George E. Graham Has Notable Career In Railroading

George E. Graham, Vice-President and General Manager of the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company, at Kentville, long a prominent figure in Canadian railway circles, has just completed over fifty years in the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway and its subsidiary, the Dominion Atlantic, and retired from active service on Monday.

Shortly after the acquisition of the Dominion Atlantic Railway from the English owners, by the Canadian Pacific, Mr. Graham, then located in Vancouver, was selected for the position of General Manager of the D. A. R., taking up his new duties in Kentville on November 1st, 1915. This was a particularly fortunate move for the railway, and also for Nova Scotia, as a whole, as Mr. Graham possessed the necessary qualities of optimistic courage and constructive vision to develop the property to a high state of efficiency, and at the same time interest himself in many outside activities, resulting in undoubted benefit to the province.

Mr. Graham was born in Uxbridge, Ontario, in 1870, and after attending public and high schools, took up the study of telegraphy at Agincourt, Ontario, in 1887, commencing his actual service with the railway on July 4th, 1888, at Locust Hill, Ontario.

After acting as agent at various stations he was promoted to the position of operator and ticket clerk, in Toronto. While in this position, he studied shorthand at night, and on the completion of this course, he became secretary to the general freight agent in Toronto.

The real opportunity in this respect, however, came in June 1897, at the time the Canadian Pacific was entering into arrangements for the building of the Crow's Nest Pass line. The manager of construction asked the company for a secretary who was both a telegraph operator and shorthand writer—an unusual combination—there being only two men on the whole system who possessed the required qualifications—Mr. Graham securing the position, with headquarters at MacLeod, Alberta.

Returning East at the end of 1898 Mr. Graham was engaged in special work in the Vice-President's office in Montreal, latterly going to Winnipeg as Chief Clerk to the Central Superintendent there. In 1900 Mr. Graham spent six months as agent at Fernie, B. C., then returned to Winnipeg as Superintendent of Weighing and Refrigeration for Western lines. On November 1st, 1901, he was given jurisdiction in that capacity over the entire system, with headquarters at Montreal. Effective February 1st, 1905, he was promoted to the post of Superintendent of Terminals at Winnipeg, and in August, 1906, was appointed Superintendent at Souris, where a new district had been opened; in February 1908, he became Superintendent of Terminals at Port Arthur. On January 1, 1910, he went to Vancouver as Superintendent, one of the most coveted posts on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

When Mr. Graham took charge of the Dominion Atlantic he had never previously visited the province and knew nothing of its people, or local conditions. Realizing the importance of such factors in the successful operation of the railway, he immediately set about making himself familiar with the history of the province, its traditions, etc., to study the wishes of the people served by the railway, with the result that he is today, in many respects, a more ardent Nova Scotian than many of the native born.

Surrounding himself with an efficient staff, without which no real success in such a position is possible, he proceeded slowly but surely in the development of the property to its present high standard of excellence, and one commensurate with the importance of the traffic offering.

On April 1st, 1928, in recognition of his initiative, as above referred to, Mr. Graham was made Vice-President and General Manager of the Company.

In addition to the actual operation and development of the line, Mr. Graham having in view feeder possibilities, and appreciating the historic and educational importance of perpetuating our National shrines, arranged for the Dominion Atlantic to acquire that piece of land made famous by Longfellow's "Evangeline", and now known as Grand Pre Memorial Park. The grounds have been landscaped and planted with beautiful gardens, a Normandy gatehouse stands at the entrance, and on the site of the ancient French Church, is a Memorial Chapel dedicated to the exiled Acadians. Mr. Graham has carefully guarded the sentiment, surrounding the Park, and has steadfastly maintained the property free from commercialism.

Having the long-range view in mind, it was apparent to Mr. Graham that the railway must go further afield in its scheme of development. The exploitation of places of interest and tourist resorts along the line called for better and more modern hotel facilities.

In 1917 Mr. Graham arranged for the purchase of the old "Pines" Hotel, at Digby, which was renovated and newly equipped, with new cottages built around it, and in the summer of 1918 re-opened its doors to visitors. The operation of the hotel exceeded all expectations, and became very popular with tourists.

Mr. Graham next turned his attention to Kentville, and on December 20th, 1919, acquired the all-year-round "Aberdeen" Hotel. The structure was repaired, new equipment installed, a highly-organized and efficient service inaugurated, and the hotel rechristened "The Cornwallis Inn". This property was not long in justifying Mr. Graham's efforts.

The business at these hotels rapidly outgrew the accommodation offered. In 1929 the new 100-room fireproof "Pines" was opened, equipped with charming and modern cottages, and a large salt-water glass-screened swimming pool. Shortly afterwards an 18-hole golf course was constructed, which is now recognized as one of the finest East of the Rockies.

No sooner were the plans for the new "Pines" and the golf course under way when Mr. Graham began to advocate the building of a larger and more modern hotel at Kentville. In 1930 the railway purchased, as the site for the new hotel, a fine property near the centre of the town. When the new "Cornwallis Inn" was opened on December 9th, 1930, Kentville found that it possessed a fire-proof building of Tudor-style design, containing 100 rooms with bath, luxuriously furnished and decorated, offering service and comfort equal to the best hotels on the continent.

The development of Grand Pre Park, the "Pines" and the "Cornwallis Inn", under Mr. Graham's guidance and foresight, was the beginning of a new phase of the tourist industry within the province, which has continued to steadily increase to the present day, and confirms his unbounded faith in the future of Nova Scotia.

Two Flying Aces Talk Over Old Times

In Ottawa to address a meeting of the Federation of Canadian Mayors and Municipalities, Mayor La Guardia, of New York, was entertained at the home of Honorary Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, director of recruiting in the R.C.A.

Growth of Approved Hatcheries

Approximately half a million chicks have been hatched and sold by the 38 approved hatcheries now operating in Nova Scotia, under federal approved hatchery regulations, according to the latest report issued by J. F. Haggerty, senior poultry inspector, for the federal poultry division in Nova Scotia.

Some indication of the growth of the poultry industry in the past few years is given by the comparison of hatchery figures of this year with those of 1932. In the latter year only six approved hatcheries were operating, with egg capacity totalling 54,931 eggs, and a total output of saleable chicks, of 53,515. In the 1940 season the total hatcheries operating under approved regulations numbered 38, with an egg capacity totalling approximately 400,000 and an output of saleable chicks of approximately 500,000. The number of eggs set in the six hatcheries back in 1932 was 11,225, with a hatchability of 52.9, while the number of eggs set this season totalled 721,579 with a hatchability of 68.2 per cent.

Appointed to Hants County

Appointment is announced by Hon. John A. McDonald, minister of agriculture, of the appointment of Chas. A. Douglas, of the extension staff, to the position of agricultural representative for Hants County with headquarters in Windsor. Mr. Douglas has for some time been assistant agricultural representative in Pictou County, with Malcolm MacCharles, veteran agricultural representative in charge of the work in that county. Mr. Douglas, a native of the Scotsburn district, is a graduate of the Nova Scotia agricultural college and of the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph. He took over his duties in Hants County in June. He is succeeded in Pictou County, as assistant to Mr. MacCharles, by Percy Archibald, also a graduate of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College.

World Wide Objectives In Allied War Aims

(By Britannicus)

British statesmen have been reproved, by correspondents in the British commonwealth overseas, for emphasizing the European aspect of Allied war aims.

The reproach is fair. It is not merely to alter the map of Europe the Great Britain and her Allies of the Empire are resolved to win the war against Nazi Germany at whatever cost. Their cause and their objectives are world-wide. The First Essential—Order in Europe

Yet, although over-emphasis of the need for building a new order, specifically in Europe is to be regretted, it is wholly natural. The foe whom we fight is a European Power. The occasion of the war was an act of flagrant aggression in Europe. In Europe, as this is being written, lie all the theatres of active land warfare.

Again, we come to express our war aims in concrete terms, we must needs begin with the liberation of European states enslaved to Nazi Germany—Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark, Norway. At this stage, it is hard to express other war aims with half such sharp definition.

The defeat of Nazi Germany in Europe, moreover, is the condition precedent of achieving our war aims in the wider world. Until the nightmare of attack by Hitler and his hordes has been rinsed from the consciousness of Europe (including therewith in Great Britain and Ireland), there will be neither the cash nor the opportunity for the larger effort that we burn to make towards world-wide economic and political progress.

The world order waits on European order. Nor should the extra-European Peoples, fighting side by side with Great Britain and Allies, be aggrieved that this is so, or complain that war aims in Europe can be more precisely expressed than war aims in their own continents and oceans.

Rather they should be proud. For the fundamental reason is that in practically every quarter of the world, outside Europe, the bases of freedom and ordered progress have already been secured. Does North America, does Australasia, or the parts of Africa and Asia where the writ of British and French imperial power runs, live in constant fear of aggression by a neighbour, armed to the teeth, followed by subjection to a ruthless racial tyranny? What Indians would exchange the position of their country for that of, say, Rumania today completely independent sovereign state though she be?

And Then—World Progress There has indeed been grave aggression, in this generation, in Asia, and Africa. But what, the countries of the British Commonwealth, and of France—Beyond-the-Seas—are chiefly fighting for is not the mere foundations of the good life as nations and citizen-states of the world, but the chance to go on building the super-structure.

The British Commonwealth is fighting for a chance to work out its own destiny, as a community of nations rising severally and jointly to greater economic welfare and political stature. The new world order, which we hope to fertilize with the ashes of the old order in Europe can be expressed in those very terms.

To turn the jungle of sovereign states into a community of nations; to seek for each and all of them greater economic welfare; and to establish the conditions in which each can rise to its full political stature and make its full contribution to world progress—these are the wider war aims of the Allies in every continent.

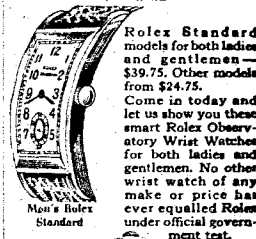

POSTER TOO PROPHECIC

"Fire! Fire! Calling all dancers to a bright event!" read our war aims in concrete terms, we must needs begin with the liberation of European states enslaved to Nazi Germany—Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark, Norway. At this stage, it is hard to express other war aims with half such sharp definition.

The defeat of Nazi Germany in Europe, moreover, is the condition precedent of achieving our war aims in the wider world. Until the nightmare of attack by Hitler and his hordes has been rinsed from the consciousness of Europe (including therewith in Great Britain and Ireland), there will be neither the cash nor the opportunity for the larger effort that we burn to make towards world-wide economic and political progress.

Ellis - McWhinnie

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the Baptist parsonage, on Saturday, June 22, when Rev. Louis Mills united in marriage Miss Sylvia McWhinnie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McWhinnie, of Victoria Beach, to Cecil Ellis, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ellis, also of Victoria Beach. The bride looked attractive in a dress of Queen's blue with accessories to match. The only attendants were the bride and groom's parents. A reception was held in the evening at the home of the groom's parents, where about fifty guests were present. A buffet lunch was served. They received many useful gifts. They will reside in Victoria Beach.

Gray - Neilly

The marriage of Alice Carolyn Neilly, daughter of Rev. Denton Neilly, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Nashua, N. H., to Rev. Clifton Daggett Gray, Jr., Putnam, Conn., son of Rev. and Mrs. Clifton Daggett Gray, Lewiston, Me., was performed by the bride's father, in the First Baptist Church, Nashua, on Monday, June 24. Rev. Dr. Gray, president of Bates College, Lewiston, assisted in the ceremony. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and her parents are well known in Digby, where they have a summer home, and where they spend several months of each year. Rev. Denton Neilly, the bride's father, has been guest preacher in several Nova Scotia churches, and speaker for numerous service clubs and other organizations in the province. The bride wore a gown of ivory chintilly lace over ivory satin, made with scalloped V-neckline; a tulle veil of fingertip length which was caught from a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Vaughan Pearson (nee Bertha Cornwall, formerly of Digby) cousin of the bride, was matron of honor; Miss Mary MacKinney, Rochester, N. H., maid of honor. There were four bridesmaids, Miss Virginia Orberton, Miss Constance McNaughton, Miss Ruth Montgomery and Miss Helen Dickenson. After a wedding trip through Canada and Maine, including a visit to Prince Edward Island, Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside at Putnam, Conn., after August 1st.

TRASH SIFTERS BUSY

Trash sifters in Sydney, Australia, are making it a daily routine to visit the refuse bins at the street corners to retrieve modest treasure. A group of 50 or 60 men empty the bins before the city workmen get to them. They are earning the nickname "binners".

OBITUARY

Mrs. J. H. Sanders

The death took place at her home in Roslindale, Mass., after a very brief illness occasioned by a stroke, of Mrs. John H. Sanders. She is survived by her husband, who conducts a stationery business in the Globe Building, Boston, and by one daughter, (Helen) Mrs. Wallace Kennedy, of Roslindale; by two sisters, Mrs. S. T. Payson, of Westport; and Mrs. Frank H. Beattie, of Bridgeport. Mrs. Sanders was the third daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Packe, of Westport, where she received her education in the lower and high school departments of that place, afterwards attending Acadia Seminary, at Wolfville. On completing her studies at Wolfville, she went to Boston, where she married J. H. Sanders in 1902, and they have resided in Roslindale for the past twenty-five years, spending the summer months at Scituate. Of a bright and cheerful disposition, Mrs. Sanders made friends readily. Her love for children was particularly marked and all those in the neighborhood of her home loved her. Of a charitable and generous disposition she befriended many an unfortunate one, who will miss her kindly presence and unfailing sympathy. Interment took place in Mount Hope cemetery, Forest Hills, Mass.

LICENSED SCANDALMONGERS

City fathers of Portland, Oregon, missed few opportunities to add to the civic coffers in the old days. An ordinance passed in 1907 making it "unlawful for any person within the city of Portland to conduct himself as a scandalmonger without first obtaining a license" came to light recently. Licenses sold for $20 a month or a bargain price of $150 a year.

16-Incher Speaks

Becoming suddenly war-conscious, the U. S. is looking to its defences. One of the giant 16-inch guns at Fort Tilden is shown "speaking" for the first time since 1935, as it hurls a shell miles to sea at some theoretical enemy. Escaping gases create a "mushroom" effect a split second after the gun is fired. The "mushroom" disintegrates until the area around the gun is permeated with smoke.

Venturesome Sailor and Yacht in Digby

On Monday morning the little 5 ton yacht Mahoe, entered this port. The little craft was built at Kingston, Jamaica, about a year ago by a retired London schoolmaster, W.
S. Sinclair. He sailed from Kingston, some 2,500 miles to Canada, in order to lay up while the war lasts.

The yacht has a crew of two
—Mr. Sinclair, and a young 18 year old Jamaican, Haldon Ritch, a fine seaman who, apparently enjoyed the voyage better than the captain. The two men, who left Kingston in April, got along admirably, and as Mr. Sinclair states
"there can be no severer test than for two men to live together in close quarters on a small boat."

They visited the Cayman Islands, some 200 miles from Jamaica. These islands are famous in the West Indies for breeding the best seamen and shipwrights in the world.
Ritch is a half Cayman Islander. They report the climate so agreeable and the people so pleasant the "Mahoe" almost stayed there for good. It was over a fortnight before they sailed away — and then trouble began.

One day out from Cayman Islands a squall ripped the mainsail so badly that the skipper had no hope of ever repairing it. A tiny trysail, for use only in stormy weather, was hoisted in its place. While the wind blew hard in the right direction, nothing could be better than such a rig. Only sailing men can have any idea of the intense pleasure to be got from sailing a boat among big breaking waves with a wind, relieved of anxiety.

After rounding the west end of Cuba it was another story.
The wind was ahead, and the "Mahoe" could do nothing against it. After narrowly missing shipwreck on the Colorado Reef, the crew spread out the mainsail in the cabin, as well as they could, and it very nearly filled the cabin. Four days' hard work found the sail in order again, and a couple of days later, the "Mahoe" reached Key West, Florida.

The great republic was unkind—it had so many unknown, perhaps unavoidable—regulations, and the Mahoe seemed to break most of them.
The captain was fined, and with that and the ruinous exchange rate, all spare cash was taken from him.

From Key West to Nassau would have been a first rate passage if the mainsail had held. It provided some glorious sailing, but some fifty miles from their destination, it had to be repaired again.
Still, they reached Nassau and stayed there a fortnight. Being a British Colony the authorities treated the Mahoe as they do all yachts—generously. Kindness was also shown by several individuals—one man supplied food and necessary material for payment of the skipper's cheque, and although the skipper knew the cheque was good, the man who received it took it on trust.

From Nassau the Mahoe cleared for Digby, taking seventeen days to make the passage. Fine weather and favoring winds made the journey a pleasure until they reached Cape Hatteras, famous for its bad weather. Off that point in the Gulf Stream the Mahoe met with head winds. The mainsail had to be lowered and the trysail hoisted again.

She lay to under sail for seven days while the wind and stream fought one another, and raised a sea big enough to try any little boat—the yacht proved herself seaworthy.

After that the south west winds came, and she went steadily on her course. One day they were visited by the U. S. Destroyer "418", who asked if she wanted any help.
Doubtless, she looked a poor little thing with her mainsail stowed away, but she was independent and refused the offer.

The most unpleasant part of the long passage came as the weather grew colder and they encountered rain and fog. Without proper clothing it was a hard thing to turn out of a warm bunk in the middle of the night, put on damp clothes and go outside and shiver for four hours. It had to be done, and the Ma-hoe finally made her way to Digby, where she is now anchored off the town. It will probably be a matter of two weeks before the captain decides whether he will "lay up" here, or at Saint John, N. B.

Piano Recital

The pupils of Miss Phyllis Crocker, of Freeport, presented a short piano recital in the vestry at Freeport, on June 27. A large audience was present, including many from out of town.

All students are to be congratulated for their work, also the young singers, Ruth Wak-eling and Edward Young.

The prizes were presented to Jean Weir, Barbara and Jean Blackford, Marian and Gwendolyn Finigan, Rowena and Joyce Bouchie, Peggy Connell, Ellen Outhouse and Donald Weir.

The remainder taking part were: Marie Perry, Lorraine Young, Pauline Stevens and Blair MacNeill. Jean Haines was unable to take part because of illness. It might be added that Blair MacNeill was recently examined for music by Dean Collins, of Acadia University, and made the splendid mark of 92.

The interest shown in these recitals is most encouraging to the teacher and students.

Mrs. Edgar Post, of Culloden, motored to Yarmouth on Friday to visit relatives and friends, returning Saturday.
She was accompanied by Mrs.
Wiley Ross and son "Billy".
While in Yarmouth Mrs. Post visited her son John Griffin and family, at Reynardton.

Judgment Reserved.

tain James Cosman, Meteghan River business man, and one of the richest men in Nova Scotia at the time of his death, figured in the Exchequer court of Canada, which held a session in Halifax a few days ago.
The case was an appeal from the Minister of National Re-venue's decision regarding income tax exemptions on trusts created by the will and applicable to Nova Scotia and Ireland. The trusts were created to the benefit of the aged and poor of this province and of the birthplace in Ireland of Mr. Cosman. Judgment was reserved. The testator died in 1911 and three trustees to take care of his affairs in Nova Scotia were, according to the terms of the will, appointed by the late Archbishop E. J. Mc-Carthy.

Two Young People Lose Lives by Drown- ing

A double drowning at Clem-entsport, claimed the lives of two popular and well known Nova Scotians, Leonora Smith,
19 year old daughter of Rev.
Rural Dean A. W. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith, of Clementsport, and Eric W. Black, 21 year-old son of seed inspector
W. L. Black and Mrs. Black, of Truro.

The body of Black was found entangled in the upturned canoe, picked up by the crew of the Bay View Life Saving Station, early Monday morning. The capsized canoe was found drifting in the Basin near Sea Breeze Hotel, Deep Brook. The life boat was called out to search the Basin, shortly after midnight. Sunday, when fears for the safety of the young people were felt.
They left early in the evening.

Coroner Dr. L. B. Braine, of Annapolis Royal, ruled the cause of death "accidental drowning". No inquest was held.

Despite efforts of many, who are patrolling the shores in the Clements and Deep Brook area, and of boats grappling in the Basin, no trace of Miss Smith's body has been found. The search is being conducted by the Digby Detachment of the R.C.M.P.

Miss Smith, who only two weeks ago, graduated from the Provincial Normal College, Truro, is survived by her parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. W. L.
Smith, Clements, and one sister, Mrs. Ralph Wright, of Digby. Mr. Black is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. L. W.
Black, of Truro.

Destructive Fire at Mount Pleasant

Early Tuesday evening fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn on the property occupied by Clifford Mullen, of Mount Pleasant; did serious damage to Mr. Mullen's house, and slight damage to the barn and home of Arch Handsperker and the woodshed of Edgar Handsperker. The latter building was located on the opposite side of the street more than two hundred yards away, and was extinguished by a bucket brigade while the hose of the Digby Fire Department were playing streams on the Mullen and Arch Handsperker properties. The Mullen property is better known locally as the "Aard Campbell place".

With the exception of a small pig, which made its escape, there was no livestock in the barn. However, a motor truck and car, as well as several automobile engines and a quantity of second hand automobile parts were destroyed with the barn. The loss of the barn and contents, and damage to the house, which was badly gutted by fire and water, is estimated in excess of $2,000. Damage to other properties was slight.

American tourists are not impressed when they see, in Canada, any endeavor to imitate the United States. They do not welcome clumsy or diluted attempts to be something other than what actually is. The whole idea in making a tour is to get away from what one is so thoroughly accustomed to. The tourist is looking for something different, and if there is the touch of novelty or strangeness, so much the better. Let Canada be Canada, and nothing more. For that is Exhibit A—our prize possession for all to behold.

An elderly woman, refugee from Hitler regime in Germany, had been spending some months in England before getting to the United States. One evening she was answering the questions of interested American friends about her experiences. At the end of the session, one put this question: "What of God in this war? Where is God, anyhow?" The quiet refugee was acquainted with grief. She had been forced to work out a philosophy of life for herself in order to go on living. She paused and reflected a moment. Then she smiled. "I think God must be a little like the British. He is slow to get into action. But He has great staying power. And in the end He prevails."

Gibraltar is believed to be one of the objectives of the totalitarian powers, now that Italy has entered the conflict. It is a full-size ambition. Taken in the seventeenth century during the War of the Spanish Succession, and once besieged for an unbroken number of years, the great fortress is a vital link in the family of overseas countries and the colonies we call the British Empire. The armament of today is not what it was long ago, and perhaps this fact has entered into the calculations of Il Duce. But Gibraltar can be also modern.

held in high esteem by his officers and employees alike. His operation of the Dominion Atlantic has been marked by the absence of any serious labor dispute—a tribute indeed.

Varied Activities in His Life
There have been many and varied activities crowded into the life work of Mr. Graham. His qualities of leadership, his initiative and courage, his quick grasp of essentials and his far-sightedness have made him a public figure prominent in all activities of a constructive nature.

In community affairs, as in Provincial and Dominion-wide, he has given unstintingly of his energy and abilities. Possessed of a vigorous driving force, he has the faculty of infecting his associates with his own enthusiasm and optimism, and thus giving more than an ordinary impetus to all progressive movements.

Mr. Graham is Vice-President for Nova Scotia of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, a Director of the "Lord Nelson Hotel", Halifax; Nova Scotia Trust Company, Halifax; Maritime Board of Trade, Kentville Hospital Association, Ken-Wo Country Club, Annapolis Valley Apple Blossom Festival, Victorian Order of Nurses, and Kentville Board of Trade (of which he was for some years president). In addition, Mr. Graham is a Governor of the Dominion Drama Festival, President of the Theatre Arts Guild of Kentville, a Past District Governor of Rotary International, Chairman of the Nova Scotia Drama Festival, member of the Provincial Executive and Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association, member of the Vestry of St. James' Anglican Church, of Kentville, and Chairman of the Nova Scotia section of the Canadian Forestry Association.

Membership in Many Clubs

Mr. Graham was a charter member of many organizations, and in addition to those enumerated in the preceding paragraph, holds membership in the following:

Nova Scotia Historical Society.
St. John Ambulance Association.
Commercial Club of Halifax.
Halifax Club.
Canadian Club of Halifax.
Canadian Club of Boston.
Vancouver Club.
Halifax Golf & Country Club.
Hilldale Golf Club, Annapolis Royal.
Canadian Railway Club.
New England Railroad Club.
Kings County Fish and Game Protective Association.
Halifax Board of Trade.
Glooscap Curling Club, Kentville.

Mr. Graham has long been interested in public health questions, particularly among children. During 1933 and 1934 he headed a special committee of the V. O. N., which had as its purpose a complete health survey of the 750 children of the Kentville schools. The necessary funds were raised by double subscription, the services of local doctors and dentists obtained gratis, and the government placed the facilities of the Nova Scotia Sanatorium at the disposal of the committee. Due to the hearty co-operation received, it was possible to have a chest X-ray taken of every pupil. The records of these examinations were turned over to the Chairman of the Medical Association, who arranged with the V. O. nurse and the family physicians for any necessary treatment. This health survey was the first of its kind undertaken in Eastern Canada and created wide-spread interest. The medical examinations were supplemented by the furnishing of milk to the undernourished pupils.

livestock purposes being considered by many as almost interchangeable with barley. Buckwheat flour is used, frequently combined with flours of other grains, to make a pancake flour mixture. A quantity has always found an export market in the United States and Europe and as a cash crop there are excellent opportunities for profitable returns.

It should be sown late in the season as it is necessary to have the crop blossom after the heat of midsummer. Seeding is best delayed until the last week of June so that the blossoming period is favoured by the cooler weather of late summer. In this way seeding takes place during a more or less idle season of early summer thus extending the use of equipment and labour. No extra equipment is required to handle a buckwheat crop.

The quick germination and rapid growth of the buckwheat plant give it excellent advantages as a weed destroyer. A period of frequent cultivation with spring tooth or disc harrow should keep down weeds until the time comes to sow the crop. The dense growth and shade will then smother out quack grass and other noxious weeds. Although buckwheat is used extensively as a smother crop, it has been found that it can be used quite satisfactorily as a nurse crop for sweet clover.

There are two types of this crop but the smooth hulled type is more generally grown. Silverhull and Japanese are common varieties of this type and the ones grown for milling purposes. The other type is rough hulled and gives a good yield of grain for feeding purposes.

Junior Farmers and War Savings

Members of junior farm clubs throughout the province are showing keen interest in the war savings schemes and many of these already have invested savings in the war savings stamps and certificates. The savings plan announced by the federal government provides a simple method of war thrift for young people such as are members of the junior clubs.

Field Days Marked by Keen Interest

This is the season for field days among the livestock producers, and during the past week a number have been in progress in Nova Scotia, with good attendance in spite of varying weather conditions. The outstanding fact about these events has been the keen interest displayed by the farmers in the various demonstrations, judging contests and talks given by agricultural officials. An intense desire to learn all possible about the latest in approved farm practices has been noted.

GERMAN HUNTERS BUSY

Germany's food shortage has been alleviated by game and wild fowl hunters. It is estimated in Berlin that last year's total bag provided Ger-cultivation with spring tooth or disc harrow should keep down weeds until the time comes to sow the crop. The dense growth and shade will then smother out quack grass and other noxious weeds. Although buckwheat is used extensively as a smother crop, it has been found that it can be used quite satisfactorily as a nurse crop for sweet clover.

RICKSHAS REVIVED

Because of the increase in gasoline prices rickshas are in favor again in the Federated Malay States. Not long ago authorities in Singapore and other cities reduced the number of rickshas which could be operated. When fuel prices advanced motorists stored their cars and took to rickshas again. The authorities have now lifted the ban against the war savings schemes and ancient vehicles.

TEA WINS ITS WAY IN THE ARMY

The beverage of the British army to-day, as it was during the last war, is tea. According to a British officer the tea-drinking soldier compares well with the old "Beer-swinger". It is interesting to observe that alcoholic drinks are being used less and less in the old country and that the people rely upon "the Cup that cheers but not inebriates." Tea drinking is on the increase in this country, too—even in this province, where the people are already great tea consumers.

Since the war duty was put on tea, coffee and other beverages, tea is in comparison more economical than in the past. From a pound of Morse's Standard Tea you get 200 cups of good, flavory tea. This old reliable brand is sold at all grocery stores at 65 cents a pound.

No doubt the fact that the wants of Maritime tea drinkers have been so well satisfied in Morse's Teas during seventy years has helped tremendously to give the Maritimes their place as a tea drinking country. Morse's Teas enjoy the prestige of being blended by Canada's oldest tea firm.

THE ZIMMERMAN NOTE

When Herr Zimmerman died in Berlin, there passed away a man who had something to do with the declaration by the United States, of war against Germany in 1917. He was the author of the famous (or rather infamous) Zimmerman note which came into the hands of the American authorities. A plot had been engineered, the general purpose of which was to entangle the United States in trouble, and reward an alien country with slices of some of the southwestern states. President Wilson published the note, and hostilities soon followed.

The word "terrible" comes originally from a Latin word meaning "to frighten."

Canada Spurs Search For War's Vital Oil

Drilling for oil—Vital force of mechanized war—is under way in regions extending from New Brunswick in the east to Alberta and the MacKenzie River in the northwest. In the Peace River district of British Columbia, drilling is expected this summer.

Alberta ranks first as producer of oil and gas in the Dominion. The Turner Valley field is responsible for most of the production, with a yield in 1939 of 7,456,000 barrels of petroleum. Turner Valley produces 96 per cent of all petroleum produced in Canada.

In New Brunswick, the Stony Creek field has been producing oil and gas since 1909. Up to 1939, the field had produced and delivered for consumption 17,500,000,000 cubic feet of gas and produced 240,000 barrels of oil.

After the lapse of a quarter of a century, interest has again been revived in petroleum possibilities of Gaspe peninsula. To test possibilities, a well is now being drilled 30 miles west of the town of Gaspe.

All the commercial productive oil and gas fields so far discovered in Ontario lie south of a line drawn from Sarnia to Hamilton. East of Hamilton, all wells producing gas in commercial quantity lie a few miles south of the Niagara escarpment. Exploratory drilling is in progress on Manitoulin Island.

No oil or gas in commercial quantity has been found in Manitoba.

Oil and gas production in Saskatchewan is confined to the district of Lloydminster on the Alberta boundary. Experts, however, consider that the whole plains region of Saskatchewan is worthy of prospecting for oil and gas.

In the Northwest territories, about 50 miles north of Fort Norman on the MacKenzie, two wells are producing oil. Expansion of the field is curtailed by limited local demand, poor transportation facilities and distance from outside markets.

The provincial government of British Columbia has made arrangements to test certain areas in the Peace River block during the present summer.

There was once a youngster who determined to become a politician, and not a cowboy or policeman, for "they can yell and talk loud without their mothers telling them it isn't polite."

WHEN THE GERMANS "INVADED" GREAT BRITAIN

A German force invaded British soil during the last War in May 1918, when a German submarine stranded in the Orkney Islands, near Start Point, Sanday. The crew jetisoned all its torpedoes and hundreds of shells and ammunition, so as to lighten the ship, and were then able to refloat the submarine and escape. Some crofters (crofters of the island) noticed the shells while they were fishing, but as the submarine was lying on the White Ensign, they assumed they were British and took them to a British submarine. The commercial fisheries of the United States, among the most productive in the world, are worth about a billion dollars annually to the country.

About This and That

Honest confession is not only good for the soul of the confessor, it may be profitable for other sinners. The shortcomings of France, in these years since the last war, were not in the ordinary acceptance of that word, but they were mistakes that ended in great disaster. And they were mistakes not only of judgment, but of moral attitude. So we find honest old Marshal Petain telling his fellow-countrymen the sad and bitter truth about their national catastrophe. He does it in a few simple, honest words. "Since our victory in the World War," he says, "a sense of enjoyment has predominated over the sense of sacrifice. We have sought more than we have given. We have not exerted enough effort. So today, we are in distress." Biblical history, and profane history, too, is full of such examples. Perhaps every generation has to learn for itself the old truths—that men do not live unto themselves alone, that men as well as nations have responsibilities to others, that people should not seek more than they give, that life demands sacrifice. Now, he adds, the French "will learn these lessons from the lost battle." But at what a vast and long-continued sacrifice! And we Canadians? Are we going to learn this lesson of life now from the tragedy of France and Britain, or only through the same bitter experience?

Scholars used to argue about "Why Ancient Rome Fell." The argument finally seemed to end in the conclusion that Rome didn't really fall—it just gradually disappeared. People will be arguing now for a long time on how France fell. Marshall Petain says it was because the spirit of sacrifice had given away to the spirit of enjoyment. The Spartan virtues ended in luxury and softness. This explanation may be as sound as any. And it's a stern warning to us Canadians to harden ourselves again. France is acknowledged to have had a fine army, as good as any. What was wrong there? As an American writer sums it up: "What use is a great army if the industrial production on which that army depends is slack, and if the people behind the army are disunited, shot through with partisan politics, burdened with bureaucracy, dedicated to gabble, insistent on special favors and determined to work as little as possible for as much as possible?" It might be a good thing for all of us—Canadians to read that statement over slowly, several times, and then spend a little extra time thinking about it.

Howard Vincent O'Brien, of the Chicago Daily News, believes that a "bigger problem than we have ever guessed" is the problem of keeping great and truly beneficent improvements out of the hands of men like Hitler and Stalin. Science, invention, swift communication and mechanical power are essentially good things. It is only their abuse by men of evil purpose that blackens civilisation. And such men attain power when good men are too busy elsewhere to be bothered with their own government and common welfare. "The time has passed," writes Mr. O'Brien, "when we can safely laugh at the antics of politicians. If 'good men' don't go into politics, there may soon be no politics to go into." Nazism, Communism, Fascism and other brutal ideologies now holding millions of people in thrall only became potent and dominating world forces because the majority of "good" men, and women refused to play a responsible role in public affairs.

Anthony Eden, whom a good many people feel disposed to trust, intimates that he favors carrying the war into Germany, as soon as it is practicable to do so. He has the right idea. Appeasement, gentlemen's agreements, distributions of explanatory leaflets, coddling prisoners of war, fostering a tolerant or apologetic way of looking at things, temporizing and talking, too much gentility and forbearance—all this stuff never won Waterloo and Trafalgar, or triumphed over hundreds of other battlefields all over the globe. War is war and it was only through putting the fear of God in the hearts of the enemy that made this British Empire possible. And only that will preserve it.

The story is told that Chancellor Hitler, soon after the war started, said that if the struggle lasted four years he would lose no fewer than 4,000,000 men, and that it would be better to lose 3,000,000 men in three months. If he said it, and there is nothing to prove he didn't, the statement carries much significance. It shows clearly he fully realized it would

PRISONERS OF WAR

Any day now you might hear that a relative or friend of yours has been captured as a prisoner of war, or has been interned in Germany. You will want to know how he will be treated; how you can get in touch with him; who is supremely responsible for his well-being. The answer is: the International Red Cross Committee.

The committee, whose headquarters are at Geneva, Switzerland, are responsible for the supervision of the welfare of all prisoners of war. In each capital city the Red Cross committee delegate sets up a central organisation for supervision and relief work. To this he names all of prisoners captured, or internees, must be reported with the least possible delay, with their places of imprisonment.

These names and details are flashed to Geneva, and from there they are redistributed to relatives of the prisoners in their own countries. Here we have one strong complaint against the Germans. There is gross delay in the disclosure of names. They have been keeping names back to dole them out on the radio their vile method of ensuring "listeners in" in enemy countries. A typical piece of Hun brutality.

As soon as the name of a prisoner of war is received at the Prisoners of War Department of the International Red Cross in London, England, he sent a parcel of warm clothing, boots, shoes, etc., measurements being obtained from his relatives if possible. Special parcels of medical comforts are sent to all prisoners who are ill or wounded.

And also—how welcome this must be—twice each month to every prisoner is sent a 10-lb. parcel containing tinned foods such as beef, ham, brawn, margarine, herrings, puddings and bread, as well as soap and other necessities.

These parcels are carried post free in both directions, and are—when coming from the Red Cross—immune from Customs search. There is satisfactory evidence that the parcels are at present being regularly received by prisoners in Germany. Relatives of prisoners of war in Germany cannot send them parcels of food individually, but once every three months the next of kin can, through the Red Cross send a "personal" parcel consisting of such things as knitted goods, chocolate and tobacco.

British prisoners of war in Germany are at present permitted to send each month: Officers and civilians, three letters and four postcards; other ranks, two letters and four postcards.

Now what about the conditions in which these prisoners live? International law says "the food rations of prisoners shall be equivalent in quantity and quality to that of the 'depo troops'; canteens must be installed in the camps where prisoners can buy food and other articles at local market prices; prisoners must be medically inspected at least once a month, and so on.

N. S. SCALLOP CATCH FELL OFF

Discovery of new scallop beds off Charlotte County, New Brunswick, gave scallop fishermen of that district increased catches this season. In the period October, 1939, to April, 1940, scallop catches reached an aggregate of 8,729 gallons, compared with 2,912 gallons in October-April, 1938-39.

Nova Scotia scallop fishermen, hampered by bad weather and other adverse factors did not do so well. Centering mainly off Digby, the Nova Scotia scallop fishery in the October-April period, 1939-40, reached a total of 43,540 gallons compared with a catch of 52,217 gallons in the same period, 1938-39.

Total catch for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick as reported thus far (the catch for a 10-day extension in Nova Scotia is not compiled), shows 1939-40 a total of 52,269 gallons, while the 1938-39 season, including the 10-day extension had a total catch of 57,037. What results the catches for the additional 10-day season will bring is of course impossible to prophesy. However, in May, 1939, Nova Scotia scallop fishermen took 4,280 gallons in the 10-day period, and if they did as well this season the total catch should not be far behind that of the previous year. An improvement in catches for the extra period might well bring a higher total.

In addition to the catches made in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, a small quantity of scallops is also taken in Quebec waters. The main centre of fishing, however, is off Digby, though this year a considerable advance in New Brunswick catches was noted with the discovery of the Charlotte County beds. Practically all of the Canadian scallop catch is marketed fresh, though a small quantity is occasionally canned. Only the adductor muscle of the fish is used for food, and a big part of the production ordinarily is exported to the United States. Prices received for scallops early this season were not as high as those of last year but toward the end prices strengthened and the catch should bring a good return to the fishermen.

HILLSBURN

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Chute, of Phinney Cove, visited the latter's parents recently.

Hartley Condon and sister Marguerite, visited relatives in Young's Cove, on Sunday.

Mrs. Lester Longmire is a patient at the Nova Scotia Sanatorium, Kentville.

Miss Barbara Milbury, of Annapolis Royal, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milbury, over the week end.

Miss Ann-Thomson, of Curry's Corner, Windsor, is spending some time at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kaye.

Mrs. Eugene Coates and son, of Annapolis Royal, accompanied by Bobby Smith, spent Wednesday of last week in this place.

Mrs. Stange Mills is spending an indefinite time with her grand-daughter, Mrs. Vivian Fox and Mr. Fox, of Grandville Ferry.

is some chance of repatriation as small groups of internees are being exchanged. But for other prisoners of war, imprisonment "for the duration" is certain, excepting where they are so seriously ill or so wounded as to be quite unfit for future armed service.

The permanent delegates appointed by the International Red Cross may, and do, visit any prisoner camp they like, talk to prisoners privately and make the most rigorous inquiries into conditions. They cannot enforce improvements but they may ask for them. And they may make reports on conditions which are circulated promptly to all governments concerned. These reports are the ultimate safeguards of the prisoners, for they imply that bad treatment meted out by one belligerent to its prisoners can be matched by the other.

CUBA MINING-EXPANDS
Mining interests of Cuba have asked the Havana authorities to afford them facilities for the further development of enterprises stimulated by wartime demand. Among the measures asked by the miners, headed by Dr. Gustavo Porta, is exemption from payment of tariff on all machinery imported by them. Dr. Porta has informed Secretary of Treasury Montoulieu, that the war will considerably aid development of the industry. He cited the fact that the demand for manganese has increased 200 per cent. Important veins of iron ore have been found recently in Oriente Province.

THIEVES THWART TWO
Peach thieves are denuding orchards and laughing at orchardists near Christiana, South Africa. One grover placed a bed under a heavily laden tree and slept there. In the morning all the peaches were stolen except two large ones which had been placed on the bed beside him. Another fruit grover set traps at his orchard and put up a sign, "Beware of Traps". But the fruit vanished and the traps were empty.

FALLS 20 FEET, SLEEPS ON
Tevor Arnold, 13 years old, of Lewes, England, while walking in his sleep, fell nearly 20 feet from a bedroom window, and escaped without injury. Mrs. Beeching, his grandmother, saw him climbing on the dresser, but before she could reach him he stepped out the window. While she was still stunned with fright, a knock came at the front door. She found her grandson standing there, still asleep and unhurt.

STUDENTS ASK MORE FOOD
Students in Tokyo, Japan, have protested to the government against the skimpy meals being served by boarding house keepers. They claim that it is spite work on the part of the boarding house people who are resentful of government regulations relating to profiteering. Students also complain that their landlords have thought up any number of petty rackets to get around the maximum rent regulations.

BROADCAST KEEPS COOL
Broadcasters are managing to keep cool in spite of the furnace heat that drives them out of Delhi and Lahore, India, in the summer. Each year these stations lost a large number of their speakers and artists, who go to the cooler climate of Simla. A new station at Simla has been connected with Delhi and Lahore and there the artists broadcast as if they were actually in the other stations.

GIANT'S BOOTS SHOWN
Resembling the advertisement of an enterprising shoemaker, a gigantic pair of boots has been placed on exhibition in the Early Settlers' Museum in Dunedin, N. Z., and is attracting much attention. The boots were worn by Alex. Miller, a Scotch soldier of the Black Watch regiment, who was 7 feet 8½ inches tall. He died many years ago.

ARCTIC PORTS SPRING UP
Arctic ports are springing up as the result of Russia's development of traffic on the Northern Sea route. Plans for traffic have been more than fulfilled, transportation costs reduced and construction of ports at Dickson Island, Tiksi Bay and Providence Bay is underway, according to Deputy Shevley, the Arctic explorer. Large funds have been allotted to finance the construction work, he stated, in Moscow. Two powerful icebreakers of the "Joseph Stalin" type will be completed. Northern Sea route traffic will be increased 12 per cent in the coming year, he predicted.

THIEVES CAUGHT BY MONK
Church thieves were trapped in Naples, Italy, by the sudden emergency of a monk from a coffin supposed to be empty. Members of the congregation fled, but a brother and a sister were unable to get away because they were held in the grasp of the monk. Thefts of vestments and candlesticks had been going on for months. A coffin, according to custom, was placed on the altar of the church, but on this occasion a young monk was in it, and from his vantage point he saw the man take two heavy brass candlesticks from the altar while the woman tried to shield his movements.

SLIPPER VILLAGE BUSY
Slipper makers of San Daniele del Friuli, Italy, are busy trying to keep up with the changing styles of sandals worn by women at the seaside. Every worker, man and woman, in the district makes slippers. 600 being employed in factories and many turn out at home after the housework is completed. The popular "papusee," or black goat to the cooler climate of velvet slippers worn by housewives, are all made there.

New Regulations to Enter U. S.

Beginning July 1st, 1940, all Canadian citizens desiring to enter the United States for temporary visits will be required to make application in person at an American consular office for a visa. The new regulations make compulsory that each applicant shall comply with the following requirements, without exception:

The applicant must possess a valid Canadian passport, obtained from the Canadian government authorities, good for travel to the United States. If husband and wife and family are included in one passport a single visa will suffice.

The applicant must bring with him three recently taken identical photographs 2½ by 2½, printed on thin paper with a light background. If the prospective traveller is to be accompanied by his family, all members thereof must be included in the required photograph.

The applicant will be required to submit conclusive evidence that upon his departure from the United States he will be readmitted into Canada. Such evidence may include written assurances from the appropriate Canadian authorities.

The applicant will be required to specify in his application what places he intends to visit in the United States and how long he intends to stay in each place. He will also be required conclusively to establish a legitimate purpose or a reasonable need for his presence in the United States.

The applicant will have to show conclusive evidence of his permanent domicile in Canada to which he will return upon the completion of his visit in the United States.

Under existing regulations no fees will be charged for the issuance of nonimmigrant visas to Canadian citizens. The regular fee of $10 will continue to be charged for immigrant visas.

In order to avoid delays and inconvenience, it is imperative that Canadians contemplating visits to the United States shall apply to the nearest American consular office a week or more prior to the expected date of departure. The applicant should not appear at an American office without the passport, photographs and other documents referred to in his possession. Otherwise it will be impossible for the consular office to proceed with the application and delays of serious concern to the traveller may result.

In no case will it be possible for a consular office to accept a visa application presented by anyone other than the prospective traveller in person. In view of the work involved and time required for taking applications and their consideration, last minute efforts to obtain, non-immigrant visas must necessarily prove fruitless.

Steel Finer Than Human Hair

Steel wool, the strands of which are sometimes finer than human hair, is being manufactured in Britain night and day to satisfy the double demand of national defence and export.

It is used extensively as an abrasive in engineering processes and in air conditioning apparatus for air raid shelters. But since the war British steel wool has been in increasing demand by overseas users, who require it for the purely peaceful and domestic purposes of cleaning pots and pans, polishing parquet floors, cleaning glass and even removing stains from highly polished furniture without scratching the surface.

Germany was formerly a big exporter of steel wool for these purposes, and since hostilities began merchants in South America have turned their demands to Britain; increasingly large orders have also come from Palestine, Iraq, Turkey, Greece, and even Iceland.

Housewives all over the world who are coming to regard a pad of steel wool as an inevitable part of their equipment probably do not realize that although it is so simple to use the process of manufacture is highly technical, involving intricate and costly precision machinery.

Each wool-making machine has several hundred mechanical cutters working side by side, some cutters with as many as 300 teeth crowded into 25 millimetres of space. Human hair is appreciably coarser than steel wool cut under these conditions.

The most up to date steel wool plants in the world are in England and Scotland.

Strange Paper Pulp

The world shortage of pulp for paper-making is creating a new demand in Britain for unusual raw materials in the United Kingdom and from overseas.

Research chemists seeking to replace the 2,000,000 tons of pulp used every year by British paper mills are substituting the straw of oats and other cereals for the 300,000 tons of esparto grass imported annually. Reeds, covering an extensive acreage in Norfolk and Suffolk, are being converted into pulp and the possibilities of bracken and potato haulm are also being investigated.

The Indian pulp industry is already using bamboo with success and vast quantities of it are available in Burma, India, Kenya, and the West Indies. Experiments indicate good potentialities in elephant and Tamboukie grass from Africa, andalang grass from Malaya, Ceylon and Papua. Reeds and papyrus from the Nile may also be of service.

The possibilities of such agricultural wastes as cotton plant stems from Egypt, India and the United States; Indian rice straw; and the vast quantities of Indian, Canadian and Argentine linseed straw are all being explored.

Apart from research, British supplies of paper will be maintained by a thoroughly effective collection of waste paper and strict economy of the finished manufacture.

MARRIAGE

Wetmore - Robinson

A very pretty wedding took place at Bear River, on Thursday last, when Miss Frances Howard Robinson, daughter of the late E. Wallace Robinson and Mrs. Robinson, became the bride of Rev. Stuart Wetmore, of Fredericton. Both the young people are well known in the Maritimes, and are both graduates of King's College, Halifax. The service was held in St. John's Church, and the ceremony was performed by the Lord Bishop of Fredericton, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The bride, who was becomingly gowned in the traditional white, with veil and orange blossoms, entered the church on the arm of her uncle, T. H. Fortier, of Annapolis Royal. She carried a bouquet of roses, and wore the groom's gift, a gold chain and locket. Her bridesmaids were Miss Gene Wetmore, of Hampton, N. B., sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Robinson, of Bear River, sister of the bride. The flower girls, Elizabeth Jefferson and Jennifer Tilley, were charming in blue and pink, with poke-bonnets and old-fashioned nosegays. Rev. A. Stanley Hart, of Weymouth, presided at the organ, and Rev. H. Dysart, of Fredericton, acted as chaplain to the Bishop. The three ushers were Rev. Walter Harris, of Bear River; T. deB. Fortier, of Annapolis Royal; and John Jefferson, of Bear River. After the ceremony, about sixty guests were entertained at Willow Cottage, the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William Jefferson, where a buffet luncheon was served. The Bishop proposed a toast to the bride, the groom making a suitable reply. Later the happy couple left on a motor tour, taking with them the best good wishes of a host of friends. The bride wore a bird's egg blue dress and hat, with short white coat and matching accessories. After their return, Rev. and Mrs. Wetmore will make their home in Fredericton, where the groom is curate of St. Ann's Church. Some of the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Wetmore, Miss Marie Wetmore, of Hampton, N. B.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Fleming and Mr. Donovan, Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Swetnam, Amherst; Miss Grace Robinson, Annapolis Royal; Mrs. Tilly, Miss Joyce Tilly, Mahwah, N. J.; Mrs. Taylor, Jersey Taylor, Smith's Cove; Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Fortier, Annapolis Royal. The Rev. Basil Buckland was best man.

SUNSHINE SUNDAY SERVICE HELD

The annual Sunshine Sunday Service of the Bear River United Baptist Church, was held on Sunday morning, July 7th. Beautiful weather greeted a very large congregation, who listened to a strong and helpful sermon by the pastor, Rev. G. D. Brydon, from the text taken from II Samuel: 21st chapter and 10th verse.

The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was then administered to 108 communicants, after the reading of the covenant. This service is conducted as a special favor for those who are unable to attend church services regularly.

Cars for such were provided by the following donors:

A STATEMENT ON FORD WAR WORK IN CANADA

This Company is in the war to the full limit of its resources. Until the British Empire is victorious, until the battle for freedom of nations and liberty of peoples is won, we have pledged all the vast manufacturing facilities of our Canadian and overseas affiliated companies to the service of the Empire.

We regard this to be our simple duty as a Canadian institution, one of the industrial resources of the Dominion. The 8,400 employees in our plants as well as our widespread dealer and service organization from coast to coast are Canadian. The Company's shareholders include a large proportion of Canadian investors. No one individual, family or company has a majority control of our shares.

For these reasons, aside from our deep feeling of loyalty to the Empire and its high purposes, it is fitting that Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited should give whole-hearted support to the national war effort.

From the very beginning this has been our course. Even before war was declared, in co-operation with officers of the Department of National Defence, we laid in our plant the groundwork of military production. Since conflict became a reality we have given war orders precedence over everything else. More than fifty per cent of our production is in vehicles for military use and this percentage is increasing rapidly.

We are now engaged in supplying approximately 35,000 motorized vehicles of many types, of which 10,000 are for the Canadian government and 25,000 for other Empire governments.

We are constructing at our own expense a $700,000 plant addition to provide facilities for the building of Universal machine gun carriers of which we have undertaken to deliver fifty a week to the Canadian government as soon as production can be started. This addition will also enable us to increase production of other types of military vehicles. Our affiliated companies with plants in South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India and Malaya are similarly engaged in Empire service.

Beyond our manufacturing facilities we have been fortunately able to contribute skilled man-power. From our Canadian and overseas organization, engineers and men with special training in transport and other lines are rendering valuable service.

Major adjustments in our business have been necessary through loss of export trade and because of domestic taxation. We have made these adjustments cheerfully. Our one concern now is the successful prosecution of this war so that people of all nations may again be able to work in freedom and peace.

M. C. Howe
PRESIDENT

FORD MOTOR COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

Statement in Parliament by the Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply

"The president of the Canadian Company has shown perhaps as keen a desire to assist in Canada's war effort as any citizen of this Dominion has done. His corporation since the outbreak of the war has done and is doing very important work for Canada's war effort, in the way of building motor transports and Universal carriers. The company has placed itself entirely in the hands of the government as to the terms of the contract which it has had."

"A contract, providing for a fixed price as low as we could find any basis for asking, was worked out, an overriding provision was inserted that the books of the company would be audited and if the stipulated price produced a profit more than a very low percentage indeed, that price would be scaled down accordingly. In other words, the work of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, its attitude toward the war, and its ability to assist in Canada's war effort, have been so far as I have been able to observe, beyond criticism."

Statement in Senate by Senator Raoul Dandurand, Government Leader in the Senate

"Ford Motor Company of Canada is doing its utmost to serve the interests of the country, the War Supply Board and the Government."

Statement in the Senate by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader in the Senate

"They (Ford dealers in Canada) are numbered in the hundreds. And the number of employees of these dealers is very large. The ramifications are tremendous. For all the purposes concerning us, the Company is a Canadian concern, and I can add to the assurance given by the honourable leader of the House my own feeling that there are no better Canadians than those at the head of the Ford Motor Company of Canada and throughout that Company's organization. They will assist us to the utmost in our war work."

Women's Auxiliary Motor Service

Early in the war the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, organized free training courses for women in the care and operation of motor vehicles for possible war service. 284 such classes have been conducted, with an enrollment of 7,343. The number who have completed the eight-week course is 3,473, with 2,656 now under instruction and 1,214 enrolled in new classes about to start. All instruction and equipment has been furnished by Ford dealers and the Company without charge.

Types of Motorized Vehicles for Military Use Being Made by Ford Motor Company of Canada

The Company is engaged in manufacturing 35,000 motorized vehicles for Canadian and overseas governments. They include light two-wheel drive trucks, known as 8-cwt., which are used for carrying light stores, personnel or wireless sets; 15-cwt. units, used to transport heavier loads, personnel, as anti-tank gun tractors, water tank carriers, etc.; 30-cwt. four-wheel drive, used as load carriers; three-ton, four and six wheels, for heavy loads, for workshops, for wrecking equipment, etc.; four-wheel drive gun tractors used to haul artillery, as well as ambulances and regular passenger cars and station wagons specially fitted and painted for army purposes. Present schedule of deliveries of these military vehicles constitutes more than 50 per cent of the Company's production. The plant is working day and night.

STATUE HONEY SOUGHT

How to get the honey out of the statue of John Robinson, one-time governor of New South Wales, is puzzling officials of the Botanic Gardens in Sydney. Bees have built their hives in it for years. They can be seen entering the left ear and leaving by the right. The statue is hollow from the head to the knees so is believed to contain a huge amount of honey.

Evacuated British Children

Every Nova Scotian wants to help win the war, and perhaps you are asking "What can I do?" It may be possible for you to take into your home one or more children from England. If so, this is an effective way to help in the cause which is giving us such grave concern. We are asking for homes where some of these children can be maintained, educated and cared for until they can return to England, after the war. Will you help us to provide for these little ones that need our protection? We are sure Digby County will not be behind in this effort. These children range in age from five to fourteen years. They are all English speaking as far as we know now, and must be sent to school and treated in all respects as members of the family. It will be obvious to all that there can be little picking or choosing from among these children. We must be prepared to accept them into our homes as our guests and give them all the training and care necessary during this present conflict.

The question of health has been brought up many times, and this is an important one. Some people state they may be able to provide a home and give clothing to the child but would not be able to pay hospital bills or give costly medical aid. Therefore, if the child should become a hospital case and heavy expense involved in this way, you are assured this will be taken care of. You need not hesitate in taking a child because of fear that you may incur such hospital expense.

Will you please write in the first place to "The Evacuated Children's Branch, Department of Public Health, Halifax," or ask for information from the County Nurse, Miss Gertrude Anderson. Miss Anderson will be glad to give assistance and help in any way if you will please call upon her.

Application Forms may be obtained from Miss Margaret Stewart or Rev. Dr. T. W. Hodgson, of Digby.

Appreciates Efforts of Theatres

Dear Mr. Nathanson:—

On behalf of the Government, I should like to express to you, and through you to the Motion Picture Industry, our warm appreciation of the effort now being put forward by the industry to contribute to the success of the War Savings Campaign.

The special film showings which are to be held throughout Canada, on Monday evening, July 15, will have, I am sure, a very wide appeal and will serve in a striking way to focus public attention on the campaign. The proceeds from the showings themselves will be a most helpful contribution.

As the project will involve a great deal of work and of sacrifice on the part of a large number of people, I should be grateful if you would convey to all concerned, both in Canada and the United States, our sense of obligation to them.

Yours very truly,

J. L. Ralston.

N. L. Nathanson, Esq., President, Famous Players Canadian Corporation, 1200, Royal Bank Building, Toronto, Ontario.

Don't forget the Garden Party and Tea, under auspices of the Digby Baptist Church, Thursday, July 18.

Cabinet Changes

Cabinet changes on a wide scale were announced by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, Monday evening. Two sitting members of the House, P. Mulock (lib., York North) and W. G. Gibson (lib., Hamilton-West) were elevated to cabinet post, the former as Postmaster General, and the latter as Minister of National Revenue.

Hon. J. L. Isley (Digby-Annapolis-Kings), former Minister of National Defence and acting Post Master General, was sworn in as Minister of Finance, to succeed the Hon. J. L. Ralston, who last Friday became Minister of National Defence, succeeding the late Hon. Norman Rogers.

Agricultural Minister Gardner, will be relieved of that portfolio and become Minister of National War Services as soon as necessary legislation creating that department, has been passed. Works Minister Cardin takes the additional portfolio of Transport relieving Hon. C. D. Howe, who, since April, has been both Transport Minister and Minister of Munitions. Mr. Howe will remain Minister of Munitions, and take into that department from his old the branches of Civil Aviation and Radio Broadcasting.

The immediate creation of a Department of National Defence for Naval Affairs; with Premier Angus L. MacDonald as Minister, was announced. It is understood that the Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Nova Scotia Minister of Highways and Public Works, will become Premier of Nova Scotia to succeed the Hon. A. L. MacDonald. The Hon. Mr. MacMillan is present member for Hants, and before redistribution, was a member for Digby. He has been a member of the cabinet since 1933, and held the Highway portfolio in a previous Liberal Government.

"ABOUT THIS AND THAT"—Continued

have to be a quick and successful campaign, or utter downfall. In other words Germany could not stand a long drawn out conflict. Since early summer, every development strengthens the impression that if he did not say it, the conviction was fixed in his mind.

As a result of the war, the greater part of Mexico's source of supply of dried codfish has been cut off, and within the last few weeks Mexican importers have inquired of R. T. Young, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Mexico City, seeking Canadian sources of supply. In normal times imports of dried codfish into Mexico amounted to approximately 400 metric tons per annum. In 1939 Norway supplied 377 metric tons, other amounts coming from Poland, the Netherlands, Japan, the United States, Denmark and Cuba.

The Dominion's budget, as presented by Col. Ralston, missed only two items, that everyone expected to be cracked more heavily than at present—gasoline and liquor, says the Westville Free Lance. The former, of course, is heavily taxed by the provinces already. Taxed almost to (if not past) the point of diminishing returns. But many Canadians feel that the Dominion, in this emergency, would have been justified in demanding the provinces share the impost. On the point of liquor, taxes have never been shoved higher in the past because it was thought such by raising the price would encourage the bootlegger. At present, however, the illegal vendor can't import his stuff—the navy patrol along the coast has cut out West Indies rum altogether. That is no secret and appreciated most by the thirsty. Liquor is essentially a luxury and as such should be taxed to capacity. Judging from the crowds that gather around the shops in this country, increased taxes on the product would bring heavy contributions to the treasury and if the price increase scared off some business, the money thus saved would be diverted to other and better uses at a time when the standard of living is in danger anyway, as a result of the cost of war. An amendment adding more taxes to liquor would find no opposition from this quarter.

Some folks still insist Benito will remember the time he was left holding the grab bag.

Instead of five dollars as at first announced, passports from Canada into the United States will cost a dollar, special action providing for this, having been taken by the Government at Ottawa. This is much more business like, and certainly will save Canadian people a lot of cash.

"Any Time Is Tea Time"

There is one thing you can always depend upon to refresh you and make the daily round seem lighter, whenever you get that feeling of fatigue. It is a cup of Morse's Tea. Enjoy good tea frequently, at any odd time of day—Morse's Standard Tea, for example. With its full, satisfying flavour, the good old family tea of the Maritimes will never fail you. At the present time it is an especially economical beverage, for while teas that claim to be of corresponding quality are selling at 75 cents in Central Canada, Morse's Standard Tea costs the Maritime tea drinker only 65 cents per pound package. The strength of Morse's Standard Tea is so great that it lasts longer than low priced teas and gives better value, not only in its spending power, but in its satisfying quality. At 65 cents a pound it is very special value particularly when the war tax and war risk insurance are taken into account.

What Happens When the Nazi Conquer

Herbert Hoover estimates that almost seven million Poles are approaching absolute starvation. At the present time one thousand Poles are dying daily from mere lack of food. Even at a time when most serious problems confront us on every side, Canadians cannot ignore what is happening in Poland.

The situation is not hard to understand. Thirteen and a half million Poles have been crowded into an area which before the German invasion barely supported eleven million. The additional two and a half million are made up for the most part of old people and children, the able-bodied men and women having been sent to work in Germany. This area, known as the Government General, is the least fertile region of Poland. Forty per cent of Poland's population is today crowded into a quarter of the former area. The complete breakdown of commerce and industry has resulted in eliminating all the normal means of livelihood. Consequently, there is neither food in the occupied territory nor the means of purchasing it outside.

Persons who profess to tell character by the thumb declare that a long first joint shows will-power; a long second joint, logical or reasoning power; a thick, wide thumb indicates its possessor is a person of strong individuality; and obstinacy is shown by a broad knob at the end of the thumb.

A 13 year old Welsh school-boy kicked a Rugby football recently and it did not touch the ground for 5 miles. It dropped into a motor-lorry passing by the field, and the lorry had travelled five miles before the schoolboy, cycling furiously, caught up with it.

To Control Lightning Rod Installation

Legislation is now in effect in Nova Scotia regulating the selling and the installation of lightning rod protection for the general public, announced Hon. John A. McDonald, minister of agriculture, who will have charge of the administration of the Act. The Act was passed at the 1939 session of the legislature and was proclaimed by order-in-council the past week.

The main purpose of the act is to ensure that lightning rod protection installed anywhere in Nova Scotia is satisfactory. The act provides for the licensing of all agents selling such equipment, and also that the agents installing the equipment must guarantee its satisfaction.

Regulations will be drawn up under the Act covering every phase of lightning rod selling and installation. Similar Acts are in effect in some other provinces and in various states of the union. Later information concerning the Act will be given as time goes on. Details of the Act will be in charge of the agricultural engineering division of the Nova Scotia department of Agriculture.

Necessity for some protection for the public in this matter has been realized for some time in Nova Scotia. Hence the passing of the Act.

Annual Tour of Digby County Farmers

The annual farm inspection tour of the farmers and farmers' families of Digby County to the Kentville Experimental Farm, other farms and agricultural establishments in the Annapolis Valley, has become a pilgrimage with these people. It is a day that is eagerly looked forward to with enthusiasm. On June 26th, a group of 60, directed and organized by R. A. LeBlanc, agricultural representative for the Digby-Publico district, spent a most enjoyable and educational day visiting various places of interest. The group, representing Maville, Meteghan and surrounding districts, Concession, Church Point, Weymouth, Bear River and Barton, left their respective sections at an early hour to meet at McKenzie's piggery at Middleton. There they had the opportunity of seeing hogs ranging from day-old piglets to the finished bacon hog. Mr. McKenzie had on that day a lot of finished bacon hogs ready to go out to the abattoirs. Leaving the piggery the group proceeded to the Canadian Cannery factory, at Middleton. An instructive hour was spent at that place.

Proceeding to Kentville, the group visited the experimental station. Mr. Cheney, of the poultry division, took the group over and fully explained the work done by that branch. Lunch was eaten under the trees on the picnic grounds at the farm, tea, coffee, milk and sugar being graciously provided by the staff at the farm. After lunch, Mr. Kenneth Cox, provincial agronomist, spoke to the party on crops and general farm practices. Mr. Hill, of Weymouth, then responded with a short and interesting address. The various groups then visited the livestock, pastures, orchards and gardens. Afterwards meeting in the reception room of the farm where they were entertained by the superintendent and staff members. There the visitors had the opportunity of hearing and interviewing Mr. Gallaher, head gardener, on gardening hints, insect and disease, damage and control. The inspection of the flower gardens ended the activities for the day.

Annual Club Camps

Some seventy boys who are members of junior farm clubs in various districts in the province spent three profitable days in annual club camp at the agricultural college, at Truro, the past week, as guests of the Nova Scotia department of agriculture. The camp is conducted each year for selected club members, directed by the extension division, with A. B. Banks, assistant director of extension, in charge. Training and instruction in farm topics and farm practices make up the large part of the camp program, with opportunity also for physical training and recreation.

Club camps for girls' club members will be in progress this week, one for western Nova Scotia at Yarmouth, and one for central and eastern Nova Scotia at the agricultural college at Truro.

Practical Value of Field Days

The practical value of the annual live stock field days was amply demonstrated again this year by the keen interest taken by the farmers attending, in the talks and demonstrations, as well as in the opportunity given for the visiting farmers to place the live stock in the various classes, and hear criticisms of their judgment. Many interesting classes of this kind were held at all the field days, some of which were reported upon in last week's news letter.

The latter half of the week was featured by a field day for shorthorn breeders in western Nova Scotia, held at the Chase farm at Canard, and the Kentville Experimental Station; a field day for Ayrshire men at the agricultural college at Truro; and another shorthorn day at the Weldon Dickie farm in Middle Stewiacke.

In addition to practical talks on care and feeding of live stock, animal diseases, etc., there were also demonstrations in halter making, throwing of animals, and machinery demonstrations. At the Shorthorn field day at Canard and Kentville, splendid specimens of the breed were seen, imported stock on the Chase farm being shown, and the fine dual-purpose herd at the Kentville station being inspected. Judging contests were held among the visiting farmers, in both these herds. A competition was also held in weight and girth estimating. The herd sire of the Chase farm and four cows from the experimental station were used for this competition. Widely varying estimates in weights of the animals demonstrated the value of using scales rather than depending upon sight estimates in purchasing or selling animals.

Ayrshire Men Have Fine Day

Grand summer weather graced the Ayrshire day at Truro, where animals from the college herd, the Blanchard herd, and the Indian School herd at Shubenacadie, were seen and judged. Speakers at this gathering included Principal Chapman of the College, Eric Boulden, provincial animal husbandman, and Prescott Blanchard, prominent breeder. All of these stressed the vital importance of keeping up standards and records in herds despite stress of war conditions. This was the basis of good production. The Indian School bull, Mic-Mac Netherport found top place in the placings, the other bulls shown being the college bull Burnside Top Grade's Destiny, and the Blanchard bull, Burnside Barr Masterstroke. James Main, of Noel Shore, was elected president of the Nova Scotia Ayrshire

Shorthorn Day in the Stewiackes

TUNING TO SHOOT THE 'CHUTES' IN ENGLAND

This photograph showing United States Curtis dive bombers being wheeled down a road upon landing at an airport on the Atlantic coast of Canada, after being flown directly from across the border, was taken before France signed the armistice. The planes as their original destination, such as these will probably be taken over by Great Britain.

type, was placed top in this class, although many present like a trim little cow owned by Weldon Dickie, which the judge felt to be too much of a dairy type for a good shorthorn. Perley McCabe's fine shorthorn bull, Mayflower Duke, was top in the bull class.

Rainfall Exceeds Average

Rainfall for the month of June at the agricultural college station, Truro, totalled 4.33 inches falling on 17 days. This was greatly in excess of the average for the month which for the past 30 years was 2.83 inches. The maximum temperature was 88, reached on June 2nd, the next highest being 79, while the minimum temperature for the month was 41.

Good Growing Conditions

Growing conditions are excellent for pasture and hay crops. The condition of the pastures has made for an increased milk production as compared with last year, with stock in good condition. New seeded fields look exceptionally well and prospects are for a good hay crop. Early grain has made excellent growth. Due to the wet weather there is much late crop. Corn is backward, as well as mangels. Potatoes, very greatly, with some early fields showing up well; many fields, however, are spotty, and a considerable part of the acreage was late.

There has been an increase in number of baby chicks. The export of eggs to Great Britain has at least kept prices up to the place where production has continued. Poultry is already starting to move on the market at fair prices.

While butter fat-prices are practically down the last year, there is an increased demand for milk in Halifax and certain other centres. This is helping the dairymen to some extent. Good pastures have made it possible to practically eliminate the use of feeds. While the recent reduction in feed-prices has helped the hog men to some extent, the margin in hogs is practically nil and this industry, except for the man who has considerable by-products, is having a difficult time.

General Laféche, a Canadian officer now overseas, has not hesitated to send a candid warning to the Dominion to eliminate inaction and indecision and to speed up completion of coastal defences. Had there been no reason for such a blunt message, it may be taken for granted that the officer would never have thought of such a thing. But his words are in keeping with the temper of the country, that all through the winter remained in an impatient mood, because of the very deliberate way in which affairs, dealing with defence, appeared to be going. But within the past month or so there has been more vigor. This country is hitting a faster stride, and it has not developed too soon. For only one thing matters, and that is co-operation in destroying one of the blackest menaces that history has knowledge of.

One of the most peaceful parts of the world—the Channel Islands—heard the roar of bombers recently. Civilians are reported to have been killed and wounded. These tranquil islands, close neighbors to France, and situated not far from where the port of Cherbourg looks across to Plymouth have not known war for many generations. They could not be considered military objectives. Evidently their only offence lay in being regarded as British territory. Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney and Sark! The happy isles where fruits of the fields flourished, friendliness and harmony were taken as a matter of course, and childhood home of the "Jersey Lily." And now, blood and ruins!

The tremendous scope of orders being placed in the United States and Canada for aeroplanes and engines is revealing what appears to be a defect in education which can be summed up in a few words: Not enough vocational training. For every good pattern-maker, tool-maker, die-maker, or some other mechanical expert, there are three or perhaps more young people studying some line that does not involve soiling one's hands or linen. Today, if there is a delay in the providing of urgently needed fighting planes, the true explanation may be found in the fact that there are too many office workers, and too few of those who can make an engine.

Strong protest is taken by the Fortnightly Law Journal at the failure of the Justice Department at Ottawa to institute proceedings against Fascist leaders in Canada. These men have been interned on the strength of evidence of treasonable and seditious communications with the totalitarian powers in Europe with which Canada is now at war. "What we do not understand," says the Law Journal, "is why they have been abruptly interned. In Germany or Italy they would have undoubtedly been shot as spies, probably without trial. We do not necessarily do things that way in Canada; but it would seem, particularly in time of war, that after due trial such men should be treated with the appropriate penalty prescribed in the Criminal Code. If the crime was, as it appears to have been, the most aggravated form of treason and sedition, treating with an enemy power for the overthrow of Canada, then surely the death penalty is prescribed in the Criminal Code is none too severe, and the Minister of Justice could then after a proper trial have taken the responsibility of commuting that sentence."

"War-time has placed a new and higher value upon the forests of Canada," declares the Canadian Forestry Association in a statement issued recently. The new value in this case goes almost wholly to wage-earners, merchants, supply houses, and others furnishing the employment and services that enter into the manufacture of lumber and paper. These always are the chief gainers from forestry activity and suffer most when forest industry declines. "Now that the Dominion government has issued a call for the organized defence of Canada, it will provide a new reason and a new opportunity for every citizen to include the protection of the forests from fire with his patriotic training. The defence of Canada applies to forest fire prevention as well as external enemies. Defending the forests is an immediate personal contribution that every citizen can undertake. It is sometimes forgotten that forests never destroy themselves. They are laid in ruins

New Altar at Holy Cross Church Blessed

A beautiful new altar at the Holy Cross Church, Plympton, the gift of Mrs. Henry Jules Gaede, was blessed Sunday afternoon, Rev. Mgr. D. H. Comeau, St. Anne de Ruisseau, was priest in charge of the ceremony. Every seat in the church was taken, while many stood in the vestibule. Others were unable to be admitted, and stood on the grounds outside the edifice. Father Comeau was assisted by Rev. J. M. Doucet, Wedgeport, (former parish priest of Plympton), Rev. A. Saulnier, St. Alphonse de Clare, as deacon and sub-deacon. Rev. Fathers Bergeson, Trois Rivières, P. Q.; Rev. Mr. Cotreau, Bathurst, N. B.; J. D. Melanson, Weymouth; J. E. LeBlanc, St. Bernard; J. D. Robichaud, Quinlan; Pierre Alphonse Comeau, Sherbrooke, P. Q.; and A. Theriault, Annapolis Royal, were in the sanctuary.

The choir of Stella Maris Church, Meteghan, directed by curate Rev. L. Comeau, assisted by Rev. L. d'Entremont, Joggins, and Rev. Fathers Hebert and Hubert, St. Ann's College, furnished the music.

At the close of the service Rev. Father Gaudet, parish priest, expressed his thanks to the donor, and to all who participated in the service.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. William Penny, Parish Priest, of Yarmouth, who spoke from the text "I have loved the habitation of Thy house and the place where Thy glory dwelleth." Father Penny told that Christ came to establish the kingdom of God on earth through the medium of the church; that He taught His disciples the love of God and the love of men. The church teaches reverence and love for the things of God. He went on to tell how, next to a pious congregation, the most important ornament of the church was the altar, and explained how respect for the altar went back to the very beginning, and that the altar of the Old Testament is not to be compared with the altar of Christ. He described the altar as something living; something that should grip our lives to such an extent that we become part of the altar and the altar part of us, and a source of consolation in trouble.

HOW DO YOU TREAT THE VISITORS FROM THE UNITED STATES

(From "Travel-Log," Wagner Tours House Organ) Several tourists from the U. S. A., who have read Canadian advertisements, have believed them, and came to spend their vacation in this Province, and incidentally their money, have complained that public (?) spirited Nova Scotians would turn the conversation to the WAR, and then indicate in no gentle manner what they thought of the United States. They were rightly indignant, these tourists, in their reaction that they were here as invited guests of Canada, and for that matter this province, and that they came here to enjoy themselves, not to be insulted.

If we must bring up OUR war in conversation with visitors from the south of us, there is much to PRAISE them for. Let us tell them we are grateful and appreciative for their whole hearted support of our cause, and that we will never forget the fact they are gearing up the vast industrial U. S. A., and turning over to us the necessary equipment which will make it possible for the Empire to drive the Nazis into oblivion.

Let us be sincerely friendly, courteous and hospitable to all our tourists. We asked them to come and spend money with us. Don't send them away disgusted and displeased.

Final statistics for 1939 place automobile production in Canada at 155,426 units valued at $99,173,916 at factory selling prices.

Wood Important as War Material.

Wood is an important war material and is included in some lists of contraband, says the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Timber is needed in various ways, for war purposes while much wood is used in the manufacture of war equipment. From wood pulp is manufactured cellulose nitrate, or gun-cotton, used as an explosive and as the chief ingredient of smokeless powders, photographic films, collodion and celluloid plastics. Wood flour forms an appreciable part of dynamite, while a type of wood charcoal is used in gas masks. The timber resources of Canada, important in peace time trade, play an equally important role in war.

How to Address Soldiers' Telegrams

Some senders of telegrams to soldier relatives and friends are remiss in proper direction and the Canadian National Railways asks that in telegrams to soldiers located at the various military camps in Canada, the following information be carried in the address of such messages:

Rank and Name
Regimental and Unit Numbers
Name of Camp Destination.

All such addresses in domestic messages are carried free.

Why Do the Scots Wear a Sporrans?

Kilts did not contain pockets, so a kind of loose pocket was worn instead, and this developed into the sporran.

Poles in Canada Good Farmers

Polish settlers in Canada number about 155,000 and of that number 65 per cent live on the land, the balance being engaged in the heavy industries. It is also stated that Poles numbering approximately 85,000 in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have proved excellent tillers of the soil in turning large stretches of land into productive and prosperous country.

In 1886 an Englishman named R. T. Palmer signed an enrollment form for the 1st Kent Artillery Corps. Fifty-four years later, in 1940, his brother, A. Palmer, while sorting out several tons of wastepaper for re-pulping at a Gravesend mill, found the original form.

Britain's Electric Motor Fleet.

Six million gallons of gasoline will be saved in Britain next year by the fleet of electric vehicles which will then be operating.

The 5,000 on British roads when war broke out has now increased to 6,000 and the Electric Vehicle Association of Great Britain estimate that there will be 8,600 of them by the end of the year, each vehicle releasing approximately 700 gallons of gas in twelve months, or a total annual saving of 6,020,000 gallons.

One London firm now has 300 electric milk delivery vans; another in Bristol has 300 vans for milk, groceries, coal and other goods. Big London stores which have run electric vehicles for years are increasing their fleets and in the early hours giant electric vans now creep silently among London's dust cans.

Australia, New Zealand, Trinidad and South Africa are now all showing an interest in electric vehicles, especially for short haulage deliveries.

War Invention Writes in Flame

A new machine which writes with flame has been designed and made in Britain and is now at work in a big motor factory engaged in war production.

The "pencil" is an intensely hot oxy-acetylene flame and the "paper" is tough steel plate. Instead of drawing lines, the flame cuts through the metal as easily as a housewife cuts pastry.

A long, delicately balanced horizontal arm, which can be swung in any direction, carries an electric motor driving a spindle. The spindle can be set to traverse automatically the grooves of a plate of the pattern which is desired for the steel sheets to be cut out.

Underneath the bench a similar arm carrying the nozzle for the cutting flame traces the precise movement of the upper arm. Thus as the specimen design is traced on top so the flame cleaves the steel with exact precision. So powerful is the flame that it will cut through an eight-inch thickness of metal, or a number of sheets can be clamped together and cut simultaneously.

The process can be applied to all types of design such as circles, ovals, rectangles, irregular shapes or toothed wheels. It is also adaptable for hand tracing directly from a drawing.

The principle is similar in effect to a device invented some years ago whereby a written announcement or a drawing done on a sheet of paper could be reproduced simultaneously in facsimile on another piece of paper in a different room or town, or even on a screen.

14 Million Biscuits a Week.

The capacity and resilience of Britain's non-armament engineering industries is strikingly instanced by the war time activities of one of the world's largest makers of bread and biscuit machinery.

Maintaining their overseas business in spite of the war, they have already shipped big modern biscuit manufacturing plants to Canada, Australia and South Africa; and a very big order has come from Chile, a country which formerly gave most of its engineering custom to Germany. Of two plants ordered from Chile, one has already arrived there.

Biscuit manufacture has become so automatic that dough fed into one end of the equipment emerges at the other end in the form of finished product, stacked ready for packing and untouched by human hands.

Ovens are often 200 feet long heated by as many units as 150 gas or oil burners or electric elements. Often as many as eight plants operate side by side, producing 1,920 biscuits a minute or 44,000,000 in a 18-hour week. Many plants are capable of rapid adjustment for producing Army biscuits and the machinery will stand up to the strain of trebling its normal output in emergencies.

Britain is the home of the biscuit, not only in the sense that the public's taste sets a quality standard and creates "fashions" to which the rest of the world aspires, but also because British engineers have achieved supremacy in perfecting machinery to deal with the amazing increase in demand which has been a feature of the evolution of eating habits in recent years.

MINISTER STRESSES IMPORTANCE LABOUR SUPPLY

Hon. Norman McLarty, Minister of Labor, stressed the necessity of maintaining an adequate labor supply for Canada's war industries, at a meeting of the National Labor Supply Council. Training of skilled workers must go on with that object in mind, he said, adding that the transfer of labor from non-war to war industries might be considered as a matter of great importance. The National Labor Council is composed of five men representing industry and five representing labor.

NAME OF TOWNS FOR NAVAL VESSELS

According to Rear Admiral Percy W. Nelles, Chief of the Naval Staff, the new vessels, of the "Corvette" class just built or being completed in Canadian shipyards, will carry the names of different towns throughout Canada. The Canadian Navy's destroyers and minesweepers are named after rivers and from other geographical sources.

Canada to Supply Army with Universal Carriers

UNIVERSAL machine gun carriers will soon be added to the list of army vehicles made in Canada for the fighting forces at home and overseas. These are equipped with caterpillar treads and are very manoeuvrable and speedy. They are armoured against small arms fire and will carry three Bren guns, or can be used to carry ammunition, wireless sets and other necessary equipment. They will be produced in the Windsor plant of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, which has been selected as the most suitable for the production of this vehicle. In the lower photograph, Mr. Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Canadian Ford organization, is shown with Lieut.-Col. D. C. Warnica, officer commanding the Essex Tank Battalion, Windsor, inspecting one of the Universal carriers. Other army vehicles now made in the Ford plant in Windsor include the powerful four-wheel drive gun tractor pictured above. These and other types of military vehicles are rolling off the assembly line of the Canadian Ford plant which is supplying nearly 10,000 units to the Canadian army and another

CELEBRATE 40TH ANNIVERSARY

At the United Church of Manse, Elmsdale, on Thursday, June 27, Rev. and Mrs. C. H. C. MacLaren celebrated the fortieth anniversary of their marriage and were visited by many members of their present and previous congregations, to wish them continued happiness and service. Mr. MacLaren, a son of Charles E. MacLaren, was born at Port Clyde. He was educated at Mount Allison and ordained into the Ministry of the Methodist Church in 1898. Mr. MacLaren started his ministerial duties on Digby Neck. He has served in congregations at River John, Middle Musquodibit, Southampton, Port Greenville, Glen Margaret, Port Hawkesbury, Arcadia and two fields in Hants County, Centre Burlington and Elmsdale.

In this country popular songs do not live very long, says a music critic. This is not surprising, considering the number of people who murder them.

How Fighting is Affecting Fish

With fresh fish wanted by the country (Great Britain) more than ever, the war is having its inevitable effect on the sea fisheries, which are being carried on in face of great difficulty.

Not only is there the danger of attack from the German Navy and Air Force, but the fishing fleet have been depleted of both men and ships by the requirements of the Navy.

Some of the effects of war on the fisheries are likely to last long after the war is over, and to have their effect on the price of the fish caught in home waters for many years to come.

Fuel oil escaping from ships sunk by mine or torpedo is spoiling the inshore fisheries, and many of these formerly great breeding-places for the finer types of fish, were only beginning to recover twenty years after the last war.

North Sea operations are naturally very restricted, owing to the fighting and the minefields.

The effect of oil on the surface of the water, often extending for many miles, is not only bad for the immature fish close inshore, but is also very bad for the plankton on which these fish feed, and without which they would never reach maturity.

The plankton consists of countless tiny marine creatures at various depths, carried along by the tide, but they need sunshine, and a film of oil on the surface, however thin, has a very serious effect. (The above appeared recently in the London Evening News.)

St. Anne de Beaupre will see two pilgrimages from Nova Scotia this year. The first took place this week and the second, conducted for Cape Breton Island and stations from Mulgrave to Truro, will leave Sydney next Monday.

Because of war conditions, the Gypsum Packet Company has temporarily discontinued all passenger and outside freight service on its route between Staten Island, New York, and Windsor, the line informed the Halifax Board of Trade recently.

Miss Maude McLellan, R. N., of the Digby General Hospital, has been appointed a member of the Board of Examiners to examine all candidates under provisions of an Act to incorporate the Registered Nurses' Association of Nova Scotia.

An impressive ceremony was held in the United Church, at Port Crevice, Friday of last week, when Rev. H. A. Brown, lately pastor in Sandy Cove, was inducted by Rev. Howard Hamilton, of Parrsboro. An address was delivered by Rev. P. S. McDonald, of Advocate.

An alarm of fire Saturday morning called the department out for a chimney fire in Art's Spa, which came nearly being a serious affair as the fire caught between the floors and had got a good hold.—The department was again called out yesterday morning for a chimney fire in Dr. McCleave's residence.

The third annual Hospital Flower Show, will be held at the home of Mrs. J. R. McCleave, of Digby, July 30th.

Disregard of "Stop" signals at intersecting points in Digby town are quite often noted, and this is to be deplored. Stop signs mean just what they say "Stop", not just a slowing and changing of gears. Train yourself to comply with the law and form good driving habits, and incidentally lessen the danger to pedestrians.

A large number gathered at the train Tuesday morning to bid farewell to a number of the boys who volunteered for active service a few weeks ago, and who left for Kentville to go into training. The Digby Band (many of whose members have enlisted) played several numbers as a farewell salute. Other volunteers from Digby are expected to leave shortly.

Although returns from the recent V. O. N. drive are not yet complete, collections reported to date amount to $108, which is better than in several years. In addition to that sum, the Order benefited to the extent of $37.45 from the recent garden tea, held at the home of Mrs. G. M. Morrell. A further donation of $5.00 from Miss Aetha Stewart is also acknowledged.

Bobson Black, manager and director of the Canadian Forestry Association, was in Digby from Montreal, on Saturday, where he was met by George E. Graham, chairman of the Nova Scotia Branch. Together they will make a tour of the Province in the interest of the work, arranging for lecture tours, moving picture representations of forestry work, etc.

The third annual Hospital Flower Show, will be held at the home of Mrs. J. R. McCleave, on Tuesday, July 30th.

Work Continuing After 30 Years

After many years of patient toil and sacrifice, work has begun on the interior of the beautiful new church at St. Bernard, an Acadian Parish in the Digby County Municipality of Clare. The church has been under construction for more than three decades. Many of the parishioners who witnessed the turning of the first sod have long since gone to their reward, among them the loved and revered Father Edward LeBlanc, who was Parish Priest at St. Bernard when the first plans were made in 1908, and who later became His Grace Bishop LeBlanc, of Saint John.

Work on the church began in 1910, and has continued slowly since that time. Today, one of the most beautiful and imposing church exteriors to be found in Canada stands in the little Acadian village of St. Bernard.

Massive blocks of gray granite, quarried near Shelburne, have been used for the construction. It is said that each row around the building cost $1,000, and to date upward to $80,000 have been spent on the construction.

The village of St. Bernard is small. The parish, however, which includes the villages of New Edinburgh, Belliveau Cove and other settlements has a population of approximately 3,000.

Financing has been done largely through annual picnics and personal contributions. The work has been paid for as it progressed.

Earl of Athlone V. O. N. Patron

The national office at Ottawa of the Victorian Order of Nurses announced recently that His Excellency the Governor General, has graciously consented to become the patron of the Order, and that Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, has graciously consented to become Honorary President.

The Victorian Order of Nurses was established in 1879, under the direction of Lady Aberdeen, wife of the then Governor General of Canada, to commemorate the Diamond Jubilee of the reign of Queen Victoria.

The Order provides nursing service by graduate nurses in the homes of the people. There are now 91 districts served from coast to coast with a staff of 354 nurses.

The United Church Garden Party will be held on the church grounds, on Thursday, July 25th.

Ideal Place For Holiday

A visitor, who arrived in Digby from Connecticut a few days ago, declares that Nova Scotia is an ideal place for Americans who "want to get away from the war". In her opinion there is far less war talk in any of the places she has visited in this province than in her home city of New Haven, in fact, she stated, if she didn't pick up a newspaper once in awhile, or happened to listen to a news broadcast, she would scarcely be conscious of the war in Europe, and it would never occur to her she was spending her vacation in a belligerent country.

In her city, she said, every conversation turns to "war", and it is a relief to get away from so much "war talk" by coming to Nova Scotia. She was emphatic that Americans are greatly favoring Great Britain, in fact, a few days ago, Hitler was hung in effigy at West Haven.

Another visitor from New York, says he learned on "good authority" he would have to pay 75 cents a gallon for gasoline, if he brought his car to Canada, and at that price he would only be allowed gas two days a week, and then only five gallons at a time! He knew better, and says he has seen more of the Maritime this trip than on any previous visit, yet, he said, there are many who would like to come to Canada, who are swallowing "that line of stuff, hook, line and sinker".

One Thing They Cannot Destroy.

(Bangor, Me., Daily News)

As this is written, the world faces the darkest era in its history.

Centuries of progress, in which mankind has struggled, however feebly, upward and onward toward the light, may be swept away. Civilization, as we have known it, may seemingly be destroyed.

But there is one thing the passions of mankind, the hosts of evil, can never destroy—our simple faith in God.

It was upon this faith our country was founded, and grew, and became great among the nations of the world. Became great because of the inspiration that flowed to it from a source higher than its own. Became great because there were family ties, strong as bands of steel, because there were family devotions, because there were churches where men were not ashamed to kneel in supplication; because the spirit of God was in America.

Human words seem futile at a time like this. But there are words that are not futile, or in them lie the inspiration of the centuries. The 46th Psalm:

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

"Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the sea."

"Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof."

"There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High."

"God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved; God shall help her, and that right early."

"The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved: He uttered His voice, the earth melted."

"The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge."

"Come, behold the works of the Lord, what desolations He hath made in the earth."

"He maketh wars to cease unto the ends of the earth: He breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; He burneth the chariot in the fire."

"Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth."

"The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge."

Canning Crabmeat

Many Maine women and lobstermen are profiting from a new source of revenue as the result of a crabmeat canning enterprise, started by a prominent Stonington businessman. Large quantities of crabs which are abundant all along the Maine coast, are being used in the plant, which is the only one of its kind north of Maryland, and the product is said to be superior in taste and quality to the Japanese and other varieties. More than forty women are employed as packers and lobster fishermen are finding a market for the crabs which have previously been considered a nuisance in their traps.

The owner has great hopes for the future of this new industry and believes that eventually he will employ up to one hundred persons and possibly more. His biggest job is to find a market for this product, but he states that several large distributors are now handling it and that others are becoming interested.

The packing season is an eight month proposition running from April to December. It is necessary for crab fishermen to have a license but in case they also catch lobsters their lobster permit will cover both species.

Experiments were started by the present manager, several years ago, based upon his belief that Maine crabs, which are small in comparison to those of other sections of the world, had tenderer and sweeter meat.

Perfection of a canning process offered the most obstacles but he claims that this is now completely under control. Tests have been made at the University of Maine, Harvard University and the Massachusetts State College and pronounced satisfactory.

Crabs can be found most anywhere along the coast and have never been highly commercialized due to the difficulty in removing meat from the shells. However, many thousands of bushels are used each year by small fresh crabmeat dealers. It is a rare occasion when a lobster fisherman does not find from two to a half dozen crabs in each trap.

Rev. G. D. Brydon officiated. The bride was gowned in a suit of navy blue with white accessories and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and maiden hair fern. Mrs. Allister Harris, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, and the groom was supported by his brother, Elwood Stevens. The out-of-town guests were the bride's brother and two sisters. Following the ceremony the bridal party motored to Springfield, where a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Mason will reside for the present at Springfield.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Sunday evening, July 14, at "Scott's Villa", Sandy Cove, when Yvonne Inez, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Sypher, was united in marriage to Carl Frederick, younger son of Mrs. Ella and the late Joseph Winchester, of Digby. Rev. C. L. Chute, pastor of the United Baptist Church, of which the bride is a member, officiated. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, rendered by Mrs. Reginald Trask, the bride entered the decorated parlor on the arm of her uncle, Dutton Sypher, (in the absence of her father, who is in Government service), joining the groom beneath an arch of peonies, lilies and painted daisies with fern and wedding bells. The bride was becomingly attired in a dress of aqua blue with white accessories, the fingertip length veil of tulle, being held in place with blue forget-me-nots; bouquet was of yellow roses, lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid was Belva Jeffrey, cousin of the bride, and flower girl, Frances Sypher, sister of the bride. The groom was supported by Currie Woodman, of Digby. Following the ceremony refreshments were served to about thirty guests. The happy couple will reside in Sandy Cove.

Harvesting Commenced

Farmers of this district have commenced harvesting their upland hay crops, and prospects are for a fair crop, although not quite as large as last years, it is understood.

However, it is noted that many farmers are harvesting their hay from two weeks to ten days earlier than in previous years, and the earlier harvest is more marked this year than last. This new method may account to some extent for the slightly smaller crop, but, those who are practicing this method claim the added food value gained by early harvesting more than makes up for the bulk.

Generally speaking, all crops are showing progress. Cultivated strawberries have been quite plentiful, and the wild strawberry "crop" was reported the largest in several years. Indications are that cherries will be plentiful—providing the robins don't pick them before the growers get a chance to.

A few native new potatoes are on the market. New beans are being marketed in small quantities, also, new peas and beans, although the latter, at this date, have not appeared in local markets.

Road Gave Way, Truck Crashed.

An avalanche of rock and earth sent a lumber laden truck down a steep embankment on one of the Bear River streets on Saturday. The truck was not badly damaged, and the driver, Garnet Budd, of Seabrook, escaped uninjured.

The accident occurred as Budd was driving along the road, which suddenly gave way. The truck fell a distance of some twenty feet, coming to rest against a large cherry tree. Had not the tree been stout enough to resist the weight that slid against it, the fate of the driver would probably have been different.

Debris from the landslide piled up on the front walk of a residence some one hundred feet distant. People who know Bear River—rightfully called "the Switzerland of Nova Scotia"—will recall that in many instances it is possible from certain streets to look down the chimneys of the homes on the street of a lower level. A news despatch of a Bear River fire a few years ago told that buildings "under" the burning structure were set ablaze by burning wood falling from the building which stood on the street above.

The scene of Saturday's accident was a short distance from the Bear River Advent church, on the road which goes around "the head of the tide."

No "Cherry Sunday" This Year

Citizens of Bear River have taken their first step toward abolishing an old, established (although unofficial) custom—"Cherry Sunday". Over the signature of Rev. G. D. Brydon, pastor of the Bear River Baptist Church, and secretary of the Bear River Minister's Institute, a public notice has been inserted in the Digby Courier, which reads in part as follows:

"The clergy and congregations of Bear River have agreed unanimously to put an end to the custom of having a 'Cherry Sunday' so called. 'The public is hereby instructed that there will be no cherries for sale in this community of Sunday...'

Before the days of the motor era, 'Cherry Sunday'—the Sunday when everybody seems to know instinctively the luscious Bear River cherries were at their best, and most plentiful, hundreds from miles around, arrived in Bear River by horse and buggy, farm wagons, buckboards and stage coach. Now, they come in larger numbers, and from greater distances, by cars, flivvers and trucks.

Small quantities of the earlier varieties of cherries are now on the market, but later and more plentiful varieties will be ready in a week or ten days, although fair quantities of Bear River cherries should be ripe next week.

Why a Volley is Fired Over a Soldier's Grave?

Whenever a soldier is buried a volley is fired over his grave. This originated because of an ancient superstition that a loud noise would frighten away the evil spirits that were supposed to try to stop the soul of the dead man going to Paradise. Nowadays, of course the volley is fired as a mark of respect for the dead soldier.

Why Has a Sailor's Collar Three White Lines?

They are said to represent the three great victories of Nelson, namely, the Nile, Copenhagen and Trafalgar. Incidentally, many British people consider that it is good luck to touch the white lines, and many sailors on leave in Britain have quite a task to keep their collars clean.

1,100 CHILDREN LEARN
BIBLE VERSES

The mission work of Eastern Canada as it is, extends west from the Atlantic until it meets the Canada Sunday School mission work of the west, whose eastern limit is at present in Ontario. Mrs. F.
N. Hudson is the present director of this mission work in the eastern part of Canada, and is in close co-operation with the western mission, whose headquarters are at Winnipeg.

Their programmes are exactly the same verses to be learned, prizes and every detail coincide. This is done so that there will be a complete covering of Canada with the Scripture work.

This work is purely unde-nominational, no isms, no cults; simple Scripture that will help the children through life and give them much joy and pleasure now.

Three hundred verses in all will give them a pin; Gospel of John, three story books and a week at camp, free. This is a good opportunity for girls and boys to earn their own good time. People who are interested are being instructed to write Mrs. F. N. Hudson, Kingston, N. S.

World conditions are so perplexing that civilization as a whole, is asking the question,
"What is going to be the outcome of the nations?" Owing to this current question many who never gave it a thought before, are searching the Scripture for their answer. It has been the aim of the Spiritual leaders and teachers of the west in the past years to help the children learn the Scripture. This general interest of the nations has encouraged them to extend this much needed work to Eastern Canada. The year ending 1939 in the western section alone there were 1,100 children who learned these verses. The day school teachers were a great help to the children with this

nearly always by the carelessness of human beings. Thousands of forest rangers work from morning till night to save the splendid resources of this province from reckless actions of fishermen, campers, smokers, berry-pickers and settlers. Every forest fire is a blow to our home-land, and the consequences of fire grow steadily worse as the timber supplies become less and the distribution of forest wages grows greater. The Prime Minister of Canada, Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, stated recently: "The safeguarding of the forest resources in a time of war becomes a form of patriotism which no nation or people can afford to neglect."

A town is very much like an individual. To be flourishing, it must have energy and enterprise. The people in a town should remember that individual prosperity depends to a large extent upon the character of the place in which their business is located. Every public measure should be liberally supported by all, especially the business men. At the present time there is as much competition between towns as there is among persons and business enterprises. A man seeking a location will invariably select a town that is up to the times and is eagerly in favour of every modern improvement. A town in these modern days can't afford to be peopled with old fogies or antediluvian fossils who are constantly kicking at every enterprise. To make a flourishing town you must believe in its future and work for it, encouraging every improvement. Make a special effort to exhibit some evidence of improvement in your own work and character. Help every worthy man, every enterprise, and encourage every good man to locate in your town.—Amherstburg, Ont., Echo.

War Prisoners Arrive

Numbers of German prisoners recently arrived in Canada, are now safely interned in various camps throughout the country. Broken up into small groups, they are so distributed as to present little danger to Canada.

It was to ensure that they would be beyond the reach of fifth columnists and parachute jumpers that they were removed from England to Canada. Had they been released during an invasion of Great Britain, they might easily have constituted a menace. Scattered across Canada's broad spaces, they are no longer considered to present such threat.

To those who watched beneath the ramparts of Quebec's ancient citadel, the war was brought close to Canada as the heavy clump of Nazi boots sounded on the plank platform of the railway siding and the uniformed air-men, soldiers and sailors were loaded aboard the waiting trains.

Closely ringing the entire pier area were 500 picked sentries, their bayonets fixed. Another set of guards lined the route from the ship to the trains.

First to be brought off ship were the civilian prisoners, many of them crew members of Nazi ships seized by the British Navy on the high seas. Next came the soldiers, sailors and non-commissioned officers of the Nazi air force, army and navy.

The majority of the navy prisoners were submarine crews. Included in the army prisoners were members of the Nazi "panzer" units and parachute jumpers. The latter wore a distinctive uniform composed of slacks and jumpers made of a leather-like material.

Masks, issued for protection against their own gas while they were prisoners in the British Isles, were taken back from the prisoners when they landed in Canada.

Last to leave the ship were the officer prisoners. They were followed by their own batmen, who loaded their trunks and other baggage aboard the trains.

An interesting side-light was the way in which the Nazi prisoners studied the husky and bronzed Canadians who stood guard over them. While waiting in the piers to be marched to the trains, they constantly gazed at the Canucks. The smirking attitude of one party of prisoners rapidly evaporated into one of thoughtfulness when a leather-lunged sergeant-major started to put the Canadians through their paces with smart precision.

Many Iron Crosses dangled from the tunics of the Nazi officers. One German aviator told a Canadian officer he had received his Iron Cross in the morning and had been shot down over England by four Hurricanes on the afternoon of the same day.

"Your aviators were excellent, but short on planes," he said.

DANGER OF KISSING

The teacher was giving a health talk to her class, and warned them never to kiss animals or birds.

"Can you give me an instance of the danger of this, Jackie?" she asked.

"Yes, miss, my Aunt Alice used to kiss her dog."

"And what happened?" asked the teacher.

This Beast—Hitler

Boston Traveler

This creature Hitler will never be beaten by the "rules of civilized warfare." Somebody has got to get right down in the gutter with him and fight the way he fights only more cruelly. Don't get an idea we "have got to get into it," but above all else, don't get an idea we do not need to defend ourselves.

This is no time to prate about humanitarian ideals. The allies are dealing with a wild beast. Yes, worse; dealing with a monster utterly lacking in principle. His word is no good, his methods are satanic. In the night he murdered Belgium and Holland while the good people of those countries believed no state of war existed.

You will be told that Hitler is a genius and a mystic. He is no such thing. Hitler is merely an ex-gutter-snipe, a mediocre little man with a mediocre mind, acting just as any fanatical, sub-standard person would act if given unrestricted use of modern instruments of science such as the microphone, the gasoline engine and the chemical laboratory. The fool cannot even see that he is destroying himself and his people, that he is bringing the temple of civilization crashing down upon himself.

Hitler is just a dirty gutter fighter. Hitler and his bullies stop at nothing to destroy their victims. We Americans are potential victims.

Then let us stop at nothing in preparing our defences. Let us get over our squeamishness and get tough. Hitler and his banditti try to torture their victims with threats of terrifying "new and secret weapons." So what in the name of common sense should we do?

We should set American science to work devising the most hellish instruments of defence the mind can conceive. Let us make it clear—weapons of defence.

Would we thus drag ourselves down to the level of the infamous beast of Berlin? Would we thus be acting as pious hypocrites? Would we be damning ourselves in the eyes of God?

We don't know. But we do know that there is loose upon the face of the earth a force that scorns every principle that in conscience we believe to be divine. This mad force must be destroyed.

Plainly it is man's duty to defend the eternal verities, to meet any diabolical challenge to the dignity of the human soul. The instruments of defence are available. If a beneficent God, as we believe, cast an archangel into eternal fire, why should we be choosy about what we may have to do to Hitler, the Horrible, and his horde?

A 54-year-old Londoner who can only read a newspaper with a magnifying glass in addition to his spectacles in the daytime, can see objects quite clearly in the dark and never uses a torch even in the black-out. He has worked as a cell-larman for over 30 years and claims to have "cat's eyes."

Maritimes Buy Tea At Low Cost

Whatever the relative cost of living in the Maritimes as compared with the rest of Canada, it cannot be said that the people of these provinces pay too much for their tea.

Morse's Standard Tea, which is the good old family tea of the Maritimes, sells in retail stores at 65 cents per pound package, which is 10 cents per pound less than brands claiming to be of equal quality are selling for in central Canada.

As a matter of fact 65 cents a pound is too low for tea of such quality, in view of the high prices of good teas in countries of production, the war tax, the increased cost of transportation and the higher cost of war risk insurance, and there will inevitably come a time when an advance will have to be made. In the meantime, however, Maritime tea drinkers count themselves fortunate in being able to buy Morse's Standard Tea at its present price.

Coast Defence Chief

Brig. Gen. Sanderford Jarman, commander of the Panama Canal Zone's separate coast artillery brigade, who has rushed his big railroad guns to the Atlantic side as the U. S. army prepared for what is described by observers as "sudden trouble." This entire zone has been placed on a war footing with 30,000 men under arms. Both entrances of the canal are mined and aircraft are on steady patrol flights. Military authorities call the manoeuvres an emergency rehearsal.

Offers Plan of Sacrifice

A naturalized Canadian of Italian birth, has submitted to the Minister of Finance a novel plan to further free-will offerings to Canada's war cause.

He is employed in the Canadian National Railway shops at Winnipeg, and is voluntarily working for the pay of an Army private. All he earns above this, will go to the Department of Finance as voluntary contribution to war effort.

"For some time past," he writes to the Minister of Finance, "a plan has been formulated in my mind, and realizing the grave situation the Allied forces are facing, I feel compelled to hesitate no longer in presenting to you my plan for your kind consideration."

"I will state at the outset that I am a naturalized Canadian of Italian birth."

"I feel, together with several of my fellow workers in the Canadian National shops in Winnipeg, that at the present time I am of more value to the country in remaining at work in the shops. However, because I am single and have no one dependent upon me, I feel that it would be taking advantage of the grave situation at hand to continue to work at home in perfect safety, drawing a monthly salary, while others are sacrificing so much, I feel therefore, that it is my duty to do as much as I possibly can to support the Government's war effort."

"Therefore, my plan is to work on the basis of a private in the Army, turning the balance of my wages every month to the Government of Canada for the duration of the war. I ask nothing in return at the end of the war."

The writer of the letter makes this further suggestion:

"In discussing this proposal with my fellow-workers, we have come to the conclusion that, in all probability there are many more throughout Canada who could, and would, be glad to do likewise. If the idea were presented to them for consideration, I have wondered whether a campaign to this end might be launched by the Government."

With the letter was forwarded a testimonial from the writer's employer, referring to him as a "steady and conscientious worker, willing to do anything that is required of him and even exceeding the requirements of a request."

Whatever troubles Adam had, No man in days of yore Could say when he had told a joke:

"I've heard that one before."

57 Years Non-Stop Paint Work.

The Forth Bridge, in Scotland, which celebrates its 50th anniversary this year, is a glut-ton for paint. Forty-five painters are regularly employed on the 135 acres of steelwork.

About three years are required to cover the whole fabric, and one complete coat absorbs 120,000 pounds of paint. Painting has been in progress since 1883, before the bridge was completed, and it is estimated that well over 900 tons of paint has been used so far.

The famous bridge, a monument to British steel, was opened by King Edward VII when Prince of Wales, and provided a direct east coast all rail route between London and Scotland by spanning the Firth of Forth.

The bridge cost $12,500,000 and materials put into it included upwards of 54,000 tons of steel, 6,500,000 rivets, 740,000 cubic feet of granite masonry, 64,300 cubic yards of concrete, and 46,300 cubic yards of rubble masonry. The foundations reach 91 feet below water level and its extreme height is 361 feet above high water mark.

Vast amounts of copper must have collected by now on the bottom of the Firth of Forth beneath the bridge, because of the many people crossing by train who throw a halfpenny into the water "for luck."

German warplanes have dropped far more dangerous things into the Forth, but the bridge has not been damaged.

HE KNEW THE BRITISH

The Toronto Telegram tells this story. Early in the Great War a German squadron under Admiral Von Spee, sank a squadron of lighter British ships off the Chilean coast. A few days later, in a Chilean port, a group of German women presented the Admiral with a victory banquet.

"Von Spee thanked the donors and then, surveying the flowers, made the disconcerting reply, 'They will do for my funeral.'"

"But, admiral, you've had a great triumph," one of the ladies answered.

"Yes," responded the admiral, "but when the British ever leave an enemy to his triumph?"

A little later Von Spee and his ships were sunk by the British just as he had foreseen. The long arm of the Royal Navy had taken its revenge and the South Atlantic was safe.

No more will the British of these times leave the enemy to his triumph. Britain aroused is a terrible foe, and if the faint-hearted—who seem to be most frequent in the United States—will read history they will find abundant grounds for renewed faith.—Ottawa Journal.

Memories That Last Forever

It is important, we think, that the details of a funeral be handled with such grace and dignity that a pleasant memory is preserved. Towards this end, we bend all our efforts and insure a service that is lastingly lovely.

About This and That

To listen to foreign broadcasts in Germany is a crime. In Hamburg, on April 28th, there was no fewer than twenty-eight trials going on at the same time. The majority of sentences were from three to nine months, although a few were given two years. Evidently people in Germany are beginning to wonder what the rest of the world is doing.

The average Briton possesses a certain resiliency or buoyancy which is of priceless importance in times like the present. It is of great aid in every emergency. This "springy" sort of temperament that cannot be suppressed or defeated or overwhelmed, that maintains a steady balance, that never desponds or is foolishly optimistic, that can see a bit of fun in almost any situation and can at times, laugh at himself, is good fighting material. It wears well.

Investors, according to a Calgary daily, continue to look rather coldly at the Alberta government bond offerings. They prefer the bonds of other provinces. Prices, so far as Alberta is concerned, remain much lower, than elsewhere in Canada. Chicks are flying home to roost. Once the administrators of a great domain, such as the province of Alberta undoubtedly is, weaken public confidence through the passing of unsound, experimental or near-Radical legislation, there is a long way to go, before this confidence and honest good will and faith can possibly be restored.

Working prisoners of war sent to internment camps in Canada would no doubt conflict with the interests of labor. It might also be more costly, for anything done on a large scale would be certain to involve more detail in the way of guard duty and other requirements. Germany takes good care to see to it, however, that those unfortunates within her power work good and plenty. To unload a lot of enemy aliens in Canada, and allow them to stall around and do nothing in particular, is not a pleasant prospect. It is to be hoped that every one of them be made to do something, and that the authorities be sublimely indifferent as to whether the job is attractive or not.

From France comes reports that the losses suffered by the French armies in the 30-day blitzkrieg during which Nazi Germany conquered the whole of France, totaled approximately 60,000 men killed, 300,000 wounded, and 900,000 taken prisoners. If these figures are anywhere near correct they shed a new light on the collapse of France. The ratio of those captured to the number killed and wounded is extraordinarily high. Twenty-five years ago France lost 500,000 killed and wounded defending Verdun. Now they have yielded their entire country with casualties scarcely 75 per cent of that suffered in a single battle during the first World War. The inference to be drawn may not be pleasant, but it is plain. The French just didn't fight as they did a generation ago. Granting that the French armies were sadly deficient in modern armament, it is now apparent that this deficiency may not have been so serious as lack of morale among the soldiers. At no time did the French show that remarkable will to win that featured the magnificent efforts of their armies in 1914-18. It is entirely possible that the long years of intensive German propaganda concentrated on France by Berlin may have sapped the morale of the French people. If this is the case, then we on this side of the Atlantic should pay more attention to the German statement that propaganda is the most powerful weapon in the Nazi armory. We must be on our guard against a result similar to that in France from the admitted use being made by the Germans of that weapon in this country at the present time.

Body of Miss Smith Found

The body of Miss Leonora Smith, 19 year old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. A. W. L. Smith, of Clementsport, was found floating in the water about 5.45 Sunday morning, some 20 feet from shore, near the Life Saving Station, at Bay View, just inside the Digby Gut.

The discovery of the body was made by two Victoria Beach fishermen, John Taylor and his son, Lloyd, who were returning from a pollock fishing trip. They were rowing along the Digby County shore of the Annapolis Basin, when they sighted the body. Victoria Beach is on the Annapolis County shore, just opposite Bay View.

Miss Smith lost her life in a canoeing accident, thought to have occurred near Morse's Point, near Clementsport, on the night of June 30. The scene of the accident is supposed to have been near the Point, because of a discovery of a blanket from the canoe a few days afterward. The couple were also seen in nearby Morse's Cove, about 8.00 o'clock that evening. A watch found on the body of Eric W. Black, of Truro, also a victim of the accident, was stopped at 8.20.

Black's body was found caught in the centre thwart of the overturned canoe on the morning of July 1. He was a week end guest at the Clementsport rectory, and had gone canoeing with Miss Smith that evening.

Since the tragedy an intensive search has been maintained for the recovery of the body. The location where the remains were found, is several miles from the supposed scene of the accident.

What Lo-Yu Wrote

As long ago as 780 A. D., Lo-Yu, the famous Chinese author, wrote that "Tea tempers the spirits, harmonises the mind, dispels lassitude and relieves fatigue; awakens thought and prevents drowsiness, lightens and refreshes the body and clears the perceptive faculties."

The people of the Maritimes are among the greatest tea drinking people in the world. Certainly there is no part of the world where the people are better judges of tea. Maritimers are fortunate, too, in being able to get an article like Morse's Standard Tea at the reasonable price of 65 cents a pound. This tea has body and flavour, both qualities that characterize good tea. Sixty-five cents a pound is a low price for tea of this quality, which is evident when you consider the extra war tax and the high cost of freights and war risk insurance. So, profiting by the philosophy of Lo-Yu, the Maritime tea drinkers can profit in his purse also by using the good old family tea of the Maritimes—Morse's Standard Tea.

CANADA'S FUTURE

Dominion Visualizes No Union With U. S., in Event Empire Is Beaten

(By Charles P. Stewart)

Canadian newspapermen have been quite numerous in Washington, of late. Their papers and associations have been sending them in sizeable crowds to feel out Yankee opinion in connection with the war's application to their dominion. The National Press Club has entertained a goodly delegation of them. Naturally they talk with us freely. And of course they are highly intelligent and informative.

Outstandingly they want this understood: Canada is a country, all by itself.

They admit that it's British, but it isn't English—not by a darned sight. It went into the war as per a declaration absolutely of its own. If the English are licked, that won't mean that Canada is. If licked at all, it will have to be licked independently.

These Canucks want that distinctly understood. Suppose England's vanquished, which heaven forbid—nevertheless Canada won't be left cut on a limb. Canada still will be Canada, just as much as the United States will continue to be the United States.

If England's Beaten

Assume, for the sake of argument England capitulates. I think our Yankee theory is that Canada simply will gravitate into the United States. Far be it from the Canadians to think anything of the kind. They say they will welcome and will expect a close alliance with Uncle Sam. It will be political and economic. It will be the compactest kind of a union—but a union with a lower case "u".

But Canada's provinces won't be our states, for all that. Canada will be a separate national entity.

I've asked these birds, "What if the British fleet has to come over to Halifax? What will be your attitude?"

"Oh," the answer is "we'll welcome them as allies and help them all we can—but we're an independent sovereignty."

Overseas?

Now, here's another proposition:

Suppose John Bull does blow up as an empire.

Nevertheless, Canada will be tolerably well taken care of as a member of the New World family. It will belong to the Pan-American group, whether or no. The United States won't be in a position to permit it to be jumped on from anywhere. Maybe it will be only our ally—not an integral part of us. All the same, it will be that, in effect.

But if today's central Britain goes floozy, what about Australia and New Zealand?

"You mean," answered one of my Canadian acquaintances, "a grab by Japan?"

"Well, it doubtless will be interesting to us, as the Pacific situation is to us and to the United States today. Regardless of Australia, you Yankees don't want to see the Japs gobble the Dutch East Indies right now. You won't want to see any such grabbing done later, including Australia. Neither will we Canadians, as your partners, in some prospective later-on. We will be together on that issue no doubt, if Canada and the U. S. A. are hooked up, as allies—to the point of being almost the same thing."

Australia Tough

"But remember, brothers is what we'll be—not one and the same."

"And Australia," he added, "will be pretty hard for the Japs to grab. Those boys are tough."

"Don't forget," supplemented my Canadian friend, "that we don't like the Japs any better than you do."

"We've got a Pacific Coast, too, and a trade with the orient and all that."

"Oh," he concluded, "we're one and the same bunch, but remember—we're not going to become part of the United States, in the same sense as Maine or Oregon or Indiana."

Clam chowder may taste better if you don't use clams. Sea cucumbers, a marine growth found attached to rocks, is the substitute. Dr. Thomas G. Research at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, has developed a new use for apples, one that might reach sizeable proportions. Whole apples are ground into a pulp and mixed with skim milk to get a drink that has been named apple-milk. Cost of the mixture, including labor and packaging, is estimated to be about one cent a pound.

First visit to Yarmouth since being reconditioned at Meteghan, the motor vessel, Transport No. 2, Capt. Manfred (Mat) Burnham, of Digby, reached that port recently from New York with 283 tons of hard coal consigned to L. E. Baker & Co., and after finishing discharge sailed for Gagetown, N. B., to load 1500 poles for delivery at New York. The coal was loaded at Hoboken, N. J., and on the passage to Yarmouth moderate winds and much fog were encountered. At Meteghan a big job was done on the ship, that of raising the deck 3 feet, and since then two loads of lumber and laths have been taken to New York from Chipman, N. B. On the first trip lumber was carried, and on the second one 600,000 laths and 111,000 feet of lumber were aboard the boat.

Hides, Leather Exports Controlled.

$61,000 GIFT TO WAR EFFORT

The Finance Department has received a single donation of $61,000—the sum by which the donor's income war tax was reduced after deductions for contributions to charitable purposes were allowed. It came from a "Canadian of substantial means, who wishes to remain anonymous."

Makes Appeal

J. W. GILLESPIE

Above is shown Mr. J. W. Gillespie, Maritime Field Secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, who has been in town in connection with the tag day on Saturday.

In an interview Mr. Gillespie stated that more than two hundred Canadian soldiers were blinded in the last Great War. At that time our government discovered there was no organization in Canada prepared to give these unfortunate men the training necessary to enable them to take up their lives anew. It was as a result of the interest thus created in blindness that the Canadian National Institute for the Blind came into being in 1918.

Today, the Institute has 11,992 sightless people registered, most of whom are being served by it in one capacity or another. In the three Maritime Provinces, 1,980 blind people are registered, of whom 51 are natives of Digby town or county.

The C. N. I. B. provides eye service and trains those who lose their sight after having passed school age, to read and write Braille, to use the typewriter, to do their share in the work of their homes, to make various types of handicrafts, and in short, to resume a normal life in their community.

But, said Mr. Gillespie, the Institute does not stop at that. As far as possible they endeavor to give employment to capable blind workmen and to find opportunities for them to operate news stands, canteens, cafeterias, etc.

Your most generous support is now asked that this great humanitarian work may be carried on. Your contribution will help them "from idleness and despair to light and opportunity." Zelma Rebekah Lodge will be in charge of the drive on Saturday.

Consideration Shown Those Who Take Child Guests

The Minister of Finance has announced that it is proposed to amend the Income War Tax law to provide exemptions, to the amount of $400, for children from the war zones brought to Canada under arrangement through the Government as guests in Canadian homes for the duration of the war.

Exemptions granted for charitable donations were also clarified by Mr. Hilsley in the course of discussions in the House of Commons. Five well-known national organizations, the Canadian Red Cross Society Fund, the Canadian Legion War Services Fund, the Canadian Y. M. C. A. War Services Fund, the Salvation Army Red Shield War Services Fund and the Knights of Columbus Canadian Army Hut Fund, are given special consideration under the Act. Gifts to any of these organizations are allowed as exemptions up to fifty per cent of the donor's income.

On donations to other charitable enterprises deductions are allowed up to ten per cent of income.

Laurie Ells New Manager D. A. R.

Laurie Ells has been appointed manager of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, with headquarters at Kentville, according to an announcement made in Toronto, Tuesday, by H. J. Humphrey, Vice President and General Manager, Eastern Lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, and Vice President Dominion Atlantic Railway. Mr. Ells, who has been Superintendent of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, will, in his new position, have immediate jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to the operation of that Railway.

Mr. Ells' promotion marks another forward step in a life devoted entirely to Railway Service in the Province of Nova Scotia. He entered the service of the Dominion Atlantic Railway on December 19, 1910, as Clerk, in the passenger department at Kentville, and was promoted through successive stages to the post of Chief Clerk in that department, which position he attained on December 1, 1915. Mr. Ells joined the operating department as a train-master on January 15, 1919, and became Superintendent in the operating department at Kentville, on May 1, 1924. A Kentville boy, educated in Kings County Academy, Mr. Ells has been particularly prominent in civic and community work and has been President of Rotary in Kentville, President of the Curling Club and has served on many committees engaged in works for the betterment of the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia.

Valuable Gifts Accepted.

Acting on behalf of the Government, Hon. C. D. Howe has announced the acceptance of two yachts, the Nautilus and the Cleopatra, placed at the disposal of the government by Basil D. Hobbs, of Montreal, and Mrs. T. G. Blackstock, of Toronto, respectively. A valuable radio telephone set and other electrical equipment donated by C. A. Gentles, was also accepted for use by the Royal Canadian Navy.

SEVEN MILLION TONS OF NEW SHIPPING

Cheaper freight charges to the Empire producer are now resulting from the control by the Allies of some 3,300 ships of 7,000,000 tons which have become available to Great Britain and France by the invasion of Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium.

Some of these were already being used by the Allies but only at expensive freight rates. Now that all these former neutrals have come within the total blockade, the Allies control between 50 and 75 per cent of the world's merchant fleet and are therefore in a position to dictate freight values.

The result is that the small remaining amount of neutral tonnage has had to fall into line and there is a heavy decline in controlled shipping freights.

Apart altogether from new tonnage, war wastage of British shipping is being more than made up by the capture of enemy ships, the chartering of neutrals, and new construction.

The total effect is that the Allied shipping control has been able to pass on to the Empire producer the benefit of cheaper freight charges on his goods.

The common jury is the only body of people engaging in a Governmental activity which is required by law to settle a question by a unanimous vote.

Dillon - O'Brien

The marriage of Archibald J. Dillon, popular merchant of this town, to Ina Leola O'Brien, a former member of the Digby school staff, and daughter of the late Everett and Mrs. O'Brien, of Noel, Hants County, took place in the United Church at that place on Tuesday afternoon. The officiating minister was Rev. Dr. T. W. Hodgson, pastor of the Digby United Church, assisted by Rev. T. R. Gudge. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Malcolm, wearing a dress of pale blue Swiss organza and carrying a shower bouquet of ophelia and briar cliff roses and lily of the valley. The wedding march was played by her sister, Miss Freda O'Brien, and John Sprott, of Truro, rendered a solo. The ushers were Jeff Dillon and Reginald O'Brien. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. The happy couple left on a short motor trip. Mrs. Dillon's travelling dress was a French model ensemble of blue and white with navy accessories.

According to Lt.-Col. Wilfrid Bovey, national chairman of the educational division of the Canadian Legion War Services, present plans indicate that correspondence courses in technical, vocational, elementary, high school and academic subjects will be available for troops in training in Canada in early autumn.

Burial Service Was Impressive

The full Church of England burial service with all its impressiveness and simplicity was used at the graveside in the church yard of Old St. Edward's Church, Clementsport, Monday morning, when hundreds of deeply touched mourners from all over the countryside paid a heartfelt last tribute to the memory of Miss Lenora Smith, much beloved 19 year old daughter of Rev. Rural Dean and Mrs. A. W. L. Smith, St. Clement's Rectory. His Grace the Archbishop of Nova Scotia, Most Rev. John MacKinlay, D. D., a close personal friend of the victim's father, conducted the service in the old Cemetery of Historic St. Edward's Church. A huge array of floral tributes also testified to the high regard in which the deceased, whose passing cast a pall of gloom over the whole community, was held. His Grace was assisted by Rev. F. B. Gaskill, rector of Trinity Church, Digby. All clergy of the Deanery of Annapolis were present.

The sentences were read by the Archbishop, Rev. T. R. B. Anderson, Middleton, read the Psalm, and Canon Ernest Underwood, Bridgetown, the Lesson. His Grace gave the address, in which he paid fitting tribute to the deceased and uttered consoling words to the grief stricken family. He also read the committal service. The final Prayer was given by Rev. E. B. Gabriel, Annapolis Royal.

Other vested clergy from the deanery were: Rev. Carl Holm, Round Hill, and Rev. Stanley Hart, Weymouth. Visiting clergy were: Rev. F. E. Ellis, Halifax, Diocesan Missioner; and Rev. Dr. Simpson, of the New York Theological Seminary.

Music was by the combined choirs, St. Clement's Church, Clementsport, and Trinity Digby, with Mrs. W. H. Spurr, Deep Brook, organist. Among the mourners were Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Black, Truro, parents of Eric Black, Miss Smith's canoeing companion, who also lost his life on the night of the tragedy.

Commodities for Armed Forces.

Some indication of the extent of the purchases necessary to maintain the armed forces is revealed in figures showing that up to June 1, some four million units of commodities, including blankets, boots, braces, housewives, shirts, socks, blouses and trousers, were ordered by the Department of Munitions and Supply and delivered to Army, Navy and Air Force stores.

Lost continents have been supposed to exist in the mid-Atlantic and the Indian ocean, and if every atoll indicates the position of a sunken peak, a vast area of the Pacific must according to some, have been once occupied by mountain ranges.

Visitor Has Unusual Experience

Among prominent visitors at Silver Glades, Bay View, is William R. Mooney, president of the Bryn Mawr Trust Co., Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. Mr. Mooney is also a trustee of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church, a member of the Board of Villa Nova College, and Past Master of Phila Lodge, A. F. & A. M.

The above "personal item" was given us by L. T. Ryder, well known summer resident of Bay View, who brought Mr. Mooney to our office, told us

Mr. Mooney had had a most unusual experience on July 19, and had us "interview" him regarding his new role of "midwife".

It seems Mr. Mooney is very fond of animals, and has a special liking for cats. On the date mentioned, he picked up the cat at the hotel, stroked it for awhile, then remarked: "It won't be long now, will it kitty?"

He had no more than uttered the words before kitty presented him with a litter-on his lap. Mr. Mooney says there was a nurse registered at the hotel, but she didn't show up when needed, so he officiated

According to Canadian Naval Headquarters, it is possible some officers of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve now in England, at the disposal of the British Admiralty, may be assigned to French Warships taken over by the Royal Navy. These officers were recently commended for "keenness and bearing".

More Men Required For Active Service

Canada's immediate demands for men for the Active Service forces were detailed by Ministers, very recently. Both in the House of Commons and by radio Minister of National Defence Ralston said there was room for nearly 40,000 more men in the C.A.S.F. Without fixing any date whatever, he said a large body of troops would be proceeding overseas shortly. A substantial part of the Second Division is now on duty outside Canada and the disposition of the remainder less a proportion needed in Canada at the present time, was a matter of deliberation among the War Committee of the cabinet. There were something like 76,000 men enlisted in Canada and many were required to perform a variety of duties demanding varied training, such as coastal defence, guards of internment camps and vulnerable points, and the tactical defence of Canada. Detachments were required to go to the outposts of this continent or the outposts of the Empire to perform special duties.

Men who do not want to enlist in the Canadian Active Service Force at the moment, would have an opportunity of enlisting in the non-permanent active militia and putting in two weeks' training at headquarters and two in camp. Those who did not desire to enlist in either of these would be called out for training in connection with the general mobilisation. The first quotas of these would be called out in six weeks' time.

Resulting from the inability of Great Britain now to supply the heavy equipments necessary for Canadian Active Service Force units Canada was doing everything possible to supply her own. If a second division was despatched overseas Canada expected to procure overseas a good deal of the heavy equipment. The motor transport for the second division was over there now. The Department expected to have Bren gun carriers and a little later on to be able to send them over in replacement of those to be supplied by the United Kingdom in the first instance.

With regard to uniforms, sergeants were coming in at the rate of 14,000 per week, summer dress at the rate of 21,000 per week. These amounts would be accelerated substantially within the next two or three weeks.

As to sea defences the Prime Minister told the House, four Canadian destroyers were sent across the ocean at the request of the British Government. Steps taken to meet the weakening of our own defence force as a consequence of this, were taken. What these steps were the Prime Minister left to be detailed by the Defence forces themselves at such time and in such manner as appeared advisable.

French Warships Held in Martinique

British naval units carrying out the admiralty's announced intention of preventing any French warships from reaching German or Italian hands, have reportedly bottled up the aircraft carrier "Bearn" and the cruiser "Jeanne D'Arc" in the harbor of Martinique, French-owned island in the West Indies. The move involves a touchy point since the area is well within the "safety zone" proclaimed by the United States and South American nations. The "Bearn", (centre), is said to be loaded with American-built airplanes and the "Jeanne D'Arc" reportedly carries many millions of dollars in gold.

The Royal Canadian Air Force

Air Gunners and Air Observers, unsung heroes of the first great war, have come into their own in the modern style of sky fighting. A Royal Canadian Air Force crew works with all the close co-ordination of a football team in this new war.

The gunners and observers share the pages of Air Force gallantry along with the pilots. It is "all for one and one for all," since the pilot of today cannot carry out his mission without the aid of his gunners for protection and wireless communication and his observers for navigation, bombing, photography and observation.

The Royal Air Force innovation of a multiple-gun power turret mounted in an aeroplane has enabled keen-eyed air gunners of the Empire air forces to take deadly toll of enemy aircraft with slashing broadsides of machine-gun fire like a salvo from a battleship's heavy guns.

The four-gun turrets make Britain's latest fighters and bombers literally battleships of the air. Just as the R.A.F. was first to arm single seat fighters with a devastating volume of fire from eight machine guns mounted in the wing, the power turrets now provide the larger planes with a deadlier weapon than their antagonists.

The air gunner is of tremendous importance in this war. Bombing and reconnaissance aircraft carrying the Empire's insignia on their wings make a formidable foe, as tremendous German air losses in recent massed fighting over France indisputably proved.

The Boulton and Paul Defiant, newest two-seater fighter, is essentially an aeroplane for the gunner. The shooting is left to the gunner enclosed in the power turret just behind the pilot's seat. Four machine guns each capable of a rate of 1,200 rounds a minute poke from the turret, which revolves automatically at the touch of a control. He can fire forward, upward, downward on each side, and sweep a hail of nickel-jacketed death at the rate of 80 bullets a second at any plane crossing the tail of his own machine. As the line of fire crosses his own rudder and tail fins, the guns cease fire automatically, resuming their chatter when safely past the tail assembly.

Defiants, similar in appearance to the single seater Spitfires, mixed with spitfire formations during the fierce air fighting over Dunkirk. Swarms of German fighters dove at the "Spitfire" from the rear in anticipation of easy victory, but met a stinging fire from the Defiant's four-gun turrets while the real spitfires, secure as defence behind, opened up with their eight wing guns at anything that lay in front of the mixed formation. One squadron of 12 Defiants knocked down 50 German planes in two days without losing one of their own number.

Big British Bombers and flying boats mount power turrets in their noses, as "blisters" on the top of the fuselage, and as a sting in the tail. Their gunners, battling against numerical superiority of the enemy, have made scores easily comparable to the individual tallies of the fighter pilots in Hurricane and Spitfires.

But gunners, like air observers, have more than one job to do in the modern air force. The aircraft's crew must function with the team work and precision of a star formation flying squadron at a peacetime air display.

Gunners are wireless operators, too. By their radio they keep in touch with ground control stations and with other planes in the formation. While war planes keep radios silent as much as possible to avoid detection, once the enemy is sighted, the radio crackles orders. The voice of the formation commander issues movement orders just as a naval commander's marshals his vessels into battle array.

On more prosaic missions of co-operating with army and navy, the wireless operator relays to artillery batteries and ground commanders what those in his plane can see, spotting artillery fire and revealing movements of enemy forces, operators working with the fleet or on convoy duty relay information of an enemy submarine or other raider sighted.

Air observers become air navigators and air bombers when their trained eyes are not sweeping the world below, sketching maps or taking aerial photographs. As navigators, it is their responsibility to lay the course through fog and rain or blackness of night from the home base to the objective, and, once there, to lead the crew safely home again. They are also skilled in using the complex electric bombsight, lying prone with an eye glued to the bombsight aiming through a glass window in the floor. A finger touch on a button close at hand, opens the bomb ports, sending the missiles plunging to the target.

Arduous training goes into the making of air gunners and observers. Thousands of physically fit young men aged from 18 to 32 will receive such training under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada.

The prospective air gunners and observers report to a training depot, where they receive uniforms and kit, learn to salute and drill for two weeks or so. The next step is four weeks in an initial training school for a more formal introduction to Air Force life.

They next go to specialized schools. Air observers proceed to one of 10 air observer schools for 12 weeks of intensive study of the intricacies of air navigation, reconnaissance

Fine Record of Egg Grading Stations

Nova Scotia has the reputation now, backed up by statistics, of being one of the highest-record provinces in Canada with respect to quality of eggs marketed. In fact, according to figures supplied from Ottawa, and announced some weeks ago, this province is third among all provinces in average percentage of Grade A eggs marketed, being a close second to Ontario.

Much of this result is, of course, due to the active educational and promotional campaign carried on by provincial and federal authorities among poultry producers for flock improvement and the use of only the best stock for hatching eggs and the purchase of chicks through approved hatcheries. However, much is also due to the effective organization for centralized selling of eggs on the grading system that have been built up in recent years.

Figures compiled by J. F. Lagerty, senior poultry inspector for Nova Scotia for the Federal Government, show that a very high percentage of Grade A eggs is marketed from various well-managed egg grading stations. It is found, for instance, that the co-operative egg grading station at New Germany, opened last year in charge of a trained grader and handling much of the volume of eggs in that territory, had a percentage of 96.6 of Grade A eggs in a total of 35,061 dozen eggs handled between Nov. 1, 1939 and June 30, 1940. This is probably one of the highest percentages of top grade eggs produced anywhere in the Dominion.

The co-operative at Scotsburn showed a percentage of 93.1 of Grade A eggs among representative producers. The Micmac egg exchange at Port Williams, operated by C. and M. Ellis, reports a percentage of 95.1 per cent Grade A eggs in over 263,000 dozen handled. On the other hand, an analysis of eggs received from country stores throughout the province on an ungraded basis, shows that when these eggs were graded, a much lower percentage of Grade A's were found. One firm in Halifax, handling a large volume of eggs from such sources showed a percentage of only 41.5 of Grade A eggs.

Use of high class poultry care and management of the flock along proper lines, to keep them healthy and producing properly, and marketing through some properly organized and properly handled central marketing agency of a co-operative nature, all are the contributing factors in building up such records, state officials. Centralized marketing is just as important, they state, as any other factor.

U. S. Potato and Apple Crop Of interest to Nova Scotia potato growers, latest information in the hands of the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture indicates a heavier yield of potatoes in the United States this season, particularly in those states which come into competition with potato growers in the Maritime Provinces.

Reports of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, based on the conditions of the main work and photography. Then follow six weeks of bombing and gunnery school, of which there are 10, and then a course of four weeks at one of the two air navigation schools for advanced studies in that subject. The total course for an air observer takes 26 weeks, shortest of all air crewman.

The future air gunners are posted to one of the four wireless schools for 24 weeks of radio work, both code and voice. They get a more intimate knowledge of air marksmanship and bomb dropping at the bombing and gunnery schools, a course of four weeks in their case, before they proceed to join the observers and pilots in the pool to await a draft to call them for overseas service.

crop and reported yields of early potatoes as at July 1, estimate the total potato production for the U. S. for this year at 371,000,000 bushels, compared with 364,000,000 bushels last year and with the ten-year average of 366,949,000 bushels. The acreage in potatoes is two per cent higher than last year, but is six per cent lower than the ten-year average.

In the three eastern states, New York, Maine, Pennsylvania, estimates are for an increase of 6,500,000 bushels in the yield this year over last year.

Weather conditions in the U. S. potato areas have not been as favorable as might be. In New England cool weather has retarded growth, and heavy showers in Aroostook County, Maine, have made the soil too wet for good growth.

Of interest also is the condition of the apple crop coming along in the U. S. Reports indicate, at July 1, that conditions in large apple producing eastern states are not as good as at the same time last year. In Massachusetts conditions were reported only 64 per cent normal compared with 84 per cent in June, 1939, and in New York state only 58 per cent compared with 85 per cent. In the Virginias also there has been a lowering in the condition of the crop since first reports this season.

First Sheep Club Show

The sheep club at Millbrook, Pictou County, held its first sheep club show on July 8, at the farm of John Nelson. C. E. Bouden, provincial animal husbandman, gave a demonstration on sheep judging, after which club members were given an opportunity to judge. P. O. VanSickle, of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, gave an interesting talk on lamb grading. Club lambs were judged by Mr. Bouden.

Changed Ideas About His Cow

She may be the farmer's favorite cow, but only tests and records will show whether she deserves the position. One farmer in Inverness County found out recently that the cow he thought was the best cow was not really deserving of the honor. He discovered a dairy herd improvement association and having proper records kept of the production of his herd. B. C. Knight, livestock promoter in charge of D. H. I. work in that territory, reports that this particular farmer discovered through the records kept that the cow he had always looked upon as the best, was producing only 189 lbs. of butterfat in the year. Through the Dairy herd improvement association work carried on under the auspices of the Nova Scotia department of agriculture, dairy farmers have the opportunity of joining one of these associations and not only having proper records kept of their herds, but of having special instruction and advice on herd management which will help them to weed out poor producers and handle the good producers in such a way as to increase their production. Farmers in his territory, reports Mr. Knight, have remarked that they have benefited immensely from this dairy herd improvement work.

Ambulance Fund of W. I. Grows

Since the recent announcement that an ambulance would be donated by the Women's Institutes of Nova Scotia to the Red Cross, contributions have been pouring into the office of the superintendent of institutes, Miss Helen Macdougall, at Truro. The response to the appeal has been whole-hearted and a large part of the required amount has already been raised, although a considerable sum is still required to complete the project, reports Miss Macdougall. Many methods have been used by the institutes in raising funds, strawberry festivals being the order just now. One woman at Grand Pré raised a considerable sum by selling small bouquets of flowers from her garden, neatly done up, to tourists who frequent her neighborhood in considerable numbers. The contributions to the fund are made up almost entirely of small sums — dimes and quarters and so forth.

Girls' Short Courses Well Attended

Good attendance and intense interest in the work characterised the two short courses in home training and allied subjects, now being conducted for young women at Public Head in Yarmouth County, and Pictou town, under the auspices of the home economics division of the Nova Scotia department of agriculture. At Pictou 22 young women are taking the course, while at Public Head 35 young women are attending. Instruct Rural Teachers in Agriculture

Definite instruction in agricultural subjects is being given this month in a special course for rural teachers, now in progress at the agricultural college at Truro, under the joint auspices of the Nova Scotia departments of education and agriculture. The course is in charge of L. A. DeWolfe, director of rural education, and some 60 selected rural teachers are attending from various parts of the province. During the past week special instruction in horticulture was given during the morning sessions of Mr. DeWolfe and Chas. M. Collins, provincial horticulturist. Other agricultural subjects will be taken up this week and following weeks by other members of the department of agriculture staff. The Canadian Red Cross Society Fund, the Canadian Legion War Services Fund, the Canadian Y. M. C. A. War Services Fund, the Salvation Army Red Shield War Services Fund and the Knights of Columbus Canadian Army Huts Fund, are given special consideration under the Act. Gifts to any of these organizations are allowed as exemptions up to fifty per cent of the donor's income. On donations to other charitable enterprises deductions are allowed up to ten per cent of income.

About This and That

Some persons seem to be born trouble-makers. And that's about all they accomplish, because trouble is usually produced by those who don't produce anything else. That's the poorest investment one can make of any talent he may have.

The man worth while is the one who tries instead of cries, who dodges neither work nor responsibility. He is the man who makes it his business to get his shoulder under a burden, instead of standing to one side and giving advice.

Too often in such distressing times as these there are those who would blame all the trouble of the world on certain individuals. Recently Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler quoted a European statesman, who asserted that all the troubles of the present day are being caused by not more than 1,500 men. Many will immediately decide that to rid the world of this group would simultaneously rid it of all existing evils. It is absurd to believe this. If these men were not doing these things others would be. Historians tell us that the Hitlers, Napoleons, and Caesars of the world have been products of their times rather than having shaped the times by their ambitious activities. We should take this sane view of the matter. But human nature seems to require some object to blame for every unpleasant situation.

It seems to be the vogue to howl long and loudly about one's rights. On all sides we hear people acclaim their right to a job, right to an education, right to think what they please, say what they please, and do what they please. And, above all, they treasure the right to make all their associates miserable by continually harping on the possibility that someone may be trying to take away some of their rights. But, strangely, many of these people forget that they have duties as well as rights—duties to their families, their fellowmen, their government, and their God. They fail to see that it is our duty to strive to pass to the next generation a cleaner more secure world than was given to us. Unless we start thinking more about our duties and less about our rights, we will hand to our successors a heritage that is definitely "in the red."

There is a monotonous way of living as there is a thrilling way of living. The monotonous way produces monotonous results. It is humdrum. It is a bore. It is laborious. It lacks zest, color, and animation. This is true because life demands new ways, new methods, marching and counter-marching, exploring from the known to the unknown. Life, a movement, calls for action and constant adaption to new conditions. The compensations from that kind of living are many. The human mind tires in too much repetition. A change of style is as welcome as the first glimpse of blue sky after many days of rain. To live, to a certain extent, by rote and routine is inevitable. Some tasks must be discharged as mere routine work according to fixed methods and principles. But we can ever change ourselves and train ourselves to know that there is always an opportunity to improve. Mere adoption of a change of technique may mean growth and improvement. That is the difference between routine work and work that calls for original thinking; the difference between work and play, between adventure's thrills and boredom, between being a master or a slave. Plenty of people work well when the work is laid-out for them, when they are coached, groomed, and trained in every move. But their work is mechanical and unpleasing. Those people are in a rut, and they stay there, wearying themselves and others. Therefore, they do not grow.

"God's Acres" Give Good Yield To Finance Repairs to Church

Faced with the necessity of making improvements and repairs on church buildings, congregations in the small community of Wenona, Ill., are successfully meeting the problem on a pay-as-you-go basis with funds derived from what they call "God's Acres."

With the approach of its fiftieth anniversary, in 1942, the Bethany Lutheran Church in Wenona cast about for a way to finance repairs and redecorations. The solution arrived through the mail.

One of the members received a copy of a weekly agricultural magazine which told of a method being employed by Iowa churches to raise money.

Each farmer was asked to plant one acre of corn on his farm. Returns from the acre, to be known as "God's Acre," were to be given to the church. A member suggested trying the method, and it was put in to practice on a small farm of 32 acres, set apart for the church by the congregation. Seed corn salesmen in the congregation obtained high quality corn for all who wished to plant "an acre for God."

Members who didn't farm found other means of providing their acre. One of the town families gave the rent from an apartment; a school teacher turned over the interest on some bonds.

Total yield from the acres for this one church was 2,000 bushels. Several farmers reported that "God's Acres" yielded more corn than any other single acres on their farms.

The success of the effort has induced other congregations to try it.

348 Hours to Become Observer

The number of hours necessary for the training of one R. C. A. F. observer illustrates the highly specialized nature of modern air force instruction. The student is confronted with following schedule for academic studies: Dead Reckoning, 102 hours; Compasses, 35 hours; Instruments, 15 hours; Maps and Charts, 18 hours; Mathematics, 22 hours; Direction Finding Wireless Telegraphy, 10 hours; Photography, 20 hours; Reconnaissance, 15 hours; Flying Exercises, 50 hours; Air Analysis, 19 hours; Meteorology, 22 hours; Signals, 20 hours.

Laws against driving too slowly are in effect in twelve states.

Observer Is Versatile Fellow

The modern air observer is one of the most highly trained men in the Royal Canadian Air Force. He is a meteorologist, a compass and instrument expert, a photographer, and an analyst, a signaller, a score of other things. He is trained to spot, perhaps miles below him, the unusual or suspicious which may hide enemy presence. He has all the knowledge of a pilot, plus the matters of his distinctive, important field.

Out in Montana the United Congregational church, in Butte holds Sunday as a day to be devoted to recreation. Thus all services, Sunday school and religious rites, are postponed to Wednesday. The change was made at the vote of the congregation for the third consecutive year.

Ladderless Stockings Are One Product of New British Raw Material

A new raw material which is so versatile that it can replace textile fibres, gut, and hogs' bristles is to be made on a large scale in Britain. A factory is being built for producing yarns and is expected to be in production by the end of the year.

The material is called nylon, a generic term covering the whole family of synthetic compounds within its range. It can be produced in filaments as fine as a spider's web, from which yarns can be spun, or it can appear as sheets, rods, or stiff bristles for brushes.

As a yarn, it is claimed to be stronger and more elastic than any textile fabric, including silk. Women's stockings, sewing thread and underclothes of nylon are already arousing popular interest in America. The stockings rival real silk rather than rayon, since they compare in fineness and elasticity and are sold in a comparable price range; but having threads which break less easily than silk of the same weight, they are not so likely to "ladder."

In the form of bristles, nylon is now on the market in Britain for toothbrushes, one of its great advantages being that the bristles do not fracture like hogs' bristles, and having smooth surfaces absorb only one-fifth of the moisture of "real" bristles, so that they do not become soggy or dirty in use.

British Tried 693 Times Before Producing Successful Cattle Cure

After 693 experiments, British chemists have triumphed in their search for a drug to mitigate the diseases caused to cattle by streptococcal infection.

Already the drug is becoming known in the Argentine, where there are huge cattle raising interests, and breeders in Empire countries can assert with pride that this big advance in veterinary knowledge is an all-British effort.

To commemorate the number of experiments, the drug is now known officially as M and B 693, the initials referring to the firm in whose laboratories near London the drug was perfected.

It is based on a scientific foundation laid as long ago as 1782 by Lord Dundonald, the first patentee of tar extracted from coal by distillation, and the resultant discovery of the germicidal powers of dyes made from coal tar. From this the chemists have now succeeded in securing a sulphamide drug with dramatic curative properties for animal medicine.

For centuries cattle raisers the world over have borne the curse of such devastating diseases as bovine mastitis, equine pneumonia and other diseases due to streptococcal infection. Now the laboratory work has made it plain that the new British drug may ultimately rid the animal world of its chief disease enemies.

The drug's action on equine streptococcal infections has already produced very impressive results; further work on cases of contagious abortion has raised high hopes of yet another victory for British science.

Sharks' fins are a Chinese delicacy and are supposed to have strengthening and tonic qualities.

Bear Names Canadian Flowers

Warships being built in Canada for the Royal Navy will bear the names of Canadian wild flowers, according to a decision of the Board of the Admiralty. This will differentiate Canadian-built ships from those constructed in Britain, inviting comparisons that will be welcomed by Canadian shipyards anxious to show what they can do.

During the past week 204,400 items of personal equipment for the armed forces of Canada were delivered. Production has been stepped up to keep pace with the expansion of the forces, according to Hon. Accommodate 150,000 Next Winter

Basing his estimates on the rate of building to date, Hon. J. L. Ralston stated in the House of Commons that hutment accommodation could be ready for 150,000 men by next winter. On August 1st Canada has accommodation for 51,500 men, besides other existing winter accommodation for 25,000 and coast garrisons for 8,000.

Giant Flying Boats of R. C. A. F. Keep Constant Vigil Off Canadian Coast

Day after day, in fair weather and foul, giant Stranraer flying boats of the R.C.A.F. such as the one, (upper right), patrol the vast stretches of ocean on Canada's eastern coast. Flying hundreds of miles out to sea, they are the eyes of not only the coastal defences, but also of the vital convoys they help to shepherd through Canadian waters. Just like any other ocean-going craft, the Stranraer has its wireless cabin and "Sparks" is shown at his key, (upper left), as he keeps in touch with the home base while the giant flying boat searches the ocean for hostile craft. The navigator's job is a highly important one as the R.C.A.F. boats fly over the trackless ocean where dense fogs roll in and out with treacherous swiftness. Charting the course of his flying boat is this navigating officer, (lower left). In the course of long patrols, a spot of tea is always welcome, and an airman is shown, (lower right), making a pot of tea on the compact stove of a Stranraer, while flying high above the Atlantic.

MORE CIGARETTES

Cigarettes released for consumption in Canada during May, 1940, totalled 103,300,000 compared with 125,900,000 in May of last year, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. That figures at about 80 cigarettes for every man, woman and child in the Dominion for the month of May alone. Quite a figure!

A new Bristol Bolingbroke twin-engined bomber, a $100,000 gift of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, was presented to the Royal Canadian Air Force recently. His Excellency, the Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, and Princess Alice were present at the Ottawa Air Station for the Presentation. The ship, built in Montreal, carries a crew of three, pilot, observer and gunner, and has a top speed of 295 miles per hour when fully loaded.

Entertainment World Now in Midst of Annual Trek—Circuses and Fairs Usually Take in Money Legitimately, but Carnivals Use Every Means, Crooked or Fair, to Bring in Cash—"Shill" Wins Most of the Time and "Monkey" Occasionally.

By Frank E. Borroughs, in Grit

The entertainment world is now in the midst of its annual trek to the small towns and cities of North America.

The circuses have been hitting the trail for several weeks now, displaying animals, acrobats and assorted acts to pleasure seekers. They will be followed by carnivals and county fairs, with the carnivals showing more small towns than any of the three.

Unlike the circus and the fair, the carnival is brought to the community to raise funds for a worthy cause. It raises the money, all right, but takes away in most cases four or five times the amount it turns over to the cause.

This is the way the carnival system works. The fast-stepping agent of a carnival company hunts up a town where, for example, the volunteer fire company needs some new

Penchants Decide Air Force Vocations

No man entering the R. C. A. F. knows what he will become. Special qualifications may indicate that he is best fitted to be a pilot, a wireless operator or any of the varied specialists of a modern air force, but the Force makes the decision. The Columbia singing star, who is seen here at the famous open-air sulphur pool at the Banff Springs Hotel, traveled through Canada on her way east to St. Louis where she was to start a month with the famous "Munro" Operas. She had just completed an engagement with John Chark. Thomas and the Los Angeles Light Opera.

Legion Rally

During recent meetings held by Branches of the Canadian Legion within this zone, it has been decided to hold a general rally of ex-service men on August 14th, at "Harbour View House" Smith's Cove. Commanded by S. E. Cochrane, who is organizing this event, states that there is wide spread interest in this project by veterans throughout the area, and expects a good turnout. Special speakers will address the gathering, including the Provincial President, Eric Dexter, and the Provincial Secretary, W. H. Graham. This will prove an exceptional opportunity for ex-service men (whether members of the Legion or not) to learn first hand about the Legion's war service effort to date, as well as gain information regarding the Legion programme for the future. An occasion of this sort also presents opportunity to meet old friends and to renew that genuine old spirit of comradeship.

Industrial Situation In Digby

To the Editor of the Courier.

Dear Sir:—Some time ago I was engaged in a considerable discussion, through the columns of your paper, of the possibilities of industrial development of the Town of Digby. After that discussion, I was appointed chairman of a "Digby Development Committee" of the Board of Trade, whose function was to search out possibilities of development for the town, and report to the Board. In the course of my activities on this committee, I did considerable research work and, writing to the Nova Scotia Economic Council, obtained a copy of their report and recommendations on manufacturing in Nova Scotia to the Provincial Government. This report was delivered in November, 1939, but was only prepared for public release recently.

This report of the Nova Scotia Economic Council contains a number of very valuable recommendations for action of the Provincial Government, which will favorably affect the development of the manufacturing industry in the province. Some of these recommendations are, I feel, valuable also to towns which are anxious of promoting industrial expansion in their limits. Because of this fact and because the Board of Trade seems at present to be in a very dormant state, I should like to pass some of these recommendations, with comment, along to the thinking public of our town, through the columns of your paper.

In their report the Council first cited types of manufacturing which they felt were of particular importance for future development.

(a) Products which cannot be standardized, e. g., high grade furniture, glassware, etc.
(b) Products for which there is only a small market, e. g., nets and other fishing gear.
(c) Products subject to high transportation costs, e. g., brick, tile, stone, etc.

(d) Products made up from materials which are widely scattered and cannot be concentrated because of high transportation costs, or perishability, e. g., fruit and dairy products, etc.

(e) Products in which skilled labour is the chief element, e. g., engraving, fine printing, aircraft metal, etc.

Following this listing the report goes on to say: "In the case of plants of the first and last of these groups (above listed) however, there is the disadvantage that small enterprises will find it difficult to utilize the service of workers and technicians, trained in the applied arts, without unduly raising their costs of production. The services of experts might be provided by the government for these and other industries. The expansion of manufacturing in Nova Scotia may take several forms: offshoots from plants already established; establishments of branch plants by Canadian United States, British or other interests; or establishment of entirely new plants by local or outside enterprises."

In its recommendations to the government the Council says: "A publicity programme should be undertaken, including a regular information and advisory service available for detailed consultation by the manufacturers. Industrial publicity, that is—should be promoted in newspapers, trade journals, and other periodicals circulating in Canada and abroad, if possible. A great deal of research is necessary to provide a detailed knowledge of materials, markets, costs, etc., for industries possible of economic location in Nova Scotia."

The possibility of lowering rates on electric power should be explored. Cheap power is an inducement to industrial expansion. It might be feasible in the case of small, new industries, to co-operate with banks and financial houses in the provision of capital and credit."

In a further paragraph the Council report says: "In view of the fact that this province would seem to offer advantages for industries engaged in the production of goods impossible of duplication by mass production methods—fine furniture, fancy textiles and furnishings, etc.—it would be sound policy to encourage such industries as may be founded on the traditional skills of the population."

This report of the Nova Scotia Economic Council with its recommendations, was prepared to meet the needs and conditions of the province as a whole. There are, however, contained in that report, recommendations and suggestions that are applicable to our town such as ours. We are desirous of industrial development, most of us realize it is an essential thing if our town is to progress. This report gives us some ideas how to go about it, research, utilization of resources, offering of helpful concessions to interested industrial firms.

Digby cannot blossom forth as an industrial centre, overnight; months, perhaps years, will be necessary before any great amount of industrial expansion can come to our town. Now, however, is the time to start a programme aimed at the ultimate goal of an industrialized Digby. Canada is at war, Nova Scotia's position geographically, with her ports open the year round, a considerable variety of natural resources and a favourable location to the British Isles gives her many advantages for the production of manufactured articles required for the prosecution of this war. The province should get her share of manufacturing contracts for her war, and Digby should have part of that share.

If I am not being too presumptuous, I should like to suggest that our Board of Trade direct its energies toward the furtherance of industrial development of our town by doing research work, advertising and by enlisting the support of the Department of Industries of the Provincial Government.

Great things cannot be accomplished immediately, it will take time and effort, but I believe Digby has industrial possibilities, and I think it would be poor policy to overlook them.

Children's Operetta

The children's operetta, "Cinderella in Flowerland", was given a matinee performance in Trinity Parish Hall, Wednesday afternoon. The operetta, which was one of the most delightful programmes ever presented in Digby, was also presented to a large audience in the same hall, Thursday and Friday evenings. Proceeds, which amounted to over $100, were for the benefit of the Red Cross.

The performance was under the capable direction of Mrs. J. M. Merkle, assisted by Mrs. H. S. Humpherson and Miss Edith Lynch, with Mrs. Harold A. Nichols playing the piano accompaniments. Much credit is due them for the success of the performance, for, under their direction, the children took their parts magnificently.

One of the outstanding features was the costumes of the children. Beautifully designed, these costumes, representing flowers, butterflies and bumble-bee, along with the stage setting, contributed much to the beauty and excellence of the performance.

The first Diesel engine was patented in the year 1902, and his war, and Digby should be the first engine built in 1905.

Aged Indian Passes Away

There passed away on Wednesday of last week, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Louis Harlow, on the Bear River Indian Reserve, Malti Pictou, after a short illness. Malti, as he was called, was the son of the late Benjamin and Molly Pictou, both full-blooded Mic-Mac Indians. He was born on the Reserve and had lived practically his whole life there. He had reached the advanced age of 102 years and nine months. Until recently he was a familiar figure around Bear River, coming every summer, walking the distance of two miles. In his younger days he was one of the foremost guides for hunting parties, and after he became unable, on account of advanced age, to follow the trail of the moose and bear, would delight in telling of his trips with such men as the late William Gilpin and Dr. Smith, both crack shots at big game. Strictly honest and industrious, he will be missed by the older of the present generation. He was the last surviving member of a large family. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Louis Harlow, one grand-daughter and one great grand-daughter. The funeral was held Thursday from St. Charles Roman Catholic Church, on the reserve, conducted by Rev. Father Leo Murphy, with burial in the cemetery beside the church.

Jersey Evacuees Reach Barton

Mrs. Gwendolyn Tilley and children, Hubert and Frances, have arrived from Jersey, England, and are visiting her mother, Mrs. Almon Hensley.

This is what Mrs. Tilley says: "We were living in Jersey, in the Channel Islands, close to France, when Paris fell on June 14th. From then on every thing was chaotic. Jersey at the time was bristling with defences, soldiers, air men, planes, anti-aircraft guns, etc. in anticipation of sporadic air raids or parachute troops. On Wednesday, June 19th, the order came from England to demilitarize the Islands, as with the French army and defences gone, there was little hope of small islands lying so close to France being able to hold out. All defences were swept away including all the military people, among them the lieutenant-governor of Jersey, Major General Harrison. The Jersey-born 'balliff' was left behind to govern the island with the 'jurats'. Those of us who wished to be evacuated to England had to register at the Town Hall in St. Helier, the capital. Those who preferred to stay were allowed to do so. Naturally all men of military age left and those who had no roots in Jersey, as well as many native Jerseyites. We were taken to England in small craft of every description from coal barges to train ferries. Within a few days the Germans bombarded the Islands and then occupied them. We were welcomed most hospitably in England. The Sea Scouts, Girl Guides and other workers served us with refreshments after we landed at a south port and our landlady refused to accept money for a night's lodging.

"Next day we went to London and there again everybody was most kind. In the East End Settlement House where my eldest daughter does social work, they put up beds for us in the Common Room. We had one air raid warning while there and spent several hours with blankets and pillows and a box of sweet biscuits. The passport office is the most popular building in London at present, with long queues outside and perspiring officials inside. All regular Canadian boats seemed to be booked up to the end of July and we considered ourselves very lucky to get off in a kind of extra one, carrying many Canadians who were being repatriated, and children going as guests to Canadian homes for the duration. How good to be at home again among friends! Of course we left everything behind—furniture, linen, pictures, books, china, clothes, etc., but at least we don't have to live under Nazi rule. And neither will any English man or woman, while a vestige of England remains."

They get blue. They worry. Life is dull and drab because they haven't sufficient capacity to rise above their troubles. They make hardships out of nothing. Lacking originality, they also lack the qualities of leadership. Some people early hit their pace, grab some coveted prizes, then cease to grow. They go to seed because they remain in ruts. No originality stamps their personalities. They never smash a precedent. They make no original contribution to the thought, work, and general interests of higher idealisms. Theirs is the horse and buggy age, or, perhaps, the ox-cart age. Both of these served their purpose, and may still be useful. Some people were content with them, and may or may not have dreamed of something better, but hadn't the courage or vision to make the start for something better. Others refused to live in ruts. They dreamed and did more than dream. They refused to be chained by customs. They formed new habits, broke precedents, stormed the heights of achievement, and won.

You Can't Win....

two nights as nearly square as a crooked carnival can operate. Then the manager goes to the committee and says, "We are in here to help you make some money. Now lots of people have watches and blankets and shawls, and business is bad. If you can fix it up with the authorities so we can buy back these prizes which we are giving away we could all make money."

This sounds logical to the committee, especially when the carnival friend points out that when a person goes in a store and buys something that doesn't suit, he can return it and get his money.

When this "buy-back" system has been arranged, the carnival if it is crooked, and a majority of them are drops all pretense at being a legitimate enterprise and brings out the wheels and games that have been hidden away for just such an occasion.

Only "Shill" Can Win

Now is the time when only the "shill" can win. "Shill" is an abbreviation for shillaber. He makes profit possible. Were it not for him, carnivals would go out of fashion. A lucky guy is the "shill." He's the only one that can do any serious winning from a carnival, and he gets paid for it!

With "shills" and a good "kaff" the carnival man can sell "Shills" work strictly on commission; if it's a strong money game that he's shilling for he gets 25 per cent of the steal money taken from suckers.

With "shills" and a good "kaff" the carnival man can sell the same thing over and over and still retain the ownership, which is pretty successful merchandising. The "kaff" is the contrivance that puts the game under the operator's control at all times.

Majority Gaffed

A majority of carnival games are gaffed gaffed most trickily.

Take wheels of fortune. The wheel is the carnival stand by the greatest bar known. The carnival man knows that we are all very human, with the old trait of getting something for nothing.

"Step up," he coaxes, "and win a blanket for a dime!"

So up steps the monkey—the carnival word for sucker—and puts down his money on a numbered layout. When the numbers are all covered the grafter who runs the stand spins the wheel and passes out a blanket.

Now these blankets cost money—not much, it's true, about $2 apiece—but if the "monkey" wins one, then the carnival man has to buy himself another, which is bad business from his viewpoint. But with the "shills" he can sell that same blanket seven or eight times before throwing one out to a "monkey" as bait for the "monkey" has heard that he can sell it back to the grafter and thus receive cold cash for his efforts instead of a blanket that he probably doesn't want anyway.

This is true of all the games on the carnival lot—the "shill" wins most of the time. The "monkey" occasionally.

Fixed In Several Ways

"Wheels are gaffed in several ways. One of the simplest is to load the wheel by attaching a lead slug to the back at a point directly opposite the number desired to win. This slug acts as a weight and causes the heavy side of the wheel to stop at the bottom, bringing the winning number to the top. These slugs are made around a sharp-pointed nail which the operator sticks in the soft wood back of the wheel when he spins it, and removes when the wheel stops. Only wheels set in the centre of the booth can be loaded in this way.

Those attached to the sides of the booth are usually controlled by a wire running through the post to which the wheel is fastened. This wire connects with a loose plank in the floor of the booth on which the operator stands. A slight pressure on the plank causes any number desired to win.

And so on down the line of stands the "shill" wins most of the time, the "monkey" occasionally.

A carnival, broadly speaking is composed of three groups: There are the rides—merry-go-rounds, ferris wheels, whips and circle swings—which seldom make money and are only carried to enable a crooked carnival to get by as an amusement enterprise. In the second group are the shows—girl, snake, pit and minstrel—which make a little money. Finally come the stands where most of the cash comes in. Without these no carnival would pay.

Those Tempting Drinks

A menace to health is the carnival soft-drink stand. The delicious-looking concoctions, temptingly displayed in huge

Apple Crop Reduced

First estimates of the 1940 apple crop in Nova Scotia show that there is likely to be a substantial reduction in the total apple production from 1939. The estimating committee have placed the estimate of the crop as at July 19, at 65 per cent of the 1939 crop. If this estimate is not improved upon later, the total crop will be approximately 1,500,000 barrels, compared with the final estimate of 2,300,000 barrels for 1939.

Value of Certified Seed

The warden of Cumberland County, Charles Robinson, knows the value of planting certified seed potatoes, reports D. E. MacPhee, agricultural representative for that territory. Mr. MacPhee states that Mr. Robinson's main field was planted with seed from his own farm, but along side this crop he had four rows planted with certified seed. The main field was patchy but the four rows of certified developed strong, healthy plants, with better looking color than the rest of the field. The two separate plantings, being close together, form a striking demonstration to the eye of the value of the use of the best seed, even at a somewhat higher initial cost.

Purchase High-Class Mares

Purchase by the Nova Scotia department of agriculture of two prize-winning Clydesdale mares from Ontario, with lineage tracing back to two of Scotland's most famous Clydesdale sires, is announced by Hon. John A. McDonald, Minister of Agriculture.

The mares will be stationed at the agriculture college at Truro, and will be used not only for breeding purposes to augment the stock of high-class Clydesdales in the province, but also for instructional purposes at the college, and for work at the farm.

The mares came from the famous Clyde stud of W. F. Batt, veteran breeder of Brooklin, Ont. The mares are Doune Lodge, Miss Elthorn (57031) and Crescent May (55910). The first-named mare is a 1934 colt bred by the well-known Bryce firm of Arcola, Sask., and later sold to Mr. Batt. She was sired by Fyvie Banker, Imp., and her dam was Doune Lodge Mercedes. The other mare, Crescent May, was sired by Dowhill Patriot and her dam was Crescent Halma. Both mares are descendants of the sires Dunure Footprint and Barons Pride.

Ice-cold glass jars and eagerly sought after, are often dangerous.

The drinks are made from powders. These powders are cheap but pure as they are guaranteed under the pure food laws—but unfortunately the water from which they are made is not. A horse trough, or a handy creek has served many a soft-drink stand.

Food sold at the "crease-joint" or carnival lunch stand is also prepared under most insanitary conditions.

And so, "Step up, boys, you win and the old man loses" is the ballyhoo which will soon resound in many small towns throughout the country.

Although owners of better carnivals are striving to furnish clean, legitimate amusement, the crooked kind is in the majority. These are now touring the country, and before they head homeward they will have taken from the suckers hundreds of thousands of dollars—much of it by crooked unfair means.

who were the two most noted Clydesdale sires of their time in Scotland.

The mare Doune Lodge Miss Elthorn, was second prize brood mare at the C. N. E. and first prize at the Western Fair, London, Ont., in 1939. Her progeny were also heavy winners at the same exhibitions. The mare is now bred to Crescent Willie, a son of the other mare purchased by the department, Crescent May.

Crescent May has the following prize winnings to her credit: First prize as two year old at the Royal winter fair 1935, third as three year old at the royal fair in 1936, first as three year old and grand champion at the Ontario provincial fair, Guelph, 1936; in 1939 she beat Townhead Ann, grand champion at the 1938 royal, when showing at Peterboro, Ont. She again defeated this champion mare at Lindsay.

Marketing of Dressed Poultry. There has been a steady growth in Nova Scotia in the volume of high quality graded dressed poultry, and this year a considerably larger volume is anticipated than in former years. All of which contributes to reducing the amount of dressed poultry that must be imported from other provinces to meet the demands of Nova Scotia people.

Up to this date last year no dressed poultry had been marketed through co-operative pools. But up to July 15 of this year a total of 17,884 lbs. had been marketed, most of which was fowl. This was the result of extensive culling of flocks to weed out unprofitable layers, etc. The fowl was of good grade, 41.8 per cent of it grading into Grade A, and 39 per cent into Grade B, with the small percentage of 19.2 per cent in Grade C. In addition such co-operative concerns as the Scotsburn Creamery and private concerns as the Brookfield Creamery at Truro, have been packing a considerable amount of poultry as the season advanced.

Considerable canning has also been done this year, some 20,000 birds having been done. These will be ready for market through the various pools early in the fall.

The fowl and chicken this year have been packed in six-bird waxed cardboard boxes, specially made for the purpose. This has been found to be a very convenient pack for the merchants to handle, and has contributed somewhat to the ready sale of the product.

Good advice is worth repeating. Last week this news letter carried a suggestion to farmers with gardens that all possible effort be made to save seed from the various garden crops. In recent issues of the agricultural press in Britain, similar advice is found, with special reference to peas and beans, of which seed stock can be saved from this year's crops. This is good advice for Nova Scotia growers to follow this year.

Big Sales of Processed Fruit

It is announced from Ottawa that some 400,000 cases of Nova Scotia canned apples, and 75,000 cases of dehydrated apples, have been taken over by the British government from stock now stored in this province. In addition to this, the Canadian Red Cross have taken over 25,000 cases of dehydrated fruit.

Colonies Give Freely To Help the Mother Country Win.

"As the first stick (i.e., weapon) from Basutoland is now being sent, I, Seiso Griffith, paramount Chief of Basutoland, on behalf of the chiefs, sub-chiefs and Basuto nation desire to reiterate our expression of unswerving loyalty to His Majesty the King and his government, and to express the hope that our small contribution, which is made with sincerity and is entirely voluntary, may be of assistance in this great struggle in which the British Empire is engaged against Germany. His Majesty's Government is justly fighting this war and God will be with us."

And with this inspiring message, the Basuto chief sent a gift of approximately $25,000 from his native country.

The gift was typical of the spirit of encouragement and assistance that courses through the great colonial empire. Cash sums exceeding in all three millions sterling have been sent to Great Britain. But the story does not end here. Gifts have been made in war material, foodstuffs, even cattle.

So far, nine motor ambulances, costing over $25,000 each, have been given to the British Red Cross by people in the colonies. Two of them were given by the Chinese community in Trinidad, two by T. H. W. in Bermuda, two more by the Gold Coast and three, special, for the R. A. F., by Hindus in Salisbury, S. Rhodesia.

The people of Mauritius gave, in addition to their cash contribution of $70,000, imposed a special duty on their sugar exports to provide the funds for a warplane for Britain.

Children of Jamaica saved up their pocket money and sent $500 all in pennies, as a birthday present to Princess Elizabeth for her favourite war harp.

The island of Grenada made a gift of 80,000 pounds of cocoa or the fighting forces, and Trinidad is sending grape fruit or the same purpose. In Jamaica they are planning gifts of rum, preserves, cigars and citrus fruit for the Allied Armies.

Bermuda will be sending all her surplus potato crop free to the Mother Country. Recently Bermudians sent one of the strangest, though by no means east acceptable war gifts—500 tons of scrap metal collected in the Colony.

In the shipyards of Hong Kong work has already commenced on two mine sweepers and four harbour defence rafts for the Navy, and the two ferry tenders for the Army, which are to be an extra gift from all classes in the Colony.

Among war gifts from the Gold Coast and Nigeria have been forty head-loads of foodstuffs for the serving forces and contributions of money down to as little as 6 cents a month.

In East Africa native chiefs have given rice, maize, beans and potatoes, specially grown in a communal basis as a war contribution from their tribes. One Chief contributed 94 head of cattle and another 100 bulls. This was in accordance with the age-old African custom of supplying the fighting men with meat. But, in this war money is more needed than meat, so, with the Chief's approval, the cattle were sold. The 100 bulls realized $1500.

In South Rhodesia, one old African, a cousin of the late King Lobengula, drove up his whole herd of sixty cattle to the District Commissioner's office and stated they were to be sent to "George", meaning King George, to help pay for the war. He was with difficulty persuaded to make a more modest sacrifice.

Others sent gifts of money. One leading East African sent $10. He had just been reading in "Mein Kampf" that it was a crime to educate Africans.

About This and That the of the expression "fifth columnist," says the British leader, Mr. Atlee, might well be discontinued. It really means "traitor". Why not say "traitor"? It's a good strong word, with a punch, and occupies an old staunch place in the language. There is something about "fifth column" that faintly suggests a possible compromise, or cautioning, or reprimanding when an individual is caught doing something that really should be beneath him. Well, it's treachery all the same, and of a peculiarly despicable kind. He is, or she is a traitor. A sturdy old word, to be utilized as occasion requires.

Over the radio, not long ago, came the hurried words of an announcer, who had a story "hot off the griddle." He stood on the shores of England, watched a bombing attack on a convoy, saw planes swoop from the clouds, witnessed the aerial battle, smoke screens, heard the thud of guns, and kept track of the fight and talked at the same time. Nothing more vivid and realistic has been heard by any listener since the war began. After this, anyone will be excused for yawning, or falling asleep when Joe Louis takes on his next victim.

Strangest story we've heard is the one concerning the wife of a South American diplomat who is violently anti-Nazi. She has a doll, resembling Hitler, in her bedroom, and every night before she retires she sticks pins in vital parts of his anatomy, murmuring prayers. It's an old South American custom and while it may not do Herr Hitler any harm, it will certainly do him no good.

An Italian newspaper, taking a further fling at prostrate France, condemns the use of colonial colored troops by the French, in past campaigns. The soldiers from Africa, the article says, are "brute savages at heart." Conveniently forgotten is the invasion of Abyssinia a few years ago. Bombers, the latest in artillery, all the gadgets of scientific warfare—were turned loose against a people equipped with the armament of half a century ago.

Germans are being told in all seriousness that if they leave meat alone and eat only flour soup, potatoes and butter-milk, they should live to be a hundred years old. If the Nazis can put that one over they almost deserve to win.

In these terrible days while Hitler's star still rides high, it is well to understand just what this dominance of the world would mean. It is fair to look at the prospect as it affects religion. However lukewarm on the surface, most of us in our hearts believe in religion—presumably in some Christian, perhaps in the Jewish form of it. Just what the Nazis teach on the matter may be caught from the following doctrines, all drawn from actual written or spoken words of Hitler or his followers. All Germans do not believe in them by any means. But all Germans have yielded lip-service to them, and any nation lying in Hitler's path must take them into account. At whatever point religion based on the Old or on the New Testament touches human life Nazi teachings laugh and declare it nonsense. Christ, to start with, they say, never really lived, but was a fictitious character, created by St. Paul or some other early "Christian". Or, if he lived, his birth and family were anything but respectable. Foul names, hateful to us all, are heaped on Jesus' ancestry. Whether he lived or not, the worship and morals taught in His name and founded on the Bible, are wholly unsatisfactory and must be done away with. The Sermon on the Mount, for instance, the teaching of mercy and love of one's neighbor, are believed in only by cowards, morons, idiots. "We do not want to kneel in humility," goes one of the Nazi songs. "We do not love our enemies. He who loves freedom must sincerely hate those who accept servitude." The Nazi gospel is frankly one of the blood, race and soil. "Hitler is its leader. Hitler is a new, a greater, more powerful Jesus Christ. Our God, our Pope, is Adolf Hitler!" says one of their statements. Many of them all but defy Der Fuehrer. Hitler himself is brutally frank in saying that Chris-

How Women's Institutes, Owing Birth to Canada, Save In Wartime Britain

A Women's Institute — its friends call it "our W. I." — is a countrywomen's club. The first Women's Institute in England was a Welsh one. It was founded in 1915. Now, in May, 1940, the Women's Institutes in England and Wales number more than five thousand seven hundred.

The Institute idea began in Canada. It was a very simple idea; that women living in the country should unite for themselves and for other people. This slow-witted island of Great Britain heard of the movement before the last Great War. It might have spread here in any case. But war, and the need for growing more food at home, gave W. I. a definite reason for existence and, in early life, a government financial blessing.

It is easy to forget just how rural were the rural villages of England, twenty-five to thirty years ago. There were no motor buses to link village to village, and village to town. There were few cars. Town tradesmen did not dash round country districts delivering goods. The village housewife had to trudge dusty miles to the market town, or buy in the village shop. It was the shop very often, selling anything and everything, from bacon to a packet of pins. There was no wireless.

On the other hand old country crafts were disappearing, with the traditional country dance and the mummery play. I do not know if the founders of the W. I. in Britain saw themselves as saving the best of the old while they started the best of the new. This is what they have done. Institute members want good country housing, water supplies, proper sanitation and so on. They can make their voices heard quite loudly on such matters. But they are also keeping alive knowledge of cross-stitch, quilting and weaving, and other similar handicrafts of the past. They believe in the arts as well.

I have been looking down the Diary of Events for the National Federation of Women's Institutes in May one June a year ago. "Singing Festival in Berkshire; Handicraft Exhibition in Carmarthen; Knitting Conference in Cambridgeshire; Drama Festival in Durham; Folk Dance Festival in Derbyshire; Plain Sewing School in Bucks."

Perhaps the most remarkable discovery of the movement has been the hidden acting talent of the ordinary country woman. It is less extraordinary that W. I. actresses are at their best in Shakespeare. Shakespeare was a man of the soil. In spite of a distressing film-made eruption of "O.K.'s" and "Says Yous" among the younger generation his language is still the authentic English tongue.

The deeper purpose of Institute work is hidden in the words of "Jerusalem," a poem written nearly a century and a half ago by the visionary, William Blake, and sung to Parry's fine tune, at every Institute meeting. It is easy to laugh at skinny school-mistress and the farmer's fat wife demanding their "chariots of fire" and their "bows of burning gold." They have not yet built Jerusalem.

In England's green and pleasant land.

But they are making a start with the job! Now has come another war and with it, naturally, the quenching of a good deal of W. I. activity. There has been no great annual General Meeting in London this year, to fill the Albert Hall with delegates

How British Keep Their Calm

The following appeared in a London paper: WHAT DO I DO—When I hear a gun, explosions, air-raid warnings? I keep a cool head. I take cover. I gather my family with gas masks and go quietly to my shelter or refuge room. I do NOT try to have a look. I do NOT rush about alarming people. I remember that a lot of the noise is GOOD noise—our guns firing at the enemy. And I remember the odds are thousands to one against my being hurt.

Glass For Air Raid Shelters

Abraham Lincoln's grand-nephew is one of two young British architects who have opened up a new field of investigation by using glass instead of steel as the reinforcement in concrete.

He is John Abraham Lincoln, a one-time pursuer on liners, civil servant and journalist. His 33-years-old partner is A. W. Soden, A.R.I.B.A.

As soon as the war began, Soden and Lincoln began to search for a substitute for steel for reinforcement. Their tests showed that, besides being cheaper, glass actually has some technical advantages over steel, and that it will probably be used in the future for the sake of its own qualities, not merely as a war-time substitute.

Glass-reinforced concrete will carry four times the maximum load required by the Home Office for air raid shelters. Further tests are being carried out for spans up to 18 feet.

The glass, which is not specially strengthened in any way, is in strips cut from the edge of the glass as it comes from the rolling mill, a feature being that the outside edge, known as the selvage, being fire-finished and not cut, is stronger for reinforcement purposes than glass which has been cut, polished or refined.

Thus material can be used which is ordinarily broken up for remelting.

Here's a word to all housewives: Be sure to fill every jar and bottle in the cupboard with jam and preserves. Help conserve on fruits and vegetables for use in our homes and communities. This is a patriotic duty to be observed by all women.

From every part of the land. Here and there Institute Halls have been taken as First Aid posts, or for other government work. The black-out regulations made evening meetings difficult. But the war has seen W. I. as a whole, returning to its first sphere of usefulness, as producers and preservers of food.

Through the Institutes, and their Produce Guilds, the government has asked countrywomen all over the country not only to grow as much food as possible, but also to can and bottle all available fruits when grown. Tins and bottles can be had at special prices. Travelling sealing-up machines are to go from village to village. Above all, women are asked to provide, where possible in every village and hamlet a suitable central store room for these cans and bottles, in order that they may be easily accessible. Thus the Women's Institutes of Great Britain are doing everything possible to help bring the war to a successful conclusion.

The skating outfits carried by these tars easily identify them as Canadians. These Canadian sailors in England with their ship for duty with the Royal Navy, evidently hope for a spot of hockey in off-duty time.

John J. Winchester Writes Interestingly of Ships and of Builder MacKay

To the Editor of the Courier.

Sir:—Among the interesting articles in your Jubilee Issue, of June 20, 1940, is one by James F. Landers, relative to Donald McKay's clipper ships. The data in this narrative appears to be correct in all essential details except one, and that is where Mr. Landers states that neither in Nova Scotia nor in Massachusetts is there a monument to this great ship builder.

The enclosed photos, difficult to obtain because of lack of contrast between sky and monument, and in letters and stone in which they are carved; also photographing against as well as with the light, are proof positive, however, of the existence of one monument erected to the memory of Donald McKay.

The Boston Sunday Globe, of August 6, 1933, published an interesting description of the monument along with a photo of it. Mostly from this source, and also from the published report of the committee in charge of bringing the monument into existence and on file in the Boston Public Library, I am submitting to you the following:—

The monument was erected by a group of persons who love ships.

It is a memorial of the man of the sea, and is in the path of men of the sea today.

On the committee that raised the money was the President of the United States, bankers, statesmen, artists, authors, naval officers and publishers.

It is so placed, that ships either entering or leaving Boston Harbor approach it so that it stands against a sky background. Only when abreast of it, is it against the background of the fort near where it stands.

It stands on Castle Island, near fort constitution. Permission to use this site was granted by both the Federal and State Governments.

The monument is an obelisk fifty-two feet high, standing on a stone base twenty feet square. The granite came from Deer Island in Boston Harbor, and the four inscriptions are carved in limestone set into the granite.

The main ship channel is a scant five hundred feet away.

On the side facing the channel is the portrait medallion of Donald McKay, executed by Philip Sears. Above it in high relief is a half model of the Flying Cloud, worked to the scale of one-quarter inch to the foot.

On the reverse side of this panel is the one descriptive.

of the "Great Republic".

On the "down-harbor, or east side, is the Clipper's panel, while on the "up-harbor, or west side, is the Packet and Traders panel.

William T. Aldrich, a lover of sea tradition, was the architect, who designed it.

J. Templeman Coolidge was chairman of the committee of volunteers, who erected the monument.

On the executive committee of eight, were: J. Templeman Coolidge, Pres.; Charles K. Bolton, Secty. (was at one time Librarian of Boston Athenaeum); Allan Forbes, Treas., (President of State Street Trust Co.)

So I hope, I have demonstrated to everyone's satisfaction that Massachusetts has erected in love, a beautiful memorial to this great man, and selected the one spot nearest to where he built his ships in East Boston, where it will be a constant reminder to all sea-faring men entering or leaving the port of Boston, of a man, who made sailing ships as no one else could, and who made Massachusetts famous as the place of their birth.

Another item in Mr. Landers' narrative of Donald McKay and his Clipper Ships, which drew my interest, and while not requiring more detail than he gave it in this article, could be made the basis of additional detail both as relates to another McKay ship and another world famous clipper, the Thermopylae.

In "Grayhounds of the Sea" Carl C. Cutler, P. 229, is this paragraph:—

"The James Baines, after establishing on her maiden voyage in September, 1854, the present record of 12 days, 6 hours from Boston to Rock Light, near Liverpool, made the run from Liverpool to Melbourne in 63 days time, which has been equalled by one other ship, the British clipper, Thermopylae. On her first outward voyage the Lightning made a longer passage than the Baines, but her homeward run from Melbourne to Liverpool was made in 63 days, also a record."

Here is another McKay boat and the Thermopylae, both in the same time in either the same or opposite direction as the Baines.

My interest in the Thermopylae lies also in the fact my uncle Jacob R. Winchester, of el of the Flying Cloud, worked to the scale of one-quarter inch to the foot.

On the reverse side of this panel is the one descriptive.

Canadians Everywhere Forward Donations to Country's War Effort

A shower of "silver bullets" continues to fall into the state coffers at Ottawa evincing the fine spirit of sacrifice Canada's people is showing in pushing ahead the job of winning the war. Gifts from individuals and organizations are received daily in varying sums by the Department of Finance. But whether the gift is an anonymous contributor's eighty-five cents or the more ambitious donation of $35,000, Waterloo's and Kitchener's contribution for the purchase of a light tank, all are accepted with equal gratitude.

The written comments which accompany many of the contributions from individuals would be worthy of history's attention and might make a fine "bedtime" story for Fuehrer Hitler. A Torontoian knows exactly why he sent the money in: simply, "Ten dollars to Canada's beating the Hun. Only wish I could do more. I will when I save it." The "only comment" which accompanied an Ontario woman's $25 donation was short but how eloquent: "My son was killed at Vimy Ridge in the last war."

An anonymous person sends in one dollar with the hope that it will be followed by many more. He or she is starting a chain letter in the United States.

A light-house keeper joins a long list of war pensioners who have requested that varying amounts be deducted from their cheques every month for the duration. He asks that five dollars be deducted each month. A light-house keeper's salary in that category, is $420 per year. Another refuses a six months' leave of absence, granted by the Civil Service Commission, after keeping the light for 29 years.

Gifts from individuals range anywhere from fifty cents to $100,000.

Equally impressive are the gifts of groups. The Vancouver Air Supremacy drive nets $24,000. The Cowichan Air Supremacy drive sends $8,600 rolling into the strong boxes. Four thousand five hundred dollars to buy surgical units are donated by the Canadian Nurses' Association. The Canadian Daughters' League, of Port Alberni, British Columbia, sends $1,837 to be used to purchase an ambulance as a contribution from the Alberni District.

Municipal districts, town councils, citizens' groups, ladies' associations, school children and all manner of groups representing all ages, join to make these voluntary efforts a Canadian-wide contribution.

But numerous donations also come in from the United States, from people who sympathize with Canada's cause in the war. A group of British and American persons, residing

67 Millions In Automotive Orders

The total automotive orders placed by the Department of Munitions and Supply and its predecessor bodies now comprise 36,000 units costing to the government $7,000,000. Of these 10,000 have already been delivered and the productive capacities of the plants should reach 5,000 units a month within the year. Further orders for 7,000 units will shortly be placed.

Constructing Air- dromes Is Big Job

A large amount of work is involved in the construction of hangars, buildings and in the levelling of air fields in connection with the Empire Training Plan. Over eighty airports are in different stages of construction in Canada at the present time. An average case meant undertaking the following tasks: up-rooting 2,500 trees; moving 175,000 cubic yards of dirt; hauling and applying 60,000 tons of crushed stone and 77,000 gallons of surfacing to construct runways; laying eight miles of tiled drains; excavating 16,000 cubic yards of open ditchings; seeding 140 acres of land. All this was aside from actual construction of hangars and buildings.

Allowances Grow With Forces

As the strength of Canada's armed forces increases from day to day, applications for allowances pour into the Dependents' Allowance Board in Ottawa in rising numbers. At present about 1,000 applications a day are being received. About $2,000,000 are paid out monthly in allowance cheques—about 70,000 in number. Four accountants and clerks are kept busy dealing with these.

dent in Mexico, joins the parade with $2,188 donation.

The Sioux Indians of the Moose Woods Reserve, in Saskatchewan, sold pickets and wood to raise $20.00, besides contributing to the Red Cross. The Reserve consists of 17 families.

In Lethbridge, Alberta, a war chest organization raised $2400 through service clubs and associations.

And from a grand old lady in Leacross, Saskatchewan, who is completing 90 years of life, comes sage advice along with five dollars. Says Mrs. A. pathize with Canada's cause. "Things are black for the British just before they lick the enemy."

"Ted" Thibault Had Narrow Escape

Theodore ("Ted") Thibault, formerly of MacDonald Motors Co., Ltd., Digby, probably owes his life to the prompt action of Kentville police officers in administering first aid, following a car crash on the Kentville-Wolfville highway Saturday night.

Suffering from a deep gash in his arm, Thibault was bleeding profusely when Corporal Edward Swales, R. C. M. P., and Chief of Police John Brown, arrived, and hastily applied a tourniquet. They then rushed the injured man to the Kentville Hospital.

The accident, involving two Halifax cars and a load of hay, occurred four miles east of Kentville, when the machine driven by Wilfred Rouse, Halifax, coming over the brow of the hill, crashed into a car operated by Douglas MacKay, Halifax. The latter car had been stopped by the hay team. With Rouse were Private Burris Rafuse and his wife, of Digby. None of the other occupants of the two cars, outside of Thibault, were injured, except Mrs. Rafuse, who was out by flying glass. Dr. Shirley Bishop, of Kentville, treated her wounds.

The school building is to be used for registration purposes on August 19, 20, and 21.

Town Council Meeting Reminiscent of "Good Old Times"

The August meeting of the Digby Town Council brought to mind stormy days of other years when a town council meeting meant something, close the main street in front of the Manhattan Hotel, on the day of the Hospital Fair. Permission was also granted the Red Cross to hold a Tag Day on Hospital Fair Day.

Another matter settled at this meeting was the question of the Town Dump. The town has experienced considerable difficulty in locating a dump for year round use, the present dump being located on the land owned by Jack Raymond, and the road leading to it is also owned wholly or partly by him. On occasions Mr. Raymond has closed the road, and refused the town permission to dump on his land. This year Mr. Raymond offered to sell the town the dump and road leading to it, in consideration of a sum of money (totalling $65) and the transfer of the Ray property owned by the town.

Councillor Cardozo felt that town lands should not be traded in this way, since the Ray lot was originally purchased for a dump, and that the offer should not be accepted. He also questioned Mr. Raymond's ability to give a clear title. Councillor Eisener moved the Raymond offer be accepted, providing he grant the town a right-of-way to the dump, if the possession of the present one should be disputed. The motion passed with one dissenting vote.

Permission was granted H. T. Warne Ltd., to erect a mill and power plant on the property north of St. George St., between Queen Street and First Avenue. Plans for the proposed buildings were submitted and approved. Requests for permits to build, from Arthur Thomas and Reginald Gehue were tabled for the time being.

The Council also passed a motion calling a halt to all but emergency work, and the superintendent of streets and water instructed not to have any further work done without authority from the committee.

A letter from Edward Howard outlined several complaints, and suggested remedies. The letter complained of speeding in town, and after discussion, the Council decided to insert an advertisement in the local paper, stating traffic laws would be drastically enforced. The Police Committee was instructed to meet to decide what steps should be taken for the strict enforcement of traffic laws.

Another of Mr. Howard's complaints concerned noise emanating in and around the "Big Apple" restaurant. The proprietor of the restaurant was present at the meeting, and was asked to speak. He assured the Council he would try in every way to eliminate as much noise as possible. The Chief of Police was also instructed to see that the streets in that section did not become congested.

A request from the Fire Department for 500 feet of new hose, a windshield and a set of new tires for the pumper, was deferred for the time being.

The Council voted payment of $100 to Fred Daley, of Mr. Pleasant, for a perpetual right-of-way over his lands to the Chlorination Plant, recently put into operation by the town. It was also voted the sum of $5.00 per month, to be paid to the town by the Canadian Pacific Railway, for special police protection, be turned over to Chief of Police Fred Thibault.

A request from the Digby Civic Band for a grant, was referred back to the body with the request that it be presented to the townspeople directly through a town meeting. The Band was, however, given permission to hold a Tag Day on August 10th.

The Hospital Fair Committee was given permission to close the main street in front of the Manhattan Hotel, on the day of the Hospital Fair.

Five railroad engineers were recently charged with train speeding in Wichita, Kan., and fined sums ranging from $11.90 to $26.90. A city by-law fixes the limit for trains at 15 miles an hour.

Mrs. St. Clair Payson

The death of Blanche, beloved wife of St. Clair Payson, occurred at her home in Westport, on Wednesday morning of last week. Although in poor health for several years, she had been able to keep around until Saturday night, when she had an ill turn and did not recover. She was 73 years of age, a member of the United Baptist Church, of which she was organist, until ill health caused her to give it up. She leaves an invalid husband; one daughter Mrs. Hugh Gregory, of Rothesay, N. B.; one son Franklin, who conducts a general store in Westport; a sister Mrs. Frank Beattie, of Bridgetown; two grand sons in Quebec. A sister, Mrs. Jack Saunders, passed away at Rosedale, Mass., about six weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. Payson operated the Central House in Westport, for a number of years.

Japanese Minister In Digby

Baron S. H. Tomii, Japanese Minister for Canada, accompanied by his wife, Baroness Tomii, and their daughter, Ayaka, and private secretary, arrived in Digby, Saturday, from Pictou via Halifax.

They are on a pleasure trip through the Maritime Provinces, the Baron's secretary said. This is their first trip to Nova Scotia since the Japanese Minister arrived in Canada.

Greatly impressed by the scenery of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, the secretary said the party was enjoying the visit. The journey is being made by automobile. They were guests at the Pines while here. Baron Tomii first came to Canada, as Consul General in 1930, and in 1938 as his country's representative to the Dominion.

Westport Child Has Narrow Escape

A near fatality happened at Westport, on Wednesday of last week, when Charles, youngest son of Harley Glaven, fell from one of the fish wharves into the water. Helena Pugh, attracted by the cries of another child, rushed down a ladder and pulled the child up, and called for help. Thomas Hicks, hearing the call, went to the rescue. They used artificial respiration and called Dr. A. F. Weir of Freeport. After some time they revived the boy.

A girl in the Isle of Wright, England, was attacked by a bag-snatcher during a black-out, but she hit him on the head with her torch and he ran away. A few days later she received a "To a Friend" card on which was printed this message: "I think you are just too stunning!"

Famed Guides at Annual Meet

Ruler of Nova Scotia's woodland trials in 1936 and 1937, Alan Hunt, Greenfield, Queens County, regained his championship with a stirring exhibition of strength, skill and endurance in the Guides' Meet last year at Lake William. Defending champion, Willard Jack, of Bear River, took fifth place.

Splendid Showing

Surprise of the meet last year was Frank Glode, of Milton, who took second place, only six points behind Hunt. It was Glode's best showing in five years of competition, but he was chased throughout by the famed Peck brothers, Eber and Watson, of Bear River.

Highlight of the annual Guides' Meet, which this year opened today and continues for a week, is the battle for the championship emblematic of woodland supremacy. Again as in other years, a brilliant field will compete for the crown.

Among the events, which test the skill and stamina of the guides to the utmost are swimming races, canoe races, log burling, rifle shooting, canoe tilting, revolver shoot, trapshoot, and fly casting.

Grand Average
Alan Hunt, Greenfield	48
Frank Glode, Milton	42
Watson Peck, Bear River	37
Eber Peck, Bear River	36
Willard Jack, Bear River	35
Lawrence Walboit, Mole-ga, M.	35

A Great Act by a Great American

(Pittsburgh Post-Gazette)
The announcement of Howard Heinz, president of the H. J. Heinz Company, that he has invited all the children of his firm's employees in England, numbering several thousand, to come to America and Canada for the duration of the war—the company assuming all expense—reflects a warm heart and generous spirit that the whole nation will admire. Many Americans have worried over the plight of England's boys and girls constantly subjected to nerve shattering Nazi bombing raids with the prospect of steadily mounting lists of dead and injured as the fury of attack increases. Thousands have volunteered to open their homes if a way can be found to evacuate the children from the British Isles and admit them to this country. Committees have been organized in major cities throughout the country to co-ordinate and advance this program.

But the scope of Mr. Heinz's invitation has no precedent or parallel and should stimulate the nation-wide effort to provide safe havens for England's children. Sending airplanes and supplies across the Atlantic may be the most vital aid that the United States can render the last outpost of democracy in Europe, but this is second only to it. A great burden will be lifted from the hearts of Britain's fighting men if they know that their children are secure and will not suffer.

It is a splendid humanitarian effort which in no way involves any question of neutrality. And while this is all that motivated Mr. Heinz's generous offer, it is proper for others to point out how thoroughly such an action refutes the contention of those who criticize large American industries today as "heartless" or "cold-blooded."

Pittsburgh is proud that one of its own citizens has set this example to the country.

A Saskatchewan farm woman can thank the musical sense of her turkeys for their safety. They were recently stolen and she accompanied a policeman to a neighbouring farm whose owner denied having the stolen birds. The woman, however, gave a "strange melodious call" and the turkeys trotted out one by one, until she had all her missing birds.

Glow Worm Commissionaires

If the electric supply should fail in one of Britain's air raid precaution control centres, the various dials and instruments now continue to glow without any apparent agency.

This "light in darkness" is the result of research by British scientists into the possibilities of "luminescence", the technical name for any light which does not spring from normal sources, such as the glow worm's or firefly's.

By the action of "black" glass mercury vapour discharge lamps which provide a use for rays hitherto wasted, surfaces covered with certain powders glow with an astonishing range of colors, producing new effects as it were by magic. If phosphorescent materials are added to the powders, the coated surface continues to shine for several hours after the lamps are switched off. Hence the significance of these new materials if applied to wartime control centres where the normal electric supply may be cut off.

The dangers of collision with sandbag walls or lamp posts in Britain's blackout are also largely avoided if obstructions are treated with paint containing phosphorescent powders, so throwing off a light to warn pedestrians.

Such is the progress made with this "glow worm" technique that not only will control dials show up when all other light fails, but also "exit" and other direction signs and features in hotel and movie houses can also be made to glow, down to the last button on the usher's uniform.

The average man not only likes to be jollied, but is willing to pay for it.

House Burned At Marshalltown

The home of William Comeau, of Marshalltown, together with its contents, was totally destroyed by fire, Sunday evening. At the time only the children were home. They got out safely but were unable to save anything, and the house, somewhat isolated, was in flames before help arrived. The house had been rented to Fred Mullen, of H. T. Warner's staff, who had intended to move in on Saturday, but the Comeau family had not vacated it.

Fate of a U-Boat

By Taffrail

An escort vessel was in company with a convoy. The weather was hazy, with a strong following wind and a heavy sea, and at daylight three ships of the convoy had lost touch with the others. After ten in the morning there was thick fog and about an hour later one of the steamers in the convoy—a neutral—was torpedoed.

The explosion was seen and heard from the escort vessel, which at once went on to full speed and steered for the position of the submarine. After a few minutes definite contact was obtained with the Asdic, that wonderful instrument which has been referred to as "impalpable fingers groping beneath the surface of the sea."

Presently a periscope was sighted dead ahead. It was seen for a moment or two, then dipped, then reappeared and remained in sight for at least twenty-five seconds, and only 150 yards ahead. One can imagine the suppressed excitement at sighting that periscope right under the bows.

The U-boat seemed to be offering herself on a plate, and appears to have been incredibly careless. Her captain was so intent upon inspecting the ship he'd torpedoed, that he was apparently unaware of the escort vessel's presence.

In less than a minute the escort vessel started to let go her depth charges, which exploded one after the other at various depths below the surface. Two large air-bubbles came to the surface, but for the time, no sign of the U-boat. So the hunt continued.

A little later the hunter regained contact with her Asdic and dropped more depth charges. Still there were no signs of the submarine. Meanwhile other ships in the neighbourhood, had been informed of what was going on, and just before two o'clock two British destroyers arrived and joined in the hunt. Then a French destroyer appeared.

At half-past two, the weather having cleared a little, the escort vessel suddenly sighted a submarine on the surface at a range of about two miles. She opened fire and so did the "Frencheman." A flying boat joined in the search, sighting several men on deck, dropping a bomb which fell within twenty feet of the target.

The U-boat, long and low, was very difficult to see from ships because of the patchy mist on the surface. Then she disappeared altogether, blotting out. But steaming on, the escort vessel saw five men struggling in the water, so threw a Carley float overboard as she passed.

Then she sighted another object, which was at first taken to be the U-boat's conning tower. An attack was about to be made when the mist cleared and the object was seen to be a raft with a large number of men clinging to it. There was a thick scum of oil all round it, but no signs of the submarine. She had sunk and from the number of men on the raft it was obvious she had been abandoned.

The men were rescued, and a destroyer picked up the others from the Carley float. They saved every man of the U-boat's crew except the captain who had either elected to go down with his ship, or had been too late in making his escape.

Describing the attack, the Germans told how one of the first depth charges had caused the stern gland to leak and to admit some tons of water. While they were trying to repair it, another charge exploded close alongside, with a shattering detonation. This coupled with a shortage of air, finally drove the leaking U-boat to the surface, and surrender.

This is merely one incident got safely but were unable to save anything, and the house, somewhat isolated, was in flames before help arrived. The house had been rented to Fred Mullen, of H. T. Warner's staff, who had intended to move in on Saturday, but the Comeau family had not vacated it.

trianity and Germanism cannot exist together. Cynically he boasts that he is compelling ministers and priests to turn all their worship over into the latter religion—to replace the Cross by the swastika; to make every observance, Christmas, Easter, baptism, communion, a celebration of a triumphant German paganism. Its two commandments are: Anything is right that is good for Germany. Anything is wrong that is bad for Germany! Look at our degenerate opponents, he cries, wincing like dogs under the whip of their Jewish God! A crippled horde of slaves! In their blasphemy and madness we must take account of such words when we think of Hitler and the Germans who today follow him.

The steadfast courage and resolution of Great Britain in the face of the threatened German attempt to invade and subjugate the "tight little isle" has won the admiration of our friends in the neighboring republic. All the finer class of United States publications have commended the British attitude and are agreed that Hitler faces the stiffest test of his career and one that may well lead to his downfall. "Words falter," said the New York Times as it depicted "this unparalleled spectacle of the nation rising, as by a single impulse, to defend this blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England." Nothing could more convincingly demonstrate the determination of the British to throw the last ounce of their strength and fortunes into the defence of their country than the new emergency war budget." Concluding, the paper said: "Words falter. There are no phrases for the obscene ambition that attacks for the magnificent mobilization of a people that defends, unshaken and unafraid. We can only pray that soon the time will come when the vultures no longer defile the British skies and the cry goes out from John O'Groats to Land's End: 'Twelve o'clock and all's well.'" Such words give courage to us all and we have the firm conviction that in due course the hope so pointedly expressed may be gloriously fulfilled.

a naval training ship. As my pride of the Aberdeen White information materializes, I star line, who first owned her, think my uncle took her dir- and her captains during this erty after her service as a tea- perod were Kemball, Mathe- clipper terminated, sailed son, Henderson and Allan, her under less sail than she carried in the tea trade, and under the Thomas flag, and ran her from Vancouver to here she again was the pride of Yokohama and Hong Kong of the fleet.

She carried 1,000 tons of tea over 250 tons of rock ballast with which she drew 21 feet 6 inches.

On December 31, 1883, she was passed while under sail by a German barque. The Cutty Sark, built on almost identical lines except slightly sharper, and of the same tonnage, and with the express idea of beating the Thermopylae, was the only other ship ever to pass her at sea.

She could "ghost sail" at seven knots. Except at well over thirteen knots she never had to shorten sail, and was a comfortable sailer at anything under 13. The story went the rounds her crew used to sleep with their blankets in the rigging as auxiliary sails.

My Uncle Jacob sailed her from Shanghai to Vancouver in 29 days, a record in keeping with her runs as a tea clipper. I have seen British Admiralty charts shown to me in the home of Capt. George Doty, of Yarmouth, which had plotted on them the tracks of my uncle's runs with this ship.

He also took her through three typhoons in one voyage in the China Sea. In one of these storms he was assisting the helmsman, when a wave hit so hard, it caused the wheel lashings to part. My uncle with all his 250 pounds was thrown clear over her seven foot wheel. He received back injuries from this, from which he never fully recovered.

In 1895 the Thermopylae was sold out of the tea trade to Mr. Reford, President of the naval training ship and re-named Pedro Nuno.

On October 13, 1907, she was towed out of the Tagus by two Portuguese men-o-war and torpedoed. It is uncertain whether this was a naval demonstration or because she was getting old and two small for the service.

The enclosure of the Thermopylae is from a film I took of the oil painting which hangs in the lobby of the Winchester Hotel, in Digby.

I am the proud owner of another painting, showing her sailing in good weather, and in the home of my cousin, Arthur D. Sulis, at Smith's Cove. It is a third painting almost a duplicate of mine.

There exists also a painting of her by a Mr. Stebbins, an English marine artist, his interpretation of her under full sail as a tea-clipper. I own a reproduction.

There used to be a scale model of her in the show window of Kelvin O. White, on State Street, Boston. It was a beautiful job and valued at $750.00.

And she is yet the only one of the tea-clippers I have seen compared record for record with the Donald McKay clippers.

Small wonder these creations of wood and canvas are classed in the world of art.

Yours truly,

John J. Winchester.

Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Pigs Shipped

Four continents have been making purchases of British pedigree livestock since Germany's invasions cut breeders off from several important sources of supply.

Within the British Commonwealth three Border Leicester rams, three Cheviot rams and three Wensleydale rams have gone to India. Kenya has taken a Large White sow and the Federated Malay States have purchased a boar and gilt of the Middle White breed. Large White and Middle White sows have also gone to Palestine.

Two Large White boars have been bought by Sweden; a Berkshire and a Middle White by Japan. A stallion, as well as bulls, pigs and sheep have all been recently shipped to South America.

The stallion, a thoroughbred bred by the historic Blandford has been shipped to the Republic of Colombia, a country which has always been well disposed towards English livestock; the Colombians have also taken a bull of the South Devon breed, which won the championship at the South Devon Cattle Society's show in April this year, and a bull of the Red Poll breed. Both of these are fine big beasts admirably adapted to the production of good quality beef cattle. Another famous English beef breed, the Hereford, is represented by two bulls, which have been shipped to Uruguay.

Chile has taken a Large White boar, a ram and three ewes of the Hampshire Down breed. The latter, which have just arrived, have already delighted the buyers who declare that there are no better animals of their type in all Chile. Breeders in both hemispheres it is felt, are fortunate in the maintenance from Great Britain, the world's principal source of pedigree livestock, of the supply required for the infusion of new blood into their herds.

The first ingredient of good talk is truth; the next, good sense; the third, good humor and the fourth, wit. Sir William Temple.

New Publication on Turkey Raising

A very complete and authoritative publication on turkey raising has just been issued by the Nova Scotia department of agriculture and is now available for distribution. The booklet, a 64-page publication, is well illustrated, and in the compilation of the material, C. E. Benoit, provincial poultry promoter, who is author of the booklet, included authoritative information on all phases of the turkey industry gathered from many sources.

Nova Scotia now has a turkey population of between 17,000 and 18,000 birds. In 1939, more than 68,000 lbs. of graded turkey, dressed and packed for the Christmas market, was marketed through co-operative pools and organizations in Nova Scotia. This amount compares with only 2,300 lbs. of such turkey marketed in co-operative pools in 1934. This indicates how important turkey raising has become in the farm economy of Nova Scotia.

There is ample room for still further expansion, since production does not yet by any means equal the demand for good turkey. Many producers in the province are admirably suited to the raising of high quality turkey.

A unique feature of the new booklet is the fact that the departments of agriculture of both New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island co-operated with the Nova Scotia department in making the publication possible. Turkey raising conditions in the three provinces are much similar and the new book will be distributed in all three provinces. The booklet is stated to be one of the most complete on the subject yet issued in the dominion.

Hog Shipments

Shipments of hogs through co-operative organizations in Nova Scotia have shown a slight increase for the first six months of this year as compared to those for the same period last year. Up to June 30 this year, co-operatives had shipped 2,489 head, compared with 2,317 last year. The grading of these hogs was also slightly better for the six months than that of last year, the percentage in top grades for the past six months having been 73 per cent, compared with 67 per cent for the first period of last year. During the past two months, however, there has been a somewhat lower percentage of hogs grading into the top grades.

Credit Unions Grow

The recent convention of the Nova Scotia Credit Union League disclosed that there are now 196 Credit Unions in the province, with a total membership of 28,693. During seven years the Credit Unions of the province have built up assets totalling over $887,000, and the aggregate amount of loans handled has been $3,258,000. Shares and deposits now total $819,000.

Farm Broadcast Director

Visiting the province at present is O. J. W. Shugg, originator and now director of the Farm Broadcasts for the C. B. C. in Canada, whose headquarters are at Toronto. Mr. Shugg, who inaugurated the Maritime Farm Broadcasts in Halifax, a year ago, states that similar broadcasts are now being established throughout all Canada.

Poultry Development in Sackville Area

Considerable new development in poultry is taking place during the present year in the Sackville area in Halifax County. According to C. E. Benoit, provincial poultry promoter, some farmers in this district have flocks of 1,200 layers this year and are raising as many as 2,500 chicks, while others have from 400 to 500 layers. There is evidence of good flock management among these farmers and the flocks are doing well. A considerable amount of home mixed rations is being fed.

Crop Conditions

Rainfall during July as recorded at the college weather station at Truro, totalled 3.28 inches, falling on nine days. This is slightly higher than the 30-year average. For the two months of June and July shortage fall at this station totalled 7.61 inches, more than double the rainfall in the same months of last year. This in itself indicates the greatest reason for the difference in pasture and milk production in the two seasons. Maximum temperature at the station was 84 degrees, and on ten days during the month of July the temperature ran 80 degrees and over. The minimum was 42 degrees, with 14 days of 50 degrees or below.

He has devoted his entire life to railroad work in Nova Scotia.

Consequent upon better pasture conditions, milk production is considerably up from last summer.

The hay crop generally throughout the province is good, the clover being exceptionally good, and most of this was gathered in good condition. General haying progress, however, has been slow because of unsuitable weather. During July there have been comparatively few really good haying days, and while most hay is cut, much remains still to be gathered in.

Grain crops are doing well. Early grain is excellent, in fact, some so heavy it is lodging badly. Late grain is growing well.

Potatoes were somewhat late in starting. There are some excellent fields in the certified areas near Truro and some good fields in the valley areas and in Cumberland and other counties. The potato crop generally speaking, is large this year, leaf roller and mosaic appear to be widespread because of the widespread action of aphids in last year's dry spell. This will have some effect on yield and quality. Root crops are growing well, though there are many weedy fields due to lateness of the crop and difficulty in finding time to keep them in condition. Grasshoppers, which have not appeared for several years, were noticed active in one or two small areas.

Savile Row Dresses the Americas

One thousand suits from London's Savile Row are crossing the Atlantic every month in spite of the war; because of it, indeed.

Most of them are going to Americans who used to come to England once a year. Their measurements, mailed to London with their order, vary very slightly. Americans, Savile Row reports, are growing rather stouter. In fact, the only losses of weight since the war began are in officers back from Dunkirk. Many of them lost as much as twenty pounds.

After paying duty, each suit costs its American wearer between $100 and $150. The wearer usually leaves the choice of material to his London tailor; and one of them orders as many as twenty suits at a time.

Smart Argentine men are also following London fashions and a wealthy citizen of Buenos Ayres has increased the export of English suits and shoes to the Argentine by suggesting to his London tailor that, for every Argentine patron who visited England, there were twenty Argentines who would buy suits and shoes from Mayfair if Mayfair would come to them.

So today the well-dressed Argentine has the new patterns sent to him with minute measurements directions, and in this way the best London tailors are dressing Buenos Ayres in suits of English cut. There is only one difference: the Argentine prefers silk linings.

Similarly one famous London shoemaker is sending two of his skilled workers to the United States and South America to create wooden models of his clients' feet from which in Mayfair they now build each personal last shoes and boots that are scientifically exact.

Numerous Contracts Awarded.

Over 23,500 contracts have been let by the Department of Munitions and Supply and its predecessor bodies, the Defence Purchasing Board and the War Supply Board, since July 14, 1939. During the last three months contracts have averaged over 4,000 monthly and had a value of $65,800,000, besides $50,000,000 on new plant constructions and extensions to existing plants.

Hospitals for Airplanes

The Department of Munitions and Supply has entered into contracts with firms in various centres throughout Canada to provide overhauling and repair facilities for airplanes used for training and other purposes. After a certain number of hours in the air planes and engines must be dismantled, repaired and tightened up.

Tenders have been accepted for $40,000,000 Dominion of Canada Treasury Bills due October 16th, this year. Average discount price: $99.8192. Average yield: 7.18 per cent.

Under the revised tax schedule in Canada's wartime budget, tea sippers will contribute an added $800,000 to the Government this year.

Experts Claim There is a Universal Desire to Pay Increased Taxes

On the subject of public payment for what the public has not been clamoring for, the Government should remember that there is in Canada today a universal willingness to pay the new taxes to help win the war, but that there will be a bitter resentment against any politicians who use the hard-earned tax money of citizens for other than the purposes for which it is given—the winning of the war. The public will pay millions for defense, but not, willingly, one cent for patronage. They don't want that Montreal terminal. They don't want a marble postal garage in Toronto. Work on both should be stopped. There is general commendation of several features of the new taxes. Lowering exemptions and catching smaller wage earners is wise. Lowering the exemptions was courageous (or would have been before May 10). Hitting the middle brackets is painful but will yield goodly sums. Sales and liquor taxes, already so high as to have reached the point of diminishing return, are unchanged. The character of the higher taxes again indicates that the man who was minister until this epochal budget speech was delivered is a man of some nerve and considerable common sense. If, in the next budget, his successor goes after the only considerable source of revenue as yet untouched—the Ontario Hydro and similar enterprises—the ability of democracy to work equitably will have been in some degree demonstrated.—The Printed Word.

Encourage Boys to Learn Useful Trades

The man, young or old, who for white collar jobs and leaves them stranded without perform a service for his fellows, need not be out of a job for long. The difficulty is that far too many of those who want work are not trained to do anything well. They have not learned a trade through years of apprenticeship, but start out with the idea that the world owes them a living, no matter whether they work for it or not and no matter whether they are able to saw wood, to hoe corn or to keep a set of books with any degree of accuracy or efficiency.

At the present time there is a shortage of expert mechanics. A few, who know their job, are obliged to work night and day, while others, who are eager for money but are not willing to pay the price which earning it entails, sulk on the sidelines and complain that they never had any luck. But what can be done about it? Can boys be encouraged to learn useful trades, to work three or four years at small pay as an apprentice? Unless a lad starts in to learn a trade when he is 15, 16 or 17, the chances are that he will not do so later on. Our school system, which should be revamped and remodelled, trains boys

The Maritime Provinces Described In Glowing Terms

When speaking in Philadelphia before the summer school of the University of Pennsylvania recently, on Canada's attractions, A. A. Gardiner, Assistant General Passenger Traffic Manager of the Canadian National Railways, referred to the Maritime Provinces as follows:

"Three of Canada's provinces, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, are on the Atlantic shore. Here we are in touch with the storied past. The land of Acadia, with its Evangeline and the story of her people rise up to challenge memory and evoke full many a sigh. The wooden ships and iron men of these Northern Atlantic shores come into the picture, too. The days when war still retained much of the chivalrous character with which the Knights of old endowed it, seem but a few yesterday's ago in such places as Halifax and Bedford Basin. Saint John, the City of the Loyalist, provides an atmosphere that, whatever you may think of those you termed 'Tories', will hold you, I am sure."

"The Garden of the Gulf, Prince Edward Island, bellies in its summer charm its northern location. It is a gem, beset by a crystal sea, with old world charm, health-giving air, and a people whose welcome is as sincere as unforgettable."

The United States Army was recently offered a "liquid cement" which the inventor claimed could be shot at an enemy detachment and it would harden quickly, freezing the enemy troops in their tracks. The invention was declined.

A soft answer will turn away wrath—and sometimes a silly answer will serve the same purpose.

From Nova Scotia comes the widow's mite in the words of the lady who sent along the donation: "As you know my salary is not large . . . I am a widow. I would like to give more, but really can't see my way clear to do it—(the widow's mite)."

Gas Masks for Canada and the Allies

All Canadian troops proceeding overseas were equipped with respirators, according to Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence. All coast defence troops are equipped with gas masks and Canadian production is geared not only to fill Canada's requirements but also to furnish a substantial number to Allied troops.

Canadians To Figure In Attack

When the battle of Britain has been won, "then the active service components of our defence forces will be operating in overseas theatres in co-operation with other Empire forces. This war must be won and no war can be won by defensive measures alone."

Bren Gun Production Mounts

The output of Bren guns in July virtually doubled the revised schedule arranged last April when production began about six months ahead of the date originally planned, according to Honourable C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply. The results achieved to date indicate that within six months the monthly production may be five times as great as that originally planned.

Tribute Paid to Men on Guard

"They are on duty night and day. They are . . . holding positions in face of the enemy . . . To maintain eternal vigilance under conditions of inactivity is one of the stiffest tests of character and discipline which either soldiers or civilians can undergo."—Colonel the Hon. J. L. Ralston, in a tribute to men on guard duty, to men of the coastal defences and to Canadian troops "standing to" at home and abroad.

Over four hundred tons of such classes, commencing with mail rolled out of Ottawa during the past week from Chief Registrar Jules Castonguay's office addressed to district registrars everywhere in Canada. Ten thousand mail bags, each weighing about 80 pounds and filled to capacity with cards and forms on which all male and female citizens in Canada between the ages of sixteen and sixty-five will register. Were used to complete these shipments.

The Department of National War Services, under the direction of Hon. James G. Gardiner, is pushing National Registration ahead at record speed. Starting with British Columbia and the Yukon, the required forms and cards for registration have been sent to Registrars in each federal constituency in all provinces. Mail bags were despatched at a rate of about 800 a day, comprising an average daily shipment of about forty tons.

Shipping of the material was geared to meet the daily output by the Government Printing Bureau where presses were kept humming day and night to turn out the 16,500,000 certificates, cards and forms.

About eight millions persons in Canada are within the age limits prescribed and will appear before district registrars on one of three dates, August 19, 20 and 21, set aside by the government for that purpose. As was stated in the House of Commons by Mr. Gardiner, it is impossible to have these cards filled and sent in by mail as the declaration on the card must be signed by both registrar and registrant after the questions have been answered.

However in order to relieve pressure in regular registration booths throughout Canada, arrangements are being made by the Department of War Services to permit industrial firms and other organizations to assist in taking the registration of their employees.

Registration
The Minister of National Defence, explaining plans for National Registration and calls for compulsory military training, said that as soon as possible after it was ascertained what year classes would have to be called to meet the first Council passed in 1873 grant-demand of the Department, a proclamation would be issued, nominating in regard to military warning all persons within service.

Unveiling Memorial Tablet, Smith's Cove

On Sunday next, August 18, at 11.00 a. m., the Chapel at Harbour View House, Smith's Cove, will be the scene of a service for the dedication of a Memorial Tablet, to the late Archbishop Richardson.

The tablet, which is attached to the face of a large granite boulder, just outside the Chapel, will be unveiled by Mrs. Richardson, and the ceremony of dedication will be performed by the Very Rev. A. H. Crowfoot, Dean of the Cathedral of Quebec.

The inscription on the tablet reads as follows:—
To the glory of God in memory of His faithful servant, John Andrew Richardson, D. D., Archbishop of Fredericton.
Born Oct. 30, 1868.
Died Oct. 7, 1938.

A beloved Father in God to the people of this community, by whom this tablet is gratefully erected.

It is more than twenty years since the group of summer visitors at Harbour View decided to erect a small church there, in order that they might have the privilege of hearing Bishop Richardson, as he then was, speak to them each Sunday morning, during the summer months. They secured the willing co-operation of the rector of the parish, the Rev. A. W. L. Smith, and the Chapel was built by Mr. Ralph Cossett, under the supervision of the Bishop himself. It is a perfect example of what such a building should be.

The little chapel was always filled to overflowing at the 11 a. m. service each Sunday, during July and August, and it is safe to say that few of those who attended failed to come under the spell of the Archbishop's personality and charm. Some of his earliest hearers have, also, passed away; but there are many still living who can testify that they returned to their tasks, at the end of each summer, refreshed in spirit by his means, and with a new sense of the power and beauty of a true Christianity.

Former Digby Man in Freak Accident

John Fulton Turnbull, 46-year-old Orillia, Ont., farmer, formerly of Digby, is in a critical condition in the hospital there, from a bullet wound in the abdomen, received Saturday, in a shooting accident at a revolver competition there.

Constable James McLaughlin, 33, of Windsor, Ont., is in serious condition, after being wounded by the same bullet. Police said the bullet was fired by Corp. W. W. Skuce, of the R.C.M.P., Ottawa.

Skuce and McLaughlin were taking part in a service revolver competition and had just completed a volley. Standing near them was Turnbull with an automatic revolver with which he had been shooting at a "re-entry" target. He is said to have ejected a hot shell from his automatic. The shell flew in the air and struck Skuce on the back. Skuce was subjected to an involuntary reflex action by which the muscles of his right arm tightened and he pulled the trigger of his revolver.

Skuce is believed to have turned as he pulled the trigger and the bullet first struck McLaughlin in the back and glanced off his ribs to enter Turnbull's abdomen through the back.

John Fulton Turnbull is a son of Mrs. George D. Turnbull, Queen Street. Dr. G. V. Turnbull is a brother.

One of the finest things to remember is what's best to forget.

Upsets are Scored in Sunday's Yacht Race

On Sunday's dying northerly wind, Dr. Lefebvre, coming up from last place the previous Sunday, led a field of 12 boats around Number 1 course to take first place by a good margin. Holding well up to windward towards the first buoy Dr. Lefebvre gained his advantage by not having to turn and to tack to make the first buoy. Roy Peters, who is leading the class in points, closed the gap somewhat on the run before the wind to the second buoy, but could not catch the new "Lightning" on the homeward leg. Behind Dr. Lefebvre and Roy Peters came Charlie Turnbull, Arthur Weyhe, G. P. Worsley and Norman Wright, in order. Percy Weir started out to enter the race a little late and could not get out of the Joggin in time to enter the race. Boats to date in Class I are:—Roy Peters, 20; C. Lefebvre, 15; C. Turnbull, 14; G. P. Worsley, 10; Percy Weir, 6; N. Wright, 5; A. Weyhe, 3.

In Class II, a very close race took place. George Saulnier, William Ganong and Bob Marshall's boat (sailed by Gordon Ellis) rounded the first buoy within ten feet of each other. At the second buoy they were close, but the order was reversed, George Saulnier being a little behind. On the homeward stretch Saulnier, in his boat, the "Polecat", passed the others and drew well ahead. A change of wind then caught the "Polecat" and Wm. Ganong came up and crossed the finish line just 10 seconds behind him.

Tomato Growers Organize

Tomato growers of western Nova Scotia, who produce the bulk of the commercial tomato crop of the province, have taken steps to organize for the better marketing of their product. At a meeting held very recently, the growers representing about 95 per cent of the annual production of commercial tomatoes, met and appointed a committee to complete the details of the new marketing organization. This committee, representing the two main sections of the tomato-growing areas, Berwick and Falmouth, include Earl Loomer and C. W. McLellan, of Falmouth; E. D. Halliburton, Avonport; John Chute, Berwick; H. E. Watts, Waterville, and D. H. Moran, Port Williams.

Meeting with the committee were: F. W. Walsh, director of marketing for the province, and C. M. Collins, provincial horticulturist, who has been working with the growers towards organization for some time. The purpose is a more orderly marketing of the Nova Scotia tomato crop, with grading of the product. The organization will be known as the Nova Scotia Tomato Growers' Association.

The estimate of the commercial crop for this year is about 40,000 11-quart baskets. Last year the crop totalled about 24,000 baskets. Nova Scotia produces a fine quality of tomato and the object of the organization is to put the Nova Scotia product on a better footing to compete with importations.

Army Worm Outbreaks

Outbreaks of army worm, of a fairly serious nature, are reported to the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, from two districts in Lunenburg County and two districts in Antigonish County. Other small outbreaks have also been reported. Farmers are warned to be on the outlook for the worm, and to take immediate steps to apply poisoning where outbreaks look serious. Farmers in the above-mentioned districts have already taken such action and it is hoped that damage from the worm will not be serious among the growing crops.

Current Clubs Annual Competition

Replacing the annual garment competition for the girls' garment clubs of the province, generally held at the provincial exhibition, now cancelled, the clubs had their annual competition exhibits on display at Truro, the past week, where they were judged by the supervisors of girls' club work for the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, the Misses Jean Munro, Winifred Armstrong, Kay Gunn, and Kay MacNeill. A total of 666 exhibits were entered by club members from all over the province, including many fine articles of apparel, made by the girls themselves from resources at their disposal at home. The display was on exhibit at this summer school for rural teachers which has been in progress at the Agricultural College, and a fashion show was staged for the students at this school, the following girls' club members participating: Edith Gutzmer, Walton; Jean Stevens, Malagash; Mary Carroll, West Annapolis; Marion and Ruth McCully, Bible Hill; Jessie McKel, Bay View; Ruby Blanchard, Lower Canada; Marion Russell, New Russell; and Mary Agnes McEachern, C. Dunmore.

At the summer school for rural teachers, at Truro, who are taking a special course in agriculture and rural life, the agricultural section was in charge of the extension division of the department of agriculture, for the past week with Dr. W. V. Longley, director, arranging the programme.

In order to encourage rural people to grow and preserve their own garden produce to a greater extent, the Nova Scotia department of agriculture has, this season, assisted certain rural groups, including garden clubs, in purchasing garden equipment, and seed has arranged demonstrations in canning and the use of this equipment. The can sealer makes possible the use of cans, a cheaper form of storing canned products than glass sealers. Demonstrations were in charge of the women's institutes division of the department, and Miss Macdougall, superintendent of institutes, and her staff, have given demonstrations at 30 points within recent weeks. The demonstrations have been well attended, and considered extremely successful.

Short Courses in Home Making

Six short courses in home making, for young girls in rural districts, have been held in the province this season, and two more are under way. One at Sherbrook, in Guysboro County, with 33 in attendance; and another at Walton, with 20 in attendance. The courses are under the direction of the women's institutes division of the Nova Scotia department of agriculture, and the institute branches at the various points have given much assistance in arranging the quarters and other details for the courses.

Pressing for Lower Feed Costs

Cost of feed grains to Maritime farmers is receiving the serious attention of the special feed committee of the wartime price board at Ottawa, and strong recommendations have been made by the committee to the price board for action to lower these costs and also to facilitate and encourage Maritime farmers to purchase at least part of their feed grain requirements early in the season.

This was the report made to the joint advisory council on agricultural services in Nova Scotia, which met very recently, in Halifax, under the chairmanship of Hon. John A. McDonald, minister of agriculture. The report was made by F. W. Walsh, director of marketing for Nova Scotia, and chairman at Ottawa of the sub-committee on feeds. Mr. Walsh has just returned from Ottawa.

With respect to feed grains, Mr. Walsh reported strong recommendations had been made once more that the freight rate on feed grains to the Maritimes from the west be put on the same level as the export rate, which would reduce the transportation costs by $2.90 a ton. Furthermore, in view of the fact that a serious problem is confronting the authorities now in connection with storage facilities for grain, with all elevator capacity now practically filled and a large crop coming up, there is a strong recommendation that all possible encouragement be given to farmers in the Maritimes to purchase at least part of their feed grain requirements as early as possible in the coming season, and thus relieve to some extent the storage problem, and also benefit by present costs that might later be higher. Further study is being given to this situation with respect to the possibility of importing and storing feed grains at suitable points in the Maritimes.

Mr. Walsh also reported on the situation with respect to the dairy industry and the hog industry.

History in the Sheep Industry

History is being made in the sheep industry in Nova Scotia, reported P. O. VanSickle, of the federal livestock division. Mr. VanSickle told of the inauguration of market lamb grading in Nova Scotia last fall, which was the first time in all Canada, and stated that this program, together with the program of education in the handling and feeding of sheep and the control of parasites now being conducted by the Nova Scotia department of agriculture, was bringing about a marked improvement in the industry here. He gave great praise to the work being done in this province.

Wire Bridges Recall Telegraph Project

Here and there in British Columbia are slender wire bridges constructed by Siwash Indians, across deep canyons of the Bulkley and other rivers. These wire bridges recall one of the greatest feats ever attempted, the building of a telegraph line around the world before the advent of the ocean cable, according to Canadian National Telegraphs. The wire used in the bridges formed part of the telegraph line. The Indians had a "unique" method of testing the bridges. They would send twenty squaws to the centre of the bridge to do a potlatch dance. If the bridge survived, then it was declared safe for the braves and pack horses. Of course, if the bridge had failed, why the twenty squaws just fell hundreds of feet into the canyon. And that was that.

The scheme called for the building of a telegraph line up the Pacific Coast of Canada to Alaska, thence by way of Bering Sea, across Siberia to Europe and to connect with telegraph lines already existing in Canada and the United States and in Europe. With the successful laying of the Atlantic cable in 1866, the project came to an end but not before hundreds of miles of telegraph line had been constructed in Canada and 15,000 telegraph poles had been cut, forty stations established, fifty miles of road cut through wilderness and preparations made throughout the 1,800-mile route from Bering Sea to the Amur. The project led to the purchase of Alaska by the United States and gave Great Britain her first fast communications with India, a branch being built from the Russian line to Northern India. In 1871 the Russian line was extended southward to Hong Kong and Nagasaki, giving the Far East its first telegraphic contact with Europe and thence by cable to North America.

Fur Production Increases in Value

Notwithstanding that the fur trade which at one time was predominate among Canadian industries has receded into a less important position with the industrialization of the country and the greater development of natural resources, the fur industry still plays an important part in the lives of many Canadians and the continued demand for furs of both common and luxury varieties keeps fur trappers and fur farmers actively engaged. Fur is still the principal source of livelihood of the native population in the Northwest Territories and the value of raw fur production for the 1938-39 season amounted to $1,205,616. Total number of pelts produced for all Canada totalled 6,450,592 as against 4,745,927 the previous season. The 1938-39 output was valued at $14,206,750, an increase of eight per cent over the season of 1937-38. Fur farms accounted for 40 per cent of the total. Silver fox as usual held first place followed by mink and muskrat in third place. Beaver showed a considerable increase in the number of pelts and a marked advance in price. Other kinds of fur recording increases were ermine, fish, white fox, otter, skunk, and squirrel.

Nine infantry battalions, five motorcycle regiments, a forestry corps and additional coast defence units have been formed since the present parliamentary session started.

77 Airdromes to Cost $15,500,000

According to Honourable C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, the anticipated cost of airdrome construction on 77 projects now approved for construction in connection with the Joint Air Training plan is $15,500,000. Up to the present it has involved the purchase of 30,000 acres of land at a cost of approximately $2,000,000.

Enough Cloth to Hang Hitler

Since the outbreak of war the Department of Munitions and Supply and its predecessor boards have purchased over 18 million yards of woollen and cotton cloth, enough to stretch from Ottawa to Berlin and back again, according to Hon. C. D. Howe.

Hitler's Gift To England

Hitler is providing a generous dietary to one considerable section of Holland's living things.

Dutch cattle are growing fat on tulip bulbs.

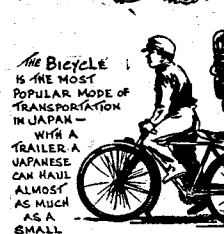

The Nazis have wiped out Holland's fields of daffodils, hyacinths and tulips. There is a ban on all bulb growing, so Dutch stocks are now being destroyed or used up for cattle feed. The cattle like tulip bulbs best.

The result is that England has just offered U. S. A. 40,000,000 English-grown daffodil, tulip and hyacinth bulbs for $250,000.

Little Holland, in Lincolnshire, has already got 6,000 acres of bulbs; for some years now the Dutch growers themselves have come to England for the costlier specimens.

The British Ministry of Agriculture had ruled that not more than three-quarters of last year's bulb acreage should be sown, but the order will probably be cancelled as flower-bulbs to-day are more valuable.

Oil Cans Considered Dangerous for Food

It has been brought to the attention of the Dominion Department of Agriculture that many people are making use of oil cans for the carrying of foods.

The use of oil cans for food, is considered to be very dangerous practice since they are made of Terne plate, a plating which is almost wholly lead, and very small amounts of lead are poisonous.

Cans made expressly for foods are entirely different and can be bought at a nominal price from hardware stores and mail order houses. Years of research have gone into the manufacture of cans for canning food, with the result that the inside plating is lead free. This is done to make it impossible for foods to become contaminated with lead, and no cans should be used for fruits, vegetables, meats or fish other than those made as food cans.

Oil cans are not food cans and should not be used for any food product.

Canadian Frenchmen Will Share the British Victory

Those who have been surprised at the absence of commotion in Quebec over the collapse of France and the subsequent deterioration of that distressed country's relationships with Britain must have been extremely ill-informed about the real character of the ancient province. The people of Quebec are Canadians. This is the essential point to remember. For the culture and racial memories of Old France they have a nostalgic regard. When dreadful things happened to Frenchmen they deeply feel the pain within themselves. Yet they are Canadians, living on the banks of the St. Lawrence and the North River and the Rouge and the St. Maurice. The mountains they love are the Laurentians and the rounded old volcanoes rising out of the river plain. The disappearance of France as a great nation horrified them as it horrified Canadians of every racial origin. But, as in every other part of Canada, the terrible blow served only to strengthen the resolve of the people of Quebec. Cultural bonds did not bind them to Britain, but the stark fact was that Britain had become their only hope, as it had become the only hope of other Canadians, and of all the peoples of the Americas. Canada has never been so closely united as in this present hour. The British Commonwealth has never been so single of purpose. The little known and kindly people whose trees dip into the waters of the St. Francis and who see narrow fields climb the lower flanks of Mount Bruno are partners in the merged determination of this grim time. The Canadians of Quebec will be partners in the days and months ahead, and they will be partners in victory when the lights are turned up again around the world.

To Service Vehicles in Canadian Divisions

Mechanization is the keynote of modern warfare. Wars of movement are fought on heavy rubber tires and steel caterpillar treads. Fighting vehicles and mechanized transport must be kept in readiness at all times to speed troops across all types of terrain, ranging from smooth concrete highways to brush country and ploughed fields. All this means service. Armies and army divisions cannot count on wayside garages and service stations to do their repair and re-fuelling jobs. To meet these needs the Department of National Defence has introduced specialized units and equipment as part of its Army Field Workshops.

Each army division in the field is accompanied by two complete motor transport lorries. Each is the equivalent of a modern city garage. Designed by the Department's technical staff, each unit has a special steel body mounted on six wheels with four wheel drive and heavy duty chassis, equipped with its own electrical plant, to operate electric grinders, drills, refacers, lathes. Each workshop lorry is equipped with brake servicing equipment and other tools.

Lubrication, battery service and overhauling facilities, including the boring of cylinders, the fitting of pistons, valve grinding and welding are provided in this modern garage on wheels.

All tools required, specially designed by the Department's technical experts with a view to portability, are part of each lorry unit.

According to the Department of National Defence, Canada's is the first army to adapt such units to regular Army divisions.

HOW THE LETTER X CAME TO SIGNIFY A KISS

In long-ago days when few people could write, a person would draw a cross on a paper instead of signing his name. Immediately after doing so, he kissed it solemnly, just as today a person kisses a Bible in a court of law. The kiss and a cross became practically synonymous and in our day, lovers exercise the privilege of using a cross as a symbol of a kiss.

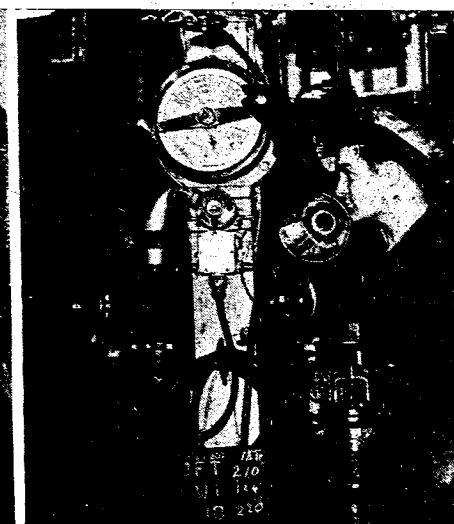

30 MILLION TONS OF SALT

That is the world consumption of salt according to a statistician who states that this amount of coarse salt would cover a square mile of land to a depth of 30 feet and yet could be obtained by evaporation from one-fifth of a cubic mile of sea water. It is an astounding fact that in Canada alone at Windsor, Ontario, there is enough salt to last the world, should all other sources fail, for close to 100,000 years.

SPEED AND MANOEUVRE ABILITY OF THE NAVY THEIR RESPONSIBILITY

Highly skilled and capable, the men who man the engine-rooms of Canadian destroyers are the daring heroes of the R. C. N. Back from an inspection of his hot and clamorous domain comes the chief engineer of a Canadian destroyer, (left). So high is the temperature in a destroyer engine room that entry must be made through a special compartment to prevent a blast of air shooting upward and sucking flame from the fire doors into the faces of the stokers. The engineer has just closed an air-tight door under his feet, before opening the hatch through which he is emerging. Entries and departures from the stokehold must be carried out in this way, one man at a time. Beautiful Bronze Tablet Is Unveiled

At an impressive ceremony at St. Anne's Chapel, Harbor View Colony, Smith's Cove, Sunday morning a bronze tablet, fastened to the face of a massive granite boulder which stands in front of the little rustic church, was unveiled and dedicated to the memory of John Andrew Richardson, D.D., Archbishop of Fredericton, under whose personal supervision, as Bishop of Fredericton, the little chapel was built some twenty-five years ago.

The tablet was unveiled by Mrs. Richardson, widow of the beloved Archbishop. The ceremony of dedication was performed by the Very Rev. A. H. Crowfoot, dean of the cathedral, Quebec, and chairman of the committee named to supervise the erection of the memorial.

For many years Bishop Richardson and his family were summer residents of Harbor View. In order that they could have the pleasure of hearing him, summer residents of the colony, with the co-operation of Rev. A. W. L. Smith, rector of the parish, summer residents of Harbor View decided to build the church, where His Grace spoke each Sunday morning during his vacations. Many other prominent clergymen, among them His Grace the Bishop of London, England, have delivered inspiring messages from the pulpit of little St. Anne's.

The committee named last summer to decide upon the form of the memorial unveiled on Sunday is as follows: Dean A. H. Crowfoot, Rev. A. W. L. Smith, Rev. W. O. Kinsolving, Rev. J. W. B. Stewart, Casswell Barrie, A. D. Cossaboom, R. E.

Lindbergh Painted as a Tragic Hero

(Chicago Times)

The tragedy of Charles A. Lindbergh reached its zenith with his speech Sunday before the "Keep America Out of War" mass meeting in Soldier Field.

When Lindbergh made his historic flight across the Atlantic 13 years ago, he probably achieved the greatest popularity of any man in the world. He seemed to represent all the valor and daring and simple modesty that earth-bound mortals everywhere secretly desired for themselves and admired in any other.

When he suffered the tragic loss of his kidnapped son, no man in the world had so many millions mourn with him and extend their heartfelt sympathy. And when he fled, hurt and bewildered, seeking sanctuary abroad, millions understood and approved his move.

When this strange, new Lindbergh appeared, no one wanted to believe that the change could be true. When Lindbergh accepted a high decoration from Hitler's man Goering, millions generously excused the action as something that just happened that way and couldn't well be helped.

Widespread doubts first grew when Lindbergh made his first speech of the European war. When the colonel's mother-in-law, the distinguished Mrs. Dwight Morrow, went on the air with what seemed a direct and sharp rebuttal, those doubts deepened. But even then, even after Lindbergh made a second speech tinged with appeasement, the public was reluctant to think that its great idol had descended from his pedestal.

Sunday's Speech Ended Illusion

But after Sunday's speech at Soldier Field, little remains of the picture of the valiant and daring youth of 1927. Where once was daring, his listeners "alarm" over the position of the United States. In place of valor was a feeble attempt to excuse Nazi Germany's barbarism and aggression on the grounds that the Versailles treaty was unjust, and a plea that the United States think of the necessity of "getting along" with a victorious Hitler.

It was less what Col. Lindbergh said than what he did not say which condemned him. Not one word did he utter to indicate that there was in his mind any condemnation of dictatorship, tyranny and aggression. Indeed, what he did say indicated that so far as the colonel is concerned, he sees little or nothing in totalitarianism to criticize. For example, he said:

"... Whether England or Germany wins this war, western civilization will still depend upon two great centres, one in each hemisphere. Let us offer Europe a plan for the progress and protection of the western civilization of which they and we each form a part."

What does Col. Lindbergh mean by "western civilization"? Does he include beating, torturing and robbing of Jews and devout Christians as falling within "western civilization"? Are concentration camps, terrorist secret police, firing squads and whipping posts part of that civilization? Are treaty violations, treachery, the invasion of peaceful neutrals, representative of this civilization?

Digby Mourns Death of Former Mayor

The death of James Lorán Peters, well-known retired business man and a former mayor of the town, took place at his residence, Montague Row, on Thursday evening last, at the advanced age of 85 years. He was born in Westport and was a son of the late J. Alfred Peters. He was well known throughout the province and for more than half a century conducted a prosperous dry goods business here. He retired from business in 1926 when he sold out to Mrs. B. J. Roop. Besides being mayor of the town he served several terms in the council. He was a prominent Oddfellow, a charter member of St. George Lodge (now in its 50th year), and its treasurer for many years. He had been in poor health for a number of years and suffered a stroke on Monday of last week from which he never rallied. Surviving are one brother, Geo. H. Peters, stipendiary magistrate; two sisters, Mrs. W. R. Tibbets, Winthrop, Mass., who had been visiting her brother and returned to her home a few days before he was stricken; and Mrs. Lillian Clark, of Digby. His wife predeceased him 24 years. The funeral, under the auspices of St. George Lodge, took place on Sunday afternoon, Rev. A. G. Robertson, pastor of the United Baptist church officiating, assisted by Rev. F. B. Gaskill, rector of Trinity church.

Received Degree In Edinburgh

Among those receiving degrees at the summer graduation at Edinburgh University, was James Russell Mallory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Mallory, of St. Andrews, who obtained the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Mr. Mallory is a graduate of the University of New Brunswick, having received the degree of Bachelor of Arts with Honours in Economics and Political Science from that University in 1937. In June of that year he took part in a debating tour of Great Britain under the auspices of the Overseas League and entered Edinburgh University in the autumn of that year. While at Edinburgh Mr. Mallory was active in student affairs, having been editor of one of the University magazines and president of the Law Faculty Society. Since last September he has been lecturer in International Affairs at Kirk O'Field, College, an adult education centre for working men and women and has lectured for the Workers' Educational Association and the University Extra-Mural Board.

On the 24th of June, he married, in Edinburgh, Frances Daniel Keller, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Schneck Keller and the late Lieutenant Daniel Schneck Keller, U. S. A., of Rosemont, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Mallory was educated at the Shipley School, Bryn Maur, and Bryn Maur College and Edinburgh University. Mr. and Mrs. Mallory sailed from Liverpool in late July for Canada and arrived in St. Andrews on August 3rd, from Montreal. After a short visit with Mr. Mallory's parents, they will go on to Boston, New York and Philadelphia, where they will visit relatives and friends.

(Mrs. Charles Mallory is a daughter of the late Capt. Jas. Outhouse, and grand-daughter of the late B. R. Haines, of Freeport.)

WHY FLAGS ARE FLOWN AT HALF-MAST

Dipping the flag is a sign of respect often used by ships that pass each other and by companies of soldiers on passing a saluting point. Out of this practice has arisen the custom that when a ship is captured by an enemy vessel, the vanquished is forced to dip its flag permanently, and the flag of the conquering ship is flown above it, at the top of the mast; there are thus two flags flying. When a well-known person dies, flags are flown at half-mast, the inference being that the flag of death is flying invisibly at the top, death having conquered in this case.

Yacht Club Picnic an Unqualified Success

The Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club's picnic on Bear Island on Sunday turned out to be a big success in every way. After a threatening early morning it cleared off with a nice moderate westerly breeze. The boats assembled at the Town Slip at 10.30 and on a signal from Commodore McKel left for the island.

The fleet anchored at the southwestern end of the island and after dressing ship everyone went ashore. Later other boats of the Club came and the fleet of seventeen boats made a yachting picture that has not been seen for many years on Annapolis Basin.

Swimming, ring toss and batting practice was enjoyed by the crews. Even Dunn's new sailboat was then drawn for the lucky winner being Dr. Lefebvre, with ticket number 98. The boat is one built by Mr. Dunn last winter and is much the style of Mr. Worsley's present yacht, the Peter Pan.

After dinner a game of softball, according to softball rules was enjoyed by everybody, the result being that Harold Nichols' team won over Arthur Weir's by a score of 12-2.

The danger of several boats grounding forced a speedy evacuation in some cases, the boats leaving about 3.30. Chas. McBride had some trouble with the Polecats, whose centreboard was down when it grounded. Mr. Worsley and Roy Peters had some trouble in getting away from the lee shore. Lee Hanson getting soaked in doing a good job of getting them off.

A nice beat back to the moorings was afforded by the fresh westerly wind, everybody sorry that the trip was over so soon. Among those taking boats were: Commodore McKel, Vice-Commodore Lefebvre, Percy Weir, Arthur Weir, Charles Power, Harold Nichols, Clayton Snow, Earl Morrell, Dr. Rogers, G. P. Worsley, Charlie McBride, Roy Peters, Charlie Turnbull, Norman Wright, Wm. Garong and Mr. Sinclair, of the yacht Mahoe, from Jamaica.

Two Bear River Boys Lose Lives in Basin

Until late Tuesday morning, there still seemed some hope the two Bear River Boys, Conrad and Johnstone Harris, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Harris, might be found alive. Since, all hope has been abandoned. Their canoe, in which they left Bear River for Digby, Monday, at 12.30 p. m., was found shortly before noon Tuesday, near the Life Saving Station, Bay View. Paddles, and a bundle of clothing, identified as belonging to Conrad Harris, was also found in the same vicinity. No alarm was felt until Monday evening, when Johnstone, the younger of the two brothers, failed to return to Bear River with Richard R. Baxter, Digby grocer, who resides in Bear River, next door to the Harris family. When the boys left for Digby they had planned that Johnstone would return with Mr. Baxter in the evening. Conrad, who is a lineman, working on the Digby Telephone Exchange, had been spending his annual vacation at his home, and was returning to Digby to get back on his job here.

Monday evening inquiries were made all along Bear River and Smith's Cove. Several persons reported seeing the boys paddling down stream early in the afternoon. It was also said a canoe was seen to land on Bear Island at the mouth of the Island, at about 2.30 p. m. Monday.

Although a search of the Island Tuesday morning, failed to reveal anything to bear it out, it is felt the Harris boys landed on the Island, and in order to avoid tidal currents and wind, took the canoe across to the further side and launched it again.

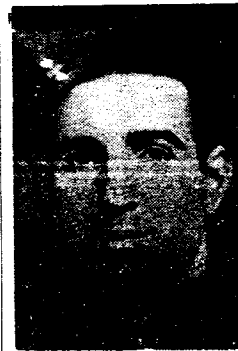

At Smith's Cove it was learned that cries for help were heard. The cries seemed to come from the water in the vicinity of Mountain Gap Inn, about three o'clock Monday afternoon. No sign of any boat or person could be seen, however. Nevertheless, the time and location coincide with the Bear Island theory.

An intensive search, hampered by fog and rain, was conducted Tuesday, many of the boats of the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club, Digby, taking part. Mr. Baxter, with Guy D. Dunn and Kenneth Margeson, of Digby, in Dunn's motor boat, patrolled the Basin and River Monday night until five a. m., Tuesday morning. The Life Saving Station crew at Bay View were asked to search, but unfortunately, the lifeboat was out of repair.

MOST people who visit Magnetic Hill, near Moncton, N.B., stop at "The Shanty" tearoom for pancakes, a specialty of Miss Muriel Lutes, who is in charge of the tearoom.

"Some people haven't the knack of making good pancakes," Miss Lutes says. "Our forebears liked them thin, but plentiful, and they used them served with country sausage or swimming in maple syrup. They are to New Brunswick what blueberries are to Boston. But, to make good pancakes, you need good flour. Being cooked quickly, it is important to have a fine flour with plenty of 'body' to it, and to my mind there is no flour like Robin Hood for making tasty pancakes."

Her Pancake Secret

"When tourists ask me how I make my pancakes, I always tell them to use Robin Hood Flour. This is my secret not only for pancakes but for all good baking. I have used Robin Hood as long as I can remember for cakes, pies, bread, and, in fact, for all our baking. It is certainly the favorite in this part of the country."

Water-Washed and Guaranteed
Robin Hood Flour carries in each bag a "money-back plus 10%" guarantee certificate. The certificate authorizes your dealer to return your money plus 10 per cent if you do not find that Robin Hood gives you absolute satisfaction in all your baking. Robin Hood is milled from the finest Western wheat and all the wheat is water-washed before being milled into Robin Hood Flour. Order a bag to-day and you'll find that Robin Hood Flour will make your baking lighter and finer with less effort.

FREEPORT

The high spot of the tourist season was reached Thursday evening, when Tom Brooks played host to his many friends and the vacationists in the community with a picnic at Flour Cove, the feature of which was a clam bake put on by the popular chef, Ted Brooks. Six cars were used in the transportation of the participants to the place, which seemed to have been carved out by Nature for just such an occasion. Sandwiches, pies and cakes were supplied in abundance—not to forget the bushel of clams which made up the grand finale. Mrs. Egbert Crocker led in a short song-fest, and George McNeil, the local poet laureate, recited a poem, written by his father on a local ship wreck. John G. Sullivan made a brief address in which he paid tribute to the fine generous spirit of Mr. Brooks, who responded with words of praise for the people of this community. Later a cruise around Grand Passage was had in Brooks' motor boat.

About This and That

A financial writer in Berlin says, "never will Germany again allow herself to be strangled by a gold noose around her neck." He must have been thinking of the late Mr. William J. Bryan, and borrowed a phrase or two.

Queen Isabella of Spain was born in 1451, and died in 1504. General Franco is trying to tell the world that she wants Gibraltar back. Some one has been a devilishly long time discovering that the poor lady is not resting easy.

Will attempts to crack British morale by pounding on grandstands in Berlin succeed? The answer may be written on those cards that the British Government sent to its civilian population instructing them in defense against invasion: "If the parachutists land near your home they will not be feeling at all brave."—Christian Science Monitor.

Not much is heard about Dr. Robert Lev. He dwells in Germany and is said to be close to the All-Highest. Now and then he tells the German people the truth. This happened last month. He declared, for public consumption, that the staying powers of the British people are strong, and the Nazis must be prepared for a long struggle. When Dr. Lev refers to British staying powers he has all history to prove the accuracy of his words. Reasonably good natured, tolerant, giving and expecting a square deal, and slow to real anger, the British when thoroughly aroused, do possess staying powers. And this time they are aroused.

Word comes that the Italian officers and crew rescued from the Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni were grateful not only for the rescue itself, but for the fact that they'd have British meals in their internment camp till the end of the war. They didn't like to tell it to their captors, but did finally admit that the rations aboard ship had been growing slimmer daily, and that the food shortage in Italy was growing worse every week. It was true in the previous war that enemy soldiers, once they had actually surrendered to Britain, were glad to have done so. They were more comfortable in British hands than they had been under their own standards. The several thousands of German prisoners now in internment in Canada, are said to be still acting in the Nazi manner. It will be interesting to see whether they maintain their arrogance after a few months acquaintance with Canadian bread and butter.

Junk has its place in the world of affairs today. It's becoming important. Not so long ago it was just junk; obscure and unimportant. But in the years from 1914 to 1918 the junk trade blossomed out as big business. And history, comments McDonald White in The Rotarian, seems to be on the point of being repeated. In the last struggle, scrap iron went from $4 to $42 a ton. Already, in this conflict, the price is climbing. If it continues, high steel prices may slow down construction work and production of both capital and consumer goods for years to come. Or at least until guns, armaments, bayonets, and "duds" can be converted into plowshares. As mines are exhausted, as wars irretrievably waste Nature's largess, as man by political action cuts off his fellow-man from sources of much-needed supply, the junk business will continue to grow. It's a business with a future!

"Army Biscuit Too Dainty" ran the headline of a recent story in a British newspaper—a story that told how the army biscuit of today is a delicate morsel, one-eighth of an inch thick, wrapped in glycerine-soaked paper, and warranted to melt in the mouth. Old soldiers, no doubt, snorted distastefully when they read this, comments the Christian Science Monitor, and thought of the biscuit of their day, that was a biscuit. It was not perhaps comparable to the "hard tack" of the ancient mariners, nor did it have the flavor of antiquity that clings to the railway buffet bun; but it showed that the bulldog breed had a bite equal to their bark, and that it was no empty boast to say that, in the matter of iron-jawed resolution, the British soldier "took the biscuit." He is still the same man, as he has proved in the teeth of opposition, if not with them, and it must not be imagined that his stamina has crumbled with the biscuit. On the contrary, this improvement in his food can certainly be applauded on the ground that the brave deserve the fare.

Pierce - Sabine

A quite but pretty wedding was solemnized in the Hertz Memorial United Church on Wednesday morning, August 14 at 10.30 o'clock, when Stella Maude, only daughter of Mrs. Martha Sabine and the late Mr. Sabine, became the bride of Galen Roy Pierce, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Pierce, Wilmet, N. S. The bride who was given in marriage by her brother, Richard Sabine, was becomingly gowned in a street dress of navy sheer, with navy and white accessories, and wore a corsage bouquet of snapdragon. The couple were unattended, the ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Kirk, of the Middleton United Church. The church had been prettily decorated in a color scheme of pink and white by friends of the contracting parties. Miss Frances Lent presided at the organ and played appropriate music during the ceremony. The ushers were Curtis Hankinson, Middleton, and Jack McNeil, Weymouth. Both bride and groom are graduates of the Provincial Normal College, Truro, and have taught successfully in various schools throughout the province, including the Weymouth school of which the groom was principal for five years. Mr. Pierce is also a graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville, and for the past two summers has attended the University of Toronto. They will reside at Lockeport, N. S., where the groom is principal of the High School.

Sabine - Eaton

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Eaton, of Berwick, and Richard Sabine, son of Mrs. Martha Sabine, and the late Mr. Sabine, of Weymouth, was quietly solemnized by Rev. Donald Stockford, a few weeks ago, and has just been announced. The young couple are residing in Weymouth. The bride is manageress of the local branch of the Royal Store.

Kinney - Roop

A very pretty wedding of much interest to friends in the Maritimes was solemnized at Baptist Parsonage, Barton, on Wednesday, August 14, when Rev. F. E. Roop, assisted by Rev. A. G. Robertson, united in marriage his eldest daughter, Ena Fale, to Rice W. Kinney, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kinney, also of Barton. The bride was charming in a rose lace gown with matching coronet, and carrying an arm bouquet of gladioli, cluster roses and fern. As the bridal couple took their places within the arch of beautiful flowers, the solo "I Love You Truly" was rendered by the bride's sister, Mrs. Vernon Peveril, accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Lottie Roop, who also played Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches. The bride was given in marriage by her elder brother, Soley Roop, now on holiday from St. Paul, Minn. The ceremony was witnessed by nearly thirty guests. After the signing of the register, an informal hour was spent, during the reception at which two of the bride's Acadia chums, Mrs. Marion Davies and Miss Margaret Hutchins, served, assisted by Miss Hazel Peveril and Mrs. Norman Peveril. Both bride and groom are graduates of Acadia University. The wedding gifts were numerous and beautiful, including those of two showgirls held in her home in Halifax, where she was secretary for the C.H.N.S., at the Lord Nelson Hotel; also a number of cheques graced the array of gifts. The groom's gift to the bride was a cheque, to the soloist a brooch, and to the pianist a crystal necklace. A merry send-off was given Mr. and Mrs. Kinney as they left for an auto-trip to Cape Breton and over the Cabot Trail. On their return they will reside in Barton, where the groom is a successful merchant. Among the out-of-town guests were: Dr. and Mrs. Hutchins and daughter Margaret of Wolfville; Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Robertson and Miss Edith Mullen, Digby; Soley Roop, St. Paul, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Peveril and Miss Hazel Peveril, Bedford; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sullivan and daughter, Ray Peveril, all of Moncton; Mrs. Marion Dowes, Waverly; Miss Josie Roop, Mrs. Reagh Burns and daughter Phyllis, Clementsport; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harris and Mrs. Lottie Roop, Bear River.

Large Number Witness Blessing of Statue

On Sunday, Aug. 11, in the Catholic Church of Waterford, interesting, impressive ceremonies were the cause of happiness and joy for Catholics in that little community, so picturesquely situated, overlooking the waters of a beautiful Bay.

At 10.30 Solemn High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Michael Doucet, Pastor of Wedgeport, assisted by Rev. Jovite Doucet, of Saultneville, acting as Deacon and Rev. Alphonse Comeau, acting as Sub-Deacon.

The choir was under the able direction of the Rev. Luc Gaudet, of Plympton, and a Mass in three voices was sung.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, a ceremony, simple in its kind, but impressive in its nature, was witnessed by a great number of persons from Weymouth, Plympton, Digby and adjoining vicinities. The blessing of a statue representing a Roman soldier, Saint Longinus, was performed by Rev. Michael Doucet. Rev. Father Murphy, pastor of Annapolis Royal, delivered the sermon on the life of St. Longinus, how he had, with the Lord, mounted the rough and tortuous way to Calvary, and his rapid conversion at the foot of the cross on which he recognized Christ, true God, and true man. Useful lessons were given for all.

Immediately followed the service of the Blessed Sacrament. Officiating were Rev. Michael Doucet, Rev. Bereron, of Three Rivers, P. Q.; and Rev. Alphonse Comeau, Weymouth. The closing hymn, "Mother Dear, O Pray for Me", was rendered by the entire congregation.

Two Grand Attractions at the Capitol

"Waterloo Bridge," Vivien Leigh's second American film, starring her with Robert Taylor, which opens Monday evening at the Capitol Theatre establishes her more firmly as one of the screen's greatest actresses, while Taylor shares honors with her in the finest role of his career. Miss Leigh and Taylor are perfectly teamed as the romantic lovers in the Robert E. Sherwood drama. As Myra Lester, a petite ballet dancer, Miss Leigh displays a more charming, gentler and more sympathetic side of her vivid personality than she did in her Academy Award performance of Scarlett O'Hara. It is difficult to believe that the same actress could portray two such opposite roles.

Taylor makes the most of a difficult characterization as a young British officer, Capt. Roy Croft, who meets the little dancer on historic Waterloo Bridge during an air raid, winning her heart in a whirlwind twenty-four hour romance. One of the demands of his role requires him to age from twenty-five to forty-eight giving him a new maturity and dignity.

There will be thrills and excitement aplenty when the stirring film "Virginia City" opens at the Capitol Wednesday evening. The picture co-stars Errol Flynn and Miriam Hopkins as two people whose conflicting missions take them on a hazardous journey across the Painted Desert. Errol Flynn as a tough, two-fisted adventurer is said to have surpassed even his success in "Dodge City," and a new, vivid Miriam Hopkins is revealed in the part of a dancing, fighting spitfire.

"Virginia City" is an intriguing story of gold-smuggling during the first stages of the Civil War. Errol Flynn, a Union Intelligence officer, escapes from a Confederate prison and learns of a conspiracy to smuggle five million dollars worth of gold out of Virginia City to aid the South, but he doesn't realize that Miriam Hopkins, with whom he is deeply in love, is one of the conspirators. The situation becomes even more exciting when Humphrey Bogart, as a notorious bandit attacks the Union Garrison outside of Virginia City and the gold caravan starts its mad dash during the raid.

Humphrey Bogart, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams all give excellent performances in the supporting roles.

Canada Helps By Building Fleet

If Adolf Hitler extends his war against the British Empire to the Western Hemisphere, one of the defenses he will meet will be the Canadian Navy.

A year ago that navy was insignificant. It had but 15 ships to defend one of the longest coastlines in the world. The biggest of them were half a dozen swift destroyers.

Today the fleet has a hundred ships, including big armed merchant cruisers, in action on the seas. Ninety more are building, the first of them due to hit the ways this month.

The new craft are being specially made for warfare over and under the water. They carry anti-air guns to fight planes and "Y-guns" to drop depth charges on submarines. They would be formidable antagonists for the German "mosquito" fleet of torpedo boats, for they are small, slightly shorter than destroyers—and fast and designed to stand up under a beating from the heavy swells of the North Atlantic Ocean.

This fleet embodies Canada's determination not to let the burden of its first line of defense fall either on the United States protection guaranteed by the Monroe Doctrine or on the British fleet.

In fact, the Dominion Navy has already reversed the usual procedure and has sent warships to European waters to defend the motherland that has been done.

Other Canadian vessels range over the greater part of the Western Hemisphere, in the Atlantic, and around the Caribbean Sea.

Buy Feed Grains Early

Farmers of Nova Scotia who must make purchases of feed grain for the coming winter feeding season should make every possible effort to do so early in the season, preferably within the next few weeks. This was the recommendation made by F. W. Walsh, director of marketing for Nova Scotia, and chairman of the national committee on live stock feeds under the wartime prices and trade board.

Mr. Walsh made this recommendation in the course of a special broadcast recently over the Maritime network of the CBC during which he discussed the entire feed situation for the benefit of Maritime farmers. The broadcast was in the nature of an interview conducted by C. J. W. Shugg, supervisor of farm broadcasts for the CBC.

In his broadcast Mr. Walsh pointed out that in spite of the efforts of the Maritime departments of agriculture to encourage farmers here to grow more homegrown feeds, the Maritimes are still importing about 139,000 tons each year, of which Nova Scotia's share was about 70,000 tons.

Said Mr. Walsh, "we believe that over a period of years, under a system of good soil and crop management, a considerable portion of these feeds could be produced in our home farms. Nevertheless, at the present time the livestock maintained on our farms require this amount of grain. Unless this quantity of feed is purchased for the coming season of winter feeding, livestock numbers will have to be drastically reduced."

Mr. Walsh stated that a considerable addition had been made this season to grain acreages in the province, because of the response made by the farmers to the greater production campaign. Furthermore, it was felt that with better cultural methods, the yield of grain on present acreages could be increased by five bushels an acre.

The immediate concern is for the coming feeding season, and Mr. Walsh strongly urged that farmers make every effort to purchase their requirements early this fall, while water navigation was open. He stated many farmers had followed this practice in past years and had saved money. One farmer he knew who had followed this practice for ten years had saved money in nine of the ten, in amounts ranging from $2 to $10 a ton.

Too many farmers, said Mr. Walsh, followed the practice after the cattle were housed in the fall, of feeding what grain they had and only purchasing after their own supply was used up. There were two weaknesses to such a practice, first, that their own feed which was largely oats and barley, was not properly balanced to give best feeding value and second, the price at which the farmer finally purchases these feeds is generally higher than earlier in the season.

Mr. Walsh pointed out that he realized that it might be difficult for farmers not only to find storage space on their farms for early-purchased feed grains, but also to arrange finances to purchase. He felt, however, that the money saved by such early purchases was such that farmers should not have too much difficulty in arranging the finances, and so far as storage was concerned, even barn floors could be used in a pinch.

Mr. Walsh stated that there was a strong movement towards more intelligent feeding on the part of Maritime farmers and that more attention was being paid to properly balanced rations.

Creamery Butter Production

Creamery butter production from Nova Scotia creameries totalled 882,183 pounds for July, compared with 842,333 lbs. in July last year, an increase of 4.73 per cent, according to the monthly report of W. J. Bird, superintendent of dairying for the province. Production since the beginning of the year has been 7,533,044 lbs., an increase of 3.63 per cent for the same seven months of last year. The average Montreal price quotation for July on No. 1 butter was 22.22 cents a pound, compared with 21.45 cents per pound in July, 1939.

Canning Factories Processing Beans

Canning factories at Pictou and Middleton are busy processing field peas just now, with a substantial crop reported from both areas. The Magee plant at Pictou, which has about 250 acres under contract this season, expects to put up close to 35,000 cases. A substantial volume is also being put up at Middleton. The pea crop in the Pictou area has been quite heavy this year and a good average per acre is anticipated. The same is reported from Annapolis county. White, agricultural representative in that county, reports the pea crop is the best in the three years that peas have been processed there, with an anticipated average of 1½ tons per acre.

Tomato Growers Complete Organization

As announced last week, tomato growers in the valley areas, where the bulk of Nova Scotia commercial crop of tomatoes is produced, have organized to market their crop, and at a meeting in Kentville, the organization was completed with Earl Loomer, of Falmouth, as president; H. H. Pulsifer, of New Minas, vice-president; and Chas. Payzant, Falmouth, as secretary. The crop controlled by the association will be close to 40,000 baskets.

Many Reports of Army Worms
Army worm has been active among grain crops in many counties, according to reports coming into the various offices of the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture. Active poisoning operations are being carried out in the seriously affected areas, which include districts in Antigonish, Colchester, Guysboro, Victoria, Yarmouth, Digby and Lunenburg counties, with small areas in other counties are also effected. Farmers are warned to keep a close watch for the worm, and if not sufficiently informed on methods of treatment, to contact their local agricultural representative at once. The most effective poison bait is a bran mixture, using 100 pounds of bran to four pounds of paris green, moistened slightly to make spreading easy.

Fertilizer Council

The annual meeting of the Maritime Fertilizer Council will be held at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Nappan, on September 11, when there will be discussions on the immediate problems in connection with the fertilizer industry and a review of fertilizer experiments at the Nappan farm.

Capon Being Marketed

Fresh Capon, of which there will be a considerable volume marketed this season through co-operative organizations in the province, has begun already to come in. Two poultry pools for the marketing of chicken, capon and fowl were held during the past week, one at New Germany, in Lunenburg County, and the other at Bridgetown, in Annapolis County. The New Germany pool, of which something over 1,000 pounds was marketed, was handled through the co-operative egg station at the New Germany Fruit Company and was made up of both chicken and capon, grading fairly high in quality. At Bridgetown, Annapolis county producers handled close to 1,800 pounds co-operatively in a pool held on August 15, made up of some 800 pounds of capon, 1,400 pounds of chicken and about 1500 pounds of fowl. The poultry all graded well up to the capon being in the milked grades, and over 60 per cent of the chicken being in the top grades. Both lots of poultry from these pools went into the wholesale trade in Halifax, at top prices, the sale being handled through the Canadian Livestock Co-operative.

IS NEW, BUT USEFUL

When a ukulele-playing fisherman found himself in an isolated summer colony without a new string for his instrument, he used part of a nylon fishing leader as a temporary substitute. Or rather, he thought it was going to be temporary, but the nylon string outlasted the gut by several months, and now he strums nothing else. This unexpected use for the synthetic filament, which is one of the newest products of the chemical laboratory, seems to be as satisfactory for ukulele strings as for fishing leaders or replacing silk for women's stockings.

The difference between a woman's clothes and a man's is that when you see through a man's, he has a patch sewed on them.

Millions Reject Hitler 'Civilization.'

In France, Great Britain, the Low Countries, Scandinavia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, North and South America, and Australasia there are some 450 million people who do not hold that conception of civilization. To those millions the essence of civilization lies in the liberty and dignity of the individual man, in his right to earn a living as he pleases, to worship his God according to the dictates of his conscience, to have a voice in governing himself, to speak and write freely and without fear, to have open and impartial trial when accused of crime.

All else that is included in the blessings of civilization are incidental to, and the result of, these fundamental precepts. Bathrooms and radios and automobiles and decent homes, other attributes of western civilization, come as the result of the enterprise of men whose freedom has been won through centuries of struggle.

Boiled down to their ultimate meaning, Col. Lindbergh's words were nothing but an appeal for appeasement, for doing business with the dictators at whatever sacrifice of principle, of keeping our natural repugnance bottled up for fear that we may offend the victorious aggressors.

The colonel spoke favorably of a strong national defence—but no word about how we could achieve it. The following speaker condemned military conception, and the whole purpose of the meeting was plainly to oppose the attempts of the administration to create a military establishment based upon realism and upon this nation's determination to compromise not one whit with the despicable and tyrannical aggressors.

A CANOE NEVER SINKS

Good Housekeeping Magazine

The papers generally all over America are running the usual seasonal stories under such headings as: Changing Seats in Canoe—Two Drown—Or Canoe Capsizes in Squall—Young Camper Lost. Whereupon numerous readers will shake their older and wiser heads and say: "Those canoes are treacherous boats. You couldn't get me into one!"

Unfortunately, it is just that ignorance of canoes which accounts for most accidents. For the cold truth is that there probably isn't a boat safer than a canoe. Instead of damning it for the many accidents in which it is involved every summer, we should place the responsibility where it belongs: upon the canoeists. And in so doing we would get at the root of a lot of unnecessary trouble.

For years W. van B. Claussen, canoeing consultant of the American Red Cross, has been preaching what all old hands know: A canoe never sinks. Even when filled with water to the gunwales, a canoe will still have sufficient buoyancy to keep four people afloat. Yet time and time again vacationists are drowned after their canoe is swamped, because they desert the still floating craft and try to swim ashore fully clothed.

Likewise, in fully three-quarters of the cases of capsizing, the canoe immediately rights itself and floats away—while its erstwhile occupants flounder around in a panic, ignoring the boat entirely. And even in the remaining twenty-five per cent of the cases—where the canoe remains upside down—it is still afloat, an infallible life preserver ready to be turned over again if you know how, or perfectly capable of supporting you as it is if you'll merely hang on. In just about 100 per cent of canoe fatalities the victims did not know—or forgot—that the first rule in an emergency is: stick to the canoe. For a canoe never sinks.

An even better precaution, of course, is to avoid emergencies. The only requirement for that is a little common sense. The Boy Scouts teach the beginner to understand a canoe by having him sit on the canoe's floor boards in shallow water and try to tip it over by rocking it from side to side. Only in such fashion can you learn how difficult it is to tip a canoe over when you keep your weight low. Having learned that lesson, you will promptly take those fancy seats out of the vacation canoe you rent this summer and leave them ashore. You will sit or kneel on the floor when you paddle, using a cushion for the sake of your tender knees, and thus you make it difficult for your canoe to tip.

For the benefit of the weekend or occasional paddler, a few other elementary hints may not be out of order. First of all, never try to get into a canoe standing up—that is the mark of a greenhorn. Always bend over, with one hand on each gunwale, steadying yourself as you move forward.

Unless you're an expert who has become part of his canoe, you should never stand erect when the craft is offshore. And unless you've seen the correct method demonstrated and fully understand it, you should never attempt to change seats in open water. Changing seats is one of our most popular forms of summer suicide—for which the hapless canoe always takes the blame.

Another extremely common vacation blunder is overloading a canoe. Don't ever put more than three people into a sixteen-foot canoe—the popular size. Even though that size will safely hold four experienced paddlers, it is decidedly hazardous for novices to attempt it.

Dolls Across the Sea

Since war began, certain British toy factories have more than trebled their output.

Exports are now up to 50 per cent, and no toy factory in Britain to day uses material needed for the war. One factory alone has 2,500 men and women at work in buildings covering 30 acres, equipped with 52 mechanical conveyors, 400 power presses and a huge saw-mill.

Although there is an increasing demand for toy tanks, barrage balloons and tin soldiers, one man who has been designing dolls and other toys for 30 years, declares that children everywhere demand the same sort of toy. Walt Disney would not, for six months, permit Mickey Mouse to be made into a toy. He thought that water and try to tip it over by rocking it from side to side, would go against it; yet Mickey Mouse, the toy, has become a

American Rules Isle Where War Strikes

His Majesty Bob Hathaway's Feudal Realm Lies in Path of German Conquest

The American-born king of Sark Island, in the English Channel group—two of which have been occupied by German troops—his majesty, Bob Hathaway, 53-year-old native of East Orange, New Jersey.

America's only foreign sovereign, Hathaway became ruler (or seigneur, his French title), of the little island in 1930 when he married the widowed Dame de Sark, otherwise Mrs. ibyl Collings Beaumont, whose ancestors ruled Sark since 1852.

It is not certain whether Sark Island itself has been taken by the Germans—as were the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, according to reports.

Island Pays No Taxes

In his rule over the ancient island, 22 miles off the coast of France, Hathaway is independent of King George VI and the British government. He neither pays nor collects taxes for England, and he has his own parliament of 52 members, large for the population.

On Sark Island every twelfth person, in fact, is a member of parliament. Hathaway's kingdom is only three and a half miles long and one and a half miles wide.

King Bob has his own standing army of 40 men, "each armed with a musket for the defence of the island," as specified in the original charter granted by Queen Elizabeth, in 1555.

Sark is the only feudal state left in the world. Hathaway once boasted that it has never had a murder, never had a divorce, never paid taxes, and has never seen a movie, billboard, motor car, paved road, or local newspaper.

Hathaway and his wife visited the United States some years ago.

world favourite, almost as lucrative as Mickey the film. On the other hand, when the doll designer offered the little people of the Argentine a completely accurate gaucho, the doll was a flop. Small girls in the Argentine will have none but flaxen-haired dollies.

Children of the present generation are more exacting than their fathers and mothers. They must have everything quite accurate; aeroplanes, motor cars and railway engines must reproduce the full scale article in exact miniature and a doll's gowns and lingerie have got to be correct to a detail.

Cows drink as often as 25 times a day.

The world has 13,000 kinds of living mammals, 24,000 of birds, and 7,000 kind of reptiles and amphibians.

Foreign Shipping in Canadian Waters is Watched

THIS IDEA IS GERMAN

The following is, in part, a broadcast delivered over the national network of the CBC, on Sunday, August 4, by B. K. Sandhu, editor of Saturday Night. It is in reply to an article in the August 3 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia.

THE Germans are fond of drawing analogies between their favorite method of warfare and the lightning which strikes without warning from the sky and blasts all in its path of destruction. They have themselves named their method the Blitzkrieg or lightning war. But there is one important respect in which the analogy is ill-omened for the Germans themselves. Lightning must do its job at the first strike. If it sets the house on fire in the split second of its impact, well and good. But if it does not, it cannot return and try it again. Lightning does not strike twice in the same place; and the thunder which reverberates for a long time after the lightning has ceased to do anything is not dangerous. The lightning war of Germany has succeeded—it set fire to the house—in Poland, Norway, Holland, Belgium, and finally France. It has not yet succeeded, and it looks as though it may never succeed, in Great Britain, where to push the analogy a little further—the provision of lightning rods is on a vastly larger scale than in those unfortunate countries. And if the lightning fails, the Germans have no other weapon against Britain, while Britain has many against Germany.

I AM greatly encouraged in my belief that lightning cannot set the British house on fire, by my observation of the rise of a new technique among those in the United States who are certainly the friends of Britain, and who may therefore be classified in the present circumstances as being at least no enemies of Germany. This new technique is the propagation of the doctrine that now is the time for the United States to pick up the belligerents by the scruff of the neck, knock their heads together, and tell them to shut up making such a noise, stop fighting and make peace "on reasonable terms." This doctrine is expounded at length in the current issue of a popular United States weekly which has been under repeated criticism in Canada on the ground of anti-British tendencies. The article is by Mr. James D. Moore, a business man who has long been head of the European subsidiary of a great American industrial corporation. I do not propose to discuss the article itself, which is an entirely proper article for an American business man to write in an American magazine while the United States is neutral. I propose only to make a few observations about the significance of its timing.

THE war has now been going on for a year, during which period it has consisted of a series of lightning successes for Germany in areas which could be effectively invaded either by land or, over a short sea barrier, by air. These successes have been accompanied by the complete failure of Germany to break down the sea-power blockade—a slow-operating weapon—which is effected against her by Great Britain.

Neither at the beginning of this year of war nor at any stage of it until the present time has there been any suggestion by any American friend of either side that the United States should intervene to compel peace; this is the first. If the United States can compel peace now, it could certainly have compelled peace in August, 1939, before the population of Poland was massacred. Why was not Mr. Moore then calling upon his government, as he is now calling upon it, "to state bluntly and frankly to the rulers of Ger-

THE MOUNTIES GO TO WAR

Serving With Armed Forces in England, Smashing "Fifth Column" Tactics at Home, Canada's Mounted Police are Doing Their 'Bit in War

By James Sheen, in "Grit"

Bulwark of the Dominion of Canada in peace-time, members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police also are playing a prominent part in their nation's war against Germany. Because of their training and experience, many of the mounties have been sent overseas as leaders of regiments to help Canada's mother country, Britain, in its fight against Hitler.

For this job, the mounty has discarded his scarlet tunic for severe khaki, and his horse for motorcycle, tank and plane, but he is still the representative of the most romantic and effective police force in the world.

Many of the mounties, however, have been kept at home to police the United States "good neighbor" to the north. One of their most important tasks has been the rounding up of enemy aliens and "fifth columnists" so there will be no "inside" help for the German army such as happened in Norway, Holland, France and Belgium.

Book a Big Stick

Using a little red book called "Defence of Canada Regulations" as a big stick the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and provincial authorities have smashed the communist party in Canada and the Dominion's Nazi-inspired national unity party.

Disclosure of the treachery of subversive elements on the European battlefields and how they paved the way for German troops to invade neighboring countries brought an insistent demand that the Canadian government round up riders of the Trojan horse.

Secret agents supplied the evidence and the mounties swung into action, arresting red and fascist leaders and taking them to internment camps in the Rocky Mountains.

So intense was the search for promoters of subversive activities that Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe assured the House of Commons that the mounties and their secret service men "are in complete control of the situation, both present and as it may develop."

Reds Arrested First

First to feel the power of the mounties were the communists. A test case at Ottawa convicted three young reds of actions injurious to the war effort. They were sentenced to terms ranging from two to three years, plus fines of $1,000 to $2,000. Immediately on their conviction Cecil L. Snyder, deputy attorney general of Ontario, received from Supreme Court Justice E. R. E. an order declaring night, Constant snow storms, the communist party illegal in Canada.

Meanwhile a veterans' home guard, 5,000 strong and receiving instructions from the mounted police, has been organized from the Canadian bank of the Eagle River, where Legion, Armed, uniformed and Staff Sgt. Hersey, leading a stationed at vital war industries, electric power plants and son ahead. Grabbing his rifle other public utilities, these he fired. Johnson, dropping guards are taking care of any and using his pack as cover, saboteurs.

One other duty may crop up with a bullet in his lung. Bad for the mounties as a result of ly wounded, he still kept up a the war. Should the country steady fire. in the great icy wastes. Always the job of the mounty is one of grim adventure.

In one case, a "desert rat" from the prairie country, one Albert Johnson, provoked one of the most dangerous and highly organized man-hunts on record.

Complaints from both Indians and whites about his behaviour brought Constables A. W. King and R. G. McDowell, with their dog-team, sixty miles to a log cabin on a hill above the Rat River. They found Johnson barricaded inside, with holes in his cabin commanding the approaches.

Bullet His Answer

The answer to their demand for admittance was a rifle bullet that crashed through the door into King's chest. McDowell picked him up, carried him out of the line of fire, provided first aid, then packed him in the sleigh and set blizzards of the season to the off through one of the worst hospitals at Aklavik, eighty miles away, covering it in 21 hours.

Inspector Earmes, at Aklavik organized a siege force of mounted policemen, trappers and Indians, equipped with bombs of dynamite. Called on to give himself up, Johnson replied with rapid fire. Even when a breach had been made in the door in a series of rushes the return fire was such that Earmes decided to suspend the attack until night.

After dark there were more rushes with dynamite. In one, 4-pound weights were thrown through the door exploded deafeningly. A moment later a bullet from Johnson's rifle shot a torch from the hand of one of the attackers. Johnson wasn't just "bush-crazy" he was berserk and out to kill.

Shortage of food and supplies—always a problem in the Canadian wilds—compelled the posse to return to Aklavik or risk starvation. Further help was enlisted, but on reaching the cabin again the police found it empty.

Desperado Trailed

The desperado was trailed to a rough breastwork high up the cliffs of a creek of the Rat River a natural stronghold which had to be stormed with military tactics. In the advance Constable Millen fell, shot through the heart. From behind that barricade at the crest of the slope, Johnson could have held up a platoon. Any further attempt would have been suicide.

Now the blood of the North was up. Not only the police, on their conviction Cecil L. Snyder, deputy attorney general of Ontario, received from Supreme Court Justice E. R. E. an order declaring night, Constant snow storms, the communist party illegal in Canada.

The hunt went on, with an instructions from the mounted police, has been organized from the Canadian bank of the Eagle River, where Legion, Armed, uniformed and Staff Sgt. 40th Wedding Anniversary

Deacon and Mrs. J. A. H. Nichols, of Acadiaville, were pleasantly surprised on Thursday evening, when a large number of their friends and neighbours arrived to wish them many happy returns of the day, which happened to be their fortieth wedding anniversary. After spending a very pleasant evening singing old favourites and playing games, the whole company assembled in the living room where the bride and groom of so many years ago, was seated. Mrs. John Murley, in a few well chosen words, presented the happy, but slightly bewildered couple with an envelope containing a substantial sum of money, as a token of their esteem and as a slight appreciation for service rendered the church and community during these many years. Mr. and Mrs. Nichols made suitable replies, after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Vernon Rice and Private Willard Nichols, C.A.S.E., are adopted children. May they live to celebrate many more wedding anniversaries was the wish of all.

MICKEY ROONEY RETURNS TO THE CAPITOL

All suspicion that Mickey Rooney was strictly an unusual personality rather than an actor vanished Monday, when "Young Tom Edison" opens at the Capitol Theatre for an entertainment of two days. Playing the great inventor as a youth, Mickey clearly establishes his right to being called a "trouper".

He presents a clever portrayal, a human characterization and an impersonation so real you feel you are turning back the pages of history. Young Rooney definitely demonstrates the fact that historical roles are not for adult stars alone.

This score also won him the prize for the best gross for Class A, as rules do not allow players to take more than one prize. (The championship and runner-up prizes were awarded to Dr. Jarboe and J. Yacht Club to Visit Yarmouth

Final preparations are being made for the Western Nova Scotia Yacht Club to go to Yarmouth to enter the Labor Day regatta. A series of races is to be held for the E. H. Spinney trophy, this club and others from this part of Nova Scotia to be the guests of the Mito Aquatic Club, of Yarmouth.

The hour for the Labor Day race on the Basin has been changed to 9:30 o'clock in the morning in order that the members may be able to get to Yarmouth by 1:00 o'clock.

FOR BETTER BAKING USE BLOSSOM OF CANADA FLOUR

when the Yarmouth race is scheduled to start. Three crews of two men each are to be sent. Those who have been chosen to represent the Digby club are Dr. T. W. Rogers, Ted Walker, Tommy Morse and Wm. Ganong. After the races a supper is being held and then a dance. For purposes of identification it will be necessary that all members of the Digby Club take their membership cards with them.

Last Sunday the race was held in a strong westerly wind. So strong was it that only eight boats dared venture out, and only four finished the race. The winner in Class I was Roy Peters, who rounded the course in 49 minutes. He was closely followed by Percy Weir and Charlie Turnbull. Norman Wright was the only other boat able to round the course. Leigh Peck, in Bob Marshall's boat, the only boat in Class II, started around but the rudder fastenings gave way and he had to be towed in. Dr. Rogers led the fleet around in his motor-sailer, Cygnets III, but as his boat is much larger than those of Classes I and II he was not officially the winner. Thus Roy Peters practically has one hand on the cup as he has a total of 24 points. The next is Charlie Turnbull, with 16, and Dr. Lefebvre with 15. The leaders in Class II for the Wright cup are Wm. Ganong with 12 points and Geo. Soulier, with 10.

Wm. Ganong was stranded at Bear Island and not able to get back to race. He was on the Annapolis yawl Bid which could not get here in time for the race due to trouble with the steering gear. Mr. and Mrs. McKim and Mr. and Mrs. Rose were on board.

The Yates Studio, Digby, is widely known as the Little Art Gallery.

Women in White

"The town of Belmont, Mass., is probably the most active community in Red Cross work," stated a recent article in the Boston Herald. Like any other successful community undertaking war relief activity, it has of course reached its present position through the co-operation of many individuals, but the entire structure for the production of surgical dressings, hospital supplies and clothing there has been built up by the energy and capacity for organization by two women, Mrs. Collins and Mrs. G. Lester Sandiford.

"Growing from a small group of women which started meeting in January at the home of Mrs. E. F. Atkins to make surgical dressings, the women's Red Cross war work of Belmont, under these two women—Mrs. Graham, chairman of production, and Mrs. Sandiford, instructor, until several hundred women are busy in a four day-time and two evening-surgical dressing groups, and five sewing and knitting groups. Special tribute is paid Mrs. Sandiford, who has been giving unstintingly of her time and energies to this production. She is in constant touch with the Metropolitan Chapter, in Boston; collects and returns all work, and has taught over two hundred women to make surgical dressings. Her own group of seventy women turn in sixteen hundred pieces each Tuesday.

"An international emergency has found Belmont women eager to do their part in aiding suffering humanity."

(Mrs. Sandiford, before her marriage, was Miss Eva Annis, of Bear River.—Ed. Courier).

She felt miserable—draggy—low in vitality—lower in spirits. She had thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. At once she took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, lassitude and other signs of faulty kidneys disappeared. 112

About This and That

It cannot be said that the passing of the Unemployment Insurance Act has caused any great rejoicing among the workers. The interest aroused throughout the country can hardly be compared with that shown in the Old Age Pensions Act. Parliament has enacted the reform just at the time when faith in its efficacy has begun to wane. Many people who have urged the adoption of national unemployment insurance for decades see in the present world war the end of the era of palliatives for economic disorders. In any event, it is rank presumption to suppose that unemployment insurance will suffice to deal with the anticipated post-war problems. The men most in need of protection will not benefit. For demobilized soldiers, sailors and airmen other provision will have to be made. In the dislocation of industry that is bound to occur on the advent of peace, after five or six years of war, the few months' support of the jobless munition workers provided by the insurance fund will be but a drop in the bucket. — The Labour Review.

Blessed are the merchants who advertise, for they have faith in their business and their prosperity shall increase many fold. Blessed is the woman who sends in a written account of a party or wedding for she shall see the details and the names of her guests reported. Blessed are they who do not expect the editor to know everything by telling him whenever an interesting event occurs in which they are interested, for they shall have a better newspaper in the town. Blessed are they who get their copy in early, for they shall occupy a warm spot in the heart of the editor. Blessed are they who do not think they could run the paper better than the editor runs it — yea, thrice blessed are they, because there are so few of them in a community.

Hitler is beginning to have trouble with one of his principal weapons. Without minimizing the effectiveness of a brilliant and powerful military machine, it is evident that German military prowess has been more than equalled, up to now, by that other weapon — the ability of the Nazis to spread fear and cultivate treachery behind the enemy lines. This has been the real secret weapon of Hitler. But a secret weapon is useful only so long as it remains secret and the enemy has not learned how to combat it. Scandinavia, the Low Countries and France found out about it too late. Had they known earlier it is possible that none of them might now be playing door mat to Der Fuehrer's lebanstrum. But Hitler finds that the Britist don't scare so easily.

Radio reports, bearing European date lines, should be treated with caution, if not suspicion. Western Europe is under the domination of Nazi Germany. That country does not believe in a free or independent press. Whatever is printed, whatever is circulated, whatever is distributed to the world, must pass the Nazi censor. And the Nazi censor can only recognize that which is directly favorable and helpful to the Nazi despotism. So the stories dated Brussels, or Paris, or Amsterdam, or Oslo, are not what they used to be.

It cannot be said that the war is productive of nothing but evil. Until within a comparatively short time, the dish known as "pork and beans" was something of a stranger to the British Isles. Beans were fed chiefly to livestock. It's different today. Good old pork and beans has become popular. The defenders of the realm, fortified with such a trusty standby, exude stamina. Well baked beans and chunks of pork, right out of a hot crock, flanked with a steaming slab of real brown bread flecked with butter, stays with one. Every little bean sees his duty and does it.

National registration this month should go far in clearing up a lot of misconception about the general labor situation in Canada. On the one hand there are reports of a shortage of farm help and skilled men. And along with this come repeated tales of unemployment and of people accepting relief. One story contradicts the other. There is, however, a theory that because of the recent depression skilled workers were not giving skilled services, for they had no choice in the matter. Registration should help in correcting this, assuming it exists.

The appointment of the Duke of Windsor to the post of Governor-General of the Bahama Islands, close neighbor to the United States, may be regarded as a shrewd bit of diplomacy. Indirectly, it is a compliment to the latter nation. There is reason to assume that the former king, who has many friends among the Americans, and his Baltimore-born Duchess will do their part in further strengthening the already strong ties between Great Britain and the Republic.

All the poisonous snakes in the zoos of Great Britain are reported to have been deliberately destroyed. What a pity! They could have been dropped, in case a supply of bombs became exhausted, over certain cities and town one might mention.

The drooling crooner croons, and all Nature takes on a love-sick aura. The jazz hounds jazz. They exude emotion. Why not a little honest music instead of so much punishment?

It is said of the many prudent folk who left Europe because of war conditions, that they have "gone with the wind." Well, who could blame them?

Force All to Use Town Water

To the Editor of the Courier.
Sir:—Some time ago the Town of Digby installed a chlorination plant, the purpose of which was to purify the town water supply and guarantee, so far as the water supply was concerned, protection from such diseases as typhoid fever and other water borne maladies.

This was a fine step on the part of the "city fathers" but I do not think they went far enough. After providing pure, disease-free, water for the citizens of the town, they should have made it compulsory that the townspeople use only such water for drinking purposes. After all, does it not seem rather foolish for the town to spend a lot of money for the protection of its people from diseases, and then let certain of those citizens expose themselves and the rest of the town, through them, to just those same diseases? An example of this is present in our town today.

In my opinion, Mr. Editor, the town authorities should instruct the Health Officer to condemn all wells in the town limits. It will be only by doing this that the town will really benefit by its installation of a chlorination plant. Some, perhaps, will say that they have had their wells tested and they are pure. That may be so, but who can guarantee how long they will remain so? No, there is only one way of guaranteeing a fair degree of immunity from water borne diseases, and that is to prohibit the use of any but town water, for drinking purposes. If, after all that, we at any time, have an outbreak of typhoid or other water borne disease, we shall at least have the satisfaction of knowing that we, as a town, have done our best to prevent it. If our town authorities take steps to enforce the use of chlorinated town water only for drinking purposes, they and we, will be sure of reaping the benefits from the expenditure on the chlorination plant.

Fortified by a strong Christian faith, Garfield Thurber, a helpless cripple for many years, sits these fine sunny days on his lawn from where he gazes upon the placid waters of the Cove, ever hopeful that he may again be able to follow his bent as a fisherman. Garfield had experiences in life which seldom come to one person, having been present in fishing boats that capsized, drowning the skipper of each—the first one the drowning of his father and the last, Fred Prime. On each occasion Garfield was rescued after a long struggle in the water with only an oar to keep him afloat. His first rescue was made by Joseph A. Crocker, the second by Mr. Sutherland, keeper of Peter's Island light. Garfield traces his condition to those struggles in the tides which run so strong in the bay and harbour.

Nu-Wall is most economical to use for you buy the white in two-and-a-half or five-pound packages and a fifteen cent package of tint added gives you the color you desire. No Trace of Missing Bear River Boys

In spite of the efforts of searchers, who have been patrolling the shores of the Annapolis Basin and dragging in the vicinity of Bear River the bodies of two Bear River brothers, Conrad and Johnstone Harris, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Harris, have been found. The brothers were drowned on Monday of last week, and it is believed the chance, in which they left Bear River for Digby, early that afternoon, capsized in the Annapolis Basin, after they left the mouth of the river. The canoe, paddles and a bundle of clothing was found on Tuesday last week, near the Life Saving Station, Bay View.

Big Season for Dressed Poultry

The great strides made in Nova Scotia in the past six years in production of high-quality poultry, marketed in an organized manner and on government grades, has never been so apparent as it is this season. Poultry producers of the province who are now marketing their product through some type of co-operative organization, and on the basis of grades, are preparing for the biggest season in their history, according to data gathered by provincial and Dominion poultry officials operating in Nova Scotia.

While accurate estimates are not yet available, it is anticipated that at least between 100,000 and 150,000 lbs. of chicken and capon alone will be marketed this fall, on a graded basis, and through co-operative pools. This would compare with about 50,000 lbs. of such poultry marketed through pools last year. Already some 20,000 lbs. of fowl have been marketed in pools held during the summer. The specialty this year is capon, of which nearly 100,000 lbs. is likely to be marketed, practically all of it of top grade quality and marketed at a slight premium over ordinary chicken.

The steady growth of the dressed poultry industry among Nova Scotia producers during recent years has been responsible for cutting down considerably the amount of dressed poultry imported into the province from other provinces. In 1939 a total of about 151,000 lbs. of dressed chicken, fowl, capon and turkey was marketed on a graded basis, of which more than 122,000 lbs. were marketed through some type of co-operative organization. In addition to this volume, of course, a considerable amount of non-graded poultry was marketed indiscriminately from farms in all parts of the province. However, with the rapid growth of producers' organizations and marketing pools, the volume of poultry marketed in such fashion is becoming much less. This season, the total amount of dressed poultry, including fowl, chicken capon, and, later, turkey, to be marketed on a government graded basis, might well exceed 200,000 lbs.

Apply Lime During Summer and Fall

Orders for lime from farmers in Nova Scotia under the new provincial policy inaugurated last fall have been heavy and almost 30,000 tons of lime and marl have been purchased by farmers under the policy to date.

The problem of delivery of lime to the farmers often arises, and some consideration should be given to the advisability of ordering and spreading lime during summer and fall months. This gets away from the rush of orders in the spring, when delivery is often difficult owing to the soft condition of the roads and also owing to the rush at the quarries to fill orders.

As to the effectiveness of spreading lime during summer and fall months, Professor L. C. Harlow, provincial chemist, has this to say: "With regard to putting lime on in the fall, with new seedling, my answer is that one cannot expect as quick results as if it were put on the previous fall or spring and worked into the soil. If the soil is light, gravelly or sandy, it will allow the lime to permeate into the soil but if the soil is heavy with a high lime requirement it will probably stay within the first inch or two of the soil and the results will not be so noticeable as if it were mixed in to a greater depth."

"Nevertheless, when lime is cheap, the rule should be to put it on the land at any time of the year, especially on the dry farms where they benefit from every crop of the rotation. If the limestone were barrowed in in the fall it would be quite rate from erosion, if the land is sloping and the furrows are not made up and down land."

"There is every argument in favour of using lime during summer and fall. It is more cheaply ground — more easily hauled, and as soon as the land allows a team, the lime should be used."

Money from the Pea Crop

The Eastern Chronicle, of New Glasgow, is authority for a little story about a farmer in Pictou county who raises peas for the Magee Cannery at Pictou. Thomas Latham, of Sylvester, planted two acres in peas and sold the crop to the cannery. He had just over five tons on the two acres. The seed cost him $39.00, and fertilizer, $16.00. Above these costs he had a net of $195.00 after his crop was sold to the cannery for cash. Similar stories might be told of other farmers raising peas in the area served by the Pictou cannery, no doubt.

The cannery has just concluded its pea canning season with a total of 34,000 cases of high quality canned peas. This is about 6,000 cases higher than the factory had turned out in any previous season. The plant employed 60 men and 18 girls during the canning season which lasted four weeks, the plant working day and night.

Strange Holy Men of India

In India a great army of men wander over the vast and teeming land, practising all sorts of trickery, skull-dugger, and self-torture in the name of religion. From the Himalaya Mountains to the island of Ceylon, these so-called "holy men" ply their trade at the expense of India's gullible millions and amazed visitors. Some of the holy men are held to be sincere, but most are out-right frauds. They are referred to as fakirs.

Fakirs sometimes are mere beggars. Frequently they gain a livelihood by exhibiting trained serpents. Best known of the magic workers, in fact, are the snake charmers, who link their uncanny performances with some holy ritual to which have not been removed. They lift the serpents with no show of fear, and when they play upon tiny pipes, the hooded reptiles dance.

Celebrated is the fight which the Hindu fakirs stage between a mongoose and a snake. The tiny mongoose, a weasel-like mammal, likes nothing better than to engage a full-grown king cobra. It is quick as lightning, side-steps when the snake strikes, and seizes it by the head, biting it to death. Strangely, the fakirs can violate almost any of nature's laws without apparent ill results. They can sit for hours, days, or weeks upon beds of thorns or sharpened nails (always keeping their begging bowl where the public can see it). They can pierce their skin with hooks, needles, and knives without drawing very much blood, without seemingly undergoing physical anguish, and without infection. A favorite form of renance for a holy man is the holding of one of his arms over his head night and day until it withers. Because ashes are holy most fakirs cover their bodies with them.

many and England that we (the American people) insist upon an end to the holocaust — to this insane and disgraceful indictment of civilization?" The indictment was just as insane and disgraceful in 1939 as it is now; but the Germans were then pretty confident of winning, and Mr. Mooney was silent, and the magazine in which he writes was frantically urging that the United States must have nothing to do with this war one way or the other. The gains of Germany were then just beginning, they are now at their peak; the losses of Germany are about to begin, and what Mr. Mooney proposes would arrest them, would perpetuate the political structure of Europe at the point where Germany's power is the greatest she can ever expect to attain and far greater than she can retain without American aid.

MR. MOONEY talks as if the American intervention to compel peace would be equally effective to moderate the terms demanded by Britain and the terms demanded by Germany, so that the settlement reached would necessarily be one which Americans could regard as "reasonable." On that point we must remember that what he is proposing is an immediate settlement; and that the only beligerent to whom the United States can apply any immediate pressure is Britain, to whom she could refuse to sell any further war supplies, with obviously ruinous effect. The only leverage the United States can apply to Germany is the threat to enter the war against her, an action which might have unpleasant consequences for Germany a few years from now, but could hardly make any appreciable difference at this moment; indeed it is highly arguable that it would help her by diverting American effort from the defence of Britain to the home defence of America. You have therefore a position in which the self-appointed mediator could instantly ruin one of the belligerents and could do little or nothing to damage the other for some years; and it is not hard to imagine which side would have to make all the concessions in an agreement forced upon the belligerents by such a mediator.

Mr. Mooney recognizes that the American people at large, to whom he addresses himself, are not so friendly to Germany as to wish to act as her stooge in effecting a settlement of the war on her terms, and he therefore represents his proposal as designed to save Britain from the appalling consequences of her own, or rather her government's stubbornness. "Our friends, the English," he observes, "are taking a hell of a beating, and it is about time for us to help them if we expect to substantiate our sympathy in any kind of sincere way." His method of substantiating American sympathy for "England" is to tell her that she can hope for no more aid from the United States unless she accepts whatever terms Germany can be induced to make and the United States to endorse at this point in the war — with Germany and Russia between them in control of the whole of Europe except Great Britain.

I SUGGEST that the nature of the proposal shows that it is a German proposal, and that the fact that it is made at this moment shows that Germany is by no means confident of being able to destroy the effectiveness of the British Isles as a base of supply and operation for the British fleet. And if Germany cannot destroy the British Isles in that sense, she has lost the war, and will ultimately lose all that she has temporarily gained by her lightning methods. Mr. Mooney's solicitude for those whom he calls "our friends the English" did not become vocal until after the defeat of France. He was not concerned while the French and the Poles were taking what he calls "a hell of a beating," although they were the allies of "our friends the English" and are generally supposed to have been pretty good friends of the Americans also. He was not concerned when the Norwegians, Dutch and Americans visiting the central provinces of Canada this summer have looked for the war and not found it. In spite of scattered uniforms on the streets and belligerent headlines in the press, they have returned with the impression that Canadians are little more preoccupied with the catastrophe in Europe than are the citizens of their own country. This aspect of the central provinces, however, is misleading, because Canada's principal function in the war is to supply materials and foodstuffs to Britain, and so her war effort reaches a focus in one place only. Halifax, scorned by tourists in the past, is hoping to be ignored by them now.

This particular Nova Scotia port has realized its destiny only as an integral link in the chain of British sea-power. As a result, it has always partaken of the crises and disasters of the British Empire, and seldom shared its benefits. In war it has been important, even if nameless in the news; in peace it has been ignored. Before Nelson was born, it was quietly doing its duty by the English. From Waterloo until 1914 it slept, then fell asleep again after 1919, for another twenty years. Today it is the most vital spot, the most confident town in Canada.

All the aspects of war to be seen in Halifax are constructive. The town is the freight-stacker for England, the greatest clearing house in the Americas, the depot through which Canada and the magnified Republic of Panama pour the supplies which keep England alive. In five casual minutes here a visitor can see enough to convince him that the war has already reached North American shores. But Halifax is not showing off; she is doggedly doing her job.

The experts congregate in one of the large hotels near the railway terminus and the docks. Naval officers meet their wives and enjoy a good meal after a sleepless fortnight on destroyers between Canada and England; ship-

Belgians were taking a hell of a beating, not for being allies of "our friends the English" but merely for being in the way between them and the Germans. But he is concerned now for "our friends the English" who as a matter of solid fact are taking and are likely to take much less of a hell of a beating than any of these other innocent and "labeled" nations, and who may wind up by not taking a hell of a beating at all. For the reason why Germany wants people like Mr. Mooney to promote peace intervention by the United States is simply that the German lightning war looks as if it will not work against Great Britain.

ping men, mysteriously important visitors delivered from abroad on warships, aviators with bronzed faces and American accents mingle, talk briefly and are gone by the next morning. A young naval Lieutenant enters the dining room with tired and sleepless eyes. A table of American technicians recognize him and rise to shake hands. "Haven't you been?" The Lieutenant seen you for weeks—where've smiles. "Dunkerque..." and the voices drop. The answer might as easily have been Narvik or Alexandria. If the information and stories swapped in the lobby of this hotel were for sale, magazines and newspapers would compete for them.

Sometimes great squadrons of planes fly over the town, to circle and swoop for a landing on an airplane carrier, loading for the next convoy. Sometimes wingless planes are towed in long rows behind army trucks to waiting ships at the docks. Everyone knows the names of the ships and which big cruisers are waiting to head the convoy, but no one tells. Even when Germany announces the sinking of a major unit of the fleet and Halifaxians see it at anchor in the Stream, they merely smile, but they never tell.

For the principal work of this town is the dispatching of convoys. There is a perpetual motion of shipping—even in winter the harbor is never closed—and a port less efficient would be clogged. In this traffic control the Canadian Navy is constantly active.

Toward sunset two or three destroyers or cruisers may be seen slipping quietly up the river-like harbor toward Bedford Basin, where as many as a hundred merchant ships and interned vessels may lie waiting. Before sunrise they will be at sea again and in their wake follow the merchant ships that have been tagged. One after the other, at quarter-mile intervals, they leave the Basin, move through the Narrows, through the Stream, through the submarine nets and glide on toward the horizon. As far as the eye can see along this twenty-mile lane, the ships move, signal-flags flapping from halyards and naval launches darting from one to the other with instructions. Out on the horizon the destroyers marshal them for the voyage, and the streets of the town are momentarily emptied of sailors.

So long as England, through this harbor, can keep Canada's supplies at her back door, she reckons she can keep Hitler out of the parlor. But if the land go down, this port would worst should happen, and England probably become part of the United States. It could be American, because it stands on this continent, but it will always be uniquely itself. The memories of Boscawen, Nelson and thousands of nameless officers and men of the Royal Navy will always linger in its streets.

He says: "With us the small town and country newspaper which is most often a weekly journal, is more influential than the daily press. A weekly newspaper comparative leisure of a small paper which is read and absorbed in the seclusion of town or the farm, is likely to exercise a greater pull on its readers than the daily paper, crammed with a bewildering array of reading matter and consumed amid the distractions of urban life."

YARMOUTH'S FULL-RIGGED SHIPS

(Although the following interesting narrative applies almost entirely to Yarmouth and her fleet of ships it will be read by the many old-timers in Digby county who have known of many of these vessels and were were acquainted with many of the men who sailed them. The story is by James F. Landers, a personal friend of the editor who has known him since he was a boy of 12 and "Jim" was one of his neighbors. It was published in the Yarmouth Light last week.—Ed. Courier.)

"Perhaps the term full-rigged requires some explanation for the young people of today. A ship has three masts with yards on all while a barque has three masts with yards on the foremast and mainmast only. An elderly captain said to me recently, 'boys nowadays hardly know the difference between the bow and stern of a vessel, and between a ship and a barque would puzzle them.' In his day ship's topgallant and royal yards were as familiar as ball bats and hockey sticks are to them today.

"Records show that the first full-rigged ship owned in Yarmouth was the Lady Sherbrooke, 290 tons, built in 1890 for James Shipley and James Taylor, wrecked on the coast of Newfoundland in 1832. On board were emigrants and crew numbering 360, of which only 30 were saved. Her age and tonnage gave me some doubts as to whether this was the Yarmouth ship or an English ship of that name, so I wrote to an authority on such matters, in England; he could not find any other vessel of that name listed those days and thought it must be ours.

"In the war of 1812-14 we owned no privateers although one was almost ready for sea when the war ended. Our harbor was difficult to enter and Captain Cook, with his militia company, kept vigilant watch in the fort on Bunker's Island, near the Beacon; privateers of the enemy frequently hovered near the mouth of the harbor, but a warning shot from the fort kept them away. We lost seven vessels, mostly from the West Indies, coming home, and ten of the enemy were brought in here and sold as prizes—one the well-built oak ship Bittern, 300 tons, captured by the Liverpool Rover and sold here as a prize in 1813 to Cap-

Fishermen Want Bonus

A Summerside paper says:—A largely attended meeting of lobster packers and buyers from all sections of the province was held in the Board of Trade rooms in Charlottetown to discuss the present arrangements for marketing lobsters through the Dominion Department of Fisheries. The packers present claimed they could not continue to operate at this rate.

It was suggested by several of the packers and buyers that the government be asked to give a bonus of from $2 to $4 a case to offset the loss of the British market and allow the business to be carried on as usual through the regular channels.

The highest post office in the world is at Pharijong, in Tibet, Asia, located at 15,300 feet.

tain "Anthony Landers.

"She was the second full-rigged ship owned here; the bulk of this ship, which many of us remember, laid on the east side of the back channel well up to the Island, and parties going lobstering would moor their boats to her and soon get a mess of lobsters.

"In 1821 the ship Zebulon, 284 tons, was built in Plymouth for Captain Landers, timber trade to England, and in 1825 the ship Yarmouth, 265 tons, the first of several vessels down through the years named after this port, including the steel steamer Yarmouth, 1492 tons, built in 1887. The ship Yarmouth was wrecked on Sunday Point, in 1831. In 1826 the ship Jean Hastie, 280 tons, named after a Glasgow girl, and at the time she was wrecked, owned by relatives of the same girl. This vessel was built in Yarmouth harbor and launched June 20th, and wrecked at Foote's Cove, adjacent to where she was built, on her birthday, June 20, 1844, in a dense fog, bound from Boston to Saint John. This ship was known as one of the fastest sailing in the merchant service. The man who design-

VISIONS POST WAR PROSPERITY

Speaking on the subject "After the war, what?" before the Halifax Commercial Club a couple of weeks ago, Premier S. MacMillan advocated the formation of an organization capable of making intelligent, far-reaching plans for the future of this province, or the Maritime Provinces, and of translating these plans into action.

I am one of those, said the premier, who are optimistic enough to believe that there will be an "After the War" insofar as Canada and the British Empire is concerned. I have an abiding faith that we shall emerge victorious, and that after the war is over Canada will in due course become one of the most prosperous places in the world. In this post-war period the speaker thought we in Nova Scotia should be prepared to take advantage of the situation we occupy from a geographical point of view, a position not shared to the same extent by any other part of this Dominion.

The premier expressed his opinion that future conditions in Europe would lead many British industries to consider establishment in Canada of branches of their businesses. While, due to larger population, much of this business would naturally go to central Canada, said the speaker, it seems to me inevitable that in a country like Britain there must be hundreds of industries whose activities are tied up with the sea to such an extent that the maritime position of Nova Scotia will appeal to them, and that we must be prepared to make known to the advantages we offer.

I think governments should give a lead in this movement, said the premier, but to be effective the organization should be non-political; representative of all classes. I believe we can get a group of men together in this province who would be willing to devote a portion of their spare time to a collective effort on behalf of Nova Scotia, which would enable her to take a leading place in this Dominion.

After comparing the facilities and raw materials available in Nova Scotia with those in Britain, the premier said that in due course he was going to appeal for volunteers who will be willing to give a part of their spare time to the consideration of the problems that face us. From the ranks of these volunteers, he said, we shall hope to create an executive that will seek to utilize the services of all who are willing to help. We shall hope that Nova Scotians, with their well out the doorboard and hang known ability to think positively and fundamentally, will find in these problems a sufficiently worthy objective to call for the best they have to offer, and that even as today we are engaged in a great co-operative effort to help win the war, we will just as effectively lay the foundation for a great co-operative effort that will help band, whom she hadn't seen for three years they have already married again.

Children Learn by Imitating Adults

Watch a child from the time it begins to speak and notice what goes on in the world about it. You will find it imitating the adults in its life.

Make an unusual face and the child, scarcely past the infant stage, will try to make one like it. Notice how a very small child will join in the laughter of a group of adults. The same powers of imitation continues as the child grows older. The games which the youngsters like are a miniature reproduction of the adult world.

Your small son will be happiest when he is tinkering with his small mechanical toys as he has watched dad tinkering with the family car. Or he will enjoy building with a hammer and nails, and saw some simple object.

In the same way small daughter will like the actual business of helping mother wash dishes. She will be pleased to be allowed to smooth the covers on the bed, and to help with the dusting. And watch her at play with some little friends her own age. Playing house, complete with baby, the business of preparing meals, and setting the table and washing dishes will usually be the favorite game.

Encourage such games whenever possible. The child that learns to do the things of the adult world as fun will be far less likely to be termed lazy in the years to come. The teen age girl who enjoys taking over the management of the household when mother is ill or away on a brief vacation is the one who has been trailing mother about since she was able to walk. These imitative games are the child's way of learning about the adult world.

Interesting Sidelights On the War

Chalk up another victory for Britain's blockade. An announcement from German-controlled Amsterdam says that 12,000,000 laying hens, two-thirds of Holland's poultry, will be slaughtered before Sept. 15, because of a shortage of chicken feed, formerly imported.

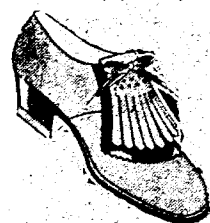

In a recent air raid on the English southeast coast, the bomb almost cut the village inn in half. This annoyed the landlord, for he had to carry out the doorboard and hang known ability to think positively and fundamentally, will find in these problems a sufficiently worthy objective to call for the best they have to offer, and that even as today we are engaged in a great co-operative effort to help win the war, we will just as effectively lay the foundation for a great co-operative effort that will help band, whom she hadn't seen for three years they have already married again.

Picture Hitler as Cupid! A lady in Bristol, England, agreed to billet two soldiers. When they arrived, she was embarrassed to find that one of them was her divorced husband, whom she hadn't seen for three years they have already married again.

Blazing British Guns Shoot Down Nazi Raiders in Pairs

Two German planes, flying in close formation over England, were potted together by the missiles of an English Spitfire plane or from a British anti-aircraft gun. At any rate, like two dead ducks, they fell to the beach within 10 feet of each other.

The Life Saving Station

Down on the shore at Bay View, just inside Digby Gut, the Federal Government maintains a Life Saving Station, for the protection of fishermen, seamen and others who may need the services of the lifeboat.

But—for several weeks now, there has been no lifeboat at Bay View. The engine is out of the craft for repairs.

Because of this, the services of the life boat and its crew are unavailable, in spite of the fact that those living in the vicinity of the station, and for that matter, every Canadian, pay taxes for the maintenance of the Life Saving Station.

About one month ago, we understand, they were called to search for a pleasure cruise party, who had not made their appearance. They had no boat—they could not go. Fortunately, the party, who had found navigation difficult in a thick fog, had landed on Goat Island at the mouth of the Annapolis Basin and waited for the weather to clear. They were in no serious difficulties.

Later, when the two Harris boys were first discovered missing, the Life Saving crew was called to take part in the search.

Again—they had no boat. This past week end three Victoria Beach men were unreported at their home port, just opposite the Life Saving Station. There was no boat to search for them!

Much creditable work has been done by the life boat and crew in the past. We are also aware that Marine engines need to be overhauled occasionally, but it strikes us there is an unwarranted delay—a delay that may perhaps cost human lives.

"On the Bay Shore ship-building was thriving. George H. Lovitt, from 1876 to 1884, built five large ships all with the prefix Van to their names. This is the record of the W. D. Lovitt ship, Navara, 1445 tons, built at Belliveau's Cove in 1880; in launching she fell over the ways; got afloat, towed to Saint John, rigged, went to Philadelphia, took out 600 tons of ballast, took in 61,000 bushels of grain, sailed, and arrived in Hull, England, on Nov. 6th—all in 54 days.

"The Tusket ships were well constructed. The Rossignol, 509 tons, built in 1872, breached the western ocean twenty years, got ashore, was able to get off, and was sold to the Norwegians. I do not know the end. The Ellen A. Reid, 750 tons, was afloat under the Norwegian flag 22 years after launching in 1864. The red B. Taylor, 1798 tons, built in 1882, sailed from LaHave under Capt. E. F. Hurlburt, in May, 1892, in ballast for Sandy Hook for orders. On the morning of June 22, in a dense fog, near Nantucket Lightship, she was run into and cut in two by the German steamer Treve. The mate and carpenter lost their lives but the rest were saved. The bow section drifted 93 days and went ashore on the coast of Virginia, 340 miles from the point of collision; the stern part went ashore 42 days after, on the coast of Maine, near Portland, 45 miles from the point of collision.

Hadley Blackford
Tiverton was saddened on Wednesday morning, Aug. 28, by the sudden passing of one of her outstanding citizens, Hadley Blackford. Though not enjoying his usual good health for a few days, yet he did not come unexpectedly. He had finished breakfast and gone out on the porch for his usual smoke, when he fell suddenly ill, and passed quietly away in about fifteen minutes. He was 81 years of age, and the son of the late Daniel and Elizabeth Blackford. His passing will be keenly felt and the memory of his kindly good natured disposition will not soon be forgotten. He was a friend alike to tourist or stranger, and never too busy to entertain. His wonderful memory enabled him to recall dates and events with remarkable precision. Until his death he could recount events of years ago with a clearness and accuracy which the passing of years had not dimmed or effaced. He married Lillie Dale McCormack fifty-two years ago. He will be missed by many, especially by the young people, who gathered often in his home for a sing and to spend a good evening with "Uncle Hadley" as many called him. He is survived by his sorrowing wife and two daughters, Mrs. Leslie Ramsey (Kathleen), and Mrs. William King, (Geraldine), both of Windsor, Conn. Mrs. Ramsey, who came recently to visit her parents, was with her father when the end came. Funeral took place from the home on Friday, and was largely attended. Rev. J. W. Derby officiated. Hymns sung were: "Rock of Ages" and "Lead Kindly Light". Pall bearers were relatives of the deceased. The floral tributes were beautiful. Burial took place in Pleasant Hill cemetery beside his infant son, who predeceased him many years ago.

Yacht Club Ends Season

After coming in third in both Sunday's and Monday's races, Roy Peters still had enough lead in points to win the Class I cup. In Sunday's race Dr. Lefebvre won, rounding the course in 50 minutes, Charlie Turnbull being 2nd, and Roy Peters 3rd.

On Monday morning Charlie led the fleet around in 42 minutes to win 1st place, Dr. Lefebvre being 2nd, and Roy Peters 3rd. This cut Peters' lead to 5 points, but his large lead could not be overcome, thus he won with a total of 23 points; Charlie Turnbull 2nd with 23 points, and Dr. Lefebvre 3rd with 22 points.

Bob Marshall won Sunday's race for Class II boats, with George Saulnier coming in 2nd and William Ganong 3rd. This left the Wright Cup for any of the three to win, as all were within one point of each other. Monday morning's race left the cup in William Ganong's hands for the second year as he rounded the course well ahead of George Saulnier and Bob Marshall.

Sixteen members of the Yacht Club were to have made the trip but many had to return early to attend to their own boats. Those who remained went to the home of Dr. Rogers, and then to the Yarmouth Lighthouse to see the breakers. Later they were guests of the Milo Aquatic Club at a banquet and dance.

Interesting Concert at Little River

A large audience enjoyed a programme of music and dramatics, at the Little River Community Hall, on Friday evening, Aug. 23.

The programme was prepared and directed by Mrs. E. E. Graham, assisted by Mrs. Lyndene Collins and Mrs. Douglas Dehton.

A piano had just been installed in the Hall, and the community feels indebted to Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Dehton for their efforts in procuring this instrument.

"The Happy Neighbours" a group of little girls, contributed to the entertainment a play "Housel and Gretel", and a number of songs, while the "Go Getters" a teen age group, presented a one-act play "Cornelia Pickle, Plaintiff", also group singing and solos.

Musical numbers by two guest artists, Miss Dorothy Deaton, of Montreal, pianist, and Miss Margaret Morehouse, of Sandy Cove, soprano soloist, were greatly appreciated.

At the close of the program Mrs. Graham was presented with a beautiful bouquet, in appreciation of her generous giving of time and talents in training the young people of the community.

On Sunday evening the Hall was again filled, for a community song service. Rev. C. L. Chute conducted the devotional part of the meeting, while Deacon A. B. Frost had charge of the song period. A number of the audience contributed solos and duets, making the programme most enjoyable.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—their heads ache and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—half a century the favorite remedy. 100

About This and That

We hear much about when life begins, some say at 40, others at different ages. Life begins just when we realize that we will get out of life just about what we are willing to put into it. You may hold a job or a position. You will get out of that what you are willing to put into it. If you own a farm if you aren't willing to put something back into the soil, see how long you will be able to raise crops. Life begins just when we are willing to give to the world what we expect to get out of it. Then we realize that the world does not owe us a living unless we are willing to work for it. We have people who give their whole life's work to help others. Then we have others who expect to be helped, as they think the world owes them a living. Did you ever think that the reason you were not able to do things you always wished to do was because you did not start on the right road in life? You will find that the cause in a great many lives that would have been different if they had been on the right road. Stop and do a little thinking and see if you are on the right road. If not, do you think you should stay on the wrong road the rest of your life, and keep on making the same mistake because you got on that wrong road?

Will Hitler have accomplished something of great benefit to the German people in conquering France and England, and almost all of Europe? Will they, as he says, be prosperous and happy for many years afterwards? Hitler has gained his conquests by the destruction of life, and all of life's necessities. Continued destruction can only bring greater horror. Can Hitler, with his great might of arms, feed the people of Europe next winter? Can his army spread over the length and breadth of Europe, prevent anarchy? Can they overcome hate? What of the future for the conquered people? We believe Hitler will find that it's much easier to destroy than to build. He must continue to rule by a force of arms, and that alone will prevent the confidence and trust so necessary to a happy existence. Hitler's real troubles will begin after the war is over.

"It is my prophecy that a great empire will be destroyed," was the threat of Adolf Hitler, German dictator, as he sought to bring England to her knees in complete surrender before he launched what he believed to be the last chapter in his European blitzkrieg. The fact that England spurned his offer is beside the point. The thing to remember is that as the victor he has promised destruction to his foes. If there are any Bibles remaining in Germany it might be well for their readers to call the attention of the fuhrer to the second verse of the sixth chapter of the Gospel of St. Matthew: "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." This is the promise of God, spoken through His Son. Therefore we may be certain there will be found some human agency destined to inflict upon Germany that same "total destruction" Adolf Hitler is planning to mete out to his foes.

HOW WEEKLY PAPERS COVER TERRITORY

(Hanover Post)

Some people seem to have the impression that the weekly newspaper doesn't cover the territory it serves in comparison to other media, such as dailies, magazines, etc. Recently the extension department of the University of Alberta made a survey through their youth training schools of the situation as existing in that province. Questionnaires were sent out and it was revealed that in the households the weekly newspaper held a decidedly strong lead over other kinds of publications. The survey revealed: 78.2 per cent get the local weekly newspaper; 34.5 get a daily newspaper; 21 per cent get a farm paper; 27 per cent get other periodicals. When a community or district has a substantially good weekly newspaper that concentrates on giving services people are entitled to, there is no doubt that advertisers can safely choose it as the medium to reach the people. The general run of weekly papers have long since got past the "hick" stage and serve their communities more than they get credit for.

The people only ask that politicians be more intelligent, and business men more disinterested and more aware of their social responsibility.

The missing Victoria Beach fishermen, Fred Ryan and Clinton Everett, with their companion, Percy Hamilton, arrived safely at Hampton, on the Bay of Fundy shore of Annapolis County, early Monday morning, later making their way to Victoria Beach under their own power.

The trio left Saint John for Victoria Beach on Friday, and intended to fish on their way back. They were expected in their home port sometime Saturday. Their failure to return caused considerable anxiety on Sunday.

In crossing the Bay they encountered engine trouble, causing their delay.

The British Spirit

A legless pilot of the R.A.F., who is leading a squadron of Canadians at present, has shot down a German bomber. This pilot was injured in a pre-war plane crash, lost both legs, but refused to die. He got fitted with artificial metal limbs, played games such as tennis and squash, and when war broke out, he argued his way back into the Air Force. Another reason, why we cannot lose.

"Criticism," once said Dr. Johnson, "is a study by which men grow important and formidable at very small expense."

Fall Plowing Started

Farmers in one or two districts of the province have been reported to be doing some fall plowing, an unusually early start. D. E. MacPhee, agricultural representative for Cumberland, reports that plowing has already been started in a number of places in his county. Fall plowing, it is pointed out, is an important phase of any proper production program. The more fall plowing that can be done, the more time is saved in the spring, and the more likelihood there is of giving the new grain crops a good healthy start early in the season. This is doubly important under present conditions. There is noticeable an increasing shortage of labour for farms, and farmers are urged to take advantage of all possible spare time this fall to get some plowing done. The situation may be more serious in the spring.

Farmers generally have shown an eagerness to do their part in the important business of increasing the acreage in needed grain crops in the province. The indications are that much more fall plowing will be done this season than ever and this coupled with the large amount of new breaking being done, should give a very substantial increase in grain crops next year.

Big Poultry Pool In Annapolis

The largest dressed poultry pool of the season thus far was held the past week at Bridgetown, for Annapolis County poultry producers, in which over 10,000 lbs. of capon, chicken and towel were marketed co-operatively. Practically all of the capon and over 60 per cent of the chicken was in the top grades. The poultry was handled on a co-operative basis, and sold at top prices to the Halifax wholesale trade on a tender basis through the Canadian Livestock Co-operative, Maritimes, at Moncton, central selling agency for the co-operatives.

The Matter of Feeds

Discussions at Moncton the past week between agricultural officials and Maritime feed dealers over the present livestock feed situation, developed a strong recommendation that the use of water routes for importation of feeds be encouraged. One cargo of feed grains is understood already to have been contracted for, to be shipped to a Nova Scotia port. Farmers have been urged already this year to make every effort to buy their grain feeds as early as possible this fall, particularly barley, instead of waiting until they have exhausted their own home-grown feeds and have to go into the market for imported feeds when prices are likely to be higher than at present.

County Exhibitions

It is gratifying to know that a number of our county agricultural exhibitions have found it possible to carry on this fall, stated Hon. John A. McDonald, minister of agriculture, recently. "The county exhibitions feature in a practical way the products of the land, and such exhibitions fit admirably into the production program advocated consistently by the department. It is only unfortunate that a few of the exhibitions, including the two oldest agricultural exhibitions in Canada, namely, Pictou and Windsor have found it impossible, owing to conditions largely beyond their control, to carry on. In these cases the military authorities have required the buildings, or similar reasons have come up, making it necessary to cancel the fairs.

"However, we sincerely hope that those which are being carried on will be well patronized and I am sure the exhibits will be well up to former years in volume and quality. The county exhibitions are doing a valuable service in promoting the right type of farming in Nova Scotia," concluded the minister.

The country fairs to be held are as follows: Cape Breton county, at North Sydney, September 2 to 5; Cumberland County, at Oxford, September 11, 12 and 13; Annapolis County, at Lawrencetown, September 10 to 13; Antigonish County, at Antigonish, September 17 and 18; Queens County, at Caledonia, September 17 to 19; Halifax County, at Musquodoboit, September 17 and 18; Digby, at Bear River, September 18 and 19; Shelburne County, at Shelburne, September 25 and 26; Lunenburg County, at Bridgewater, October 1 to 4. The county exhibitions are held under the auspices of the County Farmers' Associations with the co-operation and supervision of the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture.

Farmers in Nova Scotia who own lots are able to add to their income substantially each year by cutting and selling a little of this timber, provided the timber is of the proper species and provided that cutting is properly done to conserve the growth. The cutting of a small proportion of the timber in each season does not depreciate the value of the woodlot, provided always that the cutting is done in accordance with the best conservation principles.

Just at this time there is a brisk demand for certain classes of timber, and many farmers are reaping the benefit by sales from their woodlots. In this connection farmers are warned not to sell this timber on a lump sum basis but to sell always on a "measured" basis. Often farmers who sell timber from their woodlot or into the market for imported feeds when prices are likely to be higher than at present.

Agricultural College Opening

Applications are now being received from farm boys in the three maritime provinces for the 1940-41 term at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, at Truro which opens October 9

The purpose of the courses offered at the college is well set forth in the college calendar which states this purpose to be "to give the students an adequate understanding of the application of agricultural science to the homes, fields and farm yards and to develop a better understanding of rural life." The two-year general course at the college is a course in the practical application of agricultural science to be every-day farm tasks and problems of production, designed to give adequate training to young farm men who may then go back to the farms to play their part in building up a better farming industry and rural life. The degree course is offered to provide facilities for taking the first and second years of the B.S.A. degree course. Any farm boy who is 16 years of age or over and has the capacity to benefit from the courses may apply for entry to the college courses. Certain scholarships and bursaries are offered, details of which may be had by writing the college at Truro.

Holstein Field Day

It is expected that between 60 and 150 head of Holsteins from Nova Scotia farms will be on exhibition at field day, to be held by the Nova Scotia branch of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, on September 10, at the Bible Hill race track, Truro. The provincial exhibition at Halifax having been cancelled this year, the association has given special grant for the field day. So heavy will be the entries in the various classes, two judges will be engaged so that judging may be completed in one day. The prize list for the field day provides for male and female classes in pure bred, female classes in grading and for groups as well as championships.

Improving the Quality of Nova Scotia Lamb

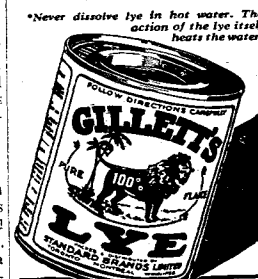

Lamb is a product of the arm which fits naturally into farming conditions in many parts of Nova Scotia. There are great possibilities for the production of top quality lambs if feed entirely home grown, good hay and pasture land, and good root crops, vital points in the Nova Scotia production programme, are vital points in any lamb feeding programme and with proper care high quality lambs can be produced on these feeds with the use of a minimum of rain.

For this reason, and for the reason that the sheep industry in recent years in the Maritimes has declined through lack of proper flock management and control of parasites, the Nova Scotia department of agriculture, working with the Dominion department of agriculture, last year inaugurated an aggressive promotion policy. Under this program of education, sheep farmers are now instituting proper drenching for control of parasites, are entering market competitions, and are taking advantage of the policies which proide for obtaining high class aims at reasonable cost. Furthermore, the institution of commercial lamb grading and the selling of lambs on grade last year, has brought home to the sheep raiser the value of turning out as high a quality product as possible.

Results of this campaign are beginning to show up. Reports from agricultural representatives and market representatives of the provincial department, from Antigonish and Inverness, where the bulk of the lambs are produced at present, are to the effect that the quantity of lambs coming on the market this fall is vastly improved over recent years. Many hepmen have conducted proper drenching operations this year and have improved their feeding arrangements. The result is that they are reaping the benefits in increased income.

In Antigonish county an interesting sheep field day was held on August 29th, and in South Inverness, a sheep field day is being planned for September 11, at Margaree Forks.

Ram Policies

The Dominion department of agriculture, through J. A. Steele, livestock representative at Truro, is announcing details of the ram grading policy. Under this policy breeders may have pure bred rams graded into the two top grades if they are of sufficiently good type and weight and quality. The XXX grade of pure bred rams includes those of very good type and good enough to head purebred flock, while the XX grade rams includes purebred rams of a lesser quality but good enough for a grade flock. The ram lambs must weigh at least 100 pounds when graded.

In addition to this, the Dominion department also has a ram club policy which enables farmers with ten ewes of one breed to secure a purebred ram by paying part of the cost. This year the deposits will be 12, for grade XXX rams, and 9 for grade XX rams.

The Nova Scotia department assists in defraying cost of transportation on the rams, and the Nova Scotia sheep breeders' association has a regular mail order guarantee of money back if not satisfied. Details of the Dominion government policies may be secured from Mr. Steele, Truro.

LUNENBURG'S SEAFARING DAYS

(The following account of old seafaring days of Lunenburg. It is a part of a personal letter to the Editor of that paper. It particularly appealed to us as the Editor of the Courier was at one time shipping editor of the Yarmouth Times, and the Sceptre was one of the vessels he had to keep track of, reporting her arrivals and departures regularly. He never had the pleasure of meeting Capt. Burke, but he saw the Sceptre several times and was on board of her once in Lunenburg. The Sceptre was one of a fleet of small brigantines, which sailed from Nova Scotia principally from Yarmouth, Lunenburg, Liverpool and Shelburne for the West Indies with lumber and fish, returning with molasses and other West India products. Among those which we remember real well were the Florida, Harry, Hattie, F. Rich, M. E. Corpe and L. G. Crosby. —Ed. Courier.)

"I suppose you are interested in tales of the sea. It is reasonable you should be. It is in your blood. And I suppose there are times when your thoughts drift back to the time when you can remember when the Town of Lunenburg was in the forefront playing its wonderful part in the sea-going drama. Often my thoughts carry me back to those years of activity in Lunenburg. I get an occasional letter from men in Lunenburg. They speak of the business system is changed. I wrote one chap, just recently, and along with other things, I made particular mention to him, 'You will never see the square yards along the water front again. you will never see twelve or fourteen hardy sailors and fishermen standing at the windlass heaving operating the windlass and hear the old sea shanties such as 'Ranzo, Boys Ranzo', 'Storm Along is Dead and Gone', 'Heave Ho, Heave Ho', 'I Wish I Was Old Stormy's Son', and so on. Those were the days when things were done by brain and brawn, by manpower. Now, all that can be heard is the exhaust of the engines. the anchor chain comes up through the hawse pipe, the sails go up and the crews look on with their hands in their pockets. The old scenes are gone. The tang of the ocean is gone and will never be resurrected. There are no sailors left who take the same interest as the old salts did. Can you hear the refrain of those sea shanties ringing in your ears? I can hear them yet."

On to a British bomber go the bombs. Soon it was over Germany, its deadly cargo crashing down on fuel storage tanks. Thus another of the ceaseless air attacks Britain is making on Germany, the enemy of freedom, was pressed home.

"I remember being down on the dock one day. Dan Zinch was rigging a schooner for Freeman Corkum. I watched the mainmast going up, the mast fell travelling through the shives in the blocks. The windlass was revolving. There was one man working, Charlie Johnson was holding the turn of the mastfall, taking it in as it was feeding around the windlass. And, as usual, all the sound that could be heard was the engine. Dan looked at me and remarked 'We captain, what do you think of it all? Very quiet, isn't it? Not the same as the days when we have on the windlass heavers and the mast went up with a sea shantie'."

"I remember the days when it appeared like a regatta on the ocean, when on a passage eight or ten ships was a common sight to see almost any day. That was forty or fifty years ago, when the ocean was full of sailing ships, but twenty years ago I remember while I was on a passage to Buenos Aires in the Chautauqua. I was seventy-four days on the passage and during that time I saw one sailing ship. The cause was as you know, the wind jammers were breathing their last gasp."

"I will tell you another incident. I suppose you can remember of your father owning a schooner named the Arctic. We left Barbadoes to-

New Superior at Sacred Heart

Rev. Sister Regina Mariam, formerly of the Convent of the Sisters of Charity-Halifax, at Vancouver, B. C., arrived at Meteghan last week to take over her duties as Superior of Sacred Heart Convent.

ether, molasses loaded, bound to Halifax. I was in the brig Sceptre. We kept company with each other for eleven days and during that time the Arctic and the Sceptre were not at any time more than two miles apart. The tenth morning on the passage we were so close to each other we held a conversation and the captain invited me on board to have dinner. That was very fine sailing for two vessels, wasn't it?

"There is another incident of two vessels keeping company which I don't think I have told you, the three-masted or term schooner Edith, commanded by Captain Ben Hamm, and myself in the brig Sceptre. We left Lunenburg on March 26, 1906. Hamm bound to Barbadoes and I bound to Port of Spain, Trinidad. We had a fine passage. The two vessels kept within four miles of each other throughout the entire passage and on the tenth morning from Lunenburg Capt. Hamm spoke to me on the south side of Barbadoes. He arrived in Bridgetown that day. I proceeded on to Trinidad and dropped the hook in Port of Spain harbor the twelfth day from Lunenburg. So you see when speaking of making passages, the schooners of later years have nothing on the old times. The Sceptre was a speedy craft. I can tell you of some very fine passages that I made while I commanded that brig during a period of thirteen years."

"Today is the forty-eighth anniversary of the heavy hurricane we encountered while on passage to Boston, sugar laden. I was in the brig Chio, owned by James Eisenhauer & Co. The Sceptre lost her mast, the schooner F. C. Kimber, she disappeared with all her crew. She was commanded by Capt. Malcolm Blue and owned by Lewis Anderson. The term schooner Republic lost her mast. That was the 21st day of August, 1892. I saw and heard more wind that day than I ever saw in all my seagoing career."

Sincerely yours,
Henry E. Burke.

DIGBY COUNTY EXHIBITION

The Digby County Exhibition will be held Wednesday and Thursday of next week at Bear River. Every effort is being made by the committee in charge, to make this popular fair more successful than ever, from the view points of the spectator, the exhibitor, and of the committee.

The Bear River Exhibition (this year called the Digby County Exhibition) has shown a marked improvement each year, and in spite of the war and everything else, this year's show promises to top them all.

Arrangements have been made to receive and judge an abundance of entries of all kinds—and from reports we have heard from various sections of the county, the agricultural exhibits should be exceptionally fine this year. A good showing of livestock is also anticipated. Harvey Chisholm, secretary of the Exhibition, told us last week they are sinking a well on the exhibition grounds, in order to provide better watering facilities for livestock on exhibition.

The Digby County Exhibition is YOUR EXHIBITION, support it with your attendance.

Ramblings of a Rolling Stone

Say, but it is hot this afternoon! The thermometer that hangs in the shade of the back porch is hovering very close to the hundred mark. It is Saturday, and as usual, nearly all work is suspended for the day. The union week is a five day affair so Saturday is a week end holiday for the most of us. This is one time that I am appreciating to the fullest possible extent the benefits of an abbreviated week.

From the river there comes the monotonous "put, put" of outboard motors where some are seeking cooler breezes on the water. Once in a while the roar of a speed boat rolls up from the winding reaches of the Willapa River as some optimistic aspirant puts his flying flat iron through its paces in preparation for the annual speed boat regatta, to be held on Labor Day, at the sister city of South Bend.

But none of these present things have half the appeal to me as do the memories of those breathless August days, when we boys would gather at the "Sand Bed" or at the "Swimming Cove" and defy old Sol to do more than make the waters of Provost Lake an ideal place in which to spend a hot mid-summer afternoon.

Two, at least, of these boyhood pals have gone the way of all the world. Fred was killed by a moving "jam" at Devil's Island, on the Sissiboo River; Ralph was lost at sea when the schooner on which he had sailed, was lost in one of those wild storms which sweep the restless Atlantic when winter holds all else in nature bound with icy fetters.

I do not know that I would find much pleasure in spending a long summer afternoon in the water; but I know that I would enjoy taking a canoe trip on some of the rivers, lakes and streams which make that part of Digby County with which I am the most familiar, a real vacation land.

I recall one such trip, which a party of four, took in the early spring. I am not advising anyone to start out as early in the spring as we did; but in spite of the chilly nights, we had a lot of fun, and we saw some very interesting things.

We launched the canvas canoe in Fourth Lake, quite early one sunny spring morning; my brother Harold, took the stern paddle and I took the bow position. The other two settled themselves amidst ships along with the camping outfit, which having gone through a process of elimination until it had been brought to what seemed to us to be an irreducible minimum.

There was a brisk breeze blowing and the blue waters of the lake flashed laughing greetings to us from every sun-kissed wavelet and the water from the dripping paddles gleamed like spangles of silver against an azure background.

Our course took us across that part of the lake known as South Bay—and past the "Floating Island", a curiosity which is just what the name implies, an island which really floats, rising and falling with every change of the water level. How solid it may be or what kind of anchorage it may have, which holds it in that position, are questions which I cannot answer.

Civilian Holds Important War Post

Phillip A. Chester Given High Rank In Ordinance

One of Canada's most important war-time military jobs has just been given to an out-and-out civilian, which, in days not long past, would be considered a highly unorthodox thing to do. But this little war we are in is a civilian's war—a war of the common people fighting for all the things they think worth while, and when there comes into view a civilian who can do a certain military job better than the available soldier, it is very good business on the part of the powers that be to turn the job over to him.

That is why Phillip A. Chester, widely known as the North American General Manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, is now the assistant Master General of Ordinance of this country's army.

For some time Mr. Chester has been responsible for the operations and fortunes of the great Hudson's Bay wholesale and retail stores, and since the Ordinance Department is one that is largely concerned with store-keeping, he would seem to be the right man for the job. He will be responsible for all equipment and clothing of the fighting forces. Everything from tooth-brushes to trousers and tanks will come under his management, to say nothing of food for men, guns and machines and he must see that all these things are at hand when and where they are needed, and that every item comes up to the standard required.

Mr. Chester served in the British Army during the last war. He enlisted in the ranks of the 5th Battalion, Kings Royal Rifles in August 1914 and served continuously in France until 1919 with the exception of two short periods when he was wounded. He was demobilized with the rank of Captain. In this war he will carry no military rank and wear no uniform, but will be one of that army of civilians whose work is so vitally important in maintaining the efficiency of our fighting forces. Mr. Chester joined the staff of the Hudson's Bay Company in 1923 and was appointed General Manager for all the Company's operations in North America in 1930.

Registration of Enemy Aliens

The Defence of Canada Regulations as amended by order in council, and published in the Canada Gazette, August 20, require all persons who have become naturalized since the 1st day of September, 1922, who, at the time of their naturalization were of German or Italian nationality or of any territory which was under German or Italian control at the outbreak of the war, to report for registration without delay, to the nearest Registrar of Enemy Aliens. Those failing to register under this new regulation shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $500, or to imprisonment to a term not exceeding twelve months, or to both fine and imprisonment. In addition to the foregoing penalties, may also be interned as prisoners of war.

This registration is in addition to and entirely separate from National Registration, and applies to all enemy aliens, sixteen years and over, who have been naturalized since September 1, 1922.

C. Martin Wilbur, Curator of Chinese Archaeology at the Field Museum of Natural History, says noise-making weapons are old stuff. Even as "scream bombs" are used in modern warfare, he related, the ancient Chinese fitted the heads of arrows with air chambers so that they whined in flight and frightened their foes.

NAZI APPEAL TO AMERICA

Can you beat it? Germany, through Hitler, a short time ago, called upon Germany's "dear friends in North America" for a vast humanitarian movement.

It wants the United States Red Cross to ship huge supplies of food free to Europe, to feed the people there, who they say, are threatened with starvation by the British blockade.

Germany has over-run Europe. It has murdered hundreds of thousands of the people of its peaceful, unoffending neighbours, brought suffering and appalling tragedy to millions upon millions of families, looted the stores and farms of all.

Now it appeals to the better instincts of Americans to come to the relief of the nations it has oppressed.

It says in effect to Americans: "We call on you, in the name of humanity, to comfort the nations we have ravaged, to send out of your abundance the food they need to replace the food we have robbed them of, to feed and sustain them while we conscript their manpower to work at slave labor in factories manufacturing munitions of war with which the glorious German nation may attack and destroy the last stronghold of freedom and justice in the world—Great Britain."

That is Germany to the United States. But what does Germany say to Germans? In the only news which Germans are allowed under pain of death to hear, they say: "It is not Britain that is blockading Europe, but Germany which is blockading Britain. We have absolute control of the British Channel. We have destroyed the power of the British Navy. We break up and sink every convoy that appears. We have the command of the sea and the air. It almost gives our beloved Fuehrer pain to have been selected by fate to destroy the British Empire—he has said so. But despite this near-pain we are proceeding with our task. We must smash Britain into submission, starve it into defeat. We must be merciless! Everything that moves on land or sea or in the air in Europe without German permission, must be destroyed. There is no God, but Hitler."

The Christian Science Monitor, of Boston, Mass., one of the best known and best edited papers in the world, still offers good patronage from English advertisers, in spite of the war. We note that their issue of September 3, contained twenty-two display advertisements of English firms (including a number of hotels and restaurants). In addition an eight column page was taken up with small advertisements. Seven of these columns were taken up with English advertising, the eighth by Irish advertising.

A seagull seems to have come off better than an airliner in a collision at LaGuardia field, New York. According to a press dispatch, the gull smashed into the plane and flew away under its own power, which was more than the airliner did. The bird, flying through a heavy rainstorm, struck the left windshield of a plane about to take off and chipped the glass. Stunned, the gull fell to the plane's wing and flopped around for a few moments, got its wing back and flew away. The airliner, however, transferred its 12 Boston-bound passengers to another ship and retired to a hangar for repairs.

Large herring are still reported around Grand Manan. Netters fared quite well, landing fairly good catches, which found a ready market at reasonable prices. These fish are especially cured for markets in the middle and southern states. Grand Manan weirs made good catches of large, medium herring, but the market was dull and only occasional lots were sold. Owing to the hot weather, coupled with the large carry-over of smoked herring still in the hands of the producers, very few fish are being taken ashore to the smoking plants.

Taylor - Best

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey G. Best, of Waterville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday evening, Sept. 7, when their youngest daughter, Audrey Christine, was united in marriage to Laird Creighton Taylor, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Taylor, Smith's Cove, formerly of Kentville. The ceremony, performed beneath an arch of white phlox and greenery, was conducted by Rev. H. C. Morgan, of the Baptist Church, in the presence of about forty relatives and intimate friends. Four girl friends of the bride, the Misses Erma Rachford, Eileen Kilham, Ardyth Forsythe and Ann MacGregor, made an aisle of white ribbons and flowers for the bridal party. Miss Greta Best, sister of the bride, played the wedding marches, and R. L. Taylor, brother of the groom, sang the solo "I Love You Truly". The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was garlanded in white net with bodice of lace with long veil, and wreath of orange blossoms; she carried an arm bouquet of pale pink gladioli. Following the ceremony, a reception was held, the servitors being the four ribbon bearers. The bride's mother was gowned in a navy and mauve redingote dress, and wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Taylor, mother of the groom, wore black sheer with bevel of white eyelid embroidery, and corsage of red roses. The bride's travelling costume was of air force blue crepe with blue velvet hat and matching accessories. Previous to her marriage, the bride was tendered a shower at the home of Mrs. Dawson Rachford, and was the recipient of a large collection of valuable gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside in Halifax. Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Taylor and Miss Ann MacGregor, of Smith's Cove; Lennie Harris, Bear River; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Townshend, Wolfville; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Clark, Wolfville; Miss Phyllis Piquette, Dr. Burns, Kentville.

About This and That

When war or the threat of war comes, it is simply amazing how silly a lot of adults can behave. How can grown-ups so lose their sense of perspective, their ordinary common sense? Our heads belong on our shoulders and our feet on the ground. So let's make some kind of an effort to keep them there. We are referring to this senselessness as this: In New York City a woman "Americanism" leader would ban the name "Rhode Island Reds" for that kind of chicken simply because it includes the word "Reds." Going off on the same kind of a tangent, should we invent some new name for the red danger lamps? And believe it or not, there are people who, having heretofore enjoyed the music of Wagner, refuse to listen to it any longer because Wagner happened to be born a German. Marconi was an Italian, so maybe we should refuse to listen to the radio! Downright silly, isn't it.

Democracy is like health. It is nothing. It is the absence of pain and sickness. It only becomes something when pain comes and a man remembers how pleasant it was not to be in pain. In a word it is life itself. It is breathing and eating and being and becoming something. It is being alive instead of being part dead. It is a world where every man feels something like the way only one man felt in the world of Alexander the Great, who was just one bright-eyed little man who held his head somewhat on one side. Democracy is limited merely by the ultimate potentialities of all men in the world and all their descendants. It is the total sum of hopes, of faith and of charity. It is humble and omnipotent. Those who wish to get fancy about it may say that it is God. Exchange.

In building defense for Canadian institutions, we must first build men who believe in them and know why they believe in them. Canadians who are 100 per cent Canadians only can be trusted to make our laws, establish our domestic and foreign policies, man our forts and ships. Canada first needs spiritual strength that will direct and employ material strength in overcoming enemies from within and without. Spiritual strength only can save Canada and Canadian institutions.

Every man, rich or poor, is in some way dependent on his fellowman — no man can be absolutely independent of others. There are some who would be, some who try to be, and some who, in a measure, seem to be. But ultimately such fancied independence is disproved. In the end all men have to recognize the truth that "Man cannot live unto himself alone," and the sooner this fact is accepted the more man gets out of life. Mutual dependence is compliance to natural law. It brings its own reward and satisfaction.

Anthony Eden has imported a band of expert scissors welders and set them to work on the red tape in the British war department and when through with that, will they please come to Canada and bring their scissors with them.

In Hitler's eyes it is "criminal" for nations to resist German aggression. If he takes over from Blackstone, our system of jurisprudence will call for the punishment of everyone who interferes with robbery or burglary.

History tells that four rulers of Germany died in the fortieth year of their respective centuries. Frederick I died in 1440; George William in 1640; Frederick William I in 1740, and Frederick III in 1840. The same to you, Adolf!

Spring Offer BRINGS SUCCESS

MRS. PUBLICOVER

"I decided to change my flour because I couldn't get rid of the impression that my bread, while good, was far short of being first-class," Mrs. Publicover of Bridgewater, Nova Scotia, told me. "I tried several kinds of flour but could see no improvement. Meanwhile, I had been hearing a lot about Robin Hood Flour. So when the date of a baking contest was announced, I made a sporting offer to my husband, 'If you'll get me some Robin Hood Flour,' I said, 'I'll enter the contest!'"

"Mr. Publicover brought home a bag of Robin Hood and I baked the bread. Like most women, I have to get used to a flour. But the very first batch of bread from Robin Hood Flour astonished me with its fine, even texture and its whiteness. That settled it. I decided I would enter. And, to my delight, I won first prize!"

"Robin Hood Flour goes so much farther," Mrs. Publicover continued, "and I find that my bread is whiter, better in texture and more fluffy."

Every Bag Guaranteed

If you are not a user of Robin Hood Flour, get a bag today. Always use Robin Hood—the flour that is milled from washed wheat. Its quality is guaranteed by a money back plus 10% guarantee. You, too, will find that it goes farther and makes your baking better and lighter.

Thebaud Loses Entire Canvas

Once again the Gloucester racing fishing schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, has lost her sails, this time by the tail end of the southern hurricane which struck the craft while he was jogging 60 miles east of Thacher's, Monday afternoon.

The gale, estimated by Capt. Cecil Moulton, her skipper, at between 70 and 80 miles an hour, tore both sails, the riding sails and foresail, clean off the masts, leaving only a few tattered ribbons to mark the spot where they had served. The Thebaud, a month or so ago, lost much of her canvas in a serious fire, in a storage shed, at the Atlantic Supply Company wharf, the craft was at the dock.

Plan Underdrainage Demon- strations

Arrangements have been made by the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture farm engineering staff for demonstrations in underdrainage in Cumberland County, at the following farms: J. Archie Moore, Shinnicas, Sept. 17; W. Tuttle, Wallace Bay, Sept. 20; and J. L. Clarke, Bayhead, Sept. 23.

Movement of Lime Started

Movement of lime to farms has already started this fall, under the policy of the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, inaugurated last fall, under which special low rates for purchase of lime are provided the farmers. During the past year more than 25,000 tons of lime and marl have been moved under this policy, and orders are in the department's hands for a considerable volume for movement this fall.

Farmers, who have not yet arranged for a supply of lime at the special low rates, should do so at once, as movement to the farms is easier during fall months than in the spring, when roads are soft. Orders for the lime should be directed through the local agricultural society.

Honey Crop Increased

With an exceptionally good clover crop in the province this year, the yield of honey will be heavier than usual, reports H. G. Payne, provincial apiarist. Just what the total production will be, is not yet certain, but indications are that it will be substantially above recent years. Mr. Payne urges all bee-keepers to winter as many colonies as possible this winter, due to difficulties of exchange and other conditions, attending the purchase of fresh colonies from the United States.

Strawberry Yield Heavier

Masstown Strawberry Growers' Association, 15-year-old strawberry co-operative, marketed 7,200 crates of strawberries this season, according to George Johnson, manager of the co-operative, this being almost 200,000 quarts. Last year the association had a yield of 5,500 crates. The crop this year yielded a total of $19,800 as compared with $13,500 last year. While the average price over the season this year was somewhat lower than that of last year, the Masstown growers, through their organized system of marketing, received the highest price of any strawberry growers, and on occasions their berries sold at a premium on the Montreal market over the product from Quebec.

Berwick growers' association this year marketed over 65,000 quarts.

Sheep Breeders Hold First Field Day

The first field day held by the Nova Scotia Sheep Breeders' Association was staged in connection with the annual meeting of the association at Antigonish on August 29th. Members were present from Windsor to Inverness County, and keen interest was shown in the field day events. James O'Brien, of Windsor Forks, was elected president to succeed Ronald Chisholm. John C. LeBlanc of Margaree, was elected vice-president, and J. A. Steele of Truro, secretary. Discussions and talks on the provincial sheep promotion program were held, those giving addresses including Eric Boulden, provincial animal husbandman, J. W. Graham, senior livestock inspector for the federal government in the Maritimes, and J. A. Steele, livestock inspector at Truro.

Home Grown Vegetable Seeds

With the somewhat unsettled situation as regards seed supplies for the next year or two, it would probably be sound policy on the part of home gardeners to save seed from good varieties of peas and beans, where some surplus stock matures on the vines.

It is not expected that a shortage will develop next year in any of the vegetable seeds, but seed of the vegetables mentioned, as well as that of the vine crops as squash, pumpkins and cucumbers, is easily saved.

In the case of peas and beans, after the pods have matured, the vines should be pulled and, if weather conditions permit, dried outside for a few days and then spread out thinly on a floor or scaffold in a building. A small garden lot can often be dried to advantage overhead in a garage or similar small building. Such locations warm up well on fine days and dry out the pods in good shape.

Any time after thorough drying, the beans or peas may be separated from the pods, diseased or injured kernels discarded, and the balance stored in paper bags or other containers in a dry location, where air temperatures are not too high, preferably around 50 degrees.

Dry Weather Affects Milk Production

The dry weather has seriously affected milk production through short pastures and little aftermath. Early grain is giving good returns; late grain is very spotty, many fields not being filled well. There is a definite increase in barley acreage this year in the province. Irish Cobbler fields have died down early. Considerable quantities are being dug for the early markets and yields are from fair to average. Some turnips have also been placed on the market, the demand from urban centres and army camps being good. Root crops are suffering from lack of rain. Present prospects are for a good hay crop fairly well stored in most parts of the province; grain crop fair, root crop still uncertain. Should rains come this month it will materially aid the feed situation. As matters stand at present a few are already feeding some hay.

Canning Demonstrations

Demonstrations in home canning of vegetables and fruit have been under way recently at points in the extreme eastern end of the province in Cape Breton, under direction of the Women's Institutes division of the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture. In this connection the demonstration is given with the can sealers, which are being provided rural groups, under certain conditions on a

The need for Red Cross assistance is urgent. Our sons and brothers are over there. On land, at sea, in the air, they face death daily. We must be prepared to help them when they are sick or wounded.

Red Cross help is needed on behalf of soldier and civilian alike. Hospitals and hospital equipment, surgical supplies and dressings, ambulances and X-Ray equipment will be needed. Overnight the need may become so urgent that lives may be sacrificed if help cannot be sent at once.

Never before has there been so great a need for Red Cross assistance. This challenge to humanity must be answered. Give to the Red Cross. Give to the utmost NOW!

Predicted Defeat of Hitler

Nostradamus Forecasts
France's Triumph—Revolution in Italy—Sixteenth Century Prophet's Writings.

The French eventually will win the present war. Italy and Germany will be defeated and Italy, finally, will be plunged into revolution, according to current interpretations of the predictions of Michel Nostradamus (Michel de Notre-dame) the sixteenth century prophet, who forecast events running up to 3797. Some interpretations are made by Henry James Forman, author of "The Story of Prophecy," and some are taken from "Les Prophetie de Maistre Michel Nostradamus," by Dr. de Fontenay, written early in 1938.

The prophecies of Nostradamus, though frequently obscure, have been confirmed in many amazing instances. His writings—first published in 1555—forecast aerial warfare, as well as the use of bombs, poison gas, an "iron cage" (which may well be the modern army tank) and even the construction of the Maginot Line.

Fall of Paris Forecast
Nostradamus' quatrain on the latter—his prophecies being made in quatrains—said that near a big river would be a tremendous series of fortresses hollowed into the ground and divided by streams into fifteen segments. The river is interpreted as the Rhine and the Maginot Line is said to be divided into fifteen sections.

Nostradamus refers in a number of quatrains to the fall of "le grande cite"—Paris. One of these says that "encircling Paris will be soldiers lodged in the fields and towns, to make the assault on Paris; incited by Rome."

The hulloing of France into an attitude of false security by Nazi fifth column methods might be indicated by the quatrain:

The bird of prey, flying to the window,
Before the conflict will make France unaware.
One part of the people will believe, the other think it sinister.
The smallest part will consider it an ill omen.

Mr. Forman said that another quatrain can be read to mean that France will become prey to Germany, but that Germany ultimately will be thrown back in great distress.

Municipal Nomination

Tuesday, October 1st, is proclaimed a Nomination Day in the Municipality of Digby for Municipal Elections.

Contests, if required, will take place October 15. The present Council for this Municipality is as follows:

Warden—J. Vian Andrews, North Range.
Deputy Warden—Capt. H. B. Fitzgerald, Weymouth North.

Councillors:—
E. F. Hankinson, Weymouth.
H. E. Chisholm, Bear River.
S. E. Woodman, Marshalltown.

William Woodman, Smith's Cove.
William F. Cossaboom, Tiverton.
H. W. Cossaboom, Centreville.

Clarence Cornwall, Rossway.
D. B. Kenney, Westport.
Blanchard Morrell, Freeport.
Guy D. Dunn, Culloden.

Keeping on the level also keeps you out of a hole.

It might even be, Mr. Forman said, that this ultimate defeat will come this autumn, after fresh Nazi assaults. "A strange nation will assault France from across the Alps," according to this quatrain, "and will see its own armies decimated—in the months near the harvest of grapes."

Crushing of Mussolini
Another quatrain refers to a defeat by the French of a "Lyon" (lion) who opposes them from the sea. Mr. Forman said that he considers the lion to be Mussolini. He said that another Nostradamus prophecy is that there will be terrible aerial warfare in Italy, and, finally, that the Cross will fall in Rome and the Fascist Government will collapse.

To illustrate how interpretations are made from the original writings, Mr. Forman translated from the old French the quatrain from which the foregoing interpretation was made. It was "The arms will fight in the air for a long time. The tree will fall in the middle of the fallen city. The swords and all destructive forces in the hour of monstrous beings will rage in a cyclone of fire in which the monarch of Hadrie will succumb."

It was explained that Nostradamus often referred to "the Cross" as "the tree" and that Hadrie is a French rendition of the Adriatic district.

Downfall of Hitler
Hitler, however, will fare poorly. Characterized by Nostradamus as "the black and canaginary rapacious one," who came out of the sickbed of revolution, he will be beaten, so Nostradamus is believed to have predicted, between the Soane and Rhone rivers, especially on the left bank, by a young general who will arise.

Prophecies believed to apply directly to the Nazis declare that "in Germany will spring up different sects, approaching nearly a careless paganism." A new sect of philosophers, despising death, gold, honor and riches, they will not be confined to the mountains of Germany, they will have the support of followers and press.

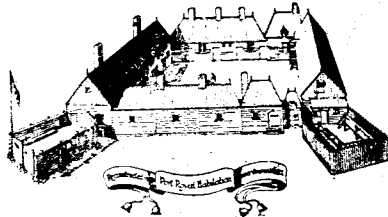

"Les Propheties" offers quatrains from Nostradamus purporting to tell of Hitler's false protestations of peace, the invasion of Rome by the Germans after "the disaster of Perugia, Italy"; the bombing of Geneva, "the peace of Ulm," and other events.

All the prophecies necessarily are difficult to interpret, but many past predictions, though seemingly inexplicable for a long time, became comprehensible following the happenings mentioned. For instance, there is a quatrain which goes:

When the work is supported by two pillars.
With six half horns and six open scissors:
The very potent Lord, heir of the toads,
Will then subjugate to himself the entire world.

Mr. Forman explains in his

The Port Royal Habitation

At Lower Granville in Nova Scotia, on the exact site where stood the Port Royal Habitation 335 years ago, the Dominion Government has now erected a replica of this group of buildings which sheltered the first European settlers in Canada. The Habitation was the headquarters for about two years of Samuel de Champlain, famous explorer and Chief Geographer to Henry IV, of France, who allowed him to choose the location and draw up the plan of settlement.

On March 7th, 1604, Sieur de Monts, a nobleman of France, having obtained from his monarch a patent constituting him Lieutenant-Governor of Acadia, or New France, set sail for the New World. He had as his navigator, the great Champlain, and was accompanied by a Picardy nobleman, Baron de Poutreincourt. The party also included 120 farmers, who were to settle the territory named in de Monts' grant, and established the first permanent settlement in Canada. The spot, finally chosen for the Habitation, was a beautiful, sheltered harbour on the north shore of Annapolis Basin, and was christened Port Royal. Here began the first permanent European trading settlement on the North American continent north of the Spanish settlements on the Gulf of Mexico. The English settlement at Jamestown, had not been established then, and another three years were to elapse before the founding of Quebec.

The restoration of Port Royal Habitation is undoubtedly a matter of great historic interest and recalls many important first events in the history of Canada and North America. Here was formed the first social club of America, "The Order of the Good Time". The club was established to keep alive the spirit of fellowship and good cheer amongst the members of the little settlement. Each in turn held office as Grand Master for a day, and it was his duty to cater for the whole company. As it became a point of honour to fill the post with credit, he was usually busy for several days in advance hunting, fishing, or bartering provisions with the Indians. Thus the tables were bountifully supplied with all the luxuries of the forest. The invited guests were Indian chiefs, braves, squaws, and even little papooses, for the French took great pleasure in the companionship of the Redskins.

The spirit manifested by these early pioneers has been maintained down the centuries in Nova Scotia, and a visitors' organization has been formed, known by the same name, "The Order of the Good Time", which will perpetuate the memory of these first settlers in Canada. The late Lord Tweedsmuir was installed as Grand Master in 1937, and membership in the body is confined largely to visitors, who have spent at least ten days of their vacation in the Province of Nova Scotia. Each is furnished with an attractive membership card engraved with the crest of Nova Scotia.

Many other first events occurred at the Port Royal Habitation. Here the first christening baptism was performed, and here was consecrated the first Christian cemetery. Here also the first wheat was planted, the first garden grown, the first water-power mill erected, and the first road constructed—a road which is now little settlement. Each in Port Royal had to be collated linked with the great modern highway system of the North American continent. Little wonder this spot has been selected by the Government of Canada for restoration and preservation as a historic site! The restoration of Port Royal Habitation is also of considerable architectural interest. It comprises a group of buildings arranged around a courtyard in the manner of 16th century farms in northern France. It is fortified at the two southerly corners by a cannon platform and a palisade. The Habitation has been reconstructed in its original state as nearly as practicable as a replica of the trading and colonization settlement built in 1605. The original structure was destroyed by fire in 1613, by English troops from Virginia, who looted everything of value in it.

Port Royal Habitation was marked in 1924 by the erection of a stone cairn with a tablet as a Dominion Historic Site. It was first identified in 1911, from Champlain's maps and descriptions, but not until the summer of 1938 was any important research work begun with the object of restoring as nearly as possible the original Habitation. A great deal of study and exploratory work was necessary before any real attempt could be made to reconstruct the Habitation. No remains or indications of the original buildings existed above ground and a small, modern house stood on the site until removed at the time of the exploratory survey, and a study made in archives, museums, and libraries in Quebec and elsewhere of the records of earliest French Canadian building. Important data were obtained from France bearing upon early 17th century building methods in Normandy and Picardy from whence the members of the expedition came. The findings of the exploratory survey of the site closely accorded, in the matter of dimensions of the Habitation, with those given by Champlain. Groups of stones were found indicating roughly the position of some of the foundations of chimneys and cannon platform. Where no solid evidence was available to determine the exact location of the foundations, these were identified by a process of soil reading in cross-trenches. In this way the outlines of the various buildings were finally fixed and the work of reconstruction begun.

Champlain had left an engraving or picture of the plan of the Habitation, and together with his descriptions published in his "Voyages" in 1613, the basis upon which to pattern the reconstruction was finally established. In the work of reconstruction local material has been used as far as practicable and local craftsmen employed. Fortunately there were suitable carpenters and skilled timbermen experienced in the use of the broadaxe and adze, including old-time shipbuilders, available in the district, and such labour materially helped to ensure a faithful reproduction of the work of the original craftsmen.

The reconstructed Habitation now stands as an example of the earliest European building traditions that were transplanted to the New World. It is also a memorial commemorating many first events in Canada, and is an important addition to a notable group of historic sites which have been placed under the administration of the National Parks Bureau at Ottawa, in recent years.

Blaze Burns 40 Years

A fire, built 40 years ago, by boys to roast potatoes, which they had carried with them on a hike, is still burning in Plymouth Township, near Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, despite repeated efforts to quench it.

The fire was discovered by surveyors for the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Coal Company, who were investigating company holdings. It had spread to an outcropping of a coal vein and had burned underground.

The same blaze is now known as the Jersey fire, for it affected the company's old Jersey Mine. Miners report that it is endangering an important hard coal producing area.

John Harrison, health officer of Plymouth, Pa., believes that bodies buried in the cemetery near the seat of the fire, must have been cremated years ago. He and fellow workers once tried to sink a shaft above the fire, but abandoned it when the heat became unbearable. The fire continued unabated.

Residents of the section believe that the fire in the vein burns under half the township. On top of the mountain, hundreds of pipes have been driven into the veins and tons of water and clay poured down them. The water became steam, and the clay dried into powder, leaving the fire still burning.

Fighting the fire is not only futile but dangerous, since the rocks and coal explode when water strikes them. The blaze causes roof or rock falls by burning away timbering or coal pillars left for support in the mine.

Church Has Shortage of Ministers

"No institution has done as much in these hard years to keep up the moral of the Canadian people as has the Christian Church," declared Rev. Dr. R. B. Cochrane, Secretary of the Board of Home Missions, in his annual report presented to the Ninth General Council of the United Church of Canada meeting, in August, United Church, Winnipeg. "The United Church of Canada has great reason to thank God for the fine record of her ministers and people during the last decade. In this period our new United and uniting Church has meant a great deal to the higher life of Canada. The ministers and their wives on Home Mission fields and aid-receiving charges have led the van in their unremitting labours and in their quiet, heroic sacrifices."

During 1939 the Church has faced a shortage of both men and money, Dr. Cochrane reported.

Regarding the shortage of ministers, increased by many enlistments in war service, Dr. Cochrane reported that Newfoundland has four or five fewer than that Conference needs. There were six or seven lacking in northern Ontario. Saskatchewan will be short a similar number. Manitoba estimates a need of 15 more. Some of these fields are now temporarily supplied by laymen. In other Conferences, however, there is a surplus of ordained men and the report urges that a means be devised to distribute these where they are needed.

The report concluded by pointing out that, "In Canada, with its population of 70 nationalities, we have an opportunity of showing the world what may happen when men of every tongue and colour and race and creed are made one in Christian fellowship."

The Board of Home Missions report included reports from mission superintendents in every Conference. It described the work of the United Church "navy" and told of work among non-Anglo-Saxons and pioneer settlers. The Board has also done much useful work in downtown church settlements.

The Red Cross Drive

The second Red Cross Drive since the war, begins September 23. Canvassers will call at homes and business offices in the town and vicinity soliciting your support to this worthy cause—one of the most worthy of all causes, in these days.

It is not necessary for us, in this column to discuss the work the Red Cross is doing for suffering humanity, on the other side of the Atlantic, or it is necessary for us to review the tremendous work that great organization is doing among his Majesty's Forces—abroad—and at home. You know of that work as well as we do. Thousands of our women folk in this country, through their local organizations, are devoting much of their time and work to the Red Cross effort.

The purpose of this article is to ask your financial aid when the campaign gets under way—to ask you to have your contribution ready for the canvasser when he or she calls at your door. Your financial gift to the Red Cross may mean sacrifice on your part—but such sacrifice is trifling in comparison with what others are giving.

At the time of writing this editorial, we have not been advised of the objective set for this district, but, whatever it is, we know it will be reached. The generous attitude of the people of Digby toward all worthy causes is well known. Do your bit by helping the Red Cross.

book that this made sense to one when Nostradamus made the prediction. It turned out, later, that the first two lines indicated a date, the fork a V, which, when sustained by two pillars, is an M, the Roman numeral for one thousand. Six half horns are CCCCC, the numeral six hundred, and the open scissors are XXX, XXX, sixty. Thus, in 1660, the Lord of France, heir of the Merovingians—whose device was the toad—was to be the greatest monarch in the world. In 1660, Louis XIV, married Maria Theresa of Spain, whose symbol is the Pillars of Hercules, and in 1661 Louis became virtual autocrat of France and "the Grand Monarque of the civilized world."

Others of Nostradamus mentioned in "The Story of Prophecy" are that "the London Senate will put to death its King" (Charles was executed by the ramp House in 1641) and that "the West shall be mated doctor treated the patient usually recovered."

When the work is supported by two pillars.

Telephone communication with Digby Neck has been restored to Mink Cove by a temporary line from Digby. Freeport is the only central office that can be contacted on the Islands since Monday's storm. Wilfred Gidney, manager and proprietor of the Digby Neck line, said last night it will be at least one week before service is back to normal.

Old timers have told of the days when they used to set lobster "traps" under rocks, and at low tide gather up a basket of lobsters left behind by the tide. Somehow, we thought "them days had gone forever", however, recent reports from along St. Mary's Bay shore say that after a spell of rough weather these days, large numbers of small lobsters are stranded at low tide, and fisheries officers and others are kept busy throwing them back into the water. For this reason, St. Mary's Bay lobstermen feel they should have good catches when the season opens.

Daring Rescue At Freeport

News of a daring rescue, which took place about 10 o'clock Sunday evening, at Freeport, was received by the Courier late last evening.

Hearing calls for help in the Freeport harbour, Miss Pearl Sarty, of Parker's Cove, Annapolis County, who is visiting Miss Effie Thurber, Freeport, saw the plight of Allan Pyne and Lester Thimot, both of Central Grove, who were struggling in the water, their dory having upset.

Without a moment's hesitation, Miss Sarty threw off her coat, plunged into the water and swam out to the boys, and succeeded in saving both of them. Pyne was a young man in his early 20's. Thimot was a boy of about 13 years of age.

At this time we are unable to furnish further details of this brave act.

Storm Causes Heavy Damage

One of the most severe weather, were raging torrents Monday afternoon and Tuesday, causing floods that were the greatest in the memory of some of the older residents.

A number of chimneys crashed, portions of the chimney on the Digby jail and on the residence of H. M. Warne having gone through the roofs.

One end of the big garage on the Lour Lodge property was blown flat; a small outbuilding near a residence on Victoria Street, was seen standing upside down against a tree on Tuesday morning; a barn on the property of Frank Muise, Sea Brook, was levelled, and we have a report another barn was levelled at Little River, although, at the present time we have been unable to confirm this.

So far, we have received no news from the Islands, due to lack of telephone communication. We hope to have reports by mail, before going to press.

Farmers were hard hit. Standing crops, particularly grain and corn, were levelled. Apples and small fruits were destroyed, and in many orchards, large numbers of trees were levelled.

Little waterfront damage has been reported locally, out of a few small boats going adrift. At East Ferry two fishing boats, one owned by Arthur Stanton, and the other by Harold McCullough, broke from their moorings, the former being salvaged, after being driven across Petite Passage into the harbor at Tiverton (a feat which almost seems impossible on account of tides and wind) where it was towed to safety by the Tiverton-East Ferry ferryboat. The McCullough craft, bounded to pieces on the Tiverton side of the passage.

Many beautiful trees are down within the town. A huge tree on the Excel Inn grounds at the corner of First Avenue and Church Street crashed to earth cutting telegraph and electric wires, and missed striking the residence of Mrs. Harry Hayden by inches. Other trees are down on the grounds of the Myrtle House, the Trinity Church and Rectory grounds, and the grounds of Grace United Church, as well as on other private properties. Highways were literally choked with fallen trees, keeping large crews of men busy all day Tuesday. Traffic was almost back to normal on the main highways Tuesday morning, but a number of rural roads were not opened yesterday.

Brooks that were practically dried up early Monday, as the result of a long spell of dry

Discoveries

Gold is said to be where you find it. There may be also something in the tradition that valuable finds are made by inexperienced miners. A story from Manson Creek, in Central British Columbia, strengthens the latter legend although there is nothing sensational. At any rate, a nugget valued at $335 has been picked up a mile from Manson Creek post office, and another reckoned to be worth $160 was found within 300 feet of the same place. Almost an affinity, one might say, between nuggets and post offices. The boys who came across the yellow metal, are said to be amateurs. But they will get over that, if they follow the game long enough.

The Bay View Life Boat

Information has been received the Bay View Life Boat will be in commission shortly. It is understood a new exhaust manifold was needed for the engine, and the department has debated whether or not to send to the manufacturers in the United States for this part, or have it made locally. It has been decided to have the part made in Saint John, N. B.

In the meantime, there is no boat at Bay View — there hasn't been all summer, and many calls have been received for its services, and although the captain and crew at the Life Saving Station are in no way to blame for this situation, we feel that for the safety of those who earn their living on the sea, in spite of the war and everything else, steps should be taken by the department to provide a boat at all times, even if auxiliary had to be in the form of a staunch well powered motor fishing boat.

OBITUARY

Leander Hatfield

Before going to press we were informed of the death of Leander Hatfield, well known resident of Brighton, whose death occurred Monday, at the age of 94 years. Funeral services took place yesterday afternoon.

The Courier Staff Has Its Troubles

If the Courier does not come up to its usual standard this week, blame it on the weather — and mechanical difficulties. Frankly, folks, we had a heck of a time getting this edition to press. If it had not been for the fact we had a few columns of "filler" on hand, it is hard to say what would have happened.

To begin with our linotype made up its mind to go on strike. We spent all of Monday morning trying to coax the pesky thing to work, and thought we had overcome our troubles in that connection.

Most of you are aware that we had a storm Monday afternoon, leaving us without light and power. We had no "juice" to run our linotype, our press or our saw; we had no lights to see to set ads. We simply had to close up shop. Without light or power Tuesday morning, we set a little type by hand—that is a slow process in these modern times. The "juice" was turned on at noon, and then we discovered our tinkering with the linotype had not produced the desired effect, and we continued to tinker until four o'clock.

Finally, we did get the thing to go, and the paper came out — after a fashion—but, we consider it a heck of a way to get out the first edition of the Courier's 67th volume!

Yes, folks, the Courier begins its sixty-seventh year of publication with this issue. We did intend to make it an occasion to foot a few blasts on our own horn, but due to the circumstances we have outlined, we have confined the "tooting" to this article. You can take our word for it that the "blasting" was done earlier in the week.

HOW TO COMBAT Rheumatic Pains

Rheumatic pains are often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing excruciating pains. Treat rheumatic pains by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Take regularly Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite kidney remedy.

About This and That

Coming up from Yarmouth by the main highway a few nights ago, it was surprising to notice the number of people who apparently consider that it is quite a safe procedure to travel by team during the hours of darkness and without a light of any kind, not even a reflector as far as we could discern. Accidents on the highways are a very common occurrence in these days, but one would hardly consider, in view of the many tragedies of the road everywhere, that anyone would care to invite disaster. Yet, in Nova Scotia, which has had a considerable number of accidents within recent years, in which automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles have figured a number being marked by fatal consequences—there are people willing to take the fateful chance. It may be that they have absolute faith in their skill and alertness as to be able to avoid road hogs and speed fiends or that they pin their faith in the ability of the car driver to discern them in time by the beam from their headlights, but they are taking an unnecessary risk of their lives that could easily be avoided for the trifling cost of a serviceable lantern. Moreover, there is a by-law now covering this matter, and it seems strange indeed that some would rather risk their lives than observe it.

There is good reason for the prideful claim of Englishmen that "The sun never sets on the British Empire." Is the British Empire facing its sunset? Great Britain has thrown her resources wholeheartedly into the present conflict, and the fateful question should be answered soon. With the German and Italian subjugation of Central Europe; with Japan plotting territorial acquisitions in the Far East, with the Russian bear baring its teeth to claim part of the spoils, the darkest shadow in history has been cast on the British Empire. For centuries Britain has built her government and institutions upon the sound foundation of tradition, valor, and bravery. She holds the respect of the world for maintaining such a rich and far-flung Empire throughout the centuries. Somehow it doesn't seem possible that such a nation could be defeated by a radical, idiotic genius. The world is waiting in anxious expectation for the outcome. We shall know soon.

The Russian press made the claim that the sale of Alaska to the United States, in 1867, was illegal. Anything, no matter how fantastic, is dragged out and played up, these stirring days of high explosives and 400 miles an hour aeroplanes. When Seward bought Alaska from the Russian government, he did make an excellent buy. He scored one of the greatest bargains in history, since the Dutch purchased Manhattan Island for a few crude trinkets. How can the Soviet prove there was any illegality about the deal of 73 years ago? All the parties to it are dead and gone. It would be interesting to know on what basis Moscow makes such a preposterous assertion. Perhaps behind it all, is the hand of Germany.

The history of this old world tells us that whenever peoples have placed non-essentials in their lives above essentials they have robbed themselves physically, morally, and spiritually of the most vitalizing forces of civilized life. Present world conditions, marked by superficiality and artificiality, are again demonstrating this fact. There has to be a return to fundamental principles underlying man's relation to deity and fellowmen. And then, and not until then, will essentials of life be recognized and given the proper respect. Men have to be physically, morally, and spiritually developed to live as they should and must.

Jack Tar and Gob Fraternize

The spirit of friendship and good-will that has characterized the relations between the British Empire and the United States, here is dramatically typified by the American sailor, one of many who brought some over-age destroyers to Eastern Canadian ports and the Royal Naval rating who has come from his own country to help man the ships during their voyage to the United Kingdom. They are shown above on the stern of a U.S. destroyer.

Exhibition Is Off on Good Start

The Digby County Exhibition got away to a good start yesterday afternoon, and in spite of the damage done by Monday's storm, exhibits are said to be above those of 1939. Although this year there are fewer exhibitions than last, due to the storm, the showing of farm produce, grains, and especially fruits was down from that of other years, however, exhibits in these classes were of excellent quality.

This year there is an excellent showing of livestock, and exhibition barns are well filled with fine cattle and horses, with sheep, pigs and poultry housed in sheds outside the barns. Judging of these classes is still in progress.

The lower floor of the exhibition building is devoted to farm produce, while above, the Bear River Women's Institute are conducting their usually well conducted booths of needlework, cookery, preserves and curries.

School exhibits are also on the second floor, and exhibits in this group are of a very high standard and show a marked increase over those of last year, which was the first year the schools took part in the fair.

Among the interesting curios on exhibition this year are a plough, said to be more than 100 years old, and a pick complete with handle, found on the 14th of this month by John Paul. The pick is said to have been buried in an old mine shaft in the vicinity of North Range, 68 years ago.

Attendance at the opening day of the exhibition was remarkably good. H. E. Chisholm, secretary of the fair, told the press more meals were served in the dining hall yesterday, than during any opening day in a number of years. Hon. John A. MacDonald, provincial minister of Agriculture, formally opened the show last evening.

The Digby County Exhibition will continue throughout today, with the Digby Band in attendance in the evening.

While Britain Stands

Most Americans are obviously "rooting" for Great Britain to win the war. But there are naturally some who, from racial bias or other reasons, are not convinced of the need of British victory. The most effective argument we have seen, for the importance of British success to Americans, is the following editorial from the Christian Science Monitor:

"So long as Great Britain remains unconquered, hope remains for a real peace which will release Europe—including the German people—from the prison of totalitarian terror."

"While Britain stands, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, Poland, Czechoslovakia are only temporarily slaves."

"While Britain stands, there is hope for a genuine 'new order' under which some sort of self-governing federation will preserve the liberties of small nations."

"While Britain stands, there is a chance to stop the trend toward utter lawlessness and anarchy which today spreads the threat of robbery by violence around the world."

"While Britain stands, there is hope that the ideals of Christianity, liberty, justice, enlightenment, and tolerance will have free opportunity to develop."

"While Britain stands, paganism, despotism, injustice, imposed ignorance, and calculated intolerance will not have official sanction by the dominant governmental power of Europe."

"While Britain stands, Japan, Russia and Italy recognize some restraints."

"While Britain stands, the Monroe Doctrine can hardly be seriously menaced."

"While Britain stands, totalitarian trade cannot coerce the markets of the globe."

"While Britain stands, the United States is not a democratic island in a world dominated by dictatorships."

"While Britain stands, fifth columnists in America remain merely sinking plotters, lacking great military or economic support."

"While Britain stands, America can spend some time on building a two-ocean navy."

"While Britain stands, there is time to debate preparedness in the United States."

"While Britain stands, America can stay out of war."

"While Britain stands, it is even possible for Americans to debate whether aid short of war should be given her."

HOME HEALTH IS WAR AIM OF V. O. N.

High Health standards at home are a real second line of defence, as far as the Victorian Order of Nurses is concerned.

The full maintenance of not only provides better health services in wartime, but is the best assurance against a post-war epidemic such as followed the last war and previous wars, the V. O. N. contends.

Explains War Role

"Keeping up the services on the home front is the most important contribution to war work we can make," declared Miss Maude H. Hall, acting chief superintendent of the V. O. N. "Most of our nurses feel that they are doing their 'bit' by their efforts in keeping public health up to standard—and better. The V. O. N. feels that the public morale is improved if the women and children are cared for—for the children are our future. That is the reason that few of our nurses have entered military services."

Miss McCuaig, whose headquarters are in Vancouver, said that the war had had little effect so far on home nursing services. However, nurses as well as medical circles were keeping in mind the possibilities of a war aftermath, influenza which swept the world in 1918 and 1919.

Controlling Convoys By Electricity

British ships in 'convoys' are now being kept "in step" by a new electrical device.

Hitherto the adjustment of the varying speeds of the cargo boats in a convoy has meant the continuous issue of instructions by "phone" from the officer on the bridge to his engine room below. "Full steam ahead" would not necessarily have the same meaning for each ship; to one it might mean 12 knots, to another 10.

The new device, which consists of two electrically-lit indicators and a control, regulates speed instantly and automatically.

When the control on the bridge is set to the appropriate position, the increase or decrease of the propellers' rate of revolution is at once shown upon one indicator on the bridge and upon a second in the engine room.

Once the speed has been regulated, the man in the engine room presses a button which switches off the lights on both indicators, so telling the navigating officer that the necessary adjustment has been made.

NOVA SCOTIA Farm News

Creamery Butter Production

Creamery butter production in Nova Scotia creameries for the month of August was 676,428 lbs., an increase of 5.25 per cent compared with August of last year. The production for the eight months ended August 31, was 4,431,147 lbs., which represented an increase of 7.14 per cent over the same period of 1939.

More Poultry for Newfoundland

A further shipment of poultry foundation stock from Nova Scotia to Newfoundland went forward very recently, the shipment this time being 300 pullets from the Cook farm at Milford for the Newfoundland government.

Need for Pitprops Urgent

With the demand for pulp wood slackening off, the farmers who own woodlots are having their attention concentrated upon the urgent need for pitprops, and are being advised to make every effort to cut wood for this purpose. Governmental and other agencies are making efforts now to improve the marketing conditions for pitprops. Purchasing arrangements are being made for all sections of Nova Scotia, and should be completed early in 1941. In some portions of the province excellent marketing arrangements already exist for the farmers who, through their co-operatives, have received contracts for pitprops.

The pulpwood market is inactive since the price for pulpwood has been stabilized and will continue at the present level for some time. It is therefore more advisable, authorities state, that woodlot owners should turn their attention to pitprops.

Young Women Enrol at Agricultural College

For the first time in some years, young women will be enrolled in the regular courses in agriculture at the Nova Scotia agricultural college at Truro, this fall. Three young women of Nova Scotia have already enrolled for the degree course at the college and will commence their studies when the college opens on October 9. They are Miss Lilie Cameron, of Inverness; Miss Marion Purdy, of Truro; and Miss Phyllis Wright, of Riverdale, in Colchester County.

Applications are being received as usual from a number of young men from all three Maritime Provinces, who plan to enter the college this fall. A considerable number of students will also be returning for their second year's work.

Receive Applications for Flock Approval

Applications are now being received from poultry producers in the province for the testing of their flocks under the flock approval policy of the Nova Scotia department of agriculture. Producers who intend to qualify their flocks under this policy, are urged to forward their applications as soon as possible to C. E. Benoit, provincial poultry promoter, Truro.

Nova Scotia during the past few years, has built up an enviable record in pullorum-free poultry flocks under the flock approval policy. In the 1939-40 season, 36,854 birds were blood-tested for pullorum and banded, an increase of over 260 per cent since 1934. A total of 178 flocks were approved last season, 163 flocks had no pullorum re-actors, and 82 flocks had a record of two or more consecutive clean tests. Only 30 re-actors were found in all flocks approved.

Women's Institute Activities

Members of the staff of the Women's Institute division of the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture are at present engaged in judging exhibits in the women's sections of the various county fairs in the province now under way. The displays have been fairly well up in number and quality to former years, the fairs already held being Cape Breton county fair, at North Sydney; Cum. and berland County at Oxford, and Annapolis County at Law.

Some time ago the first carload of Jerseys to be shipped out of the country for some years went to the J. P. Norris farm, near Truro. A second carload was reported to have been sold recently.

Escaping north-east gales, the Weymouth registered diesel tug Madawaska, Capt. L. A. Hains, of Richabucto, N. B., put into Yarmouth Harbor, Monday morning of last week, and sailed Tuesday morning for Saint John, where she will engage in towing pulpwood rafts on the Saint John River between Lincoln and Saint John. The Port Royal Pulp and Paper Co. have the tug under charter to do this work, which will be on the job until the first of November, it is expected.

From the time the tug left Carleton, Quebec, on the 5th of September until reaching Yarmouth the worst kind of weather was experienced and during north-east gales put into Port Daniel, P. Q., for two days. At a number of other ports en route the tug harbored for shelter including Pubnico, where it stopped, Monday morning in the harbor there, just before arriving at Yarmouth. Owned by the Madawaska Corporation Co. of St. George de Bois, Quebec, after which company the tug is named, the Madawaska has been engaged in towing logs from Cascapedia to Carleton. Upon its arrival at Saint John, Capt. Hains will sign off and be replaced by Capt. Clovis Bujold, of Carleton, at present aboard the tug.

It is interesting to note the tug, registered at Weymouth, N. S., was built at Meteghan, ten years ago, by John Deveau, manager of the Meteghan Shipbuilding Co., and is powered with a 400 h.p. Fairbanks Morse diesel. Speed is 10 knot. Six men are aboard, and later on the Madawaska will go to Meteghan for general repairs, it is expected.

In Yarmouth harbor for shelter during last week's storm was the internationally famed racing schooner Gertie L. Thibaud from Boston. Capt. Cecil Moulton is skipper. Two weeks ago the vessel lost lower sails when caught in a breeze. Yarmouth Light.

PITY THE POOR TEACHER!

We can heartily sympathize with the teacher who has to deal, for the first few months at any rate, with some mother's pet, who has never known restraint or discipline. In fact, we have often marvelled at the patient way in which teachers seek to show the difference between right and wrong to someone's spoiled darling who should have been spanked early and often. Personally, we doubt if we could stand the strain. But perhaps the teacher has always to mind the possibility that little Johnny, who put the snake in her desk and threw the ink bottle at his neighbour, may some day be Prime Minister. That's the only way we can account for their restraint!—Wainwright Star, Alta.

IDLE RUMOURS

It is only natural that there should be a keen interest in all war news and progress being made on the "home front". It is a duty, however, to discourage careless talk, which is so easy to indulge in with so many rumors on the go every day. Some of the rumors, undoubtedly, are started by fifth columnists in an effort to shake the confidence of the people. Much German propaganda is being spread throughout Canada and the United States. Any person who helps to spread it is aiding Hitler, and the man or woman who helps to spread rumors is, perhaps unconsciously, working for the Nazis.—Pictou Advocate, N. S.

PLANNED AGRICULTURE NEEDED

The time has come when the government will have to use its powers to do some definitely constructive planning on behalf of the western farmer, otherwise a very serious situation is likely to arise. Without planning for agriculture, farmers are going to find themselves railroaded along the same route to unemployment that has been the fate of thousands in industry. Improved machinery and methods are constantly decreasing the number of men necessary to produce the nation's crops. This should be a blessing, but it will be nothing but a curse unless the government immediately undertakes a large-scale planning and reorganization of the wheat-producing industry.—Swift Current Advocate, Sask.

CHIPS OF THE OLD BLOCK

Several hundred English children lived up to great traditions when they met the threat of German barbarism on the high seas. Within three and a half minutes after their ship had been torpedoed, the youngsters were safely in the lifeboats and not a single child was lost. It is clearly evident that careful training is being carried out and the supervision is of the closest.—Sherbrook Telegram, Que.

MORE FORCEFUL TALK WANTED

If you have nothing to say, for heaven's sake DON'T SAY IT. A lesson that is yet to be learned. Some people are as voluble as a parrot, and when you walk away you are as wise as you were before. We are in dire need of speakers who can drive home a message these days. Let us have less of coddling and sit-downism. We want action in word and speech.—Coldwater News, Ont.

A TURKISH VIEW

British defence strength has grown immeasurably during the last three months. It is, in fact, possible for the High Command to tell the Dominions that their troops are only wanted now for the Near East or in the reserve line. As the Home Guard gradually becomes a well-equipped and well-trained corps, it may even be partially absorbed in the army, with the result that the Mother Country will be able to spare troops to be used against the Italian colonies where the first major offensive will be undertaken by the British.

Stores, personnel and equipment are gradually mounting all round Italian East Africa in readiness for the first big move, which will probably come after the rainy season.—Ikdam, Istanbul, Turkey.

NAVAL ERROR
(London Daily Sketch)
Nobody is better able to deal with the Italian Navy than Admiral Sir Dudley Pound. The

First Sea Lord, who has had already considerable experience of their tactics. He was in command of the Mediterranean fleet, at the time of the Abyssinian war and there are many good stories told of the ways in which he dealt with over-inquisitive Italian vessels. On one occasion he sent destroyers to carry out a depth charge exercise off Malta. Within a minute several Italian submarines were, on the surface, their commanders apologizing and saying they "thought they were near the coast of Greece."

ENLARGE THE "MOUNTIES"

Canada has preformed to emphasize superficial dangers rather than tackle the problem of subversive elements along strict military lines. The entire responsibility has been placed on the shoulders of the R.C.M.P., without increasing the staff in proportion to the extent and nature of these new duties. The work has been exceptionally heavy and the results have been remarkably good. It has, however, entailed a very serious and continuous effort on the part of the staff, and there is a limit to human endurance.—Coaticook Observer, Que.

ENGLAND'S CAUSE—OUR TASK

Down through history—from England's first great War Minister, Thomas Wolsey, to her latest, Winston Churchill—England's victories have been won through singleness of purpose.

England's cause—the cause of individual liberty—can succeed only through the determination and steadfast devotion of every man and woman who enjoys this liberty and who knows our cause to be just.

We, whose task is to guard the home front, must make it our supreme concern that no failure of our efficiency shall cripple the efforts—and sacrifice the lives—of those who fight our battles in the zones of war.—Kemptville Advance, Ont.

Interesting Sidelights on the War

Switzerland is feeling the pinch—shortage of coal has forced the government to forbid food being served after 9 p.m.

"Conchies" (conscientious objectors to military service) have not been unduly plentiful in this war, but even so, the proportion of them has declined considerably with Hitler's successive barbarisms. Northampton Town Council has come to a novel decision about "conchies" on its payroll. It decided to terminate the services of "conchies" and to re-engage them, if they wished, for the duration of the war at soldiers' pay plus a billowing allowance not exceeding $4.50 weekly.

The British scheme for salvaging scrap is now in full swing. The other week end more than 1400 railway trucks full of scrap metal from village collecting dumps, were on their way to scrap yards, there to be sorted out and sent on to munitions works. One week's "catch".

And now for a story with a moral—as well as MORALE. A few days ago, Marjorie St. Barbe Watkins announced her engagement to Capt. Adam Gordon, in the newspaper social columns. Friends pressed her for the date, but Marjorie couldn't say. She didn't mention the fact that her fiancé was a prisoner of war in Germany.—Think it over.

Welcome news from Turkey, where an Istanbul newspaper publishes this: "Memo to representative in Istanbul—'Cancel orders. Factory no longer exists. Reason R.A.F.' This is the substance of a telegram just sent by a leading German firm to their traveller in Turkey." The newspaper adds "Bravo, R.A.F."

Pluck will always come out on top. A Chelsea (Eng.) estate agent, Mabel Lethbridge, lost a leg in a munitions factory explosion in the last war, was awarded the O.B.E., at 17, pioneered in hiring out stools to West End theatre queues, wrote a remarkable autobiography. When this war affected estate business, made blackout curtains, painted car bumpers white at 50 cents a time, now runs a business providing humorous signs and slogans, such as: Rockefeller Flats at Poorfeller prices.

A prominent Dane went to the cinema to see a newsreel of the German troops entering Copenhagen, in May. His countrymen were cheering them to the echo, and to his horror he recognized his own wife in the front row, cheering and waving the hardest. He went straight home and accused her of treason. She returned to the cinema with him and saw herself in a hat she had not worn for two years. The crowd scenes had been cut from an old print of a Danish royal procession.

More News About the Storm

News of storm damage as the result of the storm of Monday of last week, is still drifting in to Digby. Word was received by mail that four Westport fishing boats, owned by Ray Repool, Lloyd Bailey, Hilbert Garron and Malcolm Welch were lost in the gale. In addition, several fish sheds were destroyed, and the fish weirs operated by E. C. Bowers & Co., and by Titus Bros., suffered considerable damage. A crashing chimney made a large hole in the roof of the residence of Gerald Bailey.

At Freeport, on Long Island, Fred Stevens' fish house blew over, and boats owned by Bernard Blackford and Fred Thurber filled with water.

Also, from Freeport, comes the story of a daring rescue of two boys, made Sunday evening by Miss Pearl Sarty, a visitor in the community. The boys, Allan Pyne and Lester Thimot, both of Central Grove, upset in a dory in Freeport harbour about 10.00 a. m. Hearing their cries for help, Miss Sarty took off her coat, plunged into the water and effected a rescue.

The Germans understandably enough don't like to attract too much attention in removing food from conquered Norway. A load of coffins which fell on a quay, broke open, revealing their contents to be not the bodies of German soldiers but hams, sausages and other foodstuffs.

Canadian troops in Newfoundland are ready to serve notice on Adolf Hitler anytime, Marsh D. Peters, supervisor of Canadian Legion War Services, of Newfoundland, said in an interview recently. He expressed the conviction that the health of the men is superlative and that their morale and fighting spirit are at the keenest pitch.

Describing what he termed "of vital importance," Mr. Peters explained that the work of the Legion War Services—among the troops is primarily to render all possible assistance in making the men happy and comfortable under active service conditions.

Hundreds of thousands of sheets of free writing paper and envelopes, daily newspapers, magazines, balls, bats and games; free cigarettes, as well as comforts to those in hospitals are distributed regularly by the Legion to the troops, he said. In addition, the Legion presents weekly moving pictures with sound, organizes sing-songs and concerts, and arranges and supervises baseball games among the various units.

He added that the Legion's education scheme, whereby the men could take up or continue studies to prepare themselves for their return to civil life, and at the same time to improve their military efficiency will be instituted this fall. A Legion education officer is expected to arrive at Newfoundland within the next few weeks to get the program under way.

"The Legion realizes, from experience in the first Great War, that boredom is an enemy agent," Mr. Peters said. "We are trying to combat that by providing education opportunities, entertainment, sports and other services of varying kinds. All of our activities are non-profit making."

The hospitality of Newfoundlanders is amazing, he said, and told of the people of one town who, without charge, housed and fed a large contingent of men during a week-end leave. Officers and men alike have never seen or heard of such kindness anywhere else in the world, he stated.

Mr. Peters paid tribute to the co-operation being extended by the Legion by the military authorities, "everyone of whom," he added, "is deeply appreciative of the work we are doing."

Many Guns Registered With Mounties

The registration of firearms at the office of the local detachment R.C.M.P., was completed last week. In all, some 1,600 certificates, representing some 5,000 to 6,000 pieces.

A Protest—and A Challenge

To the Editor of the COURIER.

Sir:—On the opening day of the Exhibition at Bear River, I entered my horses for the horse pull, with the secretary, Mr. H. E. Chisholm, paying the required fee. Feeling I may have been late in making this entry, I made inquiries in the presence of two teamsters, and was assured everything was o. k., and told to have my horses on the grounds by noon, Thursday.

I arrived with my team at 12 o'clock noon, on Thursday, when I was advised other teamsters had protested my entry, and my team was disqualified. An offer was made to refund my entrance fee, which I refused—I didn't begrudge them the 50 cents.

As stated, I entered my team in good faith with the perfect understanding that entry by noon on that day would be satisfactory, my fee was paid, and I feel I was not treated justly in this matter. It is not an easy matter to drive a team of horses from Mount Pleasant to Bear River, and then be barred from the pull.

The exhibition is advertised as the Digby County Exhibition, and allowances should be made to farmers, who cannot have their animals on the grounds at a moment's notice.

In protesting the treatment given me, I also challenge all who entered, and protested my entry in the event at Bear River, to pull with my team at Digby—place and date to be decided. Proceeds from this pull will be donated to the Red Cross.

Film of the "ortho" type is well adapted to outdoor snapshotting—especially with subjects of strong contrast, as in this picture.

"Am I using the right film?" That is a question which many snapshotters ask—and, fortunately, it is a question easily answered. There are three general types of film most suited for use by amateur photographers. These are orthochromatic or "ortho" type film, fine-grained panchromatic film, and high speed panchromatic film.

The "ortho" type film is ideally suited to most outdoor picture-taking. It has ample speed for outdoor shots, even with inexpensive cameras. And, moreover, it has unusual latitude in exposure—which simply means that even if you make fairly large errors in exposure, the film tends to compensate for them, and yields good pictures.

Exposure latitude is obtained in the "ortho" type film by an interesting process of double coating—a fast film emulsion plus a slow film emulsion. This double coating extends the capacity of the film. As a result, your pictures retain detail in the shadows, even when somewhat underexposed—and detail is also preserved in the bright parts, even with considerable overexposure.

Since most outdoor scenes have strong contrast—deep shadows plus brilliantly-lighted areas—the double coated type film is a logical choice for all general outdoor shooting.

The second film mentioned—the fine-grained panchromatic type—is especially suited for taking pictures that are to be enlarged. It has excellent speed, although not the extreme sensitivity of the high speed panchromatic films. But its main virtue is the fine, even grain, which permits big enlargements without outstanding detail and quality.

The third film—the high speed panchromatic type—is the one to select for snapshots-at-night, and for daytime shots under extremely adverse light conditions. Such film is so fast that it makes box-camera snapshots easy at night, with only two amateur flood bulbs to illuminate the subject. Because of its extreme speed, it must not be used for box-camera snapshots of sunlit subjects; but it is fine for snapshots on extremely dull, cloudy, or rainy days.

So, there you are. For general outdoor shooting, "ortho" type film; for snapshots at night and on very dull days, high speed panchromatic film; and for pictures that are to be enlarged, fine-grained panchromatic film. Memorize those suggestions—and you need never be in doubt about what film to choose.

Offers to Care For Dependents

Canadian companies are giving generous support to the struggle against Hitlerism by assisting employees who wish to enlist. Generous plans have been formed to care for the dependents of men who enlist in any Branch of the services.

A plan has just been announced by Robin Hood Flour Mills Limited, which makes it possible for every qualified man to assist in the country's war effort without financial sacrifice. The general outline of the plan of pay supplements and job guarantees is as follows:

"To those who are in full time military services and have certified dependents, the Company will pay a supplement representing the difference between army pay plus allowances, and the earnings of the employee at the time he leaves the Company for the military service. In the case of those who have no dependents, the pay supplement will represent the difference between army pay and allowances, and three-quarters of their earnings at the time of departure.

"To the men who are already members of the Non-Permanent Active Militia and to those who will be called up as Trainees, the Company will give full pay for the first 30 days in training camps and thereafter a pay supplement the same as to those who are in full time military service.

"The Company is undertaking to return any employee who is away temporarily in training camp, to the same job that he left; and to those who go into full service, the Company guarantees jobs after a man is mustered out.

"For purpose of seniority, the time spent in military service will be considered as having been spent in the Company's employ."

Robin Hood Flour Mills Limited is a national organization, operating from coast to coast, and the policy that has been adopted will affect employees in every Province of Canada.

Dukeshire - Forbes

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin with conventional veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bridal bouquet. She was attended by Miss Doris Sanford, as bridesmaid, dressed in pink organdie over silk, and Carol and Anne Forbes, in pink and blue organdie, as flower girls. The groom was supported by his brother Garfield Dukeshire, as best man. Rev. E. A. Robertson, pastor of the Wood Harbor Baptist Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of nearly one hundred guests; after which Mrs. Cleveland Forbes, sister-in-law of the bride, sang "At Dawning". Mrs. E. A. Robertson played the wedding music. Refreshments were served. Her pleasing soprano voice has been heard over the radio from Yarmouth to Boston. Previous to her marriage she was a member of the Wood's Harbor B.Y.P.U. About This and That

Is your life "ordinary" and "dull"? Then count your blessings and be thankful! This is the admonition of Channing Pollock, distinguished playwright and lecturer, who draws upon his own hectic routine to describe the "gold-fish bowl lives" of celebrities, in the current Rotarian magazine. "Celebrities even those not so celebrated, except in the advertising, don't lead dull lives," he says. "I think a few years of it cures all but the most chronic cases. Take it from me, for people who 'do things'—even second-rate things in a third-rate fashion even we bush-league celebrities—life isn't a grand, sweet song; it's going to bed in a greenhouse next to a billiard parlor or a jazz band. When all's said and done, we Who's Whosers pay a high price. Fame is a full-time job, and the most avid celebrity must grow weary of living in a zoo and having people throw peanuts at him. Even applause comes to be all in the day's work."

Often you hear complaints about the service that grocers, druggists and other business men are rendering in the town. Ninety-nine per cent of those claims are unjust. This is a day of "Service". It costs money for trucks, helpers and delivery. If every housewife in town would make a habit of doing her own shopping, like her grandma, there is no doubt that her grocery bill would drop, and the grocer would be able to lower his prices, because of lower service costs to him. Yes, this is a day of service—service with a smile, plus. But too plus entirely. It would be interesting to know how much money the average home could save on grocery bills alone, if consideration was shown for the grocers, and women did a spot of their own shopping, and when they did shop by phone, use their heads. Yes; it would be interesting.—Dartmouth Patriot, N. S.

The long arm of British sea power has convoyed an immense armada to a port in Egypt, and on that voyage from the shores of Britain, down the Atlantic and through the Mediterranean, no enemy ships of war were encountered, nor were they even sighted. Huge liners, converted into troopships, passed by hostile shores in safety. It was as if no rival navy existed in that part of the world when, as a matter of fact, it does. But there was no interference with the movement of powerful reinforcements to checkmate a threat against Suez.

There is, in Nazi philosophy, the maxim "Right is whatever profits a nation; wrong is whatever harms it." This is part of the Nazi legal code. It is in line with the practiced theory that enemies of the Nazis are denied legal existence, and therefore have no rights, and no recourse to law or protection. It is fair to say that this revision only became effective since National Socialism became all powerful in Germany. The new order is one sided, a distance departure from impartial justice, and just another way of telling the world that might is right.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John C. Handsaker
The community of Mt. Pleasant and surrounding districts were shocked to hear of the death of Cynthia, wife of John C. Handsaker, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Blair Daley, on Sept. 21st. She was a daughter of the late Edward and Rellief VanTassel, and had spent her entire life of 76 years, at Mount Pleasant. She had a kind and generous personality and was beloved by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn their loss, an aged husband, three daughters, and three sons: Ada (Mrs. Willard Messenger, of West Springfield, Mass.; Leonard, of Lockport; John, of Cooper Mills, Maine; Della, (Mrs. Gordon VanTassel); Bessie (Mrs. Blair Daley) and Edgar, all of Mt. Interment was in the Baptist cemetery beside her daughter, May, who predeceased her many years ago.

Mrs. Lalia Boice

The death of Mrs. Lalia Boice, 83, occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. I. C. McLean, North Attleboro, Mass., Saturday, Sept. 14, after an illness of less than two days. The ROBIN HOOD Barrel

MISS Louise McAuley, of Moncton, N.B., has a traditional fondness for the Robin Hood Flour barrel. Her mother, who had used Robin Hood Flour for twenty-five years, wouldn't have any container in her pantry but a stout wooden Robin Hood barrel. Miss McAuley still keeps that barrel in her pantry, and, though she buys her Robin Hood Flour in the 98 lb. bags now—she still empties the bags into the barrel.

"I have done all my own baking for sixteen years," Miss McAuley said, "and it's easy to bake anything with Robin Hood Flour. You simply cannot beat it for cakes and biscuits as well as for bread. When friends ask me what makes my bread so good, I just tell them that Robin Hood accounts for the delicious flavour and fine appearance."

Miss McAuley is right: The days of the family flour barrel have changed, but the high quality of Robin Hood Flour remains the same. Each bag contains a guarantee certificate offering you your money back plus 10% if you are not satisfied as to its outstanding quality. Order Robin Hood today, the all-purpose flour milled from washed wheat. Use it for baking rolls, bread, cakes or pastry, and you will soon realize by the snowy whiteness and improved texture of your baking that you have found a flour that will become a tradition in your home as it has with Miss McAuley.

Escape-Death as Car Runs Wild

An accident occurred on the waterfront at Freeport on Sunday morning when a truck driven by Harold Amberman, Kingston, who, with two companions had been selling produce in the village of Saturday, were driving down a rather steep hill known as Plunkett Street.

The brakes of the truck failed to work, and instead of making the turn, the truck sped forward over a five foot brestwork, landing bottom up, turning twice over before coming to rest on the beach rocks.

The men were cut and bruised to some extent but not seriously injured. The top of the truck was smashed, but after being towed to the highway, was driven away under its own power.

The men have since returned to their homes in the valley.

MILLION-TO-ONE CHANCE, BUT REALLY HAPPENS

In sympathy for refugees in Poland suffering from the war with Germany, Mrs. Andrew Pancyk, of Youngstown, O., knit a sweater and sent it abroad. Months later, she learned that of all the hundreds of thousands to whom it might have been given by a relief agency, it fell into the hands of her nephew.

Mrs. Pancyk sewed a piece of cloth in the sleeve after she finished the sweater last year. It bore her address. After many months she received a letter from Kozemlesz Tkacz, a son of her dead sister. Tkacz said the name seemed to be the same as the ones he had seen on letters addressed to his mother, years before, and wondered if Mrs. Pancyk were his aunt. He said he had received the sweater in a Polish refugee camp. The Youngstown woman wrote back, affirming the relationship.

NOVA SCOTIA Farm News

Hog Situation Somewhat Brighter

Announcement from Ottawa, the past week that Canada's large surplus of bacon has been wiped out by increased exports to Great Britain. and that a new agreement is being negotiated with Britain for future exports, has put a somewhat brighter aspect on the hog situation for Maritime hog producers.

Hon. John A. McDonald, minister of agriculture, commenting on the situation, said that although prices to producers might not go higher, the tendency towards lower cost of feeds, and the indications of a further steady flow of bacon to Britain, would possibly make hog production more favourable as we would have liked, hog production in the province has been fairly well maintained both as to numbers and quality. It would seem that there is more encouragement in the situation for the future.

"At any rate, it would appear that we have been sound in the policy we urged last fall, of making an effort to produce more of our own feeds for livestock, so that there might be more and better livestock produced, to enable us to make some contribution towards providing food for the empire's armies."

"With the hog situation looking better, and with thriving conditions existing in the poultry industry, where there is a heavy demand for good quality eggs and poultry, it would seem advisable for farmers to give consideration to increasing their efforts in these lines of production. It might be, orchardists, who suffered such heavy losses this year in their main source of income, might find new avenues of income in developing these other lines of production."

Fertilizer Recommendations

Fertilizer recommendations for the Maritime Provinces for 1941 were announced by the Maritime fertilizer council, at the annual meeting of the council, held at the Nappan experimental farm, September 11, with Dr. W. S. Blair, of Kentville, chairman, presiding. The departments of agriculture of all three provinces were represented, together with the federal experimental stations, co-operatives, fertilizer companies, etc. In all, 42 members were present.

The following were the recommendations, made on account of the war and need for further economy in the manufacture of fertilizers: 0-16-8; 2-12-6; 4-8-10; 5-8-10; 5-8-12; 5-9-8; 5-10-5 and 9-5-7. This is the same list as in 1940 with the exception of 4-8-13, which has been eliminated.

Hon. A. C. Taylor, minister of agriculture for New Brunswick, spoke on the importance of the work of the council and the necessity for carrying on educational work in the economical use of fertilizers. John Clarke, of the dominion inspection service, outlined present policies with respect to control of the fertilizer industry in Canada.

Discussions on fertilizer mixtures and ratios brought interesting comments from Smith, Hilton, experimental farm, Nappan; Frank Tinney, experimental farm, Charlottetown; Prof. L. C. Harlow, provincial chemist, Truro; R. Parent, experimental farm, Fredericton; F. K. Hampson, of Hamilton, of the American Potash Institute, and others.

Following the business session the delegates present were given a tour of the plots on the experimental farm at Nappan, in charge of Supt. Baird. The Women's Institute of Maccan, served the luncheon, proceeds for the Red Cross.

Poultry Quality Keeping Up

en, fowl and capon on Sept. 18, at Auburn, when nearly 3,000 lbs. were marketed on a tender basis under the auspices of the Middleton livestock shipping club and through the central co-operative selling agency, the C.L.C. Moncton. Of the total, 994 lbs. were capon, all milk-fed grades, with 1571 lbs. of chicken, of which 80 per cent were in the milk-fed grades. The balance of the pool was fowl of high quality. Prices paid the producers were 27 cents lb. for the capon on the basis of A. milk-fed grade, and 25 cents for the same grade of chicken.

High Yield on New Breaking

One farmer in Kings County has proved this year what season to a mixture of barley and oats, and obtained a yield of 51 bushels to the acre, an unusually high yield for land that has not previously been cropped. The report is made by R. P. Longley, agricultural representative for Kings County.

Big Gross in Poultry

A gross income of $3,150 for the month of August from the egg output of pullets that mostly were hatched in January and February, is reported by Manning Ellis, of the well-known Ellis poultry plant at Fort Williams. Mr. Ellis states that this gross was received from about 4,500 pullets of January and February hatching, in addition to some 2,700 hens carried over from last year. Some 1,800 Red pullets grossed 48 cents bird, and some 2,700 white pullets, somewhat younger in age, grossed 40 cents bird. These figures are gross, without deductions for cost of feed, etc. This is some indication of how early hatched pullets can contribute to a substantial income in the summer months when the general egg supply is often at a low ebb.

U. S. Potato Crop Up, Apple Crop Down

Most recent figures from the U. S. department of agriculture indicate a considerable increase in the potato crop of the U. S., while figures for the apple crop show a decrease from 1939. The potato crop is now estimated at 383 million bushels, compared with an estimate on Aug. 1st, of 374 million bushels, and compared with the final crop figures of 1939 of 364 million bushels. The six large producing states show a total estimated crop of 161 million, compared with 146 million last year. Maine's crop is estimated at 45 million, against 38 million last year.

In apples, the 1940 estimate in the States is for 114,800,000 bushels against 143 million bushels last year. Six large producing states have only 63,700,000 bushels compared with 78 million in 1939.

Lime on Pasture

Recent investigations in both England and New Zealand have shown the desirability for closer study concerning the best method of using lime on pasture. Relatively small applications of lme e.g., one ton of ground limestone per acre, on acid soils have proved as successful in the initial establishment of pasture as large amounts such as 8½ tons. Where lime is applied as a top-dressing and is not worked into the soil, a dressing of even half a ton of ground limestone per acre makes a profound change in the reaction of the top three inches of soil and markedly influences clover development and the lime content of the pasture. It must be recognized, however, that owing to the high rainfall of many dairying districts of the Dominion, the leaching of lime from the surface soil is rapid and further applications of lime must be made at regular intervals. The weakness of public opinion is that so many people express it only privately.

What we need is a currency with a little more staying power.
