Frank Grant's Body Found; Verdict of Suicide.

The body of Frank Grant, who disappeared from his home in Clementsvalle, on Saturday, September 23, was found in the "stillwater" one half mile from his home, on Sunday morning, about 11 o'clock. Dr. L. B. Braine, of Annapolis Royal, called for the body and a verdict of suicide by drowning while in an unsound state of mind was found. Mr. Grant, about twelve years ago, and his head was kicked in the head by a horse who gave him considerable trouble this summer. He leaves a widow and two children; one sister and four brothers; an aged father, who lives in Paradise. He was 43 years old.

Pianoforte Recital in Weymouth.

Music lovers of Weymouth enjoyed a rare treat, writes our Weymouth correspondent, at a pianoforte recital held in the Community Theatre, on Tuesday evening. The audience, although not large, was most appreciative, and every number on the programme was enthusiastically enjoyed. The pianist, of Weymouth, was the instructor and manager; the pianists were Miss Eleanor Willis, Miss Frances McNutt, and Mr. Bernard Trohan, of Digby, assisted by Mr. L. H. Potter, of Weymouth, well known baritone soloist, and Mrs. Harry Elfridge, of Digby, soprano soloist. Other features were four dancing specialties under the direction of Miss Frances McNutt.

Miss Helen Syda, of A. R. Turnbull's staff, is spending her vacation in Boston and vicinity.

W. and the late F. W. Nichols, were united in marriage by the Rev. F. E. Bishop, pastor of the Digby United Baptist church. The bride looked charming in a dress of brown velvet. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left on a short motor tour. They will reside in Digby, where Mr. Nichols, one of the youngest lawyers in the province, practices his profession.

Firemen Entertained at a Fish Chowder Supper.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Digby Fire Department, held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, Fire Chief Harry Hebert, assisted by Fred Barr and Fred Thibault, was host to the boys at a fish chowder supper. "After" dinner smokes were donated by A. R. Turnbull.

Following the supper Mr. Hebert gave a short address on "Fire Prevention," calling particular attention to Fire Protection Week. He also spoke of the marked improvements the local department has made during the twenty-eight years he has been a member.

It was voted that a group picture of the Maritime Fire Chiefs' Convention, held in Digby early in the summer, be presented to A. T. Spurr, who was recently "canned" by the firemen. (Mr. Spurr has asked the courtesy to express his thanks through our columns, to the firemen.)

Miss Ruby Chisholm is visiting in Halifax.

Lower Grades of Digby Academy Are Overcrowded

Congestion in the Digby schools is a serious problem, especially in the lower grades. In Miss Moore's room (grade I), it has been necessary to divide the class into two sections, one section of thirty-one pupils attending in the morning, and the other section of the same number of pupils attending in the afternoon; more pupils are expected to enter the primary grades at the beginning of the second half-year.

The second grade, Miss O'Brien, teacher, is almost as badly crowded as the first grade. Miss O'Brien has now more than fifty pupils.

Last year it was considered that the situation was bad enough, and this spring a meeting of the ratepayers was held to vote upon a project to enlarge the present school building. The project would have involved an expenditure estimated at $16,000, but it was turned down by the meeting. This year the congestion is even more acute, and last night it is hard to tell how many pupils with the pupils in the lower grades moving ahead one grade, and how many are entering the primary department.

Barton Baptist Church Rejoices in Prosperous Year.

A service of more than usual interest and profit was held in the United Baptist church, at Barton, on Sunday evening last. Miss Alice Clark, missionary from Bolivia, was present, and addressed the very large audience, who, with rapt attention listened to her vivid and heart-stirring recital of the vital phases of the work in Bolivia. With graphic touch and first hand knowledge, Miss Clark brought before the congregation the difficulties, yes, and the great successes that have attended the mission work there. Very interesting to the Barton church was her vivid description of the work at Peniel Hall Farm. With tender pathos and a deep sense of grateful appreciation, Miss Clark paid tribute to the memory and devoted work of Miss Wilson, the beloved missionary, "who being dead, yet speaketh." The inception and much of the work at Peniel Hall Farm is very largely due to the selfless devotion of Miss Wilson and her service there has given one of the most heroic chapters in the Bolivian Mission.

The church at Barton feels greatly honored that, since her retirement, Miss Wilson's home was in Barton, and they still feel the impetus of her devoted zeal and sacrificial interest. They are also deeply grateful for Miss Clark's visit. Her inspirational address will long be remembered and will contribute very largely to an increased interest in the work in Bolivia. After the regular offering and benediction, the plates were again passed and an excellent offering was taken for the work in Bolivia. This will go as a special tribute to the memory of Miss L. E. Wilson, whom the church holds in such loving remembrance.

Notwithstanding the ever-present "depression" and hard times generally, the church gratefully recognizes a good year and much progress is evident. It was a joy to all that beside increased contributions, the church was privileged to meet its denominational responsibility. And a most gratifying payment of more than $1000 for the purchase of a new building for the parsonage property.

Freeporters Held Reunion in Dorchester, Mass.

Ralph Morrell, Grand Passage ferryman, who has just returned from a visit to his brother, C. F. Morrell, 60 Jackson Street, Malden, Mass., tells us an interesting story of a "get together and reunion" of Freeporters, at the First Baptist church, of Dorchester, Mass., on a recent Sunday, September 24th.

We understand that the reunion was arranged by our friend, Mr. Morrell, and Melbourne Crocker, and on that Sunday evening some forty persons, all former residents of the Long Island village of Freeport, gathered at the First Baptist church, at Dorchester. The first part of the service was taken up with the singing of old hymn favorites. Then came the sermon by Rev. Arnold Westcott, pastor of the church, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Morrell.

After the service all were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. MacKinnon for another delightful social service, assisted by the music quartette of the church. Refreshments were served by the genial host and hostess. Afterward all returned to their homes after a happy reunion.

Scouts at Enjoyable Supper. Myrtle Hotel Entertains Boy

The Digby Boy Scout troop and their leaders, were the guests of Capt. and Mrs. A. T. Spurr, at an enjoyable supper in the Myrtle Hotel dining room, on Thursday evening last. During the supper hour music was furnished by Guy's Loyal Canadians.

Rev. E. W. Forbes, pastor of the Great United Church, addressed the boys, reminding them of the fourth scout law—"a scout is a friend to all, and a brother to every other scout." He reviewed the four great international scout jamborees that have been held in recent years, and spoke particularly of the last one, which was held in Hungary. At this jamboree more than 30,000 boys, who spoke thirty-seven different languages, shrouded in uniform the one word, "brother."

Mr. Forbes said the boys that he felt "very much at home." He has had a wide experience in scout work, having been master of a number of troops, including those in St. John's and Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Georgetown, Guyana, and Nova Scotia, and others. He told the boys to take pride in the fact that the boy scout movement was first organized by Lord Baden Powell, under the Union Jack.

CARLYLE'S CRITICISM

Thomas Carlyle wrote scathingly of the way the reading public with avidity seizes upon the latest scandal news about people unknown to the reader personally.

Metropolitan newspapers are the greatest offenders in the line of purveying this type of "news" to their readers, catering to the lower minds of the community by so doing.

Legitimate information about one's neighbors, such as the erection of a new barn, the births, the marriages and deaths in our community are wholesome and are outside of the realm of impertinent curiosity, which drew the great Thomas' wrath. These are the main items carried by country weeklies, along with straight constructive matter like the doings of the town council, the board of trade, the Kiwanis or Rotary club, etc., and the other public bodies and officials. They do not descend to the tattling of private scandals, or at least when they do one soon sees another newspaper for sale and another editor seeking new fields.

Carlyle's criticism does not concern country weeklies. The small minds, completely empty, are more often found in the great cities than in the rural communities.

In the seventeenth century it was a crime for a girl to betray a man into matrimony by such artificial means as beauty aids. Today it is an art.

A NUISANCE TAX

In the careful scrutiny which parliament is bound to give the nation's revenue laws, one tax should be given careful consideration as much to determine its indirect effects as its practical yield for the support of governments. That is the tax upon bank cheques.

There are serious objections to the cheque tax that should have been foreseen by its makers. In theory it was apparent that such a tax would discourage the use of bank cheques by people of limited means. Experience of the time during which the tax has been in operation proves the theory correct.

Large numbers of small accounts have been discontinued and the number of cheques drawn upon accounts left remain shows marked decrease. This means that many people have ceased to pay by cheque, a business practice which has been encouraged with great benefit. The practice also obtains of drawing out money in lump sums and carrying it about or concealing it so that it may be available for cash payments. The result of this must be unnecessary risk on the part of those who cannot afford risks; added incentive to robbery; loss of deposits and credits to the banks and the unfortunate influence upon business in general and the financial welfare and security of thousands of people whose means especially need husbanding.

Such a tax richly deserves to be classed among the nuisances.

SENTENCE SERMONS

By Rev. Roy L. Smith

It Is a Tragic Mistake

- to spoil a friendship by a suspicion;
- to spoil a life by regretting what cannot be helped;
- to think that remorse is a substitute for good behaviour;
- to settle life's most important decisions by guess;
- to pass judgment without getting the facts first;
- to believe that good intentions are entirely sufficient;
- to treat today as if it were tomorrow.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

It does us good to read history once in a while. Often it is a good corrective for the man who is inclined to talk wistfully of "the good old days". Often, too, it will stiffen us up against tampering with evil, as we see it worked out to its issues along the trail of the past. I sometimes think that his generation, which has never really seen the fruits of temperance on a large scale, needs to read history, lest in their lack of knowledge they trifle with an evil that in subtle sum may drive even the elect. John C. Woolley, in his book, "Temperance Progress", has a chapter dealing with the North American colonies in the early days. A few quotations will be illuminating:

"The very first record of the court proceedings of Plymouth Colony after civil government had been established was, 'John Holmes censured for drunkenness to sit in stocks and twenty shillings fine.' . . . Early in the seventeenth century the authorities of New Haven Colony found it necessary to begin whipping, putting in stocks, fining and otherwise punishing people who drank too much of the liquors which they had authorized for sale. . . . About the year 1750 rum became king of New England. . . . From the year 1750 till the beginning of the temperance agitation in the early part of the subsequent century, was a period of sad debauchery in American history. . . . The barn raisings, huskings, plantings, and most of the rural festivities were accompanied by the free indulgence. The workman took his pay in liquor. The town meeting was an occasion for a common debauch. College commencements were accompanied with great drunkenness. Alcoholic drinks supplied a leading feature of the funeral. It was a common thing for towns to supply liquors at public expense for the burial of paupers."

"Even religious gatherings were corrupted with the drinking practice. Nearly everybody drank, and the chief items in the expenses of town officials, religious conventions or associations, ordinations of ministers, raising the frames of church edifices, or dedicating the completed churches, were generally liquors furnished and consumed. . . . All the laboring men drank ardent spirits, nor was it inconsistent with Christian experience or Christian character." And turning to Canada he says: "The work which rum, beer and cider did for New England was done by brandy in the early days of Canadian colonial history." The Jesuits took strong ground against brandy sellers, especially to the Indians. Father Etienne Carheil wrote in 1702: "Our missions are reduced to such extremity that we can no longer maintain them against the infinity of disorder, brutality, violence, injustice, impiety, insolence, scorn and insult, that the deplorable and infamous traffic in brandy has spread universally among the Indians in these parts." Charlevoix wrote in 1705: "Husbands, wives, fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters were frequently seen in the streets of Montreal in a state of intoxication, worrying one another with their teeth like so many enraged wolves."

COUNTRY EDITORS

One of the nicest things about the small town is the weekly newspaper. And one of the most fascinating jobs in the world, to my mind, is that held down by the editor of such a weekly. Does that boy have a good time? He does. The fact that most country editors are men proves the point, once in a while you run across a woman editor, and when you do you have found a woman who has picked herself a grand job.

Just Suppose

Your neighbor owed you a dollar and a half—and he, just through thoughtlessness neglected to pay you; it wouldn't embarrass you, and you wouldn't lose much sleep over it, would you?

But—Suppose Again

That his neighbor owed you another dollar and a half, and two thousand other neighbors owed you a dollar and a half a-piece, and they all, through oversight, forgot to pay you, you'd be in a heap of a fix, wouldn't you?

We're Not Supposing

When we say that there are nearly two thousand subscribers who owe us a dollar and a half—some of them more than that—you can see for yourself what we are up against.

If You're One of Them

Won't you be a good scout and try and let us have that money this week? Thanks!

The Digby Weekly Courier

And she usually makes a grand job of it!

Now the country editor doesn't sit in a soundproof office and issue orders and assignments to a palpitating staff. As a general rule, the editor is the staff, helped out by a printer and a lanky youth just out of grammar school, whose duties are, like wedding presents, "too numerous to mention."

The editor is reporter, society news gatherer, advertising collector and proofreader. He is make-up man, typesetter (in a pinch), and headline writer. He dashes off "fillers" and editorials and obituaries. He should be equal to an occasional poem and is capable of conducting a column and getting the classified ads, straightened out by way of the telephone. He is a diplomat, a financier, an artist and an author. He is a critic and a humorist, and he knows all about everybody and all about everybody's business. —The Dealer.

LAWS OF FRIENDSHIP

In every community, and in nearly every school, club, church or social organization, there are people who stand on the edge of things, outside both the work and fun. Sometimes they are merely lonesome and wistful, but more often they are critical and bitter, blaming circumstances, blaming everything and everyone except themselves. They have worked hard and not been appreciated; people are unfair to them; they never have a chance, this one is wholly selfish, that one is a "climber" and a snob, yet see how they get into everything!

There is often truth in their complaints; selfish people and climbers and snobs do "get in", and people of more sterling character are sometimes pushed aside. Yet, in spite of the apparent unfairness, there are laws of friendship as in everything else, and in the end those who observe the laws, and those who do not, will be rewarded or punished.

What are the laws? True wisdom of old books puts them in a nutshell: "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly". In other words, people who wish to have friends must do their share in the transaction; they must go half way at least; they must not stand around waiting for people to speak to them, or hurry away without giving anyone a chance to speak.

They must find pleasant things to say and kind things to do. They must make a business of friendship—that is, study the laws, watch for opportunities, invest, dare, and expect that success will take time, as it does in any other business.

"Sincerity is the very foundation stone of true friendship. It is also, perhaps, the sincere friendly impulse comes from the soul of a man a human trait that is hard to count and not from the calculating mind."

The Vogue in Home Lighting Today . . Lighting the DINING ROOM . . . . .

In the Dining Room the table should be the most intensely illuminated area. This bright spot holds the attention of the diners and the low intensity in the surrounding parts of the room easily hems them in. Naturally the best way to accomplish this is to suspend the fixture directly over the table. Care should be taken, however, to see that the lighting equipment is properly mounted.

Three definite types of lighting fixtures are available for lighting the Dining Room, the candle type, shaded light type, specially designed type.

The suspended type candle fixture is an attractive unit now in popular favor. Its associations with Dining Rooms date back to the time when candle lights were the only method available for lighting. In fact, at the present time, the first thought that the housewife has in preparing for a festive occasion is to use candles on her table for decoration. The candle type fixture should hang about forty inches from the table to the center of the light source (flame of lamp); this permits the fixture to become part of the table decoration.

The shaded light type of suspended fixture is also popular as it gives a soft warm glow throughout the room—abundance of light without glare. The shaded light fixture should be hung about thirty-six to forty inches from the table top.

The specially designed suspended type fixture represents one of the most sensational developments in modern lighting. A warm glow is shed over the room through the upper part of the honey glass panels, while a soft white light through the French crystal bottom panels gives clear illumination over the table. This type of fixture should be hung about thirty-six to forty inches from the table top.

The drop type fixtures should never be used for Dining Room lighting as a drop light causes glare, attracting attention from the diners and interfering with the comfort of the persons seated at the table.

The Dining Room lighting fixture should give plenty of light, permitting one to look from one end of the table to the other without being attracted by any glare from the light sources.

The Road to RECOVERY

A Statement by the Prime Minister of Canada

WITHIN a few days the Dominion of Canada will offer for public subscription the 1933 Refunding Loan, the purposes and terms of which will be announced in detail by the Minister of Finance on Tuesday, October 10. In this national undertaking an opportunity will be afforded both for sound investment and for public service, and I have no doubts as to the readiness with which Canadian investors will respond.

I feel, however, that the 1933 Loan marks a point in Canadian affairs to which it is only proper that public attention should be drawn as a means of extending justifiable encouragement to many thousands of men and women who have endured adversity with such admirable fortitude.

With due precaution against unwarranted optimism I think I may say that in Canada we are now on the road to recovery. The road may be long and progress may be slow, but the events of the past six months appear to demonstrate with increasing clarity that the downward trend has come to a definite stop and that an upward trend is now in progress.

The evidence of improvement is written in the statistical facts of our industry and trade. These records show that our general economic condition reached its lowest point during the month of February last and that today we are definitely above that level following a recovery which has been gradual but persistent and unmistakable.

The most significant of these figures are probably those dealing with the physical volume of business, wholesale prices and employment, and I give here briefly the record of recovery in each case as shown by the reports of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The index of our physical volume of business, which represents virtually the economic pulse of the nation, stood last February at 67.1. For August, the most recent month for which the index is available, the figure was 89.9, an improvement of approximately 34%.

Wholesale prices, in which even minor changes are highly significant, have risen over 9%, or from an index of 63.6 last February to one of 69.4 in August.

Employment, although still at a regrettably low level, has, nevertheless, been gaining steadily for the past five months. On the basis of partial reports from industrial employers some 116,000 persons have been added to pay-rolls since last April. An estimate by the Bureau on a more comprehensive basis places the total increase in employment at 246,000 during the same period.

Our external trade figures are equally encouraging. Both exports and imports have risen, with the former showing the more rapid increase. As a result, Canada had a favourable trade balance of over $114,000,000 in the twelve months ended August 31st this year. For the corresponding period last year the favourable balance was only $38,000,000, and in the two previous twelve months periods instead of favourable figures we had unfavourable balances of $45,000,000 and of $103,000,000 respectively.

All these facts and figures I think we may quite safely take as sign-posts on the road to recovery. In our further progress, no single factor will have more significance than the success of our national loan operations. The recent 4% loan in London was a notable tribute to Canada's credit standing. It was immediately oversubscribed many times and now commands a substantial premium. I feel satisfied that our own people will be quick to perceive that the 1933 Refunding Loan in Canada is at once a challenge and an opportunity—a challenge to aid in the restoration of business recovery and an opportunity to serve thereby their own and their country's best interests.

SAUL IN DAMASCUS

Golden Text:—"Therefore, if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."—Corinthians 5:17.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 9:1-12; 17-19a.

"He came and took me by the hand up to a red rose tree. He kept His meaning to Himself. But gave a rose to me. I did not pray Him to lay bare The mystery to me, Enough the rose was Heaven to smell. And His own face to see."—Ralph Hodgson

Character May Change, 1, 2
 There is a widespread habit of classifying people as types. Some rule of thumb psychologists have only two types: introverts and extroverts. The fact is that nearly everyone is a combination of both. Also people may change so radically that their classification has to be altered. In his pre-Christian days Paul was a cruel persecutor, ruthlessly putting Christians to death and seeking official authority to stamp out the new faith. Yet this same man who was the dread of the early Christians later wrote the thirteenth chapter of the First Corinthians, and became one of the most self-sacrificing missionaries of the Christian church. His very work as a persecutor was a factor in his transformation. He saw the light upon the face of martyred Stephen. He was brought in touch with the spirit of brotherhood among the persecuted Christians, and the intensity of his persecuting spirit was transformed into his earnest missionary zeal. One of the fundamental things to remember about human nature is that it can be changed. Bad people may become good; good people may be made better.

A Dramatic Conversion, 3, 4

As Saul neared Damascus he was a legalist. Ever afterwards he was a Christian mystic. Whether it was the force of the light of the mid-day eastern sun, or some inner light, he felt to earth and heard a voice saying: "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" From the narrative this appears to be very sudden, but Saul had been silently prepared for this great hour. The results of his dramatic experience are to be seen in all his later life. There are many people who are concerned because they have not had as sudden and decisive a conversion hour as Paul. Augustine, Luther, Wesley or Chalmers. Many young people have steadily grown in Christian faith and character and have never had a right-about-face conversion. The reality of conversion, however, is not to be decided by its method, but by its effects. No one could doubt the genuineness of Saul's conversion. The persecutor became a missionary; the Pharisee became a mystic. The power of his Damascus road transformation was life long.

Immediate Action, 5, 6

Saul did not understand what it all meant. Hearing the voice, he asked, "Who art thou, Lord?" The answer came clearly: "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest." Paul's nature was intensely practical. He did not question or debate, but in his astonishment he said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" A sure test of the reality of conversion is the desire to act in accord with the experience. People who profess conversion, but do not live good lives, or give any Christian service, soon discount their professions. He was always seeking something to do. Few men by their deeds have made a deeper dent in human history than the Apostle Paul. The fact that Jesus had much for him to do.

A Leader Led, 7-9

What a change a brief hour had made in this haughty young scholar coming down from Jerusalem to Damascus! This messenger carrying authority from the high priest, is now groping for light. This persecutor, so sure of himself, is asking what to do. This Pharisee who was going to drive Christians out of Damascus, is led in by the hand. It was a humbling experience for this young Jerusalem scholar. In that hour Saul's pride died. All his confidence through his obedience to the law vanished. He knew—himself henceforth to be dependent on another's will. He made an unconditional surrender to the guidance of Christ.

Jesus Helped Saul, 10-19

During his darkness and weakness this new convert was not forgotten by his Lord. In Damascus Ananias had a vision in which Jesus appeared to him, directing him to go to help Saul. How great must have been the relief and joy of the once persecutor when Ananias came, put his hand upon him and gave him a message of reassurance in the name of Jesus, together with the promise of the presence of the holy Spirit! Saul rose and was baptized, and when he had taken food his strength was restored. In this story the deepest spiritual experiences and the most humble and commonplace actions mingle. Saul heard a voice that others could not hear, yet the touch of a friend and the nourishment of food were indispensable agents of his recovery. "Thus do heaven and earth mingle in daily life. Thus do the spiritual and the material blend until often they cannot be distinguished. The one thing to remember about Saul's conversion is that, although it happened in the first century, similar conversions are happening now even in the month of October, 1933. Christ still speaks to men and leads them to the light out of darkness. The Lord is still

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Why is there such great variety in conversion experience?
- 2.—What are the evidences of genuine conversion?
- 3.—Did Peter and John have as deep a religious experience as Paul?
- 4.—Are sudden conversions as sudden as they seem?
- 5.—Did Saul hear an inner or an outer voice?

Obituary

Isaiah Marshall

There passed away, on September 24th, at his home in South Range, Isaiah Marshall, the age of 69 years. A slight build, resulting in blood poisoning, caused his death very suddenly, and the community mourns the passing of a good friend and neighbor, as he was loved by all. Born in Nova Scotia, he spent the larger portion of his life here. Twenty-five years ago he moved to the United States, where he lived for twenty-three years, returning two years ago to spend his remaining years in his own province. A conscientious Christian he took great interest in the work of the Disciple Church, of which he had been a member for 44 years. While in the United States he united with the Second Baptist church, at Newton, Upper Falls, and served as deacon there during his stay in that country, but on returning to this province he united with his own (Disciple) church, where he was appointed Elder by Rev. Mr. Ferrier, and served in that capacity until his passing. He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father, his widow, the former Addie Wagner, of Riverdale, daughter of Benj. Wagner, deceased, and Margaret Brooks, of Easton; and eight children, Frances (Mrs. Headley), of Cambridge, Mass.; Lena (Mrs. Sindenberg), of Orono; George (Mr. Phoebe), of Thompson; Theodore (Mrs. Kirchdorfer), and Benjamin Marshall, all of Newton Upper Falls, Mass.; Gladie (Mrs. LaDuchelle), of Cohasset, Mass.; and Thelma (Mrs. Eldridge), of Needham Heights, Mass.; also two brothers, Andrew, of South Range, and T. Leverett, of Dover, N. H. He had 23 grandchildren, and one great grandchild, all in the United States.

Mrs. Alexander Doiron
The death occurred in the Saint John Hospital, on September 22nd, of Evelyn, wife of Alexander Doiron, of Saint John, and daughter of Coleman Powell and the late Mrs. Powell of Central Grove, after an illness of several months' duration. Deceased was twenty-nine years of age and was a member of the German Street United Baptist church, Saint John. This death is exceptionally sad as it is the third in the family within the past six months. She leaves to mourn a loving husband and father, also one sister, Mrs. Harold Thompson, of Shrewsbury, Mass., and a host of relatives and friends. The remains were taken to Central Grove for burial and she was placed beside her mother and sister. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Greenwood. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Much sympathy is extended to all who mourn.

Mary Elizabeth LeBlanc
The death of Miss Mary Elizabeth LeBlanc, of Brookline, Mass., occurred in the General Public Hospital, Boston, on Friday last, at the age of 69 years. The remains arrived at Little Brook on Saturday morning,

UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA

The services on Sunday will be as follows:
Digby, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday School at 12.
Smith's Cove, 3 p.m.
Harvest Thanksgiving services will be held in the morning and afternoon, at Digby and Smith's Cove. The churches will be appropriately decorated, and the Evangelical Male Quartette, of Berwick, will sing.

A very beautifully decorated church made the Bayview harvest thanksgiving service, last Sunday afternoon, a happy occasion. The whole platform was covered with nature's bounties from field, forest and garden, and a good congregation was present. The sermon from Psalm 103:10 was on "The Underserved Mercies of God."

Rally Day in Grace United Sunday School was never better observed than in the service last Sunday. Of an enrollment of 116, exclusive of the cradle roll and home department, 107 were present. Of the twelve classes six had a perfect attendance and the others had only one or two absentees. The topic of the service was "Serving Jesus Today." Recitations were given by Hugh Dickie and Joe Turnbull. "What a Little Chap Can Do," and readings by Florence Keen and Frances Appleby, on "Truly Brothers," and "Ko-Sen Finds the Way to Serve His Country." The primary and junior pupils decorated a floral cross and also sang a hymn, "Praise Him, Praise Him, All Ye Little Children." New members are coming into the school, and all will be welcome.

The United Church Players began practices on Monday for a three-act play, "An Old-Fashioned Mother," which they plan to present about the middle of November. The next practice will be on Tuesday evening next, at 7:30 o'clock.

The bad weather interfered with the attendance at the corn supper, in the United Church hall, last Friday, but the sum of ten dollars was raised for new choir books, and all present had a good supper and an enjoyable evening.

CLEMENTSVALE UNITED BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. F. C. Burnett, Pastor

The services on Sunday will be as follows:
Church School at 10:00 o'clock.
Thanksgiving Service at Clementsvalle at 11:00 o'clock. Subject, "The Blessing of Crossed Hands."
Victory at 2:00 o'clock and Bear River East at 7:30 o'clock.
All are welcome.

and were taken to the home of her brother, Tevelin LeBlanc, Comeauville. Funeral services took place at St. Mary's church, Church Point, on Monday morning, with Rev. Father Fitzgerald officiating, assisted by Rev. Fathers Robichaud and Comeau. Mr. LeBlanc is survived by one brother, Tevelin, of Comeauville, and mouth.

ute work by several methods. A Benefit Bridge held at the home of Mrs. W. M. Roman, a Minstrel Show put on by our members, which was a great success; and a booth at the Digby County Exhibition, where we sold home-made jams, pickles, jellies.

Our activities included work in connection with our schools; benevolent work in connection with needy families; and a donation to the Nova Scotia Home for Colored Children.

Our library has been open to the general public for the past year and the funds so raised have been spent for books.

At the Hospital Fair, in Digby, our booth, where donations from our surrounding districts were sold, and proceeds turned into the General Hospital fund.

We have had, during the year, three very interesting local speakers: Mrs. Carrel Clarke, on "Taking the Census"; Mr. Harold Hatheway, on "The Future of Our Country"; and Mr. Fulton Parker, on "The Exhibition and Ways of Helping Same". Our Digby-Annapolis County rally was held this year at Bellville, and a large number of our members were able to attend and thoroughly enjoyed the sessions.

We have had the Smith's Cove Institute as our guests and have visited them in return. This "getting together" certainly brings the members of these organizations in closer touch and gives an added zest to our work.

This year we undertook a new venture in connection with the Digby County Exhibition, and were given the privilege of having a booth placed to add to the attractiveness of the exhibition and to awaken new interest in Institute work. We feel that it was a great success and hope that it may become a permanent feature of the exhibition.

We know that much has been accomplished, but realize that, with whole-hearted support of the members, much greater things can be brought forth "For Home and Country."

Between Ourselves

And Monday is Thanksgiving Day!

We have a lot to be thankful for this year. True, the business conditions could be better, nevertheless, we see signs of improvement on every hand. Up in the Valley, the apple crop, quality and quantity, is the best in years, and prices are better than they have been in a long time.

The farmers in our county are enjoying bumper crops, with markets and prices slightly improved over those of last year. The fishermen are, perhaps, as well off as the agriculturists, but they, too, feel that conditions in their industry show signs of improvement. We are given to understand that the lumber industry is "picking up" to some extent.

But material wealth and the recovery from our industrial ills are not the only things for which we can say "thanks." The fact that we are not living in a country torn by strife, revolution and political jealousies; that we live in a land where British justice is supreme; where political "bosses," dictators and gangsters are rightly given to the criminal; and not permitted to contaminate the machinery of government to satisfy their own selfish ambitions.

We are thankful that we are living in a time of peace, that the "depression" is over, that, yes, and even thankful for the depression itself; it has taught us many things, and, most important of all, "that we are our brother's keeper."

In spite of hard times, there are many things for which we can give thanks. In fact, if we made every day a "thanksgiving day" and brought to mind at the end of each day the little and big kindnesses our friends have shown us; our pleasures; the joys of living; of good health; the loveliness of nature; the wonder of the age in which we live, and countless other things, the burden of our lives, many of them petty ones, would be lessened.

Intended to write on other things as well this week, but last minute advertising instructions have been made up and gone to press, are somewhat of a gentle hint that I'll have to be brief to make room for some of the interesting items that have come in from our faithful correspondents.

Barton-Brighton Public Library Formally Opened.

The Barton-Brighton Community Library was opened to the public for the first time last Saturday, from 3 to 5 o'clock. Delicious refreshments were served to about twenty guests by the following members of the Library Committee: Mrs. (Dr.) Harris, Mrs. J. Russell, Mrs. C. Smith, Mrs. M. Bacon, Mrs. S. Cosman, and Mrs. A. Adams.

The room, the walls of which are decorated in the sunburst of yellow with woodwork of pale green, was made particularly attractive for Saturday's occasion by vases of asters, dahlias and gladioli. A number of very fine pictures, which have been donated, adorn the walls, including a picture of Mrs. Bensley, which is very fitting, as it was largely through her efforts that the library was made possible. It was much regretted that she could not attend the opening.

There is still space for many more books but the committee is sure that in time the library will be stocked with a creditable number of books and magazines of such a character that the School and Community Club will be proud of the result of this undertaking.

Please do not forget the regular meetings of the Barton-Brighton and Community Club tonight, at which slides on Canadian Art will be shown. Everybody welcome.

The pupils of the Advanced department of the Barton-Brighton school, re-organized their 4-H Club on Friday afternoon last. The officers are as follows:

Vice-President—Arthur Ritchie.

A Saving to Digby People.

In these days when every cent counts more than ever before, Digby people are fortunate in having H. T. Warner's mill operating in their town, thus making it possible for them to make big savings in the price of wood.

Just now Warner's mill is selling box ends at $1.00 a load and hardwood mill wood at $2.00 a load. Each load contains half a cord of wood! Think of it—good wood at $2.00 and $4.00 a cord. This wood is mill waste that has to be disposed of, and that explains the low price. In many lumbering communities where mills operate, this waste has to be burned. If Warner's mill were one of this class this wood would be wasted, and it would not be possible to benefit by the present low price. Mill wood competition in Digby has brought down the price of cord wood in town, 11 lip.

Married

Darres-Boudreau

A marriage of interest was solemnized by Rev. A. W. L. Smith, in St. Andrew's church, Victoria, Thanksgiving morning (Oct. 9), at ten o'clock, when Hilda Pearl, daughter of Mrs. Boudreau and the late Samuel Boudreau, Clementsport, became bride of Aaron Lovitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orlan Darres, Victoria. The bride, dressed in cream satin and lace, with veil, and carrying a shower bouquet of stocks and asters, entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Lendley MacFadden, by whom she was given in marriage, while Lohengrin's March was played by Mrs. W. H. Spurr, Deep Brook. The matron of honor was Mrs. Murray Beeler, Annapolis Royal, (sister of the groom), dressed in ivory crepe carrying a bouquet of roses and snapdragons. Mr. Beeler was groomsmen. The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreen and autumn flowers and flowers also adorned the altar. During the singing of the register the organist played softly, and the bride party left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's March. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left by motor for "Kedgie" and Lunenburg.

Lewis-Sabine

At the Reformed Baptist Parsonage, Havelock, on Monday evening, Ellery Walden Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Budd C. Lewis, of Danvers, and Miss Eva Elsie Sabine, daughter of Harold F. and the late Mrs. Sabine, of Riverside, were united in marriage by Rev. H. C. Mullen, in the presence of a few immediate friends. After a brief honeymoon they will reside in Danvers. The good wishes of a large circle of friends and relatives will follow them to their new home.

Finigan-Denton

An interesting event took place on Saturday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Denton, Westport, when their daughter, Evelyn Jeanine, was united in marriage to Bradford Eugene Finigan, of Precept, Rev. Horace Morgan officiating. The bride looked charming in a gown of royal blue crepe. Mildred Denton, sister of the bride, and Lawrence Shaw, attended the couple. At the conclusion of the ceremony luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Finigan left on Monday morning for Victoria Beach where Mr. Finigan is principal of the school.

Edna R. Weir Wins Courier Watch

There is at least one delighted and happy girl in Smith's Cove, and that girl is Edna R. Weir, the fifteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Weir, and the cause of her happiness is the fact that she is the lucky winner of the beautiful wristwatch of 25 "Ustensils" offered by the company direct, and of which at least three hundred were awarded in the Maritimes.

When the editor of the Courier called at Miss Weir's home yesterday, he found her suffering from a cold but able to be around. When he took the watch out of his pocket, and removed it from its tissue paper wrappings, her face showed her surprise and delight—but, beyond calling her mother to share her enjoyment, she was too much surprised to speak. Both mother and daughter had taken the course, but, as the mother remarked, "I only received a diploma, she got a diploma and the prizes." Both had had a lot of enjoyment in taking the course and sending out the recipes, and either would have considered herself well repaid for her trouble in the benefits derived from the lessons, but, of course, are delighted with the prizes awarded for Edna's efficient work.

With Edna's consent the Courier is making a display of these valuable prizes today and tomorrow, in one of the windows of Dillon's Shoe Store, which has been kindly loaned to us for the purpose. Look at them and you can imagine how happy any girl would be to get them.

SUCCESSFUL BENEFIT FOR THE HOSPITAL

Bayside Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Lent, at Weymouth North, was the scene of a delightful chicken dinner, dance and card party, on Thursday, in aid of the Digby General Hospital. The dining room looked most attractive with its decorations of orange crepe paper, and bouquets of marigolds, nasturtiums and dahlias, in a color scheme of yellow and orange, about one hundred partaking of the delicious dinner, with all the "fixin'". Music for the dancing was furnished by an orchestra comprised of Miss Pauline McLellan, Mrs. Lloyd Potter, C. H. Brittain, D. J. Daley and Mr. Dickson. The prize winners at cards were: Ladies' first, Mrs. E. J. Enderkin; Gentlemen's first, Israel Melanson.

At the conclusion of the evening refreshments were served and a "sing-song" of popular music enjoyed, after which a few more dances, the National Anthem, and three cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Lent, completed the enjoyable gathering. Those assisting with the serving were: Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lent, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Ferguson, Mrs. Geo. J. Don, Mrs. John Dunkley, Mrs. A. L. Thurber, Mrs. C. H. Brittain, Mrs. W. R. Harris, and the Misses Grace Blagdon, Ruth Goodwin and Kathleen Fitzgerald.

Remembrance Day Is Less Than One Month Away

To the Editor of the Courier:
Sir—One month from today is Remembrance Day when we pay honor to those who have died either during the late war or as the result of disabilities received during that period. May I request that you will come to our assistance again and try to aid us in seeing that Remembrance Day is kept as a Holy Day of Remembrance and publish in your paper the copy of the act, as follows:
His Majesty, the King, and the House of Commons of Canada, enact as follows:
"1—Sections Two and Three of the Armistice Day Act, Chapter 9 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1927, are repealed, and the following is substituted therefor:
"2—Throughout Canada in each and every year, the Eleventh Day of November, being the day in the year 1918 on which the Great War was triumphantly concluded, by an Armistice, shall be a holiday, and shall be kept and observed as such under the name of Remembrance Day."
E. Steele Secretary

THE MODERN ATLAS

Atlas no longer supports the civilized world.

Rather, the burden rests upon the supple shoulders of a flexible-muscled young giant, a tawny-haired, swiftly-moving youth known as Enterprise.

He stands with feet firmly planted at the opposite poles while coursing through his body, from negative to positive, flows the greatest force known to mankind today.

Some call it white coal; some call it natural phenomena; others call it indefinable force.

Call it what you will, it is the thing today which hurls voices and music around the world; which turns the motors of the industries which make Canada a great nation; pulls trains of cars laden with human freight and valuable merchandise; lights the greatest city and the smallest hamlet.

It is the thing which takes drudgery out of the housewife's daily tasks. It is the thing which enables science to see the inside of the human body and other matter. It is the power which courses through the veins of the world today, every bit as necessary as the blood which flows through the circulatory system of the human body.

No one catastrophe could befall the world today which would be more paralyzing or more devastating in its effect than the sudden loss of the natural phenomenon called electricity. Man can hardly conceive of modern civilization continuing without this benevolent force.

Another way to eliminate noise: Teach people not to speak unless they know what they are talking about.

SUPPRESSING QUACKS

In every profession there are those who indulge in practices that are regarded as unethical by the group. Formerly it was left for the state to punish these practitioners, but there is a growing tendency for professional men to oust from their ranks those who prove unworthy of public confidence.

It is commendable to see the medical profession, which for some years has been in need of trimming at the edges, making use of this means of eliminating quacks. That the profession is self-purifying is evidence of the high level of its standard as a whole.

Recently a county medical society in a New England state suspended from its membership an alienist who had given questionable testimony in a number of important murder cases. Subsequently the state society sustained the action of the county society, officially ostracizing the physician from his profession. It was held that public confidence in the medical profession was being weakened by such testimony as the offending specialist gave.

Neither the medical profession nor society can afford to have the suspicion abroad that the profession is venal. Public confidence in the word and skill of medical practitioners is essential. Were it shattered it would amount to a catastrophe. Depend upon it, the doctors will see to it that no such catastrophe befalls mankind.

Labor's objection to a woman boss is understandable. No laborer really needed another one.

MENACE OF COLDS

Winter's other annoyances and discomforts could be put up with gracefully were it not for those common ailments of gripe and colds which are most prevalent in winter. No matter how often a person has been afflicted with these maladies a new attack lays him low in body and spirit.

are a severe blow to industry and business. Claims against benefit associations because of influenza or gripe make up 20 per cent. of the total compensation paid by these associations.

If people could only avoid getting these diseases they would save themselves discomfort, doctors' bills, loss of wages and danger of serious illness. But try as one may, it seems impossible to escape at least one attack a winter.

People who get plenty of fresh air, who ventilate their homes thoroughly, who avoid drafts and wet feet, and who are careful to take a good amount of exercise are the ones least afflicted. Fresh air is a wonderful medicine.

At last the nations have found the way to preserve peace. When a neighbor violates treaties, you just haughtily let him take what he wants.

AN ENGLISHMAN'S CONSCIENCE

In an English movie house the other night, nearly a thousand people sat waiting for the feature picture. The projecting machine broke down and the management announced that the patrons would be refunded their money at the box office. But as there were different priced seats the problem arose as to whom claims for remuneration. The manager merely put his customers on their honor, and when the last payment was made, the receipts and the money paid out, corresponded to a penny.

BEER AND WINE

We hear much these days about the use of beer and wine. Often it is put forward as a healthy alternative to the use of harder distilled liquors, like brandy, gin, whiskey. Governments are being approached to let down the bars and allow more latitude in sale and use. Indeed, I read the other day of the possibility of the sale of beer and wine being made a live issue in the next election campaign in Ontario. It behooves us to do a little thinking and observing along these lines.

First of all, let us not fail to note the commercial interest that constitutes an urge behind the scene. Wine growing countries naturally seek a boom in their industry. I read that since 1924 "the International Wine Office," with its headquarters in Paris and with a bountiful fund at its disposal, has been carrying on an active propaganda on behalf of increased consumption of wine in wine growing countries back up this trade movement. The increase in wine sales, it is claimed, upon the increase in popular use. So it is logical to find plausible and persuasive arguments favoring the use of "beer and light wines."

But there is another side to the story, and it is told in the doings of the recent World Economic Conference in London. Among the matters before that great assembly of deliberators was the very natural proposal from wine-growing countries that a world-wide campaign be set a-going to increase the consumption of wine. Such a proposal seemed to point the way to increased trade, more employment, more money in circulation in short, "better times."

But what did the representative leaders of the nations say? Well, Sweden and Denmark, through their leaders, said that the temperance movements in their countries were so strong that they could not vote for any resolution that favored greater use of alcoholic beverages. Egypt declared that Mohammedan countries forbade any propaganda favoring the use of wine but would be in accord with the increased consumption of fresh and dried grapes, as these were not alcoholic. India could not approve any movement for increased use of alcohol. Britain, in line with many other governments, demurred at endorsing wine consumption propaganda. Does it not all show that the world is steadily turning away from the use of alcoholic beverages? Is it not a hopeful sign of the times that a World Conference, earnestly engaged in search of trade, refused to accept an increased trade in wine as the way of hope, setting the bodies and the souls of men above the whim of business or the glitter of gold and silver.

Radio Adjustments

After a Radio Receiver has been in use for a year, and sometimes less, the Operator wonders why he cannot separate the stations as he has been doing. The answer is usually very simple. The Tuning Circuits change their values and positions and this is caused by wear of the moving parts and changes in form of the stationary parts—the latter due to changes of weather. Readjustment can only be made by the use of very accurate instruments and we are especially well equipped to do this sort of work. The difference, after readjustment, is very pronounced.

Between Ourselves

Two weeks ago I suggested in this column a Nova Scotia "Autumn Leaf Festival," and asked my readers for their opinions. To date I have received two letters on the subject, and heard considerable comment. The first letter was from L. H. Potter, of Weymouth, who frequently "has nice things to say" in our columns, and the other was from none other than Thomas V. Anderson. Unfortunately Mr. Potter's letter arrived at a time when I was "packing up" for a little trip and I put it to one side where I would be sure to find it—and I am still looking for it. Perhaps I can locate it in time for next week's "Between Ourselves"—if not possibly he will write me again.

As for Mr. Anderson's letter, if space permits and "J. J." says it's O. K., it will be published elsewhere in paper. Mr. Anderson is full of practical ideas to boost our tourist trade, and what he has to say is always worth while thinking about. (The letter Ye Junior Ed. refers to is a little too long to handle at this time of the week, when our country correspondence and local news is to be looked after, but it will appear in next week's issue of "J. J.")

I hope that others will take an interest in this idea of mine, and perhaps help "put it over" next fall. As far as I am concerned, the idea was original, but I understand it has been carried out successfully in other places. If I do say it myself, I think the idea is a good one, and others with whom I have talked like it, too. But to make a success of it co-operation—and lots of it—is needed.

One man remarked that he liked it all enough, "but it would cost money." He was quite right. That is just what some folks said about the Old Home Week idea to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the landing of the United Empire Loyalists at Digby, and for that reason voted it down after certain individuals in town and out of town had gone to a lot of trouble and hard work getting information and other data, after all kinds of co-operation had been promised by transportation companies and others—not residents of Digby, but who, to my mind, show a greater interest in the future of our town than do many of our "leading citizens."

It is impossible to make a success of anything unless we do a little work and spend a little money toward the accomplishment. I think that there are many who are now convinced that we passed up a golden opportunity by not going on with the Loyalist Old Home Week last summer, especially when they realize what happened in other parts of the Maritime Provinces where folks went ahead and DID—even if it cost money "in these hard times".

Harry Lauder says, "Opportunity is no always seeking" doors to knock upon. While she'll be sitting at home, snug as a bug in a rug, waiting for callers, her ear is cocked for the sound of the knock on HER door."

In other words, if we wait for opportunity to knock on OUR doors we might be sadly disappointed. We have to do some of the right kind of knocking ourselves. It's never a bad idea to spend a little money on "gas" in the form of advertising and a little time seeking "Opportunity's Door." By doing a bit of work ourselves we are more apt to find the lady at home ready to receive visitors—and perhaps send us a few in the good old summer time.

In case it should be impossible to publish Mr. Anderson's letter in this edition, I am going to say a little something on another phase he mentioned—something I have intended to write about for some time, and something I referred to in an editorial written about this time last year, after the Canadian Good Roads Convention met here. This has to do with the bringing of conventions to Digby.

In recent years Digby has made some strides as a convention town, but she has forgotten that fashions change and still sticks to the old "hobble skirt". Digby should have and could get—more conventions than she does. She has all the facilities, but instead of doing a little work herself she is content to let "Orville" and "Gus", the hotel men, do it all.

Every year some Digby citizens attend conventions somewhere. How many of them have put forth an individual effort to bring their convention to Digby? Very few of them, I am afraid. They go away and like to "sponge" a lot of pleasure at the expense of some other town or group, but they hate like to think they ought to pay back some of this hospitality by entertaining conventions here. But we must give our Fire Chief, Harry Hersey, a hearty pat on the back for his efforts in bringing the Maritime Fire Chiefs here for their annual convention last summer. We understand this was done almost entirely through him.

Others might follow the example Mr. Hersey has set. It may be a little effort on their part, but who can tell what the result would be? None should be ashamed to "sell Digby" in this manner.

I have heard what seems to me as a foolish argument, to the effect that as most conventions are held in the summer months that it would be impossible to accommodate them at that time. Can you name any Maritime Convention that could not have been accommodated in Digby last summer, this summer, or next summer?

Ye Junior Ed.

DEPRESSED BY ACUTE ACIDITY

There can surely be no doubt about the effectiveness of a remedy for acidity that can give such permanent relief as in this woman's case. "I suffered for many years from acidity in various forms," she writes. "At last it became so acute that every morning I woke with a gnawing pain and a great depression of spirits. I tried Kruschen Salts, and the effect was magical. The pain subsided and the depression lifted like a cloud. I have taken the daily dose of Kruschen ever since. This was about five years ago, and the Kruschen does not lose its effect."—Miss E. M. Z.

Kruschen is so effective with acidity because it neutralizes acid, takes all the ferment out of it, and gently expels it from the system. And by stimulating your organs of elimination to perfect regular action, Kruschen will prevent this harmful acid from ever accumulating again. After that you'll experience no more misery after meals.

PAUL IN ANTIOCH

Golden Text:—"For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth: to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."—Romans 1:16.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 11:19-30; 12:25.

Be not selfish in thy greed, Pass it on.
 Look upon thy brother's need, Pass it on.
 Live for self, you live in vain; Live for Christ, with Him you reign.
 Live for Him, with Him you reign, Pass it on.

The Gospel Spreads, 19-21

Religious persecution usually defeats itself. The persecution of the Christians in the first century scattered the believers from place to place and spread the faith. The blood of the martyrs was the seed of the church. At Antioch the Christians gave their Christian witness only to the Jews. In Antioch, however, the Christians shared their message with the Greeks. A large number believed and became followers of Christ. So intense was the faith of the Christians that they could not be silent. It was not a case of carrying out a missionary policy; the Christians just could not keep from telling about Jesus. It is when Christian effort is most vital that missionary effort is most intense.

Get the Facts, 22-24

There was unrest among the Jerusalem Christians when they heard that Greeks were accepting the gospel in Antioch. The Jewish Christians could not help being suspicious of this innovation. They were far minded enough, however, to wish to get the facts before passing a final judgment. They, therefore, sent one of their most level headed men, Barnabas, to investigate conditions in Antioch. It did not take him long to make up his mind. He saw that many people were being added to the faith. Being a good man free from prejudice, he would not allow theological considerations to hold back practical service. He found great joy in what was happening at Antioch, and pleaded with the new Christians there to be faithful followers of Christ. Had a man of the wrong spirit gone to investigate, there might have been discord and controversy, but Barnabas being a man of fine spirit promoted good will. He was able to see the value of the Christian mission work even though precedents were broken to bits. Barnabas was endowed liberally with common sense and Christian good will.

Choosing Helpers, 25, 26

One of the best things about Barnabas was that he knew his limitations. He saw that the Antioch church needed leaders who he could not give. He could, however, suggest a leader well qualified for the task. He went to Tarsus and personally asked Saul to come to Antioch. For a whole year Barnabas and Saul taught the people. It was in Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians. The name may have been a nickname at first, just as the Lollards, Quakers and Methodists were nicknamed. The title is now one of honor. To be called a Christian is one of the highest attainments of life. People in non-Christian lands now speak frequently of certain attitudes as Christian, and name a Christian a way of life, but it has its source in fellowship with Christ.

The Church and Relief, 27-30

Jesus had fed the multitude. He was concerned with human needs. His followers caught his spirit. When famine was predicted the Antioch Christians prepared to help their fellow Christians in Judea. So rapidly did the Christian faith overcome racial and religious divisions that the depression the government had accepted responsibility for administering relief. The motive leading to government action was the spirit of Christian brotherhood and helpfulness. In addition to what the government has done, many churches and many individuals have been caring for the needy. The East has sent supplies to the West. The church still hears its Master saying, "Give ye unto the poor."

A Trio of Workers, 12:25

When Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem they had an interesting story to tell. First of all they gave account of their stewardship in distributing the gifts sent to the Judean Christians. Then they introduced the young man, John Mark, a nephew of Barnabas, who was to be a companion on their first missionary journey. Though this trio was to be broken later, at this time they shared a happy fellowship. Their bond of union was a common loyalty to Christ and a desire to carry out his purposes. They were fellow workers in the name of Christ, and although a cloud came over their friendship for a time, Paul never lost his admiration for Barnabas, and Mark redeemed his failures and proved profitable as a Christian worker. Even good people sometimes disagree. Big hearted people learn to forget their disagreements. Christian people often prove to be better friends when a breach has been repaired. Throughout his life Paul was able to command the respect and affection of his fellow workers.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Is Christianity losing its missionary power?
- 2.—Have Christians any superiority complexes racially?
- 3.—How was Saul indebted to Barnabas?
- 4.—What is the chief duty of the church during a period of depression?
- 5.—Are there too many young teachers in the Sunday School?

Band Notes

The Digby Civic Band played its last summer concert September 10th, and it was a fine one, old, having given 25 concerts and several street parades during the season. It kept the boys pretty busy but they surely had a very happy time. The youngsters got the usual thrill from the snappy marches, and their elders were proud of their home-town band and delighted with the excellent concert—a delight which was enthusiastically shared by summer visitors many of whom paid high tribute to the Director, the talented young players, and to the enterprising Music Council that established and fostered the Band.

There is something inspiring about a band music that appeals to everyone, and if the music is good there is probably something wrong with an individual who doesn't enjoy it and Shakespeare estimates that such a man is crooked. He speaks of one that is not moved with concord of sweet sounds" as being "fit for treason, full of rebellious thoughts, full of motions of his spirit are dark as night, and his affections dull as Erebus." "Let no such man be trusted," he concludes.

The fame of our young band is spreading, and some day it will be acknowledged by everybody as a strong drawing card for summer guests, and a big booster of local business. From the Toronto house of Gordon V. Thompson, Music Publisher, who is closely in touch with musical doings all over Canada comes a letter this week to Director Yates in which the writer says: "I believe I have been congratulating you all season on the work being done by your band, and now that the season is over may I say that you have done the best work of any band I have come across this year. I hear from a great many band masters across the country, and I mean it quite sincerely when I say that your work seems to show progress and better results than any other band I have contacted so far. You fellows have every reason to congratulate yourselves."

The boys have had several enjoyable times outside the band room.

but their greatest surprise came last Monday night when in the midst of the practice they were invited to adjourn to Odd Fellows Hall to finish their rehearsal. Only a few of the boys knew what was coming off. On arriving at the Hall they were warmly greeted by the ladies of Zelma Rebekah Lodge and regaled with a splendid lunch, after which the Band played a number of their latest selections for the first time in public. Everybody seems to have had a glorious time.

Drowning Accident Claims the Life of Little Digby Boy

Death stalked into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Jones, with tragic suddenness on Tuesday, when their two-and-a-half year old son, Harry, was picked up on the beach near his home, where he had been accidentally drowned while playing. The little fellow, with his four-year-old sister, Lorna, had been on the beach at play, and the little girl wandered back home about 11 o'clock, and told her mother that Harry was "getting his feet wet" on the beach.

Mr. Jones left at once and began a search for his son, but after looking up and down the shore he apparently decided the child had gone into a neighbor's house. A little later the father, with several other men and boys, continued the search and a lad named Mullen, who had gone farther south on the beach, suddenly called and shouted that he had found Harry. Searchers hastened to the spot and there found the little fellow behind a wooden drain pipe. He was dead, having apparently slipped from a rock and fallen into the water. There was a mark which led to the theory that the child had struck his face when falling and had drowned in an unconscious condition. The funeral procession, with the body, proceeded to his home. The body was called said the lad had been dead an hour or more. He is survived by his sorrowing parents, three sisters, Pauline, six; Lorna, four, and a baby two months of age.

REMEMBRANCE DAY IS NEAR

Now that we have a good home-town band in Digby, we should celebrate Armistice Day in a proper manner. The band could furnish suitable music in connection with any outdoor services, and should be engaged for that purpose—and perhaps could also play an afternoon concert. All citizens should unite in a spirit of true patriotism to make Remembrance Day a great event. It is a day set aside for paying tribute to our soldiers, for honoring those who survive, and for rejoicing in the happy termination of those calamitous days of ghastly warfare.

United States to Bar Canadian Live Lobsters?

Advices were received from Portland, Me., on Wednesday evening to the effect that the United States government plans to bar Canadian live lobsters. If such should be the case the result would mean ruin to our Digby County lobster fishery—one of the most important industries in the county.

Along the Saint Mary's Bay shore, along the Digby Neck, and on the islands, the lobster fisheries are the fishermen's "bread and butter." The prosperity of Digby County depends largely on the lobster catch, and the market for our lobsters is found in the United States.

Commenting on the news of the proposal of the United States government, a local wholesaler fish dealer said, "It would be the worst thing that could happen to the fishermen in this county—and to the fishermen of Nova Scotia too; that my dear."

Princess Helene Picks Up Two Fishermen Adrift.

Helplessly adrift for more than twenty-four hours was the trying experience of Wilfred and Vincent McCarthy, two Misses (New Brunswick) fishermen, who were picked up in the Bay or Fundy last Saturday morning by the steamer Princess Helene. The McCarthy brothers left for the fishing grounds early Friday morning. About 10:30 o'clock the motor of their thirty-five foot boat broke, and they were forced to drift about the Bay until the Helene picked them up. They expressed themselves as very grateful to Captain MacDonald and the members of the crew for their assistance, and as Wilfred McCarthy told the Courier, "Breakfast never tasted better than the breakfast served us on the steamer Saturday morning."

The brothers returned with the boat Saturday afternoon. Your Photograph for Christmas gifts this year will cost less than heretofore. Paul Yates has reduced the price of all his higher grades.

SCALLOP SEASON OPENS; MANY BOATS DRAAGING

The scallop fleet out of Digby is again active after the opening of the scallop fishing season in these waters. This industry, although more or less local, is one of the most important in Digby, and this year there has been a considerable increase in the number of boats dragging out of this port.

Each boat represents a considerable investment to the fisherman, and each gives employment to two or three men beside the skipper of the craft, as well as employment to a number of men and boys who attend them on their return.

Among the boats in operation this year are the Freda and Blanche, Capt. Donald Tidd; Edith and Shirley, operated by Curtis Stark; Ronald Eugene, operated by Loran Ring—all three owned by Floyd Snow, of Digby; the Pines, operated by Captain Fred Snow; the Gonon, owned and operated by Roland Wormell; the Marie M., owned by Horton Stark and operated by Lea Elliott; the Jessie May and Earl H., owned by P. L. Anderson and operated respectively by Shirley Tied and Victor Hilday; the Edith Breda, operated by Wallace Hersey; Charles H. VanTassel operates another craft; the Aurelia is operated by James Tidd; the Lena R., owned by Harry Raymond, is operated by George King; the Terapian, owned by Elwood Oliver, of Parker's Cove, is operated by the owner; the Hazel C., is owned and operated by Ansel Casey, of Victoria Beach, and the Clairmont by Walton Casey, of the same place.

Centreville boats include those owned by Charles R. Marten, and operated by Ralph Nesbitt; by Ernest Raymond, operated by Alton Gram; and the Helena and Ethel, operated by Nelson Kelly.

The derelict was first sighted on Friday afternoon, about two miles nor'-nor'-west of the So'West Ledges, from the lighthouse. Lightkeeper John Swift immediately sent word to Westport. The first craft to reach the scene was the small government patrol boat, the "Gannet Rock," Captain Nelson; later he was joined by Weston Finigan, of Freeport, and Holland Tins, Walter Tins, and John Swift, of Westport. Some time later they were joined by the motor vessel Grace Lee, Captain R. E. Welch, and the unwieldy tug was taken into the government pier at Westport, shortly after midnight, Friday.

The Ena F. Parsons, a Farrisbored tern schooner, fitted with auxiliary engines, left Westport with a cargo of lumber for Boston, on Saturday, October 7th. Her cargo is said to have consisted of some 170,000 feet of lumber—a deck load of hardwood planks, and 125,000 feet of softwood lumber in the hold. The vessel was towed to the mouth of the Sissiboo River by the steamer Bear River, Captain Darrell Cheney, who warned Captain Desmond that the glass was dropping fast, but with a fair wind, the captain of the unfortunate craft felt safe in starting on the voyage.

A derelict, floating bottom up, answering the description of the Ena F. Parsons, was sighted on Sunday, October 8th, about forty miles off the Yarmouth coast, by Captain Maylie Crouse, of the motor vessel Comstar, of Yarmouth. It was not until the following Saturday that the wreck was positively identified as the Parsons, when part of the stern, bearing the name, was found drifting in Grand Passage, by Captain Richard Welch, of the Westport-Meteghan ferry.

There is no hope whatever that the six men, or the wife of the mate, who shipped as cook, survive. Early Sunday morning a battered life boat was picked up just below Tibert's Landing, at Central Grove. In the boat was a hoisting block and a quantity of rope. It is taken for granted that the boat is from the wreck, but it will probably never be known whether or not the crew used in an attempt to reach shore.

On board the schooner were Captain Daniel Desmond, of Port Greville; Richard Desmond, his son, and mate of the vessel, and his young wife, formerly Miss Theresa Henwood, of Farrisboro, who had shipped as cook; also Frank Henwood, Gus Olsen and Clarence Forbes, Farrisboro, and one other seaman. Captain Desmond was managing owner of the craft, while Albert Parsons, former M. L. A., was part owner.

Quantities of hardwood planking from the deckload of the vessel are drifting about the Bay of Fundy and Passages. Fishermen from the Islands, particularly from the villages of Westport and Freeport, are salvaging all they can. Already a large quantity has been brought ashore, and piled up out of reach of the tides.

When towed into Westport two of her masts were trailing alongside, held by the rigging. A light rope, made fast to some part of the vessel's deck at one end and caught around one of her propellers, gave rise to the supposition that one or more of her crew had escaped, and that the vessel, which wrecked their ship and had managed to reach the bottom of the vessel and made fast a temporary life line, only to be washed off later, it is more likely that the line was the log line which had been tangled around the propeller by the seas.

Wreck of Schooner Ena F. Parsons Beached at Westport, After Unsuccessful Attempt to Right Her.

When the hull of the derelict "Ena F. Parsons" was opened at Westport, Wednesday, all hope that some of the bodies of her crew may have been entombed in the bulk, vanished.

Since the craft was towed into the Government pier, at Westport, bottom up, on Saturday morning, repeated efforts to right her were unsuccessful. On Wednesday the vessel was towed to a sand bar and grounded, and at low water the hull was opened up with axes. Both fore-castle and after cabin were entered but no trace of the bodies could be found. All the cabins held were a woman's fur coat, badly damaged by water; a barrel of apples the ship's food stores and a few water-soaked papers.

Digby Ratepayers Approve Expenditure of $3,000 on Water

Ratepayers of the Town of Digby, at a public meeting held in the Court House, on Tuesday evening, voted to expend a sum not exceeding $3,000 on the following extensions to the present water system:

No. 1.—From Queen Street main line along St. Mary Street up the hill to West Street—1250 feet of 4-inch pipe, at a cost of $1,250. This is a renewal and would give Fire Protection.

No. 2.—From St. Mary Street south along West Street to George Street 500 feet of 2-inch pipe, cost to be about $360.

No. 3.—An extension from Carleton Street going north along Victoria Street—600 feet of 1-inch pipe, to cost $250.

No. 4.—A renewal from road going up Racquette Hill, along Lighthouse Road, to residence of George Van-Tassel—600 feet of 4-inch pipe, to cost $600.

Specials and valves needed, costing approximately $250.

This work was recommended by the water committee of the town council.

Mayor P. W. Holdsworth presided over the meeting. The resolution was moved by Coun. Casswell and seconded by Coun. S. S. Aynard.

Before voting on the motion T. E. G. Lynch asked what revenue would accrue from the proposed extensions and alterations. The mayor explained that very little additional revenue would be derived except in the case of No. 3, but the present pipes were inadequate to give supply. Mr. Lynch further stated that he was in favor of the proposition if the water supply could stand it.

The resolution passed unanimously.

Capt. Wylie Ross' Scallop Boat Damaged by Fire.

Digby fishermen on Tuesday fought a persistent and dangerous blaze on board Captain Wylie Ross' scallop boat, Aurelia, which caught fire about 10:30 o'clock, when the engine "back-fired."

On board the boat was some ninety gallons of gasoline, and for some time it was feared that the liquid would be ignited and cause considerable damage to the boat and surrounding properties. The blaze was extinguished by chemicals and water, after considerable damage was done. The boat was tied up at one of the wharves in "Jew Cove," locally known as the "Iron Duke," one of the most valuable waterfront properties in Digby, and owned by the Maritime Fish Corporation.

The blow to Captain Ross, coming as it did, just at the opening of the scallop season, is a hard one, as it will be some time before he will be able to get his craft in commission again.

Take advantage of reduced prices at the Yates Studio now. Indications point to necessarily higher prices next year.

THE HUMAN ALCHEMY

The life of every man is the latest link in an unbroken chain of immeasurable extent and variety. Into his inheritance are gathered the contributions of the ages, to form the unique identity which is the individual. Appetites and aptitudes are his birthright—the qualities which mark him from birth as different in power and possibilities from his fellows. Within them lies the life which demands growth and progress.

This insistent life takes direction and determination according to the native endowment of every man. But another power is equally at work, molding and moderating from without. This is experience, with all its necessities and opportunities, pressing in constantly to shape the individual by the force of circumstances.

Between these two forces man holds a proud privilege of choice—choice among the motives within him and choice among the elements around him. No human life lacks entirely the saving dignity of such freedom. By means of it a mystic alchemy is accomplished, whereby character is made. This is the new thing which is man's own creation out of the stuff that is with him and without him. It may be gold or base metal, but it is the man's own making. It is himself, not as he was born nor as destiny has formed him, but as he has shaped his own life within the bounds of destiny.

Peace is a period when nations try their best to damage one another without a declaration of war.

KEEPING FAITH

When a man's heart is young, his thoughts find place for dreams in which ambition and good intention are busy with the future before it is come. Such dreams may outstretch probability and promise more than the years can fulfill, but it is a poor sort of cynicism that would therefore deny their usefulness. They keep the face of youth to the front and its eyes upward. They are impatient of experience and full of assurance that what is good and desirable may be won by work and will. They are not dismayed by dangers nor daunted by difficulties.

The hardest task of man is to keep faith with the dreams of his youth. Then he had high hopes of himself and ideals which he had not learned to question. Hope was his rainbow, with the gold of success, achievement and character at its end. But life is insistent with necessities and tempting with compromises, and it is easy to lose the way which once seemed so clear. It is easy to forget that the future was once better than the present and things unseen of more worth than realities. It is easy to forget the dream in the hard wearfulness of the day's work. It is easy to lose it, indeed, so that life ends in regret for a vanished land of promise.

"Keep Faith" is an excellent word, but it is not yet outworn. Keep faith with the dreams of youth, which were made of hope and courage and high intention for all experience cannot much better their guidance.

It's a wonder the reformers haven't tried to restore prosperity by having the depression abolished by law.

HEALTH IS GOOD BUSINESS

Men and women live longer now than did those of half a century ago. The life span has been increased by seventeen years. The gain is the result of knowledge.

Sickness and death are tragedies in the experience of individuals, but from the point of view of the interests of the community, they are just bad business.

The service of every able-bodied man to society as a whole has a certain definite cash value. If he lives and keeps well he ought to be counted upon to contribute to the wealth of the community.

This is one justification for spending money collected from the public to protect public health. It is community insurance. Millions are wasted every year because persons are laid up by sickness.

It is the business of organized society to protect itself against those attacks of disease which grow out of bad living conditions. Public money is well and justifiably spent in preventing the accumulation of filth, in providing a safe water supply, in enforcing quarantine regulations, in spreading health information, in providing clinics for the treatment of those unable to secure medical services at their private expense.

Rich men's sons don't always flop. They sometimes overcome the obstacles and succeed in spite of their advantages.

THE ADVERTISEMENTS

If you are a busy individual you will find the advertising columns of your newspaper are time-savers for you. You will find that if you scrutinize them carefully, the "guess" is taken out of where to buy.

In the advertisements you will find store news—from the merchant, that tell you exactly what you want to know. If you want to become more efficient at shopping, the advertisements will save you time—save you money.

And don't forget about public memory being the shortest thing in the world. Persistent advertisers know this from experience. That is why they persist in advertising.

If the trend of world progress continues during the next generation as it has in the last, there will scarcely be a record of our civilization except what one might find in libraries. Joseph Collins, author and lecturer.

Independence is not always easily attained nor is it always worth the attainment.

Jack Cohn, Vice President of the Columbia Pictures Corporation.

That the hour has struck when the wise man must concentrate his advertising campaign upon the re-opening markets that await application of this magic wand. The long looked for "corner" has been turned. Columbia Pictures Corporation anticipated this at its annual convention during the opening days of July, appropriating the largest amount in its history for production, and at the same time its largest advertising appropriation, in the budget for the new season.

As the crown of popular entertainment for the masses, the motion picture industry is among the last phases of big business to feel the sting of depression and among the first to experience recovery. Throughout a period of depression growing more and more acute, there is a very natural tendency on the part of the public to say as financial conditions grow tighter and tighter, "Let's go to the movies and cheer up." This carried the industry along after the fashion of a juggernaut, but heavily in the picture industry is among the last phases of big business to feel the sting of depression and among the first to experience recovery. Throughout a period of depression growing more and more acute, there is a very natural tendency on the part of the public to say as financial conditions grow tighter and lighter, "Let's go to the movies and cheer up." This carried the industry along after the fashion of a juggernaut, but heavily in the picture industry is among the last phases of big business to feel the sting of depression and among the first to experience recovery.

The new situation with its increased box-office returns, following a long period of uniformly poor business, may be explained in a word. The public is beginning to earn money and the public is putting it into circulation through commerce to spend. What now is apparent in the motion picture industry is certain to be felt in other directions. Most assuredly the money that dribbles through the box-office windows rapidly goes into circulation in many channels, ranging from rents and salaries to printing and for that matter as far-fetched as it may seem—to the producer of the cotton and the silver forming the base of all films.

It would be difficult to think of an industry that fails to contribute something to picture producing and to share to some extent in the money paid for admissions to view the films shown throughout the country. It is not the phase of the subject that interests me at this moment, however, but the substantial evidence that this country is definitely on the up grade, justifying the faith that prompted the big investment that we are making in advertising.

PAUL IN ASIA MINOR

Golden Text:—"And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."—Mark 16:15.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 13:1-5; 13:15; 14:19-23.

"Only like souls I see the folk there—under."

Bound who should conquer.

Slaves who should be kings.

Hearing their one hope with an empty wonder.

Sadly contented with a show of things.

Then with a rush the intolerable craving.

Shivers throughout me like a trumpet call.

Oh to save these, to perish for their saving.

Die for their life: be offered for them all!"

Sending the Best, 1-3

One of the findings of the Laymen's Committee on Missions is that for this century missionaries should be employed. Only people of special gifts and with adequate training can worthily represent the Christian faith abroad. Missionary work is highly specialized. To make contacts with people of another language and another faith requires insight, tact and attractiveness. Many who are qualified to be useful Christian workers in their own land are not equal to the testings of missionary service in other lands. The guidance of the Holy Spirit is followed in the first missionary effort of the Christian church, when missionaries went out from Antioch westward through Asia Minor. In Antioch were several leaders—some of them quite prominent—who were chosen for this special mission were the outstanding leaders, Barnabas and Saul. All the other workers accepted the responsibility for this decision, and the two missionaries were set forth with the blessing and ordination of the Christian church in Antioch. A member of the Antioch congregation could have made out a strong case for the retention of Paul as teacher and Barnabas as organizer. This church, however, was saved to serve and give of its best. It is quite logical for modern churches to send their best leaders to other lands because the number supported abroad is relatively small compared with the number of workers active at the home base.

Receiving Guidance, 4-5

Barnabas and Saul were that they were being led by the Holy Spirit. They trusted themselves to guidance both as to rule and method of work. Yet several practical considerations had weight. They first went to Cyprus where Barnabas had been a teacher of the Holy Spirit did not forbid using previous acquaintanceship. They also taught in the synagogues where Paul was especially trained to serve. In all his missionary work Paul used the shrewdest common sense; yet he was consistent throughout in the guidance of the Holy Spirit. It is when we use our own powers to the fullest that God's spirit can most surely lead us. Guidance is a partnership, a matter of our own choice and obedience to God's leading.

A Chance to Witness, 12-15

It is a real problem for Christians to know how much they should talk about their religion. Sometimes the force of our influence is weakened by too many words. On the other hand, golden opportunities must be seized at the time as they never come again. There is no doubt that Christianity suffers more from silent than from garrulous Christians. "A word in season, how good it is!" Paul could preach at set times and places. He was also ready for any unexpected opportunities. In Pisidian Antioch Paul and Barnabas visited the synagogue. A general invitation was given for anyone to speak. Paul seized the opportunity and gave his Christian witness in a direct and forceful way. Perhaps no one rule can be made for every person. Sometimes a Christian word from a complete stranger is effective. With others it is only after years of intimacy that the deepest experiences of the soul may be helpful. Earnest Christians will make opportunities for witnessing to their faith. Every Christian should be able to say a word of truth to questioners whenever and

CLARE EXHIBITION IS FINE SUCCESS

The Municipality of Clare exhibition held in Little Brook hall, was largely attended by the local residents, and the exhibits were of a very fine quality, while the exhibitors are to be congratulated on their display of fruit, vegetables and other garden produce.

In the domestic arts, the entries of rugs, quilts, embroidery work, crocheting and knitting were of a very high order giving great credit to the ladies of the community. Included in the products of the household, the women of Clare showed themselves very competent in the preserving of most commodities of orchard and field.

The live stock shown was of good class. In the open contest, Willie Boudreau carried off first prize, his team hauling a load of 5,000 pounds. Second prize went to Leon Gaudet, whose cattle hauled 4,400 pounds.

With the horses Edmund Thibodeau's entry pulled the very creditable amount of 5,600 pounds, with Gustave Comeau coming next with 3,100 pounds.

however the approach comes. Paul knew that the Christian faith could be caught as well as taught, but he would leave nothing to chance. He taught in season and out of season.

Injured But Undaunted, 14:19-20

Paul was not a strong man physically, but he had wonderful pluck. At Lystra he was dragged outside the city gates and stoned half to death. His enemies left him thinking that he was dead. Paul, however, rose up, returned into the city and the next day moved on to Derbe. A man of weaker will would have given up such a thankless mission, but Paul was made stronger in his missionary purpose by all the suffering he had to undergo. This incident may have been the occasion of Timothy becoming a follower of Christ. He could not but admire the courage and perseverance of Paul who would forego his missionary purpose, even if flying stones beat him to the ground. We have been pleased to think that the day of Christian persecution is over, but there are still many places in the world where to be a Christian means to risk one's life. It may be that in the great conflict between nationalism and Christianity which is approaching, martyrdom may become a Christian privilege once again.

Organizing Power, 21-23

Paul showed great tact in his approach to strangers. He saved himself without reserve to "Christian teaching while he was in a town or city. After he moved on, he kept in touch with his converts by letters and by sending his fellow-workers to visit the churches. It has become a practice to scorn organization as compared with gifts of thought, speech and friendship. Getting together may be shown in organization work. It has been indispensable in the missionary history of the church. There is need to-day of missionary statesmen, men who can take a wide-view of events and plan their work with foresight. A few nations once Christian are now pagan partly because organization work fell down. Christ can use every gift for His kingdom. Paul consecrated his great powers of organization to the work of the Master whom he served.

Questions For Discussion

- 1 How should foreign missionaries be chosen?
- 2 Are you conscious of any guidance by the spirit of God?
- 3 Are you timid about witnessing for Christ? If so, why?
- 4 Do Canadian Christians ever have to suffer for the Gospel?
- 5 Is your congregation over-organized?

THOMAS F. ANDERSON WRITES "YE JUNIOR ED."

Dear Junior Ed:—

Several weeks ago you were pathetically requesting your enraptured readers to suggest some "topics," but I find that you in your column of Sept. 28th. I refer, of course, to the suggestion that Nova Scotia ought to capitalize its fascinating autumnal foliage to a greater extent, and in this way possibly extend the normal vacation season somewhat. I am glad to read that your article on the arrival of the steamer from Yarmouth with more than five hundred returning vacationists—just as though they were running away from the gold-and-crimson landscape of Nova Scotia.

Your thought is a most excellent one, but our state of New Hampshire is several laps ahead of Nova Scotia in this respect, for it has been for several years featuring the attractions of its autumn foliage, and some of its hotels, as well as the innkeepers, are spending considerable money in advertising this late-season attraction.

No country in the world, of course, has a better right to exploit maple leaves than Canada, and in no part of it are these more beautiful in color than in our own picturesque province. Massachusetts has deliberately stolen from Nova Scotia the mayflower as the official floral emblem of the state, and it would be just too bad if the United States, or any section of it, should try to pry the maple leaf from either its green, gold or crimson aspects.

I hope you will not suddenly drop this idea of "Autumn Leaf" festivals—but don't be too sure that its frost which colors these leaves, for our scientists say that this has practically nothing to do with it.

Incidentally, here is yet another "topic" for you. While I was in the Liverpool and up-to-date town of Antigonish, last month, revealing to the delegates at the Annual Convention of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities my ignorance of the Nova Scotia tourist question. I was asked by more than one of those present why the Union never had been invited to meet in Digby. I had to reply that, in view of the deep, dark, and mysterious psychology of the Digbyite, it was impossible for a rank outsider like myself to answer that question.

"The Union has met in some fifteen different towns since it was organized in 1906, including two conventions in Yarmouth, and one in Annapolis Royal, the latter being the closest it has ever come to Digby. I have every reason to believe that the officials of the Union will be very glad to hold a convention in your well-known hamlet if officially invited. It may be that Digby does not want conventions, for fear that the delegates will get too much under the feet of the town's busy citizens."

Simple Rules for LOSING FAT

Common sense will do far more for you than any so-called panacea for taking off unwanted extra fat. Just live sensibly. You don't need to starve yourself. Eat enough to satisfy the demands of your body, but just be careful not to eat too much. Eat plain food, such as potatoes, sweet corn, lettuce, meat, etc. above all, be sure of complete elimination of body waste all the time.

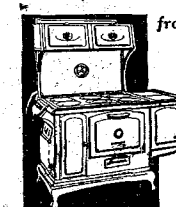

Once or twice each week enjoy a bracing, sparkling glass of Anker-Lever Beer. It will help Nature to effect complete elimination, thus will help your body to throw off unwanted and unhelpful weight.

The occasional sparkling glass of Anker-Lever Beer will purify and reinvigorate your whole system and ward off the "little ills." It will prevent those days of heavy body weakness and periodic attacks of headache and indigestion. And it will help Nature bring you down to your proper weight.

For this common sense way to get rid of surplus body-weighting fat. Eat moderately and take Anker-Lever Beer occasionally. You can get it from any drug store, or write to Anker-Lever Beer Co., Ltd., 100, Queen's Ave. E., Toronto, Ont., Canada.

"PERSONS NOT FAT LIVE LONGEST"

Eminent Physician Declares

In a recent lecture before the American Academy of Medicine, a prominent physician stated that persons who aren't fat live the longest.

Common sense confirms this. Insurance companies often reject overweight folks, or charge higher premiums on account of the risk. Fat crowds and weakens body organs, it slows you down and puts unnecessary strain on the heart. A host of ailments (even rheumatism, acidity, shortness of breath and lassitude) are often associated with fat.

So get rid of this dangerous, unhealthy fat. There's no reason why you shouldn't, when science has given you this safe, effective treatment—a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning.

This healthful "little daily dose" of Kruschen keeps the system free from harmful toxins, it helps to re-establish normal and proper body functioning—it keeps you feeling fine and fit all the time. Energetic activity takes the place of sluggish indolence all while you lose excess fat gradually and without discomfort.

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile

—Without Calomel

You are "feeling poor" simply because your liver is not doing its duty. It is the liver that filters out the poisons from your blood, and it is the liver that keeps the bile flowing. When the liver is sluggish, the bile is not secreted, and the blood is impure. This causes a general feeling of depression, and it is the liver that is largely responsible for it. To keep the liver in good health, it is necessary to take a course of treatment that will stimulate it to its normal function. This can be done without the use of calomel, which is a dangerous and harmful drug. The treatment consists of a series of small doses of a powerful liver stimulant, which will gradually build up the liver's strength and restore it to its normal state of health. This will result in a feeling of well-being and a return to normal health.

Here and There With G. R. T.

In the past three weeks I have been hobnobbing with the Public Administrator of Los Angeles County, and it has been most interesting. The public administrator is an officer of the probate court. He receives a salary from the county but his administration fees for the handling of estates are turned into the county treasury.

The public administrator's office is one of the very few departments of the county government that makes money for the county, the fees received being considerably in excess of the cost of operating the department.

The value of the estates administered during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933, was slightly over a million dollars, the estates ranging in amounts from two hundred dollars up to two hundred thousand dollars.

According to the laws of the state of California when a person dies without a will or where there are no heirs living within the state, or where there are no known heirs, the public administrator of the county must take immediate charge of the property within his county and apply to the probate court for letters of administration. The law also requires that whenever a stranger or persons without known heirs dies intestate in the house or premises of another, the possessor of such premises or any one knowing the facts, must give immediate notice thereof to the public administrator of the county, and all civil officers must inform the public administrator of all property known to them, belonging to a decedent which is liable to loss, injury or waste, and by reason thereof ought to be in the possession of the public administrator.

There is a clerk in this office whose duty it is to scan the daily papers for cases that might come within the jurisdiction of the department. Many strange cases find their way into the public administrator's records, and his files would furnish much material that a writer of true stories could work up into very interesting reading.

The most interesting case which came under my observation was that of Sarah P. Livingston, an aged spinster of the Betty Green type, who loaned out money on desirable real estate, taking a first mortgage upon the same at the rate of eight per cent. per annum. The mortgages, of course, had to be guaranteed by one of the largest title guarantee companies in Southern California, and the expense of bringing title down to date and other expenses had to be taken care of by the mortgagor.

Then one day, at the age of 83, Miss Livingston gave up her money lending business and closed her books for all time, and "passed on" without a relative in the world to mourn her departure or to claim a dollar of her estate. The public administrator at once took charge of her personal effects and made an inventory of the same. He also made a search of the public records for property standing in the name of the decedent, and also received information from the banks and other financial institutions as to the amount of money held on deposit in the name of the decedent, and if any safe deposit boxes in these banks were rented in the name of that person.

When all this information had been secured and an inventory made of the estate it was found that there was approximately one hundred thousand dollars in cash and mortgages in Southern California, and an equal amount scattered through several other states of the union, belonging to this estate. Among other papers a will was discovered dated on the 20th day of March, 1890, in which Sarah P. Livingston did make and publish and declare to be her last will and testament, and did stipulate, "subject to the payment of funeral expenses and indebtedness, to be paid by her executor, to be divided equally and bequeathed to each of the corporations hereinafter named, to-wit: the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and to the American Baptist Missionary Union, and to their successors and assigns for ever an undivided part of all the estate, real and personal, of which I am seized or possessed or to which I am now or may at any time hereafter become entitled. The same to be used by the said corporations respectively for the sole purpose of spreading the Gospel to the heathen in heathen lands."

And what a break that was for the missionary societies above mentioned. They were not slow in coming forward to claim their legacy, for there were not some four hundred million heathens in China, India, and elsewhere, but they were scattered through the states of Missouri, Texas and Arizona, and even in some well known spots in Illinois, and they all wanted the money. The public administrator, however, did not let them have it all, but he divided it up among the various missionary societies, and he also gave a goodly share of the Livingston estate for a goodly purpose, but another thing, not mentioned in the will, but one whose claim, by law, had to be considered before either of the missionary societies could receive a dollar of the legacy, and this organization was one other than the University of Southern California, an institution established and controlled by the Methodist church of the state.

Much to the surprise of the public administrator, who was getting ready to make a payment on account, for the benefit of the missionaries at that location not specified or indicated in the will—and very much to the amazement of the chairman of the said missionary societies, the president of the University presented a note, signed by Miss Livingston, payable one day after death, for the sum of two hundred thousand dollars—and this note of hand also specified that the money should be used for the purpose of sending missionaries to teach or preach the Gospel to the heathen in heathen lands. The case went to the courts, the Presbyterian and Baptist societies were willing to admit that Miss Livingston might have been willing to give the Methodist University two hundred thousand dollars—but two hundred thousand dollars? Never! No! One hundred and ninety-eight thousand times. No! And indeed, the le-gates had fairly good reason for thinking so, for never at any time had Miss Livingston indicated that she intended to leave the bulk of her fortune to a third party, further than that, the amount was not written out in the note but the amount was expressed only in figures, written in the trembling hand of an aged woman—$200,000. Whether she intended the amount to be only two thousand and omitted the decimal point, became the question for the courts to decide, and a fine legal contest it became, with the Supreme Court of the state deciding in favor of the Methodist University and the Southern California.

It seems that a year or two prior to the death of Miss Livingston the University inaugurated a "drive" for a million dollar contribution from the public for the purpose of increasing the educational facilities of the college; for more buildings, more equipment, and, of course, for a few more professors. Solicitors for the fund were numerous and insistent, and few persons escaped solicitation who were known to possess much of this world's goods or securities. It was therefore natural that some agent of the University should hunt Mr. Livingston up and secure a pledge from him who knew he said that it would have been most unusual for the old lady to have hunted up a solicitor for the University and signed a check for such a large amount. Whether the solicitor who received the pledge and noticed the large amount was so overcome with joy and excitement that he omitted to question the figure is something that will never be known, for he passed out of the picture before he did. Nevertheless the University cured judgment on the note which was sustained by the decision of the Supreme Court. The sum of $125,000 has already been paid into the treasury of the college, and there is still outstanding a sum of $150,000, which includes interest and court expenses of $75,000, more or less. And with the balance of the estate now reduced in value to less than a hundred thousand dollars, it would seem that there is little hope that the Presbyterian and Baptist Missionary Societies will spend any of the Livingston money in teaching the Gospel to the heathen in heathen lands, and all because of the failure of the maker of the note to jot a wee bit of a decimal point where the decimal point should have been placed, and not to forget to write out in full the actual amount to be paid.

And let that be a lesson to you, dear countrymen of mine, for if you would save a lot of dispute and hard fighting, and if you would avoid paying over contracts payable one day after death, be sure to get your decimal point in its proper place, and do not forget to write out in full the actual amount in full. Your banker will say that is the proper way, and will avoid complications.

Another case which interested me was that of William P. Snodgrass, an eccentric old man from Philadelphia, who came to Los Angeles once or twice a year, and carried with him, wherever he went, approximately one hundred thousand dollars in currency and in the form of several boxes of personal effects, which contained his books and papers and a little of everything, even into cigarette stubs, burned matches, broken shoes and various other articles too numerous to mention, but classified as "junk". Apparently he was one of the kind who never threw away anything, and he kept at least everything should be kept for seven years, when if no use has accrued for the article in that time it might not hurt him to throw it away.

This old man died one night quite suddenly, in a down town hotel in Los Angeles, and the public administrator, having been notified by the hotel manager, proceeded to take charge of the Snodgrass estate, and applied to the court for letters of administration, claiming that the decedent was a resident of the county without known heirs, and so far as known, had left no will. The administrator communicated with the banks and public officials in Philadelphia concerning the estate, and published the regular notices calling upon creditors and others to present their claims against the estate within six months. This notice came to the attention of a Trust Company in Philadelphia, who made a will for Snodgrass and named him as executor of his estate. This company immediately took steps to take the estate out of the hands of the public administrator of Los Angeles, California, and the court decided in favor of the trust company, ruling that Snodgrass was not a resident of the county but only a visitor and therefore the public administrator had no right to handle the estate. So there was nothing else to do but wrap up the cash and

Pleased With Canada

The magnificent scenery of the Canadian Valley has enthralled Lord Macmillan, chairman of the Royal Commission on banking, that he confessed, just prior to sailing for England on the Empress of Britain, that it dwarfed the scenery of Scotland, and that the only thing he was for was to see the history of Canada, as Sir Walter Scott had blended the scenery of Scotland and the history of the land of Bonnie Prince

Charles. A lake he visited in the Canadian Valley has admitted was more magnificent than Loch Lomond, while his description of Lake Louise was that it seemed as if he had been looking at a picture of the Dominion of the emerald Isle. The Dutch Gardens in Victoria he asserted to be the most beautiful sight that the eye could rest upon, and he was almost a convert to the Dominion of the emerald Isle. The Dutch Gardens in Victoria he asserted to be the most beautiful sight that the eye could rest upon, and he was almost a convert to the Dominion of the emerald Isle.

Los Angeles has lost one of its leading merchants, John G. Bullock, merchant prince, president of Bullock's, Inc. He was one of Southern California's leaders in mercantile and civic circles for many years. He died very suddenly at his home on the morning of September 15th, 1933, at the age of 62 years. He was born January 14, 1871, in the town of Paris, Ontario, and received his early mercantile training in his home town. In 1896 he came to Los Angeles with $150 in cash and had a hard time finding a job, for Los Angeles even in those days had many unemployed, and many visitors willing to work for enough to pay expenses. He finally secured a position with Arthur Jettis, founder of the "Broadway Star," who was then just starting in business in a small building. Let's business grew rapidly and Bullock was promoted to the position of general manager at a salary of $500 per month. In 1906 Mr. Lettis opened a new store at 7th and Broadway, with several floors of new merchandise, and put Bullock's name over the door. Since then the store has added four new tall buildings adjoining the original store, and all are occupied exclusively by Bullock's. A beautiful branch store on Wilshire Boulevard, said to be the most beautiful store in America, was established in 1929. After Mr. Lettis' death a Los Angeles bank financed Bullock to the extent of $6,000, and he became the head of the great business.

When the Bullock store opened in the latter part of 1906 it had 400 employees, but with the expansion during the following years the pay roll now numbers more than 2800 persons. Mr. Bullock always insisted that the success of his great firm was due to the following up of the motto: "The ideals of this business must not be sacrificed to gain," and another motto he rightly held and to which he held his employees was "the satisfaction of the customer."

My own little endorsement of "Bullock's" has always been, "Whenever you buy at Bullock's you are sure that you are getting value received, first class merchandise at a fair price."

E. G. Baker, proprietor of Baker's Inn, had rather an amusing experience on Wednesday afternoon when a motor boat in which he was returning from a fishing trip refused to function. Mr. Baker, accompanied by one of his staff, left early in the afternoon for some deep sea fishing, and when inside the lighthouse, returning to town, something went wrong with the power. The occupants of the boat rigged a makeshift sail and at the same time set distress signals, but were untried by several crafts passing in the vicinity. Finally a motor boat from the Beacon, put out and took them in tow, bringing the disabled craft safely to port, after a three-hour run from the Yarmouth Light—Yarmouth Light, October 12.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and the Temperance Alliance)

THAT WORD "TEETOTALER"

That word "Teetotaler" has a bit of history behind it. I have lately come across two stories as to its origin. But I have time and space for only one today. Both stories illustrate the battle between "moderation" and "total abstinence" which emerged in the earliest days of the modern temperance movement, and which is still going on today. Perhaps, with somewhat changed emphasis, the battle is as keen today as ever. Indeed I am inclined to think that this is the real battle in which we are today engaged the veritable "Hindenburg Line" along the "whole western front." And it is a line of fortifications that legislation alone cannot break. In stories of democratic rule, external laws tends to count for less and less, and personal and public convictions for more and more. When nations and attitudes get themselves entrenched in the ridge of democracy, the automatic way of attack will not suffice to blow up the encampment.

But to my story: The first belongs to Preston, England, immortalized in temperance history by the famous "Seven Men of Preston." In October, 1832, one, Dicky Turner, a notorious drunkard, strolled into a meeting of temperance folk and signed a "moderation" pledge. But a committeeman, Joseph Dearden, knowing Dicky, and doubting that an ardent spirit pledge would suffice to keep him a sober man, pressed upon him the signing of the pledge of total abstinence, which he did, and kept it faithfully to the day of his death, fourteen years later. Now this man, Dicky, was a quaint character, and soon became a favorite at the meetings in Preston where reformed drunkards testified to the gains of being abstainers. Speaking at the Cockpit, Preston, after he had abstained for a year, he said fervently, "I'll be right down t-t-t-total for ever and ever." In his passion to keep him a sober man, pressed upon him the signing of the pledge of total abstinence, which he did, and kept it faithfully to the day of his death, fourteen years later. ## FREEPORT

Miss Mary Teed went to Saint John on Monday to visit friends for a few weeks.

Roy Powell recently went to Middleton to work for a few weeks. Miss Mary Haines recently returned to Boston, after having spent the summer months with her brother, Seth Prime. The latter has been spending the last two weeks with his son, Ralph Prime, at Moncton.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finigan, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Small and daughter, Elaine, and Evelyn Finigan visited relatives at Westport on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Hibbard and daughter, Frances June, left on Monday morning for Street Harbour, where Mr. Hibbard is to be the manager of the branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia there.

The church looked very attractive on Sunday morning last, as it was decorated for the Thanksgiving Service, which could not be held the preceding Sunday, due to a storm.

During the week the people of Freeport generously donated canned goods, vegetables, jars of preserves, sugar, butter, pickles, etc., which were arranged in the church. During this week they were distributed among the needy.

Rev. Mr. Akery presented the sermon in a very impressive manner.

Joseph Crocker is again ill at his home here.

The B. Y. P. U. has again organized for the winter months. The study of different portions of the Bible will be taken up during Mr. Akery's stay at Freeport. The book of Job was discussed on Friday evening last, also the book of Genesis.

Sorry to report Miss Merna Finigan had to have an operation for appendicitis on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. Connell, New Glasgow, arrived on Thursday last to take over the duties as manager here in the Bank of Nova Scotia. He motored to Bridgetown on Saturday last returning on Monday with his wife and four children, who will reside at Freeport.

Weldon Finigan, Robert Finigan and Edwin Crocker were at Tiverton last Friday and Saturday. While there they visited Mr. and Mrs. Murray Small.

Captain Charles Morrell was in Tiverton during the week end in his vessel the Jean Kathleen.

The motor vessel Tagiti arrived from Hillsboro on Saturday and has now gone to Weymouth. Parsons was taken into Westport late Friday night by a motor vessel owned by Ralph Welsh and a number of motor boats. The only boat from Freeport was that of Weldon Finigan, who was the first to reach the wreck.

The wreck was sighted on Friday quite a distance from shore. It was certainly a sad sight to see the "wreck bottom" up in the harbour at Westport. Numbers of spectators from Tiverton and Freeport went to Westport on Sunday last to view the wreck. Up to the time the government steamer "Dolphin" arrived, it was the only vessel to get acquainted with the wreck.

Nevertheless, I was glad of the opportunity to get down and see some of my friends at Westport again. It was the first time I had been on Brier Island for some little time and mark my word, if you ever want to get acquainted with real honest to goodness folks just pay a visit to the Islands. After the first handshake one is no longer a stranger. That's true in spite of the crack Ed. Blackford made when he told us, "C. J. and 'Stan'—another member of our staff—were with me) that he would have to broadcast the news on Long Island that we had crossed the Grand Passage to Westport. "The folks here," he said, "don't look their doors unless there is a stranger on the Island."

I don't think I shall have much more to say in this column this week. Perhaps I can make it up next week, but right now I have enough other writing to do to keep this little twerp ticking for some little time. But I mustn't forget to express my thanks to Dr. MacGregor for the nice piece of moose steaks he spared "or me"—it sure tasted fine. "Thanks, Doc."

Ye Junior Ed.

A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed last Saturday by the young friends of Miss Katherine Robinson, who was celebrating her eighth birthday at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wallis.

CAPE ST. MARY
Mrs. Louis Frautain, of Cape St. Mary, has gone to New York for an extended visit.

Bernard Deveau, of Mavillette, and Miss Bertha Frautain, of this village, visited friends at Meteghan River recently.

Smith—"It must have been history repeating itself, sir."

What you can do with a $1.00 bill
It's hardly enough to pay for a year's subscription to The Digby Weekly Courier, but some times $1.00 is easier to get hold of than $1.50!

Between Ourselves

It is my own fault that my column will be shorter than usual this week. Usually I try to get "Between Ourselves" written on Monday or Tuesday (and once in a while on Sunday) but this has been a busy week for newshounds—and a tragic week for quite a number of us.

Nevertheless, I was glad of the opportunity to get down and see some of my friends at Westport again. It was the first time I had been on Brier Island for some little time and mark my word, if you ever want to get acquainted with real honest to goodness folks just pay a visit to the Islands. After the first handshake one is no longer a stranger. That's true in spite of the crack Ed. Blackford made when he told us, "C. J. and 'Stan'—another member of our staff—were with me) that he would have to broadcast the news on Long Island that we had crossed the Grand Passage to Westport. "The folks here," he said, "don't look their doors unless there is a stranger on the Island."

I don't think I shall have much more to say in this column this week. Perhaps I can make it up next week, but right now I have enough other writing to do to keep this little twerp ticking for some little time. But I mustn't forget to express my thanks to Dr. MacGregor for the nice piece of moose steaks he spared "or me"—it sure tasted fine. "Thanks, Doc."

BAND NOTES

The Director is receiving numerous inquiries as to whether new members can join the Band now. Five applicants have been accepted, but no arrangements have been made to start a "beginners' band". The Director expects everyone interested to call on him at once, and if enough promising material shows up promptly, plans for a new band may be considered. There are plenty of people, young and old, with the necessary musical talent undeveloped, to learn rapidly and strengthen the weak spots in the Civic Band. These people should have a talk with Director Yates without delay.

There has been an amazing growth in the number of young bands during the past two years. In the States, at the National School Band Contest in 1931, there were 42 bands; in 1931 41 took part, but in 1933 74 bands, totalling around 3500 players, took part in the contest. There are today more bands in this part of Canada than at any time since the Great War.

The annual election of officers for the Digby Music Council is due early in November. The work of the Music Council during its first year has been remarkable for its achievements—but its work has only begun. Starting a band is easy compared to the patience and effort necessary to keep it going. Energetic and enterprising officials will again accomplish great things in community music.

O. F. Woodman, of Joplin Bridge, while in the Acacia Valley woods, on Wednesday afternoon, found a cluster (if it can be called that) of six toy balloons, tied together with a string, caught in a briar bush, all bearing the NRA insignia. No doubt they were blown across the Bay from the American side, and it would be interesting to be able to trace them back—but no doubt that would be impossible.

Better have your children's pictures taken now—remember them as they are today. They'll be grown-ups before you know it.

Helpless Motorists Watch As Bear Mauls Young Lad

Grant Taylor, the eleven year old son of Mrs. Taylor, of Brookhaven, Long Island, New York, (formerly Miss Sadie Campbell, of Freeport, in this county), was mauled and killed a few days ago by a bear which snapped the chain with which it had been tethered in front of Hunter's Inn, on the Montauk Highway. Several motorists stopped to watch the killing of the boy, but were afraid to interfere. Fred Raynor, whose road stand is near by, finally got a shot gun and slew the bear and also another one which was chained in the inn yard.

Gardiner Murdoch, proprietor of the inn, had been away for two days, according to the neighbors. The inn told state troopers that they never had seen anyone else feed the animals; so far as they knew the bears had gone hungry for two days.

Grant Taylor and Jack Gerhardt, who is about the same age, passed the inn every day on their way to and from school. Grant had an apple today which he had toward the inn and the Gerhardt boy entered the inn yard.

The two bears, known as Cup and Sauer, were nervous. They rose on their haunches and eyed the approaching youngsters alertly, rumbling deep in their throats. Grant tossed the apple towards Sauer and the bear lunged forward, either to reach the apple or because she mistook the fruit for a missile.

The chain snapped and Sauer, whatever her original intention may have been, kept right on toward the boys when she found she was no longer a prisoner. The panic-stricken youngsters fled in two directions. Grant Taylor cowering behind the first tree he came to, while the Gerhardt boy kept on and vanished down the road.

The bear swerved in her charge and made for the tree where Grant crouched. As the animal approached, the panic which had stricken the boys dumb gave way to hysteria and Grant began to scream, all the time settling stealthily about the trunk of the tree to keep it between him and the bear. She seized the dodging boy and there was a scuffle which sent leaves flying. The piercing shrieks of the child rose above the snarls of the animal and prompted several motorists to stop. Upon discovering that a bear was loose and mauling a boy, and that another bear, tremendously excited, was straining at its chain, they hesitated to leave their cars. They sat there, watching.

Raynor had heard the uproar at his road stand. He ran into his house and emerged with a shot gun, with which he advanced upon Sauer. The boy appeared to have lost consciousness, but his sobbing gasps showed that he still lived and Raynor at first feared, for fear of hitting him. Getting close, however, he sent a charge into the bear's flank, which killed her. Then he disposed of the other bear.

Murdoch, who had been fishing, got home several hours after the tragedy and surrendered to the authorities. John Morten, justice of the peace, released him on $1,500 bail, pending action of the grand jury on a charge of second degree manslaughter.

Search for Shirley Eisner Proves Futile

Search by land, sea and air for Shirley Eisner, 27, well known commercial traveller, and former resident of Bear River, so far has proved futile, and very little hope is held for his safety.

Mr. Eisner, who is well known here, set out in a small boat equipped with an outboard motor for Pudding Pan Island, in Liverpool harbor, on a duck shooting expedition, early Saturday morning, and since then no trace of the popular young traveller or his boat have been found, although an extensive search has been carried out by land, sea and air. The only hope held for his safety is the possibility of his being picked up by some craft unable to alter its course.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Eisner, of Lawrenceville, formerly of Bear River, and is well known as an athlete, considered as one of the strongest swimmers in the Maritime Provinces. His wife was formerly Miss Banks, of Paradise. He has been residing in Liverpool for about three years.

For some time he has travelled for Bentley's Limited, of Truro, and was in Digby on Thursday of last week. His parents and his young wife have the sympathy of this community.

Yesterday's Halifax papers state that the speed boat used by Shirley Eisner was found on Wednesday afternoon, near Mosher's Head, twenty miles from Pudding Pan Island, his hunting destination. So far there is no trace of the missing man.

Considerable damage was done to the roads in this district, many of them badly gullied and washed out. At Digby the Racquette Hill and bridge suffered considerable damage. In other places ditches could not carry off the torrents of water, and sidewalks are ruined—the sidewalk on the north side of Mount Street was torn up, and in some places dug out two and three feet by the great volume of water which flowed over them. In many places, especially in low spots, or where brook crossed under bridges, roads were almost impassable for some time until the water subsided.

The services in the United Church on Sunday, will be at 11:00 o'clock and 7 o'clock; and at Bayview at 3 o'clock.

Frank, which killed her. Then he disposed of the other bear. Murdoch, who had been fishing, got home several hours after the tragedy and surrendered to the authorities. John Morten, justice of the peace, released him on $1,500 bail, pending action of the grand jury on a charge of second degree manslaughter.

Body of Culloden Man Found At Gloucester Pier

The body of Douglas Post, age 26, formerly of Culloden, Digby County, and son of the late Walton and Ina (O'Connor) Post, was found in the waters of the Gloucester, Mass. harbor, on Sunday morning beneath the bow of the mackerel seiner Jackie B., of which his elder brother, Capt. Stephen Post, was skipper. Post had been missing since October 12. The Jackie B., tied up at the Davis Bros. wharf, Gloucester, on the morning of that day. Shortly after midnight, the cook, Peter O'Landolle, was awakened by a splash, and turned out of his bunk to investigate, but when he went on deck, he peered into the harbor he failed to see even a ripple on the waters. It is believed that young Post slipped from the side of the dock on boarding the vessel.

On the morning of Friday the 13th Captain Post rallied his crew for another trip and discovered his young brother, missing, on the entire morning for him, and later reported the matter of his brother's disappearance to the police.

The body was first seen on Sunday morning by Harold H. Flaherty, of the crew of the Louis A. Thibault, who saw the head rising from the water beneath the bow of the Jackie B.

According to an account published in the Gloucester Times, it is stated that while coming into port on the morning of October 12, two of the ten children born to the late Walton and Ina (O'Connor) Post. He went to Gloucester at the age of 18 to sail with his brother, Captain Stephen Post. Besides his brother Captain Post, he is survived by four other brothers, Wilfred, the Jackie B.; Lawrence, Harry and Bernard, of Culloden; four sisters, Misses Mary and Margaret, of Culloden; Mrs. John Powers, of Yarmouth; and Mrs. Fred Ryan, of Mar-shalton.

Funeral services were held from the home of Captain Post Tuesday morning, with requiem high mass at St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church.

United Church Ministers Exchange Pulpits

Local & Personal

Miss Gertrude Chisholm returned last week from a visit with friends in Annapolis Royal.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hazelton, daughter Edith and son Reginald, spent Sunday with friends in Yarmouth.

Marjorie Banks and Barbara Gilliland, of Rossport, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hazelton.

Glady, Trider, of Halifax, is visiting her mother-in-law, Mrs. L. Kirkpatrick, at Hawthorn Villa.

"The Locusts", Smith's Cove, one of the newest of our summer resorts, has had a busy season, the last of the guests only leaving this week.

Miss Bernice Adams, of Bay View who has been attending the Maritime Business College, has accepted a position with Austin Bros., Halifax.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Turner, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. White, of Brooklyn, who have been guests of "The Locusts" Smith's Cove, for the past five weeks, returned to their homes on Tuesday.

Despite the lateness of the season many local gardens are still showing the autumn blooms. It is some what out of the usual to have killing frosts hold off until this late season.

Marguerite Gilliland, of Rosindale, Mass., spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. Frank Hazelton, and is now visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Cossam, of Rossport.

P. M. Saunders, jeweller, and D. A. Saunders, agent of the Canadian Pacific Telegraph, at Windsor, motored through the Valley, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Winfield recently.

Claude L. Morgan, of Regina, Sask., who spent the past nine months guest of his sister, Mrs. E. Burton Taylor, Smith's Cove, returned to Regina on Tuesday, having been called back to his work on the C. N. R. Mrs. Paul Morgan and two children were guests at the same home over the week-end.

RAY'S OF CHEER — Lamps and Shades at prices below cost. See Dargie's window, in Annapolis Royal. Two weeks only.

Wherever shade trees abound residents have a steady job of raking up the leaves that seem to fall continuously. Dead leaves are said to be just the thing for a nut tree. Certain plants and shrubs and in consequence, many gardeners are using them for this purpose.

Ever notice the difference in the way girls and boys carry their books to and from school? The latter are gripped in one hand and swinging along nonchalantly. The girls hold their books and papers against their sides, in crooked arm, as they stride, mince, trip or stroll along. More gracefully, as might be expected, are the girls, but they also seem more self-conscious students. Not that it matters, but it's interesting to note.

In the account of the ratepayers' meeting, published in last week's issue, it was said that Lynch further stated that he was in favor of the proposition if the water supply could stand it. This should have read, "if the water account could stand it." There is a vast difference; water knew better, and would have sworn that he had written it as it should have been, but on referring to his copy, found that the mistake was his. With Digby's water supply as it is, to supply three or four additional homes with town water would mean nothing at all.

Miss Olga Smith, of Bear River, is the guest of Miss Jean Jenkins, Renforth, N. B., and was entertained by her last Friday night. Bridge was played and prizes won by Miss Margaret Gailivan and Miss Olga Schmidt. Those who were present were Miss Ina Currie, Miss Althea Brown, Miss Constance Clarke, Miss Margaret Gailivan, Miss Muriel Tapley and Miss Jean Jenkins. —She was also entertained informally by her former associates, of T. McAvity & Sons, at the home of Miss Edna Brannen, 126 Main Street; and again at the home of Mrs. E. Sutherland, 148 Carmarthen St., at dinner, on Thursday last, covers being laid for six.

Better have your children's pictures taken now—remember them as they are today. They'll be grown-ups before you know it.

Re. hunting in Nova Scotia the Truro News, of Oct. 17th, has the following: "Another of our American visitors will be able to go back hunting with a good story of the fine hunting which one can have in Nova Scotia woods. A. J. Dennison, of Riverside, Rhode Island, who is a regular visitor to the province at this time of the year will take back with him a carcass of a buck which he dressed at 184 pounds. This fine animal was killed by Mr. Dennison in the woods near Eastville, brought to Truro and dressed by L. D. MacKenzie, local butcher, who stated that it was the finest deer he had ever seen. The dressed carcase is now in the cold storage plant of Mr. MacKenzie's store, on Prince Street, where it is being much admired. After Mr. Dennison concludes his visit with friends in the province, it will be specially prepared for shipment to Rhode Island."

Digby's Mayor Is President of Tourist Association.

Mayor P. W. Holdsworth, of Digby, for many years a strong booster of the tourist industry in this province, was elected President of the Land of Evangeline Tourist Association, at its annual meeting in the Cornwallis Inn, Kentville, on Monday.

While having every confidence in the future of the tourist trade, the Association once more asserted that it was useless to spend money on advertising for summer visitors if the highways of the province are allowed to remain in a condition similar to that of the season just past. It is not out preventatives but a hard surfaced road that is needed, was the opinion of those present, and they will meet again to formulate a resolution to be presented to the government and to decide upon any further action necessary.

The other officers elected were: First Vice-President—R. W. Harris, Aylesford.

Secretary—Theodore — J. A. C. Lewis, Kentville.

Directors—Dr. W. S. Blair, Kentville, (re-elected); F. Frank Burns, Kentville. Other directors will be elected at the next meeting.

Bakery Plant at Sydney Is Sold

One of the biggest deals recorded in Sydney this year was negotiated on Tuesday when Eastern Bakeries, Limited, purchased the Victoria Road Bakery, of Lawrence L. Snell, well-known Sydney man, (formerly of Bedford).

At the same time it was announced that Mr. Snell has been appointed the Cape Breton, Tadjigish and Guysboro representative of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, succeeding E. R. Deane, who has gone with the Irving Co. Company.

Mr. Snell gained Dominion-wide prominence a few years ago with the famous "Snell Plan" which assisted to pave the way for different rate concessions which have greatly facilitated Cape Breton sales in Central Ontario.

Farewell Supper Given Harry Eldridge.

On Tuesday, evening a farewell supper was given Harry Eldridge, manager of the Royal Store here, who is to be transferred to Yarmouth, by the members of the Young Men's Class of the Digby United Baptist Sunday School. Supper was served by eight girls, members of Mrs. H. T. Warner's class, and both before and after the repeat eight of the class members, who play band instruments, rendered fine selections.

Chester Levy, class president, reviewed the year's work, and urged that the older members attend more regularly, and extended invitations to both young and old, to join. The class meets regularly at 12 o'clock, noon, every Sunday.

He also, on behalf of the class, presented Mr. Eldridge with a Rolls Razor, and wished him every success in his new work in Yarmouth. Mr. Eldridge responded and thanked the class for the gift. In his remarks he urged the class to keep together. On the invitation of the president, Dr. Timony gave a very interesting talk, choosing as his subject, "Brotherhood." Rev. F. E. Bishop, pastor of the church, also gave a short address.

There were about fifty men in attendance at the supper.

The auxiliary schooner Telephone, Capt. L. Lewis, arrived on Monday from Bridgetown, and cleared the same day for North Head, Grand Mannan.

The auxiliary schooner Arawana, Capt. Chisholm, arrived from Saint John on Monday with a general cargo for H. T. Warner, and cleared to return the same day.

Miss Neta MacNeill, of Wright's staff, has returned from her vacation, spent with friends in the Valley.

Floods Wipe Out Draw Bridge At Tiverton, Great Damage

Why Do They Do It? ? ? ?

"Leads" in both the Halifax papers yesterday stated that the draw bridge connecting Tiverton with the mainland was carried away in the freshet, while in neither paper was mention made of "draw bridge" connecting Tiverton with the mainland, in the despatches they published from their local correspondents, for such a drawbridge "just ain't" and possibly never will be. Anyone with a knowledge of Petite Passage knows that such a bridge would cost millions, an is next to an impossibility as an engineering feat.

The draw bridge at Tiverton which was washed away is the short bridge on the main road of the island, a short distance from the advanced breakwater, and spans a small creek which gives entrance to the "pond" used by the fishermen as an inner harbor for their boats where they are hauled up for painting and overhauling.

Enjoyable Entertainment at Bijou Theatre.

Bijou Theatre, Digby, was the scene of an enjoyable entertainment on Wednesday evening, when a number of small children, pupils of Miss Frances McNatt's dancing class, took part in a concert. Too much praise cannot be given regarding their excellent training; their time was perfect and every number was a delight to the large audience.

Piano selections, which were greatly appreciated, were rendered by Miss Eleanor Wallis and Miss Frances McNatt. A special feature of the programme was an impromptu programme by members of the crew of the H. M. C. S. "Champlain" who volunteered their services. The ship's orchestra was in attendance and played several selections both during the programme and intermission. Other members of the crew put on special acts.

Wednesday night's programme was to have been a pianoforte recital and dance exhibition, under the management and direction of Professor Church Gates, of Weymouth, but due to the inclemency of the weather and other causes, Professor Gates was unable to attend, and for a time it was felt that the concert would have to be postponed, but the girls, real trouper that they were, insisted that "the show must go on" and took the responsibility on their own shoulders—and those who attended pronounced it as "most successful."

Part of the proceeds, above expenses, were turned over to the Digby Children's Aid Society. A. J. Dillon announced the programme.

The auxiliary boat Jessie May, Capt. S. Tidd, arrived from North Head, Grand Mannan, on Tuesday with 125 barrels of fresh herring for the Maritime Fish Corporation, and cleared to return the same day.

The schooner Achagras, Capt. Morrell, arrived from Yarmouth on Tuesday, in ballast.

Mrs. George Mulse is visiting friends in Cansuville.

The Cod Liver Oil Plant of Small Bros., at Tiverton, as well as other buildings along the Tiverton waterfront are reported "safe". After Wednesday morning's freshets which undermined and carried away the draw bridge over the creek at the mouth of the "pond" it was feared that these buildings would be undermined by the heavy freshets of water running across the street.

When the draw bridge went out about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, Lloyd Blackford, driver of the Long Island mails from Freeport to Tiverton, and two passengers in his car narrowly escaped death. The rear wheels of his car had just passed over the bridge when it collapsed.

The loss of the bridge isolates the Islands more than ever from the mainland. It is now impossible to get cars across the passage from the mainland to Long Island, for the reason that the scow used for this purpose, with a number of other craft which sought shelter in the quiet waters of the pond are trapped by the debris of the ruined bridge now have no access to Petite Passage and the sea. It will be some time before this can be cleared away. Furthermore, both ferry landings are on the wrong side of the bridge to be of much use to the people of Tiverton and Long Island.

Two cars were marooned for a time on that side of the bridge, on Wednesday, but were taken across the pond by the scow which is used to carry cars back and forth over Petite Passage. The United Chataqua players who are at present playing at Freeport, were taken over the pond with their baggage by means of a dory.

Courier representatives paid a visit to Tiverton yesterday morning and viewed the damage done to the bridge by Wednesday's heavy rain. The sight was almost unbelievable; the whole bridge has gone down, the highway is undermined, the supports which held up the "draw" section, have toppled over and are clogging altogether the entrance to the pond. Buildings on the water front side of the street were undermined to a depth of several feet, and in some cases all the rock and gravel has been washed away from the piles which support them, and the piles now hang from the buildings resting on nothing but air.

WEATHER STATISTICS

In recent years the weather has been, so to speak, harnessed by science. Hardly a wind blows, a rain falls or a thermometer rises or drops that some conscientious observer is not there to record the event in the interest of science.

Of course, some people would question the great advantage to be derived from the preparation and dissemination of official weather reports. Yet, anyone with a sense of the quaint and picturesque must regret that the weather is being rapidly reduced to an exact science. Nor is it possible to witness without real pain the passing of that familiar term, "unseasonable weather."

Changeable weather may be endured, good weather is cause for congratulations, but unseasonable weather arouses humankind to ecstasy. What more delightful than to exclaim that you have never felt such a day for heat or cold or rain or wind at this or that season of the year?

It is possible to endure much when one knows a record is being broken. But now with perfect instruments for measuring every atmospheric condition and for keeping weather reports one no sooner exults over having frost on a morning early in the fall than some one looks into the files and discovers that ten years before there was a frost a week earlier. Merely suggest that never before was there such heat or such cold as that prevailing at the moment and books are produced to show that the temperature is normal for the season.

It is significant that hail as large as goose eggs, July snows and years without a summer all occurred before the creation of government weather bureaus.
But for this happy accident Noah's account of the flood would have been described as "grossly exaggerated" and the forty days and forty nights of rain would have been "just what was to be expected at that season of the year."

You can tell a man who has nothing worth stealing. He says: "Sure, hop in."

AN EERIE NIGHT

This sophisticated and materialistic world no longer believes in ghosts, good fairies, witches and magic charms but this has not detracted at all from the traditional observance of Halloween, the eve of All Saints' Day and the night on which the shadowy denizens of the spirit world return to earthly haunts.
On Tuesday evening when night draws its curtain across the world the unbelieving worldlings will supplant the "real" ghosts, black cats and broomstick witches with a make-believe eerie realm of cut paper, noise makers and pumpkin grin-ners. Halloween parades, street carnivals with masks, costumes and confetti and prank-playing have universal permission to monopolize the spotlight. And as the witching hour of twelve draws near there will be some unfaithful ones glancing covertly back at their shifting shadows and jumping at every squeak of the chamber stairway. After all Halloween wouldn't be half so much fun if there was no superstition for suggestion does not make it any less effective for the purposes of All-hallow night.

In its merry-making let not the community forget the double significance of this night.
Primarily, this will be an observance of All Saints' eve, but it is also a harvest celebration.
The frosty pumpkin, the rustling corn shock and the bobbing apple play an important part in this nocturnal celebration and inseparably link Halloween with the harvest time.

A wit has pointed out that the good saints have shown rare wisdom by making their annual pilgrimage back to earth in the heart of the harvest season.

The measure of a man's greatness is the length of time people remember his blunders.

BUSINESS BEGINNERS

When people are thrown out of work, the first impulse of many of them is to try to sell something. So we have seen a procession of folks ringing our doorbells, many of them telling a pathetic hard luck story, all trying to persuade us that our welfare will not be complete unless we buy this or that. And some of these folks, having a little money of being able to borrow it, have launched out on the treacherous seas of business and have set up little stores.

To an inexperienced person, it seems easy enough to open such a place and earn a living.
They see visions of a stream of people buying their goods. They think they can sell so many articles a day at such and such a profit. The better established store may be able to do it, but the newcomer faces the indifference of the cold world.

Many of these newcomers do not last long and soon are forced to close out and remove the freshly painted sign which they so hopefully erected. Their money is gone, they are still without a job, and they have nothing to show for their effort but experience. Someone should have given them wiser advice.
Probably the trouble was that in most places there are already too many business concerns.
Unless the new one has some special power of attraction, it was doomed from the start.

It is not much use for people to go into business, unless they know their trade thoroughly, and even then they must be prepared to do a good deal of waiting until they acquire a reputation. If they advertise judiciously of course, their chances of doing so quickly are greatly increased.

A man is but a worm of the dust;
he comes along, wiggles about a while, and finally some chicken gets him.

CANADA'S FISH WEEK

"As head of the Department of Fisheries I am glad to take an opportunity of commending Canada's Fish Week to the attention of the people of the Dominion," said Hon.
Alfred Durand, M. P., Acting Minister of Fisheries, in an interview given in Ottawa. "The fishing industry has chosen the period from October 30th to November 4th, as the time to be observed this year as 'Fish Week' and I hope that the people all over the country will join in the observance."

"The fishing industry is of great national importance," Hon. Mr. Durand went on; "it is developing extensive natural resources and it is a source of employment to many of our citizens, both directly and indirectly, as well as a large factor in the country's foreign trade. I think it an excellent thing to have a few days set apart for the special purpose of emphasizing the industry's place among Canada's major productive enterprises and of making better known to our people the wide variety of foods which they may obtain from our fishermen at all seasons of the year. I say 'at all seasons' for the Dominion's fishing industry, energetic and progressive, applies modern methods so efficiently in its operations that there is no time of the year when it does not supply fish and shellfish, either in the fresh or frozen forms, or in any one of several processed forms."

"There is never any necessity for Canadian consumers to look for imported fish for their requirements.
Our own fishermen can meet the need fully, supply fish foods of prime natural quality which are handled and prepared by the industry in accordance with the most approved practice. I would urge Canadian consumers to keep this fact in mind, not only during 'Fish Week,' of course, but every week, and to remember that in eating fish and shellfish they are using foods which are nourishing and delicious and have been shown by scientific research to contain elements which make them exceptionally valuable in promoting health and in safeguarding the body against certain ills."

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

Golden Text:—"Love thy neighbor as thyself, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."—Romans 13:10.

Lesson Passage:—Romans 13:12-14; 14:7-9; 15-21.

"God be in my head,
And in my understanding,
God be in mine eyes and in my looking."

God be in my mouth and in my speaking,
God be in my heart and in my thinking, God be at mine end, and at my departing."

Daylight and Night, 13:12-14

Moral conditions were often indescribably bad in the Roman army.
Discipline was strict during daylight training, but during long hours of darkness the soldiers resorted to various forms of vice for pastime.
Even amid modern conditions when cities are illuminated with electricity, the night time is the occasion for many temptations. Fatigue factors, commercialism, amusements, the cumulative effects of intoxicants, often cause the reins to be thrown upon the neck of lust and license for which there is humiliation and shame in the morning. Deeds look-so differently at midnight and at dawn. Paul likened the Christian life to the daytime discipline of a soldier in contrast to the rioting of nights on leave. He spoke of putting on the Lord Jesus Christ even as a soldier puts on his armor.
Christ is a defence both from temptations without and within. Crimes but a Christian seeks to live so as not to fear even the closest scrutiny of daily conduct.

Helping or Harming? 14:7-9

We are members one of another.
Society is a relationship between persons. It is impossible to live solely to ourselves. A motorist picked up a chance traveller on a highway from whom a whole family caught a contagious disease. A drunken driver, by a momentary misjudgment, caused five innocent people to have to enter a hospital as patients. A school teacher who habitually mispronounced a word, caused that word to be mispronounced throughout a large section of a township. In the food we eat, the clothes we wear, the amusements we patronize, we are dependent upon others. We can never be wholly free from their influence. They share in our inmost lives. This has its positive and hopeful side. We may share knowledge, friendship and joy just as we are often forced to share injurious influences. Nor is helpful influence limited to those whom we see day by day. Christ may come into our lives with His powers of healing and help. We may open our hearts to Christ and receive His abiding presence until we are able to say that we live in Christ and Christ lives in us.

The Rule of Love, 15, 16

It is sometimes difficult to know how far we should consider the prejudices and preferences of a weaker brother. Sometimes this weaker brother needs to be shocked out of his smug complacency and made to think for himself, especially if he is magnifying trifles. We to-day can hardly appreciate the force of the objection to eating meat which had been offered to idols. Our first concern would be to have the meat free from germs and microbes, but this was a matter of serious contention between the Greeks and Jews in the early years of the Christian Church. To us it is a much more serious matter when the example of a professing Christian encourages others in the use of intoxicating liquor. There have been drunkards who asserted that their first social glass was given to them by their own minister. Furthermore, this has become more rare, the great majority of ministers now being temperate. But at public banquets very often the guests follow the example of those at the head table.
The president of a certain university invariably turns down his glass because he does not wish his example to cause any student to form the habit of drinking. The best guide-ance about such social customs is to be found in the law of love. If we love our fellowmen, it will be some hardship for us to deny ourselves any indulgence for the sake of their safety and welfare.

A Spiritual Kingdom, 17, 18

There has been endless discussion over the liquor question. Alcohol has received far more attention than it deserves. If all the claims made for alcohol were true, it would still remain an unimportant part of experience compared with business and family life, education and religion.
The kingdom of God is not a matter of concrete physical things as much as of higher spiritual values such as righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. These are the things to which we should give our chief attention. A half hour's visit of inspection of a beer parlor makes one wonder what is the attraction.
There is little social gladness, no educational value, no scientific progress, no athletic gain. Men sit around drinking, some of them untill they are stupid and sodden. It is a mistaken idea of having a good time. There is far more fun on a bowling green, baseball diamond or skating rink. There is far more profit in attending night classes in the schools, public libraries, discussion groups in churches. It is a great mistake to allow the body to usurp the kingdom of the mind.

A Brotherhood, 19-21

We may contribute more to a Christian social order if we concentrate on the factors which unite rather than those that divide. Paul saw that small and trivial things often disturbed the peace of his mission churches. He asked the Christians to concentrate upon the great essentials of faith and conduct.
Their guiding principle will afford us sure guidance as to our social standards. The application of the Golden Rule will prevent us from exposing others to temptations from which we seek to have our own families protected. It is a test of the highest spirituality to practice self-denial for the wellbeing of others. This is, moreover, the Christian way of life. Christ thought not

C. C. NICHOLL—Weymouth, N.S.

After two years' study of the proper equipment necessary for Digby County roads, we have installed a Funeral Car that is adaptable to our roads at all times, practically similar to the cars used in the larger cities of United States and Canada, demanding instant recognition and traffic rights as a Funeral Car.

Our equipment is valued today at seven times its value, eleven years ago, proving our continual growth. We are constantly adding new equipment as it demonstrates its value to the public.

We employ no agents, entirely soliciting patronage by the merit of our service. Prices are kept down to the minimum and our service the best, with transportation easily possible to and from any point in Nova Scotia.

Between Ourselves

Mr. Junior Ed:

"Please give this the air. Well deserved praise from our friends makes us humble rather than proud. Ambitious rather than sluggish, so now if I tell you something about my fellows, I don't expect you to grow a bump on your head as big as a coconut, or to be carried away with the verbosity of your own effusions when next you diffuse some oratory for the benefit of your fellow sufferers. A prominent man said to me today that there is one column in the Digby Courier he always reads, and that is "Between Ourselves" by Ye Junior Ed. Believe me this is the truth I'm telling, otherwise I'd not be writing you."

"Now, to me, while this appears as no mean compliment to the Junior Ed, it strikes me as being rather hard on the old skipper. However, some of these days I know I'm going to let go the spunkier side and leave Mr. Junior Ed. wondering where all the wind comes from; and don't forget it, the old reliable will be waiting and watching for the breeze to blow so he can catch your tackle and bear well to starboard."

"From One of the Old Sailors Who Subscribe

That's that—and thanks

And here's another letter, one which I made mention of two weeks ago:

Autumn Leaves

Ye Junior Ed, Digby Courier:
"I remember that I cannot give you that which was lost, as I have no copy of the letter I sent you two weeks ago."

"I remember saying, however, that one might as well save their breath as touch with the pen upon the glories of nature expressed within this beautiful province so far as our natives, for the most part, are concerned, for people generally utterly fail to comprehend or fully appreciate the beauties that lie near at hand. I am deeply impressed with the truth of this assertion after completing a two weeks' tour from tip to tip, on the mainland of Nova Scotia. To endeavor to describe its beauties would almost appear sacrilege. Joyce Kilmer expresses the thought I have tried to convey in his beautiful poem, "Trees."

"I think that I shall never see
A poem levelled than a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against earth's sweet flowing breast;
A tree that looks to God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain;
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

"The old saying that cow at a distance have long horns is but too true. Niagara which we have never seen has a majesty and grandeur resplendent with glory. The Grand Canyon of Colorado, into whose yawning chasms we have not even peeped, remains to our imagination an attraction wholly to be desired, while the divine touches of a grandeur that blazes forth in a wealth of color from hillsides, lake and dell, within this charming province of Nova Scotia, remains with us but a parting impression—a changing of the seasons—nothing more and nothing less."

"Nevertheless, Mr. Junior Ed., you are to be commended. Keep hammering away. Even the flaccid iron is not unimpressible. And remember that though the mills of the gods grind slowly, they pay to grind for with that everlasting grind. He all. In time there shall dawn upon us all a more fitting conception of our true destiny in the eyes of the world as a great people, who, after all is said and done, believe there is no place quite like Nova Scotia."

YEARS AGO

We started business on First Avenue, Digby, as "A Modest Little Print Shop, Owned and Operated by James J. Wallis," with one press and a small outfit of second-hand type, and our first job was 500 receipts for the Bear River Trading Company, who still remain one of our good customers. Today we are still doing business at the old stand, and also at the Digby Courier office, in Digby, and at the Weymouth Gazette office, in Weymouth, operating in all six job presses and one newspaper press, with another newspaper press and two more job presses in reserve, ready to be put in commission at any time. We have also added a quantity of new type, as well as a Model 8 Linotype, one of the best machines built for all round purposes. We do not claim that "our work" excels that of other printers; but we are proud to state that many of our clients—some hundreds of miles away—who patronized us from the start, are still with us, and that much of our business is the result of the "good words" they have said about us to their friends."

And on our 10th anniversary we wish to thank our customers for the splendid support they have given us during these years, and trust that our efforts will always warrant their best wishes."

TEA RESTRICTION

In April a restriction was placed on tea exports from Ceylon, India, and Java, in order to raise prices to growers, who, for almost four years, had been suffering devastating losses. Higher prices have resulted, not only at the gardens, but also here on our own markets, and many package teas already cost more than they did six months ago. Some of the finer quality brands are as yet unchanged, however, and are, consequently, even better value than at last April.

of a time" at Lovett Camp, back on the White Sand Lake.

Mrs. Lovett tells me that she has added another moose to her score, which now stands at nine moose, one buck deer and one bear, (and to prove it she sent me a nice fry, for which I want to say, "Thanks"). "Five of my moose," she writes, "were 'called' and four 'still hunted'. This season's moose is a beauty—still hunted—and shot four miles from our camp. It has a bunch of 54 and has twenty-six points on the antlers. My guide (Louie Harlow) says it is seven years old." Mrs. Lovett's kill was absolutely the result of her own shooting. Her rifle, she tells me is a Sporting Ross.

Congratulations, Mrs. Lovett! And now, I wonder if there is another woman in the province who can beat your record as a huntress? Ye Junior Ed.

Meeting Competition Effectively

THE keenness of competition—the lightning changes in present day prices makes necessary the utmost use of the Long Distance Telephone in business.

Those who buy use it to purchase goods, getting the best prices and assuring themselves earlier delivery—those who sell use it to find markets, reduce selling costs and increase sales volume.

The business man who makes a practice of using Long Distance to the exclusion of slower methods has the advantage over his competitor. You will gain by using it in your operations.

Before following up the ravine to the Chute Road some work was done in distance judging, such as computing the height of trees and the distance across the stream. ## Deep Brook Dorcas Society Celebrates Anniversary

The annual meeting and 32nd anniversary of the Dorcas Society of Deep Brook, was held on Wednesday last week, at the residence of Mrs. L. E. Sherman. Preceding the business session the best of officers met and constituted a nominating committee. The president, Mrs. L. E. Sherman, after twenty years of service, declined to accept the office for another year. The treasurer, Mrs. Howard Adams, who has served so efficiently for fifteen years, wished to retire from that office. The meeting was called to order with the president in the chair. After singing, "To the Work," scripture reading and prayer, words of welcome were extended to the visiting guests from Bear River and Deep Brook. The president, in a few words, reviewed the history of the society and spoke words of appreciation to the members for their continued interest and splendid co-operation during the years. The secretary, Mrs. J. F. McClelland, gave her annual report and also read the list of charter members and the constitution. The treasurer reported $123.81 raised during the year; $82.60 were paid out, including $22.75 collected and paid to Rev. A. J. Prosser, for the Children's Aid Society, leaving a balance of $41 in the treasury. The report of the nominating committee, Mrs. J. F. McClelland, resulted in the following officers being elected for the coming year:

President—Mrs. Norman Sully.
Vice-President—Mrs. John Adams.
Secretary—Mrs. L. E. Sherman.
Assistant Secretary—Mrs. Augustus Purdy.

Treasurer—Mrs. J. R. Dittmars.
Assistant Treasurer—Mrs. H. Adams.

A social hour, with dainty refreshments served by the hostess, concluded a very pleasant and profitable afternoon.

A NEW MARKET FOR FARM PRODUCE

Five years of crop failure following one upon the other with deadly regularity, are enough to discourage even the most optimistic farmer, and it creates a desperate demand for the fruits of the earth's bounty. Such is the situation in the southern portion of the western provinces. Many farmers, who these families have moved out and have gone up north to more favorable situations; but there are those who cannot move a mile without their creditors demanding to be paid impossible amounts before they will allow them to leave the country. There is nothing to do but stay. There is that great multitude scattered over the many towns and villages of the windy prairies; a multitude that must be fed. A potential market of great possibilities; but there is no money.

There is another picture of a land that has not known a complete crop failure since it was first settled, over four hundred years ago. The supply of fruits and vegetables are abundant. The chief complaint is that there is no market—no one wants the surplus. Or, rather, there is no one with money to buy.

On Wednesday of last week a freight car passed through the Valley, stopping at each station. It was being filled with vegetables for which no money had been paid, and it was carried thousands of miles by the railway companies free of charge. When it arrives at its destination, one of those towns or villages of drought or grasshoppers, its contents will be distributed to every one, regardless of race or religious affiliation. There will be no exchange of money. Over one hundred and fifty carloads have gone into this market on the same terms, and there are more to follow.

Bear River is proud to think that, with the surrounding districts of Princeton, Clementsvalle and Bear River East, it had a share in supplying this market, where the chief traffic was not in material profit, but in the very real "spiritual dividends" of good will, loving kindness, thoughtfulness in the senders, and deep and abiding gratitude to their fellow countrymen and to God in those who received of this bounty.

"Subscribers get the news behind the news—advertising from the newspapers when the manufacturers release their first publicity in the form of news and advertising."

PRINTED WHERE YOU USED TO LIVE

Isn't filled with cuts and pictures, nor the latest news, deepches. And the paper's oftened slumped, and the print is sometimes blurred; There is only one edition, and the eye quite often catches. Traces of a missing letter and at times a misspelled word.

No cablegrams nor "specials" anywhere the eye engages. The make-up is maybe a trifle crude and primitive. But an atmosphere of home life fills and permeates the pages. Of the little country paper printed where you used to live.

How the heart grows soft and tender while its columns you're perusing. Every item is familiar, every name you know full well; And a flood of recollections passes o'er you as you're musing. On the past and weaves about you an imaginative spell.

You can see the old home village, once again in fancy, seeming To be clapping hands of neighbor, or friend, or relative. And their faces rise before you, as you're idly fondly dreaming. O'er the little country paper, printed where you used to live.

And you note a vine-clad cottage, with the roses nodding 'round it; Hear the voice of mother calling for the long-gone fugitive. Like the echo of the pleading memories repeat and sound it. Through the little country paper, printed where you used to live.

Every printed line reminds you of the days long since departed; Here a boyhood's dream is mentioned, there a schoolmate's name appears; And the eye grows moist in reading, while the soul grows heavily-hearted. O'er the changes time has wrought throughout the swiftly passing years.

Memory's scroll has deep impressions stamped upon its face I never, Of sweet pleasures which "the busy city life can never give. And in fancy you are roaming thro' the quiet town whenever You peruse the country paper, printed where you used to live.

Here and There With G. R. T.

Three weeks with the Sheriff of Los Angeles County and I almost, but not quite, got into jail. I got as far as the booking office, where the bad boys and tough girls leave their valuables while they are enjoying the hospitality of Los Angeles—largest and best patronized hotel—where bachelors and maids are free and beds are short and hard.

Last year the Sheriff served meals to his guests at a cost of .086 cents per meal, consisting of bread, butter, meat and vegetables, but no lobster or roast goose, with dressing, were included in the bill of fare. But some of the bachelors complained about the food. They, of course, will have something to look forward to when they check out.

Lately the forces of the sheriff have been busy rounding up gangsters from New York and other eastern cities who have drifted west to the green pastures of the Pacific Coast.

These gentry are arrested on vagrancy charges and are held in $50,000 bail, which is heavy enough to hold the most of them for quite a while. However, some of them are able to make enough through the assistance of bail bond companies. These companies, of course, take no chances as they make the gangster and his friends put ample security. And it is up to me to say it is, for the bond companies demand their pound of flesh and something extra for shrinkage. Some of these visiting gangsters from the east have a fortune in diamonds and jewelry on their persons when brought into jail. At the jail booking office all their belongings are taken away from them and held in the jail office, until they are released, when the stuff is returned to them, unless some victim comes forward to claim some of the plunder. One of the "boys" arrested a few days ago, had a watch chain valued at "twelve grand"—a mere twelve thousand dollars. The trinket had a small, but perfect, diamond set in each link of the chain. The diamonds, no doubt, originally formed part of some jeweler's stock, who had been unfortunate enough to meet a member of a gang posing as a prospective customer.

There are 956 employees on the sheriff's pay roll, starting with the sheriff at $1,000 per month; the under sheriff at $500; captains at $250; deputies at $175 to $150; and clerks and stenographers at $200 to $125 per month; and a crew of extras who work at $5.00 per day. In addition to this force there are 4,200 deputies scattered about the county who serve without pay. They have the honor of wearing a deputy's badge, which is issued for street car fares and admission to most of the theatres, but it does not always get them into a football game free of charge. And for the privilege of wearing one of these badges the proud possessor is expected to answer roll calls and is required to report disturbances in his neighborhood if and when they occur.

Quelling a neighborhood "ruckus" is not the pleasant duty that some people may imagine. A friend of mine carried one of these honorary badges for a time, and I rather envied him his privilege and wondered how I could get one of the brochures for myself. Then one day I noticed that he was paying his street car fare the same as the rest of the common herd, and I said to him, "Horace, where's the badge?" "You couldn't get it," he said. "Horace should never have been given a badge in the first place. Horace glared at me and said, 'I turned the dam thing in, and it is going to stay turned in. Never again will they ever decorate me with one of those things.' " "How come?" said I. "I should have enjoyed the privileges that went with it." "Oh, I enjoyed the privileges all right enough, but I didn't enjoy the black eyes and broken noses that are sometimes handed to the wearer of a deputy sheriff's badge."

"What happened?" I asked; "did you try to break up a communist gathering, or were you just acting as a peacemaker in a family quarrel?" And this is the story that he told me.

"You know I used to live out beyond the city limits. There are no city policemen out there for the territory is in the county, and is therefore under the jurisdiction of the sheriff. Well, along about two o'clock one Sunday morning my telephone bell rang. It was the night captain at the sheriff's office on the wire. He said that there was some sort of a wild party going on out in my neighborhood and some of the neighbors had phoned a complaint, and asked that an officer be sent out to try to quiet things down a bit. Said the captain, 'I see that your name is on our list of deputies and as you do not live far from the scene of the trouble, suppose you walk over there and tell the crowd to pipe down a bit.'"

"But, captain, I couldn't handle a crowd of drunks," protested Horace; "can't you send out a regular uniformed man?" "We haven't got a man that we can send now; you won't have any trouble, but send your badge and tell them to be good." "Well, continued Horace, "it seemed as if it was up to me to maintain the peace and uphold the dignity of the law, so I got into my clothes and pinned my deputy's badge on my chest, and went out to the scene of the disturbance. The party was going strong when I reached the place; there was much shouting and singing, and apparently a good time was being had by all the crowd. I walked up to the front door and rang the bell, but he has under his control with nearly a thousand paid employees and 4,200 others who work for glory! All of this crowd, going for the chief along about election time certainly makes it more or less difficult for an opposing candidate. There will be several in the field next year, however, and a warm time is being predicted by those who claim to know all about Los Angeles politics."

HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED TO MAGGIE

Maggie and Jiggs at the Golden Gate

St. Peter stood guard at the Golden Gate. With a solemn mien and air sedate. When up to the top of the Golden Gate. Maggie and Jiggs ascending there. Applied for admission and came and stood. Before St. Peter so great and good. In hope the City of Peace to win. And asked St. Peter to let them in.

Maggie was tall and dark and thin. With a scraggly beard on her chin. Jiggs was short and thick and stout. And his stomach was built so it rounded out. His face was pleasant and all the while. He wore a kindly and genial smile. The choir in the distance the echoes woke. And Jiggs kept still while Maggie spoke.

"Oh thou who guardest the gate," said she. "We come hither beseeching thee."

To let us enter the heavenly land. And play our harps with the angel band. Of me, St. Peter, there is no doubt. There is nothing from heaven to bar me out. I've been to meeting three times a week. And almost always I'd rise and speak.

"I've told the sinners about the day. When they should repent of their evil way; I've told my neighbors, I've told them all. 'Bout Adam and Eve and the primal fall; I've shown them what they'd have to do. If they'd pass to heaven as the chosen few."

"I've marked the path of duty clear. Laid out the plan of their whole career. 'I've talked and talked to them loud and long. For my lungs are good and my voice is strong. So, good St. Peter, you'll clearly see. The gate of heaven is open to me. But Jiggs here, I regret to say. Hasn't walked in exactly the narrow way."

they? Well, if they don't like our party and our noise they can move out; and as far as ye ben a deputy, well, all I've got ter say is that yer a hot specimen of a deputy, and with that he shoved the palm of his hand against my face with considerable force and back on to the walk I added on my shuffles. Well, I couldn't restrain that position very long so I up and charged the front door again. This time, however, I was met by the lady of the house, armed with a big-handled fire shovel. Said she, "You're a deputy sheriff, are you? I just think that you are nothing more than one of Bob Shuler's scoundrels, and you can take that back to the Reverend Bob (Los Angeles' vice crusader and anti-Catholic agitator), with my compliments, and tell him it's too bad that one Sunday morning they sent me myself without his interference," and with that she smashed an earthen flower pot over my head which put me down and out for the count of ten or more. When I came to, the party was still in progress, going stronger than ever. But with the aid of a neighbor I was able to telephone the captain for reinforcements, which arrived an hour later and put the whole crowd under arrest. I lost two days' time at the trial and incurred the everlasting enmity of the ice man and some others. So I moved back into town from the quiet spot in the county. I gave up my badge; I now pay street car fares and pay cash for my theatre tickets, and I do not feel obligated to pay for ten tickets to the theatre; and the police and barber when the office still sends me each year. I am no longer a deputy serving without pay. I am not called up in the night to muzzel a crowing rooster or a howling dog. I am a free man now. I am going to remain as I know myself, which I think I do."

The sheriff's office in the county is an elective one. Can you imagine what a nice little political machine he has under his control with nearly a thousand paid employees and 4,200 others who work for glory! All of this crowd, going for the chief along about election time certainly makes it more or less difficult for an opposing candidate. There will be several in the field next year, however, and a warm time is being predicted by those who claim to know all about Los Angeles politics."

The weather in Los Angeles is not again after two weeks of fog and cold. The thermometer today got up to 91 in Los Angeles and 102 in Pasadena. We are all back into our summer togs once more. Perhaps the Monday morning 1.10 a.m. Oct. 2, earthquake has had something to do with the weather. This last quake was quite severe, but no particular damage was done. No one got any sleep for the rest of the night, for we all expected that there would be one or more shak's coming along at any time. The shak's certainly put the fear of the great unseen in one.

ARM IN SLING WITH NEURITIS

"A token of gratification" this woman says is she is giving when she writes of her fight with neuritis.

"For twelve months I have had neuritis in my arm, and up till the last two weeks have had to carry it in a sling. Since then I have abandoned my sling, am able to sleep undisturbed, and can perform household duties that previously I would not have done. These benefits I have received from Kruschen Salts. This all happened in two weeks, and I am optimistic enough to think that in another fortnight I shall have said good-bye to neuritis once and for all. Can't this be a testimonial if you choose—to me it is a token of gratification."—(Mrs. N. E. L.)

Neuritis is a result of impurities in the blood. And it is impure blood, circulating all over the system and setting up inflammation in the tissues, that causes these excruciating pains. Kruschen Salts can be safely trusted to set the matter right. Because Kruschen contains just what Nature needs to persuade your internal organs back into a healthy, normal condition.

way: He smokes and swears and grave faults he's got. So I don't know whether he will pass or not. "He never could pray with earnest Or go to revivals or join in a hymn; While I the sins of my neighbors bore He gabbled about with that Dinty Moore; He made a practice of staying out late, Which is a sin you know all women hate; But at last when he did come home, The rolling pin went straight for his dome.

"I know him, St. Peter, know him well. To escape from me he'd go to hell; But St. Peter, I need him badly here. And hope you can see your way quite clear. On earth I bore a heavy cross, Give me in heaven still Jiggs to boss; I've brought my rolling pin, plates and jars To keep him dodgin' among the stars.

"But say, St. Peter, it seems to me. This gate isn't kept as it ought to be. You ought to stand by the opening there. And never sit down in the easy chair; And say, St. Peter, my sight is dimmed, And I don't like the way your whiskers are trimmed; They're cut too wide, with an outward toss; They'd look better narrower and straight across."

St. Peter sat quiet and stroked his staff. But a spile of his office he had to laugh. Then he said to the woman with a flash in his eye, "Who's tending this gate, Maggie, or you or I?" Then he rose in his stature, grim and tall. And pressed a button against the wall. And said to the Angel who answered the bell, "Escort this female around to hell."

Slowly Jiggs turned, by habit bent. To follow where his Maggite went. St. Peter standing on duty there. Saw that the top of his head was bare; He called the old boy back and said: "Jiggs, how long has that been there?" "Thirty years," he answered with a weary sigh. And then he thoughtfully added, "Why?"

St. Peter stood silent with his head bent down. He raised his head and scratched his crown; Then seeming a different thought to take, Slowly half to himself he spake: "Thirty years with that woman there. No wonder the man hasn't any hair; Swearing is wicked and smoking's not good; He smoked and swore, I should think he would."

"Thirty years with that tongue so sharp! Ho Angel Gabriel, give him a harp, A jeweled harp, with a golden string. Good sir, pass in where the angels sing. And Gabriel gave him a seat alone. One with a cushion, up near the throne. "Call up some angels to play their best. For Jiggs has surely earned a rest. "See that on finest ambrosia he feeds. He's had about all the hell he needs; It's certainly not the thing to do. To roast him on earth and in heaven, too. "They gave him a harp with golden strings. A glittering robe and a pair of wings; And Jiggs looking down from his high level Thought of Maggite and felt sorry for the devil."

On Saturday evening, October 14, Miss Hilda Christie gave a party to her high school girls and some of the older ones, at the home of Mrs. Maurice Potter. The rooms were lavishly decorated with Halloween black cats and witches, with streamers of black and orange. The evening was spent in games and contests, after which the girls sat down to a delicious lunch. Thelma Potter proposed a vote of thanks to Miss Christie for giving them such a happy evening, and this was followed by three hearty cheers, given with a will. The table was most attractively decorated; the centerpiece was a bowl of golden apples, flanked by two grinning jack-o'-lanterns. From the orange shaded lights cats and pumpkins hung and paper clouds of pumpkins and witches floated in the air. Each girl read aloud the fortune found in her place card. Surviving are his wife, formerly Mrs. Annie Ross, of Culloden; on son, Angus, and one daughter, Mrs. Dora Ross, all of Culloden. Church Floor Gives Way During Funeral Service

The floor of the Centreville Baptist church gave way, without warning, yesterday afternoon, during the funeral services conducted for the late Mrs. Ralph Nesbitt, who passed away in a Boston hospital, on Sunday last.

The church was packed to capacity; every seat on the main floor was occupied while others were standing in the gallery above. Just as Rev. J. T. Dimock, the pastor, commenced his sermon, a loud crack, like the report of a gun, was heard, and the floor of the edifice gave way. The congregation left their seats and rushed to the doors. Fortunately, no one was injured during the stampede.

There is no cellar under the building, and the drop was only a short distance. After the floor settled about half the congregation returned, but the remainder stayed outside.

The visitors and continued singing, and the large congregation was too much for the weakened timbers.

Mrs. Nesbitt, who was the daughter of Mrs. Carey Raymond and the late Matthew Raymond, of Rosway, passed away after undergoing a serious operation in Boston. Her remains were brought to Centreville on Tuesday, and interred in the Ross-way cemetery yesterday afternoon.

She was 47 years of age, and is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary, her husband and a large family of children, in Centreville.

Veterans Appeal to the Business Men.

To the Editor of the Courier: Sir—Will you kindly publish the following appeal to the merchants and business proprietors of the County of Digby:

To the Merchants and Business Proprietors of Digby County:—May I appeal to you, as representatives of the Canadian Legion, request that you all observe the spirit of remembrance, which is so dear to the ex-service man and woman. November 11th is a statutory holiday in each year, now called Remembrance Day.

May we expect that all the proprietors of any business will observe it as such? It surely is not asking you to do very much, as we, the ex-service men and women, only ask you to observe one day each year to honor the memory of all our comrades who have made the supreme sacrifice not only for us but for you. At the time when they enlisted you said that nothing was too good for them. Now we, the ones who are still living, remind you of your pledge and statements at that time, and call upon you, one and all, to pause and then we know that you will do your duty and will accept this day as we desire; and that you will be present yourselves at any service that is held in your own community, or will go to the nearest place where there is a service and take part in it. I am asking you to advertise that you are planning on doing as I request, and that you will show the appreciation that all of you should feel.

Digby Kiwanis Club Is Again the Holder of Treasure Chest

Fourteen members of the Saint John Kiwanis Club crossed to Digby yesterday via the Canadian Pacific Steamship Princess Helen, with the Kiwanis Treasure Chest, now on its way back to Sydney. The Saint John sent the chest to the Kiwanis Club Kiwanians crossed in order to pre-

The presentation took place at the club luncheon, which had been postponed from Monday in order to suit the Saint John Club. After the guests were welcomed by P. W. Holdsworth, mayor of Digby and president of the Digby Kiwanians, John Kennedy, on behalf of the Saint John Club, expressed the appreciation of himself and his fellow members for the reception and entertainment given them by the Digby Club.

The chest was presented to Digby by John Flood, president of the St. John Kiwanis Club, who in a few brief remarks, stated that the chest did not contain treasure of material value, but treasures of friendship, fellowship and good will. He congratulated the Digby Kiwanians on their efforts that they had taken in their club and on their meeting place—the Princess Helen.

R. H. Lockward, vice-president of the Digby Club and president elect for 1934, accepted the chest for the Digby Club. The Kiwanis Treasure chest started from Sydney about two years ago, and has been carried to the various Kiwanis clubs in the Maritime Provinces. The Digby club received it from Yarmouth early in the summer, and in August carried it to Saint John, from whence it went to Stephen. It is now making the return trip to Sydney.

At yesterday's luncheon Arch Dilg was song leader, with Fred Rockwell presiding at the piano, and the ab-

Too Big for Their Town—And We Have Them in Digby.

The Shelburne Coast-Guard says: In every community there are people who feel too big for their town, so to speak. They turn their noses up at about everything in the place in which they live. The town stores do not keep the goods they want; the town ministers and the church choirs do not measure up to what ministers and choirs are just best; the town streets are just best; the town councillors don't know anything; the town newspaper is only a rag; the town orchestra is not fit to dance to; a local exhibition is too small a thing to attend; the movies are in the, etc., etc., etc.

We have all met such people. They are in every town and are about the smallest part of their community. "Smart Ales" is a good name for them.

Fair, constructive criticism is proper, but the everlasting fault finding by those people who never find anything in their lives to make things better in their town, is rather difficult to stand. They think themselves rather clever and seem to hold the opinion that they are superior to their fellows, but really they make themselves ridiculous and a weight on the wheels of progress. Compare them with those who work for the upbuilding of industries and other endeavors in a town and there's a wide gap seen between them, a gap so big that a flying machine couldn't cover the distance in a million years.

If these wiseacres could only see themselves as others see them, they would snap out of it, that is if they have any sense at all.

"Don't be too big for your town."

Have your photograph taken NOW—pay for it in December. Leave a small deposit, and I will hold delivery till you are ready.—Paul Yates.

Temporary Repairs Made to Tiverton Bridge.

Temporary repairs have been made to the drawbridge at Tiverton, which collapsed during the heavy rains of Wednesday, of last week, thus reopening traffic over the whole island. Considerable of the concrete breastwork and pillars which fell under underrived by the great rush of water, has been cleared away, thus making it possible to get boats in or out of the "pond", or inner harbor. The scow, used to transport autos over Little Passage, was one of the craft trapped in the pond by the collapse of the bridge, and for a time it was impossible to get cars on or off the island, unless they were taken by steamer to Yarmouth. The scow has since been freed.

Workmen are at work clearing away the other debris and blasting out the fallen supports.

HOSPITAL DONATION DAY

On Armistice Day of last year the Ladies' Hospital Aid Society inaugurated the first Donation Day for the Digby General Hospital. It proved most successful, so much so that it is to become an annual custom, and the public is again cordially invited to visit the Hospital on Armistice Day, this year.

Tea will be served from 3 to 5.30 o'clock, in the Hospital Reception Room, and visitors welcomed by a committee of the Ladies' Hospital Aid Society. Any donations, large or small, will be most gratefully received—preserves, pickles, vegetables, groceries, linens or money are all acceptable.

On Armistice Day we remember the sacrifice and suffering of those who served in the Great War. May our gratitude find tangible expression in this opportunity to help the Hospital which is ministering to those who suffer today.

Special Session of the County Court at Little Brook.

At a special session of the County Court, held at Little Brook, Clare, last Tuesday, with Court Judge, J. A. Grierson, presiding, the civil suit of Melanson vs. Campbell, for replevin action for damages, was settled between parties before the trial. This case was transferred to the County Court by the Supreme Court. The plaintiff's solicitor was Smith and Stehelin, of Yarmouth, while Frank Jones, K. C., was solicitor for the defendant.

Hallowe'en Franks Cause Some Annoyance.

Hallowe'en passed off very quietly in Digby. The youngsters were in force but their fun was of the innocent variety and caused only amusement. So far as we have been able to find out only one case of malicious mischief is evident, and that is the tearing down of the fence around the vacant Winfield lot, near the station. But in Weymouth and Bear River the mischief was apparently done by older people. In both towns the road drags were hauled away and damaged to a certain extent, and in Weymouth a heavy four-wheel wagon was put on the roof of the shed in connection with H. W. Taylor's store. Bridges were torn up, tires of parked cars deflated, and signs removed all over the town. In Weymouth the R. C. M. P. are investigating.

Sudden Death of Prominent Canadian.

A short time ago Omer Blinn, of Grossex Coques, well known in Digby and all over the country, received his commission of government store keeper, at Meteghan. The Courier is informed that he was at the store on Tuesday, receiving instructions. He returned home and after supper lay down to rest on a lounge. In a few minutes he rose, put his hand up to his throat and remarked: "I feel as if I am choking" took a couple of steps and fell dead.

At the last meeting of the Digby School Board it was decided to install an automatic clock in the heating plant of the Academy building. The installation will be made in the near future.

The services on Sunday at the United Church of Canada, will be Digby, 11 a. m., and 7 p. m.; Sunday School, 10 a. m.; Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in the morning, Bayview, 3 p. m.

Pipe and material for the water extensions sanctioned by a recent meeting of the Digby Repayers have been ordered, and are expected to arrive soon so that work can commence immediately.

On Wednesday, the Masons of this district, which comprises all the Masonic lodges from Freeport to Bear River, held in annual session in Bear River. There was a very large attendance at both the afternoon and evening sessions. The Grand Master, R. V. Harris, gave a very interesting account of his masonic trip to Europe—a convention of Masonic grand officers.

URGES SQUARE DEAL FOR THE YOUNG MEN OF DIGBY

To the Editor of the Courier:

During the summer just closed there were at least twenty young men without work in the town of Digby. Was this due to the Depression?

What about the twenty or more young men who came in and worked in the summer hotels? Why couldn't our Digby boys have handled these jobs just as well? It's not because they don't try to get the jobs.

If twenty outside business men came into this town and started to do business without a permit or license of any kind, the Digby merchants and business men would soon sit up and take notice, and cry for protection. The town council would drive the outsiders out of town. Are not the young men of Digby supposed to be the future business men and citizens. How about a little protection for them? There are enough jobs to be had in Digby during the summer months to give all the town boys work.

The hotels are not the only ones not giving the boys a "square deal".

Out of forty young men hired along the front street and business section, sixteen are town boys; the rest are from out town. I am not trying to say that the out of town boys do not do their work well, but I do think that the Digby boys could do just as well.

Next spring there will be a new bunch of graduates from the Digby High School. They will look for work. Will they find it? They might, unless some high school graduate from another town, who says he is working his way through college, comes in and claims the job.

A Young Man of the Town

(The above letter is worthy of consideration, but has the writer looked thoroughly into the matter? The Courier is possibly one of the offenders; we have, on several occasions, secured help from out of town. But was it our fault? In the fifteen years that the present editor has had to do with the printing business in this town, he has only had two applications from Digby boys, and in both cases they were taken on and have developed into good printers. The late Oakes Dunham told me at one time that he had a waiting list of 37 boys who wanted to learn the trade. We have had two in fifteen years, and have had to go outside the town to secure help. Last winter, in a cobbling shop, I heard a young man complaining about being unable to get work as a young man of a man who wanted help at the time. I mentioned it to the man, and he replied: "To hell with it," he replied; "he sees me every day and if he wants me he can ask me." That's not the way to get a job.—Editor Courier.)

The house was trimmed with the Hallowe'en color scheme of black and orange. Ghosts, skeletons and all kinds of weird creatures were much in evidence. For the first part of the evening the guests were entertained by a novelty bridge, then followed games, dancing and fortune telling.

Before leaving for their homes the guests were served delicious refreshments.

Council Asks Highway Board For A New Agreement

A resolution asking the Provincial Highway Department to cancel the existing agreement between them and the town of Digby, in so far as the street through the business section is concerned, and that a new agreement pertaining to the approaches of the town only, be drawn up, was passed at the regular meeting of the Digby Town Council.

According to the existing agreement the town pays one-half and the Highway Department the other half of the cost of the upkeep of the main road through the town, the work to be supervised by the Highway Board. The condition of the street through the business section has been quite unsatisfactory this year.

W. W. Hayden, supervisor of streets and water in his report, stated that the constant rains during the month of October had done considerable damage to the town streets. He reported that a sidewalk had been put down on the north side of Mount Street between First and Second Avenues. This has been rebuilt and a two foot pipe and bridge put in near the Church of England to replace the old one, foot drainage pipe.

He also reported that water services had been improved. Fred Wilson and Charles Mount, the Hydrant at the corner of Water and Sydney Streets had been dug up and the drain put in order.

The reservoir fence which was blown down by a recent north east gale has been replaced. The new fence, which cost in the vicinity of $200 requires some 200 feet less fencing than the old one. The new fence, five feet high, is built with cedar posts and fox wire with a two inch mesh.

A letter from the Board of Railroad Commissioners was read asking that the town put "stop" signs on each side of the Mount Street Railroad Crossing where a level crossing accident occurred a few weeks ago. The matter was referred to the streets committee.

A statement from the Digby Civic Band was received showing a receipt of $1192.71 to date with a balance of $6.67 on hand, with outstanding accounts to be paid in the vicinity of $200.

The town accounts showed a small credit balance at the end of the month, but during the last two months payments will be very heavy and the council urges that the ratepayers do their share to help the town meet its expenditures.

Captain Charles Lewis, of Saint John, was in town Monday en route to Freeport to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, the late Ralph Morrell.

DANGEROUS WORDS: "THEY SAY."

The truth and faith which the average person places in the claims of patent medicine advertisements, get-rich-quick specialists, quack doctors and others of their ilk forever stands as one of the greatest obstacles to the human mind, theoretic as a reasoning and intelligent organism.

There are two words in the English language that have caused no end of trouble. When they are applied to the healing art they frequently do great damage. The words are "they say."

"They say that a certain old lady cures warts by powow," "they say" that this and the other remedy is good for headaches; "they say" that the highly advertised medicine in the ornate package will cure anything from housemaid's knee to cancer; "they say" that the herb doctor at the crossroads cured a woman whose case has been "given up" by the big city specialists. Yes, "they say" and "they say." Who says doesn't matter. The main thing is to believe and act accordingly.

Faith in the medicine and the doctor is of considerable value but there is such a thing as misplaced faith. Is it reasonable for diagnosis by advertisement and "they say" friends to succeed where diagnosis by a reputable physician fails? It doesn't sound reasonable and yet millions are diagnosing real or imaginary ailments by the patent medicine ads, almanacs and hear-say cases.

A man's success is not measured by the number who cheer him, but by the number who envy him.

WHY ADVERTISED GOODS SELL

There are many reasons why advertised goods sell best. In speaking of nationally advertised foods, for example, travellers are able to purchase the same brand of cracker in the East as in the West, in the North as in the South—and all of them are equally good and crisp.

And the same principles apply to all merchandise and goods made and sold locally. The buyer knows that a local advertiser is ready to stand behind his product because his advertising is proof of his confidence.

The advertiser is known and has pledged himself to stand back of his merchandise. He has given his printed word to the general public and must keep it. It is the mark of good faith and is recognized by buyers the world over as such.

Almost without exception, all of the improvements in packages or other containers have been the direct outcome of advertising.

As a rule, it isn't mere success a man craves, but the privilege of getting ahead of somebody he doesn't like.

THE MODERN HUNTER

Forth into the forest straightway Goes the modern Hunter with his automatic rifle. With his belt of leaden bullets. And the furred and feathered creatures Scamper from the path of thunder; But he neither sees nor hears them. For his thoughts are of the red deer.

Sees an object in the distance. Sees the bush shake for an instant. Feels the blood surge in the temples. Feels the heart thump at his collar. Now excited at the motion. Aims; and shaking pulls the trigger. Runs to overtake his quarry—But old Dobbin keeps on feeding.

Just another little error. In another day of fun. Just another damn illusion. Or another fool—and fun.

K. C. Woodman, of Digby, was a summer guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Fowl, at Weymouth North, on Tuesday of last week.

SYSTEM OF DEALING WITH CRIMINALS IS WRONG

The Social Service Council of Canada Passes Resolutions Regarding the Matter

Resolved, that this Executive Committee of The Social Service Council of Canada has long been an opinion that the system of dealing with criminals in operation in Canada is antiquated, inefficient and cruel. It finds that at present there is widespread uneasiness with regard to the treatment of prisoners in some of the penal institutions of our country. This uneasiness is due in part to serious disturbances which took place in two penitentiaries, to the facts brought out in evidence at the trials of some of the inmates involved in these disturbances, and to certain definite and serious charges laid by well-known criminals against some of these institutions. In addition there are on record the findings of the Royal Commission of 1914, and of a Committee to Advise on Revision of Penitentiary Regulations of 1921. Their report the Commission stated: "It is a policy based on error and misapprehension." The Committee of 1921 stated: "Speaking for themselves, the members of the Committee would not, before undertaking this investigation, have believed that the penitentiary system could have been as needlessly cruel as it is in fact." The Executive Committee, therefore, for so many years important recommendations by these government-appointed bodies have been ignored by successive governments at Ottawa. The Executive Committee, with satisfaction the statement of General Governor the President of Penitentiaries, showing that recently certain reforms, some of which were recommended by this Council, have been effected, but is strongly of opinion that these reforms (as stated) do not deal with the fundamental defects of the system.

The Executive believes:

1.—That there is urgent need of a thorough investigation, not only of our penal institutions, but of the entire system of dealing with delinquents and criminals, including the administration of justice, the imposition of sentences and classification and treatment of prisoners.

2.—That it is the duty of the Dominion government at the earliest possible moment to appoint a non-partisan commission of competent persons to make such an investigation and to recommend such measures as are necessary to increase the efficiency of our methods of dealing with crime, having in mind two chief objectives: (a), the protection of society, and (b) the reformation, so far as possible, of the criminals.

It is further resolved that this Executive appoint a committee, with power to add to its members, who shall present this matter to the Dominion government and press for immediate action. That this committee be instructed to seek at once the co-operation of all religious bodies and other organizations; and individuals interested in this matter.

Wilfred Comeau passed the week end at his home, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Comeau. Mr. Comeau is employed in Digby.

Felix Comeau, Elie Comeau, Germain Comeau and Jean Elie Comeau, all of this place, pupils of St. Anne's College, at Church Point, visited their homes Saturday. This holiday was given in honor of the feast of the Sacred Heart, which was Friday. On Sunday they sang at Mass and Vespers in St. Mary's Church. The church was well decorated and Mass was sung by Rev. Father Dren. He was assisted by the Rev. Fathers Fitzgerald and Auerve.

Miss Modeste Comeau, of this village, who is now a student at the Sacred Heart Academy, Yeghan, visited her parents recently.

A pound party was given to Mrs. Emile Comeau and her children, last Saturday. Many friends gathered there and an enjoyable evening was spent.

MORE ABOUT "TEETOTALER"

I promised a second story last week as to the beginnings of this use of that word, "teetotaler." The Preston story, already told, seems like a reasonable explanation of how such a word began. But here comes another, of somewhat earlier date, and claiming the American continent as its habitat. It, too, like its counterparts of British lineage, traces its origin to modernism and total abstinence.

The first total abstinence society (as that term had meaning in those days), formed in Hecol, New York, in 1818, had its beginning strange to say, in a bar room. Several doctors and elders were present at its organization. The tavern keeper himself wished to become a member, and was permitted to do so on condition that he would agree to sell liquor only to travellers. I suppose they thought that the main purpose would be served if the men and boys of the home community were protected from the use of drink. Well, eight years later, Rev. Joel Jewell was invited to join the society. He agreed to do so if the pledge of abstinence was widened to include wine. The society thereupon decided to have two pledges, one for total abstainers from all intoxicants, and the other on the plan of abstinence from distilled liquors. In January, 1827, Mr. Jewell was elected to the office of secretary, and in keeping the records used the letter "O.P." (old plan), before the names of the latter class, and the letter "T" before the names of the total abstainers. Things went on the old plan pledgers steadily adopting "total" abstinence. Within two years the members were all marked at "T's" and had come to refer to themselves as "T-teetotalers." It is claimed that this record is well attested by H. K. Carroll, in his book, "One Hundred Years of Temperance," and on the basis of this story the writer of the page before me sets down the first total abstinence society in Hecol, N. Y., and not in Preston, England, which came five years later.

We may leave the question of dates and origins to the better equipped historian. It is of the utmost importance, however, that we catch the spirit of advance from moderation to total abstinence from all alcoholic beverages. If they of a century ago, rose to "tee-totalism" in their struggles for social well-being, how can we justify ourselves with less in this day of wider experience, more scientific knowledge, and for higher physical, mental and moral demands?

Capt. H. B. Fitzgerald, of Weymouth North, was in Digby on municipal business on Tuesday of last week.

WEYMOUTHIAN VISITS DOG CEMETERY

The following extract is from a letter of a Weymouthian, travelling in the United States. Thinking it might be as interesting and amusing to our readers as it was to us, we pass it on:

"We stopped at the famous dog cemetery, in Hartsdale, N. Y., and I jotted down some of the most amusing epitaphs. Can you imagine people spending such large amounts of money on animals. It's kept up perfectly and the monuments are finer than lots of people get. It was all I could do to keep from laughing at some of the epitaphs and I thought we'd be put out by some of the mourners, who were gazing at their dear departed canines. Here are the choicest:

"Booze—He Waits For Us"
"I'd like to have changed that "us" to "it."

"Our Little Pet—No One Will Ever Know How We Miss You."

"My Darling Doodles,"
"Collie, 12 years old. He Was Bred In The Purple and a Gentleman"

"Toy—A Little White Spirit."

"Wiggles—His Sympathetic Love and Understanding Enriched Our Lives."

"Darling Pet—Our Memory of You Will Never Fade."

"My Pet Is Waiting for Me," but here's the masterpiece:

"Joy—Mommie's Only Baby—Bright Little of Love Burned Out Forevermore."

But imagine my consternation when we came to the following:

Journeay
Scrap

What do you think of that?"

HALLOWEEN DINNER

On Monday evening, at the Grand Central Hotel, Mrs. M. F. Rand entertained most delightfully at dinner. Covers were laid for twelve. The guests were received by a tall, silent ghost, who, in the hall, invited only by "pumpkin-griners", presented a truly awe-inspiring appearance. The ladies, directed by a flash of light to the dressing room on the upper floor, received another shock, when at the top of the stairs, another silent ghostly figure met them. However, having successfully passed on, no more ghostly visitants met them, and on returning to the drawing room each guest was handed her name for the evening, such as "Haunted House", "Skeleton in the Closet", "Lonesome Spook", etc. The gentlemen also being named in true Halloween style. By these names places were found at the beautifully decorated tables, the centrepiece being surrounded by favors for each guest, which provided much merriment and a certain amount of noise, musical and otherwise. The very delicious dinner was served by an adroit waitress, in proper Halloween costume, "imported from Boston". For the occasion, and was enjoyed by all. Contract was played during the evening, the honors going to Miss Blanche Purdy and Dr. A. R. Campbell. A toast to the hostess was proposed in sparkling ginger ale before he and she departed—each and every one expressing to Mrs. Rand their delight in having been a chosen friend of the hostess and the "ghost".

PAUL IN JERUSALEM

Golden Text:—Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.—2 Corinthians 3:17.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 15:1-2; 23:1.

Whatever obstacles control, Thine hour will come; go on, true soul, Thou'lt win the prize, thou'lt reach the goal.

Arbitrators Needed, 1-2

It was inevitable that there should be differences of opinion in the early Christian Church. The Gospel was startlingly new, in marked contrast to the thought and practice of the orthodox Hebrew religion. There were only a few apostles who could speak authoritatively and Christians away from Jerusalem had to make precedents rather than follow them. In Antioch a controversy arose as to the terms upon which the Gentiles could become Christians. Did the Gentiles have to become Jews before they could become Christians? At this date it appears a secondary matter, but the whole development of Christianity hinged upon its right solution. Certain men from Judea differed in opinion from Paul and Barnabas over the problem. It was decided that a group should go from Antioch to Jerusalem to get fuller information from the apostles and elders. The dispute was referred to those qualified to pass judgment.

Safely in Numbers, 22

Dictators may possibly be more efficient than parliaments, but the principle of group authority is much more likely to maintain public confidence. One person may be able to represent a point of view better than a dozen spokesmen, but by having several witnesses, there is shade of opinion expressed—Delegations are often blundering and clumsy agencies for getting things done, but when a group reports there is less danger of partnership entering into the statements. Paul and Barnabas were well qualified to present

Feels 50lbs. Slimmer

After Losing Only 5 Lbs.

"I started taking Kruschen Salts a month ago," a young woman writes, "I have lost 5 lbs. in weight, and I feel as if I have lost 50 lbs. I am full of vigor, whereas before I was listless and worried over little things. But if my troubles were doubled, they would not worry me today—thanks to Kruschen."—(Miss) V. P.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat: Take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning, for "It's the daily dose that takes off the fat." When you take Kruschen daily it means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

Modify your diet, and take gentle exercise. The stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are tuned up, and the pure, fresh blood containing these six salts is carried to every part of the body. Then follows "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

the findings of the Jerusalem Council, but as they had been participants in the controversy, it did not seem fair to lay this responsibility upon them. Chosen men went to Antioch in order that the official decision might be given by neutral spokesmen. Questions could be asked and full information received. Delegations and committee justify themselves by the educational processes they initiate.

Put it in Writing, 23

Important committees should be put in writing. A verbal report may change the emphasis of an agreement, and, as memory is short, it is necessary to have documents in greater likelihood of getting every writing for reference. In case of further dispute the written judgment of the Jerusalem Council could be produced and its exact terms known. Copies of the findings could be circulated among the various Christian churches and the opportunity of consulting an official document gave a security impossible to a report circulated by hearsay. The work of men who formulate resolutions, and the task of secretaries who preserve and distribute them may not appear very exciting, but their careful work makes it possible for a consistent policy to be followed over a length of time. Each individual should guard carefully important letters and documents. The pension department has discovered that many married people have not kept their marriage certificates and loan companies find that many people even lose the copies of their mortgages.

Justifiable Compromise, 24-29

The decision of the Jerusalem Council was a compromise. Neither

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—You were good enough to publish my letter of August 31, in which I suggested the organization of a central board of trade to work in co-operation with the local boards in a forward movement for Kings-Annapolis-Digby. Will you kindly give space for another letter in reference to a possible item in such progressive programme?

Recently I visited the Provincial Government Nursery, at Lawrenceville and talked with the manager, Capt. A. M. O. Gold, regarding the work done there. Commercial trees and ornamental trees and shrubs are raised and distributed free throughout the province and experiments are carried on, seeking new varieties suited to our climate and soil.

There are about a million trees and shrubs now growing in the nursery. Half a million were distributed in 1932 and this year about 350,000, of which about 38,000 were ornamental. Although there is evidence of increasing interest yet it is still true that more appreciation of the value of the nursery is manifest outside than within this constituency. Situated right in our midst it would appear that much greater use might be made of this nursery.

In various European countries every unused bit of ground is planted with trees of commercial value. There is vacant land in the southern part of Kings, Annapolis and Digby counties which might be growing trees, and there are areas growing poplar, or other inferior trees, which might be growing more valuable trees such as native spruce, native pine, sitka spruce, scotch pine, Douglas fir or Danish willow. The last named is particularly good for barn! hoops, so Capt. Gold informed me.

There are vacant spots also in the "Valley" proper, which might be set with trees of commercial value. Take for instance, the waste land lying between Aylesford and Newburg, some at least of which probably would grow pine or other useful trees. In Ontario the unemployment situation has been helped out by planting waste lands with trees. Perhaps the side got all it wanted. Both Jews and Gentiles made concessions to each other. This was a triumph of good will made possible by the presence of the spirit of Christ. Both sides to the controversy held their convictions strongly, but at last they saw that Christian brotherhood meant more to them than a debasing victory. They stated the decision as briefly as they could, in moderate language, but making the important decisions stand out clearly. It is to the credit of the apostles that this vexed theological dispute was amicably settled and that first things were placed first. It is often difficult to know how far to yield when a dispute is being arbitrated: there is a point at which conviction may become stubbornness. Perhaps no better general rule can be given than the old Latin advice: "In things essential, unity; in things doubtful, liberty; in all things, charity."

The Question Settled, 30

Luke's brief account of the public meeting in the Antioch church gives no details but we may picture the scene. During the absence of Paul and Barnabas there would be much speculation in Antioch as to how the dispute would be settled. When the deputation arrived, word passed around quickly and the Christians met to hear the decision. Hopes and fears mingled until the epistle from Jerusalem was read. Then there was great joy. They were delighted that the larger view of the Gospel had prevailed and that a victory had been gained over sectarianism. The policy of the Antioch church had been confirmed and the leadership of Paul and Barnabas had been vindicated. The rejoicing, however, was not because this ecclesiastical dispute had been settled in their favor, but because they now felt free without any handicap to go into all the world to preach the Gospel to every creature. Henceforth racial and religious restrictions could be removed. The Christian religion was now on a way to become a worldwide faith.

Questions For Discussion

1. Are religious disputes more bitter than political disputes?
2. How do we know that certain people are trustworthy?
3. When is compromise legitimate?
4. How much influence have resolutions passed by religious organizations?

same plan might be followed at Aylesford.

The free distribution of ornamental trees and shrubs affords the opportunity at small cost to improve the appearance of private grounds, school and other public grounds, and highways.

Twenty-five years ago the railway stations along the Dominion Atlantic line vied with the school grounds in untidiness; but through better care and the planting of flowers and shrubs these places have been made much more attractive. Visitors coming and going by train now receive a favorable impression on their first and last glimpse of the railway station.

For our own benefit and the benefit of those visitors who come by motor, could not an improvement similar to that made at our railway stations, be made on our highways, particularly along Route No. 1, which is becoming more and more a great thoroughfare for through traffic? Sections of this trunk line are very attractive. Could not the remainder be brought up to the same standard of attractiveness? I can envisage the main highway through the Annapolis Valley becoming a widely known as the Mohawk Trail and the Cherry Valley Turnpike and every one coming to the Province wishing to pass over it.

It seems to me that cooperation with the nursery at Lawrenceville might be included in a five year plan for the improvement of the Annapolis Valley.

Famous Steamboat Race of Old Days Recalled

A writer in the Indianapolis News dips into the past with the following description of probably the most famous speed contest that ever took place on the Mississippi:

The river racers Robert E. Lee and the Natchez were both famous boats during the prosperous days of river shipping. The Robert E. Lee, owned by Capt. John W. Cannon, was built at New Albany in 1896. The Natchez was built at Cincinnati by Capt. Thomas P. Leathers. As the boats cruised the river, there was much speculation as to which was the faster. After some negotiation a race was arranged. No fixed rules were adopted, hence each captain had full power to order his boat as he desired. The race started from New Orleans at 5:00 p. m., June 30, 1870, with the Lee four minutes in the lead. The captain of the Lee elected to race without passengers and to strip his vessel of all excess weight. He also followed a course shorter than the route sanctioned for safe navigation. The captain of the Natchez accepted a full passenger list and followed his usual routine except from providing steam to gain time. The Lee reached the goal, St. Louis, at 11:25 a. m., July 4, and the Natchez arrived at 6:00 p. m., the same day. The victory of the Lee was disputed on the grounds that he did not follow the usual course with a cargo and passenger list, but popular opinion favored her.

Good Reason Found for Giving Youth a Chance

It is hard for a parent to realize that youth can solve some of its problems and make some of its decisions without adult interference. The inability of adults to give youth a chance to assume responsibility is of old standing. Most of us are unable to note the growing maturity of a boy. We keep on coddling and fathering him far beyond the point when he can make some of his decisions. Thackeray found the same condition in his day, and out of the accumulation of wisdom gained in his study of mankind, wrote:

"We should pay as much reverence to youth as we should to age, there are points in which you young folks are altogether our superiors; and I can't help constantly crying out to persons of my age, every society, club, or organization needs a frequent change of officers—and the same thing applies to town management."

Of course, we see changes on our council board almost every year, but, in spite of that, those whose "say so" carries weight, are usually the same year after year, and those who find all the fault after all the "say so" has been said and settled, are too, usually the same ones, year after year.

The latter class—I might call them a "clique," too—are the class who like to find fault with everything after it is too late to do anything about it. They haven't the time, energy or "inwards" to make a suggestion or offer their assistance before the work commenced.

The passing of James Handsaker and Ralph Morrell, during the past week, has cast a gloom over the whole county. Both men were well known and highly respected by all, and both were carriers of His Majesty's mails—"Uncle Jim" Handsaker, as he was known by everybody, between Digby and Culloden, and Ralph Morrell between Freeport and Westport, over Grand Passages. Both will be greatly missed, not only in their own communities, but by all of their host of friends, and I would like, in this column, to offer my sympathy to the bereaved ones.

I was one of the passengers to be carried over Grand Passages on the last trip Ralph made. On that day I was returning from Westport, where I had been to get the story of the Ena F. Parsons' wreck, and he very obligingly steered his ferry boat around the wreck so that I could take a few snapshots. That was just two weeks ago last Sunday morning.

Mr. Higgins, Arthur Foster, Miss Estelle Brooks, Joseph Specht and Balfour Schacht. Previous arrangements for the visit were made by the president of the club, John Russell, and it was so successful that the club feels it was well worth while.

Between Ourselves

A short time ago I was discussing town affairs with a Digby business man who said, "the trouble with this town is that it is run by a clique who want to boss everything."

At the time I was inclined to agree with him, but on thinking, the matter over somewhat since then, I wonder

It may be true that there is a certain "clique" who has the reins of our town government pretty well in hand, and that for a number of years this same "clique" has had most of the "say so"—but, come to think of it, is it their fault?

If it were not for them, who else would put themselves to the bother of having anything to do with town affairs? The business of the town has to be done, and when no one else is willing to take a share of the responsibility, except to sit back and criticize, it falls upon the shoulders of the same men—or "clique"—year after year. Personally, I think the majority of these men would appreciate letting somebody else do the "bossing", and would gladly do so, if others would come forward and offer their services; but it is seldom that kickers are of much use in harness, although often there are mighty good grounds for kicking.

Nevertheless, in some respects, I agree with what my friend had to say regarding "the trouble with the town", although, as I have tried to say, I do not quite agree that there is a certain "clique" which tries to rule the roost. To keep from getting "in the rut", every society, club, or organization needs a frequent change of officers—and the same thing applies to town management.

Of course, we see changes on our council board almost every year, but, in spite of that, those whose "say so" carries weight, are usually the same year after year, and those who find all the fault after all the "say so" has been said and settled, are too, usually the same ones, year after year.

THROUGH the years, 1918 to 1933, the world faced constantly changing conditions, many of which have tested the temper of men and nations. There have been years of prosperity and years of want, suffering and poverty. The latter are freshest in memory because even yet in our own nation there are thousands who have not yet solved the immediate problem of peace and plenty . . . But, we still have life . . . and hope . . . and the clouds are breaking. United and striving to a common end of work and place for all, we cannot fail . . . It proves again that the Canadian spirit can and will surmount great obstacles in holding to its ideal of liberty . . . it was that same spirit which carried Canada's young manhood into battles of the world war. Thousands made the supreme sacrifice . . . never again to return to home shores. It is to these brave souls that Remembrance Day is dedicated and observed . . . And it is to these that we will pause to pay tribute tomorrow.

FIFTEENTH ARMISTICE DAY

On this fifteenth anniversary of the ending of the World War the nation mourns her soldiers dead, honors her soldiers living, and with face resolutely to the future voices rededication to the ideals of peace. In this observance there is no glorification of war. There is, indeed, little of the celebration of victory. There is much sober realization of the cost of it all and a grim determination that it shall not come to another generation through fault or omission of ours.

Yet, do we realize the full burden that we bear? It is not enough that we have the will for peace. It is not enough that we refrain from any act that might invite war. We must do more. We must desire and long for peace. Else all our hope and desire and longing are in vain. It profits us little if we merely preach valiantly for peace, or shed a tear as the flag goes by. Let us have the fighting courage to face the issues of the day as they come before us, and do our bit toward guiding national destinies in the path of constructive service.

War or peace is determined by the course of governments. And the course of governments is determined in the long run by the expressed opinion of the people. A people eager for peace with honor will not unjustly be plunged into war. What can we the people do for peace? Think well of our neighbors. Give the stranger the benefit of the doubt even though he speak a different language. And call his God by another name. Be patient of misunderstanding. Be proud, but intolerant of swash-buckling conceit. Realize that a big nation must play a big part and play it nobly.

Let this Armistice Day be a day of plainer comprehension of the old vision, a day of rededication to the old ideals, a day of rebaptism in the old courage.

Men's suits haven't changed much since last year except that some of them look a year older.

SELF RESPECTING COMMUNITIES

A man who has no self respect is pretty near down and out. Other people will not respect him. People must hold up their heads, and act as if they were somebody. A man who slinks along the street anxious to keep out of sight, will not win friends.

Communities are much the same. If the town is not respected by its people, if they will not speak well of it, other people will not respect it. It will be regarded as a backward or decadent place, from which nothing can be expected. And yet such communities have plenty of good people, they have done useful things in the past. Their citizens should see that they get credit for these achievements, and when given such credit, people are encouraged to go ahead to still greater accomplishment.

If your children never lie to you, it just shows that the influence of example has been overestimated.

SENTENCE SERMONS

Rev. Roy L. Smith.

The Worth of a picture is in the great thoughts it starts;
—A friend is the power to inspire in time of trouble;
—A home is in the refuge it provides;
—A book is in the ideas it leaves with its readers;
—A vacation is in the spirit it creates;
—A law is in the justice it establishes;
—A machine is in the emancipation it provides for the worker.

Little Miss Eileen Woodman, of Digby, was a guest of her aunt, Mrs. R. B. Powell, at Weymouth, North, on Tuesday of last week.

JAPAN HITS THE TRAIL

I have just read a newspaper report of an address on Temperance Work in far away Japan. The speaker was a young woman missionary who has spent several years in the Orient, and, home on tour, spoke recently on this aspect of life in her sphere of service. It seems that over in Japan the wine-drinking custom is of long standing, and long-standing that is a big solidified and are hard to knock down in any country. But the law of change affects even the most theodest things after all, and even Japanese wine-drinking is feeling the nudge of necessity and progress.

W. C. T. U., that wonderful vociferous, has been at work, a Japanese Temperance League that has been carrying on for thirty-five years. Though these have made, and are making, good headway, they seem like a drop or two in a large bucket, but even drops count. The ocean itself is but an infinity of drops. And do you know that today there are as many as thirty temperance ships in the maritime service of Japan, in which all officers and crew are total abstainers from alcoholic liquors? Then there are temperance mines and temperance factories of which the same thing is true. And there are no fewer than seventeen villages in which the entire population abstain from the use of intoxicants. A law has been passed forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquor to persons under twenty-one years of age, and a movement is in progress to limit the sale of liquor to twenty-five years. It is possible that the economic urge helps out the efficiency and moral demands. But these ever make up a great trio for progress in all countries. With apologies to the great hymn writer, we may refashion his wonderful lines for the occasion:

"So o'er each continent and island
The dawn foretells the coming day.
When all earth's peoples wake to wisdom
And throw the curse of drink away.
BANKRUPT, NOT YET?
We talked to a man the other day whom the courts had declared bankrupt—and he was smiling.
"Bankrupt?" he commented, as we walked down the corridor from federal court, "not yet!"
And we had been feeling sorry for him! We sat in federal court with this tall, lean man with graying hair answering the questions of his attorney and gave his assets—the result of the work of a lifetime—at a few hundred dollars, while his liabilities reached into the thousands. We thought: this man is surely beaten; he has spent a lifetime building up a business to see it smashed by a few years of bad luck and depression.

But we didn't know our man. As we continued down the street he said: "In a few years I shall have these debts paid back. You know, even if I am bankrupt, I'm certainly going to pay back all their old accounts and start clean. My creditors had faith in me, and it is no fault of theirs that the going was too tough. So, when I am on my feet again they will all be repaid—with interest. I'm still young—only Bankrupt? The courts are mistaken. It is only a figure of speech; so many assets, so many liabilities. But the dull law books do not count the bigger assets that a man of courage holds. So many dollars, so many cents. How about courage, faith and hope?

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

If the League of Nations is to continue and be a factor in world affairs, it must have the whole hearted support of those who would see it flourish. Those who still believe that the League can help our stricken world and save it from further catastrophe must gather around it this autumn in good faith. The League will be just what the nations choose to make it. Evidently few choose to make it effective.

If it muddles on it also will fade away. It will be deserted by one power, then another. By the time the new building is ready to house all the delegates at Geneva there will be no delegates; nobody but the army of secretaries, highly-paid, and therefore eager supporters of the muddle and shuffle. The false friends of the League will then not be required to pretend, they will be able, with sighs of relief, to go on preparing for the next war and the utter ruin of civilization.

Miss Helen Andraut, of New Edinburgh, and Mrs. J. Comeau, of Meteghan, were delegates from the Clare Branch of the Women's Institute to the annual meeting, held at Truro, last week.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

This is the day the pact was signed.

This is the day peace was declared.

But why should they have ever fought?

Why could these lives have not been spared?

Was it for greed or private grudge? Was it for love of all mankind? Or was it just to show the world That man still ruled by warlike mind?

Did Nations cry aloud for war. Or was it an ambitious few Who stopped at naught to gain their end. Nor thought, nor cared, for me and you.

This war took millions of our best. It crippled more beyond reclaim. And naught that we can ever do Will half repay them for the same. Oh God! We pray that wars may cease.

That swords be into ploughshares beat. And differences that may arise Be settled at Thy mercy seat.

For we can only look for peace When warlike minds shall cease to be.

And if we war with fellow men We can't claim loyalty to Thee.

COMEAUVILLE

Henry Comeau and Leo Melanson, who have been employed in the Annapolis Valley, for some time, have returned.

A three-act comedy was presented at Little Brook hall, on Saturday evening, by a number of young folks, under the direction of Albert Melanson, of Church Point.

A little time spent in investigation will reveal the rather startling fact that the Japanese competition at which all the world is talking, or at least the business part of it, is actually welcomed by many consumers.

The goods are cheap and in most instances of poor quality, but not so poor that they do not represent some value for the money. Unfortunately, many consumers seem to think they can no longer afford to buy quality goods and must buy cheap goods made by cheap labor, thereby cutting down the cost of living.

Well, that does not cut down the cost of living. It's the same old story. When you buy goods made in a foreign country, you help that country. When you buy goods made in your own country, you help not only your own country but yourself as well.

The way to combat foreign competition is to have quality merchandise and advertise it continuously in the newspapers. Advertising creates demand. It creates a desire to possess, and if enough advertising is done—not once in a while but all the while—consumers won't buy anything else and the problem of foreign competition is solved.

They "Bundled-up" for Winter Sports . . . in the days when Surprise Soap was first made

- Until housewives learned, nearly 50 years ago, that Surprise Soap did a quicker wash with less work, the winter flannels were a real wash-day problem.
- Surprise does not waste away in water, but makes rich lasting suds that reach and loosen every speck of dirt without the need of heavy rubbing. Soiled garments of everyday wear are revived into fragrant, gleaming cleanliness.
- Surprise Soap is thorough, but it acts so gently that even delicate garments are never harmed in the least. Its clean, wholesome smell is evidence of its purity and it will always be found a long-lasting, economical soap.

• Half a century ago the annual freeze-up was hailed with delight—at least as far as outdoor enjoyment went—and to be able to figure-skate with delicate grace was a social requisite.

"Quality First" was the policy adopted when the first bar of Surprise Soap was made in St. Stephen, N.B., 49 years ago.

This policy has never been altered and the quality has improved with advancing knowledge, keeping pace with modern requirements.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE GAME ASSOCIATION

To the Editor of the Courier:
Sir—Knowing the keen interest you take in the matter of fish and game conservation, and in virtue of the tremendous value of the fish and game to our province, I ask you to please give publicity to this short letter.

The annual meeting of the Annapolis-Digby County Fish and Game Protective Association will take place in the Town Hall, Annapolis Royal, on Thursday November 16th, at 2.30 o'clock, p.m. (sharp). Now, Mr. Editor, we expect you to be there to every man and woman interested in this important subject. We will have authentic reports from various sections on Moose and Deer, and on the Fishing situation. From the information gleaned we shall be able to form our resolutions to send to the Nova Scotia Fish and Game Protective Association. We expect to have Dr. A. C. Fales to report on the splendid work done on the rearing ponds at Grand Lake; Mr. James Catt, of Saint John, to tell us about the stocking of our streams; Mr. Clarence Mason, to report on the Sanctuaries; and a representative of the Lands and Forests department to give us information and advice. I hereby urge all who read this letter to make a special effort to be present. We desire your knowledge and advice. What you have to say will not, doubt, affect the game laws of 1934. November 16th is the time to act. Come and bring others with you. A special invitation to the ladies.

A. W. L. Smith
President Annapolis-Digby Counties Fish and Game Protective Assn.

SCHOOL NEWS

A Correction

First Prize at the Halifax Exhibition on the class, "Best School Note Book", was won by Helen Delaney, of Grand Central, and by Ivan Shortliffe, as stated in the list of awards already published. I take this opportunity to apologize for this error, knowing that Helen will realize how easy it is to make such a mistake with a large number of exhibits to handle.

Lower Granville Club

To the list of 4-H clubs, published in the Monthly Club News, should be added the club at Lower Granville, of which Gilbert Ray is president, and David Parker, secretary.

News from North Range

Maud Anderson, secretary of the North Range Junior Red Cross Club, reports regular meetings every second week. Morning health inspection, keeping the floor clean, and a Friday afternoon special programme are their activities to date. They purchased a wash basin with club funds. Songs, recitations, health plays and remarks by visitors were the chief features of their special programme.

From Roxville

The Willing Workers Branch, at Roxville, has the following officers: President—Betty Budd; Vice-President—Beatrice Roberts; Secretary—Kathleen Porter; Treasurer—Robert Bove.

Another Magazine

The 4-H Club at Barton plans to make a 1933-34 issue of the Barton-Brighton News. They are very happy over the success of their last year's issue. Their new club officers are: President—Marjorie Theriault; Vice-President—Arthur Ritchie; Secretary—Beatrice Combs; Treasurer—Roy Amaro. Through the courtesy of the Parent-Teacher Association, the club members enjoyed an interesting and instructive visit to Fort Anne. At their Halloween party they played games and contests. A book, as Citizenship Prize from the Authors of the Empire, is gratefully acknowledged by the secretary.

Announcements

Doris Comeau, Deep Brook, and Geraldine Potter, Upper Clements, won the prizes—a Canadian picture—for the best club reports for October. Please remember that all reports, in future, should bear the name, age, and grade of the reporter.

Acaciaville Fair

The Rural School Fair held at Acaciaville was a decided success. The schools participating were Acaciaville, Hillgrove, and North Range. The quality of the exhibits was good, considering it was the first fair held for these schools. Particularly good were the competitions in Public Speaking, Demonstrations and Singing. The ladies served refreshments at noon and this feature was greatly appreciated and a worthwhile contribution to the programme.

At Barton

Little Miss Georgie Adams, of Barton-Brighton Sunbeams, reports for their group. They are building up a Hiawatha scene on their sand table. Recently they were invited to the Community Hall to see some lantern slides of good Canadian pictures. Jean Lambertson, John d'Amboise, Mildred Combs, and Carlisle Worth, Mary Krausnick, Edith Comest and Georgia Adams are the new officers.

Miss C. Peters, of Lawrenceton, has been a guest of Mrs. W. C. Hankinson, at Weymouth North.

LETTER FROM A MAN OF 90

About His Rheumatism

He asks us to excuse his writing. We do more than that—we congratulate him on being able to write at all at his age, especially as he has been suffering from rheumatism. This is what he says in his letter:

"Three years ago I was in bed for six weeks with the most inflammatory rheumatism. Since that time I have been taking Kruschen Salts, and have not had another attack. But my hands are still somewhat stiff. I take Kruschen every morning before breakfast, and shall continue to do so, because I am sure it has kept me in good shape for three years. Excuse this writing, as I am ninety years old, and use both hands to write."—J. R. G.

Kruschen dissolves away those needle-pointed crystals of uric acid which are the cause of all rheumatic troubles. It will also flush these dissolved crystals clean out of the system. Then if you keep up "the little daily dose," excess uric acid will never form again.

SOLDIER, SHUN!

Once again the fact is brought home to us, that—

"In Flanders fields the poppies grow Between the crosses, row on row."

How vividly it comes back to us and to those others who rest in the lap of mother earth where no poppies are growing and there is no cross to mark the hallowed spot.

"Lest we forget it, men Lest we forget it."

Line up with us and go to the "Armistice Dinner" either at Annapolis Royal or Weymouth, Saturday evening, November 11th. Cars leave Bear River at 5.30 p.m. for Annapolis Royal and some for Weymouth. This dinner is to celebrate that dawn of peace that broke on us at the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, fifteen years ago. All old soldiers welcome. Plenty of cars for all to go.

At 10 a.m., Sunday, we meet at the Legion rooms in Bear River for the purpose of parading to the United Church to listen to our Comrade, Rev. C. L. Gladstone, deliver a memorial sermon. After the service we march to the cemetery to pay our respects to our dead, placing our wreaths on the graves of our comrades. Major Elmer Morgan.

On our return march we place a wreath on behalf of the Women's Institute, on the beautiful soldier's monument which they erected last year. All old soldiers know that everyone (even the cook), must attend church parades. No shirking! Some time between August, 1914, and November, 1918, you felt it your duty to go to war. Why? The wages of those small compared to the wages of those who stayed at home! You did not expect to get rich or you hardly dared hope for great glory and honor. The prospect of being killed or maimed was great, while the hope of coming back with a whole skin was very small. Indeed, you went! Why? For one reason, because you were not shirkers, which fact was further proved in France and Belgium. You did your duty, but there is a "bit" for you to do over here. To the dead, we say:

"Soldier rest, thy warfare o'er."

But those that died have said to us:

"To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high;
If you break faith with those who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders fields."

In your present circumstances you may not need any help, aid or assistance from your comrades, but they, or the dependents of those over whom you have shed blood, may need yours. "In unity there is strength," so I say you can best do your "bit" over here by joining the Legion. You are not a shirker over there, so don't be one now. Come to our Legion rooms in Bear River, on Monday evening, November 13th, between 6 and 8 o'clock. It will only cost you one dollar to join. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in his history of the war, speaking of the Canadians, said:

"Keep the torch burning, if it means a little sacrifice of a little money, time and effort. Listen to the bugle; it is sounding the 'Fall In.' Take your place in our ranks."

L. L. Henshaw
Secretary
Bear River Branch, No. 22.

ADVERTISE IN THE COURIER

Between Ourselves

I'm writing this on Monday, and already it looks as though most of the space in this week's Courier is spoken for. Under the circumstances, I am just going to write enough to let you folks know that I am still on the job.

To-morrow is Remembrance Day, the most significant of our holidays—the anniversary of the order to "Cease Fire" that echoed round the world on November the eleventh, 1918—just fifteen years ago, and which brought to a close the Great War. And of those who answered the call, many never returned from "over there." It is to these brave souls to whom we pay a most reverent tribute—we carry on that they might not have died in vain—that in some manner we may contribute to the ideal of liberty—the alter upon which they gave their all.

To-morrow in Digby and in many other communities Memorial Services will be conducted for our own and for those whose own boys laid down their lives "in Flanders fields" for us—for you and for me, and the generations that will follow after us—and on this Remembrance Day let us pause in sacred remembrance of them—and of those who came back—thousands of them broken in body and spirit. And let us remember that all that made great sacrifices for us—greater than most of us will ever realize—and that all were prepared to give their lives for our freedom.

In this issue several references to Remembrance Day have been made. The authors of these splendid editorials are better able to express their thoughts than I, and therefore, I am leaving any further comments to them.

Digby's Mayor Urges Hard Surfaced Roads

In an address before the Kiwanis Club of Digby, Mayor P. W. Holdsworth, president of the club, stressed the need of hard surfaced roads in this province. He made reference to the depreciation of the fishing, lumbering and other industries of the province, and, unless something is done to save the tourist trade in the Maritimes, we are all bound for the County Poor Farm—the original "tourist hotel," he said.

"Our roads and the dust menace are driving thousands of tourists from our province," he added; "and unless something is done soon to correct the present state of affairs, the tourist trade is doomed."

The falling off of the tourist travel in this province during the years of 1930-1931-1932 and 1933 he attributed largely to the dust menace and not to the depression, for "slump or no slump, the Americans will take a vacation."

He quoted statistics from the American Automobile Chamber of Commerce which went to show that during the year 1932 the American Tourists spent approximately $2,000,000.00 of which 50 millions were spent in Europe, 25 millions in Mexico and 385 millions in Canada. He also cited as evidence that the Americans were still able to travel in that, during this past year 21 million people visited the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

During the year of 1932 a grand total of 221,131 tourists visited the Province of Nova Scotia. At an average of one week for each visitor at an average cost of $8 per day, the tourist traffic means upwards of eight million dollars annually spent in our province, but unless something is done, and something must be done, we are in a grave danger of losing most of our tourist trade, is his opinion.

"The dust menace is our greatest handicap and the surfacing of our highways is our only salvation," he says.

Mayor Holdsworth, who was recently elected president of the Land and Water Conservation Association, attended a meeting of that body at the Maritime Board of Trade Convention at Kentville on Wednesday.

PAUL IN MACEDONIA

Golden Text:—"Believe on the Lord Jesus, and thou shalt be saved."—Acts 16:31.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 16: 9-15, 25-31.

"If I could get straight away From the centre of my own weaving— And kneel down—

But the little shuttles of thought Fly so fast, so fast, I am defeated by their whirl, Engaged in my own web, And choked by the ephemera of self."

—Jane Steger

Windy Troy, 9

Battle fields form the background of this lesson. Paul had come to Troas famed by Homer as "the ringing plains of windy Troy." There the forces of Europe and Asia met and by virtue of the prowess of the Greeks, Europe had won. Paul did not visit Troas, however, as a tourist inspecting a battlefield; he was on an errand of peace. Yet he was a campaigner, laying large plans, and seeking conquests for Christ. At Troas he had a vision of a man of Macedonia, pleading with him to cross the Aegean sea and help the people of Macedonia. It may be that Luke was the man whose entreaty inspired the vision. Paul's plans were not fixed, he had considered several fields of work, but without clear conviction. The invitation for Macedonia appeared to be a case of guidance, but this guidance was in line with Paul's steady missionary purpose. The specific leading came to a man who knew definitely what he wanted to do wherever he was.

A Roman Colony, 10-12

Paul lost no time obeying his vision. With all speed he sailed to Neapolis and made his way to Philippi, a Roman colony. Again he was on historic ground for at Philippi the fate of Rome had been decided in a battle of Brutus and Cassius against Mark Antony and Augustus. Paul had marched into Philippi under the triumphal arch, remnants of which still remain, but we hear no echoes of the triumph of Roman arms. Paul was heading a small expedition of Christian missionaries whose goal was to have more far reaching influence than the Roman eagle. It is here in the story of the Acts of the Apostles, that the "we" passages begin. Verse ten changes from the third person singular to the first person plural which indicates that Luke the writer was now a member of the team. He was a physician whose home was in Philippi and, though he was very proud of his city named after the great Philip of Macedonia, he knew that the purpose of the visitors was to preach the gospel to the Macedonians.

Out-Doors and In, 13-15

There was no synagogue in Philippi, so on the first sabbath they were there, Paul and Luke, Silas and Timothy, went out of the city to the

CONSUMERS GET THE BENEFIT

The price of Morse's Standard Tea in the retail stores is still 40 cents per pound, so that buyers of this blend are getting a tea that is really worth 50 cents per pound package. If they were blending teas bought at today's market, the blenders of Morse's Standard Tea would have to charge retail stores a price which would make a retail price of 50 cents necessary. Fortunately they still have teas bought a few months ago when the market was low and the passing on the benefit of this advantage. The retail stores are therefore selling Morse's Standard Tea at the old retail price of 40 cents, which is a remarkable bargain in view of the prices regularly charged for teas of this grade. It is no wonder that "the good old family tea of the Maritimes" has the eminent place in the esteem of Maritime tea drinkers that it enjoys today.

A Reno petitioner testified, "He picked me up by the ears and dropped me on the floor." And his name for her, one would say at a guess, was "Bunny."

Wherever prayer was wont to be made. The Jewish people kept up their worship even without a building specially consecrated. Paul and his helpers spoke to the devout women and Lydia, a seller of purple from Thyatira, became a believer in Christ, and was baptized, together with her household. She invited the Christian missionaries to her house and persuaded them to go. This incident shows that true religion is wholly dependent upon acts of worship. Lacking a synagogue building, Lydia and her companions held a prayer meeting on a river bank, and when she was won to the Christian faith, she showed hospitality to the apostles. Organized religion will always have need of churches and cathedrals, but there will also always be opportunities to use the great out-of-doors and private homes for study and fellowship.

Singing in Prison, 25-28

Again the story has a military setting. Paul had healed a sooth saying slave girl, to the financial loss of her masters. They raised an outcry against Paul and Silas, and the magistrates ordered them to be beaten. Roman soldiers did this flogging and Paul and Silas were thrust into an inner prison and their feet were fastened in the stocks. How pitifully weak were the two Christian missionaries in the clutches of the strong Roman power! What could they do? They could not retaliate using force, so they prayed and sang. They were two men against an empire, but suddenly a power greater than the Roman army changed the outlook. An earthquake opened the doors and loosed the chains. What a contrast between the military guard, panic stricken, ready to commit suicide, and Paul keeping his head and controlling the situation. Military discipline has certain values, but Paul's spiritual discipline, by sheer force of character, gave him self control and influence over others.

Saved by Faith, 29-31

The Book of Acts records many casual conversions. Apparently by chance, with some incident occurred or some word was spoken which won to whom they should try to win in Philippi, probably Lydia and the jailer would have been about the last persons to select. Yet this woman from out of town and a frightened jailer were not too humble for Paul to welcome as followers of Christ. When the jailer asked what he must do to be saved, the answer was so simple: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." Tested by the experience of nineteen centuries, the answer holds as true as ever. Living faith in Christ is salvation. This belief is not a mere intellectual assent; it is a life of daily fellowship with Christ. Nor is salvation a mere listing of a name; it is the transformation of a character, a salvation from fear, superstition and sin, a salvation into love, truth and joy.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Should we expect dramatic conversions?
- 2.—How far is worship dependent upon "temples made with hands," if necessary?
- 3.—Why is prison reform so important?
- 4.—What does it mean to believe in Christ?
- 5.—What did Armistice Day, 1933, do for the cause of peace in your community?

BAND NOTES

Whether our band will continue its splendid progress, or dwindle and die out like so many country bands, depends largely on the kind of officers elected at their November meeting. It would be difficult to find a group of men who would work together with more enterprise and unanimity than the present officers whose energy and good management have accomplished wonders during the first year.

Interest in the band is not confined to the young people. A highly respected resident of Digby, in his 83rd year, has made her second gift of $5.00 from the work of her own hands. Miss E. A. Forsythe has just completed a piece of work and Miss Stewart has purchased it with the understanding that the proceeds were for the band. The band is greatly indebted to both these good friends.

Another very kind friend in the person of Mrs. Omar Rice has made a beautiful centre-piece which will soon be placed on exhibition, the proceeds going into the band treasury. It is very gratifying to the boys to find such general interest and helpfulness, and it is especially appreciated when coming from their elderly friends. Mrs. Rice has the well earned reputation for doing beautiful hand work.

The band is much pleased with the opportunity of helping the Veterans with the celebration of Armistice Day to-morrow. By unanimous vote the band offered its services free of charge, with the hope that their participation might add a little to the interest of the occasion.

Your liver is a very small organ, but it is certainly one of the most important. It is the great filter of the body, and it is the only organ that can be replaced. If it is not working properly, the whole body suffers. You can tell if it is not working properly by the following signs:—Yellowing of the skin, loss of appetite, indigestion, constipation, and a general feeling of weakness. If you have any of these signs, you should take Carter's Liver Pills at once. They will soon bring back the normal tone to your liver, and you will feel like a new man.

Scallop Boat Damaged, Engineer Had Narrow Escape

It is not often that Digby gets a three-alarm fire, and when such is blown a crowd soon gathers. This happened last Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock, when gasoline explosion in the engine room of the scallop boat Ford, at the Maritime Fish Corporation's dock in "Jew Cove" sent the crew scurrying for safety. It was low water and the boat was aground; the crew were at the usual duties preparing the boat for the next trip. The engineer had just finished his work on the engine and was moving away from it, carrying a trouble lamp. In some way he dropped it, and when the lamp broke the instantaneous flash ignited gasoline fumes, and an explosion followed. The engineer made a dash for the companionway and got clear with a few slight burns, and the crew scurried for the wharf. Two streams through holes cut in the engine house roof and through the hatch soon drowned the flames out, but the boat was quite badly damaged.

Miss Dorothy Oliver, who has been visiting at her former home here, leaves today to return to Hartford, Conn.

What Armistice Day Means —The Prize Essay

The following essay was written by Miss Eleanor Wallis, of Grade XI, Digby High School, and was the essay which won the prize offered by Mayor Holdsworth, for the best essay on the subject, written by a Grade XI pupil. The essay was read in part at the Remembrance Day service, and is herewith published in full, at the request of Mayor Holdsworth.

Armistice Day is a celebration of the suspension of hostilities between the belligerent armies of the greatest and most terrible war the world has ever known. After four long years of bloodshed and war, during which millions of the finest specimens of heroic youth and manhood sacrificed their lives for their country, came a day when Germany and her allies realized that their hope of conquering the world was in vain, after they knew for a certainty that Great Britain and the allied armies had advanced more than conquered—and not until then, did Germany lay down her arms and declare her willingness to peace, at any price.

So Remembrance Day should be to us as a sacred memorial, not only to the signing of the Armistice, but as a continual and living monument to those brave men who so nobly gave their blood, as the price of that Armistice.

This great Armistice gave us freedom from the yoke of Germany and the Hitlerism of to-day. It gave us peace and freedom to work and worship as we please. It means comfortable and happy homes, a beloved and honored sovereign, a king and country that their hope of conquering the world was in vain, after they knew for a certainty that Great Britain and the allied armies had advanced more than conquered—and not until then, did Germany lay down her arms and declare her willingness to peace, at any price.

On Remembrance Day our minds instinctively turn to the legions of living men, who sacrificed themselves for our peace; and who go about still "smiling through" though crippled and aged from the horrors of battle.

No great benefits are derived from war! A country wins; gains more territory, and captures thousands of prisoners. These, do not even compare with the millions of casualties in the war. The loss of practically a generation of manhood, which might have found new inventions, or great discoveries for us, had they lived. So in reality a country loses, rather than gains in war.

As Christ was sacrificed on the cross, that we might obtain eternal life—so these brave men sacrificed their lives that we might obtain freedom from Germany and militarism.

November 10, 1933.
Mr. P. C. Purdy,
Principal Digby Academy,
Digby, Nova Scotia.

Dear Principal Purdy—
The judges of the Prize Essay Contest have reported as follows:

"After carefully reading the papers on 'The Meaning of Remembrance Day', we have unanimously decided that Number Three is the best. All of the papers are creditable productions. They show an understanding of the meaning of the observance, but we think that among them all Number Three deserves the prize."

Signed:
E. W. Forbes
M. McKel
F. E. Bishop.

Personally, I am greatly pleased with all the Essays which show considerable thought and effort in composition on the part of the nineteen students of the Eleventh Grade, and I thank them individually for these creditable papers.

As Essay Number Three was written by Miss Eleanor Wallis, I would ask you to kindly deliver the enclosed envelope to her with my heartiest congratulations and sincere thanks.

Very truly yours,
P. W. Holdsworth,
Mayor.

Miss Louise Cossabomb spent the week end in Central Grove, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tibert.

A minute or two after leaving the home of his sister, Mrs. Aron Oliver, in Conway, on Monday evening, Denny Nass was struck by a truck on the main highway and sustained a badly broken leg, besides bruises and cuts. He was taken to the hospital, where he will be a patient for some time.

Oscar Snow, a middle aged man, of Smith's Cove, was walking along the D. A. R. track, on Monday afternoon, when he was first to visit a printing office and they were both much impressed with our plant. Although our plant is small when compared with that of a city newspaper, it is, nevertheless, interesting to one who has never visited a printing office and we are delighted to have the opportunity of showing any visitor around.

He gave unstinted service to the congregations of Upper Musquodoboit, Sackville and Barney's River, and to the church near his adopted home in Saskatchewan, where he moved in 1902. He served with honor on the School Board, R. M. Council, as President of the Community Club, etc. Two recent winters were spent in Victoria, B. C. He was married in 1882 to Miss Alice Waters, of Digby. There were six children, one of whom died in infancy. The second son, Thomas Christopher, was killed on the Somme, in November, 1916. The surviving ones are Mrs. J. B. Dickey, of Langbank; John O. of Freetown, Sask.; Mrs. W. O. Mulligan, of Westmount, P. Q. and Robert B., on the home farm.

'An Old Fashioned Mother'

This play will be put on by the United Church Players, in the Church Hall, on Friday, December 1st. It is the dramatic parable of a mother's love. Contains striking scenes and plenty of good wholesome humor. Characters are: The county sheriff, an old hypocrite, the selfish elder son, the prodigal younger son, a tramp, a comical country boy, the mother, the village belle, a sentimental old maid, the good hearted hired girl, the village gossip and a little girl of nine. The play is a universal favorite.

Beginning next Monday, the Weymouth Bridge will be closed to all traffic of one ton and over. All such vehicles must detour across Gates' Bridge, at Weymouth Mills.

Appreciates Mr. Franklin's Work

To the Editor of the Courier:
Sir—May I claim a few lines of your space to pay a genuine tribute to W. J. Franklin, who, as road superintendent of the Digby section of our county, has given us the most excellent road conditions we have had for some time.

I am not alone in the expression of this opinion and therefore feel that he should know that efficiency alone qualifies him to receive well merited praise from people irrespective of political affiliations or unbecoming prejudices.

Let it also be said in passing that I sincerely believe that all former incumbents have, to the best of their ability, discharged their duties faithfully, but Mr. Franklin's duties particularly well adapted for that work. There is without question a striking superiority in the surface of our roads in comparison with other sections of the province.

SERIOUS STUDENTS

School and college teachers remark that their students are working more seriously than they did. These young people usually see that the present is not a good time for aimless trifling. Life is no joy ride or picnic. It is not going to consist wholly of sports and parties and stepping on the gas. They have their way to make in the world, and they are keen enough to see that they need all the equipment for the struggle that they can provide.

In more normal times, it was assumed that every graduate of a good school or college would soon land a job. It is not so sure in these times. The product of our educational institutions is subjected to a sifting process, and strictly graded for quality.

The fact that a boy was a good athlete does not prove to the average employer that that hero of the gridiron or diamond will begin at the bottom and perform humble tasks as if he liked them. And the fact that a girl had the boys all buzzing around her at the dances, like flies around molasses, does not satisfy school boards and employment managers that she will make the best teacher or secretary.

People want their young folks to have a good time. They dislike to see them too much burdened. Wordsworth's thought as to how "the shades of the prison house begin to close upon the growing boy," and suggests how the cares of life begin to weigh down the young people.

But it does not hurt a youth one particle to form the habit of steady, faithful work. If a youngster gets this habit, work seems easier and more interesting, a good record is made in lessons, teachers speak words of warm praise. Somehow the doors of the industrial and business world open when that kind of young person knocks.

The hardy pioneer who could carry a buck five miles on his back left a grandson who carries five ice cream cones in one hand from the counter to the curb.

HOME EVENINGS

"It's an ill wind that blows no one good," they say. Times of slow business produce some good results. One such result now is that people are enjoying themselves more than formerly in their own homes.

Innumerable folks who in boom times were out spending money and enjoying whoopee, are seen in their homes. Innumerable bridge games are played among friends and neighbors. The silent piano begins to speak. The radio works long hours. Newspapers and magazines are read, instead of being just glanced at.

These quiet home evenings are not hurting people one bit. Our nation was built up by folks who stayed at home evenings and rested and talked. Such habits may be hard on amusement enterprises, but prosperity will return to these lines in due time. Meanwhile it is doing the Canadian people good to find out what their own homes look like.

A nation isn't very hard up while seven-tenths of the people expect somebody else to do their washing.

"JINERS" AND "NON-JINERS"

People who used to belong to every society in their home town—and quite a number outside—were once ridiculed as "jiners." They had an insatiable desire to join organizations, and they were kept well busy with initiations and meetings. Some of them neglected their homes.

We do not seem to hear so much about "jiners" now. They have found other occupations or find it difficult to pay their dues.

Our present trouble is more with the "non-jiners," people who can't be persuaded to take a reasonable interest in the activities of their home towns. Of the two, one prefers the "jiners." At least they gave the good cause of the home town a wonderful lift, and we should welcome more of them.

A good resolution for the future is better than a good excuse for the past.

MOST BEAUTIFUL WORDS

A list of ten words which should be considered the most beautiful in the language has been selected by Wilfred J. Funk, poet and dictionary publisher. They are as follows: "Dawn, hush, lullaby, murmuring, tranquil, mist, luminous, chimes, golden, melody."

These are very poetic words. But this is a practical and hard-boiled age. Many harassed business men will say the most beautiful three words are "Enclosed find cheque." But the word "hush," which Mr. Funk includes in his list, sounds quite beautiful when someone's down talked altogether too long. Down in the stock markets, also, they will admit that the word "golden" is very beautiful. And the flappers and shiks will rise to inquire why this dictionary gentleman omitted the word "love" from his list.

Some folks live peaceably, while others just keep on getting married and divorced.

ANOTHER ALLY FOR TEMPERANCE

I have just discovered a new ally for the total abstinence cause and in a most unexpected quarter. Even Neighbor Ben had a good laugh with me when I told him my story, a "down the shore" story laden with the scent of the briny sea. And I must tell it to you. It has to do with that branch of the sea-faring fraternity that makes the link between the deep sea rum running fleet and the landmen whose "big business" is boot-legging. Of course, you and I, good, law-abiding citizens as we are, don't know how it is all done, but somehow a daring squad of men along our coast-line throw aside their conscience and their fear of guardsmen's eye and, for the sake of the money in the game, start out under cover of night and secret signals, secure the forbidden fruit from the rum-laden ship in the offing, and then dash back again to deposit their ill-gotten goods where other chicken minions of his law-defying trade pick them up and spirit them farther on their wicked way of unparitric, anti-social service. I have learned there has been created in many places a sort of convenient coast-line conscience which winks at, and even applauds, these persistent law-breakers, counting their business not as an immoral thing but a keen match between the trafficker and the law, and rather hoping always the trafficker will win. "Conscience does make cowards of us all," said Shakespeare. Certainly the lack of it will soon make criminals of us all.

The remarkable thing about all this—and this is where Neighbor Ben and I had a hearty laugh—is that the "masters of industry" in this whole disreputable business demand that the men who man these speed-boats, that dart in and out, must be strictly sober men. None but total abstainers need apply. Think of it! A whole syndicate—no one knows how large—organized on a complex and far-reaching scale for the purpose of flooding the country with liquor if they can, but finding it absolutely necessary that the men who do the critical work involved must not touch the stuff on pain of dismissal. Of course they are right. The men who man the boats must be fit, and that means they must not drink. They must keep their secrets, and that means they must not drink a drop, for that drop might make them "talkers" and "mums" the word in all orthodox boot-legging. "Ah, no," say these boot-leggers, "we dare not have drinkers in our work, and there would not be anything for us to do except that there are landmen everywhere who do not seem to know, or do not care, that the use of the stuff unites them for doing their work, whether that work be on the farm, in factory or office, on the highway, or acting the gentleman. If they took their business one half as seriously as we take ours, we would be out of business tomorrow. Liquor may be alright for them, but not for us—never."

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Deem not the irrevocable past. As something wasted, wholly vain. If, rising on its wrecks, at last To something nobler we attain."

It is said that the average taxpayer takes little interest in municipal affairs; that they are indifferent regarding questions which have a vital bearing on their welfare. That allegation is, to a certain extent, true.

The taxpayer is apathetic when municipal affairs are concerned. They do not attend meetings of the town council and do not insist that all town, financial and other conditions be published in the advertising columns of the newspapers regularly so they can discuss among themselves and take up with the town officials questions in which they have a general interest.

Town officials should do their best to get the taxpayers together and explain what is being done and what they expect to do. By so doing, they would interest the people in their own affairs and encourage them to play their part in the development of the town.

TODAY'S BEST TEA VALUE

The present is a time in which tea consumers in the Maritime Provinces are in a position to enjoy particularly good values in "tea." The primary markets in India and Ceylon have scored notable advances in recent months and tea blenders generally have followed the market up. The blenders of Morse's Teas, however, while still maintaining their high quality which made "the good old family tea of the Maritimes" famous, have not yet advanced their price on Morse's Standard Tea, which can still be had in the retail stores at 40 cents per pound package. The effect of this is that when a housewife buys a pound package of Morse's Standard Tea she is getting a grade of tea that is sold under most brand names at 50 cents per pound package. Morse's Standard Tea at today's price is particularly fine value.

Annual Meeting
Digby Children's Aid Society Held

There was a fair attendance at the annual meeting of the Digby Children's Aid Society, held in the Court House, on Monday evening, Nov. 13. Mr. Forbes, president of the society, was in the chair. Following the minutes of the last annual meeting, read by the secretary, the report of the treasurer was read.

Mr. Ayman's report was very favorable, showing that the receipts for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1933, were $3,493.46, and disbursements, $3,793.86, with $525 in accounts receivable, and $453.22 in accounts outstanding, leaving a credit balance of $71.78. A supplementary report to date, showed further receipts of $984.70 and disbursements of $451.87; accounts receivable 284.82, and accounts outstanding $837.77, showing a debit of $20.12 in the operation of the society to date.

Annual Report of the Agent

To the Members of the Digby Children's Aid Society:

Ladies and Gentlemen—In presenting this, my second annual report as Agent of the Children's Aid Society of Digby, I do so having in mind the many problems that confront us in Child Welfare Work. There are so many cases that have come to our notice where children are not receiving the care and attention that should be given them, and it is so difficult in most cases to remedy the situation that one cannot help feeling at times that the result of our efforts is not always just what we would desire.

During the past year there have been three wards added to our Society, making a total of 88 since the Society was first formed. There are at present 17 children in boarding homes and 10 in institutions, making a total of 27 that have to be provided for at the expense of the society, the maintenance of these children being paid for by the Municipality to which they belong, and the Provincial Government proportionately. Of the 88 wards, 61 were in foster homes, 13 have returned to their parents, 4 have died, and the remaining 22 have reached their majority.

We try to have a general supervision over all our wards, and in cases where it is necessary give special attention as the case merits. Our wards in boarding homes are being given the best of care and training, and we find that in the majority of cases the children in these homes are responding splendidly to the care and protection they are receiving, which is a most encouraging factor in our work. These children are not only a great help to the community, but they are constantly in need of attention, as they have to be provided with clothing, school books and medical attention, and we have to keep a general oversight over all their needs. Those in free homes are also somewhat of a problem. Some of them are responsible for their care until they are 21, and we are never sure that they will not have to be provided for in some other way.

The Family Welfare Work, as it is termed, is one of the most difficult problems we have to deal with. We have investigated many cases of alleged cruelty to children or misconduct in the home. Every individual case has to be approached from its own peculiar angle and presents its own problem; and to find a successful solution to the various problems is sometimes exceedingly difficult, and at times seemingly impossible. We have been successful in several instances in having families kept together, who might otherwise have been separated but for our assistance. During the year we have investigated approximately 3,000 miles by auto, 480 by rail, in the interest of the Society; paid about 225 visits to wards and personally answered about 750 requests to investigate home conditions and alleged cruelty to children. In our correspondence we have answered nearly 1,000 letters and received many personal calls and calls by telephone, requesting assistance and protection, which we have tried to answer to the best of our ability.

The meetings of the Executive Committee of the Society, which have been held monthly, have been well attended and much interest manifested in the work.

I wish to thank the President, officers, and members of the Society for the assistance and co-operation they have given me in the work.

Respectfully submitted,
Austin L. Robbins

Between Ourselves

I think that everybody was greatly impressed with the Memorial services on Saturday; in fact I think Saturday's service was one of the most impressive this town has ever had, and in spite of its being one of the coldest Armistice days since the signing of that memorable document, the attendance was excellent. The presence of the band added a great deal to the effectiveness of the service.

It was also pleasing to note how well our merchants and business men kept the holiday. Almost every place of business was closed throughout the day, some, of course, open on the evening, but that was due to the fact that the holiday fell on Saturday and Saturday holidays are rather hard to keep.

There is another little thing I would like to mention, and that is the sale of poppies. I am one, and I know of several others in the town, who did not wear a poppy on November 11th, and the reason was not because we were unpatriotic, but because the only way we could get one was to buy it from a neighbor's coat. During the poppy selling campaign I did not see one person selling poppies—although I saw a number wearing them. I tried to get one for myself on Saturday morning and afternoon, but—no luck!

These days the hard surfacing of our Nova Scotia main highways is a much discussed matter—and a very important one. We are all agreed, I think, that the dust menace and the present condition of the highways have a great deal to do with the falling off of the tourist trade in Nova Scotia; in fact, we don't have to be told—all that is necessary is to do a little driving. The tourist industry is the most important of Nova Scotia's industries, and should Nova Scotia lose this on account of poor highways we would be in a "fix"—there is no doubt about that. As president of the Land of Evangeline Tourist Association our mayor is doing everything in his power to get hard surfaced roads for our province. Let's back him up!

The weather we had over the week end makes one realize that Christmas is only a few weeks away, and it won't be long before our stores get that "Christmas" look. Let's do our best to make this a "buy in Digby" Christmas. Surely our merchants deserve every bit of patronage they can give us. They are the biggest tax payers in our town, and for the most part, a fine, public spirited bunch of men; furthermore, for every dollar we spend with them, there is a chance of part of it returning to our pockets. Watch their Christmas advertisements with interest, as they are appearing in our columns shortly.

The mention of this wintry weather reminds me that we have heard very little about hockey so far this season. About time we had an inkling of what the boys are planning to do, don't it?

The late Mr. Cronin, who was a son of the late John and Catherine Cronin, was born at Port Wade, eighty-one years ago. Although in failing health for several months, during which time he was tenderly cared for by his wife and family, Mr. Cronin was able to be about his home, being confined to his bed only ten days. Death came as a distinct shock to both his family and the community at large. Mr. Cronin was a prosperous farmer all his life, a councillor for many years, and had been rural mail-carrier on the route between Granville Ferry and Victoria Beach for a period of 8 years. He was a man of sterling character, possessing a keen sense of judgment, and his kindly advice was often sought. He leaves to mourn his wife, Mrs. Cronin, formerly Miss Catherine Cameron Roy, Granville Centre, and two daughters, Katherine and Madeline, and one son, John, all at home. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Father Leo Murphy, Requiem High Mass was celebrated at Annapolis Royal on Friday morning, and interment took place in St. Patrick's cemetery, at Digby. The pall bearers were Arthur W. Chisholm, Charles McWhinnie, James Morrison and William Rogers.

MONEY

Does money bring men gladness? Yes, at times!

It also brings men sadness And to crimes.

Earned well it is a pleasure, None denies; At in the love of treasure Danger lies.

Who grasps for it in blindness, Foul or fair, Falls out to bleak unkindness And despair.

By money friends are parted, Hated soon; For money, marble-hearted, Men have grown.

Money's important. All require it Till it is over. But it destroys men who desire it And nothing more.

"Green Rose" Draws
Crowd of 39,000

A record one-day crowd of 39,000 flocked into the American Museum of Natural History, in New York, on Monday of last week, hoping to see a green rose.

An executive of the New York Horticultural Society, which was holding a flower show, had remarked jokingly that a green rose was being displayed and his hearers took him seriously.

The crowd was disappointed.

Very soon the envelopes containing the Tuberculosis Christmas seals will be sent out and those in charge of this Seal Sale are hoping and expecting the same generous response that they have had in the past.

The use of pretty "stickers" on Christmas letters, cards and parcels has become almost universal. Why not use these Tuberculosis Christmas seals and help a good cause?

They are lovely this year—so colorful and cheery. They are regular little messengers of health and help.

Do you know the good tidings of great joy they bring at this season of goodwill? Why, that tuberculosis is both preventable and curable; that a campaign is being waged right now to eradicate it in our beloved country; and that everyone who buys and uses these seals is a helper in that campaign.

Buy and use Tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

Remembrance Day In Digby

November 11th, the fifteenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, was fittingly observed in Digby, and generally kept as a holiday. The service at the monument was most impressive and well attended. The returned soldiers, with the Digby Civic Band, Boy Scouts from Digby and Bear River, and the pupils of the Digby School, paraded to the monument, where the wreath was placed, and the "Last Post" sounded.

At eleven o'clock the two minutes of silence was observed. Following this was the salute of three volleys by the guard, with the National Anthem by the band.

Owing to the illness of Mayor P. W. Holdsworth, a short address was given by the town clerk, Alfred Boden, who read the prize essay on "What Armistice Day Means to Me," by Miss Eleanor Wallis. (This essay is published in full in this week's Courier.)

Rev. Father Murphy, parish priest of Digby and Annapolis Royal, was unable to attend this service, and a letter expressing his regrets was read by E. J. Theriault, who also spoke at the service.

In the evening the returned men of this district held their annual Remembrance banquet at the Goodwin Hotel, Weymouth.

On Sunday morning the members of the Legion, accompanied by the Band, marched to St. Patrick's R. C. church, where a special Armistice Day sermon was preached by the rector, Rev. Father Leo Murphy.

Band Notes

The Band Room has put on a fresh and home-like appearance with a new coat of paint which the boys themselves applied, with the kind assistance of Mr. German, who gave a half-day of his time and skill on the trimmings without charge. Now if some of the ladies would like a band, they will help along by fixing up some suitable draperies for the four windows. Dark or medium-dark material will be appropriate.

Then if the proposed ventilation system can be put in operation, the boys will escape the pungent head-aches caused by vitiated air in the past. Forty men blowing instruments will enliven as much contaminated air as two hundred men breathing normally. A room with low ceiling is very quickly rendered unfit to live in. The result is listlessness, eye strain, and headache. This menace must be removed. The proposed plan provides an intake of fresh air from out doors, and will require a ventilating fan to remove the poisonous air. The donor of such a fan will earn the gratitude of the Band, and prompt action will be doubly appreciated.

All business affairs of the Band are conducted by the Digby Music Council, whose energy and initiative made a band possible in these difficult times. This fact adds interest to the annual election of officers of the Music Council which takes place Friday night, Nov. 24th at the Band Room. Whether or not, the Band becomes a permanent fixture depends largely on this meeting.

If any one ever questioned the value of a home-town band, he changed his mind last Saturday, when he observed how much the Band contributed to the impressiveness of the Remembrance Day services. "The Last Rest" Funeral March, was especially effective.

Several members of the Annapolis Band have been welcome visitors and have taken part in recent rehearsals where they have been very helpful to the younger players in mastering difficult parts. The visitors seemed to have a royal good time and the boys will be glad to have them come often.

It is interesting to know that the Band played exactly 101 different selections in their summer concerts, which may be considered a record for so young a band.

Mrs. Harry E. Kirkpatrick was "at home" to friends on Wednesday afternoon, for the first time since her marriage. Receiving with her was Mrs. G. Victor Turnbull, Mrs. H. L. Smith, and others who assisted were Misses Louise Daley, Kathleen Graham, Dorothy Smith and Mrs. H. E. Reicker. The rooms were tastefully decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and candles.

Improvements Made On The Waterfront

While all over the province, from Cape Sable to Cape North, wharf properties in all the seaport towns and villages are falling into decay, it is indeed gratifying to see such a marked improvement in the Digby waterfront. Anderson's wharf, in "New Cove" which had been disintegrating for the last twelve or fourteen years, has been rebuilt, and is now in good condition; and Capt. George Morrell has commenced the erection of an eighty-foot wharf in the rear of Morrell & Sypher's garage, and the work is now well advanced. This wharf will be used principally in the scallop season, we are informed.

Miss Helen Syda spent the holiday in Yarmouth.

Mrs. James Keen has returned from Halifax, where she was called by the illness of Mrs. John Rice.

Howe T. Turnbull, of New York, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Turnbull.

Notice

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Digby County Farmers' Association will be held at the Court House, Digby, on Saturday, the 25th day of November, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon. There will probably be two sessions, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. The meeting will be made as interesting as possible and a large attendance is requested.

Scallop Sloop Catches Fire For Second Time

For the second time in ten days the Digby Fire Department was called out to fight a fire on the Digby scallop sloop "Ford", Captain Raymond Longmire.

The alarm was given shortly before two o'clock Wednesday morning. The blaze was caused by the engine backfiring through the calorifier and igniting a quantity of gasoline. Considerable damage was done to the boat, which, at the time, was tied up to the "iron duke" wharf at Jew Cove.

The fire department was called out to fight a fire on board the same craft on the morning of Armistice day. Wednesday morning's fire was the third scallop boat fire since the opening of the scallop fishing season on October 15th, and the fourth fire in this section of the water front since summer.

MUSICAL TEA

A Musical Tea, held under the auspices of the Ladies' Hospital Aid, at the home of Mrs. W. R. Dickie, was enjoyed by a large number, on Wednesday afternoon.

Fowler, Mrs. Harold Nichols, Miss Eleanor Wallis, Miss Frances McNutt and Miss Phyllis Dickie, who played instrumental numbers, with vocal solos by Mrs. F. Hayden and Mrs. V. Turnbull. The rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion, with chrysanthemums donated by Mr. Harris, of the Racquette Gardens.

Mrs. Harry Eldridge and children left on Wednesday for Yarmouth, where they will reside. Mrs. Eldridge was presented with a handsome hand bag by the members of the Digby Baptist church choir, before leaving. Mrs. Eldridge will be leaving for Yarmouth at a later date.

Tiddville was shocked on Sunday afternoon as word passed from one to the other of the passing to the great Beyond of Mrs. James Tidd, at the early age of 33 years and nine months.

Although she had been in poor health the past two or three weeks, her death was unexpected. She was a member of the Baptist Church, uniting herself to that body less than two years ago. She leaves a sorrowing husband, three children, Johnny, Lela and Basil; her parents; two sisters, Mrs. Freddie Amaro, Plymouth, and Alice, of East Ferry; two brothers, Warren and Arthur at home; besides other relatives. Interment was in Little River cemetery. Rev. C. L. Chute officiating at the service.

Kiwanis Appoint Christmas Cheer Committee

G. M. Morrell, H. H. Marshall, J. W. Merkel, E. C. Sollows and M. C. Denton were Monday appointed a "Christmas Cheer" committee at the regular luncheon of the Digby Kiwanis Club. This committee will look after the distribution of Christmas dinners and clothing to the underprivileged children of Digby and vicinity. Since its organization the Digby Kiwanis Club has done a splendid work with the underprivileged children of the town, especially at Christmas time.

At Monday's luncheon K. W. Sollows and Marshall volunteered to convey eight children to Yarmouth for eye treatment. The Digby Red Cross has offered to pay for this treatment for these pupils of the Digby schools.

It was also decided, weather permitting, that the Digby Club would pay a visit to Yarmouth one week from today for the purpose of presenting the Kiwanis Treasure Chest to the Kiwanis Club of Yarmouth.

Buy Nova Scotia Products

The Buy Nova Scotia Products policy which is being sponsored by the Government of Nova Scotia is not a narrow one. It is not proposed, even if it were possible, to erect an insurmountable barrier against goods or originating outside the Province. All of home products. Such an objective, if attained, will speed up languishing industries and promote net ones.

England has made a success of her Buy British programme. Surely if that country, which buys two-fifths of her sustenance from overseas, has successfully promoted such a programme as made it a real factor in reviving business, Nova Scotia can do likewise.

What is asked is that citizens of Nova Scotia join the League of Loyal Nova Scotians and sign pledges to Buy Nova Scotia Products when these meet their requirements and are satisfactory in price and quality. We commend this policy to all our readers.

The N.R.A. Works Against Our Scallop Fishermen

The Digby scallop fishermen are not greatly in favor of the "deflated" American dollar—it is cutting quite a hole in their profits!

More than seventy-five per cent. of the scallops caught in these waters find their way to the American markets. The majority of them are shipped by the owners of the boats. Last season, with the American dollar at a high premium, the fishermen were, in many cases, able to pay for their gas and oil sometimes with a little to "boot," with their premium money. This year they are finding it a bit different with the American dollar worth less than their own Canadian dollar.

So far, when the weather permits, the scallop fishing has been fair, and scallops have been bringing in from $1.50 to $1.75 per gallon.

BAND NOTES

The Digby Music Council, which is sponsoring the Band, will meet tonight, in the Band room, for the annual election of officers, and the transaction of other important business. About fifteen active new members will be enrolled, and the door is open for the admission of more.

"Any person desirous of forwarding the objectives of the Council may be elected to membership by receiving a majority vote at any meeting of the Council." So says Article VI of the Constitution. Don't wait to be asked if you want to boost the band and other musical efforts. The lofty objectives set forth by the Music Council are: 1.—"The encouragement of music appreciation and performance at home," and 2.—"The promotion of all worthy musical enterprises in Digby and vicinity." Such splendid objectives surely merit the approval, and the support of the entire community.

Harry Eldridge, a highly valued member of the Band, gave a fine farewell talk at a recent rehearsal. He said he had belonged to many bands—some very good ones, and some not so good—but he was never in a band room where the language, the conduct and the good fellowship were to one eye; and Harold Hewitt, who is conversing after a serious operation in Halifax. Losses are continuous in all small-town bands, which explains why such a large band is necessary. It must be kept up by a steady, unfailing supply of beginners in preparation. Right new applicants, all provided with instruments, and several more without instruments, are hoping that a new class of beginners will be started soon. What will the Music Council do about this?

The Band has lost four good men this fall. Harry Eldridge moving to Yarmouth; Ken MacInnis attending Normal School, and, through accident and illness, Rufus Connor, has had to give up the big bass horn and try a smaller one because of a serious injury to one eye; and Harold Hewitt, who is conversing after a serious operation in Halifax. Losses are continuous in all small-town bands, which explains why such a large band is necessary. It must be kept up by a steady, unfailing supply of beginners in preparation. Right new applicants, all provided with instruments, and several more without instruments, are hoping that a new class of beginners will be started soon. What will the Music Council do about this?

Arthur Turnbull has added to many previous gifts by donating the apocryphal for a partition erected in the band room as an added fire protection. O. Wright has donated two more window blinds. Draperies are next in order.

Digby Red Cross Society Holds Annual Meeting.

P. W. Holdsworth was appointed president of the Digby Red Cross Society, at the annual meeting on Friday afternoon last, succeeding F. L. Adams, resigned. Other officers remain the same, namely: Vice-President—A. J. Dillon; Treasurer—R. H. Lockward; Secretary—E. J. Theriault. The society had a sum of money on hand, which was voted to the Digby branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, to be used to fit underprivileged students of the High School with glasses. This work is to be done at a very reasonable price.

Miss Dora Warne and Mrs. M. M. Warne left yesterday for Halifax. Donald Winchester, of Halifax, spent the week end at his home here. Archibald Frost, postmaster at Little River, was a visitor to Digby on Monday.

Mrs. F. W. Nichols and Mrs. H. A. Nichols have been spending a few days in Halifax.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Raymond have gone to New York to spend the winter months. Mrs. Herbert Greene left on Tuesday to spend the winter months with her daughter, Miss Edith.

Christmas Seals Do Splendid Work

Another Christmas is almost here and Christmas seals in aid of Tuberculosis sufferers will soon make their appearance. The fund which these seals represent has been contributed to for the past years by the citizens of Nova Scotia and is gradually taking a very definite place in the anti-tuberculosis work of this community.

As the proceeds from the Christmas Tuberculosis Seal fund grow, so will this sort of special service grow—the assistance of tuberculous patients and the extension of educational propaganda and prevention work. It is certain that special work of this sort will be of great benefit to the general public, and it is believed that it is in keeping with the Christmas spirit, and with the tendency of modern times to lessen the unhappiness of unfortunate people rather than to give expensive gifts to those who are not in need of them.

These little Christmas Seals with the double barred cross truly buy health and happiness for others. How better can the Christmas spirit be conveyed?

Buy Christmas Seals and fight tuberculosis in Nova Scotia. Money for the Tuberculosis Seals nor seals, are to be sent to Halifax this year, as a Committee of ladies will collect from the houses and offices, about the 1st of December.

HAVE A HEART

There are not so many shopping days before Christmas as there were when first you were asked to do your Christmas buying early, and there is no hope that the number is going to increase between now and mid-night of the twenty-fourth. Nor will prices be reduced; nor will the quality of the goods now on the shelves improve. So why linger and delay?

Perhaps there are those who believe that "Do your Christmas shopping early" is a slogan devised by merchants who thought they would sell more goods if people bought early, and then took thought, and discovered that there was more buying they ought to do. But while that doubtless occurred to the merchants, it was not by any means the controlling motive that inspired the shop-early propaganda which greets us annually.

The fact is, the request for early Christmas shopping came, first, chiefly from the post offices, the express companies, the railroads and the sales and delivery people, all of whom found themselves swamped by a tidal wave that hit them suddenly and left them devastated. Some way had to be found for controlling this tide, for distributing its volume. So an attempt was made to educate the public into buying early and shipping early.

The fear of the merchant is not so much that his sales will not reach the hoped-for peak as that his future will be jeopardized. There is nothing that so disrupts a carefully built organization as the overstrain of the two or three days and nights of hurried and hurried labor before Christmas. Clerks break down; some of them leave; others are not fit again for some time, and meanwhile system goes to the dogs and sales machines have to be rebuilt. Customers, too, offended by some frazzled employee, get sore and vow never to trade there again. So the merchant, desiring to serve his public well, asks the public to help him to do so by distributing Christmas buying over as long a period as possible.

So it behooves the public, since it wants good service, to remember that the chief element in that service is the human element and that the human machine breaks under undue strain just like any piece of machinery. And because there is a human element involved, and because Christmas is a time for special charity to all humans, it is only reasonable that shoppers and shippers be considerate of the store clerk, the postal employee and the servants of the express companies and railroads. They want to enjoy Christmas, too. Why make the Yuletide hateful to them? Have a heart. Do your Christmas shopping early.

From all one hears of the Medes and Persians, and their laws, they never went for Bridge and 45's.

PRETENCES CRUMBLING

It is interesting to take note of what is going on "across the line" these days in anticipation of the early repeal of prohibition. As one reads, one cannot but recall the many strange arguments used against prohibition. It was the cause of so much smuggling, they said. Well, here is a reliable writer in The Monitor telling us this:

"The United States Coast Guard prepares for an increase in liquor smuggling if the Eighteenth amendment is repealed. It secures from the Public Works Administration $14,000,000 to build new cutters, patrol boats, seaplanes and air stations. . . . Smuggling is said to be an important change if the country goes wet—the smuggler can no longer pretend that he operates in the name of 'liberty'."

Do you catch the full force of that word "pretend"? There has been a whole lot of pretence in the propaganda against prohibition. I wonder if many good temperate folks have not listened to and been fooled by it.

In September last the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, gave out that the domestic whiskey distilleries of the United States are now operating the plants at capacity in an effort to build up stocks against the prospective demand when the prohibition amendment is finally repealed. The same authority estimates that the total domestic stocks of whiskey amount to about 19,000,000 gallons, of which only a little over 4,000,000 gallons are four years old and older, while less than half the rest is from one to four years old. Before prohibition the consumption averaged 75,000,000 gallons annually. Now it seems to me I have heard some people arguing quite seriously that prohibition was the cause of more drinking among the poor than ever. But the above figures would indicate that those people could not tell the whiskey distillers that. They knew better. Yes, and the people who argued that way really knew better, too. Anyhow, the fact seems to be that after the worst is said, prohibition curtailed liquor drinking enormously, and that now the prospect of its repeal creates the prospect of an enormous increase. Why cannot people be honest with themselves, and with facts? The more I see of life, the more I am convinced with one fact, that a really honest man is indeed "the noblest work of God."

Among the new members were J. D. McKenzie and Mrs. L. J. Lovett, who has registered nine moose, one deer and one bear during her hunting experience.

Due to the great amount of business on hand it was necessary to adjourn, and the adjourned meeting was held in Digby last night, after which reports will be published next week.

In Annual Session

The annual meeting of the Fish and Game Protective Association of Annapolis and Digby Counties, was held in Annapolis Royal on Thursday evening of last week. Rev. A. W. L. Smith, presiding. A welcome was extended to Mayor Owen. After the minutes and financial report had been read by the secretary-treasurer, Vernon L. Harris, of Bear River, Mr. Smith presented his annual report, giving an outline of the work done the past year.

A telegram was read from James Catt, superintendent of Fish Hatcheries, Saint John, expressing his regret at being unable to be present.

Delegate Frank Dimars gave a resume of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Association.

Vice President—F. H. Hatheway, Bear River.

Among the number of motions drawn up the only two passed were those to the effect that the resolution sent in two years ago concerning the wastefulness of shooting a person, while hunting, in mistake for game, have their hunting license cancelled for ten years.

The moose situation was discussed. All reported the great scarcity of deer.

Mr. Harrison, representing the Lands and Forests Department, gave the statistics of the kill for the past two years. In spite of unfavorable conditions for hunting and the fact

TALK ABOUT BARGAINS

At its present price of 40 cents per pound package Morse's Standard Tea is a real tea bargain. It has all the pristine quality that made "the good old family tea of the Maritimes" famous, but while prices in countries of production are advancing, this popular blend is still sold at 40 cents per pound package. As there has been recently a general movement upward in the prices charged for package teas, the relative value of Morse's Standard Tea is all the higher; in fact, at 40 cents per pound the buyer really gets 50-cent value in terms of present day standards.

Newspaper advertising will have the effect of reducing any overstock of goods a merchant may have, but it takes continuous advertising to have any lasting effect.

It must at least be admitted that some bankers whose life work has been the study of economic conditions know their business equally as well, if not better, than quite a number of our politicians.

Since the dawn of history it has been human nature to regard with complacency those things with which a town is built and intimately surrounded and to regard with bias and difference all except that which affects our own personal comfort and convenience and give little thought to those factors which make things possible. I wonder what some of our citizens would do if the farmers were not on the job and if our business men all took a long vacation.

It is said that boundless energy is built on sound sleep. Some business concerns have long been asleep. They should now wake up, use some of the stored up energy, do some newspaper advertising and stay awake.

So far as they go, the arrangements for traffic control in the average city are good, but even their greatest admirer would say they are far from perfect.

Unless you practice the principles of success in a small way first, you never can in a big way.

Some towns seem like towns c neglected possibilities, while others seem like towns of opportunity, yet they often fail to seize the opportunities that present themselves. Experience is a hard teacher, but she is fundamentally sound. "The men who go through her school have their lessons indelibly printed on their minds."

AT THE COURIER OFFICE

The pencil has made a number of pointed remarks about the sponge being soaked all day, and the waste basket's being full; the scissors are cutting up and the paper-weight is trying to hold them down, while the maul is sticking around to see that the stamps get a good licking; the ink's well but appears to be blue, while Bill is stuck in the file and the calendar expects to get a month off. The blotter has been taking it all in.

School Club Notes

Acknowledges Picture

From Geraldine Potter, secretary of the Junior Red Cross Club, Upper Clements, we have an interesting letter acknowledging the picture sent to her as a prize for best club report for October. It was a Canadian Girl picture, suitable for framing. Geraldine writes that they held an open meeting on October 31, when their mothers and friends were guests of the school. Songs, health exercises, recitations and remarks from one of the ladies present, were the chief features of the program. The girls in this school have asked for ready-cut garments to sew for the Red Cross. The club wishes to thank Mrs. Staratt for a copy of the Canadian Coat of Arms, which she sent to the school.

Important

Please remember that no prizes will be awarded in future to reports not bearing the age and grade of the sender. This is important so please take notice. Six reports were recently received without this condition being complied with.

Changing Officers

In Clements Advanced Department they have changed their officers that all may have practice in filling the different offices. This is a good idea. The new officers are:

President—June Sanford
Secretary—Clairton Trimmer
Treasurer—Trueman Lowe

They have a new waste-paper basket which was made in a drawing period at school; a dustpan and some new framed pictures, as well as other additions to their attractive classroom. The boys of the Advanced department painted the girls' cloak room and are now redecorating their own. Their next work will be in preparation for the Christmas concert. They believe in the policy of a good early start.

Another New Club

Another new club was organized this week. It was at Tupperville and it is a Junior Red Cross branch. The names of the officers will appear in next week's issue.

BOWLING

The Yarmouth Bowling team came to Weymouth on Monday evening of last week, where they played a return game with the Weymouth team, winning by 33 pins.

The highest score for Yarmouth was rolled by N. Eldridge, and for Weymouth by D. Comeau.

Yarmouth—M. Trefry, N. Eldridge, J. Speake, E. Trask, and N. Bain. Weymouth—J. Hankinson, D. Comeau, A. Muijs, B. Johns and I. A. Melanson.

SCHOOL HOUSE BROKEN IN

Smashing their way into the school house at Weymouth North on Wednesday night last, vandals made their way to the advanced department room, where considerable damage was done.

Every desk in one aisle was torn from the floor and some of the seats smashed, while the stove pipe was torn down and other damage done.

The act of depredation was discovered by the janitor when he went to build the fire in the room. The R. C. M. P. were immediately notified and are checking up on the break.

Fred Rand, Richard Gaudet and Harvey Fitzgerald, Jr., of Weymouth North, who have been working at Upper Canada for the past few weeks, returned home on Tuesday of last week.

Two Wonderful Basins

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—The Bay of Fundy has been kind to Kings-Annapolis-Digby in giving two wonderful Basins of Minas and Annapolis. We, I suppose, accept their benefits with seldom a thought of how much more meagre would have been the history of the Annapolis Valley without them.

It was on the shores of the Annapolis plain that Canadian civilization was born and the first of the 1852 and took part in the Crimean War. With the little "Turbia" started in and out among the British fleet, at Spithead, England, in a review in 1897, at a speed of forty-one miles per hour, then and there fast ocean travel was born and the eyes of the world were centred on the new method of propulsion, the steam turbine. To Canada goes the credit of having the first ocean liner equipped with steam turbines, the old "Victoria" of the Allan line, which was launched in 1905. The use of turbines in steamships is now general and the latest type of these are installed in the luxurious "Lady" liners of the Canadian National Steamships to ply the route between Canada and Bermuda, the British West Indies, British Guiana and British Honduras.

(The present editor of the Digby Weekly Courier was the first reporter to board the "Victoria" on her maiden voyage. He was then city reporter of the Herald and was not supposed to be on duty in the morning, but had been called on by the Toronto World to cover the event for them.)

By affording means of transportation these two gifts of the Bay of Fundy have made another very important contribution to the prosperity of the Annapolis Valley, the sailing craft of yesterday has almost wholly given place to the steamship of today.

Now across the Minas Basin plys a steamer between Wolfville and Kingsport on the West and Parrsboro on the East. And through the energy and enterprise of Messrs. Wm. H. Daley and Geo. A. Chas. the steamship traffic meet at Port Williams.

Mail, express, passenger and freight business, outward and inward, between Western Nova Scotia and both the other Canadian provinces and the United States passes

BADMINTON CLUB REOPENS

The Bear River Badminton Club re-opened for play this week, in their new and attractive quarters, the Green Lawn Bldg. The club was organized by Lloyd Sanford for the purpose of making the club accommodations comfortable and pleasant, not only for the players but for the spectators as well. The whole building has been repaired inside and out; the foundation is in first class condition; the walls and ceiling re-plastered and nicely tinted, and sufficient heating equipment installed. At one end of the hall, the stage, thirteen feet wide, will provide space for ping-pong games, and for spectators to view games from the floor from a point of vantage. The full sized court will give our players the necessary opportunity to acquire skill and enable them to meet members of other clubs on a fair basis. This should encourage attendance and perseverance in play, as whenever one may travel these days Badminton is the winter indoor recreation in churches, schools and clubs. A full meeting will be held in the near future to discuss business relating to the winter programme.

BUCK DEER RESCUED BY CUS. TOMS CRUISER

Negotiating heavy seas that slapped buckets of liquid straight from Davey Jones' locker on the starboard and forward deck, the long slim cruiser, Scotia, Capt. James Asch, was forging her way recently off Low Point, near the entrance to Sydney Harbor, when the keen-eyed lookout sighted a large dark object. Bells rang in the engine room and the Scotia's speed dropped as the cruiser phased her way closer to the moving form.

The glasses were brought to bear, and the object proved to be a large buck deer, almost completely exhausted.

Chief officer Barkhouse and a volunteer crew from the cruiser manned the lifeboat, and in spite of the heavy sea, reached the struggling animal. He gave them no help and didn't in the least understand that their intentions were humane, but after a struggle the buck was secured in the life boat and hoisted to the deck of the Scotia. But it seemed that the gallant work of the life boat crew had been useless for the animal gave no sign of life. The Scotia crew, however, used to emergencies, was not discouraged. The report covering the event says that "artificial respiration" was tried and that, for half an hour the crew worked over the animal. After attention, the buck began to take an interest in life and he submitted gratefully to being wrapped in blankets and covered with canvas. For several hours the buck rested comfortably, surveying the sea with interested eyes and then off his Bras d'Or the deer was securely tied a metal tag was attached to his antlers, bearing the date and name of the ship and the captain's name, he was rowed ashore and his bonds removed. Then, without even a wag of his stubby tail to indicate his gratitude, the buck fled to the woods.

Three Ills Routed

Health Tip From Woman of 67

"For headache—constipation—rheumatism—I use Kruschen." And since I have used it, I am in very much better health. In fact, I hardly ever wake with those bad headaches and that general feeling of lassitude. Kruschen has helped me feel young,"—thus writes Mrs. M. G. It is reasonable to ask why it is that headaches, constipation, and rheumatism all yield so completely to Kruschen? What is the secret of Kruschen's effectiveness against these different complaints? The secret is an open one. It is revealed in the analysis on the bottle for physicians and everyone else to see. Six vital, mineral salts. That is the secret. Each of these six salts has an action of its own. Where one cannot penetrate another can—and does. Stomach, liver, kidneys and digestive tract are all benefited and toned up to a top-notch condition of efficiency.

SLEEPY ROADS CAUSE NUMBER OF ACCIDENTS

Sleepy roads, caused by the early snows, have resulted in several automobile accidents during the past few days.

Joseph LeBlanc, of Church Point, sustained a broken leg and an injury to one of his eyes, on Saturday, when a motor car he was driving struck a yoke of oxen on the highway, near Belliveau's Cove. One of the oxen was killed in the crash.

Darrel Appleby, of Halifax, sustained a broken nose and a bad cut over his eye, when a car in which he was a passenger, met in a head-on collision another driven by R. P. Olin, of Meteghan River, on Saturday. A man named Donahue, of Halifax, was driving the car in which Appleby was a passenger.

At Ashmore, on Monday morning, a car driven by Carl Franklin, of Berwick, collided with an ox team being driven by Leslie Dugas. The latter is suffering from a broken leg as a result.

At Waterford, on Digby Neck, on Saturday afternoon, a large truck, driven by John Comeau, and loaded with four tons of coal attempted to climb the Seawall Hill without chains. This long que-mille grade was too much, and the truck slid backward, going over the bank. The load had to be taken off before the truck could be hauled back on the road. The driver escaped injury, but the truck was quite badly damaged.

Arthur Sully, of Smith's Cove, and five others in his car, had a narrow escape on Saturday, when the car went off the road at the foot of the Chisholm Hill, on the River Road into Bear River, going off into the river in six feet of icy cold water, but outside of the somewhat chilly bath none were injured.

Miss Inez Dymond, of Moncton, arrived on Saturday to resume her position as teacher at the Weymouth Falls school, which school has remained closed during the first quarter of the year.

Wake up your Liver Bile

—Without Calomel

You are "feeling punk" simply because your liver is sluggish. It fails to pour out a liquid bile into your bowels. Digestion and elimination are both hampered, and your entire system is being poisoned.

What you need is a liver stimulant, something that goes farther than salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum or roughage to stir up the liver. It is the

A Good Hint for The Board Of Trade

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—In the interest of our now largest industry, and for the welfare of this particular town and port, may I ask a small space in your valuable paper (which has always been ready and willing to give space for any reasonable suggestion for the betterment of the community) and respectfully enquire if our local Board of Trade is obsolete, or is still functioning; if so, what efforts are they making towards a banner tourist season for 1934? Possibly the following timely suggestion would be food for thought for our local board.

During the tourist season there is hardly a day passes but we read of one or more "cruise ships" entering ports of Nova Scotia, carrying from 500 to 2,000 passengers. It's true they only remain in port a few hours—at the most over night—but if their passengers only spent a minimum of $2.00 each during their short stay, and we had ten of these ships calling here during the summer, look what it would mean financially to the community, for everybody would benefit either directly or indirectly—the merchant, the hotels, restaurants, farmers, taxis, motor boats, etc.

These short cruise trips are something new, and are bound to become more popular, especially during these hard times. Halifax gets these ships by the dozen, and Yarmouth is also getting a few, but what has either one of these ports got to offer in comparison with Digby. Our geographical location makes Digby the ideal landing spot for tourists wishing to visit the beautiful Annapolis Valley. Are we not eighty miles closer to the sight-seeing part of this Valley than Yarmouth, and about the same distance from the centre of attraction than Halifax?

Our hotels are the best and most experienced in the province, catering to this class of trade; we have a large number of taxis, with competent drivers; motor boats for sailing and deep sea fishing; and above all, one of the finest harbors in Nova Scotia, which is actually comparable with Halifax, with the exception of the landing facilities. The largest cruise ship can safely lay anchor within half a mile of the government pier, while the smaller ships—drawing from 18 to 20 feet of water—can lay safely at the dock side of the spur pier.

Now, Mr. Editor, how would it do if the Board of Trade woke up to the fact that they are losing valuable time, and letting the opportunity of a lifetime pass. The transportation companies who operate these cruises are making up their schedules for the coming season, right now, and if the Board of Trade were to draw the attention of each and everyone of these companies to the advantages of Digby as a terminal along the above mentioned lines, forwarding each a blue print, showing them the depth of water in the upper part of the harbor, from the Pines Hotel to the government pier. I believe these can be obtained from the department of Public Works, and I feel sure that they would be well rewarded for their efforts. The passengers who travel on these cruise ships do not interfere in any way with the regular steamship or railway lines, and the Board would readily receive the assistance of the C. P. R. in securing the share of this business for next season.

The suggestions contained in the foregoing letter are good, but as far as we are concerned they would have more weight and more effect if we were a member of the Board of Trade. Digby has dozens of intellectual men (of whom the writer of the above is one), who are fond of saying, in effect, "Why don't THEY do it?" The Board of Trade is not doing the work it should be doing largely because there has not been a sufficient infusion of new blood—and the old members are largely in a rut.

Mr. Snow Corrects Us

To the Editor of the Courier: Sir—In your edition of the Courier of the 17th inst. there is an error in regard to my accident. I was not walking along the track but was running across the little Joggins Bridge. As the train crew had a clear view of 250 yards or more, if they had slowed up the least bit the accident would have been averted. If I had been merely on the track or alongside it I would have had intelligence enough to get out of the way. Thanking you for publishing this.

Between Ourselves

It has been quite a while since I have written anything on that pet subject of mine—advertising; and this week I am going to give it the air for a paragraph or two. You see, it's this way: Christmas is coming, and I feel that something should be said about advertising in order to keep all the money possible in our town during this season. The more our stores advertise, the more trade they will get.

Of course, nobody knows much better than I do in that Digby's most progressive merchants are the Courier's best advertisers, but that doesn't only apply to Digby, it applies to every town where a newspaper is published; you will always find that the fellows who do the best business are those who consider advertising an investment.

In soliciting advertising I run across these chaps occasionally who seem of the opinion that advertising is merely a matter of community pride—their attitude is this: "We need a newspaper in our community, and to keep one here, we must support it by advertising"—they advertise to "help the paper out."

There are not a great many who take that attitude, and we must say that we appreciate all favors, but we don't want to feel that we are accepting charity when we accept certain advertisements—we want to feel that our clients realize fully that every dollar they spend with us for advertising is a sound investment for their business. We would like all our advertisers to take the same attitude as one of our merchants, who once said to me, "If I were given three thousand dollars to spend on my business, I would spend more than half of it for advertising," that, in my estimation, is the real spirit—I don't mean because we could use fifteen hundred dollars, but because I sincerely believe it would be the best investment he could make.

To convince oneself that advertising does pay, one has only to look through the newspapers and magazines and note the national advertised products—they are always the best known and best selling products—their popularity was built up by the sound advertising of a good product—but no matter how good their product happened to be, very few of these products would have become "household names" without advertising.

But perhaps that is enough to say for this week, for once I got started on the subject of advertising I could write columns, and perhaps say very little.

I was told the other day that of the many boats in our Digby ship fleet, none carry fire extinguishers, life boats. I haven't had an opportunity of checking up on this statement, and am just passing it along as hearsay—perhaps the statement is exaggerated—but thinking of the number of scallap boat fires we have had lately, if this is true in only a few cases, what would happen should one of these fires break out miles from shore or assistance?—If there is only one scallap boat in the Digby fleet, not equipped with fire extinguishers or a life boat, it is one too many.

THE CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN

The following letter has been handed us for publication:

Dear Friend:

Our appeal for funds to aid the work in the campaign against Tuberculosis comes but once a year, but the T. B. germs are getting in their deadly work every minute, unless prevented. Do we realize the danger?

A prominent doctor says that Tuberculosis is more contagious than leprosy and produces more of an economic loss. Should not then our little ones be protected from this dread disease, and every care taken of those who have already contracted it? Parents should see that their children have been properly vaccinated and hygienically cared for; and who but the Victorian Order Nurse can assist the parents by instruction, and supervision in the school? "An early diagnosis is an important factor in any case." Who can care for those who have already contracted the disease but the Tuberculosis Association?

Hand in hand then the Victorian Order of Nurses and the Tuberculosis Association are working to stamp out this insidious disease. Will you not lend a hand by buying as many of the Tuberculosis Seal as possible, and thus assist in maintaining these two life-saving organizations?

F. E. Bishop
President Victorian Order of Nurses
Approved—J. C. Cass
Chairman Nova Scotia Tuberculosis Commission.

Anyone desiring these Seals may procure them from Mrs. Jessie S. Turnbull, Convenor of T. B. Seals Committee.

Dennis d'Entremont, of Meteghan River, has been appointed a Stipendiary Magistrate, in and for the County of Digby.

Miss Evangeline Calmes, who has been visiting relatives in Fredericton, returned on Monday.

Dr. H. W. Kirkpatrick, of Halifax, will be at his office in Middleton, for treatment of diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, on Tuesday, December 12th, and Wednesday, December 13th, until 4 o'clock, p.m. Glasses fitted.

Married

Burns-Woodman

A wedding of interest took place at Digby, Friday evening last, when Mary, daughter of Frank Woodman and the late Jennie Woodman, became the bride of John Burns, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burns, of Watertown, Mass. The bride was dressed in grey, with accessories to match. Mr. and Mrs. William Warren attended the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Burns will leave for the United States shortly to make their home.

Byford-Driffild

The marriage of Marjorie Jane Driffild, younger daughter of the late Rev. William Driffild, for many years rector of this parish, and Mrs. Driffild, to George Lionel Byford, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Byford, was solemnized at Christ Church Cathedral, Springfield, Mass., recently, the Dean, the Very Rev. Percy D. Edrop, officiating. Following the ceremony the happy couple motored to New York City, where they will spend a short honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at 81 Phillips Street, Boston, Mass.

Yates-LeBlanc

A quiet wedding was celebrated in St. Patrick's church, on Sunday afternoon, when Marie Anne LeBlanc, daughter of Mrs. George Musie, became the bride of Paul Yates, Jr., Miss Grace Fountain and Robert Musie attended the bride and groom. Rev. Father Leo Murphy officiated.

To insure proper delivery of your Christmas mail, mail parcels to the United States (to allow for customs inspection) not later than December 9th; to British Columbia, not later than December 14th; to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, not later than December 15th; to Ontario, not later than December 16th; to the Maritime Provinces and Quebec, not later than December 20th; local delivery, not later than December 21st.

Mrs. Seymour Denton and her sister, Mrs. Laura Morehouse, who have been visiting in New York, have returned.

Ask Council To Raise Licenses

A petition signed by the three meat dealers of Digby, was presented to the Town Council at their regular meeting, last Monday evening. This petition urged that the license fee to peddlars selling from door to door (but not selling their own produce), in the town of Digby, be raised from the present sum of $7.50 per year, to $50 per year. The petitioners stated that it was not their intention to harm the farmer who sells his own produce, but was aimed against those who purchased produce for resale from door to door. Digby merchants are ratepayers in the town, and beside paying their taxes, have their store overhead to keep up. The petition, they stated, applied generally to all stores, but particularly to the meat and provision markets.

L. W. Fowler, of the Digby Cash Market, and mover of the petition, appeared in its support. The matter was left in the hands of the license committee for their consideration.

The report of the superintendent of streets and water showed that considerable work had been done by the department during the month. Drains had been dug, gravel hauled, etc. The water service supplying Dr. DuVerne's tenement house on Queen street, had been renewed and a new service put in to supply the house of Thaddeus Harris, on the Lighthouse Road; a leak repaired in the main line at the Racquette, near the Imperial Oil tanks.

The 2-inch water pipe on St. Mary's Street, from Queen to West Streets, has been replaced with a 4-inch pipe for a distance of 1250 feet, and a hydrant installed on the east corner of West and St. Mary's Streets. In taking up the old pipe some 580 feet, had been in the ground for 38 years, and was filled with rust and corrosion. 650 feet of the 800-foot trench along St. George's St. has been dug up, and when the balance of the pipe arrives and the weather is favorable, this portion of the water extension will be finished.

The medical health officer reported that the town has been free of contagious or infectious diseases for the past three months. Only one complaint of unsanitary conditions had been received and that had been attended to. A number of school children had been examined and their conditions reported ok.

The report of the electrical superintendent was received. He reported that in September a sub-station was built in Warner's mill to supply 25 h.p. motors. Due to the fact that the transformers at the corner of Birch and Carleton Streets has been removed, the consumers on Mount and Victoria Streets were receiving poor service. A transformer, installed since on the corner of Mount and Victoria, has greatly improved the service in that section. Six new customers have been added to the line with prospects for more.

A letter from the Minister of Highways was read. This letter was to the effect that the Nova Scotia Highway department was willing to consider a re-arrangement of the present street maintenance agreement between the town and the provincial government. At their October meeting the town council agreed to a resolution to be presented to the Highway board, asking that a re-arrangement be made. The Council wants the Highway Board to bear the 50-50 cost of maintenance of the main road through the town on the approaches only leaving Water and Birch Streets for the town to look after.

Digby to Place Six in Valley Loop

At present it appears that the Digby Ravens will be given a berth in the Central Valley Hockey League. Application has been made for entry and is now being considered.

The entrance of Digby into that league will be pretty good assurance that the league will stage many fast matches. The Ravens have an excellent record, having won the Western Nova Scotia championship and been the runners-up in the provincial finals on several occasions.

The Ravens still have such veterans to choose from as Eldridge, Hyslop, Walker, Tucker, Winger, Chester, Moore, Holsworth, Smith, Daley, and a few fast juniors. With the Ravens in a league with Bridgetown, Annapolis and Middleton, the fans will see a lot of fast hockey, as it is understood that the other teams are expecting to play a much improved game this season.

NOR HAVE WE

A friend in writing to a country editor asked his opinion as to what the weather would be next week. The editor replied: "It is my belief that the weather next week is likely to be very much like your subscription." The inquirer puzzled his head over what the editor was driving at, and finally he happened to think of the word "weathered." He sent a check the next day. Now of course we have no ulterior motive in telling this little story; still ————The Watchman-Examiner.

IS THERE USELESS GIVING?

Some years ago a society for the suppression of useless Christmas giving was formed and promoted by influential people. They argued that many hard pressed wage earners felt forced to give more than they could afford.

From one point of view there is no such thing as useless giving. Any gift that testifies to love makes the world sweeter and nourishes friendships, which are the most valuable things in life. Even some gim-crack that amounts to absolutely nothing, may so testify of affection that it serves its purpose.

Yet it is far better for people to be discriminating and sensible, consulting their friends' tastes and real needs. No one makes any mistake who gives the substantial necessities of life for Christmas.

Some people give excessively, but more give in a niggardly way. In our land, where thousands of people are well situated as respects money, and a great many have more than they need, very much more should be given to the needy and destitute.

Some people worry and fret too much over Christmas. Many women in particular, are so very anxious to send each of their long list of friends just the right and appropriate thing, that they fairly agonize over their prolonged Christmas shopping. They ponder and deliberate and weigh. They can hardly buy a dozen postcards without spending all the morning examining such stocks to get the most artistic designs and poetic sentiments fitting each particular friend most closely. Such people take too seriously an occasion that was meant to be one of carefree happiness.

Go-Getter—One who presses a button and tells somebody else to go get it.

HELP THE POST OFFICE

With the Christmas mail season approaching, the post office has a right to ask the cooperation of the public. Not only is the post office a faithful public servant, who though it may bring bills, also brings cheques, but cooperation with it, especially at Christmas time, is the sure way of getting service.

Nothing seems more difficult than a Yuletide gift, or greeting that comes even a day late. When this happens it is frequently the result of failure of the public to play the game—to mail early, to address fully, to tie parcels securely, to fail to give a return address, to forget to stamp, and other omissions which slow up mail distribution.

It is an easy thing to help the post office. It has a tremendous job this time of year. Even with the public pulling with it, its task is mountainous. Cooperation with it is not only decent but wise. It helps deliver Christmas mail on time.

Another obstacle to thrift is that we always feel richest while spending it.

SENTENCE SERMONS

The Man Who expects sympathy, must be ready to show himself sympathetic;—much from a sermon must take something to the sermon;—help in time of trouble must guard his reputation in prosperity;—to go to Heaven ought to study some of the read maps in advance;—God to help him ought to spend some time getting acquainted first;—something for nothing usually gets nothing;

SELL, BUT DON'T DRINK

"Barrels and Bottles" was the rather euphonious and suggestive title of a journal published in Indianapolis, U. S. A., as an organ of the liquor trade in its palmy days before prohibition. An article appeared in this journal in July, 1902, that of the most amazing way warned bartenders against the drinking of beer. Now that in itself makes one stop and think. Surely, if beer were a good thing to sell, then others might drink it should also be a good thing for the sellers themselves to drink! Surely the liquor people would not be guilty of such cold-blooded selfishness as to make a business of dealing with others what they knew to be inevitably harmful and which for that reason they pleaded with their own buyers not to use!

But there it is in black and white, an article in "Barrels and Bottles" warning bartenders not to drink beer, pointing out that it was their business to sell beer but not to drink it. And the writer of the article went on to back up his plea with quotations from the speech of an eminent senator of that day. In his speech he gave unmistakable evidence drawn from the testimony of several physicians who had practised for years in a beer-drinking city. This testimony is worth recalling in these days when a good deal is being said about the use of beer and wine as sort of harmless beverages that ought indeed to be used regularly by all of a generation ago said: And all sundry. Hear what the doctor.

"Beer kills quicker than any other liquor."
"Every man who drinks beer in any quantity soon begins to load himself with soft, unhealthy fat."
"Beer drinkers are absolutely the most degenerate class of subject a surgeon can operate on."
"Beer drinkers are absolutely liable to die of pneumonia."

What a fine laugh the "atmity of brewers must really have as they listen to so many good fellows extolling the virtues of beer. Let them talk says the brewer, it will at least make people buy beer. It is our business to sell beer, not to drink it. We know better.

MAINTAINS ITS PRESTIGE UN-DIMINISHED

Tea drinkers in the Maritime Provinces still enjoy a remarkable standard in being able to get Morse's Standard Tea at 40 cents per pound package. The tea market in countries of growth has secured a considerable advance in recent months, and tea blenders quite generally have followed it up. The blenders of Morse's Standard Tea, however, having made extensive purchases while the market was low, are pushing the benefit on so that the good folk extolling the virtues of this famous blend quality that by present day standards is worth 50 cents a pound. Morse's Standard Tea is "the good old family tea of the Maritimes." It long ago won its way into the esteem of the Maritime tea drinkers, the most critical tea drinking public on the North American continent, and while many other teas have in the interval come and gone, Morse's Standard Tea maintains its prestige undiminished.

MOTHER! don't experiment with your Child's Cold

VICKS VAPORUB the proved way of relieving colds

The minute you apply Vicks VapoRub over throat and chest it goes right to work to fight a cold—two ways at once—by stimulation and inhalation. Through the skin, it acts like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, its medicated vapors are inhaled direct to irritated air-passages. All night long, it works to help Nature "throw off" the cold.

Ideal for Children's Colds

Being externally applied, VapoRub avoids the risks of those digestive upsets that so often come from constant dosing. It can be used freely, and as often as needed, even on the youngest child. And it's just as good for adults.

COLD S

This is a bad time of the year for colds—and the ordinary cold is dangerous—too often they develop into something more serious.

At the first sign of sniffing, come to us and let us suggest a remedy. We carry several kinds, all leaders in their line and any one of them will check a cold at the start.

AN APPRECIATION

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—In the past considerable criticism, some of it just and some unjust, has been given the efforts of the Digby firemen. It is always easier to stand by and see how things should be done than to get them done that way, even by yourself. However, it is to be borne in mind that this is a volunteer corps drawn from all over this wide spread little town; and as a Fire Department, is working under considerable difficulties. Probably the average citizen has little idea of what these difficulties are and how many of them the firemen have surmounted through their own efforts. Certainly few citizens give any thought to the extent they are dependent on the firemen in an emergency. They are not only willing in time of fire to come to anyone's assistance, but have been known to be called out to protect property in time of storm. And they came!

In time of fire the chief object is time. A loss of a few minutes at the start, and under average conditions the best efforts of all the firemen we can muster is without avail. On Remembrance Day the alarm was given for a fire on one of the scallop boats. Our firemen had a stream of water on that boat in what can only be described as "big time". It was the work of a department where the men stand waiting for the alarm.

On Tuesday night—or rather at eleven minutes to two on Wednesday morning—another alarm came from the same place. The writer does not know how it was done, even though he watched the response from his window as he dressed, but in exactly five minutes by the clock the fire truck was on its way to the fire. Ladies and gentlemen, that's good! If you do not believe me, you try to get up, get dressed, and get to the Town Hall, in five minutes.

As Fire Chief Harry Hersey has little remuneration besides, I say he has every right to be proud of this achievement. I have criticised our fire department equipment before and probably will again, but I believe in giving credit when it is due and it is certainly now due.

And Still Another

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—I was very much pleased to see in last week's Courier, the prize had been given to Miss Wallis for her excellent essay on "Remembrance Day". The mayor deserves much credit in endeavoring to foster in the minds of the young in this town a love for literature, which is deplorable lacking.

WIFE OF COURIER CONTRIBUTOR PASSES.

The San Francisco Examiner, of November 11, has the following:—"Mrs. Nettie Windrem Taylor, 53, who has been connected with the Richmond school department for the past twenty-seven years, died Wednesday at her home, 420 Eighth St. Although she has been in poor health for the past two years her death was sudden and unexpected, school authorities said. She became ill early in the morning while preparing to attend school and died several hours later. Mrs. Taylor came to California from Nebraska in 1882, received her education in San Francisco schools and came to the Lincoln school, in Richmond, in 1902. She is survived by her husband, G. R. Taylor; her mother, Mrs. Nettie Windrem, and a brother, Lee D. Windrem, Richmond, Oregon."

The Richmond Independent of November 10, says:—"The many friends of the late Mrs. Nettie Windrem Taylor, principal of Lincoln school and pioneer Richmond teacher, attended the funeral services which were held at the Wilson and Kratzer chapel, at 10 o'clock this morning. Rev. Priamus Bennett, of the First Christian church, conducted the services. "Peace Like a River," a duet, was sung by Mrs. Priamus Bennett, and Mrs. Grace McEasters. A solo, "When the Roses Bloom," was sung by Mrs. Bennett. Mrs. R. Abbott Crum accompanied with both selections. Pallbearers were W. T. Helms, B. X. Tucker, H. L. Hunt, P. C. Shal-lenger, R. R. Condry and H. L. Harris. The funeral cortege left for the cemetery immediately after the services, where interment was held in the family lot. All of the Richmond schools were closed until noon today in memory of the beloved teacher. Mrs. Taylor was one of the oldest teachers in Richmond and leaves a distinct shadow to her many friends in the community. She had been at the school the day before her death, and was apparently in the best of health."

VALUE OF BIRD HAVEN IS STRESSED

A summer course at Bird Haven, so that school teachers and Boy Scouts may have a better knowledge of the value of bird life in this country, and more sanctuaries were the proposals presented the Annapolis-Digby Fish and Game Protective Association at their adjourned meeting in Digby last Thursday evening, by one W. Piggott. The work carried on at Bird Haven was by unanimous resolution strongly commended to all interested in the conservation and development of the natural resources of the Province.

That the salmon laws were being broken was the claim of W. J. Foley, whose resolution that action be taken to prevent the catching of these in mackerel traps in Salmon River was supported. He claimed salmon were caught in large numbers and before they reached their proper destination.

The resolution sponsored by Mrs. J. Lovett and L. V. Shaw commending the work at Bird Haven, follows: "Whereas the plan on which Bird Haven is being developed is in the best interest of Nova Scotia, and of special value in the conservation of our migratory and resident life and in the dissemination of greater knowledge of forest and their trees and our forest, fruit and agricultural industries are largely dependent on the protection of insectivorous birds; and

"Whereas, the educational value of the institution itself and the educational work being done at large in the fostering of a greater appreciation of our wild life and our forests is very worthy of note;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Annapolis-Digby Counties Fish and Game Protective Association in annual session recommend it most highly to all citizens, associations, corporations and societies whatsoever interested, directly or indirectly, in the conservation and development of the natural resources of our Province, and that it be forwarded by this Association to the Provincial Association that they may lend to it their moral support."

Other resolutions passed, asked for: An open season on partridge October 15 to November 15.

Bounty on owls and predatory hawks.

Stocking at least two more lakes in each county with Rainbow trout; Anglers to show their total catch for the season.

Maximum purchase of two rabbits each day.

Moose season from October 20 to November 10.

President Rev. A. W. L. Smith presided and a letter of regret was read from R. W. Tufts that he was unable to attend on account of his recent accident.

DIGBY MUSIC COUNCIL HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The Digby Music Council, which is devoted to the encouragement of music appreciation and performance at home, and to the promotion of all worthy musical enterprises in Digby and vicinity" elected the following officers at their first annual meeting, on Friday evening last:

President—Paul Yates

Vice-President—E. C. Sollows

Secretary-Treasurer—C. L. Bowley

The above, with P. W. Holdsworth, George Morrell, Fritz Dakin and J. W. Merkel, constitute an executive committee of seven to handle all business matters.

The Music Council has been concentrating its attention upon the Digby Civic and Junior Bands, which it is sponsoring, under the direction of Paul Yates, and its efforts have resulted in a phenomenal showing made by this young band, which gave twenty-five concerts and earned $750 before it was ten months old.

The president's report gave the present membership of the band at 55, with several beginners awaiting admission. He voiced warm appreciation of the action of the town council in erecting an excellent band room, with repairs costing upwards of $150; and named more than a dozen townspeople who freely gave goods and services in decorating the room. He recommended the erection of a new pavilion for outdoor concerts in place of the old one, which is not adapted for the purpose. He also urged the necessity, of scientific ventilation for the band room—a recommendation which was promptly carried out by the authorization of immediate installation of electric ventilators.

The treasurer's report showed that the boys themselves had paid $120 for membership fees and $873 for privately owned instruments; they had been given $361 by the old Digby Band, and $146 by friends of the band, beside receiving $275 for engagements making a total of $1,875, in addition to $500 which the town will pay for twenty outdoor concerts last summer.

Short addresses by Mayor Holdsworth and H. P. Warner paid high compliments to the director and the players, and laid strong emphasis on the more and intellectual value of a musical organization to any community, and particularly stressed the importance of strong support of the band and the music council.

The band intends to celebrate its first birthday with an anniversary concert on December 15th, and a fine programme is expected, judging from the excellent series of outdoor concerts given this summer.

WEYMOUTH YOUNG PEOPLE IN CENTREVILLE

Several of the members of the Young People's Society of the Heart Memorial United Church, Weymouth, motored to Centreville on Thursday evening, and took charge of the regular weekly meeting of the Centreville Society. The members of the Sandy Cove Society were also present.

Gerald Tingley, president of the Annapolis West Presbyterian, presided at the meeting, and was assisted in the programme by Rev. and Mrs. M. R. Ewing, Jack Hankinson, and the Misses Pauline Blackadar, Agnes Payson and Kathleen FitzGerald.

The programme was on "Public Opinion" being taken from the two angles, "How Public Opinion is Created" and "Is It Ever Right to Stand Against Public Opinion?"

At the conclusion of the meeting games were played, after which delicious refreshments were served by the Centreville Society. Brief addresses of appreciation to the Honorary President and President of the Union, as well as the Weymouth Society, were made by Mrs. W. H. Forsythe, of Sandy Cove, and Miss Meredith Morehouse, of Centreville, and fittingly responded to by Mr. Tingley.

The singing of several songs and an interesting "yell" given by the members of the Centreville Society, brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

Only three more weeks until Christmas! Have you started your advertising? People have already begun their shopping for gifts, as well as their groceries, fruits, etc., for cooking.

On Thursday last a number of members of the Women's Institute gathered at the home of Mrs. A. B. Campbell, and spent the afternoon very pleasantly and profitably, sewing, repairing and making clothing for needy families. Yesterday another gathering was held at the same home to complete work already begun.

On Thursday last a number of Bear River men attended the postponed meeting of the Fish and Game Protective Association, held in Digby. A paper read by C. W. Jefferson gave views from the standpoint of the professional men and hotel-keepers on one hand, and the farmers and laborers on the other, regarding the sporting season. This was well received and brought a good round of applause.

On Saturday morning, Nov. 25th, Wallace James Berry, of Bear River, passed away after an illness of short duration, the end though not unexpected, coming very suddenly. On Friday Mr. Berry had been in the village, arranging his business affairs, and the community was shocked by the news received on Saturday. Mr. Berry was seventy-one years old, the son of Silas and Mary Elizabeth (Burrill) Berry, and had resided his entire life in this Province. He married Miss Bessie Augusta Cook, of North Range, who survives him. The funeral service was held at the home on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. C. L. Mr. Berry leaves to mourn his passing his bereaved widow, also five sisters, Bertha, residing in Minneapolis; Alice, residing in Florida; Mrs. Sherman, in Deep Brook; Mrs. Howard Snell and Mrs. Scott Chute, in Bear River; and two brothers, Jesse, residing in Bear River; and George, residing in Florida. The sympathy of the whole community is extended to the family in their sorrow.

Watson Tupper Nicholl

Word was received in Bear River on Saturday advising relatives and friends of the sudden passing of Watson Tupper Nicholl, at his home 8 Cambridge Terrace, Allston, Mass. Mr. Nicholl was the oldest son of George and Sophia (Clarke) Nicholl, who was born in Bear River eighty years ago and lived here until about forty years ago, when he moved, with his family, to Allston, Mass., where he has since resided, coming each summer to visit friends and relatives here. He entered the employ of the late George F. Miller, merchant, where he remained until he moved to the United States, where he still worked in the mercantile business. As a young man he was united with the Baptist church, of this town, and later transferred his membership to the Allston church, of which church he is on the Board of Deacons. His wife, who before her marriage was Miss Eliza Welch, predeceased him nine years ago. He is survived by two daughters, Miss Ethel, at home; and Mrs. E. E. Jewett, of Hartford, Conn.; and one son, Lawrence C. Nicholl, of Allston; one grandson, Malcolm, also one brother, Fred, of Salem, Mass. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon from his residence, conducted by Rev. V. A. A. Killam. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Rice was 90 years old. She moved to the United States five years ago, where she has since resided. The body arrived here on Tuesday, accompanied by Mrs. Rhodes. ## FARMERS MEET IN ANNUAL SESSION

Lloyd Macneill, of Marshalltown, was elected president of the Digby County Farmers' Association, at their annual meeting, which took place in Digby, on Saturday. Other officers elected were Antoine Comeau, Little Brook, vice-president; and Harold A. Nichols, Digby, secretary-treasurer.

Raymond LeBlanc, county agricultural representative, gave an interesting talk on the work done throughout the county. He reported the activities of fifteen boys' and girls' calf clubs, and gave accounts of the six school fairs held in the county during the fall, particularly mentioning the very successful one at Acaciaville. This year, he reported, 600 cases of beans had been canned in Meteghan.

The society voted a sum of money for the memorial to be erected in memory of the late F. C. Fuller, prominent Truro agriculturist. A committee was appointed to consider the form of a resolution to be brought in and forwarded to the Dominion government, urging the renewal of contracts with farmers for the testing of milk, etc. The Dominion government, it is understood, plans to discontinue this service after December 31st, of this year. This committee brought in their recommendations with the request that a resolution be drawn up by the secretary and forwarded to the Federal government, and that another be sent to the provincial government, urging that they take on this service should the federal government drop the same.

Byron MacNeill, of Marshalltown, was presented with the Nova Scotia Banner Farmer certificate for the County of Digby, awarded by reason of his success as a farmer, his general proficiency in the management of his farm and the quality of his farm home.

Delegates were appointed to attend the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Farmers' Association to be held in Halifax. An executive committee comprising one farmer from each district in the county where there was an active agricultural society, was appointed.

INDIAN CHARGED WITH SERIOUS ASSAULT

In his preliminary hearing before Stipendiary Magistrate J. A. Taylor, at the court house, in Digby, on Monday, Matthew Picotou, a well known Digby Indian, was sent up for trial on the charge of assault, with intent to kill.

Information was laid against him by his step son, Noel Glode, cripple. The alleged assault on Glode took place on October 20th, and until a few days ago, Glode has been an inmate in the Digby General Hospital.

It is alleged that on October 20th Picotou arrived home for dinner at his cabin, but found no one at home but his little girl, and no dinner ready, his wife, it is understood, being in a nearby cabin, playing cards. Picotou sent for his wife, and in the act of chastising her, pushed her over. Her scream was heard by her crippled son who came to her assistance, and a scrap between the two men took place. During this scrap, it is alleged, Picotou struck Glode over the head with a heavy club while Glode used a cord wood stick for his weapon.

In this case, E. J. Theriault, of Digby appeared for the first time in his new role as crown prosecutor, and H. A. Nichols appeared for the defence.

Edwin Hardwick, of the Sissiboo Road, was also sent up for trial charged with carrying concealed weapons. Corporal Hetherington, of the local detachment E. C. M. P., prosecuting, and H. A. Nichols for the defence. The defence offered no evidence, nor did the defendant testify.

Mrs. J. H. Wright left on Friday for Boston, where she will be the guest of her son, Morley Wright.

PAUL IN EPHESUS

Golden Text:—"Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake."—Matthew 5:10.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 19:26-28.

The Little World I Touch

"What happens to the folks I meet
When they pass over the way?
Is mine a face they gladly greet
Because it carries cheer each day?"

"What happens to the folks I know
As they watch from day to day?
Are mine the deeds that help them grow
Because I live the Master's way?"

Teaching Takes Time, 8-10

As a business centre, Ephesus was the Liverpool of the Mediterranean. Intellectually, Pliny described it as the eye of Asia. Socially, it was termed the Vanity Fair of Asia. Religiously, it was a sacred city, home of the worship of Diana. Into this city came Paul as an almost unknown Christian teacher. For three months he spoke in the synagogue until he was put out. He then moved to the room of a teacher, Tyrannus by name, and continued to teach there for two years. His teaching brought results. The Apostle John found all outgrowths of Paul's missionary teaching. Jesus Christ spent nearly three years upon the intensive training of his twelve disciples. Thorough educational work cannot be done hurriedly. It requires patience and time.

Miracles and Science, 11, 12

By derivation the word miracle means something to be wondered at. It is something we do not at present understand. What is a miracle to one person may not be a miracle to another. What is a miracle at one time may not be a miracle at a later period. An Eskimo brought down for a visit to a large city thought that a street car moving without visible means was a miracle, but to the regular passengers the street car was commonplace. Twenty years ago, had anyone been able to bring music out of a box from three thousand miles away, it would have been a miracle: today radio is standard equipment for homes. A doctor's daughter had her finger caught in a window: the father hypnotized his daughter, released the injured finger and dressed it and she was cured when he restored his daughter to normal consciousness, a miracle to the onlookers but scientific technique to the doctor. Miracles only appear

WORK IS EASIER NOW FAT HAS GONE

"I was so stout about 11 months ago," a woman writes, "that I became a burden to myself. Then muscular rheumatism set into my joints, and I had to go on sticks for some time. Then I started to take Kruschen salts, and I am overjoyed with the results. I feel lighter from them. Honestly, I had no idea one could feel so different in such a short time. Since taking Kruschen, I have lost nearly 28 lbs. of superfluous fat. I can now run about as well as when I was 20, cook, work, and attend to seven growing children." — (Mrs.) G. H.

Unlike certain drastic drugs, Kruschen does not aim to reduce by rushing food through the body. Its action is not confined to a single part of the system. It has a tonic influence upon every organ of elimination, every gland, every nerve, every vein. Gently, but surely, it rids the system of all fat-forming refuse, of all poisons and harmful acids which give rise to rheumatism, digestive disorders, and many other ills.

to be contrary to law. In reality they are achieved through the use of unknown or higher laws. The law is that things heavier than air fall and things heavier than water sink, but airplanes rise and steel ships float through the adaptation of other laws. Paul told people in Ephesus not by magic but according to psychological laws.

Who Are You 13-16

Just as there is counterfeit money because of the value at good money, so there are false teachers of religion in imitation of genuine teachers. How are religious leaders to be tested? Letters of introduction from persons we know should be required of travelling evangelists. Certificates of license and ordination are required of settled ministers. If personal financial profit is over-emphasized, suspicions are justified. The seven sons of Sceva, in Ephesus, thought that they could make money by casting out evil spirits as Paul had done in the name of Jesus. They could give the incantations but they could not work cures. One man upon whom they practised said: "Jesus I know, and Paul I know: but who are ye?" False teachers usually give themselves away: it requires high integrity to be a religious teacher year after year in one community.

A Bonfire of Books, 19

An eastern proverb says that "the fortune teller knows not his own fate." Magicians in Ephesus had been predicting the future and paying patrons: little did they anticipate that under Paul's influence they would soon publicly burn their books of magic valued at ten thousand dollars. What a public rebuff that must have been! What an advertisement of the Christian faith! Such dramatic events still happen. Under the preaching of Savonarola, the Florentines publicly burned their charms and baubles. After a revival of religion in a Canadian city a business man closed his fortune telling tea parlors: he said that he knew that magic cups was a deception of the public for the sake of profit and he was through with it. In good years it was estimated that fortune tellers in New York. In many Canadian cities there are brightly colored "magician" signs where ignorant men and women have their money blessed and sometimes flibbed. Edmund Burke was not far wrong when he said that superstition is the religion of feeble minds.

Vital Religion, 20

When conversions happen, restitution begins. A highly educated and prominent man facing up to the ideal of honesty went to a Customs officer and paid one hundred and twenty-five dollars on clothing he had smuggled. A more lasting evidence of sincere religion is personal evangelism. In Ephesus the Christian cause grew mightily and prevailed. One loving heart set another on fire. The Ephesian Christians were strong minded. In the second chapter of the Book of Revelation the church at Ephesus is commended for its labor, patience, purity and endurance of persecution. Paul wrote a letter to the Ephesians which, says Dr. Stalker, "is a testimony to the proficiency which Paul's converts had attained under his preaching at Ephesus."

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Is adequate time being given to Christian education?
- 2.—Do the dangers of faith-healing outweigh the value of the cures?
- 3.—How should religious teachers be accredited?
- 4.—What is the surest proof of repentance?
- 5.—What kind of conversions does your church desire?
- 6.—Was Paul a good "city mission-ary?"

Married

LeBlanc-Doucet

A pretty wedding took place at St. Vincent de Paul Church, at Salmon River, on Tuesday morning, November 21st, when Joseph LeBlanc, son of Mr. and Mrs. James LeBlanc, of Saulnierville, was united in marriage to Miss Annie Doucet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Doucet, of Beaver River. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Mallet, rector. The bride wore a costume of white satin, with silk veil, white satin slippers and corresponding accessories. She was attended by Miss Charlotte Dugan, of Meteghan. The groom was attended by John Doucet, a brother of the bride. Nuptial High Mass followed the ceremony. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Afterward the bridal party left for a motor trip up the Valley. On their return, supper was served at the home of the bride's parents to a few invited guests. An informal reception was held in the evening in their honor. The presents received were costly and beautiful. After spending a few days with the bride's parents at Beaver River, they will return to Saulnierville, where they will reside.

Melanson-Belliveau

A pretty wedding took place at St. Mary's Church, Church Point, on Tuesday, November 21st, when Miss Eva Belliveau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Belliveau, was united in marriage with Charles Melanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Melanson, both of Grosses Coques. Miss Lucie Melanson, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, and Romeo Belliveau, the bride's brother, supported the groom. Rev. Father Dren, P. P., officiated at the ceremony, after which breakfast for both families was served at the bride's parents' home, and dinner and supper, to which a large number of friends were invited, followed by a reception. Mr. and Mrs. C. Melanson will reside at Grosses Coques.

Mrs. James Litch was pleasantly surprised on Friday evening of last week, when a goodly number of her friends assembled to wish her much happiness on the occasion of her 80th birthday. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Archie McGrath, presented her with a prettily decorated birthday cake. A social evening was spent with music and refreshments.

In spite of the inclemency of the weather a large congregation assembled at the United Baptist church on Sunday evening, for the farewell service of the pastor, Rev. A. S. Harlow. After a term of six and a half years he tendered his resignation in order to complete his M. A. course, at Acadia University.

Next Sunday Rev. W. B. Crowell, a native of Yarmouth, will begin his work as pastor of the Lower Grandville group of Baptist churches.

Band Notes

The Band Anniversary Concert, on its first birthday, December 15th, will be full of surprises. The first surprise is a donation fee, which is placed at "depression price"—25 cents for children under twelve years, and 35 cents for adults, who may get reserved seats without extra charge, provided they secure them before 5 o'clock on the day of the concert.

The concert, to be held at the Holdsworth's Drug Store at that hour and the real surprise will confront the fellow who waits to get reserved seats at the Theatre office, where they will cost 50 cents. In this case "the early bird" will be "the wise old owl" who buys ticket days ahead. Surprises in the program are numerous. Some of them are dark secrets as yet, but probably two new soloists will be heard in delightful numbers, and the class of music throughout will be of a higher order and much more interesting than anything yet performed in public by this very progressive organization.

This is the first time—and probably the last—that such an enjoyable entertainment, prepared with so much care, will be offered at these prices. If the Band is to live thro' the winter, its friends will need to support it generously.

Miss Dorothy Moses, of the Digby School teaching staff, underwent an operation in the Digby General Hospital this week. Mrs. Fred May is taking her place on the school staff for the present.

J. Vian Andrews will ship the first of thirteen carloads of Christmas trees for the New York market, today. He has had twenty-six men engaged at cutting Christmas trees since the 20th of October. He will ship trees from Weymouth, Sissaboo Falls, North Range, Clementsport, and Deep Brook stations this season.

A group of Digby Kiwanians, representing about half the club membership, went to Yarmouth on Tuesday for an inter-club visit to the Yarmouth Club, and also to take the Treasure Chest for another step on its return journey to the Sydney Club, which started it on its travels. The party went down on the afternoon train and were met at Yarmouth with cars. A chicken dinner was served in the club rooms. President "Bob" Guest, of the Yarmouth Club, extended a welcome, which was replied to by Kiwanian "J. J.", of the Digby Club. Rev. A. E. Gabriel was the guest speaker. He gave a splendid address on "Friendship." The party returned on the fast freight.

You will find at Miss Chisholm's a nice line of Hostery, Linen and Scarves for Christmas gifts. She is also selling all Hete at a Great Reduction.

Between Ourselves

A short time ago I chanced to be in a community not far from Digby. While there I took the opportunity of chatting with a few of my friends who reside in that place.

It happened there was one friend in particular whom I wished to see, just to say "hello" to. When this chap is in Digby he usually makes it a point to step around to see me, and when I am in his town it is only natural for me to want to return his visits. However, this friend happened to be out of town for the day.

I was disappointed, and while speaking with a group of others, I happened to mention this friend of mine, and forthwith one of them, a fine fellow otherwise, commenced to unwind a long tale telling me of all the sins, big and little, my friend had committed from the time he left the cradle. I am convinced that he recorded many things that good old St. Peter had forgotten long ago; many Most of these dark crimes were thought nothing of, and a few, perhaps, that I would like to forget, that my friend had forgotten or pranks, and others a little more serious, but no worse than many of the things you and I have done.

I wondered this man went so far out of his way to tell me these details. I wondered if his aim was to lessen my estimation of a friend. I wondered why he didn't appear to want me to leave his town without telling me all the dark details of a friend's life. I wondered why it was necessary to tell all these things to a comparative stranger like myself. If I thought well of one of his townsmen wouldn't it have been better for him to have kept still? Possibly that man is like others of our acquaintance, who, for some mysterious reason, can't say a good word about anyone unless they are members of the own household. I truly think it would hurt some folks to waste a good word on any person.

However, I still think well of my friend, but I would feel much better if I hadn't been told all these things about him, and for that reason I hate to admit it—but, I am inclined to mistrust this other chap. I would hate to give him an opportunity of having something to say about me. All of us in boastful moments, say "I don't give a hoot what anybody has to say about me," but very few of us suppose having our sins broadcast to every stranger in our midst, even though we may be aware that in our secret sins may not be so secret in our communities as we would wish. Too often many phases of them are deep crevices to ourselves after the story leaves certain mouths.

For the past week one of the best daily papers that comes to our deck has been publishing a series of special editions, commemorating their twenty-fifth anniversary and the completion of a new "home". This paper is the Christian Science Monitor, of Boston, one of the most unique daily papers in the world. Its circulation is international; ten per cent. of its subscribers are in the British Isles; they have more subscribers in San Francisco than in Boston; copies of the paper are sent to Australia where they arrive six weeks after publication. Their editorials are copied and commented on by practically every newspaper in the world. The Monitor is a newspaper of high ideals and merits the splendid success it has earned during the past twenty-five years.

Local & Personal

Harry Ross arrived from Boston on Tuesday to spend a few days in town. Miss Ida M. Trask, of Marshalltown, left on Tuesday for Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Digby Barker are receiving congratulations on their 14th wedding anniversary today.

The monthly meeting of the V. O. N. will take place in the Court House, on Monday next, at 3 o'clock.

Don't forget the Roman Catholic tea on Thursday next. See advt. in another column.

Stanley McMillen, of Newton, Mass., recently spent a few days in town, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hayden.

Miss Grace Fountain and Mrs. Sadie Turnbull, of the A. R. restaurant staff, returned from a trip to Halifax, on Monday.

Fred May has been appointed as Registrar of Births and Deaths, in place of G. Woodford Connell; and Harvey Kinney, of Bear River, has received a similar appointment for that town, replacing Mrs. Laura Litchfield, resigned.

Unconscious for two days, the little daughter of Louis Belliveau, Groses Coques, now has a chance for recovery. Hit on the head by a shaft projecting from the rear of a truck driven by Simeon Comeau, of Concession, the tiny tot remained in a state of coma for forty-eight hours.

The new liquor store keeper at Picou was a member of the town council, and has had to resign from the latter as it is against the law for a member of the council to hold "a position of emolument under the Crown." This seems to open up an important question. Here in Digby and vicinity several councillors are holding public positions.

Tuesday is the day of the annual Christmas Tea and Sale under the auspices of the Digby Baptist church. Supper served in the vestry from 5 to 7 o'clock.

A reception in honor of the new pastor, Rev. A. W. Akley, was given by the church at Hillsboro, N. B., on Tuesday of last week. The gathering was held in the Memorial Hall and was sponsored by the Hillsboro Men's Brotherhood. After the musical program and addresses, refreshments were served. (Rev. M. Akley was up to a few weeks ago, the pastor at Freeport).

One of the crew of a boat arriving Tuesday from LaHave, is Bernie Schmeisser, who was one of the volunteer crew of the lifeboat from the Saint John Dry Dock Company's tug Ocean Eagle, who saved part of the crew of the ill-fated steam trawler, Mikado, wrecked on the Cape Breton coast about 11 years ago. Other members of the lifeboat's crew were Capt. Isaac Greenlaw, since deceased, and Frank Moore, of Westport. The feat was accomplished only at the greatest risk of the three heroes and with a great display of seamanship. Mr. Schmeisser, as were the other members of the crew, was awarded several medals, including one from the British Board of Trade. The Mikado was returning to Grimsby, after having fished out of Digby for the Maritime Fish Corporation. She struck on the Cape Breton coast, becoming a total loss, and carrying with her 8 or 9 of her crew.

The ladies of the Digby Baptist church will hold their annual Christmas Tea and Sale in the Baptist vestry, on Tuesday evening, December 12th.

More Boats Join the Scallop Fleet Out of Digby

The Courier has been given to understand that three boats from Grand Manan have joined the scallop fleet fishing out of this port, and that several craft from the LaHave district are fitting out to join the Lunenburg boats already operating out of Digby.

At present, we are told, prices are pretty well down, but catches not so bad. One boat, in charge of Capt. Victor Halliday, arrived in port this week with fifteen kegs of scallops. While dragging in the Bay the shaft on Horton Stark's boat broke, and the craft was towed in to the Gut by Harry Raymond's boat. From there the Bayview lifeboat towed it in to Digby.

Some of the local scallopers are not welcoming the new comers with open arms, and they are giving the press the blame for bringing them here, through the publicity given the scallop fishing activities; and if the press had nothing to say about the industry they would want to know what in heaven's name was the matter with us—so what can a feller do?

Don't forget the annual Christmas Tea and Sale at the Baptist church vestry, on Tuesday evening. Supper served from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Gee, but our advertisers caught us this week! We had anticipated any such rush this issue, and as two pages of the Courier had been printed on Monday, and two more on Wednesday, the rush caught us with only two pages of space. A lot of interesting matter had to be crowded out—and we have to do that, but this is the season when it is possible to make a dollar—and we need it.

Red Ravens Arrange for Winter's Work

The Digby Red Ravens Hockey Club elected their officers at a meeting held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, as follows:

President—P. W. Holdsworth
Vice-President—Fred Muise
Secretary-Treasurer—E. J. Theriault

Team Manager—Frank L. Anderson

Entertainment Committee—Fred Muise, Fred Harvey and Jack Keen. C. E. Walker was appointed a vice-president of the Central Valley Hockey League.

The admission of the Digby Red Ravens to the Central Valley League gives promise of lively hockey in Digby this winter. The teams comprising this league are Middleton, Annapolis Royal, Bridgetown and Digby. The schedule is as follows:

BAND NOTES

The Band is starting its second year with an empty treasury. Cash contributions, however small, will help, and the Band is making strong efforts to raise money by giving concerts and relying upon the public to fill the house. A ticket bought is a cash donation to help the band, but a delightful entertainment of all new music is offered next Friday night at the absurdly low price of 35 cents, with seats reserved if secured before 5 o'clock. Get tickets in advance from bandsmen or their friends.

UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA

The services on the Digby Circuit, Rev. E. W. Forbes, pastor, on Sunday will be as follows:

Digby, 11 a.m., and 7 p.m.; and Smith's Cove, 3 p.m.

At the evening service eight beautiful pictures of the Birth of Christ will be shown, and an illustrated hymn, "Away in a Manger"—fourteen slides in all. These are from beautiful paintings by great artists. Come, and bring the children to see these Christmas pictures.

Forty-five good fellows are working hard to give you a great show, with reserved seat, at the low price of 35c. Don't stay away and disappoint the Band boys, on Friday next.

H. J. Campbell spent the week end in Saint John.

Mrs. Alex. Ross has returned from Montreal, where she has been visiting her daughters.

Mrs. C. E. Walker has returned from Halifax where she has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Eric Vyse. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weir and child; Mrs. Evelyn and Mrs. Eyle, of Rossdale, Mass., have been called home to Smith's Cove by the serious illness of Mrs. Minard Weir.

Mr. Walker is expecting a good crowd at the Bijou Theatre tomorrow night, when the four-Mex Brothers, in "Horse Feathers", will be presented on the screen.

If you want sanitary and dustless floors in your store before the Christmas business starts, buy Sanispray at B. H. Ezzies's store. We loan you the spray gun to put it on with. Call at our store for particulars.

Obituary

Robert Perry

News of the death of Robert Perry, in Peabody, Mass., has been received by relatives in Freeport. Mr. Perry was fatally injured in a car accident recently, in Peabody, living but a short time after the accident. He was a former resident of Freeport, and was 64 years of age. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Fred Powell, of Freeport, and Miss Annie Perry, R. N., of Shrewsbury, Mass. Interment was at Peabody.

We have yet a few of the Christmas Card assortments left. Twenty-one cards for 75 cents—average cost 3 1/2 cents apiece—and some are worth a quarter—Connell's, Digby.

L. M. Ellis Retires from Position as Light Keeper.

After twenty-two years as keeper of Point Prim Light, L. M. Ellis retired from that position on Thursday last, and has taken up his residence in Bayview. Mr. Ellis succeeded his father in the position, and it will be fifty-nine years ago next March that the elder Mr. Ellis took office. Over half a century in charge of father and son, Point Prim Light makes a record. During that time many changes have taken place; the crude lights of 59 years ago were succeeded periodically by more up-to-date systems, until finally a few years ago, the light was changed to electricity, the power being supplied by Digby County hydro, and Point Prim Light was the first in Canada to be so equipped. Mr. Ellis' son-in-law, Frank Wilson, is now filling the position—so the light is still in the family—and may it long continue so.

Grace United Church Players Present Play.

The Grace United Church Players presented the three-act play, "An Old Fashioned Mother" in the church hall, Prince William St., on Friday evening. The hall was well filled, and the play was very much appreciated by the audience.

The cast was as follows: Aunt Deb, Mrs. Jabez Appleby; Widder Bill Fundle, Miss Frances Appleby; Gloria Perkins, Miss Patricia MacPhee; "Sukey", Miss Helen Melanson; Jonah Quackenbush, Jabez Appleby; Lowiezy Custard, Miss Florence Keen; Isabel Swamscott, Miss Dorothy Dunn; Charlie Underhill, Reginald Turnbull; John Underhill, Oakley Turnbull; Mrs. Gossling, J. M. Walis; Enoch Bone, Clair Keen; the Village Choir.

The play was presented in the Barton Hall, on Tuesday night, and will be presented in the Temperance Hall, Smith's Cove, tonight. Digby people will be given another opportunity of seeing it on January 24th, when it will be put on in the Bijou Theatre.

The Manufacturers Mail Order Co. Limited, of Toronto, which has taken a good many dollars from Digby and vicinity, has failed and gone out of business. Money sent in since early last month has "gone into the pool" and is lost. Moral, Buy at Home.

A Few Suggestions to Help Out Your Christmas Plans . . Gifts That Keep on Giving . . .

Probably what mother really wants is a General Electric Refrigerator and just think of the number of times in the years to come that she will think of this lovely gift.

THE "BUY IN NOVA SCOTIA" CAMPAIGN

It's a time-worn argument, that we've heard oft before. A Nova Scotia manufacturer says to a Nova Scotia merchant: "We can sell our product much cheaper than the Quebec and Ontario manufacturer because we don't advertise, and then, too, there is a better margin of profit for you."

Frequently the merchant falls for this line; stocks up his shelves with this manufacturer's product, which compares with—and perhaps is better than—the competitive advertised product. What's more, the price is lower.

But in spite of these inducements the stock moves slowly—ever so slowly—and during the lapse of time that the merchant has had his capital tied up in this slow moving stock, he has sold two or three cases of higher priced competitive goods, manufactured outside of the province.

He sighs. He wonders Nova Scotians must be persuaded to purchase the products of their own province.

The manufacturer sighs, too. He wonders what is wrong with Nova Scotians. They were in industries in their province. He has invested his money, given employment to Nova Scotian workmen, put a good "made in Nova Scotia" product on the market—and there is "no sale".

"There ain't no justice," he says. But the truth of the matter is that, for the most part, the consumers were ignorant of this manufacturer's product. The manufacturer, being thoughtful of others, thought he would save the consumer money, help the merchant make a few extra cents on every sale, and incidentally save a little of his "overhead" by not advertising.

And every time, the higher priced advertised product from outside the province, had the preference of the consumer.

There are many splendid products manufactured in Nova Scotia that Nova Scotians know little of or nothing about. The manufacturers of these products, instead of waking up to the real reason, claim that Nova Scotian consumers are just naturally unpatriotic. Yet, nationally advertised Nova Scotian products have a good market, not only in Nova Scotia, but from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Take, for instance, Moir's Chocolates, Minard's Liniment and Stanfield's Underwear.

Other manufacturers advertise, but through the wrong medium to reach the buying public; they use the trade papers and tell their story to the merchants only, keeping the consumer in ignorance.

Our moral is this: If Nova Scotian manufacturers want to sell their products to Nova Scotians, they must tell their story to Nova Scotia consumers, through Nova Scotian newspapers. We could name a dozen products manufactured in our province that compare with the best manufactured anywhere, and yet these products are scarcely known in the communities where they are manufactured, because the producer has fooled himself into believing that he is saving money by keeping his product a secret from the general public by not advertising.

Why, just the other day we were served a delicious breakfast cereal that we learned to our surprise was manufactured in Hants County; only last week we learned that there was a boot and shoe factory in Lower St. Lawrence, right in our own country. Of course, we know that some of the finest jams and jellies manufactured in Canada are put up in our own town, but how many outside the town—or even in town—that matter—know this product well enough to ask for it by name. A few months ago we were in one of the local grocery stores, where a customer waiting his turn, was declaiming about the lack of industries in this town. "If we had more industries," he said, "our young folks could get work." Then it came his turn to be waited on; he wanted jam, and was served with an Ontario product. We could not resist the temptation of remarking, "If you wanted jam why didn't you ask for Digby jam, and encourage the industries you have got." He remarked that he hadn't thought of that, when up spoke the clerk, who remarked, "Well, if he had he wouldn't have got it; we don't stock it." For a few weeks we have been using a hand soap manufactured in Middleton—and it's a good article, but we would never have heard of it, had not the local merchant who knows that we use quite a lot of such soap, made us a present of a sample box. May we ask how many people in town know that extracts and jelly powders are manufactured—and have been for years—just outside the town limits, on the Digby Neck road? Nova Scotia's new premier is to be commended in his efforts to persuade Nova Scotians to buy "made in Nova Scotia" products, and deserves the co-operation of the buying public, the merchants, the newspapers, and the manufacturers. His efforts would likely be much more successful should the manufacturers spend some of their time and energy in letting the consumers know something about the products they manufacture. They can't expect their products to sell solely on their merits.

JAPANESE TACT

(G. C. Allen, in "Modern Japan") It is not an exaggeration to say that it is a social crime in Japan to give in answer to a question any reply, (however true), which may displease, or to ask for any favor which will make necessary a blunt refusal. Among certain peoples the messenger of evil was rewarded with death; in Japan, unless he conveys his message with suitable circumspection, he is likely to be ostracized as a barbarian. Blunt negatives and direct refusals are, in fact, unknown to the code of the Japanese, and in order to convey such notices one must speak circumspectly, casting hints of one's meaning here and there, half indicating one thing while ostensibly affirming the opposite. Thus the conversation of two Japanese must not be taken at its face value, for each engaged in suggesting, not deliberately stating his meaning and in trying to discover the implications of a string of conventional phrases and vague suggestions. Japan is no place for those who pride themselves on speaking their mind.

PERFECT MAPLE LEAF

The most beautiful maple leaf, prize winner in the nationwide competition conducted by the Canadian Pacific Railway, was submitted by Mrs. C. McConnell, Fredericton, N. B., York County, New Brunswick. It has a flare of autumn coloring ranging from light yellow to deep blood red, and its perfect symmetry and form won it distinction in competition with 10,000 other beautiful leaves, submitted by enthusiastic Canadians from Coast to Coast. The leaf, a thing of sheer beauty, was selected by such outstanding artists as C. W. Simpson, R.C.A., R. W. Pilot, R.C.A., and James Crockett. In the largest leaf phase of the competition, six-year-old Bobby Hume, of Revelstoke, B.C., made an astonishing win with a leaf showing an area of 222 square inches. The success which greeted the original competition this year has encouraged the Canadian Pacific officials to plan for another competition on a larger and more comprehensive scale next fall.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

THE FATHER AND HIS BOY

A public speaker in my hearing the other day told a good story of a man and his beer bottle in this fine province of Nova Scotia. It was good because of the way it ended. This man was in the habit of buying his carton of beer regularly from the Government Store, all in the lawful way. And in the lawful way, too, he took the carton to his home, and there regularly had his drink or drinks of beer.

One day his wife and mother in the home was a bit startled when the son of sixteen reported to her that his father's beer supply was nearly out. "How do you know?" she said. "Have you been using it?" "Why, yes," said he. "But you should not be doing that," she replied in a pained and disappointed way. "Doesn't father tell you to be careful?" came back the answer from the son: "If it is all right for him, why can't I drink some of it, too?" And the mother had no answer to make. What could she say under the circumstances?

When her husband came home in the evening she told the story about their boy, John. "What is John drinking?" he asked. "Yes," said the mother, "and he says it is alright for him because it is alright for you." And now it was the father's turn to be a bit pained. He spoke to John about it. It had to be a real heart to heart talk, for John put it straight up to his father and the father saw the point aiming directly at himself. Out of it came the resolve that both father and son should give up the drinking and both would go and join the local temperance society together, pledging themselves to total abstinence.

There are other fathers in Nova Scotia and elsewhere who in their home drinking have forgotten the influence of their example on their own boys or their neighbors' boys. Strange how they should forget it but they do. Strange how they should think it wrong for their boys to drink what they think alright for themselves, but they do. Strange how they should expect their boys to be abstainers while they themselves are drinkers, but they do. If only they could be warned in time, and with their sons—those promising lads that look to their dads for leadership—take the pledge of "true temperance," how much finer would be their homes, their sons, and themselves. And "true temperance," mind you, means "moderation in all things harmful and abstinence from all things harmful."

SENTENCE SERMONS

The World Is Not given to those who are making no effort;

Between Ourselves

I wonder why folks expect so much from their local newspaper? Perhaps if they worked around a newspaper office they would wonder, too.

Nevertheless, we really enjoy doing little favors for our readers and customers; we take pleasure in promoting every worthy cause; but "believe it or not," like every other business and profession, in Digby and elsewhere, we like to feel that we have made a reasonable profit on our week's work—and some day we hope to make enough to lay a little aside for a dividend.

We have little to sell but subscriptions and advertising. Just for the sake of argument, let us say that we print 2,000 copies of the Courier each week, (and that is approximately the number); out of that 2,000 about 1,600 go out to subscribers—we were going to say "paid" subscribers, but I changed my mind), 300 to newsstands, and 100 complimentary to correspondents and advertising agencies.

Out of the 1,600 subscribers let us say that 300 of them reside in the States and foreign countries where our subscription rate is $2.00 per year—that brings in a revenue of $600, doesn't it?—and 1,300 subscribers at $1.50 brings in $1,950. We'll allow another $300 for newsstand sales, (allowing for unsold copies); that makes a total of $2,850 from our circulation. Deducting mailing costs we will call the total $2,650, providing that all our subscribers pay their subscriptions as they should. By the time we pay for paper, ink, metal, type and other requirements, we have to look to some other source to raise the wages for our staff. That "some other place" is our advertising columns. In other words it is our advertising that provides our bread and butter.

We welcome every news item of interest to our readers that comes to our office; we are always glad to print them, and we have friends who have given us valuable assistance in this way. We must print the news in order to keep our circulation, and we must have circulation in order to get advertising. That's the way it works out.

I have let loose in this way in order to give some of our readers a better understanding of just why it is that we cannot give too much space to propaganda news items, and why we can't give free space to this, that and the other thing, because they are for "a worthy cause." We try to be reasonable at all times—we must ask our friends to be reasonable, too.

Advertising is our stock in trade—just as one merchant sells dry goods, another hardware and another groceries; just as a doctor or lawyer sell their professional services—we sell advertising. How many of you would go to your grocer and ask him to give you a dollar's worth of sugar on the strength that you were going to purchase from him a can of tomatoes? Not one of you, and that is just why I say that some folks expect too much from their local newspaper. They expect $4.00 worth of reading notices free for $1.00 worth of paid advertising, and then have the face to ask for a discount when the time comes to pay the bill, because it was "for a worthy cause."

We have no objections to publish-

SOUTH AFRICA USING CANADIAN SHOOKS

The most interesting feature of South Africa's import trade in the matter of wood products during the year has been the introduction of Eastern Canadian spruce shoos to the Union's fruit and dairy export industry. The packing requirements of these industries, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways, are enormous, and in the past almost the whole of this valuable business has gone to Baltic suppliers. The South African fruit and dairy co-operatives are anxious to buy their packing requirements within the Empire and there is every likelihood of Canadian mills maintaining their strategic position in the box wood orders from South Africa in future seasons.

Married

The marriage of Miss Mimie Cromwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Cromwell, of Weymouth Falls, to Berrie Bishop Seaman, of Barbados, was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, on Thursday evening, November 30th, the day being the 27th of the month. Rev. M. R. Ewing conducted the ceremony. The couple were attended by Miss Inez Dymond, of Moncton, and Emory Cromwell, of Weymouth Falls.

Sauhier-Theriault

St. Alphonse church, of St. Alphonse de Clare, was the scene of a pretty wedding, Monday morning, November 27th, when Israel Sauhier, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sauhier, of Mayflower, was united in marriage to Miss Emerise Theriault, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jule Theriault, of St. Alphonse. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father M. LeBlanc, rector, who also celebrated Nuptial High Mass. The bride, in brown attire, with accessories in match, was attended by Miss Emma Comeau, of St. Alphonse, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mark Sauhier. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, to relatives and other invited guests. They then motored to Yarmouth. In the evening a reception was held attended by more than one hundred guests. They received many costly gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Sauhier will reside at Mayflower.

Comeau-Comeau

A pretty but quiet wedding took place Monday, Nov. 27 at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Concession, when Rudolph Comeau and Catherine Comeau were united in marriage, Rev. Father Comeau officiating. The maid of honor and best man were Mr. and Mrs. Anselm Comeau, sister and brother-in-law of the bride. Petting activities have started in the numerous fox ranches in this district.

School Club Notes

Doris Comeau, of Deep Brook, says they made a resolution to send in their report on the 8th of every month. Other clubs might well copy this idea of having a regular time for sending their report. A school magazine and a Current Events book will be two of their club's projects this year.

In Clementsvale they had a pie sale and concert and made $10.79 for the school.

At Bear River East they have used part of their School Improvement Contest money to pay for a new foundation and doorway for the school. They have elected their new officers for the second quarter.

Lake LaRose is making a School Magazine this year. They are busy practising for their Christmas concert.

At Weymouth North they are preparing for their concert. Pauline Ruggles is the president of this club. Lower Granville school is making a school magazine for this year's project. Last year they did a Local History.

Ivan Shortliffe, of Central Grove, reports this year's officers as follows: President—Helen Delaney; Vice-President—Freda Elliott; Secretary—Ivan Shortliffe; Treasurer—Nettie Frank. Their motto is, "Play up! Play up! and play the game."

Secretaries are still forgetting to put their age and grade on reports. The prize for November in the Senior Division was equally merited by Charles Burton Parker, South Farmington, and Nora Hudson, Parker's Cove. No entry in the Junior Division complied with the requirements.

Prizes were given for the age and grade of the reporter. Prizes will be mailed to Charles and to Nora this week.

Watch for your Christmas copy of the Junior Club News. Take it to school at once, so that you may read it before school closes for vacation.

Digby Admitted to League After Secret Vote

Accepting the Digby Ravens, for the past few years ice rulers of Western Nova Scotia, and reflecting its application of Berwick, Kings County League entrants last season, the Central Valley Hockey League on Friday completed plans for the 1933-34 campaign, at Middleton, a season that promises to be the best in the history of the game in this section of the province.

The meeting lasted more than three hours and a secret ballot was final taken by the nine representatives from the Bridgetown, Annapolis and Middleton clubs, resulting in Digby's application being accepted, six to three. Delegates from both Berwick and Digby participated in the hectic debate.

President T. H. Dowdell, of Middleton, and E. C. Mumford were appointed as a committee to draw up the schedule, while the list of referees was left over until a later meeting.

Berwick, it is understood, will continue in the Kings County league, the annual meeting of which will be held in the very near future.

Obituary

Miss Alice Cousins

Very many friends will learn with deep regret of the death of Miss Alice Cousins, R. N., who occurred at her home in Westport, at an early hour last Friday morning. Miss Cousins had been in poor health for some time, but had been confined to her bed for only two weeks. Her death at the early age of 33 years, causes sincere regret among her many friends and acquaintances and has cast a gloom over the whole community. She was of a very bright and pleasing disposition and dearly loved by all who knew her. Surviving her are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cousins; one sister, Rowena, and one brother, Donald, at home. She was a valued member of the Christian church. The funeral was held from her home on Sunday afternoon, and was conducted by Rev. M. C. Outhouse, assisted by Rev. H. Morgan, of the United Baptist church. Officers and members of the Sunset Rebekah Lodge attended the funeral, and held their service at the house. The floral offerings were many and very beautiful, showing the love and esteem in which she was held.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Parsons

A long and useful life came to a close on the evening of Tuesday, November 30th, at Gloucester, Mass., when death claimed Mrs. Elizabeth B. Parsons, one of that city's best known and beloved residents, whose ancestry is closely connected with Cape Ann history. Mrs. Parsons made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Moeller, 360 Washington Street. She had been ill about seven weeks, bearing her troubles with a courage and cheerfulness that had marked her character through life. The end came peacefully. She was in her 90th year. The deceased was a daughter of Peter and Marina (Cook) Brooks, of Weymouth. Her father died in early life. With her mother she went to Gloucester where she married the late George F. Parsons. Her lovely character and readiness to help others, won for her the respect and affection of all who knew her. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Alice B. Anderson and Mrs. Mary J. Moeller; a son, Perry W. Parsons; several grandchildren and great-grandchildren and a number of nephews and nieces. The funeral took place last Friday afternoon from the Riverdale Methodist Episcopal church, in Gloucester, Mass.

He entered the employ of the New Haven Road, and at the time of his last illness was one of the oldest engineers in point of service on the system. ## NOVA SCOTIA WAS NOT ALL FOR CONFEDERATION

A Digby Newspaper Figured in the Campaign With a Strong Article Against It.

At a recent meeting of the Nova Scotia Historical Society some interesting correspondence was read referring to Nova Scotia about the time of confederation. That this province was very strongly divided is evident from the tone of the letters exchanged between the officials then in power.

In the last letter given under the hand and seal of the Governor of the province just before Confederation was declared, wherein it was stated: "This day terminates the Royal Province of Nova Scotia," Professor Harvey interpreted the phraseology and its note of pathos to represent the psychology of the time and the attitude that the province which had been noted for its leadership was then to be annexed.

News of the correspondence between the Attorney-General and the Lieutenant-Governor concerning the former's alleged speech leaked out and reached the House of Assembly. Professor Harvey said. The House passed a resolution on the correspondence and news of this reached the Governor who then wrote a letter to the House.

Professor Harvey also quoted from a "double sheet" newspaper, "The Bluenose," published at Digby, on November 4th, 1868. Editorially the paper, of which an original copy is preserved in the Archives, strongly opposed Confederation and favored repeal of the act. It pointed out that the situation of fisherman and farmer, unfavorable at the time, would be improved by annexation with the United States because of the larger market available. Improvement in the industrial life of the Province was also visualized by the author if the Act were repealed and annexation brought about, because the industries would be supported by the ready capital of the United States.

The article argued that a bargain would first have to be struck with the United States before the Province was given permission from England to sever its ties.

This newspaper reached the Lieutenant-Governor who passed it on to the Attorney-General who was asked to declare if it were sufficient grounds to have the paper silenced, the press seized or to prosecute the owner. The Attorney-General's reply to the Governor held that although the contents of the article were "outraging" to loyal subjects of the Crown, the newspaper was "too insignificant" to bother about and the editor was apparently "searching for notoriety."

Continuing his story of the repeal agitation in the Province, with material gained in the Archives, Professor Harvey explained that when the proclamation came from Ottawa in 1868, announcing July 1st as Dominion Day and a public holiday, the Queen's printer refused to print it. In his explanation of refusal he stated that since the members of the Government were openly adverse to the Act he was but their servant and was guided by them. The proclamation was printed elsewhere.

Professor Harvey also referred to a number of letters sent to the Lieutenant-Governor by Nova Scotians who had been selected to receive Confederation medals commemorating the Union. These in brief but pointed phrases had refused the medals.

HERE'S A RIDDLE FOR YOU ABOUT NECKTIE COLORS

In a certain office in our town, the girls have been busy compiling statistics that may be of interest to both sexes.

Men, they affirm, have a startling conformity of tastes in the matter of neckties. That is to say, they seem to run to the same colors on the same days. On dark, cloudy days they go in for gaudy mixtures and solid pastels, whereas in sunny weather, they seem to prefer dark browns, navy blues and so on.

One day they'll show up, all wearing striped ties. The next day it's conglomerate mixed patterns. The third day they'll all wear plain colors—apparently without rhyme or reason or forethought, and yet—they're all the same. How come, ask the girls?

Maybe you can help solve the riddle.—Cleveland Plain Dealer

In the magistrate's court at Weymouth, Stipendiary M. Sabine, presiding, Georges Moulaison, Meteghan River, was found guilty of theft of stores on board the tern schooner Thomas Dawson, and adjudged to serve three months in jail.

PAUL IN CAESAREA

Golden Text:—"Herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence towards God, and towards men."—Acts 24:16.

Lesson Passage:—Acts 24:10-23.

"Yes, without cheer of mother or of daughter.
Yes, without cheer of father or of son;
Lone on the land and homeless on the water,
Pass I in patience till the work is done."

On Trial, 10-13

Picking up the threads of the story we recall that Paul had returned to Jerusalem with gifts for the poor, that he had gone to the temple to worship, that the Jews caused a tumult, that he was arrested and spirited away by night, that he was taken down for his trial. Among them was a rhetorical lawyer by the name of Tertullus who made a very flattering speech to Felix. Paul spoke last and his speech is in striking contrast to that of Tertullus. Tertullus trusted to phrases and flattery. Paul trusted to facts, stated a straightforward, manly way, gave evidence in a court is a rather trying experience at best, but Paul was making a defence of his own actions upon which his life depended. The great missionary apostle had nothing to conceal. He was able to give a clear account of his actions during his twelve-day visit in Jerusalem. On he bench was Felix clothed with official power. Tertullus was present as prosecuting attorney skilled in the rhetoric of the schools. The hero of the action was Paul, the prisoner in the dock a prisoner at law because he was a follower of Jesus Christ.

frankness must have created a good impression upon Felix. He openly admitted that this was no disloyalty to his Hebrew faith which he still held. He confessed to his hope for the resurrection of the dead, a doctrine which the Pharisees upheld and the Sadducees denied. Fortunately, however, trials are becoming less common. They are not an ideal way of arriving at the truth. An atmosphere of partisanship is developed in which judicial decisions are difficult. In fact, argument for victory is no longer considered the best form of discussion. It is much better when a group collectively seeks to discover all the facts, estimate them, and arrive at a conclusion in the light of the facts. Majority votes are not the best way of arriving at the truth. At one time a majority vote would have been overwhelming in favor of believing that the world is flat—the minority was right. In the court-room of Felix at Caesarea, Paul would have been in the minority, yet we believe that Paul was right. At whatever danger to himself, he gave his honest convictions to the court.

A Good Conscience, 16

It was no small achievement for Paul to have a good conscience. His duties and responsibilities were complex. First of all he had to be loyal to his Hebrew traditions and upbringing. As he felt in duty bound to fulfill the obligation of a Roman citizen. Later there had come into his life his supreme loyalty, devotion to Jesus Christ. Conflict between these three loyalties was almost inevitable in the circumstances in which Paul lived—going from country to country, teaching both inside and outside the synagogues, and exploring the mysteries of the Christian experience with which few Jews and few Romans were in sympathy. Paul was conscious of the effort necessary to preserve a good conscience. It did not happen of itself. He had to exercise himself to keep his conscience true. A prominent religious leader for many years has taken one whole day a year to check up his inner life and examine his motives. Thomas Chalmers took one day a month for this purpose. Most of us will do better to have a period every day to listen to the voice of conscience which is also the voice of God.

Loyalty, 17-19

The facts were in Paul's favor. He had collected money to aid the poor Jews of Jerusalem, and he had safely delivered this fund. Such an action was enough to prove that he held no hostility towards those of his own race. His Jewish loyalty also was vindicated by the fact that he had gone to the temple to fulfil a solemn vow. Paul was a Jew who had become a Christian, but he did not feel that he had to give up all his Jewish faith and practices to be a Christian. Christ came to fulfil the law, not to destroy it. To Paul the temple was still a holy place where he could pray to the one God of truth and righteousness. Paul was to come when Jewish Christians, would have to forego their former associations because of the hostility displayed towards them. It's a tribute to Paul's sanity that he allowed time and growing experience to determine his course of action. As with the utmost regret that he was forced to become the apostle to the Gentiles chiefly. The tragedy of Paul's life was that, his enemies were those whom he earnestly sought to be friend.

A RECORD IN SAFE TRANSPORTATION

One passenger killed in a train accident out of a total of 469,048,829 carried 19,931,346,109 miles is certainly a record to be proud of but this is what happened on Canadian and American railways during the year 1932, according to information supplied by the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics, which embraces all railways in North America. This outstanding showing, Canadian National officials state, exemplifies the high degree of perfection which railway travel has reached and is the result of educating the employees along the lines of safety and the institution of safety devices.

OH BOY, WHAT TEA!

On tasting Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe Tet for the first time a tea drinker will inevitably exclaim over its marvellous flavour. Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe Tea is the finest tea sold in Canada at any price and at its present price of 70 cents per pound, package is particularly good value. The popularity of this tea is growing, not only on account of its unmatched flavour but because consumers are finding that it is at even 70 cents a pound an economical tea. The reason for this is its extra strength. A pound of Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe will go much farther than ordinary teas so that as compared with the latter it is not so expensive. And then there is the flavour. Oh Boy, what tea!

of political and ceremonial offences. The one remaining charge was theological. To this Paul went out of his way to plead guilty. He stated boldly that he firmly believed in the resurrection of the dead. How could he do other when his message was that of the risen Christ? The irony of the situation was that Felix was supposed to settle a religious question by power of civil law. Small wonder that he postponed his decision, and gave Paul a reasonable measure of liberty. Felix was not altogether unacquainted with the Christian movement, and as at other times, the Roman court gave Paul protection. For two years Paul was to languish in the prison at Caesarea. The time was not lost, however, as Paul used the month to think more deeply and clearly about the meaning of the Christian faith.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—How is Paul's speech an example to speakers?
- 2.—Did Paul plead guilty or not guilty?
- 3.—What is the best way to deal with heresy?
- 4.—What is conscience?
- 5.—Paul as a Christian went to the Jewish Temple to worship. Why?
- 6.—Christianity is a "way of living." Discuss this.

NOW YOU SEE IT, NOW YOU DON'T

Things are not always what they seem and this is borne out in the case of the thousands of miles of steel rail in the railway tracks which increase their length in summer and decrease in winter without any rails during the heat of the summer and being added or taken from the total mileage. If one were to take the actual miles of steel rail in the 23,700 miles of the Canadian National System in summer, he would find that he had fourteen more miles of track than he had during the winter, due to the expansion of the steel contraction in the lower temperatures of the winter season.

CHILDREN'S CONCERT A SUCCESS

A splendid programme was presented by the children of Holy Trinity Church, in the Parish Hall, on Wednesday evening, and judging from the applause of the audience each number was most acceptable and deserving of high praise. The musical monologue, "How the Elephant Got His Trunk," by Phyllis Bowley, and the vocal solo of Norman Wright, were among the outstanding numbers on the programme, which was as follows:

- 1—Introductory Address—Florence Handsaker.
- 2—Japanese Fan Song Phyllis Bowley, Dorothy Winchester, Ena Robinson, Lucille Cornack.
- 3—"Hopkins," a Humorous Reading—Lillian Durkee.
- 4—Chorus, "One Again."
- 5—Recitation, "Emblems"—Marion Handsaker, Frances Dickson, Patsy Bowley, Claire Merkel and Kathryn Robinson.
- 6—Sketch, "An Infallible Proof," by the members of the C. B. L., and directed by Victor Cardozo. The moral of this sketch, "that one can always be a gentleman, whether poor or rich," showed very good taste by the boys who chose it as their contribution to the programme. The cast included Carl Winchester, Jack McNeil, Bernard and Edward Baxter, and Churchill Durkee.
- 7—Song, "Again," Frances Dickson, Handsaker, and Kathryn Robinson.
- 8—Sketch, "Scandal on the Brain," Lillian Durkee, Marie Winchester, Lucille Cornack, Joyce Baxter, Mary Baxter.
- 9—Song—Norman Wright.
- 10—Monologue, "How the Elephant Got His Trunk," Phyllis Bowley.
- 11—Chorus, "The Holly has Greeting."
- 12—Recitation—Jack McNeil.
- 13—Piano Trio—Audrey and Marjorie Holdsworth and Mary Hayden.
- 14—Sketch, "Matrimonial Advertisement," Marie Winchester, Phyllis Bowley, Lillian Durkee and Ena Robinson.

We are sorry to report that Guy Dunn is confined to his home by illness.

Lost Man Refused Aid By Residents.

The Halifax Herald carried the following despatch from Yarmouth yesterday:

"A pitiful tale of how a man had wandered off the main highway and landed eventually at the village of Kelley's Cove, a few miles from Yarmouth, and having been refused shelter by timid occupants of warm houses, had been forced to spend the night in a snow drift, was told today. Early next morning his plight was noted by Eleanor Penny, who assisted him into his home and after reviving the unfortunate man with warm food, arranged for him to be brought to Yarmouth in the car of A. H. Smith, proprietor of a machine shop, on Water Street.

"The name of the sufferer was not revealed, but it is understood he makes his home in Weymouth, and he was hiking from that place to the home of his sister, in Truro. Apparently not familiar with the route after arriving at Yarmouth he walked through the town, instead of turning up Parade Street. At dusk he made inquiries concerning his whereabouts but could not get permission to sleep indoors. His exposure almost resulted fatally, for next morning he was stiff with cold."

S. S. Valinda Gets Out of Port in Nick of Time.

The steamer Valinda made her last trip out of Bridgetown for the season on Monday morning, leaving here at 6 o'clock, and none too soon, under weather conditions, for three hours later the river was frozen up too much to admit of her passage. She took over a quantity of hauled apples from orchardists in this vicinity, as well as syrup from M. W. Graves & Co., for export. She would have had a full cargo but the heavy storm of Sunday blocked the road; so badly that trucks were not able to get through with shipments. Stress of weather compelled the steamer to lay up down the Basin, and on her return from Saint John she will go into winter quarters at Granville Ferry—Bridgetown-Monitoir.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—Large numbers of Nova Scotians are interested in old age pensions. Many aged persons and their friends are making inquiries concerning the necessary qualifications of persons eligible for pensions in Nova Scotia and the conditions under which pensions are to be paid. There seems to be considerable uncertainty and misunderstanding regarding the whole matter. Undoubtedly it will be helpful to all such persons if you will kindly publish this brief outline of the Act and Regulations.

- 1—Pensioners must have reached seventy years of age; and
- 2—Must have lived for the five years last past in Nova Scotia and for twenty years last past in Canada; and
- 3—Must be a British subject; or, if a widow, who is not a British subject, was such before her marriage; and
- 4—Must have made no voluntary assignment or transfer of property for the purpose of qualifying for a pension; and
- 5—Must not be an Indian; and
- 6—Must show that the individual total yearly income in cash or in kind is not over $365.00.

It should be carefully noted that income does not necessarily mean cash only. There are many persons who have little or no cash but who are disqualified from receiving the minimum pension, and others from any pension at all, because they have income other than in cash—that is, in property, wages, gratuities or other means of livelihood, or who have children well able to provide, in whole or in part, maintenance.

The local inspectors are required to make careful inquiry into all applications, and the Board is entitled to recover from a pensioner any sum improperly paid by way of a pension, whether as a result of non-disclosure of facts, innocent or false misrepresentations, or any other cause.

A pensioner is not obliged to give up his property to the Board before a pension is granted. The Board is entitled to recover out of the Estate of a pensioner the sum of the pension payments made, together with interest at the rate of five per cent compounded annually; subject, however, to certain limitations and conditions.

A trustee to administer the pension may be appointed at the discretion of the Board.

Absence from Canada for more than a month disqualifies a pensioner until his return to Canada to reside, when the pension will be renewed.

If a part of the last past twenty years of an applicant has been spent in some other Province of Canada where old age pensions are payable that Province must pay a due proportion of the pension granted, but if the part of the twenty years' residence then the applicant will be deemed was in a Province not paying entitled to only that portion payable by Nova Scotia.

The Old Age Pension Board is the sole authority to consider applications and to determine the amount of pension, if any, which is to be paid. The Board must be satisfied that the applicant complies with the law in respect to all statutory qualifications, and in addition that the income of the applicant is properly and correctly estimated and so stated in the application.

The Statutes and Regulations, both Dominion and Provincial, are far too long to be quoted in full but the foregoing is a fair digest of the more important facts.

Ernest H. Blois
Director of Old Age Pensions,
Nova Scotia

Digby merchants are preparing for a big business during the time between now and Christmas. The trade here has a good start until this week when it slackened off a bit due to snow blocked roads; but now roads have been pretty well broken again, and it is hoped that there will be considerable in the local trade.

The Westport freighter, Alva J. Kenney, arrived at Gloucester, Mass., on Monday, from Westport, with Captain Cecil Thurber in command. She docked at the C. F. Mattlage & Sons' wharf, where she began unloading 100,000 pounds of salt cod for that concern.

$25 per Crate for Lobsters at Boston

The first shipment of any consequence for this season, of Nova Scotia live lobsters, arrived at Boston on the steamer Yarmouth, last Wednesday. The shipment totalled 283 packages and were sold at $35 per crate. The first shipment last year amounted to 547 packages, at $25 per crate.

The Hockey Club will hold a benefit bridge and forty-fives at the Winchester Hotel, on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. E. VanBlarcom, of Annapolis Royal, visited friends in Digby last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mount and Mrs. Evelyn Mount spent the week end in Halifax.

Mademoiselle Amarion, well known teacher of French in Quebec province, is spending the winter at Joseph Hall's, Quebec Street.

The skating rink at Annapolis Royal, which was built by the late F. J. D. Barnum, has been sold by his estate to the Annapolis Amateur Athletic Club, for $1,000.

Thirty-seven lives have been claimed by fire in Nova Scotia during the past fourteen months, while thirty-nine others have been injured by the same peril.

We have for sale the best values in inexpensive dolls we ever stocked. See the 50-cent and 75-cent lines at our store for examples—Connell's, Digby.

It will soon be time to talk about town elections. This year the retiring councillors are Casswell, Morrell and Morehouse. The mayor's term of office will also expire this year.

Dr. A. C. Fales was elected president of the Kings County Fish and Game Society recently. Dr. Fales is well known in Digby, and about a year ago he gave an address before the Digby Kiwanis Club, re the stocking of Nova Scotia's streams and lakes with trout and salmon.

After this cold snap there is no doubt that the ponds in this vicinity are perfectly safe for skating, but—take care, thin ice has claimed many lives. Ice has not melted, and has been flooded and opened for the season. The first skating was on Wednesday night.

You can have from our usual large assortment, any regular 5-cent Greeting Card, at 50 cents per dozen. Regular $1.00 per dozen for $1.00 per dozen—Connell's, Digby.

The King's County Fish and Game Association passed a resolution at their annual meeting, urging that, "starting in 1934 there be a closed season on moose for three years." They feel that the moose is being killed at a rate which will soon bring it to the verge of extinction in Nova Scotia unless some drastic action is taken.

S. B. Chute, Annapolis Valley apple king, has established a new time record for a Nova Scotia orchard. He has completed harvesting his 40,000 barrel crop. This harvest is exactly equal to the production in the Province of New Brunswick during the present season. Seven double header trains would be required to transport the yield to the coast. Now is the time to finish filling the Hospital Calendars. Collectors will call for the filled calendars during the week between Christmas and New Years.

The Digby Municipal Council will meet for their annual session next week. We understand that several matters will be up for discussion, including the relief question and that old reliable—the question of snow removal on the rural highways. Perhaps some day within the next hundred years the Department of Highways might see some way to use their tractors for pushing snow plows over the principal highways during the winter months.

Severe as the snow storm of Sunday was, it was more or less local. They had comparatively little on the other side of Bridgetown, but to the westward, towards Yarmouth, it was much heavier than it was here. Letters from the South Shore say that Sunday's storm was quite light, consisting principally of rain and sleet, more snow that day than we had during the whole winter of 1932-33.

Miss Brown, of Little River, who has been spending the past eight months with relatives in Scotland, arrived in Digby on Monday, and was met here by her father. Her mother left Little River by car to meet her, but on account of the condition of the roads, she did not reach Rossburg before night, and the car could get no farther. Undaunted, Mrs. Brown continued on her way on foot, and reached town early next morning, almost exhausted. The reunited family have since returned home.

Cannot Have Tourists and Dust.

In an address before the Windsor Board of Trade, Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Minister of Highways, and former member in the provincial use for Digby, said: "We cannot have tourists and dust—they do not mix." Here, it was revealed that the cost of satisfactorily mastering the dust on highways of gravel, would cost between $300 and $400 per mile. Costs of hard surfacing highways were given, ranging from $6,000 to $25,000 per mile.

The province of Nova Scotia will take over on January 1st, the cattle testing which up to the present has been under the direction of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. When it was announced that the Dominion government would discontinue this branch of service at the end of the year the Digby County Farmers' Association, as well as other organizations throughout the province, urged that it be continued, and forwarded a petition to the local government, asking that should the federal government decide not to reconsider their decision to discontinue this work, that it be taken in hand by the provincial government.

Between Ourselves

Perhaps some of our readers would like a little exposition of our last week's issue. Honest, friends, we didn't intend to give you such a shabby sheet from a news point of view, and it could have been avoided; with a little more forethought on our part. Tell the truth it didn't dawn upon us that Christmas was so near until the ads. commenced to come in—and then it was too late to make arrangements for an eight-page paper, and consequently, we were forced to crowd out a lot of interesting news items.

However, we will try and not let it happen again.

Evidently I'm not the only newspaper man who is getting "fed up" with giving free publicity. The other day I picked up a copy of the Sackville Tribune, and read that well-written column by "The Tribune Manager," who, I believe, is one of the best columnists written for any of our Maritime publications; but, he takes his politics too seriously; however, that's his business, not mine.

The following is what he had to say:

"Did you ever try to steal groceries?" I said to a man the other day. He came near blowing me up. He spluttered, turned black in the face, and finally when he could find words he said:

"What do you mean by asking me such a question? I have a good mind to—"

"Calm yourself," I said; "I did not say that you ever stole groceries; I asked you if you ever had tried to do so."

"What in the world are you driving at?" he said.

"I will tell you," I said; "thousands of people, who do not think of shop-lifting, deliberately walk into newspaper offices and attempt to get away with it—to secure publicity for nothing. The ingenious methods of men, women and organizations, to keep down expenses by stealing space in newspapers, are many and varied. Many people take the position that a newspaper must have something to fill up, then why not give free publicity to boost some money-making event? It may not occur to some people that it costs a lot of money to run even a small newspaper, and that money does not grow on trees, especially in these days of Depression."

"In an effort to save a small sum, home-made posters are produced; while the newspapers are expected to give away what they have to sell under the guise of a public service or philanthropy. After the event we are supposed to give a lengthy flattering report, telling all about the success of the big effort. Well, there is reason in all this; the Tribune but not all the time. People have been trying to save the world for thousands of years; it's a tough job."

"A salesman, with a glib tongue, breezes into town with a fake advertising scheme. He calls upon the merchants, who fall hard, pay over their cash, and wake up the next morning with the knowledge that they have spent their money for that which availed little. A solicitor from one of the local newspapers calls upon these same merchants with a legitimate advertising proposition and he hears a sad story of loss business and slow collections. When a man is sick, he consults a medical doctor; when he is in legal difficulties, he consults a lawyer; when he wants to build a house, he engages an architect; but when he wants to advertise, he listens attentively to the first advertising quack that calls upon him."

"A few months ago a solicitor took six hundred dollars out of Sackville merchants, and gave nothing of value in return. Of this sum possibly thirty dollars stayed in town, the rest went to the out-of-town solicitor. When advertising is placed with the local newspapers, the money, for the most part, goes to pay employees who spend their winters in Sackville."

"I wonder what the next advertising quack will be!"

The above is just as it was printed in the Sackville Tribune. Our readers can substitute the word "Digby" for "Sackville." Many advertising quacks have sold their schemes to Digby merchants who have received little or nothing in return. We often wonder how these quacks get away with it so often. More than one of our local merchants have told me how they have been "stuck" by these quacks—and yet, when another quack breezes into town with another "big proposition"—usually the same one—many of them let themselves get "stuck" again.

I'm not making any insinuations; but I wonder what this "Free Pony" scheme is, and who is going to pay for the pony? It does look as if our merchants are setting a bad example, for only a few of our stores are displaying these "free pony" posters.

Digby hockey fans (and that includes about everyone in this town, are mighty enthusiastic over the fact that our Red Ravens have been admitted to the Central Valley League, and from the schedule which appears in this issue, it certainly looks as though we are going to see some very interesting hockey battles in the near future. This winter, I'm not saying anything against the teams that comprised the old Western Nova Scotia Hockey League—they were a fine bunch of sports and their sportsmanship was greatly admired by all hockey fans, but, there's no fault of their own, they were no match for the Digby Ravens, who had the advantage of a rink, in which to practise. Neither Bear River or Church Point have an indoor rink, and all their games had to be played in Digby, consequently all games played against Digby were too much in the Ravens' favor to be interesting, but, with Digby in the league with Middleton, Bridgetown and Annapolis Royal, there promises to be a real hockey revival this winter.

JUST ONE MORE DAY

Was pleased as usual to receive my "Gazette" this morning and read all the home news. Enjoyed the little poem, "The Old Maple Tree" and have cut it out of the paper to paste in my scrap book. How I love a scrap book, old and new, and have a scrumptious one of my own in the making. There are funny things in that book from family snapshots to snappy jokes. In some cases they are both the same. Anyone who would like to contribute something to that book, a poem or anything, can send it along and it will be received with thanks.

Mersey me! I wish someone with a "tickled" funny bone to make mine, had been along to take a trip into town with me today. It's about six miles and I went in on the bus. The driver sang all the way, "The Curse of a Broken Heart," and such a heart melting rendering of the old ballad I have never heard. He looked more like a Mexican brigand than a would-be lover, being swarthy, pop-eyed and pop-tummed. He would just be carried away by his own emotions, and played an accompaniment on the driving wheel with both hands, which made me extremely nervous—I would much rather see two hands on a wheel than flying around in the air. Every so often he would glance around to see if the passengers were all entertained, and we were, but I did wish someone had been along to laugh with me. I always feel like a "Cheesie cat" grinning all by myself.

Don't you love to go window shopping? That's what I did in town, and I hope I will never be too old to stand and look at a window full of dolls. I just love them, and they have gone a long way from the china dolls of my childhood. I saw tiny baby dolls in cradles, with a tiny nursing bottle; big mamma dolls that when held a certain way would say "mama"; dolls that could walk and look at a window; a tremendously nervous "mama" dressed in a polka-dotted red and white dress, with white apron and bandana headkerchief, that was as big as a six-year-old child. She was sitting in a rocker holding a white baby doll on her lap. The windows are full of toys of all descriptions, mechanical and otherwise, both of foreign and domestic make. Great electric trains with several cars, trucks, signal stations, etc.; airplanes and automobiles. It doesn't seem right that there should be as many tempting things, and no money to spare to buy them. Children stand before a display of toys with such a hungry look in their eyes that one just wishes they could go in the store and buy the whole outfit for them. Some children never have a new toy, and others so many that one more only means something to enjoy for an hour, then cast aside. It's a good thing that there is a Santa Claus. We are more certain of it now than ever. What if it is a toy that has been mended and repaired or just an old doll with a new dress. Remember if you are tired of it, and don't want it, some other child would love it. Christmas will soon be here and if you look around a little I'm sure you will find some little girl or boy to make happy. I used to love the rag dolls my mother would make for me, with sewed on arms and legs. Checks were painted with a bit of dye; blue eyes the same; the hair was made of ravelled yarn and the dress was usually a bit of lace curtain. They were dearer than the most costly boughten ones. But goodness me! some sweet young thing probably thinks I am in my second childhood, raving about dolls. How come! yesterday was Thanksgiving day, and we counted up the things we had to be thankful for, and found they were a day that was almost like summer, and a guest that we are very fond of to help us enjoy it. We went for a long auto ride and took some pictures along the way. We had a good dinner with lots of room in our "tummies" to hold it, and a good digestion to help get rid of it, and that more than John D. Rockefeller would do all his millions, has. We had cider made from the apples in the orchard, and jam from the blackberry patch in the garden. The windows are filled with blooming house plants, and the cat and dog live in peaceful harmony, "which is more than whole nations are doing. We are thankful for everything that in life are free, so we are, each one, to grab our share. Fresh air, sunshine, dear friends, books, music, make us thankful for everything that comes our way.

TO THE PEOPLE OF NOVA SCOTIA

In our own interests, every one of us who makes a living in this Province should buy more of our Nova Scotia products.

If we all did so our money circulating at home, would turn many more wheels of home industry.

Here is what happens:

When we buy more Nova Scotian apples, vegetables and other farm produce, we enable our farmers to buy more of our sea, mine and factory products.

When we buy more Nova Scotian fish, we enable our fishermen to buy more of our farm produce and our mine and factory products.

When we buy more Nova Scotian factory products, we enable our factory workers to buy more of the products of our farms and our fishing waters.

Thus, by enlarging the buying power of our farmers, our fishermen, our miners and our factory workers, we put more men to work, reduce the need for relief, hence lowering taxation, and put more money into our own pockets.

For many years, altogether too large a proportion of outside commodities has been consumed in Nova Scotia to the exclusion of home products equally as good or better.

This despite the fact that every outside product bought by us in place of a similar home product means that much less money available for keeping us employed.

That is a vicious circle.

In place of it, let us start a righteous circle.

This Fall let us firmly resolve that, when buying our food supplies, our fuel, our wearing apparel, our household furnishings and our other requirements, we will select whenever possible the products of Nova Scotia.

MEETING OF GOLD MINING CO.

The board of directors of Meguma Belt Mines Limited held a meeting in the new office of the company, in the Orpheum Block, Bridgewater, on last Friday afternoon and continuing all day Saturday. Among those present were the following directors: W. O. Sullivan, Halifax; J. A. H. Nichols, Digby; H. S. Badger, Bridgewater; James Laidlaw, Halifax; A. E. Titus, Kentville, and H. P. Newcombe, Halifax. Plans were considered for the development of the extensive property of the company and the affairs of the company received full consideration. The financial reports were presented by James Laidlaw, secretary-treasurer, and approved. It was shown that the company now held all its mining properties without a dollar owing for payment of same. The Royal Bank of Canada were appointed the bankers of the company and G. Wallace Dickson, the well known chartered accountant, of Halifax, was appointed the auditor of the company's books. The company is presenting an unusual feature in mining company procedure in having its books audited every six months, instead of only once a year as is usually done before the annual meetings of the shareholders. H. P. Newcombe, barrister, of Halifax, was elected chairman of the board of directors. A resolution was passed expressing appreciation of the efficient manner in which he has carried out his duties as legal counsel of the company. The company has been complimented in influential quarters for the thorough manner in which every detail of the corporate structure has been carried out and the properties acquired. The vendors have contributed one-half of their share interest which has been placed in the hands of trustees for the sole purpose of the company's financing. The remaining portion of the vendor's stock is pooled in escrow in a prominent trust company until dividends are paid. The Founders' Investment Company Limited has been appointed sole financial agent of the company and the sole authority to sell the stock of the company. Mr. Newcombe was recently appointed chairman of a committee of lawyers at a meeting of the Nova Scotia Gold Mining Association. This committee is drafting a report for submission to the government for amendments to the law in relation to mining and mining companies. The other members of this committee are R. Douglas Graham, K. C., J. A. Walker, K. C., J. M. Wall, K. C., solicitor for the Department of Mines, and G. M. Grant, LL. B. As a former member of the editorial staff of the Halifax Herald Mr. Newcombe wrote many articles and editorials on the mining situation in Nova Scotia, and made trips to the Mines Departments and mining fields of Ontario and Quebec, in order to study mining procedures there. Appreciation was also expressed by the directors of the service of the company's own engineering department as well as outside support received, and they paid a hearty tribute to the cooperation received from the Department of Mines including the Minister; the deputy minister, Norman MacKenzie; J. P. Messervy, Inspector of Mines, and to J. M. Wall, solicitor for the department. W. Warren Robar, Upper La-Have, was elected a director of the company.

BAND NOTES

One year ago tonight fifteen young fellows met in the band room for the first practice of the Digby Band. None of these had ever touched an instrument before. Tonight this band, grown to 45 actual players, is giving its First Birthday Concert, with music written for 3rd and 4th year bands, none of which has been played in public here. Its astonishing progress will be shown in such numbers as "Alpine Sunset Waltz", "Show World March", and the solos with band accompaniment, played by Billy Christie and Ross Turnbull. Over $2,000 has been spent by the players and the Music Council in equipping and maintaining this fine organization for its first year. Instruments have been bought at special prices; their value, if bought new today, is approximately $3,500. For its winter maintenance the band is depending on the proceeds of this concert, and private donations which will be greatly appreciated.

The band room has been newly painted and renovated by the boys, and the Music Council has just installed a modern scientific ventilation system with the aid of a centrifugal fan loaned by C. E. Walker. Fresh out-door air is admitted beneath the heater and the bad air drawn off from the opposite corner. This elaborate system was put in at trifling cost through the generosity of George Bailey, C. F. McFadden, Geo. Turnbull, David Daley, Arthur Turnbull and Fritz Dakin, all of whom donated labor or materials, or both. The operation is wonderfully effective in preventing the headaches and listlessness that were once such a handicap.

The lucky ticket for the beautiful centrepiece will be drawn during tonight's concert, and it is probable that other tickets will also win something.

Roy Grant, a stranger in Digby, but well known in Halifax and elsewhere for his amazing stunts in the realm of legerdemain will fill a large part of tonight's program, and add a feature of intense interest. His performance would be an end show itself, even without the music.

The Digby Band is a Civic Band. It belongs to the town. It is always ready to give its services to aid public affairs. It has demonstrated its importance on numerous occasions. A good band is indispensable in any live town. If you want to keep it alive—Give It Your Heartiest Support—and not in words only.

"BUY MY CHRISTMAS SEALS"

A little piece of paper, slightly larger than your thumb nail, with a picture of a coral shrimp on one side and glue on the other, stands as one of the world's greatest bulwarks against the dread disease, tuberculosis. This little piece of paper, multiplied many thousand times, constitutes the Christmas Seals which have been received by you from the Nova Scotia Tuberculosis Commission. The funds derived from the sale of these Health Seals make possible the organized campaign against tuberculosis that has been carried on with ever-increasing emphasis year after year.

The Christmas Seal affords an opportunity for the least and last of our citizens to register themselves as to sympathy with one of the most humanitarian movements of the century. Think of the 3000 cases of tuberculosis in Nova Scotia. There is a necessity for large sums of money and for an ever-increasing army of Seal purchasers. Remember—tuberculosis can be cured. At least, of course it must be. Buy Tuberculosis Christmas Seals—lots of them. If you wish more, these Seals can always be obtained by applying to the Nova Scotia Tuberculosis Commission Office, Pathological Building, Morris Street, Halifax.

A Seal on each letter.
Makes many get better.

CARD OF THANKS

Dear Friends—I am taking my pencil and thanking you all for your kindness in assisting me to erect a new barn. When I lost the old barn I felt it to be a big loss, and I took my trouble to my Master on my knees. He answered my prayers by sending one of my comrades to my assistance. He carried on, and now my barn is up—and hay will grow again. I pray that all my friends will watch for a special blessing during the Christmas holidays—I have never prayed for anything yet that I did not receive. God is good. I thank him and all my friends.—James Robinson, Conway.

An agitation is on foot to have the federal government declare navigation on the St. Lawrence officially closed on November 25, in each and every year.

THE DAY OF THE YEAR

"Christmas season is here again."

It looks as though the gifts would not be as elaborate as in years gone by. It looks as though we would all have to get along on less.

After all Christmas time was not meant as a time for ostentatious display, and the giving of costly gifts. The poor man can enjoy it just the same as the wealthy.

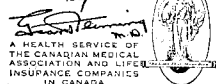

Humble as any home may be it cannot be as lowly as the manger in which Christ first saw the light of day.

Few folks of today are as poor as was His family.

They wandered about to Bethlehem with no mode of transportation except that of a tiny donkey. They had few belongings, just what little they could carry in a bundle. They had coarse and cold food. They had none of the luxuries of life, nor any of our modern conveniences. Few today are in such poor circumstances as that Holy Family were in at the time. Even the poorest enjoy comforts that he was not Herod enjoyed, and he was a mighty ruler.

So as Christmas time rolls round again let's adjust ourselves to the surroundings in which circumstances have placed us. Let's try to bring a little happiness to those around us and let's try to remember and be happy that we are alive, living in a great country, and in an age of wonderful opportunities.

HEALTH

A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE

A well-known statement of Alexander Pope is that "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing". The significance of these words should be borne in mind by those who attempt to understand the workings of the human body. A little knowledge is not dangerous provided it is recognized as being only a little.

We receive letters asking for a diet for food, the writer stating that he or she has too much acid in the blood, and wants to avoid foods which make acid. These persons have evidently heard something about acid and alkaline foods and have possibly read advertisements about the dangers of acidity.

The human body is a delicately balanced machine. The blood never becomes acid. Our correspondents have formed the conclusion that their blood is acid, and they do not know that their bodies require a balanced diet in which contains both acid and alkali-forming foods. People have read so much about the importance of vitamins that they are stampeded into buying special preparation which are sold to them as being rich in vitamins. The truth is that vitamins are important, but they are found in all natural foods. The normal person who eats a wide variety of foods secures all the vitamins he needs.

Everyone should know the importance, not only of vitamins, but of minerals, fats, carbohydrates, and proteins in the diet. They should also know that well-balanced meals the year round will take care of all these items in the diet. Particularly we need a wide variety of foods, making sure that milk and milk products, even vegetables, and fresh or dried fruits are used daily.

The most dangerous of all little knowledge is that which brings any person to feel competent to treat disease. And government regulations that it takes years of preparation before anyone is ready to diagnose disease and prescribe treatment. That is why the laws of our country require that the student of medicine spend several years at a medical school and then pass certain examinations to show his ability to care for the sick before he is licensed to practice medicine.

The public have a right to be informed concerning health matters. Just as the wise man takes out insurance for the protection of his family, so should he take time to inform himself concerning his most valuable asset, his health. Use the little knowledge you possess as a guide, but recognize its limitations. Questions concerning Health addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

ROBBING PETER TO PAX—PETER

Twelve British Brewery companies are said to have netted a profit of $51,500,000 in 1931, and $43,000,000 in 1932, a total in the two years of $94,500,000. In 1932 $1,182,500,000 was spent in Great Britain on alcoholic liquors, about $27 for every man, woman and child in the whole country. The brewers' profits in this year amounted to a tax of $1 on every man, woman and child in England, Wales and Scotland. And that, mind you, in depression years such as history has not before recorded.

In 1932, Canada's liquor bill is stated as $140,000,000, or $14 for every man, woman and child. The Provincial government received of this about $21,000,000, and the Federal government about $24,000,000 in customs and excise revenue.

What have the people of Canada to show for this expenditure? The answer to the question must come from the consumer who paid the bills. The value of all this liquor to Canada must be judged from the results, direct and indirect, of its consumption, using up $140,000,000 of the money of Tom, Dick and Harry, lawyer, tradesman, commercial, social worker, and so on. The doctor says it has not helped but hindered health, making disease everywhere harder to fight. The life insurance man declares that the lives of drinkers have thereby been shortened, and he points to the whole columns of newspaperable figures. The social worker has had a difficult time picking up the fragments of broken homes and individuals strewn along the trail of drink. The law courts have been uncovering the blotches of crime caused or aggravated by its use. The coroners have been reporting fatalities in a string traceable to the alcohol-inflamed or muddled brain. The happiness of home has been dimmed, the promise of wondrous youth hindered, the efficiency of human hand and heart and brain has been curtailed—all by the consumption of $140,000,000 worth of alcoholic liquors by the people of Canada in 1932.

"Oh, but men have had employment in the breweries and distilleries in this or other land, and in the transportation and sale of the product," some will say. But figures again have a story. The Quebec League Against Alcoholism states that compared with the output a brewery employs only one-quarter the number of men that other industries do. An English authority puts the proportion at one-tenth. And the product of other industries adds to the real wealth of the country, but this business is only a parasite sucking the very life blood of the nation. Has $45,000,000 of the money gone in to the public treasury, there to do public service? The people have paid $140,000,000 in order to do it and the liquor consumed has left them very much worse off. It looks, not like robbing Peter to pay Paul—but worse, but like robbing Peter three times over to pay Paul once.

VALUE OF MODERN RESEARCH

Modern research has made it possible for people of today to know more about ancient Chaldeans and Egyptians than the Greeks did. By modern botanical researches, physiological investigations and archaeological discoveries the errors of the ancient writers, Herodotus and Xenophon, can be corrected, and modern horticulturists by their knowledge of the flora of Greece and Italy, Palestine, Arabia and Egypt, can show where such great authorities of ancient times, Dioscorides, Theophrastus, Pliny and Galen, went astray.

Two solos — "The Sinner and the Song," Miss Margaret Grant, and "Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love," Miss Nina Titus; a duet — "Was It for Me?" by Fred Manzer and Elvin Marshall; an anthem, "Choose Today," by the Society. Prayer was offered by Deacon William Lent; the scripture lesson—Psalm 95—and a paper on "Hymns and Their Value to a Service," were read by Miss Dorothy.

CANADA'S FIRST FARMERS

Long before the coming of the white man, agricultural peoples, organized in more or less settled communities, occupied the fertile lowland of Ontario between the Great Lakes and its continuation along the St. Lawrence Valley south of the Laurentian shield. The Iroquoian tribes who had learned in the south how to grow maize, beans, squashes and sunflowers, introduced their cultivation into south-eastern Ontario and the St. Lawrence Valley, whence they spread into New Brunswick.

But the Indian methods of cultivation, says Diamond Jenness in "Indians in Canada," were exceedingly primitive. Their stone axes barely bit into hard maple or birch trees that were not first charred with fire, so that they depended mainly on burning for the clearing of their land. Long digging sticks or hoes fitted with blades of shells supplied the place of ploughs; the ripened ears of corn were gathered by hand and transported in baskets by the women to the husking shed. No tribe understood the rotation of crops, or indeed possessed the means to rotate them, and but few made any attempt to fertilize the soil. Consequently when their plots became exhausted within ten or twelve years, the community moved away to new but unbroken ground. The exhaustion of the soil supply in the near vicinity was also a common cause for abandonment of otherwise favourable sites.

While all other areas in Canada showed slight recessions during October, business conditions in the Maritime provinces continued their upward trend, according to the annual survey of the Financial Post published in last week's issue. The level for all Canada, however, is still well above that of the previous year.

October was after sensational adjustments, 90, as compared with 89, the previous year. The fact is further evidence of the recovery and solid improvement which is taking place in this part of Canada.

BADMINTON CLUB NOTES

The Bear River Badminton Club are having a successful season, and a large number of members are already on its roll.

The management is planning a very pleasant social event for the winter season, and the New Year, namely, a dance, for which arrangements are not yet completed, and details of which will be given later.

The fee for members and guests is the very moderate "depression" one of fifteen cents for a single ticket, and twenty-five cents per couple. A number of the young people will be in town that week, and will find this dance a great addition to the all too few social affairs.

Those who prefer cards, will find tables provided for play, and the devotees of "Table Tennis" will also be provided for. Sanford's Hall which has been thoroughly renovated, is being much appreciated by the club, as the court is now of normal size and gives better facilities for play.

Mrs. A. B. Campbell

Last Thursday night Joseph E. Lantry, District Deputy Grand Master, accompanied by Dr. A. D. Campbell, motorist to Bridgetown, where Mr. Lantry made an official visit to Rothery Lodge, A. F. and A. M.

The Women's Institute, at begin to serve hot cocoa to those children attending Oakdene School, who have to carry their lunch with them. On Wednesday and Friday of last week, twenty-one children were served, and it is hoped that cocoa may be served every school day from now on, thro' the cold weather. The members of the Home and School committee are the president of the Institute, Mrs. L. J. Lovett; convener, Mrs. A. B. Campbell; Miss Grace Hubley and Mrs. Ruby Seamore.

On Sunday Dr. Campbell, in taking a patient, John Appt, of Greenland, to the Digby General Hospital, had a hard time getting through, as it took four hours to go from the Victoria Bridges to the Hospital, in latter part of the trip being made by horse and sleigh. Dr. Campbell was forced to leave his car in the dirts, and it was not until Friday of last week, (Ayman's Corner), on Monday morning, he returning to Bear River by train. The assistance rendered to him on the way, by men living along the road, is very much appreciated by the Doctor and Mr. Appt, who is now resting fairly comfortably in the hospital, following surgical attention on Monday.

After an hour of music, and two choir Scotch reels, by John Harrow, and general conversation, refreshments were served, and conspicuous among them was a handsomely decorated birthday cake. After singing, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds," and wishing Mr. Steeves and family many happy returns of the day, the evening was brought to a close.

While all other areas in Canada showed slight recessions during October, business conditions in the Maritime provinces continued their upward trend, according to the annual survey of the Financial Post published in last week's issue. The level for all Canada, however, is still well above that of the previous year.

October was after sensational adjustments, 90, as compared with 89, the previous year. The fact is further evidence of the recovery and solid improvement which is taking place in this part of Canada.

HIGHEST CREAM PRICES

Our returns for November was 21 cents per pound butterfat. It is the average price for the month that counts and not the price for any one week.

Frederick Allen Chalmers

The community of Bear River has again been called upon to mourn the passing of a prominent citizen. In the death on Sunday evening, at his home here, of Frederick Allen Chalmers, who, as proprietor of the Commercial House, has made many friends and acquaintances all over Canada and the United States.

His residence in Bear River of thirty-three years, both as public and private citizen, his active work as member of the local United Church of Canada, and his faithfulness to Friendship Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which he was a charter member, had made a place for him in community life that will long be remembered.

The late Mr. Chalmers was a member of a well known new Brunswick family, having been born sixty-eight years ago, at St. Andrew's, the son of the late William and Matilda (Brown) Chalmers, and his immediate surviving relatives are his widow, formerly Emily E. Wade, of Bear River; two sisters, Mrs. Jean R. Tuttle, and Mrs. M. G. Legger, and one brother, G. T. Chalmers, the three latter all of Cambridge, Mass.

The funeral, on Tuesday afternoon, was very largely attended. There was a short service at the Chalmers residence (Commercial House), and a service in the United Church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Blanchard, assisted by Rev. S. F. Steeves, of the United Baptist church. The members of Friendship Lodge took official charge of the burial service, and interment was in Mount Hope cemetery.

WEYMOUTH HAS SCOUT TROOP

An active new troop of about 30 members has been organized in Weymouth and is recently registered at the office of the Boy Scout Association, in Halifax. An interesting coincidence is that the leader of the troop bears the name of Robert Baden-Powell, and is quite as enthusiastic and ambitious for the success of the scout movement in his town as the great Lord Baden-Powell is for the scout troops of the entire world, which he is chief. It is expected that another group will shortly be organized in Weymouth.

Editor's Note—The above was copied from a recent issue of "the Halifax Mail."

Little Christine Picot, daughter of Mrs. Simon Picot, Indian Hill, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Digby General Hospital, is doing well.

CHRISTMAS ALL THROUGH THE YEAR

Wouldn't life be worth the living and the whole world seem like new, if we'd keep the Christmas spirit all the whole year through?

There'd be fewer than of heartaches, Fewer still of blinding tears, There'd be less misunderstanding Down the Road of After Years.

Why should Christmas smiles be brighter Have they all grown choler?

Than they are at other times? Why should you be more forgiving To the tune of Christmas chimes? Why put all your deeds of kindness On a tinsel Christmas tree— When you give for love of giving, Or just so the world will see?

You have smiles that cost you nothing, Pass them out along the street; You have words of praise—encourage them, Life is brighter, work is lighter, Friends seem at your beck and call, When you make believe its Christmas.

All the Summer, Spring and Fall.

So remember while December brings the only Christmas Day, All the year let there be Christmas. In the things you do and say; Wouldn't life be worth the living, Wouldn't dreams be coming true, If we'd keep the Christmas spirit All the whole year through.

THE OLD MAPLE TREE

There's an old maple tree that stands In the lane, By the side of a little white cot, There I dwell with my mother, My heart's dearest love— Sweet memories cling to that spot.

Oh, that old maple tree which stands In the lane, How oft in my fancy I see; 'Neath its branches so high, Standing there 'neath the sky, Seem waving a welcome to me.

Oh, that dear maple tree which stands in the lane, How oft 'neath its branches I've played; In childhood's glad hour, 'Neath its leafy bower, How beloved its green lace shade.

Oh, that old maple tree still stands In the lane, But the cot is empty and still; For the mother I love, Is now gone above, And with tears my eyes often fill.

Many years have gone by since I roamed far away, Yet my heart still knows longing and pain; For that dear empty home, Cross the ocean foam, And the old maple tree in the lane, Mrs. Alice M. Cook 66 Fenness St., East Lynn, Mass.

BAY OF FUNDY KNOWN FOR CENTURIES

One of the oldest known bodies of water in North America is the Bay of Fundy, DeMonts and Champlain, in 1604, first gave it authentic recognition but it was visited by French, Basque and Portuguese fishermen and traders in the sixteenth century, and is marked on maps of that period, states the Tourist Bureau of the Canadian National Railways. It is shown on Cabot's map of 1544 and the name, it is believed, is derived from the French word, "Fendu", meaning "split", applied on old maps to the cape now called Cape Split, at the entrance to Minas Basin, at the head of the Bay of Fundy.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES

How times change! A year ago, when the city of Calgary had a debt to meet in New York, creditors demanded payment in United States funds, according to the contract. Today, when another installment is due, they suggest that the city pay in Canadian currency. But the city says, "Nothing doing!" The shoe that pinches is on the other foot.

Western Nova Scotia will remember as the head of the Jere McLaughlin Stock Company, which, before the days of the movies, played one- and two-night stands in this province, died this week in New York. Jere was a good actor and a great favorite in Nova Scotia, ranking with H. Price Webber, of the Boston Comedy Co., John C. Miles, of the John C. Miles Company, (Miles afterwards became an evangelist; W. S. Harkins, of the W. S. Harkins Company; and H. Wilcox Young, of the Young-Adams Company, all of whom made either semi-annual or annual visits to the Maritimes, the Young-Adams Company being the last to leave the field.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Harris entertained at dinner and bridge on Friday evening, when covers were laid for eight. The honors went to Fred R. Harris and Dr. Campbell.

Following the snow came an extremely cold spell and since Monday the thermometer has been trying to see how near zero it could come. We have heard some complaints in our office on the condition of the streets and sidewalks, particularly from the South End of the town. We understand that the most of them have been shovelled at since. "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good," and the week end storm has provided considerable employment; men have been at work clearing snow from the railroad tracks and town streets. Our rural friends have quite a bit to say about snow shovelling on the country roads, but most of their comments are not fit to print.

SUNDAY'S STORM WAS ONE OF WORST FOR YEARS

Over the past week end Digby was visited by one of the worst December snow storms in years, and the highways for miles around are blocked. Drifts upwards of ten feet in depth were not uncommon, and many cars were stalled on the roads, unable to push through the heavy snow.

During the height of the storm on Sunday night, the lights went out. The trouble was in the Mink Cove district. The service was resumed in town and the section above Mink Cove within an hour and a half. Good work!

On Monday morning traffic was nearly at a standstill. The mails from Digby Neck did not arrive until Tuesday afternoon, and several parties who attempted to motor to Digby had to "give up" and rely on old Dobbin, or "Shank's Mare". The mails from Victoria Beach to Grandville were unable to get through during the first part of the week, and on Wednesday the mail courier for that district started out on horse back with his mail bag.

HASN'T BEEN EQUALLED YET

When J. E. Morse & Company introduced Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe Tea, away back in the early days of the present century, their idea was to make it the finest tea sold on the Canadian market at any price.

At the same time the term "Orange Pekoe" meant nothing to most people, but now it is familiar, because, following their lead, many other tea firms have introduced brands bearing this name.

But while there are many teas with the name Orange Pekoe attached, there are none that have achieved the pinnacle set by Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe at the very start. It was, still is, and the blenders intend that it shall always be, the finest tea sold in Canada at any price.

Some people buy Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe Tea for special occasions—when they give social functions, entertain strangers, and so forth—but there is a growing number who use it all the time. The reason for this is not merely because of its superior flavour, but because of its spending power. People are coming to realize that it doesn't cost them much if any more to enjoy this superior tea, which is sold at all grocers at 70 cents per pound.

Frank Height, proprietor of the Weymouth Cash Market, spent the week end at his home in North Range.

NEW BRUNSWICK WAS ALSO OPPOSED TO CONFEDERATION

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—The issue of the Digby Weekly Courier, of December 8th, contains a news item captioned, "Nova Scotia Was Not All for Confederation." Well, kind sir, New Brunswick voted strongly against the measure the first time the issue was brought to a vote. Quoting from a speech by Chas. A. Peck, Esq., as reported in the February 16, 1865, issue of the Eastern Advocate, published at Hillsborough, N. B., are the following extracts:—

"Canada (Ontario and Quebec) was financially swamped. Her resources were embarrassed beyond redemption. Her debt was enormous and money bore a high rate of interest. The Canadians were a disaffected, disloyal and rebellious people. . . . Should this province (New Brunswick) accept the scheme of the Quebec delegates, generations still unborn will rue the day we discarded our cherished constitution and became slaves of another colony."

We celebrated an anniversary of Confederation in 1927 and presume in 1937 another such event will be forced upon us. Why celebrate? The Maritimes have nothing insofar as Canadian progress is concerned, to get "up and holler about."

But the Maritimes are after their just rights these days and interested parties want the complete story. Write The Maritime Confederation League, P. O. Box 759, Saint John.

A Square Deal

It is time for a square deal all around. Labor demands a square deal. And so does capital. There must be industrial development and the rich mineral resources of this Sunrise Province must now receive a square deal. Eastern Canada possesses a source of great wealth in the rich treasure house of its goldfields stretching along its Atlantic coast. Let us give these goldfields a square deal. This wealth must be unlocked; the wheels of industry set agoing to supply payrolls to our citizens and to supply markets for our goods and products.

The whole world today turns to gold. It is the one and only substance in which there is reposed universal faith. Not only is there always a stable market for gold, but the great demand for it keeps the value of gold at a heavy premium. This is certainly the opportune time for the development of our goldfields. People have now begun to realize the vital opportunity at hand and the gold production of this Province is mounting upwards. Many mines are being developed. Of these mines the ones which give the greatest promise are the fissure veins chiefly because of their persistency and superiority in ore values. This has been proven by actual experience.

Near to Bridgewater lies the largest fissure vein in Eastern Canada. In fact there is no record of a longer one in this country, for it has been proven to be at least 9000 feet in length. This valuable property is possessed by Meguma Belt Mines Limited. It has already produced over a quarter of a million dollars in gold. It already stands proven as a successful commercial proposition. Today there is hydro-electric power on this property and this together with modern mining and milling methods cannot fail to sustain a large and profitable mining industry for years to come. The value of this vein has been proven to a depth of 640 feet and by 15 shafts driven along its great length. One of Nova Scotia's greatest assets is the LIEPSIGATE FISSURE VEIN.

The Mines Service Corporation is now affording to the gold mining industries of Nova Scotia mining services in all its branches including fully equipped engineering and technical skill. We also maintain a complete information service on all Nova Scotia mines with developments to date. We have full confidence in the Leipsigat District and we believe that it is one of the outstanding mineral fields in Canada today. Our judgment is based upon the proven facts which stand before the public today. In our news and bulletin service, which are today spreading before the financial and mining centres of the world including Toronto, London and New York we are making special note of the outstanding advantages of the Leipsigat District which is now being handled in such a competent and enterprising manner by the Meguma Belt Mines Limited.

We are inserting this advertisement in the interests of the gold mining industries of Nova Scotia which beyond a question of a doubt are now heated for a great future.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUB WORK

The very successful third annual National Club contest for boys' and girls' club work, which was held in conjunction with the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, gave more calls of attention to the admirable work by Canada's young farmers under the direction of the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Club work. There are now 1,374 fully organized clubs of this kind in Canada with a membership of 23,432. Much of the success of this movement, by the way, is due to the Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, who has always taken a keen personal interest in the welfare of the club movement. When in 1930 the club work had reached very considerable proportions, a meeting of representatives of all Departments of Agriculture and other interested bodies was called. At Mr. Weir's request, to consider the possibility of developing a national boys' and girls' club policy. As a result a strong committee was named and their report, submitted in 1931, was accepted by the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture as a basis of organization.

Then a prettily trimmed doll carriage, piled up with mysterious parcels, suddenly came to view, and the "show" of gifts was presented to one of the young ladies, who is soon to be one of the principals in an interesting event. ## Weymouth Schooner Utila Abandoned at Sea, All Safe

George O. Hankinson, owner of the Weymouth schooner Utila, received a wire yesterday from Captain Arthur Moore, that the vessel had sprung a leak badly in the engine room, and had been abandoned at sea. The despatch came from Rockland, Maine. The wire further stated that all the crew were safe. The ship's personnel was as follows: Arthur Moore, captain; Robert Hankinson, mate; George Hankinson, (son of Robert), Louis Moore, son of the captain, and William Logan, all of Weymouth. The mate is in the hospital with a broken leg. We have not been advised of the details of this accident.

The Utila cleared from Weymouth on December 6th, with 203,000 feet of lumber for Boston, and grounded on the mud flats in the Sissiboo River. She floated on the next high tide, but owing to ice conditions in the river and on St. Mary's Bay, did not get away until December 17th. The owner believes the vessel was caught in Monday night's storm.

The United States Coast Guard cutters are now looking for the abandoned vessel.

Hockey Club Holds Enjoyable Card Party.

An enjoyable card party for the benefit of the Digby Red Ravens Hockey Club was held at the Winchester Hotel, on Wednesday evening, and the sum of nearly $22 was cleared, above expenses. The first prize at bridge—three passes to any hockey game played at Victoria Park this winter—was won by David Daley, consolation prize—a toy tractor—by Vernon Hewitt. (We understand that Vern will undertake to keep the roads clear this winter.)

Mrs. O'Neill won the first prize at forty-fives, which was also three passes to any hockey game played in the rink this winter, and M. L. Saunders won the consolation prize.

Considerable food was left over, which was done up in boxes and distributed to the poor families of the town, yesterday.

SANTA CLAUS TO VISIT DIGBY TOMORROW

North Pole, Dec. 22—Special—[I have made arrangements with Captain George Morrell to be at Digby tomorrow afternoon, with a bag of candy and an orange for every child who comes to the Digby Garage to see me—and I want to see all that can get there. My sleigh will arrive about 3.30 o'clock. Merry Christmas!]

SANTA CLAUS

The freighter Radio III, Capt. John Clifford, from Tiverton, is in Gloucester with 250,000 pounds of salt cod for the Slade Gorton concern, and also 32 barrels of cod oil and bags of hake skins.

The roads in town, from Green Point to the South End, are open, and today and tomorrow the Racquet Garden is giving free delivery of Christmas flowers to any place in town. Telephone 178.

THE CONDITION OF THE ROADS

We know that we shouldn't make a kick about anything at this time of the year—Christmas is not a time for kicking—but there are some things that need kicking about, and one of those things is the condition of the roads right now.

We realise that there has been a lot of snow and all that—and we know that it is a real job to keep the roads cleared under such conditions, but, really, is there any excuse for them being in the condition they are, right now?

It's almost a day's drive in an automobile to Annapolis. One road told us this week that he was more than four hours coming from Barton to Digby, a distance of less than 20 miles.

These are not the days of horses and carriages, these are days of automobiles, and when the public highways are only cleared for teams (in many cases ox teams), communication between the villages and the towns is almost at a standstill.

Of course, we hear arguments against snow shovelling; we hear folks say that automobiles have no business on the road these days. At the same time how is your doctor going to reach you if he needs when the roads are in their present condition? How are your telephone lines and hydro lines to be repaired in the case of an emergency if the service trucks are unable to get to the point of trouble?

We admit that the present system of clearing snow from the highways does not belong to this day and age—it is a special hangover from the days of the covered wagon. But some special effort must be made until another means is devised by our municipal and provincial governments.

Kiwians Have Less Requests for Christmas Dinners

The Digby Kiwanis Club have so far, after an intensive canvass, received requests for only 89 Christmas dinners, compared with 130 last year. But a great many more requests have been received for food, clothing, shoes, and other necessities. Committees are at work making the necessary purchases and doing up the parcels ready for delivery. The club appropriated as its preliminary expenditure for Christmas cheer, $175.

Digby Legion Attends Divine Service.

On Sunday evening the members of the Digby Legion attended service at Trinity Church. This service was in memory of the late corps commander, Sir Arthur Currie, and similar services were held by legions throughout Canada.

Rev. A. E. Gabriel, rector of the church, was the speaker on this occasion. He spoke from the text found in II Samuel, 15th chapter, 23rd verse: "His counsel was as if a man had inquired at the oracle of God." Mr. Boden read the lesson and special music was provided by the choir.

Before the benediction the "Last Post" was sounded by David Daley.

SMITH'S COVE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The December meeting of the Women's Institute, of Smith's Cove, was held at the home of Mrs. Edward Payson, on Wednesday afternoon, last. Owing to the drifted condition of the roads only a few members were present.

It was decided to give up the Institute birthday party, owing to sickness and bereavements in Institute families.

Committees were appointed to take charge of the "Christmas Cheer" sent out by the Institute.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, which included a prettily decorated birthday cake presented by the president, Mrs. George Weir.

The January meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Robert Austin.

Tractor Now Used at Hectanooga in the Lumber Business

A new tractor arrived at Hectanooga on Friday for W. E. Mattinson. In the afternoon it was hitched to sleds with a load of over two tons, and through the snow it made its way to Richmond. The mill closed on Wednesday for the Christmas holidays. The work will be resumed next week and the trucking of lumber and the loading of cars will begin in earnest, this keeping several men employed at the Hectanooga station as well as the regular mill staff. Glacie & Sons have now about 600,000 feet of lumber at the mill and this must be at the station prior to January 23. Work is still going on on the new driveway. A culvert is being opened up and pipes laid. When completed it will be an added feature for public utilities in the vicinity of the station.

"Bill" Williams was a recent visitor to Halifax.

Gordon Burnham is working at the D. A. R. express office during the Christmas season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Theriault, of Marshfield, spent the week end in Digby.

OUR CHRISTMAS EDITION

We are presenting the first twelve-page Christmas edition of the Courier to be printed in many years. We hope our readers will enjoy it—and, if we do say so ourselves, we are proud of it.

The paper is all home print every sheet was printed on our old Cranston press, now nearing the half-century mark, two pages at a time. True, the old press made a little kick on Friday afternoon last, but we can always depend on Tupper's machine shop to help us out. In fact we might call on them to build a new press some of these days. We got a new part made in a few hours and she has been running like clock work ever since. She does a good job for an old press, yet—and we have received many complimentary remarks on the excellence of our press work.

Another fact that might be of interest to our readers is that all the cuts on the cover page, as well as in the advertisements, were made and cast in our own plant.

Stetson, and the entire family lives in Mt. Pleasant. There are also two brothers, Freeman, of Mt. Pleasant, and Jeremiah, of Morrell, Me., also 34 grand children and 7 great grandchildren. Mrs. VanTassel was a member of that church for many years.

Miss Mabel Holdsworth is spending the Christmas vacation with relatives in Truro.

Capt. Bernard Melanson, of Gilbert's Cove, was a business visitor to Digby during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eber Turnbull are taking so much time with the prize-drawing at their recent concert. They had been practicing so diligently on their music that they neglected practice on the ticket stand. They'll do better next time.

S. J. Limbrey, who is well known in Digby through his former connection with the Boy Scouts, but who is now employed with the Children's Aid Society, at Truro, had several ribs broken in an auto accident near Truro, on Saturday.

The Kiwanis Club will hold its regular luncheon next week on Tuesday, instead of Monday, as it was realized the members would rather be at home that day. The same will also apply to the week following the first luncheon of the new year being held on January 2nd, instead of the 1st. At this luncheon the ladies will be the guests.

The Christmas closing exercises of the lower grades of the Digby school were held Wednesday afternoon in the various departments. The rooms were tastefully decorated and the children all enjoyed the Christmas treat and took part in the closing exercises. A number of visitors, including Mayor Holdsworth and Town Clerk Boden, called. On Wednesday evening the members of the high school gave a formal party at the "Gym."

Considerable damage has been done to the Digby Park, on Warwick Street, by trespassers cutting trees on the property. Mayor Holdsworth checked up one offender last week and will see that action be taken should any further damage be done.

We seem to note already some increase in temperance since the coming of repeal in the United States. We hope that it may grow more noticeable still—as apparently does the New York clergyman who said that "the attraction of the recent speakeasy lay largely in its liberality!" And St. Paul long ago said it even more concisely in his "The strength of sin is the law!"

WHO HAS THEM?

Some years ago—possibly 20 and it may have been 30—quite a number of the bound files of the Digby Weekly Courier, were borrowed, and taken away from the office, but by whom nobody knows, except those who have them. The late Isaiah Wilson once told us that he was not sure about them all being bound—but he knew they had been loaned, as a former manager of the Courier told him he had handed them out himself. It is possible these files are still in existence in somebody's attic. They belong to us and we would like to have them. But we do not want those who have them to have their trouble for nothing after all these years, as the chances are that the party who borrowed them has "passed on" ere this, so we will give two full years' subscription for every year's file returned.

Digby Legion Elects Officers for the Year

The following were elected officers of the Digby Branch of the Canadian Legion at their last regular meeting: President—Major M. C. Denton; First Vice-President—J. W. Merkle; Second Vice-President—Fred Thibault.

New Staff of Officers for Cercle Littéraire Français

The Cercle Littéraire Française, of Clare, held its monthly meeting at Dr. and Mrs. Pierre Bellevue's, Little Brook, on Friday last. Alphonse Comeau, principal at Meteghan River school, spoke on Latin and Greek literature. The following officers were elected:

President—Miss Rocalie LeBlanc, Mavillette.

Vice-President—Miss Lucie LeBlanc.

Secretary—Miss Marguerite Belliveau.

Miss Pauline Melanson, the talented musician, graduate of Mount St. Vincent, gave a piano recital and sang several French songs. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bellevue. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest LeBlanc, Major and Mrs. Emile Ste-jelin, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond LeBlanc, Miss Mary Callahan, Miss Regina Thibodeau, Miss Rosalie LeBlanc, Mrs. Emile Belliveau, Miss Frances Comeau, Edmond Melanson, Alphonse Comeau.

Tells of Religious Persecutions in Mexico

The A. C. J. C. Club, of Clare, held its monthly meeting a few days ago at the Assumption Hall, Saulnierville, with Ernest LeBlanc, of Church Point, in the chair. An invitation had been extended to the Cercle Littéraire, to hear Rev. Father Bourcoul, parish priest of St. Bernard, in a lecture relating to the voyage he made last fall to England, France, Italy and the Holy Land. Rev. Fr. Bourcoul illustrated his lecture with views of places visited during the trip. Prof. J. P. Doucet, of St. Anne's College staff, gave a lecture on religious persecution in Mexico, and Harley Deveau read a resume of the most interesting events of the world during the early part of December.

CHRISTMAS

Christmas has been described as "the merriest day, the saddest day, the day that we are happiest over all that we have had, the day that our heart aches most for all that we have missed, or have had and lost. The day that sets us tingling with joyous anticipation for weeks beforehand, the day we wish we could sleep straight through and thus wipe off our calendar. The day that rouses in us all that is generous and tolerant and kindly, the day that wears us with sentimentality and disappointment and despair."

Or that it is like "the illusion produced by the East Indian fakir, who squats in the dust waving a bright-colored rag; one onlooker sees a star of hope, another a tree glittering with gifts, another an octopus of bills squeezing and crushing, another nothing."

To most people, however, it is a time of sweet and haunting memories, of hallowed associations. We journey back along the highway of memory—we retrace again the circle of our childhood home—we see once more the dear ones whom perhaps we have "loved long since, and lost awhile."

At this season the whole Christian world celebrates the coming of a Babe in a manger at Bethlehem, who lived in the humble surroundings of a carpenter shop, and in a few brief years established a ministry of love and healing which is the hope of thousands today. The fact that He is a living reality in the world today, leads us ever nearer and nearer to the Christmas ideal voiced by the Heavenly Hallelujah Chorus that awoke the shepherds on the far Judean hillsides in the dawn of the first Christmas morning: as they sang: "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good-will to men."

Do we sufficiently remember what a different world this world in which we live would have been without Him whose birth we are about to once more commemorate, and which rehearses in accents of love the history which precedes it time and will endure through all eternity.

There are opportunities for us all to make someone happier at this Christmas season, if we wish to do so. While the cry of distress from those less fortunate than ourselves, appeal for our hearts at times, yet never more than at this special joyous season.

Perhaps we say that we can't give this year as we would like to, as we haven't the money—then why not let us pass on to others bits of happiness, patience, gentleness, kindness, or let us do away with the thoughts of resentments, the secret worry, the impatience, malice or hatred, which we have carried about with us for so long. This would make our celebration worthy of Him whose anniversary day it is. It would bring to us joy and satisfaction and peace, for after all, Christmas like most everything else, is each of us, just what we make it.

CHURCH POINT

Caroline's Christmas by Clarissa Mackie

CHRISTMAS morning dawned cold and clear. Over field and farmhouse and winding roads, was a snowy blanket. Good Christmas went to bed," said Jared Pigeon, as he stamped in from the post office, and thumped a bundle of letters on the kitchen table. He was regarding his wife from a watchful eye, for he had noted a letter from Caroline, their daughter.

Jared went out to his car to bring in the Christmas packages. He saw his wife's pretty, wrinkled face bent over a long letter in Caroline's hand writing, as he closed the door. Of course it was natural for their only child to desire other friends—and it would be no wonder indeed to come home to eat Christmas dinner with two old people! And there was Billy Wakeman, too. She used to go around with Billy. Now they had quarrelled and Billy was very grave and grown-up in the conduct of his public duties. He had a good mind to go down and ask Billy to come and eat Christmas dinner with them—Billy had no folks of his own.

Forgetting all about the Christmas packages in the back of his sleigh—Mr. Pigeon jumped in and, turning around in the hard way he had dug out of the snow, went tingling out of the gate and along the road toward the large garage and oil and gas station that Billy Wakeman had built on the main road.

"Hello, Mr. Pigeon," said Billy.

"Merry Christmas," grinned Jared.

"Same to you," returned Jared Pigeon. "I came over after you, Billy Wakeman."

"What can I do for you?" asked Billy.

"Come and eat dinner with me and me—I kinder expect Caroline ain't coming down."

"Thank you," said Billy getting very red, and then pale.

"Come when you like, so's you get there before one o'clock," grinned Jared, wishing he knew some girl he could ask to share dinner with Billy.

"Well, Jared Pigeon," exclaimed his wife, "Where Have You Been?"

HEALTH

FORTUNATE PEOPLE

"What a lucky person!" exclaims the thoughtful individual. Good health is not a matter of chance or luck. Good health is the reward for proper living. It is just as important to display the same intelligence in health matters as is devoted to business and other affairs of life.

The woman who dies of cancer is not unlucky. She has been either ignorant of or has disregarded the early signs of the disease. The women who have recovered from cancer went to her doctor as soon as she noticed a lump in her breast or some irregularity in her periods. Call her lucky if you like, but it was really the fact that she paid attention to what she knew that saved her life.

The child who died of diphtheria was unlucky because he was the child of parents who were ignorant or careless, with the result that he did not receive the injections of toxoid that would have protected him against the germs of diphtheria.

Fortunate is the child who is born to a mother who recognizes the importance of breast-feeding, and who knows that vaccination against smallpox and immunization against diphtheria are practical means of safeguarding the child. Fortunate is the child whose parents realize that child care is a difficult task, for which training is required.

Good teeth are the product of proper diet and care. No amount of luck will give strong, sound teeth to the child who does not receive in his diet the minerals and vitamins required to build healthy teeth. This proper diet requires some understanding of food values and calls for planning on the part of the mother; it cannot be secured by chance.

A healthy child is a well-trained child. A healthy mind and body are the reward for good training. Health calls for a certain amount of self-discipline which is reasonably easy for the adult who secured a proper start in life through good training.

We are not all born with the same degree of intelligence or the same physical capacities but what becomes of us is not a question of good luck or bad luck; it depends upon how well trained we are as children, and how, as adults, we make use of our training to take care of ourselves in order that we may enjoy physical and mental health.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Courier files of December 22, 1893.

"Times are Hard" said an advertisement inserted in the Digby Weekly Courier, of December 22, 1893—just forty years ago. This advertisement was inserted by D. & O. Sproule who were "selling off everything in our line at prices to suit the hard times." In the same issue H. B. Allen & Co. were advertising a "selling out sale"—everything to be sold at public auction for cash.

Other display advertisements included those of Chas. Burdell & Co. a variety of goods, "also lumbermen's, wholesale and retail, who advertised Milliners' and fishermen's supplies"; R. P. Saunders, Miss J. E. Wright, George P. Stone, Chas. Bros., South End Grocery, W. W. Wade, G. I. Letteney & Bros., J. L. Peters, J. A. Clinton, J. P. Saunders, Chalmers' Drug Store, P. S. Kinsman & Co., and other advertisements included patent medicines and professional cards. (In those days, apparently, patent medicines cured more ills than they do today.)

Rev. H. A. Harley was rector of Trinity church; Rev. A. T. Dykeman was pastor of the Digby Baptist church; Rev. J. W. Priestwood, of the Methodist church; and W. H. Smith was student in charge of the Presbyterian church.

The barquentine W. H. Dexter, Captain Gardner, of Liverpool, was stuck in the mud at Weymouth. One of the crew went over the side by way of a ladder to go to the village for supplies, lost his footing and was drowned.

The ladies of the Baptist church raised $102 through their Christmas tea and sale—about $10 more than they did in 1933.

A daughter was born on the 19th to Mr. and Mrs. Kinsley Trask, Little River.

Mrs. Tuttle Graham, in company with her father and little sister, returned to Centerville after visiting in Boston.

Mrs. Edison, employed at Miss Shreve's, died on the 21st.

The City of Monticello did not cross the Bay on Saturday of the preceding week, but arrived on Sunday.

The Smith Bros., from York, Pa., and Mr. Steadman, of Mill Village, Queens County, had just examined the upper falls of the Sissiboo River, in view of erecting a pulp mill there.

The schooner Walter J. Clarke was sold at auction and purchased by Capt. James Dillon, for $375.

Masters Eddie Higgins, Hubert Bowers, Corrie Bailey and George Durkee; also Miss Bowers and Miss Burgess, of Westport, passed through Digby on their way home from Wolfville for the Christmas holidays.

There was an interesting account of a tiff between Policeman Trask and Hayes VanTassel. The Courier states that Policeman Trask conveyed his victim, Hayes VanTassel, once more, to special quarters in the "Hotel de VanBarclom," on the Hill. Frank Jones was advertising for tenders for alms house supplies for the year 1894.

The Bear River notes say "We have electric lights at last. They are a great improvement to the town."

There were many other items of interest—but we haven't room for them all.

Buckman-McDormand

A quiet wedding took place Wednesday evening, November 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McDormand, when their daughter, Mildred, was united in marriage to Franklin Buckman, both of Westport. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. C. Outhouse, of the Christian church. They will reside in Westport.

Delaney-Gower

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Gower, at Westport, on Saturday evening, December 16th, at nine o'clock, when their daughter, Leona Marie Cleveland, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Bradford C. Delaney, formerly of Central Grove. The bride entered the room to the strains of the Wedding March, sweetly played by Miss Helen Coggin. She looked exceedingly pretty in a dress of challenge blue flat crepe, with the conventional veil and orange blossoms. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Morgan, pastor of the Westport United Baptist church. Mr. and Mrs. Delaney will reside in Westport, where Mr. Delaney has purchased a home.

Milton High in Ranks

of Lovers of Liberty
Milton combined in his temperament the artist and the reformer. His love of beauty was excited only by his love of duty. William Lyon Phelps writes, in the New York Evening Post.

The watchword of his life was liberty. Milton was so staunch a fighter for political liberty that in many parts of Europe he was regarded as an anarchist. His "Defense of the English People" was publicly burned at Paris and at Toulouse. When King Louis XIV required his ambassador at London to report on all the distinguished writers in England, the report contained "one named Miltonius, who has made himself more infamous by his dangerous writings than the murderers and assassins of the king."

Milton always stood for civil, domestic and religious liberty; and, like many sincere lovers of liberty, he had a magnificent talent for the impromptu. Nearly all the poets wrote eulies in praise of Cromwell during his reign; but when King Charles II returned, these poets instantly under cover and saluted in verse the new regime. But in the very year of the king's return, 1660, Milton published a pamphlet called "A Ready and Easy Way to Establish a Free Commonwealth."

Benefits of Sanitary

Science to Human Life

There has been no increase to the life span. It is probably the same today, even in Europe and America, as it has been during the entire historical period. As individuals we have no greater capacity to enjoy a long life today than had our ancestors, not to mention the rest of the age of the old Testament patriarchs. On the other hand, the average duration of life has greatly increased during the last century as the result of the application of sanitary science. Extraordinary gains have indeed been made, not, however, in making more centenarians, or even more nonagenarians, but rather in bringing more people safely through the hitherto dangerous period of infancy and having them survive into childhood, early adult life and maturity. The average duration of life, or as it is often called, the expectation of life, is, consequently, today eighteen years more than it was a century ago.—Louis I. Dublin in Current History.

Streets of Pompeii

One of the unique charms of Pompeii is the view it gives of the civic and domestic life of the Romans. Here you may see the temples, courts, theaters, baths and fountains, but also the humble evidence of human life, such as the homes, stores and streets, the latter even possessing rugs in the stone, made by generations of passing chariots. You may visit the stone mills and the jar store, the bakery and the soap shop. The treasures of Pompeii are now in the National museum at Naples, but to actually walk the streets of the destroyed city is much more interesting than viewing curios in glass cases. It is hard to escape the feeling that it is a city being held in the hands of the future, and that the builders have simply left for lunch and would soon return.

Lives in the Past

Cracow, the heart of Poland, is one of those places rarely found today that actually gives the visitor the illusion of living in another period of history. It is a noisy old university town, reminiscent of the days when Cracow was the cultural center of Europe and the University of Cracow one of the foremost institutions of learning in the world. Copernicus, the great astronomer, whose discoveries revolutionized the scientific world, was a student here in 1490 and the visitor here today may see the old book where his name is registered along with other students. In the old library are many, voluminous bound books accumulated through the centuries.

Catalan Language

It is generally assumed that the Catalan language was imported from Roussillon into Spain during Carolingian times, but there is a contrary view that it was originally developed in Spain and introduced into Roussillon by Catalan immigrants. It is a Romance language, an offshoot of Provençal. Philologically Catalan differs from Spanish in that it lacks the characteristic diphthongs. One of its distinctive features is its tendency to suppress many of the consonants and unaccented vowel endings so common in Spanish.

Name an Inspiration

The name, "Peter Pan," was invented by Sir James Barrie and used as a title for his play, so entitled, says Pathfinders Magazine. The name was suggested by Pan, a god in Greek mythology. "Peter Pan" is a kind of poetical pantomime and was produced in 1904. In 1911 Barrie produced "Peter and Wendy," a sort of sequel to "Peter Pan." Peter Pan became part of the folklore of the nursery and the statue to Peter Pan in Kensington gardens, London, by Sir George Frampton is very popular with child visitors.

The Bitter Truth

When our favorite radio announcer, who has a deep, full-bodied speaking voice, sang a tenor solo the other night, we don't know that we've ever been more surprised and disillusioned, unless it was the time a pet cat, known and esteemed as Tim Collins, had a litter of seven kittens.—Ohio State Journal.

Sypher Morrell, who is attending Dalhousie University, Halifax, is at home with his parents, Capt. and Mrs. G. M. Morrell, for Christmas.

CHRISTMAS BELLS

Joyous Peals Have Sounded on Christmas Eve Practically Ever Since

Founding of Christianity

For many, many centuries, probably almost from the time that it began to be celebrated, the ringing of bells has been a feature of the Christmas celebration. It would seem that the bells have nearly always been associated with Christmas worship, and their use in pre-Christian days is doubtful.

We have records of bells being used as early as at least the second century, and though we know they had other uses, it appears that they were used chiefly in connection with the churches and their services. And their use at Christmas-time is as special as it is noted.

Bells lend themselves specially well to the uses of the Church. Though the story of the bells that they have served in the long history of two thousand years is an interesting story indeed, bells may be said to have been used to express very nearly the whole range of human sentiment and feeling, but they can best be used to express jubilation and overflowing joy, and for that reason their use at Christmas-time is so altogether appropriate.

Christmas bells are joy bells. In very truth, for their story is one of whose heart there lie great truths that spell human happiness as it cannot be expressed in words. It was no mistaken understanding that has kept the Christmas celebration for so many hundreds of years the celebration of the most hearty and care-free and spontaneous rejoicing that care-burdened men and women are able to enjoy.

There was a custom, common in many parts of England years ago, of tolling, for an hour before midnight on Christmas Eve, the bell that was called the Passing Bell, the bell that tolled the passing away of some well-known person in the community, and that afterward became the custom to ring during the funeral service. This solemn hour of tolling came afterward to be called "tolling the Devil's Kettle," the thought being that with the birth of Christ the powers of darkness should be given notice that their time of rule and authority had come to an end. We may smile at the quaint old-world notion, and think that if the devil passed away on Christmas Eve he usually had a very speedy resurrection, but, after all, there is enough truth in the old idea to justify the merry peal of the Christmas bells with the dawning of the great day. For whatever theory we may have touching Jesus of Nazareth, we must admit that His coming changed life for all mankind and made a new joy and happiness and satisfaction for the whole world.

CHRISTMAS SUPERSTITIONS

Yule Candle and Holly Are Used To Foretell Good and Evil.

There are many odd superstitions connected with Christmas candles and holly. One is that if a girl puts three leaves under her pillow, giving each the name of a possible husband, the one that has turned in the morning will reveal her marriage destiny.

The Christmas candle is still lighted in some of the old Yorkshire farm houses, and is carried with great ceremony all around the house and into every room. The bearer must be most careful to shield the flame as each door is opened, for it would be the worst of luck should the candle happen to "wax out" in a draught. Especially must the Yule candle be held over the churn. This is done in order to evict that malicious little sprite, Hob-the-Churn, who hides therein and spoils the butter.

ANCIENT YULI SOLDIERS

Children of Imperial Rome Had Works of Art as Playthings.
The Yuli soldiers boast of a long and distinguished pedigree. The children of ancient Rome played with miniature warriors, and some of the soldiers of the Middle Ages are real works of art.

A number of them are still preserved in British museums, and are elaborate models of knights in armor of real artistic value. But they were originally made as children's toys. Later, in the Seventeenth Century, miniature soldiers were made which were really pioneers of the modern mechanical toy, as they could go through the regulation drill of the time.

PRE-CHRISTIAN SANTA CLAUS

Santa Claus, bearded and benevolent, seems to be much older than St. Nicholas, the Christian bishop whose name he has assumed. Among the hundreds of statues of St. Nicholas, miniature soldiers were made which were really pioneers of the modern mechanical toy, as they could go through the regulation drill of the time.

Dr. J. S. Timpany was called to Stewieack on Saturday by the illness of his brother-in-law, Dr. H. B. Havy.

Miss Elizabeth MacGregor left last week to visit friends in Melrose, Mass.

Merry Christmas

AND then, in a twinkling, I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in furs, from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.
His eyes, how they twinkled! his dimples how merry:
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!
He was chubby and plump, a right jolly, old elf,
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself;
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose:
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night."

THE birthday of the Prince of Goodwill was at hand. On the frosty morning I turned my holly wreaths, looking out upon a world glittering in the first snow mantle of the year. I thought of the old story of the boy who was killed by a horse, and of the boy who was killed by a horse, and of the boy who was killed by a horse.

Annette came in and arranged the tea table at my side. "Certain people," he had said, "before Annette entered, diffuse a charm as real and as hard to define as the perfume of a rose." This was a poetic conceit for the practical Dan; there was something on his mind. I hurried Annette into the kitchen for more cake before his mood should vanish, but he would not budge. It was not to keep anyone waiting; I answered it myself. A prim and tiny old lady stood there.

"You making a little extra for Christmas?" she asked, covertly. "Would you like to look at my new?" "Just what I'm in need of," I said. "Come in."

Taking her bag, I led her to the sitting room, and Dan placed a chair for her before the fire.

"Good-day and thank you," she greeted Dan. "How pleasant here by the fire!"

Annette came in with the cake. "An other beauty," I whispered. Her face registered. "You certainly are eccentric," but I ignored this. In warranted self-respect my little visitor had come to the front door and I saw no reason why she should not sit down.

With bird-like movements, gliding now at me, now at Dan, she pulled the satin strings of her hat but her historic bonnet.

"Oh, hatband," she exclaimed, apologetically, holding her cap daintily. Now I was sure that she had seen better days.

"You have courage to be out today, little mother," said Dan.

"But what my daughter thinks," twinkled the old dame, "she says at eighty-two one should be through wanting to run around. It's not so much the money," she added proudly, "but I like to get out and see life and people. One is always young, isn't it? Much like experiences like run-and-tea, one can just see that you two are made for each other."

"Alas!" confessed Dan, frankly, smiling. "I have not the honor to be the lady's husband!"

"Let us look at my new," I suggested, and the naughty roucouler spread them out.

Dan fingered the change in his pocket. "I'll take two of those white ones for my wife," he announced.

The words were simple, but they fell upon my ear like a death sentence. "You never told me," I gasped reproachfully, as our guest turned to fold her supplies and arrange her bag.

"Well, I must go now," she said. "I'm staying too long. I've got to empty this bag before it overflows."

The door closed behind the unquenchable optimist.

"Isn't she a wonder?" we asked simultaneously, at which we both little fingers and pressed thumbs, laughing, while we wished.

I drew my hand away, as soon as was decent. No more familiarities now. "Think," said I, "from this world to peddling, and still the world is wonderful. It makes one ashamed to have been discontented."

"Exactly," agreed Dan. "I guess we are all given our duty portion of joy. If our hearts are tuned to receive it, a case of adjusting the wave length to our capacity."

"And now, about your wife?" I challenged bravely. He should never know my pain.

"I must see her before she goes," he said, putting one about me and drawing up the strings till we stood under the mistletoe.

"You darling, darling idiot!" I sobbed when I got my breath.

"Some Christmas!" expired Dan. "And blessed no more."

Good Boy

"Where can I get a license?" "A hunting license?" asked the clerk.

"No, the hunting is over—I want a license to marry the girl I've caught."

Falseness is often rocked by the truth, but she soon outwits her craft and discards her nurse.

About Old Santa Claus, Children's Patron Saint

THE dictionary merely tells you that Santa Claus is a contraction of Saint Nicholas (see Nicholas, Saint). A turning of the pages reveals that Nicholas was bishop of Myra or Smyrna in Asia Minor about 300 A. D. He was the patron saint of old Russia and was believed to offer special protection and comfort to "sea-faring men, thieves, virgins and children." His festival, the children were based on the assertion that he brought back to life three schoolboys who had been murdered. An encyclopedia attributes the name by which he is known in America to the early Dutch settlers who called him San Nicolaas.

But it little matters whether he be known as Saint Nicholas, Santa Claus, Kris Kringle, or a dozen other names, for the presence of his spirit on this Christmas holiday of the year is the important thing. It enters every home in the four corners of Christendom and touches the hearts of all the men and women in them. Moreover, it is essentially the spirit of childhood, the freshness, the courage and the cheerfulness of young life. Saint Nicholas may seem old, but he has none of the fears, regrets or prejudices of age. He and his children stand on the threshold of the world. Their banner is good will and their goal is peace.

So this day, dedicated to the memory of the birth of a child, belongs to all children. It is their carols, their laughter, their happiness which makes a heaven. And we adults should, on this day at least, share their kindnesses, their tolerance, their purity and their Saint Nicholas.—The Boston Herald.

Printed Christmas Card Was Issued Back in '43

THERE is more humanity than the Victoria and Albert museum than its stiff brick exterior suggests.

The director has sent me a Christmas Porridge Book, says a writer in the London Star. It reveals the fact that the first Christmas card ever printed was issued only as recently as 1843.

The card, which was printed for Sir Henry Cole, first director of the South Kensington museum, is regarded, along with many other efforts by artists, to celebrate the nativity. They range from a whimsical ivory relief from 1400 to a modern woodcut by Eric Gill. It is strange to see how the artistic wheel has turned full circle back to the medieval mystery.

But I can't help liking the first "Christmas card, which features," as the illus says, a hearty meal. As the fat boy would say, "I likes eating best."

"Christmas Man," Name Given to Kris Kringle

SANTA CLAUS does not visit the children of Lithuania on Christmas eve as he does the children in this country, but here are all kinds of Christmas celebrations in which they have a part, and many good things to eat. In Germany and Norway, old Kris Kringle makes gifts for the children in the form of the way places, and Christmas day is spent chiefly in handing for them. In Holland Saint Nicholas dispensed Christmas cheer, but when the Hollanders came to this country, his name was changed to Santa Claus. In Sweden Santa Claus is much like he is in America but he does not come down the chimney, but in the night he comes into the room where the Christmas tree is and leaves gifts for all. His name is not Santa Claus, however, for he is called "The Christmas Man."

THE REAL SANTA CLAUS

THIS Christmas spirit is the real Santa Claus—a spirit that is universal that grows stronger with the years—that tells on the best in us—a spirit that is made up of kindly thought and deeds, of hallowed memories and of "Good Will" to all.

Shepherds and Wise Men

It is not clear from the Scriptures that the shepherds who visit the new born Jesus were the same as the wise men who saw his star in the East. Only Matthew records the story of the magi, and only Luke mentions the shepherds. Mark and John do not refer to either the shepherds or the wise men.

Christian Element in Christmas Is Lacking

CHRISTMAS festivities, as the modern world observes them, owe much of their warmth and charm to the survival of pagan customs.

Prof. William Warren Sweet of the Divinity School, told a University of Chicago group. Speaking at a noon-time service in the chapel of the Divinity School, he is professor of the history of American Christianity, analyzed the history of the Yuletide celebration, and asked that the small Christian element in it be kept uppermost in the minds of the people.

Exchanging gifts at Christmas time is a practice taken over from the Romans, and the Christmas dinner, the holly wreaths, and even the Christmas tree customs can be traced back to the barbarians of northern Europe, Doctor Sweet said. America's contribution to the occasion has been chiefly its commercialization.

It was not until about the middle of the fourth century, after Christ had been formally set aside by the church at Rome for the observance of his physical birth, Doctor Sweet pointed out. "As it was first observed by the church, Christmas was purely a spiritual festival. There was no guerd; no bells announced the coming of the glad morn; there were no garlands; no tables heaped with good cheer."

"But it was not to remain long in the upper air of pure devotion. There were too many pagan influences about it, one of the most important of which was the feast of Saturn, which began on the 17th of December and lasted until the 24th. Saturn was the oldest and most benign deity of ancient Italy and his feigned reign on earth was supposed to have brought peace and happiness to his kind, so the feast was dedicated to him was full of joy and

Voracious Feasting Ancient Precedent for Modern Christmas Dinner

Feasting. The schools were closed, public places were decked with flowers, and presents were exchanged.

"Another festival which influenced the celebration of Christmas was the feast of the Kalends of January, which marked the beginning of the Roman civil year, and three days of merriment followed it. Mummies clad in women's clothes and animal skins paraded the streets. Presents were given to dear ones. "Honeyed things that in the year the recipient might be full of sweetness, things that might be full of light; copper, silver and gold that would last forever."

Among the early colonists in America Christmas was observed as a festival only by the Church of England and the Roman Catholics. Protestant sects said. The Puritans, objecting to the feast of the Kalends, which had long been an observance of the day. On May 1, 1630, the General Court of the Colony of Massachusetts passed the following law: "Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forbearing of labor, feasting, or any other way, as a festival, shall be fined five shillings."

This statute was repealed twenty years later, but for more than one hundred years the great "evangelical" religious groups, the Baptists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians official refused to recognize Christmas.

From the Statute reported that there was nothing to find any reference to the festival of the nativity in the literature of these churches up to the Civil war. Shortly after the war a religious union of the churches was formed, and the observance of the day on the grounds that there was evidence to establish exactly the date of Christ's birth and that there was nothing in the New Testament to condemn the holiday as idolatrous. "Ten years later, in 1850, Christmas issues of church papers show a decided change in their attitude," Doctor Sweet said. "Christian advertisements make their appearance. Christmas poems and editorials, from this time onward the religious significance of Christmas has been growing in all evangelical churches."

The Christmas, with which we are familiar today, is a strange combination of imported pagan and Christian traditions. Though I desire to say it, it seems that about all America has added to Christmas is its commercialization. The Christmas of today is a more humanitarian and Christ-like, more to make Christmas less pagan, less commercialized, more Christian."

For somehow, not only for Christmas But all the long year through. The joy that you give to others Is the joy that comes back to you; And the more you spend in blessing The poor and the lonely and sad, The more of your heart's possessing Returned to make you glad.

—Whittier

EXCUSABLE FOLLY

IT IS true that men and women at Christmas time do things which are foolish, especially in the giving of presents. But when did cold wisdom ever make people happy? Who wants to see a Christmas when nobody spends more than he should or when there is no giving of things that are trivial or useless or foolish? A truly sane Christmas would be a miserable one.—American Magazine.

Ancients Gave Presents as Most People Do Now

THE custom of making presents at Christmas is derived from very ancient usage. It was a Teutonic invention. In Latin countries gifts were exchanged at New Year's, writes James Waldo Fawcett in the Washington (D. C.) Evening Star.

The decoration of churches with mistletoe and holly is likewise a pagan survival.

Nativity plays and pageants trace back to a pre-Christian era. The sports of the Lords of Misrule in England are supposed to be an inheritance from the Saturnalia of heathen Rome.

Father Christmas or Santa Claus is identified with St. Nicholas or Nicolas, and also with Knecht Ruprecht and Robin Goodfellow. Grimm says that in some parts of Germany Knecht Necht is really an attendant on the real gift-giver, who is sometimes the infant Christ and sometimes Dame Bertha, but who is also frequently conceived as an ugly dwarf, called Krampus.

Carol singing by wails, strolling street musicians, is an old British custom.

The first Christmas cards date from about 1840.

The setting up in Latin churches of a Christmas creche is said to have been originated by St. Francis.

Protect Children When Celebrating Christmas

CHRISTMAS brings a season of joy, every precaution should be taken to prevent any untoward circumstances which might enter into its celebration.

Too often the careless placing of lighted candles has resulted in pain and burns, and even death to those participating in the Yuletide festivities. "Santa Claus" has been the victim in innumerable cases.

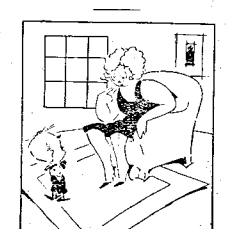

Tiny electric lights now are most used in lighting the Christmas tree, and the danger is no longer materially. If candles are to be used in the decoration—and they undoubtedly tend an effect not to be obtained by the electric lights—they should be placed on the mantel and in other secure locations where contact with their pretty flames is not likely to be made.

In Christmas sports involving the slightest danger, children should be directed in their play by an older person who is competent to effect a rescue if necessary.—Charles Frederick Wadsworth.

Celebrated Christmas on Way to North Pole

CAPTAIN SCOTT and his men on their way to the Pole once celebrated Christmas day by having a wash in a cupful of water each, and by washing their shirts. On another occasion, after being on short rations, they kept Christmas day by consuming such luxuries as raisins and chocolates for breakfast, and for supper they indulged in four courses. First of all, there was a full whack of pemmican, with slices of horse meat flavored with onion and curry powder and thickened with biscuit, then arrowroot omelet and biscuit, then sweetened, the plum pudding, then cocoa with raisins and finally a dessert of caramels and ginger. "After all this," says Scott, "I was difficult to move. Wilson and I couldn't finish our share of the plum pudding. We set thoroughly well and slept soundly." But the advance was slow the following day owing, probably to the tightening of the night before.

Wreaths, Garlands Gay Shout "Merry Christmas!"

WHAT a joy it is to come into a home scented with spicy pine and hollyhock, so suggestive of Yuletide that each room fairly shouts "Merry Christmas!" And what a real pleasure, too, to gather the greens and dispose them so that they express all the kindnesses of the blessed season, intensifying the delights of the "friendliest" period of the year!

As garlands, the various types of greens may decorate windows and doors, or they may be massed on mantels or tables.

To make a flexible rope of greenery supply a foundation of heavy twine and to this attach the short sprays of pine, hemlock or spruce interspersed regularly with clusters of holly, or for a more decorative effect use the artificial berries with the greens. Fine flexible wire is best for fastening the sprays in place.

Another use for greens is in the formation of window wreaths. Arrange the small sprays on a heavy wire foundation, taking care to keep the wreath symmetrical. Small groups of red berries, regularly placed, give character to such a decoration.

"A Merry Christmas," as Other Nations Say It

THIS is how the nations of the world express their wish "A Merry Christmas": France, "Bon Noel"; China, "Tsu Hae Nang"; Portugal, "Bom Festas"; Japan, "Kichi Shinsen"; Turkey, "Ishok Yihara"; Hungary, "Bolgok Karacsomaj Csunkopok"; Greece, "Chrysoyeni"; Croatia, "Sretan Bozic"; Holland, "Ten Vroelich Kerstmis"; Spain, "Felices Pascuas"; Germany, "Froehliche Weihnachten"; Sweden, "Glad Julen"; Italy, "Felice Natale"; Rumania, "Craciun Felicitarilor"; Bohemia, "Vesele Vanoce"; Poland, "Wesołych Swiat"; Denmark, "Glaedelig Jul."

THREE CELEBRATIONS

THREE Christmas are celebrated every year in the Church of Nativity at Bethlehem. The first occurs in the Roman Catholic section on December 25; 18 days later the Greek Orthodox church hold their celebrations, to be followed by those of the Armenian church in another 13 days.

Selecting Christmas Cards

We unconsciously betray our true selves when we select Christmas cards. People who live in city apartments are inclined to select the brighter, more cheerful cards, those with a touch of nature, a touch of the outdoors, a touch of the holiday card is likely to be sugary with sentiment.—Collier's Weekly.

KEEPING CHRISTMAS

There is a better thing than the observance of Christmas Day, and that is keeping Christmas. Are you willing to forget what you have done for other people and to remember what other people have done to you; to ignore what the world owes you, and to think what you owe the world; to put your rights in the background, and your duties in the middle distance, and your chances to do a little more than your duty in the foreground; to see that your fellowmen are just as real as you are, and try to look behind their faces to their hearts hungry for joy; to own that probably the only good reason for your existence is not what you are doing to get out of life, but what you are going to give to life; to close your book of complaints against the management of the universe, and look around for a place where you can sow a few seeds of happiness—are you willing to do these things over for a day? Then you can keep Christmas.—Henry VanDyke.

THE GOSPEL OF "PREVENTION"

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." If that isn't in the Bible it may as well be. Indeed there are pages of just such fine things and finer all through the sacred volume. Have you not been struck with the wide vogue of "Prevention" idea is gaining today? More and more our everyday methods are being built upon it. See those road signs that warn of curves and corners and through traffic streets ahead—all to prevent disaster. Look at those fire towers on our hilltops, that godly company of forest rangers, guardians against devastating losses by fire. That life insurance agent, one of thousands, is your greatest friend, an enemy to poverty in your coming day of stress. What means all this vaccination, quarantine, broadcasting of health knowledge by physician, teachers and public press, but the challenge of our present day to those "plagues" that once upon a time claimed their victims by the tens of thousands upon the highways of life? "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." More and more we wrap ourselves in the knuckles good and hard when a disaster happens that a little more care and common sense would have prevented. We used to "dreuer weird" through our calamities and throw the blame back on the will of God. Now, with saner views of the will of God, we have learned to humble ourselves for the sins and follies that bring such calamities upon ourselves and others. And this "prevention" idea is going round the world. It is one of the hopes for the worthy temperance cause. It is bound sooner or later to catch by the scruff of the neck that giant of Esau-like Appetite and his twin brother, Self-Seeking Ambition, and make them both look stupid and ugly for the overthrow of the giant evil of the liquor traffic with its merciless slaughter of the innocents along with the guilty. And so I am glad to find again such an authority as Professor Howard A. Kelly, of Johns Hopkins University, said to be "one of America's greatest medical authorities," sounding forth his word of warning against the use of alcohol:

"There is no disease in the world," he says, "for which alcohol is a cure." That strikes me as a solar plexus blow to a lot of superficial talk I have heard from the man on the street and the man of the street. But listen further to the professor: "More to the point is the fact that it does undeniably cause thousands of cases of disease, all of them fatal in the long run. All this has been proved by innumerable tests. Even in tennis or chess or a mountain climb one glass of beer has defeated a man. It has been shown that a spoonful of liquor lessens the ability to form a quick judgment, and to act upon that judgment."

Some day we will look ourselves squarely in the face and scorn ourselves for our sheer foolishness in having kept such close company with this evil. Let the prevention gospel be preached round the world, and soon the liquor traffic cannot live in its atmosphere.

It was Mark Twain, I think, who said: "I have had just lots of trouble in my life but most of it never happened." Sure—things are not any too good right now but they might be a lot worse! So cheer up for Christmas is on the way and better days are due in 1934. Heads up, then! Merry Xmas, Happy New Year. From the Editor

ADVERTISEMENT IN THE COURIER

JUST wanted to say Merry Christmas, and thanks to the check, Mr. Brown. Mr. Joseph Brown pause in signing a letter and smiled back at the freckled girl.

"Merry Christmas to you, Jim," he answered. "And you're welcome to the check. Are you going out to—how it all in, or perhaps give it to your mother for a holiday present?"

"Neither." The excitement of the moment made the lad forget that at office bay was conversing quite freely with the president of the company. "Mothers ain't so stuck on checks," he continued, "they like something more personal, something that shows you really thought about 'em."

"But the president's eyebrows went up in question."

"And what," he inquired, "did you select that was personal?"

"The sweetest scarf," Jim was warbling up, enthusiastically—"all blue and gold and fringe on it, long as my hand."

"It must be a beauty," agreed Mr. Brown. "Yes, but that ain't all, Mr. Brown. My mother said she hoped some folks would sing carols outside our house tonight, 'cause she loved 'em."

"And what do you think?" A whole crowd of us are going to sing carols for her. Oh, boy, I won't be like that!"

The lad moved towards the door. "Perhaps you're going to sing carols for your mother tonight too."

"I—I hadn't thought of it before, confessed Mr. Brown. "But perhaps I will, Jim."

His mother was just like any other mother. How she would like to have carols sung in front of the little white house on the hill.

Mr. Brown reached for his phone. "A train leaving at two, you say? Thank you, I can make it easily."

Outside, his car waited, with Jenkins at the wheel.

"Hello, Jenkins," he greeted.

"I've just got an hour and a half to do some last minute shopping. Then I'll catch the train for home."

"Take a holiday for a week, Jenkins, do you get me?"

"Yes, sir," gasped Jenkins. "I get you."

And up in the white house on the hill little Mrs. Brown put the golden coffee and brown muffins on the snowy table.

"Supper's ready, Joe," she called.

The old man came slowly, a frown on his ruddy face.

"Wow, Joe," the woman soothed. "don't you go and let anything spoil your Christmas spirit."

"I know it, Myra." He patted the wrinkled hand. "But when I saw Seth Holden's boy and Daley's girl come home for the holidays, I just couldn't help feeling a little bitter."

"Our boy hasn't spent a Christmas with us for five years. Why, we haven't even seen him for two."

"I know, Joe, but he never forgets a check, and such a generous one. Remember, Joe, our boy is a busy man."

"Now, Joe," she started to speak. "I have the most wonderful evening planned. We are too old to believe in Santa Claus, but we are never too old to believe in angels."

"The young folks most likely will come singing carols. I hope they will sing the one I love best."

"While shepherds watched their flocks by night, All seated on the ground, The Angel of the Lord came down And glory shone around."

And so the carolers, peering into the windows, saw them sitting hand in hand.

Then suddenly, clear on the evening air, came the sound of many voices, one deep, rich tone, apart from all the others.

The little old lady's eyes were like stars. "He's come, Joe," she whispered. "He's come, that's his voice."

Then the door opened and two strong arms held them fast. "Glad to see me, dear folks!" cried a beloved voice.

"Son," said the old man, solemnly. "I think the Angel of the Lord must have brought you."

"Of course," exclaimed little Mrs. Brown. "for just see the glory shining around."

"Muriel," said little Archie at the breakfast table: "did Mr. Wilkins take any of the umbrellas or hats from the rack when he went home last night?"

"Why, of course not," replied Muriel, with a laugh. "why should he?"

"That's just what I'd like to know," said Archie; "because when he went out I heard him say, 'I'm going to steal just one'—and—why, what's the matter, Muriel?"

CHRISTMAS DAY

IT IS not definitely known when Christmas was first celebrated. The institution of the festival is attributed to Teutonic, who flourished in the reign of Antoninus Pius (131-161 A. D.). The reason for the final choice of December 25 cannot now be determined. As Christianity spread, the feast of the winter solstice, the time when the day begins to increase and light to triumph over darkness, was changed into the Feast of Christ, the Light of Life.

The Christmas Carolers Are Welcome Everywhere

Hark! come the Carolers! So used to be Young faces pressed against the windowpane, straining to hear the cheerful carols outside. Perhaps it was the story of the Christ child put to tune or a ballad of love and cheer. When the singers were done the householder invited them in for a bite and a sup or gave them a coin or two for their song.

Then on to the next house, to sing again under the stars or veiled behind drifted snow.

And then, in the early morning, home again to their own firesides.

It was a good old custom, this midnight minstrelsy in the season of peace and goodwill. With the beginning of Yuletide, twelve days before Christmas day, as Percival Chubb tells us in the Standard, published in New York by the American Ethical Union, "small bands of musicians went the rounds and, in the city or on the road or on the steps, played the old folk tunes as a lyrical prelude to the great day. To some of the antique ballads, like 'Gunga King Wee Wee,' says Mr. Chubb, the singers would add a hymn tune to two—'Once in David's Royal City,' or 'Hark, the Herald Angels Sing.'"

Punctuating the bustle of domestic preparation for the coming feast these ministrations to the still night gave a breath of poetry that touched the spirit of Christmas with an endearing beauty. Day by day the tide of joy and anticipation rose until the crescendo broke into a forte of exuberance.

Those simple days of the folk are gone, says Mr. Chubb; the glory is departed.

But the custom of making the rounds on Christmas eve to sing carols of peace and goodwill will still prevail here and there—Literary Digest.

Make Christmas Burden, Be Unhappy Rest of Year

IT IS so customary nowadays to hear disparagement of Christmas as a season of vanity, selfish display, greed and extravagance that we like to point out the other side. Some of our cynics declare that Christmas gifts are themselves dictated by self interest—that they are merely offered in the hope of a return—with interest—or are an exhibition of vanity. And yet, who would dare to say this of a mother, who deprives her self to give happiness to her child, or of the girl who willingly foregoes some little vanity for the pleasure of her parents? People who make Christmas a burden and a tax show the same attitude throughout the year.

Make our false standards of living are to blame, and not this holy festival.—Rural, New-Yorker.

Norway, Sweden Babies Are Loaded With Gifts

N MANY districts of Norway and Sweden every baby born on Christmas day is the recipient of many gifts and bounties from all quarters. It receives a bounty from both the ecclesiastical and civil authorities, and in some districts these bounties amount to a considerable amount of money, which is generally bestowed until the child is of age.

The children that are born to some classes of the people in Naples on this happy day are visited by "Wise men"—who are selected by some philanthropic society—and are presented with imitation stones which are valued highly by the children in later years, even supernatural qualities being ascribed to them.

Tip for Tat

The husband drew up a chair beside his wife's sewing machine the other day, and remarked: "Don't you think it's running too fast?"

"You'll see the wrong seam. Slow down, or you'll stick the needle in your finger!"

"Why, what's the matter with you? I've been running this machine for ten years."

"Oh, I was merely trying to assist you, just as you try to help me drive the car."

Christmas Essentially the Day of the Child

DECEMBER the 25th is the Day of the Child.

It is upon this day of days that countless men and women and little ones barely able to speak their language utter the great rejoicing: For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given!

Even those who hold creeds in which there is no Christmas feel the splendor of that cry, and those who have no formal creed at all, still know there is one of the 365 portions of the year which is essentially the Day of the Child.

It is the day when even the most unsentimental adult, long since congealed and hardened by the years, can hear in his heart the footsteps of the little ones. Today they are running about so eagerly all over the world hatching to see what good gifts may have been received, ardent with a hope that only young hearts can feel.

On this day the amateur scientist who has a most quiet believing in the very laws of astronomy which recently seemed so sure and stable, but which now seem dissolving in a mist of relatively this careful profession at skiepile becomes as a child himself, and considers it hard indeed if he cannot believe in Santa Claus, beard ed fairy godfather of the children.

On this day even those who have been the most careless feel like saying over reverently that beautiful prayer for wisdom in the rearing of children:

"Almighty God, heavenly Father, who hast blessed us with the joy and care of children; Give us light and strength so to train them, that they may love whatsoever things are true and pure and lovely and of good report."

For on this Day of the Child we all remember that the most precious gift we can bestow upon our children is a capacity for feeling just such tender and generous and helpful emotions as today stir in the breasts of all good men and women.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Christmas Day
8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion
10.00 a.m.—Matins and Choral Eucharist.

Friday, Dec. 29, at 8 p.m. Christmas Canat. Soloists—Mary Lynch, Mrs. F. Hayden and C. Walker.

The cry of the world is for leadership. Among all the distresses of the present hour there rises still the ancient question, "Who will show us any good?" The sheep are restless because they hear the voices of many shepherds. They will continue restless until the comforting tones of the true Shepherd fall upon their ears.

Command over the destinies of a race lost in the wilderness will be yielded to him alone who possesses the inherent qualities of leadership.

It may be that the wise men from the East spoke better than they knew when they asked, "Where is He that is born King of the Jews?" Kings are always born, not made. His is the sceptre who holds it by right and not by might.

If this Christmas time should mean for the world the recognition of its rightful Lord, it would be the most memorable Christmas in many generations. Peace and satisfaction attend His court. He cares for the needy and the forgotten. He raises the lowly, and gives strength to the weak. He makes justice the wall of His Kingdom, and gives effect to the law of liberty.

We are still asking, "Where is he that is born King?" Where is he that is born King? And the answer to our question is that He is in our midst already, waiting, the recognition which will institute His reign of peace.

FREE GIFTS

In gloomy tones we need not cry, "How many things there are to buy!" Here is a thought for you and me—"The best of things in life are free!" The air, the sunshine and the sea. All gladness, beauty—these are free. Our faithful friendships, sympathy. The joys of living—these are free. The budding blossom, stalwart tree. God's open country—these are free. All loving service, loyalty. Our God's protection, these are free. The more we look, the more we see. How many precious things are free. The heart will find more than the eye. Of things we do not have to buy.

Band's First Birthday

Concert Well Attended.

The first birthday concert of the Digby Civic Band, held in the Bijou Theatre on Friday evening last, was an outstanding musical success, and in spite of the most disagreeable weather the theatre was well filled.

It was only one year ago last Friday that fifteen young men met in the Land room for their first practice; since then the band has grown into a strong organization of some forty-five members, none of whom were able to play an instrument a year ago. They have made remarkable progress—their concert last Friday proved that. Their programme was composed of numbers written for third and fourth year bands, and all were beautifully rendered.

Another feature of the programme were magical tricks performed by Roy Grant, sleight of hand artist, of Halifax.

Between the first and second parts of the program several prizes, donated by merchants and citizens of the town, were drawn for. The grand prize—a beautiful centrepiece donated to the band by Mrs. Omer Rice, was won by James Hayden.

In another column there is an appreciation of Friday night's concert, written by a well known Digby Citizen, which takes the place of a more lengthy article on our part.

THE BEST KNOWN POEM

"The Night Before Christmas" Composed by Charitable Medical Man Walking Home With a Turkey.

The best known of all Christmas poems is that childhood favorite, "The Night Before Christmas." Comparatively few people, though they may be able to recite the poem from beginning to end, know how it came to be written. Here is the story:
Christmas Eve, 1823, the son of a rich minister, was born near New York City on July 15, 1781. He attended school and college, and graduated in medicine. In due course of time he inherited his father's property, which consisted of a large estate near New York. Being a generous man, and desiring to assist young people who wanted to gain a good education, he donated a large sum of money to the University of the City of New York. Dr. Moore joined the teaching staff as professor of Greek and Hebrew, for which he was widely known as an accomplished scholar.

Dr. Moore's three little girls and an equal number of small boys hung up their stockings for Santa Claus on the night before Christmas Eve just as children do nowadays. Well over 100 years ago Dr. Moore was helping his girls to tuck their stockings into the holes of the poor families living nearby. When they were about to tuck the last stocking, Dr. Moore found that she had no stocking at all. "What?" she said, turning to her husband, "go down to the market and get me another." This Dr. Moore did, and, on his way home, his mind filled with thoughts of the Yuletide and thoughts of the first time that he saw his children. "What a night!" he thought, "to be so busy and to have my children so happy. I will compose a poem about Santa Claus for my children. The words came to him so quickly that he had to stop every few minutes to jot down notes. He called his poem, "A Visit From Saint Nicholas." On arriving at his home he recited for the first time that favorite of all children, "The Night Before Christmas." The poem was not published until 1823, when it appeared in the Troy Sentinel. Then paper after paper copied it, and it spread like wildfire all over the world.

A SWEDISH DINNER

Fish and Ham Take the Place of the Lordly Turkey.

Christmas dinner in Sweden since time immemorial has been the subject of the special care and thought of the Swedish housewife. A typical Christmas dinner is thus: A consommé, boiled fish with potatoes and fried potatoes, ham with fried potatoes, rice pudding, and a plum cake, porridge of rice and milk, and "knelet" and jam.

The rice pudding is made of the very best rice, well cooked with milk and water, and, according to tradition, an almond, but only one, has to be hidden in the porridge before it is served. Lucky the boy or girl who finds the almond; it is said that they then should be married within the year.

The last dish of the Christmas dinner is the so-called "knelet," a special little pastry made in various shapes, and boiled in milk and water, hot or cold with jam. These traditions are still kept in every Swedish household, and everybody agrees that there is no real Christmas without these traditional dishes.

TREE DECORATIONS

Children Like Them Better If They Are Edible.

The old fashion of decorating Christmas trees with inedible ornaments appeals to the children often more than the glass balls and trinkets commonly used.

Children like helping pop the corn and stringing it. Cranberries at equal distances along the strings of popcorn are attractive. Apples hanging from the tree are beautiful. If they have been washed and polished with a dry cloth or a little olive oil. Tin foil cut into thin strips hanging from the tree makes sparkling in any light.

If candles are used, be exceedingly careful of fire. Evergreen trees blazed up instantly and furiously if they catch fire, which they do very easily.

CHRISTIAN AND PAGAN

The Christmas tree had its origin in Germany and is of comparatively recent adoption in other countries. It is regarded by many as one of the most pagan survivals which have been grafted upon Christianity and Christian festivities. The worshippers of the Norse gods, before the adoption of Christianity, had a place in their scheme of things for Yggdrasil, the tree of the world, which, with its roots and branches, was believed to bind together heaven, earth and hell. The Christmas tree is believed to be related to this tree in its origin. It became associated with the Christian holiday at some unknown time in the Middle Ages.

ORIGIN OF CAROLS

The influence of the constant visualization of Bible scenes, of which people were accustomed to think vividly, inspired the writing of Christmas carols. They began to make their appearance about the year 1400. This was a new music in what was still almost a new language of minstrel, literary and folk poetry. The ballad was one of the forms in which many of the traditional carols were cast.

Genevieve Alcorn is the guest of her cousin, Pauline McCormack.

Harold McDermald left on Friday for a short trip to Halifax, returning on Monday.

Harold McDermald, of Boston, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. McDermald.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Harris left on Monday for Toronto, called by the death of Mrs. Harris' father, the late Thaddeus Sanford.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

THE custom of hanging evergreens in the house during the Yuletide originally had a purpose beyond that of decoration. In olden days evergreen was believed to confer special blessings on those who passed beneath its boughs. To pass under holly insured good fortune throughout the year. One of the most ancient and sure of all charms was supposed to impart a spirit of beauty and poetry—Missouri Farmer.

Peacock Dinner English

Custom Many Years Ago

FASHIONS in Christmas dinners came and go. In olden days at a Christmas feast in England, next in importance to the boar's head as a Christmas dish was the peacock. To prepare the bird for the table was a task entailing no little trouble. The skin was first carefully stripped off with the plumage adhering. The bird was then roasted, who done, and partially cooled it was sewed up again in its feathers, its beak painted with gilt and so sent to the table. Some times the whole body was covered with leaf gold and placed on a platter saturated with spiced placed in its beak and lighted before the carved commenced operations. This "food for lovers and meat for lords" was stuffed with spices and sweets, basted with yolks of eggs and served with plenty of gravy.

The noble bird was not served by common hands; that privilege was reserved for the lady guests most distinguished by birth or beauty. One of the stories told in the dining hall to the sounds of music, the rest of the ladies following in due order. The dish was set down before the master of the house or his most honored guest. The latest instance of peacock eating recorded was at a dinner given to William IV, when Duke of Clarence, by the governor of Grenada.

Great Yule Feast Given

by King Richard in 1399

CHRISTMAS in England, of course, is an old feast day, though the Santa Claus and Christmas tree traditions came to us from another source. William Mead's "The English Medieval Feast" (Houghton, Mifflin) quotes from Stow's "Survey of London" an account of the great feast which King Richard gave in Westminster Hall in the year 1399, just after rebuilding the hall of William I: "A most royal Christmas, with daily joustings and runnings at tilt, where unto resorted such a number of people that there was every day spent 25 or 26 oxen, and 300 sheep, besides fowl without number; he caused a gown for himself to be made of gold garnished with pearl and precious stones, to the value of 3,000 marks; and Mrs. Wagner is staying with Mrs. Charles Adams.

Miss Miriam Turnbull, of Medford, Mass., is expected home tomorrow to spend Christmas with her mother, Mrs. W. E. Ellis, and Mr. Ellis.

Miss Bernice Adams, of Halifax, expects to arrive home on Sunday morning's train, to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loran Adams.

Adams, and Mrs. L. M. Ellis have had electricity installed in their house and are all ready to move as soon as weather conditions permit.

A very Merry Christmas to the Courier staff and all the readers, near and far.

CHRISTMAS PRAYER

Dear Jesus, born in Bethlehem. A manger for Thy bed; Rich gifts brought Thee from afar— Guided by a shining star— To Thee were stars led. A gift of love to Thee we bring On Christmas Day. On Christmas Eve, On Christmas Day.

O, bless the sick and dying, Lord, And comfort those who mourn— The loss of loved ones from their homes On this glad Christmas morn. Help us to know they're safe with Thee. On Christmas Eve, On Christmas Day.

Dear Saviour, bless the children, too. Thou loved them when on earth; Oh, may each tender heart retain, In Thy love, Lord, they lead to Thee And also help the poor. Lest they forget to pray to Thee On Christmas Eve, On Christmas Day.

Oh, may the rich so freely give From out their boundless store; In giving, Lord, they lead to Thee And also help the poor. Lest they forget to pray to Thee On Christmas Eve, On Christmas Day.

Inspire Thy faithful servants, Lord. To preach Thy sacred truths; To speed the story of the Cross, And help to save our youths. May precious souls be born for Thee On Christmas Eve, On Christmas Day.

Lord, when our work on earth shall cease, And Thou shalt call us home, May we join that angel choir, To sing around Thy throne. Then we shall see Thee face to face. On Christmas Eve, On Christmas Day.

COULD you mind if we didn't celebrate Christmas this year, Bob?
Bob looked up quickly from his bacon and eggs. "What's the idea, darling?"
Ellen's lip trembled. "I just can't bear to think of Christmas without father. And it isn't as if the baby were old enough to know the difference."

Her husband seemed about to say something, then evidently thought better of it. "Where is your mother going to be?" he asked, presently.
"In Boston, with Lella and the child. Of course, with youngsters that age, one has to keep Christmas."
"Whatever you say goes with me Sweetness; you know that," said Bob. Of course, it was a hard time for Ellen, just now, remembering other Christmases. Why, last year, how she had been flying around, joyously if hectically busy with last minute shopping and packing to go home for the holidays. She and Bob and two month old little Tim, named for his grandfather. When they ever forgot that last happy celebration in the old home?

Ellen's father had loved Christmas, and what Bob had twice started to say had been something to the effect that he would not have approved of anyone's not celebrating it.
During the days which followed, Ellen carefully avoided any errands which would take her downtown into the thick of the hum-drumed throngs. She bought little Tim half a dozen toys on her way to market one morning.
Now it is asking a great deal of any body to describe in detail the drab passage of a Christmas that is not so much as such, the long, dreariest, saddest day you can imagine. Even little Tim refused to be his usual good humored self and fussed rebelliously and irritably.

Ellen went to bed early, leaving Bob weeping. He had been twice to see her. It was on the morning after Christmas that a strange thing happened. Ellen had left little Tim with Nora, who came in to help mornings and had gone down to the post office for the letter from her mother, which would tell how Christmas passed for her. She was back at her own steps with the letter saved to read in the quiet and warmth within, when the pretty young woman from next door ran in with a sweater thrown across her shoulders.
"To excuse me," she said breathlessly, "but we're next door neighbors and, if I may ask, isn't your name Cunningham?"
"Why, yes," said Ellen. "It is."
"I thought so," said the other, with a puzzled look. "You see, yesterday, I was passing with a piece of plum pudding for a shirt in old lady below, when a middle-aged man stopped me and asked me if I could tell him where the 'Cunninghams' live."
Ellen felt the hurting little squeeze about her heart that always came with a sudden memory of her father. As if this woman had been speaking of him!

"And I told him," the other was saying, "that I thought you lived right here."
"Yes," urged Ellen, with the strangest feeling of suspense. "Yes."
"He looked up at the house, and shook his head. 'Oh, no,' he said, very positively, yet gently. 'That couldn't possibly be it. There would be a wreath on the door.' And he went on."
After a moment, Ellen found herself in her own room with her mother's letter open in her hand. She read it through, very carefully. Then read it again.
"Today has been a happy day with me, after all. Your father has seemed with me, even more than usual. By everything I did brought him back to me. Helping fill the children's stockings reminded me of your first Christmas. You were such a tiny thing, but he insisted you were not too young to celebrate and we did it just as we used to. I even sang the old carols softly to myself as they came over the radio and it made him seem very near. 'Lella and Will are going out to mail this for me.'"
"Love to all. MOTHER."
"Everything I did, brought him back to me." Ellen sat for a long, long time, thinking.

The Misses Dorothy Coggins and Alice Doty, of Weymouth, North, nurses in training at the Y-mouth Hospital, visited relatives at Darling's Lake one day recently.

A VISION OF WORLD PEACE

Golden Text:—"The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."—Isaiah 11:9.

Lesson Passage:—Isaiah 11:1-9

"They say that on a Christmas Eve in Flanders' field, Somewhere along that death-strewn waste of No Man's Land, Among those wrecks of towns and hearts and men, The noise of fighting ceased, and stars grew kind, And foe met foe and clasped each other's hand."

"O mocking armistice! O irony of peace! All for the haunting memory of an ancient star! And yet—I wonder what the living flame Of that Child's love might bring a burdened world, If memory of His star could stop a war."

Understanding, 1, 2

In the middle of the sixteenth century Sir Thomas Moore published his "Utopia," describing an imaginary commonwealth in a distant island of the Atlantic. It was his picture of an ideal social state on a small scale. Over two thousand years before Isaiah had sketched his "Utopia" portraying ideal social conditions for the nation and ultimately for the world. The difference between the two Utopias is very real. Moore's ideal state might justly be described as economic or socialistic, but the purifying power in Isaiah's "Beloved Community" was religion. With the coming of Messiah there would be peace and happiness. The distinctive thing in Isaiah's description of the Kingdom of God is the complete absence of force. His hope was in the spirit of the Lord, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord. A race in armaments eventually leads to war. Peace can be preserved only by a world wide spirit of brotherhood.

Righteousness, 3-5

One trouble has been that the nations have tried to prevent war when it was too late. It is impossible to erect a dam when the floods have begun. A constructive plan of good will is necessary long before the first rumbling of a raging conflict. Great Britain has the present good will of South Africa because of the autonomy granted after the South African War. Had this arrangement been reached soon enough, the South African War might have been prevented. The best guarantee of understanding between the United States and China is found in the remission of the Boxer War indemnity by which thousands of Chinese students have been given a college education. Some pacifists say that there is no situation which kindness cannot handle. This is true if kindness begins soon enough, but if bitter feelings are engendered and threats are made, kindness may not be able to undo the harm that has been done. In regard to war, prevention is much better than cure.

Domestic Animals, 6-9

It is a far cry from the primitive conditions of the jungle to the present order of society where animals are domesticated. Civilization has benefited the lower animals as well as man. The dog was once a wolf. Domestic fowls were once wild birds. Animals now useful for food or transportation were once the foes of man. They have been given security from starvation and attack by a peaceful order of existence. Many societies for the protection of animals have a necessary and beneficent work to do. But the best safeguard for animals is a spirit of kindness and fairness among men. From this passage there is also the reproachful hint that if wild animals can learn to live together in peace, is it too much to expect of human intelligence that permanent peace be maintained on earth?

The World Evangelized, 9

Before the War Great Britain spent a million pounds a year on missions, and during the War spent five million pounds a day on war. Professor Payne tells of a day he spent with a Mohammedan. "All day long," he says, "we talked of the problems of the Orient and the Occident. He said to me, 'There are three things that hold humanity back, and seriously enough in your day, and I tell you they all begin with C. They are caste, color and creed; caste, the idea that where a man is born there he forever must stay; color, the idea that a man's mere complexion may make it impossible for him ever to be my equal or my brother; and creed, the idea that a man must adopt my religious formula or he never by any possibility can enter my heaven.' " To create a world wide spirit of brotherhood that will preserve peace is the present task of Christian Missions.

The Prince of Peace, 10-11

Mr. Arthur Balfour, speaking in the British parliament said, "The time will come, the time must come, when someone, some statesman, will lay down the doctrine that between English speaking peoples, war is impossible." In recent years a Peace Pact has been signed by the nations outlawing war. But a wider goal is before us—the reign of peace among all the nations of the earth because the nations voluntarily will peace. To this end missions can contribute more than force. When the world is evangelized, world peace will become possible. Above all earthly rulers will be the government of the Prince of Peace. It is a choice between the muffled hand and the mailed fist. It took eight hundred years to abolish slavery. It may take many years to abolish war. The League of Nations is just one practical attempt to realize the ideals of justice and peace outlined by Isaiah over twenty-five hundred years ago.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Which is a greater peace, peace between Europe or Asia?
- 2.—Should the manufacture of armaments and munitions be nationalized?
- 3.—How effective was the mutual censure pronounced upon Japan by the League of Nations?
- 4.—Will all twenty-first century Christians be pacifists?
- 5.—What forces are making for international good will?
- 6.—Why do we need peace, politics or missions?

I am appending a list of about seventy names familiar among you in the early seventies, some of which, such as Ambrose and Savary, have given an added lustre to the already scintillating and historically famed name of Digby.

Before long I hope to reach Digby in the "Wanderings" and would like to get from some reliable source, as much information about the public lives of the two families herein mentioned, along with those of other of your citizens of about that time, of a worth while nature. Mr. Editor, or some reader may possibly go out of his or her way to oblige in this matter. I am pretty well acquainted with the history of the clever Ambrose family, down to the time that the Rev. John S. got his "D.D." Since that time I have not heard much additional. Of the family history of the late Judge Savary I know almost nothing. I do not even know now, his initials, although I'm sure you when he made his successful entry into public life.

If Mr. Editor sees fit to publish the enclosed list of names, some one may take pity on a lonely old man—perhaps a former pupil, forgetting any hard feelings he may have had, will do so—and write me a personal letter, which, I assure you, will be greatly appreciated and promptly answered.

Will the Courier kindly correct any misspelling of names, of which there will be some.

Yours, wishing success to Digby, long happy lives to its people, and a successful career to the Courier.

HISTORY CHRONICLED IN DOTS AND DASHEES

Big events and big names in history were chronicled in the days when the telegraph was a new means of communication, according to F. E. Davey, writing in the Christmas number of the Canadian National Railways Magazine. He notes the funeral of the Duke of Wellington, the arrival of Napoleon III and the Empress Eugénie on an official visit to London, the opening of the first Red Cross Hospital by Florence Nightingale in the Crimean War; the laying of the cable by the "Great Eastern" and the opening of the first tram system in London. When the first Christmas telegram was sent between Toronto and Montreal in 1847, Mr. Davey points out, there were less than 700 miles of wire in use. In that year, the pioneer Montreal Telegraph Company, forerunner of the Canadian National Telegraphs, sent out 33,000 messages. Today, its successor has 25,000 miles of lines and more than 166,000 miles of wire. Exclusive of cables, something like 7,500,000 messages are sent out within a year.

OLDEST CIVILIZATION IN BRITISH HONDURAS

British Colony in Caribbean Sea Older than Babylonia or Assyria

British Honduras, on the Caribbean Sea, it is believed, shows evidence of one of the oldest civilizations on earth, older in fact than Babylonia and Assyria. Archaeologists state the inhabitants were sufficiently civilized to have an exact system of chronology.

Its modern history begins about 638 when the colony became known through some shipwrecked English sailors. There is a record of many onsets as England at that time was at war with Spain. In 1681 the Governor of Massachusetts sent a British warship, H. M. S. King George, to help English settlers against their enemies. The Mosquito Coast Indians also assisted the early English settlers as did the Bay Island settlers. Three years later, in July, British Honduras was ceded in perpetuity to Great Britain. For 148 years the settlers managed their own affairs when a Superintendent was appointed by the Home Government and later an Executive Council was established. The settlement was declared a colony on May 12, 1882, and a Lieutenant Governor appointed, subordinate to the Governor of Jamaica, who acted with the Legislative Assembly constituted in 1883. The assembly was abolished in 1870 and a legislative council formed with the Lieutenant Governor as president. In 1765 the King gave the settlement a constitution founded on their ancient customs and this was the freest constitution ever enjoyed by a colony granted to a British settlement. Admiral Sir William Burnaby was sent to the settlement to make the necessary arrangements under the constitution of 1765 and with him was Captain Cook, the celebrated navigator and explorer who codified the laws and customs which were afterwards published and known as "Burnaby's Laws."

British Honduras is now directly linked with Canada by a steamship service provided by the Canadian National Steamships.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Dr. and Mrs. S. B. MacGregor, Scitth's Cove, on Thursday evening, when about fifty friends gathered at a surprise party in honor of their daughter, Miss Helen, on the eve of her departure to the United States, where she will spend the winter. Games and music were enjoyed until a late hour, after which delicious refreshments were served.

E. J. Theriault was a recent business visitor to Weymouth.

King Richard the Second Supplied Two Thousand Oxen for Feast.

Christmas is a celebration of old England are inextricably interwoven with the earlier Yuletide observance of the Celts, and many of them have a pagan origin.

It was in feudal times, however, that the observance of Christmas, still called the Yule feast, reached its magnificent outburst of record.

King Richard II gave a great Christmas feast at Littlefield in the fourteenth century, at which 2,000 oxen and 400 tons of wine were consumed.

But this monarch was accustomed to entertain on a grand scale, for every day 10,000 people dined at his expense, and it is said that he employed 2,000 cooks. Those surely were the good old days!

UNDER THE MISTLETOE

The good old Christmas custom of kissing under the mistletoe is a perennial source of discussion and dispute but have you any idea how it originated? This is the story:

Balder, the Scandinavian god of poverty and eloquence—so says the legend—sought immunity from the violence of his enemies by extracting from everything, in earth, fire, and water, a promise to do him no hurt. Foolishly he forgot to obtain this assurance from mistletoe; and Loake, his great enemy, on learning this, induced a herring to shoot Balder with an arrow made from a bough of mistletoe.

Now, the other gods and goddesses, on hearing of the death of Balder—who was a great favorite with them—prayed that out of the love they bore him, he might be restored to life. Thus, when this came to pass, mistletoe, instead of being an emblem of death, became the emblem of love, and, as such, was given to the goddess of love to keep and guard, whilst everyone who passed under the bough she held in her hand was expected to salute her with a tender kiss—Church Messenger.

CANDLES FROM EAST

Burning to Celebrate Jewish Feast When Christ Was Born.

A single candle lighted and placed in a window by itself on Christmas Eve, is a custom which has been followed by the East, which led the wise men to the young Child. Not only were candles used for the purpose of illumination during the old festival, but they were exchanged as gifts of cheerfulness and good-will.

The use of candles was an important feature of the Jewish Feast of the Dedication, which was held about the same time of the year as the Saturnalia and the Yule. One can imagine that thousands of candles were burning throughout Palestine at the time of the birth of Christ—a fitting though unintentional recognition of the birth of "The Light of the World."

There were several methods of making the candles in Canada's pioneer days, the earliest being to dip the candle wick in molten tallow. It is then dip it again until the desired size was reached. The process was tedious but the results were certainly gratifying. Later, a simpler process was evolved of pouring the tallow into tin molds; thus, in a large mold, as high as three dozen candles could be made at one time. In a tiny tin these molds were passed from house to house, there being but one or two available.

The first candles of the bayberry or candleberry were added to those candles destined for use on festive occasions, to eliminate the random smell of the tallow. These berries were in much demand.

The first candlesticks were plain, consisting of an iron holder with a hook on the side for facility in hanging on the wall or over the chair back. Long thin tripods, with two branching candlesticks that slid up and down, and snuffers, were popular. Tall brass candlesticks for the mantelpiece and low ones for use in the bedroom, held their position in public favor.

MONSTER PUDDINGS

One Weighing Half a Ton Was the Victim of Hold-up.

There may be more Christmas puddings than there were in the past, but there are certainly no bigger ones.

In 1718 James Austen, inventor of "Persian Pink Powder," planned an elaborate Christmas pudding weighing 1,000 pounds. This, after boiling for 14 days at the rate of 100 degrees, was placed in a cart to be conveyed to the accompaniment of a band playing strange instruments, like the wassail, Tabor, Fish Street Hill, where the favored guests were assembled. The company, however, waited in vain, for scarcely had the pudding started on its journey before it was held up by a mob, attacked with knives and choppers, and distributed to many not bidden to the feast.

Another huge pudding resulted from a sporting offer of an old-time tale. In 1840, a local brewer and distribute to the poor of the neighborhood a Christmas pudding the weight of any one of his customers. He reckoned that the heaviest man on record, who was induced by a regular patron to drop in one morning, Daniel turned the scale at 400 pounds, but the brewer kept to his word and produced a pudding of equal weight.

GLOOSCAP, THE MYTHICAL
SUPERMAN OF MICMACS

What has been termed the most Aryan-like of any mythical character ever created by a savage mind was Glooscap of the Micmacs, a tribe of Indians, who inhabited the Maritime Provinces, a mythical supreme superhero who lived among them, but invisible. He never grew old and was immortal. He was unmarried and lived in a large wigwam with his lady friend, a grandmother who kept his house and was a servant. He controlled the forces of nature and was obeyed by the animals. His favorite residence was Cape Blomidon, in Minas Basin, which received the Indian name, Glooscapewick (Glooscap's Home).

Legend also associates him with the Chute Falls, on Roop's Brook, a few miles from Digby, where it is said, being pursued by enemies, he stooped and picked up a large handful of rocks and earth to throw at his pursuers, thus leaving the marks through which the brook flows, making the falls.

Another of the quaint stories of Glooscap, states the Tourist Bureau of the Canadian National Railways, has to do with the Reversing Falls, in Saint John, where occurs twice every twenty-four hours, the "battle of the tides." At low tide the water of the Saint John River flows into the harbor of Saint John, and at high tide the action is reversed, the waters of the harbor flowing into the river. Big Beaver was among the other animals and was warned by Glooscap to behave himself. Not heeding the warning, Glooscap decided to go after him, but Big Beaver fled to the mouth of the Saint John River and built a dam across it so high that the whole country was flooded for many miles, forming a huge lake. Glooscap continued to search for Big Beaver and when he arrived at Saint John, seeing the dam Big Beaver had constructed, he smote it with his mighty club, breaking through it, and so great was the rush of water that it carried a piece outside the harbor where it became deposited, forming an island (Part-Isle Island). After further search Glooscap captured Big Beaver and killed him.

Where the falls are situated the Saint John River narrows to a width of 250 feet, the limestone banks being walls nearly 100 feet high, and the bed of the river consists of sharp rocky ledges.

At flood tide a whirlpool forms in which floating objects are sometimes imprisoned for a long time. Back in 1635 a huge log was held in the whirlpool for a lengthy period. The Indians believed it was a devil and when not visible the devil was angry. When the log came into sight they offered tribute in the shape of beaver skins attached to an arrow and shot into the log. LaTour, a famous character of the period, tried at one time to remove the log by towing it with boats but could not do so.

Partridge Island, in Minas Basin,

(not the one previously referred to), off Parrsboro on the northern shore of the basin, figures largely in the many old legends centering around the name of Glooscap and affords an excellent location for the study of interesting native myths. Beautiful agates and other attractive trap minerals may be gathered along the neighboring shores.

Pope Plus has ordered a general pay cut for churchmen and church employees in the Vatican City of fifteen per cent., to take effect on January 1st.

Mrs. H. F. Williams spent the week end in Halifax.

Lie. Byron Manzer, of Acadia University, Wolfville, arrived on Saturday to spend his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Manzer, Ashmore.

Town Council Keeping Well Within Estimates is Report

At the December meeting of the Town Council, the mayor and councillors Morrell, Anderson, Aymar and Turnbull were present. Matters discussed were mostly of a routine nature. The report of the Superintendent of Streets and Water was read and adopted. A general conversation ensued re-keeping the streets open after snow storms, and it was thought very advisable for the chairman of the Streets committee to have this done. The proposed highway agreement between the Provincial government and the town was discussed. The mayor stated that he would personally take this matter up with the government on his visit to Halifax on January 28th.

A letter was read from the Board of Railway Commissioners asking what steps were being taken at the Mount Street crossing, and the clerk was directed to write a letter and state that "STOP" signals would be placed when he ground permitted.

The clerk congratulated the mayor and council on keeping so well within their estimates during the year. He expected to finish the year a little better than last year.

The monthly financial report, as tabled at the last meeting, was as follows:

Expenditures Particularized
	Estimate	Expended
School Account	$ 9,980.00	$ 9,975.00
Streets Account	4,887.00	4,014.00
Police Account	1,000.00	1,025.00
Fire Account	550.00	649.00
Water Account	2,500.00	1,739.00
Street Lighting	2,000.00	2,212.00
Salaries	1,735.00	1,468.00
General Interest	400.00	319.00
Town Hall	400.00	224.00
Board of Health	100.00	92.50
Municipal Joint Expenditure	4,635.00	2,000.00
Miscellaneous	11,462.00	5,143.00

The above figures are only up until the December meeting of the council. There will, in all probability, be several changes in these before the end of the year.

THE CHALLENGE OF 1934

The year 1933 is now another page in history. What would the accomplishment of our lives be during that year of influence, if it were left on record for the generation that is following in our footsteps.

"The spirit of life is battle," and outstanding achievements are marked by victories gained through struggles and even greater sacrifice at times. Livingstone sacrificed himself and life for Darkest Africa. Robert Fulton reaped the scorn of his own father, but conquered over wind, wave and tide, with his steamboat. But the greatest victory and challenge ever brought before us, is the challenge of the Christ, as facing Calvary's Cross he stirred his disciples with the words, "Arise, let us be going," facing death, as the grain of wheat that dies to itself that it may bring forth a greater harvest, now resulting in a new dispensation and civilization, temporal and spiritual salvation all that is good in man.

Never did a year bring a greater challenge to you and me than 1934 does to all. The hope of the world for right living conditions is not in statesmanship or in capital, but in Christ. Why not accept the challenge as the Apostle Paul, who put his experience into expression in these words: "I forget about the past, and press forward to the prize of the mark of my high calling in Christ Jesus, accepting the challenge of noble purpose and achievement, knowing it to bring its own reward." Arise! Pace 1934 in true manhood and womanhood. True to your inner self, you will prove true and real as an example, and also worthy of the calling of Christ.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours sincerely

Passengers Had

Exciting Trip

On Friday the last week of Guy Morehouse's cars, driven by Guy, Jr., who had taken an extra load of mail down earlier in the day, left East Ferry at 8 p.m. with passengers for Digby. From all accounts it was a most trip, the driver and male passengers doing considerable shovelling. After many trials and tribulations they reached Rossport at 2 o'clock Saturday morning. As the chains required a little adjusting they woke up Mr. and Mrs. Leslie MacKay, who took the passengers in, gave refreshments, and got them all thawed out. At 3 o'clock they again made a start but had only gone a short distance when the rear end of the car went out. Back again to Mr. MacKay's, where they were made as comfortable as possible, and where they stayed till morning. No air in sight they started to hike to Digby and had got almost to the Port Brook when Guy, Jr., with the bus, overtook them and brought them in, arriving here shortly after 12 noon.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH NOTES

Please take notice that the Christmas Cantata has been postponed until Sunday evening.

The Christmas Day services were well attended, and the collection amounted to $31. Some communicants were unable to get out on account of the bad weather; they can make their Christmas communion on Sunday, at 11 o'clock.

There are still some children unbaptized; parents are urged to bring them to the parish church, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

On Sunday evening the service will be of special interest; not only is the Christmas Cantata to be sung, but the members of King Solomon Lodge, A. F. and A. M., will attend in a body to commemorate St. John's Day.

The annual Christmas treat for the Sunday School children will take place in the parish hall on Thursday of next week.

J. T. Archibald, who, for the past fourteen years has been principal of the Dalhousie Medical School, Halifax, passed away at his home in that city, on Tuesday evening.

Digby Band says good-bye to 1933 in a grand Community Concert of fine music, in the Bijou Theatre, on Sunday night. Silver Collection at the door. Happy New Year!

Somewhat or other, these samples of old-time winters, such as we have been having the past few weeks do not "go over" very big. People's tastes in weather seem to be changing.

When a tobacco company advertised its cigarettes at 10 for 10c, 20 for 20c, and 50 for 50c, the Toronto Mail and Empire commented that, roughly speaking, they were a cent apiece.

The Community Concert to be given by the Digby Band in the theatre, at 8 o'clock on Sunday night, is something new in Digby, and should attract a full house. The program will be found in another column.

Chicago's four largest universities—Northwestern, Chicago, Loyola and DePaul—report a combined enrollment of 28,712 students this year, slightly larger than last. Northwestern has the largest figure, with 10,300.

Knitting has again become a fad among the ladies. They ply the needles at all pastimes, dances, theatre, on the trains and most everywhere except in church—and we would not be surprised to see them at it even there.

In December, 1859, the barque Adair, Glenora, master, of and for St. John, came ashore on White Cove, Digby Neck. No one on board. All hands perished. The barque Kingston, McLean, master, from St. John for Liverpool, ran ashore at Petite Passage in the same month. Three of her crew perished. The fishing schooner Barbara, a craft which attracted the attention of the entire shipping world a few years ago, because it increased speed without advancing operating costs, has been dismantled, reconstructed on transverse lines, and now plys between Hamburg and Liverpool as an ordinary freighter.

Our thanks are again due to K. T. Hughes and family, of Victoria, B. C., for a very generous parcel of real holly—beautifully berried and about as perfect as holly can be. Mr. Hughes has been sending these parcels to us for some years, and Christmas would hardly be the same without this beautiful plant. This year we were able to share with quite a number of friends, much to their enjoyment.

Rev. W. E. Hart, who sometime ago was ordained deacon in the Anglican priesthood in New Brunswick, was last week ordained to the priesthood by Right Rev. J. A. Richardson. Rev. He is a graduate of King's College, Halifax.

Another Heavy Storm, Tuesday

Tuesday night's snow, driven by high winds, again tied up the roads in and about Digby. Highways everywhere were blocked and made impassable for automobiles, or even teams. On Wednesday men were at work doing all they could to clear the roads.

It has been years since Digby has seen a more severe November and December, and for the past three weeks there has been very little traffic to and from town; cars have been known to take more than four hours to travel the ten miles between Digby and Barton.

The snow blockade, which began just at the beginning of the Christmas buying season, cost Digby merchants thousands of dollars. The town trade was the best it had been for several years, but the local merchants depend to a great extent on the out-of-town trade, and on account of the snow-blockaded roads very few shoppers were able to get into town.

The Digby Neck mails have also had a heavy go of it. During the Christmas season the mails over Petite Passage to the Islands were said to have been one-third larger than ever in the history of the community. On one trip 64 bags of mail were ferried over the passage to the island communities.

PAUL YATES REMEMBERED BY THE BAND BOYS

Paul Yates, director of the Digby Civic Band, was pleasantly surprised last Sunday afternoon, when the members of the band presented him with a combined floor lamp and smoker's set. When the director seized his baton for the opening practice he was greeted, not with the notes he expected, but with the strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." After this Milton Turnbull made the presentation, and at the same time expressed the gratitude of the band boys for the careful attention and fine tuition he had given them during the past year.

Mr. Yates expressed his pleasure with the gift and at the wonderful display of good fellowship. He hoped that they would spend many more years together.

Radio License

Covers Car Set.

Next year's radio receiving licenses, which issue on April 1st, will, in addition to authorizing the holder to operate a radio receiving set, in his domicile, also permit him to operate a set in his personal automobile without additional fee. This announcement was made at Ottawa on Wednesday night, by Hon. Alfred Durand, minister of marine. This does not mean that automobile sets will be entirely free from the license restrictions. The concession now granted will apply only to automobile sets owned by a party already holding a license for a set in his home.

Miss Edith Lynch, of Halifax, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. G. Lynch.

Russell Harvie, of Kentville, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harvie, at the Winchester Hotel.

Miss Lois Walker gave a delightful skating party to her friends, in the Victoria Rink, on Wednesday evening.

Clifford L. Beaton, of the Digby Customs office, is relieving at Bear River during the illness of J. L. War-Warren.

We are indeed indebted to B. L. Thauber of Johannesburg, South Africa, for a copy of the South African Annual for 1933. It is a superb publication, filled with interesting views of South Africa—views which tell us far more about that country than any amount of reading or any number of lectures. Our thanks are due Mr. Thauber also for several fine selections of South African stamps he has sent the editor at different times as he knows the editor is interested in stamp collecting. Thanks again, Mr. Thauber.

TAKE GOOD CARE OF THE TIME

Divisions of time are very largely arbitrary. True the years and months and days are founded on the periods of the activities of the earth and the moon. But time goes on in an unbroken whole, like a river which goes on and on, and never stops. There are days and months and years, but there are no pauses or changes in the stream of time.

Yet these divisions, though somewhat arbitrary, have their uses, and we could not well do without them; and these advantages are not connected with more convenient reckoning. They have a moral value. And as we stand at the end of one year and face the portals of another about to swing open to allow us to enter, we can well pause and make profitable reflection, to do the best we can with the time of the next year.

Take good care of the time in connection with our duties and responsibilities. They must not be evaded or slighted. We should not look upon them as irksome tasks but as opportunities to make our contribution to the world's welfare. It has been said that a gentleman is one who puts more into the world than he takes out of it. "Not by years, days, hours, but by the service rendered is our life measured."

Take good care of time in relation to conduct and character. We must face moral responsibility, and be exacting with ourselves according to the highest standards of life. The man who is careless in regard to the high moral requirements falls in wise use of his time and brings loss to the world. But the man who observes these principles, achieves the truest success and brings the greatest blessing.

Take care of time in relation to leisure. Leisure is not always idleness, but is time not used in the duties and tasks of life. "There is no doubt that each one of us ought to divide our leisure between relaxation, amusement, exercise, study, social contacts and service." There is no more important question in the modern world than the use of leisure. There is more responsibility in using leisure than in discharging the duties of life. How a man uses his leisure is the best index of his character and the greatest determining influence in making character.

At the beginning of another year we should let the past years help us to use the new one wisely. "Time is the stuff that life is made of." To invest it wisely is to discover the secret of living. "Wasting time is killing time; killing time is shortening life; to shorten one's life is suicide."

Ravens to Play Middleton Here

The Central Valley Hockey League will open their schedule this evening, with one game at Bridgetown, between Annapolis Royal and Bridgetown, and the other here, between Middleton and the Digby Ravens. The Ravens will meet their old rivals from Annapolis, on Tuesday night next.

Local fans are looking forward to tonight's game, and it is expected that a good crowd will be present. The line-up of the Ravens will be considerably changed, it is understood. The Courier has been informed that Hyslop, Mace and Raymond will not be with the team for this first game, and "Mun" Hutchinson is in Western Canada.

The probable line-up for the Ravens will be as follows:—Goal, El-dridge; Defence, Gerald Tupper and David Deley; Forwards—Sid Smith, "Buster" Walker, Raymond Winchester, Harold Hutchinson (brother of "Mun"), and "Billie" Walker. Just who will be in the forward line and who will be in the reserves is not known yet.

They are a fast bunch of boys, and "good" hockey—the kind which the Ravens have had the reputation for playing for the past ten years—is expected of them. Tupper is welcomed back on the team again after an absence of several years.

CHRISTMAS IN DIGBY

From all accounts Christmas Day was joyously observed in Digby. Old Santa Claus, thanks to the best hearted town folk, missed very few. The Kiwanis Club, through the co-operation of a number of Digby ladies, and with the able help of Town Clerk Boden, were responsible for distributing a large amount of Christmas cheer.

We are not exaggerating when we say that on Saturday hundreds of "kiddies" awaited the arrival of Santa Claus at the Digby Garage, where Capt. George Morrell had made arrangements to give each child a generous bag of candy and an orange.

Last evening the old gentleman visited the Grace United Sunday School and again distributed gifts and candy.

Kiwanians To Entertain Ladies at Luncheon.

Next week the regular luncheon of the Kiwanis Club will be held on board the Princess Helene, on Tuesday—Monday being New Year's Day and a public holiday. On this occasion the Kiwanians will entertain their ladies, and the officers for the year 1934 will be installed. A good programme, a jolly crowd and a "scrumptious" luncheon are to be expected.

WHY NOT LAUGH?

(A Contributed Editorial)

It used to be that floods of doubts and fears were added to this vale of tears just before the tourist season actually began; and now, the clock has gone backwards and long faces and sighs greeted Santa simply because there was not the usual amount of money in circulation.

All roads lead somewhere and the goal of a road of despondency is failure, ill health and unhappiness. From a business standpoint, it is poor advertising.

We will never encourage visitors to Digby or even encourage optimism among ourselves by affecting long faces and sighs about hard times.

For the New Year, why not laugh?

Of course some people have no sense of humour and they are very difficult to get along with; perhaps they give us pain. How much easier it is to live with people who possess it. It is well to laugh at a joke, but better to laugh without the joke.

The folks that carney Happy New Year when they are sad at heart—these are sunshine to our lives, our spiritual doctors. Then why not laugh?

Certain savages think it is undignified to laugh; the animal cannot laugh. If laughter be below man, it is certainly above beasts. A chattering fool is ridiculous, but then a solemn fool is much worse.

Our best friend of the New Year is the one who will cheer us, give us faith and confidence to go on hoping for better times. So then, for once in our lifetime, at least—let's all laugh!

WHAT A WASTE!

An old patriarchal looking man of my boyhood acquaintance said one day of his son, who had formed the habit of smoking quill industriously, "Foolish boy—putting away money in the air!" He had a droll way of speaking which eludes my unskilled pen. I think the son kept on smoking, but I have always thought of the words of the old man pathetically, and I have sometimes wondered in these years of depression if very many smokers have thought of cutting out their tobacco, as never a real necessity, and certainly a luxury, in these hard times.

An authority in the educational affairs of a Canadian province had a conference with the ratepayers of a certain school district about making some needed improvements in their school building. His recommendations were discussed. Estimates of cost seemed too great to seriously think of as they thought. Watching a chance in the quite informal conversation, he made some passing reference to the tobacco one of the men was using as he talked. Quite ingeniously he had this man, and another, and another, say how much tobacco was consumed in the year. Then he turned it into an argument for the school improvements. Out of their own lips he showed them that a half dozen of them were every year using in tobacco more than was needed to put their school in first class shape. And then from one of them came quite seriously, "But would you take from us our very life?" meaning the tobacco. Just so. Schools must go to wreck, churches may starve for lack of funds—but we must have our smoke! What a strange make-up we humans are! Some day we will all be wise enough to turn around and have a hearty, pathetic laugh at our old-time folly!

I read this in a reliable article: "In 1919 Canadian smokers consumed 600,000,000 cigarettes, and in 1922 the number was nearly four billions. At the price of one cent each, we spent $40,000,000 on an injurious luxury in a time of depression. That money would have bought $60 worth of clothing for 200,000 men and women each; $20 worth for 300,000 children; $150 worth of flour, sugar and milk for 100,000 homes; $150 worth of fuel and coal oil for 20,000 families; and paid rent of $200 for 20,000 families."

And Canadians have been foolish enough to puff away all this money in the air!

Suppose a young man smokes a 25-cent package of cigarettes a day, as many of them do. That means 91¢ a year. Suppose he, instead of smoking this, puts the money in the bank $1.95 a week. In five years he would have $500, and in twenty years, but he'll foolishly keep on smoking those cigarettes, and then some day perhaps he'll come up bold as you these, and ask the government for old age pension. And that is not the worst, but I must stop for today.

CLEMENTSPORT SCHOOL CLOSING

The closing exercises of the Clementsport school took place Thursday night, in Ely hall, before a crowded house. The setting was a festive one. The decorations were in keeping with the Christmas season. The various numbers on the programme were well presented. The pupils showed a poise and grace that spoke of the careful training of the teachers. Miss K. Dent and Miss B. Mullock. During the intermission home-made candy was sold. William Sanford, one of the trustees, acted as announcer. After the programme, a well-filled tree, presenting the gifts and candy to the delight of the children. The Rev. A. W. L. ## GOOD AND BLESSING FROM EXPERIENCE

To Get This Is the Great Problem of Living—We Must Learn Our Own Lessons

Sunday is the last day of the old year and naturally it affects our thoughts. What has the year brought to us? What have we given it to keep? If we had to live it over again, would we live it differently? What has the year taught us? What lessons are we going to carry over into our next year's life?

The problem of living is to get good and blessing out of every experience. You had sorrow. Did you grow wiser? Did it make you gentler, more patient, more compassionate, more mindful of others? Did it bring you nearer to God? Or had you temptation? Did your temptation make you stronger as you resisted it and overcame the tempter?

The Psalmist tells us the true way of numbering our days: "Teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." That is, we are so to live that we shall get some new wisdom out of each day to carry on with us. Life's lessons cannot all be learned from books. For example, patience: you can get patience only by long practice of the lesson in life's experiences. Or take gentleness: you can read all about it but that will not make you gentle. We talk of learning from the experiences of others. After all, the great lessons of life we must learn for ourselves, by our own failings, stumbling and trying, by our own mistakes.

Progress is the law of true living. We cannot leave or forget the sorrow which the year brought; it is too sacred, but the memory should stay in our heart as a benediction, sweetening our life. If we have numbered our days aright, the old experiences will tell on our future years and will make them richer, sweeter, purer, full of life and good.

A. E. Gabriel

THE NEW YEAR

Turning the leaf that the New Year brings.

To the worn out book of life, Is turning your back on a tired past. With its fear and distress and strife. Turning the leaf that the New Year brings.

To brightness and joy and laughter. But it isn't the turning that counts so much, As what comes after.

It's writing that counts in the book of life, It's the message that you pen each day— It's whether the page be rosy-hued, Or touched with a sullen grey. It's what we may each of us humbly write.

And what we please God, may learn; What really counts, as the New Year dawns, Is what comes after the turn.

—Margaret E. Sangster

A minister in a small western town surprised his audience one Sunday by reading the following notice from the pulpit:

"The regular session of the Donkey Club will be held as usual after the service. Members will line up as usual just outside the door, make remarks and stare at the ladies who pass, as is their custom."

The club didn't meet that Sunday.

The Charm

of woman is in her femininity, not her manliness.
—of truth is always in its simplicity;
—of nature is in the fact that it is unspiced;
—of music is in its power to shut out certain realities;
—of children is in their honesty;
—of humor is in its harmlessness;
—of faith is in its sincerity.

Between Ourselves

I am the New Year that comes to you fresh and untainted; Fresh from the hand of God; Each day a precious pearl to you is given.

That you must string upon the silver thread of Life. Once strung can never be unthreaded but stars.

An undying record of your faith and skill. Each golden minute link you then weld into the chain of hours That is no stronger than its weakest link.

Into your hands is given all the wealth and power. To make your life just what you will. I give you, free and untainted, twelve glorious months.

Of soothing rain and sunshine golden; The days for work and rest, the nights for peaceful slumber. All that I have I give with love unspoken.

All that I ask—you keep the faith unbroken! This is the second New Year's "Between ourselves" I have written since I started this column a little more than a year ago. It has been some little time since I "got up in the air" about anything. Sometimes I feel that the words I use to say "next to nothing" the less apt I am to find myself in "hot water". A friend once said to me, "any newspaper man who never gets himself in 'hot water' should find himself another job."

That may be more truth than poetry. In just a few days more we will bid adieu to our old friend, 1933, and start off on our adventures with the New Year, 1934. But there will be no break, 1933 will not die; it will live in our memories, and be chronicled in the pages of history. Time is eternal; it never began nor will it ever end.

But what will we do with 1934—or rather, what will 1934 do with us? The New Year brings us an invitation to begin anew—to resolve to do better and to keep faith with ourselves and our fellowmen. Let our New Year's prayer be, "Lord, help me this day to begin."

We are all waiting to see the first hockey match of the season at Victoria Rink this evening, when the Digby Ravens will meet the boys from Middleton. We understand that there has been some "new blood" put into the local team and we are anxious to see the boys in action. We feel sure that there will be some real action at that. During the past ten years the Digby Ravens hockey club has done a lot to put the old town on the map during the winter months, and they deserve our support.

There are some people who are anxiously awaiting the town report for 1933. That is only natural; every citizen should be anxious to know the financial situation of the town, and we believe that this report will be ready in the printers within a week or so. At our friends who live in the municipality are still waiting for the 2 municipal report. How come? We don't know—we have been as 1 time and time again why it was published as usual in the Courier, and there was nothing more for us to do than to pass the buck to the municipal council, but passing the buck doesn't tell the municipal ratepayers where the tax money goes—and how much of it there is to spend. These ratepayers have a perfect right to know this, and should demand, at the coming January session, that a full report of last year's business and this, be published as a matter of business.

With best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

- 4—The training that it gives in Art, in Music, in Plain and Fancy Sewing, in Light Domestic Duties.
- 5—Its exceptionally low rates, notwithstanding the fact that the board is of very good quality.
- 6—Its accessibility, not only to pupils from the Maritime Provinces, but also to students from Boston, New York and vicinity, it being only an hour's journey from Yarmouth, the terminus of the boats from those cities.
- 7—Its delightful and healthful situation, removed from the distractions of town life, which makes it an ideal spot for study.
- 8—The fact that it is an examination station, which permits its pupils to write the provincial examinations in familiar surroundings—a circumstance which tends to lessen feelings of nervousness evoked by new situations.

Meteor Torment Over

Grave of O'Leary Farmer

What is believed to be the world's strangest tombstone is on a grave in Long View cemetery at New Athens village south of Cadiz, Ohio.

This tombstone is a huge meteor and it reposes at the foot of the last figure of Keelin Holmes, who before he died stipulated that the visitor from the stars be so placed.

Years ago, the story runs, Mr. Holmes was sitting in his back yard one evening when he heard a tremendous swishing noise and saw a blinding flash across the sky. He noticed a terrific heat, as did his neighbors. There then was a crash at the far end of his farm.

He went out and found a hole in the ground about 15 feet across. Two weeks later he dug out the meteor. Then he decided to make a grave marker of it for himself. He found the meteor to be composed of granite and iron, and he labored over it a number of years.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Consistence Money

"The chancellor of the exchequer in Great Britain acknowledges the receipt of £2,876 from 'Consistence.'"

This note appeared in the "Personal" column of the newspapers recently. In a government office, so outside the usual channels of the officialdom that few civil servants are aware of its existence, is the department of guinea consensences. "Consistence money" that finds its way to this department comes from a few shillings to thousands of pounds. Few members of the public realize that all "consistence money," no matter how small the sum, must be acknowledged. As an official of the department said, "It is an encouragement to the prodigal who has paid, and a reproach to those who haven't."

"Rogue Spawn" of the Pike

An English paper recently printed a communication dealing with the "myriads" appearance of pike in a pond.

The pond in question had been drained. Other cases came to light. In one instance a large lake was drained and scraped and dressed with quicklime to kill any remaining pike spawn.

The lake was stocked with salmon trout; but now it is full of pike spawn, and there are no trout. This correspondent places this strange recurrence of "rogue" spawn in the same class as weeds in cultivated gardens. "To say there is no pike spawn in a lake is like a gardener saying there are no weeds in his garden when it is freshly dug over," he adds, "the first warm days give the lie to his statement."

Beautiful English Village

The teacher of the village school in Shantlin in the Isle of Wight, is ninety miles from London, and right beside you when you land at Southampton. Its "Old Village" is known for its beauty, wherever English beauty is known. Few can equal and extol its loveliness. Longfellow came and wrote a poem about it. Its one village street of beautiful thatched cottages covered with climbing vines, and its beautiful garden, friends send you on postcards from England, for there is nothing else quite like it. It looks too pretty to be true, and it is hard to believe you have seen anything as lovely after you have left.

Idea Was Emerson's

Emerson said that "if a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will find him out."

The Reverend Mr. F. E. Bishop had in mind the following lines from Emerson, but, having no copy of Emerson handy at the time, he quoted as above: "If a man has good eyes, or good ears, or a good nose, or can make better chairs, or knives, or crucibles or church organs than anybody else, you will find a hard, hard-beaten road to this house, though it be in the woods."

Barthold's Famous Statue

The sculptor, Bartholdi, has left a record about the execution of the Statue of Liberty. He says that first a statue which measured from head to foot 23 metres and in its entirety, 255 metres, was executed.

The statue was then reduced to the right proportions and then reproduced with four times as large by the ordinary process. The model which was the result of this work measured about 15 metres in total height. There were divided into a large number of sections, destined to be reproduced separately at four times their size. The sections were packed and shipped to New York, where they were assembled.

Mendelian Law Long Known

The famous Mendelian law on which rests the modern science of inheritance was known in Japan as far back as in the year 1300. Dr. Louis Haringham, of the University of Paris, returned from a visit to Japan, has described an old screen representing a series of plants which follow some extent Mendel's law.

There are five red and white and five mixed or hybrid on the screen. Blended offspring of a white and a red poppy might produce five white, five red and ten mixed, according to present-day science. So the ancient Japanese were not quite accurate, they had the main idea.

Harry Anthony entertained the men's bridge club on Tuesday evening.

THE LIFE OF PAUL
 Golden Text: "I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith."—2 Timothy 4:7.
 Lesson Passage:—Philippians 3:11-14.
 "Sturdy of limb, with bounding heart,
 Eager to play the hero's part,
 Grant to us each that greater wealth,
 An undefeited and loyal heart,
 God of our youth, be thou our might,
 To do the right."

An International, 1-3
 This is a review lesson upon the life of Paul seeking to sum up the qualities which made him great. Because of birth and experience, Paul had a broad international outlook. By blood he was a Jew. His native city was Greek. He held Roman citizenship, and travelled in many different countries. This experience broadened him and delivered him from Pharisaic exclusiveness. The religious nature of Paul had been stirred by worship in the temple at Jerusalem. He had thrilled with the glory of Athens, as he viewed the buildings and statues there. Towards the end of his life he beheld the imperious city of Rome. Travelling along the Roman roads, speaking in Aramaic in Jewish synagogues, writing his letters in Greek, he felt the unity of humanity, and realized that all mankind formed one family. His personal experience was strengthened by his knowledge of the life of Christ. He knew that the heart of Christ held love for Gentile as well as Jew.

strengthened Paul's Jewish enthusiasm. The Jews of the Dispersion were sometimes more faithful than the Jews living in Jerusalem. Paul was named after Saul, the first king of Israel, who had belonged to the tribe of Benjamin, and he was brought up as a Pharisee. He studied in Tarsus and he was sent to Jerusalem to finish his education under the great teacher, Gamaliel. He developed such Pharisaic earnestness that he became a public persecutor of the Christians. Paul's nature was so intense that he would have been chosen, but his training fitted him to be a religious leader. He was thoroughly imbued with Jewish laws and traditions, and he could not help imbibing some of the learning of the Romans and Greeks. The influences of home, school and church all combined to make him give first place to the service of God.

A Mystic, 8-11
 Some people fail to understand Paul because his rapturous religious mood is so intense and beyond them. At times he was ecstatic with joy. He could be caught up into the third heavens. Emotion overpowered him at times until he scarcely knew whether he was in the body or out of the body. Occasionally his language mounts up and loses itself in passionate outpouring of praise to Christ. Against the background of the law he saw the love and sacrifice of Jesus Christ. Instead of a religion of fear, he had entered into a religion of hope. A sense of eternity had been made real to him, and he yearned to attain unto the resurrection life. Paul shared the power of Christ's resurrection and the fellowship of his sufferings. He could speak of being crucified with Christ, and he lived because he had surrendered fully to Christ. It was by dying to self that he had attained the abundant Christian life. How surprised at themselves conventional Christians would be if they could experience one quarter of Paul's gladness and self-surrender by a full surrender to the will of Christ.

A Spiritual Hero, 18-14

Paul is a hero whichever way you take him—as a scholar, a traveller, a thinker, a writer, a friend, a Christian. Yet he was humble and could speak of himself as the chief of sinners. Instead of boasting of his attainments, he could see how much farther he had to go. He sought to forget the past, and look forth to the brighter future. Like John the Baptist he was ready to decrease if only Christ's glory might increase. Paul's life was purposeful and his Christian purpose strengthened year by year, reaching a climax as he pressed toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ. It is a moral tonic to study the life and letters of Paul and to catch the virility of his strong spirit. If we wish to be better Christians, the example of Paul has much to teach us. Paul lost nearly everything through his Christian faith—he lost home, wealth, friends, position, comfort, life—but he did win Christ. For this great gain he was ready to suffer the loss of all lesser things.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—How many men have had greater influence than Paul?
- 2.—Did persecution weaken or strengthen Paul?
- 3.—What did Paul owe to his Hebrew faith?
- 4.—What did Paul owe to his Christian experience?
- 5.—Why did Paul speak so much about the resurrection?
- 6.—What kept Paul from becoming self-satisfied?

In road district 114 it took three days shovelling to make the road passable. Miss Auxilia Harrington was rushed Friday to the Yarmouth Hospital where she underwent an operation. The latest reports are that she is progressing favorably.

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile — Without Calomel
 You are "feeling bad" simply because your liver isn't working. It's daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. Digestion and elimination depend on both bile secreted, and bile removed. If you are "feeling bad" it's a liver ailment. Something that goes farther than salts, mineral water, laxatives, and other "bowel stimulants" which only move the bowels—ignoring the real cause.
 "Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. Purely vegetable, and free of all harmful substances. Ask for them by name. Refuse substitutes. See at all druggists."

NEARLY PERFECT
 In these days, when so much fault is being found with the world in which we live, it is quite a relief to note that, in spite of social and economic unrest, there is one point upon which we can agree, something which can be described as "nearly perfect."
 There is one food which comes close to perfection, and that is milk. As the child grows, his diet is elaborated until he eats the same as the rest of the family, but milk should be the backbone of his diet all through his years of growth, when he is building the body which must last him throughout life.

The child requires a mixed diet of milk, cereals and potatoes, eggs, a little meat and fresh vegetables, salads and fruits. He needs milk because milk provides the calcium that is required to build strong bones and teeth. He needs milk, because it furnishes vitamins which regulate the growth and development of the body. Added to this, milk is a source of practically all the food elements which are essential to the body.

The normal healthy child who has been properly trained likes to eat. There is something wrong with a child who does not enjoy his meals or who has to be coaxed to eat. There are several causes for poor appetites. Biting between meals, particularly candy, means that the child will have no appetite for regular meals. The tired or excited child is not interested in food. The child who has been shut indoors, with no opportunity to play or to get his lungs filled with fresh air, does not eat well.

Many children have what appears to be a poor appetite, but this is, in reality, a bad habit or a wrong attitude towards food. The parents of such children are often those who are over-anxious about their child. His failure to eat gives him a great deal of attention, while his parents fuss over him and talk about him or even threaten him.

Every child should have at least one pint of milk a day. Milk can be served in many different ways as part of the meal. Variety in the preparation of foods, prevents a monotonous diet. Milk can be used in various hot or cold drinks, and in soups. There is an endless variety of custards. Milk goes into junkies, rice puddings and ice creams. Meals which are based on milk, are healthy and they can be made most appealing.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Marriages

Barteaux-Mullen
 A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mullen, Easton, on the evening of December 20th, when their daughter, Violetta Evelyn, became the bride of Ernest Wylie Barteaux, of Mount Hanley, Annapolis County. The wedding ceremony was performed by the bride's cousin, the Rev. H. C. Mullen, of Havelock, in the presence of a number of the near relatives of the bride, and a few invited guests. The bride surely looked charming in a dress of white satin and radium lace. She wore the conventional veil with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of carnations and rose buds. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Laura Mullen, while Earle H. Mullen, her youngest brother, acted as best man. The newly married couple will spend the Christmas holidays at the bride's home, after which they will take up their permanent residence at Mount Hanley, where the groom is engaged in farming. The sincere good wishes of a large circle of appreciative friends will follow the young couple in their future home.

Could Not Rest For Sore Back

Nova Scotia Lady Got Complete Relief From Dadd's

Mrs. Spears Recommends Dadd's for Sore Back and Bladder Trouble

Sheet Harbor Passage, Dec. 25.—(Special)—"I had a very bad back, could hardly lie in bed especially in the morning," writes Mrs. Gordon Spears, of this place. "There is no knowing what I suffered. I also had bladder trouble and was attended by two different doctors but got little or no relief. I gave Dadd's Kidney Pills a trial and six boxes completely relieved me. The rest of our family also use your Dadd's Kidney Pills."

Even in good health many a wife finds that looking after a home is quite a task. How unfortunate then is the woman whose household duties become a double burden, due to sickness.

Such was the condition that confronted Mrs. Spears. She had the good sense, however, to be guided by the experience of others and took Dadd's Kidney Pills which soon restored her to perfect health.

Mrs. O. C. Jones returned to Kentville on Wednesday. Mrs. Jones recently underwent an operation at the Victoria General Hospital, Halifax, and is making a very satisfactory recovery.

Miss E. MacWhinnie, vice-principal of the Digby Academy, is spending her vacation in Port Wade.

Miss Ina O'Brien, of the Digby school staff, is spending her holidays at her home in Noel, Hants County.

A LONG, COLD WINTER

Now the astronomers at McGill University in Montreal are forecasting a long, cold winter. Their prediction is based upon the fact that the period of sun spots, of the last four or five years, has come to an end.

Studying their charts and graphs, the astronomers find that this month, or early next, will see the end of the numerous sun spots, for the time being, there is a lessening of radiation from the sun for it has been found that the greatest radiation takes place during the maximum of sun spot activity.

Weather, the McGill astronomers point out, is directly dependent on radiation from the sun. Until a new cycle of sun spots comes into prominence there should be comparatively steady weather. The cycle, it is believed, has changed from comparative mild but highly variable winters to colder but more constant winters.

This forecast will be followed with interest but the weather cannot be much more disagreeable than it has been since early in November.

Forrest Eisner is a patient in the Digby General Hospital. Yesterday we were told he seemed to be making satisfactory progress.

Max Piggott, freight agent at the D. A. R. station, spent Christmas with his father, E. S. Piggott, Bridgetown.

Stanley MacGee, of the Bank of Nova Scotia staff, spent the Christmas vacation at his home in Bridgetown.

OLD ENGLISH CUSTOMS

Burning of the Yulelog an Impressive Rite in European Days.

In many an old British mansion, it was customary to light tall candles on Christmas Eve and then a large log was rolled onto the hearth, called the Yulelog. This log was so large that it required the strength of several men to roll it into place. The log was cut from a tree felled at mid-night; and was to be placed on the hearth during midnight mass on Christmas Eve, and was to be lighted by the head of the family. A piece of this burning wood was to be laid aside to light the year's year's fire, while at the same time, it would protect the household during the coming year.

In some sections of Germany a piece of this charred wood was placed under the bed to avert the much-dreaded lightning stroke. The burning of the yulelog in each household seems to have been a survival of the adoration once offered to the sun at the winter solstice.

Holly, with its brilliant red berries and rich green leaves, is an accepted Christmas decoration, not just because it is an attractive and cheerful plant, but because in the early days it was thought to be "hateful to witches" and therefore offered protection against them.

Later it was used as a reminder of the crown of thorns Christ wore, the berries representing the blood He shed. The superstition then grew that if one could obtain a piece of holly that had been used in a church it would bring good luck all year and would protect against lightning.

Pie That Found Favor

With Marcus Aurelius

Though not much success attended the attempt to save Caligula's galleys from the mud in which they remained, the bottom of Lake Nemi, a more presentable and equally authentic fragment of imperial Rome has been seen at Budapest. The recipe for a game pie, which is said to have been a favorite of the Emperors Hadrian and Marcus Aurelius, was recently discovered among some Roman records, and Reuter tells us that a pie has been prepared according to these instructions and served at an hotel in Budapest.

With Marcus Aurelius high thinking seems to have been linked with comparatively plain living. The recipe for the game pie, however, by instructing the cook to take (in English weights) a pound and a half of wild bear meat, the flesh of a pheasant, and the legs of a sucking pig, Ox tongue, hen, doves, and peppers are other ingredients, and the whole structure was held together with five parts of stock "clarified with eggshells and strengthened with gelatine" and then decorated with trifles.

It seems a curious thing that it should be possible to prepare and eat today such a pie as might have been laid before the Antonines. The galleys go, the pictures crumble, the statues are shattered. But when the recipe is rediscovered, the pie emerges none the worse for some 1,500 years of history.—Manchester Guardian.

History of "Jazz"

Strictly speaking there was no jazz music before the World War. At least, it was not known by that name. The word jazz was in use, however, in New Orleans, where its origin has been traced, perhaps twenty years before the end of the Nineteenth century. But it was used in the verb form and applied to a rudimentary syncopated type of music as a cue to speed it up, or to enliven it. Some years later orchestras on the west coast began developing this type of music, and in 1914 a complete jazz orchestra composed of two saxophones, cornet, trombone, violin, banjo, piano and drums, played at Los Angeles. A year later this music gained popularity in Chicago and a tenorist and orchestra-leader there named Bert Kelly made an adjective out of jazz and called his own orchestra Bert Kelly's Jazz band. This appears to be the first use of the term "jazz band."

Famous Negro Physicians

The first negro physician of any standing in this country, of whom there is record was James Derham, also a slave in Philadelphia, 1767. He was taught by his master to compound medicines and attained such skill that he was sold to another doctor, who used him as an assistant. He was enabled to purchase his freedom and moved to New Orleans, where he built up a lucrative practice. The celebrated physician, Dr. Benjamin Rush, published an account of Derham and gave high praise to his skill. The first accredited physician was Dr. John V. Le Grange, who became a member of the Medical Association of Massachusetts in 1854.

We employ a competent funeral director, soliciting personal services, and our service is of the highest transportation and funeral arrangements from any place.

"A HAPPY NEW YEAR"

I wonder who was the first to speak this wish for his friend. Whoever he was, he felt that happiness was something he not only wanted for himself, but for others, too. We all desire it, and we all are seeking it in one way or another. "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," these, says the Declaration of Independence, are the "inalienable rights" with which all men are endowed by the Creator. We all are seeking it but the trouble is many are seeking it in the wrong ways. Happiness is not found in great possessions. Edwin Markham teaches this in a delightful little poem, "The Shoes of Happiness." The Sultan is sick—sick at heart—and a woman from his harem tells that the only way he can be cured is by wearing the shoes of a happy man. High and low, far and near, the search is made, till at last the happy man is found.

"Ho! I cried Hail! I am seeking one Whose days are all in a brightness run!"

"Then I am he, for I have no lands. Nor have any gold to crook my hands. Favour, nor fortune nor fame have I. And I only ask for a road and a sky—These and the pipe of a willow tree To whisper this music out of me."

"Out into the field the Vixen ran. Your shoes then quick, for the great Allah—Allah, but you are the man!"

Sultan—

Quick, and all fortunes are yours to choose!"

"Yes, mighty Vixen . . . but I have no shoes!"

Happiness lies in simple things. Hear what Ruskin says: "To watch the corn grow, or the blossoms set; to draw hard breath over the ploughshare or the spade; to read, to think to love, to pray, are the things that make men happy." Loyola-George once asked Lord Riddell the secret of happiness. He replied: "There are four things—health, money, hard work and a variety of work." Perhaps so, but the man that had no shoes managed to be happy with very little money. Faith in God and faith and love towards our fellow-men—these are signposts on the road to happiness. Henry Drummond says, "Happiness is a great love and much serving," and he was right. "We have no more right to consume happiness without producing it," says Bernard Shaw, "than we have to consume wealth without producing it." You will find a great deal of happiness in seeking to make others wish, ever new, "A Happy New Year to You All!"

E. W. Forbes

Presence of Mind Saves Boy's Life

Yesterday's Halifax Chronicle gave an account of how the remarkable presence of mind of Lealand Lovelace, Kentville plumber, saved the life of seven-year-old Jimmie Graves. The young lad with his older brother John, was going coasting, and crawled under a freight train which was standing on the Cornwallis Street crossing in that town. The older boy, not thorough safely, while the younger lad was still under the cars, when the train commenced to move. Lovelace, who was at the crossing, ran down the track and ordered the boy to keep his body pressed to the ground and remain motionless. As the last car passed over him, the boy stood up, and without brushing himself off, shouted, "I'm not hurt!" and dragging his little sled behind him disappeared down the street.

New Year's Eve Community Concert

The Digby Civic Band will give a Community Concert in the theatre, on New Year's eve—next Sunday night—after church, beginning about 8:30 o'clock. Similar Sunday night concerts have been given monthly during the winter for several years past, by the band at Yarmouth, and the theatre was usually filled to capacity. The expenses, which are rather heavy, have been defrayed by taking a collection at the door. It is called a Silver Collection, and pennies are taboo, though paper money is often found in the basket.

Next Sunday's concert is an experiment in Digby. If it meets the approval of the public, it may be followed by a Silver Collection. Director Yates has prepared a splendid program of interesting band music, including some of the best selections from the recent birthday concert, with others to be played for the first time in Digby, and composed by such well known writers as R. B. Hall, K. L. King, A. M. Laurens, Ed. Chennette, Fred Jewell, C. L. Barnhouse, Sir Arthur Sullivan, and others.

One of the most enjoyable features, however, will be the hymn singing, in which the entire audience is expected to join heartily. Male voices and the band will lead the singing, and all church choir members are urged to be present and encourage the more timid singers who may be near them. All patrons are asked to bring the words of the hymns on the program—the first two verses only will be used. The concert will not begin until all church goers have ample time to reach the theatre, and will close in plenty of time for the regular Watch-Night services. The program follows:

Part I

Singing—"Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow"

Overture—"The Flowers"

Serenade—"Nightfall"

Singing—"O Come All Ye Faithful"

March—"The Snow World"

Trombone Solo—"The Lost Chord"

Sacred March—"Refuge"

Part II

Singing—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name"

Romantic—"Alpine Sunset"

Singing—"Last Verses 'Rock of Ages' followed by an Andante Religioso—"The Wayside Chapel"

Extravaganza—"Trombone Troubles"

"A Symphonic Serenade"

Singing—"Come Thou Almighty King"
