CENTENNIAL EDITION

Welcome to the Digital DIGBY COURIER

1877-1978

100th Birthday

The hundredth anniversary of the Digby Weekly Courier has brought to mind some fond memories as contained in the following historical chapter of the writer. But first, I wish to congratulate the current editor of the Courier, Mrs. J.M. (Edith) Wallis, for a job well done over the years and still being well done, good service rendered with great fortitude.

According to any record, I have at hand, the Digby Courier, in one hundred years of publication, was controlled under the same family management for 42 years, 1931 to 1973, under the control of Wallis Print Limited. The late J.J. Wallis became editor of The Courier the second time, in 1929, and at the same time of the business, which he had been running for some time previously and which became Wallis Print Limited sometime between 1929 and 1931.

I well remember the last year of the twenties when I worked in the office of the son with the husband and father of the late J.J. Wallis, the Courier. Sometime in 1928 or early 1929, the late J.M. Wallis (Mac), son of "J.J." engaged me to work every day after school hours, Saturdays, and for some months after full time. The place of work was in the building of the present Digby town hall on First Avenue. J.J. Wallis then worked occasionally at the print shop but mostly across the street at the Courier office which was then located on land in the general area where The Royal Bank of Canada is now.

Wallis Job Print operated in 1929 with a staff of four consisting of J.J. Wallis, J.M. Wallis, Miss Eva Haynes, who later became Mrs. George Kicup, and myself. I was in the staff in early 1929.

Eva's job was in the left up-stairs. "J.J." occasionally printing plant but mostly at the Courier office. "Mac" worked nearly full time at all the different jobs at the Job Print, and I worked at various duties, most of the time being spent at operating printing presses.

We worked ten-hour days, six days a week. "J.J." and "Mac" sometimes worked overtime. I worked only the regular hours being paid a weekly wage which was comparatively good for those times and my lack of experience. I received four or five dollars a week for working after school hours to six o'clock and on Saturday all day, and nine dollars a week for full weeks after finishing school. A two or three dollar a week raise was offered to me in the fall of 1929 for me to stay on at printing, but I had made up my mind to enter a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, starting salary of $300. The bank salary figured out about the same per hour as for the printing job. Nevertheless, the congenial atmosphere of the printing plant those days, and, experience however short, were helpful and appreciated by me.

"J.J." was very jovial in his occasional trip to the Job Print and did considerable kidding all in good fun. "Mac" was a witty person who mixed in a good natured sarcasm now and then for one reason or another. Eva most always had good answers to all the kidding she was called upon to take, and, generally held her own in a quiet sort of way, always busy setting type. We four all got along very well indeed. However, I do remember that some days did seem long and weary because of the monotony of some repetitious jobs.

In spite of the great demand for printing those last boom days of the twenties, business generally being brisk, it looked to me that people had to work long and hard to make any decent profit. There was including treatment of the hands. However, nails and finger ends were used and I was soon back to work.

Now and then a printing job had a dose on parchment paper which required a special kind of printers' ink which smelled very bad those days. I always dreaded it when "Mac" would do that job on the largest press, in spite of the fact that we always opened an outside door to lessen the effects on the constitution.

One of the jobs I had to do, being the junior and printers' devil on the staff, was to clean up now and then. One day not long after I started my job at the printing plant, I decided to clean the floor that apparently hadn't been cleaned in some considerable time.

"J.J." came along and said, "how are you making out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor. "J.J." laughed very heartily, he thought the remark pretty good and suitable.

Sometimes the gasoline engine or a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and after "Mac" the fix-it man had patiently worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without results, "Mac" would then stand back and cuss quite strenuously, then he would immediately start working. "See," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of cussing."

On other occasions when some gadget refused duty for me and, seemed to be broken, "Mac" would say, "use a little oil," and sure enough, often that is all it took. How often since, have I thought of the value of that remark and the actual need of "oil" in many life situations, applied at the right time, right place and, in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are, like the time I told "Mac" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1929 got together just before dark one evening and decided to initiate the newly built outdoor Pines Hotel swimming pool which had just been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just east of the pool; nobody else seemed to be around except the four boys; no thought or time for bathing suits up to the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in, the rest quickly followed and across the pool they swam. "Mac" listened to the story and hardly said anything, but the next "Digby Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story went something like, "Four Boy Scouts Officially Open Pines Hotel Swimming Pool." Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Earl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars (second world and Korean), was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Smith, now prominent druggist for many years in Digby; Clayton D. Snow, Digby wholesale lobster king merchant; and myself.

As a young teenager I used to like doing some writing about different events interesting to myself and mostly for myself. One day "Mac" said to me "how about writing your version of the story told about 'The Marooning of Jerome'." I had heard and read at least two somewhat different stories about the man who was found marooned on a beach at some point on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Digby County. When found this man's tongue had been cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

"Jerome" appeared to have been a man of some considerable social standing and possibly of some considerable wealth. However the only thing the man could or would ever say after being found and cared for by some family in the French shore was, something that sounded like the word "Jerome". He either could not, or, would not, write anything about who he was or why he was left the way he was. Well, it was, and is, one of Digby County's mystery stories, and, different ideas have been expressed over the years concerning this man. However my response to "Mac" was, I felt no urge to write anything more or different about this man. The mystery seemed to have been very well explored in the mind of many people, and, he was a sort of curiosity for many people who visited where he lived for many years.

Three years later I was quite a bit older and was in the street that I lived back and forth, I had a boat clanking noise, powered by a small engine, and I was a "plur", and as I remember it, I was a "plur". "J.J." was noted for his sense of humor and his sense of humor.

Years ago, during the time Mr. Wallis was editor of the Scott Act (Prohibition Law) in the town of Digby, I attended a boys' conference in the town of Digby.

Digby 172 Years Ago

Compiled by David Sanford

From the files of the Courier of January 23, 1867, the following account has been copied concerning Digby in 1800.

"Among a number of old newspapers kindly sent to us by friends is a copy of the Saint John Gazette of May, 1802, says the Telegraph and among other advertisements contained in the issue before us is one describing the town and township of Digby, and offering for sale certain lots in the town. In this area we are told the township of Digby extends from the Gulf of Annapolis westward to the extremity of the province of Nova Scotia, and contains about 130,000 acres." The town plot is thus described:

"The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of St. Mary's Bay. This laid out from the water's edge, partly on level ground and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having with an eastern aspect, a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth of that name. It was settled by Loyalists from New York in 1783, the most of whom went early to farms, or, moving to older countries, left the whole side to be bought proved by about who now reside detached, built dwellings with orchards, and some fishery and. It has communal parts of the communal provisions in a cheap, built readily to be from many circumstances, probability of place of some shipbuilding, the West India a cheap and of residence.

free trade with the U.S.A., especially with the New England States. The question was then debated by some Digby High School students one of which was some Digby's daughter, Florence (now Mrs. Melvin O. Tibert, Freeport, Digby Co.) Some days after the debate a man from some part of Nova Scotia came to the printing shop looking for Florence, one of the successful debaters; I had the impression that this man was interested politically but, maybe I was wrong.

Well, I felt that I had learned considerable from my short experience at "The Wallis Job Print". I was learning to do beginner jobs, receiving some knowledge about things like: embossing, stapling, perforating, counting, cutting and trimming paper stock, mixing inks for certain desired colors, and so forth, but, the only experience I had at setting type was just enough to make a "pi", the printers name for a confused mess.

There was a taste of trying to sell job printing outside the plant. Work was a little slack one early fall day and so "Mac" said to me, "how about trying your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards?" I tried it, made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular house, and got an order, but,

About This and That

A country store-keeper says: The other day I protested to a salesman of a wholesale house about the price of certain commodities every grocer must carry. He laughed and said: "The increase in prices is considerable, but pass it along. The producers pass it to us, we pass it to you, and you pass it to your customers." That's the way things are going—high prices, high taxes, and all. But suppose the farmers should decide to raise only enough for their own needs—have nothing to sell. What would the wage-earner live on? Farmers are producers, too, and could play the same game. Country grocers are brokers. Where would my business go?

In one of his little books, Parlette says: On your look-out largely depends your outlook." No greater truth was ever printed. Your look-out is your viewpoint. Intelligence and education determine the way to look at things.
Your outlook is what you see is happening, or is going to happen, according to your experience in life. If your lookout is dimmed by ignorance and your experience in life has been unfortunate, you are apt to be a pessimist. If the contrary is true, you will likely be an optimist. What the world most needs today are optimists possessed of common sense and sound judgment and, withal, honest men.

dent of Mount Allison University,

ADDRESS BY TELUGU LADY

The congregation of the Bastard Church on Sunday evening
last was highly favoured in being addressed by a young Telugu lady, Miss Gubbannu, who was dressed in her native costume of India.

Mrs. J. S. Timpany, of Digby, introduced the speaker, explaining the early years of this young Telugu who was born in Dr. Timpany's Hospital in India, later receiving her early Christian training and education through the help and influence of these faithful missionaries.

Possessing a magnetic personality, Miss Gubbannu addressed
her large and appreciative audience in a forceful and fascinating manner, vividly portraying
"Life among the teeming millions of her native land" stressing especially the hardships of the girls child-wives, and widows, through idolatry and superstition.

During her address she paid splendid tribute to our retired missionaries Dr. and Mrs. J. S.
Timpany, who labored for years
in India, teaching hundreds of thousands of the natives the wonderful love of our true God. Even in the song Miss Gubbannu sang in Telugu (by request) was interesting.

She received her degree of B.
A. at the University of Madras
and now upon further study at the University of Pennsylvania
(at Philadelphia) will receive her
M. A. degree in 1939, then return to India where she will be Principal of the fine Preston Institute,
of which she has recently been head mistress.

KARSDALE

Mrs. Wm. Brown and two chilren and Gerald Covert, all of Maine, are spending the summer
with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Covert.

Miss Mary Kathleen Ellis, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs.
William Ellis, was married Friday, June 24, to Charles Selig-son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Selig-son of New Albany. The ceremony was performed by Rev.
Murray Armstrong, of Middleton.
The newly wedded couple to the home of the bride's brother, Wallace Ellis, of Karsdale, for a short honeymoon. They will reside in New Albany.

Miss Lucy Parker and John P.
Covert, of Karsdale, spent Wednesday of last week with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Covert. They were accompanied by Miss Cora Parker, of Belleisle.

Mrs. Wm. Rogers spent several days last week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jack Troop, of Granville Centre.

Our school closed on Saturday,
June 25, and the teacher, Miss Annie MacLean, left the same day to spend her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C.
MacLean, of Margareville.

Mr. Milner is in our midst wiring the homes for the electric lights, which we hope will be ready for use very soon.

Here and There With G.R.T.

Well, here is a little more from the Old West Coast. This week of June 5th to June 11th has been one of more or less frolic, merritment and jollification. The Shrinermen have been here for their 64th annual conclave, some thirty thousand of them or about five per cent of the entire membership of the United States, Canada and Mexico. Most of them came in special trains, some arrived in airplanes and some drove their own cars across the country, while not a few crossed the hot sands between here and Hollywood on camel back. Most of the important cities of North America were represented. The Land of the Maple Leaf sent delegates
from Halifax, Saint John, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Victoria, even the far off Hawaiian Islands sent a delegation accompanied by native dancers and singers.

No matter where they came from, they were all Nobles of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine and they were here for the regular business of their annual convention, election of officers, installation, and so forth,
and they were here for a good time as well, and from all accounts they were not disappointed.

Los Angeles gave them a royal welcome—trust Los Angeles for that. It will welcome anyone, any time, who has money to spend, and as it takes money to get into the Shrine and also money to stay there, the Shriners
therefore must have money to spend—so, figure it out for yourself; fresh air and sunshine are free but everything else has a price tag attached to it. And, sorry to say, we did not give away much sunshine, for during the whole week Old Sol appeared only once, and then for a brief
half hour, while Jup Puvlis stood by growling and threatening but did not turn on the sprinkling system, so the weather was fairly good parade weather but nothing to rave about. Shriners from Sea-attle, Washington, where it is said to rain most of the time, may have been disappointed for they brought along their umbrellas and raincoats, but to be real sure that they would need such equipment,
they also brought along a rain
maker in the shape of a fire engine equipped with sprinkling equipment.

The city was well decorated for the occasion with emblems, flags, banners, and streamers of Shrine colors—red, green, yellow—and when the visitors turned loose
their patrols and drill teams dressed in bright colored satin and velvet uniforms with gold and silver trimmings, we had a scene that resembled the streets of ancient Bagdad.

In previous years when the Shriners have visited this city
they have held their parades on one of the down town streets
where everyone could see the show
free of charge, but this year all of the "big doings" took place at the Coliseum, a huge amphitheatre with a seating capacity of 90,000 people. Some of the Los Angeles financiers in charge of the entertainment committee
thought it would be a good idea to hold the more important parades in the Coliseum charging all the way from 55 cents to $1.65
per seat, thereby obtaining revenue to pay for this and possibly future entertainment expenses.

The results, however, were not quite up to expectations. The Los Angeles populace balked at the idea of paying to see parades,
but I understand that the Los Angeles business houses got most of their money back that they had contributed to the entertainment fund, so it would seem that old John Public paid the bill after all.
About fifty thousand people turned out to view the final parade,
which was a most elaborate one,
put on by the Moving Picture Industry, an electric pageant of much pomp and circumstance that would have made the ancient Caliphs of the Arabian Nights turn green with envy. Some show, that, and something that the visitors will remember for a long time. And bands, about fifty of them all richly uniformed and led by proud and haughty drums majors with their huge bearskin
caps and batons of gold and silver and what not. The largest band and one of the best was that of Islam Temple, San Francisco
—110 pieces, including a fifteen foot bass drum mounted on wheels. The Sacramento, California, band had 80 pieces and others

all the way from 25 to 50 pieces,
but for music that was really music Murat Temple band, of Indianapolis, Indiana, had them all beaten.

What is a Shriner? And what is a Shrine? some of you may ask.
The Shrine is known by its members as the "playground" of masonry. Some say that no other function is claimed for it, but that is not entirely true, for the Shriners do a lot for the crippled children throughout the nation,
some thirteen hospitals being maintained by the order for the benefit of the unfortunates. So far as its connection with Masonry is concerned the Shrine is a distinct organization with distinct laws and governing bodies,
but only Masons who have attained the thirty-second degree
of the Ancient and accepted Scottish Rite or who are Knights Templars, are eligible for membership in the Shrine.

It is claimed that the Order
itself dates back to about 844
A.D., when it was organized in Mecca, Arabia, by a son-in-law of Mohammed, the Prophet, who gathered around him a group of justice loving souls to punish offenders who escaped the grip of the law through the laxity of tardy and graft-ridden courts. It was a sort of a vigilance committee.

The first shrine in this western hemisphere was organized in New York in 1871 as a "fun organization" with a membership of thirteen. Membership throughout North America is now reported at over four hundred thousand. The Los Angeles shrine, or Temple, Al-Malakiah, was organized just fifty years ago and has grown to be the third largest temple in shrine-
dom. Five hundred new members were initiated last week when a
"good time was had by all".

Well, here it is, Saturday morning, June 11, and not a shriner in sight. Commencing Thursday night the caravans began to depart, special trains of Pullman cars with berths all ready made,
ready for the weary and footsore
to tumble into, pulled out of town
with a tired lot of passengers,
who had had a good time but who were glad to be on the way home again. The hotel men and the proprietors of restaurants, cafes,
and cocktail bars, were, of course,
sorry to see them leave so soon,
for this group had a wonderfully
good business for a few days,
something that sort of gladdened
their hearts for the time being,
business for the last three months
having been pretty slow for the food and drink emporiums, so that in fact that quite a number had to close their doors before the Shriners reached town. There is one group, however, that is glad that the big show is over and that is the police department. The men of the L. A. P. D. found plenty to do and did not get much rest this week.

Here is some of the tomfoolery
that they had to contend with.
The Nobles of the Ben Ali Temple, Sacramento, Calif., brought with them a pair of skunks with silver collars which were turned loose on a crowded street. Well!
how did people know that the animals had been denatured? Imagine their excitement if you know anything about skunks. Then there was the Temple from Miami, Florida, with twelve live alligators that they were trying to give away; then the Toonerville Trolley, from Rawlins, Wyo., dodging
in and out of traffic and blocking street cars. The Los Angeles Shrinermen wanted to show that they were as playful as any of their brothers, so they brought down a box full of live mice which they turned loose in front of the large-est hotel in the city—and what a fuss that caused among the feminine spectators. The San Francisco outfit raised Cain with traffic on the principal town-town streets, tying up traffic for as long as thirty minutes at times. One morning they marched down to the busiest corner in the city—7th and Broadway—set up tables and chairs in the middle of the intersection and ordered breakfast served from a nearby restaurant.
This stunt tied up traffic for blocks in four different directions.
Imagine the racket that went up from honking auto horns by drivers anxious to get to work on time. Finally some one turned in a fire alarm that brought out
most of the fire fighting equip-

PRAGUE LINKS MEDIEVALISM WITH VIGOR OF YOUNG NATION

(Special to The Christian Science Monitor)

PRAGUE — There are many conjectures today about the future of Czechoslovakia and its people. Thus it is that eyes turn to the capital city, Prague, which is one of the oldest cities in Europe—the "Rome of the North."
Prague is like Czechoslovakia in miniature; it has the varied history and the present colorful background of the country of which it is the capital, and in its streets may be seen representatives of the nine different nationalities included among the 15,000-000 inhabitants of the Czechoslovak Republic.

The choice of the ancient city
as the capital of the new State of Czechoslovakia after the World War restored to Prague a dignity
it had enjoyed hundreds of years before.

King Wenceslas, so familiar a name at Christmastide, ruled Bohemia with Prague as his capital
ten centuries ago; this king,
whose crest and motto, "Ich Dir," the Black Prince assumed on the battlefield of Crecy in 1346,
was a lovable figure to the citizens of Prague over whom he reigned.

Ancient Cathedral

The building of Prague's venable Gothic cathedral was begun
before William the Conqueror landed at Hastings in 1066, and the University, the first in Central Europe, was founded during the rule of the Plantagenets in England.

When the Czechs and Slovaks
established their Republic after the World War they took as their system of government the democracy which the Anglo-Saxon nations had found so successful.
But besides giving them a pattern for their Parliament, Britain had played an important part in their history many centuries before, for John Hus, a professor at Prague University, was influenced by the teachings of John Wyclif,
about which he preached in 1398.

Hus denounced the mundane influence of the Church at that time, and aroused the anger of the Emperor and the Pope. He was burnt at the stake, but his influence lived on, for he had influenced the Czechs that love of intellectual integrity and political and religious freedom which characterizes them today. To Hus, who was the forerunner of Luther and Calvin, the Czechs owe the establishment of their language and the consolidation of their national spirit.

Independence Waned

From the time of this vigorous reformer until the end of the World War the Czechs lost much of their independence; the Thirty Years' War followed the Prague movement against the Church,
and later Bohemia came under Austrian rule, and little of Czech nationalistic spirit seemed to have survived.

But the son of a coachman never ceased to dream of an independent future for his country;
and in 1918 Czechoslovakia was born, with Thomas G. Masaryk as its President and Prague as capital.

Once again the ancient city,
which is almost the exact central point of middle Europe, acquired an importance on the Continent. But although it was the capital of a new State, Prague
did not lose its old-world architectural beauty and character; it still remained what it was when the ex-Kaiser visited it as a boy, and exclaimed, "This is one of the most venerable and remarkable cities that I know."

Compared with London, New York, or Chicago, Prague is not a large city; before the war it had 500,000 inhabitants, and even today it has less than 1,000-000. But if it is not vast, the city has all the attributes of a capital;

its position on the River Moldava is charming, its architectural glories are unequalled anywhere,
and, although it has become a commercial and industrial center
of importance, its ancient and deep-rooted culture is alive and flourishing.

City of Legend

To the visitor Prague remains,
as it has always been, a city of legend; its strange roofs and balconies, its antique turrets and gables, the picturesque steeples
and domes crowning superb examples of Gothic and Baroque architecture, intersected here and there by streets which to the weary stranger seem always to ascend but never to descend, ensure the finding of history at every step.

Clustering around Hradshinformer residence of the Austrian Emperors, whose rule the Czechs
so hated, is a motley group of convents, monasteries, and palaces.

In this palace on a hill the sturdy Czechs of bygone days resisted the imperial delegates who came to demand that Bohemia

Nova Scotia's entries in the 1938 St. Maurice Valley Canoe Race, Alan Hunt and Eber Peck—standing between them is Mrs.
Cove.

Voyageur's Trail

"Voyageurs Trail", motion pictures of the famed St. Maurice Valley Canoe Race, were shown in Community Hall, here, Saturday night by Duncan MacD. Little, of New York. The entire proceeds were for Eber Peck, Bear River; Alan Hunt, Greenfield, Nova Scotia's entries for 1938 in the 125
mile classic, and the Digby Civic Band, which was in attendance
at the Saturday night's showing.

It is an interest in Mr. Little's pictures was evidenced by the number who came out of town to see them. A truckload travelled all across the province from Greenfield, and it is understood visitors arrived from Quebec, too late to be present. The advertising value to Nova Scotia was shown by the many telegrams
and letters from Quebec government and race officials, to Eber Peck and Alan Hunt, conveying best wishes for success in this year's race which begins July 29.

Mr. Little's pictures (taken by himself) showed the 1936 and 1937 races (the latter was in natural color). Nova Scotians, Eber Peck and Alan Hunt, entered for the first time in 1936. Last year Eber and his brother Watson, w.e. Nova Scotia's entries.
The films were most enlightening, and showed in a very graphic manner the gruelling tests of endurance, speed and skill, the contestants must undergo.
Starting at LeTouque, the pictures followed the race through the 75 mile course of the first day's event, through quiet and rushing waters to Grand Mere—a true test of endurance. Pictures of the second day's race showed the canoes as they raced down

the St. Maurice to Shawanigan Falls—this course is known as
"the speed test".

On the third and last day, the canoeists must show their skill
in bringing their craft through the many rapids, and over long portages, to the finishing line,
one and three quarter miles from the river bank in the heart of the city of Three Rivers. Our Nova Scotians certainly showed their skill on the portages, including the portage through traffic jammed city streets.

In 1936 Eber and Alan finished in 8th place. Last year, Eber and Watson completed the course in 5th position—this year, Quebec officials prophesied they will do even better, possibly second,
"but they deserve first" place.

The following paragraph is quoted from a letter written by Richard Bergeron, President of the Raddison Canoe Club, sponsors of the event. He writes:

"As to the Nova Scotia boys,
their sporting spirit has always been remarkable and we hope sincerely they will have better luck this year. You may say we fool the team, Eber and Alan, a good bet."

NEW COUNTY COURT JUDGE APPOINTED

People of Digby County are delighted to learn of the appointment of Kenneth L. Crowell, K. C., as County Court Judge for Nova Scotia Judicial District Number 3, succeeding Judge W. A. Livingstone, who resigned several weeks ago. Mr. Crowell was born at Sandy Cove, Digby County, a son of Capt. and Mrs. Nelson H. Crowell, and since he was admitted to the bar of Nova Scotia in 1922, has been practicing in Bridgetown.

He first studied engineering at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N. B., and also at Harvard University, Mass., and was for four years connected with the International Canal Construction in Panama and was there at the beginning of the Great War. In 1915 he returned to Canada, and was overseas with the 38th Battalion, C.E.F., with the rank of Captain. He was badly wounded at Vimy in 1917, suffering injuries that could not be cured. After his recovery he was transferred to the Canadian headquarters at London.

Returning to Canada in 1919 he entered McGill Law School, graduating with a B. C. L. in 1921, receiving his L.B. from Dalhousie University, Halifax. He was admitted to the bar of Nova Scotia in 1922. In 1933 he was made Crown Prosecutor of Annapolis County, and this year was made King's Counsel.

Japan's livestock industry is largely dependent on imported fodder, of which Canada is one of the leading suppliers. However, a new fodder distribution control law designed to encourage Manchukuo trade, has just been promulgated by Japan and may affect the quantity of future imports from all countries.

CANOE RACE

Plans for a canoe race, which, in time is likely to become of the chief annual sports events of Nova Scotia, are now in the making in all probability the first race will be staged early in August, according to A. Douglas Cossaboom, manager and proprietor of Harbor View House, Smith's Cove, Digby County, who will sponsor the event.

A definite course for the race has not as yet been set, but the course Mr. Cossaboom is now contemplating, will be from Bear River Bridge — in Bear River town — down the river to the mouth, and then twice around Bear Island, or twice around buoys that will be placed near the shore, to make the course a complete ten miles, finishing at the Harbor View Landing.

Mr. Cossaboom, who like others in Smith's Cove, Digby, Bear River and other parts of the province, has become greatly interested in the St. Maurice Valley Canoe Race in Quebec, and is anxious to create a similar race on a smaller scale for canoeists in this province. Although lacking portages and rapids, the Bear River offers splendid possibilities for a race of this nature. In the stretch of ten miles which will likely be the race course, the mighty tides which sweep in and out of the river will be a certain test of skill and endurance for the men of the paddles.

VISITS DIGBY TO ATTEND "CANOE RACE" MOTION PICTURES

A week end visitor to Digby was Armand Landry, secretary to the "Syndicate d'Initiative Trois Rivières", and who claims to be a direct descendant of Evangeline's people. Mr. Landry says the Marjorie Landry spoken of in Longfellow's introduction to his first edition of "Evangeline" was the eldest daughter of his great grandfather. He was accompanied by Raymond Dubé, reporter on the staff of "Le Novelliste", a daily paper published at Three Rivers, P. Q.

These gentlemen motored to Digby from their home city of Three Rivers, for the express purpose of seeing Mr. Little's motion pictures on the famed International St. Maurice River Canoe Race. Unfortunately, they arrived here too late for the show. The persons from whom they asked directions to the Community Hall, had just returned from the showing of the pictures.

BAND NOTES

The first of a series of open-air concerts by the Digby Civic Band, Paul Yates, conductor, was given last night at the Pavilion with an interesting programme of great variety, from Fritz Kreisler's "Old Refrain" down to "Ti-Pi-Tin".

The Town of Digby provides these concerts on eight successive Thursday nights for the entertainment of the public. Large audiences were attracted to all of last season's concerts and the present series promises to be even more popular, due in part to better performance, and partly to improved conditions at the Pavilion, which has been remodelled.

Last night's program follows: "Happy Days are Here Again", "Saskatchewan Overture", "Four Little Blackberries", "Mignonette" Cornet Duet, March, "The Submarine Force", Waltz, "Tessoro Mio", "Ti-Pi-Tin", "The Circus Parade", "Billy Blower" — Euphonium Solo, "The Old Refrain", March, "Thunderer", "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers", "Yankee Rhythm", March, "The Circus King".

A large flag will be observed flying from the top of the Pavilion every Thursday — and on any other days when band concerts are to be played there — an appropriate way of announcing that one of those enjoyable performances by the Civic Band will be given on that date. The flag is loaned to the band by Mr. Alfred Boden, and his courtesy is highly appreciated.

The Band has been gratified to find a dollar bill in every one of its recent collections, perhaps always from the same loyal friend. If more friends would follow the example of this public-spirited citizen, the Band boys would be greatly encouraged and would have less difficulty in meeting the heavy expenses.

THE BOY SCOUTS

The Scout meeting of June 17 was not held in the Scout Hall as the losing exercises of the Academy were taking place there. Instead the boys went up on the grass back of the school building and talked "Scout Camps". And most of the meeting of the 24th was taken up with the same subject. At this meeting "Nink" Woolaver was presented with his second class badge and Laurie Saulnier with his tenderfoot badge. During the same week Gordon Rice had passed his tenderfoot tests successfully.

THIS IS NOT THE CASE HERE

Getting ahead of the expected influx of advertising signs the Windsor Town Council on Tuesday night issued instructions to the Chief of Police to enforce a town by-law which has been in effect since 1929, but which has not been complied with. The by-law prohibits the erection of any sign, bill board, placard or poster within the town limits, except by permission of the Streets Committee of the Council, and provides that owners of properties may erect signs advertising their own wares and businesses, on the property where business is carried on.

Bill board advertisers, driven off provincial locations by regulations of the Highways Dept., are seeking to erect the condemned signs within town limits, where the provincial regulations do not apply. It is to prevent the erection of these signs, destroying the beauty of the approaches to the town, that the Council took action.

Canada virtually monopolizes the import trade of fresh blueberries into the United States, while Newfoundland controls the frozen shipments. At the same time Canada supplies the United States with a fairly substantial amount of the frozen berries. The bulk of the frozen blueberries goes into pie-making.

MARRIAGES

Barnes - Banks

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Baptist parsonage — Rev. A. G. Robertson officiating — on Saturday evening, when Muriel Jeanette Barnes, eldest daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Hilyard Barnes, became the bride of Otis Hallett Banks, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Banks, of Bear River. The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Barnes, was gownned in a tailored suit of continental blue ce'anesel pebble crepe and large picture hat. The groom was attended by Martin Barnes, brother of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, only the immediate relatives of both families being present, after which the happy couple left on short trip through the Valley. They will reside in Conway.

Eisnor - Sarty

At a quiet wedding in the Baptist parsonage, Bear River, on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. G. D. Brydon united in marriage Etta Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sarty, Granville Ferry, and Raleigh Eisnor, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Eisnor, Lawrenceville, formerly of Bear River. Only immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony. The bride was very becomingly attired in a tailored blue suit with white pocket bonnet. During the ceremony Miss Hattie Marshall, former music teacher of the groom, played "O Promise Me" and "Because". After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Eisnor were driven to Digby and took the Princess Helene to Saint John, en route to Fredericton, where they will spend the honeymoon, in a cottage on the St. John River, near that city. On their return they will reside in Lawrenceville, where the groom is in business with his father.

Doucet - Gaudet

A pretty wedding took place at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Saint-Jovite, recently, when Peter Doucet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Doucet, was united in marriage to Miss Lucy Gaudet, daughter of the late Anthony Gaudet and Mrs. Georgina Gaudet, both of Saint-Jovite. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father J. Doucet, C.J.M., rector, who also celebrated the nuptial high mass. The bride looked very attractive in a costume of gold-colored satin, with matching accessories, and carrying a bouquet of white roses and ferns. She was attended by her sister, Miss Celeste Gaudet, and the groom was supported by his brother, Clarence Doucet. The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom, and dinner and supper at the home of the bride's mother. A reception was held in the evening, which was attended by a large number of guests. The wedding presents were numerous and valuable. They will reside in Saint-Jovite.

Svenson - LeBlanc

The marriage took place at St. Mary's Church, Roxbury, Mass., June 15th, of Mrs. Catherine LeBlanc, older daughter of Mrs. Geo. J. Saulnier and the late Benjamin LeBlanc, of St. Alphonse de Clare, and Donald H. Svenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Svenson, Swampscott, Mass. The bride wore a gown of white mousseline de soie with fine lace inserted in the waist and sleeves. It was with high neck line and had a long train. Her shoulder, of tulle, which also covered her face, was hand-embroidered and tucked with a bunch of lilies of the valley. White accessories of the valley completed the bride's trousseau. She was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret LeBlanc, and James Svenson, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The double wedding ring service was used. Rev. F. J. Flanagan tied the nuptial knot and blessed the happy couple. Following the temporary dinner, was served to a number of guests. The gifts were beautiful and valuable. The newly-weds left for Denver, Colorado, on their honeymoon, on their return Mr. and Mrs. Svenson will make their home in Hingham, Mass.

Deveau - Belliveau

A wedding took place in St. Mary's Church, Church Point, on Monday of last week, when Alfred William Deveau, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Deveau, of Mavillette, was united in marriage to Miss Pauline Belliveau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loran Belliveau, of Church Point, by Rev. Father Hebert, C. J. M., rector. The bride was attired in white with matching accessories, and was attended by Miss Lizzie Deveau, sister of the groom. The bridegroom was attended by Alphonse Comeau. Nuptial High Mass followed the wedding ceremony. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, as well as the dinner, at which were present a number of invited guests. In the afternoon the bridal party and relatives motored to the home of the groom at Mavillette, where supper was served to a number of immediate relatives and friends. In the evening a reception was held which was largely attended. They received many beautiful and useful gifts. The groom has been for some time employed at Bridgetown, where they will reside.

Miss Ethel Miles and Mrs. Miriam Corbett spent the week end at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey W. Lander, Deep Brook.

DISMISSAL DEMANDED

Demanding the instant dismissal of Gen. D. M. Ormond, (above) as Superintendent of Penitentiaries of Canada, the commission which investigated the Canadian penal system scathingly denounced General Ormond in its report to the government. Among other things, the report contained charges that he "failed to grasp the fundamental principles of penal administration".

HAD HARROWING EXPERIENCE

Five Digby County fishermen met with a harrowing experience over the week end, due to dense fog in the Bay of Fundy. The men comprised the crew of the Centreville sloop, DeMille C, owned by E. H. Raymond, and skippered by Capt. Nelson Kelley, of Little River, Beside Capt. Kelley they were Garnet Kelley and Lea Trask, both of Little River; William Raymond and Carey Outhouse of Centreville.

About 6 o'clock Saturday morning, the DeMille C, a 48 foot craft, equipped with two dories, was operating in the Bay of Fundy. One of the dories manned by Outhouse, Trask and Raymond left the boat to get trawl, and became lost in the fog.

Failing to return by 9 a. m., Capt. Kelley and Garnet Kelley commenced to search for them, but, unfortunately, the engine of the DeMille C, broke down, and further search was impossible. Sail was of no use.

Both boat and dory drifted in the Bay throughout the day and night. The boat was landed at 9 a. m., Sunday morning at Phinney's Cove, 35 miles above Digby; the dory going ashore about 1 mile above Phinney's Cove.

From Phinney's Cove a telephone message was put through to the owner, who motored to the village with necessary parts of the engine. Temporary repairs were made and the boat met by the Bay View Life Boat, arrived in Digby late Sunday. The crew arrived at their homes after 10 a. m., Monday. The boat has since returned to Centreville, under its own power.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SUMMER CLOUDS AND SKIES

Clouds help your outdoor pictures. Use a color filter to record them more effectively.

SUMMER is the outdoor season, and one of the season's chief picture charms is its wonderfully rich blue skies against which cloud masses stand out in magnificent fullness and contrast. Given two pictures of identical subjects in which the sky appears, it's a safe wager that your attention will be held by the one effectively showing the clouds against a gray sky and not the one with the unnatural and unattractive flat, white firmament.

Here is the way to picture clouds and skies as your eye sees them: load your camera with chrome type or panchromatic film, and slip a yellow color-filter on your lens. The diagram below shows how a yellow filter works—it preserves the sky tone, recording blue in the corresponding shade of gray instead of white. Thus, the clouds and sky are more dramatically recorded and much is added to the appeal of your picture.

Color filters are traffic cops. A yellow filter (K-1 or K-2) stops part of the blue light, so that in the print, blue shows up as gray. Filters come in several colors, but a yellow K-1 or K-2 is what you want for general use.

Prayer by Mrs. Kirker and dismissal by Rev. T. Ross, Kingston, brought the rally to a close.

OBITUARY

H. H. MUSSELLS

The sudden death of Howard Haliburton Mussells, head of the department of chemistry at the Westmount High School, occurred a few days ago at the Montreal General Hospital. Mr. Mussells entered the hospital and underwent an operation. He appeared to be making a satisfactory recovery, but suffered a relapse and failed to rally. He was born in Clements, in 1882, the son of the late Capt. Albert Mussells and Abigail (Willet) Mussells. He received his early education in Clements and at Pictou Academy. Later he attended Acadia University, from which he obtained his Arts degree. Then he did post-graduate work at Harvard. Prior to his appointment to Westmount High School, in 1915, he was a member of the staff of the Pictou Academy. He was a member of the Heather Curling Club, a member of the Montreal Branch of the Society of Chemical Industry, a former member of St. George's Church and past president of the Montreal Branch of the Acadia Alumni. He attended St. Matthias church in Westmount. He is survived by his wife, the former Ruby Frances Lindsay, and by four sons, Lindsay, Lloyd, Campbell and Brock; and three sisters, Mrs. Herbert Journeay, Weymouth; Mrs. Guy Russell and Mrs. L. W. Finnett, both of Boston.

Principal Pays Tribute

Principal H. B. Parker, in his tribute, said: "Mr. Mussells was deeply interested in boys' work. He was a member of the Boys' Work Committee, of the Westmount Branch of the Y. M. C. A.; and a former adviser to the Westmount H. Y. Club. He was a great teacher of chemistry and a great investigator of truth. He was both inspiring and forceful and he taught his subjects supremely well. But that was only part of his work. In addition he taught boys and girls to be men and women. He inspired in them the hatred of sham and deception. With him chemistry was important, but instruction in the supreme things of life such as truth, honor and courage were more important. He fitted boys and girls to live whole, rich and useful lives. He was a great teacher."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SHOOT 'EM IN SERIES

ANYBODY can take a single snapshot—a landscape here, an informal portrait there. But have you ever tried taking a series, to tell a complete story of an incident, or to picture a person more effectively?

Summer activities offer all sorts of chances for series pictures. Wherever there is fun—a party, a picnic, a motor trip, an afternoon at the swimming pool or beach—you find amusing occurrences which are best pictured thus. One picture tells part of the story. Several pictures "follow through" and tell all of it.

The incidents don't have to be unusual. Good "fun" series can be made out of the cutting of a watermelon, a small boy blowing up a balloon until it bursts. Try picturing a child's tea party in this fashion—the small girl playing hostess to her dolls and pets. Also, try "expression" snaps of the baby in his outdoor crib.

Sports series are good. For instance, a man catching a fish. Show him baiting, casting, playing the fish, landing it, dropping it in the creel or threading it on the string. Later on, snap a picture to complete the series—the fish on the table at home, or the fisherman back at his office, describing his catch.

The series-picture idea can be applied in a thousand variations. Series pictures have extra "punch," because each picture supports and reinforces the next. A series of five good expression shots of the baby—laughing, crying, "crowing," questioning, shouting, and so on—is better than five unrelated shots.

One picture may be just a paragraph, but a series is a complete short story. Try such picture stories this summer. Nature stories are good, if you have a focusing camera, or a portrait attachment for your box camera. For example, picture a squirrel accepting a nut, taking enough pictures to tell the complete story.

Don't miss series pictures this season. They're immense camera fun!

THE WISE FARMER SAYS

IT'S HAYING TIME NOW

The real "Money Value" of early cut hay has never been fully appreciated by Nova Scotia farmers. Some have learned, many have not.

Actual records of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Nappan have shown that:

Clover cut early in July gains one and one-half per cent. or 30 lbs. ton in protein over August cutting.

Timothy gains one per cent. or 20 lbs. ton in protein by early cutting.

On the basis of oil meal or fish meal at 5c lb. this means a gain of $1.50 ton in clover and $1.00 ton in timothy, on actual feed values.

At an average yield of two tons per acre of both hay and clover on Nova Scotia farms, on a total area of 80,000 acres of clover and 320,000 acres of timothy, this means a total saving of $880,000 to the farmers if all hay is cut in early July.

Hay is a big factor in the feed bill of the farmers of the province. Every dollar added to the feed value of this crop means more money in the monthly cream cheque, and more of the worth while things of life for the farmer.

PRODUCT SEC- HONORS AT CHIC- AGO SHOW

Marven's Limited Gain Prize at Manufacturers Conference

High honors were awarded to a product at the recent annual conference of the Canadian and American Independent Biscuit Manufacturers in Chicago when Marven's Limited of Moncton, N. B., were awarded second prize for the best cream sandwich biscuits shown at the conference. Competing with a great number of samples from the Canadian and American Biscuit Manufacturers, the Marven's product, known as Pastry Shell and Jelly Cream, was selected as the second best in the whole show.

The Chicago meeting is an annual conference of practical bakers who meet annually to exchange ideas, discuss problems and undergo an instruction course in baking. It is attended by representatives from all parts of the United States and Canada. E. O. Stevens, in charge of baking and quality in the Marven's organization, was present to witness the triumph of the Company's product.

In discussing the award, W. A.

Walker, general manager of Marven's Limited, showed elation. "Naturally we are pleased," he said, "not only for ourselves, but also because we like to know that this signal recognition has been given to a product of the Maritime Provinces. All companies represented at the show sent along a range of samples of pretty much their complete line, and it was our little Pastry Shell and Jelly Cream which took second place."

Mr. Walker explained that despite its two names the prize-winning product is one and the same biscuit. It is, however, sold in two ways, unfilled to be filled in the home with whatever is desired and filled at the factory with a combination of cream and jelly. The public apparently shares the opinion of the judges in Chicago for sales of the unfilled Pastry Shell are excellent, according to Mr. Walker. "It just seems to fill the need of the ladies in the home who don't want to burden themselves with baking yet want to reserve a little credit for preparing a dainty for the table," he stated. "It seems that these little biscuits do the trick, as they can be filled with jams, jellies, cream cheese or whatever the ladies wish."

Marven's Limited, established over thirty years ago, has been closely identified with Maritime industrial progress. Controlled for some years by Ontario interests, complete ownership of the Company reverted to the Maritimes two years ago; accordingly the recent success in Chicago may be regarded as a definite and tangible tribute to the quality and merit of a 100 per cent Maritime product.

RETIREMENT RECALLS OLD INCIDENT

Charles A. Ritchie, one of the veteran drivers of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, recently retired on pension after serving nearly fifty years. He was born in Annapolis Royal, but in early childhood moved with his parents to Halifax, returning to Annapolis in 1883, after the death of his father, Edward Ritchie, a well known conductor of the old Windsor and Annapolis Railway, who died as the result of injuries received in the performance of his duties. Mr. Ritchie's first work in the service was as telegrapher at Lawrencetown, under the late John W. James, but after four years he took up engineering, beginning in the shed at Annapolis as cleaner, but quickly working up to a position as regular engineer.

Naturally, during a career at the throttle of an engine he has had many adventures. Perhaps his most thrilling "narrow escape" was during the big snow blockade of 1905, when a snow plough attached to the engine, left the rails, carrying both cab and engineer hurtling through the air. The accident happened at Digby, and as the engineer's hand jerked the throttle wide open as he was dragged from his seat, the engine sped madly through the town until it was buried in a snowdrift, with the fireman clinging perilously to the floor of the engine and the men in the van behind wondering if Charlie had gone mad. After the engine stopped a relief party was organized, but before proceeding very far the men met the supposed "victim" hobbling along the track. He had landed safely in a snow bank and a strained ligament and bruises were the only results of his dangerous flight.

LOOKS LIKE A BUSY SHIP- PING SEASON

An active season in shipping from this port is in prospect. It is understood on good authority that the Transocean Coal and Transport Corporation, of New York, have chartered five vessels to carry pulpwood during the month of July, the average draft to be 22 feet.

The German steamer Sternbek, 2185 gross tons, loaded approximately 2,000 cords of pulpwood in the short space of time of four days, and although this is no record, it shows an improvement in loading time, and compares favorably with that required at other ports, some of which have far better facilities to offer than has Digby. The loading berth occupied by the Sternbek was across the end of the spur pier, special permission being granted for its use. At all times the ship was afloat, and the sailing Capt. Heck expressed absolute satisfaction in loading time and the safety of the berth.

These improved shipping conditions were obtained largely through the co-operation of interested parties, but much credit is due Harbor Master Wormell and F. A. Graham in securing unconditional use of the berth. The cargo was supplied by Kempton & Mason, who engaged the experienced services of F. Clayton as boss stevedore. The ship's agent was F. K. Russell.

SOUTH END PETITION TABLED

At Monday night's session of the town council a petition signed by a large number of residents of the South End, asking the council to refuse permission to erect a service station on the Myrtle Hotel grounds, was presented but as no application to build such a station has as yet come before the council, the petition was tabled for future reference.

Permission was given the Digby Civic Band to hold a tag day on August 1st.

On motion of Councillor Woodman, seconded by Councillor Morrell, it was decided to make Sydney Street from First Avenue a one-way street, going east from Queen Street. It was also decided to erect a "stop" sign on First Avenue, at the corner of Carleton near E. A. Roney's machine shop.

Captain Charles Lewis was appointed caretaker of the bathing houses on the Racquette beach for the summer.

The clerk read the report of R. A. Doane, re. his inspection of the water system, and of clun-

Headache Atter Headache

Now She's Free From Them.

A woman writes: — "I would like everyone who suffers from headaches to try Kruschen Salts. Before taking Kruschen was seldom free from a headache. But since I have been taking it regularly I have hardly had a headache, for which I am very thankful. I have been taking a small dose of Kruschen every morning in a glass of warm water, before my breakfast, and I feel so well!" — (Mrs.) A. E. D.

How do you deal with headaches? Do you just take something to deaden the pain, without getting rid of the trouble which causes the pain?

Headaches can generally be traced to a disordered stomach and to the unsolicited retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons — prevent them forming again — and you'll never have to worry any more from that cause. And that is just how Kruschen Salts bring swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen aids Nature to cleanse your body completely of clogged waste matter.

Fred Delaney, 65-year-old hermit of Toronto's Don Valley, claims he has lost $10,000. Suffering from a mild form of amnesia for 22 years, Delaney does not remember much about the money except that it was left to him by his father, who was a Nova Scotian, and deposited in a bank in Prince Albert, Sask., about 1915 or '16. Relief officials are investigating the claim. Delaney is shown here inside the cave in which he is now living in the Don Valley.

Many streets are named after men who helped to give Czechoslovakia its independence. "Hovrova" and "Rozhova" commemorate Mr. Hovr and General Rozh, while the biggest railway station in Prague is named after President Wilson. Wilson's memory is also perpetuated by a statue, although no such monument to him, yet appears in the United States.

But the Czechs are grateful folk, although somewhat dour on first acquaintance. They have fought a long battle for independence and Prague has lived through all their history. They will not lightly abandon independence or their venerable capital.

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT" Continued

youngsters, we shall need them more as years go by and the veterans fall out of line. What shall we do about them?

The greatest sin any man can commit against himself is to have a good impulse and not act on it as soon as possible. Humanity may be divided into two big classes—the potent and the impotent. The potent use their emotions to put force into their deeds. The impotent use their emotions for entertainment. Nothing is so injurious to a man's character as to play with emotions and not put them to work. If you continue to do this, the time will come when they will refuse to work for you. It is not lack of ideals which ails this distraught world. It is lack of people and of organizations to put those ideals into practical, everyday life; not lack of people who dream dreams, but lack of people who wake and make those dreams come true. Better to act, even hastily, than to sit moribund and allow our ideals to be mere wishes, which are the horses that beggars ride.

Just as politicians seek the support of small town and rural sentiment, says The Printed Word, published in Toronto, it is suggested that business, particularly Big Business so-called, should endeavor to win the understanding of the people who live outside the large cities. Business largely has neglected an influential portion of the population where the politicians, including the demagogues, have been busy for generations.

The writer goes on to say that if one were to inquire as to how best to reach the rural people with the messages of explanation which are the prelude to understanding, the answer must be that the country weekly papers are publications which are closely read by their subscribers, their subscribers' families and their subscribers' neighbors. One would not suggest that metropolitan opinion be neglected by omitting the messages from the daily papers, but it is believed that the work is not being even half done if only the metropolitan papers are used.

Economic and other conditions which have led to the demise of the party organ and the reduction in the number of daily papers, likewise have brought about the death of a hundred or two of the rural weeklies of a generation ago. But the 700 odd weeklies which are left have survived because there is room for them, and two or three hundred of these publications are serving their communities superlatively well. An institutional advertising campaign which overlooks these papers is a campaign which is incomplete. Therefore it is likely to be ineffective in part.

NOVA SCOTIAN WINS AWARD

Long renowned as a poet and educator, Rodney G. Dakin, a native of Saint John, and now a resident of Dorchester, Mass., has climaxed his writing career to date with the acceptance of his poem, "Constancy", for publication in the Crown Anthology of Verse.

This inclusion of the poetry is the result of the author's participation in a $250 prize poetry contest sponsored by Crown Publications. This volume will contain the representative work of this country's eminent contemporary poets. The inclusion of the author's work is a distinction of literary recognition.

Since 1923 Mr. Dakin has been engaged in educational work in Massachusetts. In 1936 he made a literary pilgrimage to Nova Scotia, gathering material for lectures and articles. This material has been used in broadcasts and in his writings. During the past year his lectures included one given at the Boston Public Library called "Portraits and Personalities of Canadian Writers" which received favorable comment in the press of both the United States and Canada.

The author's literary efforts have already achieved publication in the following periodicals: Wings, Skyline, The Blues, Scholastic, Poetry, and leading periodicals in Canada and the United States. His poetry is being included in an anthology of verse being prepared for the World Fair which is to be held in New York.

TEETHING

During the years when the baby teeth are coming through the gums and the child is said to be teething, it is a common belief that any one of the numerous ills from which the young child may suffer can be fairly put down to being due to teething. If a rash develops, it is called a teething rash. The young mother is told that the cold in the head, the crying, the restlessness, the upset stomach are all due to teething, and that there is no reason for her thinking anything else. In some cases, this simple explanation has led to a serious result. We try to prevent diarrhoeas in children by proper feedings but if the condition does occur it is known by those who have the responsibility of caring for such cases that prompt treatment, right at the start, is needed, and that delay in securing proper treatment early exposes the child's life to danger. The delay which occurs in seeking treatment is very often explained by the mother on the grounds that she thought she had been told by friends, that attacks of diarrhoea were to be expected as a result of teething, and that the condition would clear up of itself when the tooth was cut. Teething is a normal event, and most babies go through the period in an easy manner and with so little evidence of what is happening that the parent is surprised.

COMBAT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing excruciating pains. Plan to help prevent rheumatism by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Take regularly Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite kidney remedy.

ed on seeing the white point which is baby's first tooth. Some children do suffer (ident pain, and such children are apt to be fretful and to suffer from broken sleep with the result that they are not up to their usual standard of fitness. The point which we wish to make is simply this—it is not safe to assume that teething is responsible for whatever happens to a child during the teething period. Conditions that should be dealt with properly, and are not to be considered as being of no particular importance. A realization of this will save many infants from neglect through misunderstanding of the actual facts. Questions concerning Health addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

with the new BREAD DIET!

Follow this Bread Diet Plan

This Diet Plan gives about 1600 Calories a day—the reducing allowance of the average woman.

BREAKFAST
1 glass fruit juice
Small serving meat, fish or eggs
2 SLICES TOAST, 1 sq. butter
1 cup coffee (clear), 1 tsp. sugar

LUNCH OR SUPPER
Moderate serving meat, fish or eggs
Average serving 1 green vegetable

2 SLICES BREAD, 1 sq. butter
Average serving fruit salad
1 glass milk

DINNER

Generous serving meat, fish or fowl
Average serving 2 vegetables, 1 green

2 SLICES BREAD, 1 sq. butter
Small serving simple dessert
1 cup coffee or tea (clear), 1 tsp. sugar

THE new way to reduce takes off excess weight safely. Pep goes up as weight goes down. Science has definitely proved that bread is a combination of carbohydrates that give you energy and an especially effective form of protein. This combination actually helps to burn up fat. To reduce safely, follow the bread diet. Eat six slices of bread every day.

About This and That

Will Rogers used to say, "All I know is what I read in the newspapers." Yet he knew more than he could find in textbooks or anywhere else, for the modern newspaper is a veritable fountain of information. Still that was not knowledge, for knowledge is what one personally finds to be fact through observation, investigation, or experience—all else is information. If knowledge is distinguished from information, we today have but comparatively few wise men. A great many people who would impress others with their knowledge "know" a great many things that are not so.

Forests Essential

Clearing Land of All Trees Cuts Down Water Supply and Affects Life — Tree Planting Necessary.

Biology is the science which deals with the fundamentals of life. It concerns itself not only with the life of man but also with the life of all things living. It is inextricably bound up with all the things having a bearing on man's existence.

Professor Coventry, Assistant Biologist in the University of Toronto, in a recently delivered address on some of the simpler matters of biology, pointed out the close inter-relationship of vegetables and animal life. This inter-relationship is an essential one. Many animals feed on plants; they in turn form food of other animals or of man. Mice for example, live on green stuff such as clover of various kinds. One thousand mice form a season's food for an owl of a half-pound in weight. They also form some part of the food of hawks and other Carnivora. Mice multiply very rapidly. A pair or mice will, under favorable conditions of food supply, climate, etc., become a million in a single year. Their destructive possibilities are enormous. It is a question if the loss of an odd chicken from the farmer's hen house through the marauding hawk is at all comparable to the losses in field crops from mice.

Another biological topic referred to by the learned professor is the loss to agriculture because of forest destruction and consequent loss of local water supplies. Prof. Coventry told of an investigation under way in one of the townships of the County of York, Ontario, adjacent to the City of Toronto. The township of King, the one in question, was first settled about 25 years ago. At that time he land was covered forest and there were actually 200 miles of running water within its borders. Today there is but 25 miles of running water in King township. The land, denuded of forests has been one of the finest sections of farm land. In consequence of the lowered water supplies is predicted that unless something is done by way of prevention of further loss of water, the township's agricultural land will be useless for that purpose and that it will no longer support its owners. What is true of King township is true for the same reason of hundreds of thousands of acres all over the country. What is the solution? Biology points the way. The solution is reforestation, in order to prevent further loss of water.

BIG LINER COSTS

The running expenses of these huge liners, like the Queen Mary and the Norman die, are very great, but added to them is the large expense of overhaul and cleaning which is usually done each spring.

It costs 50,000 just to put the Queen Mary in dry dock and take her out again without any other work on her. The whole operation of spring cleaning costs more than $500,000. As speed is essential the job of covering her 20-acre hull and upper works with anti-fouling composition and paint requires 1,000 men to complete the work in a day.

Overhauling the turbines, with their 257,000 plates, is a tremendous job in itself. Then there are 250,000 boiler tubes, 2,600 feet of steam piping, 30,000 electric lights, with 350 miles of wiring, in the engineering department alone. The passenger quarters also call for expensive repairs and freshening up.

Such ships must earn a very large amount of money in order to show any profit and profit is scarce, though the Queen Mary is credited with earning her way, though it is too early to class her as a profitable investment, for which the British government furnished the bulk of the money.

NEW WAR DEVICE

The latest in fantastic war machines is a new torpedo rocket, invented by an Englishman who believes it will prove to be an impregnable defence against bombing attacks. The rocket will be adjusted so that it will burst open at a height anywhere from 10,000 to 30,000 feet, releasing parachutes whose dangling lengths of wire will entangle the propellers and wings of enemy bombers. To make destruction of the enemy certain, two-pound bombs will be attached to the wires, designed to explode as soon as the wires are hit. This sounds like something invented by a cartoonist, but the British government is showing a definite interest, and it might prove to be the salvation of London in case of attack from the air. Modern warfare is fantastic, anyway.

WHY HITLER'S FOLLOWERS ARE NAZIS

The full name of Adolf Hitler's political party in Germany is "Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiter-Partei," which means German National Socialist Worker Party, but the more familiar name, both at home and abroad, is "Nazi." This abbreviation was derived from the full name because of the way in which the Germans pronounce the word national. They say "naht-si-onal" and it is the first two syllables of the word resplended to conform with the sound, that made the word Nazi, correctly pronounced naht-si.

NEW COUNTY COURT JUDGE SWORN IN

His Honor, Judge K. L. Crowell, was sworn in at Halifax last week as County Court Judge for Annapolis, Digby and Yarmouth, by Sir Joseph Chisholm, K.C., Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, before the Full Bench. On the Bench with the Chief Justice were Mr. Justice Hall, Mr. Justice Doull and Mr. Justice Archibald and members of the Bar were present in the court room. After the newly appointed judge had heard his appointment read by the prothonotary, R. V. Harris, K.C., and been sworn and taken the oath of allegiance, he was congratulated by the Chief Justice.

Extra Million Takes Wolf Away From Door

"Poor Little Rich Girl" Now Worth $3,000,000. Won't Have to "Scrimp"

The wolf has been shooed away from the door of Lucy Cotton Thomas, the "poor little rich girl" of New York City who found it so difficult to keep mind and body together on a mere $36,000 a year. Lucy now has another $1,000,000 of her inheritance.

The new bequest makes 13-year-old Lucy worth a total of $3,000,000, and it's a good thing; Lucy simply couldn't get along when she had only $2,000,000 in the bank, or so her mother told a surrogate judge in 1933.

At that time Lucy was only seven, and her monthly expense account included $800 for apartment rent, $600 for food, $300 for clothing, $75 for electricity and telephone, $50 for laundry and cleaning, $100 for travelling expenses, and $700 for apartment repairs. These, with many other incidentals, amounted to $45,600 a year, a very minimum in the eyes of Mrs. Lucy Cotton Thomas Arment Hann Magrow, the girl's mother.

But the judge, an unsympathetic soul, decided that Lucy could not spend more than $36,666 a year from her trust fund of $2,000,000.

Now that Lucy has received a birthday present of an extra million, things will not be so drab in the Thomas household. Her mother, married three times and divorced twice, says the new million will be used only for the necessities of life, as she wants to raise Lucy "unspoiled by wealth."

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION

It is well that everyone should know the methods used in artificial respiration. It is said that life should not be despaired of in persons apparently drowned or electrocuted for two hours at least, and artificial respiration should be carried on continually for that space of time even though there is no apparent life.

issued instructions as to the best methods of carrying out this respiration, urging that it be used faithfully for hours in case of such accidents. The instructions are:

"Lay the patient face down, one arm extended directly forward. Bend the other arm at elbow and rest patient's cheek on back of hand to keep the nose and mouth off the ground, mouth toward finger tips.

"Kneel, facing forward, straddling victim's right or left leg, or both legs, at the thigh.

"At count one place hands on each side of back just about the belt line, with your wrists four inches apart, thumb and fingers together; the little fingers over and following the line of the lower ribs; the tips of fingers just out of sight.

"On count two, with arms straight (no bend at the elbow) swing weight of body forward until shoulders are directly over hands.

"On count three snap the hands sideways and back off the victim; at same time, to a resting position on heels, swing your relaxed body back.

"Count four and five. This gives one complete respiration. Then replace hands on back as before and repeat movement.

"To assist in timing each complete respiration (about twelve per minute), you may repeat during the period of pressure: "Out goes the bad air." Snap off your hands, and repeat during period of release: "In comes the good."

Attending National Congress

Miss Kathleen (Kaye) Fitzgerald, bookkeeper for the Weymouth Shipping Co., was one of the ten young people chosen by the Maritime Young People's Conference of the United Church of Canada to represent them at the National Congress of the Young People's Union, being held at the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, Ontario, July 4th to 10th, and was attended by several hundred young people from all parts of Canada. This was the most important meeting of the young people's leaders of the United church since church union in 1925, and launched some forward steps in young people's work for years to come. The theme speaker was Rev. Dr. E. Cressley Hunter, of Hamilton, who went direct to Whitby from Columbus, Ohio, where he was attending and addressing the 20th International Convention on Christian Education.

Miss Fitzgerald is very prominent in Young People's work; for the past two years she has been president of both the Weymouth Young People's Union and the Annapolis West Presbyterian Young People's Union. Previous to that she was on the Publication Committee of the Maritime Conference Union and has held various offices in the local and presbytery unions.

Miss Fitzgerald left Thursday last for Saint John where she joined the other nine delegates and motored to Whitby. On their return they will attend the Maritime Young People's Conference being held at Mt. Allison Academy, in Sackville. Other delegates to the National Conference were: Rev. J. Austin Jardine, Matapedia, P. Q.; Rev. A. MacKenzie, of P. E. I.; Alden Leard, Bedeque, P. E. I.; the Misses Mabel Johnstone, Truro; Kay Creelman, Halifax; Helen Bannerman and Nan McKury, Sydney; Doris Hood, Yarmouth, and Margaret Pillman, Travellers' Rest, P.E.I.

FAIR ENOUGH

It is seldom that a pedestrian is held to blame when a motor accident occurs, but in London a motorist has now collected $500 in damages from a pedestrian. The motorist held that the pedestrian ran out into the road directly in front of his car. To avoid striking the pedestrian, the motorist pulled sharply to one side of the road. His car hit a bank. The motorist suffered injuries so he sued the pedestrian and claimed the latter's negligence caused the accident. The award of $500 damages to the motorist seems fair enough.

John B. Sabean, of Weymouth North, was taken to the Digby Hospital on Wednesday of last week, for treatment.

Body of Joseph Comeau found

The badly decomposed body of Joseph Comeau, young St. Alphonse de Clare fisherman, who lost his life by drowning, when he was believed to have fallen from his boat in the St. Mary's Bay, six weeks ago, was found on Friday last by Enos Saulnier, amongst a pile of sea wrack at the mouth of a small creek near Bear Cove, some forty miles from here. The head was missing.

Coroner Arnaud Comeau, of Little Brook, decided an inquest unnecessary. Funeral services took place Friday afternoon at St. Alphonse, Rev. Father M. J. LeBlanc, of St. Alphonse Church, officiating.

Comeau, who was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Comeau, left during the afternoon of May 20, to go fishing in a small dory. The fact that his boat, and another were found on the shore near Meteghan, gave rise to the suspicion that he attempted to change boats out in the bay, and fell to his death.

For several days people of Meteghan and vicinity, with the aid of the R. C. M. P. patrol boat, searched the waters and shores for the body of the missing man, which was not discovered until last week, when Enos Saulnier happened across it by chance.

BAND NOTES

The audience at last night's band concert were surprised and highly pleased with the new method of announcing titles and describing the selections played.

In place of the usual unsatisfactory megaphone a complete "Public Address System" was employed, with two "loud-speakers" on opposite sides of the pavilion, and everyone could distinctly hear all the comments of Digby's favorite announcer—Harry Beaman.

The apparatus was kindly loaned for the experiment by Glenn Ball.

Any musical program is more enjoyable when the listener knows what is going on, and usually an explanation helps the audience to understand and enjoy a performance. If the Music Council will undertake the small cost of using the loud-speakers as a feature of every concert, it will add greatly to their enjoyment.

The Civic Band is advertised to take part in the Cherry Carnival at Bear River, on the 19th inst., heading the morning parade, and playing an open-air concert in the afternoon.

The Band is greatly indebted to T. S. Matheson of Keen's Funeral Service, for the use, indefinitely, of a dozen good chairs for the band room, replacing some of those donated to the first Beginner's Band that are now ready for an old age pension, having served their purpose well.

Plans are definitely under way to revive the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club, which was discontinued in 1912. The interest in boats, both sailing and power, has increased here markedly during the last few years and it is believed that if established on simple lines, such an organization will be highly successful.

Percy Holdsworth was elected a committee of one to suggest a constitution at the next meeting, and Fritz Drake, Harold Nichols and Percy Weir were elected a nominating committee to present a slate of officers to the next meeting. This meeting is to be held in the Town Hall next Wednesday, at 8 o'clock. Everyone interested in the project—whether boat owners or not—is urged to attend. It is especially hoped that yacht owners in Smith's Cove and towns outside of Digby, will be represented at the meeting.

The first yacht club in the town was started in 1899, and was called the Digby Yacht Club. It continued in 1904, it was followed in 1912 by the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club, which flourished until 1919, when it became apparently a victim of the feverish interest in automobiles.

Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Rockingham and family left on Tuesday for Salsbury, N. B., for a brief visit with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Rockingham will return late this week, while Douglas and they will remain several weeks with their sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Churchill, of Hamilton, Ont., were among those registered at the Pines Hotel with the Maritime Wholesale Hardware Dealers' Association, which met in annual convention this week. Mr. Churchill, who built and operated the original Pines Hotel, and his visit to Digby was his first in 27 years. While here he took the opportunity of visiting friends and relatives at Westport.

Plans are definitely under way to revive the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club, which was discontinued in 1912. The interest in boats, both sailing and power, has increased here markedly during the last few years and it is believed that if established on simple lines, such an organization will be highly successful.

A preliminary meeting was held on Wednesday of last week, in Percy Weir's boathouse. Those attending were T. E. G. Lynch, Charles Power, Percy Weir, Guy Dunn, Channing Lefebvre, Arthur Weir, William Gannon, Percy Holdsworth, Harold Nichols, Teddy Walker, Bryson Denton and "Billy" Christie. It was decided that the old name of the club be kept and that the club burgee remain the same. Percy Holdsworth was elected a committee of one to suggest a constitution at the next meeting, and Fritz Drake, Harold Nichols and Percy Weir were elected a nominating committee to present a slate of officers to the next meeting. This meeting is to be held in the Town Hall next Wednesday, at 8 o'clock. Everyone interested in the project—whether boat owners or not—is urged to attend. It is especially hoped that yacht owners in Smith's Cove and towns outside of Digby, will be represented at the meeting.

The first yacht club in the town was started in 1899, and was called the Digby Yacht Club. It continued in 1904, it was followed in 1912 by the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club, which flourished until 1919, when it became apparently a victim of the feverish interest in automobiles.

Mr. J. R. Vroom is occupying her home here for the summer months.

MARRIAGES

Armstrong - MacDonald

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Merigomish, Thursday afternoon, June 30, when Molly Erola, only daughter of Rev. and Mrs. F. G. MacDonald, was united in marriage to Eric Edward Armstrong, only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Armstrong, of Digby.

The ceremony took place under an arch of yellow roses, mock orange blossoms and ferns. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white chiffon, made on Grecian lines, and a matching tailored jacket, with veil and orange blossoms arranged in coronet fashion. The veil was the one worn by her mother.

She carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses and maiden hair fern. She was attended by Miss Jean D. Saunders, Seelarton, and the groom was supported by George Stewart, of New Glasgow. The ushers were Cameron Allard, of New Glasgow, and Robert Benvie, of Seelarton, all being Acadia classmates of both bride and groom. Wedding marches were played by Miss Josephine Balcome, B. A. B. Mus., of Trenton, and during the signing of the register Miss Kathryn McIntosh, of Sunny Brae, sang, "Requiem." F. G. MacDonald was the officiating clergyman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, for relatives and close friends. Mrs. W. Schwartz, of Halifax, great aunt of the bride, and Mrs. John Taylor, of New Glasgow, presided at the prettily arranged tea-table. Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Boston, New York and other American cities. The bride is an Arts graduate of Acadia University, and was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, being the guest of honor at several showers. The groom is also a graduate of Acadia. They will reside in Digby.

Travel Made Him Constipated

Salesman Says Kruschen Keeps Him "On His Toes"

"I am a commercial traveler" writes a correspondent, "and due to endless travelling by train and automobile I find that I become constipated if I do not keep myself internally clean. Kruschen Salts is the only thing that will do this effectively and not interfere with my work. I take a large dose of Kruschen every Saturday night and on Sunday, when I have no work to do, the Salts act on me. On weekdays I take a small dose on rising. It is necessary that I be 'on my toes' all through the day, and this is the only way that it possibly can be done."—V.L.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

Miss Greta Dunn returned from Boston on Saturday. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. McMillan and son Carl, and Mr. DeJeronimo, who are guests at the home of Mrs. G. Dunn.

OBITUARY

The bride was gowned in white satin and lace with rows of pearls on lace, bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of roses and maiden hair fern. The first bridesmaid, Vida Kohler, sister of the bride, was gowned in blue taffeta, with white accessories, and a headdress of white fibre roses; she carried a bouquet of snowballs and fern. The second bridesmaid, Beatrice Kohler, also a sister, was attired in blue crepe with white accessories and carried a bouquet of roses and maiden hair fern. Iva Kohler, niece of the bride, was train bearer, and wore a dress of white organdie with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of peonies. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Rev. S. Jeffreys, Anglican rector in Lockport, officiated. The bride has been a popular teacher for the past eight years, teaching in Shelburne, Annapolis and Digby counties. After the wedding a reception was held for the immediate relatives and the outside guests who were Mrs. Walter Watts and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Goodieck, of Lower Sandy Point.

Streets, and the placing of several lights on Prince William Street, between King and the town line. Shortly after that letter appeared a petition was presented to the town council, signed by a number of residents of that area asking for the same. Despite all this the council has seen fit to take no action—there are still no street lights anywhere on Prince William Street between King and the town line! This should not be so! As the writer of the letter to which I referred most ably pointed out there is every reason why these lights should be placed along Prince William Street. Why has this not been done? Has our town council no thought for the safety and convenience of the residents of the town? Prince William Street is a much used street not only by townspeople, but it is the main entrance to Digby from every village along Digby Neck. Surely a street such as that rates a street light or two. The Board of Trade have erected an illuminated sign pointing to Digby on the Bay Road entrance to the town, also one at Aymer's Corner, but the town council won't even put a street light on the Neck Road entrance, even in town limits. Perhaps they feel that people coming into Digby from that direction are not important enough to waste electric power on.

I have heard that the council feel that it is too expensive to put a street light on the corner of Victoria and Prince William Streets. The same council can grant the Band large sums of money for musical concerts; surely they can also grant the small sum necessary for adequate street lighting so that the residents of the outlying sections of the town can see to get home from the said Band concerts.

One of the main duties of the Town Council is to see that the welfare, comfort and convenience of the people of the town, insofar as town facilities go, are properly provided for. If our streets are inadequately lighted, the citizens of the town are inconvenienced and discomforted and the Town Council fails in its duty. Therefore it is the duty of the Council to see that all our streets are adequately lighted and especially those, like Prince William, which are main thoroughfares of entrance to the town. The cost of properly lighting our streets would not be tremendous and I am sure the taxpayers would rather see their money being used for some good purpose such as that, for properly lighted streets mean convenience, comfort and protection, than used on some of the lesser needed things which the council provides.

Interested Citizen.

The telephone has always more than paid for itself on my place, and during a recent fire help was called by telephone which could not have been done in sufficient time by any other means... Yes—a telephone on the farm is necessary for every-day calls and comfort and security in times of emergency."

A telephone more than pays for itself on the farm for business alone... and in an emergency, such as fire, thieves, accident or sickness, one call may be worth more than service costs for a lifetime.

A FISH STORY WITH A MORAL

Often, says the Ottawa Journal, we hear it said that while our day has solved the problem of production it has failed dismally to solve the problem of distribution. The saving, sometimes, is purely rhetorical, but too often it can be illustrated by grim reality. The grim reality of one case is brought to light by the Halifax Herald:

"Hundreds of thousands of mackerel have been landed on the coasts of Nova Scotia in recent weeks. They have come in such large numbers that they have sunk the nets. 'On the shores the buyers were offering sometimes a cent, seldom more than two cents a fish—or from a half-cent to a cent a pound. 'While they were wholesaling at that price consumers in Halifax were paying as much as 15 cents. 'In Toronto, according to reports received in Halifax, the consumer is paying 35 cts. for a single mackerel—a spread of from 33 to 34 cents on a single fish."

Actually, to put the thing more strikingly, it is a spread of over 3,000 per cent. Nor is that all. According to the Herald the price of fresh haddock has taken a "drop" recently to $1.30 per hundred pounds—1.2 cents a pound. Yet in Halifax fresh haddock was retailing at 14 cents per pound, or 14 per hundred pounds. The fishermen, providing their own boats, their own fishing gear, clothing themselves, feeding themselves, and buying their own bait, sold their fish for slightly over one cent per pound.

What is the difficulty here. It is not the so-called 'spread'. Fresh fish is a perishable commodity. To ship it to Central Canada, involving packing in ice, transportation charges, transshipment, and finally, the "overhead" of the retail fish dealer, necessarily add enormously to the original cost.

But that isn't the point. The real point is why a decent price, to the primary producer of the fish, should not be a part of its ultimate cost. In other words, if the consumer who buys the fish is willing to pay a reasonable price for the packing, transportation and selling cost of the fish, why shouldn't he be willing to pay a reasonable price to the men who produce it? The ice which goes into the packing of the fish; the railway which carries the fish; the light, labor, rental and selling costs which are added to the price—all these call for a fair profit. Why not a decent, fair profit for the primary producer? In other words, why not give the fisherman an extra few cents—which would make all the difference to him—and add those few cents to the cost to the consumer? It is not a question of destroying the middle man; it is a question of being as fair to the original producer as to the middle man.

We in this country speak proudly of our "wonderful resources". Of what value to us are those resources if the men who are their primary producers are not paid decently—not permitted to live decently? We speak of the "vast heritage of our fisheries". Vast heritage! Are they a "vast heritage" for fishermen trying to eke out a livelihood and rear their children outside of destitution with fish selling at one cent a pound or less?

There is no sense, no decency, no permanent prosperity in such a lop-sided economy. What there is, and all too much of it, is discontent—a fostering of unrest; a growing challenge to our whole economic system, and to the value of democracy. Democracy can't live except on a basis of justice.

POTATO BEETLE POISON SPRAY

Potato beetles lay their eggs on the under-sides of the potato plant in yellow masses and when a number of these have hatched the first application of poison spray should be made. The best and cheapest poison to use is calcium arsenate, at the rate of one and a half to two pounds in 40 gallons of Bordeaux mixture (copper sulphate 6 lbs., lime 4 lbs., water 40 gallons). Should arsenate of lead or Paris green be preferred as a poison, two to three pounds of the arsenate and one-half to one pound of Paris green may be substituted for each 40-gallon barrel of spray.

Growers who prefer to apply the poison in powder form should use a dust composed of one part of arsenate of lead to six parts of hydrated lime. In dusting, best results will be secured if the application is made in the early morning or late evening when the vines are wet with dew and rain is made in early morning when the air is calm.

In spraying potatoes, the poison should always be mixed with Bordeaux, as this material is not only a valuable fungicide but repels the attack of destructive insects like flea beetles and leafhoppers. Two or three applications in a season should give sufficient protection from all insects when applied thoroughly and at a time when the new damage first becomes evident in each case. In spraying, cover both the upper and lower surfaces of the leaves and use an abundance of material. When the plants are small, 50 to 75 gallons per acre, and when fully grown 100 to 120 gallons are not too much at each application.

Ven. Archdeacon Vroom and Miss Mary Vroom have arrived to spend the summer at Weymouth North.

ditions of government. There isn't one Canadian in a hundred who has the slightest sympathy for either of these new political creeds. Certain fanatics in this country are loud in their denunciation of democracy, of individual enterprise, of the biblical injunction that "man shall eat bread by the sweat of his brow." They seem to think it possible to re-create the Garden of Eden, and permit men to loaf their way thro' life. While such radical leaders may be minor nuisances, they do not seem to be dangerous enough to warrant the attention being paid to them in many quarters. We have problems more serious than the mouthings and the threats of our so-called "lunatic fringe." Let's not divert too much of our attention from the pressing issues of democracy by chasing petty nuisances up blind alleys. That's wasting time.

There are 40,000 radio dealers doing business in Germany, and that business is under the thumb of General Goebbels, master propagandist. All the dealers are registered. They can sell only cheap, low-powered sets because such sets are capable of receiving only German broadcasts. So the radio dealers and their customers are regimented to the limit. They hear only Nazi propaganda. The people of Germany are compelled to listen to what the dictator thinks they ought to listen to, and if you have no radio, that makes no difference. There are communal sets in the streets, and when Herr Hitler takes the air, it is advisable to be within hearing and digest what comes over the ether. Otherwise it will be just too bad.

There was a centenary celebration the other day marking an event of importance in Canada. It was the tribute to William Lyon MacKenzie and his insistence on freedom in 1837. The leader in the ceremonies was his grandson, William MacKenzie King, prime minister of Canada. Perhaps, William MacKenzie of one hundred years ago would not have made so good a prime minister as his grandson, but the Rebellion led to "The Durham Report," which in turn gave us responsible government. One hundred years from now our descendants will be celebrating someone who contributed to the Canada of the first half of the 20th century. What name will it be? It looks now as if one man's guess is as good as another's. We need a leader to take us from our economic bondage quite as much as the men of 1837 needed leadership to throw off political bondage. MacKenzie of 1837 was a rebel. We have had many rebels in our Anglo-Saxon history who have contributed to our national life. The trouble is that contemporaries seldom can tell which are to remain rebels, and which are to be patriots with the passage of years. It just goes to prove that Democracy needs an intelligent public opinion more than any other need. Then we shall recognize our leaders in time.

Hardwoods Used

New Process Produces Rayon, Fine Paper, etc., from Trees Formerly Considered of Little Value.

(Christian Science Monitor)

A new chapter in the use of New England forest products is being written through research which has found methods for utilizing hardwoods in the manufacture of wood pulp. Timberland values have been increased by millions of dollars with benefits that are already being realized by small and large landowners.

Col. George A. Richter, chemical director of the Brown Company, a 75,000,000 New Hampshire paper and pulp concern, disclosed recently that through newly developed processes, formerly commercially useless maples, birches and beech woods are today being made into stockings, fountain pens, radio cabinets and underwear—to mention only four leading products.

Two Major Fields

"Only a short time ago," said Col. Richter, "we in the wood pulp business looked upon hardwood as a nuisance and a hindrance. Now, hardwood pulp, one of our greatest assets, is used in two major fields—for conversion into high-grade paper and as a base stock in the rayon and chemical fields."

For a concern such as the Brown Company, with timber holdings larger than the State of Connecticut, abundance in hardwood, the importance of such discoveries can be readily understood.

One of the earliest of recent developments was the use of wood pulp for electric cable conduits and for artificial leather for boots, shoes, brief cases, etc. This was followed by the development of high-content alpha cellulose pulps which put wood pulp into the field formerly occupied by cotton fabrics. This is now used as a substitute for rags in paper making, for cotton liners in the manufacture of rayon, in nitrate plants producing celluloid and allied products with a hundred or more uses.

Farmers Aided

"Today," continued the colonel, "axes are ringing all over Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire, judiciously cutting hardwood timber that once left standing as useless when the softwood was cut. That wood is being turned into pulp by patented Brown processes to be used in the making of rayons, fine papers, plastics, lacquers, etc., thereby opening a wide field for many New England industries and providing farmers and small woodlot owners with a market for their hardwood." Such is one gift of chemistry to northeastern farmers.

At present the Brown Company is producing about 200 tons of this pulp daily and its orders are running more than 50 per cent in excess of capacity, even with mills operating on a three-shift basis. Japan, the world's largest producer of silk and one of the leading buyers of American wood pulp, is numbered among the company's largest customers. Substantial tonnage is likewise being shipped to Europe.

And now, to convince any citizen who might feel he can do without applied chemistry, of his mistake, let us follow the ordinary man through part of his daily routine.

He wakes up to the tune of an alarm clock whose metal parts have been pickled with sulphuric acid and decorated with lacquer. He dons a bathrobe carbonized with sulphuric acid, and leather slippers finished with lacquer. His morning shave is soap in which are many chemicals and water treated with sodium aluminate.

Clothing and Food

He dresses in a suit dyed with the aid of Glauber's salt, selects a blue tie with white polka dots printed with synthetic lacquers, and while driving to town in his car which starts promptly thanks to the battery acid, he pays no attention to the tires which contain sulphur, nor the oil which has been refined with sulphuric acid, nor the safety glass which has been laminated with a chemical plastic of the alcohol radiator anti-freeze, nor any of the 200 odd other chemical parts of his car—unless trouble develops.

At work, perhaps he notices his secretary's lips are redder (due to phthalic anhydride), her dress is finely printed (due to perchloride of iron, sodium sulfate and nitric acid), a faint odor of roses fills the air (thanks to cammarin vanillin in her perfumery), and perhaps he furnishes her with a comfortable chair upholstered in imitation leather (bisulfite of soda, basic chrome sulfate and disodium phosphate).

Not to mention the plastics that surround him, his ink, his pen, his telephone set, his paper or the rubber bands and the library paste of methyl salicylate, but to go home and sit down with him at supper—his carving knife handle is a carboxylic acid fideoloid, sulphuric acid and chlorine make the tablecloth whiter. Santamine and hypochlorite of soda produced sanitary dairy products, monocalcium phosphate and sodium pyrophosphate leavened the biscuits.

Saccharine and phosphoric acid are in the carbonated beverage, chlorine, sulfate of alumina, ammonia and iron sulfate purified the water, sodium benzoate kept the relish from spoiling quickly, muriatic acid went into the gelatine dessert, and the candy was flavored perhaps with methyl salicylate.

Finally he climbed between snowy sheets bleached with sodium hyperchloride and pulled up warm blankets carbonized with sulphuric acid and dyed with the aid of acetic acid.

In eighteen minutes the average American workman can earn enough to buy a dozen eggs, while it requires thirty minutes for an English

All passengers were removed from the 14,000-ton vessel, whose forward holds were reported filled with water as a result of the mishap. ## YACHT CLUB ORGANIZED

The Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club got away to a good start Wednesday evening, at the town hall. The council chamber was well filled and considerable enthusiasm was manifested. At the opening T. E. G. Lynch was in the chair, and William Gannon was secretary. After the reading of the minutes of the preliminary meeting held in Percy Weir's boat house two weeks ago, the organization was completed by the adoption of the report of the nominating committee, naming the following officers:

Commodore—Channing Lefebvre
Vice-Commodore—T. E. G. Lynch
Rear-Commodore—Rod. Hayden
Secretary—William Gannon
Treasurer—F. K. Hayden
Assistant Treasurer—Frank Larche
Membership Committee—P. W. Holdsworth, Guy Dunn and "Ted" Walker
Sailing Committee—Channing Lefebvre, Chas. E. Power, Arthur Weir and "Billy" Christie

It was decided to join with the Band in a day of sport on August 1st, at which time there will be boat races and water sports along with land events including a parade. There will also be an afternoon picnic on Bear Island on August 21st and races again on Labor Day. Unless something unforeseen occurs this will probably be the extent of the club's activities this season, but preparations will be made to have a very active club next year.

The burgee will be the same as the old club used years ago. It is a pointed flag with a white St. George's Cross; the upper half of the flag blue and the lower half red; the perpendicular bar of the cross one third distant from the staff to the point of the flag.

Eric Armstrong and bride arrived home last night.

D. B. Kenney, of Westport; Blanchard Morrell and Ray Finigan, of Freeport, were in town this week.

Mrs. Delaney Gesner and children, of Wolfville, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hersey.

Gerald Muise, who has been attending school in Toronto, is expected home today for the summer.

Mrs. Henry Usher of Bermuda, is spending the summer at the Acacia Cottage.

Mrs. Walter Sharp and Miss Mabel Sharp, of Toronto, are spending a month in town. They are guests at Acacia Cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. King and family, of Providence, R. I., are guests at the Acacia Cottage for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Marshall of Brighton, Mass., took a motor trip through the province of Quebec early this month. They expect to be at their summer home in Marshalltown, a little later.

On Wednesday afternoon a Garden Party was held at Mrs. Morrell's, in her sunnyside garden, where the tables were set, the roses and other flowers were beautiful beyond description and much admired by those present. The receipts were about $27.50 to be added to the funds of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Miss Elizabeth Smellie, C. B. E., R. R. C., Chief Superintendent of the V. O. N. in Canada, attended the Nurses Convention held in Halifax last week. Three outstanding figures in the nursing field Miss Smellie, Miss Jean E. Brown and Miss Jean E. Wilson, received the Mary Agnes Trivelly Awards, the highest honor the Nursing Association can bestow.

"BARBARA HAS A LITTLE LAMB"

It is Barbara and not Mary, who has the little lamb, and a nice little lamb at that. Miss Barbara Ryder, of Philadelphia, one of the younger summer visitors to come to Bay View, a resort near here, persuaded her daddy to purchase a little white lamb she saw in one of the pastures on Digby Neck—and Barbara and her lamb, led on a leash and wearing a nice pink ribbon around its neck are quite frequent visitors to Digby.

TO OPEN NEW MARKET

An advertisement appears in this week's Courier over the signature of D. J. Fader, announcing the opening of a meat and vegetable market in the Muise Block, next to Courier Office. Mr. Fader comes to Digby from Middleton.

A Big Day of Water Sports in Digby, August 1st.

Digby's water front is a grand place for water sports, and many exciting events have been staged there in the past, but it has been quiet for several summers. However, that enterprising organization, the Digby Civic Band, has elaborate plans for a Big Day on August 1st, featuring a parade of decorated floats and cars, and an afternoon full of contests on the water, such as yacht races, canoe races, Indian contests, canoe tilting, tub races and a lot of novelty sports. Big crowds have always attended such events in Digby, and this year's carnival will probably be no exception. Details of the "big show" are given in several "ads." in this issue.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

AGAINST THE LIGHT

This scene was snapped against the light, so shadows come toward the camera. Ordinary exposure gives the silhouette effect. A lens shade must be used—if direct sun rays strike the glass, they spoil the picture.

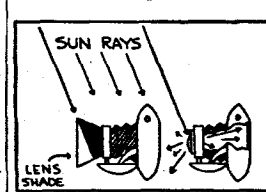

HAVE you ever tried taking pictures "against the light"—that is, with sun or photo lights beyond the subject so that the shadows point toward you instead of away from you?

This lighting is a source of many interesting pictures. Striking silhouettes of trees and persons can be obtained. Sunlight, coming from above and slightly behind the subject in an informal portrait, gives appealing highlights on hair and shoulders. Numerous "different" effects are possible.

When you take such pictures, your lens must be shaded so direct rays of sunlight or artificial light do not strike it. An inexpensive lens hood or sun shade (see diagram) is very useful, and slips on easily. Indeed, it is an advantage to use such a shade for many pictures. It cuts out stray sidelights and reflections, gives brighter, "snappier" pictures. Of course, when the sun is low in the sky—almost on a line with your lens, the hood may not help, but frequently you can find a position where the sun will be hidden behind a tree trunk. Then the shadow of the tree will serve to shade your lens.

In "against the light" pictures, where the light is intense, give the ordinary exposure if you want a silhouette effect. To get details in the shadow side, use an exposure two or three times as long.

For informal portrait studies, with the sun back of your subject, arrange a sheet of white cardboard or cloth so that it reflects light on the subject's face. And when the sky is the background of your picture, use a sky filter on the lens. This darkens the sky a bit and makes sunlit subjects stand out. It slips on the lens just as the sun shade does.

SAVE 3 WAYS with a GENERAL ELECTRIC Triple-Thrift REFRIGERATOR

MANY owners say a new G-E Refrigerator saves enough money month by month to pay its own cost. They calculate it saves up to 20% on perishable food bills. Figure out what that would mean to you. By keeping food fresh a G-E Refrigerator enables you to buy in quantities at week-end bargain prices. It prevents waste by preserving "left-overs". It uses so little current and the upkeep cost is almost nothing. Don't think you're being economical by doing without a G-E Refrigerator. It's much more thrifty to have one.

GIRL GUIDES' CAMP

On July 1st, at 10.30 a. m., a party of Girl Guides, plus bedding and supplies, had assembled outside the Bear River Post Office. They were all packed into a large truck, and off they set for a week end camping. Twenty-eight girls, including a little kitten, were finally unloaded at Dr. DeWitt's camp in Deep Brook. Several delightful days followed, during which the girls swam, rowed and canoed, besides doing the work entailed by every camp routine. One day was very wet, but two of the Guides, who were working for their Entertainer's badge, entertained the rest of the campers for the afternoon. These two enterprising Guides were Joyce Benson and Catherine Jefferson. Their programme included a fancy dress parade, and some of the costumes were very clever and original.

On Monday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, the truck once more appeared and girls and bedding—but not supplies—set off for home. If cheers and singing were any indication of happiness, the girls all enjoyed this first camping expedition of the First Bear River Girl Guide Company.

Wife Who Was Cross and Touchy

Put Herself Right with Kruschen

"I am 39 years of age," a woman writes, "yet some days I have been feeling and looking 100 years old. I would get fits of exhaustion for no good reason at all. I was not fit to live with because I would be so cross and touchy, I did not seem to have any ambition to do my housework, and I was tired all the time."

"Two years ago I had sciatica all down my left side from the hip. My doctor says all this is caused through my nerves. I took Kruschen and found it helped me very much. Since I started taking it I am a different person. My work seems a lot easier and I have a lot more energy."—(Mrs.) G. M.

The "little daily dose" of Kruschen puts an end to tiredness and depression, because it restores the eliminating organs to proper activity by providing them with the daily reminder and daily aid that they require. Cleansed and invigorated blood is sent circulating all over the system, carrying new vitality to every nerve and new vigour to every limb.

ADVENTURES OF A SKIPPER IN WAR AND IN PEACE

(By C. William Duncan)

Captain George Howard Johns sits in his home at Twenty-second and Poplar Streets, Philadelphia, these days looking backward on a deep-water career that included shipwrecks, submarine encounters and thrilling storms at sea.

He was born in Nova Scotia, cradle of many a square-rigger man, seventy-two years ago, went to sea as a boy of sixteen and had a master's license before he was thirty. He strode the decks of sailing vessels until the time of the Spanish-American War and then turned to steam.

Records of ships' movements will show that a tanker called the Gold Shell, sailed from these shores a day or two before the United States officially entered the World War, and reached France safely, loaded to the gunwales with valuable gasoline. Its skipper was George H. Johns. Captain Johns had a difficult time getting a crew for that voyage, as there were exciting tales about the war being ready to engulf the United States. He was delayed a few days finding men to supplant those who signed on and then deserted, but he finally got under way and reached France safely.

A trip he made on the West-We-Go, also a tanker, between New Orleans and Liverpool, was not quite so uneventful. This was before the United States entered the war. Again carrying hundreds of thousands of gallons of gasoline, Captain Johns was not far out of Liverpool when a member of the crew notified him, at an hour when he was below, that a German submarine had pulled alongside.

"Abandon your ship. I'm going to sink you," bellowed the German skipper through a megaphone, in perfect English.

Captain Johns said never in his life did he see a crew work as rapidly as his. The boats were lowered in no time and the men started rowing away.

"Avast. Go aboard again. I shall not sink you; but bring me six barrels of good lubricating oil," commanded the German skipper.

The men scurried back aboard and the barrels were produced and delivered like magic.

"The thing I'll always remember above all else was the efficiency of my crew when they thought they might lose their lives. They never worked as well before or after," recalled the old salt with a chuckle, as we sat in his living room, which is decorated with pictures of the many ships on which he served.

Why did the submarine commander change his mind?

Captain Johns said the West-We-Go was, of course, flying the American flag and had American flags painted on her sides. He believes the sub commander merely wanted to frighten the tanker crew. He succeeded.

The final command was, "I'll give you ten minutes to get out of here."

The submarine then submerged. Captain Johns got the tanker under full speed ahead, and the incident was ended.

Those who believe in mental telepathy will be interested in the following experience the captain had after we had entered the World War and he was on one of his many trips across the Atlantic, carrying a cargo of gasoline.

"We were bound for Bordeaux on this trip and I had charted my course so we were headed for a certain buoy in the Bay of Biscay. To reach the important port of Bordeaux a ship must go up the wide and fast-flowing Gironde River," he recalled.

"The course I had charted was the shortest one and the perfectly natural one to follow. But as I ate a light lunch below, I was worried. I went above, took a look at the compass and returned to the mess table. Still I felt there was something wrong. I went above again and told the quartermaster to port his helm, meaning that we would turn to the southward. I had only a hunch or mental telepathy to go by, but I was sure I was doing the right thing. The men muttered to themselves and thought the old man was going out of his head. My first officer, a sailor of long experience, like myself, said nothing, but later told me he was wondering why I was taking the ship away out of its course.

We were due at this particular buoy at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon, provided we followed the regular course. But by turning southward we reached there several hours later."

What of it?

"Just this. Later we learned that at exactly 3.30 a German submarine came to the surface at the buoy and sank a British freighter. Captain Johns wouldn't have missed a chance to blow up an American tanker bound for Liverpool with a load of gasoline. Twenty-seven lives were lost when the freighter went down. I feel my hunch saved the lives of our crew of twenty-two, including my own. When the men learned the facts they ceased grumbling, and were convinced the old man had a crystal ball aboard."

Back in the nineties Captain Johns was shipwrecked in the Pacific Ocean. His vessel caught fire, the men took to the boats and drifted for two weeks. Some went out of their minds and some survivors reached an island where, after many experiences, they were picked up. The captain didn't want to give too many details about that harrowing experience. He is contemplating writing a book.

Which did he prefer, the sailing vessels or the steamboats?

The sailing vessels—after he became a master? He admits the sailors before the mast had a tough life of it, with long working hours, poor pay and poor food. Salt beef and salt pork, hardtack and coffee without cream or sugar was the principal diet. But he liked being skipper of a square-rigger because then a master of a vessel was really master and his word was law.

Captain Johns gave up the sea ten years ago. He figured that fifty years at it was long enough.

(Captain Johns is a brother of Mrs. E. M. Hoyt, of Weymouth.)

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

HOW ARE YOU?

If the subject of conversation is an indication of interest in the subject then, without doubt, health comes first in the public interest, since the question most frequently asked is: "How Are You?"

What is your answer today and what is it going to be in the future? Are you making things pleasant for yourself and for those with whom you live and work, because you are happy with the joy of good health, or are you one of those depressing persons who demands sympathy because he looks so miserable?

It is surprising how much of ill-health is due to neglect of those essentials which can easily be secured by most people and which do not cost money. The proper kind of food costs no more than the wrong kind. Fresh air and sunshine are to be had for the asking. Sleep is not for sale; it means a proper bed-time. Exercise, rest and cleanliness can usually be secured by making a reasonable effort.

These are the factors upon which personal health so largely depends. They are under our own control; nobody can help us very much in securing them. If we want to enjoy health, we cannot neglect them.

Too many late dances which take up the time for sleep; too much living in artificial light and not enough sunlight; too many sweets between meals spoiling the appetite for proper food; indoor parties instead of outdoor exercise are some of the common reasons for ill health.

In addition to neglecting themselves, many persons are, in other ways, particularly careless as regards the health of others. They cough and sneeze without covering the nose and mouth; they talk right into your face; they kiss the baby on the mouth. In fact, they do about everything they can to spread to everyone their chance to meet any disease germs which may be present in their own nose and throat.

Many are also careless in disregarding the limits within which they may expect their bodies to function normally. The human body can stand up under a great deal of wear and tear, but, beyond certain limits, it begins to break. It is a matter of common sense to keep within the limits. Success is empty which is gained at the expense of a wrecked body. Health without wealth is preferable to wealth without health.

Questions concerning Health addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

FREEDOM AND A FEW OTHER THINGS

We have just celebrated with true Britons everywhere, writes Raymond Crawford in the Canadian National Magazine, one of the most epoch-making events of history—the signing of the Magna Carta, an instrument which gave to England, and therefore to us, a great measure of freedom from tyranny, caprice and despotism. It is a far cry from King John to King George VI, yet on that day at Runnymede there were laid the foundations of those democratic institutions which in some of us still believe are the best means of achieving for us our greatest natural rights and privileges. Unfortunately these are taken by most of us as a matter of course. Because we have little knowledge of the past we have scant ability to appraise the present.

Appreciation is a rare virtue, but appreciation depends upon perspective and perspective should be productive of patience. A survey of history and the slowness of all solid movements where human interests are involved should be a corrective to the impatience of those who "would grab at new social systems overnight, or jam the Kingdom of Heaven through before the adjournment of Parliament."

In the days of King John the common people had neither civil nor political rights. There was no manhood franchise even for those born in the land. There was little justice. A man could be seized and clapped in a filthy prison on any pretext. There was no trial by jury. A workman himself was merely property and could not own his tools. A female orphan or ward of the co-called government could be married to the highest bidder, and as for free expression of opinion, as we understand the phrase, there was no such thing. There was nothing but the despotism of a selfish tyrant, nothing but iron discipline, and men could be hanged for offenses which would be visited today by a trivial fine or a few days in jail.

It is well for us to remember these things though some of our agitators never take them into consideration, and for the simple reason that they have no Anglo-Saxon traditions. They come to this free and fair land, one of the greatest gifts of a beneficent Providence to this earth, with the traditions and bitter memories of oppression in all countries, but no sooner do they become established under the protection of our laws than they proceed to work for the overthrow of those institutions which gave them asylum and privilege.

SEEKS FEES "LOST" TO ROOSEVELT FIRM

Coincidentally with the appearance of a magazine article dealing with the insurance business of James Roosevelt, arguments were heard at Boston in the suit of Arthur D. Cronin, an insurance broker, against the National Shawmut Bank of Boston. Cronin seeks $35,000 in commissions, which he alleges, he lost when the bank switched an insurance proposal he submitted in 1934 to James Roosevelt's firm. (A. D. Cronin is a son-in-law of Capt. and Mrs. F. A. Robinson, Digby.

Bicentenary Commemoration of Masons Held

Over two hundred persons sat down at the banquet tables in the beautiful dining room of the Pines Hotel here, on Tuesday evening, for the Bicentenary Commemoration banquet of the Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of Nova Scotia, the banquet being the final gathering of their three-day celebration. Present were many distinguished visitors from the British Isles, the United States, Newfoundland, and various parts of Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. R. V. Harris, K.C. of Halifax, presided as toastmaster. Before assembling in the dining room the delegates, with their ladies and guests, were presented to Grand Master Avar, of the Nova Scotia Grand Lodge, and his gracious lady. Music was furnished by Harry Cochran's Orchestra, with Miss Frances Gardner, Miss Lillian Ethier and Colin Ashdown as soloists.

Following the toast to the King, Frank A. Copus, Past Grand Master, "Canada", in Ontario, proposed a toast to the British Commonwealth of Nations, stating there was never a meeting of Free Masons in the Dominion at which so many Grand Lodges were represented as at this bicentenary of the Nova Scotia Masons—and none of the visitors present, whether from the old country or from the United States, felt they were "on foreign soil". The response to this toast was made by William E. Thrift, provost of Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland, who spoke of the British Empire as an empire held together—not by bonds of force, but by spiritual bonds of love, equality and affection from those who are separated from their homeland—an empire determined to preserve the rights of the individual.

George T. Giddings, Grand Master of Maine, proposed the toast to Canada, the reply being made by Nelson R. Craig, Past Grand Master of Saskatchewan. Before the proposing of the toast to the United States of America, a communication from Marvin H. MacIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, was read. The message conveyed the regrets of the president for his inability to attend the Bicentenary Commemoration, and expressing his best wishes for success. The toast was made by the Right Honorable Viscount deVesce, Senior Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of England. Replies were by J. T. Fraser, of the Grand Lodge of California, and Hon. William B. Clarke, Past Grand Master of Georgia.

The final toast, to the ladies, was proposed by Sir John B. Bennett, Deputy Grand Master for Newfoundland (Eng. Const.), with the response by Dr. James N. Hillman, Grand Master of Virginia.

Smoke Stacks and Prosperity

It is generally agreed that the one element required to make the Maritimes surprisingly prosperous, is an increase of industrial activity. More smoke stacks, more employment, more money in circulation, more prosperity.

But until Maritime people learn to lend deserved support to those industries which already exist within our boundaries, we can hold out but slight hope of enjoying any unprecedented industrial boom.

You begin NOW to insist that the things you buy be made in the Maritimes. Voice a preference for Maritime products. In this manner you will be doing YOUR share in creating a demand. Potential industrialists—sensing the existence of this demand—will lose no time in providing the needed smoke stacks with the inevitable consequence of more employment, more money in circulation, MORE PROSPERITY.

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT" Continued

holds opinions contrary to those of his mates. These products of mass education are at the mercy of strong-minded masters of propaganda. They can be swung in any direction a skillful orator may lead them. They hate to be unlike their mates even more than they love the truth. Those incorrigible old individualists who lived in this province were original to a fault. They verged on eccentricity. Yet how delightful and admirable they seem to us in comparison with hundreds of citizens who would rather be like the crowd than be right. Those old individualists lived their own rugged lives, thought their own rugged thoughts and did not wait for some demagogue or news commentator to tell them what it thinks. There are some alive today who cannot be regimented. They will not debase their own mentality by accepting dictation. They do their own thinking. There is so much painful similarity in Canada today that one rugged individualist commands our admiration. We like to see a man stand out bravely for an unpopular opinion.

"Fake Names Get Fancy," says a special article in the Malden, Mass., News, referring to the cognomens adopted by stage and screen stars. "Since so much of a moving picture star's success depends upon gossip and other forms of unpaid advertising, his or her name must not be too difficult to pronounce. Otherwise people will avoid pronouncing it. This movie maxim accounts for the stage names adopted by such nomenclature-heavy actors as Benjamin Ancelewitz (Ben Bernie); Dominick Felix Amici (Don Ameche); and Arlington Spangler Brugs, (Robert Taylor). But because it has so often proved advisable for actors and actresses to take stage names, more often than not a movie star who has a perfectly good natural name, will sacrifice it for what is believed to be a more stylish and suitable pseudonym. Miss Dawn Paris whose name certainly leaves nothing to be desired in the way of glamour, chose to be known in the movies as Ann Shirley. George Nolan felt that a change to George Brent was essential. But now the film executives, not to be outdone, are going them one better. They are taking perfectly harmless, easily pronounced names from glamorous young ladies and equipping them with tongue-twisting French names whose proper pronunciation it is necessary to indicate in parentheses. Time was when to make matters simple, a bona-fide Parisienne would become Mary Smith in the films. But now bona-fide Brooklyn girls reverse the process by taking exotic titles such as Yvonne Yvonne, and Danielle Darioux, pronounced Dan-yell Dare-you.

The choir of the Annapolis Royal Baptist Church assisted in the singing and a large and appreciative congregation was present. Rev. A. J. ### About This and That

There are some people who, impatient of the muddling of democracies, yearn for a dictatorship which, of course, they expect to be a benevolent dictatorship. Vain hope! A dictatorship can only be maintained by brute force and violence, and in any country, will assume the same aspect as in Nazi Germany.

New Conservative Leader

DR. R. J. MANION

At the national convention of the Conservative party, recently concluded in Ottawa, a new leader was elected in the person of Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, (above), of Fort William, Ontario. Dr. Manion succeeds Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett to the party leadership.

Registered Money

In 1879, James Ritty, of Dayton, Ohio, went on a holiday trip to Europe but his trip was not a pleasant one. He kept thinking of the way his business was failing, not from the want of patronage but somehow the money was slipping away. His mind centered on the old-fashioned cash register, the one which had a little bell that rang when the drawer was opened but had no way to show how much had been put in—or taken out.

While pondering over his trouble as he stood on the deck of the boat he became fascinated by the action of the ship's propellers. Then a solution came to James Ritty. He invented a new cash register. It was arranged so that when a key was pressed down the amount registered by punching a hole in a roll of paper upon which were columns of figures reading from one to nine dollars and multiples of five cents up to 95. At the end of the day, the drawer was unlocked and the roll taken out. Then started the job of multiplying the number of holes punched at the two dollar mark, the number at the 25-cent mark and so on.

Ritty found practically no market for his machine and soon sold his patent rights. Then John H. Patterson of Dayton took up the struggle and a fierce battle it was. Sales clerks did all kinds of things to discourage him. They made wrong change purposely to discredit the accuracy of the register. When he advertised his machine by mail, they destroyed the letters before their employers could see them. But the work went on and now the company which he founded 50 years ago, markets its machines in every corner of the earth. A Toronto factory was opened last year to supply the Empire needs.

The modern cash register, adding machine and typewriter combined, is composed of 10,000 parts. It takes 17 hours to check its accuracy after it has been assembled, but there is no chance for a dishonest clerk to make a profit out of it.

In 1935 the total sales of retail merchandise trade amounted to over two billion dollars. No doubt practically every candy store, meat market, garage and furniture store which helped to make up this sum, had a machine to register its sales.

BRITISH EMPIRE CEREALS

Rice is grown more extensively than any other cereal within the British Empire, but wheat follows closely in importance. The Empire is a small producer of maize (corn), states the Imperial Economic Committee; and, the area under rye in the Empire, except in Canada, is negligible, the aggregate production being less than one per cent of the world total. Canada is the only exporting country of rye in the Empire, and rye imports in the Empire are almost entirely confined to the United Kingdom.

Here and There With G.R.T.

And now, "the time has come, the walrus said, to speak of other things, of ships and shops and sealing, of cabbages and kings." And who is the king? What king? The king of Sockarena of course—a dusky king who retained his crown in that short and decisive battle on June 22nd, of this year of our Lord 1938. If you are a fighter and listened in on the radio that evening you did not need listening to a round by round account of the battle, I am sure. As for me, I had no more than got comfortably seated in my radio side chair, when the telephone rang. I got up to answer a "wrong number" and the fight was over. Imagine my surprise, nothing of course to the surprise experienced by Max Schmeling—the good will ambassador of Herr Hitler—when he crumpled under the murderous onslaught of the brown bomber from Detroit, Michigan: Joe Louis by name and fight king by common consent.

I had a subconscious feeling—as the psychologists say—that the German could not win this time, but did not believe that he would make such a poor showing. And, being one of the great army of well-wishers but non-bettors, I lost no money on the fight, but simply transferred a two-dollar bill, that I hold in reserve for a surething, from my left-hand waistcoat pocket to my right-hand pocket, and considered myself two dollars to the good. Betting with myself keeps the money in the family. But what a grand and glorious time there was down on Central Avenue—the black belt of Los Angeles—on the night of the fight, where the dusky denizens had bet everything on Louis from next week's wages to the kitchen stove. And while we are on this matter of small change what do you think of the earnings of the principals in that bout for one minute's work—375 thousand for Joe and 175 thousand for Maxie. I surmise that the thousands of spectators, some of whom travelled 3,000 miles from the Pacific coast by plane to see the fight would say that the boys were overpaid and did not give their customers their money's worth.

Joe Louis is the thirteenth of his race to hold the world's title of champion, but the colored boxer, who is universally hailed as the greatest fighting man, white or black, never held a championship. His name, Sam Langford, and when fight fans and sports writers gather to reminisce they can talk for hours about his ring career and how Sam, when only a boy of 19, knocked out Joe Gans, the master fighter, at the peak of his career, and how he later put away such well known fighters as Griffo, Ketchell, Godfrey and Jeff Clark, and how he hammered Jack Johnson so hard that Jack would never make another match with him. Sam Langford, of Weymouth, Nova Scotia, (and not of Weymouth, Mass., as some writers have claimed), but Sammy Langford, of Weymouth Falls, who as a kid swam in the old Sissiboo River, and picked gooseberries along its banks, and barefooted it time and time again, down to the "Bridge" for a half-gallon of molasses and three cents' worth of saleratus, raiding Billy Baker's apple orchard on the way and as opportunity presented it, finally growing up to be a first-class fighting man.

Born of fighting stock, fighting was of course, in his blood. The Langfords would as soon fight as eat and eating by a Langford was not to be considered lightly. They were men of great strength and muscle, developed through hard work in the logging woods in the winter, stream driving in the spring, stevedoring and tossing cordwood into the holds of schooners sailing out of Weymouth during the summer.

Harry Carr, a well known Los Angeles writer on sports and "what have you" topics, who passed away a couple of years ago, was the first to dub Sam as the Boston Tar Baby. Harry was surprised to learn from me that Sam was not a natural-born citizen of the United States, and before he would believe he was obliged to give him Sam's pedigree dating back to the time when his great grandfather, a former slave arrived in Weymouth, N. S., and tied up at my great grandfather's boat landing on the Sissiboo River in the summer of 1793. Langford, who had escaped from his master, Captain Langford, of Shrewsbury, New Jersey, sailed all the way to Nova Scotia in one of the captain's boats which he had "borrowed" for the trip, and was given refuge by some of the ex-slaves of Col. John Taylor, formerly of New Jersey, and one of Weymouth's early settlers.

Alas for Sam! his career is all behind him. Blind and destitute at last reports, and unable to get a dollar's worth of help from those who once fell over themselves to shake his record as a pugilist is still bright in the minds of fight fans and writers who still maintain that he was the greatest fighter ever.

How long will Louis hold his champion crown and how long will he be able to hold on to the cash that he has collected in his short career? Very few fighters have much of their earnings left them when old age overtakes them. Old at thirty, they are on their way out as ring attractions; most of them are spendthrifts with "easy come, easy go" written on the last page of their bank book.

Another Maxie now seeks to do the job that Maxie Schmeling failed to do. He is our California Maxie Baer, who yearns to wrest the emblem of kingship from Joe's woolly head. Back in 1935 Louis flattened Baer in four rounds; no doubt he could repeat the performance on June 22nd, if the Louis-Baer set-to should take place this coming September as contemplated. The "Baer fact" of the matter is that Maxie is no longer in the Louis class; age and soft living is getting in its work. No one in California takes Maxie Baer very seriously and most of the sporting element consider him as more of a clown than a fighter.

And now, what about Maxie Schmeling back again in the Fatherland, where he hoped to return as the King of Sockarena. Herr Hitler is said to be quite disappointed in Maxie and Hitler from all accounts does not deal gently with those who disappoint him. "Ach dot feller fault to bring back the crown." So, press a crown of thorns upon his brow and lead him to the old chopping block. I'd hate to be in Maxie Schmeling's shoes.

BARLEY WORLD AREA

The world area under barley, which has fluctuated irregularly since 1930, appears to have increased in 1937, states the Imperial Economic Council, as compared with 1936, but precise comparisons with earlier years cannot be made in the absence of recent figures for the Soviet Union. The British Empire area, which comprises about one-seventh of the world total, declined until 1933-34. Recent years have shown a slow expansion, due partly to the recovery in Canada. The chief markets for imports of barley are found among the European countries, though large quantities are exported from Canada to the United States, which in 1936 took 70 per cent of the Canadian shipments.

CHIEF OATS PRODUCERS

The Soviet Union and the United States together account for over one-half of the world area under oats. Canada and the United Kingdom are the chief Empire producers, but the output of both countries has fallen in recent years. The Canadian crop harvest for 1937 (268,442,000 bushels) being the smallest estimate since 1910. Argentina since 1930 has been the leading world exporter of oats and is the only important producing country shipping abroad more than a small proportion of its oat crop.

WHEAT AND WHEAT FLOUR

In Canada in particular, and in Australia, Argentina, Hungary and Algeria, wheat and wheat flour exports represent an important part of export trade. The main factors influencing the position of the wheat trade in the British Empire are the exports from Canada and Australia, and the imports into the United Kingdom. About one-half of the Canadian exports of wheat flour are sent to the United Kingdom, the West Indies being the next important market.

The women and young girls of the parish of Concession, gathered on a recent morning to wash and clean Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, in that village. Thirty-five busy workers took only two hours to accomplish their task.

BOXING MATCHES

The third of a series of bi-monthly boxing matches to be staged in Community Hall, under the auspices of the Digby Ravens' Baseball Team, proved the best yet with fast and furious action as a keynote.

The bout between Johnnie Outhouse, of Tiverton, and Frank Ryan, of Marshalltown, for the bantamweight championship of Digby County, saw Ryan down for the count of ten in the second minute of the first round, a right to the stomach doing the trick. Outhouse tipped the scales at 126 pounds, while Ryan's weight was 118.

First of Wednesday evening's card was an interesting bout between two Digby youngsters, Arnold Melanson and Joseph Purdy, in which the 70 pound Melanson had outpointed his 78 pound opponent in three two minute rounds of surprisingly good boxing.

Bobby Weir, 150 pounds, boxed a close fought decision out of Bob Cowan, 151 pounds. Aggressiveness won this fight although in points scored, they were nearly even.

A close decision was awarded Thurston Banks, 147 pound Digby Neck fighter, in a five two minute round bout with Claud Thompson, Liverpool, 145 pounds. An exhibition bout between the two Barr brothers, Arnold and Mel, of Weymouth, was interesting and instructive. As exponents of defensive fighting, both were well qualified.

The main bout of the evening was between Irvin Lawcaw, Roxbury, Mass., 157 lbs., and Irving Joudrey, Mahone Bay, 160 pounds, and was won by Joudrey in the third minute of the first round. Joudrey, who is well known in the middleweight division of Albershot where he is Champ of the Nova Scotia Militia, having won the crown for the past 3 years, showed up well with a very fast left. E. Barr, of Weymouth, who was scheduled to meet Lawcaw for this match, had the misfortune to break two of his ribs a few days ago, in an accident. Promoter Daley was fortunate in getting Joudrey to take his place on so short a notice, and it is understood that Joudrey will appear on the next card to be presented on August 1st.

Johnny Outhouse, who, Wednesday night, won the bantamweight championship of the county, is also expected to appear on the same date. Richard Titus, of Moncton, refereed all but the main and the Outhouse-Ryan bout, which were refereed by Geo. Richardson, of Yarmouth. The judges were Leigh Peck, Digby, and Bill MacNeill, Halifax.

The marriage of Paul Henry Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson, of Digby, to Miss Vera Arlene Woodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodman, of Conway, took place at Grace United Church parsonage, Digby, Tuesday evening, the pastor, Rev. Dr. T. W. Hodgson, officiating.

Motoring from Boston to Digby, Capt. Harry Ross met with an unusual experience while coming through the province of New Brunswick, which resulted in severe injuries about the head and mouth. Passing through a wooded stretch a deer leaped off an embankment, landing on Mr. Ross' car, breaking the wind shield and causing other damage, a hoof of the animal striking Capt. Ross in the mouth, causing a cut which required several stitches to close. The deer was instantly killed.

WITH THE SCOUTS

The annual Boy Scout camp of the 1st Digby Troop was held at the usual camping ground at Porter's Lake. Under the supervision of Assistant Scout Master Carl Winchester and Quarter Master, "Billy" Ganong, the duties of the camp were made and carried out mainly by the patrol leaders. Each patrol made its own camp kitchen except the Bulldog, which joined the Eagle. The days were spent in cooking, hiking, swimming, playing football and boxing, and just lying about. The boys who had passed their swimming tests had a canoe and boat at their disposal and the others made rafts and poled about on them. Co-operation of the patrols made the camp run smoothly.

On the Wednesday following the Scout Camp, six of the Scouts' went to the Sports Meet at Molega Lake Park, near Bridgewater, to represent the 1st Digby Troop under the charge of Carl Winchester. The Scouts who went were Peter Humpherson, Ted Walker, Paul Morehouse, Ted Thibeau and "Nink" Woolaver.

The meet was very interesting with several champion guides from Nova Scotia and the champion log roller from the United States. There were various Scout Troops or Patrols from Liverpool, Bridgewater, Shelburne, Kentville and Annapolis Royal. The activities of the four days consisted of canoe and boat racing, tilting, tub racing, log and ball rolling, swimming, diving, running and jumping. The Digby troop entered several contests and came second in tent pitching; and Pete and Ted came third in the canoe race. The grounds were well fitted out for the meet. The Digby boys enjoyed mixing with other Scouts, the evening council fire and especially the midnight snacks and potato fights. Only one day was rainy and it stormed all night before. The boys wish to thank Mr. DeBalinhard for the transportation to the lake and "Buster" Walker for their return.

YACHT RACE TOMORROW

Six trim yachts will sail from Saint John tomorrow, weather permitting, for the second annual yacht race to be run from Saint John to Digby, competing for the cup which has been awarded by the Digby Board of Trade. Of the boats taking part one is from the Acadia Yacht Club, Yarmouth, and five from the Royal Kennebecasis Yacht Club, of Saint John.

The Digby Board of Trade will entertain the visiting yachtsmen at a banquet to be held in the Pines Hotel, Saturday evening, at which all members of the Digby Board of Trade, and the newly re-organized Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club are invited to attend. Tickets, $1.00.

KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY FALLING TREE

Curtis Haight, 38, of North Range, passed away in the Digby General Hospital Monday afternoon without having regained consciousness following an accident which occurred on the shore of Tom Wallace Lake, near Bear River, late Saturday afternoon.

With his brother, Ralph, he had been working in that district. They had just successfully felled a large tree and were about to cut it in sections with a cross cut saw, when suddenly a huge limb from another tree, which had evidently broken from the trunk through the fall of the first, came crashing to earth. Ralph saw the limb as it started to fall and tried to twist the saw in such a way as to throw Curtis clear, but his attempt failed and the limb hit Curtis in the back fracturing the base of his skull and rendering him unconscious. Realizing there was nothing he could do for his brother Ralph went three-quarters of a mile for help. A physician was summoned and the stricken man was brought into the hospital where he succumbed to his injuries Monday afternoon.

Miss Jennie Inglis, of Tupperville, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. James Keen.

FIND LIFELESS BODY

Ellis Bartlett, 42 year old returned soldier, was found dead at the base of a cliff on the Sissiboo River, on the Weymouth Mills side, about one mile from the village of Weymouth, early Monday evening. His neck had been broken in a fall, and according to Coroner Dr. H. J. Pothier, of Weymouth, he had been dead about a week.

The body was found by Bartlett's brother, Robert, who had been advised by postmaster Hallitt of Weymouth, that a six days' accumulation of mail was waiting for Ellis (who had been in the habit of calling for his mail daily) at the post office. Fearing his brother was Robert went out to his cabin on the banks of the Sissiboo River to investigate, and found the lifeless body.

The unfortunate man had been living in a camp on the river's edge, access to which was gained by going down a rickety flight of steps over the river embankment. Investigation showed that near the top of the steps a rail had broken, and apparently Bartlett plunged to the stoney ground some forty feet below.

He was last seen in Weymouth a week ago Tuesday. When the remains were found a loaf of bread which he purchased on his last visit to the village, was found beside him.

He was unmarried, and is survived by two brothers, Robert and Fletcher, of Weymouth, and one sister, Mrs. (Cant.) Donald Barkhouse, of Halifax.

ST. JOHN'S GARDEN PARTY

On Wednesday, July 13, the annual Garden Party of St. John's Church, was held on the grounds of Mrs. John Roop. This is an ideal spot for a garden party, and the ladies appreciate very much Mrs. Roop's generosity in giving them the use of it. The day started in raining, but by noon it had cleared and the flags were hung and the booths gaily trimmed, and though the "numbers" were not there the "quality" certainly was, and once again, St. John's will pay off $100.00 plus the interest on their last outstanding mortgage. ## EX-SOVIET CHIEF RE-VEALS 'SECRETS' OF STALIN REGIME

(Christian Science Monitor)

Gen. G. S. Lushkoff, former chief of the Russian Far Eastern secret political police made some remarkable revelations on the situation in Soviet Russia at a meeting with foreign correspondents held at Tokyo last week.

General Lushkoff affirmed that "Dictator" Joseph Stalin's regime had destroyed the Communist Party which had been responsible for the revolution, so that in the event of any serious upheaval in the country, the Russian people would be left leaderless. He said that the very fact that several million people are confined in concentration camps in the Soviet Union shows the depth of the dissatisfaction. There were, he said, thirty concentration camps, five of them being in the Far East.

The General stated that the confessions in the famous political trials last year were extorted by various forms of torture, physical maltreatment, threats against relatives of the prisoners and deprivation of food and sleep. Mr. Stalin, he affirmed, exploited the assassination of Serge Kiroff, a leading member of the Political Bureau of the Communist Party in December, 1934, as an excuse for exterminating all his political enemies, although investigation of the Kiroff case—in which General Lushkoff participated—showed that the assassin had acted on his own responsibility, without political motive. He asserted that during the past year more than 20,000 persons had been executed in the Far East, where the General had worked. He further stated, in reference to the Soviet Army in the Far East that it suffered from poor housing conditions and interruptions in supplies, which affected even the officers and lowered the morale of the whole army.

The General declared that his wife and 11-year-old daughter were still in Moscow. Although the Soviet has issued official denials of his flight, he was prepared to confirm his identity by a passport, and his Communist Party card as well as his credentials as Chief of the Far Eastern political police and a member of the Supreme Soviet Council.

On Sunday afternoon a very impressive service was held in the United Church, when the colors of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, were formally dedicated. Rev. R. L. Roache conducted the service, assisted by Rev. G. Allen, assistant pastor of the Clements-ville Baptist church. Fred R. Harris sang as a solo, "My Task." Rev. F. C. Burnett, president of the Legion, gave the address, and explained the aims and objects of the Legion, the requirements for membership, and the meaning of the Legion flag—the upper blue stripe signifying service in the air, the lower blue stripe service on the sea and under the sea; the gold centre stripe being for service on land. This flag is the only one honored by being permitted to be flown in an equal position with the Union Jack.

The standards were then raised from their positions by Color Bearers Easterby Sloan and Fred C. Harris, and the dedication prayer pronounced by Rev. R. L. Roache. The colors were then unfurled, and after singing "God Save the King," the members of the Legion marched back to their hall, led by the color bearers, this being the first time the colors were borne unfurled.

Mrs. Helen Johnson, Brewster, New York, arrived last week to spend the summer.

On Monday Mrs. Lottie Roop had as her guests, Mrs. Melda Saunders, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Boyd Bishop, Miss Edith Johnson and Rev. C. L. Chute. This party motored from Sandy Cove, picnicked en route, and reached Bear River in time for a supply of cherries to take to their homes.

of flowers who paid the residence of F. J. McChave, on Racquette on Wednesday afternoon well rewarded, and had a very fine collection of local flowers which, considering the rainy weather were in excellent condition, and in five classes, a number of bloom that bore the name of the almost complete rain.

The delicate white of the Lilies, roses, irises, delphiniums to the deep blue of the larddelphiniums there were few traces of injury, and the taste displayed in the arrangement of blooms was most creditable.

There were 62 different entries in the five classes—those in the perennial group being largest; there were few annuals and house plants which is surprising, for both are easy to grow, and there are not many homes in which a window plant is not carefully tended.

The first exhibition under the auspices of the ladies so closely associated with the Digby Hospital, was an undoubted success, and augurs well for the future enlargement in scope of the idea—

Smoke Stacks and Prosperity

It is generally agreed that the one element required to make the Maritimes surpassingly prosperous, is an increase of industrial activity. More smoke stacks, more employment, more money in circulation, more prosperity.

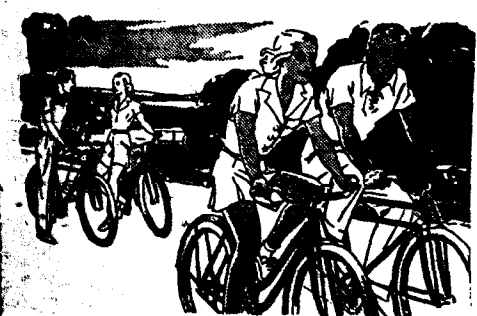

But until Maritime people learn to lend deserved support to those industries which already exist within our boundaries, we can hold out but slight hope of enjoying any unprecedented industrial boom.

You begin NOW to insist that the things you buy be made in the Maritimes. Voice a preference for Maritime products. In this manner you will be doing YOUR share in creating a demand. Potential industrialists—sensing the presence of this demand—will lose no time in providing the needed smoke stacks with the inevitable consequence of more employment, more money in circulation, MORE PROSPERITY.

more classes, with prize awards might prove an incentive to increased entries.

The judges were: T. J. Harris, Racquette Garden, Digby; Mark Longworth, of Smith's Cove, and Alfred Boden, Digby. They had little difficulty in placing the cups to the best in each class and were at some pains to award commendation to other very worthy entrants. Had there been a class for delphiniums, the exhibit of Mr. Robin Rymer would have been cupped.

A pleasing factor was the entries received from Weymouth North, Sandy Cove and Little River, and the apparent interest in the venture evidenced by so many people.

Mrs. McCleave is to be heartily congratulated on a very happy inspiration, which necessitated much initiative, and the results from a horticultural point of view, as well as a financial assistance to the Hospital will probably repay the lady and her co-operators. We understand that quite a nice amount of money was realized through the venture, which included supper and card games.

Below is the full award of the judges:

Class "A", Perennials—First, Cup, Miss Bessie Chisholm, Digby; Highly Commended, Mrs. Fritz Dakin, Digby; Little River entry no name; Robin Rymer, The Pines; Andrew Elliott, Weymouth North.

Class "B", Annuals—First, Cup, Andrew Elliott, Weymouth North; Highly Commended, Miss Bessie Turnbull, Digby.

Class "C", Roses—First, Cup, Mrs. F. L. Anderson, Digby; Highly Commended, Mrs. E. J. Theriault, Digby.

Class "D", House Plants—First, Cup, Mrs. B. Fleet, Digby.

Class "E", Cut Flowers and Arrangement—First, Cup, Andrew Elliott, Weymouth North; Highly Commended, Miss Louise Daley, Digby; Mrs. H. T. Warne, Digby; Mrs. F. W. Nichols, Digby; Robin Rymer, The Pines.

The cups mentioned above as awarded to the best exhibit in each class were donated by E. C. Sollows, G. M. Morrell, F. L. Anderson, H. M. Varne and Dr. J. R. McCleave to whom the thanks of the ladies of the Hospital Committee are tendered.

NOVA SCOTIA CANOE RACE

ISTS OFF TO ST. MAURICE VALLEY RACE

Nova Scotia's entries in the famed St. Maurice Valley canoe race—Eber Peck, of Bear River, and Alan Hunt, of Greenfield—left by car Monday for Trois Rivières, where they hope to get in a few days practice on the course before the race starts on July 29. Both boys are in splendid physical condition and have put in many days of hard paddling during the past weeks on Nova Scotian rivers.

They were accompanied by Watson Peck, brother of Eber, who will also take part in the race this year, to team with King Pothier. Pothier and Peck are sponsored by the French language newspaper, L'Action Catholique, of Quebec city.

This is the third year a Nova Scotia team has entered the race, and Eber Peck, the well known Bear River woodsman, has been with them each year. In 1936 Peck and Hunt (the same team as this year) finished the course in eighth place. Last year Eber and his brother Watson, moved up to fifth position. The boys are confident they are in better condition for the coming race and hope to move up a few more points.

SEMINAR HELD AT DEEP BROOK

The annual seminar, conducted by Dr. H. L. Bronson, Dalhousie University, concluded at Deep Brook on July 3rd and concluded on the 17th. Study sessions were held every morning in the pavilion of the Sea Breeze Hotel, the text book being used, "Jesus, as Teacher", by Dr. N. B. Sharman. Afternoon and evening were devoted to tennis, swimming, campfires, etc., and side trips to Annapolis Royal, Digby and Bear River.

One day a delightful sail on the Annapolis Basin was enjoyed. Delegates to the number of 21 were present from Halifax, Bridgewater, Clarence and Cape Breton. This is the third successive year that Dr. Bronson has held his study class at this ideal spot, "The Sea Breeze Hotel".

The death of Frank Hayden, Jr., occurred in the Digby General Hospital on Tuesday afternoon, the deceased failing to rally after a serious operation which he underwent on Monday. He was 26 years of age, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hayden, and is survived by his parents, one brother Alvin, a sorrowing widow, (formerly Thelma McCaul) and three small children, all of Victoria Beach; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Rines, of Halifax, and Mrs. Thomas Morgan, of Detroit, Mich.

The death of Thomas B. Condon occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Curtis Y. Young, Lighthouse Road on Saturday. Mr. Condon, who resided at Granville Ferry, was visiting at the home of his daughter when he was stricken. He was born at Digby, 81 years ago. Funeral services, conducted by Rev. T. W. Hodgson, pastor of Grace United Church, were conducted at the home of his daughter, on Monday morning. The remains were then taken to Granville Ferry, where a service was held in the Stoney Beach church, at which Rev. W. B. Crowell, pastor of the Granville Baptist Churches, and Rev. Mr. Cole, of the Granville Ferry United Church, officiated. The late Mr. Condon is survived by one brother, William B. Condon, of Bear River; and two daughters, Mrs. C. Y. Young, of Digby, and Mrs. Ernest Thorne, of Granville Ferry.

The death of James W. Cossaboom, one of Digby County's oldest and best known citizens, occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hazleton, Digby, where he had been residing for the past few weeks, on Sunday. Mr. Cossaboom was born at Gulliver's Cove where he has spent most of his life, and was 91 years old. Surviving are his widow; one son, W. H. Cossaboom, Lingan, C. B.; two daughters, Florence, (Mrs. Frank Hazleton), Digby, and Ethel, (Mrs. Willard Merritt), Natick, Mass.; ten grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted on Tuesday, Rev. A. G. Robertson, pastor of the Digby Baptist church officiating at the home, and Lic. Willard Chandler, of the Centreville Baptist church, assisted by Rev. J. T. Dimock, officiating at the Rossway church. Interment was at Rossway.

AN EXPLANATION

To the Editor of the Courier.
Dear Sir:—Some time ago I wrote several letters which appeared in the columns of your paper, supporting a certain viewpoint in regard to the future welfare of our town. It has just come to my attention that a number of people are of the opinion that I received payment for those letters and that the purpose of the letters was to help certain parties who took part in legal proceedings sometime later.

I wish to state here and now that at no time have I ever received payment in any way, shape or form from anyone whatsoever for any letters of mine appearing in your paper. The ideas and viewpoints expressed in the letters under discussion, were my own and were not given to help any firm or corporation but out of a sincere desire to further the welfare of our town. The ideas and viewpoints stated in those letters I still hold to, most firmly.

In the splendid editorial which appeared in the Courier last week, these statements occur: "There are some alive today who cannot be regimented. They will not debase their own mentality by accepting dictation. They do their own thinking. I sincerely hope that I may be included in that category."

For a number of years I have written letters to the Courier on a variety of subjects and under several pen-names. I shall continue to do this as long as I feel that there is a need for someone to speak out in order that the interests of town and its residents may be better served.

CHERRY CARNIVAL BIG SUCCESS

Cherry Carnival day at Bear River was one of the most successful in the long history of the events—one of the oldest of Nova Scotia's annual celebrations. It is estimated that more than 5,000 visitors came to the little town, on the border of Digby and Annapolis Counties, to enjoy the many land and water sports, and to get their fill of the luscious cherries for which Bear River is famous.

Although no financial statement has yet been issued, we understand the committee in charge prophesies the proceeds will be the largest in many years. Hundreds were served dinners and suppers and a lot of tags were sold. There was also a splendid attendance at the evening entertainments.

Headed by the Digby Civic Band a street parade of more than half a mile in length, marked the opening of the carnival on which many days and hours had been spent in preparation for the event. There were floats and decorated cars of all kinds and descriptions, many of them beautiful, many of them original. Judges found it no easy task to choose the winners, but the first prize for the best decorated car went to A. Cashman and the Bear River Boy Scout troop captured the cup awarded by the Fort Anne Beverage Company for the best decorated float. Second prize in the floats went to a group of MicMac Indians, whose birch bark canoe was the object of much attention and comment. Special mention to the Bear River Bug Line's float "Snow White".

A record crowd attended the morning's land sports, of which boxing was one of the chief attractions. In the box events the first prize went to Irvine Jondrey, and second to Murray Muise.

Prizes for other land events were as follows:

100-yard Dash—1st, Keith Rawding; 2nd, J. Joralemon.
50-yard Dash (for boys under 12)—1st, Don Brown; 2nd, Vernon Simpson.
Boys' Shoe Race—1st, D. Davismos; 2nd, E. McCormack.
Boys' Relay Race—1st, R. Berg; 2nd, L. Langley.
Pie Eating Contest (eyes open)—won by Clyde Milbury.
Pie Eating Contest (blindfolded)—won by Wm. Berry.
Cock Fight on Bar—won by Keith Rawding.

As usual, the afternoon's aquatic sports had the greatest attraction and were witnessed by thousands. These events were exceptionally well managed in spite of difficulties with the tides. This year for the first time in many, those two famous brothers, Eber and Watson Peck, were absent, both away seeking new laurels in the province of Quebec. The water sports prize list was as follows:

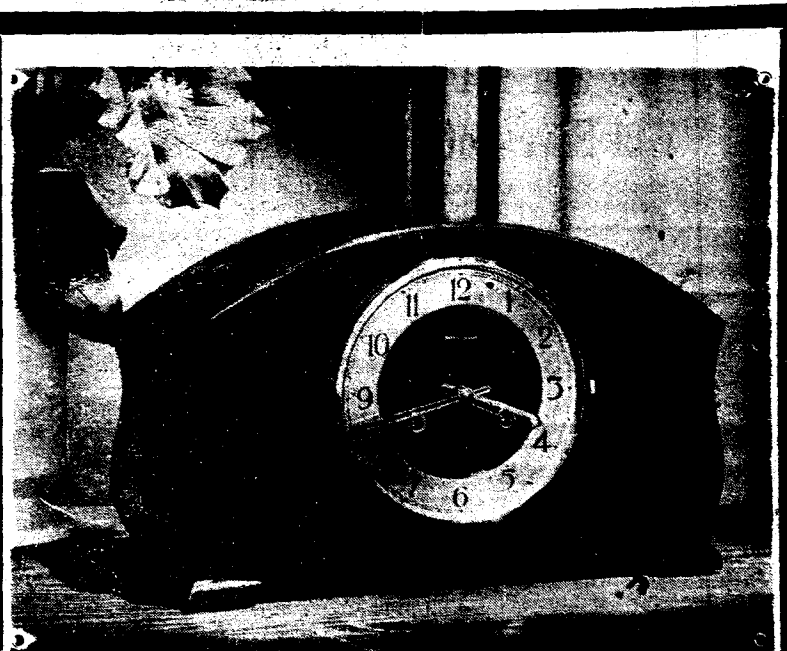

Log Rolling Contest—1st, Willard Jack; 2nd, Leo Wagner.
Men's Single Canoe Race—1st, Lawrence Wamboldt; 2nd, Men's Double Canoe Race—1st, Willard Jack, Lawrence Wamboldt, Willard Jack; 2nd, Louis Pictou, Wilfred Brooks.
Canoe Rescue Race—1st, Wilfred Brooks, Louis Pictou; 2nd, L. Wamboldt, Wilfred Jack.
Canoe Tilting—1st, Lawrence Toney, W. Hubley; 2nd, Willard Jack.
Four-Men Canoe Race—1st, L. Wagner, W. Hubley, L. Wamboldt, Willard Jack; 2nd, L. Toney, Wallace Jack, W. Brooks, L. Pictou.
Boys' Swimming Race—won by Arnold Rice.

This year, for the first time, a cup was presented to the winner of the highest aggregate in water sports. The cup donated by the Lincoln Pulp Company, will become the property of the person winning it three times.

The net proceeds will be used for the improvement of the Bear River fire-fighting equipment.

GOOD FARMING OBJECT LESSONS

At the present time there are 183 illustration stations and 47 district experiment sub-stations established throughout Canada by the Experimental Farms Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Nineteen of these stations are in British Columbia, 24 in Alberta, 51 in Saskatchewan, 17 in Manitoba, 17 in Ontario, 51 in Quebec, 20 in New Brunswick, 17 in Nova Scotia, and 14 in Prince Edward Island. An illustration station is established in a neighbourhood for the education and observation of all, and aims to take the lead in farm organization, cultural practices, and procedures best suited to the district. Orderly, tidy layout, balanced well-kept fields, and practical crops compel notice and suggest being copied in some particular on the home farm of an observer.

By visiting the illustration farm annually on a specified field day, residents of the countryside are brought face to face with what is being done in progressive agriculture. At the field day they discuss the work, ask questions, and listen to lectures which impart the findings, figures, and facts that have a definite bearing on local problems and conditions. Neighbouring farmers may also obtain from the operator of the illustration farm pure seed grain and breeding stock for improvement of their home produce.

In the illustration station program of farm organization and development the sale of livestock and dairy products makes up the principal source of revenue of 131 of the 183 illustration stations and the 47 district experiment sub-stations. On the remainder, specialized grain farming, which includes the sale of wheat, oats, and barley, is the chief farm income. On many of the 131 stations, particularly on those that have been in operation for a considerable period, well-bred high-producing herds now appear. On some farms in Canada, the number of milch cows kept is small in comparison to the size of the farm, and in consequence of the relatively low production, the cash return is inadequate to meet living expenses, taxes, and other necessary expenses. Hence, in the illustration station program, the aim is to develop sufficient revenue from the sale of milk, beef, pork products, poultry or cash crops, such as cereals, grasses, and clovers to meet the necessary operating expenditures, which include comfortable support of the home on the farm.

HOLLYWOOD IS FULL OF PARADOXES

Motion picture making is a paradoxical business, according to Cinematographer Ernie Haller of Hollywood, who made this observation while he was filming a rain sequence in recent dry weather.

Here's his list of film paradoxes, compiled from the experience of years:

Big banquet scenes are usually timed right after lunch. The extras aren't hungry then and won't eat so much valuable food. Fog sequences are filmed on clear days with artificial fog. It photographs better. Outdoor moonlit night scenes are filmed in the daytime with a filter. Real moonlight photographs badly. Love scenes are better if the actor and actress do not love each other in real life. Real lovers, Haller finds, are unconvincing on the screen. They are self-conscious.

The best film "drunkard" never takes a drink. The best fight scenes are phoney. Real fights look faked. The most successful ocean liner sequences are made on dry land on a special ship set. That's because a real liner pitches too much, and the photography isn't good. Buckshot makes better film caviar than caviar. The genuine stuff spoils too quickly under the dot lights.

False whiskers look better on the screen than home-grown ones. Cellophane looks more like ice on celluloid than does real ice. Artificial tears look more real than real ones. The best hot weather scenes are made in winter, because perspiration isn't so good as a nujol spray. Snow sequences are best when made on a round stage with artificial snow.

A black eye painted on by a makeup artist looks more convincing than one acquired by running into a fist. Blank cartridges record better on a sound track than real ones. The sound of the real thing is too high-pitched. Cork gravel is better than real gravel, which makes too much noise when people walk on it. Artificial grass photographs much better than that created by nature. The real stuff isn't green enough. Steam doesn't photograph at all and smoke is used instead.

And cold tea is better for barroom sequences than whiskey, according to Haller, but not because tea looks more like whiskey than whiskey does. It's because the players have to drink a lot of it, and tea keeps them sober.

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT" Continued

to remember the two aged men, who had something to do with starting them right.

It is amazing to consider the nonchalant manner in which we so often dictate to God the things He should and those He should not do; the activities which He should sanction and those He should hinder; the nations which are to be blessed and the ones to be cursed. Far too often our prayers are composed of "Gimme," of "Bless what I've decided to do," of "Get me out of this tight spot my carelessness or sinfulness has gotten me into." And after these selfish petitions are made, we become magnanimous and offer to "Give Him the praise," if He will but fulfill our requests. This sort of thing is not prayer, it is merely a form of dictation, in which God is supposed to sit, pencil in hand, taking notes in order that He might run everything in His world exactly as we order. This isn't asking God, it is presuming to boss Him around as though we were God and He merely a servant to cater to our whims; as though He would neither deserve nor receive honor and praise, unless we consented to arrange for it personally. A general confusion is bound to result if God seeks to provide weather in accordance with my wish and that of my next-door neighbor, if He tries to answer the prayers of both the loyalists and insurgents that they win the conflict now raging, if He gets us out of our difficulties in direct conflict with all moral laws; a general confusion has resulted from our conceited policy of running things to suit our selfish notions, merely asking God for His rubber stamp on our actions. Men have been telling God what to do for thousands of years, but they still seem to be having troubles. Isn't it about time we started taking notes and let God be on the dictating end?

Four British bombing planes made an impressive record the other day. They flew 4,300 miles from England to Egypt in 32 hours of flying and without a stop. The previous record was made by fliers of the Italian air force who flew from Dakar, West Africa, to Rio Janeiro, Brazil, but their jaunt was 980 miles shorter than the Britons' flight. In both these flights the interest lay in the accomplishment of the ships and men, not in the destruction of cities and people, for these bombers dropped no bombs. With such a range, however, their value as instruments of war becomes painfully clear. The trend is to bigger bombers with greater power and longer range. If this sort of competition keeps up it will become very easy for civilization to commit suicide.

MARRIAGES

Nickerson - Hayes

A quiet wedding took place recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hayes, Weymouth North, when their daughter, Hilda, was united in marriage to Victor Nickerson, son of Mrs. and the late Mr. Nickerson, of Weymouth. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Krisby Smith, after which a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside at Weymouth North.

Robar - Smith

The little church of St. Alban's, Lequille, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday of last week, when Florence Grant Smith, eldest daughter of Mrs. Noble Don-dale and the deceased Arthur Smith, by a former marriage, became the bride of Willis Eugene Robar, of Virginia, Annapolis County. The bride entered the church on the arm of her stepfather, Noble Don-dale, to the strains of Lohen-grin's Wedding March, played by the church organist, the bridal couple taking their places beneath a beautiful bell of white, with white streamers. The bride was gowned in mignonette blue, with white hat and white accessories; and her sister, Kathleen, (Mrs. John Woodbury), as matron of honor was gowned in pink with white hat and white accessories, and both carried bouquets of blue delphiniums, pink roses and white lilies. The groom was supported by the brother-in-law of the bride, John Wood-bury. The ceremony was performed by the rector of St. Luke's, Rev. E. Gabriel, ably assisted by the former rector, Rev. Charles deW. White. The church was tastefully decorated with white and pink roses and blue delphinium, carrying out the scheme of the bridal bouquets. At the beginning of the ceremony the choir sang, "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden," and during the signing of the register, a solo, "O Perfect Love," was delightfully rendered by Edward Harry. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother. The many presents of china, cut glass and linen attested the popularity of the young couple. The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a rarer fountain pen; to the organist an amethyst brooch; and the groom to his groomsmen, and the ushers, Phillip Don-dale and Donald Mailman, cigarette lighters. A large number of friends from Lequille were present, and among the outside guests were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Odubir R. Robar, Hilda and Stanley R. Robar, Lajla Durling, Irvin Durling, Mrs. Bent, Mrs. E.

Morse, Mrs. Kennard, Mr. and Mrs. Sable McNinch, Leslie Beeler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Charlton, Dora Charl-ton, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Charl-ton, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Charlton, Frank Robar, Rex Landry, Mrs. Fred and Miss Minnie Woodland, Ruby Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Rawding, the Misses Elsie and Violet Rawding, Mrs. H. R. McKay, Mrs. Edward Cassidy, and daughters, Ruth and Dorothy; Mrs. Riordan and Mrs. C. deW. White, Foster, Mrs. Chute, Mr. Mrs. Edward Munro, Florence Rutherford, Mrs. Mrs. C. B. Foster. The dining cake was a triumph-culinary art and was made Mrs. Harry Wear. Later happy couple left on a of the upper part of the vince, and on their return reside in Virginia, Annap-County.

About This and That

Because it rained on St. Swithin's Day, a lot of people are giving credence to the legend expressed in the lines:

St. Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swithin's Day, if thou be fair,
For forty days 'twill rainae mair.

All of which shows how many people will continue to give allegiance to a legend long after it has been demolished by facts. For years Greenwich Observatory made tests of this belief, and always they absolutely demolished the forecast and left it only so much superstition fit for the discard and oblivion. The truth is there has never been one solitary instance of a wet July 15. More than that, there never was a Saint Swithin, but merely a learned monk named Swithin. As far back as 1719, John Gay, the English playwright, tried to disabuse the Swithin devotees in his comedy of London outdoor life called "Trivia." His advice remains good:

"Let not such vulgar tales debase thy mind;
No Paul or Swithin rules the clouds and wind."

Says the Hong Kong Press: War has always brought misery in its train; but there can be nothing in history so bad as the manner in which the Japanese are now trying to undermine, by the use of drugs, the health and morals of the inhabitants of the occupied areas in the north. China and the world will always remember the stern and effective steps taken by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to stamp out the drug traffic and will regard the Japanese with loathing for the policy they are now following of encouraging the use

ONTARIO'S PREMIER ON FLIGHT OVER CANADA'S NORTHLAND

Ontario's Premier Mitchell Hepburn and three companions posed for this photograph prior to taking off from Toronto on a flight over Canada's far-flung north-land. The flight which is being made in an all-metal twin-motor amphibian owned by J. P. Bickell, Toronto, mining magnate, is expected to cover 8,000 miles. The

Here and There With G.R.T.

Have you ever stopped to think when you go into a store to buy that three and a half yards of gingham for Susie's dress or a suit of knit summer unions for little Billy, just where the cotton comes from that goes into the goods you have purchased? Dit it ever occur to you that some of it might have come from California? California! you will exclaim; why they only raise oranges, lemons and walnuts out there. Dear reader, do not be misinformed; California raises many other things from its rich and fertile soil, not the least of which is cotton.

Years ago when we thought of cotton — if we thought about it at all, it was in connection with an old song that mentioned something about "Way Down South in the Land of Cotton" and the south took in quite a lot of territory. Most of the southern states in fact, and later Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma, and still later — about 1910—Arizona was included in the land of cotton. Perhaps you were under the impression that most of the cotton came from the land of the Pharaohs—Egypt on the Nile—and mighty good cotton, too, it is said to be, and no doubt much of it goes into the manufactured goods turned out by the mills at Manchester—up in New Hampshire, U. S. A. But, if anyone should ask you, you can now tell them that California is now a large producer of cotton in the raw, but of bed sheets, pillow cases, bath towels and dish cloths, not a yard. Such manufactured goods still come from the New England mills. In that respect the Pacific coast is not much better off than it was in the early days when Yankee traders sailed around Cape Horn to barter cotton and leather goods, sealing wax and notions for cow hides, sheep skins and tallow from the old Spanish settlers of California.

Twenty-five years ago California produced no cotton at all; but with the construction of large irrigation projects which made the desert to rejoice and blossom as the rose, it was found that cotton could be made to grow and bloom whiter and heavier than that produced that was very much growing regions. Cotton growing was first attempted in the rich bottom lands of the Imperial Valley, bordering on Mexico and the State of Arizona, where an excellent long staple variety was produced that was very much in demand by the manufacturers of fabric for automobile tires. Then farther west the grower considers himself lucky if he gets three-quarters of a bale to the acre. In the early stages of cotton growing in California large numbers of cotton pickers had to be brought in from Texas and other southern states, but today there is no dearth of such labor, there being about four men for every job. The grower does not have to worry very much about strikes by cotton pickers. If pickers want to strike and pick a living with the chickens, very well, let them strike. Cotton can wait on the stalks for a month or two, but after the "cnicken feed" has been used up and the chickens themselves have been picked by the pickers and with no county relief forthcoming for strikers who refuse work when offered during harvest time, strikes are of short duration, and it would therefore seem that the cotton grower is in a much better position than the fruit or vegetable grower so far as the labor situation is concerned.

A mechanical cotton picker has recently been invented that is said to do much better work and of course very much faster work than that done by human hands. If this machine proves to be practical we wonder what will become of those poor people who know very little about work outside of the cotton fields. The machines of this mechanical age surely put the kibosh on most of the old time hand workers, including ditch diggers, cobblers and pen and ink bookkeepers.

Today the price of cotton is quoted at nine cents per pound. Growers say that they expected not less than fifteen cents under the Roosevelt New Deal regulation of production and prices; but the best laid plans of the men and mice of the New Dealers in Washington seem to have gone a-gley, for everyone except those who enjoy living on government dole without doing any work or those who are lucky enough to be on the regular pay roll of the government with easy work and good pay.

The Department of Agriculture can puff and blow all it wants to about regulating the production of certain crops, but when Mother Nature takes a hand in crop production as she has this year—giving us the oigest crops ever—she makes the crop adjusters at Washington look as silly as the kings of old who ordered the waves of the ocean to recede and commanded the sun to stand still.

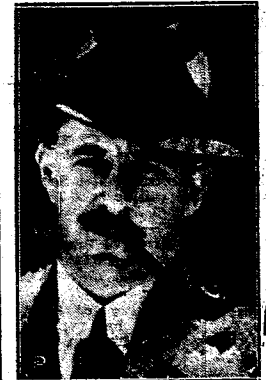

In order to have a little variety in my horticultural experimentation this season I planted a few cotton seeds in my "garden" but up to the present writing they have failed to show any signs of life. They must be growing downward instead of upward. I wonder if I planted them upside down or were they just planted at the wrong time of the moon?

If storm prevents Water Sports Monday, they will be held Tuesday.

Mrs. Rufus Hatch, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wormell.

Miss Mary Baxter, of Saint John, is spending her vacation with her mother, Mrs. Eva Baxter.

A display of flags and bunting on every building in town next Monday will show the hundreds of visitors that Digby is alive and awake, and also that townspeople approve the hard work of their energetic bandmen in giving the town a big show. Let's make strangers "sit up and take notice."

A miscellaneous shower was tendered to Mrs. Paul Wilson by friends and relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodman, Conway, last Friday evening. The bride was presented with many useful gifts. A program of music was furnished by friends and later in the evening refreshments were served to about fifty guests.

If you require Eye Glasses, we offer the latest methods of eye examination, proved by research. A permanent interest in your case. The newest styles in frames in White and Pink Gold and Gold Filled, and reasonable prices. F. E. Saunders, O. D., Sight Specialist, will be at his office in Digby, Shreve Building, Aug. 2nd to 5th. Come and See.

Miss Shirley Mitchell, of Montreal, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cowan, for the summer.

A farmer in Waterloo County, New York, lays claim to growing the largest strawberry in the world. A berry from his farm has been placed on exhibition which weighed one and three-quarter ounces, and measured two and three-quarter inches across one way and four inches across the other. It had a circumference of seven and a half inches.

H. J. Humphrey, vice-president and general manager of P. R. eastern lines, was a visitor in Digby last week after inspecting the new car shop and other facilities at Kentville. Mr. Humphrey spent some time at the Pines. While in Kentville Mr. Humphrey said that indications point to an excellent wheat crop in the West this year, and that a spirit of optimism is prevailing which should have a favorable reaction throughout the Dominion, particularly in railroad circles.

Miss Mary Marshall has returned home from a visit to Newfoundland.

Don't forget the Baptist Garden Party, Wednesday, Aug. 10.

The Civic Band invites everybody to help make their Sports Carnival, August 1st, a grand success. Tell all your friends to come.

Fishing for pollock in Digby Gut Wednesday evening, Fred Adams, of Bay View, caught a pollock weighing 37 pounds—regarded as exceptionally large for this species of fish.

Notice—Monday, Aug. 1st, cars depart for Water Street to Baptist Church. The water front from Army Hall to Bandstand is granted 1st Band. Tags required.

Word reached town yesterday afternoon of the sudden death of William M. Ramsay, the well-known undertaker, of Clements-ville. Charles Ramsay, of Digby, the proprietor of Ramsay's Funeral Service, is a son. A more extended obituary notice will be published next issue.

Reserve Wednesday, Aug. 3rd, for the Trinity Garden Party.

Miss Monica Hill, of Montreal, and Miss Phyllis Roper, Rochester, N. Y., motored to Digby from Rochester, and are visiting Miss Roper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roper.

Farmers and fishermen alike around Tiverton are threatened with severe losses due to the almost continual rain and fog that has lasted nearly 40 days. Hundreds of tons of hay, in stacks and not yet cut, is spoiling for want of sunshine and many farmers whose crop has been cut for several weeks say it is unfit for consumption, and can only be used for bedding. Fish dealers who have fish on the flakes, are threatened heavy losses, not being able to dry the fish they have on hand in order that they may be shipped.

The annual Garden Party of St. Clement's Parish will be held on the rectory grounds, Clements-ville, on Wednesday, August 10.

Miss Kathleen G. Fraser, B. A., of Hopewell, N. S., who has been Secretary to Miss Constance Young, Principal of the Mount Allison School for Girls at Sackville, N. B., for the past year, has accepted a position in the Commissioners' High School, Quebec, as a teacher in the Commercial Department. Miss Gwendolyn Warr, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. B. J. CLOSING DATES FOR PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION

Attention of prospective exhibitors of live stock, poultry, horticultural products, field crops, floricultural exhibits, honey and apiary supplies and other departments is called to the closing dates of entries by the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition officials.

Detailed information may be found in the prize list issued by the exhibition but the important entry closing dates are again called to mind, as follows:

August 15th—Floriculture.
August 20th—Horse Show (saddle class only), Poultry, Horticulture, Field Crops, Honey and Apiary Supplies, Girls' Garment Club Exhibits, Household Arts.

The Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition, famous for its annual display of Maritime products, has ample room for a wide and varied exhibit of the above listed departments and it is the hope of the management to have this display as large and as colorful as possible, in keeping with the entertainment program which is the most pretentious in history.

Total prize money at this year's exhibition will amount to $15,000.

Carnival Day

DIGBY'S BIG DAY OF WATER SPORTS AND BOXING

Next Monday morning at 10.00 o'clock there will be a lively scene at the new Battery Park, near the C. P. R. wharf, where a grand parade of decorated cars and floats will be forming, to be headed by the Digby Civic Band, whose efforts and for whose benefit this interesting day of sports is being held. The route will be south along Water Street to the Fairview Hotel, across to Queen Street, to the Racquette and returning to the band pavilion where the judges—the clergymen of Digby—will award the prizes. All citizens are invited to help make this parade a big success by entering it with any display of other novel feature. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, while the water sports are lining up, the Band will play a short concert, followed by occasional selections at intervals between the events which are scheduled to begin at 2.30, if the tide is right. Some trim little craft from the recently organized yacht club will match their speed, and various local boys will be rivals in feats of skill on the water. The Indian sports of canoe tugging, log rolling and canoe racing will, of course, be the real thrills.

In the evening at 8.00 o'clock the biggest boxing event ever staged in Digby will be held in the Bijou Theatre, where seats for spectators are provided. Tiger Warrington, the famous 175-lb. boxing champion, will meet a worthy opponent, Tommy Falls, in an 8 round bout, and four other bouts of 8 to 10 rounds each, will give the "fight fans" an evening full of excitement and grand sport. The band is taking considerable risk in guaranteeing the cost of this great entertainment, but interest in the boxing game in general and in the fine shows recently put on in Scout Hall, has grown to such an extent that a crowded house is confidently expected, and probably standing room will be at a premium.

Arrangements for the Big Day have been in charge of Frank Robinson and Charles McBride, assisted by Dr. Lefebvre, Frank Hayden and many other capable organizers. The Band needs funds to meet numerous obligations and installments on the uniform purchase. If the day's receipts are large enough the management would be free of worry for some time, and it is hoped that everybody will do his share, by the liberal purchase of tags which constitute the only day-time revenue. The tags are admission tickets to the afternoon sports, and every spectator is expected to wear one. Generous friends of the Band will not be limited to one tag—they will buy several. Two kinds of tags will be issued, 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. These tags do not admit to the Boxing Contest where tickets will be sold at the door.

Mrs. Little, who was at their country home at Smith's Cove, joined Mr. Little in Trois Rivières this week.

This Canoe Race covers a course of one hundred and twenty-five miles, starting at La Guque, finishing at Trois Rivières, and three days are needed to complete it.

For the past three years, Mrs. Little has been the unofficial sponsor of the team representing the Province of Nova Scotia, consisting of the present and former Champion Guides of North America—Alan Hunt and Eber Peck—both well-known Nova Scotia woodsmen.

ONLY THREE YACHTS FINISH IN RAY OF FUNDY RACE

Starting out from Saint John in almost a dead calm, later battling heavy seas and a strong southwest by west wind, only three of the original five yachts arrived at Digby on Sunday, in the annual Bay of Fundy race sponsored by the Royal Kennebecasis Yacht Club, for the Digby Board of Trade Cup, and those that did arrive were about 15 or 16 hours behind schedule.

The Zeetes, with Commodore James W. Barnes at the helm, and the Osprey, both turned back shortly after starting out from Saint John at 8.25 Saturday morning. The other three, the Whistler, captained by Jimmy Belyea, the Canada, owned by Fred Heans, and the Pelican, under MacGregor Grant, were forced to take shelter about six miles from Digby, shortly after midnight. Early Sunday morning the yachts crossed the finish line in Digby, with the Pelican arriving at 8.12 followed by the Whistler one hour and three minutes later with the Canada on its heels. The Whistler won the race due to the fact that it had a one-hour and forty minute handicap.

The boats did not return Sunday, but the Whistler and Canada made their way back the next day. The Pelican, which had started a seam and was leaking, sailed after repairs were effected.

The Joan K., power boat, owned by G. King Kelly, which accompanied the yachts, arrived in Digby about 2.30 p. m. Saturday, and its occupants had an anxious time awaiting the arrival of the three boats. The Joan K., returned Sunday.

The reception planned by the Digby Board of Trade Saturday, had to be cancelled, but the visiting yachtsmen were tendered a luncheon at the Pines on Sunday, and quite a number attended. The function was presided over by G. M. Morrell, president of the Board of Trade; Mayor Denton welcomed the visitors on behalf of the town and Commodore Channing Lefebvre, of the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club, presented the cup to Capt. Belyea, of the Whistler. The visitors, through Capt. Heans, invited the Digby Board of Trade and the members of the Yacht Club to Saint John some time this season when they would be treated to a special two day's cruise on the Kennebecasis.

ONE OF THOSE THAT WALK

To the Editor of the Courier.
Dear Sir:—I want to file a protest against cluttering up the sidewalks on the main street by merchants who open boxes there, and leave crates and bags piled up on the sidewalk most of the day and sometimes all night, as though they owned the street. Very few of them do this, but even one is too many. Isn't it prohibited by town ordinance? Pedestrians have a right to the sidewalks—unobstructed.

WEYMOUTH ASKS LOWER RATES SCALE

The Board of Public Utilities on Wednesday, at Halifax, received an application from the Commission's for the Village of Weymouth, asking approval of a new schedule of rates for electric energy. The Commission distributes electricity in Weymouth and vicinity.

The new proposed schedule of rates will reduce the domestic service energy charge from 5 1/2 cents to 4 1/2 cents in the first block, to three cents from 3 1/2 cents for the next 45 kilowatt hours per month and sets all additional consumption at two cents where in the old schedule it was three cents.

In commercial lighting the service charge will be reduced from $1 to 50 cents per month per horse-power of connected load. The energy for the first 100 kilowatt hours per month per kilowatt of connected load or per kilowatt of maximum demand will be reduced one cent to 4 1/2 cents, with the charge per kilowatt for all additional consumption becoming one-half cent cheaper at three cents.

Charges will also be reduced for the alternating current power for general use with the cost of the first 50 kilowatts per horse-power of connected load reduced one-half cent to three cents, and a half-cent decrease for additional consumption which will be purchasable at 2 1/2 cents.

Church of England, Digby Neck Mission—Sandy Cove, Sunday School, 10.00; Matins, 11.00—Rossway, Evensong, 3.00.

The old—and to the older generation—familiar colors of Western Nova Scotia Yacht burgees, are becoming quite known again. A number of boats on the Basin are them and it looks good to them.

A motor drive over the central parts of the province showed an astonishing amount of building going on, in the country and in the towns.

Freemasonry in Canada. This book of 121 pages, from the pen of Reginald V. Harris, of Halifax, Past Grand Master of Masons in Nova Scotia, not only gives the reader an appreciation of the close relationship existing between Canadian life and Canadian masonry, but it also gives a renewed appreciation of the place that Nova Scotia holds in Canadian history.

What must appeal to Nova Scotians is the prominent place of Nova Scotia in the foundation days of the honorable craft. The fact that the seeds of masonry were laid in Canada is another tribute to early Nova Scotians.

Dr. Harris lists twenty-five Canadian "Firsts", included among which are the following:

The first Masonic activity on Canadian soil, perhaps in North America, took place in Annapolis Royal sometime between 1721 and 1727.

The first Provincial Grand Masters for any part of Canada were Captain Robert Comyns, "Prov. Grand Master for Cape Breton and Louisbourg," appointed by the Earl of Darnley, Grand Master of England, and Major Erasmus James Phillips, Provincial Grand Master for Nova Scotia, appointed by Henry Price, Prov. Grand Master of New England, and later of North America.

The first duly constituted lodge established on Canadian soil was formed at Annapolis Royal in June, 1738, under authority from Massachusetts.

The first military lodge to function in America was Lodge No. 80 (Irish) in Frampton (30th) Foot, in garrison at Louisbourg, 1746.

The oldest Craft lodge in the British Dominions Overseas is St. Andrews Lodge, No. 1, G. R. N. S., Halifax, established by Hon. Edward Cornwallis, July 19, 1750, as the First Lodge, Halifax, under authority from Major E. J. Phillips, Prov. G. M., and later No. 4 on the Prov. Reg. 1757; No. 155 on the English Reg. (Ancients), 1768, and continuing without dormancy to the present day.

The first Masonic Church service held in Canada was held in St. Paul's Church, Halifax, June 24, 1751.

The first military lodge chartered by the "Ancients" of England was that in the 40th Regiment of Foot, No. 42, while quartered at Annapolis Royal in 1755.

The first Provincial Grand Lodge established by the "Ancients" in any part of the world was warranted for Nova Scotia, Dec. 21, 1757.

The first subordinate lodges established by the "Ancients" outside of England were Nos. 66 and 67, at Halifax, Dec. 27, 1757.

The first Royal Arch degrees conferred in Canada were conferred at Halifax and Quebec in 1760.

The first Knight Templar degrees conferred in Canada were conferred in Halifax in 1766-68 by Lodge No. 322 in the 29th Regiment and Lodge No. 58 in the 14th Regiment.

The oldest Royal Arch Chapter in Canada is Royal Union Chapter No. 1, dating back at least as early as 1780, established under the warrant of St. Andrew's Lodge, Halifax.

The oldest Knight Templar body in the world is Antiquity Preceptory No. 5, Halifax, dating previously to 1782.

The oldest Mark Lodge records in Canada are those of a lodge held under the warrant of Virgin Lodge, Halifax, in 1784.

The first corner stone laid with Masonic honours in Canada was the corner stone of the Mason Hall, Halifax, laid by Prince Edward, Duke of Kent, Grand Master of Lower Canada, June, 1800.

The oldest lodge chartered by the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and not now on that register, is Keith Lodge, No. 17, Halifax, chartered as Thistle Lodge, No. 392 (Scott), in 1827.

The continuous rains have kept the shoulders of the country roads in very bad condition and the driving of cars and trucks is almost a daily occurrence, but fortunately no one has been hurt. A little care is all that is required.

Gordon Ford, of Toronto, was elected head of the National Young Conservatives of Canada at the Conservative convention in Ottawa.

SUCCESSFUL GARDEN PARTY

The United Church garden party yesterday was bigger and better than it has been in many years. As the clock struck five the tables were swamped with guests and for two hours the waitresses were almost rushed off their feet. Although much more had been prepared than on former occasions, the rush was so great that supplies began to run short, but all were fed. The fancy work table, the candy booth, the fish pond and ice cream stand were well patronized, and two lawn chairs, made and donated by Evan Dunn, sold at good prices. The total receipts were approximately $230.

THE ARMY WORM

By A. Kelsall, Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Annapolis Royal, and A. D. Pickett, Provincial Entomologist, Wolfville, N. S.

In 1937 there was a general outbreak of army worms in Nova Scotia, and there are prospects of another one in 1938, at least in some localities.

The army worm belongs to the same family as do the cutworms, but unlike the latter, it feeds above the ground.

There are two generations per year and it is the second generation, first appearing in July, which causes damage to crops.

The insect is generally noticed when it migrates from grass to cultivated crops. The caterpillars, when fully grown, are one and a half inches long, greenish black in color on the back, and bearing stripes on the sides.

There is a considerable variation in color some specimens being darker than others. They travel and feed mostly during the night, and this habit is mostly responsible for their sudden appearance.

Normally, the insect feeds upon wild grasses, but from these areas and attacks growing crops. Oats, barley, and wheat are the crops most commonly attacked, but the insect will also attack garden crops, particularly corn.

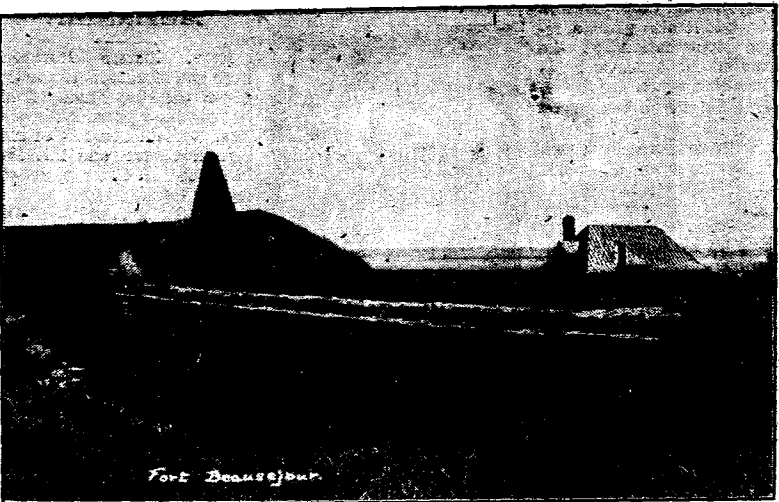

Control Measures

1. To protect uninfested fields: Plow a furrow around them, throwing the land away from the field to be protected. Dig a series of holes a foot or more deep at intervals in the furrow and scatter in poison bran mash.

To protect the remainder of a field part of which is infested, mow a swath between the infested and the uninfested portion and proceed as above. If time permits, the plowing of an additional furrow is an added protection.

2. To protect fields already infested: Broadcast poison bran mash over the field all through the grain or other crop, using 25 to 50 pounds per acre according to the severity of the infestation. Late afternoon is a good time to sow bait.

In some cases where the grain is already turning, it may be cheapest to harvest

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT" Continued

of drugs amongst the Chinese and foreigners who are temporarily within their sphere of influence.

With countless compositions to select from, why is it that radios persist in inflicting such triumphs of inanity on a helpless public? The radio is all right, of course. But it's the putting on the air of such senseless, silly, pointless twaddle unworthy of a third rate moron — the love lorn crooner, the tom tom jazz true to jungle ancestry—that arouses the urge to complain, deep and hearty.

A timely, but perhaps futile protest has been made by the American clergy against the air bombing of defenceless civilians. The appeal says:

"Have our hearts turned to stone, or are they still capable of human feeling? More than 10,000 children have been killed and more than 15,000 wounded in aerial bombings of open cities in Spain. On May 31, in one town, 600 were killed or maimed. Most of the victims were women and children. Photographs of hundreds of the murdered and maimed have come to this country. Most of them are too horrible for publication. What has happened that men and women can remain silent when confronted with such barbarity?"

"The answer is—we may as well admit it—that we have become accustomed to the horror. We no longer feel the same acute shock and indignation we felt when first we read such despatches. Let every humane person search his heart. Are we ready to acquiesce in these things?"

If we are, our boasted "Christian civilization" is already dead. What we see now is an incredible beginning of decivilization, proceeding faster and faster, in country after country that formerly held up the torch of progress. The last stand for decency, kindness, humanity and true enlightenment must be made, it seems, in the democratic countries. This means especially the United States, the British commonwealths, France and Scandinavia. If we fail, the world will be no place for decent men and women. And probably there can be no stopping this appalling slide back into primitive savagery without stopping war itself. It is doubtful today whether that can be done, yet obviously the effort must be kept up until the end.

The famous old clipper, Cutty Sark, recently added one more to her long list of voyages. She sailed from Falmouth to the Thames, where, anchored off Greenwich, she is to be used as a sister training ship to H.M.S. Worcester by the Thames Nautical Training College.

It is pleasant to think that, like Odysseus, she has found after her wanderings an affection unshaken by time and other suitors, which would not allow her to pass forlornly into the oblivion of the ship-breaker's yard. Pleasant to think that when for the last time the order "Let go!" was given aboard her, and following the splash of the anchor, she "lay asleep upon her iron," it was only to awake to a new, and equally honorable, activity. She is becalmed, but not fretful and impatient as in the doldrums; and if, on the other hand, she misses the glorious days when she rode before the trades or was hounded in vain by the "grey beards" of the Atlantic, at least she has a crew whose youthful imagination will delight to accompany her memories of heroic ventures.—Christian Science Monitor.

If new diet theories are widely accepted, the "groaning board" is going to disappear from Canadian life. Scientists not only tell us that we should eat oftener, six meals a day not being too many, but that the total amount of food consumed should be less than we now eat in three typical Canadian meals. In fact, we ought to eat only about two-thirds as much food in the course of a day as we do now. What would such a regime do to our Thanksgiving dinner, the Christmas feast, or the Sunday gorging followed by napping? It may be too soon to surrender these time-honored feasts even in thought. The European people whose example of six meals a day we are urged to follow, have their great feasts which, from tales we've heard, put our own to shame for quantity, variety and the length of time spent at the table.

Plot a Safe Course

FINANCIAL irresponsibility is a rock on which an estate can be wrecked very readily. Even though the relative or friend you would like to appoint executor of your Will is eminently trustworthy and today financially strong, you have no means of knowing what his situation may be when he is called upon to administer your estate.

Follow the safe course by appointing an executor whose permanency is assured, and whose financial responsibility is impregnable. The Eastern Trust Company offers continuous existence, and a record of progress and development of over more than 45 years.

Mr. Owen said that he was associated counsel to Mr. Cronin's lawyer, Mr. Spence, that he was acting in an advisory capacity, because he had some knowledge of the transaction involved. The case is now under consideration by a court appointed auditor.

Day of Water Sports Ends Successfully

ALL SWELLED UP!!

This poodle is all swelled up with his own importance on learning he was to be in the big Labor Day Parade at the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition. Fifteen or more of these rubber giants will form the Broadway Balloon Parade to mingle with decorated floats and bands in labor's celebration in Halifax, Sept. 5, the last day of the big Fair.

Digby's day of water sports, conducted under the auspices of the Digby Civic Band, ended most successfully, bringing large numbers from many distant points to the town. The fine weather of the week end continued, and conditions for all events were ideal. The programme got under way at 10.30 Monday morning with a mammoth parade of floats and decorated cars headed by the sponsors of the day's celebrations—the Digby Civic Band. The parade which started from near the head of the government pier, ended its way south along Water Street to St. George Street, thence to Queen St. and north to the Racquette, returning along Water Street to the band pavilion, where they were reviewed by the judges, (the clergymen of the town) and prizes awarded as follows:
Floats:—1st prize, Royal Department Store, Digby; 2nd prize:—MacDonald Motors, Digby.
Decorated Cars:—1st prize, Wright's Dry Goods Store, Digby; 2nd prize: Farmers' Market, Digby.
Special Prize:—Beth Dunn, Digby.
Water sports took place Monday afternoon in front of the band stand, following a brief concert by the band. These events were keenly contested, and attracted large numbers of spectators who lined the water front. The log rolling contest was won by Willard Jack, Bear River, while second place was awarded Lawrence Toney, Cambridge.
The team of Lawrence Wamboldt and Willard Jack, both of Bear River, captured first place in the double canoe race; William Brooks and Louis Pictou, also of Bear River, coming in second.
Wamboldt and Jack also won the canoe tilting event with the team of Pictou and Brooks, coming in second place. In the double gunwale race Lawrence Toney and Willard Jack captured first position, with Wamboldt and Willard Jack close seconds. In the four man canoe race Walter Jack, Louis Pictou, Lawrence Toney and W. Brooks finished in first position, while the Digby team of Sydney Smith, Vernon Bent, Stanley Spray and Ted Sanford came in next best. Lawrence Toney won the canoe race without poles or paddles, with Walter Jack as runner up. The teams of Jack and Wamboldt; Brooks and Pictou, respectively, won the canoe rescue race.
Yacht Races among yachts of the newly organized Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club of Digby, were a great attraction Monday afternoon; the trim yachts sailing twice around a triangular mile and one half course. Twelve craft, divided into two divisions took part in this event—four in a class for larger sail boats, and eight in a class for smaller craft.
With the larger boats, that of Alan Shennstone, of Toronto, and a summer visitor at Smith's Cove, crossed the finish line first, a full leg ahead of the runner up, Percy Weir, of Digby. Channing Lefebvre, of New York, a summer resident of Digby, and commodore of the club, came in third, with George C. Ryan, Digby, fourth. Lefebvre was first around the buoy, but lost ground as the race progressed.
With the smaller boats, Bob Milbank, South Orange, N. J., and summer resident of Smith's Cove, won through a default, Louis Cox coming in first, but Cox admitted he fouled Billy Ganong, and forfeited the prize; Ganong won second place.
The motor boat, Rip Tide, Capt. Gordon Burnham, won the motor boat race, with the boat of B. C. Mumford, Margaretsville, coming in second. Entries for this event went over the course Monday, and were allowed handicaps to offset various speeds of which the entrants were capable.
The boxing card put on in the Bijou Theatre Monday night as part of the Band Day and Water Sports program, was well attended. "Tiger" Warrington with a group of boys ranging in weights from "flea weights" to light-heavies and from all sections of Nova Scotia, gave the fans what every one agrees was "their money's worth."
The best fight by far of the evening was between Bruce MacDonald, of Liverpool, 137 pounds, and Jimmy Silver, Bridgewater, also 137 pounds. Six 3-minute rounds. The judges decision was split and the referee awarded the fight to Bruce MacDonald. Two gamey, clever boys. The Johnson twins—"flea weights"—83 pounds and 84½ pounds fought a draw. Two little colored fellows.
The only knock-out of the evening came when Tommy Norman, 113 pounds, gave about 20 pounds away to "punch" Farmer and got put away in the 4th round. A left followed by a right cross finally did the trick.
Clayton Jarvis, 175 pounds, Liverpool, gained a hard earned decision from Henry Clements, 172 pounds, of Digby. Clements is strong, tough and will probably make a very good fighter with a few more bouts. Rough house tactics through inexperience probably lost him the decision.
The last fight was between the well-known "Tiger" Warrington, 175 pounds, one of the leading contenders for the light heavy weight championship of the world and his sparring partner, tough, unkillable, Tommy Falls, 190 pounds, who put on 5 three-minute exhibition rounds. Using 16 oz. gloves, they didn't bother to pull their punches, and it was exciting from beginning to the last gong.
Referees were: "Kid" Tremaine and Richard-son, of Yarmouth.
Judges: Vincent Gennette and Lea Peck.

SPEED, SPEED, SPEED

This man and his car have travelled over the surface of old Mother Earth at a faster pace than any other human or machine, but never satisfied, they're out to better their mark. Capt. George Eyston is the man peering at you out of the cockpit of the famous Thunderbolt, the car in which he set the land speed record of 312 miles per hour over Utah's salt flats last year. Capt. Eyston has had the car redesigned since then and is in the United States determined to smash the "old" mark. Workmen are seen in the lower picture wheeling the 34-foot car out of its specially built garage.

About This and That

The day of reckoning is coming, it always comes after a splurge of reckless spending, and it is not at all pleasant to contemplate. The nation's tax load has already been increased greatly, and still is going up. Federal, provincial, and local governments expect to take many millions in taxes out of the pocketbooks of citizens this year. Increased taxes paid by one industrial firm (in the United States) since 1935, would be sufficient to employ 6,500 additional workers, men now without jobs, for one year. More money is being paid in taxes than citizens spend for all food they consume. The federal government owes a debt of many billions of dollars. Cough up!

The men needed in this world today are the creative optimists who face the future with courage and intelligence, not the pessimistic drippers of tears who beat their breasts and spread imaginary ashes on their heads. Big businesses will be created by young men not yet born. It will be based on ideas not yet brought to light. All present businesses will change. Hidden in the great universe is an inexhaustible supply of all that is needed to fill the wants of men. Men of ability, seeking for what is best, will bring forth riches of which today we do not even dream. We live in a world of adventure. Let us waste no time entertaining negative thoughts about the future. Each day is the beginning of a new era of progress. Manna constantly falls for those who see it, nourishing them as they trudge through the heat across the desert. Eventually they find the promised land, and after them come the millions who will share the riches they have discovered. To the young men of today, therefore, we say: The age of opportunity is always just beginning. This seems to us to be the keynote for the youth movement.

Once in a great while we hear some one apologetically

Drowns When Speed Boat Capsizes at Weymouth

Vincent Bowe, 32 year old Weymouth garageman, and father of four children, was drowned in the Sissiboo River, a few hundred yards above the Weymouth traffic bridge, and opposite the Goodwin Hotel boat house, shortly before eleven o'clock Sunday morning.
Bowe, with three companions, Robert Brooks, Clifford Campbell and Clarence Gaudet, all of Weymouth, were trying out his taboggan speed boat, in which they had planned to come to Digby Sunday, where they would enter the races in the water sports which were held here Monday afternoon.
Cruising up the river above the bridge, they were travelling at a good rate of speed. In attempting to turn the boat about face in the river, only 100 feet or so from the shore, the turn was apparently made too suddenly for the speed at which the craft was travelling. Bowe and Gaudet catapulted overboard.
Gaudet, although a poor swimmer, succeeded in reaching the shore. Bowe sank to the bottom quickly with very little struggle. It is thought that the shock of the emersion was largely responsible for his death. Bowe had been on poor health all winter, having suffered a severe attack of pleurisy, and had not yet fully regained his strength.
The accident occurred at 10.45 Sunday morning. Numerous boats, aided by the R. C. M. P. from Digby, grappled in the river for his body, which was brought to the surface by Adolph Muise a few minutes before two o'clock Sunday afternoon.
Fearing the remains would not be found before ebb tide, nets were being placed before the bridges to prevent the body from being carried out of the river into the Saint Mary's Bay with the outgoing tide.

Father Rescues Son From Burning Building

A family of three were rendered homeless Tuesday noon in a fire which destroyed the little cottage of Alton Wilkins, at the edge of the town dump in the south end of Digby. The little home was built by its owner about two years ago, and was uninsured.
The fire was caused by a spark falling out of the kitchen stove. At the time, both Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins were away, having left the house in charge of a neighbor. Mrs. Wilkins was working at the home of K. E. Collins, while Mr. Wilkins had been out all night shore fishing.
The woman in charge of the house became frightened when the fire broke out, and ran out of the dwelling for help, leaving little three and one half year old Harold Wilkins asleep on the kitchen lounge. Mr. Wilkins returned home in time to see his home in flames, ran into the kitchen and rescued the little boy, who was almost suffocated by smoke. It was only a matter of a few minutes after Wilkin's timely arrival when entrance to the building would not have been possible.
With the exception of a baby crib and a wash tub, none of the contents of the cottage were saved.
David Outhouse, who entered the Digby General Hospital last week, has since gone through an operation, and is improving.

Saves Child From Drowning

Another drowning accident was narrowly averted at Digby, early Sunday afternoon. Had it not been for the prompt action of Mrs. Percy Berry, of Clementsvale (nee Eileen Ellis, Digby), the life of little two and one half year old Roger Winchester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Winchester, of this town, would probably not have been spared.
The little chap was playing with other children on the concrete abutment at the head of the government pier, when he slipped and fell into several feet of water. Mrs. Berry, who was on the wharf hearing an outcry from the children, and without a second's hesitation, leaped off the pier, caught the little fellow by the nape of the neck, and passed him to Arthur Thomas, who lifted him to safety.
At the time of the rescue, Mrs. Berry, who is a strong swimmer, was clad in a bathing suit, and was about to take a dip in the waters off the pier.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION

The Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition has often been called the "Show Window" of our province. Here you see displayed the finest products of our country.
There are many departments, each one involving talent and skill and perhaps the most interesting of all is the Household Arts Department.
As a possible exhibitor, you'll be interested in this opportunity to present your particular household talent before the people of the province and thousands from outside Nova Scotia. Besides this pleasure, you'll be in line for the prizes offered annually by the government of Nova Scotia through its Exhibition arrangements.
Nova Scotia handicraft is distinctive and beautiful. Nova Scotians do not always realize that many of the things they make in their homes are not merely articles of utility but things of beauty that attract great attention at fairs and exhibitions and reflect great credit on the province.
Every country has its own special products which are distinctive of that country. Centuries have produced certain types of home handicrafts which have been developed by the women. The early settlers coming to Nova Scotia brought with them the knowledge and skill which they inherited, and also developed new types of handicraft to suit their new conditions.
The Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition is the proper place to exhibit these articles of distinction and beauty. People, and this means many thousands, would never see these articles if it were not for the exhibition, because no attraction of its kind draws such large crowds and no other fair or exhibition has the facilities with which to present prominently the handicraft so peculiar to the country people of Nova Scotia. Entries for the Household Arts Department close August 20, and prize list can be obtained by writing the Manager, Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition, Halifax.

PATTERN PICTURES

Long shadows, with the sun as a ready-made spotlight—and the potted flower is twice as interesting. Don't overlook the pattern in the floor grooves.

PATTERNS make fascinating pictures, and they are all around you—shadow patterns, ornamental ironwork, window grilles, railings, wheels, stacks of lumber, piles of grain—groups of people in a formal arrangement.

Include a definite pattern in your pictures, and they will have an unusual, "different" quality.

When you go to the beach look for patterns in sand ripples and the shadows cast by beach grass. Climb a high bank or diving tower, and shoot down on your crowd when they are sunning themselves in a circle or formal arrangement like the spokes of a wheel which gives pattern interest to the picture.

Take pictures of scenes through things, such as ornamental ironwork. The outlines form patterns which make the scenes more interesting. Picture a tennis player through the net or racket—or let him hold the racket so that the sun casts an interesting cross-cross shadow pattern on his face.

Out in the country, try picturing scenes through wheels of farm equipment—for instance, "frame" a landscape through the tall wheel of a hay rake. The spokes and rim of the wheel give pattern interest. In town, picture shadow patterns on a brick sidewalk or street. The shadows give one kind of pattern interest, and the pattern of the paving adds another.

When a new house is going up—before the roof and weatherboarding are put on—there are pattern chances in the framing and roof timbers. Get inside, point the camera upward, and picture workmen on the roof. Look for pictures, too, in the steelwork of bridges and trestles, and in the criss-cross patterns of wires and cross-beams at the top of telephone poles.

It's fun to hunt patterns, and they add new interest to your pictures. Keep your eye open for them, and snap any that look good.

John van Guilder.

Wife Preservers

Melted butter and powdered sugar mixed with enough maple syrup to give it the right consistency to spread in a favorite cake using with Joan Fontaine, across bottom.

Miss Patricia Hatheway, who has been a student at the Sorbonne, Paris, is at present the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hatheway, at their new home in Lower Lincoln, N. B., and will not return to Paris until October.

On Tuesday of last week, the clinic held by Dr. J. J. McRitchie, Divisional Health Officer, assisted by Miss G. Anderson, R. N., was of great service to those who attended same. Year by year the Public Health Department is extending the scope of its work toward preventative medicine.

Miss Helen Harris, R. N., of the Digby General Hospital staff, spent Sunday at her home here. Miss Beulah Harris, also of the staff, has been suffering from an infected thumb, caused through injury by a heavy rose thorn, and is being cared for at the hospital.

Mrs. Walter M. Romans entertained Saturday evening for a number of visitors in town. Contract bridge was played at four tables and the prizes were won by Miss Blanche Purdy and Mrs. L. J. Lovett.

The Fortune Telling Racket

Wave of Superstition Impels Millions to Place Faith in Fortune Tellers, Whose "Take" Totals $125,000,000 Annually—Men and Women, Rich and Poor Among Victims of Tricksters.

Incredible as may seem in our modern scientific world, a vast army of people in Canada and the United States, today is spending millions of dollars in tribute to the racket of fortune-telling.

Riding the crest of a wave of superstition such as the world hasn't seen since the Middle Ages is a host of charlatans of all kinds—gypsy palmists, card manipulators, astrologers, crystal gazers, numerologists, phrenologists, and tea-leaf readers.

Their fat purses are bulging with a "take" of some

Mrs. Walter M. Romans went to Halifax on Tuesday to attend the Silver Jubilee of the W. L. N. S., which took place at the Nova Scotian Hotel, on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

GARDEN PARTY HELD

The annual garden party of the United Church of Canada, Bear River, was held on the church grounds on Wednesday of last week. Attractive booths were erected on the grounds, and the sale of ice cream (home-made and most delicious) candy, and fancy work, with a fish-pond, was conducted there. Inside the newly decorated vestry, which made a very comfortable and cool dining-room, five tables were set, and the supper served by ladies of the church. Owing to somewhat threatening weather, the attendance was not perhaps as large as usual, but all enjoyed the social contact and fine meal supplied. Financially, the garden party was successful, and the experiment of having the tables indoors proved a welcome one. Cordial thanks are extended to all who helped make this event so pleasant and profitable.

OBITUARY

Rev. C. Pearl Henderson There passed away at his home, Bear River, Wednesday evening, July 28, Rev. C. Pearl Henderson, after a long illness. Mr. Henderson was born in Bear River 47 years ago, and lived his early life in this town, where he attended Oakdene School, later leaving for the United States where he studied for the ministry of the Adventist Christian Church. His first pastorate was at Bear River, and he later held pastoral charge of the churches at West Head. Returning to Bear River he was pastor of the local church until last May, when he accepted the ministry of the Christian Church at Brocton, Mass., which he retained until illness forced his retirement. He is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Ruby Chase, of New Brunswick; his mother and three daughters, Mrs. Stewart, by a former marriage; and two daughters at home. The funeral was held from his late home Saturday afternoon, conducted by Rev. G. D. Brydon, of the Baptist Church, assisted by Rev. R. L. Roach, of the United Church. Interment was in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Henry M. Romans, Wolfville, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Walter M. Romans.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Foster, of Bridgetown, and Mr. and Mrs. Hall, of Truro, were in town on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Donkin and daughter, Barbara, of Halifax, were in town on Tuesday, calling on friends.

Mrs. W. J. Wright, of Fredericton, N. B., has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Jas. C. Brown, for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Atlee B. Clarke left for their home in Montreal on Monday, after spending ten days with the former's mother, Mrs. W. W. Clarke.

Rev. R. L. Roach, accompanied by Mrs. Roach and family, left on Monday for their vacation period—first going to Berwick, where they will spend a week at the Camp Meetings.

$125,000,000 annually from a gullible public.

The yearly harvest of the fortune-tellers is greatest in the big cities. New York City alone spends more than a quarter million dollars to indulge in the tremendous hoax. Other communities are duped in various proportions, depending upon their size and the credulity of their citizens.

Superstition Spreads

Three causes have contributed to the incredible spread of superstition on which the fortune-telling racket is based—a superstition surviving from the dark days of man's mental infancy when every one thought the earth was flat.

First, the World War. The thousands of families who lost dear ones at the front furnished a new fertile field for takers of every description, a group that, naturally, does not include the sincere students of the problem of spirit survival.

Second, the economic depression. When times are hard and jobs scarce, some people instinctively turn to the supernatural. In this frame of mind they are easy prey for the charlatan.

Third, there are persons suffering from a neurotic condition who really want to be fooled. In this group may be included those with a mild obsession who apparently believe that after they have inquired about their future they have done enough for themselves.

Fourth, paradoxically enough, is the wide dissemination given today to real scientific knowledge.

Facts Poorly Assimilated Never in world history has science been marching forward so rapidly, producing one astounding invention after another. Never in history has the information concerning these phenomena been so thoroughly distributed. Newspapers, magazines, books, and the radio devote much space and time to a description and explanation of scientific discoveries.

But it is true that many persons are not thorough readers, or are bored by articles and discussions of a scientific nature, and are wont to turn their pages—or their radio dials—to subjects of a lighter, more entertaining kind.

Consequently, much of the scientific information disseminated is poorly assimilated, if at all, and to thousands of people each new discovery described is another incomprehensible miracle, just as they regard the ability of a fortune-teller to forecast their future or give facts about their past.

Men Among Victims

Men as well as women in all classes of society are among the devotees of the soothsayer's "art." And though the depression has made the poorer class of people more vulnerable to the racket, by no means all of the victims are recruited from those of small means and the uneducated.

In the heart of the fashionable shopping district of New York City are several gypsy tea rooms where fortunes are told from the leaves left in a cup. They are crowded daily. And there are luxuriously furnished offices of fortune-tellers in the heart of the city's great financial district.

One of the most popular developments in fortune telling today is astrology—based on the premise that there is a connection between the heavenly bodies and man's destiny.

Absurdity of Reasoning Astrologers contend that one's future character is determined by certain planets, selected according to their position at the time of one's birth. But thousands of people are born every day at the same hour—and no two of these people have the same character and abilities or achieve equal success in life.

That makes no difference to the "star gazer." From him a bootblack and a prosperous ice cream manufacturer, who happen to have been born in the same month—and hence under the same planet—would receive identical "business forecasts" should they place their faith, and their cash, in his hands.

How dependable astrological and numerological forecasts are may be judged from these facts:

A pamphlet, giving horoscopes for the various months, and still used by hundreds of "diviners," was written as a joke by a popular stage magician when he was a mere boy.

And the "lecture" delivered by a fortune-teller at a New Jersey coast resort was written for him by a newspaperman, as was the book of horoscopes the soothsayer sells for $1 a copy.

Various Methods Used Fashions in fortune-telling change like fashions in hats, but, like hats, the essentials remain. Just how much hokum is used by the charlatan depends upon the gullibility of the people whose cash keeps him in business.

Whether the hokum takes the form of peering at an astrological chart; staring into a fire-bowl in which you believe the paper bearing your questions is burning; playing with cards; reading your palm; gazing into a glass ball supposed to be crystal or "interpreting" the mess of leaves at the bottom of your teacup, it may be characterized in just one word: "Bunk."

And though the fortune-tellers swindle the public out of millions by selling knowledge they do not possess, this is not the worst phase of their racket. The real danger lies in the fact that more often than not, the advice they give is unwise and destructive.

The technique of the fortune-teller consists of getting, by hook or crook, all the information he can about his unsuspecting customer.

If the patron happens to telephone in advance for an appointment, this is easy, for it gives the seer ample time to investigate and obtain essential facts.

But let us suppose the customer walks into the fortune-teller's establishment without previous announcement, and the fortune-teller has never seen or heard of him before. In that case the seer will deliver a long, vague harangue while his assistant, who has taken the patron's name upon his arrival, gets busy with the telephone and gathers an amazing amount of information in a short time.

How is this information conveyed to the soothsayer? That's where the physical tricks of the trade come in.

Some of the more elaborate establishments have a picture on one of the walls that is constructed so as to act as a secret panel. While the glass and frame remain stationary on the wall, the back of the contraption and the picture itself can be dropped by the man in the ante-room who is thus able to insert a card containing the desired information.

Naturally, the victim is placed with his back to the picture, and the fortune-teller simply reads his name, occupation, and such data as the assistant was able to gather from the card above the patron's head.

In the absence of a panel the seer seats himself with his back to some hangings, through which a small card bearing the information is easily passed to him in the semi-darkness that pervades nearly all of the fortune-teller's inner sanctums.

In the event that the client is not listed in the telephone book or other directory, the fortune-teller has to rely on his wits, which usually are well trained and pretty sharp.

Most every person carries some marks of identification which can be easily interpreted by a fortune-teller. Even if you do not wear a service club button, a wedding or engagement ring, or a lodge or fraternity pin, your speech and mannerisms, the cut of your clothes and your hair will tell the soothsayer a number of things that he will repeat to you in flowery, hocus-pokus style.

And this is all the "science" there is in the "art" of the fortune-tellers—keeping hidden how little knowledge they actually have of their victims and of concealing the source of the little they do know.

Actually, the fortune-teller's combined knowledge of past, present, and future may be summed up in one phrase—and even that is not original with them. It was coined more than 60 years ago by the late P. T. Barnum.

"There's a sucker born every minute," he said.

Open Letter

Dr. and Mrs. G. Allen Troxell, of Medfield, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Troxell's brothers, Curtis and Charles Henshaw, of Deep Brook.

Dr. Troxell, who has been in active service at the Medfield State Hospital, Medfield, Mass., since 1903, retired on May 1, 1933, for the purpose of taking a pension as provided by the State of Massachusetts Retirement Act.

They left Medfield, Mass., in May, for a two year vacation, first visiting Canada, where they expect to stay six months and the remainder of the two year term visiting the United States, more especially the Western Coast.

Upon their return they will reside at their winter home at Sarasota, Florida, and summer home, Turbatville, Pa.

Dr. and Mrs. Troxell—they found their zest for living, recaptured some of their old fire—when they turned the key in their cottage door, for a two year holiday, they so long owed themselves, while they have been away from the hospital since March, their holiday really did not commence until they came to Canada, they have visited Cape Breton, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia. They find things are at its best up here and they are having a real vacation. They have been sword-fishing on the deep sea, salmon fishing in the lakes. They are no golfers, but they limber up by splashing in the clear salt ocean surf, and select a grand coat of tan. They think there is no vacation like theirs, the more they travel the better they like it up here.

When they return after two years, they will be glad they said "Good-bye Hospital, I'm going North!"

Dr. and Mrs. Troxell are stopping at the Sea Breeze Hotel, Deep Brook, run by R. V. Dittmars & Son. It is a cheerful place to rest and mingle with fellow tourists. Deluxe arrangements, excellent dining room.

This hotel is located on the Annapolis Basin and the Valley may be described as one of America's most alluring resort places.

A sport centre, with fine fishing, marvelous white sand beaches, golf and every other conceivable recreation. Annapolis Valley is a fine place to come for a summer vacation—for a day, a month or a season, or for the rest of your life.

See Annapolis Valley's attractions and opportunities and you will want to come back.

Countries of Latin America Quitting League of Nations

Eight of Twenty No Longer in Geneva—"Good Neighbor" Policy Furthers Trend

The republics of Latin America are gradually drifting away from the League of Nations, and it is generally believed that the United States

"good neighbor" policy is chiefly responsible. Nicaragua has just resigned from the league, and Honduras will depart some time this month. Guatemala quit Geneva May 26, and Chile and Salvador have given the league the customary two-year advance notice of impending withdrawal. Paraguay left last year. Some years ago Brazil and Costa Rica representatives departed from the league.

Other Reasons Acknowledged Of the 20 American republics originally belonging to the league, eight have resigned or are about to do so.

It is acknowledged that there are other reasons besides the "good neighbor" policy for the withdrawals. Among them are the diminished prestige of the league, accentuated by the geographical distance of the republics from Geneva, and the financial burden of membership.

Even the Latin-American republics remaining in the league have shown themselves restive at league decisions. Most of them applied sanctions against Italy during the Ethiopian conquest only partly or not at all.

Some Want American League Some of the republics, notably Colombia and the Dominican Republic, are actively working for an American league of nations. A concrete proposal for such a league has been advanced for discussion at the Pan-American conference in Lima, Peru, next December. If the project is approved, further defections from Geneva may be expected.

The United States, officials say, has carefully refrained from bringing any pressure to bear on Latin-American nations regarding league membership. It is understood, however, that the resignations are welcome news in Washington diplomatic circles.

Rev. Mr. Higgins was in Digby on Wednesday to meet a daughter coming from Bermuda. After the arrival of the Princess Helene they went to Berwick to attend the camp meeting, accompanied by Miss Edith Letteney.

The death of William A. Mallette occurred at his home in South Range on July 21st. He was 65 years of age and had been in ill health for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Irving Thomas, Mrs. Earl Dingwell, both of Quincy, Mass., and Mrs. Leonard White, East Kempt, Yarmouth County; also three sisters, Mrs. H. H. Wanamaker, Cumberland Bay, N. B.; Mrs. J. M. Sabine, Weymouth, and Mrs. M. G. MacNeill, Milton, Mass. The funeral was held from his home in South Range, Rev. C. U. MacNevin, of the United Church, officiating. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Warrington, of Wolfville, were in town on Monday and Tuesday.

"Cutty Sark" Famous Old Clipper Ship

(Special to the Christian Science Monitor)

Newcastle, New South Wales—The Cutty Sark, the famous old teaclipper of the 1870's which recently set out on her last voyage from Falmouth to Greenhithe, where she will become part of the Thames Nautical Training College, is a mystery ship in spite of her fame.

Probably no other ship is able to show as complete a history as this clipper. She has had a whole book written about her by Basil Lubbock, the details of her designing, with a borrowed bow and rather full stern ("because old John Willis, who owned her, did not like his ships too fine aft"), her name from Burns's poem, "Tam O'Shanter," with its reference to the witch's "cutty sark (shirt) O' Paisley yarn," are known to all sailormen.

Yet with all we know of the famous clipper the reason for her fame is still a matter for guessing. Why is she so well known? Half the world imagine that she was the greatest of all sailing ships, yet she was not altogether that. While in the tea trade she beat the field in one year, but the Thermopylae bettered the Cutty Sark's performances in the southwest Monsoon on several occasions. In her only straightout contest with the Thermopylae she lost her rudder and the outcome remains debatable.

Australian Record

In the Australian trade the Cutty Sark holds the best average for the years between 1874 and 1880, with a figure of 73 1/4 days. But she never equaled the two remarkable runs made by the Thermopylae on her first voyages to the colonies—two passages of 60 days from pilot to pilot.

At the time it seemed that the consensus of sailors was that the Thermopylae was the faster, as she was considered by many the more beautiful ship. The claim of the Cutty Sark to the longest day did not pass without question. Her 363 nautical miles is usually cited as the best recorded, but there were attempts to show that the clipper ship Lightning exceeded this on more than one occasion. It is further pointed out that the Cutty Sark was never matched against some of the greatest clippers that were before her time.

The Cutty Sark has been a great ship but that does not explain how she has come to be known to countless thousands as the only known representative of the days of the windjammers. The fame is due according to C. Fox Smith, partly to the fact that the Cutty Sark has outlasted all her contemporaries. As the interest in clipper ships grew in recent years the discovery was made that one was still afloat. So the Cutty Sark became the object of attention by enthusiastic writers. She was written up, was photographed, sketched, looked at whenever she was in dock. There grew up a sort of Cutty Sark legend which promoted her from greatness to supremacy. And her name helped. Ultimately she has become less a ship than a cult—a symbol of miraculous speed in the days of sail.

How She Survived

The fact that she has endured is an unending surprise. A composite ship, she held advantages over the iron clippers against which she raced; they were old and past their prime when she met them. A wooden ship does not deteriorate as an iron ship does, and the green heart and teak of the Cutty Sark did not suffer much in half a century. So she lasted well. But her master, Captain John Willis, never sold a ship unless it was for conversion into a hulk. Yet he sold the Cutty Sark, and sold her to the Portuguese, a fact which saved her for this century and for Capt. W. H.

Downman, who bought her back in 1922 and refitted her. Stream-lining made her. She was built for speed in the days before cargo capacity came to play an important part in the lines of ships. More than once her masts and yards were cut down. Her speed did not appear to suffer, proof that clippers of her type owed their speed to their lines rather than to any sail plan.

In this century she has had a curious career. She sailed seas menaced by German cruisers and submarines, carrying supplies for the Allied armies. She was dismantled in the Indian Ocean, but made her way to Delagoa Bay, and then on to Cape Town for repairs. Yet the Armistice came when she was carrying a cargo of cocoa for Germany, cocoa which could not be delivered.

Miss Ferne Abbott and party, of Vancouver, who motored across the continent, spent a few days in Digby, leaving on Tuesday by the steamer Princess Helene.

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT" Continued

explain: "I spoke before I thought." More might so explain, for this seems to be an age of senseless chatter. Recently Henry Ford remarked on the habit, deploring the failure of talkative persons to use their brains before speaking.
Not so many years ago our school readers advised us:
"Think before you speak." And Josh Billings observed that "some people would do better to think twice." Now Henry VanLoon fears thinking is a lost art. He bases his conclusions not alone on conversation, but also on the literature of the time, the stage, and the movies. Speech does seem to reflect the superficial and artificial of the times.

We scarcely realize the value of freedom of the press, until we consider what a lack of it has done to the minds of ordinary citizens in other countries. Absurdly enough, the average Italian believes that the Ethiopian war was fought because the Ethiopians attacked Italy. The Japanese people believe that China was the aggressor in the present Sino-Japanese War. Even in England, the press has been ordered to quit publicizing the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and start publicizing King George and his family. Naturally the authorities in those countries realize the value of the written word in creating followers for any cause. There is a trace of irony in the fact that Japanese authorities have stated that China is using underhand tactics because she drones pamphlets explaining her cause over Japanese cities, instead of deadly bombs. We should be grateful that we have freedom of the press, for it is the only way the common people can get true, unbiased information.

John, is spending a couple of weeks with his mother, Mrs.
Alice Johnson.

Mrs. H. S. Hartlin and two children, of Bedford, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacWhinnie.

Miss Lucille Rose, who have been visiting Mrs. Gordon Snow, have returned to their homes in Saint John.

The Misses Nora and Katheryn O'Brien, who have been guests of Mrs. Ralph Hayden, have returned to their homes
in New York.

The Misses Marion and Juanita Snow, Mrs. Bertha Carty and Garland Hudson

ville Ferry; Miss Hazel Eaton,
R. N., and Miss Rita Plink, cent guests of Mrs. Ernest McGrath.

MIXED MARRIAGES LEGAL

(Family Herald and Weekly Star)
No church, be it the great and powerful Roman Catholic Church or the equally great and powerful Anglican Church, possesses any authority to over-ride the civil law
of the Province of Quebec.
Hon. R. A. E. Greenshields,
Chief Justice of the Superior Court in the Province of Quebec, declared when he ruled
as valid a marriage between a Roman Catholic and a Protestant performed by a Protestant minister.

"Such authority as the church has in civil matters,
is given to it by the law of the land, and the church, and every church is subservient to,
and in no sense dominates the law," said the Chief Justice.

His Lordship declared null and void a judgment rendered by Mr. Justice Alfred Forest in which the latter had annulled a marriage between James O'Kane, a Roman Catholic,
and Peggy Palmer, a Protestant, on the grounds that the marriage was illegal because it was performed by an Anglican minister.

Dealing with the trial judge's finding that the marriage was also invalid because the witnesses did not know the contracting parties, His Lordship said that witnesses to a marriage were simply "dummies", and declared that he would hazard a statement

"that 25 per cent of the marriages celebrated in this city,
or this province, are witnessed by witnesses who never saw the bridegroom or the bride before."

A marriage between a Roman Catholic and Protestant His Lordship continued, had been termed a "mixed marriage" by the imagination of a priest or pastor. "There is no description more unfounded or inexact," he added.
"There are in the Province of Quebec 'mixed juries' known to the law. There is no such thing known to the law of this province as a 'mixed marriage'. Such a thing is unknown to our law."

The Chief Justice said that while he enthusiastically supported church weddings,
there was no such thing as a
"church wedding" insofar as the law of the province was concerned.

A wedding performed in a market place, in a field or on a boat was legal provided the contracting parties were of age and had conformed with the necessary provisions of the law, he declared.

"The blessing of a church
has nothing whatever to do with the validity of a marriage," he continued. "Any church may bless or curse a marriage to its ecclesiastical heart's content, but it will not, and does not, in any way affect the validity of that marriage."

"I am the first to concede
to a church the right to make rules and regulations, or as I might call it, to pass domestic legislation governing the conduct of its members. If the charity of any church stops short of giving its members who violate its legislation
with respect to marriage, the saving grace or the consoling
benefit of its sacraments, so much the worse possibly for the charity of the church.
The Son of the Carpenter,
who spoke as never man
spoke, on the shores of the Galilean Sea, placed charity above all virtues."

STORE DESTROYED BY FIRE

The grocery store of E. J.
Warner, at Conway, was totally destroyed by fire, discovered shortly before six o'clock Sunday morning. None of the stock or fixtures were salvaged. The origin of the blaze is unknown, although it is thought the fire may have started from a previous fire
on Saturday, when fire was discovered in the upper part of the building and extinguished before any damage was done. The fire on Saturday was thought to have started from an electrical storm which passed over the district early that morning.
Mr. Warner estimates his loss at more than $3,500, part of which is covered by insurance.

About This and That

We can always find something to growl about. Lately it has been the weather. Farmers have kicked, hotel men have kicked, and the man on the street has kicked. There never was such a wet spell, they say. With the "cussedness" of human nature they see only the dark side of the clouds and neglect the silver lining—because there is a silver lining.
During July the fog whistle at Point Prima blew only 228 hours—but that was for fog at Point Prim and over the Bay of Fundy. Digby town and vicinity did not have half of that. Now study the following: The fog whistle at Westport blew 668 hours—the record for 37 years; the Yarmouth whistle blew 495 hours and the Cape Sable whistle 475 hours.
Compared with these figures Digby was basking in sunshine
—so what was there to kick about?

When King George and Queen Mary visited Paris recently, a total of 100,000 men—including steel-helmeted troops, 10,000 mobile guards, 20,000 regular police, 20,000 reserve police and a swarm of plain clothes men—were deployed for duty. Meanwhile, the Duke and Duchess of Windorsor go wherever they fancy, and no precautions anywhere.
When Edward laid aside the crown, he evidently knew what he was doing.

A prizefight, or indeed almost any kind of athletic contest has one supreme advantage. In a world and at a time when almost all the news we get is fraught with significance, the prize fight doesn't mean anything. It doesn't mean that the Nazi philosophy is good or bad; that the Negro race is or is not rising in the economic scale or anything else. It has to do with such elements as muscular strength, courage, inference to pain, sense of balance, reaction time and the like, which may be combined in any member of any race at

TRINITY CHURCH TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF LAYING CORNER STONE

ANGLICANS CELEBRATE 150TH ANNIVERSARY

With special services, next Sunday, morning and evening
Anglicans in the Parish of Digby, will commemorate the 150th anniversary of the laying of the Corner Stone of old Trinity Church. On July, 30, 1788, the corner stone was laid by Rt. Rev. Charles Inglis, D. D., First Bishop of Nova Scotia, which stone lays next to the corner stone of the newer edifice built 60 years ago.

Since the history of Digby
for many years was largely
the history of Anglicanism,
the following data will be of interest to many, especially in view of the Commemoration Services on Sunday.

The history of the Church
at Digby begins with the coming of the Loyalists, and the history of the settlement is practically also the early history of the Anglican Church in the place. It was in the fall of 1783, that between 200 and 300 families of refugees, most of whom had been members of the parish and had before the revolution
of Trinity Church, New York,
been in comfortable circumstances, came to "the wilderness of Nova Scotia," and settled in the unbroken forest in and around what is now the town of Digby.

At first the settlers were entirely without religious ministrations of any kind, until Mr. James Forman, a refugee and a half-pay officer, who had opened a school in the place, conceived the idea of assembling the pupils together and reading the Church Service and a sermon to them on Sundays. In a few weeks he had crowded audiences, and his efforts were said to have made a visible alteration in the manners of the people, who were before greatly addicted to drunkenness, profanity and the abuse of the Lord's Day.

The first clergyman to hold a service in Digby was almost certainly the Rev. Jacob Bailey, of Annapolis, who visited the settlement in August, 1784. Mr. Bailey, seeing the great need of a resident minister, recommended Digby to the notice of the S. P. G. He speaks of it as containing some 500 families of loyal refugees. About a mile from Digby, there was another town, which consisted of 65
families of negroes, who before the war had been slaves in the southern states. Many of these were baptised by Mr.
Bailey, and they seem to have been most willing to receive religious instruction. In the same year Mr. Wiswall, of Cornwallis, visited Digby,
holding service and administering the sacrament of Holy Baptism. He speaks of there being already 400 houses, but no minister of any denomination. "Mr. Bailey took the greatest interest in the new settlement, and visited it as often as his duties at Annapolis would permit him."

Mr. Bailey visited Digby
and preached on Sunday, Sept. 11, 1785, when at the request of some of the inhabitants, he gave notice for a meeting to be held on the coming Michaelmas Day for the election of churchwardens and vestry. A meeting was accordingly held at the house of Mr. John Roome, when the following were elected, a vacancy being left on the vestry for the minister,
who by the law of the province, was reckoned as one of the corporation.

Wardens—Mr. James Wilmot and Col. Isaac Hatfield; Vestrymen—Messrs. John Roome, John Moore, Ebenezer Street, Thomas Bayeux, Jonathan Fowler, John Bur-
ket, Thomas Davenport, Richard Hill, Esq., Capt. Patrick Hagarty, Dr. Christian Tobias, Dr. Joseph Marwin.
The newly appointed vestry met on Oct. 3rd, and decided to petition the governor to appoint a district for a parish which they decided should be known as Trinity Church Parish. This was accordingly done by Governor Parr.

Two other priests of the English Church seem to have been at Digby at an early date. In 1785 the Rev.
George Pantou received a grant of land in the new township, and in 1786 the Rev. Ed. Brudenell is said to have been the first Anglican clergyman at Digby. He was the youngest son of an aristocratic family in England,
and was chaplain on a man-of-war. He soon returned to England, leaving a house in Digby in charge of servants.
The house was eventually sold for $500 to pay the debts of the establishment.

The S. P. G. Report for 1785-1786 thus speaks of a petition sent to them by the inhabitants of Digby: "they represent, that their township contains between 200
and 300 families of Loyalists,
the greatest part professing themselves of the Church of England, all emigrants from the different states of North America, who from their attachment to the King and the British Government have become voluntary exiles. That their little savings from the ravages of war, and the confiscation of their estates, have been mostly expended in providing themselves habitations in a wilderness country and in the cultivation of their lands; so that they are not yet in a condition to afford
that support to a Minister,
which their inclinations
prompt them to, and his character and station require,
without the additional bounty of the Society. Willing,
however, to do their utmost,

they engage to build a church
and parsonage house as soon as possible, and in the interim to provide a place for divine service, and an house for the Missionary, with the further promise of an annual subscription, which shall not be less than £25 at present."

The Society granted the petition, and appointed the Rev. Roger Viets their missionary at Digby with a salary from the Society of £50
a year. The Society requested Mr. Viets to go at once to Digby, and he was also asked to pay attention to the negro settlement near it, and "to other adjoining places where there is no regular administration of the word and sacraments."

The Rev. Roger Viets was the son of John and Lois Viets, and was born in Simsbury, Connecticut, in 1737.
He entered Yale College at the age of 18, and graduated in 1758. Although his parents were strong Presbyterians, his studies led him to join the Anglican Church.
He went to England, received holy orders, and became the
S. P. G.'s missionary in his native town. Having given fodder to some Loyalists, who came to his house at midnight, he was sentenced to pay a fine of £20, and to be imprisoned for one year in Hartford jail. He came to Digby in 1786.

At the time of Viets' appointment to Digby there were three new missions vacant in Nova Scotia—Digby, Chedabucto, and Yarmouth.
Governor Parr had recommended Digby as the most eligible, and the Society accordingly offered it to Viets.
In the fall of 1786 Viets returned to the States to fetch his family and effects, with which he returned from New England in the following June.

At a meeting held on April 3rd, 1787, it was resolved that as the sum of money,
labour and material as yet subscribed for the building of the church was insufficient,
the work should be postponed,
and efforts made to secure a larger subscription. It was also arranged that the vestry was to have the use of Mr. James' house for the services at the rate of £5 per annum.

Soon after Mr. Viets' return a memorial was prepared and sent to Governor Parr, asking him for a grant of Church and School lands for the parish. At the same time a memorial was sent to Admiral Digby (after whom the settlement had been named),
asking his help towards the erection of a church.

The memorial of the Governor also stated that there was a square of land in the town, which had been allotted for church ground, and was then used as a burial ground,
and on which it was intended to erect the church. They asked that this land might also be included in the grant.

At the same time letters were sent to Dr. Inglis and John L. C. Roome, Esq., both then in London, asking them to solicit subscriptions in England towards the same work.
As a Mr. Francis Conihane, who with his wife had subscribed £20, was about to leave for the States and declined paying his subscription

before doing so, the vestry prudently decided that it was a refusal and voted to "forbid all Masters of Vessels or Boats of any kind to carry off
the said Francis Conihane (as they will be dealt with According to Law) until he has paid the said £20 or given satisfaction for the same to us, the Rector, Churchwardens
and Vestry of said parish."

In October of the same year a memorial was prepared and sent by Major Millidge who happened to be going to Halifax to Governor Parr, asking him to grant Digby as large a proportion as possible in a sum of £2000 which had been granted by Government towards the building of churches in the provinces.
Letters were also sent to Philip Mackington, and J. R.
Uniacke, asking them to use their influence for this purpose.

Soon after this a Sunday School was started. Writing in 1788 Viets says: "I have seen the Lord Bishop of Chester's plan for Sunday Schools.
I wish to know whether the Venerable Society would approve of one in this parish;
if so, I will use my most diligent endeavor to establishing one here." In June, 1789, he writes: "We have instituted a Sunday School, much upon the plan of those in England which Mr. Foreman and I at present teach gratis; this we find tends greatly to interduce youth into the principles of Virtue and true Religion."

At a vestry meeting held at the house of Robert Ray it was reported that the Governor had granted £300 towards the erection of the church. At this meeting Mr. Wilmot produced two plans for the proposed church, the larger of which was chosen by a majority of those present. The following Monday, the vestry publicly tendered their thanks to Major Millidge for obtaining the grant of £300. At a meeting held on May 12th,
"Major Millidge, James Wilmot, Patrick Haggerty and Samuel Warne reported that agreeable to the Order of the Last Vestry they with the assistance of Jesse Keen (a carpenter) had made an Estimate of the Cost of Building
the Church which amounted to £533, 18s. 10d which the Commissioners had sent to the Governor with the plan of the Church, "Major Millidge, Col. Hatfield and Jonathan Fowler were then appointed to "Contract and Bargain
with all such Persons as do Undertake any part of building." On July 11th, at a vestry meeting, a plan which had been sent by the Bishop was produced, and after a good deal of discussion the proposed size of the church was changed. At a meeting held in August 26th, Mr. Roome reported that he had received a letter from his son in London, who had presented the Petition of the inhabitants to Admiral Digby. The Admiral was inclined to subscribe £100 himself, and to collect another £50 from his friends, provided the Church was built in a good situation
and of some permanent material, such as brick or stone.
In consequence of this the meeting decided in favor of a brick church with a circular chancel.

It was on the 30th of July, 1788, that the corner stone of the Church was laid by the Bishop, who was then on his way to St. John. On this occasion he was presented with an address by the Rector, Wardens and Vestry.
At the annual parochial meeting held on Michaelmas Day, 1788, Mr. Viets made a speech dealing specially with the prevalence of vice in the town, mentioning especially drunkenness, idleness, profane swearing, tavern-haunting, slandering, backbiting and lying, defrauding and stealing, all of which he considered were largely caused by "the Neglect and Contempt

OBITUARY

Mrs. Alex. M. Saulnier

Mrs. Alex. M. Saulnier, formerly Agnes Saulnier, of St.
Alphonse deClare, died very suddenly, on July 28th. She had been troubled with cardiac for some time, but her death was unexpected, and she followed the St. Ann's Novena until the feast, the 26th of July. She was 70 years of age, and leaves a husband, and one sister, Mrs.
Isabella Geddry, who was on a visit from Boston. The funeral took place at Saul-nierville, her native place, in the Sacred Heart Church, Rev. Fr. J. Doucet, C. J. M., officiating, and Rev. A. Saulnier, of Montreal Seminary, directing the choir and at the organ.

of the Lord's Day and the public Duties belonging to it."
He therefore called upon the magistrates, wardens and vestry to see that the laws against Sabbath breaking were duly enforced.

At this time parochial politics must have been very lively for at the meeting an entirely new set of wardens and vestrymen were elected to take the place of the old.
Messrs. Wilmot and Hatfield, who had been wardens ever since the history of the parish, were replaced by Messrs.
Frederick William Heche and Richard Hill. The meeting appears to have been a crowded
one and probably a somewhat noisy one. Before the voting began, Mr. Wilmot read out the boundaries of the parish,
in order that none but parishioners should come forward to vote. At the first meeting of the newly elected vestry it was ordered "that the benches, broke yesterday
at the Election be repaired,
and that Flavell the Sexton do repair them." How they were broken does not appear.

The new vestry seem to have decided upon a stone
church, and again sent plans to Admiral Digby.
Party feeling became so high in the parish that the late officials of the church had separated themselves and formed a new congregation, Wilmot, who had been one of the wardens, taking the services. At Mr. Viets' suggestion a letter was sent to the Bishop on the subject by the wardens and vestry.

Whether the Bishop took any action in the matter does not appear. The trouble however, seems to have subsided,
for Messrs. Wilmot and Hatfield were elected wardens once more on Michaelmas
Day, in 1798.

In the meantime nothing more had been heard of Admiral Digby's promised contribution and in June, 1789,
it was decided, at the suggestion of the rector, that the Church should be built of wood according to the original plan, and that the subscriptions should be at once called in. Writing in November to the S. P. G. Mr. Viets says "Our Church is partly inclosed and begins to make a handsome Appearance. We hope to be able to meet in it next summer."

bell of pink roses a decorated wedding cake had the place of honor on the prettily decorated dining table, while around it were grouped gifts of silver, china, pyrex and a sum of money included.

Old songs were sung, after which refreshments were served. Besides neighbors and friends of Clementsvalle,
guests included: Mr. and Mrs.
J. D. O'Neill, of Amesbury,
Mass.; George and Mary Al-

Bear River, July 16, when Rev. G. D. Brydon united in marriage Mizpah Evelynne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
George Baxter, of Digby, to Thomas W. MacInnis, of Bridgetown. The happy couple left for a motor trip
through the province. Mrs.
MacInnis will remain in Dig-ment at Port Williams.

Ed. Blackford, of Tiverton, has had an "annex" built for his house, so well known to the travelling public. The work was done by Hampton Outhouse.

The annual memorial and decoration service of the Odd Fellows, War Veterans and Firemen will be held at Forest Hills Cemetery on Sunday at 3.00 o'clock. Rev. E. M. Caldwell will give the address. The parade will leave the Odd Fellows' Hall at 2.30, accompanied by the Digby Civic Band. (If the weather is not favorable the service will be held in Holy Trinity Church). Members of the three organizations are invited to be present. Legion members and returned comrades are requested to "fall in" at the Legion rooms and to wear medals.

BOXING BOUT

In the first minute of the second round of a six-round fight between "Bomber" Jack, of Yarmouth, and Thurston Banks, of Digby, the referee raised Banks' arm as winner by a knock out. The end came suddenly, when, while exchanging blows in the centre of the ring a hard right connected with the "Bomber's" head, dazing him just long enough for the count. Thurston, who was fighting his fourth fight in Digby, winning three and losing one, is very popular, and the outcome of the fight was accepted with great enthusiasm by the Digby fans. The "Bomber" asked for a return bout and Banks has consented; so we can expect to see these two hard-hitting boys again in a local ring.

"Kid" Art, of Yarmouth, 140 pounds, got a technical K. O., over Johnnie Blinn, of Plympton, 145 pounds. Having received several blows toward the end of the 2nd round, Blinn was unable to answer the bell for the third. "Kid" Art looks good. He has a wicked right hand and he seems to know how to use it.

"Cat" Wilkins, Port Lorne, 124 pounds, and "Pigskin" Melanson, of Digby, 120 lbs., put on a very good show with "Pigskin" winning by decision. Arthur Thomas, Digby, 143 pounds, and "Bob" Cowan, Digby, 151 pounds, fought a draw. Good fight.

Two junior bouts between "Pops" Saulnier, 86 pounds, and "Brad" Denton, 98 lbs.; "Buddy" Barr, 88 pounds, and "Max" Pineo, 86 pounds, were won by "Pops" and "Buddy". With the exception of the main bout which was refereed by George Richardson, Yarmouth, the fights were all refereed by Richard Titus, of Moncton. Judges were "Bill" McNeil and Lea Peck.

In the next fight card to be put on in about two weeks time, we have been informed that the promoter, David, "Mexie" Daley, will take on an old opponent, Loran Dodge, of Middleton. "Mex" and Dodge fought in the old Victoria Rink about six years ago, the decision going to "Mex" on a technical K. O. Dodge is looking for revenge.

A KINDLY ACT

On Monday afternoon two of our summer visitors from New Jersey—guests at the Pines—walked into our office to ask about the family burned out in the South End of the town last week. We told them as well as we could of the circumstances. They mentioned having read the account of the fire in the Courier, and judged that the family could ill afford the loss. On leaving they left a ten-dollar bill with us for them, and a few minutes afterwards we sent it on its way through the kindness of Kingsley Collins, who saw to its delivery. This was a very gracious and kindly act on the part of total strangers.

TRUCK TRANSPORTATION

Should restrictions under the Motor Carriers' Act apply to trucks bringing passengers to town (particularly from districts where there is no regular or convenient means of transportation) on Saturday nights or for other occasions, that the Act be amended to permit transportation by that means was the gist of a resolution passed by a protest meeting of Digby business men, held in the Community Hall, Tuesday evening. The meeting was called as a protest to legislation which forbids truck drivers from bringing passengers to town for week end shopping.

It was stated at the meeting, at which P. W. Holdsworth was chairman, and H. A. Nichols, secretary, that at the very least 200 persons arrived in Digby by that means each Saturday evening during the summer. Should the Act be enforced to the extent they could no longer come to town, Digby merchants would lose considerable business. However, it was the general opinion that, in view of protests from this, and various other towns, particularly in Western Nova Scotia, no immediate steps will be taken to enforce the Act in this respect "to the letter".

The following, with bearing on the Motor Carriers' Act was read at this meeting:

The following described vehicles are declared exempt from the rulings of the Motor Carriers Act which requires certificates from the Board of Public Utilities for operation of busses in Nova Scotia, according to amendments announced by the Provincial Government:

A public vehicle while employed solely in taking persons to and from church.

A public vehicle while employed solely in taking workmen to and from their work over a route for which no certificate has been issued by the Board, or, if issued, transportation thereunder is not available at a convenient time.

A motor vehicle while employed solely in carrying passengers to a picnic, outing or similar gathering over a route for which no certificate has been issued by the Board, or, if issued, transportation thereunder is not made available at a convenient time.

A public vehicle while employed in taking persons with their small market produce to the local market.

Crippled by Pains in the Legs

Physical Instructor Loses Use of Limbs

If rheumatism is crippling your limbs, and making life miserable for you, read how this man obtained relief from the same trouble:

"I am a swimming and physical instructor. Early this year I had violent, stabbing pains in my legs from the hips to the big toe. In the mornings, I could not walk for three or four hours. Massage oil, pills, etc. did me no good. Someone begged me to take Kruschen Salts. In despair I got a bottle. After I had taken three parts of the contents, I was as fit as ever, except for a little stiffness of the joints, while in general health I was far better. Kruschen has put me on my feet again."—H. J. S.

Rheumatic aches and pains are often caused by the accumulation of too much uric acid in the system. Keep down the excess of uric acid, and it stands to reason you'll get glorious relief. That is just what Kruschen Salts does—brings quick relief from the cutting, stabbing pains of rheumatism, because it actually rids your blood of excess uric acid.

Laying Corner Stone

In January, 1790, it was decided that "as Trinity Church is now completed outside and inside, the floors laid, the doors hung, and a Reading Desk and Pulpit up, and as it will be abundantly more warmer and comfortable than the house now occupied for a Church, and also the new Church is not agreeable to our wish, properly consecrated by the Bishop we do not conceive that it will be amiss to keep Church in it this winter which will relieve us from an increasing debt for rent." The first service was accordingly held on the 16th.

On September 29th, Mr. Viets wrote "On Sunday the 11th instant our Church called Trinity Church, was with much solemnity consecrated by the Bishop in Presence of a great number of people of Digby and the circumjacent settlements. Our Church, if finished, is allowed to be the most beautiful and well-proportioned Building in the province, except perhaps, the new Church at Aylesford." In the same letter he thanks the Society for the gift of a large Bible and Prayer Book for the Church, and a generous supply of Lewis' Catechisms. He continues, "I have lately with much cheerfulness and satisfaction travelled the whole length of the Peninsula between St. Mary's Bay and the Bay of Fundy; then crossed the Petit Passage to Long Island; thence crossing the Grand Passage to Brier Island, and returned on the south side of St. Mary's Bay. In the course of this tour I preached at different places seven sermons and baptised fifty-one including five adults. Upon the Peninsula and two Islands are about sixty families; nine-tenths of whom are loyal refugees of the Church of England. Many of them never heard a sermon of any sort, since their arrival at Nova Scotia."

During these years Mr. Viets and Leonard the schoolmaster had been attending to the spiritual wants of the negro settlement. Writing in 1789 Viets says: "Several times in the year I visited the negro town, and examine the people, and preach a plain practical sermon to them; about 25 or 26 of them were confirmed by the Bishop last summer." The Society gave generous supplies of books for the use of the negro scholars, and gifts of clothing which was very much needed, were often received. In 1792 Viets wrote that "Much the greater part of the free Blacks are gone to Sierra Leone, about ten or twelve families still remain and about as many slaves. This immigration will probably make a great diminution in my future Notitia Parochialis." The Blacks indeed seem to have been more regular communicants than the whites.

At this time Viets was able to report that "the Methodist and New Lights, who had been creating such confusion at Annapolis and Granville, had made but little progress in his mission, except among the blacks and the lowest of the whites." This he attributed in a large degree to Mr. Foreman's diligence in the rudiments of religion.

In 1792 a plan of the pews in the church was prepared and the pews sold by auction, subject to an annual rent. Some dispute arose as to the advisability of having long narrow pews or square shaped ones at the side. Mr. Wilmet contended that "square pews could not be well calculated for the worship of the Church of England and that long and narrow pews were as the kneeling board and shelf were easy and convenient for devotion, that they could sit, kneel and stand as the worship required and their book lay before them which was what every real Churchman wished to enjoy the benefit of; he allowed that in the Presbyterian and every other Dissenting Meeting house, Bookshelves and kneeling boards there was None, and would be useless if there was as no one prayed there but the Clergyman and no book used but the Psalm book but in the Church of England every person has his portion of the worship to perform and in narrow Long pews he can perform that Duty with Decency and Ease if he is so inclined as it was to be hoped that every real and sincere Churchman was." The meeting decided against square pews by a large majority, but at another meeting it was decided to have square pews at both sides and narrow ones in the middle, as it was found that the square pews could be sold for more money.

Writing to the S. P. G. in 1793 Viets says: "The Methodists, Newlights, Swedenborgians and Anabaptists in the Vicinity have used every artifice and unremitted Industry to make Proselytes in my Mission, but hitherto with very little success. The Influence, Character and truly Apostolic Labors of our worthy Bishop has greatly retarded the progress of enthusiasm and established the reputation of our church not only in Nova Scotia but in New Brunswick."

At this time he officiated six Sundays and six week days in a year at Clements, and this year he speaks of having at last succeeded in establishing a Communion having administered it to communicants, all brought up as Lutherans.

A great deal of trouble was caused in Digby by the parish's title to the glebe land being disputed.

In 1794 he says: "The westernmost half of Clements appears to be considered as part of my mission. That settlement chiefly consists of Germans and Dutch. The former served his Majesty in the American War. The latter were loyal emigrants from the American States." The people of Clements had by this time started to build a church.

In 1795 he writes: "Under the request of the good people of Sissaboo I have established a Communion there. Likewise at Prince William, Henry's Cove (formerly called Sandy Cove), upon the urgent desire of a few devout people, I administered the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper."

In 1795 he again visited the Grand Passage, Long Island, Brier Island, etc. In a letter of March 25th, he speaks of the great difficulties in which missionaries who had large families were placed, owing to the extreme scarcity of bread, the very high prices of provisions and clothing.

Whilst at Yarmouth, the inhabitants used every inducement to persuade Mr. Viets to come and minister to them. The church people offering to give him a legal bond for £30 and the Presbyterians about £20, while the New Lights (Baptists) were also willing to contribute a little.

During 1798 Viets made another visit through the Peninsula, going to Minx Cove, Little River, Petit Passage, Long Island and Brier Island during which he preached six sermons and baptised three adults and many infants.

The New Lights were still troublesome and Viets requested that among other books Bishop Beveridge's Sermon on the Excellency of a Usefulness of the Common Prayer might be sent out as they "very much ridicule forms of Prayer." He also asked for a few tracts against suicide, as there had been several instances of it in his mission.

About This and That

It is said that the people of Boston have a thorough understanding of how to prepare baked beans and brown bread.
 They should, for according to legend, Boston is the home of that delectable dish. But apparently, this principle does not apply everywhere. There are places in Nova Scotia where tourists cannot find fish in the restaurants. They are obliged to eat beef brought from the western provinces or pork products from a branch of the Chicago slaughter-houses. A Financial Post writer declares that in Maryland he had tried in vain to find in any eating places fried chicken, supposed to be a specialty of that state. In Panama he was served roast pork and boiled beets, and in Jamaica he drank imported coffee. And now they are even saying that the best whiskey is not to be found in Scotland.

It is heartening to read that the grain crop in Western Canada will be greater than for the last five years. The people in the Dominion have been taught to believe that the prosperity of all provinces depends largely upon the conditions in the west. According to the Bank of Montreal and other authorities, the western crop outlook is favorable. An encouraging feature of all reports is that conditions are best in much of the area which has suffered most from drought years. With an assured income, the western market is exhibiting a livelier attitude. There has been increased buying of farm machinery and western jobbers and wholesalers feel that the time is opportune to add to their lines. If the people of the west become self-supporting again, it will mean that other provinces will get more consideration from the authorities in Ottawa. This should help to bring back prosperity to the Maritimes, because our people will not be called upon to contribute so much for the relief of those in distress in other provinces. And it should tend to bring down the price of cattle feed in the east. In any case it is good news that the west is working back to better times and it is hoped that the process will continue throughout the years.

We hear much of the tragedy of men being too old to work at forty. They are not too old to work, but, in many institutions with group insurance schemes, pension plans, etc., they are frequently confronted with the fact that they are too old at forty to get jobs easily. But what can we say to the boys who are at twenty, too old to get jobs in Nova Scotia? Unfortunately it is a fact that thousands of boys

Ramblings of a Rolling Stone

A couple of months ago some valued friends of ours came in one evening with the proposition that my wife and I join with them in a sort of a belated honeymoon trip Southern California — and perhaps Mexico — as our objective.

Business conditions made it impossible for our host—J. W. Clifton—a hardware dealer in the city, to get away on the date first fixed upon as the zero hour when we would "go over the top" and embark on the great adventure; but after a delay of a week or two one beautiful July morning saw us stowing all those indispensable vacation necessities into the baggage department of our friend's shining new Buick Special. Then with the motor purring as contentedly as a cat lapping milk and to the music of the tires as they hummed a merry song of the open road, we set out to follow what to us were untrodden trails.

Crossing the Columbia River at Portland, Oregon, we steered for the highway which winds in and out and up and down along the rocky shores of the Pacific. Thro' forests of giant fir and cedar; out into the open where stunted oak and storm tortured pine clung doggedly to the barren soil which gives but scanty covering to the stony mountainside. Around another of the thousand twists and turns which make this a demon haunted highway of a nightmare dream and we glide into a fairy land where the shining myrtle and the bark-shedding madrone vie with each other for the plaudits of the passers by.

On into California where the giant redwoods grow, and there, if no where else, one catches the true spirit of the poet when he sang: "The groves were God's first temples." To adequately describe the silent majesty of these giant trees—the oldest of living create things—as they lok down upon the puny race which stands, awe stricken, at their feet, is beyond any descriptive ability I may possess. Yet, as I looked up and up, trying to catch a glimpse of their spire-like tops, it seemed to me that the whispering of the wind through their branches was like the involuntary sighing of aged men—a sigh of weariness beneath the weight of passing years.

Years have rolled into centuries, the centuries into millenniums; proud cities have crumbled into dust and on their ruins others rose and lived and died, and time passed over them, and men remembered them no more since that far day when from the womb of mother earth a tiny seedling crept and lived and climbed into the light, sent deep and wide the searching, clinging fingers of its roots.

Mile after mile the highway winds its way through the many pillared temple of the sequoia groves. The swaying branches, like censors, fling a pungent incense to the passing breeze and found in me a willing worshipper.

Out from the shadowed silence of the trees into the haunts of men; the farm, the village, and the teeming marts of trade; then on and on past sun-bleached hills through valleys parched and dry, to where, beside the way, an ancient mission stands and broods, and dreams of days that are no more. The red tiled roof, the patched adobe walls tell of a century and a half of conflict with the undefeated hosts of storm and time.

Devil's Island Penal Colonies Abolished

No More Convicts to be Sent to Devil's Island and Guiana Neighbors

The dreaded French penal colonies in French Guiana, where convicts from France were sent to live in torment under the baking sun and in hard labor with no contacts with the outside world, are abolished, by decree of the Paris Government.

"A blot on the honor of France" has been the term applied to the prison islands—largely as a result of the stories of hardships and brutality told by convicts who have escaped from them. For years, too, the Salvation Army has conducted a fight to close the colonies and has done all in its power to help returned prisoners to take up normal life again. In the future, French convicts will be sent to regular prisons.

Will Serve Sentences Prisoners already on the thirty islands which make up the penal group will complete their sentences, it was announced in Paris, but no new ones will be sent across the ocean in the infamous old convict ship, the Martinique. Some of the men on the islands have committed no actual crimes but are regarded as political prisoners.

Neighboring South American countries long had objected to maintenance of the penal colonies by France in their neighborhood. Escaped convicts usually sought refuge in Brazil, Venezuela, and Colombia and made trouble.

Prisoners were divided among the three islands. On St. Joseph Island were the most desperate convicts. Ile Royal was used for sick prisoners. Political prisoners were kept on Devil's Island.

On the mainland is still another colony, known as Cayenne.

The French government has not revealed what use it proposes to make of the prisons when they have been closed.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The Oddfellows, Firemen and War Veterans honored their departed members Sunday afternoon by holding a joint memorial service in the Forest Hill (Anglican) cemetery. The memorial address was given by Rev. E. M. Caldwell, rector of Holy Trinity church, and the decoration of the graves was carried out by special committees. Led by the Digby Civic Band the parade left the Oddfellows' Hall at 2:30 o'clock. On their way back to the hall the parade stopped at the Digby General Hospital where several selections were played for the benefit of patients in that institution.

One of the outstanding features of the 1937 Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition was the fireworks display in the spacious outfield, in front of the grandstand.

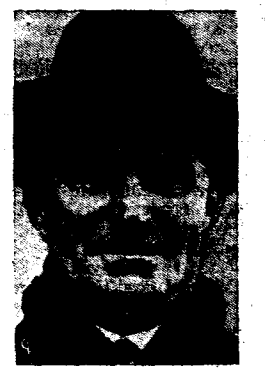

Out of town visitors last year acclaimed the fireworks display as one of the most colorful features of the show. The 1938 Exhibition program calls for an extended schedule of fireworks, a bigger and better display.

The larger fairs in Canada, the United States and Europe all feature fireworks at night, and from these great fairs come ideas that will be incorporated into the entertainment schedule of the 1938 Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition.

Dr. Pierre Bernard, noted animal trainer, has taught this "jungle king" a lot of tricks—and they say an elephant never forgets! Visitors to the big fair at Halifax starting August 29, will see these heavyweights ride bicycles, walk tight ropes and give an elephant's interpretation of the light fantastic. Dr. Bernard is a recognized authority on elephant life, having made a study of them in their native haunts, as well as on his own animal farm where there is everything for their need, even an animal hospital.

DISCUSSED AUSSIE TRADE

Inter-Empire trade relations between Canada and Australia were discussed when Sir Earl Page, deputy prime minister and minister of commerce for the island continent, visited Ottawa recently. Sir Earl, who came here from England, where he had also been with a trade delegation, is now in the United States on a similar mission. Australia is watching closely trade relations between all three countries.

INVESTMENTS DROPPING

American corporations and business men had direct investments of $6,691,000,000 in foreign enterprises at the end of 1936, a net decline of more than ten per cent from the boom year 1929.

Direct investments in Canada, according to a report by the Department of Commerce totalled $1,936,000,000. 1936, and not only exceeded investments in any other country but also were larger than those for any other geographical area in the world.

Other Investments

South America and Europe were next in line in drawing power for attracting American capital, with $1,466,000,000 and $1,245,000,000, respectively. Direct investments in other areas ranked as follows: West Indies, $753,000,000; Central America and Mexico, $628,000,000; Asia, $416,000,000; Oceania, $111,000,000, and Africa, $93,000,000.

American investments in foreign dollar bonds and other "non-controlling" holdings of foreign securities which amounted to about $4,204,000,000 were not included in the survey.

American direct investments in Cuba totalled $660,000,000. This figure represents a large drop from the 1919 total of $919,000,000. The shrinkage was caused by the fall of the prosperous industry there.

Manufacturing interests accounted for 50 per cent of the total direct American investments in Europe. Germany drew the greatest amount of American money among European countries.

CANADIANS REPORT EUROPE CALM, WAR RECEDES

All Europe is calm and is farther from war than it has been in many months, according to Canadians who came home recently on board the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Britain.

Despite the international blustering over minority incidents and the continual threats to peace, it is the re-armed Great Britain which is preventing any explosion, according to such qualified observers as Sir Edward Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway; Morris W. Wilson, President of the Royal Bank of Canada, and Eric S. Morse (formerly of Digby) of the W. C. Pitfield Company, Toronto.

In the face of this calm in the international scene, however, and notwithstanding the strength of the British Empire, these men were pessimistic that ultimately the feverish armament race on the continent would result in war. It was the same fear of twenty years ago—that some tiny spark in some small Central European country might ignite the whole continent.

Sir Edward Beatty was hopeful for an agreement between Great Britain and Germany, and he said that men in public and private life, in England, were looking to such a solution. For it would, he believed, prevent a major outbreak.

"I hope," said Sir Edward, "that there is enough sanity left in the world to prevent a conflict. Arms are the answer. Britain has to persuade the world that Britain is ready for any eventuality, and then perhaps there won't be any eventuality."

"I think Europe is more calm now than in a long time," said Mr. Wilson. "Lord Runciman's visit to Czechoslovakia is an evidence of that. But I fear an explosion will come eventually. The armament race may lead to it. Germany, Italy, France, and Britain are all arming at a terrible pace."

"Great Britain is determined on peace," continued Mr. Wilson, "and it is a stronger Britain today that is holding the other nations in check."

Mr. Morse, of the Pitfield Company, agreed with the general picture of Europe as outlined by Sir Edward and Mr. Wilson, and turning to the war in the Far East, he predicted that Japan would lose in her aggression against China.

Absent from Canada for nearly four months, Mr. Morse had travelled both in Europe and the Orient. China, he said, was stronger in manpower and financially than Japan, and he believed that China could hold out indefinitely and finally defeat the Japanese.

Cabled newspaper reports of major battles heavily emphasized Japanese wins, he said, because the Japanese propaganda department was efficient and the Chinese had none at all, or a very poor one.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellis and daughter Phyllis, are spending their vacation on the Shore Road.

Miss Joe Brown and friend, Mrs. Edmond, of Montreal, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Len. Eldridge, returned home yesterday.

The Norwegian steamer Orisa, Capt. Christopherson, 1255 tons and a crew of 23, arrived in port this week from Sarpsborg, Norway, in ballast and is loading pulpwood for a European port.

At the McKinnon House over the week end were: Mr. and Mrs. John Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McKinnon and Bruce Coombs, of Milton; Mrs. R. A. Bertuguet, of Brookline, Mass.; and Mrs. William F. Oldroyd, of Port Arthur, Ont.

Miss Jean Anderson, of the Digby Academy staff who has been touring England and France, has returned home. Miss Ina O'Brien, who accompanied Miss Anderson on the trip, extended her visit to include Ireland, and will return later by way of New York.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN TRINITY CHURCH

The parishioners of Holy Parish marked the 15th anniversary of the laying of the corner stone of the old Trinity church (the predecessor of the present fine structure) on Sunday, by special services, both morning and evening. This corner stone was laid by Rt. Rev. Charles Inglis, the first Bishop of Nova Scotia, on July 30th, 1788.

Matins were celebrated at the 11 o'clock service, at which the Rev. Dr. Forrester, of the General Theological Seminary, New York, was the guest speaker. At this service the special office of dedication was taken by the rector, Rev. E. M. Caldwell, when the following memorials were dedicated to the Glory of God: Memorial window: "Behold I Stand at the Door and Knock," given in memory of the late "Billy" Walker, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Walker.

Memorial window: "Come Unto Me", given in memory of Edwin C. Dodge and his wife, Emma, by Mrs. Sadie Burnham, of Lynn, Mass.

Memorial Window: "The True Vine", given in memory of Jane, Herbert and Thomas Bacon, by Mrs. Herbert Bacon.

Wardens' Staves, given in memory of the late Miss Olivia Wright, by her sister.

Pavement Light Standards, given in memory of the late Stanley A. Keen, by his mother, Margaret A. Keen.

At Evensong two selections were rendered by the Kentville Male Quartette and the sermon was delivered by Rev. E. M. Caldwell. Lay reading, Victor Cardozo, read the Scripture lessons.

At both services the music was under the direction of Channing Lefebvre, organist of Trinity church, New York. The special collections for the day amounted to $305.88.

CIVIC BAND NOTES

Last night the Digby Civic Band, Paul Yates, Conductor, played the final concert in the series of eight Thursday night performances at the Pavilion, the first one being given June 30. This is the sixth year in which the Town Council has provided this series of fine entertainments for the residents of Digby, and for the summer visitors who are enthusiastic in their praise of the concerts. Next Thursday night another concert will be played, but it is not a "free" concert. Every listener at the Pavilion, or near it, will be asked to "chip in" and help the Band by generous contributions, and the Band would be greatly pleased to receive individual donations which may be left with the Director at "The Little Art Gallery". Outside help is necessary if the Band is to be kept alive.

The audience and the players at last night's concert were extremely fortunate in having such an eminent guest conductor as Chester E. Whiting, W. O., Bandmaster of the famous 110th Cavalry Band and Director of Instrumental Music in the Malden schools, with them. A splendid programme of great variety was rendered in faultless style and received with enthusiastic applause. Mr. Whiting conducted the second half of the programme while the first part was conducted by Paul Yates, Director of the Civic Band.

Miss Edith Ellis, daughter of Boyd Ellis, of the Shore Road, is spending a month with relatives in Lynn, Mass.

HOSPITAL FAIR A SUCCESS

The annual Digby Hospital Fair, held at the Myrtle Hotel and grounds, Wednesday afternoon and evening, proved to be the most successful event of its kind for many years, with gross proceeds amounting to approximately $1600—topping the receipts of several years.

The fair, which has been an annual event since the Digby General Hospital was organized, was largely attended by thousands—people coming to Digby from many miles around, and was also well patronized by summer visitors of Digby and vicinity, many of whom joined with local people in promoting its success. They not only gave financial assistance but assisted in many ways in conducting the work of the fair—thus proving that our regular summer guests are as keenly interested in the work of the Digby General Hospital as are the citizens of Digby and its surrounding countryside.

Booths about the ground were especially attractive this year, and had on display and for sale many items of exquisite needlework, home cockins, farm produce, baby wear, etc. These booths were operated by local people and by Hospital Aid Societies of surrounding towns and villages.

The midway with its bingo and wheels of fortune and other games attracted the usual crowds, and proved to be one of the best sources of revenue.

Wednesday morning and afternoon, to advertise the Fair, a beautiful float, depicting Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, paraded through the town streets. The float was the work of Mrs. J. W. Merkel.

It is believed that the huge dinosaurs, the only members of the family of the reptile age many millions of years ago, lived as long as 500 years.

SOME OF THEIR DESCENDANTS, THE ALLIGATORS, ARE ALSO LONG-LIVED.

Do you admire Red? In a glowing tube? The gas within is neon, obtained from liquid air, with high voltage, electric current, it glows with an orange color in clear glass, and deep red in ruby glass.

It is estimated that more than half of the world's neon is produced in Canada.

NEON IS USED IN MANY OF OUR LATEST LIGHTS.

It seems the hero worshipers, in displaying their enthusiasm in a physical way displaced a cartilage in the young flier's breast bone.

Dean - Long

A marriage of interest to many in Nova Scotia, took place at L'Oratoire church, in Montreal, on the evening of July 21, when Miss Ethyl Long, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Long, of Clementsport Heights, became the bride of Bernard Dean, a resident of Digby for a short time some years ago, with Rev. Paul Chodot officiating. The bride wore a tailored costume of white with navy and white accessories and was attended by Mrs. Harold Pickett. The groom was supported by Mr. Pickett. The bride has been a successful school teacher in Yarmouth, Kings and Annapolis Counties, and before leaving for Montreal was tendered "showers" at Wilmot and Millville, receiving a large number of gifts. The groom is employed with the Harvey E. Dodds Ski Company, Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Dean are residing at 261 12th Avenue, Pointe aux Trembles.

HIGH PERCENTAGE IN MARKS

Results of the Provincial Examinations for Grade XII show that Digby students writing their examinations were 100% successful, with Miss Geraldine Syda leading her class with an aggregate of 426 (average 73). All of Digby's Grade XII class of 10 wrote the examinations.

Pupils of Grade XI, a class of the same size as Grade XII, were nearly as successful. In this class there were nine full passes and one partial pass (one student failing by a few points on English). He will be given an opportunity to write examination on this paper at a later date.

Miss Mary Murley led the Grade XI students with an aggregate of 482 (average 83).

The students of both classes are to be congratulated in the results of their examinations, as are Principal F. C. Purdy and other members of the Digby High School Faculty. Miss Jean Anderson and Miss Elizabeth MacWhinnie in the efficient instructions given those in their charge.

A MONEY MAKING Team EVERY FARM

THE real money-making "team" for any farm is "Science and Practice"—the knowledge of the science of agriculture plus a practical application of that knowledge to everyday farming operations.

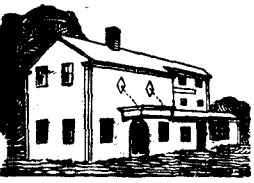

The young farmer who takes a course at the Agricultural College is best equipped to drive this "team". An eminent authority has estimated that while the capital asset of a common school education on the farm is about $1500, the capital value of an agricultural college training to a farmer is about $25,000. A high estimate for Nova Scotia perhaps, but the same principle applies. WHAT AN ASSET TO START FARMING WITH.

A course at the Agricultural College equips the young farmer not only to make a better success of farming but to take his proper place as a leader in his community.

Put that money-making team "Science and Practice", to work on your farm by taking a two-year course at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, Truro. No tuition fees, just books, board and room, and small registration fee. Special bursaries and scholarships are offered. Write for information.

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT" Continued

are facing the future with a feeling of complete helplessness in this province, because they have never had opportunities to learn to make themselves useful in industry. It is bad enough for a well-trained man to have periods of unemployment. But he knows or can feel reasonably confident that he can work at his trade when conditions favor him. As for the boy of twenty who has never had a chance to get a job, there is a distressing problem.

There are some people who believe that only in large cities can one really see and enjoy life, but it's usually the people in the large cities who realize that life in its fullest sense is lived in the rural communities. The other day a letter from the executive of a large Toronto publishing house contained the following: "To me there is no comparison between the genuine institutions which go to make up the so-called small town and the synthetic institutions of the city. I think I know whereof I speak. It all came from true experience with both. Regardless of whatever success I may have had in the big cities, if I could wake up tomorrow morning and find myself once more as the publisher of a weekly newspaper I think I would find myself about ten years younger and about ten times happier." There is a lot of truth in what this gentleman says. He could have selected no better word than "synthetic" to describe the attractions of the city. We have heard of men, born and bred in the large cities, who once they had a taste of life in a small community, were never satisfied to go back to the bright light of a big city to live. The letter from which we have quoted went on to say: "I believe that nine out of every ten men can do what they want to do and do it better in the smaller community. Far more than half of the people of the New World live in or adjacent to the small town, and they are either influenced or can be influenced by the country weekly in the manner that cannot be approached by the big city papers." The more we travel, and the more we meet men of importance in every phase of livelihood, the more convinced we become that one can really get more satisfaction in life, more real unadulterated joy of living, in the small community than in any other place.

THEY APPRECIATED THE HOSPITALITY

Following is a copy of a letter sent to Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Dittmars, of the Sea Breeze Hotel, Deep Brook:

"I wish to mention the hospitality of Annapolis Valley. Perhaps no other community in the country is more entitled to use the slogan, 'the hospitable community' than Annapolis Valley. Your cosmopolitan population assures the tourist from any part of the Dominion or any state in the Union that he will find there a delightful blend of the 'best people on earth', to use the slogan of a wellknown fraternal body.

"Mrs. Troxell and I want to thank you for the wonderful time we were shown during our stay at the Sea Breeze Hotel. It was certainly fine of you to take us around and introduce us to so many nice people. All of you made us feel at home. It isn't always that you meet so many nice people in such a short time, who can make you feel so much at ease with them.

"There was not one instance at any time to make one feel that they were strangers. It seemed to us to be just one big happy family. It makes us proud to be able to call our friends people like you, and we found the other guests shared the same opinion.

"When we left all of you at the Sea Breeze Hotel, we really did hate to say good-bye. To us 'good-byes' should be done away with entirely, because they are so hard to say, especially so when one is leaving such splendid people.

It would be hard for us to select any individual or particular incident to remember you folks by, because you completely rounded out our vacation to the utmost of our satisfaction. Each hour and each day seemed to bring new faces, friends and pleasures.

You may have noted in your copy of the Weekly Courier, under date of Friday, August 19, 1938, first page, first column, 'About This and That,' which reads: 'It is said that people in Boston have a thorough understanding of how to prepare baked beans and brown bread. But apparently, this principle does not apply everywhere,' and continues, 'that there are places in Nova Scotia where tourists cannot find fish in the restaurants. They are obliged to beef brought in from the western provinces or pork products from a branch of the Chicago slaughter houses. This may be true at the restaurants but not at the Sea Breeze Hotel. We changed from the restaurants to your hotel for this very reason. Beans and brown bread compare with the Boston variety, especially the brown bread. We found your vegetables came from your farm: fish, which was served in abundance, came from nearby waters; beef and pork came from neighboring farms.

Here and There With G.R.T.

I suppose that most of our readers have heard of the Winchester rifle. I wonder how many of them have ever heard of the Winchester Mystery House? I must confess that although I have lived in California, off and on, for 30 years, I never heard of this house until a few months ago when a friend, learning that I was about to make a motor trip to San Francisco, told me about the Winchester house, near San Jose, and assured me that I would enjoy a visit to this house of many towers, gables, stairways and other peculiarities.

It was in the year of 1880, I believe, that Oliver F. Winchester, inventor of the famous Winchester repeating rifle, passed away leaving a snug little fortune of some forty million dollars, a goodly portion of which went to the young wife, Sarah L. Winchester, who was interested in spiritualism to a greater or less extent. A short time after Colonel Winchester died Mrs. Winchester moved to California and selected a homestead of one hundred acres near San Jose in the beautiful Santa Clara Valley. Here she built a home surrounded with six acres of beautiful grounds, filled with flowers, plants and shrubbery from all parts of the world, and the rest of the estate she planted to orchards of deciduous fruits for which that part of California is noted.

Although Mrs. Winchester built a house containing 160 rooms, the house nor any one of its rooms was ever entirely finished. Every room in the house had some one thing left undone; for it was one of Mrs. Winchester's ideas that as long as she could keep building, changing and remodeling the place, she would never die. That was one of her spiritualistic notions. And another notion was, that the spirits should be entertained when they came to call on her. So she had a number of rooms set aside for the occupancy of the spirits. If the spirits had travelled a long way, she or they were sure of finding a comfortable bed at the Winchester home, and to be sure that the visiting spirits might not go to bed hungry, Mrs. Winchester ordered her butler to prepare places and food every evening for at least five guests from the spirit world. She was said to be a good provider, and such food as the spirits failed to consume the relatives of the kitchen help did their part in saving much of it from being wasted.

The Winchester house was certainly a haven of rest and a sanctuary for the wanderers from the spirit world that happened to drop in for a cup of tea and a slice or two of buttered toast or angel cake. When I looked around that old dining room and imagined Mrs. Winchester sitting at the table, asking the spirits this and that about bygone days and how are things in the spirit world, and getting replies through rappings from beneath the table, or from dancing glassware aboveboard, and at the same time requesting Jarvis the butler to give the spirit of old lady Poppycock another helping of buttered parsnips and the spirit of Dr. Dippey a little more applesauce, and perhaps the spirit of Madam Bloovinsky would like another lamb chop, I am inclined to say that had I ever been invited to sup at such a table I would have been more than grateful, if before seating me at the table, Jarvis had furtively whispered in my ear, 'I have some of the spirits of Haig and Haig in the gun room if you care for a shot or two before dinner, sir'. Yes, a couple before and maybe a couple after would have been quite alright especially if there was to be a tour after dinner, of that gooty old mansion with Mrs.

W. leading the way and a spook or two following close behind.

But as it happened, my visit occurred some fifteen years after Mrs. Winchester passed away from this material world with her spirit no longer dominating the affairs of the house of mystery. In closing up the affairs of the deceased Mrs. Winchester the property was sold to a Mr. Brown, who now operates the place as a sort of Museum, and I would say that he has rather a profitable business, the "take" from the curious running close to two hundred dollars per day, with practically no expense for upkeep or advertising. The visitors do the advertising by telling their friends about the place. The house at the present time presents a rather dilapidated appearance. It is badly in need of paint and general repairs; the gardens surrounding the place have not been kept up and the trees, plants and shrubbery are ragged and unkempt, and dying from the lack of attention. Gardeners, housekeepers, cooks, coachmen and other servants left the place long ago. A watchman, a cashier and a couple of guides—real flesh and blood guides—are the only attendants on the place.

Arriving at the main entrance to the house, the doors of which cost $2000 each, you meet the cashier, who takes fifty cents per person admission and passes you into a waiting room where you remain until a guide invites you to "step this way, please". Then you follow him through tortuous and narrow passages, into small rooms and large rooms, and up narrow stairways, just wide enough for one person, if that person is not too much inclined to corpulency, obesity or plumpness. In that case of course, the visitor might have difficulty in keeping up with the guide, who, like most guides, is not inclined to loiter on the way. Most of the stairways have thirteen steps, and most of the steps are only two and a half inches high, giving the tourist the feeling of being in a sort of treadmill at times. Some of the stairways lead into blank walls, others go upward for a short distance and then turn downward. Forty stairways and three elevators are the up and down equipment of this strange place. Trap doors in the floors and secret passages are also part of the planning of Mrs. W., and her spirit allies. There are also blind chimneys and over a hundred closets, the doors of some of them opening into a space about the thickness of a postal card, others open into air wells. The spirits suffered no inconvenience if they entered any of these closets by mistake, a tight squeeze or a quick drop into space being just another incident in the daily routine of the spirits of the Winchester house.

There are rooms in this house without windows, and here and there window screens have been installed on the walls instead of in the windows. There are thirteen bath rooms in the house, some with glass doors, others with screen doors. If the spirits ever used any of the bathrooms perhaps they were not finicky about the bath room door.

While the old mansion had its heating, lighting and water systems, Mrs. W. believed that a fireplace added to the coziness of the rooms, so she had forty-seven of them built into as many rooms. A very large and ornamental one was installed in her living room, but on the morning of the San Francisco earthquake—April 18th, 1906—the shock of which was felt as far south as San Jose, this fireplace fell with a great crash through two floors to the basement of the building. It was never restored. The earthquake also damaged much of the building, particularly the towers, steeples, domes and turrets, some of which were not rebuilt. In Mrs. Winchester's living room, she had a control system whereby she was able to turn on or off the lights and heat in any part of the house by simply pushing a button. She also had a telephone system connecting with all parts of the house and outside buildings. The windows in this room—thirteen in number—are of the finest French plate glass, which is so clear that one hardly realizes that there is any glass at all in the window frames.

The house has many expensive art glass windows. The chandeliers in the principal rooms are of gold and silver with glass fittings and ornamentation of the finest make and design. The thirteen scheme of interior arrangement extends to chandeliers also, thirteen lights to each frame. Evidently the number thirteen was a favorite one with Mrs. W., probably her lucky number, but one and three adds up to four, so maybe it was her unlucky number after all. Perhaps it was a notion of hers that by installing all of the turned posts in the house upside down, the bad spirits would refuse to enter such a place, but I'll bet that the carpenters who get the posts got a kick out of the idea.

All carpenter work, plastering, painting and plumbing was done by day labor, the only contract job being that of the ball room, and not much of a room at that, as far as size is concerned—just about the size of the waiting room in the Weymouth railroad station. The wood work in this room is beautiful and the floor of inlaid woods is really a work of art. The

RECORD LOADING

Eighty one hours after pilot Capt. R. R. Russell boarded the Norwegian steamship, Oria, at Point Prim, he left the ship, fully loaded, and bound for Europe with a cargo of 1681 cords of pulp wood, loaded at Digby. In all 27 working hours were used to load the steamship.

The Oria, 3005 tons gross, is in command of Capt. Christoffersen, and was 14 days coming out to Digby from Oslo, Norway. The record made in loading the cargo at this port, is believed to be the fastest ever made in loading such a cargo at the port of Digby.

Cargo was supplied by Kempton & Mason, of Digby, who engaged Frank Layton, of Annapolis Royal, as boss stevedore. F. K. Hayden, of Digby, was ship's agent.

Before leaving Capt. Christoffersen expressed himself as highly satisfied with the port, and the manner in which his ship was loaded. This was his first visit to any Bay of Fundy port, and he stated Digby boasted one of the finest harbors he had ever entered.

SUFFERS BACK INJURIES

Catherine Smith, 18-year-old daughter of A. C. Smith, M. L. A., and Mrs. Smith (formerly Muriel Nicholl, of Weymouth) of 88 Lancaster Street, West Saint John, lies seriously injured in the Saint John General Hospital, the result of an automobile accident at Spruce Lake, on Friday night.

A specialist from Montreal arrived by aeroplane and operated upon the injured lady.

Miss Smith was the passenger in a car owned and driven by Bayard C. Armstrong, 23, of Morna, N. B. The two were returning from attending golf matches at St. Andrews, N. B., when the accident occurred. Approaching Saint John near the site of the wood-cutting project at Spruce Lake, just before midnight, the car left the road and plunged into the ditch.

Armstrong escaped with slight scratches. The car, a 1938 club coupe, was completely demolished, the windshield alone remaining intact.

The two were taken to the city by a passing motorist, and taken to the hospital. Armstrong was able to leave after being treated.

Miss Smith graduated from the Saint John High School two years ago, and is an expert golfer, winner of several trophies for her skill on the links.

The car was towed to a garage, the cloth top torn, the front of the car completely stove in and the side windshields smashed; the fenders crumpled and the running boards smashed in. Traces of grass and earth was still lying in parts of the car which was described by garage men as "a total wreck".

Miss Smith has spent several summer vacations with her grandmother, Mrs. W. F. Nicholl, of Weymouth, and has many friends in Weymouth and vicinity who were shocked to hear of her accident. Upon receipt of news of the accident, Mrs. Nicholl left immediately for Saint John.

29 BLIND IN DIGBY COUNTY

If, today or tomorrow, you were to become one of the fifteen hundred sightless persons in the Maritime Provinces the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is the only organization in Canada that would undertake to relieve you, the tragedy of blindness.

Possibly the greatest single achievement has been the securing through the governments, of pensions for the Blind at the age of 40 years. No pension scheme can, however, take the place of the work being done by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Pensions will leave the Institute more free to carry on the main objects for which it was created; the provision of competent eye examination, treatment and operation; the conduct of more active campaigns for the prevention of blindness; the training and rehabilitation of those who lose their sight after having passed school age; the discovery of industrial and commercial openings for capable blind artisans and merchants; the provision of library service; social service; the administration of the special privileges and concessions now accorded the Blind; and the constant advocacy of the right of blind men and women to live normal lives and take their places in the normal life of their communities.

Of the 749 blind persons in Nova Scotia 29 reside in Digby County. During the past year the C. N. I. B. experienced a deficit of more than $150 of expenditure over income from this county. This condition, prevailing as it does throughout many parts of the Maritimes, accounts for our three thousand dollar deficit for the past year.

We depend upon public support for one half of our annual income. Your contributions are earnestly asked and urgently needed. Our efficiency depends directly upon your generosity. Support our tag day in Digby, Saturday, tag day August 27, and thus help us to make life just a little lighter and a little brighter for those who must dwell in the valley of shadows.

There are twenty-nine blind persons living in Digby town and county. Eighteen of these benefitted directly from our various services during the past year.

One blind girl from this county is employed in the Moir's candy factory, Halifax, where she does the same work as do the sighted girls who work along side her and for which she receives the same pay as do her more fortunate sisters.

In addition to these industrial placements we have many blind workers employed in our own broom, brush, mop, and rubber goods factories, and also in our garment factories. We have between twenty-five and thirty news stand, canteen and cafeteria concessions giving independent livelihoods to their operators.

To date there are three hundred and forty-six blind persons over the age of forty years receiving the pension for the blind in Nova Scotia.

One third of the Blind in Canada today are blind because they had not the money with which to provide themselves with competent eye care treatment or operations. Literally dozens of children are struggling along in the public schools under an eye strain that may cause permanent injury to their sight because the parents of these children are financially unable to have them properly fitted with glasses.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is the ONLY organization in Canada today that is prepared to render these and many other necessary assistance to the blind and partially blind in our Dominion.

LOWER GRANVILLE

Gordon Robblee, of Passaic, N. J., is spending his vacation with his mother, Mrs. Frank Robblee.

Eugene Bogart, of Boston, is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. E. S. Bogart.

CAN YOU RELY ON YOUR EXECUTOR?

EXTREMELY complex, and fraught with even greater risks than the legal aspects of making a Will, are the considerations to be weighed in naming an executor. The appointment involves much more than selecting someone whose integrity is unquestioned. There must also be financial responsibility, and knowledge with which to meet unusual conditions as they arise. If these qualities are lacking, both the executor and beneficiaries may suffer financial loss. Is it fair to either to expose them to this risk?

The safe course is to appoint a Trust Company as executor or trustee under your Will. We would be glad to discuss your problems with you, and to offer any possible assistance. There is no obligation involved.

MARRIAGES

Goodwin - Belding

A wedding of interest to many friends in this province and New Brunswick, took place in the Germain Street Baptist Church, Saint John, at 2.30 p. m., Saturday, when Rev. S. S. Poole united in marriage Miss Helen Gertrude Belding, youngest daughter of A. M. Belding, M. B. E., Saint John, and Harold Ralph Wells Goodwin, son of Mrs. Goodwin and the late Rev. H. A. Goodwin. Hydrangeas and pink gladioli artistically arranged in tall standards and baskets, and standards of dahlias effectively decorated the church. Miss Marion Belding, sister of the bride, was her only attendant; Stanley E. Goodwin, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsmen. Ushers were Stanley G. Belding, brother of the bride, and Wm. Bromfield, Professor Hiram Ball, church organist, presided at the organ. As the wedding party entered the church, the organist played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's well known march was the last recessional. The organ was played softly through the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, Professor Ball played "Because". The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a period gown made on long sweeping lines of alternate bands of white silk chantilly lace and silk net over white taffeta. The bodice was finished by a wide lace bertha which extended from the V-neckline in front into a point at the waist in back. The graceful skirt was shirred at the waistline and fell in soft drapes toward the back, extending into a short train. Her cap was of white silk chantilly lace with a coronet of shirred net, and her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. She wore white satin sandals and white lace mittens and carried a cascade bouquet of butterfly roses and pink bouvardia. Following the ceremony a reception was held at Rivers Castel, South Bay, N. B. Later Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin left by motor on a wedding trip to Montreal, New York and Boston, and on their return will reside at 170 Douglas Avenue, Saint John. The bride is a graduate of the Saint John Vocational School, and was the honored guest of a series of functions given by her many friends prior to her marriage. The groom is a member of the Vocational School teaching staff, and a graduate of Mount Allison University, where he received his degree of B. A. Mr. Goodwin is also a former member of the Digby Academy teaching staff, and has many friends in this town, who extend their best wishes for future happiness.

BE FOUND THEM POOR AND LEFT THEM POOR

On one occasion after the Battle of Waterloo Napoleon was literally surrounded by thousands of his admirers, shouting and cheering his name, when one of the military aides of the great leader said to him: "You must say a few words to them, Sir, listen to how they cheer your name." The immortal military hero replied, "Why should they cheer my name? What have I done for them? I found them poor and I leave them poor."

Compare all this with the efforts of the industrial creator and producer and one can easily determine wherein lies the only hope for the days to come. Now just what have those who create and produce things done for all men and in all walks of life?

They found us in the darkness of the old tallow candle and they gave us light.

They found us trudging along beside the old ox team and they gave us that which all but eliminated space.

They found us breaking our backs with the cradle and fall and gave us modern harvesting and thrashing machinery.

They found us starving for information that was months old and found the way to give it to us almost instantly.

They found us doing innumerable back-breaking, heart-breaking things in the factories in the home, on the farm, in the mines, in the forests everywhere, and not only reduced labor to what is, by comparison, play—but they made it possible for most all to own and enjoy countless blessings which were not even possible to great wealth a few short years ago.—The Independent Forester.

AN APPEAL

To the Editor of the Courier: Sir—In your issue of Aug. 12 you note "A Kindly Act", reporting a call at your office by two summer visitors, guests at the Pines, to enquire about a family recently burned out, and to leave $10 to help them out. These people are not alone among our summer visitors in showing substantial sympathy. One other of our summer visitors has made a contribution of $5 and two others have given generous help. Added to these gifts some of our town people have also contributed to this fund toward building a new home, while others have cheered the sufferers by gifts of clothing and household necessities. Altogether a total of $55 has been received and deposited in a fund for a new home. Doubtless this amount would have been much larger had there been a public appeal or a collector actively at work. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins have been too busy trying to help themselves to seek outside assistance. They are worthy of any help given—honest, hard-working people. At present living quarters are very hard to find in town, and when their day's work is done, they are obliged to accept shelter for themselves and their child in a home opened to them, which is already occupied by a family of nine (9) members, who are living in a two-roomed house. The need is urgent. The unfortunate man is making every effort and, in addition to his daily work to support his family, he has already broken sod to build a new home. This family must have shelter before winter. They cannot rebuild promptly without help. Digby people

LAKE JOLLY TAKES NEW LEASE OF LIFE

A visit to Lake Jolly, in the interior of the county, reveals considerable activity in that section, which until just recently has been one of Nova Scotia's "ghost towns". Every building on the property suitable for use is now being used for bunk houses, and in addition, a number of tents have been erected on the grounds for the many workmen who are engaged in that section cutting pulp wood. Motor boats, scows and numerous canoes and other water craft are seen on the large lake, and it is understood large quantities of pulp wood are being cut in the district.

A little less than twenty years ago Lake Jolly was a thriving settlement, the home of the Miller-Gordon Company. Fire, however, destroyed the mill, and the company, instead of rebuilding, removed to Carleton Place, in York County, taking most of their employees with them. For a few years a care taker was stationed at the lake, but even he was moved some years ago.

Lake Jolly is known to practically all sportsmen, who comes to this district for hunting and fishing as the starting point into one of the best fish and game countries in Nova Scotia. From Lake Jolly it is possible to travel by canoe through to Weymouth, Tusket, Shelburne, Liverpool and other points along the South Shore—of course, portages are necessary.

During the past year the road into the Lake has been vastly improved, widened, and in many sections, thoroughly rebuilt.

MARRIAGES

Belliveau - Doucet

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Mary's church, in Church Point, a few days ago when Antoinette Doucet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Doucet, of Little Brook, was united in marriage to Pierre Belliveau, son of Theophile Belliveau. The bride wore a white satin dress with veil and accessories to match, and was attended by her sister, Theresa Doucet, while the groom was assisted by Willie Gaudet. After High Mass, which was celebrated by Rev. O. Hebert, breakfast was served at the home of the bride, after which the bridal party left for a motor trip through the Valley. Mr. and Mrs. Belliveau will reside in Grosses Coques.

Comeau - Robicheau

A marriage of interest to many friends, was solemnized at Stella Maris church, Meteghan, on August 16, when Rev. Father E. Bourneuf united in marriage Miss Marie Robicheau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil B. Robicheau, to Edmund Comeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Comeau, both of Meteghan. The bride was charming in a dress of white satin and lace, carrying a bouquet of white roses and fern and wearing a veil. The bridesmaid was Miss Theresa Robicheau, sister of the bride, and Ambrose Comeau, brother of the groom, was best man. As they entered the church Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus was played by Mrs. Joseph S. LeBlanc, of Meteghan Centre. During nuptial mass several selections were rendered and during the Offertory "Ave Maria" was sung by Theodore Melanson, of Meteghan. Following the mass breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, and dinner was at the home of the groom's parents, following which the happy couple left for New Haven, Connecticut, where the groom is employed.

H. M. S. DUNDEE IN PORT

Other officers are: Lieutenant Dennis, Lieutenant Palmer, Surgeon Lieutenant Goldworthy, Sub. Lieutenant Davies; Engineer Officer, Mr. Pyne; Gunner, Mr. Barrett. The Dundee is 1060 tons and carries an armament of two 4-inch guns; one 5-pom-pom (aircraft gun); and two 3-pounders. Her complement of officers and men is 100. She arrived here from Saint John on Monday and sailed for Halifax yesterday. The vessel was open to visitors on Tuesday and Wednesday, and hundreds took the opportunity of seeing a real naval vessel even if it was only one of the smaller craft.

Charles Randall Barr

The death of Charles Randall Barr, age 82 years, occurred at East Boston, Mass., on Saturday of last week. The deceased, a native of Digby County, was ship's carpenter with the Mystic Steamship Company, Boston, for over twenty years retiring six years ago. Surviving him are one son and four daughters, namely: Fred Barr, Digby; Mrs. John Keilling, East Boston; Mrs. John McKenna, Melrose, Mass.; Mrs. Christopher Reid, Hyde Park, Mass.; Mrs. Michael O'Mara, East Boston, Mass.; also ten grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted from the residence of his son, Fred at Digby, Wednesday afternoon, members of King Solomon Lodge, A. F. & A. M. in attendance. Rev. Dr. T. W. Hodgson, pastor of Grace United Church, officiated.

Joseph White, who is employed at Halifax, is spending a few days at his home in Gilbert's Cove.

SUMMER BUSINESS IS IMPROVING

During the present month a marked increase has been shown in the number of summer visitors to Digby and surrounding resorts, which is greatly encouraging to all, particularly after the slack month of July, when, due largely to inclement weather conditions, the local tourist traffic fell off considerably.

To date, on account of the July offset, there are few summer hotels or boarding homes that have broken "par" with last year, which was the record year since the beginning of the depression, although the improvement that is being shown this month will likely go a long way toward bringing conditions up to the average.

The nearby reports of Sandy Cove and Deep Brook report a better business this year than last, in spite of the wet month of July. Smith's Cove also reports a good year insofar as the transient traffic goes, but, unfortunately, there are a number of Smith's Cove's regular summer visitors, some of whom have been coming each year for twenty years and more, who are unable to visit that charming resort—some, on account of serious illnesses, and others have been called by death.

Automobile traffic this month appears to be exceptionally heavy. Practically every state in the United States and every province in Canada is represented by the license plates seen on cars parked along Digby streets. The number of automobiles crossing on the S. S. Princess Helene appears to be greater than usual.

As in every section, the over night cabins are becoming more popular with the transient tourists and proprietors of such camps in this vicinity all appear to be enjoying a good season.

NOVA SCOTIAN NUT BREAD

A Recipe from Picton, N.S., sent in by Mrs. Howard McDonald

Ever since the young folks of Picton, N.S., can remember (and as far back as the older ones want to) Mrs. McDonald has been winning first prizes with her nut bread at the Picton Fair. She has kindly sent in the recipe so that you may try it, and if you follow her directions and heed her advice there's every reason to believe that your nut loaf will be as good as hers.

Better When Made With Robin Hood Flour

Mrs. McDonald earnestly advises you to use Robin Hood Flour for her Nova Scotian Nut Bread. "I'm always telling my friends how wonderful this flour is," she said. "In fact, my family thinks that not only my nut bread, but everything else I bake, is so much more satisfying when I use Robin Hood Flour. I know also that a bag of Robin Hood makes more bread than I can get from the same amount of any other flour and it's so much whiter and smoother to work with."

Just treat yourself to a bag of Robin Hood Flour and make this nut loaf or perhaps some favorite recipe of your own. This is the one sure way to convince yourself that Robin Hood Flour gives you better success and finer flavor in all your baking. Always remember that the wheat used for Robin Hood Flour is scrupulously washed in water before being milled. There is no dirt or grit in this pure, clean flour.

contract for the ball room called for an expenditure of twelve thousand dollars, but the contractor claimed that he lost fifteen hundred dollars on the job due to Mrs. Winchester changing her mind about the designs in the floor, requiring the carpenters to tear up and relay the flooring three times before Mrs. Winchester's spirit advisers were satisfied. Mrs. Winchester planned the entire house with the aid of the spirits, and that explains its goofs. No room in the house is completely finished, a piece of flooring left unaid, a window pane omitted, a bit of ceiling left unfinished, door hinge incomplete, a brick left out of a fire place, and in the ball room with all its ornateness two sections of plastering have been left undone, leaving the bare laths exposed. Another strange thing about this ball room is the lettering that has been worked into two small art windows on each side of the mantelpiece. The words are as follows: on the west window "Wide unclasp the tables of their thoughts" on the east window "These same thoughts people this little world". No one seems to know just what significance these words contain, so I leave them to you to ponder over, if you enjoy your pondering.

Winchester house was under construction for thirty-six years, and the builder spent nearly five million dollars on her hobby. Imagine how much furniture and furnishings were required to equip this house when you are informed that it took three moving vans six weeks to transfer all of the household goods, chattels and appointments to warehouses when executors began to close out this estate. That Mrs. Winchester fully expected to continue building for quite an extended period is evidenced by the amount of fine building materials still remaining in the store room. There are high grade interior finish woods of oak, ash, mahogany, rosewood and cherry, expensive mouldings and fine plate glass, and other costly materials that make up a collection most attractive to a builder's eye.

Regardless of what the spirits are alleged to have told Mrs. W. about being able to live as long as she continued her construction work, she passed away from this old workaday world, without leaving a soul to carry on where she left off. We wonder whether she is happy among the spirits who were her counselors and guides. Do you suppose she ever condemns them for fooling her? No one can tell, so why speculate over things spectral and spooky. It does not get us anywhere.

If spirits, spooks or ghosts hang around this old place I saw nothing of them, and not a moan or groan did I hear, although I will admit that I was sort of expecting to feel the touch of a clammy hand on the back of my neck, or a faint whisper, or a punch in the ribs while passing through some of the dark and narrow hallways, but nothing of the kind happened. However for all that I wouldn't sleep for one night in that old castle even if surrounded with an adequate armor of 100 proof spirits of the Haig Brothers and Johnny Walker combined.

What did Mrs. Winchester look like? Well, from the only photograph that any one seems to know anything about, she is shown as a little old lady dressed in black, who resembled Queen Victoria. She is shown seated in her carriage, about to start for a drive from a secret driveway where she could enter and leave her grounds without being seen by outsiders. She objected to being photographed, but a stable boy hiding behind some shrubbery one day took a chance with his camera and secured a fairly good snap shot of the old lady. Whether she ever knew about the picture or whether her spirit ever came back to haunt the boy no one knows, but I'll bet that he never went prowling about the Winchester grounds after dark.

About This and That

Unlike almost every other part of this continent, the State of Nebraska functions on a cash basis and it's chiefly because the people make up their minds to do so. Nebraska has no debt. There is no sales tax. There is no income tax.
There is no nuisance tax. There is refusal to undertake any enterprise that cannot be afforded. Everything is paid for,
as soon as finished. And yet, there is an excellent highway system, and the State Capitol, costing $10,000,000 is described as one of the outstanding public buildings to be found in America. Obviously, the Nebraskans are determined, can work together, and start nothing unless they are satisfied the indebtedness can be met. But it all comes down, alike in public and private life, in cutting garments, according to their cloth.

*****
We got an insight last week into what some of the younger generation are thinking about. One of them, in talking to the editor, told us that we "didn't know how to run a newspaper. We asked him how he would run it. He replied, "The first thing I would do would be to cut out all the church news—nobody reads that nowadays. Then I would ask questions, 'Why doesn't the town council do something for us young men?' and spread it in headlines across the front page," and he went on at great length to say what he would put in the paper and what he would leave out, and, he added, he could double the circulation in a few weeks. One thing that struck us in his tirade was that all his criticism was of a destructive nature—not an item that could be considered constructive. Another thing was that all his questions consisted of "What are THEY going to do?"—not once did he ask the question, "What can WE do for ourselves?" And this young man had hardly been inside a newspaper office and we doubt very much if he has ever written a single personal or local paragraph. He did not realize that running a small town newspaper is one of the most exacting of professions—even more so than a city daily. The daily's field is so large that they can run news items that the small town paper cannot touch because of the personal element—its subscribers being more circumscribed and so intimately connected with each other that to offend one is to invite repercussions from

SAFE AT HOME AFTER MISSING FOR FIVE DAYS

Vanishing in the north country wilderness near Sturgeon Falls, Ont., five-year-old Fernand Tessier, was found after a five-day search, by George Morrison, who sighted a colored sweater and started after it. The clothing proved to be the lost child who was so frightened that Morrison had to chase him some distance before he could pick the boy up. Returned to his mother and father, Fernand, uninjured save for scratches received during his long ramble in the wilds, had one eager first question which was, "I'm hungry, mummy, did you bake a cake?" The wandering boy, shown, RIGHT with his parents, shortly after his return home.

WHAT A WATCHMAN SAW ON A HAUNTED SHIP

(By R. L. Hadfield)

Once a house has been the scene of a murder or has got a bad name in some other way, there is no knowing what strange and incredible stories may be told of it.

Frequently, as the tale passes from mouth to mouth, it gathers in terror and circumstantial detail until at last an "authentic ghost story" is produced and finds record as a fact.

Probably the same sort of thing can happen in the case of a ship, for sailors are superstitious people.

There could be no finer example than the Centaur which having traded respectably for many years between the eastern ports of the United States and San Francisco ended up as the scene of a terrible crime, two accidental deaths, and a "haunting".

The Centaur was launched towards the end of the nineteenth century, and for many years her name never appeared in any print outside the Shipping Intelligence. Then, suddenly, she became a household word as the scene of a shocking crime.

The trouble began when the master, Captain Ebury, decided to take his wife along with him.

The captain and mate, Mr. Hurrock, had been on quite good terms for several voyages, but very soon after the appearance on board of Mrs. Ebury irritability with one another arose, and for some reason which was never revealed, there was bad blood between the mate and the woman. At last what had been a happy ship became a small inferno. The captain and mate quarrelled continually, and Mrs. Ebury never ceased to inflame her husband's mind against his officer.

Things became steadily worse on the passage from the East to San Francisco by way of the Horn, and towards the end of the voyage the crew expected that at any moment the two officers would come to blows. As a matter of fact, they had done so once or twice in the privacy of the cabin.

Things had come to such a pass that towards the end of the voyage the captain and his wife plotted to murder the mate. Had they done so at sea they might have covered up their crime, but for some extraordinary reason the deed was not perpetrated until after the Centaur had dropped anchor in San Francisco Bay.

Beheaded
A quarrel arose, and Captain Ebury and his wife having previously armed themselves, the man with a knife and the woman with an iron bar, the two suddenly attacked the mate. There was a terrific struggle in the cabin, in which the mate, a powerful man, might have been able to save himself had not the woman struck him on the head with the iron bar. The mate fell instantly, and the captain then flung himself or the unconscious man and stabbed him.

The two had apparently plotted the crime well in advance, for no sooner was the mate dead than they stripped off his clothes. These they weighted with iron bars and dropped overboard, and they then cut off the head. The body was hung around with a length of chain and was also dropped overboard.

But the crime never had a chance of going undetected for the crew had gathered aft and, though not in time to save the mate's life, knew what was going on. Two of them rowed ashore and informed the police authorities.

The result was that in a very short time police and detectives had arrived, the body and clothes had been raised and the murderous pair arrested. The unfortunate mate's head was found in a locker, it having apparently been the intention of his slayers to take this out to sea and drop it into deep water. They seem to have had some idea that a headless body could not be identified.

Whilst they were being tried—they were eventually condemned to death—new officers and a new crew were found for the Centaur and she continued to trade. But very unfortunately for the ship and her owners the next two captains both came to an unhappy end.

This was sufficient to give the Centaur a name as an "unlucky ship," and when she tied up at Bathurst at the end of a voyage from San Francisco no crew could be found willing to sign on in her. Again and again the owners tried to make use of their vessel, but as soon as officers and men learned the name of the ship they were asked to go aboard, they bluntly refused.

Then the state of the Centaur got worse, for, first, she got tied up in a legal tangle, the owners having been liable for heavy charges whilst she lay idle in Bathurst, and

Money Meant Nothing to Them

Men Who Spent Gigantic Sums on Huge Feasts—One Committed Suicide Because He Had Only $500,000 Left.

Of all the monumental prodigals who have flashed like meteors through the pages of social history, the days of ancient Rome saw, perhaps, the wildest.

All extravagances may be said to be needless, but the particular extravagances of those old days appears to us to be even more wanton than usual, for many of the spend-thrifts of later days did some good by handing their money to men more likely to employ it wisely, whereas men like Crassus, Apicius, Heliogabalus, Tiberias and the rest, squandered their wealth on trifling objects and in ways which could only impoverish the world as well as themselves.

In those days there were not the manifold ways in which money could be spent that exist today, and though the wasters of ancient Rome indulged in their fancy for jewels, costly clothing and the building of "palaces of delight," one of the principal objects of their spending was food.

There were three Romans of the name of Apicius, and all were epicures. The most famous Apicius, who devoted himself to the study of food and invented a number of sauces, spent the equivalent of five million dollars on his palate. Wherever he went he was accompanied by an army of cooks, and he employed servants to search the Empire through for rare dishes.

Apicius ended his life by suicide, being unable to bear the thought of what was to him abject poverty. Casting up his accounts one day, he discovered that out of his fortune he had only a beggarly half million dollars left. Horrified at thus finding himself on the verge of penury, he hanged himself.

Bribing the People

Another great giver of feasts at enormous cost was Crassus, but it can be said that this spender had some sort of motive other than ostentation. He believed in bribing his way to power thro' the stomachs of the people, and when he was candidate for the post of Consul, he tried to win favour by feasts of unparalleled magnificence.

On one occasion he had no less than ten thousand tables all of which were heaped with luxurious food and wines.

Even Julius Caesar was a spender on occasion, for he outdid Crassus on the occasion of the funeral feast of his daughter. He set seventy-two thousand tables, each of which accommodated three guests.

Heliogabalus, who became Emperor as the result of a rebellion, squandered millions on feasts, and even his servants fed like princes.

Pheasants' brains and the tongues of thrushes, partridges' eggs and other rare foods were constantly on the tables of the royal palace.

At the meals to which Heliogabalus invited his friends, the peas were sprinkled with gold dust, pearls were scattered in the various dishes, and pieces of costly amber were mixed with vegetables. If this extravagance did not make the food more palatable, doubtless it made the guests more eager to taste the variety of dishes put before them.

Eventually the army rose in disgust at the Emperor's behavior, and Heliogabalus and his mother were slain.

"Gloomiest Man's" Orgies

The Emperor Tiberius was another great spender. Known as the "gloomiest of mankind," he was undoubtedly a victim of melancholia, which could only find relief in profligacy, cruelty and extravagance.

At his feasts he would drink wine in which pearls had been dissolved and would heap the dishes for his guests with jewels.

It was Tiberius who built the famous barges or house-boats, which, of enormous size, were floating palaces. Constructed of cedar, and smothered in precious stones, they were planted out with trees, vines and flowers and in them the Emperor would spend days in feasting and listening to the music of concealed orchestras. These barges have been recovered within the last ten years, from the mud into which they sank.

Vitellius, lazy and self-indulgent, was forced into the imperial purple by his friends, and was another emperor who thought more of feasting and squandering money than ruling.

When he seized Rome, his advance into the city was a foretaste of his reign, for whilst there was fighting and bloodshed, massacre and riot in one part, gladiatorial shows and extravagant feasting were going on in another.

The shows given by Vitellius to appease the people are said to have cost thirty-five million dollars.

Vitellius's end was a terrible one. On the revolt of Vespasian, he was dragged from some miserable hiding place, his hands were bound and he was lynched by the enraged populace.

A Mighty Wardrobe

Caligula, who succeeded Tiberius, squandered millions in satisfying every caprice. His follies can only be explained on the supposition that he was mad, for he made his horse, Incitatus, a consul, and proclaimed himself a god. He also went the way of tyrants, being eventually murdered as the result of a conspiracy.

Finally we come to the infamous Nero, whose extravagance and senseless expenditure were to be seen in every act of his daily life. He built himself vast palaces and covered the walls with plates of gold. Even the simple things of life were turned into extravagances. Nero was fond of fishing, and had special pools constructed containing carp and other fish which, it is said, were fed on the bodies of slaves who displeased their royal master.

But fishing could not be a simple pleasure with Nero. The lines had to be of purple silk, dyed with the Tyrian purple at great cost; the hooks were of gold and scores of slaves stood by to hold shades to protect their master from the sun and to remove the fish from the hook.

Nero never wore the same robe twice, and owned thousands of dresses and suits of armour. His tiara cost the equivalent of $2,500,000.

When he went on a tour of Italy, a hundred thousand people followed in his train, including scores of cooks and personal attendants. In order that Nero might have his daily bath of milk, 500 asses were taken in the baggage train.

Nero had, however, two redeeming features. He was a liberal patron of the arts and a generous helper of the poor. His extravagances were undoubtedly due to periodic attacks of madness.

ONCE A BICYCLE WAS A SAFETY

The doom of Dobbin was forecast as early as 1877 with the introduction from England of the high-wheel bicycle known as the "ordinary." The invention of the "safety" in the middle 80's marked the beginning of the end of the Horse and Buggy Age.

The ordinary, an improved version of the old English "boneshaker," was a heavy, cumbersome, immensely tall affair, the front wheel sometimes sixty-four inches in diameter, the little wheel in the rear from twelve to sixteen. Another model, infrequently seen, had the small wheel in front. Cemented to the rims were solid rubber tires. The roadster weighed in the neighborhood of sixty pounds but some of the racing machines were only a third of that weight.

These lofty and unstable vehicles were never much of a success. . . the smallest obstacle often resulted in a spill, and a header over the six-foot-high handlebars was no joking matter. Yet the facility with which they enabled one to go far afield in a comparatively short time proved an irresistible fascination to many daring young men, who, donning the tight knee pants and ridiculous little skullcaps of the wheelmen's clan, sailed forth on their tall, precarious mounts to the delight of small boys and the admiration of the ladies.

But cycling was too tiring and hazardous a pastime to become really popular until the invention in 1884 of a machine with "diamond frame" and low wheels of the same size. This was originally known by its English trade name, the Rover, which for a long time was applied to all bicycles of the new style. But the name gradually lost its meaning as the designation of a type and was replaced by the more comprehensive term "safety," though it soon became un-

RUBINOFF RECOVERING

Though sitting up for the first time in months, he already has his violin with him and is planning new arrangements for his orchestra.

essary to distinguish between the two types, for after 1890 the ordinary was scarcely to be found except in junk yards and the shops of curio dealers. . .

The new models of wheels which the manufacturers brought out each spring were as eagerly awaited and as avidly discussed as the new models of motor cars are today. Don't you remember the heated arguments over the respective merits of the Yellow Fellow, the Columbia, and the Rambler? Improvements, such as the coaster brake, appeared with bewildering rapidity, and a bicyclist who rode a wheel more than a couple of years old was considered as old fashioned as a motorist who drives a Model T Ford. # YACHT CLUB NOTES

The Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club held its second regatta of the season on Sunday afternoon. A sizeable group assembled by the town slip to watch the races. Arthur Weyhe was the winner in the first class, and William Ganong in the second.

Races will be held again this Sunday. The preparatory whistle will be blown at 3 o'clock, exactly five minutes before the start. The course will be a triangular one approximately six miles long. The start will be made on a line between the town slip and the committee boat. The first leg of the race will be around the racing buoy about two miles to the northeastward, the second approximately two miles to the southward, and the last inshore to the starting line.

or Day) will start at 10.00 a.m. The course will be the same as the above sailed counter-clockwise. Yacht Club authorities are making the following requests of power boat owners: It is often necessary to go aloft on a sail-boat. When such is the case, power boats are asked to keep well clear, since the wake is likely to cause a man to fall overboard. During a race, motor boat owners are requested to avoid running across the course. The resultant waves may easily put a sailboat "in irons" and handicap the contestant seriously. Also, owners of power boats are asked not to moor or anchor so near the starting line as to force racing sailboats to make extra tacks to clear them.

Rev. T. F. MacWilliam and Mrs. MacWilliam, of Pubnico, were in town last week.

CHURCH TO BE CONSECRATED

A new church, to be known as the Liberal Catholic Church, Oratory of St. John the Divine, is to be consecrated on Wednesday, September 8th, at Upper Clements, by Bishop Buenaventura Jimenez, M. D., who is arriving from New York for that purpose. The Liberal Catholic Church is an independent, autonomous organization; neither Roman Catholic nor Protestant—but Catholic. It is in no way dependent upon the See of Rome, or upon any See or authority, outside of its own administration.

It was formerly known as the Old Catholic Church in Great Britain, its Episcopal Succession being derived through the ancient Archbishopric of See of Utrecht, in Holland, the Mother-See of the Old Catholic Church. This See asserted its independence of Papal authority some two hundred years ago, and gave the Succession to those "old" Catholics, as they called themselves, who refused to assent to the new dogma of the Infallibility of the Pope, decreed by the Vatican Council of 1870.

KILLED WHILE LOADING PULPWOOD

Fred "Buck" Hersey suffered fatal injuries at the spur of the government pier, here, Tuesday morning, when he fell from a height of twenty-five or thirty feet to the deck of the German steamship, Steinbeck, which arrived Saturday to load pulpwood at this port.

Hersey was in charge of the sling, loading wood from a truck, when the accident occurred shortly after nine o'clock in the morning. A bundle of pulpwood had been made fast, and was being hoisted aboard the steamer. In giving it a push from the truck, the victim of the accident lost his balance, and grabbed the swing hook.

Swung clear of the truck, and over the deck of the ship, he was unable to keep his hold, and dropped to the deck, landing on his head, and was rushed to the Digby General Hospital, where he succumbed on Wednesday.

Hersey was 50 years of age last month, and was born in Sandy Cove, a son of the late Capt. Charles Hersey. Surviving are four brothers, Wallace and John, of Digby, Matthew, of Pictou, and Charles O. of Lynn, Mass.; and two sisters, Mrs. Daniel MacIntosh, Digby, and Mrs. A. Melville, Kentville.

Members of Grace United Church Sunday School held their Sunday School picnic on the beach at Colonial Arms Hotel, Deep Brook, Wednesday afternoon. The party left Digby Wednesday morning on two special cars attached to the D. A. R. train, and were dropped near the picnic grounds. The cars were hauled back to Digby early in the evening by the shunting engine from Digby. Picnic lunches were served, and a pleasant afternoon was spent in races and games of various kinds.

The Rebekahs held their annual picnic at Deep Brook on Wednesday afternoon. It was largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Corey M. Balzer, (formerly Bertha Currie), of Middleton, were visitors to Digby on Friday last.

WORK ON NEW CHURCH STARTED

Parishioners of St. Croix Parish, Plympton, will hold services in the basement of their new church by Christ-mas, was the statement made by Rev. Luc Gaudet, Parish Priest, on Friday last. Work on the basement of the new structure has been started. It is of cement and stone and the work is in charge of Richard Morrissey, of Weymouth.

When completed the new edifice will be ten feet longer than the old building. The dimensions of the main building will be 28 x 95 feet, and, in addition, there will be a vestry of approximately 25 x 24 feet.

Construction of other buildings to replace those destroyed in the fire has been postponed indefinitely, although, in all probability, work on the new glebe will begin next summer.

A corner stone blessing ceremony will be held at Plympton in the near future and work on the superstructure will be proceeded with, although it may be some time before the main portion of the building will be ready for use. Services will be held in the basement as soon as it has been covered in.

The recent garden party and picnic held on the grounds realized gross receipts of $850.

Dominion Atlantic Railway Effective after September 11th Train Nos 105 and 108 between Halifax and Yarmouth, (Sunday only) will be discontinued.

The groom was attended by his brother, Denis. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Rose Delima, who wore a gold colored georgette gown with accessories and carried a bouquet of carnations and ferns. The bride, being a member of the Children of Mary, a procession with banners, accompanied them from the entrance to the sanctuary while the organist, Fred Comeau, played. ## Historical Sketch of Digby Academy

A number of progressive changes in the administration of Digby Schools comes into effect with the school year
beginning in September
through the expansion of the Academy to include several new departments. One of these changes has to do with the inspection of the school,
which has been withdrawn
from the jurisdiction of the County Inspector and placed under the supervision of Principal F. C. Purdy, recently appointed to act in a dual capacity as principal and supervisor. The action of the School Board in making this appointment is in conformity with recent provincial legislation regarding the administration of urban centres
maintaining a staff of twelve or more teachers. This legislation requires the School Boards in these centres to provide local supervision
which the principal will assume, together with his regular teaching responsibilities.

The local Academy is staffed
by four college graduates
and has received official recognition from the Department of Education as an accredited school with the privilege of conferring certificates of grades XI and XII.
These certificates are recognized by the Maritime universities as covering the requirements of junior and senior matriculation. Instruction in the high school has been organized into the four departments of English and Social Studies, Mathematics, Languages and Natural Sciences.
Slight accommodations necessary to meet the local situation in close adherence to the above subject division were effected. This departmental-ization of teaching will enable each teacher to give instruction in those subjects in which she is best qualified.

One of the most gratifying
advances effected by the commissioners this year is the opening of Mechanic and Domestic Science departments.
These departments will furnish further educational advantages to those students unfitted for the academic training that has, heretofore solely provided for the educational needs of the town. The chief aim of courses of this nature is not only to develop a proficiency in the handicraft and household arts but also to discover native pupil ability, and to direct it into the field of vocational endeavor

for which the student is best suited.

Digby Academy dates from the latter years of the past century. The corner stone of the present structure was laid in accordance with the rites of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons by King Solomon Lodge, No. 54, on October 3, 1881. Digby's first Board of School Commissioners was appointed in September, 1890,
the year of incorporation, and consisted of Councillors Thos.
Boyer, S. Wood and O. Sprout.
The town record does not contain the names of the two government appointees. Classes began in the new school shortly after this public ceremony and have been carried on continuously ever since that time. Digby school is the County Academy for the Municipality of Digby and District of Clare, and as such provides free high school instruction to all students who reside in these districts. In 1936 a four-room extension was added to the academy in order to accommodate an increased school attendance. When the school was opened in 1891
there were five departments.
The registration in September, 1900, was 250. This year the school opened with fourteen departments. The registration for 1937-38 was 415
and it is expected these figures will reach the 450 mark next term. The new extension with modern heating and lighting greatly benefitted pupils and teachers alike. Extensive equipment placed in the high school department of English, Social Studies, Languages and especially the department of Natural Sciences
gives much improved facilities for instruction. Our Academy stands today as well equipped for the purposes of high school education as any in the province. There has been an encouraging influx of high school students from surrounding districts, which indicates a general recognition of the efficiency of our school.

Records covering the forty-seven years of the Academy's existence show that the educational policy of the school has been under the direction of fifteen principals. Their names, with dates of service are:

FAMOUS "PASSION PLAY" FILM TO BE SHOWN HERE

Many hundreds of Digby people will attend the United Baptist Church, on Wednesday night, Sept. 7, at 8 o'clock, to see the new and very beautiful motion picture film of the "Life of Christ", and the "Passion Play", depicting the story of Jesus, from the Nativity to the Ascension, which is based upon, and patterned after the world-famous Freiburg and Oberammergau "Passion Plays" of Europe, and which was actually filmed in Europe, the Holy Land, and Egypt, at a tremendous cost. It is being brought here by National Bureau for Religious and Educational Films.

Wonderful Music Score

A complete and very appropriate musical score will be played throughout the entire film, on special sound equipment, reproducing some of the world's choicest and most exquisite orchestral, organ, and choral music by famous composers, blending
in with the magnificent scenes, which portray, in authentic and historic fashion,
the Life, Crucifixion, and Resurrection of Jesus. The film was produced in Europe, Palestine, and Egypt, and has won the profound admiration and approval of more than two thousand of the largest churches in the United States and Canada, having been exhibited to more than one million people, during the past two years, many times to overwhelming audiences.

Spiritual Atmosphere

A very spiritual and reverent atmosphere is established and maintained throughout the entire programme and leaves the audience in a meditative, prayerful and heart-
searching mood, provoking thought concerning the reality of the Christian principles in their daily lives. The film is one of unusual beauty, and has been highly praised wherever it has been shown. The public are cordially invited,

and tickets are not required to gain admission. A free-will offering will be taken to assist in defraying expenses.

strange noises could be heard throughout the ship and near him in the cabin. Then, he said, a terrible thrill of fear ran through him; he felt
"presences" about him, and at last, looking down, he saw that a hand, a blood-stained hand, was gripping his coat.

He leapt up, appalled and terrified and was about to rush from the cabin when he saw facing him, between him and the door, the dim, shadowy outline of a man—a man without a head.

The watchman drew back
in horror, his hair standing stiff. He was almost paralysed with fear. But there was worse to come.

A noise near by attracted his attention. Turning terrified eyes, he saw the locked door under the captain's bunk open, and from it rolled a human head.

That was enough for the watchman. Seizing his lantern from the gimbal, he leapt out a terrific yell of fear and dashed out of the cabin, no longer bothering whether a ghost stood between him and the door or not.

Of course, the man's story got about. After that no one would go aboard the Centaur even in daylight, and for a long time she swung at her moorings, a desolate, shunned, miserable-looking ship.

A Happy Ending
Eventually the difficulty was got over by an enterprising man. The Centaur was offered for sale by auction.
She was bought very cheaply, and the new owner had her towed to another port changed her name quietly made certain alterations in her rig, repainted her and refitted her, and off she went with officers and crew who knew nothing about her passion history to sail the seas again.

The vessel never earned any more ill-luck or ghost stories, and remained, until she became too old and was broken up, a happy, respectable ship.

THE MODERN TOUCH

The car enthusiast was looking decidedly glum and his friend asked the reason.
"I paid $1000 for my car
and now I have got to sell it,"
was the reply.

"Giving much trouble?"
"No, but I have been fined
three times lately."

"But surely you can't blame
the car for that?"

"That's the whole point.
This new 1939 model is so perfectly streamlined and looks so fast that on three occasions I have been fined for speeding when the car
has been parked!"

many. And the church is still a big factor in the lives of possible ninety per cent of the small town paper's clientele.
In the country villages the church is still the predominating factor in the life of the community, and to drop it from the news columns would be suicidal to the paper. There will have to be a great change in public opinion before the small town weekly can afford to drop its religious news and go in for destructive criticism as a means of boosting circulation and reader interest.

*****

What are tourists most likely to remember in any passing acquaintanceship with a town? Certainly a general air of briskness and alertness helps, but most people carry home in their memories experiences of friendly human association—some little extra service extended, some evidence of personal interest. Unpleasant experiences are always retained in the memory and people will remember a town in which prices are exorbitantly high, or they had a bad repair job done, or were unfairly treated for some little violation of local traffic rules. People on holidays are usually in friendly spirit. As a rule they like to engage in casual conversation, perhaps because they are thrown into limited society for long miles of travel. It is a good plan to humor travellers who are in talking mood and to show some human interest in where they are from, where they are going and how they are enjoying themselves. They themselves may not return again this way, but they can spread amongst others many reports of good or ill. It is curious, but true that recollections of travel, centre so largely upon the people with whom one comes in contact. Many a time one hears
"I stayed in such and such a town, and am going to stay there again, not because accommodation was the best, but the people we met were obliging and friendly."

*****

Winter is rapidly approaching—and the much-talked of skating rink is no nearer than it has been for several years past. And who is to blame? The way we look at it it is the younger generation entirely who are responsible for nothing having been done. A large number of young men joined the Board of Trade early in the year with a determination to try to do something for the town and incidentally for themselves. Several of them told the Courier that the Board of Trade was made up of the older citizens who knew practically nothing of the problems of the younger generation and it was time some young blood got into the Board.
They joined—and were heartily welcomed. The matter of a rink came up and instead of throwing cold water on it the older members fell in with the idea and gave the younger ones a hundred per cent support. A strong committee was appointed to look into the matter of plans and the cost. This committee had a lot of work to do and they spent weeks on
it. Finally their report was ready and a special meeting of the Board was called to hear it. The night of the meeting arrived and not one of the younger members was present. The report had been prepared expressly for them—and only the older members who have passed the skating age, were present to hear it. Naturally there was a lot of disappointment.
However, the report was read and on motion laid on the table to be brought up again when the younger members would be present. But it is like everything else. The work of the Board of Trade, the Town Council, the fraternal societies and even the churches is left to the older members of the community while the younger ones, in the back shops and on the streets, find fault with everything that is done. And yet they haven't the guts—if you will pardon the expression
—to do anything for themselves.

About This and That

An article in the Ohio Medical Journal describes how capsules containing vitamin A, swallowed by motorists, keep drivers from becoming drowsy when long hours at the wheel or somnolent effects of a straight road and a monotonously humming engine induce slumber. This is all to the good. We are in favor of anything which will lessen the possibility of accidents. But we hope these sleep killers can be kept out of general circulation. How about the chap who dodges many a dull lecture or an evening of, say, opera or chamber music on the plea that he's too sleepy and needs his rest? How will he fare if the good wife with a crafty gleam in her eye produces a couple of condensed shots of vitamin A and administers them to him? He will not only have to go forth to his fate, but will be unable to slumber peacefully through the boring proceedings, as is his wont. His quiet snooze through an uninspiring sermon will be no more. There's no doubt about it, this one's bad, unless it can be doled out on prescription to drivers who are starting on a trip on which they are likely to succumb to Morpheus.

Nature itself works in cycles—the same seasons, dry and wet years, aristocracy and democracy, prosperity and depression, civic virtue and private degeneracy, private morality and private immorality, construction and destruction. Nevertheless fundamentals do not change, the right is eternally right and wrong eternally wrong.—Grand Forks Gazette.

Why not celebrate national holidays on weekdays? Why insist on scattering them throughout the middle of the week? From the employer's point of view, it is a costly proposition to halt the production of a large factory for a single day. From the standpoint of the employee, it means a "long" week-end, the possibility of a trip, not just a break in the usual routine. From the standpoint of the hotels, railways, buses, steamships, garages and other persons interested, it means a loss of business.

STATES BRITAIN'S STAND

With 43 ships of the home fleet ordered to proceed to the North Sea, battle station of the British navy, when the German Nazi party meets at Nuremberg during the week of Sept. 5, Sir John Simon, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared that Premier Chamberlain's previous warnings to Germany in regard to Czechoslovakia, still hold good, and at the same time warned that Britain might have to fight in the event of war on the continent. It is an indirect way he pleaded with Germany not to use pressure in the Sudeten minority problem.

"Hoodoo Ships"

By Commander J. E. Capstick-dale, (Royal Australian Navy—retired), in Wide World Magazine.

If ever a vessel spent her life under a "hoodoo" it was the fine full-rigged ship Aberfoyle, of Glasgow, on board of which I served over two years. She was always unfortunate, continually meeting with mishap that, judged by ordinary standard, should never have happened. If she took provisions on board they immediately went bad; her water tanks sprang mysterious leaks; and she would lie becalmed while other windjammers, not far away, swept past at ten knots.

On one occasion her owners went bankrupt, and her officers and crew had to wait months for their wages. Many times she was "hung up" in port by the mass desertion of crews who preferred to be sent to jail rather than serve any longer in so ill-starred a vessel.

The more superstitiously inclined declared that she was haunted; and the tale they had to tell, oddly enough, was always the same. Men up aloft at night, engaged in taking in sail, were conscious of shadowy shapes scrambling past them on the foot ropes! Small wonder, in such circumstances, that seamen gave the Aberfoyle a wide berth.

In the year 1892 the ship was "running her easting down," between the Crozet Islands and Kerguelen Land, when she lost an apprentice overboard, while taking in sail during the pitch-black darkness of a middle watch. Lifebelts were thrown to the screaming youth as he swept past the Aberfoyle's poop on the crest of a following sea, but nothing more could be done, for had the vessel been brought to the wind and sea her masts would inevitably have gone by the board.

Returned from the Dead

Eighteen days later the Aberfoyle berthed at the Port Melbourne Town Pier. Half an hour after mooring, one of the remaining apprentices left the "half-deck" to take the empty dinner-kids back to the galley. The gangway had only just been placed in position, and as he passed it the boy was observed to throw up his arms, scattering the utensils he was carrying. Next moment he yelled: "Teddy! Teddy's ghost coming up the gangway!" Then he fell on the main hatch in a faint.

But it wasn't the ghost of the missing apprentice, but Teddy himself! It transpired that, after being in the water, supported by a life belt, for nearly thirty hours, he had been most miraculously sighted and picked up by the four masted barque Glenisla, of Dundee, and in that vessel had beaten his own ship to port!

The lad rejoined the Aberfoyle and duly completed his apprenticeship, to be finally lost overboard some three years later, when serving as second mate, while the ship was still in tow of a tug at Fredrickstadt, Norway—an act of murder committed by a member of a mutinous crew.

Nor was this the only fatality; later in the same voyage the first mate went unaccountably missing while the ship was in the Doldrums, while the captain—Robertson by name—"died" while the easting was being run down. I have been credibly informed

MISS SHEARER RECOVERS

Montreal born Norma Shearer, motion picture star, shown as she left Mount Sinai Hospital, in New York, after having been under observation for several days. Miss Shearer came to New York originally to attend the premiere showing of her last picture. She was a patient in the hospital under the name of Miss Winifred Kay, her secretary.

that he was actually killed by the carpenter, though the murderer was never brought to justice.

The Aberfoyle's career of misfortune continued for something like a quarter of a century. She never figured in any really serious disaster, but so many things "went wrong" in connection with vessel and crew that old hands agreed there was something definitely sinister about her, and they heaved a sigh of relief when she was eventually handed over to the ship-breakers.

The Haunted Liner

Another ship that was cursed with persistent ill-luck, particularly during the last years of her life, was the Atlantic liner Utopia, formerly commanded by a relative of mine. This fine Western Ocean liner, many seafarers will remember, collided with the ram of H. M. S. Anson, in Gibraltar Bay, when bound from Genoa to New York, with a

ZIPPERED "HOT DOGS"

Zippered weiners are the latest milestone on the march of progress. As demonstrated by this young lady at Cleveland, Ohio, the new arrangement enables "hot-dog" lovers to enjoy the succulent interior without having to gnaw through skin (velopes). The zipper when pulled down, strips off the skin of the weiner. Now if zippers can only be attached to bananas, everyone will be happy—maybe.

Miss Lillian Amero, of Annapolis Royal, spent the week end at Deep Brook, at George Curphey's.

Mrs. John Rawding has gone to Greenland to take the school for the term.

Among those leaving recently for their homes after visiting relatives here were Mrs. Seth B. Henshaw and two children, to Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. Lovitt Fraser and son, David, to Augusta, Maine; and Miss Mary Sulis, to Newton Centre.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence St. C. Baird, Kentville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Adams.

Miss Catherine Burgess, of Fredericton, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. E. F. Powers.

Miss Myrtle Adam is spending a week in Saint John, with friends.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ditmars were also in Saint John over the week end, attending the Amateur Radio convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Purdy were in Bear River East on Sunday, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Wheelhouse.

Mrs. C. K. North is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie McClelland, Prindleale.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Lingley, at the week end, were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Pickett, Wolfville.

Mr. Stuart Farnsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, of Williamstown, Mass., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Howard Adams.

complement of passengers. She floundered with great loss of life, but was salvaged and repaired. Resuming her place on the mail and passenger run she was henceforth regarded by seamen as a hoodoo ship.

Whenever the Utopia was passing Gibraltar, the superstitious stoutly declared, weird and mysterious sounds were heard throughout the vessel—despairing shrieks and stifled moans! This happened on every passage and became so well known that it eventually caused her to be withdrawn from commission and sold for breaking up long before her normal time.

Passengers refused to travel in the ship; crews declined to make more than a single voyage. It is said that her commander, greatly perturbed at what was happening, and dreading unemployment, personally paid for the services of a professional ghost-layer in an unavailing attempt to clear the Utopia of her sinister reputation.

The famous Marie Celeste, which gave the world its greatest ocean mystery, was yet another "hoodoo" ship; inexplicable things were always happening to her—quite apart from the affair that made her name immortal, and which happened in 1872. When found, it will be remembered, she was standing on her course, with all sails set without a soul on board. Not a trace of the missing crew was ever discovered.

On a subsequent occasion she was imprisoned in a Venezuelan river for two years owing to a flood silting up the bar. At least one murder was committed on board, her mate disappeared unaccountably and another man killed himself. She was also "arrested" for debt in a West Indies port with a marshal's writ nailed to her mainmast, and often had to be laid up because crews could not be found to sail in her.

Yet it is highly improbable that the swarthy seamen of the Central American republics, on whose coasts she spent the last twenty years of her career, had ever heard the story of the inexplicable disappearance of her entire company during the 'seventies.

2,000 CANADIAN SOLDIERS IN WAR MANOEUVRES

With an intensive training period behind them over 2,000 troops from units in the Canadian army swung into war manoeuvres near Camp Borden, using aircraft, artillery, tanks and mechanical transports. Their objective was the "capture" of Schomberg, Ont., which for the duration of the games has been named "enemy territory". That horses are not quite extinct in the Dominion's armed forces is proved by the unit of Royal Canadian Dragoons shown starting out for their positions. BELOW: At top officers leading the manoeuvres, Col. R. B. Gibson, Lt. Col. Alan Thomas and Lt. Col. F. H. Maran, are pictured as they discussed tactics to be employed.

In 1889, at Sabine Pass, Texas, her seamen, nine in number, elected to go to jail rather than remain in the ship and complete their contract, which had only a few weeks to run.

They told the authorities that their quarters were haunted, vowing that as they came up or went down the scuttle hatch in the semi-darkness invisible ropes' ends, or things like the tentacles of an octopus, lashed them about the face and body. Their testimony varied only within narrow limits, and they certainly seemed convinced of the truth of their statements. The difficulty was surmounted by the building of a deck house to accommodate the seamen.

Those who have studied the problem of the Mary Celeste will find the suggestion concerning "octopus tentacles" exceedingly interesting, for one of the theories put forward to explain the vanishing of the entire crew at the time of the "mystery", was that some such monster had attacked the brigantine.

The End of the Mary Celeste Quite apart from the original tragedy, some unreasonable and definitely evil atmosphere seems to have clung to this little ship throughout her whole existence. Wherever she went, during two decades, she left a trail of trouble. In the end charterers fought shy of her, and her luckless owner was compelled to buy his own cargoes. The Mary Celeste wound up her sordid career by being wilfully cast away on the Cuban coast in 1896. Even this, however, was not the last of her. The scene of the wreck lay some three hundred miles from her normal line of route from port to port, and this made the insurance companies concerned very suspicious. Searching investigations were instituted revealing the fact that, with the exception of the top tiers of casks in the hold (which contained molasses) the entire cargo consisted of salt water! Owner and master both served eight-year sentences in a South Carolina jail for barratry.

The Pocahontas, one of America's most famous ships, was also a "hoodoo" ship.

MARITIME POSTAL MEN IN CONVENTION

A busy day, largely taken up with routine business, marked Wednesday, the first day of the annual convention of the Maritime Postmasters and Postmistresses, which opened at the court house that morning. There was a fairly good attendance, including a number from the Quebec division. The president, Postmaster J. H. T. Nicholson, of Sydney Mines, presided and presented his report which dealt extensively with the business of the past year in the interest of postmasters generally. The financial report showed that considerable money had been raised but that the association is facing a deficit of some $2.00. An official representative of the Nova Scotia government, C. T. McKenzie addressed the gathering, followed by Mayor Denton who extended a welcome on behalf of the town. The principal addresses of the afternoon were by R. F. Hopkins, district director of the postal service in Nova Scotia; E. R. Ingram, who holds a similar position in New Brunswick; and J. Hensy representing the T. Eaton Co.

The T. Eaton Company and the Robert Simpson Company were joint hosts at a dinner and dance at the Pines on Wednesday evening.

Teaches Farley To "Draw Long Bow"

Keen appreciation of the wonderful playground Canada possesses in the Canadian Rockies was expressed by Jim Farley, States and organizer of the Democratic Party, who spent a pleasant few days with his daughters Ann and Betty at the Banff Springs Hotel. While at the mile-high playground, they took part in the various activities usually enjoyed by the international colony there and thoroughly explored the surrounding country by motor. Mr. Farley, who is noted for the fact that he can call people by their first names years after a single meeting, will have a hard time forgetting Jacob Two Young Man, chief of the Stoney Indian tribe, snapped showing him how to handle a bow and arrow in the accepted Indian style. Interested in the spectacle of their daddy taking orders from anyone less than President Roosevelt himself are Ann, left, and Betty.

Harbor View Hotel Burned to Ground

A smouldering heap of ruins now marks the site of Harbor View Hotel, Smith's Cove, six miles from Digby. Harbor View, established some thirty-five years ago by the late William Cossaboom, has for years enjoyed the reputation of being one of the finest and best known summer resorts in the Maritime Provinces.

The blaze was discovered about 12.45 yesterday afternoon by Theodore Nesbitt, who noticed clouds of smoke issuing from the roof of the three storey wooden building. Within an hour after the alarm was given the building was completely razed.

At the time the alarm was given some twenty guests were eating lunch in the dining room but all got out safely. The building destroyed was the hotel proper, and it is understood only one guest had a room in the building at the time; others had quarters in the annex and the large bungalow colony operated by the hotel. The burned building contained the kitchen, many guest rooms, the office and lounge, and the main dining room which had a seating capacity for more than 200.

A. D. Cossaboom, who has succeeded his late father as proprietor of the hotel, estimates his loss at $18,000, partially covered by insurance. Most of the furnishings from the main floor and second floor were salvaged.

Calls for help to Bear River, Digby and neighboring villages were sent. The Bear River Fire Department arrived with their pumper and to them goes the credit for the saving of other valuable buildings belonging to the property. Flying embers, driven by a strong breeze, set fire to the roof of the Casino, but the blaze was extinguished by the Bear River outfit. Had this building burned the flames would have undoubtedly destroyed many other buildings in the village. The Lincoln Pulp Company, of Bear River, sent a large crew of men to give what assistance they could.

Help was also rendered by many of the male guests of the hotel, many of whom regard Harbor View as a "second home", having been coming there for years.

The official closing of the hotel was to have taken place on Monday evening, and Mr. Cossaboom has announced that the closing dance will take place in the Casino as planned.

Harbor View is known to many from all over the continent. Among the guests who have bungalows which they have occupied for many years on the Harbor View property are Bishop Richardson, of New Brunswick; Duncan MacD. Little, well known amateur cinematographer and sports man, of New York; Daniel L. Turner, prominent New York mining engineer; and others. The Right Rev. Bishop of London, England, was a guest at this hotel two years ago.

Waitresses were among the heaviest losers in yesterday's fire. Three of the girls whose quarters were in the main building, lost everything except the clothes they stood in; their losses included clothing, cash and other items, the head waitress alone losing more than $100 in cash in her room.

As far as can be determined the blaze started from a defective flue. When Mr. Nesbitt first sighted smoke issuing from the roof, it was in the vicinity of the living room chimney. Shortly after the flames broke through the roof, and spread rapidly through the upper part of the building. The flames were beyond control when discovered.

MARRIAGES

Wright - Smith

Historic Old St. Edward's Church, at Clementsport, was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Wednesday, when Leslie Marie Harrington, eldest daughter of Rural Dean A. W. L. Smith, rector of St. Clements Parish, and Ralph Oswald Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Wright, of Digby, were united in marriage. The bride, charmingly attired in a dress of white silk, worn by her aunt over 80 years ago, wearing the conventional veil and carrying a bouquet of white roses, maiden hair ferns and lilies of the valley, with coronet of orange blossoms, entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Arthur Tremaine, of Bangor, Maine, who gave her in marriage, to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by Miss Dorothy Tyers, of Sackville, N. B., who presided at the organ. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father beneath a beautiful arch of white flowers; the quaint old church (restored some years ago by the bride's father), was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the decorations being arranged by Mrs. E. P. Morse and William Russell. Miss Leonora Smith, sister of the bride, was maid of honor; other bridesmaids were Miss Mary Tremaine, Bangor, Me., and Miss Mary Robertson, Annapolis Royal. They wore gowns in pastel shades of pink, yellow and blue, with shoulder veils, and coronet of flowers to match. Their bouquets were gladiolus in colors to match their dresses. The groom was attended by Trevor Prececky, of Upper Clements. Ushers were Norman Wright, brother of the groom and Clare Rawding, of Clementsport. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, wore black satin, with blue trimmings, with large black hat, and wore a corsage bouquet of blue sweet peas, while Mrs. Wright, mother of the groom, wore black velvet with large picture hat, and a corsage of red roses. Following the ceremony, a reception in honor of the bride and groom was held at the rectory, Mr. and Mrs. Wright receiving under an arch of white hydrangeas. A beautiful wedding cake, baked by Horace Smith, of Digby, occupied the centre of the dining table in the beautifully decorated dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Wright have left on a wedding trip to Prince Edward Island. The bride's travelling suit was a light brown, with accessories in dark brown and green. On their return they will reside in Digby.

An order in council relating to lobster regulations appeared last week in the Canada Gazette. The new regulation reads: "Except on the portion of Cumberland County, Nova Scotia, that extends from Cape Cliff to Cold Spring Head, in this fishing district no one shall during the lobster fishing season of any year, use in lobster fishing any boat, trap or other lobster fishing equipment that has been used during that year in lobster fishing operations in any other lobster fishing district."

YACHT CLUB SEASON ENDS

The Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club brought its season to an end with races, on Sunday afternoon and Monday morning.

With a moderate breeze from the southwest on Sunday afternoon, the winner in the first class was Allen Shenstone with Arthur Weyhe second; in the second class, William Ganong came in first, with Teddy Walker second. Ganong's port stay carried away on the third leg of the race but, in spite of the smart breeze, his crew managed to save his mast.

On Monday morning there were fresh breezes from the northwest, but practically all the sailors carried whole sail. This made a lovely spectacle for many watchers in town. Members of the club with power boats sailed toward of the course to stand by in case of accident. In the first class, Arthur Weyhe won, with Percy Weir in second place; in the smaller class, Teddy Walker came in first, with Louis Coxie in second place. Percy Weir was first over the line in both the Sunday and Monday races.

The system of points used this season was the one originally adapted by the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club, i. e., each boat finishing gets one point; the winner gets three additional points; second man gets two points. On this basis, the cup was won by Arthur Weyhe of New York. Six boats received the minimum number of points the other scoring being:

Arthur Weyhe, 11; Teddy Walker, 10; William Ganong, 9; Allen Shenstone, 8; Louis Coxie, 5; Percy Weir, 5.

Plans for next year include permanent buoying of the several courses, at least one race in which owners exchange boats by lot, and two cruises provided especially for members of the club who are not boat owners. Everything indicates that the Yacht Club next

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss. They wake and cannot sleep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Silas Parker

The death of Mrs. Silas Parker occurred at her late home at Weymouth Mills, on Friday. Deceased, who was 59 years of age, was formerly Miss Alice Emma Cosman, daughter of the late James Edgar Cosman of Weymouth, and Mary Carroll Cosman, of Ireland. She is survived by her sorrowing husband and three children. Mrs. Augusta Brittain, Somerville, Mass.; Miss Mae Parker, R. N., of Halifax; and Douglas at home. Also several sisters and brothers: Mrs. Annie Crowford, of Philadelphia; Frank, of Watertown, Mass.; Leonard, of Saint John; Rev. Father P. J. N. Cosman, of Strathmore, Alberta; Mrs. H. H. Hamilton, of Strathmore, Alberta. Deceased had been in ill health for a number of years and had been confined to her bed for the past year. The funeral service was held at her late home on Sunday afternoon with interment in the Riverside Baptist Cemetery, Weymouth North, Rev. J. D. Lyttle, pastor of the church, officiating. The service was largely attended and the large and beautiful floral offerings attested to the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends.

ACTIVE AT 100 YEARS

Mrs. Vincent J. Comeau, of Meteghan River, recently celebrated the 101st anniversary of her birth. She was born at West Pubnico, July 12, 1837, of the marriage of Sylvain d'Entremont of West Pubnico, and Marguerite Le Blanc, of East Pubnico, and baptized at St. Peter's church West Pubnico, under the name of Marguerite Sophia d'Entremont, by Rev. Father Gaudet. At the age of 12 years, she removed with her parents to Meteghan River where she has ever since lived. At the age of 24 years she married the late Vincent J. Comeau, of Meteghan River, who predeceased her some years ago. The marriage was celebrated at Stella Maris Church, Meteghan, then St. Martin Church, by Rev. Fr. Blanchet.

From that marriage she had nine children, four of whom are still living. Henry, of Haverhill, Mass.; Moses, of Meteghan River, and Rodolph Warden of Clare Municipal, at the old homestead, with whom she lives. She is grandmother of 42 children and great grandmother of 67. She has been married 60 years and 5 months.

At the 60th year her diamond wedding was celebrated. Over 50 of her friends and relatives tendered her a surprise party, at which she received many beautiful souvenirs of the event. Last year, at her 100th birthday, a High Mass of Thanksgiving was celebrated at her intention at Stella Maris Church, Meteghan, by her nephew, Rev. Father d'Entremont, who also brought Holy Communion.

Dinner was served to over 125 guests, some from the United States. Among the numerous presents she then received was a bouquet of roses from the Catholic Women's League of Meteghan. Notwithstanding her advanced age, she still goes about the house, and goes out visiting the garden and cattle at the barn.

All her children are now at home with her for a visit. Rev. Fr. d'Entremont, C. J. M., of West Pubnico, and Magistrate Denis d'Entremont, of Meteghan River, are nephews, and School Inspector L. d'Entremont, is also a relative.

She has lived under six Roman Catholic Popes and six English sovereigns.

200 Wedding Guests Praise Cakes Baked 3 Weeks in Advance

Most women would have been scared stiff to bake 2 dozen cakes (or anything else) many days ahead. Ordinary cakes would have gone stale. But to get everything ready for her daughter's big wedding, Mrs. Lewis Holmes of L'Espe, N.B., had to commence baking a full three weeks in advance. Yet on the wedding day, Mrs. Holmes' cakes were so fresh, so perfect, that everyone warmly praised them.

Before she started her wedding baking, Mrs. Holmes knew she could do so with perfect safety because she was going to use the right kind of recipe and ROBIN HOOD FLOUR. "From past experience I knew that cakes made with Robin Hood are not only of the finest quality but that they will KEEP their quality and freshness for many days when necessary," said Mrs. Holmes.

You may not have to do a big baking in advance of a wedding but this KEEPING quality of Robin Hood is something you'll appreciate every time you bake. Why not order a bag?

able, and second, the maintaining of a full personnel which is continuously reduced by the departure of young players for other fields of labour just when they have reached a degree of proficiency. The latter trouble is met by the formation of a new Junior Band every year, with rehearsals twice a week during the winter. To meet the first difficulty every effort possible has been made by the Director from the start, and the Civic Band boasts of a first-class equipment, with some exceptions which will be met as fast as funds are available. Good instruments are expensive, but poor instruments are unsatisfactory and costly in the end.

A pleasing feature of the Band's work this summer has been the friendly and enthusiastic co-operation of many wide-awake young ladies in selling tags and taking collections with splendid results, highly appreciated by the Band. Those who obtained the best results are the Misses Rosalie Ross, Doris Franklin, Shirley Smith, Edith Morehouse, Alice Baird, June Campbell, Claire Merkel and Grace Ross. The cordial spirit of helpfulness shown throughout the season has been unusual, and dozens of names should be added to the list of willing helpers, who have done so much to encourage the bandmen in their efforts to make a good band which will hold its place as a distinctive feature in the life of the town.

A fine gift to the Civic Band just received from a prominent business man in Digby, consists of three dozen large Music Folios, for binding band music. Each player is provided with one of these books in addition to four others already supplied. Each book holding about fifty selections. Band music is expensive, a single selection costing from $1.00 to $5.00, but as this method of binding all music was adopted by Mr. Yates at the beginning, the Band still has every sheet carefully preserved. The donor of this set modestly requests his name to be withheld.

"Hoodoo Ships"

erica's finest clipper ships possessed an evil reputation. A man was killed when she was launched; another was murdered on the ship's maiden voyage; and one of her captains committed suicide by jumping overboard off Cape Horn. Justly or unjustly, the tragedies resulted in the vessel being nicknamed Poca-haunted. For a brief period however, she certainly was haunted. I learnt the story from a reliable man who sailed on her as a boy.

Beset off the Horn in a mighty sea, all hands were reducing sail at night in a blinding smother of blizzard when the men aloft beheld a huge female figure, clad in flowing robes, spring aboard over the weather bow. She arrived on the crest of a great wave just as the second mate and some of the sea-men were hauling down the inner jib.

Leaping on one poor man the apparition struck him down with his head battered to a pulp! Then it vanished only to appear a second time and attack the second mate who crashed dying to the deck below. As he expired the Thing sprang yet a third time hurling overboard one of the terror-paralysed men on the fo'c'sle.

This was more than flesh and blood could stand; a demonized and shrieking crew scurried down from aloft, leaving unfurled sails to blow to ribbons, and sought the safety of their own deck quarters.

At daybreak, however, the ghost was "laid". It was discovered that the elaborate white-painted figure-head of the Indian princess after whom the vessel was named, was missing, torn away by the storm. Before it had finally wrenched away from its fastenings the seas had swung it upwards and inboard at least three times, killing three men and wrecking the fo'c'sle head rails and everything else within reach.

The Wandering Star
Finally, let me tell the remarkable story of the Star, surely one of the most astonishing derelicts that ever roved the seas. If she possessed a "hoodoo" it must have been of a most peculiar sort, with a genius for solitary navigation!

On June 1st, 1893, the Hawaiian-owned schooner Star, manned by a crew of thirteen—unlucky number—left Unalua, in the Aleutian Islands homeward bound, loaded to her marks with oil, timber, skins, and some general cargo, including a valuable parcel of furs.

All went well until the ship sighted and passed the lonely Midway Island. On the night of the 17th, however, in a black squall, she struck the treacherous Lizianski Shoal. The shock of the impact caused the foremost to go by the ested in tourist traffic it would be "Manna from Heaven," for tourist figures always jump enormously on "long" week-ends. It's a good idea to let the holidays fall where they may, but celebrate them on the week-end. If we are going to have the holidays anyway, let's have them where they will do the most good.—Canadian Business.

The trans Canada Air Service anticipate, possibly by 1939, the crossing of the Rocky Mountains and the coast range, within 85 minutes. Shades of Simon Fraser, Alexander MacKenzie, David Thompson, Lewis and Clark, and all the other gallant path finders of a by-gone age who painfully, and at great peril, threaded their way through the giant peaks. They had visions, those men, but they never imagined speed like that.

A London physician says he has discovered the perfect boy. That is, the perfect boy, physically. He is aged ten, takes a nine mile walk before breakfast, and for breakfast eats one slice of pineapple. Personally, we prefer a few imperfections.

Throughout the night the crew worked desperately, throwing cargo overboard in an endeavour to refloat the Star, but at daybreak, to their dismay, they saw the ship's false keel rise to the surface and float away; the rudder was also found to be hopelessly damaged. Thereupon the jettisoning of cargo was stopped, and after a consultation it was decided to abandon ship in the lifeboat, although five members of the crew were in favour of remaining on board.

Three days later the boat was picked up by the four-masted barque Ecclefechan, of Glasgow, and the men were landed at Puget Sound, from where they later made their way to Frisco and Honolulu.

On June 21st, the British barque Doon, Captain Boyd, running before a favorable north-west gale, passed the Star at a distance of about a cable's length. The schooner was now afloat once more and apparently little the worse for her stranding save for the loss of her masts. The sea was too rough to permit of a boat being lowered for an examination of the derelict so the Doon passed on, reporting the incident on her arrival at San Francisco. When the British ship sighted her she was some seventy miles N.N.E. of the shoal on which she had been wrecked.

Three months later, four hundred miles due west of the Golden Gate, and some nine hundred miles from the Lizianski, the Star was observed by a tank steamer bound for San Francisco.

So far as is known she was not seen again until October of the following year, when she drifted past Fanning Island, the Pacific submarine cable station, eleven hundred miles south of Honolulu, at a distance of some five miles off shore. Her presence was reported by cable, and a description of the ship given, but for some reason or other she was not boarded. The Honolulu owners took no action; neither did the underwriters, who had long ago paid the claims made on them. At Fanning the Star was about three thousand four hundred miles from her position of thirteen months previously.

Four months later the schooner reached Hull Island, in the Phoenix Group, seven hundred miles southwest of Fanning; she was then in the Equatorial Current, drifting west at about two miles per hour. The "captain" of Hull Island (who was to be succeeded in his post by the writer nine years later) was ill with scurvy at the time, but he sent the boat off in a whale boat to board the derelict. The boat made a close investigation, spending nearly an hour on board and bringing back with him the only article of value the vessel then contained. She had previously been boarded by somebody or other—presumably the natives of some island—and pretty thoroughly looted, even to portions of the cargo. The boat, however, brought off a large jib, comparatively unused, hearing at the clew the stencilled mark Star—obviously a sailboat mark. When the writer saw this sail at Tarawa, in the Gilberts, some years later, the mark was still clearly discernible, and Mr.

Teller-Campbell, the resident commissioner, told me the story.

Following this, there came no word of the derelict for some eighteen months. It was assumed, in "Island" circles, that she had sunk, for when boarded off Hull Island she had five feet of water in her hold, and floating casks of oil in the cargo had burst her hatches open.

In August, 1896, one of H. M. sloops belonging to the Pacific squadron, was returning to her base at Esquimaux from a summer training trip. Following her usual itinerary she visited Midway Island and while there her captain decided to get a glimpse of the Lizianski.

On arriving off the dreaded shoal a schooner, fast breaking up, was observed to be impaled on its fangs. The vessel proved to be the wandering Star! Her hold was now completely empty—she had been looted again, for the last time—but the name plates on bow and stern remained intact, and the lettering was still clearly readable.

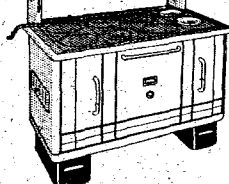

The shoal lies about fifteen hundred miles north of Hull in the Phoenix Islands, and the derelict's lonely voyage had lasted over three years. Having covered more than six thousand miles in point-to-point distances and perhaps several times as much in zigzagging, she had finally returned, like some fatally wounded animal, to the scene of her original hurt!

About This and That

With the hunting season about to commence in the various provinces of Canada, now, more than ever before, eternal vigilance is the price of safety, so far as the handling of firearms is concerned. Perhaps the most frequent cause of shooting accidents is the dangerous habit of some hunters who shoot "at something moving in the bushes" without first making certain that the moving object is the game they seek rather than a hunting companion. And the hunter must never forget that the man who "didn't know it was loaded"
is always with us.

Merchants, curio dealers and others, with goods to sell or services to offer agree that this has been a big tourist season, where numbers were concerned. But the volume of business transacted has been disappointing. On the whole, the volume of buying has not been what it might have been.
It has not necessarily followed that to see a thronged store, meant ready cash purchasing. That is what is said in Nova Scotian towns.

Terror continues to stalk through what with unconscious irony, we still call the "Holy Land." The native Arabs, fight the Jews—regarded as immigrants in their own historic home—and the British fight the Arabs under their mandate from the League of Nations to keep the peace there.
This apparently is a part of the White Man's Burden sung at the opening of the century by Kipling. An American paper says: We Americans seemed to believe in it, too, for a time, but are now contenting ourselves more with trying to police our own country, while Britain polices the rest of the world. The famous killed "Ladies from Hell" have been doing heroic service lately. "From Acre to Lower Galilee," said a recent despatch from Jerusalem, "south across Palestine to Nablus, the Holy Land resounded to rifle fire, the drone of fighting planes and the clatter of machine guns.
There was intermittent bombing as British military authorities took stern measures to stamp out terrorism." And here is another picture: "British troops recently rounded up more than 4000 Arab villages and drove them into concentration camps, as Royal Air Force planes swept over the Bib-

Deer Cause Loss in Some Sections

Deer are creating havoc in the fields of many Digby County farmers, especially in the vicinity of the town. One farmer on the Lighthouse Road, just outside the town limits, states that should his potato crop rot in the ground (many potatoes are going bad),
it will be hardly worth while for him to bother gathering any harvest. Deer have practically destroyed all his green beans—he only picked two "messes" for himself; most of his carrots will have to be harvested with a potato hoe,
and the tops have been chewed off his turnips and mangels. In many instances the raiders have bitten holes through the shells of squash and pumpkins and cleaned out the interiors with their tongues.

In other parts of the county
where deer are more to be expected near the town limits, they are not as plentiful, although the farmers say they are enough.
The theory for this is that the wet weather has been the cause of a very exuberant growth of edible stuff in the woods and with water to be found everywhere the animals do not have to leave their native haunts to seek food. One farmer, who owns a hunting camp
back in the woods in the vicinity of Lansdowne, planted a field of turnips near the camp. Throughout the crop sprang up a few shoots of the well-cured weed locally known as "catalogue"—a sort of wild radish. He fears the deer have about cleaned the field of the weed and left his turnips alone. He feels quite friendly towards them.

A Letter from M.G.T.

It's later digging time down
the old back road, and we have a fine crop. Small Patch is helping his "Daddy" dig, that is, he is covering up the potatoes as fast as they are uncovered. He is looking for a mouse, you know, and never gives a care about anything except the business in hand.
Such energy! I wish I had as much to spend on fall house cleaning. I just cannot keep my mind on such things. I'm a sly at this time of year, and nothing but shame keeps me from tramping
the highways and byways. I love the smell of Autumn, and the last of the wild flowers—golden rod,
blue gentians and wild asters.
Along our brook grow quantities of what the folks here call pink marsh mallows and a lovely scarlet flower named cardinal flower.
It looks like a wild gladiolus and I have never seen it elsewhere. My flower garden finally decided to grow and has been very beautiful
for about six weeks. Such quantities of all color petunias, nasturtiums and red cannas for a centrepiece around the flag poles.
Monday night, September 5th, we had our first frost, but not hard enough to hit the blooms. Last night everything went to bed under a paper blanket and the temperature rose about twenty degrees and tonight we are having a fine warm rain, much to Harry's
joy—it will wash the potatoes,
you know. I'm getting ready for making pickles and jelly. To morrow I'm going to make green tomato preserves, made with lemon and preserved ginger. The cook books say it has real "Oriental flavor" but it will probably just taste like "green tomatoes". My thanks to Mrs. Alice R. Harris, of Bear River, for a recipe for old-fashioned blueberry pickles, and I'm disappointed that there were no blueberries to be had around here this year; that is, none but shipped-in ones at 35 cents a quart, and that I think, is too much for any blueberry. Better luck next year.

There has been a "jitter bug"
flying over our house every day for the past week. It's the queerest looking contraption! A great big body with landing gear hanging down and looking like two spindly legs with enormous feet.
On the top is a big wheel, like spokes with no rim. The pilot is evidently doing stunt flying at some of the many Connecticut
airs which are being held now,
and he swoops so low over my big flag pole flower bed that I'm sure he can see that my eyes are almost on my cheeks and my mouth wide open. It's very noisy and when I hear it coming I always go out for a look. Air planes have never lost their fascination
for me although several mail planes go over our place every day. Some months ago we watched the Von Hindenberg sail majestically over our heads, and this spring, one morning about five o'clock we heard a great booming noise, and, of course, went out to see what it was. There were twelve big bombing planes, flying in formation, with rows of green and red lights on each one. It was a truly wonderful sight, but to me, awful, because it portrayed all too vividly the tragic results

of such a visitation in time of war. I went back inside my small house with a feeling of devout thankfulness that we are not a blood-thirsty people.
Among the friends that I have made through my letters to the Courier is Eva Harvey Nichols, whose poems of "down home" you have all read and enjoyed. Every year she goes down to Maine for her vacation and either while there or soon after, she gets back
I get a little box from her. Inside are souvenirs of our childhood,
usually a few pine cones, a willow whistle, some beech nuts and urs,
and a top made from a spool cut in half, like Dad made for me years ago. Sometimes, bits of spruce gum, which I chew on diligently for days. Last week I received a letter from her, written on real honest-to-goodness birch bark. Isn't she a nice person! I hope to see her some day. She draws beautifully also, and my scrap book holds several pictures from her pencil. Greetings to her and her brother Bob! Now that
"Bobby" has the cows safely home
and wrote some time ago to tell M. G. T. that he had, perhaps he will send me another poem for my newest scrap book.
A few weeks ago in the Courier,
was an article concerning Capt.
George Howard Johns, written, I think, by a Mr. William Duncan.
I was immensely interested for many reasons, chiefly that someday the gallant captain is going to write a book, and if and when he does, I'm sure he will finish
the telling of many things just hinted at by the writer of the article. I hope he will tell that the island on which he and his shipmates were wrecked so long ago, was Juan Fernandez, Robinson Crusoe's own island, and that somewhere among the relics of the old home are a branch of white coral and some dried feathers looking sea weed which he brought home. I have seen them
so many times.
He might tell you of another wreck when his new ship, out
from Boston on her first voyage,
was lost and the little cabin boy
was washed overboard. His cries could be heard until he finally sank, and nothing could be done to save him. Capt. John has said
those cries still rung in his ears.
Perhaps he will tell of a mutiny
on board his ship many, many years ago, when he was a first mate and in his early twenties;
of the swing of a belaying pin
which gashed his cheek from brow to chin! and of how a man was shot in self defence. I was a very small girl, too small to be told anything, but I had ears to listen with, and I could read; and I still remember, after it was over,
and he came home, of his coming
to my father's house and my mother putting her arm around him,
and kissing him on the cheek,
that to this day carries the scar
of that mutiny. There are many,
many more adventures to be told

CENTRAL GROVE

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kennedy and son, Albert, of Kearney, Ontario, visited Mr. and Mrs. Guier last
week.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stewart, of Milton, Mass., who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Byron Delaney, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Morrill and children, of Westport, spent Sunday with Mrs. Morrill's father, George Delaney.

Mrs. Victor Pinigan and daughter, Myrna, of Freeport, spent the week end with her parents
Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Churchill Sollowen and Mrs. Marilla Walker, of Digby, visited Coleman Powell last
week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Treff, of Yarmouth, spent a few days recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Tibert.

Mrs. Edith Carley, of Boston, and sister, Mrs. Mendel Bates, of Freeport, spent Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cann.

I'm sure it will be a salty tale.
You will hear the whine of the wind in the rigging and hear the boom of the waves on the side of the ship. Capt. John is one of the few old time sea captains left from the days of "wooden ships and iron men"; of the days when the most beautiful sight was a full rigged ship with her white sails shining in the sun. He is still a sailor with a voice trained to roar above the sound of surf and wind
I visited him in his Philadelphia home some years ago, and when he wanted something he would simply lift his voice and roar.
Vera always ran to answer his
call, but small Bub, aged about 3,
and looking like an angel with his blue eyes and yellow curls, would look up and say calmly, "Go to h—!" Mutiny again, but no blood shed—just roars of laughter. How do you think I know all these things? Well, to you, and you, and you, he might be Capt. George Howard John, a grand old Down East sea captain,
but to me he is "Uncle Howd".
Ship ahoy, skipper dear! And may the harbor lights be bright and shining for many years to come.
Better get to work on that book!

MATHER'S CHARGE

A clergyman was hung for witchcraft in Salem, Mass., in August, 1692, and, according to the famous divine, Cotton Mather's account, he was "accused by five or six of the bewitched as the author of their miseries; he was accused by eight of the confessing witches as being an head actor at some of their hellish rendezvous; and as one who had promise of being a king in Satan's kingdom, now going to be erected. He was also accused by nine persons for extraordinary lifting,
and such feats of strength as could not be gone without a Diabolical assistance."

Miss Edith Snow, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Ansel Snow, returned to Brooklyn, N.
Y., last week. — Mrs. Delbert Height and daughter, Patricia,
who have also been visiting Mrs.
Snow (and Mrs. Frank Height), returned to Worcester, Mass., this week. — Mr. Harold Kiley, and children, who have been visiting of the same home, returned to their home in Brooklyn, N. Y., this week.

Indoors... Outdoors... Wash-day... Birthday... family history is being made.

NOT long ago a young friend of mine married. He is a camera fan, like the rest of us, and he told me:

"My family history is going to be kept in pictures. I plan to take at least one roll of pictures a week—many more whenever possible. Whenever we do anything—move to a new house—go on a week-end trip—plant flowers—celebrate a birthday or an anniversary—add a new member—whatever it is, the story will be told in pictures."

His plans go further than that, too. His picture record is to be kept in handy, useful form. "There will be a new picture book for every year," he told me. "I plan to have the best shots enlarged, and mount the others contact size. Everything goes into the book, where we'll always be able to find it and recall from our own snapshots—what we did in past days."

There, now, is an idea for all of us. In every family, things happen each day that we would like to remember. We buy new furniture, plant gardens, build a trellis for roses, put new screens on the back porch, take vacation trips. Children are born, grow up, change year by year. We change, too. And a true day-by-day picture-history of all our everyday activities, as well as activities not-so-everyday, would greatly enrich our memories in later years.

Let's make a mental note—make contract. His Highness (at the right) got quite a bit of attention from agriculturally minded visitors himself; at the moment he seems to be surveying the crowds, amusing themselves in other ways, rather grimly.

DEAD HE MUST BE

Dean Swift, famed author of "Gulliver's Travels," was an incurable jester. Prophesying that a certain quack almanac maker would die on a certain day, he was dismayed when the day came and passed? By no means. Dean Swift set forth a large array of quackish reasons to prove the quack was dead, ingeniously arguing that the quack's own testimony that he was alive should not be admitted, as he was too notoriously a liar to be entitled to believe on so important a point.

VALUE OF FREE CRITICISM AND A FREE PRESS

As the outcome of an article in a Canadian magazine attacking a Government machine-gun contract the Ministry finds itself compelled to make a public enquiry into the whole circumstances of the case.

Thus we are afforded an example of the value of free criticism and of a free press.

Referring to this matter the Ottawa Journal points out that under dictatorship, under Hitler, Mussolini or Stalin, the author of the article attacking a Government act and the editor of the magazine publishing it would have been clapped into jail; plucked.

Dictatorships are not held to account. There is no audit of their acts; no challenge of them; no criticism. Protest speaks fur-tively, in a whisper.

In Canada this magazine article was taken up by the press; the Government was called upon to explain; was compelled to submit its action to the public gaze. The people, not the Government, were masters.

The Government's conduct in this machine-gun contract may have been perfectly honest. That isn't the point. The real point the principle emphasized, is the right of the people to make sure that the Government's conduct is honest; that it submit itself to criticism and audit.

What a glorious blessing that is! What a thing for human self-respect, for human dignity!

From Moscow comes word of Soviet Admirals being shot. Shot, not because of treason, but because of thought. Because they dared to disagree with Stalin. To disagree with him in policy within his own philosophy.

What thought should this bring to all of us? Mainly the realization of the blessing of the free, democratic government under which we live. Realization of the blessing of freedom. And more than that, it should bring respect on the part of all of us to do more about and for this liberty than to merely take it for granted.

For we are not apt to take it for granted. Too apt as well to criticize / and scoff at the small weaknesses of democracy. The while losing sight of its essential gain and contribution in its assertion of the right and capacity of men to govern themselves, to speak their minds and consciences freely, to march onwards and upwards in a greater human dignity.

Let us safeguard that blessing. Safeguard the principle of the people owning the Government instead of the Government owning the people. Democracy, we all know, has its defects, has its penalties. It makes mistakes, it fumbles, it is often slow and inefficient, and it permits us to be plagued by fools and demagogues. But beyond all such things, and greater than them, is the truth that democracy permits the people to rule, permits freedom of soul and conscience; promotes human conduct and human self-respect to heights impossible under the slavery of dictatorship.

NEWSPAPER LAW

1. A postmaster is required to give notice in writing (returning the paper does not answer) the laws when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for pay.

4. If a subscriber orders the paper stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This follows the sound principle that a man must pay for what he uses.

PEDESTRIANS MUST FACE DANGERS ON THE HIGHWAYS

Under an order in Council recently made, the Motor Vehicle Laws of Nova Scotia are amended to make it illegal, and an offence under the Act, for pedestrians to walk on the highway with their backs to the direction of traffic.

The regulation specifically states that pedestrians on the highway, shall, whenever practicable, move upon the left half of the highway and as near as practicable to the left side of such left half.

It is to be observed that this is a prohibition against two pedestrians walking side by side on the travelled portion of a highway, even though they may be complying with the regulation by facing the flow of traffic.

For some years this has been a recognized safety precaution endorsed and recommended by all Safety Organizations on this Continent, that, for their own protection, pedestrians should walk facing traffic.

This regulation now makes this safety suggestion legal, and provides a penalty of a fine not in excess of $25.00, or more than thirty days imprisonment, for its non-observance.

The necessity of a pedestrian wearing something light in color or carrying some form of light while walking on an unlighted portion of the travelled highway, still exists.

Mary Marshall has returned to Toronto.

HAND CAUGHT IN MACHINE

With his right hand held fast between the heavy rollers of a bread moulding machine, on Monday morning, Horace Smith, proprietor of the Digby Bakery, gave instructions to those who, hearing his calls, entered the bakery, and took the machine apart to extricate him. Mr. Smith was not freed for fully half an hour.

Among those taking part in the "rescue" were Drs. W. R. Dickie and John R. McCleave, who had been summoned. When extricated it was found his hand was badly mangled, the skin and flesh of all fingers peeled down to the bone from above the knuckles practically to his wrist.

He was taken to the Digby General Hospital, where it has been revealed no bones were broken.

RETURNED MISSIONARY AT BEAR RIVER

The service at the United Baptist church last Sunday evening was greatly enriched by the eloquent address given by Miss Mabel Archibald, M. A., who has lately returned from the missionary field at Chicago, India.

Miss Archibald provided a forceful speaker as she vividly described that country, its people, customs, leaders (Gandhi included), superstitions, idol worship, festivals, etc., as she found them during the forty years spent in that country, and now rejoices in the fact that thousands of idol worshippers have learned to love the "True God" as revealed to them through the missionaries.

Possessing a magnetic personality, the speaker held the rapt attention of her large audience. At the close of her address she displayed numerous articles from that interesting country, and pleaded for more missionaries to go to the foreign fields and carry Christianity to those in darkness.

During the service the beautiful duet, "Go Home and Tell" was rendered by Miss Alice Forbes and Miss Avard Marshall.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Friends throughout the Mar- times extended congratulations Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Porter, who celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding day at their home in Bear River. The years have dealt kindly with the honored couple and they are enjoying good health in large measure. Mr. and Mrs. Porter were married in England, on Sept. 10, 1878, and went to Saint John, N. B., to make their home, shortly after.

During the years she resided in Saint John, Mrs. Porter's chief interest was her home and family, although she found time to devote to music and art. She was a devoted member of Trinity Church where her husband was a vestryman. The years of Mr. Porter in Saint John, dating from the early eighties, when he went there from England, where he was born on Dec. 10, 1855, were marked by close association with those about him in business, in fraternal circles, and in cultural interest.

The years of his young man- hood had been passed in law in England, but in 1882 he went to Saint John and was assistant to the late J. Murray Kay, manager of the Saint John and Maine Railway. This was absorbed in 1883 by the New Brunswick Rail- way and in that year Mr. Porter entered the office of a firm with which he was to be identified for 32 years as manager, for Wm. Thomson & Co., Saint John ship- owners and shippers.

At once the famed Battle Line and other steamships came to mind at mention of the William Thomson & Co., name. For a ## number of years following his retirement from active business life

in Saint John, Mr. and Mrs. Porter have been making their home at Bear River, with occasional visits to Saint John and a sustained lively interest in the city where they occupied a prominent place for so many years.

The wedding anniversary recalls the attention Mr. Porter devoted to the work of Trinity Church and as a life member of the Diocese of Fredericton and treasurer of the Church of England Institute. At Trinity he was a vestryman for years and he is the last surviving member of the corporation of that church.

With a keen interest in music while in England he had been a member of and on the committee of the Evening Service Choir of St. Paul's Cathedral, London—he had done a great deal for the development of musical culture in Saint John as librarian, secretary and president of the Saint John Oratorio Society as well as participating in other musical events of the times.

An expert at chess, was twice Saint John champion and at golf was the first to make that much desired "hole-in-one" on the links of the old Saint John Golf Club. Also he had been president of the Neptune Rowing Club, which flourished in promotion of athletics.

Mr. Porter was a member of the Union Club, of Saint John, and has been its president. In St. George's Society he filled the positions of vice-president and secretary. In all these relations he came into close association with a large number of his fellow citizens and won lasting friendships.

Horace A. Porter, K. C., M. L. A., is the only surviving child of the union, another son, Lieutenant-Colonel Cecil G. Porter, D. S. O., of Montreal, having died the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Porter and their children, Miss Peggy, and Thomas and John Porter, arrived on Monday to attend the anniversary celebration. Mrs. Cecil Porter, her daughter, Miss Audrey, and son Kenneth Porter, of Montreal, are also in Bear River.

NOW, it's easy to relieve head cold discomfort. Just put a few drops of Vicks Vapo-rinol up each nostril and feel the tingle as Vapo-rinol's stimu-

clogging mucus, helps to keep the sinuses from being blocked by the cold—lets you breathe again.

NEXT TIME, don't wait until your head is all stuffed up. At the first vent many colds from developaid in reducing. It builds up nerve and muscle tissue—steps up energy.

The action of NU-MAC is a bit slower with creosote than with coal deposit and sometimes two applications are necessary to soften the creosote which then falls to the bottom of the chimney. ### MARRIAGES

Adams - Shortliffe

Brookville, N. B., United Church was the scene of an interesting wedding on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Rev. William McBride Rodger, the pastor, united in marriage Miss Ethel Maye Shortliffe, daughter of Mrs. Geytrude and the late H. A. Shortliffe, of Torriburn, Saint John County, and Hedley Elroy Adams, son of Albert and the late Mrs. Bessie Adams, of Golden Grove, Saint John County. The pulpit platform was decorated with flowers in the pastel shades and the guest pews were marked with nosegays tied with white satin ribbons. A. H. Morrison played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin as the wedding party proceeded up the aisle, and the recessional was Mendelssohn's Wedding March. During the signing of the register Mr. Morrison played special nuptial selections. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hazel F. Shortliffe, and Harold Stephenson, brother-in-law of the groom, was the best man. The ushers were C. Springer Purdy and Clarence Adams, brother of the groom. Given in marriage by her uncle, Walton Shortliffe, of Digby, the bride wore a gown of white sheer and lace fashioned in slipper length. She wore a white, off-the-face hat, with a shoulder length veil and white accessories and carried an arm bouquet of Rapture roses. The bridesmaid wore a dress of blue sheer and lace, fashioned on the same line as the bride's gown and a navy blue hat and navy and pink accessories. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay. After the ceremony a reception lical plain of Sharon, machine-gunning Moslem terrorists and driving them to the hills." There was fighting recently, too, on the plain of Armageddon, most ancient battleground in the world, which John in his Revelation said was to be the final battleground of the nations. Thus the harassed Jews are defeated even in their quest for a refuge historically their own.

It would seem that most all of us are more or less inconsistent in some things. We read the other day of a man arguing against the capitalistic system and a few moments later remarking that mining properties he owned would be valuable if only capital could be interested in their development. "No one here has money enough to do it," he said. "We have got to get some big company interested."

was held at the home of the bride's mother. The bride's table had a cloth of lace and was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Shortliffe, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black and white Bernberg sheer. Mr. and Mrs. Adams left later on a wedding to the New England States and on their return will reside at Torriburn. For travelling the bride wore a dress of blue imported wool and gray tailored coat. Her hat and accessories were of navy blue. The bride is a graduate of the Saint John High School and the Provincial Normal School and until recently was the Principal of the Little River School. The groom is associated with the Brantford-Carrington Co., Ltd., at Coldbrook, Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Walton Shortliffe, of Digby, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stephenson, of Moncton. The bride has been the honor guest at several showers and luncheons during the past few weeks. Among the many gifts received was one of silver from the teaching staff of the East Saint John School, and chairs from the staff of Brantford-Carrington Company, Ltd. The bride is a niece of A. A. Shortliffe, of Digby.

Of Interest to Our Farmers

As a result of pressure from the Senate at Ottawa the operation of The Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act, 1934, will be suspended as from December 31st, 1938, after which no applications will be received. The only exception to this ruling will be the case of those farmers classed as Soldier Settlers holding farms under agreement of sale with the Director of Soldier Settlement of Canada.

Many measures for the alleviation of industrial and commercial interests of Canada have been enacted by Parliament since 1929 but this is the only consideration of the agriculturalists of the country as a whole, and its effect, where applied, has been to give new hope to farmers overburdened with accumulated debt. It has also resulted in the transformation of defunct mortgages and other securities on farm loans into well-secured and profitable investments.

Many farmers of this Province have avoided confiscation of their property by foreclosure, tax sale, or order for collection by recourse to this Act, and had a composition.

Miss Claire Merkel, of Digby, and Miss Dorothy Stewart, of Bear River, left on Sunday for Mettapan, where they will attend the Sacred Heart Academy this year.

DIVER SAYS HE HAS LOCATED GOLD LADEN SPANISH GALLEONS

(Christian Science Monitor)
Two Spanish galleons, encrusted with coral and believed laden with gold, are reported lying off the northern coast of the Dominican Republic by Capt. John D. Craig, deep sea diver, photographer and explorer. Captain Craig, who has just returned to New York from a scientific exploration sponsored by Beloit University, in Wisconsin, told of having found the ships in a coral forest 65 feet under the surface of the sea, where they presumably sank when driven there by a hurricane in the year 1632. It is believed that the two ships still contain about $70,000,000 worth of gold and silver, both raw and worked.

Interviewed in the office of the Dominican Chamber of Commerce in New York, recently, Captain Craig told of many previous attempts to salvage the rich cargo. He recalled that as long ago as 1850 a Boston explorer reported the discovery of the ships and stated that they were encrusted with coral. This Captain Craig substantiated, adding that it would be a difficult task to reach the sunken treasure trove, as it would be necessary to cut through the coral encrustation as hard as cement. He said that about $3,500,000 of the treasure has already been salvaged.

Captain Craig will soon leave New York for Wisconsin to report his findings to the explorations' sponsors. He described the coral formation of this part of the world as a rainbow-hued fairyland, and told of coral trees reaching a height of 300 feet and a diameter of 50 to 800 feet, all below the ocean surface. The hardships of such an exploration are immense, he added, with the necessity of guarding against fighting fish, swift currents, and sharp coral projections. The Captain's party passed about three months in the region, and with the aid of the Dominican Government made aerial surveys and under-water motion pictures.

About This and That

Anxiety, says Prof. Stephen Leacock, is becoming a habit. We cultivate the expectation of disaster. This attitude toward our destruction. We are all afraid together. We have lost courage. Mediaeval superstition with its fear of hell, wasn't in it with our new fear of depression, our new fear of war. We take too much thought for the future. In time of life we drag out our preparation for it, too long. We are being the key to happiness.

People who have been much in the woods in Digby County during the past few months tell us that the beaver are increasing rapidly—and there is a perpetual close season on them. Canada does well to preserve the beaver. Not only is this industrious little animal the emblem of the Dominion, it has been one of the principal forces in the exploration and development of this country. It was the lure of the beaver that enticed the coureurs de bois to the Great West, and later the Nor'-westers. And again it was the beaver that took the Nor'-westers across the mountains and down to the Pacific.

It is surprising how many folks feel friendly good citizens, that it is the solemn duty of the newspapers, both the daily and the weekly journal, to act as a sort of an accuser, whose duty it is to verbally chastize those thought to be responsible for something that is detrimental to the town or community.

Many feel that a dirty street, dilapidated buildings, slum conditions, non-payment of taxes, and inefficient doing of public work are legitimate game for the pen of newspaper attack or the editorial pen of the editor.

While we are fully cognizant of the fact that it is the duty of a newspaper to pull for a tidy, clean town, efficient service, and capably executed public tasks, we nevertheless do not feel that a newspaper should take upon itself the job of being known as an habitual public "grouser." It is surprising how often the town paper is requested to "pan" this or "write a piece" about this "disgraceful" thing or that "terrible" state of affairs. Most of these requests come from those fully qualified to write a good letter. The Courier has several times offered its columns to those desiring to right some wrong, or state their views on this and that. Somehow these letters never reach this office.

Barring personalities, the Courier is willing to publish letters from citizens who are willing to give their names for identification; but this paper does not feel called upon to act as a public denouncer of this and that.

If citizens desire to lodge a complaint or feel that things are being supposedly misconducted

Apple Shipments Under Way

The past few weeks have seen the annual export movement of apples from Nova Scotia begin in earnest, from both the ports of Halifax and Port Williams. Total shipments from Halifax to September 14 were reported to be 70,933 barrels, and while reports were not complete from Port Williams at that date, loadings at that port have been heavy as well, and several boats have already taken large shipments. Apple marketings thus far have shown the crop already garnered to be of uniformly high quality, both with respect to shipments overseas and those coming into local markets.

New Appointee Takes Office

Dr. E. E. Hancock, recently appointed to the position of animal pathologist for the provincial department of agriculture, has taken up his duties at the Agricultural College, Truro, his office quarters being in the horticultural building. Dr. Hancock has just completed a refresher course at Macdonald College, St. Anne's, Montreal.

Opportunities in Nova Scotia Dairying

Emphasis on the opportunities for expansion which lie in the dairying industry of Nova Scotia is made in the August issue of the "Nova Scotia Dairymen" issued by the dairymen's association of the province. This issue stresses the fact that dairy production in Nova Scotia is still far short of supplying the demands of Nova Scotia markets, and also emphasizes several features of educational and promotional work which form part of the program of the provincial department of agriculture for stimulation of greater production. To quote the "Dairymen": "The dairy industry is and must continue to be the foundation of successful farming in many sections of Nova Scotia. The abundance of moisture, general climatic conditions, and soil conditions, and the comparatively small size of the farms are favorable to successful dairying. It has been well established that where farmers are shipping cream to a creamery, retaining the skim milk for feed, and combining the good dairy herd with eggs and possibly some poultry or some good cash crop, raising as much home-grown feed as possible, dairying can be a profitable undertaking. These facts are established by the experience of practical farmers, and this program has been responsible for building up some of the best agricultural areas in Nova Scotia."

The article points out that the dairy industry is well served by a system of modern creameries which provide an all-year-round market for cream, with the security for the dairy farmer of the monthly cream check, a situation which has helped to bring about a considerable improvement in dairy farms and homes and home life, over a period of years. Distinct improvement has also been brought about in production of dairy herds and in the quality of dairy stock. Average production per cow is now estimated at 4100 lbs. milk and 143 lbs. butterfat compared with 3,000 lbs. milk and 120 lbs. butterfat not so very many years ago. Value of good foundation stock is realized by many dairy farmers, and with attention being paid to this factor, with better herd management and better farming methods, including more extensive pasture fertilization, the increase in production per cow can be confidently expected to continue.

With respect to the opportunities for expansion, the article quotes the following figures for dairy imports into the province: Butter—33,763,000 lbs. equal in milk annually to 87,114,000 lbs. milk. Cheese, condensed milk, powdered milk, whole milk and buttermilk, equal to approximately 28,000,000 lbs. milk.

Total, in terms of milk, approximately 115,000,000 lbs.

To produce this within the province would require the equivalent of 28,000 cows, figuring the average production at the present estimate of 4100 lbs. per cow. This could be produced if the average production were raised from 4100 to 5400 lbs. of milk.

In the records under the dairy herd improvement policy of the provincial department of agriculture, for the past season, there were 743 herds with 6,623 cows on test, of which 4,223 cows were on test for eight months and over. These cows showed an average production of 6,215 lbs. milk for the year, while, as it is pointed out, it requires only an average of 5,400 lbs. milk for all dairy cows in the province to raise the dairy production to the province's needs.

Completing Arrangements for Plowing Match

If weather is favorable, it is confidently anticipated that between 4,000 and 5,000 people will attend Nova Scotia's first provincial plowing match which will open on the Staples farm just north of Truro, on the morning of October 4th. Entries for the match are expected to be all in this week. In addition to the fine array of special prizes and trophies which have been donated for the various events in the match, there is approximately $450 for cash prizes. The program of the match will open at 9 o'clock on both days of the match. On October 4th, the classes to be judged will include class 3 for narrow bottom walking plow, class 5 for oxen, and class 6 for two-furrow gang plows. On Wednesday, October 5, the events will be class 2 for walking bottom plows, class 4 for junior plowmen, and class 7 for tractors. Class 1 is the grand championship class. The judging of teams will take place on the final afternoon. The plowmen's banquet, being tendered the contestants by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, will be held in Truro on the last evening, when the presentation of trophies and prizes will take place.

Unique Event for Farmers' Club
Celebration of the 15th anniversary of the Shinnicams Farmers' Club, in Cumberland County, on Sept. 23, is to take the form of an historical pageant depicting the development of agriculture in that district. The pageant is to be in three sections, first, dealing with past development; second, present conditions; third, the future of the district. Special speakers will address the farmers' rally following the pageant.

H. M. S. DUNDEE GOES AGROUND AT ANTI-COSTI

The British sloop, Dundee, which was in this port the latter part of August, grounded Tuesday, near the entrance of Ellis Bay, Anticosti Island, but it was not in a dangerous position "as long as it doesn't blow." Commander R. I. Agnew, officer commanding His Majesty's Canadian Dockyard, Halifax, announced Tuesday night.

The 1,100 ton sloop had stranded Tuesday morning during very poor visibility in the vicinity. She left Newcastle Monday for Anticosti.

The powerful wrecking tug, Foundation Franklin, sailed immediately from Halifax upon receipt of a message the Dundee had grounded, but she was not expected to reach Ellis Bay before late Wednesday at the earliest. As far as was known in Maritime ports, the sloop had not asked for assistance.

Anticosti, and especially the Ellis Bay area, last month was surveyed by the department of national defence with a view to possible establishment of a naval and air base there. Such a base, it was suggested would protect cities of Central Canada and the Eastern United States from attack by air from Europe in the event of war.

The Dundee was built at Chatham, England, in 1933. She is 250 feet long, has a speed of about 16 knots and carries two four-inch guns and four machine guns. Her crew is believed to number between 50 and 60 officers and men.

She is one of three sloops—small men-o-war—attached to the America and West Indies Squadron of the Royal Navy.

BELIEVES IN ADVERTISING

Newspaper advertising builds confidence and good will, attracts new customers, increases sales, and stabilizes merchandise, methods and prices. So says Professor Thomas Barnhart, of the University of Minnesota.

He has given the matter considerable thought. From his experience and observations he has come to 14 definite conclusions:

- 1—Newspaper reading is a university habit. Newspaper advertising therefore reaches virtually all who read and buy.
- 2—A newspaper advertisement can always be seen by the reader.
- 3—Newspaper advertisements as part of the complete paper, goes into the home as a welcome guest.
- 4—The newspaper advertisement can have as much reader interest and news value as the news item.
- 5—The amount of text used in newspaper advertisements is dependent only upon the size of the space.
- 6—Newspaper advertising is flexible.
- 7—Newspaper advertising is quickly controlled.
- 8—Newspaper advertising may be adjusted to different conditions.
- 9—Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers and dealers to state where their products may be bought.
- 10—Newspaper advertising is inexpensive. Merchants have learned that it covers more families for less money than any other form of advertising.
- 11—Newspaper advertising results may be checked.
- 12—Newspaper circulation is known and is comparatively unaffected by daily change.
- 13—Nearly all of a newspaper's circulation is concentrated in its own market.
- 14—Newspaper advertising reduces selling costs because it entails no waste circulation. This helps reduce costs for the consumer.

BAND NOTES

The management and the guests of The Pines this summer have shown great interest in the progress of the town Band, and have been most generous in giving their financial support. The Band is highly pleased to acknowledge a splendid gift of $79 through the Manager, Mr. Ellis. A few more gifts like this would put the Band on its feet.

Peter Humpherson, the accomplished piccolo player of the Civic Band, is much in demand by other bands who lack a competent player on that brilliant little instrument. Last week Mr. Humpherson played at the Lawrence-town Exhibition and at the Fisheries Exhibition in Lunenburg, with the Middleton Band.

"Billy" Christie, who has won an enviable position as a Euphonium soloist, will spend the winter in Halifax, studying wireless. But assures us that he will be back in his chair with the Civic Band in June.

Audiences at the open-air concerts this season have been greatly pleased with the interesting and informative comments on each selection as given over the loud-speakers by Harry L. Y. Beaman, whose announcements of the selections as played, have added greatly to the entertainment. Most listeners like to know something about what is being played, and Mr. Beaman's remarks, given in his own inimitable style, have been much enjoyed. The Band appreciates his interest and the help he has given. He is a musician of considerable talent, and has taken a big part in many important musical events elsewhere. For several years he sang a prominent part with operatic troupes of high standing in most of the larger American Cities, and was for two or three years House Manager of the Opera House in Saint John, when that theatre was prominent in the dramatic world.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURING THE HOUSE

Careful "framing" with trees made this snapshot more pleasing.

ALMOST everyone who has a camera takes pictures of his home, but many of us neglect the few simple suggestions which would make our snapshots of "home sweet home" much more pleasing. Here they are:

- First, keep the camera level, or vertical lines will be distorted. Stand back far enough to get the picture without tilting the camera. If necessary, shoot from across the street—perch yourself in a fork of a tree, or maybe a step-ladder will give you the proper elevation.
- Second, pick a time when the sun lights the house at the proper angle. The sun rays should strike the house at a slant so that shadows are cast by such details as window frames and weatherboarding. These shadows outline all the brightly lighted projecting details, and they will appear clearly in the picture.
- Third, try to "frame" the picture attractively, with trees or overhanging branches. Such a natural "frame" for the house gives depth to the picture and adds pictorial charm.

A good fourth rule—use a color

Space didn't permit taking a complete view, but the doorway and roof angles alone made a charming shot.

filter over the camera lens to give tone to the sky. Rich-toned sky is especially pleasing in pictures of white houses, and it improves the effect of any picture.

If you have no recent pictures of your home, take a few today, following these suggestions. Perhaps your house is so situated that you can't apply all the rules, but each, by itself, will help you produce pictures that more attractively present the place where you live.

200 John van Guilder.

TWO WEYMOUTH STORES ENTERED

A Considerable Quantity of Goods Stolen in Both Cases

When arriving to open for business Monday morning it was discovered that two of the stores here had been broken into at some time over the week end, presumably Sunday night.

At C. F. Granville's entrance had been made by forcing a window in the back shop and then forcing a locked door between the back shop and main store. Twelve loaves of bread, six pounds of cheese, four dollars' worth of cigarettes and tobacco, as well as cakes and other groceries were missing.

Capt. Granville is at present in New Brunswick with Mrs. Granville and daughter, on vacation trip, having only left on Saturday morning. Alfred Johnson, who is in charge of the store in his absence, had locked it in the usual manner on Saturday night.

At A. F. Comeau's tailor and clothing shop, entrance was made by smashing the glass in the two side doors and then unlocking the front doors. Two suits of clothes as well as other wearing apparel were missing.

At the Granville store papers in cash box had been ransacked but the sum of nineteen cents in pennies, all the money it contained, was still there.

A blood-stained handkerchief was found at the back of the Granville store. Four members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were in town investigating.

FALL PLOWING LOOMS LARGE

In Any Sound Farm Program

The good farmer plans consistently from year to year to get as much plowing done in the fall as possible. This is sound farm economy for a number of reasons, chiefly because:—

- 1.—It permits proper planning for increased acreage in grain and root crops and aids in improving the yield per acre, both crying needs on Nova Scotia farms.
2. It saves using valuable time for plowing in the spring when there is a rush of farm work.

Count yourself among the good farmers of Nova Scotia by planning a little more acreage in field crops, and getting as much of the plowing done now as possible.

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or sheet over the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he relaxes into peaceful sleep VapoRub's poisons—and vapor action is still bringing relief—and you can get a good night's rest too.

"TIRED ALL THE TIME"

She felt miserable—drowsy—low in vitality—latter in spirit. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. At once she took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy. Headache, backache, signs of faulty kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Bear River Exhibition Opens With Good Attendance

Fine weather yesterday marked the opening of the annual Exhibition of the Bear River Agricultural Society, and it was favored with a good attendance. This year they have gone "over the top" as far as the number of exhibitors is concerned, there being 167 in all, ten more than in any previous year. In all departments there is a good showing. In spite of the season's bad weather the agricultural exhibits are if anything above the average. All the root crops show up well and the garden stuff is excellent. Possibly the squash and pumpkins are not so large as have been shown in previous years, but nevertheless, they are excellent in both appearance and texture. The flower exhibit, we think, shows a little falling-off, but what there is, is good.

The domestic department—hooked rugs, fancy work, cookery, preserves, etc.—is excellent. It is hard to beat the Bear River ladies at this work, and the show cases are surrounded all the time by interested sight-seers.

Bear River is a little out of the apple section of the province, but still they have always managed to make a fair show. This year the display is much better than usual. The fruit is of extra quality, the coloring is fair considering the lack of sunshine, and they are of a good size.

A very interesting booth is that of the Women's Institute, where many antiquary are on display as well as other interesting articles.

The outdoor show is larger than usual in all departments, particularly horses and cattle. There are more sheep than usual and there is a good showing of swine. Increased facilities for displaying poultry has resulted in a larger number of birds.

Taken all in all the Exhibition is good and well worth a visit. It will be open today—plan to attend.

Memorial Window For Banff Church

Inspired by the beauty of the Canadian Rockies, and the sweet tones of the bells of St. George's Church, Banff, Alberta, Miss Jessie Van Brunt of Brooklyn, New York, has presented the church with a memorial window which she designed and made herself. The window embodies the idea of the Church bells as angels or God's messengers sending inspiring invitations to worship. It was placed above the main entrance and is in memory of the late Canon Henry Montgomery, I.A., rector of this church from 1921-24, previously rector of St. Peter's Church, Kingsclear, N.B., and Canon of Christ Church Cathedral in the diocese of Fred-erickton, N.B., also rector of St. Barnabas Church, Calgary. He served in the C.E.F. from 1916-18, being chaplain of No. 14 Canadian Hospital at Eastbourne, England. He died at 75 on July 9, 1929.

Rev. R. L. Ralph Sherman, M.A.B. Litt., D.D., Bishop of Calgary, recently dedicated the window.

The bells which inspired Miss Van Brunt were donated by Hon. Robert Brett, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta in 1925, later being dedicated by Rt. Rev. Cyprian Pinkham, D.D., D.C.L., late Bishop of Calgary, in 1927. Rev. Canon Tully Montgomery is the present rector.

WEYMOUTH SCHOOL NOTES

Many improvements have been made in the Weymouth school during the past few months. For the first time in a number of years, there are now four teachers, this having been necessitated by an exceptional increase in registration in the lower grades. Notable is the entrance of 21 beginners this term. Miss Agnes Payson, Primary, has charge of Grades I (a), I (b), and II (a), and Miss Stella Sabine, Intermediate, has Grades II (b), III and IV.

The whole building has been re-decorated inside, and the new buff-cream-white color scheme makes the rooms immensely lighter and cleaner in appearance. This work was done by Emil Sautinier. Many minor repairs have been made in order to put the structure in good condition for the year. New stoves and sixteen new modern chair-desks, the product of Dominion Chair Co., of Bass River, N. S., have been installed. A quantity of new equipment for the High School Department is now on order, as well as a new bell to replace the one now in use.

On the whole, the people of Weymouth should be very proud of their school, which now ranks very favourably with other provincial schools of a similar size. Much credit must be given to the School Board, which consists of Dr. H. J. Melanson, chairman; Messrs. F. O. Hankinson and D. V. Theriault, with W. G. Blackadar, secretary, for their progressiveness in carrying out this work.

The contract for the building of the new Baptist Church at Lawrencetown, has been awarded to A. W. Allen & Son, of Middleton, work to begin at once.

A citizen of Little Brook, named Dugas, was held up at Bridge-town, on Monday, by the R. C. M. P., on suspicion of operating a bus for gain without a permit to do so. The conveyance has passed through that town before with a good sized number of men occupying it, apparently seeking jobs as apple pickers. Dugas on examination in the Magistrate's Court, took oath that no charge was being made to the occupants of the bus.

The Courier is not at all blind to conditions in all phases of the town life, but it does not feel called upon to act as a mouthpiece for those who could very well accept their share of the responsibility by drawing journalistic attention to some real or alleged civic wrong through the medium of a letter to the editor.

Hidden Camera Photographs Burglar

After his home had been burglarized nine times in recent weeks, Robert Beard, of Fort Wayne, Ind., constructed a camera device by which he hoped to identify the culprit. The device, hidden in a dresser drawer, was set off when an intruder opened the drawer, contacting two wires, exploding a flash bulb and clicking the shutter of the camera, and it took the picture shown at (left). Police, of Fort Wayne, arrested Thos. Freeman, (right), and charged him with the robbery.

A recent example of this is disclosed by the Oldsmobile division of General Motors. Away back in 1936, a mining engineer who was going to South America for a two years' stay, ordered a 1938 model car. The other day he arrived home, and delivery of his car was made to him.

Another example involved a West coast citizen who a few weeks ago signed up for a two-year term in the Navy. Before he began service, he paid a down payment and his old car on a 1940 model Oldsmobile, to be delivered to him upon his discharge.

"Previews of Progress" Approximately 80,000 people attended the General Motors "Previews of Progress" demonstration which were staged in Ontario municipalities in a five-weeks period ending August 26.

In charge of the brilliant young lecturer, Ernest L. Foss, the "motorcade of science" made stops for one or two nights at Kingston, Belleville, Cobourg, Peterborough, Orillia, Barrie, Huntsville, North Bay, Sudbury, Owen Sound and Oshawa. The demonstrations of the latest advances in science and invention were offered either in parks or in indoor arenas, depending upon weather conditions. Peterborough set the attendance record with 11,000 spectators in two nights, and also voluntarily staged a two-mile-long parade of commercial floats to welcome the "Previews" unit to town.

Mr. Foss warmly complimented his Canadian audiences upon their attentiveness and their consideration, and commented favorably upon the high standard of education and grasp of fact which was apparent in his Ontario listeners throughout the tour.

Recently completed "shadow-graph" tests on Cadillac's "Sixty" disclose a substantial increase in visibility over conventional Sedan design. In these tests, bright lights are placed inside the car in the position normally occupied by the driver's eyes. The beams of light from these lamps give an exact picture of the extent of visibility enjoyed by the driver.

Actual glass area gained by the Sixty Special over conventional Sedans are: Windshield, 27 per cent; front door, 53 per cent; rear door, 33 per cent.

Seventy per cent of the motor vehicles of the world were registered in the United States in 1936.

In the old days, Moslem pilgrims used to travel to the Holy Cities of Mecca and Medina on foot. Today, many of them make the Pilgrimage in Chevrolet taxicabs and trucks.

FIVE WINNERS USERS OF SAME PRODUCT

Out of more than sixty entries in the white bread baking contest held at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, Ont., this year, the fact that the first five prize winners used Robin Hood flour has called forth much comment from home bakers everywhere. The winners were:—

1st prize, Mrs. W. A. Wyllie, Bolton, Ontario.

2nd prize, Miss Eva Jefferson, Deloraine, Miss. Toronto.

3rd prize, Mrs. P. Forester, R.

R. No. 2, King, Ont.

4th prize, Mrs. James Ewart, R. R. No. 4, Bolton, Ont.

5th prize, Mrs. Wm. McClure, Brampton, Ont.

Mrs. W. A. Wyllie, whose loaf of bread was best in points of flavor, texture, cooking and appearance, is an Ontario girl, who lived for some years in the West. She has used Robin Hood since she started doing home baking, and her mother used it before her. "I like making home-made bread and rolls," she stated when interviewed after her victory. "It is so easy to bake a few fresh loaves, or a dozen or two rolls and it adds variety to one's meals. I prefer simple wholesome food, that is suitable for the children".

Miss Eva Jefferson, is a young Toronto girl, who won prizes in the junior competitions for a number of years. This is the first time she has entered the senior class, as she is only seventeen years of age. She entered against her mother, who used a different flour, and Eva carried off second prize. Eva believes in sticking to the product that has brought her consistent success.

This was the first year Mrs. Forester showed at the Exhibition, and she quite enjoyed it.

She is vice-president of the Laskay Women's Institute, and never won a prize at a fair before, although she thinks she will try to better her prize next year with another attempt. "The family think I make even better bread than the loaf I entered," she laughingly told this reporter.

Mrs. Ewart and Mrs. McClure, whose bread received honorable mention, are both farm women, who insist that next year the honor of being first will go to a country woman, if they can possibly manage it.

It is quite an honor for the Robin Hood Company that for the first time in the history of the fair all prizes for white bread were won by one flour—and that flour was Robin Hood.

Britain's Premier, Reich Dictator in Conclave

One of the most momentous meetings in history is pictured here as Adolf Hitler, (right), Reich dictator, and Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain, (centre) of England, met at Hitler's villa at Berchtesgaden, to discuss ways and means of averting another European war. At (left) is German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop; back to camera two interpreters. Chamberlain may have another meeting with the German fuhrer after he has reported the result of the present one to the British Parliament.

About This and That

Word from Ottawa says aeroplane manufacturing plants will be established near Montreal and Toronto. These will rank among the largest in the Dominion. It is not clear, however, if engines will also be made in Canada. How many people know that in the case of a modern bomber, there are 11,000 parts in the engine alone. As for the plane itself, there are about 70,000 separate parts for which between 6,000 and 7,000 separate drawings are necessary.

Hitler has captured the youth of Germany, and in so far as one may judge, those who have come under his sway are willing captives. Hitler early recognized the vital importance of enlisting a following that would embrace the young

Whales Commit Mass Suicide

The news that hundreds of whales had perished miserably by throwing themselves against the cliffs of the Grotto, near Capetown, South Africa, sounded unbelievable enough on the telephone. As a journalist, I decided to convince myself personally of what had happened, and half an hour later I was driving north to the place, 50 miles away.

above the carcasses were birds of prey, eager to begin their feast. I spoke to a man from the neighborhood who had seen it happen. The whales had emerged from the waves suddenly, in regular military formation, and begun swimming rapidly toward the shore. The impact was so tremendous that numerous whales were killed instantly, while the others jumped frantically trying to get to the sandy beach. Not one attempted to regain the sea. With a tremendous effort, as though driven by a mysterious power, they hurled themselves forward. The man who saw it was doubtless one of the few to witness the agony of these whales, described by naturalists as "sham flesh-eaters." And the phenomenon of their suicide is still very much of a mystery.

hundred creatures staged a suicide drama near the Cape. The natives tried to save the smallest of them, pushing them back into the sea, but as soon as they could use their flippers again, they returned to shore, repeating the manoeuvre several times. They just would not be saved. Examination of their carcasses revealed no trace of disease, nor were they fleeing before a storm, as the sea was perfectly calm.

There is a theory according to which a school always follows its leader, even though the latter may have gone insane. This, however, is disproved since single whales were found dying at considerable distance from the others.

Maybe we have to look for an explanation in the fact that vast stretches of the Cape Peninsula, including the strip of beach where this phenomenon took place, were once submerged. The creatures may have tried to find a passage, the existence of which they know by intuition, but which in reality had ceased to exist long ago. In support of this theory scientists quote the case of eels which travel enormous distances at mating time, the young eels born near the Antilles being led back by instinct to the European rivers whence their parents had set out. We may also quote the case of the Columbia River salmon in the same connection. This fish surmounts the greatest obstacles in its travels, but never manifests similar collective suicidal tendencies.

Lemmings, too, those small rodents which undertake migrations at long intervals, plunge into the sea and get drowned because they cannot swim. But instinct impels them to return to the element which was theirs before a biological whim had turned them into terrestrial mammals.

It is not unlikely that in a remote geological past whales, too, were terrestrial mammals. Therefore, if we assume that they kill themselves in a desperate effort to regain their ancestral habitat, we may be as near the truth as any scientific theory.

William Reilly, Bankruptcy Superintendent of Ottawa, reported last week bankruptcies in Canada last year totalled 967, compared with 1,154 in 1936. Liabilities were listed at $14,349,068 and assets at $11,910,069. Of the total the greatest number were in Quebec with 601 and in Ontario with 252.

About 80 per cent of Canada's 20,000 Negroes are native-born, with more than one-third of them living in Nova Scotia, descendants of the Maroons of Jamaica. The other third live in the Niagara peninsula of Ontario, descendants of escaped American slaves.

We still lack a plausible explanation for the phenomenon of collective suicide, all the more mysterious as it occurs at spots very remote from each other like South Africa, Zanzibar, Tasmania. In 1928 a school of several

Ramblings of a Rolling Stone

"It's a long lane that has no turning," or so one of the sages of the past has said, and we per-rot like, repeat this and other ancient saws, and in the repetition look upon ourselves as the residuary legate of all the garnered wisdom of the race.

However I distinctly remember one lane, or narrow way, almost breath-taking in the revelation which it afforded. On our way south through California we left the main highway for a side trip to Boulder Creek, a summer resort in the mountains not far from Santa Cruz, where a friend whom we wished to visit has a summer home. We were driving along enjoying the scenery, which is well worth seeing, in blissful ignorance of the fact that we were on the wrong road, yet somewhat amazed at the volume of traffic on such a seemingly unimportant highway—cars going in each direction in an almost unbroken stream.

The road, like mountain roads, was a winding one. And just here I might pause to remark that it really seems as though the engineers who lay out the up-ended avenues of traffic are paid at the rate of so much per kink, and that they are guilty of padding the payroll with wholly unnecessary acrobatics. However this may coincide with the facts of the case, there is one bend in that road that has a real purpose in life.

Rounding this particular corner we came face to face with something which made us doubt, for a moment, whether we had negotiated all of the dangerous curves as successfully as we had thought. There, right before our eyes, stood a large building with an elaborately scrolled front, across the upper portion of which blazed in "golden" letters the word "HEAVEN".

On either side of the name plate stood a cement angel leaning on a harp. There was an upraised trumpet in the hand of each of the "angelic" guardians, though the harps were mute, and the trumpets toothless. Across the road beneath a sort of shed stood nine or ten venerable looking dwarfs dressed in garments like those which we usually associate with Santa Claus. Whether these plastic gentlemen were relatives of St. Nick or Old Nick I cannot say; but a sign above their heads urged the beholder to "Read what the wise men say." Their supposed "bon mots" were graven on plaques, one of which was fastened to each neolithic breast. And over the decemvirate we were told in letters a couple of feet high that "The Gentle white man is the king of the entire world."

Going a little farther we were astonished to learn that "Holy City is the comforter and the New Jerusalem." Many other choice bits of wisdom were scattered around with a lavishness which actually bordered on the wasteful. There were two other groups of wise men and each of them was a silent purveyor of "thought provoking" proverbs. One of the latter groups was standing beside something which looked, to the unsophisticated eye, not unlike a modernistic bird house, beneath which was a drinking fountain which we discovered on examination to be that much sought rivulet, "The Fountain of Health." Although we did not feel in any special need of its salubrious bubblings, we drank. I might add, just here, that the deciding factor to the question to drink or not to drink, was a notice to all and sundry that "Are you suffering, are you lonesome, are you unhappy, are you sick, have you bad luck—if so, Love Holy City with all your heart and soul and the spell will be broken." As this profound piece of wisdom was close by and seemed to have a definite connection with the water—we drank again!

Yes, we stopped for a while in Holy City. How could anyone possibly pass up such an opportunity; more especially when we gave due consideration to the fact that the wrong road had led us right there.

Among other things we discovered that they were doing a land office business in the sale of anti-Volstead beverages to the travel-worn pilgrims.

never imagined that the Holy City could possibly be like the one we saw. Maybe we were on the wrong road and these signs we saw were the misleading statements of "The Father of Lies." The leader, Riker by name, and to whom the "faithful" have given the title of "Father", is a candidate for the governorship of California and has as one of the planks in his platform the demand that "All Jewish and Gentile people must unite and rule all others of the world" though where, outside of the funny papers, these other races are to be found, dependent sayeth not.

Another plank in this "celestial" platform declares: "Our new government does away with taxes—wars—strikes—poverty—graft and crime." HURRY FOR RIKER!!!

Several weeks ago I became the recipient of a remembrance which pleased me very much. A roll of papers was left at our address by the postman and on looking at them I found that they had been sent to me by Mrs. Omer Denton, of Little River, whom I knew in by-gone days as Irene Brooks, of Weymouth. Thanks, Irene, for the "Tiny Tattlers"; they were very welcome, I assure you!

Leaving No. 10

Premier Edward Daladier, France, left, and French Foreign Minister, Georges Bonnet, pictured leaving historic "No. 10 Downing St." official residence of the British Prime Minister, at the conference which brought about what was termed a "complete agreement" between the British and French governments in their plan to deal not only with the Czech Sudeten problem, but with general European appeasement. After the conference a brief communique was issued without disclosing just what was planned.

Monday afternoon by-standers were surprised to see a "seal" playfully diving and swimming about the Racquette. The seal had evidently come in at high tide, and for a number of hours splashed about that district. It was a little over a year ago that a large walrus was shot in Saint Mary's Bay below Meteghan—but until this time, none of the species have come so near here.

BOY SCOUT REPORT

Last Friday the Scouting year was once again opened for the 1st Digby Troop. The registered attendance was low as many were unable to attend the meeting. At the meeting of the 16th a schedule was set forth and very successfully followed. "Ted" Walker was voted for Troop Leader, and Norman Wright was again accepted into Troop along with David Clarkson. David will go to the Sea Gull Patrol and Norman to the Eagles. The Council Fire was successfully carried out by the Beaver Patrol, the patrol on duty for that evening.

Every Scout is trying to make the following months a more successful Scouting year than ever before, and they feel sure that with the co-operation of the citizens of Digby and the Scout Committee this can be accomplished.

LONG ISLAND POTATO CROP A FAILURE

Citizens of Long Island, off the tip of Digby Neck, are facing a virtual potato famine this winter, their crop being practically a complete failure.

For the past few years the Islanders have been practically able to grow "spuds" for their own use, and have had to import very few to supply their demand—although the majority of the residents are fishermen; many operate small farms, and there are a few who devote their time to farming almost exclusively, but this season, due to wet weather, most of their crop rotted in the ground, and in one instance, a fisherman farmer who manages to raise about twenty-five bushels each year, have harvested from the same quantity of seed the usual plants, about five bushels.

Years ago it was the custom on the Island to "trade" their fish products for farm produce with the farmers of Digby County and Annapolis Valley, but more recently this practice has been almost done away with, and the Islanders have been growing much of their own farm produce.

FIRE AT WEYMOUTH NORTH

The home of Capt. and Mrs. C. L. Baxter, at Weymouth North, formerly the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones), was badly damaged by fire at an early hour Wednesday morning. The kitchen chimney had burned out the day before, and as a watch had been kept on it all day with no signs of fire it was supposed to have been out, but evidently had been smouldering under the roof, which was covered with metal shingles, and no smoke could be seen or smelled, until the fire was discovered at an early hour when the Baxters were rising. The fire engine and fire fighters, as well as a large number of volunteer fire fighters arrived immediately but before it could be extinguished it had gained considerable headway. Damage was also done by smoke and water. The ell of the house in which the kitchen was situated was almost completely destroyed, with some damage done to the main part of the house.

We Get a Few More Hints on How to Do Things

To the Editor of the Courier:

Dear Sir:—Congratulations on the third section of last week's editorial. Like Herr Hitler's latest speech, it tells us where we stand.

But, and surely it is a big but, there is more to this than meets the eye.

We know that an editor's life is "not a happy one", that he has to try to steer a safe and prosperous course through the shoals and reefs of personal feelings, petty grouses, axe grinding and so on, and it is only natural that he should want to avoid becoming a sort of "public executioner", but on the other hand don't you think that perhaps you are rather too anxious to protect yourself from the stigma of "grouser"?

Before anything is done anywhere there has to be an impulse applied, and if we look at history, even a glance will show us that the people who have applied those impulses have never concerned themselves over what other people called them. In no field of human endeavour has this been more true than in the field of Spiritual enlightenment. In other fields, a name like that of Florence Nightingale springs to one's mind, and, while we do not mean to imply any similarity between the Courier Office and the army hospitals of 1857, or between Digby and the Crimea, no doubt you get the idea.

If you are content for the Courier to remain as it were, a mirror, in which are reflected the opinions, ideas, and ramblings of persons such as the writer of this document, then your policy is sound. But, if you want the Courier to come to life, to become a living, exciting, sparkling personality, a factor of importance in the life of the community, if you want to see the news stands stormed by excited crowds, while the air is rent by shouts of "Give my Curryer", then you must, you simply must, have a definite policy, even if it entails a few attacks of "grouseitis".

Do you know Charlie McCarthy? How silly, of course you do. But who is Charlie? Why he is just a doll, a wooden doll, who goes from place to place packed in a suit-case. But, boy oh boy! What personality! In the hands

MARRIAGES

VanTassel - Lawrence

A quiet wedding took place at the Church of England, in Yarmouth, on Saturday, when Mrs. Gladys Farnham Lawrence, daughter of Charles VanTassel, and the late Alice VanTassel, was united in marriage to Enos Wallace VanTassel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John VanTassel, of Digby. Rev. Mrs. Davis officiated. The bride was smartly dressed in a tailored navy blue suit and wore a corsage of white roses and maiden hair fern. She was given away by her father. After the ceremony refreshments were served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hersey, after which the couple left for a short trip to Boston. Mr. and Mrs. VanTassel will reside in Digby.

Curphey - Woodland

St. James Anglican Church, at Bridgetown, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Sept. 22, when Miss Minnie Marie Woodland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Nathaniel Woodland, of Upper Clements, was married to William Christian Curphey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Curphey, of Deep Brook. The ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Canon Underwood, was witnessed only by the near friends and relatives of the young couple. The bride wore a smart travelling costume of navy blue, with matching top coat and accessories. Miss Pauline Woodland, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by his brother, Geo. Curphey, of Deep Brook.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Who is to blame for the present confusion in Europe? The answer is Germany. Who will be to blame for the next war which seems so certain? Again the answer is, Germany. We who live today can see this, says the Gloucester, (Mass.) Daily Times. We are well informed and nothing which happens in Europe is allowed to escape our notice. Mussolini is a pestilential swash-buckler, but he could be taken care of. He would never dare to start a world war. It is Germany's strange ideology and ambition which is making all the trouble. We ask this question now because in case of war Germany afterwards will claim that France and England caused the war.

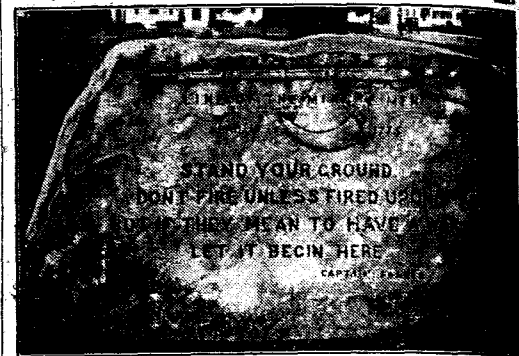

At the centre of European disturbance is the great Germanic race before which Roman legions once went into panic and were restored to their customary morale only after a heart to heart speech from their leader. The Germans are virile. They have brains. But they are infatuated with themselves and they wish to lead Europe. They are unreasonable in their championing of German minorities in surrounding states. There are oppressed racial minorities in Germany to which Hitler pays no heed. The Germans cannot live like brethren with the other European races. They wish to be supreme, and in this ambition they have invented the preposterous theory that they are a superior race. They have given up liberty to establish a unity which their leaders promise will give them the hegemony of Europe. Germanic ambition and lack of the spirit of brotherhood are the cause of European insecurity, and probably will sooner or later cause another world war, which will further the ambitions of Japan in the world.

At the end of the world war we were all convinced that Germany was to blame for the war and her own unfortunate condition. It came near prostrating the world to bring Germany to her knees. We had watched the young Kaiser play with his war machine. We saw that he was determined to use his wonderful army. When he thought the time was ripe the Kaiser threw his troops into defenceless Belgium and caused the deaths of millions of the finest men of all nations. The civilized world was unanimous in thinking that Germany was to blame. But Germans immediately sent out an insidious propaganda, seeking to prove that Germany was innocent of aggression, and that other nations were to blame for the war. After the next world war the Germans will again protest their innocence, but those who see things as they are now will not believe them.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Telling the Vacation Story

Keep a full record of your vacation tour, including information pictures as well as scenic and "fun" pictures. Use the camera for reminders such as this—it's quicker than a notebook, and much better.

THIS is the season for vacation tours, and every such tour includes many pictures, both of your vacation group and of the scenes you visit.

These tour pictures should tell a complete story of your vacation trip. They should outline the route, show the type of road and country, overnight stops, the points of interest and historical spots you visited. Often some of these pictures are neglected, and in consequence the tour story seems incomplete.

One of the important points in making a tour record complete is to picture the historical markers, signs, place names, road markers, and similar "identification points" you pass. These pictures, placed in your vacation album in proper sequence with the other pictures, provide valuable information for the friends who see your album, and help keep your own memory fresh.

The camera is especially useful for preserving long historical inscriptions. It is much quicker than using a notebook, and pictures of unusual markers (such as the one above) are far superior to a mere notebook text.

On this year's vacation tour, try to keep a comprehensive picture story. Remember that if you miss a picture your record may not be complete. A half-made record is better than none, but a full one, that really tells the vacation story, provides for memories that are far richer and more satisfying.

ARE THEY "SLIPPING?"

It may be that we were not the only strangers on Long Island last week, for, we have been told, that the only time people of the Island locked their doors was when people crossed from the mainland to spend the night.

Last Saturday evening we "took in" the show at the beautiful little Nuera Theatre at Freeport, having made a few purchases earlier in the evening. These purchases chases, which included a few oranges and tomatoes, were left in the car. Returning home we discovered our fruit was missing, although other unedibles had not been touched.

We wonder if the people of the Island are "slipping" as they say—or did our thieves come from the mainland?

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sollows spent the week end in Halifax, guests at the Nova Scotian, returning on Tuesday.

OFFER ACCEPTED BY CONGREGATION

For two Sundays after the burning of the Saint Croix Church, at Plympton, Rev. Father Gaudet held the services in the Plympton school building, which was entirely too small for the congregation, so the members of the United Church in that place, through their pastor, Rev. C. U. MacNevin, of Weymouth, very kindly offered their church building to Father Gaudet, to use until his own church was ready. Father Gaudet accepted their kind offer and since then has held service in the United Church every Sunday since. The new Saint Croix Church is expected to be completed enough so that the Christmas services can be held in the basement. ## Arms Useless on a Wet Day

Rheumatic Pains Relieved by Kruschen

Here is a noteworthy instance of the manner in which damp weather can affect the joints of one who is subject to rheumatic pains.

"I had been suffering from rheumatism very badly," a man writes, "and had such pains in my joints that I could hardly bear it, on a wet day especially. It pained me terribly to use my arms, and I was hardly able to work. I tried two different remedies, but I was still as bad after the treatment."

"Then I was told to try Kruschen Salts, which quickly brought relief. So of course, I have kept on with it, and I am now much better and have never felt so fit for years. I used to feel so miserable and sluggish, but now it is a pleasure to be able to work."—S. B.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by uric acid crystals in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating the internal organs to healthy, regular activity, and help them to eliminate excess uric acid.

ENGLAND'S ATTITUDE TOWARD PEACE

The following was clipped from an American exchange:

"Premier Chamberlain's attitude toward the surrender to Hitler is most discouraging to the idealists and has cast a shadow on the courage of the democratic world. There was everything practical in this surrender, but nothing ennobling. Hostile criticisms are not extensive in the United States, however, probably for the reason that we know that our attitude would be exactly the same under the circumstances. England, like ourselves, does not want to fight. She wants peace. She will stand many an insult before she will go to war, for she knows as well as we that in modern war those who gain the nominal victory are much liked as the conquered enemy. In the end the policy of Chamberlain will be approved by his own country-men as well as by ourselves. This surrender to the swashbuckler of Germany does not mean that England is weak, for she is well prepared for a defensive war.

"Certainly after the Panay incident we cannot call the English cowardly. We were insulted and damaged. We took it all lying down. We waved our arms in protest, but we did nothing. We acted thus because we knew that the nation did not want to fight. To day we are outraged by Mexico which is taking advantage of our pacifist policy. Let us look at the Czechoslovakian incident more closely. England and France together could not prevent the complete defeat of that nation inside of a month. They might shut the German fleet up in Kiel and bluster at the German armies across the Rhine, but they could place no troops by the side of the valiant Czechs. The logic of the situation is against that unfortunate people. They live next to a nation of ravening wolves. No one can help them. They must submit and make the best terms possible with their savage conquerors, who are little different from the Japanese in primeval ferocity.

"Thus the civilized world, the democracies, has been obliged to sit on the side lines while Mussolini ravaged the country of the blameless Abyssinians, while Japan stole Chinese territory and murdered thousands of women and children, and today in a mad world they must again stand by and witness the virtual enslavement of a valiant and innocent people. These unfortunates simply live in a bad neighborhood. Idealism receives her death blow. But democracies must not waste their strength. They must save it for Armageddon for the fight between tyranny and freedom."

DISGRACEFUL CONDITION OF HALIBURTON HOUSE

To the Editor of the Courier.

Dear Sir:—May I ask the courtesy of your columns for an urgent request that something should be done to preserve the Haliburton House in Windsor, and to make it available as a literary shrine comparable to that already established at "Grand Pre"? As the original of "Uncle Sam", the inspiration of much of the work of Mark Twain, the source of allusions in "David Harum", "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The Pickwick Papers", the works of Judge Haliburton have a constantly growing interest for countless tourists from the United States that are being increasingly attracted to the Maritime Provinces. Since my return from Nova Scotia I have been invited to speak before Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, before High School Assemblies and before various Church Societies upon the historical, scenic, industrial and literary treasures of Nova Scotia. I have emphasized the literary associations of Grand Pre and the American poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, and those of Windsor and the relation of "Sam Slick" and American humour. Many visitors will be attracted to Nova Scotia as the result of these addresses and subsequent publicity. Yet three years ago I conducted a small party of friends to Windsor to visit the Haliburton House. It was closed its rooms were empty, there was an air of desolation. I was told that the owner was not interested in making it a mecca of tourist traffic. However, the knowledge recently that the Citadel of Halifax was shortly to be preserved as a historical site, emboldened me to hope that the Haliburton House might be similarly preserved.

This morning I received a letter from a visitor to Nova Scotia, that has prompted this appeal. Let brief paragraphs from this letter suffice:—"In the morning I reached Windsor armed with my best inquisitive air, and set out in quest of knowledge in the realms of literature, history and geology. After a short walk I found myself amid birch and maple woods, and to one side was a dirt lane at the beginning of which were two stone posts inscribed with the name of 'Haliburton'. The lane was overhung by rich green foliage and filled with historic atmosphere. But I was soon to be disillusioned of my romantic setting. I emerged on an unkempt lawn, weeds choked the path. The old house which still showed great dignity and aristocratic pride, was unpainted and the roof was beginning to decay. Two untidy little children squabbled at the front door. Bravely and still filled with literary enthusiasm, I approached them and enquired if Mother were home! There was a blank silence and then one of those darling diamond paned windows was loudly opened, and a harsh voice cried "What is all the noise about?" My castle was crumbling, but I kept bravely on. Could I possibly see the famous library? "We don't allow anyone inside our door!" and the window rudely and loudly closed. I was squelched, my dreams lay in ruins about me. "O tempora, O mores", what day and age is this when the most valuable land-marks of our fair Dominion are tenanted thus!

My friend is a native-born resident of Nova Scotia, but what would be the reaction of visitors who might have travelled fourteen hundred miles and more, assured of the glories of the province, the rare hospitality of its people and the rich literary treasures awaiting them. Fort Royal, Cape Blomidon, Evangeline Park, Halifax, Louisburg, and countless other spots of historic beauty! One dark, frowning, tragic dishonor, the Haliburton House in Windsor!

Very sincerely,

F. J. Neal

FALL PLOWING

LOOMS LARGE

In Any Sound Farm Program

The good farmer plans consistently from year to year to get as much plowing done in the fall as possible. This is sound farm economy for a number of reasons, chiefly because:—

- 1.—It permits proper planning for increased acreage in grain and root crops and aids in improving the yield per acre, both crying needs on Nova Scotia farms.
2. It saves using valuable time for plowing in the spring when there is a rush of farm work.

Count yourself among the good farmers of Nova Scotia by planning a little more acreage in field crops, and getting as much of the plowing done now as possible.

Autumn is the Time to Clean Up the Garden

At this season of the year when the natural beauty of the flower garden is fading, one's thoughts turn to next year and the formation of plans for improving both the annual and perennial border. When any improvement is under consideration, there naturally comes into mind those factors which this year, interfered with the production of perfect results and probably the first thought will include the many different insects which were often a trial and contributed towards making the garden a comparative wilderness.

It should be realized that much can be done in the autumn to reduce the insect population of the following year. There are numerous ways of doing this, but perhaps the destruction of plant refuse, preferably by burning is the most productive of results. Many of the most common insect species pass the winter underneath debris lying in the fields and gardens. The tarnished plant bug, that arch enemy of some of the most cherished flowers, is among the number. The destruction of refuse also kills those insects that pass the winter as pupae inside the stems or in cocoons attached to leaves and stalks. Insect eggs laid on different parts of the plant will also be destroyed by this very useful practice. Cutworms of many species hibernates in the egg stage, the eggs being deposited on standing grass and weeds. Pulling and burning such will be found very helpful. Spading over the ground in the autumn tends to bring to the surface many garden insects which will be killed by the frequent temperature changes so common in autumn and spring. Such cultivation also tends to put the land in better heart, promoting early and rapid growth of plants in the spring which, due to their increased vigor, will be less liable to attack by insect enemies. Weeds and grasses bordering the garden should be burned over where dry as the eggs of the most destructive borers are to be found adhering to such plants. The gathering and burning of egg masses, cocoons, webs and nests on shrubs, ornamental trees or adhering to fences, garden furniture and buildings is strongly recommended. In this way the numbers of such common insects as tent caterpillars, tussock moths, cabbage worms, etc., will be very materially reduced. In autumn, ornamental trees as well as fruit trees and bushes of all kinds, must be carefully examined for the presence of dead twigs, branches and canes. When found these should be cut off and burned, as insects commonly hibernate within, hidden away in tunnels or cavities formed there while feeding.

Such practices, coming under the general heading of garden sanitation, will be found most beneficial not only in reducing the number of insects present but in promoting the general well-being of the garden.

Useful Hints on Storing Vegetables

Vegetables intended for storing for winter use should be grown to as nearly full maturity as possible, otherwise they cannot be expected to keep so well, states Jas. Gallaher, Head Gardener, Experimental Station, Kentville.

Squash and pumpkin should be turned over while growing to get all the sunshine possible, and the fruit may be raised off the ground by placing boards or flower-pots underneath. As soon as the rind is firm enough to prevent piercing by the finger nail the fruit may be taken off the plant. On no account should the fruit be exposed to the least frost. They should be stored in a warm dry place; a temperature of from 40 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit is suitable. They should at all times be handled as carefully as eggs; the slightest bruise, even though not noticeable, is likely to cause decay in storage. When large quantities are to be stored, slatted shelves should be used so that the fruits may not be piled on top of each other.

Onions may also require some help to ripen in the fall, in districts where the season is short. As soon as the tops of a few plants fall over, all the tops should be bent over. This checks the flow of sap and causes the bulbs to ripen. A few days later the plants should be pulled. If the weather continues fine they should be turned over occasionally until the tops are fairly well dried, when they should be cut off and the bulbs placed in slatted crates or spread out in an open shed to finish ripening. When well dried they may be put into storage for winter. A cool, dry cellar, with the temperature not over 40 degrees at any time is ideal for keeping onions. Shallow slatted shelves or crates are satisfactory if the bulbs are not piled to any great depth.

The Danish Ballhead strain of late cabbage is best for storing for winter use. All the outer leaves should be removed and the heads handled carefully to avoid bruising. Select a dry day when the heads have no rain water lodged in them, and store in a cool dry place. If there is a good circulation of air in the store room they may be piled in several layers. Small quantities may be pulled without cutting off the head, and suspended from the joists in a dry cellar, with the roots left on but all outer leaves removed.

Carrots, beets and parsnips should be kept very cool, and if well dried before storing may be put in large piles so long as there is no disease present. If carrots show sign of rut-fly injury the roots should be stored in small quantities, as one blemished root will spoil many in a very short time.

Celery should be lifted from the garden before it gets too much frost, as otherwise it may rot when stored. The plants may be put into soil or sand on the floor of the cellar in beds about four feet wide, with sufficient space between the plants for air to pass through. One good soaking of water will do for a long time. When watering is done care should be taken that the soil only is watered and that none goes on the foliage. A very cool cellar where air can be admitted is best.

Potatoes keep well in a dry place where the temperature is between 30 and 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Mrs. H. W. Taylor, of Weymouth, who spent the summer in Annapolis Royal, has returned home, accompanied by her sister, Miss Susie Cunningham.

In 1894 he formed a partnership with his brother, the late Elmer Comeau, in a woodworking mill, called the Sissiboo Planing and Saw Mill, a business which is still being operated by his sons under the same name. ## GAME THAT MAY BECOME A REALITY

During recent air raid precaution exercises in Praha, Czechoslovakia, bombs like this burst in city streets to let the populace know what to expect in the event of an air raid. If tension in the current Czech-German crisis reaches the breaking point, this game may become grim reality. Note sign on the lamp post pointing to Plazen (Prisen), the city where the great Skoda munition plants are located.

A Memorable Trip

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Clarkson, who have been spending their vacation in the United States, returned home on Saturday. Knowing that they had been in the storm area we had a talk with Mr. Clarkson who told us of their experiences.

They left Digby on September 3rd and travelled down the eastern coast of the United States to New York. They spent a week on this outward journey, visiting such places as Saint John, Bar Harbor, the Desert of Maine, Wiscasset, Boston, Quincy, Wollaston, Cape Cod, Plymouth, New London and New York. Excellent weather was encountered on the greater part of the first two weeks, and many places of interest were visited. While in New York they visited Radio City and took two of the tours—one through the N. B. C. studios, seeing and hearing broadcasts, and the other through the Television studios. There members of the party were divided into two groups, one remaining in the studio and the other going into the camera room. In this latter room each person was asked to stand before the camera under very bright lights, and his or her image was transmitted to television equipped radios in the studio, where the second party saw and heard. The two groups then exchanged locations, so that the first group was televised and the second group were able to see and hear. While Mr. Clarkson was before the camera he was asked to put on his hat, then his sun glasses. After the usual questions he was asked if he cared to talk to any one in the other group and as Mrs. Clarkson was there he mentioned her name. When a telephone instrument was handed to him, a two-way conversation was held, which of course was broadcast on the radios in the other room, much to the enjoyment of the others present. We understand television has been perfected within a range of 45 miles from the broadcasting station. It is apparently limited by the horizon—the higher up the camera is located, the further the image can be sent, and as stated, the height of the broadcasting studio is such that clear pictures can be received up to about 45 miles distant, and actual programmes are broadcast weekly. Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson also visited the R. C. A. Theatre in Radio City. It is so magnificent that it really beggars description. It seats 7,000 persons and is nearly always full to capacity. Beside the pictures and news reels, a performance is put on by the Radio City players and the costumes and lighting effects are magnificent.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson spent a couple of hours aboard the world's finest steamer, the Queen Mary. Here again words fail to express the grandeur and magnitude of this floating city. There are shops of all kinds aboard—restaurants, lounges, swimming pools, tennis courts, playgrounds, elevators, Turkish baths, cocktail bars and private dining rooms. The main dining room will seat 750 persons, and a staff of 135 waiters, 10 captains and 6 managers attend to the comfort of the diners.

Leaving New York on Wednesday morning Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson decided to return home by way of the Hudson River as far as Albany, and then travel east through Troy, Bennington, Brattleboro, Concord and Bideford, and then up the East Coast. However the hurricane caused a change in these plans. It took them all day to reach Albany, a distance of only 149 miles. The rain simply fell down in torrents and many waterfalls were pouring down the mountain sides either on or close beside the roads. A few fallen trees and small rock slides were encountered that first day, while the wind at times almost blew the car off the road. The wind and rain ceased with the coming of day and the sun was shining when a start was made about 8.30 a.m. But although it was bright overhead it was difficult going on land. Bridges had been washed out, roads flooded, trees blown down and telegraph and power wires were strewn all over the place. After slow travelling and several detours Troy was reached. Several small bridges in the town were blocked off, and before they could get out of the city. All roads except that leading north to Burlington on Lake Champlain were closed, and so that route had to be followed. Everywhere the eye met flooded farmlands, ruined corn crops, bridges unsafe, and the rivers and barge canals overflowing their banks. Thousands of trees were down and crews of men were sawing them up and clearing away the debris. In one place, near Rutland, the car traveled the highway with water over the running boards. Most communities were without electricity and most gas stations were unable to serve their customers as electrically operated pumps would not work. Fortunately two places were encountered where power was on, and the gas tank was filled at these places. From Burlington the route led through Montpelier, St. Johnsbury, Lancaster, Gorham, Rumford and Farmington, which was reached late at night and the night spent there. The journey was precarious all the way, hundreds of trees were down wires all around, houses and outbuildings flooded or toppled over, while passing cars sent showers of water over each other.

The rest of the journey was made in comparative ease, although one place was encountered where a land slide had occurred, and a large road dredge was clearing away mud and rocks. Mr. Clarkson states that while they only got the edge of the storm, and their trials were as nothing compared with hundreds of thousands living in the New England states never the less he gave a heartfelt sigh when the boat docked in Digby on Saturday morning.

The many friends of Edward Blackford, of Tiverton, mail courier for Long Island, Digby County, will be pleased to learn that Mr. Blackford, who has been seriously ill, is improving in health.

Alterations are being made to the Crocker store at Freeport, which will be the new home of the Freeport branch of the Bank

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Walker, of Acadia Cottage, motored to Halifax on Tuesday, returning Wednesday. They were accompanied by Mrs. Usher, who had spent the summer with them and is now on her return to her home in Bermuda.

Mrs. Layton Hinckman and daughters Anna, Edith and Eleanor have returned to Digby after spending the past two months with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hamilton, Litchfield.

Who is Responsible?

THE executor must account to the court for his stewardship of the estate in his charge. He is strictly responsible for the estate and its assets. Should he incur losses through lack of experience and judgment, he may have to make restitution from his own resources.

It is actually subjecting a friend or relation to risk of financial loss to appoint him executor of your estate. The whole field of executorship presents problems diverse and complex.

Estate administration is a specialized business. A Trust Company is specialized in it. We invite you to make use of our experience and facilities.

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT" Continued

men of the nation. It is probably true that scores of thousands of the soldiers now taking part in manoeuvres in Germany had not been born when the Great War was being fought! Or at any rate, were infants. And so today finds them steeped in the brew called Nazi-ism. It is all they know. Hitler is their idol, and with the brave idealism of youth, will follow his gospel, though it leads into the abyss.

A Finnish professor suggests a Canadian governor-general for Europe, to teach the squabbling nations how to keep the peace. We are flattered but humble. When we think of it, there's Vancouver Island seceding; Alberta demanding autonomy; Mitch Hepburn thumping his nose at Ottawa; Quebec ready to fight on the St. Lawrence issue; the West and East at loggerheads; the Maritimes hollering their heads off about sectional oppression; and even the Doukhobor minority protesting with fire and dynamite.

Among the many gifts by John B. Gough, the great temperance orator of the 19th century, was a plain handkerchief given him by a poor English woman who, presenting the handkerchief to the orator's wife, said, "I'm poor—I would give him a thousand pounds if I had it; but will you give this handkerchief to him for me, and tell him to use it if he will, and when he wipes the sweat from his face while speaking, tell him to remember he has wiped away a great many tears while he has been in this city."

What this world-shaking rumour in Europe is about is symbolized by signs erected on two sides of the Rhine river, just above Basel, in German and French respectively. The Nazi sign proclaims: "One Reich, One People, One Fuehrer." The French sign carries the national motto adopted when that nation won its political freedom a century and a half ago: "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity." There you have it. The Germans emphasize unity and obedience to one man. The French emphasize individual freedom and equality of all citizens. On one side is complete dictatorship and a gregarious people apparently rejoicing in their bondage. On the other is a society of men and women in which each has a vote. On one side one man thinks for all. On the other side every man thinks for himself. It is absolutism against democracy. And it is a picture of the two camps into which the world is now divided.

APPLES IN B. W. I.

Fresh apples, chiefly supplied from Canada, are regarded as luxuries in the British West Indies. To be purchased only during the Christmas season. Imports are heaviest, therefore, during the six weeks from November 1 to December 10. Thereafter there is a small but steady sale from storage stocks held locally or in Halifax. Apples of good keeping quality are necessary in the West Indies because the barreled apple from Canada, and in lesser quantities from the United States, are sold through commission agents to importing wholesale provision merchants, who in turn dispose of the apples to "marchands" or negro women street vendors. It is the practice of the street vendors to place a deposit on a barrel of apples and complete the bill through commission agents drawn for daily sales.
