy "the good old family tea of the Maritimes" in the same good quality and at the same price of 40 cents per pound package.

REV. L. W. MOSHER SAVES THE LIFE OF YOUNG TOURIST

His attention attracted by the terrified cries of a small girl, Rev. L. W. Mosher, rector of the Anglican churches of Weymouth, who is now spending his vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mosher, Dartmouth, on Tuesday afternoon plunged into the water of the channel at Port Wallis Locks, in that town, and carried out a ten-year-old girl who had got beyond her depth and was being carried out into Lake Michaud. The child, a member of a picnic party, is believed to have stepped into a hole near the mouth of the channel which leads to the Locks. Mr. Mosher's quick action undoubtedly saved the life of the child. She was revived soon after her rescuer, who plunged into the water without stopping to remove clothes or shoes, carried her out. The child's name is Ruth Fenerty, and she was with a party of tourists from Massachusetts who were spending the day at the locks.

VOICES APPRECIATION OF BAND

To the Editor of the Courier: Sir—I wish to express the general feeling of commendation there is for the Digby Civic Band. The citizens and visitors to Digby have equally enjoyed the concert programmes. The fine courtesy of playing the national hymns of the United States in conjunction with hymns of Canada and the Empire, out of regard for the many visitors to Digby, has been appreciated. I have noted also, the same custom in the Kiwanis Club.

I would like to add a further word of praise for the reverent attention of the very finely modulated accompaniment of the members of the Band and pianist to the singing of hymns at the Oddfellows' Memorial service. Digby can well be congratulated, and Mr. Yates as conductor, on this civic organization, which has added much to the enjoyment of visitors, as well as citizens, this summer.

Jordantown Road Under Repairs

A crew of highway workmen is now employed on the Jordantown Road, which is now under construction. From the top of the hill at Marshallow to the corner, the road is being widened and graded. Considerable work is also being done on the lower road leading to the main highway. This work is not being done before it was needed—it has always been a bit too narrow for comfort, and, since spring, quite rough. Speaking of rough roads, about the roughest stretch of road in the province right now is that stretch from the railway crossing near the Myrtle Hotel to the bandstand.

Miss Helen Smallie, of St. John, is spending a vacation with her father, R. C. Smallie, and Mrs. Smallie, at the Racquette.

The Yates Studio is known as the Little Art Gallery and does not have a name. Its walls are covered with really beautiful Nova Scotian scenes in oil tints and sepia. It is a real visit of inspection.

SHORTSIGHTED DEALERS.

Community stores in their eternal battle with the mail order house and neighboring big town competition have no ally more loyal and effectual than the community newspaper. It is forever championing the cause of the home merchant.

On the whole the merchant is fully cognizant of this relationship and helps his newspaper win his battles for him. This he easily accomplishes through the medium of newspaper advertising, which carries his message to all consumers.

But there are exceptions in all communities. They are penny wise and pound foolish in their advertising policy. A notable example is the community grocer who abandons his customary newspaper advertising because some wholesaler or manufacturer supplies him with handbills for the distribution and part of the printing of which he must pay.

This is the same business man who is so caustic in his criticism of people who do not patronize home industry. The person who buys a bargain bar of soap in the neighboring town is not a good citizen and, in his eyes, is a liability rather than an asset to the community, yet he not only buys his advertising out of town but he pays for somebody else's advertising.

If all business men were like him there would be no newspapers and very little business.

INSTINCTIVE

Many fathers and mothers must be troubled by their children's curiosity about flying. The hen that worried over her chicks when they took to the water was no more concerned, than the mother who sees her sons trot off to the nearest flying field when opportunity offers.

Such comparisons may be drawn between the early attitude toward the automobile and the present attitude toward aviation. Fathers of the flying generation had a terrible time learning to run an automobile and their fathers feared for their safety just as they today are fearing for the safety of their air-minded children. This generation needs no lessons in driving an automobile. It just "picked it up." It was never afraid, had no inhibitions about it, and always enjoyed driving.

Handling an airplane is a new experience for this motor-wise generation. Most persons are in awe of the flying machine. They must be taught to fly. But a generation is coming which will pick it up just as young men and women now have a knack for driving a car that is instinctive.

The evolution of a generation of natural-born flyers is already far advanced. Youngsters can now, after a few hours of instruction handle a plane as well and with as much confidence as old pilots, who learned their art early in the game, after long training.

"What does this country stand for?" asks a patriotic orator. A lot!

Can a memory training correspondence school collect the monthly installments a student forgot to remit?

When the stock market dropped none knew why and when it soared none knew why but it does those things just the same.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Grant, of Yarmouth, called on friends at Weymouth North, on the 2-11, while en route to Digby to spend the week end with relatives.

"HANNAH"

Golden Text:—"A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised."—Proverbs 31:30.

Lesson Passage:—1 Samuel 1:11-24:28; 2:1-2.

Lord, give the mothers of the world more love to do their part. That love which reaches not alone the children made by birth their own. But every childish heart. Wake in their souls 'true motherhood. Which aims at universal good.

A Mother's Prayer, 9, 10

Do modern mothers pray as ancient ones did? There is no way of getting accurate statistics about the matter, but the general impression is that there is at least less formal prayer than there used to be. This does not mean that mother love does not have strong desires for the welfare of her children, but there is less conscious dependence upon God. For instance, an intelligent mother who prays only occasionally has mastered several health books about the care of children and has brought up her children with the minimum of discipline and has given them a happy childhood while at the same time their development has been rapid. Such a mother might say that God has put it in her power to answer many of her own prayers. She would, however, find it helpful to have quiet times, when she thinks of God's will for her children and seeks His help. Such prayers give strength to mothers and have more influence upon children than she mothers ever know. When acute problems arise and a mother is bewildered to know what to do, very often the solution is found in quiet prayer, listening to God's Spirit and asking for His help. Hannah was a wife in a bigamous home. To make matters worse she was childless, a great disgrace for a married woman in ancient days. In her bitterness of soul she vowed that if she was her conviction that her prayer was answered.

A Mother's Vow, 11

Religious vows are less common than they once were, but they are far from uncommon. Some mothers dedicate their sons to the ministry, priesthood or missionary work before the sons are born. Occasionally in gratitude for the deliverance of a child from danger through sickness or accident, a mother will consecrate her child for some special service. It is sometimes said that a parent has not the right to decide the career of a child while it is still in infancy and the practice may be open to criticism. It is not, however, only in religion that such vows are made. A mother may start during the pre-school age to train her daughter to be a singer or a dancer. An acrobat will from early childhood teach stunts to his boy. Many a soldier's widow has told her boy from earliest years that she wanted him to grow up to be a soldier like his daddy. Hannah's dedication of Samuel was made from a religious motive and for a religious purpose. Not only did she promise to give her child to the service of God but she set him apart to be a Nazirite, to go with hair uncut and to drink no intoxicants. This measure of asceticism was to heighten religious devotion. Human nature is sometimes fond of doing hard things as when modern devotees take vows of celibacy, obedience and poverty. The wisdom of such vows is much debated but there is no denying the powerful religious motives actuating those making them.

A Mother's Purpose, 24

Many people have fleeting religious moods lasting but a few days or weeks at most. But Hannah's vow held through several years while Samuel was growing old enough to be taken to Shiloh to be dedicated for his religious duties. She looked forward to the day with eager anticipation, and made ready the provisions and gifts necessary. Taking her son to the priest Eli, she told him that she was the woman who had prayed years before and that her prayers had been answered. In regard to their plans for their children mothers often think in terms not of years but of a whole lifetime. Hannah had but one child but she dedicated him unreservedly to the service of God and the service of public worship. Her life found its highest meaning in that of her son.

A Mother's Loan, 28-29

A very significant phrase was used as Hannah gave her son over into the keeping of Eli, the priest. She said: "I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord." What was in her mind? Was it any easier or harder to loan her son than to give him? In the effect upon Samuel there was no difference, but to the mind of the mother there was a very real difference. The son had been given her by the graciousness of God. She still wished to maintain ownership and assume responsibility. How dearly she would have loved to have her boy with her all the time! She could not bear the thought of giving him up wholly, but she was ready to loan him to God for the whole lifetime of Samuel. She was still his mother. There are mothers who are selfish in their love for their children. Hannah sought to do her full duty both to her son and to God.

A Mother's Joy, 1, 2

What makes a mother happy? All depends upon the mother. The finest car in town or to be presented at some royal court will make a socially ambitious mother happy. A thrilling novel and four motion pictures each week may satisfy a mother who has no spiritual resources of her own. But to a religious mother with a deep love for her children, the highest joy is to see her son receive the same blessing which she has received. The finest car in town or to be presented at some royal court will make a socially ambitious mother happy. Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

"But surely you will admit that a good drink of liquor warms a man up when he is cold." Neighbor had been brought up in the old school of liquor-ology and was not prepared for the "modernism" that seems to be playing fast and loose with many of his pet notions as to the virtues of "a good drink." Farmer Ned, in the midst of his hard worked days, finds time to read and keep abreast of the advancing knowledge of our times, and it was refreshing to hear him pointing out to his good neighbor how easily men are deceived along these lines.

Alcohol creates no heat in the body," he said; "it only seems to. Nature has a way of protecting the body against the ill effects of cold. The small surface blood vessels are tightened up and the warmth of the body kept within where it is needed. Now let a man take a drink of liquor and these little blood vessels are relaxed and dilated so that the blood flows out to the surface of the body more freely. One feels warm, but actually heat has only been withdrawn from within where it is needed and is now being in part given off at the surface. He is really more in danger of cold now than he was before. The wise man was right—'Wine is a mocker.'"

Neighbor Ben seemed about to ask what new doctrine was this. But Farmer Ned had anticipated his question as he went on: "This is after all no new doctrine. I was just reading the other day how Sir John Ross, who made two important voyages of exploration to the polar regions in the first half of last century,

thought for the WEEK

Lord, I would follow, BUT—First, I would see the end of this high road That stretches straight before me, fair and broad; So clear the way I cannot go astray. It surely leads me equally to God. Who answers Christ's insistent call Without one backward look. Must give himself, his life, his all. Who sets his hand unto the plough, And glances back with anxious brow, His calling hath mistook. Christ claims him wholly for his own; He must be Christ's and Christ's alone.

MOOSE POPULATION IS ON INCREASE

The moose population of the Nova Scotia woods is on the increase, forest rangers attending the annual Nova Scotia Guides' Tournament at Lake Williams report.

Practically every cow moose in the woods has at least one or two white twins, even triplets, are far from rare. In fact, members of the ranger service declare that there was probably never a time in recent history when the number of triplets born to cow mooses were so frequently reported in this province.

Questions to Discuss

1.—Is it right for a mother to decide the vocation of her son?
2.—May a business man consciously feel that his life is loaned to the Lord?
3.—Why is asceticism so often associated with religion?
4.—Why may we make every day a Mother's Day?

Guide Is Owner of Old MacMac Book

One of the most unique books in the world is probably that owned by Louis Pictou, well known MacMac Indian guide, of Bear River.

The contents are entirely handwritten in the MicMac language, and give historic facts and interesting accounts of life among the original inhabitants of Nova Scotia up to 150 years ago.

The book, with a snappy red cover, attracted much interest at the annual Guides' Tournament at Lake Williams. Pictou was offered as high as one hundred dollars by a United States collector, but scornfully refused to commercialize the handwork of his ancestors.

The book is one of his most prized possessions and never leaves his person, except at rare intervals when it is to be examined by a favored few. Even then, the Indian guide keeps an eagle eye on it.

claimed that though twenty years older than any of his officers or crew he, a total abstainer, could stand the cold better than any one of them, who all used tobacco and spirits. He tells us that on one of his expeditions they were compelled to abandon their ship and leave behind all their wines, with the result that the men were stronger and able to do their work in these cold regions when they had nothing to drink but "water." Farmer Ned cited also the case of Captain Kennedy who set out with a crew of total abstainers cold," said Farmer Ned, and in search of Sir John Franklin, the Arctic explorer — how they spent many months of exposure and hard work, and returned with all hands in better condition than any crew that up to that time had dared the Arctic. Thirteen other crews, out that same year, too, but not on total abstinence principles. He called attention to such later expeditions as Perry, Scott, Shackleton, and others who found out the same truth concerning alcohol and cold. "It's an old time fallacy, this story about alcohol being a protection against cold," said Farmer Ned, and with this the argument ended.

Digby Folks Enjoy
Camp Meeting Services

A number of people from Digby and the surrounding country motored to Berwick on Sunday and during the week, to attend the services at the Berwick Camp Meeting.

The services are very inspiring and most interesting, and it is well worth the trip to hear Dr. Bonnell, of Winnipeg, the guest evangelist, the Nottingham Quartette, and the Windsor Orchestra. It is expected that a great many from here will attend the services on Sunday.

SANDY COVE

We are sorry to report O. H. Morehouse on the sick list, the result of a bad fall from Conrad Gidney's truck on Thursday, in which he injured his right leg.

Arlington Crowell, cook on Inedre No. 16, at Digby, spent the week end with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Eldridge, of Digby, attended the minstrel show here on Saturday. They were accompanied by Mrs. V. B. Walsh, of Smith's Cove, and Mrs. DeMille Dakin, of Medford, Mass.

Mrs. Guy Morehouse, of Digby, visited her aunt, Mrs. Albert Gidney, recently. We are glad to report that Mrs. Gidney is much better in health.

Mrs. Ralph Morehouse and daughter, of Moncton, have arrived home to spend their vacation with the former's mother, Mrs. Annabelle Eldridge.

Mrs. N. Williams, of Halifax, and Miss Vera Gidney, R. N. of Cambridge, Mass., who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Harris, have returned to their parent's home at Seawall.

Work on the breakwater on the Bay of Fundy side has begun, giving much needed employment to many of our men.

Mrs. Edward MacKay, Miss Lane, (of Boston), and Miss McCully, (of Salem), motored to Annapolis Royal recently. Returning, they called on Mrs. John Koop, at Bear River.

Me Too!

Sir Edward Dawson, at Montreal, recently related an amusing anecdote about the British West Indies and patriotic pride in the colonies.

Sir Edward was at the time president of the West Indies Conference in London, England. He suggested that the Conference be styled as above.

British Guiana, Britain's only colony in South America, asked that her name be added to the title of conference. This was granted.

Then British Honduras, Britain's only colony in Central America, objected and her name was added to the title. Then the Bahamas objected that they be considered a British colony apart. This too was granted and the name Bahamas was added to the title of the Conference. Then Bermuda, to the north, Britain's oldest self governing colony, objected and her name was added to the title.

The title became so long that it was entirely impractical. Finally it was agreed to call the conference simply the West Indies Conference.

The way to be happily married is to obey the laws and pay no attention to the in-laws.

Fish Catches in Canada are Large.

Canada's sea fishermen brought ashore more fish and shell fish, in June than they had landed in June, 1932.

On the Atlantic coast, there was a gain of 9,780 hundredweight and in British Columbia a gain of 8,132, with the total catch for the two coasts amounting to 762,352 hundredweight.

The landed value of the fish and shellfish to the fishermen was $1,556,200 in round figures, which meant a small increase, about $4,900, according to the Department of Fisheries.

On the Atlantic Coast there was a decrease of $84,168, chiefly because of a sharp drop in lobster production.

In Nova Scotia the catches in most of the principal fisheries, except the halibut, herring and mackerel fisheries, were smaller than a year ago.

DeMille Dakin Suffers Painful Injuries in Automobile Accident

DeMille Dakin, a former resident of Sandy Cove and Digby, but now of Boston, is a patient at the Chiquan Memorial Hospital in St. Stephen, suffering from a fractured leg, a result of a head-on collision with a New York car, at Chatham, New Brunswick, on Saturday evening.

One car was proceeding toward St. Stephen while the other—"De Dakin car"—was coming towards Saint John en route to Digby.

Another man, who was with Dakin, escaped with slight face injuries, and was able to proceed to Boston by bus. Occupants of the other car were uninjured.

SOURD ON THE WORLD?—THAT'S LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile

—No Calomel necessary

Many people who feel weak, sluggish, and generally wretched make the mistake of taking calomel, oil, mineral water, laxative candy or chewing gum, or perhaps they move the bowels and ignore the liver.

What you need is to wake up your liver bile. Start your liver pouring the daily two pounds of liquid into your bowels. Get your stomach and intestines working as they should, every day.

Carter's Little Liver Pills will soon fix you up. They are gentle, safe, and reliable. Ask for them by name. Beware of imitations. 50c. at all drug stores.

Laughter was epidemic at Gidney's Hall, on Saturday, during the mixed minstrel show, under the auspices of the "Get Together Workers' Club." The well executed program consisting of vocal solos, duets and choruses, musical numbers, sketches, and dances, reinforced by local hits—the whole replete with sparkling humor—was thoroughly enjoyed by a capacitously house. Dr. F. E. Rice was interlocutor. The music was by Mrs. R. Sypher, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Greenlaw, (organ, violin, guitar). Those taking part in the program were Dr. Rice, Rev. Mr. Forsythe, Bradford Morrell, Colin Crowell, C. Saunders, Clarence Hersey, Hugh Morehouse, Roy Stanton, Roscoe Foster, Aru Morehouse.

DIGBY CALLING

Oh, Digby town's a bonny town,
Set high above the sea;
And all my heart's in Digby town,
The place that's calling me.

Above the city's ceaseless hum
I hear it calling still.
That quiet voice that bids me
"Come!"

Is Digby on the hill.
With blue of sea and blue o' sky
It's always beckoning me
And who would half as soon as I Greet Digby by the sea?

DIGBY

Married

Therault-Comeau

A very pretty wedding took place at the church of "Our Lady of Mount Carmel," Conception, on Monday morning of last week, at seven o'clock, when Georgina Comeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Comeau, became the bride of Simon Therault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dama Therault, of Eriar Lake. Rev. Father Levesque officiating. The mass was sung by the "Children of Mary," of which Miss Comeau was a member. Miss Agnes Comeau presided at the organ. The bride looked charming in a gown of white silk crepe, with the conventional veil and orange blossoms; she carried a bouquet of white roses. Mrs. Leo Saulnier, Meteghan River, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor and Leo Saulnier was best man. After the ceremony breakfast was served at the bride's home to twenty-five guests. The couple then motored to Mr. Therault's home, Eriar Lake, where a large reception was held. After refreshments dancing ensued. Mr. and Mrs. Therault will reside at Eriar Lake.

The way to be happily married is to obey the laws and pay no attention to the in-laws.

Obituary

Arnold Haynes

Word has been received at Victoria Beach of the death of Arnold Haynes, age 34, of that place. He was a member of the crew of the "Annapolis Royal" which sailed from Annapolis Royal for Barbados a few weeks ago after laying up for repairs at this port. The unfortunate man was buried at sea. Details of his death are lacking. He was the son of Joseph Haynes, of Victoria Beach, and beside his father he is survived by one brother, Ralph, also of Victoria Beach. He was unmarried.

C. C. NICHOLL—Weymouth, N. S.

After two years' study of the proper equipment necessary for Digby Co. roads, we have modelled a Funeral Car that is adaptable to our roads at all times, practically similar to the cars used in the larger cities of United States and Canada, demanding instant recognition and traffic rights as a Funeral Car.

Our equipment is valued today at seven times its value—eleven years ago, proving our continual growth. We are constantly adding new equipment as it demonstrates its value to the public.

We employ no agents, entirely soliciting patronage by the merits of our service. Prices are kept down to the minimum and our service the best, with transportation easily possible to and from any point in Nova Scotia.

Between Ourselves

Last week, in a news item, referring to the July meeting of the Digby town council, mention was made of the present state of the town's exchequer—also of the amounts spent on the town streets during the first seven months of 1932, as compared with the first seven months of 1933. According to these figures something more than $1,400 was spent on the streets during this period last year, over and above what has been spent this year.

The question is, has there been a saving or otherwise? Granted, less money was spent during 1933—and the result speaks for itself. Any further comment is unnecessary except to say that I am reminded of an item which appeared in this paper some two or three weeks ago. The item was to this effect: "We have been asked to write an editorial on the condition of the Digby streets. We regret that after driving over them, we were too badly shaken up to attempt it." The same applies today.

Well, the election campaign is warming up in great shape. It's going to be an interesting battle, and from all I can hear of the street, both sides are going to win with flying colors. A commercial traveler assured me the other day that after the ballots are counted on the 22nd, the government would have a majority of twelve seats in the house. A prominent liberal in Digby tells me he expects a majority of at least ten seats for the opposition, after the election. There, we have the results in two nutshells.

But, to me, the most interesting part of this campaign is the reading of the two Halifax daily papers. If it weren't for the Herald and Chronicle our elections would lose most of their pep. It doesn't pay to take them too seriously, and I believe it might be a good idea to keep the old salt shaker handy.

This is the church garden party season. So far as I have been able to learn none of the proceeds have been too bad in fact, taking everything into consideration, they have been mighty good. Of course they are not up to what they were a few years ago, but that is not to be expected. It seems that no matter how depressing times are, there is some money in circulation to help a worthy cause.

And, speaking of "a worthy cause" right now in the time and right here is the place for me to say another word for the Digby County Children's Aid Society. On Nomination Day (next Tuesday), the Digby Children's Aid Society are holding a Tag Day and right there will be your very own opportunity to do our bit by buying a tag. The society will be grateful for any contribution—large or small. Every cent you give them will do its share toward educating, clothing and feeding some unfortunate child in YOUR county. Could any cause be much more worthy than that? These kiddies need your help, and through the medium of the Society you can help them. These children of today will be the citizens of tomorrow, and the Children's Aid Society is doing everything in its power to make the right kind of citizens of them. In dollars and cents the Children's Aid Society is saving the town and the Municipalities of Digby and Clare hundreds of dollars a year. They are doing much more than saving money for the town and municipalities—they are helping their young wards by finding homes for them and placing them in the proper surroundings when necessary.

It is only in extreme cases that the Children's Aid Society removes a child from the home of its parents. When possible, the child is left with its parents under the supervision of the society's agent. There are, unfortunately, a great many of the "extreme cases", some due to poverty, some to mental delinquency of the parents, some to mental delinquency in the children, and some to two or all of the above named causes. The Children's Aid Society works on the principle that it is easier to build than to rebuild. In reconstruction there is waste that cannot be avoided. This is true in the building of a character or making of a life as it is in the erection of material structures. Thus, the utmost attention must be given to the conduct of children, and particularly to the actions of that number classed as delinquents.

In childhood habits are not fixed irreversibly. Moral nature is still plastic and unformed, and thus is easily moulded. It is in childhood that most criminals commence their careers—the mischief of the child frequently becomes the crime of the man. It is the aim of the Children's Aid Society to take these delinquent and over-mischievous children, and place them in the right environment to build up their characters.

Help the children and the Children's Aid Society by buying a tag on Nomination Day.

English School Boys Will Pay a Visit to Digby

Edward Shackleton, of London, England, son of the late Sir Ernest Shackleton, famous explorer of the Antarctic, who recently came to Canada to make arrangements for an educational tour by a party of ten English public school boys, arrived in Moncton recently and was met by Canadian National Railways passenger officials with whom he conferred relative to the movement of the party through the Maritimes. Arrangements have been made for a stop-over in Moncton, and also to visit the seaside town of Shediac, on the south shore of the Strait of Northumberland. Mr. Shackleton visited Shediac and while there conferred with Dr. J. Clarence Webster, P. R. C. S., and a member of the Historical Sites and Monuments Board of Canada. The party will arrive at St. John's, Newfoundland, on August 10th, and, after visiting that dominion, will cross over from Port aux Basques to North Sydney, reaching there on the morning of August 17th, from where they will make a tour of the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

The tentative itinerary provides for their visiting Halifax, August 18th to 22nd, leaving that city on the afternoon of the latter date for Kentville. Leaving Kentville the following day, the party proceeds to Yarmouth and will leave Yarmouth on Saturday, August 26th for Digby, crossing over from this town to Saint John, and reaching the latter city in the evening of that day. Remaining in Saint John over Sunday, the party will proceed by boat to Fredericton the following day, Monday, returning to Saint John Tuesday, and will leave Saint John on the 30th for Charlottetown, which they will reach the same evening. They will afterwards proceed by easy stages to Montreal, and will sail from that city on Friday, September 22nd, on the steamer Ascania, for the trip back to England.

EAST FERRY

(Held over from last week.) Charles Fyfe and brother Arleston, accompanied by Misses Viola and Lida Therault and Lila Gasson motored to North Range on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Carman Trask, of Boston, are visiting relatives here. Miss Eunice Stanton, of Boston is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Stanton.

Mrs. Harley Therault has returned home after visiting her parents at Centerville. Mr. and Mrs. James Eldridge have returned home after visiting friends at Yarmouth and other places. The men of this place are engaged in building a new road across the fields.

Mrs. Kathleen Murton spent the week end with friends at Mink Cove. Mrs. Stanley Merritt and family, of Saint John, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Chas. Mrs. Arthur Harris visited Mrs. Roy Stanton, at Sandy Cove, one day last week.

Rev. C. L. Chute, of Little River, held service here on Monday night. Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Frost, of White Cove, was the ever night guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Eldridge recently. Judge J. A. Grierson has reserved judgment in a suit, the outcome of which will be of decided interest to fishermen throughout the province. The case was tried at Annapolis Royal. Sheriff Hawesworth seized, under execution, at Lower Granville, a boat belonging to John McWhinnie and the fishing gear in the boat McWhinnie, in turn, brought replevin action against the sheriff on the grounds that the boat and gear constituted his only means of livelihood.

CLOAKING!
THE VITAL ISSUES

LAck any grounds of criticism, the Opposition have been cloaking the issues of this election with hullabaloo and misrepresentation of the real . . . vital issues before the people of Nova Scotia today.

Let there be no mistake—this Government stands upon its record and is content to stand upon its record. BECAUSE IT IS STANDING ON SOLID GROUND.

THE MAIN ISSUE OF THIS ELECTION

The main issue before the people of Nova Scotia on August 22, is not whether the Opposition is anxious to regain power or not. The issue is whether the people want the Harrington programme of advanced legislation—the measures passed or the measures in view and yet to come—to be put into operation and carried into their full effect.

Does Nova Scotia approve of what the Harrington Government has done and plans to do?

Does Nova Scotia want HARRINGTON TO CONTINUE HIS WORK?

That is the real issue before the people of Nova Scotia on August 22nd.

THE RECORD OF THE FACTS

Study the RECORD OF THE FACTS. Realize what the Harrington Government has already accomplished for the people of Nova Scotia in every walk of life—for Nova Scotia's industries, for her farmers, miners and fishermen—for business prosperity . . . and particularly for women and children.

Nova Scotia is coming out of the long trough of depression. The wave of returning prosperity has begun to lift the bow. All Canada feels it.

Is this the time to change the pilot?

Is this the time to put untried, untrained men (or men of the old crew who have been tried too well) in charge of the ship . . . men without compass or chart . . . men who see nothing but dark clouds and fog . . . men who care nothing for the course which has been laid down . . . whose only anxiety is to obtain command?

KEEP THE VITAL ISSUES CLEAR

If you approve of the Harrington Government's measures of social justice . . . social progress and reform . . . if you realize the unique financial position maintained by the HARRINGTON GOVERNMENT throughout these terrible years of depression—the most severe that modern times has known . . . if you want to see the good ship Nova Scotia ride to the crest of the wave, do not let them cloak or begot the issues. Keep your eye on the RECORD OF THE FACTS.

Hold Sing Song Under Full Moon

A sing-song under a full moon and around a big bon fire, varied the routine and added to the interest of the Thursday evening weekly meeting of the Y. P. S., of Centreville. The place chosen for the bon fire, under over-branching trees, was ideal, and the music of familiar hymns and quaint old songs, as it floated from the hillside, attracted an unusually large number to the meeting. Rev. Mr. Forsythe gave an interesting account of the recent third annual Maritime convention of the Young People's societies, held at Sackville, at which he was a delegate.

Market in Spain for Canadian Eggs

In Spain brown eggs are preferred and obtain higher prices, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. Barcelona is the principle egg market followed by Vigo. There is considerable importation of eggs into Spain, consumption per capita being extremely high. The poultry farm in the modern sense of the word is practically non-existent and the local production does not suffice the needs of the Spanish people. Argentina, Uruguay and Chile send eggs to Spain during August to December; Turkey, all the year round; Morocco, June to December; Bulgaria, March to September; Yugoslavia, January to April; Egypt, all the year round. Some Spanish firms in Barcelona are interested in Canada as a source of supply, particularly for 65-gram brown eggs. Quite recently eggs from the Irish Free State have entered this market.

BAND NOTES

Two more concerts at the Pavilion during August are announced—one at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, and one on Sunday afternoon, August 17th, and one on Sunday afternoon, August 20th. On the following Sunday afternoon (August 20), a concert of unusual interest will be played on the Pines Hotel lawn, and will doubtless attract many visitors. This entertainment is provided by the Town Council, and the beautiful grounds at the Pines are thrown open to the public through the courtesy of the Pines Management.

The town appropriation for August concerts, being adequate to cover the proposed program of six concerts, it has been suggested that the Band play a special concert Thursday evening, the 24th, as a Band Benefit, to give our townspeople, and especially our summer visitors, an opportunity of showing their approval of the band's efforts in a substantial way by providing the necessary funds to keep the band going for the next eight or more months during which the band has little opportunity to earn anything. About $500 will be needed, in addition to the full amount set aside by the town for band purposes. The band equipment is far from complete, and some of it is borrowed, while some of the instruments will need repairs or renewal before being suitable for a better band next summer.

The ladies of Barton are providing an enjoyable picnic of Bachelors and Forty-Fives at Union Hall, this evening, the proceeds to be divided between the Digby Hospital and the Band.

A communication from St. George's Lodge, I. O. O. F., to the Director, in reference to the recent memorial services in which the Band took part, expresses "the thanks and appreciation of the Lodge," "much favorable comment by the members as well as the visitors," and concludes by "wishing you and your band, of which we are all proud, every success."

Next Week To Be a Busy Week

From all appearances we have a busy week ahead of us. Tuesday will be Nomination Day in Digby, when the candidates offering for election will be officially nominated. The two candidates, as you all know, are J. Willie Comeau, of the opposition, who is seeking re-election, and John L. P. Robichaud, who is contesting this seat for the government. Both candidates are expected to speak, and thousands of people are expected to be present to hear them.

Nomination Day will also be a big day at St. Bernard's, where a clam chowder supper will be served in aid of the new church in that parish.

On Wednesday the annual Hospital Fair will be held in Victoria Park. This is always a big and important event in Digby.

On Friday, at Clementsport, the annual service at the Old St. Edward's Church, will be conducted. At this service two tablets will be unveiled, one in memory of the late Chief Justice Harris, and the other in memory of the late E. F. Morse. Prominent Church of England dignitaries and clergymen will take part in the service.

Does Advertising Bring Results?

A few weeks ago someone inserted an advertisement in the Courier asking for a companion to accompany them on a motor trip to Montreal. We have been informed that within less than an hour after the paper appeared on the street, a party willing to pay a share of the expense, was found.

Last week we published a similar want ad, only this time it was for a summer tourist wishing to join a party motoring to Montreal. Before noon on Friday all arrangements had been completed.

The moose population of the Nova Scotia woods is on the increase. Forest rangers attending the annual Nova Scotia Guides' Tournament at Lake Williams, report.

NOMINATION DAY BRINGS CROWDS

One of the largest crowds ever to come to Digby for any occasion was on Tuesday last for the Nomination Day speeches at Victoria Rink. It is estimated that some five thousand were present, every bit of standing room in the rink was taken, and hundreds were unable to gain admittance.

Major M. C. Denton was chairman of the meeting. He asked that the audience be orderly and listen attentively to the addresses. The first speaker was John L. P. Robicheau, government candidate. Mr. Robicheau spoke of the record of the Rhodes Harington Government, its up-to-date social legislation, and the development of roads and other public utilities in the country.

J. Willie Comeau, sitting member, and candidate of the opposition party followed Mr. Robicheau in his address. Mr. Comeau made reference to Nova Scotia's huge funded debt, government extravagance, pre-election high way work, and attacking in general the work of the government. Mr. Robicheau was unable to get a hearing when the time came for his rebuttal. He was shouted down by what appeared to be an organized, drunken and disorderly crowd, much to the disgust of some thinking voters, regardless of their political beliefs. Up to that time the meeting was as orderly as such meetings usually are, but the last minute tactics of an apparently organized gang were a disgrace, not to the speaker, but to the party they claimed to support. Liberals and Conservatives both have expressed their disgust.

A New Industry at Little River

A new industry, known as the Little River Fish Products Company, already giving employment to ten commenced operations at Little River last week. The new firm is under the management of John C. Brown, of Glasgow, Scotland, who has had more than a quarter of a century's experience in the manufacture of fish by products and allied industries. This Little River industry buys from the fishermen and fish plants along the Neck, and otherwise unmarketable fish. This is manufactured into meal for poultry and other uses. The new firm is claimed to be the product is rich in proteins and minerals, is an excellent bone builder, and a splendid remedy for rickets.

Mr. Brown is finding a market for his product in Canada, and is convinced that as Canadian agriculturists become better acquainted with the benefits of fish meal, the market will show a substantial growth. The best market is in the European countries, and Germany is the biggest consumer in the world.

WE HEAR FROM BOTH SIDES

It is against the policy of the Courier to publish any political articles whatever, except as a paid ad. This week we have been rushed, and when the editor was asked to publish a letter he was too busy to argue the point and rashly consented. We were sorry immediately afterwards but could not see any way of getting out of the hole we had dug for ourselves, until the next day brought Mr. an article favoring the other side—and we are publishing both so that our readers can not say that we favor one side over the other.

See Good Points in Government

To the Editor of the Courier: Sir—Permit me, through the columns of your paper, to express my satisfaction with the Harrington administration. The act of establishing a Department of Agriculture should especially be given enthusiastic endorsement by the people. Moreover, as the art of soil tillage was probably practised by the early Acadians in this province before any where else in North America, such a step should have been taken long ago, as was done by other provincial governments as well as by the federal. I also would like to commend the present government for the establishment of Rural Nursing services, as well as by legislating to improve the workings of the old Compensation Act in the interest of labour. Indeed, I find here, as well as in Western Canada, that the conservative policy has always been more sympathetically adjusted to the needs of the people, than the policy of the Liberal party, in spite of protestations to the contrary. And as for the low tariff policies of the Liberal party I find that they have principally existed in the imagination. A vote for Harrington is a vote for good government.

The Government Ox

The Government ox has become very great. He is out hauling gravel both early and late; But after election he will be out in For as sure as you live, he will have to be sold. The Government ox, he is one of the best. Whether stall fed or working, he is ever at rest; But after election he will have to be sold. For as sure as you live he'll be out in the cold.

The Government ox, he is full of the Blood. And if you are poor and you haven't a dud. And the town should assist you to help you get by. You will sure lose your vote—we can not tell why.

If you are full of the Blood, then you're sure of a job. So try and please and keep clear of the mob.

Band Notes

A real test of the Band's ability to please a large and critical audience will come next Sunday afternoon at the Pines Hotel where an interesting program will begin at 4 o'clock. The Band with its more than 40 players, will fill one end of the large veranda which provides a fine stage. The spacious lawn and the beautiful grounds around the swimming pool will make a beautiful setting for the event with ample room for the large audience that is expected if the day is fine. Everybody is invited. The concert will be played rain or shine.

Stranger will appreciate the fact that the Digby Civic and Junior Bands were organized only eight months ago, and include some juvenile players about the age of ten or twelve years. With this in mind, the audience will not be so severe in its criticism—and on the other hand the performance will probably give them a very pleasant surprise. Director Yates has prepared a varied and interesting program.

Next Thursday night's concert at the Band Stand will take the form of a Benefit Performance for the Band. The Band is not paid for playing this concert and therefore it must depend upon its friends and the general public for a large contribution to make this voluntary concert worth repetition. $500.00 is the objective set to be raised for Band maintenance by its own efforts, in addition to the amount set aside by the Town Council.

The best wishes of the Band for his speedy recovery are extended to Drummer Syd Hall who is convalescing from a recent operation at the Digby Hospital.

After you hear the Pines Concert next Sunday, if you want an entirely new sensation in the music line go hear the Negro talent at the new Butler Progressive Hall in Acadiaville next Wednesday night. The Digby Band and the Weymouth Jubilee Singers will furnish the fun.

HIGH QUALITY AND LOW PRICE BOTH MAINTAINED

The primary tea markets in India and Ceylon have been advancing as a consequence of the export restriction scheme now in force there and as a consequence of the rise in sterling exchange. In fact the advance has gone so far that when the teas now being bought by the trade enter into consumption advances will without doubt have to be made. At the present price of 35 cents per pound package Moore's Bluebonnet Tea is therefore particularly good value. It has all along been better value than many of the 40-cent package teas, but the situation has now arrived at the point where it is in cost for the consumer than any bulk tea imported at today's primary market prices could be sold at. It is the intention to keep the price of this remarkable blend at the present popular price of 35 cents so long as the blenders' stocks of tea bought at the old price remain. The high quality will be maintained too. The Government ox, he is now very bold.

But after election he will have to be sold.

Now the poor little ox could not live without work. And a Liberal ox, he never would shirk. Why the ox is as good as could ever be found. So they'll give him the job to haul pensions around.

If the government stands, the pension is paid—No more solemn promise could ever be made. Should that thing occur, be you poet or sage. The ox will distribute the pension of age.

UNITED GOLD FIELDS RESUMES AND EXTENDS OPERATIONS

A very extensive mine development programme is now under way at the properties of the United Gold Fields of Nova Scotia, Ltd., on their properties at Brookfield Mines, N. S. These properties, after a very successful diamond drilling test were developed along the most modern lines. A shaft was sunk to a depth of 410 feet vertical opening up the valuable ore bodies on the 100-foot, 200-275-foot and 400-foot levels. Assay tests of the ore from the various levels indicated large ore deposits of good commercial value, showing marked improvement in both width and enrichment as the work went to lower levels.

After extensive operations last year a small force of men was employed on the property all winter, to allow for examinations and also negotiations for future financing for these important properties.

ENJOYABLE PARTY AT GOLF CLUB

Through the courtesy of O. C. Jones, manager of the New Pines Hotel, an afternoon tea and Bridge was held on Friday last at the Pines Golf Club House, for the benefit of the Victorian Order of Nurses. Bridge was played at sixteen tables, when prizes were won by Mrs. Driffield, Miss Shreve, Miss Cook, Miss O. Rudock and Mrs. Frank Jones.

On the wide veranda with its beautiful panoramic view of water, hill and dale, the tea tables were spread, looking very inviting with the lovely flowers and tempting dainties. Here Mrs. O. C. Jones and Mrs. Abbott poured refreshing cups of tea for the guests. Among the many patrons was Miss Agatha Stewart, who entertained as her guests a party of twenty-five friends.

An atmosphere of social gaiety pervaded the whole entertainment and everyone appeared to have a very happy time.

UNITY OF PURPOSE

"United we stand, divided we fall," is a motto often quoted. It applies to all who are trying to found good business in their own communities. If the people of a town are divided on any problem, they won't have much success in solving it. If one element want to spend money for a schoolhouse, while an equally strong element want to spend it for improved streets, the chances are that it will be a long time before they get either schoolhouse or streets.

So it is in regard to our home town business. If one element of people here in Digby is trying to build up home town business by buying their supplies at home, while another element is only interested in visiting other places to buy things, then there is a harmful division of opinion and lack of unity. We must stick together, or we shall not make progress.

SONG OF THE SAW

The business boosters all say they want to hear the sounds of the hammer on jobs of building construction. But before you can hear the sound of the hammer, you have to hear the sound of the saw. That it is being heard was indicated by the report of lumber mills, that orders the first week in August were much higher than the average. Usually the first week in August is a very flat week.

Looks as if some people have got tired of living in doubled up families and had determined to build some new home nests. The saw and the hammer make a more cheerful song just now than any music the bands can play.

HICK TOWNS

The phrase "hick towns," used to be applied only to quite remote villages. But now any town may be a "hick town" in popular parlance. Some of the big cities are the worst hick places there are. What constitutes hickness anyway?

A hick town might be defined as one that is behind the times. Modern statistics tell us to keep clean and finished looking communities, to provide such public advantages as can be afforded, to push business and community interests.

A village of 100 people may be so pleasing and enterprising that it has a metropolitan air, while a city of 100,000 may tolerate such slack conditions that it is fairly called a "hick town".

WEAK PARENTS

The making of the modern gangster begins in the home. The parent who deprecates his sad end may be the one who fated him to that career. At least this is the conclusion to be drawn from a survey of 200 criminals serving life sentences at the Charlestown, Mass., state prison. Failure to control the child's greed and selfishness is the start of the trouble, say these unfortunate men.

The parent who can't rule his child is a pitiable spectacle. His weak policy may be fitting the boy for prison life. Some children of course seem incorrigible, but there are few who won't respond to treatment that is both firm and kind.

MEN'S AND WOMEN'S SHOES

The last census of the shoe business in the United States showed that women bought $420,000,000 of shoes in a year, while the men only bought $312,000,000. Yet the men probably walk quite as much—and much more than the women. Women's shoe bill is increased by the demand of the sex for novelties of style. Women will buy pretty and stylish shoes before their old ones are worn out.

In the days of long skirts, many women used to feel that their old and shabby shoes were concealed. Long skirts may be the style for formal dresses, but the rest of the time the lady's foot is still in the public eye, and she is very proud of that foot. The shoemaker who can make it more beautiful is headed for Easy Street.

The school pupils without ambition will never pass examinations, and the community without civic ambition will never go on to the higher grades.

Prominent among the "forgotten men" are the business men whom people do not remember except when they are selling tickets or soliciting contributions.

If national patriotism, telling us to support the interests of the country, is a good thing, local patriotism, telling us to back up our home town, should be equally good.

Between Ourselves

Again, I am going to cut my prattle short. You can thank the election for that, but 'tis an ill wind that blows nobody good."

At election time there is certain work in our line that can't be started until such and such a time, and must be finished before a given date. It means lots of hustle and bustle and some worry—and there is the only printing plant in the county. Consequently, it makes it impossible to devote as much time as usual to the paper this week, but, nevertheless, we will give you as good a paper as circumstances permit.

By the time the Courier makes its appearance next week, the election will be a thing of the past—the excitement of the campaign will be over. Possibly a few of those who have hardly been on speaking terms since it started, will be the best of friends again. Many will have seized the opportunity to shout from the housetops, "I told you so."

I wonder what the outcome will be after the ballots are counted? Will there be a change of government, or will the present government continue to hold the reins of power? That question is left to the voters of Nova Scotia to answer on Tuesday next, and why should I say a word in support of either side?

Both parties have their faults and both parties have their good points. Both have made their mistakes in the past, and both have many more to make in the future. Neither is as black as it is painted by its opponents, and neither is as righteous as some of its supporters would have us believe. In the name of politics, honesty is often somewhat strained. With some folks it seems about the only name in which it is "fair to heat."

Our ballots will decide the election—I will not go so far as to say "the fate of the province." You know how you want the election to go—I know how I want it to go; but how it will go you know no better than I do. It is our duty to use our franchise on Tuesday; mark your ballot the way your convictions tell you is the right way, but VOTE—don't be an Esau.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

"Well, we've settled the liquor question. We've all decided we won't drink any more liquor." That is the situation on a recent Sunday as he returned from teaching a Bible Class. For half an hour the members of the class had dined into Isaiah's social gospel, where, among other fine things, they found his challenging word for those "who were mighty in drink."

Now, after we have had our smile with the minister over his good-natured comment, let us note that there was more than a bit of humor in his words. Wasn't there a real flash of good common sense? I rather think that the members of that Bible class had really settled the liquor question for themselves, and in just the way the minister said. Perhaps, after all his humorous words voiced the real attitude of millions of people on this continent, in Bible Classes and out of them, who have actually settled the liquor question so far as they themselves are concerned by deciding "that they will not drink any more liquor." And if millions could for anything they represent a mighty host.

Suppose we go on from this in a definite, honest-to-goodness programme to increase the "never-drink-any-more" movement in length and breadth and depth, massive intelligence, conviction, and good citizenship against the whole liquor business. Will we not create a "Black Watch Regiment" to beat it to a frazzle? O yes, I know the tremendous value and need of law that will register its condemnation, rather than its commendation, of the use of alcoholic beverages, and some day we will take that question up. But today let us think of this—that the only real invincibles against the liquor evil are to be found in the line-up of men and women, young and old, who have decided on the basis of truth and right and brotherly love "not to drink any more liquor."

Whatever we do, or want done, about liquor laws, we must, we must, build up the intelligence, the conscience and good citizenship of our nation to the point where everywhere the liquor trade will die—because it cannot among a people who have "decided they won't drink any more liquor." Bear in mind it is a mighty hard task to kill the liquor business, by law or any other means, among a people who have not resolved that they will not drink any more liquor. Greater than the law of the land is the will and conscience of its people. While we neglect the lesser, let us work with might and main at the greater. The greater will wonder even though the lesser "ferry." But the lesser is powerless without the creative and resistant energy of the greater.

Hobbies

Most of us wish to do one or two things outside of the work which is our daily task. These are the things of which we should make a hobby because of the pleasure we derive in doing what we want to do, releasing us from the routine to which we are more or less committed for various reasons.

A hobby gives much pleasure and satisfaction without any consideration of financial gain. It should be different from our regular occupation, and it should not be costly. Above all it should entail no compulsion, as it should be a perfectly free expression of a personal desire.

People vary so much in their personal desires and in their capacity for doing things that there is the greatest possible range of activities included in the hobbies which are selected. One man collects stamps, another goes in for photography, while still another finds a carpenter's bench or in raising flowers. Whatever the hobby is, it is play, it means doing something that we really want to do.

It is healthful to have a hobby. For the indoor man it is preferable that his hobby take him out of doors. The man or woman who sits all day should have a hobby that calls for muscular activity. In these desirable ways, fresh air, sunshine and exercise are secured in an enjoyable manner, and as a result, health is improved.

The hobby provides a release from the worries of the daily grind, and furnishes a real and active interest. Hobbies help us to overcome the difficulties of life, and make life more worth while. Hobbies are educational because of the opportunity they present for constructive efforts. They provide a means of gaining personal satisfaction through accomplishment, and in every way, promote mental health.

You cannot make yourself cultivate a hobby, but you should give yourself a chance to ride a hobby. Your hobby will be your own, and if it provides an interest, if it gives you pleasure and satisfaction, and if it allows you to escape from business and other worries then it is a good hobby for you.

All we have said amounts to this—we should have some play throughout life and one desirable form of play is to be found in hobbies. Physical and mental health benefit. Life is made more pleasant, and all in all, hobbies are recommended for everyone.

BRITISH SAILORS WERE FIRST WHITE MEN TO TRAVEL LENGTH NORTH AMERICA

In the history of the North American continent there is a deep mystery which has never been satisfactorily cleared up, states the Tourist and Convention Bureau of the Canadian National Railways.

In the year 1668, in the days of Queen Elizabeth, Sir John Hawkins left "Merrie England" to raid the Spanish settlements in Central America. On arrival in Central America a party of the English sailors became marooned. They were lost sight of for some time but eventually turned up within fifty miles of Sydney, Cape Breton, where they were picked up by a French fishing vessel and taken to England and it is inferred that they were possibly the first white men to visit the Ohio River and traverse its valley and to travel the length of the continent. On arrival in England they told their amazing story to the Lords of the Admiralty.

In their travels from Central America to Eastern Canada they picked up the Indian name for Mt. Washington, "Crystal Mountain," as it was called by the natives. Progressing farther north they learned the native term for what is now Montreal, also the name of the Saguenay River. These are the only Indian names they gave which have been identified.

On behalf of the Old Church Committee and the Parish of St. Clement, I wish to extend to you a hearty welcome to our countryside and parish, and, further, to invite you to our Annual Memorial and Decoration Service to be held on Friday, August 18, at 3 p. m., in Old St. Edward's, Clementsport (the Queen of the Basin). This old historic landmark is most interesting, and beloved by many in various parts of the world. Owing to the kindness of His Honor, the late Robert E. Harris, Chief Justice of Nova Scotia; the late Mr. E. P. Morse, of New York and Clementsport; Ven. Archdeacon Vroom and Mr. James Vroom, of St. Stephen, N. B., to the Nova Scotia Historical Society; the late Miss Sophia Godfrey; Mr. A. D. Merkel, of the Canadian Press, for poem; and those who assisted us in our collections, we have some handsome tablets on the walls of this sacred fane. We wish to take this opportunity to thank them all for their interest and kindness, and trust that others will follow their good examples till the old church becomes a "casket of historic gems."

I am asking for two hundred dollars in our collection on August 18th, and I know we shall get it with your help. I wish to take this opportunity to thank our special preacher, the Rev. Canon Underwood, of Bridgetown; for his giving us the address; His Grace, the Archbishop of Nova Scotia; the Archdeacon of Nova Scotia; Canon Morris, and all the Clergy of the Rural Deanery of Annapolis; the Organist and Choir Director, Prof. H. Dean; friends from the choirs of the churches, and all who are assisting in the laudable work.

We desire to place a tablet on the walls each year, and would be glad if any here will say to the Rector: "Put me down for a tablet for 1934." We have now $300 in our Endowment Fund, and our objective is $2,000. If the work appeals to you, here is an opportunity to help. Of our $200 collection, $100 will go toward the Endowment Fund, $50 towards a tablet, and $50 to general expenses.

If you have enjoyed this service a description by you in your home paper will help us. Please send us a copy. Improvements in grounds and building are ever before us.

IN MEMORIAM—MR. E. P. MORSE AND HON. CHIEF JUSTICE R. E. HARRIS

Mr. Morse and The Chief Justice from the very beginning of our work of restoration of this Old Church gave us their whole hearted interest and were always behind us with financial and moral support. They both placed handsome tablets in this sacred fane in memory of their ancestors. In Church and State in their respective spheres they have done their part. They are greatly missed and the memory of their kind deeds will linger long. These tablets to be unveiled and dedicated today are given by Mrs. E. P. Morse and Mrs. R. E. Harris respectively.

DRIVES HIMSELF TO WORK AT 82

And Still Plays a Little Golf

How many of us, when we are 82, will be the equal in health and activity of this vigorous old Scottish engineer? In a letter he says:

"I am from Scotland and on the 7th April, 1910, I am now 82 years old. I drive my Ford car 40 miles over hills and dales to a factory, and can still play a little golf. I have taken the little dose of Kruschen Salts in my cup of coffee every morning for some years, and I believe it is keeping me in good health and enabling me to keep on working at the factories as engineer."

—L. A.

Whether you are still in your 'teens or past your prime, it is neither too early nor too late to start on the 'little daily dose.' Just a tiny, tasteless pinch of Kruschen Salts in your morning cup of tea or coffee! They ensure internal cleanliness, and keep the blood-stream pure. New and refreshed blood is sent coursing to every fibre of your being. Rheumatism, headaches, indigestion and backache all pass by you.

Obituary

Theodore Burgess Brown

Word has been received by friends in town of the passing at Quebec, Long Island, New York, of Theodore Burgess Brown, Brooklyn, husband of Jennie (Phinney) Brown, in the 80th year of his age. Mrs. Brown was formerly of Bear River, and is a sister of Col. E. C. Phinney, of Halifax. The funeral services were held at the chapel of Greenwood Cemetery on July 30th.

Major Charles Elmer Morgan

Major Charles Elmer Morgan, a hero of the Great War, passed away at his home in Bear River last Friday, and his passing is sincerely and deeply mourned by the entire community.

Major Morgan was a distinguished military career, starting with his enlistment in the old Annapolis County Regiment in 1893. In 1914 he received the Long Service Medal from the Militia Department. When the War broke out he volunteered for service in France in the 48th Battalion, going over seas with the rank of lieutenant, and winning his promotion to major on the battlefield.

The late Major Morgan was invalided home on July 12, 1918, and since that time has taken a deep interest in the local Legion Branch, being secretary-treasurer of that organization. He was appointed Inspector of Fisheries for Annapolis County in 1919, a position he held until his death. Major Morgan was the son of the late Edward and Elizabeth (Robbins) Morgan, well known residents of Morganville, a pretty little village a few miles from Bear River, which received its name from the Morgan family who were its founders.

His wife was Lalla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Botsford Rice, of Bear River, who predeceased him ten years ago. He was survived by three daughters, one son, Milton, of Bear River, who also served in the Great War; an adopted daughter, Dorothy, and three brothers, Clarence, of Morganville; William, of Carleton, Yarmouth Co.; and Edward, of Gardiner, Maine. An uncle, Benjamin Robbins, of Centerville, Digby Co., also survives him.

The funeral services on Sunday afternoon were held in the United Baptist church, and were most impressive. Three clergymen officiated, Rev. S. Steeves, of the Baptist church; Rev. C. L. Blanchard, of the United church; and Rev. C. P. Henderson, of the Advent Christian church. Eighty returned men, many of whom had been Major Morgan's comrades overseas, were seated in the front of the crowded auditorium, and the casket, covered with the flag for which he had fought and borne by other officers and men, some of them members of the old 69th, Annapolis Royal Regiment, in which he began his military career. He was laid to rest in beautiful Mount Hope cemetery, with full military honors, the salute of twenty-one guns, and the sounding of the "Last Post."

The annual Digby Hospital Fair, held at Victoria Rink Wednesday afternoon was a grand success in every way. The public accorded the fair its usual hearty support, both as donors and patrons. More than fourteen hundred people paid admission at the door.

Very successful booths were conducted by the ladies of Weymouth and Bear River, selling wares that were contributed by their own towns Digby and near by communities made generous donations of food. Generous donations were received from all the merchants in town, including the jewelry stores, the antique dealers and the Little Art Gallery. FANCY DRESS BALL AT PINES TONIGHT

An entertainment of very special interest is scheduled to take place at The Pines Casino this evening from 8 to 1 o'clock.

Shortly after the Reverend Mr. Gabriel's appeal for funds in behalf of Holy Trinity Church last Sunday a group of interested visitors met to discuss the importance of a liberal response. Besides initiating plans to encourage direct contributions, the ladies present suggested that a costume party be arranged for this evening, and that the profits be donated to the fund for Holy Trinity Church.

This plan serves the double purpose of providing good entertainment for the young people of Digby and for the Summer guests as well as to assist in the work of the oldest of our local churches.

A general invitation is extended—The use of "fancy costumes" (which it is hoped will be general) is not compulsory; prizes for the most original costumes will be awarded, and special games will be arranged from 5 to 9 o'clock for the younger children.

The orchestra from the Pines Hotel will furnish the music.

Refreshments will be for sale, and reservations for tables of Bridge may be had at the Casino this evening. Guests are asked to bring their own cars.

The patronesses will be as follows:—Mrs. Philip Cook, Mrs. Frederick M. Kirkus, Mrs. A. E. Gabriel, Mrs. E. H. Lockward, Mrs. J. W. Merkel, Mrs. George Turnbull, Mrs. P. W. Holdsworth, Mrs. W. C. McKenzie, Mrs. O. C. Jones, Mrs. F. B. Withersbee, Mrs. Allen Shenhon, Mrs. Chas. Power.

The Floor Committee will include The Misses Mary Lynch, Harriet and Adeline Cook, Lois Walker and Phyllis Dakin, and Mrs. Charles Hallenborg; with the Messrs. Warren Byatt, Channing Lefebvre, Richard Lynch, James Thurber, Douglas Cossaboom and Dr. G. Victor Turnbull.

The Pines bus will carry passengers to this event at 30 cents per round trip from Lour Lodge.

Married

SABEAN—HAMILTON

The United Church at Minasville, Hants Co., was the scene of a very attractive wedding on Wednesday evening, August 2nd, when at 7 p. m., Isabelle Amelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton, became the bride of Wilbur Sabean, youngest son of the late Stephen Sabean and Mrs. Sarah Sabean, of Hassetts, Digby Co. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. George Gough, of Noel. The church was artistically decorated in green and white suitable for the occasion. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Harriet Campbell, of Noel.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in her wedding gown of white flat crepe trimmed with white all-over lace with conventional veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of blush roses and maiden hair fern tied with a large white organdie bow. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marion Hamilton, who wore a lovely gown of yellow flat crepe and a black picture hat trimmed with yellow. The groom was attended by a cousin of the bride, William Hiltz, of Noel. The choir sang "O Love Divine and Tender." After the ceremony relatives and friends of the bride gathered at the home of the bride's parents where a buffet supper was served. The bride received many beautiful and valuable gifts. The groom's gift to the bride was a cigarette case, the bride's gift to the groom was a diamond set silver band bracelet, and the organist an amethyst brooch. The bride couple left on the following day for Kentville for a few days before proceeding to Hassetts, where they will reside. The bride was a popular school teacher having taught at New Tusket for the past two years.

Does August Find YOU "Fagged Out"?

Do you wake up in the morning feeling "dead tired"? Unfit to tackle a day's work?
Do "little things" upset you to the verge of tears?
Does your heart palpitate? Your head frequently ache? Is your digestion bad?

Ready to Give Up?

Thousands of other women (and men, too), have felt disheartened and ready to give up before taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Then, in a few short weeks, their shattered nerves and their vitality were restored and their systems rebuilt. Life, once again, became worth living. Grateful letters from 72 different countries bear testimony to the benefits derived from these Pills. There is a very definite reason for the proven value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood-builder. Recent scientific tests made by two practicing physicians on over 50 people recorded remarkable improvement in the Blood Streams of these patients, and the result—improvement in their health was correspondingly great.

Act Through the Blood Stream

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act through your blood stream, and, as it is remembered, the condition of your NERVES and the measure of your vitality depend directly on the condition of your blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills increase the power of the blood to absorb oxygen, which, as any medical authority will tell you, is the great vitalizer of the body.

Oxygenizes Your Blood Stream

By oxygenizing your blood stream, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills invigorate and revitalize your NERVES—make your food digest and really feed your nerves and tissues—carry new strength to every part of your body. Try these Pills. Your Druggist has them—50 cents a package.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Porter Nickerson and was a life-long resident of Freeport. She was about 73 years of age. Surviving her are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Dunn, of Sydney, and Mrs. Robt. Tibert, of Freeport; one son, Samuel, jr., of Sydney; also one sister, Mrs. Edward Thurston, of Yarmouth. The informer has also filed a civil suit against Sydney and Aubrey Westcott on the grounds of trespassing.

Simon Landry, of Yarmouth, spent the week end with his family here.

OUR RESPONSIBILITIES

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—Before this article reaches the reader the tumult and the shouting will have died and there shall have resulted such conclusions as attend all political issues.

Our country will neither be saved nor ruined, irrespective of who shall lead the polls. No matter which way the pendulum swings we shall be governed by reasonable thinking Nova Scotians whose responsibilities are designed to carry on the affairs of a responsible people. On their shoulders shall fall the burden of discharging all public trusts honestly.

Governmental executives, however, are nothing more, nothing less, than the reflection of the people. They can be honest, but we must be, before they can.

If we want patronage, lawlessness, graft, favoritism, and a high handed reckless administration, we can have it. It is well, however, to remember at this particular time, "that righteousness alone exalteth a nation," and that the surest defence we can have lies in the virtue of our inhabitants.

Let us hand down to posterity unblemished, that golden heritage which God has given us, if for nothing else than for the sake of our children and our children's children, and so incorporate into their young lives a patriot's zeal and yeoman's courage that they may carry on undeffiled the affairs of this great province with credit to themselves and honor to the land which gave them birth.

Lord God of Hosts—be with us yet
Lest we forget! Lest we forget!

The yacht carries a crew of twenty-six and had nine guest passengers on board, "bound for such parts of the world as the master directs." The passengers included W. P. Murphy, Pittsburg, owner, R. E. Carr, Acadia, Ill.; P. A. Chisholm, Savannah, Ga.; Lucile E. Maxey, Hopkinsville, Ky.; Nancy P. Lusa, Bowling Green, Ky.; Alma T. Pelly, Gloucester, Ill.; Mary Jane Pelly, Memphis, Tenn.; J. J. Carl W. Cook, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., who has been visiting friends in Digby, returned on Sunday.

Mrs. Ralph Baxter has arrived home from Avonport where she has been the guest of Mrs. Earl Corbett.

Karl C. Bishop, of Fredericton, who has been visiting his parents, Rev. P. E. and Mrs. Bishop, has returned home.

Miss Mary Baxter, who has been visiting Mrs. Alena Thibodeau, of Plimpton, has returned to her home in Digby.

Mrs. Louis Morse and Mrs. Howard Anderson will be the convokers for the V. O. N. tea at the Golf Club house, on Saturday.

William Burgess, of Waterville, accompanied by his mother and Walter Russell, of Cambridge, Mass., is visiting friends at Brighton.

Rev. A. B. Higgins, who is supplying at Grace United Church, and Rev. F. E. Bishop, pastor of the Baptist church, will exchange pulpits on Sunday morning.

The proceeds from the Children's Aid Society tag day, on Nonconformity Day, were in the vicinity of $50.00. The society wishes to express its sincere thanks for all who helped in any way.

Since the election returns were printed on one of the inside pages there has been a slight change. The seat in Cape Breton East, which had been placed in the Conservative column, has been found to have "one liberal by a majority of four. The parties now stand Liberals, 22; Conservatives, 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacKay, of Montreal, who have been spending two weeks at the Adams Cottage, returned on Saturday last. This was their first visit to Digby, and they have expressed themselves as being delighted with our town and surrounding country. They intend to return next summer.

Recent guests at the Adams Cottage include John Simpson, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Walker, Charles Mack, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Capt. of South Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Trask, of Oakland, Cal.; the Misses Irene Butts and Ethel Clark, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Merritt, of Toronto.

Flowers grown from bulbs and plants brought over centuries ago from France, were recently cut and despatched from Grand Pre to Montreal, by Dominion Atlantic and Canadian Pacific Railways. They came from the heart of the Evangeline country and attracted much attention when displayed in the railway office windows in the city's commercial section.

Ivan Shortliffe, editor of "The Tiny Tattler," Canada's smallest newspaper, published at Centreville, is in this country, is visiting the editor of the Courier this week. This young editor is having a great time playing with our type and presses. The page size of "The Tattler" is four inches by six inches. The paper has a circulation of 160 copies and is published at least once a month.

We have been asked to call attention to an error made in an advertisement inserted in last week's Courier, through no fault of the paper, though. The advertisement made the statement that E. J. Therault, barrister, of Digby, had been appointed to act as agent for J. Willie Comeau. Mr. Therault has informed us that Rester J. LeBlond, farmer, of Saultville, was appointed agent by Mr. Comeau.

Interesting concert by Colored Residents

A very interesting and amusing entertainment was given in the new Butler Progressive Hall at Acadiaville, on Wednesday evening. The concert, the first part comprising selections by the Digby Civic Band, and the second part singing and dialogues by colored talent from Weymouth, Digby and Bear River, was very well attended, the net proceeds being slightly over $50. Special mention should be made of the dialogue, "Please Bring On a Man," by Misses Gertrude, Ada and Eva Hill, of Bear River; and of Mrs. Dora Stewart's recitation, "The Colored Help from Jordantown."

GOOD OLD FAMILY TEA

Never was any phrase more descriptive than that by which Morse's Standard Tea is known, namely, "the good old family tea of the Maritimes." At the price for which it sells, 40 cents per pound package, it is exceptional value, particularly in view of the advance in the primary tea markets in India and Ceylon. Not only so, but it is exactly suited to the critical taste of Maritime tea consumers. The firm of J. E. Morse and Company long ago discovered the secret of catering exactly to the tastes of the people of these provinces, who constitute the most critical tea drinking public on this continent. You can trust the discrimination of Maritime tea drinkers and they will tell you that Morse's Standard Tea exactly meets their ideas for flavour and general cup quality.

Steamer Tillie Undergoes Repairs at This Port

The steamer Tillie arrived in port last week with three blades of her propeller broken. The job of making the repairs was taken in hand by H. T. Warner's machine shop crew who did a splendid welding job. The steamer later proceeded to Liverpool with a cargo of pulp wood, shipped from Bear River for the Mersey paper mills.

Lysie Cropley, of Summit, N. J., is visiting her sister, Mrs. G. H. Peters, Mount Street.

J. M. Murley, manager of the Canadian National Telegraphs, Charlottetown, was a week end guest of Mrs. Ada H. MacNeill, Warwick St., on his return from the Rotary meeting at Yarmouth.

Holiday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sully were: Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Douglas and children, of Montreal; Mrs. Charles Myers and Pauline Myers, Saint John; M. J. Red Mulla, Drummondville, Que.; and Edwin M. Sully, Montreal.

While turning a car at Centreville corner last week, Mrs. (Rev.) Ellery Dakin struck a rock, smashing the wind shield. She was slightly hurt. Miss Reida Dakin, who was with her on the front seat, was slightly cut, and Miss Evelyn Dakin, who was in the back seat, was bruised.

A happy reunion was held at the home of Edgar Everett on Sunday when his aunt, Mrs. Fowler, New York, greeted nieces and nephews who, in some cases, had not seen for forty-seven years. Among the party were Harvey Beals, Lawrence-town; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Huley and children, New Germany; LeRoy Beals, Annapolis County, and Miss Lydia Everett, of Saugus, Mass.

Acacia Cottage, the home of Mrs. Redding, was the scene of quite an elaborate masquerade on Friday last, to celebrate the birthday of M. Dunn, a regular guest for quite a number of years. All the guests at the cottage, eighteen in number, participated, each one taking an active part. The costume party was quite in keeping with the occasion and a jolly evening was spent. Prizes were given to the best dressed, the lucky couple being Mrs. Clarkson, representing Rannona, and her partner, Dick Meyers, that of an Indian chief.

Married

Deveau-Saulnier

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Vincent de Paul church, at Salmon River, on Wednesday morning of last week, when the Rev. Fr. Maillet, rector, united in the holy bonds of matrimony Walter Deveau, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent S. Deveau, of Hecanooga, and Miss Esther Saulnier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Saulnier, also of Hecanooga. The bride was attended by Miss Evelyn Deveau, a sister. Eddie V. Deveau was best man. After the nuptial High Mass and the signing of the register, the bridal party motored to Yarmouth. On their return a bounteous wedding dinner was served at the home of the groom.

Stone Cross to Mark First Catholic Church in Clare

On Sunday a monumental stone cross will be blessed at Grosecove, at three o'clock in the afternoon. The cross, built of stones from St. Mary's Bay, will commemorate the erection of the first Roman Catholic church erected in Clare, at Grosecove, in 1769, by the Acadians who returned to Digby county after the "Grand Derangement." Monsieur l'Abbe Bailly de Messier, Vicar-General of the Diocese of Quebec, officiated at the first mass celebrated in the church, in 1769.

Rev. Father Bourneau, F. P. of St. Bernard, as delegate of Archbishop O'Donnell, will give the solemn blessing to the monument, and Rev. Father Maximin LeBlanc, parish priest of St. Alphonse de Clare, and a native of Grosecove, will give the sermon.

Rev. Father Dreaux extends a most cordial invitation to all the people of Digby and Yarmouth counties to be present at the ceremony, and by their presence to give to the people of Grosecove, who are erecting the Souvenir Cross, a mark of interest and of appreciation as descendants of the Acadians of old, who were the pioneers of colonization in Clare.

Five Injured In Motor Accident

Early Friday evening, while returning from a picnic at Acadiaville, Frank W. Robinson, of Digby, ditched his car in order to avoid a collision with one of H. T. Warner's trucks driven by a man named Marshall. Five of the passengers in Mr. Robinson's car were injured, and taken to the Digby General Hospital. They were Mrs. Chester Levy and three children—Donald, Muriel and Richard—and Mrs. Frank W. Robinson. Mr. Robinson himself was cut by flying glass.

Of the five, all have been allowed to leave the hospital with the exception of Mrs. Levy and little Muriel. Mrs. Levy is suffering from a broken lower jaw, and bad cuts about the face and legs; Muriel is very badly cut about the face and chest. Both are doing as well as can be expected. Mrs. Robinson and the other two Levy children suffered from cuts and bruises. Mr. Levy's mother arrived from Windsor on Sunday morning, and returned with the two children.

More Telephones In Use In Digby Communities

According to the "Monthly Bulletin," organ of the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company, thirteen telephones were added to the Digby exchange; four to the Bear River exchange, and one to the Weymouth exchange during the month of July.

In Digby, on June 30th, 436 telephones were listed on the exchange. During July 33 were added. In Bear River 161 were listed, 5 added and 1 removed; in Weymouth 96 were listed and added.

It is interesting to note that while we still have to ring a little bell on the side of our telephone box to call central, that Digby leads in the number of telephones over the larger towns of New Waterford, Springhill and Lunenburg. In Lunenburg an automatic telephone system was installed a few months ago, and, according to the Bulletin, only 406 telephones were listed July 31st, against 69 on the same date in Digby. During the month, Lunenburg lost 4 while Digby gained 33.

INSPIRATION IN THE STARS

One of the disadvantages of cities is that they har man from the stars. City smoke and city lights are twin enemies of astronomy. No country boy, stepping out of doors on a clear and frosty night, can miss the knowledge of other worlds than ours. City lads are less fortunate, for nothing forces them to look higher than the lanterns of the skyscrapers.

Perhaps there are compensations. Inspiration is a fickle jade, bestowing favors by no rule or rote. But it is no small thing that city folk lose the stars. Can it be entirely accident that the birthplaces of great ideas have been so largely spots where skies are clear? Would those sombre, glorious figures of the Hebrew prophets have held the world's thoughts for nearly thirty centuries so largely in their fingers if the high hills of Palestine had been forever overcast with clouds?

It is hard to replace nature with art, but it may be partly possible. Some communities are interesting young and old alike in the useful, interesting and romantic science of astronomy by fostering amateur astronomical societies. And the larger cities, which alone have the financial resources for procuring telescopes and planetariums picturing the entire whirling universe as the astronomers know it.

The best gifts of science to personal culture come when the science is a well loved hobby, not a painful task. Humanly, individually and collectively, would benefit from a universal taking up of such hobbies as astronomy, natural history, the arts and every other department of human knowledge and nature.

FEWER DIE

It was Oscar Wilde who once said, "the only way to get rid of temptation is to yield to it." Its fault as a paradox is that long before it ever was put into words it was believed by a majority of people.

For that reason the following is more surprising: The best way to stave off death is to be sick. That, however, is from another wild—the abyss of nature. Of course, one must remember that all epigrams, and even nature's, are tricks and half-truths.

This latter paradox is suggested by statistics showing that the diseases which cause the greatest amount of sickness, rank relatively low as causes of death. Thus respiratory disorders are responsible for 60 per cent. of the illness in the typical city, but only 20 per cent. of the deaths. On the other hand, diseases of the heart and blood vessels cause only 2 per cent. of the illness, but 24 per cent. of the deaths.

Traffic accidents, industrial accidents and the many other hazards the person in full health and vigor encounters in the argument that they lend force to the argument that the sick bed with its protecting barriers of expert medical and nursing care, is a relatively safe place to be. Being sick today is a less serious thing than it was when medicine and surgery were in the experimental stage and the hospital death rate fluctuated between 60 and 90 per cent. of all patients.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

As I rose to leave my table in a restaurant the other day, I noticed two young women in the next booth indulging themselves in smoking cigarettes. Course they broke no civil law and some would say they broke no law of morals or good taste. But I could not help being sorry that two young women in the fairest blush of maidenhood should be really spoiling themselves by making love to the cigarette. And I commented in this fashion on the incident a day or two later in a little circle of neighbors. "Ah, there you go," ventured the perky Miss Smith, "making me a bit by surprise. If those two girls wanted to smoke cigarettes it was no one's business but their own. What harm is there in a cigarette anyway? Boys and men use them and no one says a word about it, but as soon as a woman puts one in her mouth stalks folk lift their hands in holy horror. Things aren't like they used to be and I for one am glad that the women of today have spunk enough to do as they like as well as men."

Well, that is a pretty good mouthful to get all at once, and from a young woman, too. But I saw one of the most motherly and sympathetic souls in our neighborhood, everyone calls her aunt Fanny, ready to answer, and so I sat back and listened. "Of course, Miss Smith, we all rejoice in the new freedom both men and women enjoy in these days, and I would try awfully hard to put up with what to me is a most unseemly sight, young women and old women smoking cigarettes, if it were not for the very real it is doing them. And no one who is harming oneself has a right to say to another "Mind your own business." But I often wonder if the girls or women we speak of are putting any intelligence into their practice, and if they are not just fooling themselves into thinking they are beautifully free from old-fashioned notions, while they yield to the fetters of new fashions, not to speak of the fetters the cigarette itself soon weaves around them as a habit-forming narcotic. When it comes to a question of the good or harm in the cigarette, no matter how common its use, I am sure you will find the evidence tipping the scale heavily against its use. Why cannot people strike out and adopt clean, healthful, helpful habits, and why cannot young women, and older women too, use their newly found freedom in leading the way? Shall they make their very new freedom a means to a new slavery?"

And while aunt Fanny was having her say, I put my finger into my vest pocket and brought out this clipping, and when she was through read what the managing director of the National Beauty Shop Owners' Convention has to say: "The features of the women who smoke grow sharper as the nicotine habit fastens on them. The skin becomes taut and yellow, the lips lose their rosy color; the corners of the mouth show wrinkles, the lower lip shows a tendency to project beyond the upper lip, the eyes acquire a stare, and the lids rise and fall slowly." I don't think my protest was all prejudice, nor the young woman's cigarette indulgence all freedom. I think it a kindness to both men and women to point out right here the very real harm of the cigarette.

THE RUSTLING CORN

Once again I hear the "rustling of the corn." While days decline and summer ebbs away, As I pass along—at eve and in the morn, Attending to the duties of each day; Thus reminding me that summer'll soon be o'er That the chilly nights of autumn now are near, As it was throughout the ages now of yore Which, still, is taking place—year after year.

And as time goes on—which surely does not wait, We find that we are marching at her side, And, that she, though much disturbed, is never late; That we are always walking to her stride; Thus, we do march on, reluctantly or no, To the silent strains of "time still in its flight"; It would not avail, to say, "I will not go, This way is wrong, I hence shall seek the right!"

True, the Power thus directing is supreme, Yet, what we are, I shall not here define, Such shall not become the basis of my "theme"; Though guided by a Hand that is Divine, Thus, through, nature, is revealed "supremacy"; 'Tis a Power, which, for ages, has not waned, To which source I also trace 'divinity'; Though we, but little from it, yet have gained.

We do thus move on, sometimes amid the gloom, Not knowing fully what the end may be, Gain to see the earth reclothed in "youth and bloom"; And soon, alas, change and decay we see; Thus, we then do find, our spirits rise and fall, Of, with fondest hopes—which soon are swept away, And, too oft we fail to understand Why "nature" is so changing in her "ways!"

Yet, while peering e'en beyond a vision's scope, Tis said that God, through "nature", does not err, Though, there may be some who in the darkness grope Those who, "these truths" have not begun to stir; Thus, it gladdens us, some knowledge to impart, Unto those, perhaps, less fortunate than we, That, now dormant forces, hence anew may start, And "eyes" that now are "blind" the "Light" may see.

SHE LOST 32 LBS.

New Frocks No Longer Worried Her

"How did she lose that 32 lbs. of fat?" is what you will be asking. Let her tell you herself—

"About 18 months ago I weighed 178 lbs.—which I can assure you annoyed me very much. Everything seemed a worry to me, especially new clothes. Nothing would fit me comfortably, and walking was unbearable. I was advised by a friend to try Kruschen Salts, and I am very glad I did too. During the first few months I lost 28 lbs. of fat. Now, for the last 6 months my weight has been 146 lbs., and I feel much better in health. I have all my weight tickets to substantiate my statements."—(Mrs.) M. P.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have faith when you enter the contest.
Have faith though your chances seem slim.
Though prophets hint darkly at failure,
And prospects are gloomy and dim,
Have faith in your efforts unceasing,
Rely on your knowledge and skill;
Don't fear you are bound to be beaten;
Have faith that you'll win—and you will.

CHANGES ON COLLEGE STAFF

Several changes have been made on the college staff of St. Anne's, Church Point.

Rev. Father Francois LeQuemener, C. J. M., who has been a member of the college staff for twenty years, and has also been parish priest at Concession for twenty-six years, left on Monday last week for Montreal, to which city he has been transferred and where he will be attached as chaplain to the Monastery of the Good Shepherd. Rev. Father Simon Comeau, for years prefect at St. Anne's is succeeding him at Concession.

Rev. Father Louis Schreiber, C. J. M., for several years parish priest at Saint-Jovite, has been assigned to the parish of Carleton Place, N. B., and Rev. Father Jovite Doucet, who was chaplain of the Good Shepherd Monastery, Montreal, is succeeding him. He is a native of Digby County, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Artime Doucet, of Major's Point.

Rev. Father Sirois, of Quebec, who was ordained this summer, will also be a member of the college staff.

NEW WARNING DEVICE HAS MANY POSSIBILITIES

Since miners are prone to forget or disregard printed safety warnings, coal miners in Wales are installing automatic electric photographs in the cages, so that when the miners start to descend into the colliery they will be forced to listen to such admonitions as "Safety First," "Search Your Pockets for Matches," "Don't walk in Front of Trains," etc.

Just think of the wear and tear it would save on the jaws of constant naggers. A chronic back-seat driver, for instance, might feel more at ease in her home when her hubby is out with the car if she knew he was forced to listen to: "Not So Fast," "Blow Your Horn," "The Next Turn to the Right," "Be Careful," and "Have You Got Enough Gas?" It would have to be fixed, though, so the hater could not turn it off.

The idea has possibilities: Mothers might install one which would automatically start when the front door knob was turned. It could say, "Don't Forget Your Rubbers," "Get Home on Time," "Be Good," and "Be Careful When You Cross the Street."

PUBLIC WERE ANXIOUS FOR ELECTION RETURNS

The crowd in front of the Courier office on Tuesday night awaiting the election returns was the largest on record. The management of this paper did their utmost to satisfy the crowd and to furnish returns as promptly and completely as possible. Our task was not an easy one, but we all enjoyed it and got a great "kick" out of it.

Sometimes it was a bit confusing with returns coming in almost faster than we could take them down—the telephone ringing and our friends asking questions—sometimes we got a bit mixed up, but on the whole everything went off smoothly.

We wish to thank those who took the opportunity of getting our bulletins—there must have been 2,000 in front of our office. The crowd was very orderly and courteous. We wish also to thank the staff of the local telephone office for the splendid service they gave us—they must have got out of patience with us at times.

Obituary

Mary Rose Melanson

The death of Mary Rose Melanson occurred recently at her home at Little Brook Station. Deceased was only 30 years of age, and is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Melanson, also several brothers and sisters, including Mrs. William LeBlanc, of Little Brook. The funeral service was held at Church Point, on Monday, August 14th.

HERMAN outhouse

The little village of Tiverton was wrapped in gloom on Thursday morning, Aug. 17th, when it became known that Herman, son of Leonard Outhouse, had passed to the Great Beyond. He had been ill only four days with blood poisoning, and all hopes were held for his recovery. Herman was well loved by young and old, because of his wonderful disposition. Among the young men he was a favorite, and today many are mourning his death. He was 21 years of age.

Funeral took place from the Baptist Church, Rev. A. Ackley officiating. Proof of the love and esteem for Herman was shown by the large number of young men who attended the services. It was the largest funeral held in Tiverton for many years. Hymns sung by the choir were: "Nearer My God To Thee," "Some Day He'll Make All Plain To Me," and "Jesus Lover of My Soul". Beautiful flowers from relatives and friends covered the casket.

Left behind to mourn the loss of one well loved by all, are his father, three sisters, Treva, Alberta and his twin-sister, Mary; two brothers, Clayton and Lindsay; a grand mother, Mrs. Jerusha Outhouse; also a large number of relatives and friends.

Thus amid heart aches, tear and regret, his body was laid to rest beside his mother in Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

To all who mourn the loss of one taken so young in life, and will be greatly missed, we extend sympathy. Rest easy, dear Herman, in the arms of thy Father.

Reggie Outhouse, Howard Greenlaw and Clarence Howard.

Big Fish—Happy Fisherman

Hook a 35 pound musky for yourself like this one and you will be a happy fisherman. This was the case with Mr. and Mrs. Purdy of Saint John, who caught a musky of this size on the 21st inst. The fish was caught in the morning and was brought to the shore and started fires in order to cook the fish, forgetting dinner and later celebrating the latest entry in the musky camp annual. The musky competition fittingly. Since every musky to date has been practically been larger than the last, the winner of the challenge should this year may become famous... if he can land it.

SCOUT NOTES

The local Scout troop has just returned from their annual summer camping trip at Rich Lake, and report one of the most successful "camps" in the history of the troop. Twelve boys made the trip this year, which lasted for eight days. In addition to the regular camping activities and the recreation a great deal of work was done along forestry lines and the ground in the vicinity of the camp site is now beginning to look like a real forest preserve. The knoll overlooking the lake on which the camp is located, is a beautiful well-wooded piece of timber of mixed growth, containing spruce, pine, fir, hickory, maple and birch, and a start has been made to see the improvement that will take place after the removal of the underbrush and the dry branches up to a height of ten feet have been removed and all defoliated trees and saplings removed. This is the kind of work which the Bear River Scouts are particularly proficient because it will be recalled that the first seven Proficiency Badges in Forestry granted in the province all came to members of this troop.

"SAUL"

Golden Text:—"Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice." — I Samuel 15:22, t

LESSON Passage:—I Samuel, 15, 13:26.

Verily, I swear 'tis better to be lowly born, And range with humble livers in content, Than to be per'd up in a glistening grief, And wear a golden sorrow.

—Ann Boleyn, in King Henry VIII

Caught in the Act, 13-15

The story of Saul's failure is some three thousand years old, but it was written in a way to make it live and be useful for our learning. How dramatic was this for the successful guilt of King Saul! Something must be said in defence of Saul. He was the politician and Samuel was the priest, and their viewpoints differed widely, but Saul invited exposure by the pious manner he assumed when he told Samuel that he had performed the commandment of the Lord. He was under orders to take no spoil, yet at the very moment when he was presenting his report, the bleating of the sheep and the lowing of the oxen gave him away. Samuel was as discomfited as the small boy with the telltale jam on his face, or the burglar turning around from rifling a safe to look into the flashlights of the police. There is so often poetic justice in the detection of guilt that it seems not to be altogether a matter of chance. Saul spoke fair, but the sheep and the oxen spoke loudest. It was bad enough for the successful warrior king to tell a falsehood, but it was worse for him to tell it to the aged Samuel, to whom he had been indebted for great assistance and wisdom. Saul could have advanced many arguments in justification of his offence, but the bleating and lowing of the animals gave emphatic proof to the fact that the king had yielded to greed.

Faithful in Rebuke, 16-19

To castigate others in anger may give some satisfaction, but to speak the truth in love is painful, especially when there have been long and pleasant associations. Recently a judge had to give a heavy sentence to a man who for forty years had been his friend and neighbor. Samuel did his duty by Saul but only a sense of religious compulsion made him equal to speaking the plain but unpleasant words. Samuel recalled the youth of Saul, "when thou wast little in thine own sight," reminding Saul, without saying so, that Samuel had anointed him to the kingship. He also quoted the clear orders which had been given to Saul as leader of the army, battle orders which Saul had disobeyed. He gave Saul a chance to defend himself and make whatever explanations he could for his actions. In this interview Samuel was probably suffering as much as Saul; it was painful for both. It is always a test of friendship to have a straightforward discussion of a wrong done. If no conference is carried on in the right spirit, it may lead to reformation and the friendship may be stronger than before. If, however, self-righteousness and a desire to be severe is shown, the breach will only be made wider. And, on the part of the one rebuked, it is easy to be sullen and

Here and There With G. R. T.

Well, we have cool weather again, here in Los Angeles. Praise be! The hot wave was broken about 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon when the fog began to roll in from "away out yonder" spaces of the Pacific Ocean. I was up and went to church early and thought I would find a cool place in the new Congregational church, close to where I am living. This is one of the largest and most beautiful church buildings in Los Angeles. A concrete building, calculated to keep the heat out in summer, and the cold out in winter.

I thought at first that there was only going to be a few of us there for the morning service but before the organist had finished with the prelude some two hundred others had slipped in and filled the pews to capacity. That is the way it goes in Los Angeles, the city of many churches, and they are always well filled on Sunday morning, regardless of the weather.

Dr. Carl Patten has been the pastor of this church for many years, and is rated as one of the best preachers in the city. He is somewhat of a humorist, but cannot say that I admire his flippant rather self-sufficient style of discussing the works of the Saviour. I guess I must be a bit old-fashioned, for I sometimes feel that such subjects should be treated in tones of reverence and veneration, rather than in the manner of Walter Winchell, or some other wisecracker. I did not get very much from the sermon, on "The Impassable Ethical Barrier," even though Dr. Patten made it quite clear that neither a rich man, nor a poor man, or a camel, could go through the eye of a needle. This church has a wonderful choir and splendid quartette, but it being vacation time, the choir was absent, but the quartette rendered two very beautiful numbers.

Coming out of the cool church the weather seemed to be hotter than ever. So I drove out to the "beach" in search of a cool spot and found it. On the "Palisades" or bluffs at Santa Monica, overlooking the ocean, one can most always find a breeze of some kind; and from there, one can get a remarkable view of the strand from Point Pointe Firmin on the south to Black Point on the north, a distance of about 20 miles of bathing beach which, on this particular Sunday, was crowded with people.

It seems that the high branches of a cedar tree near our house, and still continues night after night, to entertain the neighborhood. He starts in at midnight and keeps it up until daylight. How he does love to sing, and he puts forth a bewitching melody of warbling, chirping and twittering. Some if it seems to be clever imitations of other birds and some if it is apparently his own.

A Lane Alibi, 20, 21

Judged on the low level of strategy, often a frank admission of guilt is better than a lame defence. One of the sins which Jesus condemned most strongly was hypocrisy. Sin is bad, but sin done in the name of religion is worse. In his defence before Samuel, Saul shows up badly on two counts. He tried to shove off the blame upon the people who were in command, as though he was not in command. He also sought refuge in saying that the people took the animals to make sacrifice to God. He thought somehow that the end justified the means. It is a very interesting study to note the excuses people make for themselves. It is even more enlightening to check up on the flimsy pretences and evasions in our own defence. They do not stand long if they are examined with even a candle power of truth. We think we can deceive others when we are not even deceiving ourselves. Our own conviction of guilt imparts a hollowness to our words which in nine cases out of ten gives us away. A man approaching sixty says that life has taught him emphatically to believe that there is a moral order. Lying and hypocrisy in the end deceive themselves.

Obedient Orders, 22, 23

In war, one of the great difficulties is to prevent soldiers from looting. Not infrequently the right to loot has been the only pay of the soldiers. In the Great War, looting was kept down to a minimum in a remarkable way, partly by army discipline but also because military conditions made it impossible to store goods. Saul and his orders to prevent the people ravaging the possessions of their opponents. He might approve or disapprove of this rule, but he had accepted command with a clear understanding of the order. The fact that some of the spoil might be used for religious sacrifice did not condone the disobedience. In the great words of the Golden Text, "to obey is better than sacrifice". Only those who have learned to obey are qualified to command. It may be that amid changing conditions we may have to use our own intelligence and interpret the law for ourselves in the spirit of those making the law. The boy who stood upon the burning deck until he was burned took his orders too literally. As a rule, we have no justification in disobeying traffic signs, trespass notices, and approved social custom. Education which does not inculcate obedience to authority is incomplete.

Repenting, But Too Late, 24-26

When Saul was told that he was rejected from being King, he at once took his misdeeds seriously. Immediately he ceased putting the blame upon others and laid it upon himself where it rightfully belonged. He even was bold enough to confess his cowardice saying that he had feared Saul was brave again. But it was too late. Saul had missed his chance. The Moving Finger had written the decree and it was final. There are some things which repentance cannot change. Repentance cannot make things as they were if arson has burned a building, or murder taken a life, or a public scandal has destroyed confidence. Saul's life ended in tragedy and defeat, but his dramatic career has given rise to one of the greatest poems in the English language, Browning's "Saul," and to one of the greatest treatises in music, the "Funeral March" from "Saul".

by women who play there night after night, Sundays and holidays, and in the course of a week, fritter away a considerable amount of money.

Well, when the fog began to roll in the crowd began to pack up their picnic outfits—roll up the big beach umbrellas and fold up generally and start for home. By six o'clock the beach was almost deserted. It is hard to imagine a more dismal and lonely place than a beach resort on a foggy night or a rainy day, and I followed the crowd back to L. A. The boulevards were crowded with cars, and no place for a driver to be dozing or looking at the scenery along the way. He needs to be wide awake and alert every second of the time—and there is not much pleasure in that.

Have you ever listened to a mocking bird at night? The males are supposed to give their nightly concerts during the breeding season, but there is one fellow that perches himself on one of the high branches of a cedar tree near our house, and still continues night after night, to entertain the neighborhood. He starts in at midnight and keeps it up until daylight. How he does love to sing, and he puts forth a bewitching melody of warbling, chirping and twittering. Some if it seems to be clever imitations of other birds and some if it is apparently his own.

make-up. The other night I rounded fifteen different tunes or warbles. The rascal kept me awake all night that time, and often wakes me up along about three o'clock. I do not remember of ever hearing any of these birds in Nova Scotia—I do not think they ever get that far north. He is a small bird, drab in color or sort of a dirty grey. Slender body, long legs and long tail; about the size of a robin, but does not equal the cherry picker in the matter of plumage.

But how he can whistle—loud and full—and how he does love to tell the world about it.

Los Angeles also has a lot of little "hoot owls" that live in the trees out in the residential sections of the city. They are not particularly noisy but one can hear them in the early hours of the morning. When a place is given over to the owls it is supposed to be deserted, but apparently this does not apply to Los Angeles.

We have here, another "bird" who at this time is making a good deal of noise. One David Hutton, third husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, who recently applied for a divorce from the famous woman evangelist, and has since gone on a vaudeville tour, using his stage appearance to ridicule his former friend wife. But the other night a young woman sim-ed with several good throwing eggs, stood up in the audience and with unerring aim planted five of the hen fruit upon David's chin and shirt bosom. Dave, being a large and portly gentleman, made an excellent target for the young lady pitcher, who was arrested and paid a fine of $25 for her fun, which is exactly five dollars per egg, which is more than a fair price, even for hatching purposes. Some say that the fine was paid from the Angelus Temple emergency fund. Be that as it may, it would seem that after hearing Hutton's side of the family story he got what was coming to him. Alas, poor Aimee! She is always getting into the spotlight. I have heard her on the radio call herself a "little goose" several times, for getting herself into some of her predicaments, and a paper woman has called her a "flamingo" in a chicken coop. Nevertheless, most of her followers look upon her as an angel, but from any point of view an outsider is almost bound to form the opinion that "Aimee is no longer any chicken. How that was once a beautiful brown, now a golden yellow; a face that has been lifted; a body that has gone through many reducing operations; a voice that is a trifle cracked and husky—well, when they get that way it sort of takes them out of the "rosebud garden of girls" class, does it not?

VOLUME LX, NO. 5

Town Council Has Busy Session In Regular Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Digby town council was a busy one, and several matters of importance were dealt with.

The report of the superintendent of streets and water was read and accepted. The quarterly report of the Medical health officer stated that conditions in town were satisfactory, and that there had been no outbreaks of contagious disease was read.

Town Clerk Alfred Boden, intimated that the letter re vaccination as appeared in last week's edition of the Courier should be answered. As it was calculated as harmful. On motion of Councillor Turnbull, seconded by Councillor Morehouse, it was unanimously decided to request the medical health officer to state the facts and that the authorities were simply carrying out the law of the province.

A large gathering of ratepayers was present at this meeting seeking action on the question of sewer entrance charges which has been before the council for some time. Mayor Holdsworth asked the delegation to set their views before the council. W. K. Ganong and A. A. Shortliffe addressed the chair and stated that their views were embodied in a written communication sent to the council some two or three months ago. The mayor assured them that their views would be given the careful consideration of the sewer committee. After thanking the

William Herbert Johnson

The death occurred at his home in South Range, of William Herbert Johnson, on August 21, age 72 years. A Born in Haverhill, Mass., as a young man he went to the American West, where he and his brother were partners in ranching, in Nebraska. Selling his partnership he went to Chicago, where he became interested in the shoe business, and afterwards located in various points in Illinois, Michigan and Indiana, finally coming to Lynn, Mass., where for years he was manager of the finishing department at A. E. Little's (Sporis) Shoe factory. He was a frequent visitor to Nova Scotia and finally, buying property here, he spent the latter years of his life on his farm. A sufferer from chronic bronchitis for many years, he seemed rallying from a severe attack but a weakened heart failing to stand the strain, he passed away very suddenly. After living very quietly he had formed many friendships and the community was much shocked at his sudden passing. He leaves to mourn his widow, formerly Margaret Marshall, of South Range; his daughter, Mrs. Harold E. Marshall, also of South Range; and one sister, Mrs. Clarence Prosser, of Alberta, the other members of his family having predeceased him by a number of years. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. M. C. Higgins, of the United Baptist church at Barton, with interment in South Range cemetery.

The Yarmouth train on Tuesday was so well filled with summer tourists, returning home, that it was necessary to add another coach here. The unpleasant weather of the past week seems to be driving our visitors home a little earlier this year.

Eighty-seven per cent. of the electors of Digby County exercised their right to vote in the recent election. Grosse Coques led in percentage, with 214 voting out of 243 registered. North was the lowest, with only 277 voting out of 349 registered, or 79 per cent.

Local & Personal

Mrs. N. Davenport, of Truro, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Connor on Sunday last.

Dr. V. F. Connor, of Malind, spent the week end with his brother, Rufus R. W. Connor.

Judging from present appearances the local pear and apple crop will be good ones this year.

Mrs. W. W. Connor is taking a trip around South Shore, where she will spend a few days at Lunenburg and Truro.

The blueberry season is on the wane and in many places the bushes have been picked clean. However, there are spots where the berries hang on for some time and no doubt there will still be a few on the market.

There are several English words which have been in the past so often used ironically—that in discourse of time their original meaning has been reversed. The word "silly" for instance, once meant "blessed" or "happy".

The freighter Tazaki arrived at Gloucester, Mass., last Tuesday with 150,000 pounds of salt hake consigned to Davis Brothers Fisheries, who took 100,000 pounds, and the rest went to the Gorton-Pew Fisheries.

What might have been a serious accident occurred at East Perry last Tuesday when a car driven by J. C. Brown, of Little River, turned completely over, with the wheel, in the air. None of the occupants were seriously hurt.

The auxiliary barquentine Intrepid which left Digby on Tuesday morning last at 10 o'clock, arrived at Gloucester, Mass., the next morning at 11 o'clock, a remarkably fast passage. The Intrepid has a sail area of 19,000 square feet.

One of the signs of the waning summer is the flocking together of birds in preparation for their coming migration southward. Swallows will be among the first to go, and even now they are gathering in flocks that cover the telephone and telegraph wires for quite a distance.

From reports received from various parts of the county, there is no doubt that the heavy rains of the latter part of last week have been of immense benefit to the late crops. The ground was parched and crops in danger from the extreme lack of moisture, the earth in potato fields resembling dust. The highways, particularly on the hills, suffered some damage, and "potholes" in the road made driving very uncomfortable.

Miss Mary Woodman, formerly of Conway, recently attended a bridge party given by her aunt, Mrs. Harriet Dansburg, at her summer cottage, at Sudbury, Mass. Lunch was served and prizes were awarded as follows: The first prize went to Mrs. Evelyn Parkhurst, of Marblehead; other winners were Mrs. Eva Barrett and Mrs. Grace deMange, both of Digby. Assisting the hostess were her daughter, Mrs. Audrey MacDonald, and niece, Miss Madeline Haines, of Lynn.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Small, Caledonia, entertained about fifty-two guests one evening recently. A pleasant evening was spent in jangling, the music being supplied by Willie Hennessey and sister, of Mink Cove. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at a late hour.

95th Anniversary Of Founding Was Observed Sunday

The Smith's Cove United Baptist church was thronged on Sunday evening at the 95th anniversary of its founding. The sermon was preached by Rev. H. T. DeWolfe, D.D., of Acadia University, and a historical review was given by the pastor.

In 1797 Rev. Enoch Townner, one of the Bostonian grantees, who had recently become a member of the New Light Baptist church at Lower Cranville, while residing there, began a very successful mission in the ancient township of Digby. There was not a single adherent of the sect among the inhabitants. It is, however, claimed that Mrs. Daniel O'Dell, of Smith's Cove, in Clements, was connected with a Baptist church in her native land, probably the only communicant among Loyalists in this county.

The Baptists laboured with constancy and zeal, and during the revivals of 1804, 1806 and 1809, under Messrs. Townner, Crandall and James Manning large numbers were added to the pioneer church. These rapid additions led to the establishment of separate churches on Digby Neck, Brier Island and in Clements.

In 1821 the Clements church received many additions, who greatly strengthened the society, especially in Bear River. The formation of a distinct church was proposed, confided and duly instituted at Bear River in the autumn of 1821, as Second Clements or First Hillsburgh Church, including the present Township of Hillsburgh.

In 1838, the people of Smith's Cove erected a chapel on land donated by Daniel Sully, at the fork of the Old and New Post Roads, opposite the cross road to Lansdowne—the Methodistists to occupy it in proportion to their investment, but without interference with Baptist services, and vice versa.

So far as we can ascertain from the incomplete records, the following pastors have ministered to the Church: Samuel Bancroft, Joshua Cogswell, Richard E. Cunningham, Obed Parker, Aaron Cogswell, J. M. Young, W. L. Parker, John C. Morse, J. G. Brown, E. N. Archibald, W. H. Richan, Frank Potter, J. T. Eaton, D. W. Crandall, W. E. Hall, W. M. Smallman, J. W. McGreger, E. O. Reid, J. L. Special School Meeting To Be Held in Centerville

The secretary to trustees of the Centerville School Section has been instructed by M. C. Foster, Inspector for the District, to post notices of a special meeting of the ratepayers of the section, to be held on Wednesday, September 6th, at the Centerville school house. This meeting is called for the purpose of voting money for teachers' salaries and providing for other necessary expenses in connection with the carrying on of the schools in the village.

The education act requires trustees to hire teacher and open the schools for the full term. This act was passed in 1864 and seldom, if ever, has its efficiency been questioned before. At the regular school meeting in June a vote of 14 to 6 was passed in favor of closing the school for the coming school year. This Section was in opposition to the Public School act and was therefore illegal.

LITTERING THE STREETS

Litter in the streets is the worst eyesore with which many communities have to contend. Many homes which have been planned and substantial business buildings, yet are disfigured by a mess of little paper scraps and litter all through their streets and on lawns and vacant lots. Many people who have handsome looking places will allow such litter to remain on their lawns week after week, which encourages people to throw still more scraps on those spots.

People buy more candy and small delicacies than formerly; they eat on the street and throw away the bags and containers. Some brilliant intellects make the matter worse by tearing such paper stuff up into little bits and then throwing them away. Whoever cleans up after them will have to pick up these little bits one by one.

Parents who have any self respect should teach their children to respect their town more than to treat it as if it were a pigpen. Older people ought to know better in these advanced times.

DANCING FARMERS

Harvest festivals, to celebrate the gathering in of the crops, have been a feature of all nations. Many a barn dance has occurred when the fruits of the field were safely housed. Much high kicking and floor shuffling has occurred at these glorified occasions.

Farming has been hard during recent years, and most farmers have not felt much like dancing. However, the day when the farmer gets a crop under cover, safe from weather and bugs, he does feel a bit of celebration spirit. It is one great obstacle crossed. Blessings on him if he feels like kicking up a bit.

Farm prices have risen, and many of our young farmers will do some dancing this fall, in spite of all anxieties. The agriculture of our country is going to be rebuilt in due time, on a basis that will give the rural population a fair chance with other occupations. The farmer will then do as much dancing as the merchant or mechanic, and the girls will find him equally desirable as a partner, for an evening or for life.

THE TANG OF SEPTEMBER

The poets may sing more songs about "beautiful" spring, but for practical welfare, you can't beat jolly old September. Then it is that old Mr. Sun stops trying to reduce us to grease spots, and he gives us that mild temperature climate that has stimulated Canadian energy to the limits of human activity.

Millions of people feel better in September than in any other month. The tang of north winds sweeps away the languid humidities of August, and puts ginger into lazy bones. If you can't do a day's work in September, don't expect any boss to hire you.

Crackling fires on cool nights, mellowing fruits in the orchards, barns bursting with plenty, these are typical signs of September. It is a month of invitation and beauty, and anyone who has a job should put in all the extra licks he can think of.

Wars will end some time after historians get together and agree to tell the same whopper.

The word "flat" has become very confusing. You can't tell whether it means an abode, a tire, a financial condition or just a mere nit-wit.

Miss Reta Campbell of Weymouth North and Miss June Stark of Digby were guests of Miss Annie Brooks at Weymouth North last week.

Temperance
Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

Just this morning I met on the street of the city a minister who was visiting there like myself. He told me with enthusiasm and delight when he came to tea last evening at the home of an old friend he met the son of the home spending the day there on a visit. In his pleasure at meeting his old minister he said in the course of the conversation, "I want to thank you for the pledge against the use of tobacco and liquor you asked my boys to sign several years ago now. I signed it and have kept it. It has made a man of me." "I had almost forgotten about that," said the minister in reply. "Well, I never have," said the son of the home, now in a prosperous business for himself, "and I have many times seen its real value to me. Do you wonder if the minister could not hide his real satisfaction as he recalled the story."

Do you know, I think it would be worth while to sit down some day and try to figure how much our nation owes in its social, commercial and public life to the worthy men and women generally, parents, teachers, ministers and others who have by precept and example helped to send boys and girls out into the life of the world pledged by written or unwritten word against the use of alcoholic beverages. Surely they have been among the real saviors of the land, the best of patriots among us, making their contribution to the highest wealth of the nation. There are none to dispute that strict sobriety is one of the greatest assets of our national life. They who commend it with intelligence of the people, especially the youth of our land, are the marble pillars of the commonwealth. How often we have heard of them with a significant shake of the head, "He is a fine chap in many ways, but he drinks." And the man who says it has already registered the discount at which this fine chap passes at all exchange counters. But when we hear it said, "There goes a fine chap, and he doesn't drink either," that marks his premium in social currency everywhere. The words of that young man of business still ring in my ears when I want to thank you for the pledge against the use of liquor and tobacco you asked us boys to sign. "It has made a man of me."

How Place Names
Change With Years

Place names in the course of years sometimes become changed from that originally intended due to abbreviations in pronouncing them. An example of this, states the Tourist Bureau of the Canadian National Railways, is Scateri, on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, a noted sword-fishing centre, which also abides light on the manner in which some receive their names. In the early colonial days of North America, seven ships left Great Britain for North America. On the way over a storm arose which widely scattered the vessels. In the course of time, three of them managed to make the Cape Breton coast and the other four apparently foundered as they were never heard of again. The survivors of the three vessels called the place on the Cape Breton coast where they landed "Scattered-away," and in the course of years this has become "Scateri."

The new Baker Inn, established by E. C. Baker in the premises of the late E. C. Spimney, Main Street, was opened to the public last week and promises to be a very popular centre for the traveling public, as well as local patronage. The whole of the building has been renovated and redecorated and presents a very attractive appearance. Offices are contained in the South front room, to the rear of which is a "writing room" and a "reading room." The dining room situated in the north-west corner is large, airy and bright, and artistically appointed. A roomy kitchen, open off of this. The building has been conveniently re-arranged into a number of double and single bedrooms, with some private baths and showers. The whole layout is well planned and executed and should prove a very convenient arrangement. Of a semi-private nature Baker's Inn should prove a very popular centre catering to travellers and a town clientele.

A Woman at Banff

I know God fashioned little fields
So they would be
A comfort for old homely folk
Like you and me.
Small gardens with their fences
Smug and tight,
And they gates to shut us
From the night.
But THIS He made with Glory in His veins,

This solitude, where Might Forever reigns,
Folded the hills with glad Brilliant hands, Shaping the valleys for Wide pasture lands,
And so this towering peak
Forever bears,
Old finger-marks upon
Its rugged stairs.

And every shining height
Reflects the glow
Of some white virgin field
Of drifted snow.
And over it he laid
With loving care,
The mantle of His Peace
Forever there.

Powell-Hankinson

A quiet wedding, of interest to a wide circle of friends, was solemnized in the United Church Parsonage, at Digby, on Tuesday morning, August 22nd, when the Rev. A. B. Fleming united in marriage, Miss Nina Elsie Hankinson, daughter of Councillor and the late Mrs. E. F. Hankinson, of Weymouth, and Robert Baden Powell, son of Mr. and the late Capt. R. Powell, of Plympton. The bride was attired in a white ensemble, with matching accessories, and was attended by her sister, Mrs. K. C. Woodman, of Digby. Mr. Woodman acted as best man. The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony on a motor trip to Halifax, returning via the South Shore, and are now residing at Weymouth North, where Mr. Powell is principal of the school. Both Mr. and Mrs. Powell were successful members of the teaching profession, having taught at various places through the province. Mr. Powell having also taught in the Canadian West. They have the good wishes of a host of friends.

BASEBALL

The Weymouth Amateur Athletic Association team and the Digby A. A. team met at Weymouth on Monday afternoon, for the first of the three game series to determine the Western Valley League baseball championship for 1933. The W. A. A. team won, with a score of twenty to one.

Digby's lone run was scored by J. Keene in the first of the second inning. Muise was on the mound for the Weymouth team and went the whole distance, pitching a good game. Digby had four different pitchers on the mound as well as changing catchers and making other changes in the line-up, but failed to stop the Weymouth boys whose 20-1 victory made the twelfth successive game won by them.

The Weymouth team defeated the Annapolis Royal team by a score of 6-2, in a game played on Wednesday last. The Weymouth grounds last Wednesday. Clarke was successful in making a three-bagger for the visiting team, and Holwell and Brooks each two-baggers for the home team.

"New Yorker" Hurts Truck
100 Feet; Driver Escapes

Leaping from the cab of his truck as he saw the engine of the "New Yorker" bear down upon him at the Ontario crossing on the D. A. E. road, after 5:30 p. m. Wednesday evening, Frank Mullen, of New Tusket, miraculously escaped death. Crashing into the truck the recomposite hurled the front of the vehicle nearly 100 feet down the right of way, splitting it in two, completely wrecking the motor.

So badly smashed was the car by the terrific impact that the frame was twisted out of all semblance to a motor truck and only shattered wreckage remained of what was a few minutes before a six-cylinder truck.

Mr. Mullen apparently did not see the swiftly approaching train until it was already upon him and heard no warning. Making a desperate effort to swerve his car to avoid the collision he realized that he was too late, and wrenching open the door, made a desperate leap away from the speeding train. He was barely clear of the truck when the engine struck it and he saw it hurtling skyward.

A twisted mass of wreckage split completely in two, the cab at the front of the engine and the rest of the truck alongside the track.

MOST MODERN FUEL FROM OLD-EST C. B. MINE

Coal Broken to Right Size, Made Sootless and Dustless by Chemical Treatment

Something over two hundred years ago, in fact when Nova Scotia belonged to France, the first coal mine was opened on Cape Breton Island. This was on the banks of the beautiful Bras d'Or takes at a place known as Little Bras d'Or. Like all ventures of that kind in the early days it was a small operation carried on in a very crude way, yet it was good coal and served the population for hundreds of miles up and down the coast both for industry and for warmth and comfort in the home. This same mine is in operation today, but equipped with the most modern appliances for bringing coal to the surface from thousands of feet underground. Electrically operated machines mine the coal, hoist it to the surface and slaker screens operated by electricity, screen it and prepare it for the market. A steam railway carries it on one side for inland shipments and a hauling dock on the other side for the St. John's and other ports. In all probability the daily output in 1933 is equal to the yearly output when the first Frenchman discovered coal in the new world. Step by step the several owners of this old pit had kept pace with the times. Just now it is being equipped for a new departure in preparing coal for home use.

The big lumps are broken down to a convenient size. Then by a process of screening, this coal is divided into Nut and Cobble sizes—the Nut for the kitchen and small stove use and the Cobble for open fires and furnaces. From the screens the coal passes to the railway cars and as it enters the car door it is met with a fine spray of a chemical solution that kills any tendency of the coal to make soot when burning. This is a new discovery and eliminates the chief objection to soft coal in the home. In addition to eliminating soot troubles, the spray makes the coal dustless to handle while being delivered and while being used in the home. And treated in this way the coal burns better and is cleaner and easier to handle, it is claimed.

OFF COLOUR? HOW IS YOUR LIVER?

Wake up your Liver With—

Well, it's not again! Almost too hot to write about the weather for anything else. Down on Broadway, Los Angeles, at noon today, the thermometer at 92 in the shade, men folks wearing the perspiration from their brows and their collars wilted to a rag and their shirts damp from the same cause, held manfully to their coats, keeping them on, and complained of the heat, while thousands of women tripped gaily along clad in the lightest and thinnest of costumes, showed not the slightest sign of discomfort or effect of the broiling weather. And I said to myself—always find an agreeable and sympathetic listener when I say things to myself—what is the matter with us men? Why do we have been thousands of years trying to find ways to keep comfortable, yet on a hot morning we rig ourselves out in a union suit, shirt, and collar tight around our necks, and then wrap a conventional tie about the collar and pull it up even tighter than ever, put on a coat of flannel or worsted, a pair of flannel trousers, and shoes that weigh a pound or so apiece, and we walk around in it all day long, and then we complain of the heat? It is a Turkish bath suit, and then we wonder why we are uncomfortable. What has become of the Palm Beach and linen suits that were so popular a few years ago? Cool and comfortable and good looking they were, but we hardly ever see one of them in these days. Goodness knows, they were cheap enough and that ought to be quite an item in the monthly budget. My old friend, Judge Timmamy, used to wear a very natty looking linen suit during the hot weather several years ago, and I asked him yesterday why he had discarded it. "Well," said he, "that suit was certainly comfortable on a hot day and the folks at home thought I looked well in it—but do you know, when I got down town and saw so few linen suits around I felt so conspicuous and self-conscious that the mental discomfort I endured more than outweighed the bodily comfort that I got from wearing the outfit, so I sent it to Aimee McPherson's Salvage Department and the other day I thought I recognized it on the back of a colored man, who certainly looked 'all dressed up, and on his way.' "What fools we mortals be," said the Judge, and I must say that I agreed with his decision.

"DAVID"

Golden Text:—"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looks on the heart."—1 Samuel 16:7.

Lesson Passage:—1 Samuel 16:4-13; Psalm 78:7-12.

The Son of David
Very dear the Cross of Sion
Where He took the sinners' blame,
And the tomb wherein He lay
Until the third day came.
But He walked the self same road,
And He bore the self same load,
When the Carpenter of Nazareth
Made common things for God!
—Walter C. Smith

Suspicion, 4

"Comest thou peaceably?" asked the elders of the town of Bethlehem when Samuel arrived unexpectedly. Samuel's purpose was to offer sacrifice before choosing a successor to Saul, but the people of Bethlehem were on guard until they were definitely what his errand was. It was a rude, rough time, in the days when the judges judged. Tribal animosity was the rule and peace was the exception, but the attitude of suspicion has remained until our day. When two men shake hands upon meeting, it recalls the days when swords were worn and two men could not have confidence until they had demonstrated that they did not intend to draw their swords. It is only a formal social custom now, but the handshake is a remnant of fighting days. When General Balbo of Italy, flew with his fleet of airships from Rome to Chicago, it caused much more comment in France than in the United States. Several European powers interpreted it not as a courtesy to the Century of Progress Exhibition, but as a tacit declaration by Italy that she claims supremacy in the air. When the United States Congress passes a naval estimate, the newspapers in Japan feature it as news and campaign for greater naval expenditures by Japan, claiming that their safety is threatened. These international suspicions will endure until we learn to think peace as naturally as we now think war. In personal relations we have largely overcome the fear of attack and greet people as friends until they show themselves hostile, but we are far from this attitude of confidence between nations.

Muscle on Mind, 6-10

Athletics are finding an increasing place both in education and in life generally. Sports are good as a means to an end, but they are not an end in themselves. When they contribute to health and character they serve their intended purpose, but when they are given more space in a newspaper than politics, education and religion combined, they are receiving more attention than they deserve. Even health and character is not an end in itself but merely the basis upon which higher human values may rest. Some renowned athletes have been below the average of human intelligence. There have been candidates for the pugilistic championship of the world who could barely read or write. Mind is more important than muscle in modern life; brain gives power rather than brawn. The development of the biceps muscle of the arm is very secondary to the cultivation of memory, imagination, reason and will in the whole personality. Samuel was attracted by the physical set-up of Eliab, but he was not attracted by the mental and character qualities. Young people need to be warned that athletics are only incidental in education. The bigger goals are in a different direction.

The Youngest Son, 11, 12

David had a fine physique, but he had more. Though he was the youngest son and was not thought to be of much value yet as a fighting man, he had developed qualities of initiative and independence. He could take care of a flock of sheep as well as older men. When danger appeared in the form of a lion or a bear he could act with courage and efficiency. Hand and eye coordinated when he used a sling, he had cultivated skill in music and had a good understanding of human nature. Though David was left with the sheep, he was not shepherd. When he was called before Samuel, the issue was not in doubt for a moment. Samuel knew that before the successor of Saul, destined to be Israel's greatest king until there should appear the King of kings, David had all that ought to be in a king. He was a fine complexion, an open countenance, a strong body, but it was not for these that he was chosen as prospective king. His mental, social and religious capacities were his real qualifications for the position.

The Effect of Responsibility, 13

A position may help to make a man. Having a standard to maintain may draw out latent powers. A man in public office sometimes surprises his supporters by displaying ability that they did not know he possessed. The task brings forth the talent. It is sometimes found that a young preacher called to some famous pulpit measures up, because he feels the challenge of his place.

After David had been appointed with oil by Samuel, as a foretoken of his kingship, the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. This is the Hebrew way of saying that David took his responsibility seriously, that he used his time for great purposes, that he sought to learn from those who could teach. There would always have been something distinctive about David had he remained a shepherd, but the assurance that he was to be king made him put his best foot forward and do his level best. Could youth but know the opportunities of middle age, school books would not be tossed in a corner with disgust. Doing homework is doubtless one of the authentic signs of the presence of the Spirit of the Lord.

A Shepherd Still—Psalm 78:7-12

The Hebrew people gloried in the fact that David was a shepherd king. His later royal pretense did not make them forget his lowly origin. They attributed to him many of their finest poems. The twenty-third psalm included. They felt that, as king, David retained his shepherd heart, caring for the nation as he had cared for the sheep.

It is true to this day that the world's greatest leaders come from humble homes and from the common people. In Bethlehem was born a greater than David, often spoken of figuratively as the Son of David, who should assume the role of the Messiah King.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—What is the place of athletics in education?
- 2.—Which is the best age for deciding life's vocation?
- 3.—Is moral character usually better before or after twenty?
- 4.—What may we do to have God's spirit dwell in us?

English School Students End Visit to Nova Scotia

The party of English school boys touring the Maritimes, Captain Labrador and Newfoundland, arrived in Digby last Thursday. During the hour between the arrival of the train and the departure of the party on Princess Helene for Saint John, the boys were greeted by Mr. W. W. Holdsworth, H. B. Short, M. P., and others. J. Guise, master at Winchester school, one of the travelling directors of the party, stated that the boys were experienced in the greatest thrills of their lives. Wherever they have gone during the tour a wonderful reception has been accorded them. They are getting first hand information as to what real Canadian hospitality is, and they will have a lasting impression of the heartless cordiality of the people of the Ancient Colony and these of the Maritimes. They have learned much, stated Mr. Guise, the experience has been most valuable. They have seen the country and mixed with the people and will be able to carry back to the homeland a true impression of this great country and of many of the reasons why Canada occupies such prominent place in the world's wealth of nations. With the party was Edward Shackleton, son of the late Sir Ernest Shackleton, Polar explorer; M. Dowson, a travelling director. The boys were H. D. Beasley, Moncton school; W. A. Connelley, Monkton Combe school; R. B. Connelley, Winchester school; P. R. Grottrian, Royal Naval College Dartmouth; R. F. Mole, Clifton school; F. D. Oldham, Winchester school; N. H. Rowson, Tonbridge school; A. F. Stubbs, Repton school, Warwickshire; A. F. Weaver, Eton School, Berkshire; H. D. Welsh, Uppingham school.

Town Council in Busy Session

mayor and council the delegation withdrew. The report of the sewer committee was read by the clerk, moved by Councillor Morehouse and seconded by Councillor Anderson. An amendment that the report be referred back to the committee was moved by Councillor Turnbull and seconded by Councillor Anderson. On motion three councillors voted for the amendment which was declared carried. Councillor Anderson has given notice on Monday evening of a motion to amend the resolution passed by the March meeting of the Council that a grant of $875 be made to the band which has been proposed. This was seconded by Councillor Turnbull and the motion carried. A letter from Paul Yates, director of the Digby Band, asking that a sum of $200 be voted for out of doors band concerts, before cold weather, was read. Councillor Anderson moved that $100 be paid the band.

Town solicitor E. J. Theriault, who was present, rose and intimated that as previously advised the council had no right to grant money to the band. It may have authority to expend money during the summer tourist season under sub-section of section 132, chapter 84 of the revised statutes.

Councillor Anderson, with the consent of his second, then withdrew his motion and substituted the following that the band be paid $50 for two concerts to be given during the first two weeks in September. Councillor Turnbull again urged the filing of a statement of the band's finances with the town council, and again stated that in his opinion the Band Directors should not expect to pay for everything in one year; he thought the council should arrange to carry over until next year.

The mayor eulogised the good work that band was doing for the young people of the town in keeping them out of mischief and doing worthwhile, and suggested that some money should be made to provide an auditor for the girls. A vote of sympathy with the director and those in charge and would like to see the band continue to function.

A letter was read from George E. Graham, of the D. A. R., asking to accept liability for the proportion of charges for sewer stoppage on Green Street. The council thought if screens were placed in front of the pipes by the railway track, the trouble might be overcome.

Burton Ellis James Small asked verbally for permission to build on Victoria Street, but as no plans were presented, permission was withheld.

The clerk drew the attention of electric light and water users to the council to the fact that many behind in their payments, and urged that strict measures be used. His suggestion was endorsed by the mayor, who urged that both committees adopt stringent measures. No action was taken by the council.

Between Ourselves

I wish that someone would drop into the office right about now and suggest something for this week's "Between Ourselves." My store of ideas seems about exhausted—there are no elections, or "no nollin'" to write about.

Of course I can say something about the opening of the schools throughout the county. Most of our rural schools opened on Monday, and our town schools will reopen on the Tuesday following Labor Day. Is there any happy news the youngsters are feeling so wretched these days.

We certainly feel proud of the record made by the teachers and pupils last year, and we wish them all an even greater success during the school year we are just entering on. Perhaps I am a little ahead of time welcoming the staff back again, but here goes just the same. It is a pleasure also to welcome Miss Jean Anderson, one of our own town girls, to the 1933-34 teaching staff.

It might be a good idea, too, to give just a little special welcome to Principal Purdy—and Mrs. Purdy. "Purdy," you know, went and got himself a wife during the vacation time. Well, here are my congratulations, and, with everybody else in Digby, I wish you every happiness.

And Monday is Labor Day! Let's make a red holiday of it. Close the shop, forget your worries and troubles, and have a good time. It's almost time Digby employers learned how to make "a holiday a holiday" instead of a red letter date on the calendar.

I suppose I could say a few words about the room I have written quite a bit on that subject this summer, but it all seems to have been in vain; or, should I blame the present condition on the heavy rains we have been having the past week? Being tossed in a blanket is solid comfort compared with driving over some of the highways around here.

A short time ago the boss had a nice letter from a Weymouth subscriber, who said in part, "I like your paper—I like you and I would like to help you both. I'll wait and see what the future edition brings forth in the hope that whatever happens it will be well received, as impartial, honest and praiseworthy." He continued his letter with this postscript: "Even Editorials are sometimes called 'Prads'." I forgot to say something important. Someday, someone, somewhere will take off their hats to you Junior or Ed. His last was 'gooder' than usual. That is what the people want more than anything—a little intelligence with originality even though everything is borrowed."

Well, thanks, friend. That's much better than a kick in the nor'easter extremity. I might say that the letter referred to above was written before the election.

"Some Good Reasons why the self-respecting person should wear as often and as hard as he can: "Because it is such an elegant way of expressing one's thoughts. "Because it is such a conclusive proof of taste and good breeding. "Because it is such a sure way of making oneself agreeable to friends. "Because it is positive evidence of acquaintance with good literature. "Because it is just what one's mother would enjoy having her son and daughter do. "Because it would look so nice in print. "Because it is such an infallible way of improving one's chances in the hereafter."—Anon.

BAND NOTES

With the exception of two concerts some time in September, the Digby Civic Band has no more concerts to play for the town this season, but a Benefit Concert will be given this evening at the Royal Island, and the boys are confidently expecting a liberal collection, which they hope will be supplemented by donations from our summer residents. The Band has received warm praise for its very added so much to the pleasure of townspeople and tourists alike throughout the summer, and tonight's concert will give the people a chance to show their appreciation in cash.

Many good friends have won the sincere thanks of the Band for their generosity during the month of August—Mrs. Dora Davies and the ladies of Barton with $15.00 from Mrs. Dr. and Mrs. Kirkus with $5.00; Mr. Moses of "The Shingles" $5.00; four guests of "The Pines" $3.00, and Miss Agatha Stewart with a gift of six good chairs for the band room. In this way the boys are hoping some other good friend will supply the need of a good big wood stove for the winter.

The concert on The Pines balcony on Sunday, the 16th, was probably the best given this summer, and was greatly enjoyed by the guests and the band. The boys were in the swimming pool, and parked in numerous cars. Many of the guests, ready to contribute, were expecting someone to "pass the hat," but this function was omitted as not being in good taste under the circumstances.

The Band gave fifteen public performances during July and August three of them without pay—the School Field day, the Governor's reception, and the Fire Chief's convention. Rain caused a "ly one postponement—last week's advertised benefit concert.

WHY VACCINATION?

To the Editor of the Courier Sir:—Will you kindly allow me a short space in your next issue to reply to some questions asked under the above heading?

The "Public Health Act" of 1918, Chapter 6 and Section 48, and Chapter 37 and Section 9, of the Acts of 1922 govern the matter of Vaccination of children and re-vaccination of those who have attained 12 years; both acts provide for those parents who conscientiously believe vaccination to be harmful or prejudicial to the well-being of the child, and they may obtain exemption for one year by making application to a stipendiary or other magistrate.

The fact that Nova Scotia is free from smallpox is considered by the medical profession. I believe, to be mainly the result of carrying out the provisions of the Public Health Act, and the Province is to be heartily congratulated.

It is no part of the duty of the Secretary to the Board of Health to attempt to go into the merits or demerits of Vaccination—he has simply to carry out the law as it is. The Digby School Board has nothing to do with making the stipulations on that children must be vaccinated but their teachers are prohibited from admitting children to school who have not conformed to the law of the Province.

The School Board is in no way autocratic, nor does it arrogate or assume any authority not legally conferred upon it; the members find the duties quite onerous enough without going out of their way to assume others.

The clean bill of health which the school possesses today is one of which the Board is proud, and for the sake of the children and the community generally it is anxious to retain.

I thank you for the courtesy, Mr. Editor.

Alfred Boden,

Secretary to the Board of Health and School Board.

HAVE ANOTHER EAR.

The season for corn on the cob is here and has never a single note like his voice, praise of this delicacy? What could he not make of,

Those vaporous rows of aureate pearls, Glowing beneath the golden tide of butter, keen with salt.

Surely some other literature than that of breakfast food could wax rapturous over the sweet heart of the corn, that marvellous, dewy whiteness, honey sweet, which at last yields itself up to strong, quelling teeth.

Sacred literature bears witness to the seductions of corn. When the timid Israelites, cowering in the desert fastnesses of Sinai, learned that Canaan was "a land of corn and wine" they experienced a sudden change of heart and burst across the Jordan.

Their deprecations among the corn fields and wine jars of the Hittites, Hivites and Jebusites are reported to have been something scandalous. They knew what was good, did those hairy patriarchs.

But whoever undertakes to tell the world of the joys of green corn must leave a certain incompleteness in his description of the corn scene.

To those who limit themselves to six or eight large ears at a sitting, there is something almost disgusting about those who do not desist till they have "eaten their length in corn".

Their barbaric cries of pleasure, their gnashing, rending onslaught and the drip of warm oil from their elbows are quite suggestive of scenes in the cannibal islands.

But what if shameless barbarism does once a year surround our polite tables? Life is short and false teeth overtake the strongest. So butter your ears and be merry, for Golden Bantam does not grow in the fields of Elysium.

There are just two plans. Either the people use the government or the government uses the people.

THE SCHOOL BELL CALLS

The schoolboy, on the first day of school, was traditionally supposed to answer the command of the bell with tardy and reluctant feet. He was considered to groan as he thought of nine months' servitude under the lesson yoke, in unhappy subjection to Teacher, whom he regarded as an unrelenting tyrant. He gave up the vagrant ways of freedom with a very heavy heart.

The cheerful faces of the children of Digby on their way to school on Tuesday, gave no hint of such sentiments. On the contrary they have had enough of idle loafing, and they are ready to accept the tasks of school for what they get out of it.

The reason is that education has been turned upside down during recent years. It approaches children from a new point of view. It makes them want to learn, by picturing the dreary future in prospect for the dance. It cuts out the tedious memory lessons of the past to a great extent; it shows the close relation of school learning to daily needs, and it makes the boy who fails to get his lessons feel like a tail-end in the race of life.

School work becomes associated with interesting things which children do not want to miss. Thousands of schools have athletic teams, bands and orchestras, parties, dances and playgrounds. Not all schools can provide such facilities, but most of them, however, sugar-coat the once bitter pill of education.

The teacher has ceased being the grinding taskmaster, and has become the friend whom a normal child will want to please. If some of these youngsters still won't try to learn, even after all these inducements are offered, who or what is to blame? It may be some physical defect which can be cured. It may be some fault of a home, that is ignorant or neglectful. If children fall behind, their parents would better ask if the lack of home discipline is not the real cause.

The meek shall inherit the earth. Considering the mess it's in, you couldn't wish it on anybody else.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Sunday schools of the land are getting under way again after a period of vacation or desultory attendance.

Those who take upon themselves the burden of the religious education of youth are ready to buckle down to what is conceded a real job. Young people do not turn out to Sunday School as they did a generation or two ago. The reason why would be interesting and valuable.

Time was when every child in every community dressed in his best on Sunday and started out to the church school fortified with his lesson learned during the week. He memorized the golden text and, as likely as not, a considerable number of verses from the Bible. A wholesome taste for Biblical literature and a facility in Biblical quotation were usually imparted in the Sunday School.

But times have changed. A college professor recently disclosed that his class in English literature could only identify 20 per cent. of the Biblical allusions to be found in a selected group of Tennyson's poems.

Familiarity with the Bible and attendance upon Sunday school are marked by the same ratio of decline.

The Sunday school of today contends with new editors never thought of in the olden days. The waning power of parental authority is another enemy of stated religious education. But the great weakness lies in the antiquated equipment and the outgrown practices of backward churches. The contrast between the public school and some Sunday schools is pathetic.

The child feels this disparity even though he may not analyze it. Happily, some of the churches have come to understand this weakness and are boldly attacking it. The period of transition is upon the Sunday school and upon methods in religious education. The problem is a big one but it can and will be solved.

The conviction must be solved is the conviction of every true Canadian, whether churchgoer or not. Religious education is every bit as fundamental to the welfare and happiness of our country as secular education. It must not decline either in favor or usefulness. It must not lag behind.

We learn from adversity. The present, for instance, teaches us that prosperity wasn't the only cause for naughtiness.

"Duet" Fog Horn Still Under Test.

Saint John's "duet" or two-toned fog horn which was recently installed on Partridge Island as an experiment, is evidently not working out in respect of the second note which has been classified as an echoing note as compared with the roar of the dominating note. However, tests are continuing and an official report has not yet been made.

The new fog horn replaced the previous one-toned horn six months ago. The old horn caused many a bull moose heart to beat faster when it sounded. Its note was similar to the call of the cow moose and citizens of Saint John were at times treated to the spectacle of bull moose being "called" by the sound of the horn. Hunters, particularly regretted the passing of the old horn. Captain J. J. Wallis, who is also a powerful light-house, Provision for the first light-house on this island was made in 1788.

A large number of base ball fans accompanied the W. A. A. team to Digby on Wednesday last, when they won the second and last of the play-offs for first place in the Western Valley League.

Temperance Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

"More education and less law—that's my motto," said Neighbor Ben as he passed a few comments yesterday on the temperance question.

Well, he spoke for quite a group of good people when he said this. But the motto will bear looking into. It may indicate a real passion for the highest citizenship. It is, only on the other hand, a smoke screen for a "passing of the buck." Or it may in many a sincere mind be a sign of confused thinking. We get in the way of thinking of law in terms of force and compulsion. That is largely because we have been associating it with the machinery of compulsion, so evident when a law is disobeyed, and police, law courts, penalties, hold the centre of the stage.

But will we not be nearer the truth if we say that a primary function of law is that of teaching?

Think of the laws of the home. They are set down by the parents, first of all that the children may know what is the right and proper things to do, and what the wrong is to be avoided. The good or the dark room are but secondary, to be used only in case of disobedience. Think of the school. The teacher makes laws here that the scholars may know and do the right and avoid the wrong. So with the laws of the land generally. They have first of all, teaching value. They are at the same time point out what is regarded as right and proper, and carry with them an appeal and urge to do as they direct. A summary of the laws of any country will reveal what is regarded as right, and what as wrong, in that country. The people of that country, young and old, are being steadily educated in morals, in social and national outlook, by the laws of the land.

Now, I think one defect in Neighbor Ben's motto is that it sets education and legislation in contrast, as though they were more or less separate and distinct. It seems to forget that the laws of the land are themselves a prime factor in the people's moral education. So it happens that Neighbor Ben and those like him are at large target in this connection. The temperance, for example, the whole task of education must be performed by the home, the school, the church, the book writer; and then when these have done their work, the law comes along and does its work. They forget that the two must work together. The good horse in the team has an impossible task when the other horse is balky, for it is the balky horse that sets the pace. Look across Canada today. See one set of educational forces teaching the injurious effects of alcoholic beverages—the only thing that can be taught truthfully about them today. This set may need some guidance up. But what about the other? Do Government Sale laws in eight provinces teach this, or just the reverse? Is it a case of the team with one horse balky, and that balky horse the Government Sale law?

One of the signs of the waning summer is the flocking together of birds in preparation for their coming migration southward. Swallows will be among the first to go, and even now they are gathering in flocks that cover the telephone and telegraph wires for quite a distance.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

AT N. S. EXHIBITION

Broadway Revue, Night Club and Running Races Among New Features of Provincial Fair.

For its eighteenth year the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition, held at the Weymouth Race Course, will be anything but octogenarian in its attractiveness to the people of the Maritime Provinces. Eastern Canada's largest exhibition will be the freshest, most novel show of its kind that has ever been presented. Popular features will be retained but furnished, while a number of novelties have been added to the program. From every standpoint this year's Nova Scotia's big fair will mark a new era in Exhibitions. And, also, marking the new era, admission prices have been cut in half.

Foremost, in the innovations are the running races and steeplechases which will form an important part of the track program in conjunction with the usual trotting races. The thrill of running races, with the brightly-coated jockeys, a large and elaborately costumed chorus of beautiful dancing girls forming a background for the races, and the dancers and striking European novelties.

Just as novel will be the authentic reproduction of a New York night club in the Industrial building. Here tables will surround an enormous dance floor, which will accommodate hundreds to the dance rhythms of the ten to fifteen piece orchestra which is being specially assembled. There will be a master of ceremonies, a line of dancing girls, and numerous specialties to form an elaborate floor show. During Exhibition week the atmosphere of Forty-second Street will be found in Halifax.

To Subscribers

One dollar is not hard to say if you say it fast.

If somebody owed you one dollar that wouldn't be a killing matter, but if a hundred or so people scattered you one dollar, oh boy! that would be different. Most of us would be strapped, busted or what have you.

If you needed the money for current expenses, in your business, what would you do about it? That is just the problem of The Courier. Today many worthy subscribers are unconsciously allowing their correspondence to the Courier to lag behind. Statements of account in regard to subscriptions have been sent out. It is true that many of the accounts are only for the current year, but others run into two or three years. Each one doesn't amount to very much, but the lot of them make quite a sum which is really needed to meet bill for paper, ink, taxes, postage, etc. Subscribers who have paid this year the Courier extends thanks for such cheerful co-operation, and tries to make each issue one of creditable service, in which the correspondents and advertising patrons so cordially join. But because the item is a small one, please do not neglect it. The matter of sending out bills is not an attractive one and the large family of "old timers" at home and abroad who appreciate their newspaper only need to be reminded, surely, that all dollars possibly collectable do not run into a heavy balance. Thank you!

Base Ball

The Weymouth Amateur Athletic Association team became winners of the championship in the Western Valley League, when they defeated the Digby team by a score of 5-1 in the second and final play off held at Digby on Wednesday afternoon last. The game being witnessed by a large number of fans from both places.

The W. A. A. team which ended at the bottom of the league last season has shown great improvement, and has been steadily advancing this season; their victory of Wednesday totaled the fourteenth consecutive game won by them, as well as placing them first in the Western Valley League.

Tookier hurled the pill for Weymouth, going the whole way, and having 9 hits, 15 strike outs and walking none. McNutt, who did the mound duty for Digby, allowed 3 hits, struck out 5 and walked two. Digby's lone run was made in the first inning by J. Keen, who also made the only run Digby had in the 20-1 score in the first play off game held at Weymouth on Monday.

A coincident in connection with this game was that it took place exactly twenty years ago the day that the Weymouth Cricket team defeated a Saint John team eleven with a score of 138 to 77 at a game played in Saint John. Batting leaders for Weymouth were Jones with 46 and Campbell with 30, while the highest batters for Saint John were: Tucker with 25 and Fairweather with 13.

New Place Names Change With Years

Place names in the course of years sometimes become changed from that originally intended due to abbreviations in pronouncing them. An example of this, states the Tourist Bureau of the Canadian National Railways, is Scatter, on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, a noted sword-fishing centre, which also shreds long on the manner in which some of these names. In the early colonial days of North America, seven ships left Great Britain for North America. On the way over a storm arose which widely scattered the vessels. In the course of time, three of them managed to make the Cape Breton coast and the other four apparently foundered as they were never heard of again. The survivors of the three vessels called the place on the Cape Breton coast where they landed, "Scattered," and in the course of years this has become "Scateri."

Since then he has carried on an extensive general business and the well known Melanson's Pure Spruce Gum, as well

RURAL EDITOR'S PRAISE

Discussing the value of small town editors, the Ottawa Journal says: "No editor of a little-town paper needs to 'sing small'. Of all the newspaper editors he should be most 'in touch' with what is being done and thought by the people who are the backbone of this country — by people who have time to think and who have opportunities for thinking straight, because they have fewer distractions."

"The Journal could enumerate quite a few little dailies and weeklies whose editorial comments have a refreshing spark and are worth reprinting."

"JONATHAN"

Golden Text: — "A friend loveth at all times." — Proverbs 17:17.

Lesson Passage: — I Samuel 18:1-4; 20:35-42.

The Penalty of Love

If love should count you worthy, and should deign
One day to seek your door and be your guest,
Pause! ere you draw the bolt and bid him rest,
If in your old content you would remain.

For not alone he enters; in his train
Are angels of the mist, the lonely guest Dreams of the unfulfilled and unpossessed,
And sorrow, and Life's immemorial pain.

He wakes desires you never may forget,
He shows you stars you never saw before,
He makes you share with him his lot
The burden of the world's divine regret.

How wise you were to open not! and How poor if you should turn him from the door!

— Sydney Royce Lysaght

What Friendship Is, Is:

Friendship has been described as two minds with but a single thought. It is more than this. It is a self-giving. Two hearts become one. There is complete forgetfulness of self in thoughtfulness for the other. No better definition of friendship can be found than in the description of the merging of spirit between Jonathan and David: "The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul." Because of David's kingship we usually speak of David and Jonathan, but in the matter of friendship the true order is Jonathan and David. No mention of Jonathan is made in the New Testament, yet something of his spirit is seen in the Friend of friends. There was nothing mechanical or self-seeking in the friendship of Jonathan. He was unselfish towards David because he loved David as his own soul. In the mad rush of modern business and city life, such friendships are rare, but they were often seen among soldiers during the War. Nearly every countryside has instances past or present of selfless friendships which, dignify human nature. A great fraternal organization has made the story of this friendship between David and Jonathan a central feature of its ritual and an inspiration to its members. Jonathan being dead still speaks.

Renouncing a Kingship. 2-4

David had everything to gain and Jonathan stood to lose everything by their friendship. Saul was king but his days were numbered. The natural successor was Jonathan, Saul's son and a warrior brave. Yet without complaint Jonathan welcomed David from the fields to the court and made a covenant with him. As a symbol of his renunciation of the right of succession Jonathan gave David his robe, and handed to him his personal possessions, his sword, his bow and his girdle. There was no soft sentimentality in this sacrifice. Jonathan doubtless had two motives. He was patriotic and felt that David would make a better king. He had personal devotion to David and was willing to decrease if only David might increase. Such an action is incomprehensible to an unashamed go-getter who makes self-advancement the first article of his creed. But such actions weave their way into folk lore, set ideals for a Corberrie Hunter Shot Dead by Companion.

Edmund Melanson, of Corberrie, was a victim of his friend's hunting rifle on Friday morning, in the woods near his home village. Five men, including a relative, Alexander Melanson, went into the woods on a poaching expedition. Alexander saw what he took to be a deer about twenty yards ahead. Waiting for some moments—to be sure his conjecture was correct, he stated at the inquest in the afternoon—he fired. Rushing to the spot he was horrified to discover Edmund, holding his hand to his heart and gasping for breath in the underbrush. Edmund asked him the simple question, "Alexander, what have you done?" and when the three hunters arrived, said, "Pray for me." Shortly afterwards he died.

An inquest was held on Friday afternoon, before Coroner C. F. Sabean of New Tuxet. It was stated the victim was in a kind of shirt, and carried a brown sack on his back. This in a dense thicket, resembled a browsing deer. The bullet went through the heart, according to medical evidence.

Melanson was a man of some 50 years, married, but no family.

A verdict of accidental death by shooting, was returned.

The fact that the hunting party were in illegal possession of high-powered rifles in the forest and were illegally engaged in deer hunting, adds to the seriousness of the case.

Edmund Melanson was a well known sportsman and had acted in the capacity of guide for many years. He was a brother of Fred Melanson, of Weymouth, and a cousin of Rev. Father Melanson, F. P., and Dr. Melanson, also of Weymouth.

The picnic held by Rev. Father M. LeBlanc, F. P., in aid of the church at St. Alphonse de Clare, realized the sum of $550.

Acadians Gather in Thousands At Raising of Cross

A large crowd of people, estimated at 2,000, responded to the invitation of Rev. Father Dren, parish priest of St. Mary's, published in the press and gathered on Sunday Aug. 27, at the village had erected a souvenir cross in commemoration of the first church built in Clare by the Acadians returning from exile after the "Grand Derangement."

In a short address Rev. Father Dren told of the necessity of marking by durable monuments the first steps of the ancestors, and thanked the people of Grosses Coques for their generosity in donating the land on which they have erected the Cross-Souvenir.

Rev. Father Bourneuf, parish priest of St. Bernards, then performed the blessing of the monument. He was surrounded by the clergy of the County of Digby and the Rev. Fathers Eudistes of St. Anne's College. The choir of St. Mary's Church sang then the Acadian national anthem, the "Ave Maris Stella."

One of the descendants of the first Acadians who pioneered the District of Clare, the Rev. Father LeBlanc, parish priest at St. Alphonse de Clare, with great emotion, retraced the arrival of Joseph Dugas, his wife and young daughter at what is today the thriving village of Grosses Coques but at that time a virgin forest, how he built a house with scant tools and cleared a field, while living only out of the fish of the sea, the clams of the shores and the game of the forest.

He arrived there in 1767 and was followed the next year by some other hardy Acadian pioneers and in 1772 twenty-six families were snugly established in Grosses Coques; in 1769 Abbe Bailly de Messier, from Quebec, visited for the first time the settlement and celebrated the first mass, baptizing the new-born and blessing the few marriages contracted before witnesses previous to his visit. In 1772 on one of his subsequent visits he erected a small, log cabin church, on the very spot where the monument is standing today. Later on Father Bourg visited the settlement and the Acadians having spread widely another church at Church Point was then erected. Then with the granting of lands by the Government of Halifax came the establishment of the various villages in Clare and their prosperity.

Annual Service at Barton Soldiers' Memorial.

A splendid attendance was had at the annual Memorial Service held at the Soldiers' Memorial at Barton, on Sunday afternoon, August 27th. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Higgins, of the Barton Baptist Church, who also read the list of names which are engraved on the Memorial.

The boys and girls of the place participated in the service by singing hymns, "Onward Christian Soldiers," each placing a bouquet at the base of the monument. Other beautiful floral offerings were also placed upon the monument by interested friends and relatives, especially the families of the soldiers who had given their all for king and country.

The Scripture was read and prayer offered by Rev. M. R. Ewing, of the United Church. The address was given by Edward West, student of the General Theological Seminary of New York, who is spending the summer at Weymouth North.

The hymns for the afternoon included, "Shall We Gather at the River" and "Blest be the Tie that Binds." The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Higgins.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

Bruce B. Brewer, Vice-President of the Perry-Hanly Advertising Company says:

That buyers today want facts. What article have you bought recently without thinking it over quite a bit? That means you, and everyone else, will read more about some article in which you may be, or can be, interested.

In the newspaper you have these facts logically presented to you. You can linger on a certain point of advantage; you can read it again; you have the evidence there on which to base your decision.

News is "hotter" today. Words are changing rapidly. We wonder what is happening now, and what might happen next. So we keep in touch with today's events through the newspaper.

"Hot news" keeps people reading newspapers. They read the papers, too, for "hot news" about products or services they need. If the facts are there — enough facts and convincing facts — people will buy. And that after all is the purpose of advertising: To make the sale. The newspaper has a big advantage because it presents those facts so that the purchaser may think them over, study them again and again, as he makes his decision.

Mrs. Budd Lewis, of Danvers, visited friends at Weymouth North last week.

Friendship's Covenant, 42 - A

The test of friendship is not extravagant expressions of fondness, but enduring fidelity. The friendship of David and Jonathan were well. At the beginning they felt strong attraction. When David was in danger Jonathan risked his life in being true to his friend. Having to part, they renewed their covenant which was to be binding not only upon themselves but upon their children. When Saul and Jonathan fell together David uttered his great lament over his king and his friend. Soldiers have tenderer, truer words been spoken than these: "I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant hast thou been unto me: thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women." No fair weather friends were these.

Questions for Discussion

- In being true to David was Jonathan untrue to Saul?
- Did David do right in allowing Jonathan to sacrifice his own interests?
- Which was the nobler, David or Jonathan?
- Is deceit ever justifiable?

SUGGESTION METHOD TO STIMULATE INTEREST

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir - I have been thinking over the advantages and possibilities of the suggestion method of Kings-Annapolis-Digby, which our Federal lawmakers have created and which must remain for many years to last.

The boundaries of the new constituency coincide with those of what is widely known as the "Annapolis Valley," and among its advantages are: fertile soil, extensive orchard lands, sea fishing opportunities, rail way service, local shipping facilities, etc.

With such advantages and such a quality of people it seems to me it is possible to make this constituency the most attractive and prosperous in all Canada. A united and determined people with a well considered program of improvement and progress, and an organization might accomplish much in the direction suggested.

Of the different organizations throughout the valley, it seems to me that of no more convenient one than a board of trade. Its work is largely deliberative, and its scope is broad enough to include almost any effort for welfare and progress. And in a democratic country suggestion, discussion and action is the general path of progress.

I have been wondering if a Kings-Annapolis-Digby Board of Trade, or an Annapolis Valley Board of Trade could not serve a useful purpose at the present time. Such a body might stimulate and lead the people to the whole district and co-operate with government and railway departments, farms and stock associations, and any other institutions promoting the progress of the constituency.

Like most people today we are discouraged and are resting on our oars waiting for the return of prosperity. The depth and length of the present depression suggests the possibility that "abounding prosperity" may not return of its own accord, and that we must be active in the future than it has been in the past. At any rate with the rapidly changing conditions of the present times, who would be at the head of the procession cannot afford to be lethargic.

What I have in mind a number of items which might be included in a program for Kings-Annapolis-Digby, but this letter is already too long and I must close for this time. I would like to see in the press suggestions for such a program as I have indicated and also the views of public spirited citizens as to the advisability of starting a forward movement for the Annapolis Valley and the utility of a central board of trade through which to carry on such progressive movement.

A FISHING PARTY

Down thru the turbulent Digby Gap Close to the shore, where the waves let lap and splash, the fishing party waited for the start. We sail, in a pleasure craft. Skirting the whirpools, gyrating round.

Then a flash thru the Gap, to the fishing ground, close to the shore, where our little craft is bound. Past the green foothills, adjoining the shore, the broken rocks whereon waves dash and roar.

And above them, in flocks, seagulls soar. On past the life-saving station we go. While a thin mist falls, like a white bridal veil. But thru it, our pleasure craft sails. On past the caverns, whose wide open doors.

Have often been locked by wrecks on their floors. Washed up by the sea, on the shore. But, onward we sail, thru the misty haze.

Over Prim Point shores and waterways. We reach the wide open Fundy Bay, Where a northern wind blows the mist away.

Far over the hills, where it's won't to stay. And a sunnier sky, while the flag on our mast.

Is flapping and blowing; we anchor at last. And a sudden jerk - then overboard cast.

We patiently wait for a tug at our lines. From a hungry fish, that so rarely declines. To partake of the bait, away down in the brine.

There a sudden jerk - and you pull hard and fast. There's a fish on your line - now, you've caught it at last.

And land it safe, where on deck it is cast. Soon all our party are hauling fish.

And whoop with delight, as they fill up the bin. With codfish and haddock, still flapping their fins.

While some of our guests look uneasy and pale. And others, clutch desperately on to the rail, nature prevails.

Leaning far over, and dreadfully frail. But - the day has been perfect, good nature prevails.

Our jolly old captain sits close to the rail. And looks at his watch, then calls, "Time - we must sail."

So we pull in our lines and call it a day. All pleased with our catch - and sail down the Bay.

Monthly Income for Life

DO YOU KNOW --

that fewer persons have $1,000 at age of 65 than at age of 25, although they have had 40 years in which to accumulate it? This is how it works out: 100 average persons start out at age 25 expecting at least some measure of financial success by the time they reach 65—but 40 years later

36 have died;
1 only is wealthy;
4 are well-to-do;
5 still have jobs;
51 are dependent on others.

Men and women with regular monthly incomes have passed through the depression with the least discomfort of any. Why not then prepare for the greatest depression of all—the autumn of life when you are no longer able to work, or cannot get a job—by arranging for a monthly income for life.

One of Canada's largest and strongest financial institutions is arranging monthly incomes for men and women of all ages, everywhere, every day.

You are under no obligations to buy new ones, neither is there any charge for this service. Should you wish reliable Tested Tubes to replace the poor ones we will only too glad to furnish them at the regular retail price. We could, of course, test your Tubes in the home, but this is not a reliable way, due to the fluctuation of the power. Agricultural Heads Meet at Bear River

A meeting of the board of directors of the Nova Scotia Farmers' Association was held on Wednesday afternoon at Bear River, the home town of the president. It has been the policy of this association for the past three years to hold an executive meeting in the community where the president resides.

At this meeting a general discussion of the business of the association ensued, as well as a discussion of the various phases of the agricultural situation demanding attention. The principal business was the preparation of a report containing recommendations of subjects to be considered at the annual meeting to be held during the last week of January, at some point in the province yet to be decided upon. These recommendations will first be presented to the county agricultural societies, and then to the annual convention of the county associations for their consideration, before being presented to the provincial body.

Those who attended Wednesday's directors' meeting were:

Harvey E. Chisholm, president, of Bear River, a Digby County farmer and member of the Digby Municipal Council.

H. G. Campbell, of Stewiacke, banner farmer of Colchester, Nova Scotia, and president of the county associations of the Halifax, Colchester and East Hants Farmers' Association.

John C. Corning, Chignecto, banner farmer of Yarmouth County.

R. J. Smeltzer, of Mahone Bay, banner farmer of Lunenburg County.

J. A. Moore, of Shinnikins, banner farmer of Cumberland and Scotia, premier farmer.

Mr. Moore has been very active in both community and county agricultural work.

Charles Munn, of Leitcher's Creek, C. B. Mr. Munn is a leading market gardener and green house man on Cape Breton Island.

H. R. Brown, of Pughwash, secretary of the Association.

Others in attendance at the afternoon meeting, non members of the directorate, were Perry Foote, of Lakeville, Kings County, a retired journalist and prominent farmer; and R. N. Jackson, of North Sydney, a past president of the association.

In the evening the Digby County Farmers' Association were hosts at a banquet given in honor of the visitors, at the Commercial Hotel. They were welcomed by the president, H. E. Chisholm, who paid tribute to the past presidents of the association, and urged the need of co-operation among the farming fraternity of the province, "for," he said, "unless we co-operate as producers we are very much handicapped." In concluding his address Mr. Chisholm proposed a toast to the king.

Other toasts were: To Our Agricultural Societies, proposed by J. H. Moore, response by R. J. Smeltzer; The County Associations, proposed by E. Campbell, response by H. R. Brown; Our Hosts, the Digby County Farmers' Association, proposed by Charles Munn, response by H. Nichols; The Press, proposed by C. P. Foote, response by J. M. Wallis.

Scalloping Season Will Open Shortly

Although the opening of the scallop season is still a few weeks away, the owners of the vessels are not losing any time in making preparation for a busy season. The boats that have been harbored in Digby during the close season are undergoing repairs. New engines are being installed and the boats painted and made like new. In Annapolis ports and other fishing villages of Digby County where scallop vessels are quartered the same preparations are in progress and it is very likely that boats, now being constructed, will be added to the fleet this season. The scallop industry means a lot to Digby. There is the employment, which is steady for several months for members of the crew, and a tidy sum is paid out in the town each season for repairs, during the activity of the fleet.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Thurber and three sons, James, Harry and Hoy, after spending their summer holidays in their bungalow on the Shore Road, returned to their home in Watertown, Mass., on Saturday.

S. A. Keen has returned home after attending a convention of the Nova Scotia Embalmers' Association.

Two Centerville Boys Spend Night Adrift on Bay

Adrift, with the crankshaft of their motor boat broken, in the rain and fog of the Bay of Fundy, all Friday night, without either food, water or oil clothes, was the experience of two young Centerville fishermen, Herbert and Roy Nesbitt, sons of Ralph Nesbitt. On Friday morning, about 4 o'clock, the two young men left in their boat for the fishing grounds, about nine miles out. After fishing two tides they started to return and had gone only a short distance when their crankshaft broke. The rest of the night they spent in the boat, with a bit of canvas they rigged up a sail, but as the wind was off shore they made little headway.

In the meantime considerable anxiety for the safety of the boys was felt by the people on shore. Boat's motor was started in the night, the light station at Digby was notified, but the thick fog which prevailed hampered the searchers. At daybreak, however, almost the entire fleet joined in the search and the missing boat was located about noon. With the boys very little the worse from the effects of the night's exposure. Just the week before the boys' sister, Mary Nesbitt, had a narrow escape from drowning at Liverpool, where she was bathing, and being a poor swimmer, was only rescued just in the nick of time.

Kiwans Convention at Montreal, Sept. 17-18-19.

A very special feature of the District Convention of the Maritime, Quebec and Ontario districts of the Kiwans International, to be held at Montreal on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, and one that will undoubtedly add prestige to the Kiwans activities on this continent, is the expected attendance of the newly elected premier of Nova Scotia—Annis I. Macdonald—accompanied by other members of his government. In the persons of Hon. A. S. MacMillan, minister of highways; C. W. Anderson and Murray Logan, all members of the Kiwans Club of Halifax.

Mayor P. W. Hickey, and members of the Digby Club, and other members left this week to be in attendance at the convention.

The Owen Sound Kiwanians will bring with them a wonderful record of 100,000 pounds of food, clothing, and other necessities, composed of street kiosks, being an outstanding accomplishment.

Freeport Sunday School Teachers Hold Meeting

On Tuesday evening, September 5, the teachers of the Freeport United Baptist Sunday School, with the pastor, Rev. A. W. Akeley, and his wife met at the home of the superintendent, Ralph E. Morrell, for the consideration of plans for the coming winter's work in the Sunday School. Mr. Morrell read a paper on "The Good Teacher's Development of His Capacity for Leadership," after which the Teachers' Code was given. A short service of Scripture reading and responses, based upon the twelve principles of the teachers, followed.

A committee was appointed to visit each home and ask the parents to co-operate with the Sunday School, in having all the children attend.

The matter of grading and also that of Rally Day were discussed, after which Mrs. Morrell, the hostess, served refreshments, and the meeting, which was a helpful one, closed.

On Sunday, September 3, four Digby boys, in two canoes, left town about 6.30 a.m., paddled up through the Annapolis Basin through the fog, arriving at Goat Island, at the mouth of the Annapolis River, before they knew just where they were. From there they paddled up the river to Tupperville, where they stopped for dinner, continuing to a point a few miles from Bridgetown.

On Monday morning they waited for the tide to favor them. Then paddled down the river to Annapolis Royal, continuing their journey to Digby on the Valinda. The boys were: Ralph Wright, Chester Keen, Jack Nichols and Bryson Denton.

Skipper Simon Theriault, (former captain of the "East Ferry"), is home at Gloucester again from the Grand Banks, where, with his crew of twenty-seven men, in the halibut American, he has been chasing halibut for the past 24 days, arriving in port at Portland, Maine, last Thursday.

He has his halibut and then made a run for Gloucester, where he docked at Davis Brothers'. The latter concern took 12,000 pounds of salt cod and 2,000 pounds of fresh cod, constituting the remainder of the vessel's fare. The sad part of the news is in the share of the crew, who after 24 days on the Grand Banks, encountering all kinds of weather, shared but 25¢ each. But Capt. Theriault intends to sail at once on his final halibut trip.

Some few weeks ago a very quiet ceremony took place at the hospital when the laying of the corner stone was carried out. In the presence of the members of the Hospital Board and medical fraternity of the district, Dr. J. M. Lovitt, of Yarmouth, laid the stone and dedicated it to the memory of his father and mother.

The late William D. and Mrs. Lovitt of Yarmouth. The affair was a very quiet one and of a semi-private nature, but was most impressive in every way. The matter had been held over for some little time in accordance with the wishes of the Hospital Board, who were anxious that Dr. Lovitt, through whose generosity in a large measure had resulted the erection of the hospital, might be present and carry out the ceremony. It will be recalled that Dr. Lovitt has made some very munificent gifts towards the building, which as it stands today, is one of the finest equipped in the province.

Upward Trend in Lumbering Is Experienced

The lumber industry throughout Yarmouth and Digby counties is experiencing a decided upward trend. Practically all the surplus stock available at the mills has been disposed of due to the unusual building boom this end of the province is enjoying. Two new mills have been erected near New Tasset and in Digby County near Cedar Lake Lumber Company, Yarmouth, and the Yarmouth Wood Workers report business considerably increased over last year and the lumber industry bids fair to resume its old time proportions.

BAND NOTES

Next Sunday afternoon at the Band Stand the last open-air concert of the season will be given by the Digby Civic and Junior Bands. Should the weather prove stormy the final concert will be played the first favorable night. This will complete the summer series of fifteen concerts provided by the Town Council. Sunday's program will include favorite hymns; Lester Brockton's beautiful Waiside Caper with male choir; two marches and an overture played for the first time, and the charming "Wistful Waltzes," the last four numbers being compositions by Ed. Chenette, one of America's foremost writers of modern band music. Other selections will be chosen from the summer's favorite program numbers.

At last Monday night's band practice the boys started work on entirely new music, of somewhat more difficult character than heretofore. With the same enthusiasm that characterized their first weeks of band work, the Director intimated that it might be necessary to drop one or two players who have been delinquent in attending practice, with only a trial excuse to offer. A band is better off without such members.

A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered to Capt. George Morrell and Churchill Sallows for the great time they gave the boys at the corn ball mentioned in last week's concert. A vote of thanks was also tendered to E. McClatchie, of the Pines Orchestra for his assistance last Sunday afternoon. Mr. McClatchie is a talented musician of high order, and the boys were greatly pleased to have him with them.

Practice nights twice a week, Monday and Thursday, was decided upon without a dissenting vote, the hour to be 8 o'clock sharp.

That was a great trip for the Band last Sunday around the Basin and up Bear River to the village where they played a few selections. Though only 30 players took the trip, leaving 15 at home, their music sounded fine as they circled the Digby water front and played for Smith's Cove, Harbor View, and the residents along the river.

Kiwans Resumes Luncheons On Princess Helene

The Digby Kiwanis Club resumed their luncheons on board the steamer Princess Helene on Monday last after holding them at the Pines all summer. This club is the only service club on the continent to hold its luncheons on board a steamer. Monday's luncheon was of an informal nature, with no social speaker, and a round table discussion between the members. P. W. Holdsworth, the president, left for Montreal yesterday to attend the annual convention for the district. Several others plan on getting away today.

Harry Cochran and His Orchestra Leave Digby.

Harry Cochran and his Pines Hotel orchestra left Digby on Wednesday, after completing their summer engagements. This is the second season for this popular orchestra in Digby. The Courier is given to understand that Harry and his orchestra will be engaged at the Capitol Theatre, Halifax, during the winter months.

During the two seasons this orchestra has been in Digby they have made a great many friends, and have always been glad to render their services at any public function, and it has always been a treat to listen to their music. The Kiwanis Club of Digby are especially grateful to them, at all Pines luncheons of this club Harry has presided at the piano, and on several occasions his whole orchestra has been in attendance.

Since the closing of the Pines for the season they have made a short tour, playing at Digby, Smith's Cove, Weymouth and Kentville. Their friends everywhere hope that they will be back again next season.

School Opens at Centerville.

The Centerville school opened on Monday, with William Handinson, of Weymouth, as principal, and Mrs. Vernon Greenough teaching the primary grades. On Wednesday afternoon last, prior to the special school meeting, which was held in the evening, M. C. Foster, of Bridgeport, Inspector for the district, met the trustees and a number of the rate payers of the section, at the school house. Mr. Foster very clearly explained to those present, the provisions of the Free School Act, and urged upon their consideration, the necessity of providing the children of the section with the means of securing a common school education, and stated that he considered the fundamentals of education as provided by the public schools, among the essentials of living.

Mrs. Eliza Tuck, of Roxbury, Mass., was a recent guest of her brother, H. L. Smith, and Mrs. Smith. She accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Angus Tuck and their little son "Jackie", who are making a motor tour of the province.

John Dakin, of Boston, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dakin.

On Saturday the Pines Hotel closed for the summer season of 1933. From all reports the season at the Pines was somewhat better than the season of 1932.

The closing of the Pines, which was a little earlier than usual, is an indication that the summer is about over. We understand that other of our summer hotels in Digby and vicinity will close shortly, while a few will remain open until October 15th.

On reviewing the season of 1933 we cannot say that we are disappointed, for none looked forward to a big season, and more than one hotel proprietor has told us that they did as well, and in many cases better, than last year. Very few have said that the 1933 season was not up to that of 1932.

OMINOUS SIGNS

Soon a wreath of argente frost will appear one morning on the garage roof and nature will lay the last of her summer garb away.

The man will move to dig himself in for new hibernation. There must be a day when windows will be opened wide while a miscellany of trash is burned in the furnace to start the winter fires blazing. That also will be time for the motorist to consider the relatives merits of various anti-freeze concoctions.

Juvenile knees will presently go into eclipse, socks will be supplanted by stockings, low shoes will give way to high ones and the less modernistic "w" don their winter flannels.

Between now and the middle of November there will be a feverish haste to go on thrilling and pleasant excursions with gun or arm, into forest and field. There are coats to be taken out of storage and thinner oil to be prescribed for the car.

When the first frost silvers the house-tops and paints the leaves man imperceptibly moves out of the open into the fireside chair, man's equivalent of the long sleep that sends birds to the cavern and hollow oak and moves the gardener to bed the hydrangeas down in straw.

A week-end used to mean the end of the week instead of the week-enders.

SUMMER SIESTA FADS

Another vacation season has been ushered out. Class rooms have been put in order. The annual trek from shore and mountain has been staged. Office and industrial routine is rapidly assuming a state of normalcy. Even the political tempo is picking up.

Digby merchants are getting ready for an anticipated increase in the volume of business. There is a general disposition to dig the future optimistically.

Digby pupils by the hundreds, albeit somewhat reluctantly, have shaken off summer lethargy and answered the first day's roll call.

There's zest in the very atmosphere. As the machinery of commerce and education is on the verge of functioning once more at full capacity, one concludes that the yearly siesta is worth while if for no other reason than that of demonstrating the value of active living in our work-a-day world.

There may be more divorces now, but there are fewer worn-out wives who wonder if it would be a sin to mix rat poison with the biscuit.

That the success of modern stores is entirely dependent on the merchandise they carry and the way it is presented to the public.

Advertised merchandise has a way of completely satisfying those who demand quality.

People have been educated to look for quality—quality that assures service.

They have been educated to read the advertising columns of the newspapers, knowing that firms who advertise carry reliable merchandise.

The merchant who does not advertise is out of luck. He will soon be out of business if he doesn't wake up and advertise.

Newspaper advertising introduces goods to every citizen. Newspaper advertising keeps them in touch with those merchants who carry reliable goods.

Merchants should let the people know who they are, where they are, and what they have to sell, by advertising in local newspapers.

Sunday Sermonette

"Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord"—Ephesians 5:10

These words are closely connected with those that precede them in the eighth verse—"Walk as children of light." They further explain the mode by which that commandment is to be fulfilled. "The little verse is the sum of all christian duty, an all sufficient directory of life. The one thing which all other summaries of duty lack is motive power to get them into practice. That is, we all know from our happy human experience that no motive that can be brought to bear upon man is stronger where there are loving hearts concerned, than this simple one 'do it to that true love.' And that is what Jesus really says. That is the deepest thought of Christian morality and that which gives the morality of the New Testament its office supremacy over all other writings. There are precepts in it far nobler and better than can be found elsewhere. But it is not in the details of its precepts so much as in the power to obey them and in the suggestion of the motive which makes them all easy that Christ's teaching so far transcends all other teaching in the world.

And here lies the excellence thereof. It is a poor cold thing to say to a man "do this because it is right." It is still a poor powerless thing to say to him "do this because it is expedient." Do this because in the long run it leads to happiness. It is all different when you say "do this to please Jesus Christ." The Christ who pleased not Himself but gave himself for you. That softens the hardest heart. The one motive which impels men and can be entrusted to secure in them whatsoever things are noble to please Him. So we have the secret of blessedness in these words. For self-succoriness and self-suppression are blessedness. Our miseries come from unbridled wills, far more than from our sensitive organizations. It is because we do not accept the commandments that the commandments are unattainable because of the approbation of the Master which is reflected in an approving conscience. We live under His smile here and hereafter. Well done good and faithful servant.

Temperance

Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

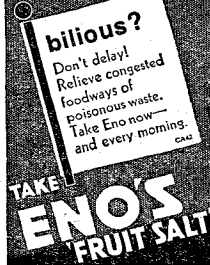

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

What is this I read? The Man About Town, who makes a weekly contribution to the columns of the Berwick Register, and comments and well on things in general, has a paragraph in a recent issue that is a bit disturbing. After recalling the way advocates of the present liquor control act claimed in placid days that such a law would promote temperance and sobriety, and after noting that he knows government liquor stores (perhaps all) that are well conducted, he speaks as an eyewitness of happenings in a Nova Scotia town, whose name I shall omit. He says:

"Nomination Day in _____ is a good illustration of the evil of the government liquor control act. A few years ago, we could have big political pot-boys, and almost no evidence of drunkenness. I have attended some big political meetings in the days before government sale, and so have you where no one was under the influence of booze, and where everything was as quiet as a Sunday School picnic."

"Contrast that with what happened in _____ on Nomination Day. During the afternoon, and especially the late afternoon, men by the dozen were reeling about the streets in various states of intoxication. And then along between five and six o'clock, that mob blocked the street for hundreds of feet on each side of the liquor store, howling like frenzied demons. 'We want beer,' the 'Mounties' had to be placed on guard in front of the liquor store to protect it, and to hold back the mob. I knew _____ in the old bad days, and while things were frequently pretty bad then, I never saw anything quite so disgraceful as the scenes on Nomination Day. The thing that I don't like about it all is the fact that, whether I like it or not, I'm a partner in the booze business, a business that debases and curses my fellow-men."

Now, all that makes pretty sorry reading. This town stands in the centre of one of the finest areas of Nova Scotia, an area which has for the most part been strong in its advocacy of temperance. Let us credit the advocates of government control with all the sincerity and sagacity that may be their due. Let us grant that even the best of laws are only half-way measures to goodness. Let us concede whatever shadow of truth there may be in the claim that truth cannot be made moral by law. Let us even make allowances for some element in human nature—that has a sneaking urge to "do" just because some one says "don't." But after all is said and done, does any person seriously believe that by making it easy to get liquor people will in some way want and get less? Or that by clothing it with respectability of the government seal the use of liquor will be therefore shunned by the people? Is it not to be expected that more liquor will be bought and used when it is the government stores that sell? And if more liquor be bought and used, will not its evil effects appear on a wider scale?

2000 CHILDREN IN MASSED CHOIR

Boys and Girls of Nova Scotia to Be Prominent at Opening of the Provincial Exhibition.

September 30th looms as a red letter day for the children of Nova Scotia, for then, on its opening day, the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition (Halifax, Sept. 30th-Oct. 7th), will present a Children's Day that is more truly a Children's Day than any in the eighty years of its existence. In previous exhibitions children have merely watched the various and delightful entertainments, but now they themselves will form an integral and prominent part of the programme.

As in other years they will be able to enjoy the numerous attractions, the colorful bustle of the Midway, the fascinating industrial exhibits, the even more fascinating zoo of living Nova Scotia animals. They will be the first to sample the excitement of the sparkling Revue, imported direct from New York, on the Forum stage. But that is just the beginning.

For, as a special attraction on Children's Day, there are to be parades of decorated bicycles and dolls carried by their owners, and in Nova Scotia may enter for handsome prizes. This will take place in the afternoon. In the evening a massed choir of two thousand children from the direction of Professor B. C. Silver, of Kentville, whose work alone these lines has received national recognition. Two hundred children from the rural schools will participate in the program for dancing under the direction of Miss Dora Baker, assistant to the Superintendent of Education. While Professor W. E. Striving will put several hundred Halifax school boys through their paces in an ambitious series of gymnastics.

With the assistance of the children of the province and their parents, Nova Scotia's "Wonderful Week" will be ushered in with a truly wonderful day.

Lawyer's Fees Ordered Cut in "Ox" Case.

Lawyer's fees in the famous Digby County "Ox Case" of Hill vs. Warr, were ordered reduced in a finding handed down in Supreme Court in Halifax, last week, by Mr. Justice Carroll, ruling on an order for taxation.

Taxation by Judge Grierson, at Digby, had awarded the attorney $175.00 for five arguments and $157 for counsel fees, and attendance. Mr. Justice Carroll re-taxed these at $75 and $100 respectively. In the plaintiff's claim that the solicitor had proceeded with an appeal without authority, Mr. Justice Carroll upheld the decision of Judge Grierson that the claim was not justified.

"HARVEST HOME."

It is a mistake to think that the Harvest Festival is the innovation of the Christian Church. In fact, as some people may thoughtlessly imagine it, a device for raising extra money merely for the Maintenance of its work.

From time immemorial, Harvest time has been celebrated by most people on earth.

It was the practice of the heathen Nations, who never knew God as the Author and Giver of every good Gift, but who worshipped the Sun, the Rain and other elements which they considered were responsible for the growth of their crops. Their celebrations were characterized by dancing and songs, and on the whole a time of rejoicing.

With the Jews it was a Religious obligation to celebrate the Feast of the Harvest, and was one of the most joyous occasions of the year. "Joy in the Harvest" was a spiritual expression amongst them. It was to them a time of great thanksgiving and recognition of God's goodness.

Moses, their leader, enjoined them as follows: "Thou shalt take of the first of all fruit of the land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt go unto the place the Lord thy God shall choose to place His name there." And this commandment is no less binding on the professing followers of Christ today, and may I say that the duty of all is to practically show their appreciation of blessings received in a joyful way.

It was after the custom of the Jews to leave corners of their fields to be harvested for the poor to glean, and for the birds to live on, which reveals their sense of responsibility to share what they had received with others as well as with themselves. I believe, added greatly to the true Harvest Home.

People and friends of this county and district, can we not make this Harvest Season the most joyful of the year by celebrating this year's Harvest Home with rejoicing and praise to the Giver of all good things and lift our hearts and lives to magnify His Holy Name in our midst? Truly can we possess the harvest of this country with a bountiful harvest.

And let us not forget the injunction about the basket of our first fruits, but let us bring our gifts to God.

The Salvation Army Harvest Festival ingathering during the month will afford you an opportunity to do this in a practical way, placing your gifts where they are most needed. The proceeds are devoted to the home service work of the Salvation Army.

The conclusion of the Harvest Festival ingathering will be celebrated with a grand prize service in the Salvation Army hall on September 27. May we appeal to you for a generous response in this time of increased need?

LET'S PLAY THE GAME

To the Editor of the Courier:
Sir—In the title of this letter we must of necessity recognize as a challenge, and it is intended as such to the world in general, but particularly to the people of this province. I herewith submit a few things for consideration, involving a principle of which we are compelled to take notice.

In 1925, at a convention of the liberal party, held in Weymouth, I had the honor of moving a resolution involving the principle of the Brotherhood of Man, to the effect that future appointments to government office must be subject to the following qualifications: Worthiness, Ability and Needfulness; and when conditions were equal, a returned man to be given the preference. We cannot expect honorable administration by the use of unworthy methods—figs do not grow on thistles. And it is just as important to appoint men of worthiness to minor positions as to select worthy persons to the higher offices. The need of cooperation, otherwise evil results. Ability also is essential, yet men of worthy principle have been known to qualify and give efficient service. The needy, although listed last—is by no means least. The principle of the Brotherhood of Man is directly involved in this instance, and especially in view of present day conditions. We can easily see that our needs and wants are many, even to the necessities of life in some cases. Now the question to decide, and the principle involved is this: "Shall I Play the Game?" Will I think only of self or will I remember others as well as myself? Do unto others as I would they would do unto me. I am glad to recall that at the convention previously referred to the resolution was unanimously adopted.

My friends, I believe that the spirit still lives though necessarily may have driven some of us into a corner. Yet we cannot afford to sacrifice our principle for the sake of position. If we do we must, of necessity, sacrifice our religion. We might as well have a religion minus that principle but it would not be God's. The Christian religion is found on two principles, the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. Regardless of what men may profess it is about time we awakened to the realization that our own interests in playing the game. We cannot improve on God's teachings and if we truly want to co-operate with His plan, we must press to the best advantage we can get, let us accept the challenge and play the game along His lines. He promises grace to help in time of need if we want it, and if you do not accept that we are up to the eyes in sin.

I have yet another point I would submit, involving this principle. In the Centreville and Lake Midway school districts the schools are not, as yet, open. I understand the cause and investigation on the part of the Teachers' Union or whatever the organization may be called. Their schedule of salaries is higher than the districts consider possible, therefore the results fall upon the children and the play the game spirit is applied they must remain in ignorance as far as education is concerned. Now these things ought not to be. This is no time to enforce any schedule on the part of anyone. Let us remember that the principle involved is not the product of man's wisdom, but God's. So far as we may think my sympathy entirely enlisted in behalf of the districts, but let me assure you that I am also sympathetic with the teachers, too. But with the enforcement of the scheduled salaries at this time, God's Gospel is co-operative, not competitive. I know you all want to live—so do I. We cannot have a happy Hecantoque and sow something we will not want to reap. There are strenuous times ahead; even during the coming winter there will be conditions the like of which many will not have experienced before, so let us fortify ourselves with His promise.

"Blessed is he who considers the other fellow—the Lord will be with him in his troubles." And if anyone thinks he can escape cares and problems involving this principle, let him guess again. There is only one remedy for mankind's troubles and problems. That should be apparent to all by now. Let him forsake his own way and play the game God's way—or go under.

Now if we are in earnest God promises to forgive and heal our backslidings. So this challenge is not for consideration only, but for action—and let no man think to fool God by way of bluff. It is not that man's ways are going to fail—they have failed already. It is time to turn a new leaf and play the game with God and man. Nineveh had only forty days but she put sincerity and action into repentance and came out all right; and this is the time to do likewise. There have been enough in respect to the matters herein mentioned, which are set forth as illustrations that we might apply the principle given us of the Master to every problem of life, and all play the game before God (and man) until H. comes whose right it is to rule.

Between Ourselves

An editor's job is only to get the news for his paper; write a few editorials; re-write copy that comes in from the country correspondents; read a card or so of thousands of letters; say nice things about everybody; try and agree with everybody else's opinions; get in a few darts at the other fellow whenever possible—just so long as the other fellow doesn't happen to be you; keep in touch with all local affairs and about everything else; listen to arguments; comment on the weather, the crops and what not; see that the staff get paid; keep the plant running; keep the wolf from the door; listen to people's rants and raves—when they are not mentioned in the columns of the paper; listen to the same thing when folks are mentioned; explain why he can't give "dead head" space for every event; explain that he can't publish everything that is given him for publication—and just about a million other little things.

Of course it's not much of a job.

But, just at present there is one editor who is feeling just a little bit peeved. Since the opening of the Digby General Hospital the Courier has done everything in its power to promote this splendid institution—through its columns by giving them hundreds of lines of space; by donating paper for table covers for teas, pantry sales, etc.; by giving cards and tickets for bridge parties; saying nice things every so often—and yet.

When the corner stone of our splendid new building was laid, the whole proceeding was kept a secret from the editor; the local press was not even given the courtesy of an invitation to attend, and knew nothing of the event until we read an account in an outside paper. This was an act of discourtesy which possibly would not be duplicated in any town or city in the United States or Canada under similar circumstances.

Another thing in regard to the same institution that has kind of "got our nunny," was when we received a bill from that institution in an envelope that was not printed in Digby, and the billhead bore the imprint of an Ontario firm of printers.

As I said to say "this hurts me more than it will you." We hate like the very devil to kick about these things. We are proud of our hospital and its staff; we believe we have done much to promote their worthy cause. We do not say that we have done more than our share, for we hope in the next few years to come we will have the pleasure of giving them what little assistance we can whenever the opportunity presents itself, but we like fair play—and it is fair play to ask all the favors possible and give as few as possible in return?

Mr. Purdy told me the other day that the school registration at the opening of the term exceeded that of the registration at the same time last year. He also told me that in Miss Moses' room (grade 1) there were 59 pupils. I believe that Miss O'Brien in her grade 2, has about 50. Really, is this fair to either teacher or to their pupils. And how long do the citizens of Digby expect this overcrowded condition in the lower grades of the school to last?

Next year a new batch of youngsters will fill the seats in Miss Moses' room. Her present scholars will move on—and they will all move on and on. The situation will grow more serious as it was last year and is at present. Will the taxpayers always turn a deaf ear to the pleas for better school accommodation?

Our subscribers will note that we are making a drive to collect money due us for overdue subscriptions. Other reminders are published in this paper, and perhaps I shouldn't say anything more in that connection. In no column, but, honestly folks, we need the money. Your bill may not be so much in dollars and cents, but the aggregate of more than a thousand bills like yours, amounts to a great deal. We don't want to press anyone, for we know as well as you do just how tight money is these days. Last week two of our subscribers sent us a quarter each to be applied on their accounts; a few others sent a dollar—and there are some who are quite a way behind who are paying their account on the installment plan.

We are glad to accept any amounts from a quarter up. We won't kick at anything; we just want the assurance that you are anxious to "square up" as soon as possible. So, folks, if you can't spare the whole amount of your bill, be good enough to send a little something on account. We will see that the amount is properly credited.

Monthly Income for Life DO YOU KNOW - - that fewer persons have $1,000 at age of 65 than at age of 25, although they have had 40 years in which to accumulate it? This is how it works out: 100 average persons start out at age 25 expecting at least some measure of financial success by the time they reach 65—but 40 years later

- 36 have died;
- 1 only is wealthy;
- 4 are well-to-do;
- 5 still have jobs;
- 54 are dependent on others.

Men and women with regular monthly incomes have passed through the depression with the least discomfort of any. Why not then prepare for the greatest depression of all—the autumn of life when you are no longer able to work, or cannot get a job—by arranging for a monthly income for life.

One of Canada's largest and strongest financial institutions is arranging monthly incomes for men and women of all ages, everywhere, every day.

ENRICHMENT OF LIFE IN VILLAGES

(Copied from The London Times, of August 24)

This month the Women's Institute movement in Great Britain will reach its eighteenth birthday. It was on September 25, 1915, that a small group of women met to form the first institute in these islands, in a Welsh village.

The date was a coincidence since it was on September 25, eighteen years before, that the first institute to be formed, was opened at Stoney Creek, in Canada. The movement was established there to brighten the lives of the wives of the lonely settlers. The idea was taken from Canada to Britain by Mrs. Watt, who is now known—by name, at least—to every institute member in this country. Today there are over 5000 institutes in England and Wales, with a total membership of close upon 500,000, and they form the largest organized body of women in the world.

Only those in direct touch with the work of the Women's Institute can fully understand what a revolution they have wrought in village life in this country, both social and domestic. The lady of the "big house" stands on an equal footing in the institute with the labourer's and tradesman's wife. They have pooled their domestic and handicraft knowledge, and they have swept aside social barriers.

The revival of ancient rural handicrafts, which has been a feature of the work of this movement, has come chiefly through women who are village born and bred. Quilting, weaving, glove and lace making are only a few examples.

Housing, child welfare and a host of other social problems are constantly claiming the attention of this wide-spread movement. Village life is undoubtedly better, brighter and happier because of its work.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE FIFTY YEARS MAKES!

Fifty years ago women wore hoop-skirts, bustles, petticoats, corsets, cotton stockings, high buttoned boots, pulled out drawers, flannel night gowns, puffs in their hair, did their own cooking, baking, cleaning, washing, ironing; raised big families; went to church Sunday; were too busy to be sick.

Men wore whiskers, square hats, Ascoot ties and flannel underwear; chopped wood for stoves; bathed once a week; drank ten-cent whiskey and five-cent beer; rode bicycles; buggies or sleighs; went in for politics; worked twelve hours a day; lived on a tiny old farm.

Stores burned coal oil lamp; carried everything from a needle to an anchor; traded everything; never took an inventory; placed orders for goods a year in advance; always made money.

Today women wear silk stockings, short skirts, low shoes, no corsets, an ounce of underwear; have bobbed hair, smoke, paint and powder, drink cocktails, play bridge, drive cars, have pet dogs, and go in for politics.

Men have high blood pressure, wear no hats, and some no hair, shave their whiskers, shoot golf, bathe twice a day, drink polo, play the stock market, ride in aeroplanes; never go to bed the same day they get up; are misunderstood at home; work five hours a day, play ten; die young.

Stores have electric lights, cash registers, elevators, never have anything the customer wants, trust nobody; take inventory daily; never buy in advance; have over-head-mark-up, mark-down-quota-budget advertising-stock control; annual and semi-annual, end-of-month, dollar day, founder's day, rummage, economy day sales—and never make any money.

Each day of the week and evening of the exhibition, there will be special entertainment. Meals will be served on the grounds.

3 MONTHS ON BISCUITS AND MILK

Woman's Digestive Troubles

Everyone who is subject to any form of indigestion should know of this woman's experiences. Advice from one who has had such severe attacks is advice worth having. She writes:—

"I suffered from indigestion, gastritis and constipation, and was so very ill, I had (on medical advice) to live on soda biscuits and milk for three months. With a friend advising me to take Kruschen, and now I am pleased to say my troubles are ended. I can eat and enjoy a good meal without any painful after-effects, my skin is clearer—in fact, quite clear—and there is no sign of constipation. I would advise anyone suffering the same to take Kruschen."

(Mrs. J. M. R. L.) The immediate effect of the salts in Kruschen is to promote a natural flow of the digestive and other vital juices of the body. Soon after you start on Kruschen you will find that you are able to enjoy your food without any distressing after-effects. And as you persevere with the "little daily dose," you will see that the relief which Kruschen brings is lasting relief.

"SOLOMON"

Golden Text:—"Enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise."—Psalm 100: 4.

Lesson Passage:—1 Kings 8: 1-11.

Worship
"In the castle of my soul there is a little postern gate. Where, when I enter, I am in the presence of God. In a moment, in a turning of a thought, I am where God is."

When I meet God there all I gain is a new meaning. Small things become great, and great things small. Lowly and despised things are shot through with glory.

My troubles seem like the pebbles on the road. My joys seem like the everlasting hills. All my fever is gone in the great peace of God.

And I pass through the door from Time into Eternity."

Architecture.
There is a cathedral in Europe which required six hundred years to build. The original conception has only been surpassed by the continued devotion and industry of the project to completion. No one can estimate the spiritual influence of Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's in Old London. In recent years cathedrals have been erected in Liverpool and in New York costing many millions of dollars. The expense is criticised, but so also was the building of the alabaster box of precious ointment criticised by those who were penny wise and pound foolish. Jesus commended the lavish devotion. The value of a cathedral cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. It has been said that the cultivation of roses does not interfere with the growing of grain. People may be hungry for beauty as well as for bread. Worship may be of more permanent value than wealth. Solomon built a gorgeous temple for the worship of God. The erection of this noble structure caused economic strain but viewed through the centuries it may be argued that the project justified itself. Architecture is always costly but it has been of great service to the higher life of mankind. One of the unfortunates of the War was the destruction of magnificent cathedrals such as that at Rheims. War bitterness dies slowly when civic pride and religious sanctity have been thus violated.

Tradition, 2:4
Edgar Guest has said that it takes a heap of living to make a house a home. It takes long history to create religious sanctities. During the wilderness wandering the people of Israel they could have no fixed place of worship. The ark of the Lord was carried with them in their journeying. A new cult about which religious associations had gathered. To us it would seem an imperfect religious symbol, but in the Israelite's mind for the presence of Jehovah with his people. In worship it needs to be remembered always that it is in the mind of the worshipper that is most important. All Israel's history was summed up and recalled by the presence of the ark. In that it was of little value, but because of long associations it was fitted to be the central object in a shrine. Preparation for modern times. The Temple was built with utmost care. In a few brief years great reverence attaches to the tombs of the unknown soldiers in various countries. The Edinburgh War Memorial has become a symbol to a nation and to many beyond that nation. Canada's Peace Tower is reproduced constantly in picture form. How much deeper were the associations of the people of Israel with the ark and the concept which had been cared for by successive leaders and around which their worship had taken form.

Sacrifice, 5
It is difficult for modern people to understand what lay back of the custom of offering sacrifices. When the Temple was destroyed the more sheep and oxen sacrificed than could be numbered. It was a vague way of expressing devotion. Sacrifice was necessary to give something which could be seen in order that worship might be impressive. It showed the willingness of the worshippers to give and the blood symbolized life. Yet it was at best a primitive and imperfect form of worship. It lacked the element of truth and beauty. There were many associations that were unpleasant. When the race made progress.

Art in Worship, 6:8
Art has had a large place in worship. The cathedrals of Europe show great paintings. The stained glass windows teach sublime truths. Color and light have been utilized to express the mood and faith. The cherubim with their wings spreading over the ark may have little meaning to us, but to the people of Israel they were a reality and beauty it meant to keep reverent guard over sacred things. The outspread wings are frequent figures in religious symbolism. Very necessary these symbols were in the days when few people could read or write. It may be that they are still necessary because people learn most easily through the eye, but we are now able to use books, cultivated speech, motion pictures and radio for cultivation purposes. The artistic sense finds many modes of expression. Art is not the foe or rival of religion. It may be an ally. Such has often been its function in the past.

Incense, 10:11
The use of incense in worship is much more intelligible to us than sacrifices because it is such a fitting symbol of prayers ascending to God. It has the value of appealing to the sense of smell, a sense much neglected in modern life compared with the past. The cloud of incense smoke filling the Temple was a symbol of the presence of the glory of God. The fragrance arising from the incense was a memory that helped to recall higher spiritual values. It may be that we are now able to do without such symbols. If we sing, pray, speak and listen with intelligence we may have the realities in truth of which the incense was but a sign and symbol. It may be that the two sacraments of baptism and the Lord's Supper are now sufficient, but in the long history of religion, sacred shrines, sacrifices and incense have had an honored place.

Questions For Discussion
1. What is worship?
2. Should Canada seek to create a shrine comparable to Westminster Abbey?
3. Since the War two great cathedrals have been built, one in Liverpool and the other in New York. Was the money well spent?
4. Which has done more for religion, art or architecture?
5. Why do Protestants not use incense in worship?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—My thanks are due to you for publishing my letter on the 25th of August, and also for the reply published on September 1st. I stand corrected re the "autocracy" of the Digby School Board.

It is well to be proud of the record of health of the school children, but too much credit is given to the part Clean surroundings, fresh air, nourishing food, and sufficient clothing play a much more important part towards the health and general well-being of the children than the vaccination.

In fact, it is well known today (in parts) that the vaccination causes encephalitis, which is, plainly speaking, inflammation of the brain, and there are children who cannot combat the poison injected, and so suffer sickness and in cases death; quite a number of which I have the record of.

It is time the laws passed governing vaccination were repealed, and only when the majority of the people know more about the virus and whereof of such laws, and understand the futility of such measures, will they be aroused to protest against them.

Too little is known of the sources of the lymph, toxoids, antitoxoids, serums, etc., used against the various diseases, for the people to realize the dangers of their use, which, in spite of all the claims in their favour are worse than useless, and absolutely unnecessary.

In the world today are many "antivaccination societies" which should be better known, and those in England have a bill before the House of Parliament to banish vaccination and also vaccination, and as the years grow, less and less children are vaccinated in the mother country.

There is also another side to the question, that of the cruelty involved in the making of the lymph and the experiments conducted in the laboratories on the poor dumb animals, especially the dogs, and any lover of our dumb friends would be horrified if they knew of the cruelties practiced on them in the name of "science."

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, and trusting my present letter will be given the same publicity as my last one, and that the truth re vaccination will be better known and understood in the future.

Mrs. George Taylor

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER
Wake up your Liver Bile

—Without Calomel
You are "feeling pink" simply because your liver is pouring its daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. Digestion and elimination are both hampered, and your entire system is in a poisonous condition.

What you need is a liver stimulant. Something that goes further than salts, mineral water, laxative candy or chewing gum or roundabout which merely soothes the bowels, giving the real cause of trouble, your liver.

Take Calomel (Caustic) Pills. Purely vegetable. No harsh calomel (mercury). Safe, sure, for men, women and children. 50¢. Ask all druggists.

It was able to put away childish things. The prophets said the danger of trusting to outward sacrifices when the true sacrifice to God is a broken spirit and a contrite heart. After all, the sacrificial system, with its costly and inconvenient, was too easy. It did not deal sufficiently with the human heart and will. Jesus conferred the prophets in requiring a higher form of worship.

Art has had a large place in worship. The cathedrals of Europe show great paintings. The stained glass windows teach sublime truths. Color and light have been utilized to express the mood and faith. The artistic sense finds many modes of expression. Art is not the foe or rival of religion. It may be an ally. Such has often been its function in the past.

Incense, 10:11
The use of incense in worship is much more intelligible to us than sacrifices because it is such a fitting symbol of prayers ascending to God. It has the value of appealing to the sense of smell, a sense much neglected in modern life compared with the past. The cloud of incense smoke filling the Temple was a symbol of the presence of the glory of God. The fragrance arising from the incense was a memory that helped to recall higher spiritual values. It may be that we are now able to do without such symbols. If we sing, pray, speak and listen with intelligence we may have the realities in truth of which the incense was but a sign and symbol. It may be that the two sacraments of baptism and the Lord's Supper are now sufficient, but in the long history of religion, sacred shrines, sacrifices and incense have had an honored place.

Questions For Discussion
1. What is worship?
2. Should Canada seek to create a shrine comparable to Westminster Abbey?
3. Since the War two great cathedrals have been built, one in Liverpool and the other in New York. Was the money well spent?
4. Which has done more for religion, art or architecture?
5. Why do Protestants not use incense in worship?

Mrs. George Taylor

We have been requested to publish the following, a portion of the address of the President of the Canadian Public Health Association, delivered at the annual meeting of that body, held in Saint John, in June of this year:

"One hundred and thirty-seven years ago Edward Jenner proved to the world that vaccination would prevent smallpox, yet in the decade between sixty and seventy years later, there were in England and Wales 28,000 deaths from the disease. From that time on the number of deaths fell very rapidly because England became one of the best vaccinated countries in the world. But what has been happening since in that country where liberty of the individual is so highly prized and given such consideration that, whereas there is a law which requires vaccination of all infants, yet if a parent will make an affidavit that he has conscientious scruples against the practice, his child may be exempted. This opening of the door has resulted in an enormous and increasing number of infants escaping the protection which they might have had. In consequence, of late years smallpox has been decidedly on the increase in that land of personal liberty."

"The liberty of the individual has been upheld at the detriment of the people as a whole."

"To come nearer home, in the great republic to the south of us, where some states have laws against compulsory vaccination and others are very indifferent, and still others earnestly to protect their people, there are from thirty to forty thousand cases of smallpox each year."

"In the first few years of the present century the greater part of the United States and much of Canada suffered from great epidemics of this disease with, in many instances, a mortality rate of twenty-five per cent, or more. Many in this audience recall quite vividly the conditions existing in this city at that time when smallpox demonstrated that it was no respecter of persons because of their social status, and about one-fifth of those who were made individuals would wish to see attacked died in a way that no humane dumb brute suffer and die."

"What has ended each of these epidemics? Vaccination. "Quite naturally, when the disease becomes infrequent as a result of extensive and general vaccination, fear subsides and for a generation or so vaccination becomes more or less neglected. Then certain localities have a rude awakening, as for example Windsor, Ontario, with thirty-two deaths from malignant smallpox in 1924, and just about a year ago, Vancouver with a like experience when the haemorrhagic disease killed seventeen persons."

"Just because they must make a fetish of so-called personal liberty, the people of this and other civilized countries be allowed to perpetuate these loathsome epidemics costing much money to suppress and taking numerous lives? If the same number of lives were lost and the same panic and financial losses were incurred through some other no less preventable occurrence such as a theatre fire and panic or something of that nature, the newspapers of the whole country would be shouting, someone would in all likelihood be sent to jail and governments would hasten to make and enforce laws that would, if possible, prevent a recurrence of such catastrophe. But is this done when an epidemic of haemorrhagic smallpox occurs? Not to anything like the same extent. No one goes to jail and the proponents of personal rights rise up and demand that the government should be lenient to the people who would be sent to jail and governments would hasten to make and enforce laws that would, if possible, prevent a recurrence of such catastrophe. Primitive Transplantation Prevails in China

Transportation in China is a problem with which exporters have to contend and at that account, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways, packing is one of the major considerations. Goods intended for consumption in China are often shipped hundreds of miles by junk, man power yaks and camels. Owing to the great humidity in Central China straw is unsuitable for packing, preference being given to excelsior or paper or dried wood shavings.

Hooks are largely used with coillies and steel strapping or wire strapping is used wherever possible in place of ropes and cordage.

Exhibition at Bear River Success, Interesting Display

On Tuesday and Wednesday Bear River enjoyed the best exhibition yet seen in that town. The weather was good, the interest was marked, and the attendance was quite satisfactory.

This has been a great growing year in Digby County. Vegetables, grains and fruits have flourished, and there seems to have been a decrease in the number and variety of insect pests. As a consequence there was a decided improvement in these classes in the exhibition. The vegetables were wonderfully well developed, free from blight, and such as should make the grower's eyes "sparkle with delight". The experts who are following up the exhibitions, pronounce the vegetables as considerably ahead of those found in other parts of the province.

The fruit exhibits were splendid. Not so large a number of exhibits, perhaps, as could be found further up the Valley, but the quality was as good as any shown in Nova Scotia.

The out door show was a little better than the average, but in quality and quantity. There were some splendid cattle and horses. Sheep, swine and poultry were not much in evidence, but what were there were good specimens.

The hauling contests were as usual the great centre of attraction and aroused much interest. The final figures could not be secured but will be available shortly.

It was in the school and domestic exhibits that the show made the greatest improvement. The fancy work was of an exceptionally high order and the judges had their work cut out for them. In many respects the display was equal to the finest that can be made in the province.

The housewives of Bear River and vicinity are good housekeepers and excellent cooks, and the beautiful samples of cooking and preserving took "good enough to eat".

The Women's Institute had a special booth of articles manufactured in and around Bear River, as well as a lot of jams, jellies and pickles, and their booth was one of the main attractions.

A feature new this year, was the baby show, put on Wednesday afternoon. Twenty-seven babies were entered and divided into three classes: Class "A", up to six months old; Class "B", from six to twelve months; Class "C", over twelve months. The first prize winner in Class "A" was Mary Harris, daughter of Ira Harris, of Bear River; second, prize, Richard Stewart, son of Clifton Stewart, Bear River. In Class "B", first prize, Robert Peck, son of Vernon Peck, Bear River; second, Constance Louise Jones, daughter of Cecil Jones, Deep Brook. Class "C", first prize, Darby MacGowan, son of J. M. MacGowan, Bear River; (this little chap was 100 per cent. perfect); second prize, Anna Ruth Harris, daughter of W. R. Harris, Weymouth; special mention, Edie Foster, daughter of Arthur Foster, Gordon E. Brown, son of Gordon Brown, and Kenneth Wilson, son of Freeman Wilson.

We understand that practically the entire display of vegetables and has been or will be donated by the exhibitors to the Digby General Hospital.

Aged Nova Scotia Woman Demonstrates How To Spin.

The following is taken from the New York Times: "A movement to revive the art of spinning here was begun with a demonstration conducted by the Home-crafts League.

"Mrs. Mary Mallett, of Rosindale, Mass., who learned the art as a child almost 70 years ago in Nova Scotia, came to give the first demonstration of this kind held in New York since colonial times.

"Seated at the spinning wheel that she brought with her from her first airplane flight, Mrs. Mallett spun several spools of yarn from wool fleece that she had carded previously. With great dexterity she varied the process by adding some red wool which she had taken from an old sweater and carded before running it on the spindle.

"Mrs. Mallett said that she was one of eight children, who were clothed entirely in home-spun cloth and that she in turn had spun cloth for her own seven children.

"I know it is practical," she declared, "and women who spin get so much pleasure from the lovely home-spun things they knit for themselves and for others."

"Mrs. Mallett, who is at the Hotel Lexington, plans to return to Boston by plane, because she enjoyed her first flight so much. She will give additional demonstrations under the direction of the guild before returning.

"In referring to her first flight, she recalled that transportation to and from the spinning bees, she had attended as a girl, was by ox-cart." Mrs. Mallett is a native of St. Anne's, Digby County, and is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Mallett.

CHILDREN'S FLOWER SERVICE, TRINITY CHURCH, SUNDAY

Truck Driver Had Miraculous Escape From Death Tuesday

Stanley Cromwell, colored, escaped with only a cut arm after a level crossing accident at the Mount Street crossing, about 8.45 Tuesday morning.

The dead man, together with his four companions, had gone into the forest on what was plainly a poaching expedition, for deer, when mistaking Edmund's brown clothing for a moving deer, the fatal shot was fired, killing the unfortunate man almost instantly.

It was believed for some time that the headquarters of the R. C. M. P. would lodge charges under the Game Act and possibly a charge of manslaughter, against the man, responsible for the fatality. The latest information, however, is that the matter has been placed in the hands of J. H. MacQuarrie, newly appointed Attorney-General, and that no action will be taken pending instructions from the department. R. C. M. P. officers, however, were of the opinion that the Attorney-General would conduct an investigation in this matter.

Both train and truck were travelling at a slow rate of speed. The crossing where the accident occurred is right in the heart of the town, in front of the residence of C. H. Peters. The truck was dragged to the rear of the Baptist Parsonage garage—on nearly to the First Avenue crossing.

At this point all trains travel at a very moderate rate of speed. The railroad right of way runs along First Avenue from the crossing to the railway yards.

Melanson Shooting Case In Hands of Attorney-General.

The case of the fatal shooting of Edmund Melanson, at Corberrie, some weeks ago, when a rifle was discharged by his friend, Alexander Melanson, who mistook Edmund for a deer, while on a poaching expedition, has been placed in the hands of the Attorney-General, according to information given the press the R. C. M. P.

It was believed for some time that the headquarters of the R. C. M. P. would lodge charges under the Game Act and possibly a charge of manslaughter, against the man, responsible for the fatality. Miss Field, secretary of the Newfoundland Y. P. Societies, who was the guest of honor, provided a host of useful and interesting suggestions which proved a source of inspiration to both leader and scholars.

The annual roll call and supper of the Zelnor Rebeckah Lodge, will be held in the Oddfellows' Hall, next Monday, at 7.15 o'clock. All members of the lodge, and all visiting Rebeckahs in town, are urged to attend. Refreshments will be served for an evening of refreshment and good fellowship. The committees in charge guarantee a good time if you do your part, as all those who attended the Rebeckah picnic at Frank Haven's camp a short time ago can testify.

A cordial welcome to the city of Worcester was accorded to A. B. Kendall, J. P. of Annapolis County, on Wednesday evening, September 13th, at the home of Miss M'Vred P. L. Keane, of that city. Among the guests present were Miss Juanita M. Dill, of Hyde Park; Miss Jessie M. Lamberton, of Digby; and Mr. J. R. Hoffman, of Worcester. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Keane, after which a general good time was realized and appreciated by all present; in departing the wish of "many happy returns," and a rousing cheer for the Digby Courier was voiced by all present.

ATTENTION, HUNTERS!

Last week, through misinformation, the Courier made a serious mistake relating to the duck shooting season.

In Nova Scotia, except Cumberland, the open season for shooting ducks rails and coots, is from October 1st to January 15th, both dates inclusive.

Our information last week came from a bulletin issued by the Canadian National Railways, V. C. considered this authentic, but since we have learned that we are not the only ones who make mistakes.

LET'S BE NEIGHBORS AGAIN

The autumn and the winter months furnish a propitious time to get back into the habit of being neighbors again.

This word "neighbors" means something to Canada today, especially in the small towns, the villages, the hamlets, and the rural sections. It stands for kindness, and companionship, thoughtfulness and human contacts. It is one of the biggest elements in what we know as life.

This wonderful spirit of neighborliness has almost disappeared in the larger centres of population. Big city families are units unto themselves. Frequently they do not even know the names of people who live next door to them, or above or below them. Their recreation, their amusements, their human contacts are furnished by professional entertainment and entertainers.

In the smaller centres of population, where people are left more or less to their own devices neighborliness is the natural expression of the desire for human contacts. Our circle of friends and neighbors is wider. And as we widen this circle, we widen our outlook on life, our conception of our own duties and responsibilities.

It is often said that the real Canadian is to be found in the smaller places. This is so because his greater contacts tend to make his views broader and less self-centred. Such a person realizes there are others in the world besides himself or herself, and as we consider others we better human conditions everywhere. So let's resume the business of being neighborly.

It is astonishing how many people are here without knowing just why.

SCHOOLS

The custom has been for parents and friends of pupils to visit schools on the last day of the term. Commencement periods seem to be the only time public interest in education manifests itself in the form of school visitations.

This indifference has led teachers and other educators to emphasize commencements and establish visitors' days during the school year in an attempt to lure into the schoolroom parents and others paying for the support of the schools. But the visitors do not obtain a true picture of the schools on such occasions. The schools are "dressed up" the pupils on their good behaviour, and the programme is usually entertainment rather than lessons in reading, writing and arithmetic.

Every citizen is free to criticize the schools, but no fair-minded citizen will condemn them without first investigating. And the time to learn something about them is by unannounced visits.

Visitation of the school in its daily routine will have a wholesome effect in bringing into closer and more intelligent and sympathetic co-operation those who have the welfare of the child at heart—the parent and the teacher—and will eliminate much of the misunderstanding between taxpayer and those commissioned to administer education.

The schools are the brightest spots in the community, and generally the most hopeful institution democracy has to count upon. The constant surprise is that the world is not better than it is with such tuition. But one has to search outside the school for the reason. It is reassuring to all with sufficient interest to visit a school to see what intelligence, patience and skill their children are as a rule being taught.

13 MONTHS in a YEAR

It hardly sounds possible, but to every subscriber who pays their subscription arrears and one year in advance, between now and October 1st, we will "throw in" an extra month on a year's subscription.

To get the benefit of this offer all subscribers must

PAY IN ADVANCE

In other words, pay your subscription to date, and in advance for the next year. It makes no difference to us whether you are "bumpers ahead" or a week behind—just pay up your arrears and a year in advance, and for the next year the Courier will come to you for thirteen months instead of the usual twelve.

The Digby Weekly Courier

The same offer applies to new subscribers who subscribe during this period. Our terms are $1.50 in Canada and $2.00 in the United States and elsewhere.

NATURE'S PHILOSOPHY

The seasons have again brought autumn around—autumn with its fulfillment of the promises of spring and summer in harvests of grain and grain. And now, with its rustle of falling leaves, with its wind gusts that hint of chilling blasts to come, it sounds last call for outdoor sports. With its sparkling sunshine, its crimsoned and purpled forests, its gold-carpeted fields, autumn beckons one and all to go out and play.

Nature is preparing for its winter sleep and autumn has cast to enact the retiring role. That sleep may mean death of many of this year's glories, but autumn goes about it right gladly. There is no somberness or mourning or melancholy. It moves cheerily on the way appointing. It dons the most brilliant dresses in nature's wardrobe for its tryst with death. It mixes tonic in the air and serves it to man in invigorating, intoxicating manner, and bids him drink it in, to his good health.

The gods, the Indians and all of nature's people draw philosophy from the change of seasons and learn to face death cheerfully. Why can not civilized persons be as wise?

EX-MAYOR MILDON WEDDED SIXTY YEARS

Ex-Mayor and Mrs. Frederick R. S. Mildon, on September 9th, observed their 60th wedding anniversary at their home 19 Bucknell Street, Marlboro, Mass. A family dinner party was held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. George Martin, who resides next door to the Mildon home. With them was their son, Reginald Mildon, resident manager of the Westinghouse Manufacturing Company, at Philadelphia, and another daughter, Miss Eleanor Mildon, who resides with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Mildon were married in Kempville, N. S. They resided for a number of years in Eastport, Maine, and for more than forty years have resided in Marlboro, where Mr. Mildon for many years conducted a variety store, later establishing a real estate and insurance business, which he still conducts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mildon enjoy good health.

Mr. Mildon is president of the Marlboro Building Corporation; is treasurer of the Intercolonial Club and a member of Holy Trinity church having served on the vestry board for many, many years.

Editor's Note—Mr. Mildon was a former resident of Weymouth and a brother of Miss "Minnie" Mildon and Thomas Mildon, at present residing in Weymouth. He also has many relatives and friends in Weymouth with whom we join in extending to him congratulations and best wishes.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

I have just been reading cheering news from Britain. It comes from the recent report of the Royal Commission on the Licensing of the Liquor Traffic. The Royal Commission, by the way, is itself a sign of the times. It stands for honest inquiry, a survey of the facts, all the facts, and the building of programs and policies accordingly. It is the scientific way, the sane way, the safe way. Well, this Royal Commission I speak of reported in 1932 after twenty-six months of exacting labor. It consisted of nineteen active members chosen from all walks of life, including not only a man like Rev. Henry Carter with his pronounced total abstinence principles, but also three representatives of the liquor trade itself. One of these latter was among the sixteen members who signed the majority report.

There are two or three things to remember as we read the report. First of all, Britain is an old land, much older than Canada. In the second place, centuries-old traditions are not easily broken and newer methods do not easily make headway. For this very reason progress along many lines is likely to be slower, but perhaps all the surer when it comes. And then, too, it is to be remembered that Britain is still in the "Licensing" stage of liquor control. It is all the more notable, therefore, to find the report of the Commission definitely committed to progressive and constructive reform such as follows:

1. A strong case is made out against the beverage use of alcoholic drinks. "The use of alcohol as an aid to physical and mental work is declared to be physiologically unsound—the finer kinds of work may be done by moderate doses of alcohol."
2. The present huge national expenditure on alcoholic liquors is condemned.
3. The case for lessened hours and quantities of sale is vindicated.
4. The report calls for greater legal restriction of the sale of drink.

Still, ancestors must be a great consolation to people who don't amount to much themselves.

Advertising is the fuel of business; stint the fuel and your engine runs slowly. No fuel, no pep.

UP AND DOWN

This depression has set lots of people on their feet—it made them sell their cars. If it continues long enough it should boom the market for sole leather, increase appetites, decrease doctor bills, reduce blood pressure, liver troubles and laziness; build up muscles, minds and morale; and in short get us well started along the road to another boom so we can have a depression again.

Most everything seems to go in cycles, depressions and booms, peace and war, short skirts and long skirts, even a dog chasing a flea on the end of his tail goes around in a circle. And most folks are like the dog. They go "round and round, trying to catch some insignificant little flea. Then when they do catch it (if they do), they very promptly turn about and whirl themselves into a frenzy again over another flea. Meanwhile, the rabbits which they are chasing, have gotten away or were caught by the dog that paid no attention to fleas.

Punctuation.

Abe's boy Ike was in the outer office when a telegram arrived, and the stenographer called out: "A wire from the salesman, Mr. Bernstein."

"Read it out loud to me," the boss called back from the inner room. So she started:

"Was in Dallas Monday stop in Houston Wednesday stop in New Orleans Thursday stop—"

Well Answered.

Business Man—Yes, I believe we have—and please close it softly as you leave."

SULTANA LIMITED - MONTREAL

Barton and Brighton School and Community Club.

The Library committee have secured the use of the custom house as a library building, through the generosity of the owner, Mrs. Alice McNeill, and work on it has gone on with almost miraculous rapidity. Hammer and nails, paint and soap and water, welded by strong men and women in behalf of their community, have again proven it is more blessed to give than to receive. Shelves are painted ready for the more than 100 books brought from the library fund and donated by the citizens of Barton and Brighton. A cozy stove, tables, chairs, pictures appear as if by magic as soon as the need is mentioned. We predict that next week's issue of the Courier will contain the announcement of the opening of the Barton-Brighton Public Library.

Much Loved Barton Lady Celebrates 90th Birthday.

Many friends found their way to the home of a dear old lady, in Barton, last Tuesday. They brought flowers and other remembrances, and finally, a great birthday cake, for this much loved lady, who was ninety on that day. The hope was frequently expressed that she would have many happy returns of the day. But no birthday could be more lovely than this, for she had made it possible for Barton and Brighton, through her generosity on that day, to have a public library, in giving to the community the building known as the old custom house. While friends were gathered about her on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. M. R. Ewing called, and at her request led the group in prayer. Many happy, happy returns of the day was the sincere wish of the whole community to Mrs. Alice McNeill.

Flour and Codfish Predominate in Exports to West Indies.

Dried codfish has from earliest days been one of the most important items in Canada's export trade to the West Indies and second only in importance to flour of which Canada has been a leading exporter, states the Canadian National Steamships. In the Trinidad market Canada continued to hold the lead in the export of flour during 1932 with 62% of the total imports. The greater quantity of the Canadian fish is Nova Scotia cod, dried, salted, smoked and pickled. The currency situation has resulted in increased quantities of English codfish appearing in the Trinidad market and the same applies in the case of flour. Last year, due to the increased demand for citrus crates and soap boxes, the total imports increased considerably. Canada supplying the largest share. It is expected that the importation of these crates should steadily increase as the young citrus orchards come into bearing and Canadian exports should increase accordingly.

Did you ever stop to think

EDSON WAITE

Shawville, Ont.

I quote my friend, James Barrett, managing director of the Oklahoma Biltmore hotel, quite often. Fact or the matter is, I spend as much time as I can in the air-cooled lobby of the hotel. It's about the coolest place on a hot day that I know of.

Jim is quite a booster for Oklahoma City. In fact, he is one of the town's best boosters. The other night as I was chatting with him, a long-faced chap, a resident of Oklahoma City, came up and proceeded to tell him that he did not like many of the town's beauty spots. He acted like the original home-town knocker. He didn't like anything or anybody and evidently hated himself, also.

In his usual pleasant, smiling way, Jim said, "If you can't see the good things about Oklahoma City your vision must be impaired. You should have your eyes examined. You didn't like anything or anybody and evidently hated himself, also."

Well, I thought that was pretty good advice and that you can't see the good things about his home town. He not only should see an eye doctor, but a brain specialist as well.

BIG FAIR'S MANY FEATURES

That Nova Scotia has a definite place in the industrial world will be made evident at the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition, Halifax, September 30th to October 7th. One of this year's new features will be a section devoted entirely to goods manufactured in Nova Scotia, by Nova Scotia firms. "Made in Nova Scotia" exhibit will be notable for the wide range of commodities and goods it displays.

Among the other novelties will be the horse show offered daily by the Halifax Riding and Driving Club. Among its events the Riding Club will feature high jumping, liberty high jumping, stake races, and musical chairs. Riders from as far west as Toronto have entered.

The Nova Scotia Kennel Club is holding its annual dog show on the Fair grounds and this year's show will be made unusually interesting by the showing of a number of prize winning dogs from the recent St. John Dog Show.

1,500 school children will sing in the massed chorus on opening day and five hundred children, including large groups from Bridgewater, Windsor, Wolfville, Kentville, Truro, and other towns will take part in a program of folk dancing.

The Jockey racing, the Metropolitan Revue, and the Broadway Night Club, novelties all of them new to the province, are arousing much interest, as is the show of living Nova Scotia animals and the magnificent display of apples from the Annapolis Valley.

Miss Clara M. Sully, matron at Edgell, Windsor, returned to her duties on Tuesday.

Kenneth Adams, Jr., who is spent the summer with his grandmother, Mrs. John Adams, has returned to his home in Beverly Farms, Mass.

THE LITTLE WHITE CHURCH

(Dedicated to the members of the Smith's Cove Baptist Church.)

It was a little plain white church, That stood at the top of the hill, Where those simple, kindly people Gathered to learn God's will.

Thrice on Sunday they gathered, As regularly as could be; Not one would think of staying home, They worshipped so earnestly.

They would never set others a task, They themselves could not do; They practiced exactly what they preached—

Strict observance of the Golden Rule, Each would gladly help the other, If misfortune came their way; Confident the other would do as such.

In some distant future day, There was no such thing as failure, They knew not what it meant, They were happy just to live and love.

And with that work, were well content.

They were only simple farmers, all, Yet they had life's greatest tool: Be happy, kind and conscientious, And live the Golden Rule.

This they did with all their hearts, Never faltering on their way; They made a heaven of their own— These folk of yesterday.

There was no unkind criticism, About the neighbor next door, And when they had received their share, They did not keep striving for more.

Now that little white church is far away, The same one I used to know, On each and every Sunday morn, To Sunday School I would go.

The Bible told them how to live, And they truly did obey; They were the best of their kind, If there were more who thought that way?

—E. Ruth Nelson Britton

Early English Seamen Knew of Pitch Lake, on Trinidad.

The pitch lake of Trinidad, in the British West Indies, was famous in the time of Sir Walter Raleigh's time, for on his visit to the island in 1595 he attacked the settlement of St. Josef de Orma, where the present town of St. Joseph stands, seven miles inland from Port of Spain, which was held by the Spaniards, and after a storming, it captured his ships with pitch from the lake which was called by the natives "Piche" and by the Spaniards "Tierra de Brea" (the Pitch Lake). The island was discovered by Columbus during his third voyage on July 31, 1498, and history apparently, repeated itself in respect of the immediate cause of the last great war in the history of the island of Trinidad. It seems a party of officers from a British squadron, who called at the island in 1796, went to visit a Welsh lady in what is now Frederick Street, in Port of Spain, when some French privateersmen insulted a British sailor from the "Alarm". This resulted in a fight between the British officers and the French and a general melee ensued. The following day the Commodore, Captain Vaughan, landed a force and though he withdrew before a conflict took place, the incident was one of the grounds on which Spain declared war against Great Britain a few months afterwards, and on February 18th, 1797, the island was surrendered to Sir Ralph Abercrombie, at the head of a large British expedition, and his aide-de-camp, Picton, was appointed Governor. The secession of the island to Great Britain was confirmed by the Treaty of Amiens in 1802. The pitch lake is an object of interest to the many Canadians who visit the island.

Capt. and Mrs. Richard Marshall, of Weymouth North, accompanied by the former's son, Bernard, and Mrs. Marshall, of the United States, will spend a few days at New Tusknet one day recently.

A Gedeney Was Original Owner of Roosevelt's Canadian Estate.

There has come to light in Jemseg, of Roosevelt's Canadian Estate.

Queens County, New Brunswick, the original deed to the family estate of President Franklin Roosevelt, of the United States, "Krum Elbow", granted to Joshua Gedeney, by George II, in the year 1760, states the Tourist Bureau of the Canadian National Railways.

This Joshua Gedeney had much land in New York but, siding with the Loyalists during the American Revolution and himself raising a regiment, his property was confiscated and after the revolution he went to New Brunswick to live, locating at Jemseg, although some of the family afterwards located in Digby County, Nova Scotia, where their descendants still live. The deed is in possession of a great grandson, Fred C. Nevers, of Jemseg.

CAST OFF UGLY FAT

Woman Loses 28 lbs. in Three Months

"Three months ago," a woman writes, "I was persuaded to try Kruschen Salts to reduce my weight, which was 222 lbs. I had tried other things, but all to no avail. Now I know that Kruschen Salts are different. In three weeks I lost 5 lbs., and I felt five years younger. I really must say I feel a different woman. I have now lost 28 lbs. to date." (Mrs.) S. G. B.

If you are overweight take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. There will be no rapid or alarming loss of weight, but just a steady decrease of that flabby fat which is as unwholesome as it is unsightly. Kruschen is a scientific blend of six mineral salts found in the waters of those European spas that have been used by generations of overstuffed people to reduce weight.

Mrs. Lovitt Fraser and little son, David, who have been spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Adams, has returned to her home in Medford, Mass.

John Cormier, of Anbhorst, arrived on Thursday to visit his brother, Dr. Cormier, and family, at Weymouth; and his sister, Mrs. Cormier, in Sulliverville.

REVIEW

Golden Text:—"Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might."—Ephesians 6:10.

Devotional Reading:—Hebrews 11:32 to 12:2.

Roses Red and White

"My garden has roses red,
 The roses of pain are white;
 But if when the day is sped
 I stand by the gate at night,
 One fragrance comes, when the day is dead,
 From my roses white and my roses red."

"The roses of joy are red,
 The roses of pain are white;
 But I stand by the gate at night,
 I shall know just this when the day is dead,
 That a rose is sweet, be it white or red."
 —Percy C. Ainsworth

The Study of Biography
 One of the charms of Bible study is the biographical interest. During the whole of this year, the International Uniform Lessons are biographical, containing a six months' study of the life of Christ, three months with the early leaders of Israel, and concluding with three months' study of the life of Paul. The writing of biographies has in recent years become a specialized literary art. Biographers of Queen Victoria or of Joseph Chamberlain spend a large part of a lifetime writing one biography. The art is not in finding enough to say but in selecting what to say and in stating it in a brief and clear manner. Biblical biographies are brief. Considerable Old Testament space is devoted to Joseph and to Moses, but for the most part characters are sketched in a few verses. Very little space is given to Jonathan, for instance, yet we feel that we know the inner character of the man. Carlyle has said that the history of mankind is the history of its great men. This is not the whole truth, but in so far as a man sums up a period or an epoch, the times may be studied in the man.

SENTENCE SERMONS

By Rev. Roy L. Smith

It Is a Great Talent
 —To be able to compel every trouble to pay its way;
 —To know how to say "no" positively, but pleasantly;
 —To be able to recognize the man who is going to "arrive" before he does arrive;
 —To know how to look for the compensation that is wrapped up in every pain;
 —To have the patience to wait for the truth to appear;
 —To so live that men try to be their best in our presence.

In the history of your nation? Suppose you were limited to six could you be sure of the names and the order in which they should be placed? Would you give first place to rulers, writers, orators, inventors or soldiers? In the eleventh chapter of Hebrews we have the honor roll of Israel. It has been described as the Westminster Abbey of the Hebrew people. It is a rapid sketch of the heroes perhaps of over a thousand years from Abraham to the Maccabees, but it shows the kind of men and women in whom the Hebrew race felt pride. Each separate individual had something to contribute in order to make the tale complete. It is idle to compare one with the other because their abilities were different and the new occasions taught new duties. Enough if in their own day and generation they were faithful to God and their fellowmen and played the hero's part.

Tests of Service

Among the early leaders of Israel about whom we have studied in the past six months were distinguished soldiers like Joshua, Caleb, Gideon and Saul. All honor to them. They did their duty as they saw it. But it is only truth to say that the day of the soldier is passing, if indeed it has not already gone. There may still be men with military training for warfare by land, sea and air, but these will not be the creators of formative periods of future history. The educators, statesmen, artists, poets and preachers will probably have more influence than the masters of military strategy or the merchant princes. The future of the world lies in ideas rather than in brute force. Even among the early leaders of Israel the most influential have been the spiritual. The faith of civilised and Christianized human relationships.

The Achievements of Women

Women receive scant space in the history books. A few queens are written up, but the majority of women are anonymous. Their service has been that of rearing children and keeping house. Yet if the scales could be justly balanced it might be found that women have been decisive factors in human history far more than has ever been recognized. Women have trained the children and thereby often decide what ideals men shall follow. Deborah is the exception, like Joan of Arc and Laura Secord, showing what women may do in war. A higher ideal is that of Hannah, the pious mother whose religious life is carried on in her more famous son. Ruth, the homemaker, found a place in the ancestry of Jesus Christ. In modern life conditions are greatly changing. Women are finding places of prominence in politics, science, literature, business, education and religion. No one can predict the future except to say that the sphere of women's influence will constantly expand.

Religion

Why have several million people on the American continent thought it worth while to study during the last three months the lives of some early leaders of Israel? It is because these were religious men and women who have a religious message for us.

Just Suppose

Your neighbor owed you a dollar and a half—and he just through thoughtlessness neglected to pay you; it wouldn't embarrass you, and you wouldn't lose much sleep over it, would you?

But—Suppose Again

That his neighbor owed you another dollar and a half, and two thousand other neighbors owed you a dollar and a half—some of them all, through oversight, forgot to pay you—wouldn't you be in a heck of a fix, wouldn't you?

We're Not Supposing

When we say that there are nearly two thousand subscribers who owe us a dollar and a half—some of them more than that—we can see for yourself what we are up against.

If You're One of Them

Won't you be a good scout and try and let us have that money this week? Thanks!

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

Last night I held a little hand
 So dainty and so neat,
 I thought my heart would surely burst,
 So wildly did it beat.
 No other hand e'er held so tight
 Could greater gladness bring
 Than one I held last night;
 It was four Aces and a King.

Short and To the Point

Chief of Police—"Can you give a description of your missing cashier?"

today. The people of Israel would not have endured nor would they have been heard of in world history had it not been for their religion. It was their faith that held them together and gave them an influence far beyond their numbers. The thought of the unseen holy God, the prayers of the psalmists and the ideals of the prophets are permanent contributions to the higher life of humanity. Christians regret that many Jews do not follow Christ, the Saviour, but all right-thinking Christians grieve when the descendants of Abraham are persecuted for political reasons, and when a world citizen such as Einstein is driven from his fatherland because of his race. Such persecutions are relics of the dark ages and should be made impossible in the twentieth century.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Why do we study Hebrew history?
- 2.—Do Canadians pay sufficient honor to Canadian pioneers?
- 3.—Does any nation deserve to be called a Christian nation?
- 4.—Do nations have to grow old like individuals?
- 5.—What inspiration did Jesus find in Hebrew history?

Barbadoes—Gets Bulk Canadian Lumber from Maritime Provinces.

The bulk of the Canadian lumber imported into Barbadoes, British West Indies, comes from the Maritime Provinces. Barbadoes is famous as an all year round tourist resort due to its easterly position in the Atlantic, which results in a constant breeze and a moderate temperature throughout the entire year, states the Canadian National Steamships. It is one of the most densely populated areas in the world, with a population of over 940 to the square mile, or a total of 156,312. The island is approximately twenty-one miles in length and fourteen miles in width, and has a total area of 169 square miles. As a comparison, Prince Edward Island, the most densely populated province in Canada, is about 145 miles long and from 4 to 35 miles wide, and has a population of 88,040. With the exception of a small area in the northeast, Barbadoes is of coral formation and is very flat, the highest point being 1,108 feet. Cultivation and production of sugar and its by-products is the principal industry but of late the growing of fresh vegetables for export, many of which reach Canada through the port of Saint John, is rapidly developing as there is a good market for these when local varieties are not in season. Next to the United Kingdom, Canada supplies the greater bulk of the imports with 15.1 per cent., 1932 figures. The United Kingdom supplied 45.6 per cent. Canada took from Barbadoes $9.2 per cent. of her total exports, while the United Kingdom took 27.2 per cent. the same year. During 1932 Canada imported 6,573,283 gallons of molasses, an increase of 1,005,942 gallons over the previous year.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

For those who reach the top of the world,
 The things of the world seem less Than the rungs of the ladder, by which they climbed
 To this place of happiness,
 And fame,
 And I think that success, and wealth
 Will be the first to fail.
 For they reach their goal but by faith
 And love,
 And God's goodness over all.

Well, young fellow, has the dear thing selected the present you are going to select for her for Christmas?

And Confetti

Waiter—"How would you like your rice?"
 Spinster (wistfully)—"Just thrown at me."

The Vogue in Home Lighting Today . . . The Use of Better Lighting

Good home lighting is a potent influence on health and comfort.
 Most of the worth while part of our lives is spent under man-made illuminants and to really enjoy these hours, we are greatly dependent upon the quantity, quality and position of these illuminants.

The results already obtained in lighting are good, comparing the homes of today with those of our fathers, yet pitifully inadequate and amateurish when one learns what wonderful possibilities are still latent in modern electric illumination. We are just beginning to learn the possibilities of decorating the home with well placed light, of gratifying our senses with varied lights, of preserving our eyes and our nerves with sufficient light, of calling upon the electric bulb, as an Aladdin's lamp, to make wishes come true.

Light not only reveals objects to the human eye but also gives expression to the decorative scheme of a room. The lighting of a room is just as important as the decorating or furnishing of a room.

Let us, therefore, look to the lighting of all rooms we enter.

Supreme Court at Digby This Week.

The fall sitting of the Supreme Court in the County of Digby, was held at Little Brook, Digby, on Tuesday, with Mr. Justice Ross presiding. There were no criminal cases on the docket which consisted of four civil jury cases, namely, the cases of The Royal Bank of Canada vs. Bartlett; The Royal Bank of Canada vs. Goodwin and Bartlett; and the Royal Bank of Canada vs. Goodwin. The cases, however, were not heard, they being settled just prior to the opening of the court.

It is understood that in the first case of the Royal Bank vs. Goodwin, some payment had been made, and the bank took judgment for the balance of the claim. The other cases were dismissed with costs.

Clementsvalle Farmer Disappears From His Home Last Saturday

R. C. M. P. officers from Annapolis Royal, and men and boys from the villages of Princetown and Clementsvalle, are making an extensive search for Fred Grant, 40-year old farmer, who mysteriously disappeared from his home, on the Fraser Road, near Princetown, Annapolis County, on Saturday morning last.

Mr. Fraser had complained of an illness to his family or friends, but on Friday morning called at the office of Dr. Lovett, in Bear River, and complained that his head hurt him. He returned home and retired, rising on Saturday morning, when he was kindled the first time he went out. He has not been seen since.

Except for kindling the fire, Mr. Grant did not attend to any of his usual farm chores before his mysterious disappearance.

He is said to have been ill, and there are two children, one 12 years of age, the other a little younger. Three brothers live in the vicinity of Bridgetown.

Harvest Home Service at Rossway Tonight.

The annual Harvest service has come to be an event in the lives of Digby Neck people who attend the little church at Rossway. They realize that all God's dealings with men are distinguished by love and beneficence, that He has not only given us an exalted nature and the capacity for happiness and joy, but He has made us the objects of His constant care. True gratitude leads to communion with God "and call upon the name of the Lord," so these loyal people keep alive this English custom of showing gratitude by gathering together in God's house and singing His praises. The church building is always decorated with the fruits of the field, together with reminders of the fishing industry of that section. Members of Trinity choir provide the special music and otherwise it is usually a very unique and beautiful service. All are invited to attend. The church is at Saints', at Rossway, and the hour is 8 o'clock.

Water Extensions Discussed at Town Council Meeting

Very little outside of the usual routine of business was discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the town council, on Monday evening, except a proposal to renew and extend portions of the water system. This proposal, which will have to be discussed by the water committee, at a later date, will involve an expenditure estimated at $3,110.

The first extension is from Queen to West Streets, (from Baxter's to the back of Casswell's Poultry Farm), which involves the laying of 1250 feet of pipe at a cost of $1,250.

The second proposal was to lay 800 feet of pipe on St. Mary's and St. George Streets, at an estimated cost of $500.

Number three, to lay 400 ft. of pipe at a cost of $400 from Prince William street North and a section of First Avenue. This proposal is to renew a service pipe which has caused a lot of trouble, but it is expected it will be rejected by the council for it will only supply one tap.

Another proposal is to lay 600 feet of pipe along Victoria Street, at the corner of Carleton, to the railway crossing, to supply four new houses which have been built in that section during the past few years. The estimated cost is $250.

It is also proposed to take up the one inch service pipe along the Light House Road and replace it with a new service. Estimated 600 feet, for $600.

The total estimated cost of these new and renewed services, with hydrants, connections, etc., is $3,110.

The council granted permission to Mr. Foster, Annapolis Royal contractor, to build a residence for Miss Scott and Miss Whitman, at the Racquette. The plans for this residence were placed before the council, and approved.

W. S. Troop asked that repairs be made to the sidewalk in front of his property on Montserrat Road.

The report of the Superintendent of Streets and Water showed that considerable work had been done during the past month, on the town streets.

B. Y. P. U. of Deep Brook Hold Social.

Big Crop Hazel Nuts Indicate Hard Winter (?)

There is a big crop of hazel nuts at Victoria Beach, Annapolis County, just across the Basin from Digby. On Saturday several boys from that village were in town earning a little pocket money by selling nuts. These nuts grow wild on the mountain side and it is supposed to be a sure sign of a long, hard winter, when hazel nuts are plentiful.

THE PUMPKIN

Long ago when vegetables were scarce, even in summer, and not to be had at all in winter, the pumpkin was put to extraordinarily diversified uses. With it housewives made pumpkin bread, now a lost art. And then pumpkin was also used in the making of beer, custards, molasses, vinegar and pies. Small wonder the early New Englanders, as it is related in Peters' General History of Connecticut, considered the pumpkin "one of the greatest blessings and held very sacred in New England."

Since earliest colonial days the pumpkin has been the homely symbol in America of that season of mellow fruitfulness that separates summer from winter. Although its name is of French origin the pumpkin has become an institution typically North American. The etymology of the word can be traced from the French pompon in use before the colonization of America, through the states of pompon and pumpkin to pumpkin. And except in print and among precise speakers, one today will encounter the "pumpkin" oftener than the literary "pumpkin."

This generation has known the pumpkin more as a symbol of the harvest season than as the vegetable of all uses. Pumpkin is still popular, and not only because it is a substitute for what the Puritan Blue Laws styled "anti-Christian minced pies," but other than that their only use is for Halloween jack-o'-lanterns and dairy fodder.

What profiteth it a man to remove twenty-nine pins from a new shirt and pull it on to the body, if he has overlooked the price tag with the saber-toothed clasp?

ACTIVITIES RE-OPEN

The people who quit promoting community interests some time ago have now no further excuse for inactivity, and should now be on their job. Most churches, business organizations, and other societies go slow in summer, and feel that not much can be accomplished during the hot weather. But now is the time for them to get busy again. Our people here in Digby are eager and ambitious to see their home town make progress, but they need the leadership of active people who will go ahead and organize community efforts. If such leadership is provided, it will get support.

Another job in which there is room for all is the job of making ends meet.

VAGARIES OF WINTER

With a multiplicity of signs and portents handed down from time immemorial, to say nothing of meteorological science at the command of the government, humanity never knows in advance what is in the mind of Old Man Winter.

The vagaries of other seasons are taken as a matter of course; the sudden shifts of winter weather are constantly surprising. Why they are another matter for surprise, since nothing is more certain than that all will be taken unawares.

A long and balmy season of typical fall weather enforces the hope that winter will trail along, mild and open. Then, without warning, the entire country will find itself shivering in zero or near-zero temperatures, bucking biting winds, and often plunging through deep and drifted snow.

It doesn't pay to depend on the weather. "Indian Summer" isn't a fixed season. Over a large part of Canada an early winter may descend upon the unsuspecting land just when "Indian Summer" is due. Nor does the premature arrival of

It hardly sounds possible, but to every subscriber who pays their subscription arrears and one year in advance, between now and October 1st, we will "throw in" an extra month on a year's subscription.

It makes no difference to us whether you are humpteen years or a week behind—just pay up your arrears and a year in advance, and for the next year the Courier will come to you for thirteen months instead of the usual twelve.

cold weather invariably presage a "hard winter."

No two winters are alike. Winter strikes when the mood is on it. Whether the first attack is early or late, it is neither a threat nor a promise for the future. Of only one thing can we be sure; in due course it will go. There is nothing to be done about it, in season or out.

Doctors once advised patients to walk for their health. Now it is healthy neither to walk nor to ride.

THE NEWSPAPER MAN

Bit of a priest and bit of a sailor.
Bit of a doctor and bit of a tailor.
Bit of a lawyer and bit of detective.
Bit of a judge, for his work is corrective.

Cheering the living and soothing the dying.
Risking all things, even dire-devil flying.
True to his paper and true to his clan—
Just look him over, the newspaper man.

Sleep! there are times that he'll do with little.
Work till his nerves and his temper are brittle;
Fire cannot daunt him, nor long hours disturb him,
Gold cannot buy him and threats cannot curb him.

Highbrow or lowbrow, your own speed he'll hand you.
He'll go wherever another man can—
That is the way of the newspaper man.

Surgeon, if urgent the need be, you'll find him.
Ready to help, nor will dizziness blind him;
He'll give the ether and never once falter.

Say the last rights like a priest at the altar;
Gentle and kind with the weak and the weary,
Which is proved now and then when his keen eye grows weary.

Facing all things in life's curious plan—
That is the way of the newspaper man.

One night a week may he rest from labour.
One night at home to be father and neighbour,
Just a few hours for his own bit of leisure.

All the rest's gazing at other men's pleasure,
All the rest's toiling, and yet he rejoices,
All the world is, and that men do, he voices—
Who knows a calling more glorious than

The day-by-day work of the newspaper man?

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

Well, I'm sorry. And so would you be if you had heard as I did, of a young man in the dawn of his career spoiling himself with drink. It was a young woman who spoke about him—"The last time he was here, he was drinking. He'll never treat me again, and he needn't come to B. . . . any more. Who is going to trust a man who drinks? She was speaking of a young man of promise who in the practice of his profession includes a rural community with his town clientele, going out to his country office once a week. It seems me to think that he is already digging his professional grave by foolishly thinking he can carry 'drink' along with him to success. And I think of a father and mother, a community of friends, and a young sweetheart, too—ten chances to one they are all to be disappointed in the days to come because this 'lad o' pairs' has chosen to trifle with the wine cup.

And that young woman is sorry and so, too, the community of B. . . . But they are folks with a conscience and a care for health and honor. They feel they cannot trust either with one who drinks. And they are right. What a fine opening this young man had, but I am afraid he has spoiled it all. No person in these days wants an alcohol-dazed eye, or an alcohol-dulled mind, or an alcohol-remoted hand experimenting with their precious body. Time was when it made little difference, but that day is past. It is not long since I heard a young man say with decision, speaking of a certain surgeon, "If ever I have to have an operation, it will not be performed by him. He drinks." As a surgeon I must not drink," said Dr. Lorenz, the eminent European surgeon. "No one can take alcoholic liquors without blunting these physical powers which I must always keep on edge."

But I am stung to the quick when I reflect that the system of government sale, under which this province and seven others in Canada carry on, makes me very definitely a partner in this young man's wrong. I share in the ownership and administration of that store in which he bought his liquor, and he is only one of tens of thousands of folks, young and old, who come to those forty-four government stores in Nova Scotia, one only of the eight provinces in Canada where government sale of liquor is the order of the day. Governments clamor, and with too much truth, that they are but agents of the people in this regard, fulfilling the peoples' will. You and I and all the people know, or ought to know, that science and experience declare the inevitable injury to body, mind and morals, to the social and national well-being, that issues from the sale and use of liquor. But those fine government liquor stores in the best business blocks of our towns and cities are inevitably training the people to regard the sale and use of alcohol as altogether high and proper. Whatever may have been the faults of prohibition, it was at least in line with present day scientific and experimental knowledge as to the evils of alcohol; it definitely frowned upon the use of drink as an evil; and it did not make the people of a province sharers in the moral ruin of its own youth and manhood.

If loose, flapping garments are a hazard in industry the girls of today should be reasonably safe.

MY WAGE

We may as well aim high as low, ask much as little. The world will not miss what it gives us, and our reward will largely be governed by our demands.

I bargained with Life for a penny. And Life would pay no more. However, I begged at evening. When I counted my scanty store.

For Life is a just employer. He gives you what you ask, But once you have set the wages, Why, you must bear the task.

I worked for a menial's hire, Only to learn, dismayed, That any wage I had asked of Life, Life would have paid.

SUNDAY SERMONETTE

"Oh how great is Thy goodness, which Thou hast laid up for them that fear Thee"—Psalm 31:19.

The text seems to picture a great expanse of strength and love "God's goodness" laid up for one Christian. It increases as life roars on. Happy days of strength and vigor, times of joy and victory, ought to be times when we store up faith and courage to meet the darker days of trial and difficulty. Robert Louis Stevenson gives us this thought in one of his prayers—"We thank Thee, Lord, for the glory of the late days and the excellent face of the sun. We thank Thee for the good news received. We thank Thee for the pleasures we have enjoyed and for those we have been able to confer. And now the clouds gather and the rain impends over our forest and our home, permit us to be cast down. Let us not lose the favour of past mercies and past pleasures; but, like the voice of the bird singing in the rain, let grateful memories survive in the hour of darkness. If there be in front of us a painful duty, strengthen us with the grace of courage; if any act of mercy, teach us tenderness and patience."

The secret of happiness and true comfort lies in the spirit of that prayer. If we thus live we shall always have a storehouse of sweet memories that will give us courage and forbearance and patience when we most need them.

To live life at its strongest and best we must have the christian's service of hope and strength which will give us confidence not only for the presence and goodwill of God, but for the future. We shall always have a storehouse of sweet memories that will give us courage and forbearance and patience when we most need them.

righteous judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only but to all them also that love His appearing."

There is no good thing in forgiveness, in redemption, in comfort, in everlasting hope; that God has laid up for any soul, which may not be ours if you will consecrate to Him our heart and your service.

Between Ourselves

"There's something kind of hearty about the atmosphere When the heat of summer's over and the cooling fall is here; Of course we miss the flowers and the blossoms on the trees And the hum of the humin' birds and the buzzin' of the bees; But the air's so appetizing and the landscape through the haze Of a crisp and sunny morning of the early autumn days Is a picture that no painter has the colorin' to mock— When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock."

—James Whitcomb Riley

Aren't those your sentiments, too? Could nature be more beautiful than this is the time of the year—when the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock? It is a wonder that most of us like this time of the year best. I have always loved the autumn days, more especially after Jack Frost has put himself to work with his paint brush, but somehow the feelings are never expressed more fully than in this time of the year. Just give him another week and the whole countryside will be "a picture that no painter has the colorin' to mock."

I have been thinking what my impressions would be should I have been brought up in some of the glorious country of ours just about this time of the year, to awake in the morning and see the leaves on the trees all around me painted in the rich color of autumn. I believe I would think it was Paradise.

I remember one time, a couple of years or so ago, a young visitor from Bermuda came to Digby. It was in October, just at the time when the fall coloring was at its best, and truly, I never saw a person so enthusiastic over anything. She must have taken nearly a cord of twigs and leaves home to show to her friends.

Ever since then I have wondered why we Nova Scotians don't tell the world how nature decks herself and of how gay she is during these days before she finally takes her winter's nap and covers herself with white blanket. Sometimes I think that our too short "tourist season" could be lengthened if we made a little mention of it.

We hear of "Apple Blossom Festivals," "Cherry Carnivals," "Strawberry Festivals," and "Harvest Festivals," but tell me, has there ever been an "Autumn Leaf Festival" in Nova Scotia? I think a gay time could have. And the location? Almost any place in the province—right along the shores of this historic Annapolis Basin of ours, or up in the Western Valley. I'm loyal to the second choice, the fall would be a noble way to begin and wind up the tourist season in Nova Scotia.

Think it over, folks, and tell me what you think of my idea. And if you think it is any good, what do you say if we all get busy right now. Sure, there's lots of time between now and next fall, but I'm putting it off now, most likely we will be putting it off then.

Obituary

Mrs. Catherine Comeau

There passed away at Weymouth North, early Monday morning, Mrs. Catherine Comeau, of Saultville. She deceased was 74 years of age and was living with her daughter, Mrs. John Gaudet, and Mr. Gaudet.

Henry Alridge

The death of Henry Alridge occurred at his late home at Weymouth on Friday last. The deceased was a long and patient sufferer for nearly three years, with never a word of complaint and always a smile for all.

He was born at Hassett's, seventy years ago last June, but lived his entire life in Weymouth. The funeral was held at the home of the deceased, showing the esteem in which he was held. The service was held from his late home on Sunday afternoon, and was conducted by his grandson, Rev. S. A. Mullen.

Mr. Mullen arrived from New Brunswick for the occasion. He was assisted by Rev. H. C. Mullen, of New Tuskett, who read the scriptures; Rev. T. J. Traston, of Port Maitland, offered prayer and sang most touchingly, "Pearly White City".

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. He is survived by his widow and two step-daughters, Mrs. Clara Barr, of Nashua, N. H., and Mrs. Douglas Mullen, who tenderly cared for him during his illness. The pall bearers were George, Elijah, Fred and Scott Hankinson, nephews of the deceased. The committal service was held at the Riverside United Baptist church, at Weymouth North. The late Mr. Alridge was by trade a band saw filer and Sawyer. He worked for the late G. D. Campbell for 25 years, for G. O. Hankinson several years; for Mr. Blanchard, of Greenville, N. H., for three years, and the last five or six years he was able to work for Gordon & Miller, Carleton, Yarmouth County.

"A dear one I have laid to rest Upon a loving Saviour's breast; I'll miss him in his big arm chair, Beside the hearth and table here. It won't be long, I too will go And meet my loving husband there Before the dawn of White Throne."

—Inserted by his loving wife

Thanksgiving Day will be observed on October 9th, and Armistice Day on November 11th, it is stated officially. Each will be a separate public holiday.

LIVING

There is a tie that binds—a common fear,
A universal car—for life is real,
And I, for man, must common sorrow feel,
And clasp my brother's hand and bid him cheer.

Gain peace within by shutting others out,
Gain happiness by shunning others' woes?
Not so humanity's true story goes,
For life is peace, when shared with those who love.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake up your Liver Bile

—No Calomel necessary

For you to feel healthy and happy, you must purify your blood and keep your liver in good condition. Your liver is the great filter of your blood, and if it is clogged with bile, your blood is impure, and you feel wretched.

How can you expect to clear up a situation like this? You must get rid of the bile, oil, and mineral water, laxative candy or chocolate, or "hot" tea. They don't work.

Take a Little Liver Bile. Purely vegetable. Safe. Quick. No trouble. No danger. No cost. Get it today. It's your liver that makes you feel so wretched.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson

October 1, 1933

SAUL IN TARBUS

Golden Text:—"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.—2 Timothy, 2:15.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 21:39; 22:3, 27, 28; 26:4-7; Philippians 3:2-6.

"Lord, at Thy word opens yon door, inviting Teacher and taught to feast this hour with Thee;
 Opens a book where God in human writing
 'Thinks His deep thoughts, and dead tongues live for me."

Paul's Home, Acts 21:39

There is a saying that the city makes the man. At least it has a large part in making a man. Paul was fortunate in his birthplace. Tarsus was a great commercial city which had attracted many Jewish traders. It was a border city and a seaport with many people coming and going. It had a very famous university which produced distinguished scholars. Greek art and culture flourished. Some of Paul's knowledge of boxing and racing was doubtless gained there. It may be that Paul's love of travel and adventure may be traced to his visits among the docks, watching the ships come in, and talking to sailors from many lands. His knowledge of the Greek language was to be invaluable to him in his wide missionary travels.

Paul's Education, Acts 22:3

Having finished his education in the schools of Tarsus, Paul was sent to Jerusalem to study under the great teacher Gamaliel. In this school he was taught Pharisaic law, and his mind was imbued with the ideals of his race. Gamaliel's influence lived long in the career of Paul. Paul was a Jew by birth, a pupil of Gamaliel, a man of tolerance and keen intellectual insight. In the course of time the pupil became more notable than the teacher. Such is the common fact in education. A teacher may be little known, and his pupil may become famous. His pupils be doing a greater work than is ever seen. There are few positions of trust to equal that of a day school or Sunday school teacher to whom parents send their children for instruction and example.

Paul's Citizenship, Acts 22: 27, 28

Paul's own experience fitted him to be a great internationalist. He was of Jewish blood, educated in a Greek city, holding citizenship in the Roman empire. His Roman citizenship had not been purchased, but had come to him as a gift by birth. Probably his father had been wealthy enough to purchase this right, or it had been granted to him for some service to the Roman empire. Though it must have meant mental conflict to Paul that he was a Jew by birth, subject to the Roman power, his divided allegiance did not rob him of respect for Roman law. Again and again he owed his protection to his Roman citizenship. We can hardly over-estimate the mental stimulation that Paul received from his contacts with Greek culture, Roman law and Jewish faith. The contrasts were striking and prepared Paul's thinking for the day when he could say that in Christ there is neither Jew nor Gentile.

Paul's First Faith, Acts 26:4-7

It is an indication of the sincerity of the Jewish people that they kept up their religious rituals when absent from their native land. Jewish residents in Gentile cities had their synagogues. In Tarsus Paul received Jewish teaching from his home and in the synagogue according to the strictest demands of Pharisaism. He gloried in the history of Israel and sought to be true to the religion of his fathers. There was great gain in the mental and moral discipline of this Pharisaic training. Paul knew the text of Old Testament scriptures and the history of his nation. The Messianic hope of Pharisees and prophets fitted him to understand the mission of Jesus. It was in the light of the Old Testament that Paul interpreted Christianity both to Jew and to Gentile.

Paul's Final Faith, Philippians 3:3-6

Family pride, racial tradition, Pharisaic education, all combined to make Paul very intense in his Jewish faith. How strange the moral discipline of the appeal of Christ to make him break with his relatives and compatriots! His Jewish name was that of the first king, Saul, also of the tribe of Benjamin. His devotion to his faith had been proved by his willingness to persecute the Christians. Yet we find Paul asserting that the Christians are the true Church because they worship God in the spirit, rejoice in Christ Jesus and have no confidence in the flesh. To Paul Christ was all in all. Nothing else had permanent spiritual value. For this faith Paul was ready to live, and at the end he died for his faith. As student and teacher, as leader and missionary, as writer and saint, Paul showed himself approved unto God, a workman not needing to be ashamed.

Canadian Youth

Canadians enjoy many advantages in preparation for world citizenship. There are two great sections of Canada with different motivations.

Just Suppose

Your neighbor owed you a dollar and a half—and he, just through thoughtlessness neglected to pay you; it wouldn't embarrass you, and you wouldn't lose much sleep over it, would you?

But—Suppose Again

That his neighbor owed you another dollar and a half, and two thousand other neighbors owed you a dollar and a half—a piece, and they all, through oversight, forgot to pay you—you'd be in a heck of a fix, wouldn't you?

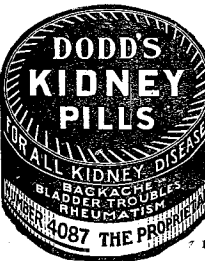

We're Not Supposing

When we say that there are nearly two thousand subscribers who owe us a dollar and a half—some of them more than that—you can see for yourself what we are up against.

If You're One of Them

Won't you be a good scout and try and let us have that money this week? Thanks!

The Digby Weekly Courier

Several dozen other nationalities are represented in the population of the Dominion. Frequent contacts with the United States enlarge our outlook. Membership in the British Empire and in the League of Nations makes us conscious of other continents. On their journeys between East and West many travellers pass through Canada and many tourists come for the summer and winter seasons. Each year a large number of Canadian students go abroad for study. Canadian churches are in touch with other Christian churches throughout the world and Canadian missionaries are at work in a dozen different lands. These facts help us to understand the words of Paul: there are no national or racial boundaries.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Which has the greater influence upon character, family or community?
- 2.—How does the British Empire differ from the Roman empire?
- 3.—What did Paul's Judaism contribute to his Christianity?
- 4.—Had the Pharisees any merits to offset their defects?
- 5.—How did Jewish, Greek and Roman influences contribute to the making of Paul?

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

You wish to know how I am able, you say, To manage to write this? And have my own way? And how I contrive To make her shut up When she wants a new hat Or a Pekinese pup And how I can dodge 'The usual story' When the hair on my coat Is of blondest hue And how, when she 'stays In to quarrel and rant— I'll tell—I'm not And I don't and I can't—

The honeymoon is over when she asks him how much he paid for the engagement ring.

CRAWLING ABOUT WITH LUMBAGO

Here is some useful information for anyone troubled with that uncomfortable complaint, lumbago. A woman writes:—

"For years I suffered from lumbago. During wet weather, I could only turn in bed with great effort and pain. I was so stiff and ached so much. Two years ago I had both lumbago and sciatica, and crawled about for a fortnight, feeling very sorry for myself and looking 103 instead of 33. Someone said, 'Try Kruschen Salts,' so I did, and I have taken them ever since, with the result that I hardly ever get a hint of lumbago these days." (Mrs. G. P. C.)

Why is it that Kruschen is so effective in keeping lumbago at bay? Simply because it goes right down to the root of the trouble and removes the cause, which is an impure bloodstream. The six salts in Kruschen keep the bloodstream pure and vigorous by promoting a clockwork regularity of all the organs of elimination.

SENTENCE SERMONS

Rev. Roy L. Smith

Modesty does not —boast long and remain modest;
 —encourage any playing with temptation;
 —survive long after the pure mind has been defiled;
 —permit any great man to make a small man feel smaller;
 —concern itself with popularity;
 —diminish in the man who is truly great;
 —prevent the honest man from being worthy.

Safety Sayings

When driving it is not well to be over confident about the rigidity of the pedestrian.
 A medal for safety is a more desirable decoration than a headstone for carelessness.
 It is better to be a little previous or a little late than just on time at a railroad crossing.
 It's not your lucky star that you see when you get a crack on the cranium.
 The old adage "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" holds good in safety.

Jewish New Year Started on Wednesday.

At sunset on Wednesday last, the Jewish people began their celebration of the festival of New Year, known in Hebrew as Rosh Hashanah. On this solemn day, Jewry, the world over, ushered in the year 5694, with prayers and meditation. Orthodox Jews designate two days for the observance of this holiday. The Jewish New Year bears a special appeal to every generation of Jews, and especially to Jewry.
 Originally, the Hebrew New Year marked the opening of the agricultural and economic year in Palestine. It began in autumn, because with fall there followed, in regular succession, the seasons of the sowing of seeds, of the ripening of the corn, of the harvest and gathering of the fruits. As a matter of fact, this day was not expressly called New Year's Day, but it was undoubtedly thus regarded by the Jews at a very early period. It was celebrated by resting from all labor as it still is, and offering special sacrifices at the Temple of Jerusalem. But it was distinguished from the observance of all other holidays by the blowing of the Shofar, the ram's horn—a custom still prevailing in the Synagogue.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Our lives shall touch a million lives. As we go along the way, May this be the wish I always wish, The prayer I always pray— That my life may help those million lives.

It touches by the way.
 Friend—So you were asked for an opinion of that amateur's playing. What do you think of it?
 Master Musician—"He plays in the true spirit of Christian charity."

"What do you mean?"

Wandering Along the Garden Paths in Nova Scotia.

DeEtte B. Jacobs, in the New Jersey "Farm and Garden" for September, has the following nice things to say about our Nova Scotia gardens, and especially about the Myrtle House, in Digby:

"I have just returned from a vacation spent in Nova Scotia... my mind filled with beautiful pictures of sea and shore, salt meadows and rocky headlands, quaint little fishing villages and trim inland orchards and winding roads where slow and patient oxen everywhere were drawing in their loads of fragrant hay. Almost above everything else, I recall with pleasure the cottage gardens. No other possible claim to beauty might a place possess, but always the dooryard held a mass of flowers to delight the traveller. It is very difficult to believe oneself awake while looking at sweet william, rambler roses, monkshood, helenium and daffodils. In a country where spring is long and cold and frosts come early, nautias all blooming joyously together in evidence lays a wisely restraining hand on early blooming things and whispers a word of advice about quick fruition to the late ones, so that everybody comes to the party together. Nowhere have I seen Dorothy Perkins and crimson rambler roses in such perfection—such luxuriant, full-flowered, un-mildewed perfection. The picture of this cottage shyly peeping out from its mantle of roses at the poppies which crowd its dooryard will always arise in my mind when I think of Nova Scotia.

The Myrtle Hotel, Digby

Inns in Nova Scotia are like inns everywhere else, some very good and some lacking that spark of imagination which redeems them from the commonplace. I shall always remember one in particular, (the Myrtle Hotel, Digby), not more for its clean rooms and good food than for its pleasant green and white dining room. The white was supplied by crisp, clean curtains, the green by an inspired use of one of our commonest of plant materials. May a y time I have pulled marauding "creeping Charlie" out of the lawn or rock garden, but I never expected to see it used indoors in a way which would delight the eye. It is one of those plants of many names, Creeping Charlie, Creeping Jenny, Moneywort—botanically Lysimachia nummularia—and prone to become a pest under any of them. In this inn there was a hanging basket of it at every dining room window and one each table was a small bowl filled with it. The effect was cool and welcoming. On All were fresh and thriving and the inquiry, I learned that the plants were placed in the sand-filled bowls, without drainage, in June, and required no further care save watering for the rest of the season. In the hanging baskets they were grown in pots of soil with drainage."

The Vogue in Home Lighting Today . . . Lighting the LIVING ROOM

In lighting the Living Room our first thought must be to see that there is enough light to illuminate the area required. This then determines the size and type of lighting fixtures to use.

Shaded lights or direct types are the most suitable to present day conditions of lighting.

In all cases there should be a centre fixture to light the room properly for playing bridge, etc. Floor-lamps will not accomplish this, as the light from them is spotty and does not illuminate evenly throughout the room.

The centre fixture should be hung as close to the ceiling as possible. This permits a greater spread of light and also adds to the apparent size of the room. The lower a fixture hangs the more noticeable it is and the smaller the room appears.

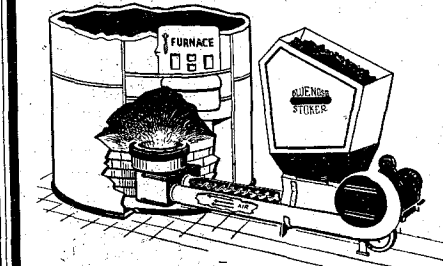

Scenes or wall brackets add much to the beauty of the Living Room and do much to the lighting of individual objects, such as tapestries, etc., over the fireplace.

Floor lamps and table lamps are used for two purposes—utility and decoration.

Light ornaments are used for decorative effects, to brighten a dark spot, or corner and to add a touch of color for holiday festivities. Lamp bulbs for the Living Room should be of the flame tint or ivory tint. The softness of light enhances the beauty of the Living Room decorations.
