The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of St. Mary's Bay. This laid out from the water's edge, partly on level ground and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having with an eastern aspect a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth of that name. It was settled by Loyalists from New York in 1763, the most of whom went early to farms, or, moving to other countries, left the whole

There was a taste of trying to sell job printing outside the plant. Work was a little slack one early fall day and so "Mac" said to me, "how about trying your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards?" I tried it, made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular (small) town, spent much time and got an order, but...

Loss of the schooner "W. Coombs" is a tragedy. The schooner, of Jamaica, was wrecked on the ship struck the rocks in Cuba Bay some 10 miles from the shore, and was carrying a cargo of iron. All the crew were rescued, but the vessel was shipped. The schooner was estimated at $10,000.

Food Cost Soaring

Food costs are mounting in Nova Scotia, the Legislature was told by Minister of Health, Dr. Ross, recently. ## Tax Rate Remains at 4.20

On motion of Councillor F. L. Anderson, seconded by Councillor H. M. Turnbull, it was moved at Monday night's meeting of the Digby Town Council, that the tax rate for the year 1936 stand at 4.20 with 120 outside school rates. The rate was subject to the usual prompt payment discount of 2 1/2 per cent.

Before the rate was set the Council listened to an appeal from J. M. Watts and A. L. Johnson, secretary and agent of the Children's Aid Society, asking the society be considered with a grant. W. J. N. Wyke also addressed the Council with the request that the amount of $200 added to his assessment by the appeal voted on a transfer from the assessment of Mrs. Annie Jefferson, be taken off. After listening at his case the council voted that Mr. Wyke's assessment be reduced by $100.

A letter from the Digby Board of Trade was also read, which requested the Council to give the Board a sum of $125 for the purpose of making additions to the bathing houses at the Macquette, and for cleaning up the beach. This was also considered, and a sum of $100 voted, with the understanding that the beach would be cleaned by the streets department.

Estimates for the year show a sum of $37,621 needed in 1936. From this the estimated income of $3,140 was deducted, leaving a balance of $34,481 to be assessed. Real property was valued at $589,115, and the total assessment $169,865. Exemptions amounted to $22,150, making a total of $147,735.

The Council adopted the resolutions from the Town of New Glasgow in reference to the Nova Scotia Liquor Control Act and the licensing of travelling shows. These resolutions were drafted to restore some of the revenue formerly enjoyed by the incorporated towns and now collected by the government.

An application from the Salvation Army to hold their annual Self Denial Day on the 30th of May, was granted.

Councillors Aymer, Morrell and Solows were appointed a committee to meet with committees from the Municipalities of Digby and Clare for the purpose of making arrangements for the Nova Scotia Union of Municipalities Convention to be held at Digby in September.

Residents of Mount Pleasant, who use town water, and pay outside school tax petitioned the Town Council to install a fire hydrant near the top of the Ravine Hill. The matter was left in the hands of the committee. It was intimated that the residents of this village will purchase their own hose and how reel if the hydrant is installed.

Appropriates Money

A despatch from Kentville, which appeared in the Halifax Herald of Saturday, stated that an expenditure of $203,000 for new and renewal construction on the D. A. R. had been approved. The total appropriated amounts to $220,000 to which $83,211 unexpended last year is added.

One of the items listed are $16,000 for bridge reinforcements, which is taken as an indication that a move is underway to provide bigger and more powerful locomotives than those now in use, and also, to revive the old rumormongers of a car ferry between Digby and Saint John, thus more closely linking the C. P. R. from Halifax to Vancouver.

Major items on the list of projects are: 1—Purchase and partial treatment of track bed, $17,000. 2—Bridge reinforcements, $16,000. 3—New machinery for Kentville shops and installation, and improvement of shop power, $11,000. 4—To cover electric rail welding operations for reconstruction and prolonging life of road, $8,000. 5—Advertising, $11,000. 6—For purchase of steel plates, $5,000. 7—Construction of new trestle work to provide more adequate outlets for flood waters, $2,900. 8—To equip six locomotives with water sprinkling devices to alleviate the dust nuisance along the tracks, this providing improved service for patrons, $1,200. 9—A large amount for new heavy rails (no sum stated).

THE VINDICATION OF TRUTH

Very often one asks why it is that there are so many injustices in this world; so much strife when peace would be better; why the innocent must suffer so much and the guilty as parents go free and prosper. One says he does the best, he can; but is misunderstood, lied about. He does his duty, while others shirk. Wrongs go unrighted, there is no redress, truth is on the scaffold, and wrong is on the throne.

The wisest of our world will say, "I do not know" to most of these questions. We are living in an imperfect world. Providence so decrees. The work is made up of humanity, and "to err is human." There will always be injustice in the world, quarrels, disputes, dissensions; ruin, wrecks and automobile crashes; crime and sin in one form or another. We may wish all of this were not true, but wishing it will not make the world over.

As a matter of fact, we spend too much time thinking about the imperfections of our world and too little tackling the big tasks of life that need to be done.

"There is a divinity which shapes our ends," as the poet has said. Divine influences, or call them what you will, are ever at work in our lives. Sometimes we are conscious of these forces; more often we are not. It takes but a few weeks for some seeds to germinate, and several seasons for others. So with the constructive work of life. The best work requires years, and meanwhile there are all kinds of complications to block our path and thwart our efforts. But what of it?

It is a long road that has no turn. The rogue may get into public office and have his way for a while. The demagogue may ride high for a time. But this sort of thing is short-lived. Right will have its way in time because the world is built upon that principle.

The quack physician may fool the crowd for a time, but people will wake up when they see that he is burying more of his patients than he is curing. The professional liar will incriminate social exile simply because into himself and send himself into output does violence to truth. He will lie when the truth will fit better, and, lying, reaps his own harvest.

The man who follows the even keel, does his best, ignores bitter censure and negative heel-snapping, and lets his own good work have its way is the man who will win. A multitude of complications will be ironed out if we leave them alone. We should strive for the best instead of trying to fight the worst. Error dies among her worshippers, if we leave her alone.

There is nothing so fine as an honorable life. There is nothing so triumphant as one's best work.

TO LOCATE EASTER

"Thirty days hath September," Every person can remember; But to know when Easter comes Puzzles even scholars, some.

When March the twenty-first is past, Just watch the silvery moon; And when you see it full and round Know Easter'll be here soon.

After the moon has reached its full, Then Easter will be here; The very Sunday after, In each and every year.

And if it happens on Sunday The moon should be at its height; The Sunday following the next Will be the Easter bright.

THOSE EMPTY FRONT SEATS

Probably remarks an exchange, there will be no answer to the question, but it should be asked: "Why do people prefer to sit in the back seats at church?" As a rule the front seats are empty. Unless explain that a good many people ask to be shown to a seat "not too far up," or "some place near the back."

That keeps a great wide space up in front between the preacher and his people, and that in itself is sufficient to dull the fire in the heart of any man. The man in the pulpit must feel at times as though he would like to come down and stand on a stool in front of the congregation where he could be close to them. He must at times grow weary of the isolation to which the backseat custom has doomed him. If he has some fire and brimstone in his message then it will have chance to weaken before it reaches the occupied pews.

If a dozen or twenty people in any church went up and sat in the deserted front seats we believe the minister would at once begin to preach better sermons.

BRITAIN'S WONDERFUL HUGE GRAVING DOCK

Southampton's huge graving dock, the longest in the world, was prepared for the entrance of the Canada-White Star superliner Queen Mary, which is now being groomed for her sea trials.

The graving dock, named for King George V, resembles a lock in the Panama Canal. It is built into the land and has an opening into Southampton Water. Of solid concrete it extends landward 1,200 feet. It is 135 feet wide when filled with water has a depth of over 45 feet. The Queen Mary rode into this water and as the tide ran out she settled on the bottom, being held in a cradle. When the tide reached its lowest ebb the dock was closed and the balance of the water pumped out. This accomplished, the "dock" becomes a dry dock. Here the hull of the Queen Mary is being painted and she will be completed in every way for her sea trials. So snugly did she fit in her dry berth that only a few props were needed to hold her in place.

The King George V Graving Dock was opened in July, 1933, and was built primarily to accommodate the new Queen Mary, which has ample room, the dock being capable of accommodating a ship of 100,000 tons. The construction of the new graving dock involved first the excavation of about 2,000,000 tons of earth, and then the laying down of a floor 25 feet thick in the centre and 20 feet at the sides, on which walks with buttresses 200 feet apart to prevent the whole series of vessels touching the actual walls, were built. All this required 50,000 tons of concrete.

The steel caisson or gate of the dock, is 138 feet long, 58 feet high and 29 feet wide and weighs 1,800 tons. To seal the caisson to the outer and leave the dock caisson which is a reverse at right angles to the length of the dock.

The dock has a capacity of 55,000,000 gallons of water at the high spring tides. After a vessel has entered it, it can be made "dry" in about four hours.

STYLISH MEN

There are few more optimistic groups than the men's clothing designers. They have been saying for years that men were about to think about clothes and go in for bright colors and other alleged reforms.

The other day the International Association of Clothing Designers, in its 52nd semi-annual meeting, repeated the familiar announcement that the American business man was turning from drab to stylish apparel. He is "gradually assuming the clothes-conscious attitude" of modern European men, it was said. Particularly the men between 50 and 60. They are more stylishly dressed than men of 25.

Although the male members of many families persist for good reasons—in wearing last year's overcoat and year before last's felt hat, these seem to be something in the view of the clothing designers. If the blossoming of men's fashion pages in magazines and newspapers is any indication of what is going on, this clothes consciousness is a fact. The women will like it. The men will too, if stylish clothes prove to be also comfortable clothes.

AUSTRIA BUYS VARIETY OF GOODS FROM CANADA

Canada buys from Austria knitted garments, brass manufactures, silk goods, iron and steel products, and cotton goods, while Austria, in turn, buys from Canada raw furs, rubber tires and tubes, farm implements and parts, and woodchips.

This Will Save Gas. A Winnipeg man has invented a new carburetor for automobiles. It is claimed to be a great gas saver. The latest test, according to a press dispatch, was made with the temperature ten below zero and a stiff North wind blowing. An 8-cylinder coupe travelled exactly 32.1 miles on a pint of gasoline, which is equal to 209.5 miles on a gallon. At this rate, it is figured, the ordinary motorist can drive all summer on 10 or 12 gallons.

FRUIT PULP OF GREAT VALUE IN JAM INDUSTRY

Fruit pulps are of great value in the commercial manufacture of jam, these pulps being used when fresh fruits are not readily obtainable. Experiments have proven that jam made from fruit pulp is as palatable and nutritious as that made from fresh fruit. In Scotland, where there are orange, cherry, plum and apple factories, fruit pulps are largely depended upon and those most commonly used are strawberry, plum, black currant and apricot. Others are raspberry, damson, bramble and gooseberry. Holland and France are the chief sources of supply for all of these fruit pulps except apricot, which comes from Spain. Canada shares in this market for strawberry pulp which comes mostly from the Pacific Coast, although it would seem that Eastern growers would find profitable market here also according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National railways.

VARIETY OF TASTES IN CODFISH IN BRAZIL

It is strange how tastes vary in different sections of a country. Take for instance down in Brazil in the matter of codfish. In Rio de Janeiro a white fish is preferred, one way or the other and have been accustomed to Newfoundland fish for many years. Newfoundland, Great Britain and Norway are the chief sources of supply, while latterly Iceland has ousted the United States from fourth place. Germany trails the United States and is followed by Canada. It is felt that a considerable portion of the fish from the United States is of Canadian origin. The fish for the Brazilian market is split down the belly thoroughly cleaned and the head removed, but with the name and tail left intact. Heavy salting is not desirable. Very little boneless cod is imported.

FISH OIL PUT TO VARIETY OF USES

Fish, besides being consumed as food, has also other uses. Oil from herrings, mackerels, anchovies, mackerel and salmon is used in Scotland in the manufacture of soap, paints, linoleum, as a sizing for leather; for tempering steel and, among other edibles, margarine. Pitchard oil and Japanese sardine oil possess a drying quality which makes them useful in the case of paints and linoleum. Medical oil is obtained from the livers of cod, haddock and halibut. In addition to domestic supply, foreign sources include the Southern whale fisheries, Norway, Iceland, Japan and Canada. There is said to be much fish meal in the preparation of various composite feeds for live stock and poultry and is produced in considerable quantities, chiefly at Aberdeen. Livestock feeders are commencing to realize its value, and consumption is increasing. There is a potential market in the United Kingdom estimated at over 400,000 tons annually. Scotland's trade in fish meal, however, is largely an export one, and many consignments going forward through the ports of Glasgow and Leith being ultimately destined to Dutch or German ports. Sources of supply are Scandinavia, Canada, India, Japan and the United States.

UNEASY MONEY

Betting and budgets don't mix. The record of legalized gambling in the United States is replete with proof. There is nothing new in the plan, submitted to the New York Legislature for legalizing lotteries to fill the $75,000,000 gap in the 1935 budget. History is only proving itself for an error—at the expense of the public.

State-supervised gambling has been tried many times before, says the Christian Science Monitor. Invariably it opened the way to grave political abuses and wholesale public swindles. Money derived in the management of state lotteries was spent to perpetuate the tenure of public officials who controlled them. It financed political machines. It controlled legislatures, resulted in police corruption and election frauds. This is the history of lotteries in Louisiana, in Kentucky and elsewhere. States which tried to run lotteries found in the end that the lotteries were running the states. Those that succumbed to the lure of lotteries to lighten the tax load were forced to outlaw such revenue-raising schemes. In nearly every instance, prohibitions against lotteries were written into their state constitutions.

The specter of a significant public scandal has reappeared in New York. Proponents of lotteries are seeking to break down the constitutional barrier against them. The arguments in favor of lotteries have a familiar ring. They are the same in effect as those employed to obtain the passage of permissive race-track gambling laws in some thirty states.

Legalize state-supervised lotteries and you will put an end to bootlegging and divert the illicit flow of money into lawful channels, is the argument heard in Albany. In other words, the way to combat bootleggers is to institute their methods and usurp their devices for exploiting the public. This line of attack brought race-track betting back to America. Lottery supporters are trying the same game. Did the parallel go further. Did legalized pari-mutuel betting put an end to unexcused, undercover gambling through bookmakers? Recent police raids on illegal betting joints in Florida and Massachusetts give weight to estimates that the volume of illicit race-track betting is six times greater than state-supervised pari-mutuel gambling. The warning is plain: legalized gambling in any form is an appetizer for public patronage of cheaper, bootleg schemes. The New York State Legislature should make a careful forward look after it jumps. Legalized lotteries would only consolidate its fiscal problems. Two wrongs will never balance its budget.

CANADIAN HARDWOOD IN SOUTH AFRICA

Prosperity in South Africa has brought about a considerably greater use of Eastern Canadian hardwood, principally birch, for flooring, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Previously jarrah, teak or oak would have been used. It is expected that when the 1935 figures for wood flooring are available, Canada will again show a large percentage of increase, the greater portion of which, however, is made up of Douglas fir from the Pacific Coast.

METEGHAN

Rev. J. M. Deveau is confined to the Yarmouth Hospital. His condition is critical.

The old gentleman is 86 years of age and lost his wife on the 21st inst. at the age of 80. Having been a resident in Meteghan all his life time, he will certainly be missed by his neighbors and friends.

The motor boat which is in construction in the shipyard is the 15th built since John P. Deveau has had charge of the Meteghan Shipbuilding Co. Three other vessels are in repairs on this Marine slip. Capt. L. F. Burkhoud, of Westport, bought last week another vessel, the three-masted schooner, Ronald C. Lonnere, which was built here in the Meteghan Shipbuilding yard about fifteen years ago. She is expected here for about twenty days, will be Capt. Burrell, and then will take a cargo either for Boston or the West Indies.

Last Friday a joint party was organized for the benefit of Mrs. Lauris Melair, at her home, and was well patronized.

For Littered Land Through Dogs.
Lefebvre, agricultural representative, Meteghan, reports that a few litters of foxes have already arrived, some being large—six or seven to the litter. Two ranchers have lost their dogs and attribute the fact to the presence of dogs near the ranches. The dog nuisance is a perennial one and keeps causing trouble year after year. Apparently, two industries in this province are decidedly injured by them, namely, sheep and foxes.

Digby Band Notes

Editors are supposed to be omniscient and infallible and therefore are not responsible for some mistakes occurring in print. For instance two corrections in last week's Courier carried a wrong date through the error of the printer. The correct date of the Band Jubilee is Thursday, April 16, not 17, as printed.

The ladies of Digby have always been warm friends of the Band and their contributions of fancy work, etc., have realized a sum of money which has been a great help to the Band. Their gifts can be disposed of at the coming Jubilee, if handed in promptly, and will be highly appreciated by the boys. It is important that this Jubilee shall be a financial success because the drive last September for $500 to replace old instruments and to buy uniforms was only a little more than half the required amount.

The Jubilee program will not include many band selections, but the few will be of the highest order, bearing in mind that this is only a young amateur band, though working hard and progressing rapidly. No table among these numbers is that of a magnificent overture, "Pomp and Circumstance," by Franz von Suppe, which is seldom undertaken by young bands and still more rarely by country bands, but it is safe to say that the Civic Band will give a good rendition. Probably no overture ever written is better loved by the common people or more frequently featured by the greater bands and orchestras. Of course the "headliners" on the program will be the talented and lovely Wallis Aspers—Dinah and Winnifred.

Weddings

Outhouse—VanTassel
A quiet but pretty home wedding took place at Mount Pleasant, N.S., at 1:30 o'clock, in the evening, when Mr. A. G. Robertson united in marriage Evelyn Bunce, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon VanTassel, of Allison Outhouse, son of Mrs. O. Allison Outhouse, of the same place, and the late Edward Outhouse of Tiverton. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of moon light tulle, with velvet flowers to match. The groom wore a suit of dark blue, with a pale green bow tie. The room was supported by Joseph McDevlin. Only near relatives being present the out of town relatives being Mrs. Ouellette, of Tiverton, mother to the groom; Mrs. W. Gannon, of Westport, sister of the groom, and Joseph, Basil Outhouse. We extend to them best wishes.

JUMBLE PARTY HELD

On Friday evening Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Campbell entertained a number of friends at a Jumble Buffet, supper. Each guest chose a numbered slip placed in the guest rooms, thus finding his or her partner and place at table. Small tables, centered with vases of lovely Jonquills, were set up in the long living room; places being numbered from one to twelve. Scenery was from the dining room, each being served according to the number worn. Following supper, games of a jolly and amusing nature were played. Mrs. J. D. Hubley and F. H. Hubley were winners of the "Who Am I?" each one of them having had the name of some famous person placed to the back of gown or coat. Small, but useful prizes, were awarded the winners. "Monopoly" also proved most interesting. Mr. Hathaway (Laurie) brought his set with him and as eight players can be included at one time, it makes a bright and lively game, yet requires close attention if one really wishes to win. Several hours of jollity brought the evening to a close.

Mrs. Wildes' maiden name was James Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cross, Clementsville, and Mrs. Cross' birthday falls on the same date as that of her new grandson. The new boy also has a great grandmother living—Mrs. Annan Shaw, of Millard, and a great great grandmother in the person of Rufus Westcott, of Lake Munroe, making five generations. It is too bad we have not a photograph of these five generations for publication as it is not often that one finds such a long line of living ancestors even in Nova Scotia.

Arriving there Mr. Shaw presented each with a hat stand, which was an appropriate verse from Robert Burns. These stands were made by Mr. Shaw during the winter. This kind thoughtfulness was deeply appreciated by the recipients and they went to their homes with a smile on their faces. It is indeed a great asset for a village to have a man like Mr. Shaw for a citizen.

Do You Ever Wonder

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Ask Your Doctor and Find Out

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headache is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the safest methods yet discovered for the relief of headache and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Isles of Mystery

The Magdalen Islands, with their surrounding rocks and dunes, lying far down in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, are connected with the history of the Dominion from earliest times, yet remain remote and mysterious, a region of old adventures, of phantasies and of dreams. They were visited by the early explorers and indicated in their maps with more or less vague descriptions.

Quite recently Mr. Yvon, editor-in-chief of the Montreal Standard, visited the islands, in what he terms the most interesting exploratory adventure he was ever privileged to enjoy. "These magic islands," (Les Madeleine), he writes, "lie like spoonfuls of ice cream on the pale green tinting of the British Admiralty chart No. 1134, and they are as interesting and as full of romance as the paper Jim Hawkins hugged to his bosom and later discovered to be the chart of Treasure Island."

And because the story of the islands is so fascinating, and because it is a page of Canadian history which should be better known to us I shall attempt to summarize, the article, hoping that in so doing, I may not have too much of the quality which makes it so splendid and interesting a story. First then, we learn that the group was visited by Jacques Cartier, who made a landing on the island of Capricorn, June 29, 1534, and that Champlain spent a night here in 1624 (where occurred also the recent and strange puzzle of Didier Fougere, in a setting particularly apt for such a mystery).

The islands were indicated for the first time in Champlain's map in 1632, with the name Magdalen Islands, apparently so named to the maker of maps for the King of France. The earliest names seem to date from earlier voyagers: Brion and the famous Bird Rocks, where many a tall ship has been broken and come to an end in this stormy stevedore. The Holland Survey was made in 1765 by Lieutenant Haldimand, who gave an interesting report. There was published in 1778, the Desbarres chart, and that of the British Admiralty in 1839. Many strange and fantastic place names and sea names occur in the early description of voyages made between 1591 and 1597; particularly in that of the famous Richard Hakluyt's volume, "The Principal Navigations, Voyages, Traffiques and Discoveries of the English Nation."

It is of particular interest to learn that the Holland Survey derives its name from Captain Holland who served in the British Army at the siege of Louisbourg. Following the Treaty of Paris, he was instructed to survey the northern of the two parts into which the country was then divided. This survey of the Magdalen Islands was a part of that of the British Empire in North America, undertaken by the British government in 1763. In the year 1784 Captain Holland surveyed Prince Edward Island; in 1785 the Magdalen Islands and also Cape Breton where while engaged in his work the young and gallant captain met his end, years of age, fell through the ice and was drowned.

The islands are of rock formation with a double row of sand dunes connecting them, and enclosing numerous lagoons. Owing to the action of the sea, the topography has undergone marked variations. In the shape of earlier maps and charts, stretching northeast into the Gulf are myriad rock islets—a veritable stone pile of the Atlantic, full of strange sea fowl, salt air, thundering surf, and the crying of enormous fishing gulls. Many of the islands are sea-bird sanctuaries.

It is interesting to recall old legends and traditions, but of recent date we have seen the beginning of a story which will be told, through coming generations—the story of Didier Fougere who died, and who for many days, was apparently not dead. It was during the ice bound Christmas season that the eyes of the world were turned to the Mystery Isles of the Gulf, when the news was flashed that a strange and incomprehensible drama was taking place among the fisher folk of the Magdalen Islands, in the midst of their preparations for the festival On the 1st of January, 1936, Didier Fougere, thirty-one year old fisher agent and courier, died suddenly—yet signs of life remained. For eleven days, although thrice pronounced dead, the family and villagers sat staring at his body, believing the tough old fisherman to be alive. He was placed in a coffin, but a mirror held to his mouth continued to cloud and there was no outward sign of rigor mortis. Finally, on January 2, 1936, his family admitted death had taken place and he was buried, the whole community attending the obsequies.

Lasting the old names of the islands and shoals, Mr. Yvon says, "Of some of the old-time buccanneries and pirates of the Spanish Main—Kid, Blood, Morgan, Tete-Noir, Spade-Head and Darby McGraw—did not have a hand in some of the strange 'mystery-stories' as the old mariners say."

Amherst Island was named after Jeffrey, Lord Amherst (1717-87) Governor-General of British North America. Bird Rock, from its immense number of nesting birds; Brion Island named by Cortier after his patron, Seigneur de Brion; the island of St. John, Cotta Island was named for Sir Isaac Cotta, to whom a few simple in the Magdalen was granted in 1787 in recognition of his services during the War of the Revolution. And Cape Cod, north of Amherst Harbour cannot not be forgotten for 1782 Captain Richard Gridley, who had served with distinction under General Shirley at the siege of Louisbourg, asking for confirmation of a grant of the "Islands of Madeline", where he claimed to have established and improved a fishery for "seals and sea-cows"—which brings us to the main industry of the islands. References are made, in the report of an early voyage, to the harbour of Ramen, (probably the channel of House Harbour, the principal port), named as "the river where 1500 sea oxen were captured and slain." Lieutenant Haldimand in his report of 1765 describes the walrus, or sea-ox industry of the islands which at that year produced 900 barrels of oil.

Every day of good weather an army of 2000 fishermen put out to sea in their home-built boats, "literally swathed in foam", the skiffs standing on their bows one moment, on the sterns the next, in the long rolling surf of the Atlantic. One million pounds of walrus are salvaged each year from the ocean floor. The fishing season is short, about two months so that an enormous amount of activity is concentrated in this short space of time. The 2500 fishermen have to be fed and equipped with boats and gasoline. This plant, "Les Isles", builds about two boats a week during the winter season. The lobstermen are sent to all the great hotels of the continent and sea is shipped in large quantities to the West Indies.

And what of the island people? "They came by the sea, and make their living by the sea." Long ago in 1799, after the fall of Louisbourg, they came to the islands and now number 6500 in all. They work hard on the fishing and on the lobstering in the winter. Large families are the rule. They live in peace and quietness. They have no jails, and it is said that no one on the Magdalen has ever been arrested and locked up. They make about a large number of cards their own wool, spin it, and weave the cloth and make their own garments, "and have been doing that for generations, ever since they left Louisbourg." They know anxiety, and trouble stalks at times among these lonely islands, but it is a peace and tranquility. It is said that those who visit the islands, while ever afterwards to return.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

IS THERE ONE?

Can you think of one good argument in favor of using alcoholic liquors as a beverage? One would think that with all this outcry against restrictive laws concerning its sale and manufacture, all this advocacy in certain quarters for the extension of opportunities for its use—such as beverage rooms, beer and wine in hotels and restaurants, in addition, to the government stores— that there are surely strong arguments justifying the use of liquors. Is there a good health argument? Surely if there is, then there is a case for the drinking habit. But is there today, in the face of scientific knowledge of the effects of alcohol upon the human body, one single argument to justify a man or woman using alcoholic liquors as a beverage? The medical world today has a definite answer. The life insurance companies, who keep close watch on all things affecting health and longevity, will not listen for a moment to any such argument.

Can you make out a case for greater efficiency acquired by the use of alcohol? Will the engineer on a railway train, the driver of an automobile, the aviator, the marksman, the typewriter, the bank accountant, the hockey player, the worker in forest, field, mine or factory, the doctor, the lawyer, the salesman, the business manager, the teacher, the parliamentarian, be made more efficient at his particular kind of work by becoming a drinker?

Can you name one position in life anywhere where a moderate use of drink would enhance an applicant's chances for acceptance? On the other hand, can you name one position in life anywhere where other things being equal, a certificate of total abstinence from alcoholic liquors will not give an applicant a better chance of acceptance for service? Can you think of one class of persons, with whom you have to do for the ordinary comforts and conveniences of life, who would be better qualified to serve you by becoming drinkers of alcoholic liquors? Think of your grocer, druggist, carpenter, butcher, doctor, lawyer, farmer, blacksmith, mechanic, shoemaker, printer, teacher, bar, road builder, landman, hotel manager, trainman, and all others—would any one or all of these do you better service by becoming drinkers?

Then, why do we keep among us an institution that cannot justify its existence by one single argument in its favor?

IN MANY LANDS ...

His death on the Cross, Easter has taken the sting out of death, because of the assurance it gives of eternal life. Just as surely as our Saviour died and rose again so shall we rise from death to reign with Him in glory. Death is but the gateway through which we pass, to this life to Heaven.

Easter is celebrated in many curious ways, depending on tradition, established centuries ago and handed down from generation to generation. The bunny or rabbit, so popular about this time of the year among children in many lands, had its origin in Germany, where it is called the Easter hare and where it is considered as important a figure in nursery lore as Jolly Old St. Nicholas at Christmas time. In Germany the children play a game with colored eggs, which consists of testing the strength of the shells, and in some parts of the United States, a similar game is played known as egg-picking, in which both colored and uncolored eggs are used. "Egg-rolling" on the lawn, or the White House at Washington provide a happy time for the children. During the Easter season both in Germany and France handball playing is indulged in freely. The connection of this game with Easter originated in the idea that the sun takes three leaps in rising on Easter morning.

Some rather startling customs held away in the middle ages. On Easter morning the women were granted special permission to strike their husbands. However, as "all's fair in love and war", on Tuesday the men were allowed to strike them back, which though lacking in gallantry, presumably was satisfactory all round.

Dating from apostolic times, the plentiful use of candles and lamps was a pronounced feature of the Easter vigil. Pillars of wax, with which night was transformed into day, burned not to put out darkness, but as a sign of joy.

Another illumination associated with Easter, but of pagan origin, is the Easter fire. This had to be kindled from a new fire, drawn from wood by friction. It signified the victory of Spring over Winter. Our modern sunrise services, while commemorating the discovery that Jesus had risen from the tomb, seems a finer expression of the pagan Easter mountain fire. On the top of Mount Royal, a volcanic formation which rises nearly seven hundred feet over the city of Montreal, is erected a great cross which perpetuates the zeal and courage of the early Canadian city founders, and here in the flames of the sunrise many worshippers take part in the Easter morning service. In a setting of emerald velvet hills, with a gorgeous southern California sunrise painting the sky, thousands of early morning worshippers, rather at the Holy Wood Bowl on Easter Sunday morning for this beautiful sunrise service.

It is in Palestine that Easter is most fittingly celebrated among the scenes, reminiscent of the gentle ministrations of the Saviour. Here where Spring wakens into being the lilacs of the field, and the pale pink cyclamens. Half-way up the Mount of Olives, where Jesus saw the City of Jerusalem and wept over its hardness of heart and lack of vision, is a spot which is "Forever England", where soldiers of that country perished in the War of the Boer. Friday, Christian residents of Jerusalem hold a service there.

Amid the narrow streets of Jerusalem in an area of thirty-five feet, stands the Temple, grand and solemn and awe-inspiring. The pavements at Easter time are covered with rich Turkish rugs, fine gilded wrought-iron grills surrounding the enclosures. In the Temple fine mosaics, decorative in the walls of French twelfth century design, their subdued arrangement contrasting with the more brilliant stained-glass windows.

Not only in London and Paris and New York is Easter a time for fashionable weddings, but in every town and village as well. This custom goes as far back as the Easter bonfire days, when young men and maidens, desiring matrimony during the coming year, sang and danced three times, or gave three leaps over the flame.

The dramatic play owes its origin to the Greek myth of Demeter and Persephone, a poetic expression of the two great emotions attributed to Nature—her sorrow when the sun is withdrawn and her joy when the fruitful season of growth begins. The Greeks celebrated these Sorority festivals, with mysterious processions of veiled figures with torches, moving from side to side in mimic search for the lost Persephone. The modern Maypole dances have their origin in these same interlacing circles of figures, holding brightly-colored ribbons. A play especially adapted to Easter is the Passion Play of Oberammergau, held every ten years in the spring, among the Bavarian Hills. Since its first inception, years ago, through a vow made by one of the villagers, when its inhabitants had been stricken by a plague, it has become a play of great importance. Thousands of tourists visit the little village to see this masterpiece of religious drama enacted.

Easter used to have its philanthropic side as well. Easter buns (now known as Hot Cross Buns) were distributed to the poor. Two wealthy sisters in a small English town, even went so far as to leave a small annuity for this purpose, on their death.

Our modern celebration of Easter emphasizes the joy of the spirit and uplift of the soul. In somewhat crude contrast is the roistering of the Greeks and Russians in days gone by. After a long and severe Lent, they made Easter a day of gaiety and sport, choosing the cemetery as the site for their music and dancing. In Russia, anyone so disposed might enter the church bellies on Easter Day and ring the bells, a privilege of which the natives fully availed themselves.

A peculiar feature of the early Christian Church was the "Easter laughter," invoked by the religious dignitaries as a regular part of the Easter service. It was later frowned on as irreverent and discontinued.

In moorland parts of Scotland, it used to be the custom for young people to go out early on Easter Sunday and search for wild fowl's eggs for breakfast, and it was thought lucky to find them.

In the West Indies, where the climate is pretty much the same during the whole year, new clothes are worn at Christmas time instead of Easter, so that they forego the Easter parade which is an important event in most countries. To Bermuda, however, we owe our lilacs, when they grow in great profusion.

Easter in Canada is spent in pretty much the same way as in most civilized countries. An exchange of greeting cards, with the cheeriness of winter. The observance of Good Friday with solemn church services, the solemnity extending over the week end until its bloom is shattered by the joy of Easter Sunday morning. Gaily-colored eggs, chicks and chocolate buns on the breakfast table. Hot-house plants, budded for the occasion. Attired in as new an outfit as our purse will afford, we wend our way to church, where balm and lilacs smile on the altars in the spring sunshine. The choir fairly open the gate of Heaven for us with their joyous and inspiring music, and the sermon holds a note of optimism. Easter is undoubtedly one of the happiest holidays of the year.

In Alaska, however, Easter must mean even more than a withdrawal of the snow, and return of green grass and flowers, as in the case of the most part of Canada. After a winter of twilight and dry frost, interminable wastes of pale snow and silent waters, Easter must mean to them as the mythical Teutonic Goddess of Spring, Easter, in the person of the sun, bringing warmth and cheer.

Easter is a time of happiness all around the world, for it typifies the blossoming hope of nature as well as the hope of the soul for awakening beyond this finite earth of nature. It is a time when the birds sing their sweetest, when the fluffy little chicks break their egg barriers, and the new little lambs beat on the green grass. It is a time when our hearts sing with Browning's Pippin, "God's in His Heaven, all's right with the world."

PEDESTRIAN RIGHTS

That the pedestrian has a prior right in the street or highway over the motorist is a proposition that will strike the average citizen, and more especially the average motorist, with amazement. According to an English writer on the subject (C. W. Empson, in G. K.'s Weekly), the priority of right of the pedestrian is not only legally established but is inevitable. Mr. Empson goes on to say:

"Practically every human being must use the roads as a condition of existence. Not merely the blind and paralytic, whose right has been laid down, but the millions with more or less defective sight or hearing, lacking ability or judgment, suffering from absence of mind or preoccupation, too old or too young to respond to stimulus, must have right of locomotion, and as they are not susceptible of regulation they must have right of unrestricted locomotion. Children must go to school and no law (thank God) can prevent them from playing on the way. None can say that the child going to school to learn to become a prime minister or merely a good workman is less important than a rich swindler driving to the club."

"Even if the subordination of pedestrian rights to those of motorists were unjustly enacted, death would not be a suitable penalty for breach of bad laws, and no power can confer upon one class the right to kill others for breach of regulation. Motors are for men, not men for motors, and when motors kill their use cannot be justified. Human nature cannot be altered to suit motorists; the obligation to respect human life cannot be evaded. The right of fast travel for some cannot be of more value than the right of travel for all; the part is not greater than the whole."

The present aim of many good and other people, the writer further observes, is to make the road a desert—so far as pedestrians are concerned—and call it peace. This is called the segregation of different classes of traffic. Homeless people justify their mistaken attitude by saying that we must change with changing conditions. Conditions have changed in two points only. A motor has not a will of its own, like a horse, and the driver cannot escape responsibility for its actions; the relief afforded under existing law on that ground is no longer justified—it is sought for the person in order to prove negligence. And the law punishes culpable behaviour by making the culprit pay for the damage done; the sanction has lost its force by the practice of insurance, and real punishments should be devised."

Any man who is afraid of adversity hasn't a chance of living to a ripe old age.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE NEWSPAPER

The development of our modern up-to-the-minute newspaper from the primitive smoke signals of the aborigines to the organ of great national importance of the present time, has been very gradual. News was first spread by word of mouth as gossip is to the day. The town crier was perhaps the first official distributor of news. With the invention of printing, the progress made was comparatively rapid.

With the beginning of Reuter's News Agency in 1847, the press association came into being and modern journalism began. Today, the people of all countries are all more touch with one another. What happens in Canada today is known on the other side of the world tomorrow.

Canada's first newspaper came into being in the year 1752. John Bushell establishing the Halifax Gazette in that year. Among the United Empire Loyalists were many who had a knowledge of the printing business. With their coming the printing trade was speeded up, and from then on, with the steady growth of our population, the number of newspapers has had a steady climb.

There are, according to recognized authorities, about 1100 newspapers printed in Canada, at the present time, either daily, semi-weekly, tri-weekly or weekly. Therefore, it would be safe to assume that most of Canada's annual consumption of over 200,000 tons of newsprint is utilized by her whirling newspaper presses.

Lots of our girl friends think Easter Sunday is Decoration Day.

CHAINED AND SHACKLED

Business is chained and shackled, says the Windsor, Ont., Star. Business doesn't know where it stands. Governments here and governments there are taking so much money out in the way of taxes of all descriptions that the margin of reasonable safety has been cut away and there is little or nothing left, in countless cases, for those who have risked their capital and put in, as well, their special ability and their hard work. "Why," business men ask themselves, "should we sweat and toil and plan and risk our capital when so little is left for us even if we do have a fair measure of ordinary success?" There you have the thing that is holding up recovery that constitutes the reason why business is not expanding as it normally should. And keep in mind that this failure to expand, this failure of capital to open up new enterprises and invade new fields, means the failure of countless workmen to secure employment. It proves, of course, that excessive and continually rising taxation is a double-edged blow. It hits both Capital and Labor. It injures the nation as a whole.

Some people are very busy—and yet do nothing.

LICENSES AND TAXES

The young man decides to marry. He gives his bride a fur coat as a wedding present. The trapper who caught the mink had a trapper's license, says an exchange, the dealer to whom he sold it had a fur dealer's license and the retailer who sold the coat has a business license.

The young man then buys a marriage license, is married by a licensed clergyman, goes on his honeymoon staying in a licensed hotel. He returns home to his newly purchased home, bought from a licensed realtor. Of course he has to buy a car and a license to go with it, in addition to sales tax and a revenue stamp on the cheque he gave for it. Then he buys a driver's license. He fills the old bus up with gas on which there is a provincial tax.

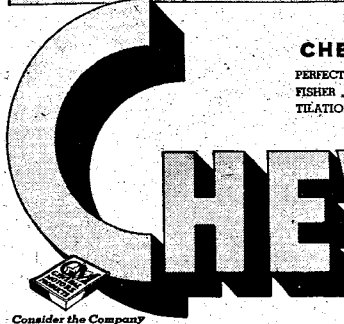

He takes his bride to the show and pays amusement tax. She finally insists on a dog, so he buys a dog tax. He is fond of sport so he has to purchase a gun license and sometimes a fishing license. Every home has a radio so he buys a radio license. He wife gives a bridge party. He cannot open a pack of cards unless he breaks the revenue stamp. The bride says: "Be sure and get some wine." Over the cork is stuck a revenue stamp. He must, of course, have cigarettes for his guests. Over the packet of cigarettes is plastered a revenue stamp. He must have matches to light the cigarettes. On the box is an inscription: "Tax paid."

Finally Junior arrives. The young father pays a registered nurse and a doctor, licensed, to practice in the province. Poor little beggar, his fond dad is wondering whether he has to stick a revenue stamp on him or take out a license. Neither; the lusty youngster has a mortgage of $400 hanging around his neck, his per capita share of Canada's national debt.

The Longmire was built at Meteghan fifteen years ago.

But that's only half the story. For this same Valve-in-Head engine is the secret of the big savings on gasoline and oil that Chevrolet owners boast about. The fact is, this principle results in more than a 10% fuel saving as compared to the conventional design.

Ramblings of a Rolling Stone

In that halcyon period which we fondly refer to as the "good old days" the topics on which the combined mentality of the "Associated Cracker Box Follies" was focused, became, because of continuous man-handling, as well worn as were Bible pages so often turned by the trembling, wrinkled hands of one of Salem's condemned witches, or the prison floor by the feet of Chillon's unwilling guest.

Seen through that impalpable curtain of haze with which time softens all the events of the past, and, glorified by the halo that grows more and more distinct the momentous events of far-gone yesterdays slowly but surely fade from our memory. So it was with the conversational themes of the good old days. Handled down from generation to generation these topics became as unchangeable as were the Medo-Persian legal enactments even though the original reason for the discussion had been lost in the mist of antiquity.

A conventional wandering along the well worn paths of tradition seeking and finding sufficient nourishment and stimulation for those whose appetites were satisfied with a rehearsal of only such events as occurred within the astigmatic ken of those to whom the world, beyond the boundaries of their own circumscribed horizon, was an unreal one.

A world inhabited by those who seemed to take a most malicious delight in reciting facts, those inventions and events which any well balanced individual would, instinctively, know were utterly impossible, of either occurrence or achievement. An alien race, a race of mountebanks and liars, who seemed energized by the foul-tongued himself, so persistently did they endeavor to break the well built mental defences of the A. C. B. P.

That you may understand something of the full extent of the malignant assaults upon the citadel of pure reason, let me cite one such attack. The A. C. B. P. had assembled in regular session one summer evening. The weather, the crops and the "bilberry storm" had each in turn been proposed, discussed and metaphorically "laid on the table."

Usually a full followed the finish of the routine business of the session, but on this eve the introduction of new business came with breath-taking swiftness. Looking backward it seems to me that not more than a half-hour separated the winding-up of the routine business from the introduction of the new. That such unseemly haste was justified is clearly indicated by the astounding nature of the announcement which was no less than that "the Railways says that a steam boat has been launched in England and at her trial run made twenty knots an hour!"

That satanic ingenuity could go to such lengths for the sole purpose of deceiving those whose sane thinking and whose mental equilibrium had been maintained throughout the years, and that, in the face of a consistently hostile world, seemed almost unthinkable.

As with every well-regulated association the A. C. B. P. had evolved a method of dealing with the unexpected. All eyes were turned toward one of the members who had through many years "gone down to the sea in ships" and whose certificate proclaimed him "a master of sail on any and all the seven seas". Breathlessly we awaited the pronouncement that would place the brand of Ananias upon another "news-paper lie", nor did we wait in vain. Listen to the oracle: "Any vessel driven by steam at a rate of more than fifteen knots will drive herself to the bottom in rough weather. She'll just plow herself under." An audible sigh of relief held of nerves strained almost to the breaking point. Relief was reflected on many a face. Who could doubt the finality of such a verdict?

When I began to write I had a thought to just draw a few obvious comparisons between the day that now is and that which has gone almost, but not quite, into the oblivion of forgotten things. Space will not permit me to carry out my intentions at this time. Perhaps some other day I will get around to do the thing I had intended doing at this time. There is nothing to interfere just at present, as we are enjoying our fourth strike in less than a year. The unions have, in the calling of the present one, deliberately broken the agreement made with the mill company last August. That's all right! But if the mill company had transgressed—oh, well, you can't trust "capital" anyway!

ALL WOULD BENEFIT

(L.J. Lowell Banner)

Canadian people of all occupations and all income levels are coming to realize that their greatest enemy is high taxes and their greatest problem, taxation. The governments have been spending huge sums, much of it for relief purposes, and adding millions to the national and provincial debts. The result discourages investors and hinders industrial advancement. There isn't a person in the country who wouldn't benefit from tax reductions—and the persons of small, and average means, who are most interested in employment, industrial expansion and home-building would benefit most of all. Our slogan should be—balanced budgets and tax reduction.

Broke Ribs in Fall.

Capt. B. A. Young, of Hantsport, and well known in Digby, who is superintending repairs to the tug J. A. Mumford, at Meteghan, slipped on the marine railway while working around the vessel last week, breaking two ribs. He left on Thursday for his home in Hantsport.

Never mind about whether your great grandparent, came across in the "Mayflower." What really matters is, did you come across with you, grocer the first of the month? Or more important still in the eyes of the Editor, did you come across, with him when your subscription expired?

Mr. Hagerly Thankful He Took Friend's Advice.

Centreville, N.S., April 6. (Special)—"I am a farmer, 40 years of age," writes Mr. Charles Hagerly, of this place. "One day I felt a numb feeling come over me. The next morning I could not rise from bed. I tried different medicines and got no relief. I was in bed about a month. One day a friend told me about Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got one box, and when it was gone I began to feel better. After three more boxes I was completely relieved and was out doing my work as well as ever."

For more than half a century Dodd's Kidney Pills have been bringing relief to sufferers from kidney and bladder ailments. Like Mr. Hagerly it is frequently upon the advice of friends and others, who have used Dodd's Kidney Pills, that many people learn of the benefits derived from taking this famous remedy. ## Obituary

Mrs. Richard Clarke

James Edward McCormick

The death at his residence, on Friday last, after a short illness, of James Edward McCormick, removed from Bear River the familiar form of a well known citizen, who had been a resident of the town for many years. The late Mr. McCormick was born in Victoria, Annapolis County, 34 years ago, and was the son of James McCormick and Mrs. Sarah Ann (McLachlan) McCormick. He latter a native of Lunenburg, his wife, a Miss Roper, of Clements, preceded him many years, and his immediate surviving relatives are two sons, Ross and Earl of Bear River; two sisters, Mrs. Willard Johnson, Newburyport, Mass., and Mrs. John Mulse, Yarmouth; four brothers, Job and Demas, living in Massachusetts, and Decker and William, in Bear River. The late Mr. McCormick was a faithful member of the pastor, Rev. S. Stevens conducting the service, assisted by Rev. C. P. Henderson, of the local Adventist church. Interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Mrs. Thomas Rawling

Liverpool and vicinity were greatly shocked and saddened when it was learned that Mrs. Thomas Rawling had passed away in Providence, R. I., on Monday last week. She was the widow of Thomas Rawling, who predeceased her about eight years ago. The late Mrs. Rawling had been in ill health the past year, but her death came as a great shock to all. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Cameron, and was born in Clements, N. S. On account of failing health she was taken to the Halifax Infirmary for treatment, and after a few weeks there she spent some time in the Rhode Island Hospital, following which her death occurred at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. Ray, in Providence. An ideal mother, Mrs. Rawling was possessed of a deep Christian piety, benevolence and thoughtfulness of others, and was a faithful worker and ardent member of the United Church at Liverpool. A very impressive service was held in the Carpenter Joint Funeral Home, Providence, and her remains were brought home Thursday, accompanied by her son, Merri Rawling, and nephew, Lovett Ray, her two sons, Merri and Maxwell, her brother, John D. Cameron, and two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Donahay, and Mrs. M. Ray, of Providence, also a sister, Mrs. W. MacKenzie, of Yonkers, N. Y. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from her late residence, Liverpool, again Street, conducted by Rev. C. Brown, of the United Church. ## There Go the Ships

At this time considerable interest is being aroused in ships and shipping by the new super-mammoth liner, "Queen Mary," which will soon make her appearance on this side of the Atlantic on her maiden voyage. There is something about a super-ship which seems always to awaken an intense interest in things of the sea. It was so in the golden era of the sailing ship.

One of the greatest of these early ships was the "Marco Polo," launched from a shipyard in Saint John, in 1850, and considered the fastest ship afloat in her early days, being a forerunner of the famous clipper ship era. She was a three-decker of 1,600 tons, 184 feet in length, and designed for the East India trade. Her dimensions were such that it was decided to wait the spring tide before launching. Unable to check her rapid movement when she was sliding down the ways, the Marco Polo ran aground in the mud on the opposite side of the creek and then heeled over. Two weeks later she was hauled off slightly hogged but not otherwise damaged. Her maiden voyage was from Saint John to Liverpool, on May 31, 1851, with a cargo made up of timber and scrap iron. Records indicate she made the trip in fifteen days and then returned to Mobile, Ohio, for a cargo of cotton, arriving back in Liverpool after a passage of thirty-five days. From there she went into the Australian trade carrying immigrants from England, and made the voyage out from Liverpool in seventy-six days, like time being made around The Horn on her return which earned her on her arrival in Liverpool the title of the fastest ship in the world. After roaming the seven seas, the Marco Polo came back to Canada to lay her bones on her native soil, being wrecked on the beach at Cavendish, Prince Edward Island, in August, 1883, when carrying a load of timber from Quebec. Some relics of the Marco Polo are preserved in the New Brunswick museum in her native city.

Many other fine ships followed the Marco Polo from Saint John shipyards, the White Star Line contracting for four from these yards to be built in the province, to carry mails from England to Australia. They were the Ben Nevis, White Star, Vermaid and Shalmar. The White star was claimed to be the largest being 284 feet in length on deck.

Nova Scotia also contributed some fine ships in the days of sail. One of the strangest mysteries of the sea concern a Nova Scotia built vessel, the Marie Celeste. Built at Spencer's Island and launched in 1860, she eventually became the property of a United States firm. It was in the year 1871 that she sailed on her fateful voyage, the mystery surrounding which has never been satisfactorily cleared up throughout the years, that have intervened and which has been the theme of many stories. On November 1 in that year the Marie Celeste sailed from Boston with a cargo containing a large consignment of alcohol and was manned by a crew of mixed nationalities made up of sailors from the United States, Sweden, Germany, Great Britain and Canada. Of the latter there were only two, one from Nova Scotia and the other a native of Saint John.

And now comes the strange part of the story. Just the other day there passed away in Rexton, N. B., a retired sea captain who was in his 87th year, and who, at the time, was member of the crew of the British barque Dei Gratia. While the Dei Gratia was sailing the high seas in a light breeze, the mate sighted a brigantine with the Stars and Stripes at her peak and all sails set. There was an uncanny appearance about the ship, however, which was heading up and falling off to the wind without apparently, anyone at the helm, so the master of the Dei Gratia decided to investigate her. Coming up alongside, the crew made her out as the Marie Celeste, but not a soul appeared in sight. Mooring the Dei Gratia alongside, the whole crew boarded the Marie Celeste but not a single person could be found. The life boats were in their proper places and embers still smoked in the galley stove. In the fore-cabin was a table on which rested plates of food and cups filled with tea which was still warm, showing the vessel had been only recently abandoned. In the cabin, a dress which the captain's wife had been making for her daughter, lay on the sewing machine. The navigating instruments and log were found in the cabin. Not a thing seemed to be missing except the captain, his wife and child who were known to have accompanied him, and the crew. The pumps were tried and the ship was found to be staunch. On the deck the crew of the Dei Gratia found a stained broken cutlass with silver trimming and red tassels, lying on top of a hatch. The sword was long and tapering such as those once used by French and English duellists, but what part it played in the apparent tragedy has never been found out. The master of the Dei Gratia detailed half of his crew to sail the Marie Celeste into Gibraltar and when the Dei Gratia reached New York, each member of the crew received $700 as salvage money. The sword remained in the possession of the retired sea captain of Rexton and his family now retains it as an heirloom.

Prince Edward Island also contributed her quota of sailing ships, as did likewise Quebec. Eastern Canada having made a name for itself for the many fine ships that came from those shipyards. During the War old-time shipwrights, again picked up their tools to construct sailing ships to augment the fleets which carried munitions across the ocean.

Today, where once the frames of sailing ships rose from the stocks in Saint John, a huge drydock, one of the largest in the world, and steel shipbuilding plant is located; and likewise in Halifax is a drydock and plant for building steel ships. Another large drydock and shipbuilding plant is located in Quebec.

When shipbuilding is still carried on in Eastern Canada, particularly in Nova Scotia. Along the southern shore of the province where the line of the Canadian National Railways threads in and out of the various picturesque fishing towns and villages, following along the coast for its entire length and particularly in Lunenburg and Shelburne, one can see fishing schooners being constructed, while Shelburne has also contributed some fine yachts. That the present-day shipwrights have not lost the art of their forefathers who turned out some record for weight but not for height. That belongs to the Irish wolf-hound, a breed which was supposed to be extinct a few years ago, but has now been revived. The modern wolf hound stands about thirty-eight inches at the shoulder, but there are records of far larger dogs in old days. One is said to have been no less than four feet in height at the shoulder.

AN OLD SHIPBUILDING TOWN

Proud brigantines were born here in days when ships were proud; And still, the old men moan here That topsail, boom and shroud, That hull of truest timber (A master called the seams), And tall mast, straight and limber, Live only in their dreams.

Upon this rotted cradle, Upon this fallen ship (As in a magic land) The tree became the ship That glided gayly, gladly Along the greasy ways, Shipyards are silent, sadly Neglected nowadays

—John Hanton.

(Barrie Examiner)

One wonders if people who are giving to playing the slot machines have even a remote idea how heavily the odds are against them. A magazine writer figures out that there are only 63 times out of 1000 that the machine returns more than put in. The other 937 times you lose your nickel. If you played $50 at 5 cents a time, you would receive an average of $12.35 in return, while you would lose $37.65, which goes to the various persons, sharing in the profits. In other words, you lose about 14 out of 15 times.

Find Out

From Your Doctor If the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, or the pangs of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with "Aspirin."

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach, or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company. Limited, and for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every label.

Proud brigantines were born here in days when ships were proud; And still, the old men moan here That topsail, boom and shroud, That hull of truest timber (A master called the seams), And tall mast, straight and limber, Live only in their dreams.

Upon this rotted cradle, Upon this fallen ship (As in a magic land) The tree became the ship That glided gayly, gladly Along the greasy ways, Shipyards are silent, sadly Neglected nowadays

—John Hanton.

(Barrie Examiner)

One wonders if people who are giving to playing the slot machines have even a remote idea how heavily the odds are against them. A magazine writer figures out that there are only 63 times out of 1000 that the machine returns more than put in. The other 937 times you lose your nickel. If you played $50 at 5 cents a time, you would receive an average of $12.35 in return, while you would lose $37.65, which goes to the various persons, sharing in the profits. In other words, you lose about 14 out of 15 times.

The marble bath used by King Louis XIV has been restored to the Palace of Versailles, in France. The bath is hollowed out of a block of marble weighing twelve tons, and is quite ornamental. Four steps lead down into the water.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

WHY NOT JUST "ANOTHER"?

I WILL

—Drive more carefully.

—Not pass a car unless I have 300 yards clear vision ahead.

Not pass a car until I am sure of what is behind me.

—Not jump traffic lights nor drive ahead while signal is changing.

—Not leave the curb till I have given hand signal and looked to see if the way is clear.

—Strictly observe the lines marking the centre of highways.

—Always remember that I must watch out for four cars—my own, the one behind, the one in front, and the one around the curve or corner.

I think Seattle is doing well to promote such pledge-taking on the part of all drivers, of motor cars. I note there are just nine pledges called for. I would make it ten. Just as we have the Ten Commandments, and I think the tenth pledge would make it a much more likely thing that all the other nine would be kept. In fact, without this tenth pledge I do not see how any motorist is going to be able to keep the other nine. The tenth pledge I would ask is this:—

"I will be a total abstainer from alcoholic liquors in any form, both on and off duty."

WORLD'S BIGGEST HORSE

The biggest horse in the world, probably the biggest that ever existed, belongs to A. N. Hill, who lives in Dakota. It is reported to stand twenty-two and a half hands, and to be thirteen feet five inches from the ground to the top of its ears, holding its head erect. Giants exist among animals, as among men. The famous Lincolnshire ox exhibited in London in 1790 stood five feet six inches at the shoulder, and was nearly twelve feet in length. It is said to have weighed two tons, eighteen hundred-weight. An ox was shown at Wembley in 1924, which stood eighteen hands in height and weighed 3,400 pounds. Dogs occasionally grow to a vast size. A St. Bernard was exhibited a few years ago in London, which weighed 225 pounds, and was in every way a splendid-looking animal. The St. Bernard holds the remarkably fine and fast ships, the performance of the famous "Blue-nose," international fishing schooner champion, which is a product of Lunenburg yards, and the yachts constructed by Shelburne builders testifies.

CORONER'S JURY DECIDES DEATH ACCIDENTAL

Howard O'Neill came to his death when he accidentally fell into an open well on the farm of David Shibley at Marshalltown, the coroner's jury investigating his death decided after hearing evidence in connection with the Sunday night fatality.

Chief evidence was given by Arthur Shibley, who told of the deceased, O'Neill delivering a cup to his brother John, and of collecting John's share of the cost and then proceeding to the home of David Shibley and collecting the remaining $3 from him.

While at the home O'Neill was invited to stay for supper, and while the meal was being prepared he went to the home of Benjamin Seelye, where he purchased a gallon of cider, giving the witness and David and Freeman Shibley another gallon with more water in it. The older was made about Christmas time, he said. O'Neill had been working with him since April 2. Constable Kempton told of being called to the scene, and spelling the body out with a grappling iron.

Feeling down into the well with the aid of a lantern, they discovered a cap floating on the water and bubbles rising to the surface. They tried to reach the victim with a pole but as the well was 26 feet deep they were unable to do so, and after a vain effort, the police were called. R. C. M. P. officers recovered the body about midnight.

Benjamin Seelye testified as to selling O'Neill a gallon of cider, about three quarts of which was later sold and one quart water. He later sold Hildes another gallon with more water in it. The older was made about Christmas time, he said. O'Neill had been working with him since April 2. Constable Kempton told of being called to the scene, and spelling the body out with a grappling iron.

Elber Dalseg, of Marshalltown, was foreman of the jury. Dr. W. C. Harris, of Barton, presided as coroner. The inquest, adjourned from Marshalltown early Monday morning, was conducted in Keene's mortuary chapel, Digby, Monday morning and afternoon.

Two witnesses, Arthur Shibley and his brother, Freeman, were heard before the inquiry adjourned for the afternoon session. Heard in the afternoon were Dorothy Shibley, Mrs. David Shibley, David Shibley, Buster Hutchins, Ralph Aborn, Archibald Jordan, Reginald Combs, Benjamin Seelye, and Constable Stanley Kempton, of the Digby detachment, R. C. M. P.

Deceased was four times married; his first wife being the late Mae (Wilson) Kinney, of Yarmouth. By this union, Howard, Dr. Melrose, Maine; Mrs. Blanche Welsh, of Melrose, Maine; and Mrs. Roy Smith, in the West, survive, all of whom were born at Bear River. We are unable to learn the maiden name of his second wife; his third wife was formerly Miss Stella Durkee, of Yarmouth. The fourth wife, whom he married in 1924, Miss, 24 years ago, survives. She was formerly Miss Susie McGrath, of Victoria Beach, Annapolis County. Funeral services took place at Victoria Beach, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. A. G. Robertson, of the Digby Baptist Church, officiating. He was preceded by Rev. W. B. Crowell, of the Lower Granville Baptist Churches, Harvey Kinney, of Bear River, and Frank Kinney, of Barton, are cousins.

WILD FLOWER PROTECTION

Every province in Canada possesses a rich heritage of native flora. From early spring until cold weather returns in the autumn our woods and glens provide a succession of charming flowers, more varied and quite as beautiful as the best gardens provide. Unfortunately many of our citizens, particularly of the larger centres of population, regard this abundance as a gift to be trampled at will. Without thought for the perpetuation of the native stock they descend upon the inviting groves week after week and seem to take pleasure in gathering with reckless abandon the most charming flowers in bloom. It is commencing to be realized that this unrestrained gathering of wild plants is threatening the disappearance of many of the finest of the native species. The Ontario Horticultural Association, conscious of the danger, took steps at their recent convention to arouse a public sentiment towards the protection of the native flora.

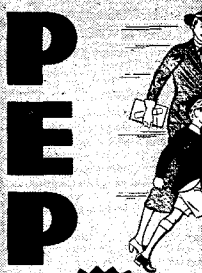

In an address by the incoming president, J. B. Spencer, of Ottawa, it was pointed out that some of the finest plants have already disappeared and others will follow in their wake unless a more sane attitude possesses the flower pickers who visit the wooded areas from time to time. The fact was disclosed that no less than twenty-three of the American states have passed laws designed to protect wild plants. Reference was made also to the organization and work of the Wild Flower Preservation Society with headquarters in the United States capital. This organization through its branches carries on its work chiefly by influencing public sentiment by lectures, newspaper articles and poster campaigns. No attempt is made to prevent the picking of wild bloom, which they point out should be done only in a sane and thoughtful manner with regard for the future. Rules strongly urged are that sufficient flowers should be left to form seed and that plants should not be torn up by the roots. Some species such as violets, hepaticas and others with flower stems rising directly from the roots may be freely picked so long as the plant body is not disturbed. Others, like trillium, the newly selected floral emblem of Ontario, should never be gathered freely as the flowers cannot be picked without removing all the foliage and on this depends the maturing of the bulbous root for the following season's crop.

What is needed, Mr. Spencer urged, is the developing of an attitude towards the native flora similar to that which has come to possess the youth of our land toward wild life. Instead of a rush for the gun or the catnap when an unusual bird or animal appears, the normal lad now takes his pleasure, it was pointed out, in erecting bird houses and feeding stations, and in other ways making friends with the feathered and furry visitors which come and go or remain throughout the year to add so much to the joys of life. With organized effort this same sentiment can be developed towards the flowers of the fields and the woods.

BIG CONSUMPTION MAPLE PRODUCTS.

From 25 to 30 million pounds of maple products in terms of maple sugar and syrup are consumed in the United States annually. Imports from Canada for the past six years averaged 4,143,487 pounds, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. From 12 to 15 million pounds are accounted for by large commercial users, the chief outlet for Canadian maple sugar and syrup, and the remainder is disposed of through the retail trade, Vermont, New York and Pennsylvania.

BETTER BRAN FLAKES

Be sure you get genuine bran flakes that contain enough bran to be mildly laxative. Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes are truly better bran flakes. Popular with the whole family. Delicious. Nourishing. Ready to eat with milk or cream.

Enjoy these better bran flakes often. Always over-crisp at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

nia are the chief sources of supply for maple sugar in the United States; while Vermont, New York and Ohio supply the greater quantity of maple syrup. A fairly large quantity of maple sugar is imported from the Beauce district of the province of Quebec which is irregular in colour and flavour and packed and sold in burlap bags. Due to its peculiar flavour it is used by blinders and to a certain extent by manufacturing confectioners, and cannot be replaced by types of sugar produced in the United States.

WHY BLAME THE LAW?

It was a common argument in the days of the Temperance Pledge of 1929 in Nova Scotia that the Prohibition Law stood in the way of the moderate drinker getting and using his liquor without being dubbed a law-breaker. That being so, the law should be changed so that he could get his liquor when and where he wanted it without violating any law of the land. Then there was brought in a whole troop of alleged faults with the existing law. It was said for example, that the very existence of a law saying "Thou shalt not" aroused the liberty loving spirit of man into an attitude of defiance that protested, "We will, law or no law." So it was claimed there was more drunkenness and more boot-legging because there was a law that restricted drinking and selling. It was said that such a law could not be enforced

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You are taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, or the pains of rheumatism, neuralgia or neuritis, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with "Aspirin."

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians because they were bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Demand and Get "ASPIRIN" and the whole community would be better with it off the statute books. Change the law, they said, and you will change the other evils. There will be less drunkenness, less boot-legging.

Now there is a splendid chance here to marshal evidence to show that neither drunkenness nor boot-legging have been lessened with the changing of the law. But I am not going to take advantage of it today. I just want to ask why it is that when a law is broken by the people of the land in any considerable numbers we turn right round and blame the law? When a law against the sale of liquor stands in the way of a ring of money-making adventurers, they sneak their way around it or through it, and sell in spite of it. And then when they get out of control a bit, there grows up a sort of public sentiment that says, "The law is wrong—away with it!" When a set of men who have a liking for liquor find themselves unable to secure it without sneaking it to their homes, illegally, the silent protest after a bit becomes more vocal. "We must have our liquor—the law is wrong that forbids it."

Well, follow it up. A man wants to get that nice car he sees parked in his neighbor's driveway. But the law forbids him stealing it. There's a way with the law! A man has a grudge against his neighbor or an alien; he will get square with him by assaulting him after dark on a lonely road—away with the law that forbids! That quarantining disease on my door forbids me going to the talks; let I menace the whole community with a dangerous disease. But I want to go—then away with the law! You see where this little business of blaming the law leads. Why do we not look to our own hearts and suspect there may be something wrong with ourselves that we should want to do the thing that it turns out the law forbids? Is it not wrong for a man to want to steal, to assault his neighbor, to endanger the health of the community? And is it not wrong for me to menace my own health, efficiency and character—wrong for my own sake and for the sake of society to whom I owe my best? Is it not wrong for me to seek revenge, to sow the seed of ill-will, to sow the seed of the well-being of society? May it be not the law but I that need changing? To resist the law when it crosses me—that way lies anarchy.

LARGER CONSUMPTION SEA FISH ANTICIPATED

The annual total catch of codfish off the east coast of North America for the thirty year period 1896-1925 averaged 1,103,000,000 pounds. Of this quantity Newfoundland accounted for 538,000,000 pounds; Canada and France, 225,000,000 pounds each; United States, 130,000,000 pounds. 84 per cent of the New England catch is sold as fresh fish, the remainder being salted and processed. The Pacific Coast fisheries average from twelve to twenty million pounds of codfish per annum. Canada is the chief source of supply of codfish, along with haddock, hake, pollock and cusk, for the United States market, followed by Newfoundland, Great Britain, France, Iceland, St. Pierre and Miquelon; Japan and Norway, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. There has been a marked decrease in the imports of salt-cured codfish with 45 per cent or less of moisture, while codfish with more than that percentage shows a large increase. Gaspe cured codfish is in demand among Italians in the United States with New York the chief market, but with the decline of immigration from Italy demand is decreasing. The second generation of Italians in the United States prefer the American meal diet. The annual per capita consumption of fresh frozen fish in the United States is approximately 5,134 pounds; salted 0.972, smoked 0.288, tinned 3.668. This is considered small as compared with other countries, owing to large areas at a distance from salt water, but an increased consumption of sea fish is looked for in view of the rapid development and improvement of refrigerator facilities throughout the country and the growth in the salt or frozen fish of all kinds. Preference for fillets of cod is showing an increase.

TUNA FISHING DRAWING ANGERS.

Judging by the number of inquiries a large number of deep-sea anglers will visit the south shore of Nova Scotia this season in search of tuna, according to the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways. A world record tuna was caught on this shore by a Chicago sportsman with hook and line in 1934. The record fish weighed 956 pounds. Last summer a considerable number of sportsmen from the United States visited this shore and many were successful in landing one or more tuna.

The message was based on "The Raiment of Jesus", which Matthew tells us that when they led Jesus forth to be crucified the soldiers removed the purple garment and dressed Him up in his own raiment again. ### EASTER LANTERN SERVICE FOR CHILDREN

The Easter season was marked by a fine lantern service for children, given by the teachers and pupils of St. John's Anglican Sunday School. About two hundred children, representing every denomination in the town, gathered in Sanford's Hall on Friday evening, to witness the presentation of the "Easter" and "Brownie" Packs. The children greatly appreciated the beautiful pictures illustrating the "Life of Christ," giving great attention and exhibiting a reverent spirit.

Mrs. E. W. Robinson, "Mother" of the recently organized local Brownie Pack, showed the pictures, accompanying them with an eloquent address, explaining the different scenes and their significance. A number of young people assisted as officers and in other ways.

BOY SCOUTS VISITED BY COMMISSIONER GREENWAY

As an evening was available for Bear River for the showing of the motion pictures of Baden-Powell's Canadian Tour, by Field Commissioner Greenway, of the Boy Scouts' Association, arrangements were made by Scout Master, J. H. Cunningham, to have them shown in Sanford's Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

A warm welcome was accorded the Commissioner by all branches of the Scout organization, which were in full force in spite of the short notice, and the pictures were much appreciated by them and the audience generally.

The Bear River Troop, at its last regular meeting, presented a Forester's Proficiency Badge to Conrad Harris, and a Second Class Scout Badge to Gerald Buckler, several of the Tenderfoot members also passing their test for Scouts' Pace within the time limit.

EASTER CONCERT IN BAPTIST CHURCH

The auditorium of the Bear River United Baptist Church was beautifully decorated for the Easter services. The chancel was covered with a screen of daffodils and trailing myrtle; the platform banded with ferns and flowering plants, and the communion table decorated with a beautiful Easter lily, flanked by pots of tulips. Easter music was splendidly rendered by a full choir, under the direction of Mrs. Carroll Clarke, with Miss Louise Harris presiding at the organ. The selections included the anthems, "The Rays of Victory Dawn," and "Alleluia, Christ is Risen."

The sweet soprano voice of Mrs. Walter Chute was heard in a solo, "Golden Hairs are Sounding." The address of Rev. S. F. Stevens, the pastor, was based on the theme, "Easter Resurrection." In the evening the church was filled to capacity. The Bismarck band, under the leadership of Mrs. Stevens, presented an Easter concert, the choir assisting with vocal selections. By request, the anthem, "Alleluia, Christ is Risen," was repeated, and "King, Hele of Heaven," was also sung. At the close of the concert the ordinance of baptism was administered to four candidates.

EASTER MUSIC IN THE UNITED CHURCH

A most enjoyable as well as impressive Easter service was held in the United Church, on Sunday morning, when special Easter music was rendered by a full choir, with Miss Harriet Marshall, of Halifax, at the organ. The opening anthem, "Hail to the King Victorious," was beautifully sung. A duet by Mrs. W. C. Harris, "A Lullaby of Hope," in keeping with the season, was very lovely, the blending of the voices being particularly good. As an offertory Miss Marshall played the "Hallelujah Chorus" with sound effect, the playing of a much larger instrument. This offertory was much appreciated by the congregation. The closing anthem, "Behold the Lamb of God," was very well rendered—the bass being taken by Harry Purdy and Morris Benson. The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Marshall, gave a very lovely rendering of the "Easter Anthem," which was also very lovely. Good music is always associated with this season, and those who attended the service on Sunday were not disappointed.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE

Smith took the Seventh and Eighth words. After each short address three stanzas of Litany 789 were sung, while kneeling. Q.—How can I store furs properly?

A.—First, see that the fur is thoroughly cleaned. Then buy ten cents worth of twist tobacco, crumble it into fine particles and sprinkle it over the fur. Then wrap in tissue paper and place in a suit box with cleo-foam lining. Also wrap the box in several thicknesses of newspapers. The odor of tobacco will not cling to the fur as tenaciously as moth balls.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The little about a pound or two pounds of bile flows into your stomach daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the stomach. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into your body and you feel weak, sick and the world looks pink.

A most wonderful medicine does "liver" get at the cause. You need something that works at the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless and sure, they make the bile flow freely and the work of the liver is done. You feel better and your blood is clean. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Satisfactorily proves anything else, too.

Sunset from the Old Back Road

Am an hour late with the cows tonight. It's almost dark. Been out long enough over that four-mile trip to get home twice—from where we live at the foot of the hill, to where the back road leaves the shore road—on up that steep grade past the John Dunbar home. Up and up till you strike the flat of the Oakes properties, now owned by Walter Payson, of whom I have already written.

It is midsummer, when the days are longest. From the top of the hill you can see the sun go down over Digby Gut and into the Bay of Fundy—about eight o'clock in the evening.

It doesn't take long to run out to the old pasture, past old Mary's field, and Jacob Smith's, Hinkman's, and Welch's. Then comes our cow pasture, leading from the back road on a line with the Hinkman property, for upward of two miles to the hemlocks at Dunn's Brook—with about half a mile frontage on the back road.

Starting out from home, barefooted, with an old straw hat and very lightly dressed, I make the grade up the hill like a young deer—not wading, rying about scratched feet, limping, some thought on account of stone bruises. Soon I make the pasture and if the cows are at the road gate I always have about half an hour to play. And that makes the gathering of rushes and making rush hats. Say, boys, you know how we used to bring them and the fun we had doing it.

Then, there are all the bird nests. I have to visit—and that is great fun. Watching the birds, from the time they start to build their little homes, all so neatly woven and padded with hair, feathers, and twigs, which they have gathered from the ground or from the trees against which the cattle have chafed. Then, too, the soft mosses and the wood bits or fibre, a combination making a bed equal to a feather down—just like a cushion, such as grandpa or grandma would enjoy sitting themselves into when their bones ache with rheumatism.

Speaking of bird nests—and the wood pith—you will recall the hornet nests and the wasp nests which we loved to invade. And, don't you remember of what they were made? Well, it was the web of flies, the tender, gathered from the surface of the weather beaten and exposed stumps, rails, stakes, and posts. The hornets and the wasps could not—like the bird—carry over the weight of a feather nor the hair from the web which to build their home. Therefore, the nests of the hornets and the wasps have, all thro' the ages, been built from the weather worn fibres of the wood pulp, or rather from the weather decay of the wood.

But I must hasten. Time is passing fast and I know I am late. The cows are at the far end of the swamps in the back pasture, but they know my call. I know the ankle of old Jerry's bell and always have something in my pocket for her as she comes to greet me. So I can "coo" the cows in for half a mile—while sitting on a stump or playing with the ants and the crickets.

Come on, now, Jerry, and the rest of you good girls. Your tumblers are all full and you want to be milked. I never hurry you home; and you will want to graze a little down by the Dunbar spring and get your last good drink of cool refreshing water before you go to the stalls—where you know there is a bit of hay for you.

Now we are back at the top of the hill on our way home. I am going to rest a little while on the rocks beside the gooseberry bushes and watch the sun go down. It is yet a half hour—over here. The sky over the Bay of Fundy and Digby Gut—and the Basin—is fringed with fleecy clouds of many brilliant colors. The sun is large and red—a pretty good sign of rain. Off to the south the clouds are heavy and dark; there is distant thunder, which I enjoy, for there is always an echo from the hills around the valley.

One does not realize how fast the sun travels until sitting down and waiting for its passing. Time flies too fast for your mind and your eye are fully attracted by the wonderful transformation taking place. The colors change now, in the fleecy clouds, as the shadows fall. The sun passes from the heavens seemingly into the ocean, down, down—ever more grand and more glowing—growing larger—coloring changing—with the roll of thunder nearer, and a distant lightning flash.

Say boys, you remember, you've been with me on the hill and have seen this beautiful picture. Yes, there is none so grand any place that I have ever been in. In all my experience, where I have witnessed sunsets that impressed me as much, or gave as much food for thought, or gave as an inspiration, as watching the sunset from the old back road atop the Dunbar hill.

Well, now, the cows have beat me home and I must hasten for I am late and mother will scold. She wants the milk for the pans to be set away in the cool cellar for the skimming of the cream in the morning. But, say, there's a job for me at the churn.

There will be something new tomorrow, and I'll be seeing you again.

R. M. Nichols

GERMANY ISSUES NEW VERSION OF SERMON ON MOUNT

Christ's Sermon on the Mount has been adapted to a modern German view, by Reichsbishop Ludwig Muller.

The main feature of the new version is elimination of all references to Jerusalem. King Solomon, the Pharisees and Scribes, laws and prophecies, as made in the Gospel according to Saint Matthew.

These references are held to be Jewish, and therefore to be rejected. The "modernized" sermon on the Mount was issued in the form of a book entitled, "The German Words of God, rendered into German, by Reichsbishop Ludwig Muller."

The Reichsbishop explained that he purposely avoided the word "translated" in reference to his version. The exhortation to turn the other cheek to a smiter is rendered by Reichsbishop Muller thus:

"If thy comrade smite thee in the face in his wrath, it is not always right to smite him back. It is more mainly to preserve a superior calm. Mayhap thy comrade will repent."

For Pharisees and Scribes, the Reichsbishop substituted "teachers and preachers" for the law and prophets, "divine truths" for Christ's blessings, were changed; as for example: "Blessed is he who bears his sorrow manfully. He will find strength not to despair."

"Blessed is he who keeps good comradeship always, for such is the will of God."

Dr. Otto Dibelius, a prominent Evangelical church leader, criticized Reichsbishop's Muller's new interpretations in an article in the fortnightly "Junge Kirche," asserting Dr. Muller dethroned God.

Instead of the divine revelation, Dr. Dibelius said, "he would give us the voice of blood, comradeship and honor. All human emotions."

Dr. Muller's forward to readers of his new book concludes with the signature, "Your Reichsbishop." The Supreme Evangelical Church Council has lodged a formal objection to this designation.

National Floral Emblems

Mother Canada and four of her provinces—New Brunswick, Manitoba, Alberta and Ontario—have adopted native floral emblems. Canada's emblem, the Maple Leaf, like the trailing arbutus of Nova Scotia, was highly favoured more than a century ago. The former, like the Rose of England, the Thistle of Scotland, the Shamrock of Ireland and many of the older national emblems became established without official enactment or public proclamation. The trailing arbutus or mayflower, of Nova Scotia, the anemone of Manitoba, and the wild rose of Alberta have been made official by provincial legislation and a bill already prepared to give official standing to the trillium for Ontario is expected to be enacted by the Ontario legislature during the present sitting.

National flowers have in certain countries a peculiar significance or are symbolic of the characteristic or feelings of the nations. In many cases, as in the Canadian provinces and in the United States, the chosen flower has been adopted by legislation. In other cases as in Egypt, India and Japan it has by its association with poetry, religious ceremonies or popular sentiment of the people, gradually become universally recognized as the nation's symbol. In connection with each of these there is an interesting story.

The Canadian emblem more than a century ago was regarded as highly symbolic of the Canadian people. This was indicated at a banquet of the Saint-Jean Baptiste Society held in Montreal on June 24, 1838. The banqueting hall was profusely decorated with branches, and leaves of the sugar maple and the main speaker—Denis-Benjamin Vigy—spoke eloquently of the virtues of the maple tree which was highly prized for its sturdiness in the forest, the substantial character of its wood for fuel and lumber and its great service to the pioneer in its annual harvest of syrup and sugar. The sentiments expressed by the speaker were undoubtedly popular in those early days of Canada.

The trailing arbutus, made the official emblem for Nova Scotia in 1901, was highly regarded as early as 1825 when the flower was represented in a decoration that appeared on the front page of "The Nova-Scotian". Thirty years after it was associated with the rose, the thistle and the shamrock on postage stamps. This flower is also the state flower of Massachusetts where it is better known as the mayflower. There its name was associated with the Pilgrim Fathers, who, at the end of their first winter of great privation, on seeing the first flowers of the spring appearing from soil called the mayflower, after the historic ship that brought them to Plymouth Rock.

The Manitoba emblem, the anemone patens, chosen by the provincial Horticultural Society, was made official in 1902. Also known as the windflower and Pasque flower it is the state flower of South Dakota.

Alberta's emblem, the wild rose, is also the state flower of North Dakota, Iowa, New York and Georgia.

The rose of England as the floral emblem dates back to the thirteenth century when Edward I chose it in honour of his mother who was known as the Rose of France. Two centuries later Henry VII chose for his badge the Tudor rose which is described as a double red bloom with a white centre. The thistle of Scotland served a useful purpose in the early days when a night attack was being made by a Danish army. A bare-footed Dane, stepping on a thistle tried to give alarm to the defending soldiers who quickly drove them off. The leek for Wales was also chosen for its service in war. When Cadwallader the Welsh leader was about to meet Edwin, King of Northumbria, he ordered his men to wear a leek in their helmets to enable him to distinguish them from the enemy soldiers. The result was victory for the Welsh and the choice of the leek as the nation's emblem. Ireland chose the Shamrock when it helped St. Patrick to make clear to the worshipping the mystery of the Trinity.

The fleur-de-lis, or iris, the French emblem, is said to have been used in coronation ceremonies. When a king was crowned he was carried around his people carrying an iris to represent a sceptre.

Interesting stories could be told about the lotus of Egypt and India; the chrysanthemum of Japan, the cornflower of Germany, the linden of Prussia, the amaranth of Sweden and of the fort, odd state flower of the American Union. Most of the United States state flowers have been adopted within the past forty years, some by the school children but in most cases by the state legislature on the recommendation of authoritative bodies such as the Daughters of America.

SCALLOP BOATS

HAVE TROUBLE

Wednesday evening the Bay View Life Boat and crew brought to port the scallop sloop operated by Capt. John Tibbets. The boat was having difficulties with her battery. When she was at the Life Saving Station from the Princess Helene that the Tibbets' craft was in difficulty, and the life boat set out to find her. However, Capt. Tibbets had managed to make his way under his own power to the Gut, where he was picked up.

On Wednesday the sloop Voiletta G. had the misfortune to lose her nets while carrying on scallop-dragging operations in the Bay of Fundy. The Digby scallop sloop Voiletta G. was towed into port Friday of last week by the life boat "Deering" from the Bay View Life Saving Station. In some manner the boat napped her rudder post while on the grounds dragging scallops. The crew made their way to the Gut from where they signalled the life boat by using their dory oar for a rudder.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hayden were pleasantly surprised Easter Sunday when they received a telephone call from their daughter, Violet, and her husband, Professor Edwin Farmer, at New York. Every word being clear and distinct.

The Flamingo G. G. T. F. group of Grace United church left at 8:15 Monday morning for a sunrise worship period. The aroma from the camp served as a tonic for poor appetites, and little while when they were through. As the sun rose and the story of it shone on the waters, the leaders led in a worship period of hymns and Bible readings, closing with a short prayer. The group returned from their hike in time to attend the morning session at school.

Tragic Death of Mr. F. G. Pauli

Death came swiftly to Frederick Gustav Pauli at his beautiful little home, "The Cascades", some four miles from town, and near the village of Bay View, early Wednesday morning, something between 6 and 7:30 o'clock. At 7:30 his lifeless body was found by Harry Adams, employed by Mr. Pauli, shortly after his arrival for work. The body lay across a blood-spattered bed, and clutched in the right hand was a .32 calibre automatic revolver. The fatal bullet had entered the right temple of the unfortunate man, passed through his head, and was imbedded in the door post of his bathroom.

At the next room, the living room or "den" of the comfortable cabin was a neat place, one addressed to his personal friend, Dr. B. DuVernet; another to St. George and still another to Mrs. Dr. Holmson. Other envelopes contained his bill and insurance papers.

Mr. and Mrs. DuVernet was of a personal nature, and was dated April 21, 1936. Enclosed in this envelope was another enclosure in which Mr. Pauli had written to his family, his last letter. This enclosure had evidently been written some time ago. The letter to Mr. Keen gave instructions as to where the clothes he wished to be buried would be found, and that to Dr. Holmson contained a personal note, and a long typewritten copy of the Pauli genealogy.

An investigation into the tragedy was made by Coroner L. J. Lovett, M. D., of Bear River, with S. A. Keen, of the coroner of the jury. A verdict was returned that the deceased came to his death as the result of the bullet wound in the head "the shooting being with suicidal intent."

Witnesses examined were Harry Adams, J. Hart Hayden, Dr. John B. MacCleave and William Ellis. The first witness told of finding the body when he reported for work at 7:30 in the morning, and of how Mr. Pauli paid him and Horton Stark their wages on Tuesday afternoon instead of on Saturday as usual, "because he wasn't feeling well, and might be in the hospital before the end of the week."

J. Hart Hayden testified that Mr. Pauli had called him on the phone early in the afternoon, asking that he come and spend the night with him as he was not feeling well. They sat up until 12:40 listening in on the radio. Mr. Hayden left at 6 in the morning, after Mr. Pauli had served him a cup of coffee.

Mr. MacCleave told how he had been called on the phone by Mr. Pauli at a m. Tuesday morning. He went down and called on him. The deceased explained he was not feeling well, and had been greatly worried over the loss of his business. He asked Mr. MacCleave to return again at 7 p. m., which he did. At that time, the doctor stated, he found him in better spirits. He stayed with him for an hour, Pauli talking about his younger days. Before leaving, Mr. Pauli loaned him a book, and told him he had, and in his library, he would like him to read, and would loan it to him when he returned this one.

William Ellis identified the handwriting of the letters as that of the deceased. Frederick Gustav Pauli was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., May 8, 1881, and was the son of the late August Johann Pauli, who came to America from Neunkirchen, Germany. He was one of a very old and influential family and was able to trace his ancestry back over several centuries. The deceased received his early education in Germany. For most of his life he was associated with a well known New York Dry Goods House, and was a member of several prominent athletic clubs in the New York area. In 1919 he moved from Brooklyn to New York City.

The deceased had travelled extensively in Europe and United States. In the year 1908 made a canoe trip to the Hudson Bay District, writing an account of the same, which may be found in the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C. In 1908 he came to Canada to reside, and since that time has lived for most of the time in the vicinity of Digby, building his lovely cabin, "The Cascades", where he has lived almost entirely by himself, in 1928.

Surviving Mr. Pauli are three nieces, Ruth, Corinne and Rosamond; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Herman Pauli, and a cousin, John L. DeWitt, of the New York firm of Wright & Cullins. He never married.

BAND CONCERT A GREAT SUCCESS

The auditorium of the large St. Patrick's Hall was filled to capacity last Thursday evening by an appreciative audience who witnessed what they judged to be the finest concert program ever presented by the Digby Civic Band, under the direction of their conductor, Paul Yates.

Thursday night's programme was divided into two parts of eight numbers each. The first part, which was entirely of instrumental music by the band, was a performance which many of the larger bands would be proud to duplicate. The opening number was a march from "Tannhauser" by Richard Wagner; this was followed by a trio, (cornet, D. Daley; trombone, R. Turnbull; euphonium, W. Christie), from the opera, "Arlene" by Giuseppe Verdi; other numbers were the overture "Pomp and Circumstance" by Franz von Suppe; "Minuet in G" by Beethoven.

Euphonium solo with variations, played by Billie Christie with Band accompaniment from an arrangement by Fred Harlow; a selection from Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow"; and the band interpretation of a circus parade.

Seven year old Diana Wallis, and her sister Winnifred, of Bear River, were the stars in the second half of the programme. Little Diana first gave an impersonation of Shirley Temple with song and tap dancing. She was followed by Winnifred's song, "Alice Blue Gown". Other numbers rendered by Diana were a musical recitation "The Night, Somebody to Love" and "Aloha", with sailor's hornpipe. The two sisters closed the programme with a request number "The Dance of the Gay Nineties" with specialities.

Miss Florence Dunn, of Bear River, played the piano accompaniment, much credit is due Miss Dunn for the wonderful training she has given these young artists.

Other numbers on the second half of the programme included a bass solo "Hail on, Thou Deep and Male Quarantine", and a vocal number by the Digby Civic Band, "Spring Rhythm". The closing song was "Aloha".

Accompaniments were played by Mrs. Guy E. Morehouse.

During the intermission, brief speeches in behalf of the Band were delivered by Harold A. Nichols, President of the Digby Board of Trade, and by Rev. A. G. Robertson.

By the distribution of a number of tickets to school children it was possible that many of the youngsters were able to witness this splendid performance.

In New Quarters.
The Canadian National Telegraph Company yesterday commenced to do business in their new office, in the Shoreline Block. This office has been located in the Digby Garage building since the Walsh fire in January, 1935. Miss Lillian Winchester remains in charge as manager. She has been the capable manager of this office for some years and also the old Western Union before it was taken over. The new office is up-to-date in every detail and we should judge, a very pleasant place in which to work.

A few years ago he moved to Toronto where he conducted a furniture business under his own name. He was a member of the Episcopal Christian Church, in Toronto. ## "THE MEN ARE OUT."

"The men are out!" Early yesterday morning that cry was heard and re-echoed throughout the world. That cry from the little hamlet of Moose River, Halifax Co., marked the climax of one of the most thrilling rescue stories in the history of the world—the rescue of two Toronto men, Dr. D. Edwin Robertson and Alfred Scadding, who were buried alive by a cave-in of the McGill Gold Mine, at Moose River, on Easter Sunday. With these two were Herman McGill, who perished in the pit on Monday last, a few hours after the roof of their tomb had been pierced by a dynamite drill. It was this tiny drill hole that brought communication, food and help to the trapped men.

Through the heroic efforts of valiant miners, who, in their attempt to reach the men in the mine, were risking their own lives every minute, the highly climatic was reached at one o'clock yesterday morning when Scadding was brought to the surface. Dr. Robertson was brought up sixteen minutes before Scadding. They had been entombed in that dark prison for nearly eleven days.

We would like to devote more space to this heroic and dramatic rescue, but our readers, with the rest of the world, well know the story through following the radio and daily press.

Rev. A. B. Higgins, of Petite Riviere, is spending a few days in town.

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" and "Pain" relief was a matter of trial and error by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientific tests "Aspirin" among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

COURTESY IS THE ANSWER

The Ontario Department of Highways, from knowledge of the statistics, reports, declares that and reduction in the number of "motor-vehicle-pedestrian accidents" rests upon "observance of the rules of ordinary courtesy."

"The Department could have made the question more general, very large proportion of traffic accidents of all sorts might be avoided by observance of the rules of ordinary courtesy. Plain common sense explains vast numbers of accidents. Far too many motorists leave their cars in dangerous positions when they climb under the wheel of a motor vehicle. They are quite reckless not only of pedestrians but of other cars. They ignore the right of way, leave the curb without signal, make turns without any warning to following traffic, show to their fellow drivers a rudeness, a lack of that ordinary courtesy, which represent almost a psychological condition.

"Common politeness does not permit of running with lights to avoid crossings of cutting perilously ahead of other cars in traffic, of crowding lights and clings, of speeding on city streets. In a word we should take to the highways our drawings-room manners, and in no doing we would save many lives and much suffering."

MY DEBT TO MY TOWN

My town owes me nothing. If accounts were balanced on this date, I would be the debtor. Haven't I, all these years, lived within the limits of the town and shared all its benefits? Haven't I had the benefit of its schools and churches, its fire and health departments? Haven't I its people, during all this time, been gathering for me, from the four corners of the earth, food for my table, clothing for my body, and money for my home? Haven't my town furnished the patronage by which I have succeeded in any business? Haven't I furnished the best friends of my life, whose ideas have been my inspiration, whose kind words have been my cheer, and whose help has been my aid over the greatest difficulties?

"What will I give in return?" Not simply the taxes which cover so small a part of what I have received. I want to give more. I want, of my own free will, to give enough that I can rightfully say, "This is my town," so that I can take pride in its prosperity, that I can take pride in its prosperity. In the honors which come to its citizens, and all that makes it greater and better.

"I can do this only by becoming a part of the town—by giving to it generously of myself. In this way only can I, even in small part, pay the great debt I owe to my town,"—the chance.

STUDY MADE OF RURAL TAXATION

While it is recognized that the problems of taxation are not by any means confined to the rural communities, it is believed that, because of the critical conditions which have existed during recent years in the agricultural industry, the taxation of farm property is one of the most important problems confronting the Dominion. In order, therefore, to provide a basis for better understanding of rural government and consequent improvement of the taxation system, the results of a study of farm taxation in the province of Ontario have been assembled by the Agricultural Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and published in bulletin form under the title of "Taxation in Rural Ontario," by S. C. Hudson, Assistant Agricultural Economist.

The study also includes a review of provincial and municipal relations and a detailed examination of public receipts and expenditures in selected townships and counties. It is felt that such an investigation is of direct concern to the farmers of Ontario, and indirectly of concern to those in other provinces. The facts included in the bulletin are not designed for sectional comparisons but must be interpreted as being drawn from representative municipalities, with the thought in this way a more detailed analysis of the situation may be obtained. The Dominion Department of Agriculture, because of its responsibility to farmers throughout Canada, has given its support to this project in the belief that more information is necessary on the subject of taxation and while the present study deals with but one phase of the question, it is a phase that must be considered in any general treatment of the vehicle subject. The extension of such a remedy to other provinces and the inclusion of other forms of taxation demands consideration. The bulletin contains 22 pages of hard-picked data and analyses of much importance to farmers, and there is a limited supply for free distribution by the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

DICTATORS AND — DICTATORS

Democracy has, after all, a great deal of tenacity in the United States, says the Christian Science Monitor. Not many months ago the political air was resounding with charges that dictatorship was in the saddle in Washington.

One of the spokesmen for such fears was Gov. Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, who demanded to know, though in less drastic phrases, "upon what merit doth this one Charles feed?" Such a strong individualist did the Governor appear that he was considerably built up by some as a hopeful preserver of the Constitution.

Yet just a few weeks ago Governor Talmadge, notwithstanding constitutional doubts of his authority, used the national guard to oust the state treasurer and the controller general, ordered a blow torch to open state vaults and commanded banks to turn over deposits to a new treasurer—all reportedly in an effort to run the State through 1936 without a special session of the State Legislature lest it pass an old-age pension amendment.

Now, however, his attempted "financial dictatorship" has been well nigh dissolved by a decision of a three-judge superior court that state funds cannot be withdrawn from depositors without an appropriation act.

Another thunderer at Washington "regimentation" has long been Col. Robert R. McCormick. Through personal speeches and his newspaper, the Chicago Tribune, he has breathed fire and brimstone against the NRA, the AAA and the Black Committee.

On March 1, several weeks ahead of the inauguration of daylight-saving time in other American cities, people in Chicago moved their clocks ahead and stepped out, some of them, into the sun, grey dawn, to go to work. This was not merely daylight-saving time, but was Eastern standard time, which makes Chicago an island in a central time belt.

Why was this done? The reason is not clear, but a chain of circumstance runs like this: The time change works to the advantage of Chicago's McCormick Tribune in competition with the afternoon Chicago Daily News, and of its radio station, WGN, in carrying New York programmes. The Republican Tribune supported Democratic Mayor Kelly in the last municipal election. The Kelly-controlled city council voided the time change ordinance. Now, however, the usual reaction to regimentation has set in and many of Chicago's 3,500,000 persons, contentedly playing an 8 o'clock winter sunrise have protested this alteration of their everyday habits—so many that the city council, which at first refused a referendum on the subject, has at length reversed itself and voted to co-operate in obtaining one.

What has happened to dictatorial tendencies in Washington as a result of Supreme Court decisions, increased congressional independence and reformation of popular sentiment is well shown. These instances illustrate that the desire for domination, and that is the root of dictatorship, is not the peculiar characteristic of one individual or even a few. Who can be sure he hasn't a little of it to look out for in himself?

Temperance Table Talks

"PREVENTION" OUR MOTTO

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." It is an old proverb with a very new application. Recent years have given it new emphasis and expanding currency, until it is written everywhere on the programmes of our modern life. The doctor of today of course deals with disease wherever he meets it, just as doctors have always done, but one of his great missions is, as never before, the prevention of disease. And so we have all kinds of inoculations, methods of quarantining in contagious disease areas, new emphasis on dieting, the organization of health institutes, health leaflets in our public schools, systematic efforts through printed page and public platform to educate the general public in the proper observance of the laws of health. The wise man today aims to keep well rather than foolishly run into the way of ill-health and then give the doctor an impossible task too often to make him well again.

And what is being done in the world of health and disease is typical of our general practice in other spheres—business, mechanics, industry, morals, everywhere. Science has been trained to deal with causes, and effects will then be the result. Alcohol, study and experimentation have gone on in determining the effects of alcohol on the human organism. Out of it all has come the knowledge that the use of alcoholic beverages upon the whole human make-up has been altogether destructive. Now science is busy fact are coming into the witness, box every day. If we are wise we will deal not simply with the wreckage but with the cause of the wreckage. This new day, with its new demands for efficiency of body, mind and spirit, calls for the total elimination of alcoholic beverages as no other day has done. Every educator, moral and governmental agency of today should in their wisdom concentrate upon the eradication of the alcoholic tradition from our way of living. What a round of social and moral disasters would be avoided by so doing! "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

SMALL SHOPKEEPER IS WELL DESERVING

The small shopkeeper is deserving of better treatment from the buying public than he is usually getting. Often the remark is made that the corner grocer is making a fortune because some of his prices are a cent higher than the chain store. But when the situation is clearly viewed the small grocer is found to be the one of the better of society although he generally gives services that cannot be replaced by the larger store.

Even so, the small grocer is prone to buy on credit from the community shopkeeper, but when they have cash, they spend it with the bigger fellows.

A community grocer recently pointed to a man going past laden with parcels. This man, the grocer said, went to larger shops when he had cash and almost every day he went past the corner grocer with loads from other shops. However, when that man was pressed for cash he went to the community grocer and bought on credit. At the time in question he owed the grocer more than $50 and was paying that only in small instalments, while purchasing for cash elsewhere.

Few people realize that it costs the grocer something to extend credit. He must pay for the goods he gets whether his customers pay or not. Under such conditions the corner shopkeeper is compelled to charge slightly more for some articles.

Sometimes it is said that if the local merchants had not held out for higher profits the chain store would not have come in. But suppose all the small shopkeepers during the past few years had operated on the same basis as the chain groceries, which is pay cash and carry your purchases the relief situation would be much more serious and those families who are being given credit by the corner grocer, would be in a sorry plight.

Some little time ago a group of rural residents got together and decided to check up on their needs and send an order to a mail order house. They made up an order which totalled nearly $200. A person who heard of the contemplated purchase asked why the order was not given to the local shopkeeper and suggested that the shopkeeper be given a chance to quote on the order. This was done and the grocer offered to sell the goods for $2.00 more than the mail order price. As it was a cash order the group suggested that the shopkeeper take off the $2.00. The shopkeeper pointed out that he had been selling goods for some years and had given credit without question to his neighbors. He had supplied goods before they were paid for. In fact most of the group owed him money at that time, some individuals as high as $55.00. He said he had made a bare living but he had contributed to the building of the church and the school and had supplied goods to the people whether they had money or not. He thought the city was worth something but if they believed he was of no benefit to the community to send the order to the mail order house.

This instance illustrates the fact that the people do not think as they should. Thoughtlessness is the cause of much of the trouble in the present day. The vacant shops, the unemployment have been the result of thoughtlessness. The remedy for anything cannot be found until the cause of the trouble is found. Be fair with your family, play fair with your neighbors, and play fair with the community shopkeeper and some of the problems of the country will be solved.

Wool Growers Prosperous

Sheep farmers of New Zealand, who shear about 80,000,000 animals every year, started this year with better prospects than in many a year. The summer season, which has just passed there, saw buyers coming from all parts of the world. A rise in the price of wool caused the total receipts of the first six wool auction sales to amount to $8,750,000, which is $2,000,000 more than was paid the year before.

They presented the same show in the Community Theatre, Weymouth, on Friday, April 24th, where it was much enjoyed by all.

Every one played their part well, especially Fletcher Bartlett and Baden Powell. "Laddie" Jones played gamster—but he was not a dangerous one—for at that fatal moment when he pulled the trigger, his revolver failed to go off—but never mind, he got his man—Mr. B. Powell felt over just the same!

LOSES IN TEN-ROUND BOUT

Slugging a comeback in the last round of his scheduled bout with Earl McLeod, Kentville battler, Johnny McLeod, of Saint John, retained his Maritime Lightweight title at the Forum, in Saint John, on Monday night.
During nine rounds, McLeod found it rough fathoming McLeod's style but he managed to stave off the sharp blasts of the latter, shooting straight into the air in the running up to the start.

He caught McLeod with rights and lefts to the face, head and body. It was the contest in the final round that meant victory.

Mrs. Joseph McLeod, Bear River—

Obituary

Bernice Oickle

This community was shocked Tuesday morning at the sudden death of little eleven-year-old Bernice Oickle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Oickle.
Sunday the child complained of not feeling well and Monday the doctor was called late in the afternoon.
Apparently for some childish ailment and nothing serious was apparent, but Tuesday morning, in answer to a hurry call, the doctor, on his arrival, found the child dead. Mr. and Mrs.
Oickle only took up residence here last year on the Thaddeus Davidson farm, and have one other small daughter. The sympathy of the whole community goes out to them in their dreadfully sudden bereavement.

Mrs. Elizabeth Parker

On April 19th, death removed from Bear River one of its oldest citizens in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Parker, wife of the late Obadiah Parker, who pre-deceased her a number of years ago. The late Mrs. Parker was born at Litchfield, N. S., 82 years ago, the daughter of the late Stephen and Ann McLeod, and came to Bear River a reside thirty-five years ago, where she made a host of friends by her attractive personality, and in spite of semi-invalidism, was an active worker and supporter of the local Advent Christian Church. Her immediate surroundings relative to her death, Mrs.
R. J. Weymouth, of Mechanics Falls,
Maine, and Mrs. Edith Brooks of Springfield, Mass., the latter with her at the time of her death; two brothers, William McLeod, Mount Pleasant, and Frank McLeod, of Saint John, N. S., a number of step-children are also living. The high esteem in which the late Mrs. Parker was held by all who knew her was evidenced by the many beautiful floral tributes, and the very large attendance at the funeral services, despite the rain and cold.
At both house and church beautiful music was rendered. Mrs. Laura Harrington and Mrs. Ralph Purdy singing a favorite hymn of the deceased, "Some Sweet Day, Bye and Bye", and Rev.
P. C. Henderson, pastor of the local Advent Christian Church, of which she was a member, had been a faithful supporter, conducted the services.
Interment was in Mount Hope cemetery.

St. John's Guild met at the home of Mrs. John Harrow, on Wednesday afternoon.

Better for flavor. For crispness. For nourishment and gentle laxative effect.

URGES MORE CARE IN GRADING

Greater care in grading and packing of Nova Scotia farm products, was urged by F. W. Walsh, director of marketing for the province of Nova Scotia, who addressed a well-attended meeting in St. Patrick's Hall, under auspices of the Digby County Farmers' Association, Tuesday evening.

The speaker was strongly of the opinion that Nova Scotia farms and farmers grew potatoes and turnips equal to the products of Prince Edward Island, and that they could raise poultry that could compare with the best raised by farmers in the Canadian West, yet, both in the home and export markets, the imported products had preference over the products of Nova Scotia.

Careless grading and packing, he said, was the reason for this. The imported products are carefully graded, packed and rigidly inspected, and for that reason have the preference of the consumer, the wholesaler and the retailer. Until Nova Scotia farmers wake up and pay more attention to grading and packing they cannot get the markets and prices obtained by their competitors in the field.

He also spoke on the fact that some $12,000,000 of farm products were imported into the province annually. He analyzed this, pointing out that some $4,000,000 of that amount was for food and that it would be folly for Nova Scotia farmers to raise wheat on a commercial basis for flour production; $2,000,000 was for feed—this amount, he claimed could be cut in half by better care and methods of cultivation; $1,000,000 for beef—Nova Scotia farms were better adapted for the raising of dairy cattle and therefore, he did not feel this amount could be cut down by much, but he urged the farmers to produce more butter, thereby reducing the amount of butter imported into the province; and the $3,000,000 worth of pork and pork products imported into the province could be greatly reduced by local farmers, he thought.

Eric C. Boulden, superintendent of Agricultural Associations, who also spoke, urged the farmers, through their societies and associations, to do everything possible to stimulate a greater interest in agriculture by the young men. He reviewed the history of agricultural societies and urged them to keep agitating for a balanced programme for the farmers.

He reiterated the criticism that many of the agricultural societies in the province had deteriorated into "bull clubs, organized for the purpose of obtaining government grants." Although, he said, he believed this to be true in some instances, he had every sympathy with the society that was anxious to improve the livestock in the district by breeding to better sizes.

Raymond LeBlanc, agricultural representative for Digby County, announced a Digby County Farmers' Advisory Board was to be organized in the near future.

At the close of the meeting many of the farmers remained to discuss their problems with the representatives.

UNITED CHURCH CAST PRESENT PLAY

The three-act comedy-drama, "The Three Pigs," was ably presented by the members of the Digby Club of United Church, in the church hall, on Thursday evening last, before a capacity house, it being necessary to bring in chairs in order to accommodate all who sought admission.

The presentation and staging of the play was remarkably well done and much credit is due the members of the cast and directors. From a financial point of view the presentation was also a success, the receipts being in the vicinity of $50.

The story of the play was based on a splendid plot—and situations that kept the audience guessing and laughing. Each member of the cast played her part like a real star.

The play was under the direction of Miss Isabel Williams and Gerald Archibald. We understand the cast intends repeating it at Weymouth in the near future.

Weddings

Cosaboom—Gunn
The home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Gunn, New Glasgow, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday afternoon of last week, when their only daughter, Mary Isabel, was married to Arthur Douglas Cosaboom, son of the late William Cosaboom and Mrs. Cosaboom, of Smith's Cove. Rev. Harold A. Frame, of Trinity United Church, New Glasgow, officiated. Miss Helen McLanderg, of Pictou, the bride's cousin, played the wedding music. To the strains of Loehengrin's Wedding March, and preceded by the groom's little niece, Miss Joyce Steadman, as flower girl, the bride entered the room on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, and took her place under an arch beside the groom. She wore a gown of rich metallic striped pale blue material, in fitted silhouette, the skirt falling below the knees. The shirred neckline and full sleeves were of elasticated green tulle. She wore a touque of white flower petals and mesh veil, silver slippers and long white kid gloves and carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served by Mrs. J. E. Steadman and Mrs. Cecil Gunn. Mr. and Mrs. Cosaboom left for Halifax by motor where they spent a few days before coming to their home in Smith's Cove.

Campbell—Spencer
At a ceremony, April 18th, at the home of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Riston, in Summerville, Mass., Miss Verna Spencer became the bride of Arthur L. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Campbell, of Medford, Mass. The marriage was performed by Dr. Riston and was followed by a reception for relatives at 78 Winchester Street, Medford. The bride wore a gown of pale blue crepe de chene and carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. She was attended by Miss Theodora Fonten, of Summerville, as bridesmaid, and Mrs. Campbell had for her best man, his brother, Allison R. Campbell. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will make their home at 68 Dover Street, Summerville. The best wishes of many friends go with them.

The Brownies and Cubs are presenting a play on the 23th and 30th, in Trinity Parish Hall, under the direction of Miss Betty Collier and Mrs. T. J. Harris. Watch for further particulars.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL IN SESSION

The Municipal Council for the Municipality of Digby met in its semi-annual session on Tuesday afternoon, with the chairman, J. Van Andrews, in the chair. Councillors were present from all districts in the municipality, namely: Councillor Dunn, Outland; Hankinson, Weymouth; Hill, Weymouth North; Chisholm, Bear River; S. Woodman, Conway; W. Woodman, Smith's Cove; Cosaboom, Centerville; Cornwall, Glasgow; Morrell, Freeport; Althouse, Tiverton; Kenney, Westport.

Before taking up any of the business to come before the body the oath of allegiance to King Edward VIII was taken by the warden and councillors. The oath was administered by Stipendiary G. H. Peters.

To date most of the matters to come before the council have been of routine nature and committee work, dealing chiefly with assessments, taxation and tax collections. On Tuesday afternoon the council made their annual inspection of the Almshouse at Marshallow.

Members of the Municipal Council, discussing outside their regular meeting, the article which appeared in last week's edition of the Courier with reference to the arrest of a colored man of Conway for non-payment of taxes, intimated that since that article appeared many have paid their taxes and are unable to pay their taxes on account of poverty.

Discussing the matter with the reporter who wrote the original article, it was emphatically stated that there are those in the municipality who are quite able to pay their taxes and won't pay them; they not only refused to pay them, but have made open boasts that they won't pay. Consequently, others have followed their example; thus the municipality has been forced to make examples of these people by selling them for non-payment.

It appears that for the most part the offenders are younger men, strong and able to work. The man in his twenties "bends his poor back to earn his tax money, while many of the younger men refuse to pay." These men, it was said, appear to be able to afford cigarettes, cheap liquor, movies and other amusements but refuse to pay their share of taxation to the extent of a poll tax.

BALANCED BUDGET AND WAR DEBTS

A reader of The Ottawa Journal recently made objection to that excellent paper's praise of Britain for ability to balance her budget. He wrote:

"Had she (England) paid her war debts to the United States, would she have been able so readily to 'balance her budget'?" Please let's be realistic about such things."

Well, let us be realistic about them, replies The Journal, and continues: Our correspondent overlooks the reality, or forgets it, that England would still have paid her war debts to the United States had the nations which owe her paid their war debts.

Let's recall the facts. The war debt position at the close of the war was this: The United States was owed ten billions by Allied Governments; had contracted no debts to foreign countries. Britain owed the United States four billions, but was owed ten billions by Allied countries.

During the war, borrowings, went into the common pool of money; during the war repayment was never discussed. Even after the war, when peace was being made, the debtor nations said: "We'll settle our debts when we settle German reparations."

The idea was that Germany would pay for all.

What happened? Following 1921, when the Reparations Commission had decided Germany should pay $33 billions, the United States created a World War Foreign Debt Commission, invited the debtor nations to fund their debts. Then it was that England made one of the greatest mistakes in world history. England owed the United States in principal and accrued interest, $4,600,000,000. England in turn was owed 17 billions, this including $3,600,000,000 of German reparations. Despite this, notwithstanding that what she proposed meant for her a net loss of billions, England suggested to the United States and Allied countries that all intergovernmental debts be wiped out at one stroke. If done, $4,600,000,000, she would forfeit $17,000,000,000.

The offer was refused. But did England do then? Rebuffed in her attempt to wipe the slate clean (she had done practically the same thing for France after the Napoleonic wars), England said she would take from her debtors only as much as was necessary to pay her debts to the United States.

What then happened next? History. France, Belgium and Italy cut off from further reparations, could or would not pay England. England, as a consequence, could not pay the United States. She had not borrowed the money for herself in the first place but for her Allies, who couldn't borrow it. And she was compelled to make a harder settlement with the United States than either France or Italy.

She went on paying; went on paying long after her debtors had stopped paying her; still acknowledges the debt.

Such is the story of war debts. Actually, they have no relation at all to the fact that while other nations fail to balance their budgets, the budget of England is balanced. Germany is not paying her war debts, nor France, nor Italy, nor the United States. Neither, for that matter, is Canada. Yet, unlike England, they aren't balancing their budgets.

Our correspondent's observations really have no point.

AN HONORABLE RECORD

Not one farmer in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island has been receiving relief during the depression years, although farmers in every other province have. While many of our farmers might have needed assistance they hurried on as best they could in spite of the hardships as they have had to undergo. This is the Maritime Broadcaster points out, is an outstanding record particularly in view of the fact that in other provinces the total number of heads of families and dependents on farms receiving relief was 326,637.

In Quebec there were 11,000 heads of farm families on relief; in Ontario, 7,078; in Manitoba, 2,588; in Saskatchewan, 34,700; in Alberta, 5,402; in British Columbia, 2,940.

Needless to say, relief for the farmers of the Maritime Provinces do not receive many other considerations that are given to the farmers of other provinces. For instance, our farmers do not benefit from any produce-selling agencies backed up by the government as is done in the case of wheat. While the farmers of the Maritimes have received no relief they have been compelled to draw upon their reserves and in many instances they have gone into debt. They are experiencing financial stress but so far have been too proud to accept charity. However, if they are neglected much longer they will be compelled to call for assistance.

Satisfying
King Cole
TEA

The Old Tannery at Acacia Valley

In the days of my boyhood the old tannery was not in operation. It had been dormant for several years. There was that atmosphere surrounding the place from which the youths of my day learned many lessons. There was the constant reminder that things material, which in a sense had passed their day--were not dead, but left a mark of interest and inspired a degree of devotional respect.

Crossing the old bridge across the mill pond, and facing the Shelburne road, to the left and downstream from the dam, stood the old saw mill, while forward and to the right, at the junction of the turn to the Valley road, stood all that was left of the old tannery. In the days before my remembrance it was a centre of great activity and from stories related to me by my grand parents and friends, it must have been a most interesting place. There were many, many hides tanned in prime condition in that old tannery, and shipped to the far corners of the globe.

At the time of which I write, there were but two stories and a skeleton framework of the tannery remaining. Even the floor of the second story was well into decay and far beyond redemption. This many pickling vats were in deplorable condition. A few were intact, others on the verge of collapse, while many others were destroyed from the rust of iron bands and the flood waters of the storms to which all had for years been exposed.

As I look back--having in my experience visited many modern tanneries--I have never come into one of this sort but what I think of that old tannery done in the fog. It was once so strong and stable, so full of pep and life, bustling in its day, in quality, the best of leather that ever went into a pair of shoes. And I can remember from stories told me by my elders, that in the busy days when the whistle would blow at six in the morning again at twelve (high noon), and then again at the closing hour of six in the evening--that the whistle was a sign for the setting of the tannery in the Valley. For in those days promptness was expediency, and every man was on the job at the stroke of the gong.

Four hours a day those good folk worked. Intent on their job. No thought of the clock--of the time. They just worked, producing for mankind the best and the cleanest and most durable piece of leather product that ever went into the markets of the world.

Well, we boys used to have our fun around the old tannery, and we took many chances of injury. We scaled the walls, straddled the beams, and raced around the tank tops with never a thought or fear of tumbling into those sour old musty vats. And there was told to us a story of one, John Doe, who once on a certain occasion had visited the tannery when he was considerably non-compos--or--otherwise. And the said John Doe, just his footing, fell into one of the vats, and was never resurrected. Therefore, according to the legend, there was supposed to be the ghastly figure of the said John Doe inhabiting the tannery.

But ghosts meant nothing to us boys. We knew there were wolves and bears, foxes and wildcats, which at times we were wont to fear. But ghosts--no, they were not in our category. So we just went ahead and had our fun in the old building.

The rear of the old tannery faced the mill pond, and in the space between the building and the stream, comprising several hundred square feet, were piled many tons of tan bark. In my time, in the late fall of each year, loads of this would be hauled away and used for banking the houses to keep the cellars warm, and, as nearly as possible, free from the creeping frost. Thus the stone cellars, after careful banking, were in shape to preserve and keep in splendid order, those precious stores of food stuff for the winter time.

The cellars would be filled with vegetables, dried, preserved and green fruits, barrels of pork, pickled fish, corned shoulders, preserved berries. And there would be pies and doughnuts, butter and cheese--and say, good folks, this just gives me an appetite. Well, I'm coming back some day and live over again some of those good old winter days which I love to remember.

Well, so much for the old tannery, and all its memories. I can still seem to see the old vats; I can see the boys climbing those old timbers, and enjoying the sport that none other than we could appreciate--and all of which we would only be too glad to do again.

That's all--Good night!

R. M. Nichols.

(This is the last of Mr. Nichols' reminiscences we have on hand, and we would be delighted to receive more. They have been intensely interesting and dozens of our readers

RANDOM REVERIES--A SMILE

When you are blue,
Dismal, too,
And life seems one unrelax,
Don't grouse and scowl,
Or stage a howl,
But put this to the test-- Smile!

If out of luck,
Nerve your pluck,
And start out to attain;
Don't sit around,
Your efforts may be vain--
Thus losing ground,
But smile!

The future's dream,
And how you care
To be a great success;
But should you fail,
Why grieve and rail,
You cannot hope to win--unless You smile!

And if you are broke,
Which is no joke,
The rough on "stony" ground;
Don't lose your heart,
Just make a start,
And take with you around--
A smile!

Then, when with care,
On a peaceful bier,
You sleep in shrouded style;
They'll never forget,
That even in death,
You still displayed--
A smile!

ANCIENT DAIRYING

How did the ancients carry out their farming duties? Light is thrown on this question by a mosaic frieze which has been unearthed during excavations at Ur of the Chaldees, the birth place of Abraham, the details of which are considered sufficiently important to warrant review by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

This frieze shows a procession of cows. On one side of a byre built of reeds, from the door of which two oxen are seen issuing, men seated on low stools are engaged in milking cows. The men sit under the cow's tail milking the cow from the rear, while the calves, duly milked, are roped to the cow's headstall in order to encourage her to give milk.

On the other side of the byre, two men, clean-shaven and wearing gattis of fleece, the official dress of the priests, are pouring milk through a strainer into a vessel set on the ground, while two others are collecting the strained liquid into great stone jars.

This frieze is said by experts to represent a scene at a farm attached to a temple, the date being about 2100 B. C. The dairymaking methods employed at that time, the Department points out, might have been used with profit during the intervening centuries.

have spoken about them. The last three published have been on hand for some time, but unfortunately were mislaid and only came to light a few weeks ago.—(Editor Courier).

WHERE HUMOR LIES

The following misadventure was received by the forest ranger of the Peabody District and read at the annual dinner of the Sierra Club, in Los Angeles:

"Kind of Respected Sir—I see in the paper that a man named J— was attacked and set up by a bear whose cub he was trying to kill when the she bear came up and stamp him by eating him up in the mountains near your town.

"What I want to know is did it kill him or was he only partly eaten up and was he from this place and all about he here. I don't know but what he was a decent husband of mine.

"My first husband was of that name and I supposed he was killed in the war but the name of the man the bear ate up being the same I thought to know if he wasn't killed either in the war or by the bear for I have been married twice since and their ought to be divorce papers not out by him or me if the bear did not eat him all up.

"If so him you will know it by him havin' six toes on the left foot. He also wings bare and had a sprout single tattooed on his front chest and an anchor on his right arm which you will know him if the bear did not eat all these parts of him. At any rate I tell him I am married to J— W— for he never liked J— Maybe you had better let on as if I am dead but find out all you can about him without him knowing anything what it is for.

"That if the bear did not eat him all up

"I did I don't see you can do anything and you needn't take any trouble. My respects to your family and please answer back.

"S— Was the bear killed? Ah was he married again and did he leave any property worth me taking claim to."

A large barn in Weymouth North, used as a shed and owned by C. C. Nichol, was burned to the ground about 4 o'clock Friday morning. A nearby neighbor, weakened by the flames, called out the fire engine, but the fire had gained too great a hold before the firemen could get to it. A number of farm implements and other machinery, stored in the barn, were ruined. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Replaces Radio III.

Cradle of many a fine Nova Scotian ship, the Shelburne shipyard added another to the roll of wooden ships recently, when the diesel motor vessel Thomas J. Carroll was launched from the yards of W. C. McKay & Sons. Designed by John McKay, the new vessel is 125 feet in length and 152 tons register. Later the craft was towed to Halifax by the motor vessel O. K. Service, for installation of the engine. The Thomas J. Carroll will be engaged in carrying fish from Nova Scotia to New England, and replaces the ill-fated motor vessel Radio III, lost last year off Point Mann Island. D. C. Althouse, of Tiverton and Halifax, is owner of the craft.

SIX CHILDREN SAVED FROM AWFUL DEATH

Roused from Sleep and Carried Through Fire and Smoke When Home Burned.

Eleven persons were saved from death and six little children, two of them unconscious from smoke, were carried to safety by their father, through crackling flames that destroyed the $10,000 home of Julius Saulnier, at Weymouth Centre—one of the finest in Clarendon—at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The two children—Eileen, 8, and Louise, 6—daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Comau, who, with their four other children, Rose, 5, Jane, 4, Frank, 3, and baby, Murray—were sleeping when the house, Catherine Theriault, awoke the alarm, were recovering from their encounter with death Sunday night, while Mr. Saulnier was also recovering from shock.

Three other buildings, owned by Thyges Riedhaud and Mrs. Fiedel Riedhaud, caught fire from the burning, but neighbors who formed an emergency fire brigade, extinguished the flames.

First knowledge that the house was on fire came when Miss Theriault saw the alarm, after being awakened by the smoke.

As the flames went through the house the six children were carried to safety by their father, while other occupants, including Mr. and Mrs. Saulnier and Mrs. Comau, were in the nightclothes they were wearing at the time.

We understand there was no insurance on the house.

RAMBLINGS OF A ROLLING STONE

There is one voice which the ever increasing pandemonium of modern life has not succeeded in drowning—at least not to the ear attuned to catch those minor tones in the symphony (7) of life.

That voice is the one which insistently calls for a return to the simple life. A pleading for the discarding of all the superfluities which have become so interwoven with the genuine warp and woof of present day life that a majority of the people seem to have mistaken them for a true part of the fabric of life. As a matter of fact these are neither more nor less than so much excess baggage which tend to hamper real progress, the while they try the patience of those of us who can recall the day when great mass of things which now seem an integral part of existence were as yet untired and, at best, but doubtful experiments.

Listening to "OPEN, the voice of the Prairies in Calgary" I hear, a lengthy weather forecast, based, it I remember correctly, on observations made at 8 p. m. E. S. T. With all the present day equipment these forecasts hold good for only forty-eight hours and then only if the guess happens to be a correct one.

How much more simple and satisfying were the weather prognostications of that earlier day to which I refer. Then a whole month of weather could be foreseen by a mere glance at the "horred moon." Did the infant queen of the night exhibit vim, vigour and vitality by standing on end then try weather was in the offing. Was she inclined to somnolence, and, like Polly, decided not to "get up today," then an examination of the food and roll situation was indicated since old Jupiter Pluvius was showing us a reclining moon in lieu of sending a calling card and his visit might be expected forthwith. Or, did he have enclined the moon it only required that a point be taken of the stars enclosed therein, for, to the date of the approaching storm was written on the face of the nocturnal sky.

I am aware that the foregoing facts will be disputed by some, even as in the long ago. "Two brothers, I recall, who lived a short half-mile apart were each equally sure of the correctness of his interpretation of the signs, though these readings were in direct opposition the one to the other, and the winds of wrath were out-poured without measure did either try to make a proselyte of the other. Such was one phase of the simple life. A life as satisfying as it was simple.

In the field of medicine as well as in that of meteorology we are oppressed by the unbalanced hand of so called progress. A day there was, when teeth were pulled for the good and sufficient reason that they were aching. Now, alas, the sound of the grinding becomes low if one develops a few signs of inflammation or that which, masquerades today in good society as neuritis—just the plain garden variety of the misery of yesterday. Not only has the "medicinal bloc" become a sworn enemy of teeth—except those of porcelain ancestry—but, indifferent, but with wire snare and tin snips they commit assault, battery and mayhem upon the timid tooth.

Just a few years ago, as we old-timers reckon time, a humble potato secreted in an out of the way pocket would have fulfilled all of the requirements of the simple material media of an unsophisticated age.

Did the question of social prestige intrude itself then, resources might easily be had to a more popular remedy the use of which did not carry any threat of social degradation. This more widely used alleviator was a prescription compounded of distilled juniper berries and alcohol (certainly known as gin) with a dash of lemon juice. This course of treatment, while it might induce erratic pedal progression was never looked upon as having in it anything of communion even though the beneficiary might in time develop into a confirmed "Wobbler."

This flood of righteous wrath might have been stayed at its source had there been pseudo-scientific iconoclasm confined their nefarious activities to the domestic family; but no, the brute creation too, must be made to feel an equal or perhaps greater extent, the so-called growing pains of that which usses for civilization and progress.

The great scourges of the dairy were, naturally, into just two major divisions, "Hallow Horn" at one end of the list, and "Tail Soak" at the other.

No more impressive object person could be given than an examination and comparison of the instrument used by the cow doctor and the D. V. S. The former carried in his kit, or borrowed, just two surgical aids, a sinnet and a butcher knife. The first was used to make a puncture in the horn if "Hallow Horn" was the diagnosis. No matter how downcast "Tuck" or "Golden" might have been the introduction of two or three table-spoonfuls of turpentine into the horn via the sinnet would make the most depressed member of the bovine tribe sit up and take notice.

The clamping of about six inches from the south-west end of the candal appendage of the sufferer from "Tail Soak," or "Wolf-in-the-Tail" as it was known by some localities, followed by the application of a red hot iron to the bleeding stump would transform the downcast steer into a marvel of set-up-and-jit-liveness.

From these unsophisticated instruments turn to the gleaming, nickel plated paraphernalia of the modern D. V. S. See the gleaming lance for the efficient troar, the never-slip device, the business like tooth raps, together with many others not included in the mail order catalogue from which this list is taken. Add to these the pills, powders, capsules and drenches which, after all, are only substitutes for the old tried pollock skin which was a sovereign remedy for "Loss of Aid."

Neither time, space nor the maximum postal weight covered by a three cent stamp will allow a more far-reaching investigation into or an analysis of the havoc which man's eternal seeking after more complex methods of procedure has wrought in the field of medicine and surgery.

READS LIKE A FAIRY STORY BUT IT'S TRUE

The story of The Brown-Haired Biscuits Landoff, of Montreal, reads almost like a tale from Arabian Nights or from a Fairy-book. For a company to start in the dead centre of the Depression—and in the Maritime Province at that—on a company named by incognito, scientific, financial and meeting all sorts of difficulties, to be able to weather the gale seems almost a miracle. ### NARROW ESCAPE FROM INJURY

Crashing into an electric light pole, at the corner of Warwick and King Streets, on Wednesday afternoon, Arthur Hawkins, driver, and Reginald Comeau, passenger, of a small Ford truck, miraculously escaped without a cut or bruise.

The butt of the heavy pole crashed through the truck cab and came to rest on the steering wheel of the vehicle. The windshield shattered into a thousand pieces and glass flew in all directions, yet the men escaped without injury. Neither can explain how they dodged the pole or escaped cuts from the flying glass.

The accident occurred about four o'clock. Hawkins claims he was proceeding along the main highway at a moderate rate of speed. Travelling north on King Street, to cross the Warwick Street, was a car operated by John Russell. Hawkins says he swung his truck a little to the right in an effort to avoid a side-on collision but Russell struck his rear mudguard causing him to jump the ditch and strike the pole head on.

Russell claims he did not see the truck until he was almost on the Warwick Street pavement.

The pole snapped by the truck carried a transformer, house lighting wires and high tension wires. Several of the house wires had to be cut. Traffic was tied up for some time on account of the tangle.

WORK AT THE SUMMER HOTELS

There is commencing to be a great deal of activity around the local summer resorts, in preparation for the season of 1936. Grounds are being prepared in order that they may be as attractive as possible throughout the summer months, and all of the many hotels have undergone or are undergoing a thorough house-cleaning.

The Myrtle House will be the first of the larger hotels to open this season. Mr. Spurr, the proprietor, states, he will open on the 25th of this month. Other of the larger hotels will open on June 1st, or later.

It is expected that the season will be one of the best for several years, although in these days, when there are so many transient automobile tourists, it is impossible to make anything like an accurate forecast of the season by reservations received by hotel managers and proprietors.

Rev. and Mrs. F. E. Bishop have returned to Deep Brook. During the winter Mr. Bishop has been supplying in Charlotte-town, P. E. I.

SCRUB BULLS NOT WANTED

A committee comprising Dr. S. B. MacGregor, Lloyd McNeill, C. Y. Young, Oscar VanTassel and Burton O'Neill was appointed to see what arrangements can be made to unite the Digby Central and the Culloden societies.

It was decided at this meeting to enforce the Scrub Bull Act. Committees in each district are to notify the secretary of any scrub bulls in their district, who, in turn, will notify a superintendent of the Nova Scotia Agricultural Societies.

Joseph Speight and J. Oakley Turnbull were appointed members from this society to the Digby County Agricultural Advisory Board, which is about to be organized.

BROTHERHOOD CLOSES FOR THE SEASON

Ladies' Night marked the last meeting of the season for the Grace United Church Brotherhood, on Tuesday evening. Some sixty persons sat down to supper at that occasion. Following the supper there was a short program which comprised instrumental selections by four members of the Civic Band, namely, Stanley Spray, "Billy" Christie, Robert Weir and Max Bailey; a reading by Miss Frances Appleby; a "stunt" by Miss Patricia MacPhee, Eleanor Wallis and Florence Keen; reading by Miss Florence Keen; piano solo by Miss Eleanor Wallis; vocal duet by Miss Frances Appleby and Mrs. J. M. Wallis.

Reginald Turnbull, president of the brotherhood, presided, and expressed his thanks to all for their co-operation at that gathering and throughout the season. In concluding Rev. Dr. Hodgson gave a short address.

In the opinion of all the Brotherhood meetings for the season of 1935-36 have been highly successful. Among other things a Brotherhood Class, which meets every Sunday was organized early in the season. The class is continuing its Sunday sessions for the time being.

The monthly meeting of the Brotherhood will likely begin again in October.

Mrs. Alex. Ross and Mrs. Evelyn VanTassel are visiting relatives in Saint John.

MEETING OF THE ANNAPO- LIS PRESBYTERY

The Annapolis Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, met in the United Church at Berwick, N. S., on May 15th, 1936, for an all day session. A very fine dinner was served by the Ladies' Aid of the church.

There were present: Reva: T. E. McLennan, of Annapolis Royal; A. G. Pentz, of Aylesford; C. L. Blanchard, of Bear River; W. J. Dean, of Berwick; H. Hamilton, of Bridgetown; T. W. Hodgson, of Digby; W. H. Forsyth, of Digby Neck; E. W. Forbes, of Kingston; M. R. Ewing, of Lawrenceville; E. A. Kirker, of Middleton; S. R. Prince, of Waterville; and C. U. McNevin, Weymouth; with the following laymen: James Smith, of Berwick; P. E. Black, of Middleton; R. L. Moore, of Lawrenceville; and L. Robertson, of Granville Ferry.

Rev. M. R. Ewing was elected Chairman of Presbytery for the ensuing year beginning July. Rev. H. Hamilton is the retiring Chairman. Rev. T. E. McLennan was nominated delegate to General Council of the United Church meeting in September. Laymen named as first and alternate choices were: C. L. Piggott, of Bridgetown; P. E. Black, of Middleton; Dr. A. B. Crowe, of Annapolis Royal; and L. Robertson, of Granville Ferry.

A resolution was passed supporting the work of the Social Service Council in opposing the many gambling and other harmful devices in operation throughout the province.

Rev. W. J. Dean as convener of Home Missions for the Presbytery, was appointed with Rev. T. E. McLennan to meet with the Conference Home Mission special committee to visit the Mission Charges, especially of Digby Neck, Weymouth and Bear River to see what possible changes might be made with advantage to these fields and the mission grants needful to support the work there.

Lay members appointed to attend the Conference in Sackville, N. B., June 2nd, were: Messrs. P. E. Black, John McMahon, of Waterville; John Russell, of Barton; Dr. A. B. Campbell, of Bear River; C. L. Piggott, F. M. Nash, of Berwick; L. Robertson, R. T. Messenger, of Bridgetown; Blair Dakin, of Sandy Cove; and J. M. Wallis, of Digby. The ladies named were Mesdames J. B. Hall, of Lawrenceville; W. R. Turner, of Middleton; W. J. Dean of Berwick, Freeman Hatt, of Kingston, and Viva Moody, of Margareville.

The Rev. W. J. Bartlett, of Fredericton, was nominated as president of the Maritime Conference. There are several other nominations from the various presbyteries and election will take place on the opening morning of Conference, at Sackville.

The Religious Education report showed some very good gains: the increase from last year of new church members was trebled. The financial report for the whole presbytery was quite encouraging especially in reduction of mortgages. There is still need, however, for greater support for Home and Foreign missions and in minister's salaries. It is believed that as the needs of the work are properly presented, there will be a loyal rally to the call.

STORE BROKEN INTO

Thieves broke into the store of Floyd Snow, at the Racquette, some time during Tuesday night, and escaped with a quantity of cigarettes, tobacco and other merchandise. The robbery was discovered about five o'clock on Wednesday morning by Mr. Snow, who went to his store at that hour in order to accommodate scallop fishermen leaving the Racquette for the fishing grounds.

The police were notified and on investigation it was learned the robbers gained entrance through a window in the rear of the building. Tracks of two men were discovered, leading through the sawdust pile of the old lumber mill on the opposite side of the street. Chief of police Thibeault has questioned several in connection with the robbery, but to date no arrests have been made.

ILLICIT SLAUGHTER OF BIG GAME

For several years the illicit slaughter of game has been alleged. Ofttimes these rumors of jacking, snaring, shooting or of season, and shooting more moose or deer than the law allows, are taken with "a grain of salt". Many times, too, the rumors are investigated—but because rumors are far from the necessary proof, they seldom lead to arrest and conviction.

A party of sportsmen returning from a trout trip back in the Doucetville region, have told of the finding of a dead co-moose and of meeting another party who told them of finding a doe strangled in a wire snare. They also told of destroying a number of snares of various types and descriptions, most of which, in their opinion, were set for deer and foxes.

In the case of the co-moose they believe the animal had been mortally wounded by a small calibre rifle bullet and had escaped the hunter to wander off in the woods to die of its wounds. Although they say they did not make a close examination of the dead animal, in their opinion, the mortal wound was caused by a .22 bullet.

Last fall, at the annual meeting of the Digby and Annapolis County Fish and Game Protective Association, it was openly alleged by members that, in some sections of these two counties moose and deer are being slaughtered and their carcasses sold to fox ranchers. This allegation is similar to many others that we have heard, both in and out of season. It may be that some of these rumors are exaggerated.

Buggy Business Still Active

The buggy business is booming for one of the largest buggy factories in the United States. It is at Lawrenceburg, Ind. The boom started in 1932 and is still going strong. The company sold 900 buggies last year for approximately $75,000, but the plant capacity, however, is 5,000 buggies a year. The company's biggest year was in 1920, after which sales fell off almost to the vanishing point in 1931. Since then it has been different and there is no more talk of closing the plant. About 75 per cent of all buggies made are sold in the south. There a buggy has a real value much higher than that of a used automobile.

MANY ROBBERS DETERRED BY BANK ASSOCIATION

$137,828 Paid Out In Rewards Since 1924.

In view of the widespread comments in the press and elsewhere in respect to the adequacy or lack of it, of bank protective measures, the following information has been released to The Financial Post by a spokesman for the banks.

Everyone who uses a branch bank must have noticed the standing offer of a reward for information leading to the conviction of bank robbers. If, like most Canadians, he is honest, he has passed it by with a little more than a shrug, hoping that some day he might be lucky enough to be a hero and get a cash payment in return; but what is the effect on the potential bank robber? Naturally, no direct statistical evidence is available, bank robbers being inclined to reticence about their business affairs. But there is indirect evidence which tends to show what the familiar printed card has a valuable influence on this particular form of criminal activity.

Terms of Offer
The terms of the offer made by the Canadian Bankers' Association state: "An offer of reward is made for the arrest and conviction of any person who by hold-up of, or by violence or threat of violence, to bank officers or employees, or by breaking and entering, have robbed or attempted to rob since January 1, 1931, or who may hereafter rob or attempt to rob, a branch or office of any chartered bank in Canada."

"The association reserves the right to approve or reject any claim and to determine the amount to be paid in respect of any and all claims."

"All claims for rewards must be made in writing to secretary of The Canadian Bankers' Association, Toronto, within one month after the date of conviction."

Since January, 1934, the Canadian Bankers' Association has paid the sum of $137,828 in rewards in this connection. In 1934, the latest year for which complete figures are available, there were 39 bank robberies in Canada, in which 61 robbers were engaged. Of these 52 were arrested, or roughly 85 per cent. Prison terms ranging from a minimum of one year to a maximum of thirty were imposed. Amount of money involved in these robberies was approximately $120,000 and a large part of this was recovered. In some cases the entire amount taken being found on the robbers when they were captured.

Fewer Robberies in 1935
Not shown by these figures, but confirmed by the records, is the fact that during 1935-36 several dangerous groups of bandits, with previous police records, were apprehended in bank robberies and "withdrawn from circulation" for a number of years. These gentry had not confined their operations to the banks, so their present seclusion is a benefit to the community as a whole. As a result, there was a marked decline in bank robberies during 1935, as will be evident when complete statistics for the year are available.

Criminologists generally agree that it is not punishment but the certainty of punishment that acts as a deterrent of crime. This certainty or high degree of certainty is usually given credit for Canada's good record in the matter of crime prevention as compared with the United States. The underworld knows that Canada is definitely an unsafe place to work and is therefore inclined to favor countries where "working conditions" are better.

It is only the professional criminal who gives banks much concern. The more of them who are apprehended or made to feel that Canadian banks do not offer a profitable field for their activities, the safer Canadian banks and Canadian business as a whole will be.

The standing offer of the Canadian Bankers' Association has greatly facilitated the work of the police, not only in the suppression of this type of crime, but stimulating citizens to render assistance in the pursuit of the bandits, but also in making available to the police clues which might not otherwise have come to light.

Proposals are made from time to time, in fact whenever a bank robbery is attempted, that better protection be provided for banks. The fact is that very good degree of protection is provided already; it would hardly be in the public interest to go into details. It would be in vain to hope that bank robberies could be completely abolished any more than can any other type of crime. What can be done is being done, namely, to make them an unprofitable form of enterprise. Our police and judicial systems deserve credit for this, but a fair share of the credit should go to the printed card of the Canadian Bankers' Association.

PINEAPPLES AND RUBBER

The pineapple industry of British Malaya had its beginnings in connection with the production of rubber. Pineapples were planted originally as a catch-crop on rubber estates until such time as the rubber trees matured. It is now one of the country's major industries. Exports in 1935 totalled 73,934 tons, with a value of $8,330,902, an increase of 10.9 per cent in quantity and 18.5 per cent in value over the year previous, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

LIKED IN GREAT BRITAIN

Canadian red clover seed is well liked in Great Britain due to the long life plant it produces. Principal sources of supply include Chile, Poland, Canada, France and the United States. It is anticipated import requirements will be small this season, here being a good crop in Great Britain last year and there is a good stock of medium-to-good quality grades on offer at very reasonable prices.

BEGINS TO LOOK LIKE SPRING

In some sections of Digby County farmers have planted their crops, and along the wide section pens and roads the hardy plants are reported out of the ground. Native rhubarb is now on the market. In March the farmers looked forward to an early spring, and during the warm days of the latter part of that month many of them put certain of their crops in. In some cases these have survived the cold April, but in other cases the planting had to be done over. Then, in other sections of the county it has been, to date, impossible—or impracticable—to do any planting.

Cherry trees are now about ready to burst into bloom, and it is thought that another warm rain will bring out millions of blossoms on the thousands of trees in this vicinity.

SPRING

I heard a call—'twas the robin, His voice so full of cheer; He came to sound the joyful news that spring was really here.

I paused and looked about me, Nature's paint brush could be seen, Touching up the trees and shrubs With a lovely coat of green.

I thought of the woodland and wondered If the mayflowers were peeping thro' Among the moss and old dead leaves At a lonely spot I knew.

And sure enough I found them As I gently brushed aside Nature's most wonderful covering Where the mayflowers always hide.

And I thought as I picked the arbutus With its fragrance and color so rare: Without God's birds and flowers This old world would surely be bare.

Million Dollar Sign for Wrigley

The new Wrigley's Great American Sign, on Times Square, New York City, is a million dollar project, largest of its kind in the world, was formally dedicated and put into operation on Saturday evening, March 28th.

The sign occupies the entire block on Broadway from 44th to 45th Streets, on the east side of Times Square. The new sign is a super-structure on the top of a two-story steel and concrete building built especially to bear the weight of the display. This world's largest spectacular towers ten stories high; the signman on the sign has a view of the city. The picture of Wrigley's Spearmint Gum is larger than a box car.

The sign shows gigantic, multi-colored, tropical fish swimming about the sky; the largest fish measures 42 feet from tip of tail. The flashing mechanism consist of twenty-one pieces of apparatus, all operating in unison, but no one piece is synchronized with another. The electrical current required for this display would serve a city of ten thousand. There are 1,054 feet of neon tubing and almost seventy miles of wire used. The investment on the entire project is a cool million dollars.

Hundreds of thousands of folk will pass the sign each day; the number who pass daily through the subway at Times Square is estimated to be almost equal to the population of Toronto.

F. G. PAULI LEFT QUITE AN ESTATE

The late Frederick G. Pauli, who has resided near Digby since his retirement as a dry goods manufacturer in 1908, left property in New York state, formally described as being "more than $10,000." It was learned Tuesday morning when his will was filed for probate in the King's County (New York) Surrogate's court. No estimate of the value of his Digby estate was given.

Mr. Pauli met a tragic death at his home in Bay View, on April 22nd. Under the terms of the will, which was executed at Digby on December 15, 1934, and witnessed by Horion Stark, of Digby, and Henry Adams, of Bay View, the entire Canadian estate passes to a niece, Ruth Hilda Pauli, of 211 Ft. Washington Avenue, New York. She and two other nieces, Rosemond Pauli, of the same address, and Corinne Zaringer, of 770 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, New York, equally the entire remainder of the estate.

The document nominates John L. Delius, of Larchmont, N. Y., who filed the will, as executor of the estate in the United States, and Hector McInnes, L. A. Lovett, W. J. Macdonald, F. A. Chipman and Donald McInnes, of Halifax, executors of the Canadian estate.

JUST IN CASE THEY DON'T KNOW

To the best of our knowledge in every newspaper town in Canada and the United States the "courtesy to the press" is extended to every performance or function consisting of the sponsors as worthy of "write-ups." This courtesy is in the form of complimentary tickets—at least two, and more often, four—for the use of the editor of the paper and for the reporter who covers it. Digby people, on the whole, appear to be blithely ignorant of this custom, expecting the press to pay its own admission, and on top of that, to give one or two dollars' worth of a write-up as a reward. In future, the Courier will take it for granted the sponsors are not desirous of a write-up unless the customary courtesy is extended in the way of complimentary tickets.

This does not apply only to Digby, but to the country in general. For instance, Bear River, whose amateur performances probably receive more extended notices than any other town, has only once, in the sixteen years we have been connected with this paper, extended the "courtesy of the press." Weymouth has done a little better but not much.

An incident showing how much is lost by not observing the press was brought to our attention last summer during the Indian Carnival. On that day there happened to be a reporter from the Boston Transcript in town. He had his credentials with him, but was "tased" for everything. His excuse was that he was a reporter and he had to write up for my paper. Here was probably a couple of hundred dollars' worth of publicity lost.

THE BREWERS' SLOGAN

"A million boys are needed."
Have you heard the brewers' cry? Can you see the fearful vision Of this army passing by? "A million young men give us, Who have never tasted beer; For our business year by year."

"A million boys are needed."
Friend, have YOU a lad to spare To fill drinking draughts? "A million boys are needed" there? "A million boys are needed" here? (So the brewers plead their cause) "Our Trade's urgent need demands TRIM."

"A million boys are needed."
And WIE need, too, beer laws. Friend, have YOU a lad to spare To fill drinking draughts? "A million boys are needed" there? "A million boys are needed" here? (So the brewers plead their cause) "Our Trade's urgent need demands TRIM."

"A million boys are needed."
Not our sons alone! Oh, shame! Shame on Christian men and women, Who can fail to rise in might, And forever banish from us "Every foe of Truth and Right."

"A million boys are needed."
Say, oh brewer, have YOU one? Haven't you a baby daughter? Why not give your own dear son? Haven't you a baby daughter? You can spare to help your trade? Never mind if he IS ruined—Think of all the wealth you've made.

Send THEM to your cursed beer-rooms. Let THEM drink your brew of hell—If YOU haven't got a daughter, Why seek mine your ranks to swell.

W. G. T. U. Answer
A million boys (and girls) are needed For a glorious cause tomorrow. While the cause of Truth is won. —Georgia M. Cook

SHE FOUND SHE WAS RIGHT

An Englishman is quoted in the Chicago Daily Tribune as having told this story when asked for his opinion of the U. S. S. R.

A Soviet peasant girl, after many hardships, finally reached Leningrad to make examination for a government post on which she had set her heart. She took the examination and felt confident of the answers to all the questions but one.

"What is the inscription on the Serbian wall?"

After considerable gnawing at her pencil she hesitatedly put down, "Religion is the opiate of the masses."

Her anxiety was so great that she trudged seven miles to the Serbian wall. There, bleated in clear lettering was the inscription, "Religion is the opiate of the masses."

The girl breathed a sigh of relief, not down on her knees, crossed herself and folding her hands in prayer, muttered, "Thank God."

NAME PLATE ALL THAT REMAINS OF CANADA'S FIRST LOCOMOTIVE

Treasured in the museum of the Seminary, at Joliette, Quebec, is a small copper name plate on which is engraved in bold relief the single word "Dorchester." This, modest plaque is all that remains of the first steam locomotive to run in Canada. It is just one hundred years ago that the merchants of Montreal saw the practical fulfillment of their hopes and dreams when the engine Dorchester, which had been built by Stephen H. Hunslet at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, carried the Earl of Gosford, then Governor General, and Lady Gosford and a distinguished company over a stretch of about fifteen miles from LaPrairie to St. Johns.

The utmost secrecy shrouded the arrival of the Dorchester and its trials and the first runs were made at night before only a few privileged guests. The engineer who was sent out from England with the engine, seems to have deserted her shortly after arrival at New Canada, leaving an engineer of experience was obtained. He was Ziba Pankborn, a native of Vermont, who was chief engineer of the Molson steamboat line in Montreal.

The Dorchester was a wood-burner and weighed five and a half tons. She carried one cord of wood and one puncheon (84 gallons) of water in a special truck behind the engine. It is said to have cost the "Company of Proprietors" of the Champlain and St. Lawrence, as the name was in the charter granted to the Imperial Parliament in 1832, the sum of $1,500 while construction of the line cost $23,500. The first equipment of the railway in addition to the engine, consisted of four passenger coaches, only one of which had doors and windows, although the others had a roof. The company had twelve freight cars.

After doing valiant service between LaPrairie and St. Johns the Dorchester was purchased by Bartholomew Joliette, founder of the town that has named his name after being known for some years as Industrie. It was worked on a short line between Lanorale and Joliette up to 1864 when tradition says it caught fire one day and all that was left after the fire was disintegrated. The name plate which is now in the possession of Les Clercs de St. Viateur at Joliette was picked up twenty-four years later by a farmer in a field adjoining the railway.

The Champlain and St. Lawrence railway afterwards became the Montreal and Champlain and this in turn lost its identity through absorption with the Grand Trunk which, on amalgamation of the railways in 1933, became in turn an integral part of the Canadian National Railway. The package has grown from fifteen miles to nearly 24,000 and the five and a half ton Dorchester has been replaced by engines of the Hudson type carrying 14,000 gallons of water and twenty tons of coal and developing a speed more than four times that of the pioneer engine.

The Dorchester proved somewhat refractory during her early trials and so won the nickname of "Kitten" on the part of her rhapsodists, owing to "Kitten's" peculiarities it was deemed advisable to haul only two cars during the trial trip, the other cars being hauled by two horses apiece. Although it seems to have taken nearly two hours to complete the initial trip, the engine made the fifteen miles of the following day in forty-five minutes. As originally constructed the track consisted of wooden rails to which were spiked flat iron bars about two and a half inches wide and three eighths of an inch thick, the spikes were driven two feet apart. There was a constant tendency for the spikes to pull upwards and from this circumstance the rail obtained the nickname of "snake-rail."

Before going to Joliette the Dorchester was rebuilt and fitted with a cab, bogie truck and pilot. On the day of her first run on July 21st, 1835, a great banquet was served at St. Johns and the Governor General and several of the directors and officials of the road spoke on that occasion.

Not Much Religion Taught There.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Be the Family News Photographer

Pictures of home news events like these are of imperishable interest.

A ROARING explosion, the crashing of glass and falling debris, and the city's most disastrous fire in months breaks out. Clanging bells and the wail of sirens announce the approach of the fire apparatus. Smoke and flame shoot skyward. Crowds gather.

Into this perfect setting for a thrilling picture steps the news photographer, makes his exposures, rushes back to the darkroom, and turns the prints over to the city editor. Copies of the next edition reach the street, with the pictures spread out on the front page. They are snatched up avidly. Here are pictures of the big fire. They're news and everybody wants to see them.

In a way just as interesting to your family circle you can be the home news photographer. You don't need to be an expert. If your pictures are timely, everyone will want to see the prints, and furthermore the interest in them will last longer than the case of the newspaper pictures, because of being intimate and personal. Amateur failings will be forgiven in the eagerness to see how Johnny looked when he won the race at the Sunday School picnic. See that there's a snapshot of every important family and neighborhood happening - birthday parties, picnics, the baby on the day he takes his first step, indoor shots at night of family gatherings, and, of course, you would not dare forget such an important event as a wedding. Be on the alert for these home "news" events. Have the camera always handy and handy, so as not to miss unexpected happenings. You'll enjoy doing it as much as does the real news photographer - and your smaller "public" will be every bit as enthusiastic and appreciative as his larger one. You will have the satisfaction, too, of having made, eventually, a photographic history of the family. 85 JOHN VAN GUILDER.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE CHINESE TRADING PORTS

English is the language of international trade in China, which is carried on principally by firms representing Great Britain, the United States, Germany and Japan. The outlet for this trade is confined principally to Shanghai, Nanking, Hankow, Foochow, Tientsin and Canton. Shanghai is the principal port for Central China, Tientsin for North China and Canton for South China, the three main areas for China proper. The area of the whole of China is estimated at 1,560,402 square miles, with a population of around 450,000,000 (excluding Manchuria). The seasons in Central China are similar to those in Canada, although in Shanghai and the Yangtze Valley intense heat and high humidity is experienced from June to September. The winters are somewhat similar to those of England, being raw and rainy during the months of January, February and March. It is estimated that over three billion dollars of foreign capital is invested in the whole of China, of which approximately 38 per cent is British. Japan accounts for 35 per cent over half of which, however, is in Manchuria. Canada exports a considerable quantity of miscellaneous articles in the nature of raw materials and food stuffs, the more important of which are newsprint and wood-pulp, Douglas fir lumber and logs, hemlock logs, salt herring, wheat, flour, aluminum, lead, cobalt oxide, sulphate of ammonia, pipes, tubes and fittings, automobile tires, dairy cattle, whisky and canned milk. It is considered that with the continual development of China along modern lines, a substantial outlet will be opened up for a wide variety of Canadian products. China adopted the metric system of weights and measures in 1929.

OLD FASHIONED PAPERS

(Antigonish, Cucklet)

A writer who worked on an old fashioned paper for twenty years, gave his impression of that class of journal. The owner of the paper on which he worked was a splendid Christian gentleman. He had a sense of responsibility to the public. Crimes and scandals were written about with the greatest care. Exaggeration was avoided and care was taken to give no false impressions. To misquote anyone or to color his statements was a serious offence. Care was taken about the advertising of medicines, and the advertising of dubious stocks. The writer told how that paper came to the end of its career.

A rival paper featured divorces, stories of debauchery and of moral degradation. It carried pictures of people who were prominent in scandals. Its circulation went up and that of the old-fashioned paper went down. In the long run, people who saw a chance to make money bought out both papers and turned them into one of the sentimental sort.

A short time after the writer was talking to the editor of another old-fashioned paper in another place. He had a fine type of paper; clean, snappy editorials, bright and interesting news; a real home paper. "I'm sorry to hear your paper is gone," said the editor; "there are only a few of us left and we are dying fast." Four months later his paper was bought in by a syndicate and knocked in the head and its honored clan name, familiar to readers, was put over a display of sensational stuff and scandal.

The writer went on to say: "A certain city Sunday paper has a magazine section which fairly reeks with featured scandals, the doings of actresses, the doings of rich married women and the like. I recently read a study of the influence of this magazine section on the inmates of the homes. The boys and young men hardly ever looked at it but dived for the sporting section, the baseball news, the prize fights, etc. Father might look at it with a bored expression, mother read it occasionally, but by careful questioning I learned that five out of six girls read that filth reeking section from cover to cover. On the question of responsibility, the writer said sanely and soundly, "We give the people what they want" says the average editor; the average movie man said the same thing about sex pictures. The average saloon man said the same thing about his saloon."

He expressed the hope that decent public opinion would eventually make itself felt. So far as he was concerned he was concerned that there was a great awakening of the public mind at present as the enrolling of five million people in the United States some time ago showed plainly. It will be necessary to keep up that movement; for the manufacturers of the pictures will not forget their interests and will soon perceive it if the movement is allowed to die down.

And while we are condemning filthy pictures and organizing against them in millions, the filthy paper in whatever form it is published and circulated should not be overlooked. Let the two great evils which are closely connected be made to feel the weight of decent public opinion. Our duty in this matter is in the present, and in the communities in which we live. How many homes will make sure that vile reading matter will not be admitted there? How many people will call up or write the picture theatre or write to the offensive paper?

Prime—Outhouse—Reginald Prime, of Freepoint, and Miss Lydia Outhouse, of Tiverton, were united in marriage on Saturday evening, May 16, 1936, by Rev. Mr. Wakeling, at Freepoint.

APPLE BLOSSOM FESTIVAL

Dates of the Annapolis Valley Apple Blossom Festival have been advanced to May 22 to 25 inclusive due to extremely favorable weather conditions in Nova Scotia. The fine weather alva a plentiful supply of pink and white blossoms for the annual celebration in which residents of the valley, joyfully uniting to give thanks for the promise of a bountiful harvest, are joined by visitors coming from far places to view the largest single apple belt in the British Empire at its most beautiful time. The Blossom Ball at Cornwallis Inn, Kentville, will be on the 22nd, and the Festival Queen will be crowned on the 25th.

For more than three centuries apple trees have bloomed throughout this historic valley in the Land of Evangeline. It was natural, dignified work, so the orchards spread rapidly, until now it is possible to drive miles upon miles, through millions of trees covered with fairies of blossoms, in a fairland of unsurpassed beauty.

The annual Festival is one of pageant and merrymaking. School children take a prominent place beside their elders in the parades and folk songs and folk dances of old England. Princesses from towns throughout the Valley enter into competition for the crown annually awarded the Apple Blossom Queen. The coronation ceremony, conducted by the Premier of the Province, is a colorful one, with a chorus of one thousand voices, symphony orchestra, and military and civilian bands. Mounted police and regimental units create a touch of color.

Last year the queen of Nova Scotia's Apple Blossom Festival represented Canada at the Imperial Fruit Show at Cardiff, Wales. This year it is expected that an English girl, representing the apple industry of Great Britain, will be present for the Annapolis Valley Festival.

PENALTY FOR NOT SALUTING

(Washington Post)
From Nazi Germany a report that three children, from six to nine years old, were ordered behind bars for refusing to pay patriotic lip-service would not be surprising. Coming from Northampton, Mass., it is an item worthy of closer consideration. The boy and girl, children of a farmer whose name suggests an origin in Eastern Europe, were called upon by their Massachusetts teacher recently to stand up with their classmates and salute the flag. This they refused to do, acting on instructions from their father, a member of the sect known as Jehovah's Witnesses. A fundamental of their creed is a hypersensitive interpretation of the second commandment, forbidding obeisance to any "graven image." And it was with such an argument that the farmer's children justified their refusal to salute. It is not an original argument. A differentiation between the respect due Caesar and that due God has excellent precedent. But for this offence the three infants have been taken from their parents and placed in a county training school, described in the reports as "a special institution for corrective training."

The reduction in price of the undermentioned grade white lead paint has not affected the quality, which remains unchanged. In the past you have been glad to pay top prices for the assurance of beauty and protection. Now that the price is reduced to $3.75 per gallon there is less reason than ever for taking a chance on other paints. Insist upon getting one of these famous brands. herring, in order, together account for approximately one-third of the total value of all fish imports into China. In canned fish, Japan supplies the bulk of the imports of canned salmon. Canadian canned salmon is popular with the Chinese, who, it would seem, account for about 70 per cent of the total consumption of the Canadian article. Supplies of fresh lobster from Japan bar any trade in the canned article. In the fresh fish trade Japan supplies the greater portion of the salmon imports, other sources being, Canada, the United States and Russia.

ASSORTED FAMILY ARRIVES SAFELY

The moving of a family and its impediments by rail from one city to another is not an unusual occurrence but the particular way in which they are cared for en route and the method of showing appreciation for "service rendered" does give color to the occasion. This is shown by the following letter received by A. A. Gardiner, Assistant General Passenger Traffic Manager, Canadian National Railways, from a patron whose family was recently transferred from Toronto to Winnipeg:

"I enclose herewith cheque in payment of the passenger accommodation for my family. They all arrived safely and compressed:

6 children; 1 bull-dog (in crate); 1 lady cat (in crate); 1 gentleman bantam (in crate); 2 lady bantams (in crate); 1 wife (not in crate).

"The wife said all were most comfortable and appreciated the unfailing kindness and courtesy of your people throughout—they were really so comfortable that the youngsters' appetites increased with every meal in the dinner."

HOW TO BUILD UP A TOWN

An exchange offers the following advice on how to build up a town:

Talk about it.
Write about it.
Speak well of it.
Help to improve it.
Beautify the streets.
Patronize its merchants.
Advertise in its paper.
Elect good men to all the offices.

Speak well of its enterprising public-spirited citizens.

If you are rich, invest in something, employ somebody, be a "hustler."

If you don't think of any good word to say, don't say anything bad about it.

Remember every dollar you invest in a permanent improvement is that much on interest.

Be courteous to strangers that come amongst us, so that they go away with good impressions.

Always cheer up the men who go in for improvements. Your portion of the cost will only be what is just.

Don't kick about any necessary public improvement because it is not at your own door or for fear that your taxes may be raised fifteen cents.

Above all, never spend a dollar out of town that you can use for the same purpose in town.

HALIBUT START SWIMMING UPRIGHT AT FIRST

Fish, like humans, have their own racial and family characteristics, as for instance, in the case of the halibut, one of Canada's most important food fish—which starts out swimming upright or vertically but then changes its mind and twists or turns its body into a flat shape and moves through the water horizontally. Another peculiarity of the halibut—other members of the same family, Pleuronectes, show it, too—is that although the original position of the eyes is much the same as it is in other fish, the twisting of the body gradually brings both of them to the upper side. Or to use the words of one scientist in describing what happens: "In the very young (of this family) the bones of the head are symmetrical, one eye on each side, and the body is vertical in the water, but the cranium very soon becomes twisted so as to bring both eyes on one side."

With the change in the shape

of the halibut, by the way, there also comes some change in the coloring of the body. The under side becomes white and the upper side assumes a protective coloring, but, of course, protective coloration is a common condition in nature.

Canada's largest catch of halibut is made on the Pacific coast but the fish are also taken in large quantities in Atlantic waters. The total catch by Canadian fishermen on both coasts in 1934 was more than 12,315,000 pounds. It's a big fishery, and the fish themselves are big, too. Sometimes they run to a couple of hundred pounds or so in weight, though the average is considerably less than that.

Halibut like the colder waters and that's one reason why their flesh is so firm and of such good quality. They are nourishing as well as tasty, the protein percentage running to something like 15.3, as compared, for example, with 13.7 per cent in the case of chicken and less than 4 per cent in the case of milk. Another interesting point about them is that their livers are rich in vitamin content and are now being used in large quantities in the manufacture of medicinal oil.

Until science discovered this vitamin richness a few years ago the halibut livers were regarded as only so much waste but now they bring the fishermen quite a tidy sum every year—nearly $36,500 in British Columbia in 1934, for example, and about $9,600 in Nova Scotia.

LODFISH A LUXURY IN THE BELGIAN CONGO

Down in the Belgian Congo, codfish is a luxury, among the white population with numbers about 25,000 and they constitute the sole demand. The market is supplied by dry salted codfish imported in tins from Norway and Great Britain. The codfish is of two kinds, whole fish with ins and tails but without bones or heads, and boneless codfish cut into pieces. On the other side of the world is Dominica where codfish has been a general article of diet for many years.

In earlier times Nova Scotia and Newfoundland fishermen sailed their schooners to Dominica and sold their catch direct to the market. Today, however, codfish from the Atlantic coast is sold through brokers in Halifax and St. John's, Nfld. The codfish consumed in the Dominican Republic is practically all from Canada, not more than 10 per cent coming from other countries.

MAGNESIUM SAID PLentiful IN THE SEA

Scarcity of magnesium deposits in the United States has caused scientists to turn to the ocean for this mineral, valuable to man's health and to industry. "Limitless supplies of magnesium recovered from the ocean, will strengthen human resistance to cancer and other diseases," says the American Chemical Society.

Commercial recovery of minerals from the sea, for centuries the goal of science, is proceeding on the East and West coasts of the United States. Bromine for anti-knock gasoline is being extracted off the coast of North Carolina, the society reported. Production of magnesium from sea water is progressing at South San Francisco.

Magnesium salts, produced inexpensively, it is believed, will open new fields for their use medically.

"It Can't Be Done."

"It Can't Be Done," the musical comedy presented by the enterprising Anti-Cent group of the United Church, on Friday evening, proved all it was advertised to be, "the best laugh of the season." The cast was well chosen and each took his or her part with remarkable aptitude, especially considering the fact of "youth and inexperience" under the footlights. The short specialty programme preceding the play was bright, snappy and well done and these young people are to be congratulated on their undaunted spirit and willingness to work in promoting church affairs. We understand the proceeds are to be divided between the church, tennis club and junior choir.

Division Entertains Visitors.

The hall of Home Division, Sons of Temperance, at Smith's Cove, was the scene of a large gathering on Wednesday evening, when that division was host to Harmony Division, of Princesdale, and Telephone Division, of Rossburg. There were almost a hundred present. Home Division initiated three candidates, using a trained degree team and putting on the degree with electrical effects. Of the 138 divisions in Nova Scotia Home is unique in its ceremonial work, and wins the praise of visitors for the excellence of its performance. Rev. A. A. MacLeod, field secretary of the Order in Nova Scotia, was present and expressed his sincere pleasure and approbation. The entertainment was provided by the visiting divisions, after which refreshments were served.

The Fram was 400 tons. The new vessel will be 1000 tons and will carry an airplane.

Propose Changes in Church Circuits

Representatives from the United Church circuits of Digby, Digby Neck, Granville Ferry, Annapolis and Weymouth attended a meeting in the United church hall, Digby, on Monday afternoon for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to the boundaries of the various church circuits. Rev. W. J. Dear, of Berwick, presided, and Rev. T. F. MacLennan, of Annapolis Royal, was secretary.

Discussion was chiefly centered around the Digby Neck mission circuit. The present pastor, Rev. W. H. Forsyth, is leaving the field in July, and the grant to this charge from the Home Mission Board, will only run until the end of June.

This circuit is made up of the three preaching stations of Sandy Cove, Centreville and Culloden, the latter station being 26 miles from the parsonage at Sandy Cove. However, as it is understood that unless the church has three charges it cannot receive a mission grant, the people on this circuit are anxious to retain Culloden.

The proposal chiefly discussed suggests that the Sandy Cove and Centreville be made a part of the Weymouth circuit, and that Smith's Cove be taken from Digby and added to Bear River and Culloden added to Digby. Other changes that would be made necessary would be: Granville Ferry churches to Annapolis Royal, the latter to drop Clementsport, which, with Smith's Cove, would be added to Bear River.

No definite decision was reached on any of these proposals, all of which met with strong opposition from Digby, Digby Neck and Weymouth. (Bear River was not represented).

The objection from Weymouth was that it would mean a thirty-five mile trip each way for the pastor to serve the church at Sandy Cove; Digby Neck objected to the distance from Weymouth, and to the fact that for four months out of the year they would be denied church service on account of impassable roads.

Edwin C. Hill, news commentator for an American chain of radio stations, whose voice is heard in Canada over the radio in "The Human Side of the News" recently commented on the triumph of Mussolini in Ethiopia. He followed this up with a statement that the Italians in taking Ethiopia, did no more than the British in taking India, or Canada, or the Belgians in taking the Congo, etc. He forgot about the United States in annexing a great part of Mexico, the Philippines, and Porto Rico. He forgot also that after the Great War fifty-odd nations, including Italy, entered into a solemn covenant to refrain from that sort of thing. A new era in international relationships was thus supposed to have been inaugurated. Italy has proved

By UNCLE JOHN

NOT THE "DRUNK"—BUT THE DRINKER

The old time test of the harm of alcohol was drunkenness. So long as a man didn't get drunk, liquor wasn't doing him any real harm. To drink moderately was alright; the big argument against it was that the drinker might not be able to hold his moderation ground. Hence grew up a sort of hero worship of the man who could "drink like a man" without making a fool of himself by getting drunk.

But these days of greater demands on man's physical, mental and moral powers have made that old test of the harm of alcohol a thing of the past. Today it is realized as never before that, though a man should never be drunk, he has been mightily harmed by the steady use even of a little alcohol. Today it is realized in the light of experience and scientific knowledge that alcohol impairs the action of brain and nerve cells, dulls the power of judgment, lessens self-control, and unfits the user for a thousand and one tasks that this machine age has made the programme of every day living.

The drinker, though never "drunk", is being steadily driven off the sportsman's field, where quick wits and accurate action are imperative to success. He has already made himself obnoxious on the public highway, where it has been tragically revealed too often that "whiskey and gasoline do not mix."

There is no room for him on the battlefields of a nation where clear heads, cool brains and steady hands are needed. The aeroplane has no place for any but the coolest, clearest brain, un-muddled with a drop of alcohol. The hospital wards tell their story of broken bones that take longer to knit and organic diseases long to be thrown off in bodily elimination by the use of alcohol.

The factories and railroads testify that among users of alcohol the number of accidents is three and a half times as many as the average among employees in general. Not "drunk"—only drinking! Today it is the drinker, not the drunk, who is a menace to the physical, mental and moral highways of life.

Haile Selassie will probably find some measure of happiness in Palestine. The monks of his Coptic church have maintained a foundation there for years.

The little emperor himself, product of a strange mixture of races, has a pronounced semitic strain, which shows itself in his delicate features and finely formed hands as it does in his cast of mind, subtle but unyielding.

One may doubt the fancy story that his line is descended from the union of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, but there must be some ancestral strain in him which responds to the appeal of the land many peoples have called holy, the cradle of the semitic race.

Where the little Emperor reigned—some say wisely, others have a different tale—Mussolini's Roman eagles conquer all. A world sick to death of "civilizing" missions will wish them joy of their conquest.

Whatever one may think of Haile Selassie, he stuck to his guns like a man and a gentleman, and only turned tail when there was no other course to take.

If certain politicians at Geneva had shown the same admirable tenacity all this slaughter might have been avoided.

The difference between an Ethiopian battle and a poker game is that, after the latter, everyone says they lost.

condition that that you do not publish in the future articles of condemnation or contempt of court. The Supreme Court has reversed this decision saying, among other things, "The need for a free and unfettered press is perhaps more urgent in this country today than it ever has been before."

THE COUNTRY WEEKLY

(Tuckerton, N. J., Beacon)

Sometimes city people are amused by the items describing local happenings in small country newspapers. Such items do but "chronicle small beer" as Shakespeare says, and the world-wise (in their own conceit), laugh at the trivial happenings recorded. We might contrast the two classes of papers, and see which seem to present the truer picture of life. We read in a great daily paper of women in Dallas, Texas, stripped of their clothing and beaten in the public streets by persons opposing some labor union on strike, and we turn to our country newspaper and read that Mrs. Brown's neighbors held a canning bee at her home because a broken arm prevented her from "doing up" her usual supply of peaches. Then we learn from the city papers that unemployed mechanics on relief projects supported by the taxpayers' money, went on strike because they were not receiving full union wages, and the country paper tells us of farmers working from dawn to dark because they cannot hire anyone to help them. The city papers tell us of boys in their teens who commit a murder during a hold-up, or kill some pedestrian with a stolen automobile, while the country paper tells how Farmer Brown's son is working his way through college, while Mary Smith has won a scholarship that will insure her future education. No, we do not think the racketeers and criminals, the hoodlums and loafers, are representatives of real life; for that we must go to the hardworking, God-fearing homes of the country. But we may well remember that luxury, cowardice and vice have destroyed great nations of old, and when we permit the dark powers of the underworld to control law-making, law enforcing and political agencies, we are moving toward the extinction of our national liberty.

MAN VS. MOOSE

(Amherst News-Gazette)

A licensed guide of Albert Co., N. B., has been on trial before Mr. Justice LeBlanc, at Hopewell Cape, on a charge of causing grievous bodily injury to another person when he thought he was shooting at a moose. The jury found him not guilty, but his Lordship said some things that must have bitten almost as deeply as a grist of shot. He told the accused: "Had you shot a cow moose or a bull moose with only three points, you would have been fined a couple of hundred dollars and sentenced to a jail term. As it was, you were lucky; you shot a man and are to go free."

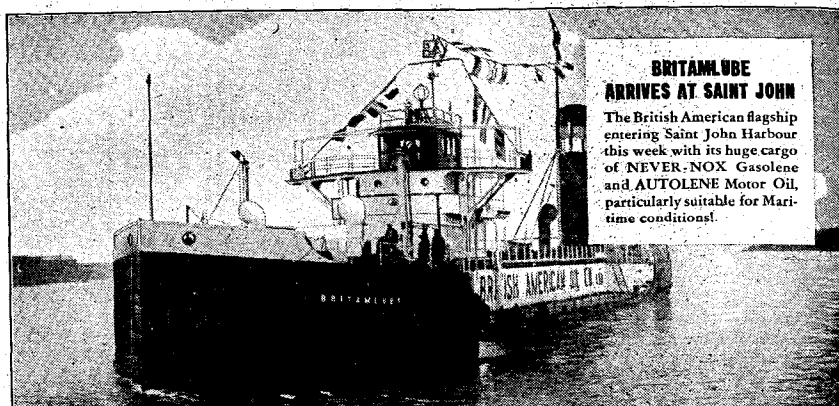

This is a pretty concise summing up of the situation. Scemingly all that a person has to do when he shoots another person by mistake in the woods in the hunting season is to say that he thought he was shooting at a moose or a deer and the jury will take the lenient view and acquit him. But when a person shoots a moose out of season or violates any other regulation in regard to them, there is no such leniency in the court. The fine is imposed and if it is not paid the accused goes to jail. Justice LeBlanc put it nicely when he said: "You are lucky when you shoot only a man."

TO IMPROVE HOME CONDITIONS

Practically every household in the country of an urban centre has a desire to have attractive surroundings and nothing will do so much in this way as so small a cost as the planting of trees, shrubs, plants and vines. Within the next few weeks is the best time for planting, but such work should be done some definite plan in order to get the most pleasing results.

Then there is the question of just what to plant. This and a wide range of other questions is answered in the handbook, "Beautifying the Home Grounds of Canada," issued by the Horticultural Council of Canada, 111 Victoria Street, Ottawa. The opening chapter is on Landscape Architecture—Arranging and Planting the Home Grounds, written so that the most junior tyro in gardening can readily un-

THE BIG TWELVE

Canada has twelve million-dollar fish. Here they are in their order of financial importance—salmon, lobster, cod, herring, whitefish, halibut, haddock, sardines, pickerel, trout, smelts and pilchards. These are "the big twelve" to use the term given them by the department of fisheries.

Each of them is worth more than one million dollars to the Canadian fishing industry. In fact the salmon is itself worth more than twelve million. In some years it has gone over 17 million.

Seasons come and seasons go, bringing changes in values but for a number of years there has been no change in the leadership of the "big twelve". The salmon has remained at the top, with the lobster second, cod third and herring fourth.

Of these four only one takes the leadership as a Pacific Coast product and that is the salmon, notwithstanding that in the east it is also a valuable catch. The other three are pre-eminently Atlantic Coast fish. The Canadian fisheries catch in 1934 was valued at $34,000,000.

"Poor" Man Leaves $75,000.
Tom Broughton, a retired gasfitter, lived alone in a small house in the working class district of Leicester, England, and neighbors thought he had just enough to live on, but no one knew anything about his affairs. He was found dead in a chair. Then it was learned that he had left $75,000, all of which goes to his daughter, who was unmarried. Broughton was 84.

Confined to Bed Couldn't Get Relief

Until Hantsport Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. Hughes Felt Much Better After Taking Two Boxes

Hantsport, N. S., May 18th (Special).—A few years ago I developed very serious kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Thomas Hughes of this place. "I was confined to bed. I tried several remedies without benefit. I was advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking two boxes I felt much better. I took six boxes and have not had a return of the trouble since."

From all parts of Canada come similar messages to that of Mrs. Hughes. These reports of relief secured from kidney trouble merely emphasize the importance of this famous old remedy in the lives of so many people. Be guided by the experience of others. At the first sign of kidney trouble turn with confidence to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

DIAMOND DRILLS

The thrilling story of the rescue of two men entombed in the gold mine at Moose River contained constant references to the diamond drills which were piercing their way downwards.

It is quite certain that to the lay mind a diamond is a precious stone, a sparkling gem to be set in a ring or other ornament. Therefore, it may surprise many to learn that although valued for colour and other defects one-half of the total weight of all the diamonds mined is useless for cutting into brilliant for ornamental purposes, this half of the world's diamond production has a very great utility value, being, in fact, indispensable for an endless variety of industrial, mechanical and scientific purposes. Such diamonds are termed Industrial Diamonds and are found side by side with diamonds of the first water.

The African continent produces practically all of the world's diamonds, but the highest priced of all the Industrial Diamonds are the Brazilian black diamonds. The stones are broken and shaped into the sizes required for diamond drilling crowns. They are of inestimable value to mining engineers, although useless for ornamentation. They do the cutting such as at Moose River.

The importation of industrial diamonds runs to so large a sum

VAGABONDING IN THE INDIES

A series of 6,500-mile leisurely vacation cruises, which combine the scenic beauty of the St. Lawrence seaway with the loveliness of southern sea areas, will be conducted this season aboard the "vagabond" passenger-carrying vessels Chomedy and Colborne, Canadian National Steamships, according to Victor E. Eke, Passenger Traffic Manager of the Company.

These will sail regularly from Montreal throughout the summer and fall seasons on 35-day voyages via Halifax to the delightful colonies of Puerto Rico, Barbados, Trinidad and British Guiana, with calls also at Guadeloupe and Martinique in the French West Indies when sufficient cargo offers. "These cruises are operated at an all-expense-included rate which enables passengers to compute the total cost of the cruise holiday before leaving home, which averages at a surprisingly low rate per day," stated Mr. Eke. "They offer all the comforts of the more luxurious ships but are designed to meet the needs of those seeking rest and quiet; who desire to get away from the formalities pertaining to larger passenger vessels and where there is only a very small group of fellow passengers."

"These passenger-carrying freighters sail more leisurely than the 'Lady' liners and occupy 3 days and 4 nights from Montreal to Halifax, where 12 hours are spent in port. The ship then moves on to Puerto Rico, the American colony, where another 8 hours are spent, many passengers availing themselves of the bathing facilities on the palm-fringed beach at San Juan and the huge open air-cave with its music and dancing. Sometimes these ships also call at the French islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique, depending on the discharge or taking on of cargo, after which Barbados is reached, with a night and day in port."

Trinidad, off the coast of Venezuela, is the next port of call, where the ship docks for about two and a half days, enabling passengers to see the beauties in this 'Land of the Humming Bird.' Another sail brings the ship to her southern terminus at Georgetown, British Guiana, on the coast of South America, where two days are available in which to see the botanical gardens of 160 acres, among the finest in the world, the municipal market and some of the largest sugar plantations on the globe. The ship then commences her northbound trip, calling again at Trinidad and Barbados, which are the last ports of call until Quebec and Montreal are reached, completing the full cruise in 38 days."

FLAGRANT VIOLATION OF LAW

In one of our towns recently a Plymouth Sedan, a Dodge Coupe, and a Rug were won in a "drawing" at a motor show. This lottery had the apparent approval of prominent citizens and the drawing for the Rug was conducted by a society whose name should obligate its members to stand for observance of law.

The law relating to lotteries provides that it is unlawful to sell or offer for sale any lot, card, ticket, or other means or device for giving, selling, or otherwise disposing of any property by lots, tickets, or any mode of chance whatsoever. There is an unethical provision in the law permitting raffish for small prizes at a bazaar held for any charitable or religious object. But the law does not permit any person to sell or buy any numbered tickets or coupons for a "drawing" except at such bazaar.

Attorney-General's instructions In February, 1934, and again in December, 1934, the Hon. J. H. MacQuarrie issued letters to all chiefs of Police and Peace Officers, instructing them regarding their duty in the enforcement of provisions in the Criminal Code relating to lotteries, and said:

"The practices which they prohibit are not only illegal but injurious to the best interests of the community, and especially to the young."

Held In Contempt

The instructions issued by the Attorney-General are being ignored, if not held in contempt, by certain organizations. Why demand prosecution of owners of slot machines and countenance other violations of the Code?

There is imperative need for teaching in the home, the public school, the pulpit and the press on the matter of respect for law. There is also need for town, city and all municipal authorities to support the Police in the performance of their sworn duty. True citizenship demands observance of law by all classes.

H. R. GRANT, Gen'l Sec'y., Social Service Coun.

What can a Trust Company do for me?

Do you own securities? Is it difficult for you to keep advised of conversion privileges, call and redemption clauses, prospects and statements of the Companies whose bonds you have, and other factors affecting the value of your investments?

Above all are you satisfied that the money from called or matured securities will be re-invested safely? There are many pitfalls now, and numerous attempts to sell unsuspecting persons inferior investments.

The cost of using our service as fiscal agent or custodian is small—trifling when compared with the loss from even one wrong purchase. Our experienced officials would be very glad to discuss matters with you.

The Garfire Gun
It Kills Fire!AN ACCOMPLISHMENT OF MODERN SCIENCE

It will put out incipient fires—even in grease, oil, gasoline, volatile liquids, or electrical equipment—as easily and simply as blowing out a match. A NEW development—the result of years of research and experiment. Tested. Proven. Sure. Fool-proof.

The GARFIRE GUN uses the Garrison DRY Compound. You pump it on the flames, and it cuts off the supply of oxygen, without which fire cannot live. At the same time it cools the heated materials, insulating them against re-ignition. It does both of these QUICKLY. Without damage to anything but the fire. It is absolutely harmless to persons and property. A revolution in fire fighting!

Only $5.95

Complete, with wall bracket for mounting. Modern in design. Sturdy construction. Plated finish. Length, 16 inches. Diameter, 3½ inches. Weight, 3½ pounds.

Get Flames While They're Young!

And with the GARFIRE GUN. In the home—hotel—restaurant—club—library—garage—filling station—theatre—automobile—motor-boat—airplane—every institution—every commercial plant. The GARFIRE GUN was especially designed for quick, easy, effective use by the average person on any incipient fire. Indoors or out. It gives you complete protection—for the first time in history.

Testimonial

Gentlemen:—Enclosed please find order for 4 Garfire Extinguishers. We were very much impressed with the way in which this instrument controlled the fires arranged for demonstration, coming in competition with two other types of extinguishers which we have been depending upon for the past years.

I believe you said that you had a stock of these Extinguishers on hand; in which case, we will have our truck get these up tomorrow afternoon.

A play, "The Three Pegs," by the E-G-I Club of Grace United Church, and presented under the joint auspices of that club and the Ladies' Aid of the Weymouth United Church, took place in the Community Theatre, at Weymouth, on Thursday evening last. Each member of the cast performed her part in a very creditable manner and the play was greatly enjoyed.

Lobsters in Deep Waters.

It is not unusual for deep sea trawlers to drag up large lobsters in 150 fathoms of water. When brought from that great depth the crustaceans act more dead than alive, it is said. This condition is brought about, it is believed, because they are unable to withstand their sudden removal from their natural element where the water pressure is so great. However, their feeble condition in no way detracts from their eating qualities.

Bible Still the Best Seller.

A continued demand for the Bible throughout the world was reported at the 120th annual meeting of the American Bible Society. The society distributed during 1935, at home and abroad, 7,223,550 volumes of Bibles, Testaments, and portions of the Bible in 132 languages and dialects. Scriptures in over 100 languages were circulated in the United States alone. The year's circulation brings the grand total of Scriptures distributed by the society during its 120 years of service to more than a quarter of a billion volumes.

The Barton-Brighton Brotherhood had their final meeting for the season in the Community Hall, Barton, on Friday evening of last week. Arrangements had been made to obtain a very fine set of slides from the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, on "Homes in Canada from Coast to Coast," and so these were shown to a fair-sized audience, the Community Club also joining with the Brotherhood. The slides emphasized in a fine way the manner in which trees, shrubs, vines and flowers may be used in beautifying the home grounds, and illustrated quite effectively such points as framing the building with trees, tying the house to the grounds, arranging the garden, and properly laying off the surroundings so as to have a balanced effect. Music was furnished by Mrs. Joseph Speight, Mrs. Lloyd Grant and Mr. Johnston. It all made a most delightful and very profitable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Witherbee are usually among the first residents of the summer colony at Harbor View, Smith's Cove, and have been regular visitors for many years. It is hoped that Mr. Witherbee will so far recover his health that he can take the long journey east to his cottage at Smith's Cove.

The Weather.

Old man winter paid us a visit over the past week end. On Saturday, for part of the day at least, the thermometer hung pretty close to the freezing point—and in addition to that, there were a few snow squalls. Sunday, though not so bad, was bad enough. However we guess the trout enjoyed the cold spell—we know of several who planned to spend the week end in the woods, but changed their minds when they faced the chilly weather of Saturday.

One Fisherman To Be Chosen.

Each member of the provincial legislature representing a fishing constituency, has been asked to name one fisherman from his constituency to attend a meeting to be held in the Province House on Tuesday. ### Thirty-Six Million in One Hand

Eight cheques totalling in value no less a sum than $36,755,630 changed hands on May 1 when the Canadian Pacific Railway paid off the balance in principal and interest due of the sixty million dollar loan contracted in 1932, and guaranteed by the Dominion Government at that time. It will be remembered that in June of that year the Canadian Pacific had to raise the sixty millions to meet maturing obligations. The money markets of the world were then feeling the full effect of the financial crisis and were closed with the result that it was not possible for a Canadian institution to borrow so large a sum on advantageous terms. The Canadian banks therefore agreed to combine in making this loan, but as an added measure of security to the banks the Dominion Government agreed to guarantee re-payment of the loan both as to principal and interest. The loan was to mature in five years, or might be paid off by the Canadian Pacific prior thereto on notice to be given to the banks. It has been paid off in full in less than three years, and the obligation of the Government to guarantee payment came to an end automatically the moment the cheques issued today were presented. Furthermore, since all interest and other charges have been paid by the Company, the entire transaction has not cost the Dominion Government one cent. The loan originally carried an interest rate of five per cent, but later this was reduced to four and a half per cent. New loans raised by the Company to pay this off were made at a still lower rate of interest.

FISHERMEN'S LUCK

and they got wet and went hungry, as the old saying goes. Luck, well, maybe, but there is a lot in the way a fly or bait is laid to the fish. For the fly casting beginner after he has gotten the hang of timing or the one, two, three, a bit of lift to the wrist when the fly straightens out over the water will lay the fly down smoothly and gently with but little splash. After all, in fly casting you are just trying to fool the fish and it must be done carefully. The same care and good judgment in bait fishing takes a lot of luck out of this fascinating pastime. And if you go with old and poor gear it's your fault—and not bad luck. The season is in full swing and if you need

New Map of Nova Scotia

Glancing at the new map of Nova Scotia just issued by the Topographical and Air Survey Bureau, Department of the Interior, one finds it difficult to realize that, according to geologists during very early times the entire area was part of an elevated sea-bottom that extended from Yarmouth to Labrador, until mountain-forming movements set in which resulted in its present-day formation and appearance.

Study of the map shows that Nova Scotia is thrust conspicuously out into the Atlantic ocean from the southeast extremity of New Brunswick. Save for the isthmus of Chignecto, thirteen miles wide and connecting it with the mainland to the northwest, the peninsula is surrounded on all sides by water, consisting of the Bay of Fundy, the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Nova Scotia is 150 miles in length, with a breadth varying from 50 to 100 miles and is 21,427 square miles in area. The coast line and the network of lakes and rivers offer a good choice of localities for many species of fish, and as there are no exclusive fishing rights granted in the province, the angler may fish where he chooses in publicly owned waters. In view of the easy accessibility to the game areas, Nova Scotia has a special attraction for the sportsmen and some fine trophies of moose, deer, and other animals are secured during the open season.

The discoverer of the peninsula—John Cabot—landed on the east coast of Cape Breton in 1497. Other early voyagers state in their memoirs that seams of coal, threading the cliffs in that part of the province, were worked with crowbars, for French and English cargoes. These deposits are now mined extensively some of them extending far under the sea.

At almost the opposite end of the map lies part of the "Acadia" country, now the scene of fruit orchards, extending nearly 100 miles throughout the Annapolis and Cornwallis Valleys. Between 85 and 90 per cent of the annual crop of apples produced in this section of the province is exported to the United Kingdom, the remainder being consumed locally and also in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario.

Other classes of information shown on the map are counties, with their boundary lines; centres of population; railway lines, principal roads; lakes, rivers and canals; heights above sea level, in "figures"; and by distinctive tinting altitudes to the nearest hundred metres. Along the coast-line, bays, harbours, coves, points and islands are indicated, while the depth of water is also given by tints to the nearest hundred metres.

Part of a Map of the World.

Although the map is primarily one of Nova Scotia, it includes the "Magdalen Islands, also Prince Edward Island, and the eastern part of New Brunswick, with their extensive coast-lines and other maritime features similar to the peninsula province. It is the third map sheet issued in Canada, of a series that eventually will comprise an international map of the world. The many hundreds of maps required to complete the task are being published gradually by the different countries carrying on the undertaking and to ensure uniformity, all of the co-operating agencies are adhering to a standard set of specifications with regard to scale, symbols, conventional signs, style of lettering, projection and area, in preparing the map sheets of sections of their respective countries.

The new map has been prepared on a scale of one to one million or approximately 16 miles to one inch, and it is 25 by 25 inches in size, while the area which it covers extends from longitude 60 degrees to longitude 68 degrees and from latitude 44 degrees to latitude 48 degrees. In Canada a charge of 25 cents is made for the map. It might be noted, however, that when this map or any of the one thousand or more maps which are distributed by this Bureau are required for educational purposes in the schools, a discount of forty per cent is allowed. To applicants outside of Canada the price of the new map is 75 cents, in accordance with the general regulations of the International Map of the World Committee.

Applications for the "Nova Scotia" map, or for information about any other maps, should be addressed to the Surveyor General, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Since he inherited over $200,000 some months ago under the terms of the will of a wealthy American with whose family he once was friendly, Suzuki has been annoyed by a constant flood of offers of marriages, sales talks about "magnificent opportunities" to increase his riches through investments, and bald requests for loans. ## Society Wears Dogs' Hair.

One of the current fashions among society people of London is spring suiting made from the hair of one's favorite dog. Scarves and jumpers from the wool of pet Angora rabbits and combings from Persian cats are already established in society's favor, but the dog hair idea is new. Some garments of canine texture were shown at this year's exhibition of East Anglian crafts. Miss Doris Jewson, an expert in handloom weaving and spinning, displayed a length of dog hair material which was to be made into a lady's cloak. She remarked that she is making suits for her customers from the hair of their favorite canines. "Collies and other long-haired sheep dogs are best," she said. "People like wearing something of their dogs."

Tot Gives Murder Clue.

Nine-year-old Mary Buxendall, the daughter of a World War soldier, has solved a murder mystery which baffled the police of Boulogne, France. M. Rumaux, an old man who conducted a toy shop where school children bought pencils, tops, and chalk, was found dead in the kitchen. Three Chinese peddlers were suspected, but no clue could be found. Mary heard about the tragedy from her mother, and immediately said: "I went into the shop yesterday about quarter to two in the afternoon with another girl to buy some chalk, and there was Jean de Moal, the boat painter." Mrs. Buxendall informed the police that the boat was arrested and, according to the police, confessed that he killed Rumaux immediately after the children had left.

Australia Prepares.

Australia is determined to make itself independent for defense purposes, and the government is studying projects for the production of its own motor fuel and fuel oil. Attention is being given to these projects following a report of experts to the effect that exploitation by the government of a shale field for oil production at Newnes, New South Wales, would not be economically sound. The cabinet will shortly decide what action to take. Meanwhile reports on the hydro-generation process of extracting oil from coal are awaited from Europe. The government's interest in oil production is believed to have given a strong impetus to the present widespread search for well oil in Australia and New Guinea.

NATIONAL PARKS

Citizens of the five western counties of the province, Queens, Shelburne, Yarmouth, Digby and Annapolis are pressing for a national park in that section of Nova Scotia. They suggest that the park should include the Tobetic game reserve of 175 square miles and an addition of 130 square miles adjacent, which is mostly crown land. They point out the importance of the establishment of such a park in the western counties, adjacent to the key ports to the millions of potential United States tourists.

A site in northern Cape Breton has already been selected for a national park in Nova Scotia, and the federal government has voted $140,000 for the development of new parks in the Maritime Provinces. Premier and all the rest of it for men. Full evening dress, once outlawed, is now demanded. A disgruntled member of the Communist party grumbles that anybody can see Russia's going to the devil, when proletarians try to dress like gentlemen.

Queens come high. In England they cost about $200,000 a year. That is the sum set aside in the British budget, in response to a request from King Edward for the support of his queen—in case he should decide to marry.

The British people, however, with the exception of some rude Labor party members in Parliament, seem to bear this expense cheerfully. They love their royal family, they regard it as the keystone of the empire, and they believe it costs them much less to support their royalty in the style to which it is accustomed than it might cost to try doing without it.

CHILD'S PROSPECT AND FARM.
An economist at the University of Wisconsin, Dr. O.O. E. Baker, expresses the sincere hope that his boy, now 5, will eventually become a farmer.

The farmer has better food, even in times of depression, than his city neighbors; he has better health; he can accumulate more property; he is more likely to enjoy his work than town people; finally, and most important, the farmer is more likely to rear a family and do his part to promote the general welfare of the nation.

From that viewpoint, this economist's ambition for his boy ought to set up an example for many other urban fathers.

In any event it is one bet in their children's future that parents cannot afford to overlook.

And incidentally, laying aside the customary jibes directed at farm life, agriculture, in the final analysis, is the nation's fundamental business.

Vancouver's Golden Jubilee

Fifty years ago the first trans-continental Canadian Pacific Railway train from Montreal reached the Pacific Coast. This summer Vancouver, now the Gateway to the Orient and port for ships of the entire world, will celebrate the Golden Jubilee of its founding as the western terminal of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Commencing July 1 with Dominion and International Good Will Week, the programme concludes with the Canada Pacific Exhibition on September 7, and includes land and water sports, several weeks of grand pageantry, musical attractions, visit of American warships, a two-day air show with a solo flight across Canada, planned as the highlight, floral decorations, visit of 15,000 Shriner in mid-July, traditional pageantry of an Aldershot tattoo, frontier week, street dancing and costume balls, and historical exhibits arranged to illustrate Vancouver's steady progress during the first half century of its existence.

Even before the beginning of the celebration proper, many colorful events will be given recognition, including Empire Day and horticultural show in May; Pioneer's festival on June 13-14; schools' programme in June; Eucharistic Congress, which will attract thousands, June 11 to 14; golf tournament, King's birthday, and religious dedicatory services.

One of the highlights of Vancouver's celebration will be the re-enactment of the arrival of the first Canadian Pacific train almost half a century ago. The venerable old engine, first to the coast, will be run again, with its original pilot, W. H. Evans, at the throttle. Some of the old-timers who saw the first train arrive will also be present for the ceremony. The Canadian Pacific Railway will run tours at low cost from Eastern Canada to the Pacific Coast for the event, with stop-over privileges at Banff Springs Hotel, Chateau Lake Louise, and other famous Rocky Mountain resorts.

Pictures show the old and the new Vancouver, and Sir William Van Horne, second president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who chose the name of Vancouver in 1884 for the western terminal of the first trans-continental railway line.

but the newspapers are expected to print it free of charge. This sort of thing becomes monotonous after awhile with the result that a capacious waste basket, easy of access, is soon filled to overflowing. The announcement of Hon. Mr. Michaud that money is to be used for the purchase of advertising space will be read with satisfaction. It is to the credit of Hon. Mr. Michaud that he has had the wise foresight to inaugurate a publicity campaign, which should be productive of splendid results.

Many of us in the Maritimes are fish eaters and we are proud of it: may the number increase, not only in the Atlantic provinces but all over Canada.

LOBSTER CATCH SLACKING UP ALONG STRAIT

"The cream of the lobster crop has been picked off," was the way one lobsterman answered a query about the lobster catch. He stated that the catch was good at first but has now slackened up and he believed that the peak had been passed. This condition prevails along the Nova Scotia shore of Northumberland Strait and Prince Edward Island, but the catch in Antigonish County has kept up better, although it is now shading off slightly. In a normal fishing season, drift ice hampers the work of fishermen in putting out their traps, and sometimes carries away traps already laid, so that it is nearly the middle of May before the industry hits its full stride, and from that time until about May 24th the catch is heaviest, declining thereafter throughout the balance of the season. This year the ice left the coast early and some fishermen have advanced the theory that the lobster moves north with the ice, but others say that this is not the case. Warmer waters seem to have some influence on the lobster's movements, however, especially with regard to the shedding of their shells, as later in the summer fishermen find "soft" lobsters (without shells) in their catch. This is said to be more noticeable in areas where the fishing season opens later in the summer. Although the catch is declining, the price of lobsters is much higher than last year, when "Canners" brought about 64c. and "Market" lobsters about 8c. This year the prices are 9c. and 10c., or higher for the two sizes of lobsters.

HELPING THE FARMER

According to information given in Parliament a few days ago, 11,000 farmers in Canada have taken advantage of the Farmers' Creditors' Agreement Act since it was placed on the Statute Book by the Bennett Government eighteen months ago, with the result that $51,000,000 of indebtedness has been reduced by more than $15,000,000, and the annual interest charge had been cut by $1,228,000. As the Amherst News Sentinel declares, this is a most creditable achievement. These debt settlements meant two things. First that the farmers or settlers involved did not lose their homes, but, freed of burdens they could not carry, were given a new start. Second that their creditors were given a reasonable settlement—instead of a possible loss of everything, or of being compelled to take over farms from which they could secure little profit. Finally, there was the benefit to Canada—the benefit of people remaining on the land.

MERCHANDISING FEAR

By advice of its British agency, a Hollywood studio which has been active in the making of horror films is reported as excluding all knockers from its next year's production plans, so the Christian Science Monitor says. It is explained that a growing severity of censorship in Great Britain threatens to make unmarketable these films filled with situations based upon fear. That an American producing company should take advice from its British distributors indicates that the returns from English-speaking countries outside the United States represent a considerable margin of profit. Canadian and Australian authorities of late have proved increasingly stern when these shockers have been submitted for approval.

There are people who urge that censorship of gooselike films indicates a needless concern for the sensibilities of the spectators—that they should enjoy these tales of vampires, ghosts, ghouls, werewolves and weird doings in laboratories as entertaining mysteries, nothing more than photographed trickeries. Unhappily it appears that for many adults and most children scenes of terror on the screen have undesirable consequences.

Parents who have observed the bad effects on their children of films filled with representations of terror, torture and slaughter need no specialist's analysis to convince them that sharp limitations should be placed upon the merchandising of fear. They will be glad to hear of the restraint on the makers of horror films, even if it has to be exerted by such remote control as a British market warning to Hollywood. A hint often suffices to achieve a reform when the penalty for nonobservance is loss of profits.

It first took possession of an empty mail bag, and resented efforts to attract the queen bee to a cage. After a two-day battle the bees were smoked out by burning sulphur, paper and rags.

The Redfish.
For a long time the redfish, a kind of perch, caught in the waters of the Bay of Fundy and often exposed for sale in Westport and Freeport, was once as useless to the fishermen as dogfish. But now because of a filletting process practised in Gloucester, it is finding a market in the West where it is competing with the hot dog as a roadside delicacy. The value of the industry is shown by the fact that no less than 405,000 pounds were landed at Gloucester the other day.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

It is a rare occurrence when a double exposure does not spoil two good pictures and waste film.

The above picture of a Brooding Indian young lady miraculously reflecting on the surface of the sea amidst a fleet of sailboats reminds us that while modern cameras are indeed close to being robots in their performance, they still demand the cooperation of human intelligence in order to function with the result expected.

The photograph is the curious consequence of a double exposure, illustrating the fact that the film behind your camera lens will not move over for the next picture by the exercise of its own free will. About that it is totally indifferent. You have to perform this operation yourself. If you forget it, and find that you have twice or thrice exposed the same frame of film, you may by chance get a picture as amusing and worth keeping as the one above, but in most cases you will have a meaningless jumble of superimposed shapes and shadows that will interest no body, not even a Cubist. Result, you have lost two or three pictures that

FAVORS EATING FISH

(St. John's Tribune)

The congratulations of the Maritimes are due Hon. J. E. Michaud, Minister of Fisheries, for his action in placing in the estimates an item of $200,000, the most of which will likely be used for publicity. Somehow or other a prejudice exists against fish. Many people think that fish should be served once a week and no oftener. Young people, with vigorous and healthy stomachs, may be able to digest almost anything, but as men and women grow older, care must be exercised. Heavy meats are apt to produce dullness and drowsiness, which mean that such foods are hard to digest. Fish, on the other hand, is easily chewed and readily digested. While a man, who has eaten a big dinner of beef, may feel somewhat uncomfortable, an eater of fish will not know that he has a stomach. Then fish contain numerous vitamins, which are not found in meats. The food value of fish is recognized by those who have studied the question, but the great majority of people are full of fish prejudices and superstitions. To combat these a campaign of education is planned. We in the Maritimes should be fish conscious, but are we? Familiarity seems to breed contempt. Instead of eating fish we cultivate expensive tastes, demanding imported viands instead of eating native foods.

Fish is said to be good brain food and good reason why we need phosphorus for brain growth and fish has it. Lime and iodine are needed to build up bodily tissues and fish has them. People who eat plenty of fish are apt to be healthy and therefore able to tackle life's problems with energy and vim.

A great many people don't know how to cook fish properly. The frying pan is too often used with the result that perfectly good fish are rendered indigestible and unappetizing. The right kind of instruction, as to the best methods of cooking fish is most desirable. A publicity campaign should focus attention on fish with the result that the consumption should increase, the general health of the people be promoted, and a great national industry stimulated and expanded.

In the past articles, prepared in the Department of Fisheries, have been sent out to the newspapers of Canada. Some newspapers have used the excellent material, while the great majority have not done so. Every mail brings to a newspaper office enough government articles to fill its columns completely. Those who prepare the copy, get paid,

The grand jury completed its sittings at the end of the first day, finding three true bills and two no bills in the five crown cases on the docket. Bernard VanTassell, of Digby, was sentenced to three years in Dorchester penitentiary on the charge of theft by his Lordship Mr. Justice Hall, who presided over the spring session of the Supreme Court, which has been sitting here since Tuesday. Only one of the civil cases were tried, that of Blackadar vs. Blackadar, an action for partition of land near Bear River. Decision was given in favor of the plaintiff. The Hallowell vs. Hallowell was settled shortly before the latter came up for hearing.

The first true bill was found in the case of the King vs. Wendall Langford, colored, of Weymouth Falls, who was arranged on the charge of attempting to rape a young colored girl by the name of Annette Sparks, of the same village. Langford pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

The Victorian Order of Nurses—familiarily known as the V. O. N.—is a nation-wide organization. Its nurses are graduates of recognized hospital training schools, registered, and with special training or experience in public health nursing. They give nursing care and health supervision to patients in their own homes.

It requires approximately $1500 to carry this work. Apart from the town grant and fees collected by the nurse, $1000 is needed annually to ensure her services for school, social service and other public health work in the community.

The annual campaign for membership fees and funds will take place beginning the first week in June. Collectors will call and you are asked to contribute as liberally as possible.

with breaking, entering and stealing from the store of Angus McPhee. VanTassell pleaded not guilty, and a petit jury was chosen with D. C. McKay as foreman. The case went to the jury at 2.30, they returned half an hour later with a verdict of guilty on the charge of theft. The prisoner was not found guilty on the breaking and entering count. VanTassell was also remanded for sentence.

No bills were found in the case of the King vs. Roney Warne, Lansdowne Road, near Bear River, charged with rape, or in the case of the King vs. Wallace J. Melanson, of Weymouth North, charged with arson. In the latter case when the grand jury returned with no bill they were instructed by his lordship to retire and reconsider. They returned again with no bill, and it was intimated the case would come before the fall session at Clare.

Before adjourning for the day a true bill was found in the case of the King vs. Mary A. E. Hallowell, of Weymouth, charged with theft. This case came up for trial Wednesday morning, and the entire jury panel was exhausted with only eleven jurors chosen. The sheriff was sent down town for talismen, returning with three, of whom Sidney Gidney was selected. D. C. McKay was appointed foreman of the jury to try this case.

The jury retired late in the afternoon, and returned half an hour later with a verdict of not guilty. In this case Herbert Hallowell charged his wife with padlocking the house barn and fox ranch against him, and having six silver black foxes killed and pelted. He stated they had not been living together as man and wife. Mrs. Hallowell, on the other hand, testified that they were living as man and wife and that the foxes, the pelts of which were exhibited, were as her share of the ranch.

THE HOMETOWN NEWSPAPER

Writing in the current Liberty Magazine, Princess Alexandra Kropotkin says:

"To a dowager lady of my acquaintance I went to for advice on the subject of inexpensive wedding gifts. She lives in a city of medium size, knows practically everyone, has dozens of young relatives, is bombarded every June with invitations to weddings."

Princess Kropotkin received the following advice from her friend:

"I give them all subscriptions to our home town newspaper. If they set up housekeeping here they'll need the paper in their home, just as they'll need milk every day, and gas and electricity. If they go away to live somewhere else, as so many young people do today—then I believe they may need their home town paper even more."

"Here is a genuinely thoughtful wedding gift suggestion," agrees the Princess. "Every newly-wed, as a new family unit in its community, should be well informed, always, concerning local affairs. And if the young pair must move away—why break old ties completely? Their home town paper can be a strong chain linking them to loved ones and fond friends."

AN EXCHANGE OF PLEASANTRIES.

(From the Digby Courier files, May 17th, 1895).

Annapolis Spectator:—Stranger things may happen than that the regular D. A. R. express will not go into Digby, but the next station after Smith's Cove will be Jordantown, a branch line will be built between these two points. This will save about thirty minutes of time and land passengers in Boston one-half hour sooner."

Said the Courier:—"We have also heard of an idea of bridging the Digby Gut and running a railroad along the top of the North Mountain. By keeping along that route and avoiding Annapolis, crossing the river at Bridgetown, considerable time can be saved, and passengers landed in Halifax an hour or more earlier. Truly these are days of wonders and wonderful suggestions."

ORCHARD CONDITIONS IN THE VALLEY

The blossom buds of apple trees developed slowly last week and over the week end due to the cool weather. A couple of warm days this week have forced them along with early varieties out by the middle of the week. Given the right kind of weather and the blossoms will advance rapidly.

Pear, cherry and plum trees were in full bloom the first of the week and for the most part the blossoms were quite heavy on these fruits. There has been some fairly good weather for pollination and the pollinating insects seem quite plentiful. It is too early to estimate whether or not the freezing temperatures of the night of May 16 had any serious effect on the open blossoms.

Strawberries in some places seem to be somewhat affected while in others they escaped injury. In some locations there may also have been some damage to cherry and plum blossoms. So far as can be noted to date there is not any injury to apple blossoms.

OBJECTS TO SUNDAY FISHING.

To the Editor of the Courier:—

Sir—As I was reading the last edition of the Courier I noticed an article written by a sportsman who had been in the car on a fishing trip. On his return he reported finding the carcass of a cow moose and also of hearing about a deer in the same state, both in the same vicinity. He said the cause of death was a wound inflicted by a small calibre rifle and then the animals were left to wander away and die.

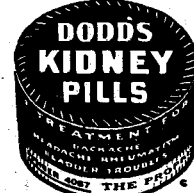

Such reports are often made but seldom investigated. If the animals were not skinned how could the man determine the cause of death? We know by the laws of nature that there are cases of death in all species of animals, both large and small, at this season of the year.

But sportsmen are ever ready to lay the blame on fox ranchers. I hear that the Fish and Game Association are having such cases investigated and if it is true that moose and deer are being slaughtered to feed foxes then, I say, it should be stopped at once. At the same time the Association should watch the sportsman. Does he do what is right? Last Sunday I chanced to meet a man from a nearby town, fully equipped with fishing tackle and canoe, carrying a fishing basket in which were a few trout. I asked him if he knew there was a law against Sunday fishing and he replied that HE knew of no law. He turned away in his canoe, casting his flies for more trout.

There seems to be many who do not know that there is a law against fishing on Sunday, as there are far more fishermen seen on Sunday than all the rest of the week. Are they called law breakers? No! They are sports! Why should the Association overlook such things? Is it any worse to break one law than another? Is it not worse to break a law made by both God and man than to break a law made by man alone?

Fishing on Sunday is not only a rumor but a fact.

Bigger Liner Planned.

The Queen Mary, Britain's biggest liner, now on her first voyage across the ocean, is sure to have a big sister, according to reports received in London from reliable sources. The gross tonnage of the Queen Mary has been announced as $0,773, but it is believed that the tonnage of the proposed vessel will be 90,000. Officials of the company owning the Queen Mary have made inquiries regarding constructing the second ship but no definite move will be made until after the Queen Mary has been in commission for several months. Negotiations are said to be under way toward obtaining the necessary government approval before construction of the vessel could be started.

It was only an old magazine that she had already finished reading but it was the object of an intense and frantic search of Mrs. Jackson of Kansas City. Between its pages she had concealed $250 and some valuable papers. The magazine was recovered with its contents complete, after being traced through the trash man to a junk dealer.

Spanish Bandit Released.

That he has discovered a process for the manufacture of synthetic wood after 30 years' experimenting, is claimed by a man of Melbourne, Australia. He says his product may be sawn, planed and chiselled like ordinary wood, but without warping, splitting or shrinkage. It is grainless and non-inflammable. Nails and screws driven into it will withstand any reasonable strain.

Salvage in Quetta Ends.

Clearing of the wreckage in Quetta, epicentre of the disastrous earthquake in India last June, when 60,000 lives were lost, has just been completed. Salvage crews restored 12,607 houses and stores, and exhumed 8,078 bodies. Property worth $2,137,500 was recovered and returned to the owners. The real value of this property is at least double the figure given, the report adds, because it is not thought proper to harass the owners unnecessarily in time of distress in order to obtain the exact estimates.

World Flight Plans Made.

Jim Mollison has announced in Sydney, New South Wales, that plans for his solo flight around the world this summer are well under way. He expects to cover 24,000 miles in 21 days. He will start from London and fly to Australia in six days. Then he will cross the Pacific from Brisbane, fly across the United States, and finally over the North Atlantic to London.

Man, 75, Seeks Divorce.

Having fallen in love with a girl of 22, a retired ironmonger, aged 75, of Warsaw, Poland, is seeking a divorce from his 47-year-old wife. Mate No. 1 apparently has no objection but she demands half the man's fortune as the price of letting him go. He is rich and she claims that his fortune was built by their combined efforts in thirty years of married life.

Cemetery Finally Found.

The wish of a dying man that he be buried in the cemetery of Bride Island, a holiday resort of Brisbane, Australia, caused the inhabitants a search because no one had been buried there for many years and the burial place had been forgotten. A government official on vacation there saved the situation when he produced a map and located a ten-acre plot as the cemetery. The islanders had to cut a mile-long road to it, and gave the man a public funeral.

Brandy Starts Forest Fire.

Carrying 2,000 gallons of brandy a truck crashed into another vehicle near Chadville, in France, and overturned into a ditch. The brandy caught fire and burned the truck. The flames then spread to the surrounding forest, which was destroyed.

Crew Crazy by Thirst.

That the entire crew of a disabled native trading vessel was found delirious with thirst while the ship was adrift at the mercy of a heavy sea off the Maldives

Islands, was reported by the motorship Luxmi, on its arrival at Durban, South Africa, recently. On sighting the vessel, one of the Luxmi's boats was lowered. The rescuers were told that the trader had been adrift for a week, and had run short of water. Water and materials for repairing the damage was lowered by the Luxmi, and the disabled craft was given a course to steer by. The crew of the trader were particularly fortunate, as the Luxmi had departed from her usual course to carry a cargo of rice through the Maldives Islands.

Woman, 90, Refuses Pension.

Local and General

Miss Vivian Waldron, B. A., Missionary on furlough from India, delivered two most inspiring addresses at the District Meetings in the Baptist Church here last week. She portrayed vividly the state of the "caste" system in India. While in town, Miss Waldron was the guest of Mrs. Lottie Kopp, with whom she spent several weeks at Evangeline Cottage, Wolfville.

On Saturday afternoon the "Brownies" had a Treasure Hunt, the winner, Anna Henshaw, scoring a point for "The Little People". Light refreshments were then served at "Willow Cottage", the home of their leader, Mrs. E. W. Robinson, followed by several games, the points for games going to the "Fairies". The "Brownies" are looking forward eagerly to tomorrow afternoon, when they will hold their Revel.

On Tuesday evening of last week about thirty members of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church, met at the home of Mrs. Harry Harris and then proceeded to the home of Mrs. Henry Wright, who had just returned from spending the winter in Boston, and gave her a welcome home surprise party. Mrs. Wright had no inkling of the affair and was much surprised. The evening passed very pleasantly and after business period, refreshments were served. Mrs. Wright is a willing worker in the Aid during the summer months and is much missed when she is away.

"BROWNIES" WILL HOLD A REVEL.

The first Bear River Brownie Pick will hold a Revel in Oakdale Hall, which has very kindly been lent to them for the occasion, on Saturday next, June 30, at 8 o'clock. The object of the Revel is to give the parents and friends of the Brownies an opportunity to gain a clearer idea of their ideals and activities, as well as a deeper understanding of this important community work. The Women's Institute of Bear River, has kindly offered to serve a "silver tea" to the grown-ups for the benefit of the Brownies, and any donation—no matter how small—will be most acceptable for Brownie funds.

Mrs. E. K. Eaton, of Annapolis Royal, who is District Commissioner of the Canadian Girl Guides, expects to be present, and to bring with her some of the local Guides. We also hope to have a contingent from Digby. The Brownies extend a hearty invitation to all their friends but it is requested that children will come accompanied by their parents.

INSTITUTE MEETING

The regular meeting of the Bear River Women's Institute will be held in the Masonic Reading Room on Monday afternoon, June 1st, at 3.30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cunningham went to Halifax this week.

MARITIME CONFERENCE OF UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA

The twelfth Maritime Conference of the United Church of Canada, will convene in the United Church of Canada at Brookville, on Tuesday, June 2nd. Delegates, ministerial and lay, will come from all those places in the Maritime Provinces, in which there is a United Church charge.

The most inspiring service is that of the first evening, when together at the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. It is good to see the members of Conference meet old friends, and to learn of the doings of those with whom one spent such interesting years at college, but there is the supreme joy of sitting with them in re-consecration to the same task, the glorious privilege of declaring the "Good News". It has been said that wherever ministers gather you will hear theology and good stories. It is a foolish man who returns from Conference without having enriched both his outlook on God's wonderful dealings with His people, and his store of wholesome humor.

The laymen make a great contribution to the Conference, not only on the floors of the Conference in the discussion and legislation, but in the fellowship in the corridors and halls. One of the problems of Conference arises from the fact that the ministerial members talk until two in the morning, and those laymen of agricultural habits are raising a tuneless psalm in the bathroom at six.

EMPIRE DAY PROGRAMME

On Friday afternoon last a Patriotic programme was presented in Oakdale Hall, in which the pupils of the school, and members of the local W. I. took part.

The programme opened with the Flag Salute, the audience standing at attention, followed by the singing of "O Canada". "The Maple Leaf Forever" was then sung by the school pupils, after which different phases of the life of our new King Edward VIII were presented—"Ancestry; Prince of Wales; the Play-boy Side; the Farmer Prince; the Soldier Prince; Edward, the Traveller; Edward, the Man and King". This was followed by the National Anthem, after which a vote of thanks was moved by the scholars and presented to the members of the Institute, who had presented the programme.

Lyman Warren, of the staff of the Royal Bank, at Clark's Harbor, spent the week end in town.

SYRINTHA J. RAWDING

The community of Clements-Port Heights was saddened on Wednesday evening when it became known Miss Syrintia J. Rawding had passed away. Although she had been in failing health the past three years, the end came suddenly from a heart attack.

She was born at Northfield in 1863, where she lived until 1887, when she went to Annapolis Royal and engaged in the Annapolis Laundry, afterwards being head laundress for a number of years. In 1904 she came here and spent the remainder of her life. She is survived by one brother, James H. Rawding with whom she resided, one niece Mrs. Harry Davison of Kempt, Queens Co., also a number of other relatives and a large circle of whom many will remember her kindly gifts and words of cheer. She possessed a sweet and lovable disposition and bore her sufferings with remarkable Christian faith. The funeral took place on Friday, conducted by Rev. F. C. Burnett, of Clements-Port. After a short service at the home the body was taken to the Northfield Baptist Church, where another service was held. The hymns, "The Old Rugged Cross", "Going Down the Valley", and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" were rendered by the choir. Burial was made in the Northfield Baptist Cemetery. The floral tributes bore silent testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Howard McClelland

The death occurred recently in Saskatoon, Sask., of Howard McClelland, who, in the old days of stage coaches, drove Stalling's coach between Yarmouth and Digby. When the Western Counties Railway was built between the two towns, the stage coaches were withdrawn and McClelland, who was a native of Bear River, drove Stalling's stage coach between Digby and Annapolis up to the time the "missing link" continuation of the W. C. R. was constructed. Soon after that Mr. McClelland moved to the Canadian West and lived to a good old age. He was a brother of the late "Bob" McClelland, who owned and drove the coach between Digby and Bear River. In those days the stage coaches from Digby to Yarmouth remained overnight in the latter town.

HARD WORK MADE HARDER

A young mountain climber said to one of more experience, "When I have taken some whiskey, I can jump like a bird." And the man of experience laughed at his childishness. "No, my young man," he replied, "you mean you can jump like a fool."

That young mountain climber has been too long the type of a whole lot of other folks, some of them upstarts, some of them well-balanced people, but all under a delusion. One of the first effects of alcohol is to make a man "feel" good. It is the way wine has of being a "mocker" but it is just as true as preaching that "he who is deceived thereby is not wise."

Here is an illustration. One Professor Durig, a Swiss doctor, put himself through a series of tests. He did a piece of work for two days at a stretch, first when he took no alcohol, and again under similar conditions when he took the amount of alcohol contained in two glasses of beer. He felt he was doing better work in the alcohol days, until he tested results, and then he found that he had to expend more energy to do the same amount of work as on the non-alcoholic days. Tests revealed that he took a fifth longer to do the same work on his alcohol days. Had he been asked at the time how he felt he would certainly have answered in like words to those of the young mountain climber. But when he read the tests of results he was ready to admit the truth of the old climber's words.

Think of it! With just two glasses of beer he took six hours to do the same work as without it he did in five hours! Do you wonder if employers have to draw the line at drinkers when they hire their employees? O thou invisible spirit of wine, what a lot of waste energy, waste money and waste morals you are accountable for! Surely in these days of keen demands on life, we would be better, far better off as a people, with every brewery and distillery, every bar-room and every government store—closed!

Commander T. W. Hankinson

The death took place yesterday at his home in Great Crosby, in his 79th year, of Commander Thomas William Hankinson, R.D., R.N.R., after a comparatively short illness. Prior to his retirement from the Cunard Line service in November, 1920, he had served as commander and officer with the company for over a quarter of a century. Commander Hankinson, who was a native of Weymouth, Nova Scotia, was born in 1857, and commenced his seafaring career in sailing ships belonging to Nova Scotia firms. In 1887 he came over to Liverpool and served for some years with the Allan Line, and early in 1895 joined the Cunard Line as fourth officer of the Servia, subsequently serving as a junior officer in the liners Aurania, Ponia, Lucania, and also as first officer of the Servia. In 1911 he obtained his first command with the company, that of master of the steamer Lycia, engaged in the service to Mediterranean ports, and later in the same year command of the steamer Cyria also in this trade. He joined the R.N.R. as a sub-lieutenant in 1891, and on the outbreak of war served in the Cunard liner Carmania, which was at that time an auxiliary cruiser, and it will be remembered fought the famous battle with the German armed merchant cruiser Cape Trafalgar. Later in the war Commander Hankinson was stationed at Scapa Flow, in charge of drifters. At the conclusion of hostilities he rejoined the Cunard Line, in May, 1919, as chief officer of the Caronia, and later as chief officer of the Carmania, subsequently retiring from active service in November, 1920.

THE TINY TATTTLER GOES ON THE SCREEN

The Tiny Tattler, Canada's smallest newspaper, published at Central Grove, Digby County, experienced one of the greatest thrills of its entire career on Wednesday of this week, when a camera-man from Montreal arrived to make the story of this miniature publication into a motion picture.

Several scenes were taken of Central Grove, and the outside of the Tattler building, and later with 4500 watts blazing in their faces, the editors of the Tattler "staged" the publishing of the paper, from the writing of the copy to preparing the papers for mailing.

A little more than three years ago the first issue of the Tattler was published, only 18 copies being printed. This four page, 4 in. x 6 in. paper was well received by the public, and subscriptions began to "flow" in. Mr. Edward Blackford, of Tiverton, being the first subscriber. To date the Tattler has a circulation of 1000 copies and is rapidly growing, and not only is it growing in circulation, but also as an advertising medium. About one year ago some motion picture men from Saint John, gave the Tiny Tattler an unexpected call. They had heard of this tiny paper and of its rapid progress, and they wanted the story for the screen. The Associated Screen of Montreal, also heard of the Tattler, and consequently rushed a camera-man to Long Island. About 500 feet of film was used, and the total cost of getting the story for the screen was about $1000.

Those taking part in the film were: Ivan A. Shortliffe, the editor; Rupert E. Cann, the assistant editor; J. J. Wallis, editor of the Digby Courier, who started the Tattler in business; and Frank Delaney and C. S. Powell, of Central Grove, who helped to produce a fitting scene for the film.

This picture will be released in about three or four months, under the feature title, "Did You Know That?", including several other Canadian facts. According to the camera-man about 50 exact prints of this picture will be made and will be shown all over the British Empire and the United States. It is hoped that this picture will be shown at the theatres on the Islands and Digby as soon as possible after it has been released.

Returning in the evening they gave a service of song in the Baptist church at Sandy Cove. At this service Rev. C. L. Chute gave a brief address and Rev. W. H. Forsyth offered prayer. The choir presented Mr. Morehouse with a pen and pencil set.

Another visit will be made the last Sunday in June.

Of Local Interest

The very latest in Summer Millinery now showing at the Hat Shoppe.—Gertrude Oliver.

Mrs. Thurber entertained the Ladies' Aid of Grace United Church, on Thursday of last week, at the home of George E. Letteney, and Miss Edith Letteney was hostess yesterday afternoon.

Please reserve next Friday, (June 12th), for V.O.N. Bridge. Convenors, Mrs. Frank Nichols and Mrs. Harold Nichols.

The Municipal Spraying Company's equipment arrived this week for the purpose of applying the second coat of surfacing material to the "carpeted" streets.

Through the efforts of the Parent-Teacher Association, of Culloden, a flag has been placed in front of the school. A new flag pole was donated by two members of the Association, namely Archie and Alex. Griffin. The flag was flown for the first time on Victoria Day.

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold a Pie Sale at the school house, Culloden, Thursday, June 11. Come and bring a pie.

Digby High School pupils enjoyed their annual picnic to Porter's Lake yesterday afternoon.

The annual high school supper was held in the United church vestry on Tuesday evening. A sum of nearly $20 was realized.

Through a typographical error, the Courier last week said that Councillor G. M. Morrell supplied the decorations for the car which Digby had at the Apple Blossom Festival. The item should have read that he supplied the car.

DIGBY GOLF CLUB TO OPEN SOON

Under new management the 28-year-old town course will be in excellent playing condition by the latter part of next week. At present the course is in very good shape for practising. Some local enthusiasts have been out already. With the general feeling that 1936 will see a decided increase in the number of summer visitors to Digby the management expects a proportional rise in the number of followers of the royal and ancient game. It is hoped that more local persons will spend their spare time playing golf on the hill where there is always a cool breeze blowing even when the front street is sweltering. It is undeniable that the town derives inestimable benefit from the maintenance of its municipal course and it is gratifying to note that interest among townsmen is once again on the increase.

As usual there will be several tournaments held: this year. Among these will be the Men's and Ladies' Club championships for which silver trophies are presented annually.

Richard Lynch has recently taken over the management of the club from Clayton Snow for the year. The latter will once again act as the club professional. The club house will be run by Allan Findlay, Nova Scotia's 1935 Rhodes scholar and Maritime amateur golf champion for 1933.

The club house will be undergoing repairs during the next week or so from June 20th to September 12th. It is the earnest desire of the management to get the course in as good condition as possible at the earliest date they can, for the satisfaction of local players. It is hoped that non-players will not use the paths across the course during the playing season which is about to begin.

HILL GROVE ROLL CALL

The annual roll call and reunion services of the Hill Grove United Baptist Church was held on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The services opened with a song service led by the pastor, Rev. A. G. Robertson, and a stirring message was given by the guest speaker of the afternoon, Rev. S. F. Steeves, of Bear River, who also sang a solo, "Beneath the Cross of Jesus."

The church roll of members was read by the clerk, J. A. H. Nichols, with a splendid response, letters coming all the way from Halifax to California and Vancouver, from the members and friends of this church which will celebrate the 100th anniversary of founding on July 2nd, next year.

At the close of the afternoon service the congregation adjourned to the church hall where supper was served, free to all, by the ladies of the church and congregation.

The guest speaker of the evening was Rev. Ross C. Eaton, pastor of the United Baptist Church, at Bridgetown, who spoke on the subject "Walking With God." A mixed quartette of soloists from Digby gave two special numbers which were much appreciated. They also gave the local choir splendid support. In spite of the unpleasant weather large congregations were present at both services and the thank offering for the day reached nearly $170. A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers and singers and all who helped to establish a record for services of this nature in this church.

The Hospital Sewing Circle met last week with Mrs. G. V. Turnbull. Next Wednesday the circle will meet for quilting at the Baptist vestry.

On Thursday, May 28, Mr. and Mrs. Carey A. Morgan, of Lansdowne, entertained at a birthday party in honour of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Henshaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace L. Henshaw of Salem, Mass. The occasion being celebrated on John B. Henshaw's also Mrs. Wallace L. Henshaw's birthday. The dining room was decorated with apple blossoms and tulips. The table attraction was a beautifully decorated birthday cake. Music and games were indulged in. Five of the brothers and sisters were present. Covers were laid for fourteen.

"THE ROSE AND THE RING"

Trinity Hall was filled to capacity on Friday and Saturday evenings for the presentation of "The Rose and the Ring," a dramatized version of the fairy tale by William Makepeace Thackeray, which was enacted by the Wolf Cubs and Brownie Packs, of Digby. The sum of $67 was realized and very great credit is due both to the youthful cast and to Mrs. T. J. Harris, who gave so unstintingly of her time in directing the play.

The play, comprising five acts, opened with a brief explanation of the plot by Miss Mary Hayden, Tawny Owl. The action was built around the magic ring and the magic rose, the possession of which became irresistibly beautiful and charming, only to lose these attributes if these tokens were inadvertently given to another. Countess Guffanuff and Betsinda, the maid, were both seeking the love of Prince Giglio, but the unscrupulous "Gruffy" became the lover when she gave Betsinda, a princess in disguise, the magic ring, thinking it a worthless bauble, and so the play ended happily with Prince Giglio winning his lost throne and his fair bride. The young actors and actresses played their roles exceptionally well, the cast being as follows:—

Wolf Cubs
King Valeroso—Gordon Comeau
Prince Giglio (his nephew)—Arden Harlow
Prince Bullo—Donald Humphrey
Hednor (Capt. of the guard)—Douglas Everett Guffanuff (chamberlain)—Robert Winchester
Count Jenkins—Guffanuff—Charles Winchester
Executioner—Robin Connell
Elves—Archer Turnbull, Edmund Winchester

Brownies
Queen Valeroso—Frances Thibault
Countess Guffanuff—Patsy Bowby
Princess Angelica—Beth Harvie
Patsy Bickelside—Dorothy Cook
Betsinda (maid to Princess Angelica)—Eleanor Hanson
Ladies in Waiting, Fairies and the Crowd—Dorothy Foster, Andie Weller, Georgina Mulse, Shirley Baxter, Joyce Savary, Edith Johnson, Mary Webber, Ola Winchester, Dorothy Everett, Florence Thibault

Mrs. T. J. Harris, who directed the play, was one of the first Cubmasters appointed by Lord Baden-Powell himself in England. She had directed a performance of this same play by her English Cub Pack and especially thanks are due her for her efforts in making this play a success through training the children and providing the costumes, which were all made with the assistance of a few other Digby ladies. It is to be hoped that the success of this performance will result in further entertainments by the Brownies and Cubs as time goes on.

Thomas, spent a week with his mother, Mrs. Jane Frost, Little River, later returning to Digby when Mr. Frost and Mrs. Thomas were quietly married by Rev. A. G. Harvey, and is contemplating the erection of a residence near the store in the near future. In the meantime they are occupying the house of Mrs. Ernest Denton.

Following his return from overseas, Mr. Frost married Jennie C. Guthrie, moving to Burbank in 1919, where he was employed with the Universal Picture Corporation, and where his two daughters were born. Mrs. Frost passed away in 1926. ## IS CONSERVATION NECESSARY?

"Once upon a time" great herds of bison roamed the plains of western Canada—there were millions of them—so many they could never be exterminated. Yet, that story is now written, "once upon a time."

In Digby we do not begin our story, "once upon a time." We begin by stating the plain fact that in the Bay of Fundy, off the shores of Digby and Annapolis Counties, there are immense beds of scallops, which, for several years past have produced an average yield in excess of $100,000. The beds in this section are said to be the largest and most prolific on the Atlantic sea board, and a single day's catch has been computed at nearly a quarter of a million scallops.

There are some fishermen who are wondering if—or when—Digby scallop stories will begin "once upon a time." On the other hand, there are those who are of the opinion that conservation is not a matter to be taken seriously at the present time. They claim the beds on which the fleet now operates are vast—their vastness is greater than can be imagined. They also claim that in their opinion there are other beds in the vicinity equally large that haven't even been touched—or even discovered.

But, quite naturally, there are those who regard the future of this now great industry with a great deal of concern. They cannot believe the beds can stand the toll indefinitely. They do believe that something should be done in the way of conservation. It is said that between sixty and seventy scallop sloops are dragging from Centreville, in Digby County, up as far as Parker's Cove, in Annapolis County.

Among other things they contend that the season is too long for the good of the scallops. Scallops taken during the past few weeks have been filled with spawn, they say, and scallops taken under such conditions cannot breed more scallops. The season should be shortened in order to give the scallops—and incidentally the fishermen—a better chance for the future.

While there are those who contend the scallop industry has reached its peak, there are others who are just as strong in their opinion that the industry will continue to grow and that the number of boats engaged in dragging will continue to increase with the years. In their mind it is not a matter of conservation for the future, but a matter of finding more and better markets.

It wasn't so many years ago, but nevertheless in the infant days of the industry here, that one of the Digby boats got between four and five barrels off Gulliver's Head. That "immense catch" was heralded by the press far and wide. Nowadays four or five barrels is regarded as an ordinary day.

At the present time scallops are not being landed as plentifully as they have been, but that is attributed to the high tides of the past few days. Prices at present are also very low.

Couple Meet After 22 Years

Had Small Fortune

Tom Broughton, a retired glazier, of London, England, lived alone in a small house in the working class district of Leicester, England, and neighbors thought he had just enough to live on, but no one knew anything about his affairs. ## State Circuses Start Out Nearly 100 circuses, under government control, are opening the out-door season in Russia, according to a report from Moscow. The State circuses of Russia are year-round enterprises, performing in permanent buildings during the winter and travelling as tent exhibitions in the summer. The State Circus Association reports that it now employs 3,000 performers, and programs are changed every two months. The Soviet Circus has only one ring and contact with the spectators is friendly. Animal acts and dwarfs are popular, but no sideshows with freaks are allowed. The nearest approach to a sideshow is in connection with the Leningrad Circus, where during intermission a lecturer explains an exhibit of "the development of the circus art."

Street Named Haile Selassie

The main thoroughfare of a new suburb of Belgrade, Yugoslavia, has been named Haile Selassie Street, and the name placed conspicuously on two enamel plaques. The reason for the new name thus explained by the owner of the house: "We have asked for light, water, roads and drainage, but got none of them. No one cares what happens to us. No one is interested in us. We are in the same position as Haile Selassie—hence the name." The unique campaign is expected to get results.

NURSES OF '36 HAD TOOL KITS

Uniform designs for Victorian Order of Nurses took some queer turns in the past, according to information that came to light during the recent two-day annual meeting in Ottawa.

Modern patients would probably have heart attacks if nurses appeared in "neat brown duck suits made with short skirts and bloomers and gaiters in the style of natty bicycle suits." These were made in 1898 for the "brave nurses" to wear to the Klondike when they will walk those long, long 150 miles over mountain and swamp.

Lady Aberdeen, sponsor of the Order, had an exhibition of the uniforms and equipment supplied April 18, 1898, at Government House. No information is available on how the "brave nurses" managed to arrive complete with outfits in the far country.

An old newspaper account mentions: "Everything that could add to the comfort and happiness of these brave women had been got for them, even to a camera for each nurse, as something to amuse them in their leisure hours. Their waterproof suits and tarpaulin hats were displayed, their winter suits of heavy blue blanket, with big hoods to match, with quilted silk. Of boots there was a variety: long rubber soles, studded with hob heavy leather boots with thick rubber soles, studded with hob nails for the mountain climb; big soft leather boots lined with fleecy lambs' wool to sleep in on winter nights; felt boots with thick felt soles for hospital wear, and indeed, every sort of footwear that it is likely they will require."

There were also doekin mitts lined with homespun flannel; fur caps that came down like hoods, and that tie across the face so as to defy Jack Frost; big fur gauntlets, warm stockings and underwear; compact little writing cases with "Victorian Order of Nurses" in felt letters.

Besides their hymn books and Bibles, the nurses were given "a small kit of tools which included a small saw, hammer, gimlet, screw driver, big scissors, cork-screw, ball of twine, spool of wire, nails and screws all arranged in a folding canvas case."

The account continued with enough items to fill a modern department store catalogue ending with "an arrangement for purifying water; mosquito netting and other small articles."

The sleeping bags, it is said, are made of canvas lined with

"THE DUTCH DETECTIVE"

On Thursday evening of last week, in Oakdene Hall, an appreciative audience listened to a play put on by local talent, entitled "The Dutch Detective".

The scenes were all centred around the lunch counter in the country station where worried detectives sought for escaping lunatics—and a harassed father pursued his eloping daughter. Numerous mix-ups occurred—all of an amusing nature—but in the end harmony prevailed.

Special mention should be made of the two specialties between the acts, the first, a costume song, by Winifred Wallis; and the second by Diana Wallis, who also danced the Sailor's Hornpipe. These two little ladies have sung and danced their way into all hearts.

The cast of characters was as follows:—Otto Schmaltz; Joseph Langley; Plunk Jarleck, Major A. M. Simons; Jabo Grabb; Walter Harris; Augustus Coe, Lewis Langley; Major Hannibal Howler; Voorheis Dittmars; Gladys Howler-Coo, Vera Chute; Amrosia McCarty; Gladys Wallis; Miss Araminta Soudrops; Jessie M. Romans; Hortense Smatters; Amanda Simons; Katrina Kraut; Doris Nichols.

ORGAN RECITAL

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

"A DRINK WARMS ME UP"—DOES IT?

Haven't you heard it often? Well, let us see. Here is a reliable little book entitled "Narcotics and Youth Today" from which I quote a paragraph or two that helps to set the matter right.

"Many drinkers, when they feel cold, use alcohol in order to warm up. Here alcohol is deceiving the drinker and is exposing him or her to grave danger. The chemical changes in the body generate heat. The body, being warmer than the surrounding atmosphere, loses some heat, requiring constant regulation by the brain and nervous system.

"Medical authorities found that so-called 'moderate' doses of alcohol have the effect of relaxing the small arteries which carry blood to the skin, causing flushing of the surface, which may give a comfortable feeling of bodily warmth. When warm blood comes to the surface of the body—close to the skin—it cools off and returns to the interior of the body at a lower temperature. When alcohol expands the small arteries which carry blood to the skin, it enlarges the area over which the blood cools off in a cold atmosphere. This process . . . sends back into the body blood which has been cooled off too suddenly and too much, and so upsets the temperature not only on the surface of the skin but cools off the interior of the body and disturbs the whole heat-producing mechanism."

The British Medical Research Council, too, has a word to say along this line: "The taking of alcohol during, or as a preliminary to, prolonged or severe exposure to cold, is on every ground to be condemned. Any sensation of warmth which it produces is, under such conditions, an illusion fraught with danger—its effects is to render the subject indifferent to a peril which is in fact seriously increased by its use."

Mrs. Litchfield, Mrs. Ralph Purdy and Mrs. R. A. Purdy motored to Halifax on Tuesday to attend the recital of Miss Louise Harris, at Mount Saint Vincent. On their return they were accompanied by Miss Harris and Miss Geraldine Purdy.

On Sunday evening a United Service will be held in the United Church, Bear River, at which the speaker will be the Rev. Dr. H. R. Grant, of the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance of Nova Scotia. It is hoped that everyone who can do so may attend this service to hear Dr. Grant's message, which will be an inspiration to us all.

BUFFET SUPPER

On Thursday of last week, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hatheway entertained at a delightful buffet supper party, there being fourteen present. The dining room was a pretty picture, with delicious refreshments, silver and crystal placed on a lovely cloth of green linen and lace, brought from Mrs. Hatheway's old home in Ontario. The table, as well as smaller tables in the living room, was centered with tulips, and the guests, following supper, were entertained at the amateur play put on in Oakdene Hall, by the Church of England, all having a most enjoyable evening.

Those who have travelled in the woods state that conditions are bad, and the brooks are unusually low for this time of year.

Telephone Division, Sons of Temperance, of Rossyway, was "at home" to the members of Home Division, of Smith's Cove, on Wednesday evening. Both divisions turned out almost 100 per cent. A good program was put on, which was followed by ice cream and cake. The visit was much enjoyed and no doubt both divisions will benefit from it.

Cars In a Crash.

Shortly after nine o'clock last evening Water Street, near B. J. Roop's store, was the scene of an automobile crash when a car operated by Shannon Raymond, of Centerville, was in collision with a car owned by William H. Holden, of Yarmouth, which was being towed to Dunn's Service Station by the wrecker. Both cars were quite badly damaged. Raymond claims he was blinded by the lights on the wrecker. Both the wrecker and the Holden car were well over on their own side of the road.

Go to Liverpool Dominion Day

At 11 a.m., on July 1st, 1936, a Cairn, erected at Fort Point, Liverpool, N. S., by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada, the Queens County Historical Society co-operating, in memory of the Liverpool Privateersmen, will be unveiled with appropriate and impressive ceremony. The principal address will be given by Col. C. H. L. Jones, O. B. E., V. D., founder of the Queens County Historical Society.

These Privateersmen were no ordinary men. Amid many difficulties and dangers they nobly upheld the best traditions of the British Navy at times when Great Britain needed help. Foremost among them were Alexander Godfrey, of the Brig "Rover", who routed a Spanish Squadron off the Spanish Main and captured its flagship, September, 1800; and Joseph Barr, Junior, of the schooner "Liverpool Packet", who in nine months of the war of 1812 captured more than 100 American vessels on the coast of New England, Nova Scotia, especially the South Shore, is proud of their record. The Dominion Government has at no small expense erected this monument to commemorate their valiant deeds.

All interested are cordially invited to be present and take part in the ceremony.

OPEN-AIR CONCERT NEXT THURSDAY EVENING

This first concert of the season is given voluntarily by the Band in response to many requests, and Bandmaster Paul Yates, promises an interesting program. The Band has greatly improved its playing by regular rehearsals during the winter months, and the new instruments, capably handled by Glenn Bailey, Garnett Taylor and John Moulaison, will add greatly to the balance of tonal color. Digby is fortunate in having a band with such complete instrumentation, resulting in a full round volume of tone without empty places in the harmony—a feature which places it ahead of many bands in the province. The Band treasury is empty, and a collection is necessary to help meet expenses. The public is always generous to the Band, but a little extra generosity will be appreciated at this time.

ROYAL DIVISION

The Hall of Royal Division, Sons of Temperance, of Bear River was the scene of a large gathering on Monday evening, when that Division held a public meeting. The programme was as follows:—

ROAD STRIKE IN CLARE

Work of laying drains in connection with the hard surfacing of the highway being done by the Acadia Construction Company, Halifax, under contract of road work at a standstill all day Wednesday. Approximately twenty-five local men were on strike, claiming the company brought workmen from outside throwing local jobless men out of a chance of employment.

Clarence Gaudet, spokesman for the strikers, led a heated argument. In the afternoon James McNeill, local foreman of the Acadia Construction Company, brought a truckload of workmen from the Clare District, but on account of the strongly aroused feeling of the strikers, work was not resumed. When the work began on Tuesday morning fifteen workmen were required by the company. At 7 a.m. Wednesday they wanted forty and it is reported that on Wednesday afternoon 100 were wanted. Over sixty local men were not given a chance to work in the Clare district and the strikers resented outside men being brought in to work there. The townspeople of Weymouth strongly upheld the strikers' demands. Arguments continued on Wednesday afternoon in a down pour of rain, and at 2:30 the Clare workmen were sent back without having gone to work. The men refused to go to work until a new foreman was hired and the company refused to replace McNeill. However, Thursday morning W. Pickles, of the Construction Company, told the press that the strike was settled and that the men were back on the job with Mr. McNeill as local foreman.

Weddings

Pickles—Herbert

Frances Ruth, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Herbert, became the bride of John Christopher Pickles, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Pickles, in a very simple ceremony, performed by Rev. T. F. MacLennan, at 8 o'clock, Tuesday morning. The bride, wearing a light blue knitted silk suit with dark blue shoes, hat and gloves, to match. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of early summer flowers. The couple were unattended. After the ceremony they left on a motor trip to Halifax and Prince Edward Island, accompanied by the hearty good wishes of their many friends.

LEG TORN IN WINCH

Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Raymond received a letter from their son, Douglas, yesterday advising them he had received injuries while employed on a dredge operating near West Pubnico, Yarmouth County. He is confined to a hotel room in the village where he will likely remain for a week or more before returning to his home here.

Doug, better known in hockey circles as "Porky"—caught his foot in a winch on Tuesday afternoon; his foot was torn off and the leg torn from the calf to the ankle. Ten stitches were required to close the wound. He has had tough luck since leaving here a few weeks ago to work on the dredge. En route to Pubnico, with others, the party had tied their baggage on the outside of the car. A carelessly thrown cigarette butt ignited their parcels before they reached Yarmouth, and every stitch of spare clothing was lost.

The town council was asked to call a meeting of ratepayers to decide on the question of providing the needful accommodation by the addition of two class rooms, with an auditorium overhead, and to be steam heated.

CANADIAN FINANCING HIGHEST IN 5 YEARS

During the first five months of this year Canadian government, provincial and municipal financing totalled $420,814,513, the largest for any similar period in any of the last five years, according to Wood, Gundy & Co., of New York.

Of this amount, $387,351,500 was for refunding purposes and $33,463,013 to provide new capital. This total compares with $206,585,556 in the same period in 1935, and $147,379,992 in 1934.

Corporation issues in Canada during the five-month period, amounted to $149,121,192, compared with $13,488,000 and $35,076,596 in similar periods in 1935 and 1934 respectively. Of the financing in this year to May 31, $139,896,692 was for refunding and $9,224,500 for new capital.

Government, provincial and municipal financing for the month of May amounted to $42,245,600, the bulk of which consisted of the following issues: Dominion Government account of Discount Treasury Bills amounting to $20,000,000 for refunding purposes; $10,000,000 Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario (guaranteed by the Province of Ontario) 2 1/2 per cent 10-year bonds; $4,579,000 Province of Nova Scotia 3 1/4

GAS MASKS FOR ALL

The "tight little island" is not so tight any more. England's sense of security vanished 20 years ago when Germany bombarded Paris from a distance of 70 miles. Such guns, from the French coast, would have reached across the strait to the mouth of the Thames and almost to London. Then came poison gas and the amazing post-bellum development of war planes.

Now the British government has ordered 40,000,000 gas masks for her civilian population. "Wings over Europe" might be wings over England. Those wings might come from Italy or from Germany, the two countries most threatening the peace of Europe. If they came, there would be a cloud of them, flying high and merely dipping to place their shots, then rising and fleeing before the anti-aircraft guns could get many of them.

So there must be bombproof tunnels in the cities and gas masks everywhere. In the sort of warfare that this charming phase of civilization has brought anyone—man, woman or child—is likely to be blown up or suffocated without warning.

These 40,000,000 gas masks are an illuminating sign of the times. Fortunately North America is still isolated enough to be remote from such peril. But even our immunity may vanish with further progress in aviation and asphyxiation, if the scientific killers are allowed to run loose.

TAXATION IN FRANCE

Taxation in France differs considerably from the system prevailing in Canada. A considerable portion of the revenue derived comes from direct taxes, about half from commercial and half from the income tax. A peculiar feature of the income tax is that it is assessed according to appearances; if an individual has an apartment that costs more than 20 per cent of his declared income, the valuation for income tax purposes is increased by that percentage. Real estate and "registration" taxes are fixed on the value of the property at the time of registration of its purchase. Customs revenues account for about 37 per cent of the total income, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Then there are indirect taxes (alcohol, excise, gasoline, automobiles, travel, etc.). In France the national government is responsible for the whole country and a great proportion of the money needed by departments and communes (provinces and municipalities), is obtained by the national government and apportioned out to them.

Policemen Break Laws, Too!
Fifteen Boston policemen were "tagged" this week for illegal parking. They were policemen who came from outside stations to patrol the line of march of the schoolboy cadets' parade, and parked their cars near the police station in the centre of the city. While directing traffic during the parade, the cars were tagged. Traffic division officials

Where City Dwellers Enjoy Holidays

Up in Northwestern Ontario where the game fish grow large and put up a spirited battle, the Canadian Pacific Railway has well equipped chalet-bungalow camps at Devil's Gap, near Kenora, and at French River for the accommodation of fishing enthusiasts from all over the continent. Arrangements can be made, too, to take care of visitors to Nipigon River, another famous resort for game fishermen.

Near by these favored spots, unspoiled by the civilization from which they are separated by a few short hours of train travel, attract more and more visitors. The camps offer a happy combination of the joys of the great out-of-doors and the comforts of the city. At the Devil's Gap and French River camps, the cabins are lighted electrically, cozyly furnished, and have running water. Many of them have shower baths and all have screened verandas. Efficient maid service is maintained.

Although fishing is the main attraction at the Devil's Gap Bungalow Camp, just a pleasant boat ride's distance from Kenora, other amusements are swimming right at the camp dock, a nine-hole golf course within easy walking distance, and organized excursions by motor boat or canoe over the great stretch of water. The camp will be open this year from June 26 to September 14. A special attraction this year will be the Old Home Week which will be staged by Kenora from July 6 to the 11th.

The French River Camp provides especially good fishing and golfing. Fighting "muskie" great northern pike, large and small trout bass, "wall eyes," and other game fish are found in abundance. A few years ago a 55-pound "muskie" was taken there and many heavy fish are brought in each season. A picturesque nine-hole golf course is situated on Dry Pine Bay, and there is tennis, swimming, a sandy beach, and dancing at night. The surrounding country provides delightful hiking and canoe trips. The camp will open on June 20 and close on September 20.

Eagle Feeds Man Every Day.

How an eagle provided a shepherd with fresh fish every day, has just been related by a farmer of Mossel Bay, South Africa. The farmer recently shot the eagle and the next day his shepherd, who lived near the bird's nest, called and protested. There were young eagles in the nest, and the shepherd watched when the parents came from the sea with fish in their talons for their young. He then went to the nest and appropriated some of the spoils, thus collecting fresh fish daily a mile from the sea with very little effort.

a carrier of the germs of summer diarrhoea, typhoid and other serious diseases. And, although sanitation efforts have been instituted to curb many sources of contagious diseases, there has been little success in eradicating the common house-fly.

It is a matter requiring personal effort to keep the home clear of flies. The elimination of possible breeding places such as uncovered garbage, refuse, manure, rotting leaves, screens on doors and windows and covering of all foods, are all necessary precautions. But, should flies enter the home, a few Wilson's Fly Pads, used regularly according to directions, will kill them all in a few hours.

"Thou gavest life, and I pray that no act of mine may take away or mar that gift of Thine."

Shelter those, dear Lord, who bear me company, from the evils of fire and all calamity.

Teach me to use my car for others' need, nor miss through love of speed.

WHY BEAVERS ARE GETTING SCARCER

Once upon a time Victory, in Annapolis County, was full of beavers. Two lakes in close proximity were named Upper and Lower Beaver Lakes.

Lower Beaver Lake was on a lot of land granted to the late Benjamin Simpson, who captured many a beaver, as it was all open season in those days. But the continual slaughter gradually cleaned them out of this lake.

They have always been in Upper Beaver Lake.

A large colony was in Charlotte Lake for years, but on being disturbed went over to what is locally known as Middle Lake, which in turn had its lodge torn to pieces. A lodge in Upper Beaver Lake has been blown up, by the appearance of it.

On the outlet of Lower Beaver Lake a short way from where it flows into Lower Mink Lake, is another beaver lodge, which was blown up last fall, after the ice formed. We heard the report of that explosion.

They now have returned to Lower Beaver Lake, which is on Joshua Simpson's property.

Last summer we noticed the lake was very full, even in the dry time, and, of course, we wondered at it until in haying a hired man took the boat and rowed across and found a dam across the outlet, but could find no house.

Late in the fall, away across the lake from the dam a lodge was discovered all ready for winter, built on the site of a muskrat home, up on the shore where the cattle came and went for water.

The ingenuity they used in its construction was astonishing, knowing the lay of the land. A large hollow log was sunk, which had lain partly on shore. How they ever did it is a mystery. It is presumed the hollow log is their front door. It was large across and heavy.

Birch trees as large as 8 inches in diameter, which were close to shore, were cut, while poplars were ferried clear across the lake from a wooded hillside quite a distance from shore.

Then after all their hard work for safe quarters to rear their little ones, some sneak chopped a hole in the top of the lodge and set a trap. A man told us that they, who did it, were after muskrats, not the beavers. "A likely story truly."

be held Saturday afternoon, with the banquet in the evening. On Sunday the group will go on trips throughout the surrounding country, which will include a visit to the big game country for those who wish to go.

AT THE THEATRE

Have you all been following the pictures at the Bijou, lately? We know you have, for who could miss those grand plays, "Jaina", "Magnificent Obsession", and all those. And still they come. To-night and to-morrow, "Shanghai" and "Wanderer of the Wasteland" are showing. In "Shanghai", we have the combination of those two stars, Boyer and Loretta Young. What more could one ask. In the other, the irresistible Gail Patrick. On Monday and Tuesday "Call of the Wild" is showing. And girls, Clarke Gable, is the star, and again, Loretta Young. The picture is of the Northland, so if the even- ing is warm, that, along with the new ventilation outfit in the theatre, will be sure to keep you cool. And boys, don't forget to see "Girl Friend" on Wednesday and Thursday evening. In fact, see her every night, but especially at the Bijou on Wednesday or Thursday night.

Graduated With Honors.

Friends in Digby and Bear River will be pleased to learn that Douglas Hynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hynes, 204 Summer Street, Newton Centre, Massachusetts, graduated from the Newton High School on Saturday evening, with scholarship honors. The young man was prominent in Varsity Band and Orchestra circles and a member of the Alpha Beta English Society. He is a grandson of Mrs. A. G. Sulis, Deep Brook, and usually spends his summers with his aunt, Mrs. E. C. Clarke, Bear River.

SHIPPING HARD HIT

Shipping has been hard hit during the past few days. Over the week end the American fishing schooner, Grand Marshall, out of Gloucester, grounded at Boat's Reef, near Canso, but was refloated. The Norwegian freighter, Magnhild, 1135 tons, ran ashore at Mistake Point, near Cape Race, Newfoundland, and became a total loss. Her crew of twenty escaped. She carried a general cargo and cattle. More than 800 animals were drowned in the wreck. Another Norwegian freighter, the Evviva, 1,597 tons, grounded at Fox Point, near Parrsboro; she was refloated and taken to Parrsboro for inspection. Five exhausted seamen from the Canadian schooner W. Dicks, reached St. Pierre, Miq., after rowing seventeen hours, and reported the schooner had sprung a leak off Pointe Platte. The W. Dicks had a cargo of coal for St. Pierre. On Tuesday a score of Nova Scotia fishermen reached shore safely after their schooner, the Bruce and Winona, sank at the entrance to Burin Harbor, Newfoundland. A St. Pierre three-master, the Francis Jeannette, is on the rocks of Magdalen Islands. Heavy fogs are held responsible for the mishaps.

Sunday School Concert

At the Acaciaville African Baptist Church on May 31st, a splendid Sunday School concert was prepared by Miss G. Hill. The church was filled to capacity. The programme consisted of recitations and songs by the children, and the choir rendered special music. The proceeds amounted to over $7.00.

TRAGIC DEATH OF WELL KNOWN YOUNG MAN

Word was received over to week end of the tragic death of Donald Hoyt Thurber, Jr., of Watertown, Mass., whose death occurred by drowning in Fairhaven Bay, a part of the Sudbury River, Sunday afternoon. Thurber, who was 20 years of age, was well known in Digby, where he has spent most of his summer vacations with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Thurber, at their bungalow on the Shore Road, a short distance from town.

An account of the accident published in the Boston Post, says that Thurber, former star athlete of the Watertown High School and the Mercersburg Academy, dived from a canoe and did not re-appear. He had spent the afternoon paddling on the river with three companions, all dressed in bathing costumes. After a short time his companions became worried and gave alarm. A number of swimmers from a nearby raft dived for the body without success. It is reported that the bottom at that point is muddy and weedy, and opinions are expressed that the youth became entangled in the weeds or suffered a heart attack. The body was recovered by Concord Police on Sunday night. Mr. and Mrs. Thurber, who were spending a few days at their bungalow here, received the sad news of their son's death and left Monday for their home, via Saint John. Mrs. Thurber's father, James Ellis, Shore Road, and her sister, Mrs. E. F. White, of Halifax, were passengers. Boston via Yarmouth, on Tuesday to attend the funeral.

JOGGIN BRIDGE

Dr. and Mrs. Gordon C. Warren, of Wolfville, were visitors in the village on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. John H. Farwell, of Moncton, are occupying their summer cottage here. Mrs. Frank Jones and daughter Louise, of New York, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Jones.

Ross Bell, who is employed in Meteghan, spent the week end with his family here. Clyde Roop spent the week end in Bear River with friends. W. E. Gilliam, Lovett Woodman and Earle Thomas are employed painting various highway bridges in the county. Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Franklin and daughter, Ella, of Acaciaville, accompanied by Nasson Hunt, of Massachusetts, were guests at the home of James Winchester, on Sunday.

Mrs. MacPherson and daughter, Sybil Jean, accompanied by the former's grandmother, Mrs. H. C. Vedder, of Philadelphia, are occupying their summer cottage here.

Obituary

Mrs. Annie Dittmars Brackett. Relatives and friends of Annie Dittmars Brackett will regret to learn of her death on Monday, at her home, 52 Woodlawn St., Everett, Mass., after a lingering illness of several years. Mrs. Brackett was born in Clements West, on September 25, 1857. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Albert Carty, Deep Brook, and Mrs. Bertha Ryer, North Reading, Mass.; and by three children, Mrs. Frank Hess, of Springfield, Mass.; Arthur Brackett, of Marblehead, Mass., and Howard Brackett, of Everett, Mass.; also sixteen grandchildren and four great grandchildren to mourn their loss.

DISTRICT MEETING FOR REBEKAHS

The District meetings of Rebekah lodges, I. O. O. F., were held with Sunset Lodge, Westport, on Tuesday afternoon and evening of last week. About one hundred were present including members from Bridgetown, Digby and Freeport. Supper was served by Sunset Lodge, at 5.30 o'clock. Three new members were taken in the degree being conferred by Fair Isle Lodge, of Freeport, and it was beautifully done. Rushes and pine cones yielded 3,500,000 doses last year, but they have not been popular because of their bitter taste. Professor Schraideit has obtained a synthetic Vitamin C in crystals from the wild rose, which may be available on a commercial scale.

Your resolve to make a Will may lapse! But a man's responsibility for his family's welfare cannot fairly be laid down even at death.

So why do you delay making a Will? It is as necessary for you to provide a wise administration of your affairs after death as it is to acquire the money and property intended for your family's protection.

If you are inclined to put off the making of your Will until some other time, think things over again and plan to confer with our officials at once. We invite confidential enquiry and discussion.

There will be a boom in the marriage market there if a motion requesting that additional wives married under native custom, for whom tax is paid by their husbands be allowed to take up land in their own names, is agreed to by the Government. It will mean that a man's wealth is regulated to some extent by the number of wives he has. The motion came before the Bunga recently, and after discussion, it was recommended that land, where available, should be allotted for the use of each wife, but that the title deed should be issued in the name of the husband and endorsed with the name of the wife.

THE BRITISH-AMERICAN OIL COMPANY

offers Canadian products for Canadian motorists

Patriotism alone is not a sufficient reason for buying a particular brand of gasoline. But when one trial tankful is enough to convince critical motorists that NEVER-NOX offers a new high in quick starting, acceleration and smoothness . . . would you not prefer to use this Canadian refined fuel?

The British-American Oil Company was founded by a Canadian, is owned by Canadians, and employs Canadians. Its products are refined in five Canadian refineries, with an eye to Canadian conditions. That is why more and more Maritime Motorists have found—during the past year—that both AUTOLENE oil and NEVER-NOX gasoline are particularly suitable for the Maritimes. Try them and see.

You can see the B-A sign at larger "miles" than most others. This is of real service to tourists who, naturally, don't want to risk getting any but British-American oil and gasoline. Only British-American products are sold where you see the sign. Follow the example of the many who always watch for the B-A sign wherever they go!

Insist on Canadian products!

IN JULY

The programme for an annual meeting of more than usual interest to the Maritimes has just been published by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. It tells that this Dominion wide organization is coming to the Maritimes in July for the second time in its history. In 1935 the Association held its annual meeting in Wolfville. This year the programme of events will be carried through, partly in New Brunswick and partly in Nova Scotia.

On July 9th and 10th, delegates will foregather from all parts of Canada at the Dominion Experimental Station, Fredericton, and on the latter date will leave for Deep Brook, by way of Saint John and Digby. On Saturday, the 11th, a meeting will be held with the seed growers in the Deep Brook area. Following this meeting the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture has kindly arranged a choice of three attractive trips through Nova Scotia for the purpose of enabling seed growers from other parts of Canada to get acquainted with the province.

The programme, besides setting out the items of business of the Association, contains an entire day devoted to a symposium on C. S. G. A. work. This includes instructive addresses by men prominent in pure seed production in Canada and time is allowed for organized discussion for this interesting programme.

on these addresses. The date set is July 10th, at Fredericton. At Deep Brook the subject of the addresses will deal, in the main, with root seed production. Time is being allowed also on this programme for organized discussion.

The Canadian Seed Growers' Association is, perhaps, less known at the present time in the Maritimes than in any other part of Canada. Its work, however, is expanding and growing steadily and some of the benefits of its educational activities have been enjoyed by Maritimers people.

For over three decades the Canadian Seed Growers' Association has been "making haste slowly" in its work of supervising the production of pure-to-variety crops in Canada. From a very small but enthusiastic beginning in 1900, a boys' and girls' seed competition called the Macdonald-Robertson Seed Competition started off with $100 prize money, and within four years, developed into the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. The "Macdonald" was Sir William C. Macdonald and the "Robertson" was Dr. James W. Robertson, L.L.D., C.M.G., who, as president, was the active head of the Association for eighteen years, and was honorary president at the time of his death in 1930.

The main object of the association has always been to encourage seed growers and farmers members to maintain a high standard of excellence in the yield and quality of field and garden crops in Canada, and the by-laws of the Association set out in detail twelve of the basic principles under which the Association operates. The crops included in the activities of registration carried on by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association are: small grains crops, such as wheat, oats, barley, flax and rye; miscellaneous field crops, such as field peas, field beans and soybeans; forage crops; field roots; tobacco; and a large variety of vegetable crops.

The management of the Association is handled by its president, a board of directors and secretary-treasurer. Robert W. Townley, professor of agronomy at Macdonald College, P. Q., is the president; F. W. Townley-Smith, who operated his own farm at Lashburn, Sask., is the vice president, and W. T. G. Wiene is secretary-treasurer. The office of the association is in Ottawa, Ont., and is under the direct supervision of the secretary-treasurer. A group of some seventeen standing committees works steadily throughout the year in an attempt to solve some of the problems that beset the seed growers, and these committees bring in recommendations for the consideration of the delegates at each annual meeting. The personnel of these committees is chosen with great care and the work done by them covers the whole field of both the practical and the scientific phases of pure seed production in Canada.

CANADA ASSAYS ITS MINERALS.

Canada is taking aggressive steps to open up new mining areas, and given these steps are only partially successful they are bound to be of great importance to the wealth of the country, says the Christian Science Monitor.

The importance of mining to Canada was brought to the attention of the public as never before by the recent series of radio addresses by Hon. T. A. Crea, federal minister of mines. Last year Canada's mineral production was almost a million dollars for each working day. In one of his talks, Mr. Crea pointed out that there were signs of a still greater future for Dominion mineral fields. "In a mineral age such as this," he said, "Canada's mineral heritage is immeasurably valuable. Nearly $31 per capita of Canadian wealth is annually won from the pre-Cambrian shield, along its southern edge, alone. In one stretch of 900 miles, extending from north-western Quebec to Manitoba, over er $100,000,000 in mineral wealth was produced last year in sixteen mining areas. Beyond this belt, stretching far to the north, the first attacks are being made, and successfully, to extend the mining frontier."

It is of interest to recall that Canada stands first in world production of nickel, first in platinum, third in zinc, fourth in gold, copper and lead, and fifth in silver. With the current surge of activity in mining, Canada may move nearer to leading production positions in the five latter metals.

Nomads Hold Art Festival

The Mansi, who lead a nomad life on the Siberian tundra, recently held a festival of Mansi amateur art at a center 1,200 miles from the nearest railway station. Moscow reports that for the last few years about 200 Soviet teachers, doctors, agronomists, zoologists and others have been struggling under severe climatic conditions to bring culture into the life and work of these backward northern peoples. The best story-tellers, artists, craftsmen and dancers displayed their talents at the festival, which was held at the time of the conference of Stakhanovite hunters. The Mansi displayed talent in painting and handicraft.

FORGOTTEN TREASURES

The sleek, patent-leather style of masculine hairdressing, depending for its perfection upon repeated applications of various refinements of tallow, says an English writer, may compel a revival of the antimacassar.

To the modern reader of Victorian novels, the mention of such articles as tea caddies, hassocks and antimacassars must be baffling, and what follows is intended for their enlightenment.

In early Victorian days, it was the habit of the dandy to anoint his curls plentifully with macassar oil, to the detriment of plush and other upholstery against which his head might recline. As a result, drapes of heavy crocheted lace were thrown over the backs of chairs and couches, and these absorbing the excess of hair oil, were known as "antimacassars."

The tea caddy was a witness to the fact that tea was an expensive luxury. It consisted of an ornamental casket of fine wood was divided into two compartments, one for black tea and one for green, and was fitted with a lock and key to prevent its costly contents from being pilfered by dishonest domestics.

Incidentally, on its first introduction to England, tea did not receive a very warm welcome because it was not understood. Uninstructed experimenters prepared the new importation by boiling it for twenty minutes, pouring off the "juice" and serving the leaves with butter, salt and pepper. Only a strong determination to be fashionable could convince a partaker that this dish was preferable to the native spinach. In many parts of England, even today, one will be invited to join in "a dish of tea."

The hassock was a well-cushioned foot-rest, and was intended for the further comfort of one reclining in an easy chair. In practice it was of little value as it usually slipped from beneath the feet of the would-be user. Several were to be found in any well-appointed room, and one or the other could be depended on to trip any one who entered a darkened chamber to light the lamps or candles, or the maid who brought in a loaded tea tray.

Probably most moderns have seen an old-fashioned candle extinguisher, but they may wonder why any such appliance was necessary to extinguish a light which could have been put out by a puff of the breath. But if your only means of illumination is a candle, and if there are a dozen or so of these burning in a single room, to blow out their flames and leave their wicks smouldering means to fill the air with a reek of overdone mutton chops. So the cone-shaped metal extinguisher was pushed down over the burning candle and prevented the escape of greasy and malodorous smoke.

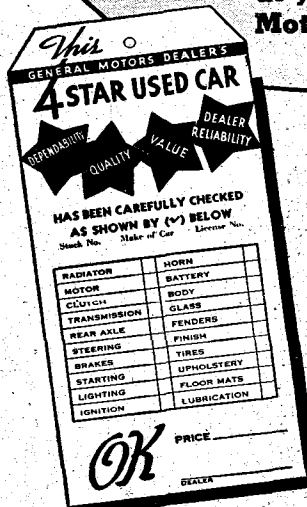

Snuffers were in the shape of a pair of scissors, to one blade of which was attached a metal box in which the burned-out wick was retained as it was clipped from the blazing candle.

The necktie is still in general use, but not for the purpose for which originally it was intended—the fashioning or "mending" of pens, which then were obtained from the quills of wing feathers of geese or other large birds. The goose quill was trimmed to a suitable point, and was fashioned so long as enough of the original material remained.

And the tax-collector, traveling salesman, or other itinerant who today would find a fountain pen indispensable, contented himself with attaching to the lapel of his coat a "safety bottle" warranted not to spill or splash, and filled with ink. Into this he dipped his pen whenever necessary.

A SCENE AT READING, MONT-
TEGO BAY, JAMAICA

How peaceful is this scene at close of day;
When evening spreads a thin, white veil of mist.

O'er dream-wrap hills and clustering meadows gay,
With frail white flowers by palid sunbeams kissed.

Lights up the dark green foliage of the trees.

Where dark brown raspberries gleam,
Are daylight daisies, and like-famed apples of Hesperides.

The northern hills, that circle round the Bay
Are robed in kingly purple, vivid green.

On patches of bare rock, the sun's bright ray
Paints the bush-rose tints and golden sheen.

Fair emeralds, upon the gray sea's breast,
The green Bogue Islands fairly haunt the eye.

Sway amiably and echo each sigh.

To yield her tender heart for love's dear sake,
The gray old sea has one fair tale urged.

And cunningly he fashioned there a lake—
Blue sapphire, with peerless emerald merged.

A narrow strip of beautiful white sand,
Receives the homage of the silver spray.

Chirps sweet evangels to the dying day.

Then in the purple dusk we home-ward go,
Fast streamers murmuring in its trebly bed.

Reflecting in its crystal depths below,
A single star that twinkles overhead.

Softly as moonlight, comes the spirit's call—
And tenanted, pale sorrow leaves our hearts.

For we have found the strength and healing balm,
That nature, our dear mother, ever imparts.

I. C. R. Put Right on Yarmouth Dailies

"I. C. R." in his last week's "History of the Week" in the Halifax Herald, had some nice things to say about the Yarmouth Light, 46 years old that week—and they were deserved. Well does the writer remember the first issue of that paper. He was working on the Yarmouth Times and so anxious was the staff of that paper to see the new rival that they all "chipped in" to get a copy each and "yours truly" went down the street to get them. He bought them from a boy standing in front of the Eakins' Block (since torn down).

under his management. I know because I was one of the composers. The foreman was Scott Farnham, formerly of Digby, and besides myself "Billy" O'Brien, "Billy" Fox, and one other whose name I have forgotten. "Slung the type" for the sheet. A young man named McKinley, of Saint John, was the first town reporter, followed by another from that city, named Golding. Its office was in the Roy Building on Brown Street—comprising room upstairs and press room where Warner's barber shop is now. Getting tired of it and wanting to return to Chicago Saunders sold it to Percy Hamilton and James Willis (my father), two of the Times staff, and under their ownership it put in the first type setting machine in Yarmouth—a Rogers Typograph. They were then located in a back room in the brick block on the corner of Main and Brown streets, immediately in the rear of the present Agnes Surpass store. My father retired from it and went back to the Times. Hamilton continued for a while moving it to Cliff Street, about where the Currier Press is now located, but in a short time he sold it to a young fellow named Fitzgerald, who only ran it for a few weeks when it ceased publication.

During the Spanish-American war dailies ran riot in town. The Times got the bee first and issued a paper called The World. For some reason or other, although intended for a daily, it ran only one issue. I set every ad. in the paper and have in my possession the only copy in existence and that is badly torn. But a few weeks later the Times did come out with The Daily Times which ran. I think about four years. I was with it for a few months but during its career I went to Truro to work on the Times-Guardian. The Yarmouth Light itself brought out at the same time, The Morning Dispatch, a morning daily which ran for some time, and the Herald, not to be outdone, brought out The Mid-Day Sun, which ran four days a week, making, with the Herald on Tuesday, and the Telegram on Friday, a daily publication from that office. This, too, ran for some time, but exactly how long I cannot say, but they all finally dropped out. The Daily Times had been the most pretentious and probably the most successful. It was a seven-column folio.

Some years later the Polton boys—Guy and Gerald—started The Yarmouth Daily Globe, and ran it for some time. It was printed by James Wallis, who had left the Times and opened a job office on Cliff Street, and as the boys ran behind with the printing bills it was finally dropped and James Wallis himself started The Yarmouth Daily Post. It was never a publication which would set the world on fire, but it has one outstanding scoop to its credit—it was the first paper in Nova Scotia to publish the news of the Jutland Battle. Failing health caused Mr. Wallis to drop the paper and since then Yarmouth has had no daily.

So, I.C.R. you probably know a little more about the history of the Yarmouth dailies than you did before.—Editor Courier

"Bobby" Weir Hit By Car
On Wednesday evening "Bobby" Weir, well known school student and popular musician in the Digby Civic Band, was the victim of a painful accident at the corner of Mount Street and Montague Row, near the Baptist Church. Young Weir was rounding the corner on a bicycle when he struck a car turning the same corner, travelling in the same direction. By a coincidence the car was driven by his father, Reginald Weir, who did not know it was his own son he had struck until he picked the lad off the street. "Bobby" suffered a cut lip and bruises, otherwise was not seriously hurt.

Death Was in Engine Room of Motor Boat

A voyage of death and terror came to an end at 4.45 Saturday afternoon when the Saint John motor vessel Alberta, with the burned dead body of its engineer lying in the engine room, was beached by Capt David Reid on the skidways at Tommy's Cove, on the Bay of Fundy side of Little River.

Seemingly incredible is the fact that Wallace R. Eldridge, of Yarmouth Co., the victim, fell to his death over a running marine engine, all his clothes burnt and his flesh baked to a crisp over a hot exhaust pipe—without the knowledge of Captain Reid, standing six feet away.

Reid stood at the wheel, only an open grating between himself and Eldridge. The two men made up the Albert's crew. They left Saint John at five o'clock Saturday morning for Yarmouth.

Throughout the morning customary ship's work was carried on, only one engine being in use, as the other was out of commission. Eldridge managed to complete repairs and have it ready for operation at noon. The two then ate their midday meal, relieving each other as they took turns at the table.

After finishing dinner, Eldridge went to the engine room. Captain Reid gave his attention to the vessel, then passing through a fog. About 1.30 in the afternoon, he decided more speed was necessary and shouted down the grating to Eldridge to start the second engine. He received no reply.

Looking down the grating, he saw the engineer's almost naked body directly beneath him. Hurrying down the companionway he raised his comrade's head to find him dead.

During the entire trip fumes had been coming from the engine. Although the air on deck was extremely foul, Reid was completely dazed after his visit to the engine room. Since the boat landed at Little River it has been discovered that the exhaust pipe was partially disconnected.

For several hours Reid ran the boat about the bay in an eccentric manner. Fishermen noticed the little motor vessel thought it was a fisheries patrol boat on her legitimate business of looking for illegal lobster pots. They paid no attention to her.

Finally, finding it impossible to stop the engine, Reid ran the boat up on the government skidways at Tommy's Cove, putting a quarter of her length out of water.

Fishermen gathered about and he asked them if they could stop the engine, telling them Eldridge lay dead in the engine room. Two offered to try their hand at stopping the pounding engine, but before they gained the companionway it suddenly ceased of its own accord.

The Alberta was then pushed

ROLL CALL SERVICE

The Annual Roll Call of the St. Mary's Bay Baptist Church was held in the church at Barton on Wednesday afternoon and evening of June 10th.

These services were both interesting and highly inspirational. The guest speakers were Lic. E. C. Churchill, pastor of the Weymouth Baptist Church, and Rev. Harry Barber, of Paradise.

In the afternoon, after an enthusiastic Song Service and devotional exercises, the roll of church membership was called and elicited a gratifying response, both in Scriptural thanksgiving, testimonies and the liberal offering that came from present and absent members.

Mr. Churchill took for his theme in the address of the afternoon in the church's ample resources to meet the world's needs, as outlined by the Master, in the words, "They need not go away; give ye them to eat." Throughout the entire message, the clasp call to the church to renewed aggressive endeavour in high spiritual undertakings was most earnestly and convincingly sounded forth and we believe, found a worthy response on the part of the hearers.

As in the afternoon, the evening service was largely attended and a deeply interested and sympathetic congregation gave earnest attention to the message of the evening. Rev. Mr. Barber took as his theme, "The Challenge to the Church of Today", as emphasized by the Apostle Paul in Thessalonians 1: 1-8, "For from you sounded out the word of the Lord your faith to God is spread abroad." This was indeed an earnest, timely and searching appeal, that the church of today should seek to make the program adequate to the needs of the day in emphasizing of spiritual values. Her victory is assured and her "prospects", as bright as the Promises of God.

It was a great day for the church and cannot fail to mean increased strength and blessing throughout the year.

The music rendered by the united choirs of the pastorate, was of a high order and the offering a splendid one, which will materially help to make the Mission Allotment a worthy showing in the Denominational Report.

off the ways and anchored. Corner W. C. Harris, M. D., of Barton, was notified and the Digby detachment of the Mounted Police informed. Later a jury was empanelled. The jury-men viewed the vessel and Eldridge's body.

Evidence was given by Captain Reid, and Earl Eldred and Otto Frost, of Little River. The medical opinion of Dr. E. Rice, of Sandy Cove, was read. Subsequently the jury decided that the engineer "came to his death through carbon monoxide poisoning." J. J. Wallis, Digby newspaperman, was foreman.

Students in Conference at Deep Brook

The Maritime Conference of the Students' Christian Movement of Canada, opened its session at Sea Breeze Hotel, Deep Brook, on Saturday, with Rev. John Copp, Maritime Secretary, in charge. The session has proven great value to those attending and taking part in the discussions.

On Sunday morning Professor George Thomas, professor of Physiology at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., delivered the first of his series of addresses, taking as his subject "The Conception of Man." "Man," he said, "is a dual creature. What makes man good or bad is the pattern of his choice. The Christian view of man is not that he is good or bad, but that he is a being who is filled with both possibilities and within the limits can choose what he will be," said the speaker.

Loyalty to one's church, country or institution, he said, must be secondary to loyalty to God. He concluded with a quotation from John MacMurray "The important thing is not 'Do you believe in Christ?' but 'Are you for Him or against Him?'"

Sunday evening three speakers were heard. Mr. Copp spoke on the history of the church throughout the ages as it affects present day affairs. Rev. Ross Eaton, of Bridgetown, dealt with the subjects "The Church," "The Body of Christ," and the "Missionary Function of the Church." Rev. Arthur Organ, of Bedside, P. E. I., spoke on "Proving the Fellowship."

On Monday Professor Thomas gave the second of his series of addresses, speaking on "Our Conception of Love" and "Our Conception of Freedom," while A. S. MacIntyre, Industrial Organizer of the Extension Department, of St. Francois Xavier University, spoke on the cooperative enterprises, including credit unions in Cape Breton and Antigonish.

On Tuesday morning Professor Thomas gave the third address in his series, his topic being "The Nature of God." The interest evoked by this address was manifest by the group discussion on the subject which followed, lasting for an hour and a half.

On Wednesday morning Professor George Thomas addressed led through a discussion of Theism and Humanism, into "The Significance of Jesus."

"God's plan is not static, it is continually unfolding and every human being who fails to perform his share of God's plan in this world, to what extent frustrates the Divine Plan. Theorists have tended to think of God in anthropomorphic terms—as like unto a human in attributes. This is natural and not to be condemned, but the wider concept of God as a universal mysterious power or force is also acceptable. We might never have found this out if it had not been for Jesus," said the speaker. "Jesus saw that man's reason was not enough—his intellect must be regenerated, and this intellectual rebirth was what Jesus meant when he said 'Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free.'"

Couldn't Straighten Up Or Walk Well

Soon Found Relief Through Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Bayswater, N. S., June 15th (Special).—"About four years ago I was taken sick with pain in my back and left side," writes Mrs. Oliver Amalt, of this place. "It was so severe I couldn't straighten up to walk or lift anything. I was told it was kidney trouble so my husband got me two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. After I had used them I was better, so I kept taking them until I felt no pain at all. I haven't had any backache or any of the old trouble since."

When the kidneys fail in their normal duty of filtering all poisons from the blood—backache often follows. Be guided by the experience of Mrs. Amalt and thousands of others, and take Dodd's Kidney Pills if anything goes wrong with your kidneys.

Saddler Dies Famous

When Joseph Robbott Churchill, saddler, walked the streets of London carrying a saddle and reading a book, people laughed at him as being a poor saddler and a dreamer. While he walked he studied Greek and Latin classics, eventually took his B. A. degree at London University and became a distinguished tutor. He has just died, possessing many honors, in Burnham-on-Sea, England, aged 71.

Nose-Biter Given Year

Yahi, an Algerian, charged before the 12th Correctional Chamber in Paris, of having assaulted his compatriot Saya, by biting off his nose, pleaded that it was only a bit of a nose, the rest having disappeared in a previous quarrel. Yahi was sentenced to a year's imprisonment.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of fluid bile every twelve hours. If this bile does not flow freely, it does not flow. It just decays in the bowels. Can bile be put into the bowels? You can't. But you can get it into the bowels by taking a small dose of Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle. They make the bile flow freely. They do the work of nature. But have no action on the bowels. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly resist any cheap imitations.

Robbery Aids Police

Many women are mourning and the police of Berlin are jubilant over the result of a robbery which closed a shop and revealed a thief. The women say that nowhere else in the city could be found such bargains in delicate lace, embroideries and similar expensive articles. One night burglars entered the place and made a big haul. The manager called in the police, and their inquiries revealed that the real owner was a man who called himself Schmidt, but was really Erich Arnold, an experienced burglar and jewel thief whose career they had followed with interest for years. There was no definite charge against Arnold at the time, but some of the remaining goods were identified as stolen property and after that it was jail for Arnold.

Most Peaceful Spot Found

After a long search, Col. R. V. K. Applin, former member of the British Parliament, declared he has found the most peaceful spot in the world. He left England last December in search of such a place and word from him has just arrived from a lonely, mountainous country in Africa. "This is the spot my wife and I have dreamed about," he wrote. "Our home is the last outpost between Natal and Basutoland, and beyond me there is nothing but the Drakensberg Mountains. Our old farmhouse is 6,000 feet up. It is 24 miles along mountain roads from the nearest store. Our nearest neighbor lives two miles away. This letter will go by a Zulu runner for 24 miles across the veldt, where he meets another who carries it on to the tiny post office."

Conference

On Tuesday afternoon Mr. McIntyre met the students in a discussion group, when questions about the co-operatives of St. F. X. were asked and answered. Education is the basis of all co-operative undertakings; the people engaged in any form of co-operation organize themselves into small study groups for weekly discussions on the various economic aspects of life, and particularly their own co-operative. The first co-operative was organized in 1841 by 28 poor weavers in Rochdale, Eng. The main rules laid down by this group still provide a sound basis for co-operative set-ups. Some of the secondary principles in the St. F. X. groups are adopted from the Scandinavian countries.

OLD SHIPYARD WAKES UP

It is indeed refreshing to see signs of life about an old shipyard, and we are pleased to see the old W. K. Smith yard, at Plympton, once more a scene of activity, and to hear the sound of the hammer and other tools used in ship building. The vessel on the stocks is being built for Capt. John Smith, of Plympton, and will be used in scalloping and general freighting. She will be a sister ship to the well known "Bay Queen," and will be ready to launch about September 1st. Her dimensions are 60 feet over all, 14 feet beam and 6 feet depth of hold. Capt. Lloyd Longmire is the master builder. The material being used is all native stock and is being furnished by Fred, Height, of Hill Grove.

From this shipyard in the past have been launched the schooners D. M. Smith, Sparmaker, W. K. Smith, Bessie, and the Westway, the latter a three-master which was launched in January, 1919, since which time the yard has been idle.

Right by the new craft lie the remains of two old schooners, only one of which can be seen at certain stages of the tide, and the keel and part of the bilges are left. She was an American schooner, the E. & G. W.

The other vessel whose remains are there, was the schooner Mary Eliza, another of Capt. Smith's vessels. She is not visible because the E. & G. W. The annual garden party of Trinity Church will be held on the Rectory grounds, on Wednesday, August 5th. Further particulars later.

The Flamingo C. G. I. T. group held their midweek meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Fred Lawrence. The guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. S. J. Abbott, who talked to the group on "Social Service Work," and on the poor conditions in Spain and Mexico during her visits in those countries. The worship period was conducted by Geraldine Syda, the theme being, "One Girl's Influence"; the Scripture was taken from the first chapter of Mark. After an enjoyable "sing song," delightful refreshments were served. The meeting closed by the friendly circle singing "Taps."

W. W. Hayden, who has been visiting his brother James D. (Jim), Hayden, in Bellingham, Wash., left yesterday to return to his home in Digby. A clipping from the Bellingham Evening News reads as follows: "Together for the first time in more than 30 years, W. W. Hayden, superintendent of water and streets, Digby, Nova Scotia, is visiting in the city with his brother, James D. (Jim) Hayden, merchant, patrolman and former city councillor. Superintendent Hayden is enjoying a leave of absence from his official duties and was an interested visitor Friday at the streets and water department, city hall."

The King's birthday passed off quietly in Digby, the majority of people spending the day in their gardens or on the road. The bathing beach at the Racquette was well filled with bathers. ## Digby School Closing Exercises

The Digby graduating class held its dance at Harbor View Casino on Thursday evening, of last week. Many invitations were issued and the guests were exceptionally well entertained. There were about sixty present. The orchestra, comprised of local talent, put plenty of vim into the evening. At intermission ice cream and cake were served, both being made by the graduates, we learn. The dance was chaperoned by Principal and Mrs. Purdy. The dance was considered to be one of the most successful dances ever put on by the graduating classes.

On Friday evening the people of Digby were again presented with the graduating exercises of Digby Academy, which were held in Trinity Hall. The evening opened with a processional by the graduating class, which was followed by their hymn, "Oh, God, Our Help in Ages Past." Rev. Dr. Hodgson led in prayer. The Valedictory, Miss Lovell Winchester, presented a splendid address. Her poise and delivery is indeed worthy of special mention. The valedictory address will be found elsewhere in this issue of the Courier.

Chairman A. J. Dillon presented the diplomas to the pupils, after a short address.

Mayor M. C. Denton was introduced and in his talk told of the great need for a Grade XII in Digby, and asked all ratepayers to vote in favor of this step at the next meeting of ratepayers. He was followed by Rev. A. E. Gabriel's charge to the graduates in which he set forth high ideals for them to attain.

The class prophecy, written by Marjorie Snow, read by Maxine Dailey, was indeed of great interest to the large audience, and was well delivered.

Principal Purdy's report was read, and he and the pupils are to be congratulated on the excellent averages in the different grades, the year having been badly broken up by sickness and bad weather.

Mr. Boden gave a short address, which was received with great applause. For many years Mr. Boden has been the school children's friend. They have talked together and worked together, and he is held with high esteem by the pupils of the Digby Academy.

The exercises closed with the National Anthem and a recessional by the graduating class. The music for the evening was supplied by Eleanor Wallis.

An ex-pupil sends the following: "May we all grant the teachers and young people of Digby the honor and privilege of a Grade XII this year. The town needs it to compete with other nearby towns. The boys and girls need it to advance their education. They've worked for it, and prayed for it. Let us give Digby a higher educational standing. Be present at the ratepayers' meeting."

VALEDICTORY

Mr. Chairman, Members of the School Board, Citizens of Digby, Members of the Staff, Undergraduates, Classmates:

As the class of 1936, we are gathered here in a group for the last time. In our school we have spent the greater number of our years, and it is with a feeling of happiness that we look back over our schooldays and review all the happy hours that we have enjoyed together. Yet it is with a distance feeling of regret that we contemplate a future, alienated from the happy companionship of you.

FIVE ESCAPE FROM BURNING SHIP

"When we left her she was a ball of fire," said one of the five members of the crew of the motor vessel Selma K., which blew up in the Bay of Fundy, some six miles off Boar's Head, Petite Passage, late Saturday night. The entire crew made their escape. They were: Capt. Harold Richard, of LaHave; mate, James Guy, Newfoundland; engineer, Alex. Dunphy, Halifax, and seamen, Lindsay Armsworthy, Halifax, and Fred Hatcher, Newfoundland.

Engineer Dunphy said the vessel caught fire from a gasoline explosion from the ship's electric lighting plant, which raked her from stem to stern. Immediately the engine room burst into flames which quickly spread over the whole ship. In making his escape his arms were burned and face singed. There was no time to stop the engine or to slacken speed, and the dory was launched with the craft going at full speed ahead.

By this time it is believed the Selma K. has gone to the bottom. When last sighted she was somewhere in the vicinity of Centreville, burned nearly to the water's edge, and it was expected she could soon fill and sink.

At one time the Selma K. was owned by Capt. G. M. Morrell, of Digby.

Harry L. Y. Beaman has returned to Digby, after a six weeks' absence.

ships that we have acquired here. One thing we shall retain is the treasure memory of these companionships, and this we shall cherish as one of our greatest possessions. One can discard associations but one cannot entirely discard his memories. These associations made through the long years of our education are bound to be of utmost value to us, as well as a source of pleasant recollections. Here we have gained what is probably the greatest asset a young man or woman can acquire, and which is something that is most indispensable in this world of progress and advancement—an education.

Members of the School Board, you are the ones who have striven so diligently towards the building of fine scholastic facilities for the youth of Digby. You have given of your utmost to serve as the public's representatives in a manner which has been more than commendable. We, the members of the graduating class, appreciate this. At the present, you have a task facing you which will require the greatest care and consideration on your part to perform. You, the Members of the School Board, in attempting the inauguration of a twelfth grade in this High School are doing what we believe is one of the most progressive steps that you have ever undertaken within your tenure of office. It is a serious step and one that must be approached in a most serious and thoughtful manner.

May I add a few words, as a tribute to Mr. Boden, in appreciation of what he has done for us. We thank you, Mr. Boden, for the keen interest you have taken in us as a school and as individuals. For the knowledge you have imparted to us by your friendly talks throughout the past years we are deeply indebted to you.

Citizens of Digby, it is you who have made possible our education. You, the ratepayers, are the ones upon whom the burden of taxation rests. It is you, primarily, who educate us. This you have done most obligingly, and have given us the greatest opportunities possible for this fair town of Digby. Today, you have a golden opportunity to increase the educational facilities for your children in the proposed addition of a twelfth grade to our High School. This, of course, cannot be accomplished without additional cost to you, but, ladies and gentlemen, we the members of this class, believe that this additional cost would be well worthwhile. I do not suppose that there are any who doubt the benefits of higher education for the sincere student; yet, we realize this is not possible for many students who earnestly desire education beyond what they can acquire in

PRESENTATION TO B. L. MERRY

Last week Mr. Merry received word that he was to be transferred to a similar position at Port Williams and he left for his new post on Wednesday.

Mr. Merry's removal is deeply regretted by every citizen in Bear River, because in the fourteen years he has been officiating at Bear River station he has rendered numerous acts of personal service to almost every member of the community.

Monday evening's occasion was in the nature of a surprise as there was no evidence without of any special gathering as the guest of honor was ushered in. In a neat little speech voicing the sentiment of all those present of the high regard in which Mr. Merry is held, Dr. L. J. In a letter to a Yarmouth friend, Miss Bradfield describes the dinner tendered her at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, in New York city, in honor of her membership admission.

Among the guests at this function were Miss Grace Moore, famed film star and grand opera singer. Also in attendance were a famed Norwegian explorer and an Italian aviator, all of whom were seated at Miss Bradfield's table.

Miss Bradfield describes how she learned that the Italian aviator, who incidentally is a flyer of some considerable fame, was named Cossaboom. Jokingly she remarked that Cossaboom was a common name in Nova Scotia, and that she was well acquainted with a man by that name who conducted a large resort near Digby. She asked if by any chance this man were related to the aviator.

The reply amazed her. The aviator responded, "certainly, he is my brother."

DEFYING DEATH AT FUNERALS

Says the St. Thomas Times-Journal—It is said that the illness of Percy Parker, prominent Toronto lawyer, was brought on primarily by his standing bareheaded at the funeral of a friend. Many other fatal illnesses have been attributed to a similar cause.

Even in the face of warning, men will follow this custom. Pictures published of the funeral of Mr. Parker show the pallbearers and mourners wearing hats, virtually inviting the same disaster that befell Mr. Parker.

The dangers of baring one's head at a funeral in cold or chilly weather have been pointed out time and again, yet men persist in the habit. And a senseless habit it is, for no one can conscientiously admit that baring the head shows any more respect for the dead than the mere tipping of the hat or holding the hand at salute. How long will man, slave to custom, continue to defy death at funerals?

Ain't It The Truth!

Digby Academy

an ordinary high school course. Everyone cannot afford a college education which is such a help along life's journey. You, Citizens of Digby, can make at least a portion of the higher education, which many of you missed, possible for your children by inaugurating a Grade XII. Many of your children will perhaps not acquire any further education than Digby affords, and you would be conferring upon them one of the best opportunities possible.

Members of the staff, you are the ones who have done more for us than any others during our High School years. You, whom we have known intimately for so long, have striven to give us of your best, not only to inculcate into our minds daily tasks, but also to stimulate us to clear thinking and right living. You have given us an education and for so small a staff it is indeed a fine one. I doubt that one could find anywhere two teachers more able to bear on their shoulders the work and responsibility that you have born. You have given us something we cannot forget, and we give you our heartfelt appreciation in return. You have, by your fine example, contributed something—which we cannot define, but something, nevertheless, which will forever endure you to our hearts. For you, I assure you, we shall have only the fondest memories.

You, the undergraduates of to-day, will be the graduates of tomorrow. The majority of you have been our companions during our school days and to you we leave our best wishes for a fine completion of your high school course. Remember to work before you play, and to work faithfully; and if you do, you will have no regrets but only thankful hearts. Co-operate with your teacher, in your best spirit and you will progress that much further in your work. To you I say, set yourself a goal and strive toward it. Remember that.

And now to you my classmates, I turn for the subject of my last words. You are last in my words but first in my thoughts. To-night is your night; to-night you graduate from Digby High School. Yours is the reward; for this evening you have worked since you first entered school. You have worked hard and to many the way has seemed stormy. Obstacles have crept up which have been hard to overcome; yet you have succeeded. To-night you graduate.

Words cannot express my feeling toward you this night. The feelings which come into my heart at this time are too full to put into words. Of you I can have nothing but treasured memories. We have grown up together and have shared each other's joys and sorrows; and now that we have come to the parting of the ways, I feel that we have come to the end of one of the most pleasant periods of our lives the high school days. Now, although these are over, I am sure the fond memories of these days and of these associations will remain a source of happiness and of inspiration to us.

Now we must face the future not as a class but as individuals. We are about to go forth into life to learn the greatest lesson in the world, the art of living. What are we going to do with our lives?

Some of us will go forth no doubt, to seek higher education here or elsewhere. To those I say, work diligently, make the most of your time and opportunities, and remember that the most of you will be doing this at a great sacrifice on the part of your parents. Remember that every wasted moment is a loss of knowledge and every moment saved will reap its reward. To you again, I say, work faithfully that you may make the most of your time.

For those of you who have completed your academic work, remember that one's education is never completed, no matter how long one studies. After all, life is itself an education and the longer we live, the more we learn. All of us are not fitted for scholastic work. Some of us may take up professions, but remember that all occupations, no matter how humble, if only honest, are noble. Many of our most prominent men have started from the bottom with no more than high school education; they have ended as the finest and most successful men. So, my friends, be not discouraged if life permits no further education—this is not the most essential thing in life.

To-night as we step on the threshold of a new life the more material ambitions seem to fade into the background. Wealth and fame do not always last, and are not of the greatest value in life. For everyone of you, I would wish the best; not so much would I desire material success but rather that you make your lives worthwhile. Strive to lead a life in the service of others and above all in the service of Him who made you.

And now, leaving this thought with you in the hope that it may linger in your memories, I bid you and all my classmates, an affectionate "Farewell."

Lovell May Winchester.

Class Prophecy of Grade XI for 1936

Now friends I don't profess to have the skill of fortune tellers; but I shall try to tell a tale about ambitious fellows. I'll dip into the far-flung world to gather all my friends, and bring their fate right here to you.

—You may suggest amends.

However, I am firmly pledged; you surely will agree. That we have tried—and reached our goal.

And won security. Now as I count them one by one—They number seventeen—

To get right down to business I'll start with number one:

Not only is she wise in class But "tope" with all her fun. You've all seen bucking bronchos, either real or on the screen; You're all seen Maxine Bailey, With big hair and her fling.

But what you haven't seen as yet That's destined to come true. He Miss Maxine upon the screen! And on the bench too.

I like you, all think Claude will be a farmer or the like; But Franklin do surprising things With cars and even bikes.

So to prove to you my statement He'll go through life with medals. The world shall know his name.

There's no need to be doubtful Of this statement that I make; For after all, I'm telling you Just what job you should take. However, you must be assured That the darling of our class Has climbed the hills to drugs and pills.

Audrey Holdsworth is the lass. And now to tell you something About a Mr. Snow. Who used to set in trouble. Wherever he did go.

But time has passed and Paul has changed. For now he has success: He's the engineer of Santa Pierre. He sure has made progress.

Afar off in some foreign land There works a daughter fair; Her mother's proud of this dear one. But Mary does not think of that— She has no time to spare; Miss Hayden is stenographer Or a big financier.

If you could see what I could see A-sailing off the waves Within a boat he calls the "Gull" You'd know what he sure craves. But do not be mistaken, friends, For Bill is getting a wrong impression; For Bill is only passing time In his life of law profession.

A friend is she in every way Shall do anything you ask; She hoped to be an office girl. And you know she won that task. In case you are inquisitive And would like to know the name, I'll tell you with all sincerity. Joyce Baxter is the dame.

He deserves with all sincerity The credit we can give; We could never find so brave a boy If a hundred years we live.

I know there is no doubt in mind For you all will think the same; So cheer for Charlie J. And God bless him in his fame.

Surprises often show themselves And he is one right sure; It's because in all her glory Due to the children—she has four.

But, not, don't get discouraged, Cause the husband that you face Is a millionaire retired. We all wish we had your place.

Who is this I come to now, With his eases and his pains; He's drawing forms of everything From motor ships to saints.

He sure is someone whom we know, For who else has that grin. But Bobby Weir, the comic lad, And to tell it is no sin.

I bet not one of you would guess Who took this occupation, Of stocks and bonds and all the rest Which works like clockwork.

In school we call him everything From Bill to Archibald; But don't you laugh because you'll find,

That Spectacles aren't soft like sweeties. And here I have a land of white Where men and women are;

Where men and women are; They too are all a maze of light As a destination far. We'll soon see many patients As through the wards we go; Winchester takes the praise for this— It's Miss Lovell, we all know.

There are many kinds of life to take Which bring to us delightment. But you can bet that Max would choose.

The one which gives excitement, And in this case, he sure is right. Because you all will find That motion gives the thrills And apoplexy, if you don't mind.

To take up school and college work Sometimes will give you pains But, after all is said and done, You have acquired brains.

And do you know who has done this? Who is teaching school, right now? Well, it's smiling Emma Tibbets. Who deserves it all—and how!

Willard has taken for his life The road of science study. He often had discouraged looks When the road seemed dark and muddy.

But from his striving and his stress He's found a safe position; But what is Mr. Donnelly now But a very old electrician.

What's this? I'm back once more to "guess" And bandages and plasters, Which alleviate the sufferings Of burns and cuts and stings; But do not be alarmed, my friends; But with the magic spell returns. For Mary Keel is on the job And you'll soon be back with "Mum."

It seems my thoughts are fading fast. But not, as yet, is there A trace to tell me of my life And where I'll go from here; But with the magic spell returns. And out of the radio, A-singing with her old guitar, Yours truly, Marjorie Shaw.

Well, friends, I guess that covers all Of what I had to say. I hope you all are satisfied. And for your time we pay. And so to mention one more fact Then let you have a rest; With all my heart I wish for you Of happiness the best.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

What might have resulted in a triple drowning accident was averted at Sandy Bottom Lake Sunday evening through the presence of mind of Kendall Longmire and fast paddling of S. G. Parker and Donald Mailman, of Annapolis Royal.

Gerald Hamm and Billy Wood had taken a canoe off in deep water and upset and Hamm not being able to swim, Wood attempted to keep him up, Kendall Longmire swam out with his clothes on but could not handle the two of them. Wood by this time being exhausted, S. G. Parker, of Annapolis Royal, who was calling on friends at the lake, noticed their plight and he accompanied by Donald Mailman got a canoe, did some fast paddling and was able to reach the boys and get them in the canoe. Mr. Parker says full credit should go to Kendall Longmire, as had it not been for his heroic efforts in keeping the boys afloat they would not have lasted long enough to be rescued by a canoe.

Steele also acted as director of sports.

Mrs. Claire Eisner arrived from New York Tuesday to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Landers.

Edgar S. Suits suffered injuries to one of his feet when assisting in getting a marine engine started last week, and will be absent from his work several days.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

LOOK AHEAD!

You are eighteen years old—just a wonderful age. It is the age of promise and of peril. What you do with yourself in the next seven years will go a long way towards determining what all the rest of your life is going to be. Yes, I know you shy a little bit at taking advice; you are apt to class advice-givers as tainted with old-fogeyism. But I am too much concerned about you to make a success of your life to keep silent. Come along now—if you only could see your life now as you will see it, say, at twenty-five, you would be more careful about the habits you form, and at twenty-five you will be grateful for the reasonable advice a friend gave you, and for your own good sense in accepting it gracefully.

But I am not going to be "high brow" or puritan, taking the joy out of life for you. I am just going to take this matter of drink, and talk of it today simply on the economic level. Your temptations to drink today are going to be greater than they were for those brought up in days when the laws of the land frowned on liquor drinking. Of course you are too young yet to buy liquor of your own, but it will be put up to you in the homes of your respectable friends, with a sort of air that will seem to dub you queer if you don't drink with others, just a social glass; and of all things you don't want to be "queer". But look ahead before you commit yourself to any habit of drinking. Be man enough to do some thinking for yourself. Think of the drinking of beer alone, say, three glasses a day, if any man can promise himself that he can keep at that without steadily increasing the rate. Get your pencil and paper, and do some figuring for yourself. If you become a total abstainer, and save the price of three glasses of beer a day, do you know that at the age of 28 you will be able to buy yourself an automobile costing $1040, and pay spot cash for it? And you'll be able to drive it too, for your mental and physical powers will not be dulled or drivelled by alcohol. Or if you would rather save up your money for something other than a car, then you can buy a good house for yourself and the someone you hope to make your wife, and you can at 35 plank down $2400, and call it all your own. Or suppose you can get your car or your house some other way, then at 50 years of age you will have a savings account of $6500, and when you are 65 you can retire with a life annuity of $920 as long as you live. Now, aren't you glad I talked with you? You go home and see to it, that, if for no other than economic reasons, you will be a total abstainer. Just be good and sensible at your wonderful age. Look ahead—and live ahead!

One reason is that Kellogg's are always crisp and fresh as the day they came from the big toasting-ovens. They're packed by an exclusive Kellogg process in a heat-sealed WAX-TITE bag, inside the package. That's why they reach your table oven-fresh and flavor-perfect.

BRITAIN'S NEXT PRIME MINISTER

There is a general impression in Great Britain that Mr. Stanley Baldwin will take the opportunity provided by the coronation of King Edward VIII next May to retire from the leadership of the Conservative Party, says the Christian Science Monitor. Who will be his successor? The Labor and Liberal Opposition have only small representation at present in Parliament. Mr. Baldwin's successor as Conservative leader therefore is practically certain to be the next Prime Minister. Speculation is rife with names like those of Mr. Winston Churchill, Mr. Anthony Eden and Mr. Neville Chamberlain.

When the late King passed over Lord Curzon in favor of Mr. Baldwin for the Premiership more than a decade ago, it was generally considered that he established for at least some time to come a rule that the Prime Minister should be chosen from the House of Commons. Undoubtedly the most brilliant man in the Commons is Mr. Winston Churchill, and he belongs to the Government side of the House, though he frequently finds occasion vigorously to criticize official Conservative policy. Mr. Churchill has had long parliamentary experience, and has often held high office. He is a magnificent debater. He comes of a family that for centuries has been associated with the inner springs of British government.

But, perhaps chiefly for this very reason, it is not likely that he will be the next wearer of Mr. Baldwin's robe. The British public, while fully recognizing Mr. Churchill's almost unique gifts, is inclined to doubt whether he has sufficient personal authority. Moreover, whether the system of national government continues or not, it will be essential for a long time to come that the Conservative Party should retain the support of those who formerly composed the right wings of the Liberal and Labor parties, and this it would be unlikely to do under the leadership of a man of Mr. Churchill's more recent affiliations.

It is unfortunately true that very few members of Mr. Baldwin's Cabinet have succeeded greatly in increasing their reputations in recent months. Such as have done so have not in general been in the front rank of parliamentarians from whom leaders are usually drawn. A notable exception is the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, who has steered the ship of state through some very choppy waters. But Mr. Eden is hardly regarded as a serious candidate for the highest office in the realm. His experience has been very short, and has been limited to a single class of problem.

There remains Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Mr. Chamberlain is skilled in parliamentary tactics, and is unlikely to allow extremist policy to run away with his party. He is sufficiently a traditional Conservative not to lose the support of the Government right wing, yet he might be more acceptable than Mr. Churchill to the more radical section of the National Government's followers. On the whole, therefore, it is to Mr. Neville Chamberlain that informed opinion at this time looks for Mr. Baldwin's successor. But these are trying times, for peoples and therefore the governments. Men—and parties—will have to show themselves big indeed to be masters of the events which may transpire between now and next May.

London announces a new hay fever cure—"98 per cent successful." We know a number of people who would welcome this, although Digby is almost exempt. Only the other evening we saw a lady—a victim of hay fever—wending her way to the wharf in the hope that the sea breezes would give her a little relief.

Obituary

Burton N. Harvie, age 57, general foreman of the D. A. R. shops, Kentville, since 1924, passed away suddenly at his home in that town on Saturday evening last, following a heart attack. Apparently in good health, Mr. Harvie was stricken in a store while shopping, and rushed home, where he died in a short while. He is survived by his widow; three sons, Fred, of Digby; Charles and Russell, at home; two daughters, Mrs. E. M. Pease, of Swanscott, Mass.; and Miss Edna, at home; also three brothers and three sisters.

The death of Mary, wife of Fred Graham, occurred at her home here on Tuesday morning, following a lengthy illness. The late Mrs. Graham was a daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Snow, of Digby, who survive her. Besides her parents there are left to mourn her husband, well known traveller for the Quaker Oats Company, and one daughter, Kathleen, wife of John R. McCleave, M. D., of Digby; also five sisters, Flora (Mrs. Charles A. Lindstrom) and Georgia, of Digby; Flossie (Mrs. Donald Butler) South Dakota; Fanny Dorothy Snow, of Boston; two brothers, Floyd H. Snow, of Digby, and Lorán B. Snow, of Saint John.

Annie Lillian Collins, beloved wife of Deacon B. P. Collins, of Little River, passed away at her home on June 16th. She was born in Little River, December 13th, 1875, the daughter of the late Deacon and Mrs. Harding Denton. Early in life she professed her faith in Christ and through all the years has been a most faithful follower of Him. She studied music at Acadia and freely used her talents for the glory of God, as choir leader and soloist; as teacher in the Sunday School, president of the W. M. A. S., during the last nine years following the death of her mother, the former president. Also treasurer of the church and a friend to everybody she has left a host of mourning friends who sympathize deeply with her bereaved husband and son, Lyndon, of Little River; her daughters, Elsa (Mrs. F. A. Hunt), of Truro; and Florence (Mrs. Robert Lockhart), of Woudside, Halifax Co.; and with her brother, Sydney Denton, of Little River. The funeral was very largely attended and was conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Chute, on Thursday afternoon. The many and beautiful cards letters of sympathy and floral tributes sent from different parts of the province testified to the esteem in which she was held by all who knew her.
