MARRIAGES

Dakin - Gidney

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Saturday, June 6, at St. Andrew's church in Lawrencetown, when Florence Catherine Gidney, youngest daughter of Edwin B. Gidney of Mink Cove, Digby Co., became the bride of Wesley Alvin Dakin, son of Mrs. and late George Dakin, of Centreville, Digby Co., Rev. T. R. B. Anderson officiating. The bride looked charming in a pale blue chiffon dress of street length with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of pink and white roses and sweet peas. The matron-of-honor, Mrs. Lester Keddy, who is a sister of the bride, wore pale rose chiffon with navy blue accessories. The groom was attended by Mr. Keddy, of Clarence. Following the ceremony, which was performed with only Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Banks, of West Ingleville and daughter, Mary, as witnesses a bridal luncheon was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Banks. The rooms were filled with a profusion of seasonal flowers and were decorated in yellow and white, with a large bride's cake of matching colors as a centerpiece of the bridal table. After spending a week visiting relatives in Annapolis County the happy couple returned to Centreville where they were tendered a reception on Friday, June 19. They were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

Wilson - Frost

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Patrick's Rectory, Digby, on Friday, June 19, when Rev. Luc Gaudet, of St. Croix Church, Plympton, united in marriage Grace Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson, Digby, and Lloyd Henderson Frost, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garner Frost, Westport. The bride was prettily attired in a navy blue suit with accessories to match and carried a white bouquet. After a short wedding trip through the Annapolis Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Frost have returned to Digby, where they will make their home.

Winchester - Small

A quiet wedding was solemnized Thursday evening, June 11, at the parsonage of the First Baptist church at Moncton, N.B., by the Rev. Dr. Brice D. Knott, when he united in marriage Muriel Rhoda, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Small, of Digby, to F. O. Paul Maurice, younger son of Mrs. Maye H. Winchester and the late Lovett Y. Winchester, of Digby. The bride was becomingly attired in a dusty rose redingote ensemble with white accessories. Her bouquet of American Beauty roses were artfully arranged with white tulle. The groom's sister, Mrs. Fred Harvie, wearing a pale blue dress with rose accessories, attended the bride. Cpl. Fred Harvie, of the 10th Searchlight Battery, R.C.A., stood with the groom. Bell Dedication at St. Patrick's St. Patrick's R. C. Church, Digby, was the scene of a solemn dedication on Sunday evening, when Rev. William Pepper, a former curate of the parish and now vacationing with Rev. Leo Murphy at St. Patrick's Rectory, Digby, dedicated a bell, the mellow tones of which, will, in future, summon St. Patrick's parishioners to Mass.

The bell was donated to the parish by Laurie Ellis, of Kentville, general manager of the Dominion Atlantic Railway.

The Parish of St. Patrick's was founded in Digby a little more than a century ago; for one hundred years the parishioners celebrated Mass in the little white chapel on "top of the Hill" near the corner of Prince William and King Streets. On August 9 of last year their beautiful new church was dedicated by His Grace the Archbishop of Nova Scotia.

The old church never possessed a bell, and the one that has been installed in the new church will be the first to summon the worshippers of St. Patrick's to their church.

Since the dedication of the new church, old St. Patrick's Church has been demolished with the exception of the chapel which is now being converted into a beautiful shrine, to be dedicated at a public service on Sunday, July 12.

St. John Ambulance Brigade Organized

A meeting was held in the United Church Hall on Thursday evening to organize a Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade in the town.

The meeting was addressed by Mrs. G. A. Little, Commandant St. John Ambulance Brigade, Halifax, and her assistant Mrs. Allen. Mrs. Little outlined the work of the Brigade and stressed the need for organizing V. A. D. work in case an emergency should arise.

A meeting was held Monday evening at which the following officers were appointed: Lady Divisional Superintendent, Miss Myers; Lady Ambulance Officer, Mrs. R. B. Murray; Nursing Officer, Mrs. Jack Keen; Divisional Surgeon, Dr. John R. McCleave; Secretary, Miss Louise Daley.

Meetings will be held in the United Church Hall fortnightly through the summer months to continue the work covered by the First Aid and Home Nursing classes.

All those holding certificates for same are asked to attend.

These Divisions are being formed in the larger towns and the work is all in cooperation with A.R.P. work which is already organized.

Members of the groom's family were in attendance. A wedding tea was served after the ceremony at the Queen Hotel. The young couple will reside in Moncton for the present, the groom being stationed there with the R.C.A.F.

Preliminary Work At Deep Brook

Preliminary work in the Canadian Naval Training School, to be established at Deep Brook, about half way between the town of Digby and Annapolis Royal, has already commenced. Property will include the 400-acre estate of the late E. B. Morse as well as several other properties in Deep Brook, and it is understood will extend back from the shore as far as Waldec.

The Dominion Construction Co. Ltd., who are in charge of the work, have established an office in Digby, in the quarters of the Webber building, formerly operated by Kemp-ton & Mason.

To date more than 200 men have been engaged to work on the project. Many times that many laborers and skilled workmen will be required before the job gets under way.

Although it is conceded Digby and Annapolis will benefit greatly through this construction, an acute labor shortage is already felt in this town, most of the available workmen having accepted jobs on the Deep Brook project.

Residential Area To Be Appropriated?

According to rumors circulating about the town for the past few days, a large block of land in a Digby residential section is said to be appropriated by the government. The block is said to include all of Maiden Lane; the north side of Carleton Street from Maiden Lane to Birch Street; the east side of Birch Street to Prince William Street, and the south side of Prince William Street to Maiden Lane.

The origin of the rumor is unknown, and to date lacks any confirmation.

The area mentioned includes some twenty dwellings (five of which have been erected in the past five years) the Winchester Hotel, the McKinnon House, Digby Garage and Dunn's Service Station.

Trucks Damaged In Collision

About eight o'clock Monday morning a light delivery truck owned and operated by Elton Wilkins was badly smashed in a collision with a heavy lumber laden truck owned by H. T. Warne, Ltd., and operated by LeRoy Robichaud, at the corner of King and St. Mary's Streets, near the residence of Dominic Melanson.

Wilkins, who was driving out of King Street on to St. Mary's Street failed to see the Warne truck coming up the hill until it was almost upon him. The heavy truck struck his machine just behind the right front wheel. The Warne truck suffered little damage.

Wilkins' young sister, Mary, who was riding in back of the truck, suffered minor bruises as a result of the impact. Harvey VanTassel was riding in the cab with Robichaud.

Appealing for Home Defence

During the past week two meetings have been held, under the auspices of the Board of Trade, in the interest of recruiting for Home Defence, but the results have been negligible. A lot of interest was manifested in street conversations and almost everyone thought it necessary, but, well, let George do it! In other words let Annapolis and Weymouth defend Digby—we are too busy making money.

The need for one or more platoons for home defence was stressed by Col. Good, of Annapolis, at Friday's meeting; and on Tuesday, Major Banks, of Bear River, spoke. From Col. Good we learned that there are fifteen young men in Digby who have heard the call, and they are training in Annapolis; and, of course, would be attached to a company if and when established in Digby. But more volunteers are needed urgently.

His Worship, the Mayor, made an appeal for men at the band concert last evening, but with what result we have not yet learned.

If you want to enroll—and you should—go to Woodford Connell and sign up.

By a recent order of the Coal Administrator, J. McG. Stewart, K. C., maximum prices for fuelwood have been established in Nova Scotia. The order, Administrator's Order A-229, does not apply to Halifax or Dartmouth, or to Cape Breton Island, but is applicable to all other parts of Nova Scotia.

The order provides that the "roadside prices" which means the price of any fuelwood "piled or stored beside the truck road nearest to the wood or timber limit" shall not exceed, in the case of mixed hardwood $7.00 per cord, for 4 foot lengths, or $7.50 for 12, 16 or 24 inch lengths; and $6.00 or $7.50 respectively, for white birch.

"The price of fuelwood, delivered to the home or place of business of the customer" shall not exceed, $10.50 for 4 foot lengths or $13.50 for sawn wood, in the case of mixed hardwood and $9.50 and $12.50 respectively for white birch.

Church Holds Roll Call Services

The annual Roll Call services of the Hill Grove United Baptist Church were held on Wednesday, June 24, with large congregations present at both the afternoon and evening sessions.

Visiting Clergymen present were Rev. F. E. Bishop, D.D., Digby, (a former pastor), Rev. John Linton, M. A., Bridge-town, Rev. T. F. MacWilliam, Deep Brook, and Rev. Wm. Randall, Clementsvalle, with Rev. M. C. Munn, pastor, presiding. The guest speaker of the afternoon service was Rev. Mr. Linton, who gave an eloquent and forceful address, reminding his hearers of the duties and responsibilities of Church membership, especially in these dark and terrible days.

Rev. Mr. MacWilliam gave the message at the evening meeting, taking for his text Christ's own words, "I will build my Church," stressing the fact the Church will stand even if all the powers of darkness be barred against it.

The church choir furnished appropriate music at both services under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Franklin, organist.

A special feature of the musical part of the program were two selections by Rev. William Randall, who also led the male trio in two numbers. After the evening sermon Rev. M. C. Munn led an evangelistic meeting in which a large number took part. The total offering for the day was $239.17. The most successful Roll Call Service ever held by this church ended with the National Anthem.

About This and That

There continues too much talk of world peace and post-war conditions in this country, distracting our full and complete attention from the immediate job at hand, that of winning the war, says an editorial in the Williamsport, Pa., Grit.

"Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, is the latest offender in official government circles. He said, in a recent speech: 'The final terms of world peace should wait until the immediate tasks of transition period after the defeat of the axis powers has been completed by the United Nations, and until final judgments can be coolly and rationally rendered by the victors.'

Mr. Welles may have a good idea in this "cooling-off period" after the war is ended, and before final terms of peace are arranged. But why overlook the present to peer into the future? There is just one job we have to do now, and that is winning the war. Everything else should be subordinated to this task. Today we are of one mind, to give the axis powers a thorough and complete beating. Why then think or speak about things which make for division of thought and effort, such as peace ramblings are certain to bring about?

"Let's forget everything else and go about the immediate business of winning this war. That's a program big enough to keep all the government officials and everyone else in our country busy 24 hours a day."

These same facts can be applied to Canada and every nation fighting the Axis. Let's dig in and win the war first.

It is perfectly useless, comments The Montreal Gazette, for the Prime Minister to pretend, if he does pretend, that the plebiscite vote was not a vote on conscription. It was nothing else. Will Mr. King argue, or even suggest, that Quebec province in voting "no" was not voting against conscription? The thing is too absurd to dwell upon. And if Quebec voted against conscription it is no less precisely true that the other eight provinces voted for it, and that their representatives in the House of Commons, Liberals and others, are committed to it. If this is not so, the plebiscite was a farce, a party subterfuge of the meanest kind, a new low in political immorality.

Plan for Artificial Insemination Units

The artificial insemination policy recently announced by the Nova Scotia department of agriculture, and sponsored jointly by the federal and provincial departments is proving stimulating. In addition to the unit at Yarmouth which has been in operation for some months the formation of units in Hants and Kings county appears to be more or less a matter of time, and a brief time at that.

Approximately 90 people attended a general meeting at Windsor this week held under the auspices of the Windsor agricultural Society for the purpose of discussing the formation of an artificial insemination unit. Addresses were given by A. J. Steele, Dominion livestock branch, Dr. E. E. I. Hancock, provincial veterinarian, and C. E. Boulden, principal of the N. S. A. C. Following explanation of the government policy 30 farmers with approximately 475 cows stated they would support the unit. Since the meeting several more farmers have promised their support. They are anxious to have the unit in operation this fall.

In Eastern Kings, George A. Chase has offered to loan for twelve or eighteen months his junior herd sire if an artificial insemination unit is formed. Principal Boulden discussed the government policy at Kentville Wednesday, afternoon, June 24, to the breeders gathered for the field day of the West Nova Scotia shorthorn club. The herd of Mr. Chase includes 60 purebred shorthorns. Breeders in the district have been discussing the formation of a unit for several weeks and hope to get in operation at an early date.

Holding Series Of Field Days

The Maritime shorthorn association intends having a short tour in the neighborhood of Amherst and Aulac with an evening meeting at Aulac July 1. On this date R. M. Holtby, fieldman for the Holstein breed, will grade at Munn Brothers, North Sydney. On July 2 an afternoon field day will be held at the N.S.-A.C. Truro, for the Holstein breed at which Mr. Holtby will demonstrate grading of Holsteins. The following day he expects to grade Holsteins in the Annapolis Valley, and will be at R. F. Newcombe's, Port Williams, with an afternoon field day from about 2.30 to 5.00 p.m. This will also include a new Holstein calf club organized in this area. On Saturday, July 4, Mr. Holtby will be at an afternoon field day at Amherst, where he will again meet a new Holstein calf club. The public is cordially invited to attend these field days.

Wool Should be Shipped at Once

Approximately 150,000 lbs. of wool has been received by the government wool grading stations up to June 25. Of the 117,358 lbs. reported graded by June 23 about 855 per cent graded Military style. Receipts at the Antigonish warehouse were the largest totalling 52,194 lbs. graded. Nabou coming next with 41,597, and then Truro with 23,567 lbs. While most of the sheep in the province have been sheared there are still a few that are not, which is neither necessary nor wise. The province has had one of the earliest years for seeding, with the greater part of the planting completed two weeks ago. The wool should be all off the sheep by now. Where shearing and shipping has not been completed sheep owners are asked to act without delay as the wool is urgently needed to meet Canada's wartime demands. It is hoped that the wool will all be received and graded early in July and that the warehouses will be closed early in the month.

Rallies Well Attended

Miss Helen Macdougall, superintendent of Women's Institutes, has concluded the annual series of summer district rallies, the final ones being on the eastern shore. The unanimous opinion, she stated, has been that the 1942 district rally program was rallies were the most successful of any ever held since the adopted in 1930. Despite transportation difficulties and wartime demands the women of the rural communities gathered for the rallies in larger numbers than previously and showed a keener interest than in other years. The average attendance was between 125 and 150. The duties of members and officers, food and plans outlined for winter work. Throughout the series and clothing were discussed, of rallies Miss Macdougall was accompanied by Miss Shand and Miss Powers.

"A Little Girl"

(By James W. Foley)

Sometimes I wonder why they smile so pleasantly at me. And pat my head when they pass by as friendly as can be.

Sometimes I wonder why they stop to tell me "How-d'-do."

And ask me then how old I am and where I'm going to;

And ask me can I spare a curl and say they used to know

A little girl that looked like me, oh, years and years ago;

And I told Mamma how they smiled and asked her why they do.

So she said if you smile at folks, they always smile at you.

I never knew I smiled at them when they were going by. I guess it smiled all by itself and that's the reason why;

I just look up from playing if it's anyone I know

And they most always smile at me and maybe say "hello";

And I can smile at any one, no matter who or where,

Because I'm just a little girl with lots of them to spare;

And Mamma said we ought to smile at folks, and if you do

Most always they feel better and they smile right back at you.

And when so many smile at me and ask me for a curl

It make me think most everybody likes a little girl;

And once when I was playing and a man was going by

He smiled at me and then he rubbed some dust out of his eye.

Because it made it water so, and he said he used to know

A little girl up in his yard who used to smile just so;

And then I asked why didn't she now, and then he said:

"You see"

And then he rubbed his eye again and only smiled at me.

What You'll Need For That Picnic

In all probability folks will not be going far away to hold their picnics this summer. But even if the distance is short, you don't want to have to chase home for something you have forgotten. So do your thinking the day before and jot down the things you know you will need.

Salt and pepper, sugar for coffee, cream, a bag for coffee, matches and paper for starting a fire in a safe place, tablecloth, silver, cups, paper plates, a tea towel and some-are all things you should not go without.

For special picnics you may want to take along wire-handle forks for toasting wieners or steaks, a clean pocket knife, a thermos jug filled with a hot or cold beverage, galvanized wire screening to use for a makeshift grill, a coffee kettle, long-handled frying pan.

Salads and fruit sauces may easily be carried in screw top jars or vacuum bottles.

Casseroles wrapped in newspapers will stay hot for a surprisingly long time. Place cake or cookies in covered tin boxes and carry radishes, celery, tomatoes and lettuce in oil skin bags such as you use in the refrigerator.

Carry lemon juice and sugar mixed but undiluted for lemonade. To get the best results from a thermos jug, temper it with hot or cold water before filling it with the picnic beverage.

Make Jelly Bag

To make a jelly bag, use a piece of thin muslin and hem the top after seaming it. Leave the hem open a little at each end. Run two strings or pieces of tape through the openings and fasten the ends of the tape. This leaves a string to pull at each end. When the fruit is in the bag pull up the two strings, tie them together, and hang the bag on a hook to drip.

Iron Frying Pan

Metals are precious these days, and you'll want to take care of that iron frying pan.

Wash iron utensils in hot sudsy water. If this doesn't clean them, use hot soda and water. A small utensil may be boiled in soda and water. Rinse and dry.

Always keep iron thoroughly dry to prevent rusting. If the iron pan should become rusted, take off the rust with scouring powder, with steel wool, or with a ball of copper threads. To store an iron pan for any length of time, coat it with saltless oil or fat. Wrap in paper and store in a dry place.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURING BABIES

Want to make better baby pictures outdoors? Give the child a toy to play with and snap him in action.

MAKING baby pictures is just about the most appealing pastime in the world. First, because your baby is the most important thing ever for you. Second, babies are such natural subjects that it's almost impossible to make an uninteresting, or poor picture.

But, even though the chance of error may be mighty slim, there is a chance. And that's why I'm going to discuss the subject today, and offer you some tips.

First, remember the only way a baby ever looks "natural," or at ease, is when he is his normal energetic self. To make good pictures of your baby you must literally catch him in action, that is—doing something—and that's not as difficult as it sounds.

For instance, did you ever know that the best way to get a baby to pose is to give him a new toy to play with—something bright and shiny? Try it sometime, and just watch the expression on his face. At one moment, you'll note, he seems very perplexed. And then—just like that—he's laughing. Pictures made at such moments are treasured always.

By using such an approach you're certain to capture all the baby's natural charm. And, the nice thing about it is that even after your baby outgrows his swaddling clothes, you can still adapt the same technique to your picture-making without the slightest difficulty. Just turn it into a game. If the youngster is old enough to be playing with building blocks, talk to him about it for awhile. You might suggest a minor improvement here or there. Then, when he's really engrossed in his game—quietly step back and make your pictures.

As for the technicalities of making baby pictures outdoors, there are just three things to check on—focus, exposure, and background. If you own a box or other type of fixed-focus camera, don't get any closer to your subject than about six feet—unless you place a portrait attachment over your lens. With this inexpensive accessory you can work as close as three or four feet, but if you plan to have your best pictures enlarged, that won't be necessary. Your photofinisher can enlarge any section of the negative, and eliminate from the finished print all distracting or unnecessary surroundings.

As for background, keep it simple—a plain wall or just the sky is best, and you'll have no trouble making top-notch baby pictures.

In Hospital

I'm in the D. G. H., my lad, I had to come at last. I should have come two years ago.

For then t'would all be past.

My feet were awful chilly When I first thought about it, But now I'm here, I wonder why

I had the nerve to doubt it.

My doctor is the very best That any man could find, For he's a doctor and a friend Who is both good and kind.

The nurses are all sweet and kind

From matron down to pro, So if I'm ever sick again, To D. G. H. I'll go.

I'll tell you more about it When we're at home old "Cover".

If everything comes out all right.

Writes Home

Dear Aunt Lizzie:—Well! I have been away for the week end. Billie and I went to London. We had a lovely time, saw many things of interest and many historic places. It certainly is a big city and one could spend months and months there without seeing half of it. One almost wonders where they could find so much cement and clay to put together, and knock apart too. Really there are some parts of London that are pretty bad—'cause all you can see now is crumpled stone and cement, but a year ago it must have been pretty awful. These people deserve credit. We visited the Tower of London, then St. Paul's Cathedral, attended a very nice memorial service there and believe it or not, actually saw the Lord Mayor of London, watched the procession afterward, which was very impressive. Then I scooted all around Buckingham Palace. The grounds surrounding the palace are lovely, also the arches and memorials, etc. Went into Westminster Abbey—really was struck with awe then—it is so large and majestic. One could almost spend a whole day there just reading the epitaphs. The memorial to the Unknown Soldier is very lovely. Was fun hearing and actually seeing Big Ben.

Then I visited Madame T. Louveau's Wax Museum. The figures there are really marvelous. I smiled at a couple of people and almost spoke to one and found they were purely wax and wouldn't answer me no matter how long I smiled and talked to them. After that I found myself staring and observing people a long time until I found out they would answer. I really got a big kick out of all that.

Much love,

Margaret.

Will Observe Half Holidays

Twenty-eight merchants and tradesmen of the town of Digby have signed a petition to close their stores on Wednesday afternoons of every week in the year, excepting the month of December and any week in which a public holiday occurs.

The Wednesday afternoon closing will go into effect on July 8. Signers of the petition have agreed to close their stores at 1 o'clock on those afternoons.

The twenty-eight signatures are those of the managers or proprietors of the business places concerned, and represent the majority of retail establishments in the town of Digby. It has been nearly twenty-eight years since weekly half holidays have been observed in this town.

Attempts have been made almost annually by clerks and other employees, but without success. Their petitions have reached the town council, and have been considered by the Digby Board of Trade. They have always met with opposition on the ground that Digby's trade was primarily a summer trade, and therefore it would be unwise to close, especially during the summer months.

The petition circulated last week was not circulated by employees, but by younger merchants of the town. An advertisement appears in this edition of the Courier announcing their intention.

There are still a few who have not signed, but it is thought the majority of them will follow along with the others.

Fishing Industry Doing Its Part

Canada's fishing districts are doing their loyal part in the national effort. They've sent their full quota of soldiers into the Army and their share of men into the other services. The men remaining in the fishing villages are 'taking up the slack' in productive effort that essential food supplies may be available and, above all, that the food needs of Britain, fortress of Liberty, may be met. They're good citizens, the people of Canada's fishing industry.

Hundreds of the men in Canada's Army today are chaps who knew very much more, a short time ago, about nets and trawls and fishing boats than they did about rifles or Bren guns or grenades or tanks or any of the implements of war. And by the same token there are fishing villages in the Dominion where only the older fishermen are left because the younger men have quit their nets and trawls and boats so that they may serve in the Army or perhaps in other branches of the fighting forces.

It's been the same in this war as it was back in 1914-18 when so many from Canada's fisheries joined the colours and served valiantly. The sons and younger brothers of those veterans of the first Great War are with the colours today. It may not be possible to give specific numbers but fishermen are on the service lists in their many hundreds.

True, not all of them are in the Army—naturally, some of them have clung to the familiar sea and have joined the Navy and some are with the Air Force—but the Army has its large share of them. Whenever Canadian fishing boats put out to set their lines or haul their traps, they go from homes which think proudly of sons who once were in those boats but now march with the Army.

But don't forget the older men who continue in those fishing boats. The younger fishermen have gone into the Army to fight for Canada and for World Freedom; their older comrades of the fishing settlements must do their best to "take up the slack" created in national fishing effort when the others put on the uniform. The slack must be taken up for fish are greatly needed, more greatly needed than in days of peace, and there are fewer fishermen to catch them than there used to be.

The fishermen-soldiers have fighting to do. The older men-folk remaining in the villages have war jobs too, which must be done. There are big supplies of fish for Canadian Army cook-houses or other service establishments, to be kept up. There are Britain's urgent food needs to be met. In normal times the fisheries are important to Canada, of course, because they add big sums to national production and national trade. They're still important today for some of the peace-time reasons, for maintenance of the country's economic strength is an essential of continued war effort but the fishermen's work has taken on special significance because of these food demands directly attributable to the war.

Of course, everybody knows the popular description of fish as 'brain food'. It's been used for years. Soldiers and civilians alike are familiar with it. Nowadays some authorities shake their heads a bit at the suggestion that fish do more for the brain than other parts of the human body but whether the head-shakers are right or wrong doesn't really matter very much. It does not matter much because, unquestionably and as authorities themselves declare, fish are nourishing and healthful to the body generally, and sound brains and sound bodies go together. Army leadership proved the excellence of fish in military diet both by peacetime and war-time experience. That is why fish foods have had a place on Army ration lists for a long time, and that is why the man-power of Canadian fishing villages, depleted by enlistments as it is, is looked to now to provide large and steady supplies of fish for Canadian Army messes.

However, the paramount demand today among them is the fishermen-soldiers have left at home is for fish for the gallant people of Britain. There is plenty of food in this country for soldiers and sailors and airmen and civilians alike, plenty of food and a wide choice of food, but it is not so in Britain, far from it. There has been urgent call from London for vast quantities of Canadian fish for British people. And the Dominion's fishermen have been making a fine job of answering the call, reduced in numbers though they are. Let one or two facts tell the major part of the story, though they have nothing directly to do with the Army: Britain asked for canned herring, and since the days of peace Canada has increased its annual output by more than 1,000%, sending all save a very small part of it to the United Kingdom.

HON. J. E. MICHAUD

So much, in brief, for what has happened as regards supplies for Britain, although, indeed, the tabloid facts just given do not fully tell the story since other fish as well as salmon and herring have been supplied the United Kingdom. So much for what has already happened, but what is to happen now? This year every tin of canned herring it is possible to pack will be sent to Britain, and every tin of British Columbia canned salmon. Not simply part of the pack. Every single tin! Just how many tins there will be no man can say with certainty, of course; the number depends upon the various factors—abundance of fish, weather conditions during the fishing seasons, and so on. No matter how large a quantity is packed, however all of it will go from Canada to help meet British food needs, every bit of it. In other words, the fishermen who land the raw material for the herring and salmon canneries will be fishing, not for purposes of commercial trade but to help Britain. So, too, the fishermen who catch other kinds of fish which London asks from Canada will be serving British needs.

In the Gay Nineties "The 400" was supposedly the hallmark of social distinction, and on the Canadian National Railways System fast freights are numbered in the 400 series. These include the hot spot manifests moving from Chicago to the New England markets. The Canadian National Railways has retained numbers instead of adopting names for freight trains.

Valedictory Address

Madam Chairman, Gentlemen of the School Board, Members of the Faculty, Undergraduates, Classmates, Ladies and Gentlemen:

We are gathered here tonight for another graduation, I wonder if we realize just how fortunate we are to enjoy these privileges which in this troubled world of today thousands have been denied. The main privilege I speak about is education. We are fortunate in Digby to have a very fine school, well equipped with a very fine staff to which much praise should be given. As we pass from high school into more active citizenship we feel we have reached an important milestone in our lives, a milestone that we will often think about on the road to success. As we take our places in the national life each and every one of us has a work to do in demonstrating the patriotism that is within us.

Gentlemen of the School Board: We realize that you have been responsible for having made this graduation possible and we take this opportunity of extending to you our sincere appreciation, knowing that this was only possible through tireless effort on your part; but we know that your heart is in your work and we trust that you are pleased to see us here tonight as we are pleased to be here.

Members of the Faculty: You who have had the training of us for the past four years and have put forth every effort within your power to make us worthwhile citizens, to you we owe a debt of gratitude we can never repay. We realize how your patience must have been tried on many occasions when we came to school with unprepared lessons and absent minds. I am sure that in the days to come when we are left to our own guidance and thought, our minds will wander back to you and the many times you have guided us in the right paths and we hope the years may demonstrate to your satisfaction as well as to our own that your effort has not been wasted but has turned us out to be real men and women.

During the year we have been reluctant to say good-bye to Mr. Purdy for the duration and we wish him every success in his new field of work but we feel we have been amply repaid by having Mr. Eaton who has so efficiently filled that vacancy and has endeared himself to us all. We know it has not been easy for him to take over during the year because every person has a different way of running things.

To Miss Anderson we say good-bye, not just because we are leaving school but because she has taken a position elsewhere and I am safe in saying that all the students will find a difference to come to school and not find her familiar face at her desk. We wish her every success in her new school.

Tonight I think is a fitting time to pay a tribute to a friend of all the pupils of Digby School: the late Mr. Boden. Although he has not been very active these last few years, my classmates and I will always remember the inspiring talks he gave us.

Undergraduates, we are leaving you in the best and most capable hands we know. We feel much older than you tonight and more experienced. We would like to remind you that "As ye sow so shall ye reap," and for every wasted hour from your studies, for every slighted task you shall pay by lack of knowledge in time of examinations as we have done. We wish it were possible for you to profit by our experiences and not to have to learn things the same hard way we have, but, since this is impossible all we can do is to wish you the best of luck.

Classmates, we have travelled a long way together and tonight as we pause at the gateway of life's activities let us realize that from this time on the shaping of our destinies lies in our hands. Let us also realize that the world is going to expect dividends on what she has bestowed upon us. During these years of our student life we have been on the receiving end. We have had years of painstaking instructions and watchful guidance to prepare us for the struggle that awaits us on the other side. Let us then step forth with a full determination to keep our records stainless, our ideals lofty and our accounts so evenly balanced that there will never be any bad debts outstanding against us. Let us gratefully respond to the divine command of old: "Freely ye have received, freely give."

Synopsis Of Principal's Report

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Board, Ladies and Gentlemen:—It is not often that a town is favored by having such a fine school board as has the town of Digby. I have found the board very willing to cooperate in every manner, for which I thank them.

The present year has been difficult for everyone connected with the school. There have been many changes in staff during the year. In Grade I there have been seven changes: Miss Moses, Mrs. Turnbull, Miss Moses, Mrs. Turnbull, Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. Dillon and Miss Snow. Grade VII has had two changes: Miss Remby and Miss Woodworth. In the High School Mr. Purdy received leave of absence from the board in order that he might join the R. C. A. F.

In Grade XII we are accrediting four students, while in Grade XI we are accrediting six. The accredited certificates were first awarded to larger High Schools where extra-curricular activities played a part. By extra-curricular activities one means such things as: Science clubs, Dramatic Societies, Boys' and Girls' Athletics, Debating, Publication of School Paper and Music Festivals. The student who takes part in such activities is better prepared for citizenship than is the student who does not take part.

Registration on September 2 was 408 and today 440, an increase of 32. Percentage of attendance has been 83.5.

The Manual Training Department is doing a real service. During the present year a table has been built by the department. A table for the science room and air raid precaution screens have also been constructed. An evening class was started for members of the Board of Trade.

The Household Economics Department was host to the visiting basketball teams from Wolfville. It has served teas to the Senior Red Cross on several occasions. It has sponsored a Red Cross Society of its own in which its members have made: infant's nighties, scarves, sweaters, knitted suits, pyjamas, quilt tops, handkerchiefs,—61 articles in all. $42.50 have been raised from a pantry sale and from the 10 cent teas served to the Senior Red Cross.

During the year Boys' and Girls' Basketball Teams have been organized. Games were played with Wolfville and Annapolis. Our season was brought to a close with a trip to Wolfville.

This year we took a track team to Wolfville, the first team in many years. Although the boys did not win any points they are determined to return in another year to see if they can bring glory to the Academy as such boys as Duke Cossaboom, Earl Anderson, Guy Morehouse and Jack Nichols did a number of years ago. The school Board has decided to introduce into the school Cadet Training. It is hoped every boy will become a Cadet.

I would like to thank the friends of the school who have donated the use of their cars for any functions or who have assisted the school in any other way.

During the month of November forty dollars were raised by the pupils of the school for the Navy League of Canada.

The school students have carried on a salvage campaign in which approximately 10 tons of rubber, aluminum, batteries, rags and foil have been collected.

The thing in which we have most pride is our War Savings Campaign. I shall now give you a summary of that work. $684.00 in stamps bought by students since January 15; $557.75 in stamps sold by students since January 15; $560 cash value of pledges sold by students since January 15; $1287.50 Stamps, Certificates, and Bonds in name of students since September 2, bought outside the school. Making a grand total of $3,094.25—on the average of $8.12 for each student.

I wish to thank the members of the Board of Trade for their contribution to the War Savings Campaign. The Board has decided to place the sixteenth stamp on every certificate which contains fifteen stamps purchased at the school. To date thirty-one free stamps have been granted.

Mr. Chairman my report is completed. I thank you for this opportunity of presenting it to the public.

King Leopold Lives Like Prisoner of War

Two years after surrender of the Belgian army to the German invading forces, King Leopold, of Belgium, is still a voluntary prisoner in his castle of Laeken, conducting himself as nearly as he can like a prisoner of war.

French officials and travelers from Brussels say the king has made his life as simple as he can. He rises early every morning and usually walks before breakfast with his two young sons and sometimes rides with Crown Prince Baudouin.

He takes his meals simply with the children and his new wife, the Princess of Rechy, and with either an officer of the military household or the civil household.

He respects rationing, using food tickets like the rest of his subjects. There is a constant flow of food packages to the castle from Belgian country people, but all are forwarded to prison camps, the Red Cross, or to Belgian charities.

In the morning, after his walk, the king reads the local press, then receives a report of world conditions as analyzed by members of his military and civil staffs. He reads most of the day or works with members of his staff answering the heavy mail from his loyal subjects.

He virtually never receives visitors, as he insists that he considers himself a prisoner of war. A considerable part of his time is taken up with work relating to Belgian prisoners of war in Germany and their families.

Although confined to his castle, the king finds opportunities to keep fit with exercise. In the winter he skates a lot; in the summer he swims and plays golf. The castle has an 18-hole course. At other times he takes his long walks through the property, person-

You remember the dog "Skipper" who drew the sled during the past winter? Well, what was my surprise to see him harnessed to the front end of a wheelbarrow—doing his share toward hauling a load of meal up the Schoolhouse hill—his master sharing the burden from the handle-end of the barrow. "Skipper" seemed quite willing to do his share, but insisted on having a rest on the steepest part of the hill, and since he is the only canine in the village helping out the labor shortage, he had his way.

That rubber stamp means we can say Canada's cotton textile industry is 11 times ahead of its war production records of 1914-18.

The industry is delivering about 215,000,000 yards a year of aircraft fabric, ammunition pouches, anti-gas cloth, camouflage netting, gun covers, parachute webbing, powder bags, uniform cloth, web equipment and other essential materials.

Dominion Textile is proud to have a part in this. We also wish to report that our plant employees are earning 28% more per hour than in 1939, and we pay 5.4 times more in taxes than the total paid in dividends to our several thousand shareholders.

CAMP FIRE RULES:

YOU can't be too careful with your camp fires. When neglected they have turned many a mile of rich forests into desolate wastes. Follow these rules of the good woodsman and play safe:

- 1 You need water, so select a location for your camp fire near a stream or lake—preferably on the stream bed or lake shore. There it will be away from inflammable material and, besides, it will be easy to extinguish.
- 2 Before breaking camp, clean up and burn up or bury all refuse that has accumulated. This is the golden rule of all good woodsmen—and good sportsmen, too!
- 3 Never leave camp, even for a short time, without first putting the camp fire dead out, with a liberal supply of water, stirring the embers to make sure there are no sparks.

Sir:—I would be very grateful if, through the columns of the Courier, I could obtain a few recipes for pickling blueberries.

One of the pleasant memories of my boyhood spent in Bear River is of this delicacy which many expert housewives put up during the blueberry season to be served with meat dinners during the winter months.

I have never tasted the equal, for excellence of flavor and tenderness elsewhere throughout the States and would greatly appreciate the kindness of readers who would send you their recipes for publication in your valued paper. Fifty years have passed, but not the memory of those delicious pickled blueberries.

Nova Scotia Leads In Chick Production

According to hatchery report issued by the Live Stock and Poultry Division, Ottawa, on June 27, Nova Scotia leads in the Maritime Provinces in baby chick production. The report shows 842,077 approved chicks hatched up until the last week in June, compared to 628,248 in New Brunswick, and 356,352 in Prince Edward Island. A few Nova Scotia hatcheries are still operating and it would appear that more than 900,000 approved chicks will be hatched in the province this year. The 1941 Nova Scotia baby chick production was 673,662 and the 1940 production 516,209. In 1932, the first year of hatchery approval in Nova Scotia, only 53,000 were produced.

Organizing Holstein Calf Feeding Club

Real enthusiasm was displayed in the organization of the Cornwallis Holstein Calf Feeding Club, on Wednesday evening, June 24, when there was a gathering of sixteen juniors and a number of senior Holstein breeders.

Lorne Logan, of Wolfville, an authority on Holstein breeding, did a major share of the preliminary work, and at the meeting was appointed, along with Karl White and Charles Clark, as advisers. Earle Giles, of Port Williams, agreed to act as local leader.

Donald Newcombe was elected president, Iva Trenholm vice-president, and Betty White secretary-treasurer. They have decided to hold their monthly meetings on the third Wednesday each month. With the growing interest in Holsteins, this new club with its membership of 21 has promise of an interesting future.

Canada Needs More Wool

An earnest appeal is made to the farmers of Nova Scotia to increase their sheep population. This is a war effort. Many more sheep are needed for wool in order to meet the wartime demands of the nation. It is especially desired that those keeping ewes and those desiring to purchase ewes get at the earliest date possible well developed lambs to be bred this fall. Agricultural representatives are compiling lists of lambs for sale and also lists of prospective purchasers where it is not possible for farmers to make farm-to-farm sales. The federal department of agriculture has announced a policy of assistance on approved groups where it is necessary to ship sheep or lambs in large numbers for breeding purposes.

Canada is not producing anything like her wartime wool requirements. In order to help meet the greatly increased demand it is hoped that every healthy, producing ewe and that every good ewe lamb will be kept this year for breeding purposes. And, something more immediate, it is hoped that the remainder of this season's wool will be shipped at once to the government grading stations at Truro, Antigonish or Mabou. It is estimated that there is still 120,000 pounds of wool to be received at the warehouses. The farmer should get his returns from the wool one week from the time he ships to the warehouse. All the wool should have been off the sheep by the first of June. Fleece left on after that loses in quantity and quality and is detrimental to the sheep.

Reports Light Rainfall

Heavy rains in the western part of the province and a lack of rains in the other parts is indicated in reports received from agricultural representatives throughout the province. A report from the Nova Scotia Agricultural College states that the recorded rainfall there for the month of June amounted to only .79 inches. This is believed to be the lowest since the station was established in 1910, except for the year 1926 when the rainfall was only .31 inches. The average for the 32-year period for the month of June is 2.80 inches. During the five months, February to June inclusive this year, the rainfall at the college station amounted to 9.44 inches as compared with an average of 14.05 inches. On only one day this month was there more than one tenth of an inch. Thus June in many parts of the province has been a warm dry month with the results that pastures have suffered and the hay crop has been definitely reduced. Conditions throughout the province however have varied greatly. Certain sections in Western Nova Scotia have had abundance of rain and in many districts not only along the South Shore but also in Eastern Nova Scotia have had excellent rain.

Haying, which is already under way in western and central Nova Scotia, is showing many good yields. There are though many sections where yields are light, particularly in old seeded land.

Says Crop Situation Remarkably Good

The crop situation is remarkably good with the exception of apples, according to the weekly report of R. P. Longley, agricultural representative in Kings Co. The set of apples, he states, is definitely light. Through certain sections frost is responsible. In other cases unfavorable weather during the bloom must be blamed. Sprays have been well applied. Foliage is good. This along with the early season and favorable moisture should assist in sizing the apples. Pears, plums, and cherries are all promising good average crops. Grass looks excellent as does the grain.

Handspiker - Hopkins

Temple United Church, Barrington Passage, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Miss Hazel Blanche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin B. Hopkins, of Barrington Passage, became the bride of Rosco Handspiker, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Handspiker, of Digby. Rev. Joseph Ainsworth performed the double-ring ceremony. The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, she wore a gown of white silk net over taffeta, with lace jacket, floor length veil, and carried a bouquet of talisman roses. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Nellie Crowell. She was attended by her two sisters, Pearle as maid of honor, Reta as bridesmaid. Gerald Hopkins, brother of the bride, was best man. Misses Mildred Smith, Lilian Nickerson, Mrs. Lorne Hopkins and Mrs. James Perry, were ushers. During the signing of the register, Clifford Hall, of Halifax, sang. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. The bride's travelling costume was camel coat, beige suit with matching accessories. The couple left for Halifax to spend a short honeymoon trip. They will reside in Digby where the groom is municipal clerk and treasurer of Digby county. The bride graduated from the Boston school a few years ago and practised her profession in the Digby Beauty Salon.

The Vimy Cross

As one proceeds towards the parade ground, one can see on a promontory, a cross which has the aspect of a religious shrine. This cross was first planted on Vimy Ridge, in France, to the memory of the 13th Infantry Brigade who fell on the 9th of April, 1917, when the Ridge was captured. Later, when Canada decided to commemorate this brilliant epic by building a magnificent monument, this cross was entrusted to the 2nd Division to remain in the permanent force.

Further on the right, directly facing the "Saluting Base" is the building which dates back to the very beginnings; it houses the gymnasium, the recreation halls, and the lecture rooms. Further south are the stables, the Quartermaster's Stores and the canteens. Facing the river is the Administration Building and the Officers' Quarters and Mess. On the extreme left is the Governor General's summer residence. His Excellency has been occupying it officially for several years. During this period, military parades carried out with ceremonial display, including the Band and Gala Dress. There are two bastions facing the river, the King's Bastion on the Eastern side, reveals the most magnificent panorama and from the whole southern shore of the St. Lawrence River as far as the Island of Orleans and Beupre. From the Prince of Wales Bastion, facing southwest, one can see as far out as the Quebec bridge.

Don't Quit!

WHEN things go wrong as they sometimes will,
And the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest if you must—but never quit.

Lift is queer with its twists and turns,
As everyone of us sometimes learns,
And many a failure turns about,
When he might have won had he stuck it out;
Don't give up though the pace seems slow—
You may succeed with another blow.

Success is failure turned inside out—
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you never can tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit—

It's when things seem worst that you musn't quit.

Hasty Conclusions

All of us are apt to jump at conclusions. From limited viewpoints we hastily conclude that which broader vision afforded by more information does not sustain.

Particularly is this true regarding our own estimates of war developments. Mere incidents become events, and events are given greater significance than they deserve until their relation to the war as a whole is properly evaluated.

The adage, "One swallow does not make a summer," is applicable, for one victory will not win this worldwide war.

Questionable conclusions but react upon ourselves.

Authorities Worried Over Courtships

British girls and soldiers of the United Nations have been rushing to the altar in England so fast during the last year that authorities are becoming concerned and showing anxiety over these mixed marriages that usually result from rapid courtships.

Canadian military authorities were the first to restrain their men—prohibiting them to marry unless they had at least $100 in their pay books, which is considered enough to pay for a wife's transportation to Canada at the end of the war with the axis.

To put a curb on hasty marriages, the War Department has announced that "no military personnel on duty in any foreign country or possession may marry without the approval of the commanding officer of the United States Army forces stationed in such foreign country or possession." Department officials said field commanders probably would not be inclined, amid war-time uncer-tainities, to give approval to many marital ventures.

British girls have been attracted to the foreign uniforms, strange accents, and the polished continental manners of the Poles, Czechs, French, Belgians, and Norwegians stationed on the islands, and about 2,000 marriages have resulted.

The Poles, regarded as most glamorous among the exiled armies, apparently are not unwilling to enter into matrimony with British girls. There have been at least 500 Anglo-Polish or Scottish-Polish weddings since the war began, records show.

THE AIRMEN'S TRIBUTE TO THE MEN IN BATTLE-DRESS

For you, our pals in battle-dress,
It's time to take a bow;
We'll tell the world, in this man's war,
You've done a job—and how!
It hasn't been an easy job;
As we who've watched you know—
Nor have you shared our luck as yet
Your stuff in full to show.
You've had to work like Hell and wait
For two long years and more Nor has Publicity's acclaim
Held much for you in store;
But when your time comes, as it must
By all the Gods of War,
The Hun will find out to his cost
What you've been waiting for!

On you, our pals in battle-dress,
We airmen must depend—
For what it takes us to begin,
It's up to you to end!
Your tanks and your artillery,
Your armoured cars and guns
Will clear the earth, as we the sky,
Of Hitler and his Huns.
And every bomb we drop is just
A warning in advance
That he who's lost his shirt to us,
To you will lose his pants!
While we who bear the torch aloft
May play the opening role,
The Cause of Freedom in your hands,
Will reach its final goal.

To all our pals in battle-dress
From us in air force blue,
Here's luck and best of hunting
To the last man jack of you!
The way things look to us right now,
It won't be very long
Before, in person, you'll collect
For comrades of Hong-Kong!
For every khaki-clad Canuck
Who made the Sacrifice,
The Prince of Darkness and his friends
Will pay a bitter price—
A bogus and a busted seer
Will finally confess
"I might have licked the world, but for These men in battle-dress."

VOLUME LXVIII, NO. 43

ROSSWAY CHURCH TO MARK 125th ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday, at 3.00 in the afternoon, All Saints' church, in Rossway, will celebrate its 125th anniversary. Isaiah Wilson, in his "History of Digby County," notes that "the first place of worship on Digby Neck, was that of the Church of England, at Rossway. This church was built in 1817. Dean Bullock was the rector." The second church building was at Westport and Dean Bullock was again instrumental in the building of a house of God. The third place of worship on the Neck was the Baptist meeting house at Waterford, erected in 1839. Later on, churchmen sold the church at Westport to a group of dissenters.

The Christian pioneers of Digby Neck chose a fitting name for their church—"All Saints"—for through this first century and a quarter of its history, All Saints' has seen a "great multitude, which no man could number" beginning their Christian lives in Holy Baptism, advancing by Holy Confirmation, being joined in Holy Matrimony, strengthened on their way by Holy Communion, and finally receiving the closing prayers of the Church, in the service of the Burial of the Dead.

One hundred and twenty-five years is a long time. In 1817, the child who was to become Queen Victoria was not yet born; a Bourbon sat on the throne of France; Napoleon was pining in the exile of St. Helena; George III was King of England. All Saints' stood quietly, watching a century and a quarter go by, seeing "sedition, privy conspiracy and rebellion" in 1830 and 1848. Prayers were offered in this church for Canada's statesmen gathered in London in 1867, the Fathers of Confederation. All Saints' prayed for order and peace when Louis Reil raised his rebellion, prayed for Canada's sons in the South African war, prayed for her boys who had been baptised, confirmed and received the Bread of Life at her altar and who failed to return from the First Great War. Today a number of her parishioners are fighting for their king. One young man of the parish, Mr. Timpany, died in Cuba in 1898 when the battleship Maine exploded in Havana Harbor.

It was Dean Bullock who wrote the grand old hymn, "We love the place, O God, Wherein thine honor dwells" and he might well have been thinking of the little church at Rossway as he penned those famous lines. "We love the sacred font" goes the verse, and the sacred font of All Saints' is a new one, recently dedicated in memory of the Rev. Mr. Driffeld, for so many years Rector of the parish of Digby and who ministered to the church people of Rossway. "We love thine altar, Lord". The beautiful oak altar was not long ago placed in the church in memory of the Budd family, loyal parishioners. The prayer-desk, altar rails and lectern are also memorial gifts. We have no pulpit but that will come some day. The altar, with its cross and candlesticks, is the main necessity of any church—and we have them.

A number of notable priests have administered the Sacraments and preached the Gospel at All Saints'. Besides Dean Bullock, the incumbents of the Digby parish, including the Rev. Mr. Ambrose, the Rev. Mr. Merkel, the Rev. Canon Harley, the Rev. Mr. Driffeld, the Rev. Mr. Gabriel, the Rev. Mr. Caldwell and now the Rev. Mr. Gaskill, have performed their priestly office in All Saints'. Rossway, and Sandy Cove have been, at various intervals, a separate parish, independent of Digby. Every summer the Archbishop sends one of his divinity students to work at Rossway and Sandy Cove. His Grace, the Archbishop himself, began his ministry as a student at All Saints'. Later he came back as deacon-in-charge of the Mission. After his ordination to the priesthood, and for the first time, the future bishop of the diocese administered the sacrament of Holy Baptism to a candidate at All Saints'. Archbishop MacKenney has a number of times administered the sacrament of Holy Confirmation to candidates in this church. The famed modernist rector of St. Bartholomew's church, on Park Avenue in New York city, the Rev. Dr. Norwood, began his ministry lay-reading at All Saints'. So did the Rev. Dr. Henry Zwicker and the Rev. Mr. Allison, both of the diocese of New York. The Rev. Dr. Ball is affectionately remembered as rector of the church for a number of years two decades ago. Church Army (an organization in the Church of England almost identical with the Salvation Army) captains, including the late Capt. James Marris, have ministered at Rossway. In recent years, the now Rev'd John Rand, Karl Tufts and Russell Elliott have come to All Saints' during the summers. Last summer Horace McLean was the student lay reader-in-charge; this year, William Bishop is conducting the services. Eldred Heisler and Thomas Rowlett are the capable wardens. Mr. Gaskill comes during the summer once a month to celebrate the Holy Communion and during the winter every Sunday.

This church serves parishioners in Gulliver's Cove and Penville. Her people are looking forward to the service Sunday afternoon. Appropriately enough, new members will be admitted to the church in Holy Baptism. The choir of Holy Trinity Church, Digby is planning to come and perhaps sing a solemn "Te Deum" of praise and thanks-

Quit Jobs; Now Back To Work

Thomas Crosbie, of the Selective Service Department, Saint John, was a recent visitor to Digby, where he came for the express purpose to straighten out certain labor difficulties that have confronted local employers, and most especially the firm of H. T. Warne Ltd.

A few days ago 64 men left the plant of H. T. Warne Ltd., a number of them accepted jobs on the Deep Brook Construction Project, but had not secured the necessary permission to leave their jobs as required under the act.

Others did not go to Deep Brook, but waited to see how their friends made out in the matter. The result of Mr. Crosbie's visit is that all are now back with their original employer. The Warne mill is classified as an "essential industry" doing important war work. Speaking on this matter, Mr. Crosbie stated there is a local tendency to regard the Warne plant as a mere box factory, but actually the plant is doing vitally essential war work.

He emphasized the fact that under no conditions can a man or woman leave their present employment without permission of the authorities. neither is it permissible for any concern to hire any man or woman in the selective age group without first having permission to do so.

giving for God's blessing on the little church of All Saints' Rossway. The Rural Dean, the Rev'd A. W. L. Smith, one of the notable clergy of the diocese, will preach the sermon. His Grace the Archbishop has sent his regrets that he will be unable to be present, due to current transportation difficulties. On Sunday, July 12, at 3 in the afternoon, All Saints' Church at Rossway begins her second one hundred and twenty-five years.

Protest Home Defense Article

An article in last week's Courier appears to have caused considerable comment and a few protests—the heading of the article in question was "Appealing for Home Defence".

For the most part the protests have come from a group of ex-service men and Legionnaires, who declare the writer did not have the whole facts of the case with regard to the recruiting of a Home Defence Corps in Digby, and that amounts to more than "Let George do it! In other words, let Annapolis and Weymouth defend Digby, we are too busy making money."

We have again been reminded there are several local boys in the Home Defence Corps at Annapolis Royal. There are also many more who are anxious to join a local unit.

As far as we can gather, the reason a Home Defence Unit has not been organized here, is because of a dispute over leadership. One Legionnaire suggests the choice of a trainer for Home Defence Corps should be decided on the recommendation of the Legion who should be asked to vote on the matter.

Perhaps he is right, we are not in any position to express an opinion one way or another with respect to who is best suited to lead and train a local home Defence Force. We are in a position to state this important matter should be settled and that bickering should cease. Home Defence is too serious a matter to be delayed through differences of this sort, and we recommend every possible step be taken NOW for the organization of a Digby Home Defence Corps—the members of the Legion and returned men are the proper body to see that this is done. It is quite possible the differences can be straightened one way or another by a majority or other means, but the fate of the Digby Reserve Corps should not hinge on these differences. This is war.

Traffic Violations

The local detachment of the R. C. M. P. report the following convictions for violations of the Motor Vehicle Act:

Glendon Everett Langdale, of Weymouth Falls, tried before stipendiary G. H. Peters on June 22, charged with not having an operators' license. Fined $10.

Harold Kempton, of Bear River, before G. H. Peters, June 22, charged with not having operators' license. Fined $10.

A. E. Manser, of Eastern Passage, Halifax Co., before G. H. Peters, June 30, charged with speeding. Fined $5.

New A. R. P. Warden Named

At a largely attended meeting of the A. R. P. Wardens held in the Legion Rooms on Monday last, E. C. Sollows was appointed Deputy Chief Warden to assist the Chief Warden to carry out the duties attached to the office.

Matters of interest to the organization and the welfare of the Public at large were discussed which was most gratifying to the Chief Warden that such interest is taken.

Several new wardens were appointed to replace those who have left Town, the list of new appointees are: W. H. Webber, Water St., North of Sydney St. to Prince William; F. W. Robinson, Monahague Row, Warwick to St. Mary's; Aubrey Everett, Sydney St. to Victoria St.; Aubrey Westcott, Prince William St. from Railway Station to King St.; Dennis Amero, Prince William from King to Victoria; Wilfred Comeau, Queen St. from Warwick to George St.; Gordon Hirtle, J. R. Durkee, Pines Hotel. Spare Wardens: H. Hewitt, W. H. Washburn, L. E. Shattford, Ralph Theriault, Leigh Hanson, Roy Campbell.

The next practice alarm is to be of longer duration than heretofore and it is hoped that householders will have a room prepared so that they will be able to carry on their duties during this period. Merchants are also warned to have their stores prepared for a black out. Motorists are also reminded that the regulations do not permit them to be on the streets in motion during this period.

It is hoped that all will cooperate as in the past.

All wardens have the authority of police officers and are equipped with arm bands and steel helmets which makes them easily distinguishable in the darkness.

About This and That

The Go-Getter. Have you seen him? If you ever do, give him more than the once over. Study him with more than a mere superficial examination. Watch him, talk with him, note his reserve power, analyze his qualities, and don't let him get away from you without your learning some of the secret of his power. The Go-Getter can teach everybody something. The evader, always in our midst, ducks and dodges every task he can. The growler toils under protest and insists that everyone in the world is out of step but him. Not so the Go-Getter. His record speaks for itself, and it is a luminous record. The Go-Getter is indispensable, and the world cannot do without him.

He is always several jumps ahead of others because he has constructive imagination. He sees what others look at, foresees while others are gazing into space. His insight and foresight are an inspiration, for he never lets the grass grow under his feet. He never seeks a job, but a position is always looking for him. He does not wait for orders, does not burden his employer with the question, "What next?" Others may have reached their peak years before, but this fellow is still growing. He passed the rest of the crowd long ago.

He is thoughtful, considerate, does the extra work, exceeds requirements, and without growling. His word is as good as his note. He keeps his appointments, and will miss his dinner in order to be a few minutes ahead of time rather than eat his dinner and be five minutes late. Lesser men talk about their rights. He considers duty, privilege, opportunity. Others do less than their best, and trust to luck to carry them through. The Go-Getter follows the law of averages, and hasn't time to think of making money, of promotions, of pay increase, of reduced hours, of short cuts. He does his best, gives his best of himself, and leaves the material gains to fate.

With dreams worked out at the forge and on the anvil of action, the Go-Getter leads his fellows to the heights of achievement.

MARRIAGE

Mullen - Payson

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized in Heartz Memorial United Church on Saturday, July 4th, at 8 o'clock p.m., when Mary Agnes, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Payson, became the bride of Carl Victor Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mullen, of Havelock, N.S. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, by friends of the couple, the altar rail and sanctuary being banked with digitalis and delphinium, in rose and blue. Roses and peonies were in profusion on the windows and the organ, while the arch, under which the ceremony was performed, was covered with mock orange. The bride was lovely, in her gown of white satin and lace, as she entered the church on the arm of her brother, Arnold, of Truro. She carried a bouquet of crimson roses and wore the conventional veil. Miss Jean Payson, of Halifax, maid of honor, sister of the bride, was charming in a rose taffeta dress and wore a shoulder length veil of pale blue. Her nosegay was of blue and pink sweetpeas. The bridesmaid, Alice Payson, of Weymouth, was gownned in pale blue sheer, with a jacket shirred in gold thread. Her shoulder length veil was of shell pink, and she carried a nosegay of sweetpeas. Richard Stodder, R.C.N., of England, was groomsmen while the ushers were John Drew, R.C.A.F., of Yarmouth; Herman Johnston, R.C.N., of Sussex, England, and Thurston

Mullen, of Havelock. During the signing of the register Mrs. George Wagner, rendered a solo, "I Love you, Truly". She was accompanied by Mrs. Kenneth Hankinson, who also played the wedding marches. Rev. R. H. H. Barker, performed the ceremony, and presented the couple with a copy of the Scriptures. A reception was held at the bride's home immediately after the ceremony. Refreshments were served to over sixty guests. Those serving were Miss Muriel Hankinson, Mrs. P. K. Gates, Mrs. K. M. Hankinson and Miss Beulah Harris. Mrs. Arnold Payson received the guests. The bride and groom left after the reception for Liverpool where they will spend a few days. Mrs. Mullen wore a navy pencil stripe, tailored suit, with navy accessories, and wore a corsage of roses. Winning Recipe For Cherry Pie

Having that certain touch with a pastry blender and a good recipe recently won for Mary Elizabeth Lush, Ames, Iowa, the national honor of baking America's finest pie, and from canned cherries at that.

In step with the times, the contest winner's recipe calls for honey instead of sugar, and a pastry combination which calls for lard as shortening. After deftly blending the materials, the high school senior rolled out the dough, spread it with extra lard, folded it, and re-rolled it. The pastry was declared tops in flakiness and flavor.

The winning recipe is as follows:

Filling

3 cups red, sour pitted cherries

1 1/4 cups honey
1/4 cup cherry juice
4 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon butter

Crust

1 1/2 cups bread flour
1/2 cup lard
2 extra tablespoons lard
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/3 cup ice water

Combine cornstarch and juice. Add honey, cook on low flame until thick. Add cherries, well drained. Add butter. Chop flour and salt into lard quickly. Add ice water carefully. Divide dough. Roll, spread with extra lard, fold in and re-roll. Bake 30 minutes, at 425 degrees for ten minutes, remainder at 350 degrees.

Enlarged Pores

Enlarged pores or a coarse skin are usually the result of too little stimulation and exercise. A good remedy is to exercise the body daily until it perspires freely.

Frequently normal-sized pores become congested with waste materials. Then they become sluggish and leave the skin on surrounding areas to do their share of the work.

Wash the face with pure castile soap and quite warm water, using the palms of the hands instead of a face cloth. Rinse off the soap with warm water and then splash the face with cold water. Use alternate hot and cold water four or five times.

Dry the skin by blotting it with a linen or cotton towel. Then massage the face slowly and firmly. A facial mask once or twice a week will be beneficial in firming the muscles and tightening the skin.

FLAKIER BISCUIT DOUGH

Biscuit dough is usually more flaky when baked if the flour, baking powder and shortening are not too finely mixed. Blend the ingredients until about the size of peas and then slowly add enough liquid to make a soft dough. Bake as usual.

The Merchant Marine

As the Royal Canadian Navy conveys Canada's Army across the seas, the dauntless members of the Merchant Marine share their dangers to provide Britain with vital necessities of life.

It is estimated that there are approximately 35,000 Canadian merchant seamen serving in vessels of Canadian registry operating in inland waters, coastal waters and on the high seas. Approximately one third of these come within the latter category and are among the heroes of the Battle of the Atlantic who brave the dangers of enemy attack by submarine, surface raider, aircraft and mine to deliver troops and the products of Canada's war factories to overseas destinations. Records show that to-date 250 Canadian merchant seamen have lost their lives at sea, 182 are listed as missing and 110 are prisoners of war. The number of casualties among the many thousands of Canadian seamen serving in ships of foreign registry is not known.

Recognizing that these merchant seamen share equally with their comrades of the armed forces the dangers of war, the Canadian Government has included them all in its pension scheme for death or disability corresponding to those granted the Royal Canadian Navy. In addition, the Government continues the pay of any merchant seaman taken prisoner of war, thus providing for the man's dependents.

Since its establishment a year ago, this branch has established and is operating Manning Pools at Halifax, Montreal and Vancouver where seamen are provided with board, lodging and remuneration while awaiting a ship. In the past month 95,000 meals were served in these Pools. Two Training Centres are in operation where engine room ratings and deck hands are taught the rudiments of their trade before going to sea. Allied Merchant Seamen's Clubs have been established and are in operation in Halifax, Sydney, Saint John, Three Rivers and Montreal, where seamen on shore leave from their ship may enjoy rest and recreation.

Transportation Services Play Important Part

Civilian Transportation facilities are playing an ever-increasing part in the work of the Canadian Army.

The railwayman and the bus driver, the merchant seaman and the civil aviator, the airway engineer and the canal operator, in fact anyone engaged in maintaining efficiency of the modern transportation system—all are doing their part for the Canadian soldier.

With the productive powers of the United Nations expanding on an unprecedented scale, the ability to convey men and equipment to where they can be most effectively used is a factor of prime importance, requiring the maintenance of transportation systems at the highest possible pitch of efficiency. Military tactics have shown that one of the most vital links in an enemy's military machine is its transportation system, hence the continuous attacks by bombing plane and commandos on railway centres, ports and similar targets in Germany and occupied territory.

A modern army is a highly mechanized organization travelling under its own power. During Army Week, which is being observed from June 29 to July 5, the public will see only the actual spearhead of Canada's offensive and defensive forces. Behind these forces exist the vast and efficiently organized transportation systems required to move men, armaments, munitions, food and supplies across continents and oceans and to maintain the constant flow of raw materials to the numerous war plants throughout the Dominion.

Governmental supervision or control over transportation became centralized in Canada in 1936 with the creation of the Department of Railways and Canals, the Department of Marine, and the Civil Aviation Branch of the Department of National Defence. This centralization has made possible greater efficiency in supervision or control and has greatly facilitated the adaptation of the country's transportation systems to meet the urgencies of war.

In November, 1939, a Transport Controller was appointed in the Department of Transport with powers to regulate all Railroad traffic within the confines of the Dominion in such a manner as to provide priority in the transportation of naval, army and air force as well as war material required by war industries. Only recently, the powers of the Transport Controller have been greatly expanded in keeping with the country's ever-increasing output of armaments, munitions and supplies and the corresponding increase in the movement of war traffic between points or places in Canada, or between Canada and the United Kingdom or any other of His Majesty's Dominions or any allied countries.

Apart from straight transportation, the most important contribution to Canada's war effort by the Department of Transport has been the construction of aerodromes for the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Practically all such aerodromes were completed or sufficiently advanced to enable their use as a training school before the end of 1940—almost one year ahead of schedule. Since then, additional aerodromes have been constructed and extensions made to those already completed. Without detracting from the wonderful war contributions that the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan has made by the training of thousands of Empire airmen, credit is also due to the officials of the Air Services Transport, the contractors and others responsible for the creation of these modern aeroplanes throughout the Dominion.

In the construction of the many aerodromes required under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, more than 47,000,000 cubic yards of soil had to be moved in the levelling and grading work, thousands of trees had to be uprooted, swamps had to be filled in, miles or drainage pipes had to be laid, power lines and water supply had to be made available in sufficient quantities to supply the need of thousands of trainees quartered at the different schools, and hard surfaced runways equivalent in area to a highway extending three quarters of the distance across Canada had to be constructed.

The most important transportation activities of Canada insofar as they come under Federal jurisdiction are the railways which have demonstrated their great importance under war conditions.

Closely related to land transport, and taking on new and increasing importance in view of the character of the present conflict, are the different services of the Department of Transport related to water

Ships

OUR CHALLENGE TO THE "U" BOAT

Canada started this war with virtually no active shipbuilding industry. To-day there are 17 major and 58 smaller yards which, with subsidiary industries, employ 40,000 men. Canada's first 10,000 tonner, launched in October last year, completed its first Atlantic voyage in February! Since then many others have been launched and the present programme calls for 172 new cargo ships costing $325,000,000. Keels for over 50 have already been laid. Before the year is out we will be launching a new ship every few days.

Over 500 Canadian industries are making components for these ships. About 95% of the material used in their production is now "made in Canada."

Not included in these figures are some 200 naval ships already launched, the large majority of them corvettes and minesweepers.

This advertisement is published as a contribution to the general knowledge of our country's war effort and as an inspiration through the days ahead. For reasons of security complete figures are not available. The facts presented, however, are impressive evidence of the growing might of Canada's war machine.

As an instance of the heavy demand on railway traffic occasioned by the war, the Canadian National Railways moved the largest tonnage of freight in its history in 1941, an increase of more than 20 per cent over the previous peak year of 1928. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company likewise reported a new high in its operation during the year.

Rapid transportation by air made possible by the development and completion of the Trans-Canada Airway System of the Department of Transport in immediate pre-war years, has proved to be of the greatest importance at a time when speed is the keynote of the country's war effort. This modern method of rapid transportation has become so essential in maintaining the high tempo of war production in Canada that it has been necessary to impose a system of priority in air travel to insure that important officials are not delayed by inability to obtain seating accommodation on commercial aircraft.

Ten air lines companies, mainly operating in the Canadian northland are being reorganized and integrated into a co-ordinated system by the C. P. Railway Company which holds controlling interest in each company. There are being unified into one system under the title of Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited. Aircraft of this northern air line fly an average of 5,000,000 plane miles annually.

Closely related to land transport, and taking on new and increasing importance in view of the character of the present conflict, are the different services of the Department of Transport related to water transportation. The St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes, interconnected by an efficient system of canals provided an inland waterway extending 2384 miles into the heart of the continent, making possible the transportation by water of raw materials to war factories and the movement of munitions and supplies to tide-water. Besides maintaining and operating canals, the Department of Transport provides aid to inland and coastal navigation as well as nautical and inspection services. It also supervises the constant dredging of the St. Lawrence River Ship Channel and under takes the clearing of ice from the channel to facilitate the opening of navigation at the earliest date possible.

The National Harbours of Canada, operated by a Board responsible to the Minister of Transport, provides every facility for handling the volume of war traffic reaching tide-water by means of rail, water, or highway.

Soldiers in the Canadian Army are protected against foot inspection before and after each routine march.

Reports from Army Camps reveal clean feet and clean socks keep blisters at a minimum.

Don't be a Cigarette Flipper!

HERE are three "stills" from a typical forest scene. In the first the careless smoker finishes his smoke. In the second he flips away the still-lighted cigarette—not caring nor observing where it lands. In the third the cigarette has sprung into flame and a bad forest fire results.

The good sportsman always stubs his cigar or cigarette butts and stamps out every spark of fire in discarded pipe heels, as well. Be a good sportsman!

Smokers are responsible for one-fifth of all forest fires through pure carelessness. Pure cussedness, we should say, for no man has any right in the woods if he doesn't take care in every way to prevent any possibility of fire.

MARRIAGES

Hankinson - Simmons

Miss C. Yvonne Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Simmons, of Boston, became the bride of George W. Hankinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Hankinson, of Weymouth, on Saturday, June 20. The ceremony was performed at the Grace Episcopal church, North Attleboro, by Rev. Benjamin Minifie. The solo, before the ceremony by Miss Helen Coombs, of Plainsville, Mass., was the marriage hymn sung at the wedding of the bride's parents. The bride was charming in a gown of white marquisette and lace with a short veil of tulle caught in a matching cap and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, sweet peas and pink orchid. Mrs. Charles Reed, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and wore a powder gown, and carried pink roses blue marquisette and lace and blue delphinium. Charles Reed, brother-in-law of the bride, attended the groom as best man. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Hankinson is a graduate of the New England Deaconess Hospital at Boston. Mr. Hankinson is a graduate of Mount Allison University, and is now studying civil engineering at Northeastern University in Boston.

Mrs. George O. Hankinson, was among those present at the wedding.

Gardner - Hicks

On Tuesday evening the Church of Christ, Coburg St. St. John, was the scene of a pretty wedding, of interest to many in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, between Rev. Donald L. Gardner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Gardner, of Deer Island, N.B., and pastor of the church, and Miss Geraldine Annie Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hicks, of Westport. The bride was dressed in a rose crepe street length dress and matching hat with shoulder length veil, white gloves, white shoes and looked very charming. She carried a bouquet of Happy-day roses and Bavardia. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald Stockford, of Lubec, Maine. Out of town guests were the father and mother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Gardner; the bride's mother, Mrs. Arthur Hicks; and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar MacDormand, jr., of Westport. Rev. D. L. Gardner is a graduate of Johnstons Bible College, Kimberlain Heights, Tennessee. The bride is a graduate of the school of Modern Hairdressing, Toronto. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gardner left for a three weeks' trip. On their return they will reside at 27 Peters St. The bride's travelling coat was of rose Bouclé.

Crowell - Raymond

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the parsonage of the Baptist Church, Digby, by Rev. M. C. Munn, Saturday evening, June 27, when he united in marriage, Leota Raymond, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Raymond, Centreville, and Harold Crowell, only son of Mr. and Mrs.

Warren Crowell, Sandy Cove. The bride was becomingly attired in biege crepe and carried a bouquet of carnations, roses, ferns, etc., artfully arranged. The bridesmaid was Miss Belva Jeffrey, Sandy Cove. Pte. Wm. Dakin was best man. Only immediate relatives were present.

Casey - MacWhinnie

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the Port Wade Baptist church, when Vera MacWhinnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacWhinnie of Port Wade, and Signaller Joseph Henry Casey, of the R.C.C.S., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Casey of Victoria Beach, were united in marriage by the Rev. H. S. Hartland. The bride wore a floor length dress of pale blue net over taffeta with a finger tip veil and carried a bouquet of carnations, snapdragons and sweet peas. Her maid of honor was her sister, Hazel, and her two bridesmaids were her sister, Mary and the groom's sister, Emma. Gnr. W. K. Thorne of the R.C.A., formerly of Port Wade, was best man, while the bride's brothers, Cyril and Clifford MacWhinnie, acted as ushers. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Casey left for Kingston, Ontario, where the groom has been stationed for some months. He expects to be transferred to the Navy shortly, when they will reside in Halifax.

Putting Them In War Paint

Three people can put the paint on 5,000 of Britain's war shells in 8 hours with a new machine, designed and built in only 10 days by British makers of paint-spraying equipment.

The machine does the work of 120 men and women in one-fiftieth of the time. The first one showed that a 25-pounder shell could be given its coat of protective paint in 4.8 seconds, and a process which previously called for four or five handlings and took as many minutes to carry out. Two watchers and a loader are the only labor required. Another machine designed to put on automatically the red and green marking symbols was evolved in three or four weeks, while a smaller version of this, for 20 mm. shells, marks 30 shells a minute, or one every two seconds.

The technicians were able to tackle the job because of their experience in making machinery for lacquering food cans, many of which have been supplied to food canners since the war broke out. They are coating one-pound cans at the rate of 25,000 per 8-hr. shift.

Some of Britain's "beautiful bombs" are handled at the factory where tiny jet sprays designed to a half-thousandth of an inch give an inside coating to protect the metal from the action of explosive chemicals. The coating has to be exactly even, and the machine cuts out automatically when the job is finished.

Before the war there were no women among the 40 hands employed at the factory; now 40 of the 100 people working there are women. Before the war, one girl checker who is even more critical of the work than the Government inspectors, was working on leather handbags.

"Oakdene" Pupils Sell War Savings Stamps

During the first few days of last week fourteen "Oakdene" High School pupils canvassed the school district, selling War Savings Stamps and Certificates. Each wearing a gay patriotic badge, showing their name and the name of their school they were made welcome everywhere. It was the first time "Oakdene" pupils carried out a campaign of this nature and they became most enthusiastic.

C. B. LeGrow, Principal of Oakdene Academy directed the work, assisted by Mrs. A. B. Campbell. The County Chairmen, J. L. Warren for Digby County and F. R. Harris for Annapolis County acted in an advisory capacity.

At the meeting of St. John's Guild, which was held while the girls were carrying on their work, it was decided to use $60.00 from the Bell Fund to buy War Savings Certificates. This subscription brought the total for the whole district to $140.00.

The Committee wish to thank all those who helped in any way to make the canvass successful, especially the students who did the actual door-to-door work: Shirley Krant, Betty Smith, Clara McCormick, Anne Jefferson, Marilyn Alcorn, Goldie and Beryl Henderson, Louise Woodworth, Marjorie Russell, Evelyn McCormick, Marjorie Cress, Edith Cashman, Linda Banks, Maxine Rice.

"Oakdene School" Closing

The closing exercises of Oakdene School were held in the Assembly Hall of the School on Friday June 20, at 2.30.

The principal, Mr. LeGrow was in the chair, with him on the platform were Mr. L. V. Harris, and J. L. Warren of the local school board, with Mr. Lynch and Mr. Cardoza, of Digby, both of whom were present in the interest of the National War Savings Campaign.

The principal's report showed the extent of student activity during the year in war work and other departments of school work. The students had purchased some $350 worth of War Savings Stamps, $2.50 per pupil, and somewhat better than the provincial average. Equally satisfactory contributions had been made to the Queen's Fund, the Navy Relief Fund, and to the Red Cross. The rubber salvage campaign had occupied a large part of the pupils activity toward the close of the school work.

Within the school, Mr. LeGrow told of the successful work of the garment club introduction of a special art during the year and of the class in some of the grades, the results of which had been particularly gratifying. He also announced the formation of a High School Club during the year, the object of the club being to promote the welfare of the school. The club had provided equipment for Badminton in the Assembly Hall, and had produced a school magazine in the Spring the net proceeds from the magazine being generously donated by the club to the Red Cross.

Following a few words of commendation to teachers and pupils by Mr. Harris, Mr. Lynch and Mr. Cardoza both spoke briefly on the urgent necessity of keeping up and increasing purchases of war savings stamps. The distribution of Grading cards and certificates brought the school year to a close.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURING THE FARM

If you want some good picture subjects, take the time to visit a farm. It's well worth it when you can get results like this.

Picture making on the farm is something that many town and city folk are likely to overlook. But it seems to me that a trip into the country, and a visit to a farm, is a fine thing for anyone with a camera—and a splendid way to spend a very pleasant day at this time of year.

Slip a few rolls of fresh film into your pocket—some "chrome" film for outdoor snapshotting, and some fast "pan" for picture taking indoors or when the light isn't very strong—and you'll be all set. Take along a medium yellow filter for your camera, and a lens shade too.

Picture making on the farm is one of those things that might begin with daylight if you're up that early—though I'll bet you're not. In any event, the earlier you get started the better, because then you can make a series of pictures as the farmer milks the cows, feeds the chickens, tends to the horses, and turns the stock out to pasture.

Working step by step—or picture by picture—in that fashion is an excellent way to approach any photographic subject, particularly one as big as a farm, because it keeps you from missing snapshot opportunities. And if you're looking for just a few good pictures, perhaps to enter in a photographic contest or salon, it gives you many negatives from which to choose.

But getting back to the picture possibilities on a farm, don't fail to get some pictures of the men working in the fields—as in our illustration, for instance. Look for interesting angles as they plow or harrow the land. If you stand back some distance you'll find that a plowman makes a perfect center of interest for a landscape.

Keep your eyes open and you'll find action, still-life, animal, storytelling and human interest pictures in abundance everywhere that men work in the country.

Thirty Thousand Gun-Sights A Week

A new automatic weapon which Britain is producing in huge quantities is getting each week 30,000 gun-sights and 20,000 other parts from a factory in South London which in peace time sent millions of Coronation and Jubilee medals all over the Dominion.

At first the production of the new weapon was held up by a shortage of extruded bars of mild steel from which the parts were cut and machined into shape. When the medal makers were called in they demonstrated how they could stamp out the parts in exactly the same way as they had produced medals since 1840 using ordinary strips of mild steel which is easily obtainable.

It was a victory for old established craftsmanship over mass production machinery. The medal makers were given a contract at once. They are now doing this precision work more speedily than anyone else, with three-thousandths of an inch as their nearest margin of error, and a production "bottleneck" has been completely wiped out.

Unskilled labor can be trained to the job in a few hours: some of the workers are girls not yet over 16 years old.

The factory also makes its own gauges. At the moment the only medals they are striking are the Croix de Guerre and the Medaille Militaire for the Free French forces in Britain. They are also making a large shield in iron and silver which the Free Polish Government is presenting to the British Forces.

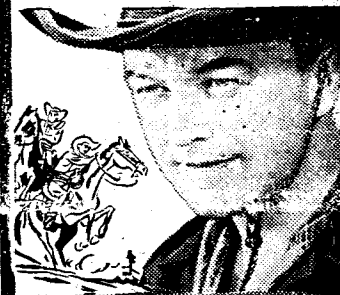

In peace time they made dies for the coins on many countries in South America and for China and Siam. They have also struck medals for many of the world's learned societies, including the Royal Academy and the Hudson's Bay Company. The son of the present principal arranged the dies of the first two D. P. C.s—awarded to Hawker and Grieve in the last war.

Chapel Blessed At Impressive Service

St. Patrick's Memorial Chapel and Shrine, and its large Crucifix, were blessed at an impressive open air ceremony, at Digby, Sunday afternoon. Rev. Father Leo Murphy, parish priest, officiated. The dedication sermon was delivered by Rev. William Pepper, former curate at St. Patrick's, and now of Halifax. Father Pepper is vacationing in Digby.

During the course of his sermon Father Pepper asked all who looked upon the cross at the shrine to think of God. Many, he said, appear fearful of their religion, and seem to regard it as something to be hidden behind the four walls of the church. He told his audience the chapel had been erected to perpetuate the memory of those who lie buried in the church yard.

At the entrance to the Memorial Shrine and Chapel, which is actually the chancel of the old church demolished last summer after the dedication of the new St. Patrick's Church, an attractive sign bears this inscription:

"St. Patrick's Memorial Shrine, Site of Digby's First Roman Catholic Church, A. D. 1834. On this hallowed spot High Mass was offered for 107 years. The arch where the cross stands was the Sanctuary of the Ancient Church." Over the cross are printed the words, "May they rest in Peace."

The Memorial Chapel is in the vestry of the old church. Except for a coat of muresco this sacred spot has been preserved as near as possible in the same condition as it was when the old edifice was demolished. Here are preserved many of the sacred relics of old St. Patrick's, including a beautiful valuable oil painting of the Last Supper. This painting was brought out from Rome and presented to the church by one of its Archbishops of a century ago. There is also a hand carved wooden statue of the Madonna and Child, the work of one of the early parishioners of St. Patrick's, whose name has been forgotten.

The old church was built by the pioneer Irish settlers of Digby under the supervision of the late beloved Abbe Sirovne, a French refugee in England who was sent by the British Government to minister to the Acadians of Nova Scotia after the Expulsion of the Acadians. He travelled on horseback and on foot for more than sixty years ministering to the people of his faith. St. Patrick's was erected during the last years of his ministry. He lies buried in the Cemetery at Church Point, in this County, and one Digby County village was named in his honor.

Digby Couple Fifty Years Wed

A special Mass was held in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church here Monday morning in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McKinnon, residents of Digby for the past thirty years, and who on that day celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

They were married at St. Bernard's church, St. Bernard, Digby County, by Rev. Father Parker, then parish priest, July 13, 1892. Mrs. McKinnon was the former Margaret Doucette, daughter of Michael and Madeline (Corporon) Doucette, of Corberrie, in this County. Mr. McKinnon is the son of Smith and Sarah (Burke) McKinnon, of Mill Village Queens Co., N. S. Both are in their eightieth year and are enjoying excellent health.

For many years Mr. McKinnon was a lumber surveyor for the Campbell Lumber Co., of Weymouth. He is also a skilled machinist, although in recent years he has been more or less retired.

Mrs. McKinnon is well known to the people of the town, and to hundreds of transient and regular visitors to Digby. Since moving to this town more than thirty years ago, she has been proprietress of the McKinnon House.

They have four children, Nettie, wife of Clifford J. Beaton, Halifax; Addie, wife of Thomas Deveau, Digby; Sadie, wife of J. J. Culbert, St. George, N. B., and Corp. Joseph McKinnon, now in England.

Sent Up For Trial By Higher Court

Stipendary Magistrate Geo. H. Peters, at a hearing on Friday, sent Thomas Nadeau, of Digby, up for trial by higher court. Nadeau was arrested early in the week by members of the Digby Detachment of the R. C. M. P., and is accused of attempting to break and enter the home of Seymour C. Denton.

When arrested he was trapped on the roof of a porch of the house, where it is alleged, he was attempting to remove a window screen to gain entrance through an upstairs window. He was unable to get down without the aid of the police who made his arrest.

Ask Investigation Of Mineral Deposits

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Digby Board of Trade the secretary was instructed to write the Department of Lands and Mines to investigate the mineral deposits in this area. It is known there are deposits of various minerals within a radius of Digby.

The secretary was also instructed to go ahead with the making of plans for a survey of the boarding and rooming facilities in the town. This survey is being made at the request of the Dominion Construction Corp. Ltd., and an advertisement asking residents of the town to register in writing their facilities, appears in this issue of the Courier.

Tentative arrangements were made for the holding of a banquet at the Digby Pines some time in August.

V. G. Cardoza, assistant organizer for the National War Finance Committee in this district gave an address on the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates through retail stores.

Veteran Globe Trotter Visits Digby

Bewildered and bemuddled Jean DeVaudreuil, veteran globe trotter of Brussels, Belgium, paid us a visit on Friday morning of last week. This is the second time Mr. Vaudreuil has made us a call in the past ten years.

With his right arm missing, suffering from an injury to his right leg, and carrying other scars of the Great War of 1914-1918, the elderly veteran is still able to average 20 miles a day and scorns all offers for a ride.

He served 35 years with the Belgium forces, and started his walk around the world on May 29, 1920, and according to his record, the 75-year old gentleman had walked 71,577 miles when he arrived at our office last week.

MARRIAGE

Titus - Donald

A wedding of interest took place at the home of the bride's parents, 260 Cameron St., Moncton, N. B., on Saturday afternoon of last week when Annabel Smith (Nancy) Donald, youngest daughter of Major and Mrs. A. S. Donald, became the bride of Sub-Lieut. Richard Ford Titus, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Titus of Moncton. Rev. J. H. Freestone, pastor of Wesley Memorial United Church performed the ceremony. The wedding march was played by Miss Marion Murray. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in a gown of white sheer, flowered in feather chenille over white satin, styled in princess lines with long sleeves and sweetheart neckline. She wore a white satin Juliet cap with shoulder length veil and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and baby's breath. The matron of

Meat Shortage At Westport

Visitors to Digby from the Briar Island village of Westport, say they are "meat hungry." Consequently, the first place for them to head for on their visits to town is a meat market.

Meatless days in Westport are said to be no longer the matter of choice. There simply hasn't been any meat on the Island, or at least that was the case for two whole weeks. Last week Westporters were able to get a little locally.

For the most part meat is supplied to the Island villages off the tip of Digby Neck by meat peddlers who make their regular rounds.

Lately, like most meat dealers almost everywhere, their supplies have been greatly reduced. They ferry their trucks across to Tiverton on Long Island from East Ferry. Sometimes they have enough to take them to the centre of the Island, sometimes they get as far as Freeport, but seldom do they have sufficient stock to warrant taking a ferry across from Freeport to Briar Island.

The situation in Digby town has been fair, but customers have had little to pick and choose from unless they chanced to be in a meat market at the moment a fresh stock arrived. The situation has probably improved somewhat during the past few days.

honor was Mrs. C. W. Avard, sister of the bride. Following the ceremony a reception was held. The living room was beautifully decorated with pink carnations, snap dragon and dalphinium, while the dining room was tastefully decorated with pink carnations, pink tapers and centred with a wedding cake. After the ceremony the bride and groom left by plane for Prince Edward Island where they spent a few days. For travelling the bride wore a two piece dress of powdered blue crepe with navy accessories, and carried a navy blue coat.

About This and That

IF ALL GOES WELL next week's COURIER will be published in our new building at Jew Cove, formerly occupied by the machine shop of the MacDonald Motor Company, Limited. We are deserting the old Courier building where our paper has been published for more than half a century. We are abandoning the faithful old Cranson press that has ground out more than five million copies of the Digby Courier in the past sixty years. We are leaving behind many old memories.

To all intents and purposes we have been "moved" for three weeks, although we have maintained our office in the Courier building up until this week, and have printed and mailed the Courier (including this issue) in the old building.

Machinery from the Wallis Print plant on First Ave., was moved to the new building on June 27. Since then our job printing department has been striving to maintain production in its new home, although handicapped by carpenters, electricians and plumbers who have been doing everything in their power to set us to rights.

The linotype was the first piece of machinery to come out of the Wallis Print plant. It was moved in one piece although it was necessary to remove the doors, frames and sashes to get this massive typesetting machine out of the shop. When it was installed a little more than ten years ago, it came to us in three sections, but a man came from the factory to assemble these three sections. When we moved we did not dare to take such a complicated piece of mechanism apart—we moved it safely in one piece, and had it going within a few hours after installation in our new business home.

When it was moved the metal pot was still warm. This machine had been casting leaden lines up until noon of June 27. At 1.30 that same afternoon we began to move it from the corner where it stood for years.

Next went our paper cutter and four job presses—not all in one load; they represent several tons of heavy machinery—then our stones and other accessories. The Wallis Print building on First Avenue is now deserted, and we understand its new owner will convert it into a tenement.

We consider our move a good one. Our difficulties in the past have been varied and numerous. The old Courier building was never suited for an efficient printing establishment. The pressroom was actually a barn connected to the main structure by a passageway. It has always been impossible to keep out the cold of winter. From October to April our staff has shivered and sneezed; from October to April our newsink "gummed up", the old press ran stiff or refused to run at all, although we never missed an issue in spite of five breakdowns during February of this year.

Furthermore, our linotype was in the Wallis Print building on First Avenue, just across the street from the Courier press room. In this First Avenue plant the type for the Courier was set and placed in "galleys." From there it was carried across the street, through the Courier press room to the Courier stone room, where it was proved. Another trip was made across the street for corrections. Of course the formes were made up in the Courier stone room and printed in the press room.

We have only been able to make a pretence at efficiency. Operating in three buildings, real efficiency was out of the question.

From now on, instead of operating in three buildings, the Wallis Print and the Digby Courier will operate in one building, and on one floor in what we believe to be the best lighted, and best arranged printing office in the province of Nova Scotia.

What is more the Courier will be printed on a new press, a machine that weighs a little under ten tons! This is probably the heaviest single unit of stationary machinery in Digby. This press was purchased from the Imperial Publishing Company, Halifax, and installed in the new building in May. Its work is well known to many in this section. For a number of years publications such as the Maritime Merchant, The Dalhousie Review and The Nova Scotia Medical Bulletin

Stalin Well Known To His Subjects

Russians know their premier, Josef Stalin, better than we in America know any of our statesmen.

Stalin has been constantly before his people, making speeches and justifying his political quarrels. However, he doesn't make a speech unless it is absolutely necessary, and he doesn't speak once in ten years for the benefit of the outside world.

He also has written many far-sighted books, millions of which are sold for a few pennies to people in the soviet.

Stalin is head of the red army. He is the army's final strategist and makes or breaks its officers. Because of this, there is no bickering in the red army, like the quarreling that hit the Russian forces so disastrously in the last war.

The Russian premier is not one to underestimate his own strength, and because of this he is making the soviet army as invincible as possible. Stalin, too, is almost entirely responsible for restoring the hard-fighting Russian cavalry have been produced on this press, which, we trust will serve the Courier for many years to come.

In these days we are urged by radio announcers to "take part of your change in War Savings Stamps." The suggestion is a splendid one, but, we believe it could be made far more effective. We suggest that stamps of smaller denominations be issued, stamps with a face value of one, two five and ten cents. Should this be done, far more people would heed the slogan, "Take part of your change in War Savings Stamps."

By way of an example, take the man who goes into a newsstand to buy a daily paper. He places a nickel on the counter and has two cents change coming to him. Tens of thousands of Canadians purchase newspapers in that manner every day of the year. At the present time two cents will not buy a war savings stamp, but should stamps or coupons of smaller denominations be issued, these to be exchanged for a twenty-five cent stamp when enough of them are accumulated, the number of people who "take their change in war savings stamps" would be greatly increased and purchases of War Savings Stamps in this manner would be increased many fold in a short time.

We believe the majority of people would be more than willing to take the few pennies in change that might be coming to them after any purchase in War Savings Stamps—thousands would get the habit, and the aggregate of these smaller denomination purchases made by "taking your change in War Savings Stamps" would greatly exceed the purchases made in the same manner through the sale of the present twenty-five cent stamps.

Postage stamps in small denominations are regarded as highly practical. To issue war savings stamps, or units of war savings stamps in one, two, five and ten cent denominations should be just as practical and highly profitable.

to its former important place in war.

Russia has whole races of horseman. No other country in the world has such a vast body of potential cavalry, and it is impossible to say what a vital part these horsemen may play before this year is past.

Today pictures of Stalin are in every office, railway station, public restaurant, and hotel in Russia. His image, too, is in every school in the soviet. In a lobby of a large Moscow hotel is a figure of the premier cut from white marble.

Use Dogs to Destroy Tanks

An amazing story of how Russians are using dogs to attack and destroy German tanks and snipers comes from Moscow, although the methods used still are in secrecy.

On the Kalinin front, German tanks were bearing down on soviet dugouts. Hearing the dogs barking and knowing by experience what it meant, the Germans turned back. The dogs attacked. The foremost tank was blown up by a dog named Tom.

Red army troops commanded by Lieut. Konkoff stemmed a German tank attack in the Izyum sector with several trained dogs in the detachment blowing up nine tanks and two armoured cars. Some of the dogs have blown up several tanks and survived. Only after the war is over will their methods be revealed, the Russians say.

One day last winter, in a forest near Gratsk, the snow was deep and no motor vehicles could pass. Even exhausted horses had to give up. A team of four Eskimo dogs, however, hauled a wounded lieutenant, the Company's favorite to safety. In one sector of the central front in five weeks a team of sled dogs carried 1,239 wounded from the battlefield and hauled 327 tons of ammunition up to the front lines.

During the winter the Eskimo dogs wore white camouflage jackets, but now their brindle color makes them invisible from afar. Shells, bombs, and bullets, do not daunt them. Many of the dogs are trained to rout out snipers.

Canadian Universals Are Unexcelled

Fast, low-slung universal carriers, with a speed of 50 miles per hour over rough terrain and protected against small arms fire by armour-plate, form part of Canada's contribution to the modern way of waging war in mechanized vehicles.

Improvements and adaptations made in the Dominion have termed what formerly were scouting and light machine gun carriers into formidable armored fighting vehicles.

Production of universal carriers in Canada now is sufficient to fill all Canadian requirements and the British government is taking large quantities of these powerful tracked vehicles that can turn "on a dime," roar up steep hills or leap over small ditches with ease.

One of the greatest improvements in the Canadian-made carrier is in developing metal for the tracks through heat treatment to last longer and withstand greater pounding than the British-made model. The wheels on which the tracks rotate also received attention in Canadian experimental laboratories and now they too have longer life, adding greatly to the use of the carrier and cutting down the expense of production.

Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer commanding the 1st Canadian Army, commenting on the arrival in England of a fleet of Canadian universal carriers, said:

"We are tremendously enthusiastic about the new carriers and the way they operate, and very pleased about the various extras added to this Canadian equipment."

PICTURING PETS

For better animal pictures, photograph your pets at their own eye-level.

PICTURING pets is something that I think every photographer enjoys. Try it, and I know you'll find fun and interest in shooting them—with a camera, of course.

Here's what I suggest. First, work alone with the animal; or, if not alone, with just one assistant at the most. When you attempt picture making with too many people around it may prove distracting to your subject.

Next, you'll soon learn that if you place the animal in such a position that he can't move about too much. For instance, if puppies and kittens are placed on top of a box or stool which is high enough so they are reluctant to jump down, you'll find it's not so hard to catch them in a cute or interesting pose.

Point three, in the technique of animal photography, is to do your picture making at the subject's eye-level—as in our illustration. Animals viewed from above, even from our own eye-level, do not often make pleasing pictures. Usually they appear too foreshortened. They normally look much more natural, when photographed from a low point of view.

Fourth, keep your backgrounds simple. Our illustration probably would have been improved somewhat if the area behind the subject wasn't cluttered up with branches. Outdoors there's no better backdrop than the sky. Use it often.

Finally, I'd suggest that you use a fairly high shutter speed—1/100 second or higher is advisable—to stop any unexpected movement on the part of your subject. If your camera hasn't that fast a shutter, you'll still be able to make first rate animal pictures if you do your snapshotting during your pet's quieter moments. Why not get out your camera and try it today?

Churches Built Like Viking Ships

On the shores of Norway's icy-cold fjords, at the foot of majestic mountains, stand some of the most remarkable churches on earth, built by the old Vikings exactly like the famous longboats or "serpent ships" in which they discovered America (they called it "Wineland") centuries before Columbus got across the western ocean. With their great timbers black with age, and covered with grotesque carvings of dragons, fiery serpents, and other legendary beasts intertwined with birds, trees, and weird figures alive with life and venom, these venerable buildings are unique in Europe.

They are built with the same type of mighty plank that went to the making of the "serpent ships", for when the Vikings became Christians it was only natural that they should call upon their ship-builders to raise buildings for the worship of the new God. These stave churches remind the observer of a ship under construction upon the stocks, and the hand of the shipwright is ever where obvious.

Perched precariously on the rocks at the head of a winding fjord, or in a narrow valley flanked by giant peaks, they typify the courage and unshakable steadfastness of the Norwegian people in adversity. The finest is at Bórgund, standing amid magnificent scenery in the grandest portion of Laerdal, a canyon-like cleft among the mountains. It dates back to the Twelfth Century. Like all stave churches it is dark within, for the severe climate did not call for many windows. The roof is strangely pagoda-like, and the gables are adorned with fearsome dragon heads. A fence of stones encircles the strange church.

Mechanized War Takes Troops Back To School

Academic studies require more attention from Canada's soldiers these days than in the past. In addition to the technical and mathematical knowledge required by artillerymen, greater mechanization in all branches has sent a large proportion of the troops back to their books. Both officers and men have their studying to do, although the officers probably have more midnight oil to burn.

The educational program which the Canadian Legion War Services is carrying out for enlisted men in Canada and overseas is reported to be gaining in popularity. Although the ideas as originally conceived was only to prepare them for their return to civil life after the war, it was soon apparent that the scheme would have to be synchronized with essential training for the highly mechanized army of today. It is, therefore, now serving the dual purpose of providing instruction which will materially contribute to their progress in the army as well as to general military efficiency during the war. Also it is giving them academic qualifications which will be of value when they have finally knocked out Hitler.

The effect of this program should be to maintain a high standard of our forces with great advantage both to themselves and their country during and after the war.

machine it uses less electricity, and it saves the wearer's money by reducing the number of visits she normally pays to her hairdressers. Incidentally, it wards off the danger of typhus from lice.

The new haircut induces a natural wave. The hair is cut completely short around the crown and tapered to three or four inches all around the head. Some styles can go to six inches, and if the nape of the neck is untidy, it can be shingled. No cutting is required at the neck if the hair grows in an upward movement. The crown is flat or slightly waved, with curls round the sides and the back. These are dressed in an upward direction, leaving the hair line exposed.

The hair is quickly dressed and easier to brush and keep clean. It requires re-tapering only once every three months and can be re-set at home. And it is not a standard haircut—it can be varied to suit the individual requirements of every woman. The minimum charge is about 3s. 6d.

New Uses For Plywood

New fields in the use of plywoods, particularly since the war, and the rapid and steady development of phenol and resin adhesives, are adding greatly to the value of Canada's forests, according to the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian National Railways. Wood is replacing metal in various ways from small articles for structural material. Containers formerly made of tin are now being made of wood.

With the increasing use and value of wood, the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are redoubling their efforts in the matter of forest conservation, particularly in the matter of fire prevention and in this the Canadian National Railways are cooperating to the fullest extent, use being made of the railway's mobile fire fighting equipment located at strategic centres as well as fire-fighting crews.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

WATCH YOUR BACKGROUND

The sky makes an excellent background for pictures of people. Posing the subject on a high rock, and using a color filter over the lens, increased the effectiveness and appeal of this picture.

IN YOUR snapshots of people, do you ever run into "background" trouble? That is, do extraneous objects behind the subject tend to attract more attention than the real center of interest?

This, unfortunately, is true of many amateur snapshots. Too often many camera-hobbyists concentrate all their attention on the person they are picturing and forget all about what lies beyond. The camera, however, with its critical eye, sees all and records everything.

There are, in general, two types of backgrounds—those that are plain, and those that form a component part of the picture, the latter, commonly called "settings," might be a flower garden, a winding road, or any scene that may add interest or appeal. There should be a relationship between the subject and the setting, and the picture should be composed with this in mind.

Usually, the simpler or more neutral the background, the better the picture, and if you desire strict neutrality—use the sky. Place your subject on the crest of a knoll, on top of a high rock, or even a fence to give enough elevation for a low angle shot. With no confusing elements to distract the attention, all interest is centered right where you want it. In making the illustration above, a medium yellow filter, commonly called a "K-2," was slipped over the lens, darkening the sky, and thereby separating the light tones of the figures from the background.

If any extraneous objects are behind the subject, eliminate them by either having the subject move, or by changing the position of your camera. Shooting from a higher or lower angle or moving slightly to one side may often be all that is needed to remove unwanted material from the field of view.

Remember that the inclusion of the exclusion of background material is just about as important as the person in the picture and should receive just as much attention. Pose your subjects against the sky, lawn, or other plain area and notice the difference in your next snapshots.

Officers in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army have received a letter from G. K. Greason, Y.M.C.A. supervisor concerning the possibilities of accommodations for men who go to Digby on days off: The letter states "the men would be willing to pay a nominal sum for accommodation, or if there were some home which would entertain them without cost, it would be even more appreciated." If you can be of any assistance in this matter, please communicate with the Salvation Army.

THE WOMEN'S PAGE

You Are Never Too Old To Learn

Uncle Hubert was a funny cuss. No doubt, you'd call him something of a philosopher. He was always noting people's reactions and try to figure out what made them act the way they did. Being a bachelor, he thought he understood women, and sometimes he did stumble on some particularly apt observations.

"Women are always on the defensive," he used to say. "Don't like to have their methods criticized or questioned. Actually afraid someone will show them a better way."

"Now a man welcomes new ideas and suggestions in his business. At least he tries many of them out. But women are more or less in a rut. They won't talk things over and admit the other person might be right, at least in part. Pig-headed, that's what they are!"

Aunt Hettie snorted. But secretly she made up her mind to keep her ears and eyes open to see if there was any truth in what he said.

That very day Aunt Hettie asked her husband for some money to buy Junior some summer pants. "What did you do with the money I gave you Saturday?" he asked.

"Well, George Lewis, I guess I didn't spend it foolishly. You have no idea what it costs to feed a family these days. I get so tired pinching pennies and for all the credit I get I might as well be extravagant like other women."

Uncle George walked away, but Aunt Hettie felt a bit uncomfortable. Perhaps if she had kept her voice calm and explained for what the money had been paid, Uncle George would have marvelled that the amount could have covered so many items. For it is a recognized fact that women can make a dollar go a lot farther than a man.

Later, at dinner, a guest remarked about the delightful green color of the peas Aunt Hettie served. "I always use a pinch of soda in the water," Aunt Hettie told her.

"But doesn't that destroy some of the vitamins? I have heard that it does," continued the woman.

"Stuff and nonsense," Aunt Hettie told her. "I don't believe in these new fangled notions. I always use a little soda in cooking vegetables, and did you ever see a healthier looking family?"

The guest tactfully changed the subject, but after she had gone home Aunt Hettie got to thinking. There might have been some truth in what the woman said about vitamins. Come to think about it George doesn't seem to have as much pep as he used to have. Maybe she was in a rut! Yes, she had to admit that her housekeeping and cooking methods hadn't changed an iota in the last ten years.

Uncle Hubert was right. But from now on things were going to be different. She was going to cultivate an open mind. And to prove it, she was going to tell Uncle Hubert he was right!

A Vacation Vision

Come, let us lay
Our work away,
And take a year's vacation:
We long have done our tasks with zest,
And now we'll take a proper rest,
With wholesome recreation.

We'll leave behind
The daily grind,
And think of naught but pleasure;
Our cares shall all forgotten be,
From weariness we shall be free,
With joy in fullest measure.

On ev'ry hand
Our native land
Presents fair routes to cover;
We'll go by 'cycle, boat and train,
To visit mountain, lake and plain,
And in the air we'll hover.

We'll roam around
On foreign ground,
In stranger states and nations;
We'll see great castles old and gray,
And treasures, rescued from decay,
And famous art creations.

So to and fro
We'll idly go,
Where'er our fancy takes us;
One joyous round our life shall seem—Until at last, from this bright dream

Changing Linens On Occupied Bed

How to change the bedding when a patient cannot be removed from the bed has puzzled many an untrained person. But after you have done it once or twice, you'll wonder why it ever seemed so difficult.

In addition to the clean bedding, you will want to provide an extra blanket to wrap the patient in.

Slide the invalid gently to one side of the bed. Remove the top covering and wrap the patient in the blanket you have provided for that purpose. Roll the unoccupied half of the bottom sheet toward the patient, and place the clean bottom sheet on the bed, securing it at top and bottom. Help the patient over the roll or fold of sheets in the centre of the bed so she is resting on the fresh bottom sheet.

Remove the soiled bottom sheet and pull the fresh sheet into place. Clean top sheet and blankets are now placed on the bed, but take special care to see that the bottom of the sheet and blankets are not pulled too tightly over the patient's feet.

Fresh pillow slips should replace the soiled ones. The extra blanket is removed from the patient who is now resting on a freshly made bed. Soak the soiled sheets in water to which a good disinfectant has been added.

HITLER chose "Guns instead of butter."
So the Nazis have guns! We must catch up

They tortured people to make them save.
We must save willingly.

So it's up to us, each one of us, to economize of our own free will ... to economize and buy War Savings Stamps so that we can outstrip our enemies with planes and tanks and guns and ships ... so that our soldiers may be better equipped than the enemy they have to conquer.

Women must help by economizing in the kitchen, by patching and darning, by shopping carefully and cutting out waste. Make up your mind now to buy one, two, five or more War Savings Stamps every week. You can. You must!

District Exhibitions To Be Held

It is good to know that a number of district exhibitions are to be held as usual this year, said Hon. John A. McDonald, Minister of Agriculture, in commenting on exhibition plans recently announced from various parts of the province.

Since practically all the major exhibitions in the east have been cancelled this year on account of wartime conditions it is timely that these district fairs should be continued, said Mr. McDonald. They are invaluable object lessons and a challenge to higher standards in various branches of rural activities. There is no denying the fact that over a period of years the quality of vegetables, fruit, and livestock has been advanced through standards established at these district exhibitions. And to ask the people to promote and support the fairs is to give encouragement to the all important goal of greater and better production.

No one, said the Minister, should view our fall fairs as a form of extravagance. They are, without exception, conducted along lines aimed at giving the greatest possible stimulus to farm life at the minimum cost. The largest single expenditure is prize money which all goes to the exhibitors who are local people. Apart from prizes practically all expenditure is for plant maintenance and improvement. It should be remembered that the exhibitions plants must be kept up or they will soon fall into decay. And as regards exhibition organizations they must be kept alive or disintegrate.

All in all, said Hon. Mr. McDonald, our district exhibitions are far from costly and most certainly are productive of worthwhile results. "I do hope", he concluded, "that Nova Scotia's 1942 fall fairs will be generously supported and that they will realize, more than ever before their three fold objective of bringing our town and rural people together in a helpful, social manner, inspiring our farm youth to high agricultural aims and encouraging our farmers to go ahead to bigger and better wartime production."

Service With a Smile

HE IS most effective and most useful in the community who gladly performs what service he can. There are far too few of that kind in our midst.

The social order increasingly demands the human touch in all that we do. Too long have we been ground under the oppressive forces of conventionality. The tenet of "every man for himself," and "self-preservation is the first law of nature," coupled with "business is business" and "we must make a living," happily are giving way to pleasanter and gentler ways of living.

We must humanize all of our activities. The church, the schools, industrial life, social relations must more and more put heart and soul into their tasks if they are to endure and provide the largest possible service to society.

We have had enough of the aristocracy of title and wealth, rank and social position. We have learned our lessons in this regard, and we should know by this time that men must be taken for what they are. We must see how much of self we can give, not how much we can get. What a person is, what his character reveals, what he is willing to do for others are all of greater importance than the mere possession of property, prestige, or position.

Strictly speaking, there are no bosses anywhere in this world. It has been a long fight, but a worthy one, keeping men off other men's backs. We make real progress that is worthy of the name when we maintain laws of equality and assure everybody that the prizes of life are for all. It is man for man, and the best man wins. One man may have more authority than another by virtue of certain types of work, but he is no better for that reason. He who maintains that contemptuous air of superiority is merely enslaving himself. He is handicapped and hemmed in by his own littleness of spirit.

Service with a smile means humanizing all we do. It means that we gladly pay to others the debt of kindness, equality and affection. Business is big business when it is thoroughly humanized and proceeds on the principle that it is dealing with human beings. Capital and labor both need humanizing. The spirit of service is what makes employer and employee useful, happy, respectable together.

Approved by the Department of National Defence, the official design for the service emblem to be displayed by families and relatives of members of the Canadian Armed Forces on Active Service is shown above. The border is bright red, the Dominion crest black and the background white. The maple leaves, one to be mounted for each member of the family on active service, are coloured in accordance with the service of the individual being honored—navy blue for the naval services; khaki for the army, and air force blue for the R. C. A. F.

In view of the fact that permission has been granted for these emblems to be produced by manufacturers without further reference to government authority, it is expected that they will be available for purchase in stores throughout Canada. All families with members on active service are authorized to display this emblem in whatever size or material they may so desire as long as there is no departure from the official design and colour.

Soft Times Are Going

We regret the rigors and horrors of war. We hope the war will end soon, that the standard of living will not fall too far, that financial outlays will not be too severe, that we shall win the war. Possibly we place such hopes above our duty to take a part in this great struggle and to be loyal, faithful, energetic citizens.

Hard times are undoubtedly at hand, and may become much more severe. But it is more correct to say that soft times have gone—too soft and too long continued.

The war will be won by our side, perhaps quicker than we think. The length of the war is not the first consideration. Not how long will be the duration, but how effective, how lasting how deep-seated and logical will be its termination is what we should be interested in.

Nothing will be accomplished unless we win the peace as well as the war. Nothing will be accomplished unless we remove the forces of rancor, hate, imperialism. Nothing will be accomplished unless we stop worshipping our own opinions. Nothing noteworthy will be recorded unless we make the problems of reconstruction real problems, worthy of the prayers, the blood, the sweat of us all, noble men and women who are not ashamed to fight for the blessings of peace.

The war should impress upon us that the unification of the world—all nations moving as a unit, one for all, and all for one, with self-glorification banished—must be the common objective if an even more costly third world war is to be prevented.

We must have more of the sturdiness, self-reliance, stability of our fathers, accepting our common lot as humble men and women, glorifying in hard work, never clamoring that the world owes us a living, and a better and better and better living. We must note wherein we have failed, wherein we have tasted of luxury, and made the ambrosia of today a necessity.

If hard times come, let them come, if perchance they deliver us from the soft times we have enjoyed, grazing in the rich meadows of self-contentment, bowing at the shrine of materialism, thankful that we are not as others. May those soft times go—and forever.

Fifty Thousand Tons of Tomatoes

In the glasshouses where roses and carnations bloomed in peacetime, British flower farmers hope to produce this year 50,000 tons of tomatoes. They are also growing great quantities of outdoor crops.

One nursery alone, whose output in 1939 was entirely of cut flowers, produced last year 950 tons of tomatoes, 125,000 lettuces, 320 tons of sugarbeet, 100 tons of onions and 75 tons of carrots, all from glasshouses or from land previously planted with flower crops. This year 82 per cent of the nursery's total glass area is planted with tomatoes and 80 per cent of its outdoor ground is growing food crops.

Since the war Britain's flower industry has been controlled by horticultural cropping orders and its employees are reserved at the age of 30 only if they are engaged on food production.

Britain's Old Bones

Britain's dogs are not allowed to bury their bones these days. Collected from households and butchers' shops, the bones are now producing glue for aircraft and nitro-glycerine for high explosives.

One ton of salvaged bones gives 2 cwts. of grease, yielding nitro-glycerine for shells, lubricating oil for guns and tanks and 3 cwt. of glue in the making of aircraft, tanks, guns, ships and shells; 1 cwt. of feeding-meat and bone-meal, providing the protein ration for 450 pigs for one day or 8,960 hens for one day; and 9 cwts. of fertilizer sufficient for 4½ acres of land.

Local authorities in Britain are recovering bones at the rate of over 10,000 tons a year. The raw bones go to the factory where the first step, in order to recover the tallow, is to sort out any fatty material which is melted separately. The sorted bones are then crushed and conveyed mechanically to large steel vessels holding 10 tons. Benzine Vapour is passed through these vessels to sterilize the bones and remove the grease. The grease is recovered from the benzine solution and purified to give bone grease for the manufacture of candles, soap and glycerine.

The bone is next conveyed to a revolving drum which rubs off meat and fine bone. This is collected and made into protein animal feed and bone meal fertiliser. The polished bone provides the glue so essential to aircraft production and the residue left in the vessels is used to make bone flour fertiliser or a supplement to cattle food. The glue is also used in shell-cases and fuses, in making fire-resisting and camouflage paints, and in the production of thousands of miles of gummed tape for A.R.P. purposes.

One factory alone in England produces weekly 60 tons of grease, 50 tons of glue, 100 tons of feeding stuffs and 50 tons of bone fertiliser.

Taking Care of Soldiers' Feet

Britain is taking special care in this war of the feet on which her troops will join in the march for victory. Corns, bunions, ingrowing toe-nails and other foot troubles, already much less prevalent than in the last war owing to mechanised transport, are now to be altogether banished.

Already over 200 qualified chiropodists ranking as corporals have been appointed to military centres, and 40 women, with another 60 on the way, have been given similar appointments in the Auxiliary Territorial Service.

Special mobile units and chiropody travelling outfits are now in use to make sure that every man in the Army needing expert treatment, gets it, however remote his station.

The second of the mobile units to go into service is an adapted 10 cwt. Ford van fitted with patient's chair, operating stool, trolley dressing table, electric nail drill and steriliser and a cabinet of medicaments, instruments and so on.

The travelling outfits, twelve of which have already

Burn Brush Safely!

PERSONS burning brush between the 15th of April and the 15th of October require burning permits from the Forest Ranger. And portable mills operating within sixty rods of any woods now require operating permits for all seasons of the year. Severe penalties are levied for not securing these permits.

Holders of such permits must exercise all necessary vigilance to prevent their brush or slash fires from spreading beyond their control. Should any do so the permit holder is held responsible for all costs of fighting any forest fires caused thereby.

Most forest fires are caused by carelessness; but every year fires are set by malicious people and thousands of acres of fine timber lands destroyed. It is the duty of every citizen to help the law officers run down these criminals and see to it that they are punished as they justly deserve.

Establishes New Butter Record

A new high in creamery butter production was reached in June when for the first time Nova Scotia's monthly production exceeded the million pound mark. The total for the month was 1,044,844 lbs., an increase of 20.3 p.c., over the total of 868,132 for June 1941. The record production was largely due to the early and excellent pastures during the month. Mr. Bird, Nova Scotia Dairy Superintendent, anticipates that the total for the year 1942 will be at least as great as that of last year which was more than 6,000,000 lbs. and was the largest in the history of the province.

Baby Chick Production is High

Most of the Nova Scotia chick hatcheries have closed for the season although four are still operating. The total number of chicks hatched this year will be at least 225,000 more than last year when the total was 673,662—the increase being about 33 per cent. Two of the largest hatcheries in the province are still operating although not at full capacity.

Mink Breeders Meet August 4

The Nova Scotia Mink Breeders' Association is holding its annual meeting at 8 p.m., August 4, at the Demonstration Building, Lawrencetown. All mink breeders of the province are invited to be present.

Buy Early Well Developed Ewe Lambs

The man who buys early, well developed ewe lambs is likely to get a good crop of lambs for 1943. While high prices of early ewe lambs run from $10 to $15, still the prospects of good wool and market lamb prices in 1943 make the purchase at these figures a very good investment. Many breeders report an average of 1½ lambs per ewe. Good early ewes should be well developed and ready to raise a good lamb or two and produce 8 or 10 lbs. of wool. One breeder had 5 lambs born in February and killed June 4 that dressed out carcasses of from 37 to 58 lbs. He received 30-cents a lb. and averaged over 9 lbs. of wool per sheep valued at 31-cents. The wool would nearly pay for the keep of his sheep. He made a good return on his investment.

The man who buys the late ewe lamb because of the lower price is likely to have no lamb crop and a lighter wool crop for 1943. Even if he buys for half the price of the early lamb it is not so good an investment. As early ewe lambs are apt to be marketed if not picked up, and farmers desiring ewes are advised to consult their agricultural representative at once and get any ewe lambs available in their county. If none is available, they should write to the Provincial Animal Husbandman, C. Eric Boulden, Truro. Anyone wanting to get a purebred ram should get from the agricultural representative an application form for a purebred under the ram club policy. Under this policy rams may be obtained at a reasonable cost, the price being reduced by government assistance in buying and transporting the ram. It is probable that the Dominion Department of Agriculture will arrange to bring a carload or two of purebred rams and ewes to the Maritimes from Ontario and Quebec. If interested, write Production Services, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Truro, and state what breed of sheep is required, approximate price, etc. Transportation will be paid on carload lots or on L. C. L. shipments if approved prior to shipment by Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Report of Work Committee

Mr. President, members of the Digby Branch: The report of the Work Committee for the month of June completes the first half-year for 1942. It is gratifying to be able to report a total of 248 quilts completed and shipped in this period, as compared to 165 for the corresponding period of 1941. Our showing of civilian relief clothing has also been particularly good, and I have had the personal assurance of Mrs. McCaughin, divisional head of this department, that our Digby Branch stands high on their list for the quality of work produced. Thanks for the care which has gone into the work and made the compliment well deserved should be extended to our cutters, sewers, knitters and quilters, in both the branch and auxiliaries.

During the past month I was fortunate in being in Halifax and enabled to attend the meeting at which Mrs. Wallace Campbell, national chairman of the Work Committee, addressed the women workers. Her opening remarks to the women of Halifax were that there was little she could tell them about Red Cross work, but much that she could learn in that busy port about Red Cross work in actual operation, and take back the news of Nova Scotian activity to the rest of Canada. Among her further remarks about prisoner-of-war parcels and blood donor clinics, she gave an interesting explanation of why civilian relief clothing is still urgently needed, in spite of the fact that bomb damage is not as great in England at the present time. This need is four-fold. First, because the English charitable organizations are not able to assist the needy, owing to lack of funds. Second, because the rationing of clothing means there is nothing left to "hand down" in English families. Third, because the Red Cross has assumed the responsibility of clothing the civilians of the Channel Isles, Gibraltar and Malta, and fourth, because the families of Canadian Service men in England are the special charge of the Canadian Red Cross.

The Digby Branch has made the following shipments for the month of June: Service and hospital supplies—132 prs. socks, 15 sleeveless sweaters, 2 turtle-neck sweaters, 24 prs. gloves, 1 bathrobe, 24 face cloths, 33 khaki handkerchiefs, 3 ice bag covers. Civilian supplies—50 quilts, 72 dresses, 5 coats, 42 children's sweaters, 10 skirts, 7 boys' suits, 12 boys' trousers, 30 undergarments, 153 baby garments, 4 towels, 6 face cloths, 4 cakes soap and 1 bed jacket. Total, 630 articles.

Donations for the past month are gratefully acknowledged as follows:—7 quilts, St. Patrick's Guild; 6 quilts, Service Wives' Club; 4 quilts each, Baptist Guild, Rebekah Lodge; 3 quilts, Trinity Guild; 2 quilts, Culloden Auxiliary; 1 quilt each, Hill Grove Auxiliary, Ea Gi Club, Junior Red Cross, Victory Club, Ever Ready Club, Conway Club, Mrs. F. Opportunities

Despite walls of pessimists, opportunities are greater today than ever before. Young people coming out of schools have greater chances for health, happiness, and prosperity. But they need the same old fundamentals—imagination, brains, and a desire to work.

Vision

If your work is just plain work to you, if you can't see beyond that work to find pleasure in service and happiness in doing your job to the very best of your ability, look out! — you are actually condemning yourself to remain just where you are.

Only 8 Pages

We are only printing an eight page paper this week — the reason, as you no doubt have guessed, is due to our move to new quarters. Our new press is working fine, but, we find that when we get it under power, there are still a number of minor adjustments to be made. Furthermore, it is taking a little time for us to acquire the knack of running it.

Britain's Women Fight Hitler

A new welding machine recently sent to Britain from the United States is being used with great success in training the women who are to-day helping to build ships for the Battle of the Oceans.

The women become good electric welders after a brief training. A growing number of them are now working alongside their menfolk in the yards of the Tees, Tyne, Wear, Mersey and Clyde.

They are taking over the lighter jobs such as painting a ship's structure; every week more and more of them are to be seen high up on the staging.

Heavier work like riveting is not quite their line, but they make excellent rivet heaters. They are to be found on repetition work in the machine shops. They make piston rings. They assemble valves. In oil engine works on the Clyde theirs is the chief labour used in building oil coolers.

Women are even taking over work as fitters on the lower parts of heavy marine engines which can be reached from the floor or the first staging.

And everyone is agreed that they are a success: the Government, the employers, the trade unions, and—the women themselves.

It is understood work will commence shortly.

A hearty welcome is extended to the Y.M.C.A. There has been a decided need of an organization of this kind in Digby for some time, and an urgent need is seen in the future.

From Cars to BATTLE WAGGONS

Canadian genius for mass production is now being applied with telling results to the output of motorized war equipment.

Production figures are already fantastic. Since the beginning of the war, Canada has produced and shipped to the battlefields of the world more than 250,000 military vehicles. Production is now at the rate of one unit every three minutes and is constantly mounting.

Canadian fighting men need 160 different types of motorized equipment. Canada is producing all of them.

One plant alone is turning out in a single day enough Universal Carriers to equip two battalions. Heavy tanks, with 25,000 parts, are in mass production and, at one plant, are coming off the assembly line at the rate of one every few hours.

This advertisement is published as a contribution to the general knowledge of our country's war effort and as an inspiration through the days ahead. For reasons of security complete figures are not available. The facts presented, however, are impressive evidence of the growing might of Canada's war machine.

EVERY MAN A FIRE RANGER

TODAY Nova Scotia needs her forest wealth as never before. Although this is a mechanical tree, WOOD is actually in greater demand than any other material. Yet, due to careless and great amounts of Nova Scotia's precious forest timber may be reduced to ashes during the next few months.

It remains then for the people — the owners of Nova Scotia's forest heritage — to stop this criminal waste of war resources. Every public-minded citizen must become a self-appointed fire ranger. He must bear arms to prevent forest fires from starting.

When entering the woods let "Prevent Forest Fires" be your wartime motto. Be vigilant. Do your utmost to follow in the footsteps of the great men of the past — and do not allow others to do the same. Or report their misdeeds to the nearest Forest Ranger. His forest fires are man-created and CAN be prevented. Every Nova Scotian is therefore called upon to play his part in this hour of need.

Be a Fire Ranger and help win the war!

Sabotage Delays Nazi Drive in Russia

How the sabotage program of Czecho-Slovakia patriots hits the Nazi campaign in Russia is illustrated by the following story received by the American friends of Czecho-Slovakia in New York City:

"Tomorrow at 4.10 a.m. a freight train leaves station—for the Russian front. See that it does not arrive." That was the brief order handed to the leader of a group of Czech saboteurs just before midnight one night by an unknown motorcyclist.

"The leader of saboteurs was a student. Down the street, he knocked at the door of an inn, and out ran a taxi driver. They drove to the edge of a wood. Here they walked about a square until they were sure they were not being followed. The student went to the edge of a clearing and gave the hoot of a screech owl. When they heard the answer they ran across the clearing and entered the warden's cottage by a secret door.

"The warden's wife welcomed them and gave them a lot of fountain pens. Then the student and the taxi driver drove to another wood near the railway station and waited a couple of hours. Then the student got out and went off into the bush along the track.

"A little after 4 in the morning a freight train appeared—coal cars and then tank cars. The student threw a pen on the platform of the tank car. His second pen landed on a flat car of sthew. The third and fourth landed on two more tanks of oil. The thickest pen landed on the roof of a box loaded with ammunition.

"The results came out next day. A freight train rolling toward the Russian front had suddenly exploded in five places. A German troop train crashed into the wreck, and some 800 soldiers were injured, many of them seriously.

The gesture arrested numberless suspects at station; the train had passed, but never was able to produce the slightest proof of guilt."

On Long Distance Calls Use

STATION-TO-STATION

WHEN calling Long Distance you will save time both for yourself and for the war effort if you use Station-to-Station service to points within Nova Scotia. This means speaking to anyone who answers at the station you call.

You get through in a few minutes and your message is often just as effective as if you made a Person-to-Person call. It's less expensive, too.

Especially does this apply during the rush hours of Long Distance calls, from 9 a.m. to noon, from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 8 in the evening.

Try to avoid these hours except for very urgent calls. By calling during off peak hours and using station-to-station calls, you help speed up War production and the work of the defence forces.

Newest Canadian Pacific Diner Serves Maritimes

ATTRACTIVE to a degree and efficiently modern, the Canadian Pacific Railway company's newest addition to its fleet of dining cars is the Canterbury, which was especially designed and constructed as an answer to the heavily increased traffic on the important Canadian Pacific line between Montreal and Saint John, N.B. Four fine pictures of historic Maritime scenes are displayed in the car, a note of compliment to the district which the car will serve.

Soon to go into service on the short line connecting Canada's Metropolis and the Atlantic Seaboard, the Canterbury is beautifully finished throughout in natural satin finish birch. Tables and chairs are also of natural finish birch, the chairs also being covered with brown morocco leather. The heating pipe grilles, window sills and rods, and the curtain boxes are of gleaming stainless steel, the curtain boxes serving both to cover the roller curtains and to conceal an individual light over each table. Comfortably spaced, the tables are arranged in the customary manner and provide accommodation for thirty diners simultaneously. The floor of the main room is covered with a rug, brownish in tone, and the floor in the passageways is covered with red-tile linoleum.

Women travellers who visit the kitchen will find it as bright and clean as their own kitchens at home, painted light buff and the lower portion a light brown while the table tops are of monel metal. The kitchen is 30 feet, seven inches by six feet, eight inches, and equipment includes an insulated range, charcoal broiler, refrigerator, ice chest, meat trays, storage space, several sinks and a variety of cupboards. An innovation is that the overhead lockers are equipped with a device which looks a complete row with one lock instead of individual locks for each compartment.

An attractive buffet at the entrance to the dining room is of plain natural birch, while this finish is also employed in the steward's roomy office at the opposite end of the car from the kitchen.

Heating for the car is thermostatically controlled.

that prisoners of the nazis are fed not much more than just enough to keep them from starvation, are given in a booklet just published by the British Red Cross: More than 90,000 English prisoners are in camps in Germany and nazi-occupied Europe.

The routine camp day begins at 6.45 a.m., and ends at 9.30 p.m., with breakfast at 8, lunch at 11, and supper at 7. The men divide their time between camp duties and manual labor.

Breakfast consists of a quantity of substitute coffee; dinner, soup and potatoes; supper, soup and potatoes, or meat with potato mash, or cheese, or sausage, with tea or substitute coffee.

Every day each prisoner is given ten ounces of bread, and each Sunday a two-ounce piece of cheese and some jam as a special treat.

"This fare will obviously keep a man from starving," the booklet says, "but it is plain and dull, of a sameness and a type that can get you down, as the men say, consisting mainly of potatoes and acorn coffee. Men on heavy work especially need some supplement to the prison diet if their health is not to suffer serious impairment."

Forest Fires Slow Nation's War Effort

Who starts forest fires? With the exception of lightning, says the Canadian Forestry Association, the entire blame sits on the doorstep of the people who use the woodlands for their play or their livelihood.

Twenty per cent are directly caused by campers and fifteen by smokers, making more than a third of all the forest fires in Canada. Settlers clearing their land and burning their slash make up another sixteen per cent, much higher in certain districts of new colonization. Incendiaries are serious in some areas and a minor matter in others, but coupled with the forest fires started by forest workers, road builders, and a small contribution by the railways add nineteen per cent to the fire bill. Lightning starts sixteen per cent and a category called 'unknown and miscellaneous' but mostly of a suspiciously human origin completes the remaining fourteen per cent.

All governments throughout Canada are aware that the forest resources are one of the mightiest assets in pressing war to victory, and have repeated appeals to the public to apply their patriotism to forest fire prevention.

Gardens Of England's Kings

Deadly nightshade (belladonna) is being cultivated at Kew's Royal Botanical Gardens in Surrey to let Britain's manufacturing chemists have the 2½ tons of the medicinal herb needed for rheumatic ailments. Kew is also growing colchicum another anti-rheumatic herb, from bulbs collected by Boy Scouts in the English countryside.

Once the private gardens of England's kings, Kew has also set out to show the British housewife what can be done with the traditional English herbs. Dill, fennel, sage, chervil, marjoram and thyme are some of the many herbs now being grown there, and all of them provide attractive flavorings for soups and other war-time dishes.

In the midst of its 188 acres, where 24,000 different species of plants from all climates flourish as they do at home, Kew has now a regulation 10-rod allotment with a woman gardener in attendance to help amateur food-growers with their problems of raising potatoes, swedes, parsnips, carrots, onions and other vegetables.

Gets Ideas While Fishing

Known as the "Edison of the rubber industry," John R. Gammeter has thought up some of the most complicated inventions while dangling a line over the side of the boat or shooting birds with his shotgun.

He's the man who made the duffer a better golfer by turning out a machine to wind the rubber thread golf ball, and by later developing a ball with a liquid centre—but Gammeter himself plays golf only a couple times a year.

He has saved the rubber industry and the motoring public millions of dollars and has been one of the United States Patent Office's best customers, credited with more than 350 inventions.

Just now Gammeter is working with beef bladders as a possible substitute for rubber in making gas masks for civilians. For this work he'll get no pay. He's just helping some industrialist who once helped him. Besides, he has enough money for what he wants—something more than $35,000 a year.

He was 20 when he got his job with the B. F. Goodrich Company, in Akron, and was almost fired when they caught him with his lunch pail filled with rubber stoppers. But when his boss, Bertram G. Work, later Goodrich president, learned he had made a machine which automatically trimmed the bottle stoppers he gave him a raise in pay.

Gammeter's second invention was a machine for cutting and cementing bicycle tires, and after that he was given a roving assignment to devise new ways for making rubber products. This led to his most important invention, the "vacuum box" method of forming tires by building them flat and shaping them by vacuum or internal air pressure. This method now is used in all tire factories of the country.

Your Best Smile

There's nothing so lovely as a charming smile, but there's nothing charming about a smile that reveals discolored teeth and cavities that need attention.

Visit your dentist regularly twice a year for a check-up. Brush the teeth twice a day using dental floss periodically. Lower teeth should be brushed upward, and upper teeth downward. For best results, have two brushes so that one is always dry when you are ready to use it.

It is a good idea to use toothpaste at times and once in a while change off, using powder. And don't be afraid to brush your teeth, for they can take it.

Apply lipstick to your mouth carefully so that the edges are clean and well defined and blot off the excess with cleansing tissue. Use mouth wash for sweetness and smile, girls, smile!

VOLUME LXVIII, NO. 46

Library Opened At Sandy Cove

Tuesday was an eventful day in the history of Sandy Cove—it witnessed the formal opening of the new public library in that village in a beautiful little building erected for its use. Sandy Cove has for many years been a popular resort of teachers, authors and other professional people who have taken great interest in the place. Naturally they were book lovers and most of them were well supplied with books which they brought with them and exchanged with others and loaned to residents. In 1935 a Miss Treemann, of New York, in loaning a book to a resident, remarked, "Do not return it; keep it as a start for a library." Following her death, which occurred suddenly the same year, Miss Emily Taylor, a librarian of Philadelphia, became interested, and in her annual summer visits has given unsparingly of her time to the work. The library, which in its early years was kept in different homes, continued to grow until it became too large to be looked after in that way, and it was decided to erect a building to house it—and Tuesday's formal opening was the culmination of this decision. The library now consists of over 1400 books, covering a great range of subjects and written by many of the best authors. The building is well lighted, furnished with easy chairs and small tables, and has an open fire place. Tuesday's function took the form of an afternoon tea at which quite a number of guests were invited. Short addresses, congratulating the people of the village were given by T. A. M. Kirk, school inspector; Dr. West, a returned missionary; Rev. R. H. H. Barker, minister of the United Church; Mr. and Mrs. Bristol, two of the regular summer colony; Mrs. Amasa Eldridge, who has devoted many hours of her time to the work; and Miss Eldridge, of Philadelphia. Dr. Rice was chairman. The building was built by Balfour Specht, of Barton.

This is, we believe, the third public library in Digby county the others being in Barton and Plympton.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Dearle have returned to Toronto after spending a fortnight at Digby Gap Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Dakin and grandson, of Toronto, who have been visiting relatives in Sandy Cove, were in town yesterday on their way home.

Telephone Calls Interfere with Blackouts

We are advised by the local A.R.P. that the greatest trouble they experience during test blackouts is the difficulty of getting official calls through by telephone. The fault has been because of the unnecessary flood of calls through the local exchange after the siren sounds.

It has been learned that 90 per cent of these calls are from people who had no other reason to use their telephones than to ask "central" if a blackout was in progress. The result has been that the calls really necessary for the efficiency and the effectiveness of the blackout have not been able to get through, or, were subject to unnecessary delays.

It is important that people use a little common sense when they hear the blackout signal that follows the dimming of the lights. We must remember that "it can happen here". Fortunately, all our blackouts have been test ones, but, should the real thing occur, unnecessary use of the telephone would prove disastrous.

Mount Allison Equipped To Train Canada's Youth

Dr. George J. Trueman, President of Mount Allison University, announced recently that he expects all Departments of Mount Allison to open without serious curtailment on September 23rd. At present over 130 students are attending the Maritime Summer School at Mount Allison and the training of Royal Canadian Air Force Radio technicians has continued uninterrupted during the summer.

A shortage of engineers, dentists, doctors, physicists, chemists, mathematicians, linguists and specialized teachers has been found by many Government Departments. This shortage of trained men and women is growing greater and every effort should be made to meet this need.

Military training in the Canadian Officers' Training Corps is conducted throughout the academic year for all male students who pass a medical examination. A two weeks' military camp is attended by the C. O. T. C. men at the end of the school year in May.

Mrs. Aubrey Everett has received word that her son, L.Bdr. Robert Everett has arrived overseas.

The labor situation has almost reached an acute stage. There is a serious shortage of skilled and day laborers, and next to impossible to find men to do the ordinary odd jobs.

Every week day morning and evening truckloads of men and girls enter and leave the town on their way to and from their jobs. Early morning trucks bring employees of the H. T. Warne Ltd. mill to their daily work; a little later in the morning other trucks bring girls and other employees of the International Shell Fish Co. to their jobs, while at about the same time trucks leave Digby for Deep Brook laden with men employed on the naval college project. These trucks return with their loads of workers every evening.

Local plants, chiefly the Warne plant, the International Shell Fish Company and the Maritime National Fish Co., are working to capacity. The International Shell Fish Company, more or less a new comer to town (established in Digby last year) now has about sixty-five girls shucking clams in their shed on the Anderson wharf. The clams are brought to Digby from many scattered clam beds in Nova Scotia, and shucked out here, packed fresh in special containers and shipped to the United States. Upward to 300 gallons of clams are shucked a day.

The Deep Brook project has only been in progress a little more than a month, and already approximately 400 men are employed there. It is understood many more will be on the pay roll within a short time.

Major Furminger Addresses Number Twenty Platoon

If you should be in the vicinity of the Wharf on any Monday or Tuesday evening you will probably see a body of men busily engaged in learning the fundamentals of Drill in Denton's Warehouse. These men are members of Canada's Reserve Army, who have heard the call to rally in the defence of this country and province. They belong to No. 26 Platoon, "G" Company, 2nd (Reserve) Battalion, West Nova Scotia Regiment. Several well-known and highly esteemed citizens of this town have joined this Platoon and are drilling in the ranks as privates. These include our Mayor, E. J. Theriault.

On Thursday evening, July 23, the Platoon was visited by Colonel W. D. Simpson, V.D., who commands No. 36 Reserve Brigade Group and who was accompanied by Lieut.-Col. C. A. Good E. D., the Officer Commanding 2nd (Reserve) Battalion, W.N.S.R. and Major H. J. Furminger, M. C. Brigade Major.

After the "General Salute" the Platoon was inspected by the Brigade Commander who asked many questions concerning the progress that is being made in this district and who stopped to speak to many individual men in the ranks.

Whilst Colonel Simpson was in conference with Major Banks, M.M., O.C. "G" Company and the other officers of the Platoon, the Brigade Major addressed the men and told them something about the Reserve Army activities in other parts of the country.

In the course of his remarks Major Furminger said, "I think I am correct in saying that the reason why you men are here tonight is because you realize that it is your duty to do something to assist in the defence of your country and of your province. That is what prompted you to join the Reserve Army and that reason still stands good."

"Here in Nova Scotia we are faced with a situation which demands the attention of every seriously minded citizen. Our problems are not common to all the provinces of Canada, inasmuch as Nova Scotia is probably more vulnerable to attack, from the sea, than any other province in the country. This war has come to our shores — to the very door step of our homes. It is quite within the bounds of possibility that we may be subjected, at any hour, to an attack or raid by the enemy. It may be in the form of shelling from a hostile vessel, or a small raiding party of saboteurs from a submarine, bent on damaging some of our vital industries or public utilities, or maybe the landing of parachute troops from an aircraft carrier lying off-shore. Perhaps it will be an all out invasion.

"Make no mistake. It is certain that, in the scheme of the "New Order", Canada with all its wealth of natural resources — metals, forests, fertile land, rivers and wide open spaces, — has not been overlooked by the enemy dictators! They covet Canada and have already openly stated that its climate is eminently suitable for the German race!

"To adequately protect every mile of our long coastline would require many thousands of troops, who can ill be spared for this duty at the present time. Therefore this great responsibility has been given to the Reserve Army Units of Nova Scotia.

"I want you to know that, although you may not see them very frequently — although the work you are now doing may sometimes seem to be of little practical use and maybe a little dull — you are just one cog in a large organization. In every town village and small hamlet right around the coastline of Nova Scotia are other Reserve Army men who are doing just what you are doing here, i.e., training yourselves to be able to shoot with rifles, machine guns and sub-machine guns, learning all about the country adjacent to your homes so that you can use that country to advantage in case of necessity and preparing yourselves to protect your OWN homes, property, families and business in case the sanctity of these shores is violated by any attempted enemy incursion.

"This, men, is our job. We are not working alone. You would not be expected to do this all by yourselves. Our efforts are all co-ordinated into a vast organization in which the Active Army, the Navy, the Air Force and the Communication Systems all have their part.

"But all of these Reserve Army men, including yourselves, live on the coast line. You may be the first to know of any enemy activity. Your duty is to keep your eyes open, listen for news of impending trouble and immediately report what you see or hear.

"In the event of actual enemy landings in your area, you would take whatever action you possibly could to prevent same until the Active Force reinforcements can arrive to help you.

"We have been given a big job. As time goes on you will learn more and more about it and about the organization behind it.

"In the meantime, keep up your enthusiasm, carry on with the good work that you are doing. We at Brigade Headquarters will do all we possibly can to help you. The Brigade Commander has asked me to tell you how pleased he is with what he has seen tonight. He wants you to bring in as many more men as you possibly can.

"In that connection I feel sure that there must be many more men in and around Digby who could belong to the Platoon and who should be here. It is the duty of every patriotic man to join the Reserve Army and assist in this big job. Personal prejudices should be forgotten and be submerged in the common task of defending this town.

"Those of you who attend the Reserve Army Camp at Aldershot, next month, will have an opportunity to meet hundreds of the Reserve Army Soldiers from all parts of the Province."

It pays to make vacation snapshot close-ups, like this appealing picture of one happy "summer visitor."

SUMMER vacation time is no longer just around the corner. It has begun already. But the big question still is, "How can I make good pictures of my vacation?"

The answer to that can be found in two words: preparation and planning. What they stand for represents photographic insurance against disappointments or failure.

Preparation for picturing your vacation is just as important as preparation for a canoe or pack trip into the deep woods. Begin by giving your camera a thorough cleaning. Polish the lens with a soft lintless cloth or lens tissues. Dust out the bellows and interior of the camera. If there's anything wrong with your camera get it fixed so that it won't spoil any of your vacation snapshots.

Finally make sure you're well stocked with film. Take at least a half dozen rolls with you. You may also want to carry some accessories such as a filter and tripod, but don't burden yourself with much more equipment. Make it a habit to travel light.

When your vacation begins and the picture making starts, plan to do three things. First, count on taking lots of pictures and then selecting the best for your permanent collection. Second, plan to make your pictures tell a story. And third, resolve that you will take more close-ups of people.

When you approach picture making that way, you'll find that it's easy to create a complete picture story of your vacation. Just use common sense photographic technique, record step by step the things you see and do, and you'll end up with a revealing, interesting, and detailed snapshot record of your vacation.

stove pipes and coal scuttles, to kerosene cans and strap hinges, all of which had been lying idle in the store for more than two or three years. The dealer had been unable to move them at any price.

The next call was on a hardware store in another section where such things were in demand. Within half an hour a truck was on its way to the first store, the dealer and even the 75 items sold—cash on delivery. This is an instance of how the system can be made to work, resulting not only in ready cash and more space for the seller, but a profitable turnover for the buyer.

The plan has received the endorsement of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association which has volunteered to circularize its 4,000 odd members with details of the project.

Any Manufacturer, wholesaler or retailer in the Maritime Provinces who has a list of items lying idle in factory, warehouse or store is urged to communicate with Mr. Frank S. Fales, Division of Simplified Practice, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, 77 Upper Water Street, Halifax N. S.

Camouflage Chief

Britain's airfields, gun-sites, lorry parks and other vital war centres are being camouflaged by a man who in peace-time supervised the cutting and making-up of thousands of dainty frocks and blouses.

He no longer sits in the office of a Lancashire factory which during the past thirty years has sent frocks out to stores in most parts of the world. To-day the dress expert climbs to vantage points in the countryside of England and Wales to make notes of the minutest colour details of the landscape around the site to be camouflaged.

Returning to his factory, where yards of coloured hessian cover cutting tables once gay with silks and cottons, he matches up the hessian with the color card he has brought back with him. The hessian is then cut into special patterns and threaded through rope netting, made by a manufacturer with a name known to fisherman the world over.

The threading is done by hand, and here the skill of the women dress makers which comes from years of experience, is as valuable as their director's knowledge of colour schemes. And the result of their work together is that vital points in Britain's defences appear to Nazi airmen as part of the landscape beneath them.

Pulse Counting Important in Home Nursing

What causes the beating of the pulse which can be felt on the wrist, the temple, and the sides of the neck, as well as other places where the arteries lie near the surface? It is the effect of the heart pumping blood rhythmically through the arteries and causing their walls to expand with each motion.

The most convenient spot to count the pulse beat is on

Make a Scrap Book In Leisure Time

Making a scrap book is heaps of fun, and some of you boys and girls who find yourselves with a little leisure time this summer will do well to start one. You can make it your hobby which fits right in with some interesting hobby you have at the present time.

First you will need a large scrap book or composition book in which to paste photographs and clippings. Ask your mother and aunts to let you have their old newspapers and magazines when they are finished reading them. If you are wise, you'll select a subject which may help you later on with your school work.

Perhaps you have been collecting wild flowers this summer. Then why not clip all the pictures of these you can find along with descriptions of stories about them which you discover.

History is being made these days before your eyes. Why not paste a collection of newspaper pictures and clippings which will tell the story of the war? It would be just like a history book you compiled yourself.

Or, if you're interested in airplanes, you could collect pictures of aircraft belonging to the different countries.

Perhaps you are fond of poetry. What could be nicer than a collection of nice poems. If photography is the thing which fascinates you, make a collection of particularly good photographs which have been printed in newspapers and magazines. No matter what theme you choose, you will find plenty of material to make up an interesting book.

Be sure to clip all pictures, stories, poems, neatly and paste them smoothly on the sheets with a clean cloth. Be sure your hands are perfectly clean and use a good paste.

Dead Merchandise For Live Buyers Proves Good Slogan

"Wanted—dead merchandise for live buyers."

This is a slogan that is selling thousands of dollars' worth of surplus or stagnant stocks that might otherwise have been disposed of at big mark downs, or even sold as scrap. It was learned today at the regional offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers have found a means of moving at a profit items on which they were previously prepared to take a loss or write off altogether.

With countless plants swinging from peacetime production to war purposes, large amounts of miscellaneous articles are now lying idle in stockrooms or assembly shops. Supplies of certain metal goods, especially for civilian use, are tapering off, those who need such articles must, therefore, seek them from every available source.

Retailers and wholesalers saddled with stocks dead due to a change in consumer demand are in a similar position.

Confronted with a situation calling for immediate action, the management-service section of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board's division of simplified practice stepped in and set up a dormant stock department which is acting as a clearing house for surplus stocks needed elsewhere, and is has already diverted to direct war use many items which might otherwise have gone into the scrap heap. It is a non-profit service, its only objective being to bring buyer and seller together. Sales are made directly between the two principals involved, and no commissions are expected or accepted.

As an example of how the "dormant stock" department works the following illustrations will show the thoughts between same. A representative of management-service called recently on a merchant in the hardware section, surrounded mostly by apartment houses. Here he found a list of 75 items, ranging from ice cream freezers, ash sifters,

Better Jam Made Under Sugar Quota

One of the big war jobs facing women in town and country this summer is canning jam and jelly making.

It has always been considered a good thing to put up fruit and insure variety in next winter's diet but this year the clatter of preserving kettles has a patriotic ring. Nowadays it is vitally necessary to conserve food, for no one can tell what calls will be made on Canada by the United Nations at war.

Fruit has to be put up this year under the sugar rationing order laid down by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. This allows $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. of sugar per pound of fruit for canning, and $\frac{3}{4}$ pound of sugar per pound of fruit for jam and jelly making. This, of course, means per pound of fruit as it is purchased, or picked from the trees, not after it has been pitted and prepared for the preserving kettle. In order to get the special canning sugar ration, the grocer must be told the weight of fruit which is being "put up" and the purchases will be asked to sign a special voucher for the sugar bought.

Department of Agriculture reports that many women write to her office asking if it is possible to make a good jam that "keeps" within the sugar quota. "Our answer to that is emphatically, Yes," says Miss Pepper. "In fact, we feel that these new jams made on the sugar allowance are not only better for health but they have truer fruit flavor and better color than the old-fashioned 'pound for pound' or sweeter still, the 'cup for cup' jam."

For days that have extended far into the evenings, experts of the Consumer Section have been working hard, testing out recipes made under the new sugar orders. Here are some of those which they have approved and according to Miss Pepper if the directions are followed exactly, housewives can rest assured that their products will be good:

Raspberry Jam

2 quarts raspberries
3 cups sugar

Crush fruit and simmer 10 minutes. Then add sugar and cook until thick—about 25 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: Approximately $2\frac{1}{2}$ pints.

A delicious jelly-like jam may be made by putting 2 teaspoons cider vinegar with the sugar in the above recipe. It produces a slightly tarter jam.

Raspberry and Red Currant Jam

2 quarts raspberries
1 cup red currant juice
 $3\frac{1}{2}$ cups sugar

To make currant juice, crush $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups currants slightly and cover them with $\frac{3}{4}$ cup water. Cook until the currants are soft and mushy—about 10 to 15 minutes. Drain through a moist jelly bag.

Cover the raspberries with 1 cup red currant juice and let stand 20 minutes. Simmer raspberries and juice 20 minutes then add sugar. Cook about 20 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: Approximately $2\frac{1}{2}$ pints.

Gooseberry Jam

2 quarts gooseberries
 $1\frac{1}{3}$ cups water
 $4\frac{1}{4}$ cups sugar

Top and tail the gooseberries. Simmer the fruit and water for 10 minutes. Add sugar and cook for about $\frac{1}{2}$ hour. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool seal with paraffin. Yield: Approximately $3\frac{1}{2}$ pints.

This jam is quite thin when hot but it thickens considerably when is cools.

If desired, one-half cup honey or corn syrup may be added to the recipe if it is too tart for your taste.

Black Currant Jam

2 quarts black currants
 $1\frac{1}{3}$ cups water
 $4\frac{1}{4}$ cups sugar
 $\frac{3}{4}$ cup honey

Top and tail the black currants. Simmer the fruit and water for 10 minutes. Add sugar and honey and cook about 15 minutes or until thick. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: $3\frac{1}{2}$ pints. This makes a thick jelly-like jam.

Black Currant Jelly

To each quart of black currants add 4 cups water. Crush currants and boil until soft

Save Tubes For Victory

When you squeeze out the last ounce of sunburn soother, don't toss away the tube. Turn it in, instead, to help manufacture a water canteen to refresh the lads that are fighting on Egypt's frenzied front.

When you pinch the last drop of toothpaste out of your tin tube, take the tube to the nearest drug store as your contribution toward the building of a Bolingbroke bomber.

Tin is urgently needed. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board emphasizes. It is needed for the making of iron guns, for tanks, for bronze bearings, for main bearings and high pressure valves on transport planes, for electrical equipment for aircraft.

A check-up indicates that not more than 25 or at most 30 per cent of the collapsible tubes are being returned to drug stores, cigar stores and general and department stores which are required to have receptacles for used tubes.

Last year there were 31,520,000 tubes of almost pure tin manufactured. They were the product of 72,500 pounds of tin. It is estimated that there is at least half a million pounds of tin collectible if all the collapsible tubes in this country are salvaged.

Just how the used tube can fight our battles is indicated as follows: The tin from 250 toothpaste tubes is required in the building of one Bolingbroke bomber.

The tin from one paste tube supplies vital parts for 20 shell cases.

The tin from a tube of sunburn soother can be stretched to plate 20 water canteens.

The tin from one ointment tube is sufficient to line 20 soldiers' water bottles.

A little rooting around the medicine closet would bring out enough tubes to coat water bottles for a whole platoon.

From the bathroom must come the tin for war purposes. Canada produces NO tin ores. With the loss of Malaya and the Dutch East Indies, the basic supply of tin has been lost to the Allied Nations and the principal smelters as well.

Used tubes are turned over to smelters under the direction of Wartime Salvage Ltd. It is against the law to throw away or destroy any used collapsible tube. It must be returned in to a retail drug store, cigar store, general store or department store for possession by Wartime Salvage Limited.

Save your used tubes for a brush with Hitler. The law demands it and your loyalty requires it.

Large Number Enrol For Farm Service

Seven hundred and twenty-four public school pupils have enrolled in Nova Scotia's Farm Force according to a statement issued by the Department of education. The F.S.F., sponsored jointly by the departments of agriculture and education, aims to get students of 14 and over to help solve the farm-labor shortage.

Students joining the organization are entitled to wear the FSF badge and at the completion of satisfactory farm service are given a departmental certificate of recognition. Reports received from a number of places state that students are making good on the farm.

The students engaging in holiday farm work are paid for their services in accordance with arrangements made between themselves and their employers. It is expected that the FSF will receive considerable more enlistments as the need of more help on the farm is still very acute, and a number of students are still unemployed.

The distinction of having the largest FSF enrollment goes to Cape Breton county, with a total of 181, 70 on home farms, 106 on outside farms, and five not stated. Colchester comes second with a total of 101. Other county enrollments are:—Kings 88, Hants 58, Annapolis 48, Pictou 41, Cumberland 34, Halifax 32, Queens 30, Lunenburg 27, Antigonish 17, Guysboro 17, Argyle & Clare 16, Inverness 15, Yarmouth 13, Digby 4, Richmond 2.

British Army's Boots

The British Army is on the march in boots which weigh one pound less than in 1918. Their average weight in the last war was 5 pounds a pair; their average weight to-day is 3 pounds 13 ounces.

The achievement is the total result of a number of tiny reductions. Material is a little less thick. In 1914-18 when the Army got its first machine-made boot, uppers had a thickness of 2 millimetres. To-day it may be 1 3/4 millimetres.

There are still toe-caps, with a reinforcement of cement under them; but the old toe-case has gone; and that was in solid grain leather of not less than one-tenth of an inch. Outsoles, too, are not so heavy. There are fewer metal studs and the metal for heel tips and toe plates is also lighter.

Finally there was the new design for the Army boot of this war, incorporating the ideas of a famous orthopaedic surgeon who is also a knight. The new boot grips where it ought to and gives room where room is needed. And the result, almost accidentally, is yet another reduction in weight.

Over 200,000 Lbs. Wool Graded

Receipts at the government wool grading stations at Mabou, Antigonish, Truro, topped the 200,000 lb. mark this week. The approximate warehouse totals of wool graded were, Antigonish 85,000 lbs., Mabou 60,000 lbs. The quality continues high, about 85 per cent making military style. As the warehouse will be closing very soon all farmers who have not completed their wool shipments are urged to do so without delay.

Club Membership Nears 7,000 Mark

Membership in boys' and girls' clubs is nearing the 7,000 mark, now being well over 6,900. Last year's membership totalled 6,700.

R. A. LeBlanc, agricultural representative for Digby Co., reports 24 boys and girls clubs this year with a membership of 292. There are two calf clubs at North Weymouth and Meteghan. A poultry club has also been organized at Weymouth North. The following are the garden clubs:

Bear River, Belliveau's Cove, Jr. and Sr., Centreville, Concession Sr. and Jr. No. 1 and 2, Doucetteville, Little Brook, Lr. Comeauville, Lr. Saulnierville, Meteghan Centre, Meteghan Station, Salmon River, St. Alphonse, St. Bernard, Theriault, Upper Saulnierville, Weymouth, Weymouth Falls and Meteghan.

In Cape Breton county H. F. MacIntyre, agricultural representative, reports 11 garden clubs with a membership of 209 members organized. They are as follows: Benacadie, Garbarus, Gardiner Mines, Langan, Little Flower Institute, Little Lorraine, Louisburg, New Victoria, Port Morien, Main-a-Dieu and Reserve Mines. One swine production club at Main-a-Dieu with 18 members.

Importing Purebred Sheep from Ontario

With the heavy demand for sheep this year the N. S. Sheep Breeders through their secretary, J. A. Steele, of Truro, are taking orders for purebred sheep from Ontario. As it is desirable to purchase as early as the season as graded rams can be secured, all orders should be in as soon as possible.

The intending purchases is asked to send a list of his requirements, age and breed and approximate price of ewes wanted together with a deposit of $10 a head. Freight and cost of shipping from Ontario will be paid by the Departments of Agriculture.

For those who wish purebred rams the cost will be, $11 for XX ram lambs, $14 for XXX ram lambs, $17 for X shearling rams and $20 for XXX shearlings obtainable under the ram club policy provided there are at least 10 farmers in the province requesting rams of that breed. In former years clubs have been restricted to Oxfords and Shropshires, but it is probable that other breeds may form clubs this year.

The price of sheep is likely to be high. It is expected that cost of purebred ewe lambs will range from $15 to $18 to $30, while purebred shearling ewes will likely start at $25 and range up to $30 to $35 as most common prices. Sheep will all be carefully inspected before purchase by department of agriculture officials.

Farmers who have ordered sheep from Ontario already may have their purchases inspected prior to shipment and included in the carload for shipment free of freight charges.

There are a few good purebred sheep for sale in Nova Scotia which are usually a better buy as they are acclimated. In purchasing purebreds, of course, a poor one is not worth as much as a good grade. It pays to buy only good quality stock wherever it is bought. Beginners would be well advised to get assistance of a man well versed in the sheep industry in selecting purebred breeding stock.

Homecraft Courses Are Popular

Interest is keen in the homecraft 10-day courses being conducted this summer by the Women's Division of the Department of Agriculture. A course, with Miss Lorna Duncanson and Miss Elaine Balsor as instructors, is now being given at Louisburg. This concluded July 24 and will be followed by one at Riverport. Others are now being arranged for. The work is part of the youth training plan sponsored by the federal and provincial governments.

Feed Poultry Green Crops

Though there has been a slight falling off in egg production due to the season and the warm weather yet it should be remembered that the poultryman who feeds his herds well will get production, says J. P. Landry, provincial poultry husbandman. Now, he says, is the time to feed green crops. Second crop clover and alfalfa are especially good. This feed will step up production and keep the birds healthy. The keen demand for eggs will continue. Canada has contracted to send overseas 1,500,000 cases of eggs in 1942. In addition to this large size order the domestic demand due to wartime conditions is very heavy.

Soil Tests Being Made

Fieldman working under the direction of Dr. George R. Smith, provincial chemist, are making soil surveys in various parts of the province. Blake Caldwell and Willard Fraser are now completing a survey in the Windsor district and will soon be at work in the Stewiacke area. The soil in all farms at Falmouth, Windsor Forke, and the immediate vicinity of Windsor has been sampled. Reports will be available by the end of the month. Samples have been taken from about 140 virgin farms in the district. From 3 to 4 fields on each farm, and in some cases as high as 11 fields, were sampled.

The soil samples are taken to the chemical laboratory at the Nova Scotia College of Agriculture where they are analysed. The results are tabulated and the fieldman return, several weeks later, to the farm giving the farmer a report on his soil.

With the entry of Messrs. Caldwell and Fraser into the Stewiacke area, their fellow laboratory workers, Edgar Milligan and Edward Munro, will be doing like work in the Musquodoboit Valley, where over 100 homes will be visited.

Crop Conditions Vary

While heavy storms have hit some parts of the province with accompanying rain, other parts continue especially dry. The area embracing the North Shore district and extending south of Truro, and as far east as Antigonish, is very dry. The district as far west as the Valley has in many parts also suffered from lack of rain. The hay crop varies greatly with the district. Thus, the western part of the province has a very heavy crop, as this district has had plenty of rain. Generally the new seeding is good with old fields definitely lacking. There is a very large proportion of clover this year.

Weather, for the most part, has been excellent for hay making, with the possible exception of some of the western parts of the province. North Inverness reports a crop definitely cut because of dry weather. Grain is heading out short. Rain from now on will tell the story as to the crop. Potato fields are still holding on, but need rain. Root crops are definitely suffering from lack of rain in much of the province. In contrast, at Yarmouth fields have been plowed down because of inability to cultivate and clean out the weeds.

In the Valley apples are sizing well, and generally are clean. Spraying is still in evidence in some orchards.

Beaver, Engineers Agree on Dam Site

Since the beginning of white settlement on this Continent the Canadian beaver has been recognized as one of the most industrious and intelligent of animals and as possessing a considerable degree of engineering sagacity. A reminder of this animal's skill and industry is contained in the story of eight beaver trapped in Southern Manitoba in August, 1941, and moved to the Fisher River Fur Project Area, west of Lake Winnipeg. Here they were released, more than 200 miles from where they were carefully observed. One of the eight died but the remainder lost no time in beginning a survey of the area which was to be their future home. It is claimed that these beaver travelled a distance of about one hundred miles—up and down streams, around lakes, and through the wide marches of the area—before finally selecting a spot on which to build their dam.

The previous year engineers of the Manitoba Government had also surveyed the area in connection with the development of a wild fur rehabilitation project, and had marked a site for a control dam. The beaver, it was found, selected a spot for their dam less than 20 feet from where the engineers had placed their marking post.

No matter what has been said in the past or may be written in the future to belittle the beaver, it will be hard to convince these Government engineers that this animal is not endowed with some sort of natural engineering skill far superior to that of most denizens of the wild in North America, or that he does not merit the distinction of having been chosen one of Canada's National Emblems.

It would be erroneous, of course, to assert that the busy beaver is always active. On the contrary he knows when to work and when to relax. If he worked continuously from the spring break-up until the winter freeze-up, he would store a great deal more food than would be possible for him to consume during the winter months. Likewise if he kept on building his dam he would raise the water level to unnecessary heights and perhaps ruin much of his food supply. But he raises the dam only when it becomes necessary to flood a greater area in order to reach new timber stands to meet his needs.

Except to repair damage to the dam or lodge caused chiefly by the movement of ice and spring floods, the beaver takes life easy during summer. With the approach of autumn, however, he busies himself in earnest. The old feed sticks from which the bark has been stripped, are removed from the food cache below the water and used to reinforce the lodge and dam. A fresh food cache is put in and anchored down so that it will remain under water until the ice forms. The lodge and dam are plastered with mud and the beaver's pre-winter activity continues until freeze up.

The beaver displays a true communal spirit. When there is work to be done everyone does his bit and keeps at it until the job is finished. There is no quitting because a member thinks he has done his share. In like manner they share their dam, their lodge, and their food.

Beaver are found in most of Canada's National Parks from British Columbia to Nova Scotia. In Cape Breton Highlands National Park, Nova Scotia, beaver have been successfully re-established after an absence from the region of more than a century. Latest reports are that this colony is making good progress and a number of new dams and lodges are already in evidence in the Park. Beaver have also been reintroduced into Elk Island National Park in Alberta, after an absence of many years and it is expected that they will soon form an important part of the attraction of that famous wild animal park.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Merrill P. Outhouse

The village of Tiverton was deeply saddened on Tuesday evening, July 21, to learn that Belle Zora, wife of Captain Merrill P. Outhouse, had passed to the "Great Beyond" at the age of 65 years. Endowed with a genial, lovable and sympathetic disposition, Zora endured ten years of ill health with the greatest of patience and Christian fortitude, and the influence of her life will live on in the memory of those who came in contact with her and to be in her presence, one always experienced a spiritual uplift. Beside a sorrowing husband, She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Floyd Denton, of Westport; Mrs. Arthur Harris, of East Ferry, and Freeda at home, who tenderly cared for her mother during all her illness, three sons; Eugene, Emerson and Lindsay, all of Tiverton, also one sister, Mrs. Audin Suthern, of Taunton, Mass., six brothers, Audin, Newman, Murray, Lawreston and Roy Small, of Tiverton, and Stewart, of Central Grove. Eight grandchildren also survive. The funeral was held from the Christian Church, of which the deceased was a member, on Thursday afternoon, and was conducted by Rev. J. W. Derby, assisted by Rev. R. Eaton, of Freeport. Mrs. Egbert Crocker, of Freeport rendered two solos.

Economical Use of Barnyard Manure

The result of an experiment at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S., over a period of 18 years on the use of barnyard manure indicate that the most economical method is by frequently applying the manure in small quantities (eight to ten tons per acre), states S. A. Hilton, Senior Assistant at the farm. More of the plant food is recovered in the crops than from heavy applications at long intervals.

The experiment gives comparisons of the various rates of applying manure to root crops in a four-year rotation of swedes, oats, clover hay, and timothy hay. The highest yields have been obtained from an application of 20 tons per acre, but the greatest return, per ton of fertilizer applied, was from a 12-ton application. On other plots in the same experiment, where as a top dressing on the oat 8 tons of manure were applied to the swede crop and 8 tons tubble in the fall, root and grain yields were slightly lower than the 20 ton application but hay yields were much higher. The return per ton of manure applied was equal to that from the 20 ton application ($3.38 per ton).

Other experiments, comparing manure used alone with manure supplemented by fertilizer for swedes, mangels, and potatoes, indicate that the most economical returns are obtained when 10 tons of manure per acre are applied every three years to the hoed crop, plus a 500-lb. application of a complete fertilizer, such as 2-12-6 for swedes, or a 4-8-8, or 4-8-10 (or similar formulas) for potatoes and mangels. In this case, a 3-year rotation of hoed crop, oats, and clover hay was followed.

When manure is used as a top dressing on hay or grain land, fall application is preferable to Spring. The manure does not dry out so rapidly and more of the plant food is retained in the soil. For more complete details of the results of the experiments, apply to the Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Farm, Nappan, N. S.

Bringing Back the Sheep and Cows

Britain has begun the Empire's first large-scale experiments in artificial insemination, the revolutionary breeding process which after the war will do everything to bring the world's flocks and herds back to normal.

Britain's experiments in artificial insemination, already successfully practised in Soviet Russia, are being conducted by the Cambridge School of Agriculture and the National Institute for Research in Dairying. They show that in one year a single bull or ram can fertilize fifteen hundred cows or ewes, bringing the best blood in the world to the humblest keeper of livestock from thousands of miles away. It is the small farmer, unable to purchase a good bull, who will benefit most.

There has been some doubt about the reaction to the new departure of pedigree breeders with a vested interest in the sale of bulls but serious opposition is not expected from them although artificial insemination will certainly lower the prices of second grade bulls.

Apart from Russia, Denmark, the Netherlands and Italy had all taken up artificial before the war. The dairy breed societies in England have now recognized it and framed regulations for registering the animals so bred. Breed societies in the United States have actually sponsored the artificial insemination societies; and, with the present experiments in England, the outlook for building up the world's livestock population is definitely hopeful.

Sends Submarine

Men Honey

The men of the Royal Navy got 310 footballs, 500 tins of tobacco, 2,000 dartboards, 7,032 packs of playing cards, 14,000 books, 16,465 games and puzzles, 60,000 packets of cigarettes, large quantities of boxing gloves from the Navy League Seafarers' Comforts Supply last year. The success of the League's effort to liven up lonely hours at sea is a tribute to the few workfolk making sports goods and games in Britain: their numbers have been reduced to next to nothing by the call to munition making.

In addition to their share in this contribution to cheer the tedium of sea warfare, the men of the submarines get honey, sweets and cakes from the Navy League every month. Hundreds of tins of honey come in from New Zealand and Canada has contributed many consignments of cakes.

From South America hundreds of sheepskin coats, strong and warm, have come from England: these are issued only on very special occasions. And the good work of the League include parcels of shaving tackle, handkerchiefs, razor blades and pyjamas to prisoners of war.

Mrs. Moses J. Comeau, of Comeauville, recently visited relatives at Lower Concession. Pte. Benedict Gaudet, of Halifax, visited his family at Concession, over the week end.

Miss Catherine Melanson has been appointed secretary to school trustees for Saulnierville school section, replacing Mrs. Michael Blinn, who has resigned.

New Edinburg

Larry Lombard spent Sunday with his mother.

Willard McCormick is confined to his home with an infected finger, which he hurt while working at the Maritime Fisheries, Digby.

Harry McCormick found an apple blossom on his tree, recently. The tree was laden with apples.

Price Control Tends To Reduce Production

M. M. Robinson, manager of the Ontario Food Distribution Council, has made public a resolution of the Council which expresses the view that existing methods of of price control tend seriously to reduce the production of essential foodstuffs in Canada.

The resolution, adopted unanimously on motion of J. J. Smith, Winona, representing the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, and Geo. Reeves, Islington, representing the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, reads as follows:

"That in view of the fact that agricultural costs are rising to such an extent that production is threatened therefore be it resolved that food shortages can and should be avoided; that the policy of the Ontario Food Distribution Council should continue to be to impress on parliament, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and public in general, the urgent national importance of administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and other government agencies in such a way as to encourage the production of foodstuffs in this agricultural country.

"Further we believe that maintenance of production is feasible in a soundly administered anti-inflationary policy."

The Food Distribution Council is an organization representative of fruit and vegetable growers and wholesale and retail distributors of fruits and vegetables.

Bottles Badly Needed

Owing to labor shortage, bottles are now badly needed, so badly that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has issued an order making it an offence wilfully to destroy any bottles fit for use. Salvage agencies are also in the market for all kinds of broken glass, including bottle, window and plate glass which can be ground up and remanufactured. Search house, garage and other buildings for unused bottles and get them to your nearest salvage disposal agency.

Ditcher Having Busy Season

The government ditching machine now working in the western part of the province is, having a busy season with demands for ditching exceeding the capacity of equipment. Up to the end of June almost 20,000 feet of tile draining had been done by the machine which will be kept in operation as late in the season as possible.

Contentment

It was Will Rogers who said: "It's great to be great, but it's greater to be human." The finest contentment that can come to any man is not the wealth he accumulates or the honor he wins, but the knowledge that he has helped others along life's pathway.

HAYING TIME IS HERE

with many farmers the hay crop is the most important crop of the year.

Good Tools are Essential

This year due to the shortage of farm labor, the hay harvest presents more difficulties than usual—but the job can be speeded up with good tools.

Couple Observe 50th Anniversary

Celebrating a half century of happy married life a dinner party was given last week end for Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Morse, 27 Alvarado Road, Oakland, Calif., by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymond Oliver. For this occasion 35 kinfolk and close friends gathered for the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Morse were married June 29, 1892 at Waretown, N. J., but have lived in California at various intervals during the past 32 years.

Mr. Morse was born at Clementsport, Annapolis County, and lived the greater part of his early life in Bear River where his sister, Mrs. Fred Ditmars now resides. The late Edward P. Morse, whose large estate at Deep Brook was recently sold to the Dominion Government, and is soon to be the seat of an important naval college, was a brother.

This native of Nova Scotia is a dredge builder; his gold dredges are for the most part in the Philippines and Malay States, areas now occupied by the Japanese, and in Alaska. Others are located in California, Colorado and New Mexico.

During World War I Mr. Morse was works manager for a large shipyard on the Oakland water front, and built ten ships for the government.

He is now 79 years of age, and he and Mrs. Morse are active and vigorous, and busy with their Victory Gardens.

Weymouth Holds Initial Blackout

The A. R. P. sirens sounded their warning last Friday night at 10 p.m. and Weymouth had its first complete blackout. The wardens reported not a single light in the seven mile area except a night light in a service station. A few pedestrians were warned to get under cover and all traffic was stopped in record time. At the meeting in the Community Theatre, after the blackout it was reported that the sirens could not be heard over the entire seven miles of districts 22 and 8, but as the town has been promised another siren, making three in all, it is expected that this condition will be remedied. The sirens now operating are stationed at D. V. Theriault's garage and at Rev. A. S. Hart's house and it was decided that the third would be placed half way between on the house of the Chief Warden, E. F. Hankinson. The A.R.P. committee feel that the people of the town are co-operating to the fullest extent. With the appointment of several new wardens, Ken Hankinson, Capt. Granville and Dan Journeay in district 22; Victor MacNeil as our new Deputy Chief Warden, and the equipment distributed over the two districts, it is expected that future blackouts will be perfect.

Prison Camp Winters Cold

Word has been received from William Thibodeau, son of Mrs. Thibodeau, and the late Hilarion Thibodeau, of Weymouth, that he is well and a prisoner in Marlog und Milag, Nord, prison camp, Germany. "Bill" as he was known by his many friends, was one of the members of the crew of the ill-fated Canadolite, Imperial Oil Tanker, which was torpedoed in April, 1941.

The crew of 44 were saved, and were taken prisoners. Later, they were heard over the German radio. Mrs. Thibodeau did not hear the broadcast but received letters telling her that her son had spoken, and that he was well.

Mr. Thibodeau states that although the summer and spring have been fine, they found the winter in the mountains extremely cold and hoped that by next winter, they would have better provisions for warmth. He says that three afternoons a week, the prisoners are educated in engineering, farming, tailoring, cooking and other essential trades.

The Red Cross has been looking after them since they arrived, he said. At the camp, there is an orchestra, made up of the prisoners, and they frequently produce plays among themselves. Letters come frequently, in which he expresses his hope of "seeing the folks soon." Bill is one of a family of fine boys, all of whom are at present farming or doing war work.

Well Known Editor Passes

William Law Hatfield, editor and publisher of The Register, Berwick's weekly newspaper, died at his home last Thursday morning following a heart attack. He remained at his desk until the paper had gone to press, and suffered the attack shortly after returning home. He was 58 years of age and was born in Tusket, Yarmouth county. He had been in the newspaper business since the age of 16, starting his career in the Yarmouth Light, with his uncle, Charles Carey. Later he became foreman of the Middleton Outlook, after which he went west and edited and published The Plumas Standard, in Plumas, Manitoba, for eight years. Returning to Nova Scotia in 1919 he purchased The Register and has since continued its publication. He took a great pride in his paper which is regarded as one of the best in the Dominion and is quoted from coast to coast.

Rev. A. J. Langley, of the Central Church, Saint John, is enjoying his vacation during August at "Camp Tag" in Digby Neck. Rev. H. L. Denton, of Halifax, and others whose names are unknown are in the party. They will be busy entertaining each other and recuperating for the work of the coming months.

Webber Acquitted on Several Charges

Edward C. Webber was acquitted in the first of two cases in connection with the loading of the S.S. Blairathol. Webber, a Digby ship stevedore and chandler, was sent up for trial last October by Stipendiary G. H. Peters on four charges, in three of which he was accused of obtaining money under false pretences with intent to defraud, and on a fourth for "unlawfully and knowingly uttering a forged document as if it were genuine." He was released at that time on $1000 bail on each of the four counts.

The charge for which he was acquitted Tuesday was heard by County Court Judge Kenneth L. Crowell, Bridgetown. In this matter Webber was accused of "obtaining by false pretense with intent to defraud, the sum of $49 from one Max Naftal, of the firm of Oyler, Bent & Naftal, Kentville, agents for the Ministry of Shipping, for wages alleged to have been paid the workmen in the loading of the Blairathol."

This charge had its origin as the result of loading the steamer on the first of two visits to Digby, "on or about September 13, 1940."

The accused is defended by V. C. Pothier, Yarmouth Barrister, with Roy Laurence, of Annapolis Royal as assistant defence counsel. R. S. MacKay, of Yarmouth, is conducting the prosecution.

At yesterday's hearing Webber was acquitted of the second and third false pretence charges. The second charge very similar to the first, on which he was acquitted Tuesday, arose out of the second visit of the Blairathol, "on or about the 11th day of October, 1939."

The third false pretence charge, of which he was acquitted yesterday, was in connection with the loading of the steamer Torell, at Port Wade. In this instance Webber was accused of obtaining through false pretences, the sum of $84 from the Ministry of Shipping for the United Kingdom, for winchman's wages. The Torell was being loaded for N. F. Douglas & Co., Caledonia, with Webber as ships agent.

The fourth and last charge, that of "unlawfully uttering a forged document as if it were genuine," is now before the court.

We Like To Be On Receiving End

We are very grateful to the business and professional people of Digby for the interest shown in our new premises. We hardly thought it possible for our regular advertising solicitor to canvass for ads of this nature, but others evidently thought it should be done and the Publicity Committee of the Red Cross Society, of which Mrs. (Dr.) McCleave is convenor, took up the work, and to them we express our sincere thanks. For almost 70 years we have "boosted" the business men of the town; we have rejoiced with them in their improvements and have extended a hand of welcome to new comers—and it certainly feels good to be on the receiving end when congratulations are flying around. Thanks again!

Tons of Turnip Seed Grown in this District

Twenty-eight thousand five hundred pounds (more than fourteen tons) of Ditmars Swede Bronze Top Turnip seed is the estimated yield for this restricted seed growing area, according to Frank Ditmars, of R. V. Ditmars & Son, Deep Brook, largest producers of Bronze Top Swede Seed in Canada. A survey of the seed growing fields has just recently been completed.

The estimated yield for 1942 is 125% over that of last year, and is the largest in history. More than 30 acres are devoted to Swede growing seed in Annapolis and Digby Counties. The restricted area which formerly extended from Annapolis Royal to Bear River Bridge in Annapolis County, has been extended into Digby County as far as Plympton on the main road, and to Sea Brook on the Digby Neck road. More farmers are becoming interested in seed production, and a larger acreage with more producers is expected for next year.

According to Mr. Ditmars the largest grower this year has reasonable hope of producing upward to 3000 pounds of seeds. The farmers receive 50 cents a pound for their seed.

In this industry, like in many other these days, the labor problem is a real problem, and in spite of the larger estimated yield, this may be reduced considerably due to lack of harvesters.

The Federal Government has decided to issue cheques for dependents' allowances and assigned pay a few days before the month-end to ease the burden on banks and commercial houses. It has been announced. Formerly the cheques were issued for the last day of the month.

Labor Difficulties Delay Haymaking

Enjoyable Band Concert

Last Thursday night's concert by the Civic Band, was greatly enjoyed by the audience because of the interesting program well played, and because the atmospheric conditions were of the best for comfort and for the transmission of musical sounds. A cornet duet "Tranquility" was so well received that its repetition at tonight's concert was requested.

Ingenious medleys were of varied character. "Scenes from Operaland" included gems from five operas, and "Yankee Rhythm" ranged from "Little Brown Jug" up to an extract from a Symphony by Dvorak. For a band with only 18 players their concerts are highly creditable.

Tea and Coffee Rationed

The fact that tea and coffee are now rationed is hardly news to our readers by this time—although we are given to understand some of them were of the opinion grocers in the town of Digby lacked radios. The rationing scheme for tea and coffee was announced over the radio Sunday morning—the announcement stating rationing would go into effect Monday morning. Nevertheless we understand our local grocers were besieged with tea and coffee orders after they opened their stores on Monday.

Details of the rationing plan are published in an advertisement appearing in this issue of the Courier. It might be well for us to state that when making purchases of tea and coffee, the merchant is not allowed to accept "A, B, C, D, and E" coupons, if detached from the ration card—ages of children under 16 are noted on these cards and no tea or coffee rations are allowed any child under 12 years of age. Retailers have to check ages with the cards.

Speaking of rationing we were told a few days ago of a man going into a country store and blandly asking for "a dollar's worth of sugar".

Asked for his coupons, the customer was puzzled—in spite of all the publicity given sugar rationing, this man, believe it or not, had not heard of it!

In spite of an early start, and generally good haying weather, there are still acres and acres of hay standing in Digby County, much of which will not be harvested, it is understood.

The hay crop has been a good one, regarded as the best in four years. However, the harvest will not be as much above the average. Hay is still going into the barns, but most of it that is now being harvested is said to be too ripe for any great food value.

Lack of farm labor is said to be the reason for many tons of hay going to waste this season. Many of the farm boys are serving their country in the army, navy and air force; many of the farmers themselves are in the army or engaged in other work—chiefly in the shipyards and on construction jobs.

One farmer, a carpenter by trade, has made a practise of doing carpenter work during slack seasons. This year he was kept busy until well into the haying season, and says he tried to hire men to do his haying at more per hour than he was receiving himself, but was unable to get help.

Generally root crops are looking well, although fruits in this area "are not so good". There were few cherries and blueberries are scarce.

Dropped Dead While Working In Field

The death occurred on Monday of Forman T Wright, of Smith's Cove. He had suffered from a heart ailment for some time and dropped dead while working in his field. He was born 76 years ago in Virginia, Annapolis county, and was postmaster in the neighboring village of Princedale for 36 years, and also a Justice of the Peace. He is survived by his widow; three sons, Lloyd, at Plympton; Loren, in Waldeck, and Rev. Leon, pastor of the Baptist church at Annapolis Royal; and by one daughter, Violet (Mrs. George Larramore), Smith's Cove. He was the eldest of a family of nine boys and four girls, of whom a number survive. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, at Clementsvalle.

Tribute To Valued Citizen

"Greenville county lost a valued and honored citizen in the sudden death of R. P. DuVernet, whose long and active life in this community has contributed much to the agriculture progress of this section as well as to its civic and cultural welfare.

"A native of Canada, Mr. DuVernet came to Greenville to make his home in 1900 and during the ensuing years developed an extensive business in plants and other specialized farming interests and became widely recognized as an authority on horticulture. Agriculture in this section and state has benefited by his work through improvement in plants and cultivation methods.

"Mr. DuVernet maintained a consistently active interest in the civic affairs of the state and community; and his high personal principles and his devotion to his family won for him the esteem and admiration of a great host of friends to whom his death is a profound personal loss." Editorial from the Greenville (South Carolina) News.

Fined For Raising Rent

William H. Cohen, of Halifax, was brought before Stipendiary Magistrate R. J. Flinn in the Halifax Court Wednesday on a charge of receiving rental in excess of the maximum fixed by Order No. 7 of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He was convicted and fined $50 and costs.

The charge grew out of a lease arranged by Cohen in December 1941 on behalf of the landlord, Alice Cohen, his sister, on premises at 1021 Barrington Street, Halifax. The lease called for a monthly rental of $80 whereas in January 1940, the basic period, the same premises were leased for $25 per month.

Cohen claimed, in defence, that many improvements had been made in the house since his sister acquired it in November, 1941, and further urged that he was only the agent for the landlord.

Colonel J. L. MacKinnon, K.C., appeared for the defence and W. H. Jost, Enforcement Counsel, of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Sugar for Extra Farm Labor

The regular purchase voucher—the same as is used in applying for sugar for canning or preserving purposes—

Smooth Sailing For All your Baking
When you use

will be used in obtaining sugar for providing meals for threshers, berry pickers or harvesters visiting the farm for a short period to work.

Announcement to this effect was made by J. P. Hillion, Ration Officer for the Nova Scotia area. The regular voucher will be used instead of special permits as originally intended.

To use the voucher, instead of marking the square opposite the words "for making jams and jellies at home" the space will be filled in where it states "for Institutional or Industrial use" by the words "threshing", "fruit picking", or simply "harvesting"; and the number of men employed with the number of days employment, for example, "Four harvesters—three days". Mr. Hillion said that any person with the purchase voucher for the purpose of supplying harvest gangs may later be called upon to justify the use of it and all vouchers will be examined with the view of detecting abuses.

This procedure does not apply to ordinary hired men or to loggers or to regular gangs staying lengthy periods but only to seasonal influxes of laborers who work for a few days.

versatile aircraft of the war In the Battle of Britain it was a fighter with machine guns. Then it was given twelve machine guns or, alternatively, four 20 millimetre cannon.

Buying Rayon Hose

When you go to buy your new rayon stockings and the clerk asks, "What denier, please?" you needn't feel embarrassed, for here is the answer.

You were accustomed to asking for two or three thread to indicate the sheerness you wanted. This meant that two or three threads of silk were twisted together to make the knitting yarn.

In rayon stocking, a single thread of certain size determines the sheerness. The term to denote the sheerness of the thread is "denier". The higher the denier, the heavier the thread. When 50 denier is mentioned, this is comparable with three of four-thread in silk; 75 denier is comparable with five or six-thread; 100 denier is comparable with seven-thread.

Suggested Methods To Help Prevent Infantile Paralysis

We are now entering or passing through the period in which we may expect the occurrence of sporadic cases of Infantile Paralysis. Of recent years we have been fortunate, in this province, in as much as we have had comparatively few cases of this disease. In the immediate past its advance towards Nova Scotia appears to have been stopped by the advent of cold weather. During the past two weeks several cases have been reported. Up to the present time the extent of its incidence may not have been alarming, nevertheless, the actual presence of this crippling disability is anything but comforting, and it should prompt us to adopt all known means in an endeavor to prevent its further spread.

At the moment it is frankly admitted that the medical profession has no certain knowledge as to the exact channels through which Infantile Paralysis is propagated, although it has been for a long time regarded as one of the communicable diseases. Many theories are extant which fortunately make more obscure an already difficult situation. For a number of years the upper respiratory tract was accepted as the portal of entry of the virus which causes this disability. Of more recent years some observers have suggested that it may be an "Intestinal Disease" and as consequence may be transmitted through water, milk and other foods or through insect vectors. In a study of outbreaks in various places and in a review of the literature we find marked differences in observations. We are therefore forced to advise control measures through which may be effective independent of the portal through which the virus may enter the body.

In the prevention and control of Infantile Paralysis all persons are requested to co-operate by doing everything within their powers to promote the observance of the following suggested measures.

1. Isolation of patients and quarantine of contacts. Screening to exclude flies and insects.
2. Disinfection or burial of body discharges where sewage systems are not available, especially sputa, nasal secretions and excretions from intestines and kidneys.
3. Attendants to observe all precautions—that they should observe when caring for those suffering from any of the communicable diseases.
4. Discourage the congregating of persons under sixteen years of age in any manner except where this would appear to be essential. The safest places for children are their own homes.
5. When the disease is present in any community forbid such congregating.
6. Use pasteurized milk. Where municipality pasteurized milk is not available resort to home pasteurization.
7. Boil and cool water for drinking purposes where chemically treated water is not obtainable.

8. Immediately upon the appearance of an acute illness call your family doctor.

In view of the uncertainty or lack of knowledge respecting the epidemiology of Infantile Paralysis we feel justified in advising more extreme measures than are required where more definite information is at hand.

Leaders Camp At Pinehurst

The Pinehurst Leaders' Camp opened its session on Friday July 24th with a supper meeting under the direction of Rev. W. S. Godfrey. The registration totals 26 with the possibility of reaching 30 when the Caledonia registration arrives. The campers represent a wide-spread constituency, coming from Sandy Cove, Freeport, Bear River, Melvern Square, Bridgetown, Wolfville, Bridgewater, Liverpool, LaHave, Halifax and Amherst in Nova Scotia, and Fredericton and Sackville in New Brunswick.

Dr. G. M. Young, Theme Lecturer, is giving a Background Course on "The Fables of the Bible". It is hoped that these lectures may be preserved in tangible form so that the Leaders may use them in their local unions. Miss Margaret Hutchins, of Wolfville, N.S., and Rev. W. S. Godfrey, Dean-Director, are conducting courses in Children's and Young People's work respectively. One of the special features of the camp is the class in music appreciation being directed by Miss Margaret Mack, of Amherst. Special attention is being given by Miss Mack to the improvement of hymn singing. Already remarkable results have been received.

In addition to these activities lectures in Sunday School work and demonstrations in handicraft are being given. Miss Irene Phinney, Melvern Square, and Miss Margaret Mack, Amherst, have been sent to supervise the group games. Miss Leila Hyslop, of Bridgetown, and Miss Venna MacNeill, of Freeport, and Miss Jean Godfrey, of Sackville, are the committee in charge of athletics. Beautiful weather gave the camp a wonderful start.

CANADIAN ARMY IS READY

The Canadian Army has had long hard months of training and stands ready for what may come. Above are illustrations showing various types of weapons and the methods of using them. AT TOP is shown an anti-tank gun. (This picture was taken when a group of Canadian editors viewed the proceedings.) CENTRE, a machine gun is being used against air craft; and ON THE LEFT is a mortar. BELOW a Bren gun section is taking up position in the open.

Iron Man

One thousand machines which plant young cabbages

at the astonishing rate of 200 a minute are now helping the farmers of Britain to speed up food production.

Hitched to a tractor, the robot planter has a travelling chain of iron fingers to which the plants are fed. A broad furrow is opened up in the soil into which the plants are suspended by these grippers, and, at the same time as the plant is released, two wheels firmly press down the soil around it. A water tank holding 40 gallons can also be fitted to the machine, and an adjustable quantity of water automatically poured into the furrow at the roots of the plants.

From one to four operators can feed the machine with plants at an average of 3000 each person per hour, thus making an immense saving in time and labor. The spacing in the row of plants is mechanically accurate and can be controlled and adjusted to the distance required; the depth at which the seedlings are planted is also adjustable.

The robot can also plant potatoes by a simple arrangement of special cups attached to the grippers. It can be used too for lettuce, onions, leeks, swedes, sugar beet, strawberries and tomatoes. Its iron fingers have a rubber covering which enables them to handle the most delicate plants quite gently while placing them firmly and evenly in the furrows.

The machine, which is a British invention, is now being produced at the rate of more than a thousand a year. It is electrically welded and made with great precision. The Ministry of Agriculture have bought a large number for Britain's war Agricultural Committees set up in the different counties.

BUTTONS, PLANES, CHEESE
CHOICE OF CANADIANS

Which would you rather have, buttons cheese or airplanes? Great Britain would rather have planes and cheese and that is one reason why the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has cut out the use of 20,000,000 buttons on clothing. Many buttons are made from casein, which is a milk product, and it is also used in airplane manufacture.

It is estimated that enough casein has been saved under the clothing simplification orders to supply Britain with 25,000 pounds of cheese.

Fishermen Punish Own Offenders

Magdalen Island fishermen not only believe in conservation of the fisheries upon which they depend for their livelihood but they're ready and willing to do something about it if and when any of their number step out of line. Take, for instance, the action of one fishermen's cooperative group, backing up the fisheries law that all lobsters below a certain size limit must be returned to the water to "grow some more".

Of course the size limit on lobsters is established in the first place in the fishermen's own interest. It is designed to make sure that the little fellows, not capable of bringing the fishermen much return anyway because of their small size, go back to sea to grow up and bring a better return another year when they have reached legal size. This is in the fishermen's interest just as is the rule which requires the return to the water of any captured female lobster bearing eggs which mean many more lobsters to the fishing grounds in years to come and an insurance against the depletion of the fishery.

The Dominion Department of Fisheries designed the regulations and the government made the law and established penalties for any breach of the regulations. But the Magdalen cooperative have gone a step further. They passed a by-law to make sure that no member would go unpunished if he were a bit careless in his observation of the size limit. Under this new rule any member fisherman who lands two pounds of undersized lobsters in any one catch, in addition to facing prosecution by fisheries officers for breach of the lobster regulations, will have ten pounds deducted from his total catch by the association itself when his account with the co-operative is made up. In other words, the delinquent fisherman will not only have to face a fine and confiscation but he will also face a penalty within his own group which will cost him the loss of the return from ten pounds of his catch.

This is indisputable evidence of the general approval with which this group accept the conservation size limit. It is evidence too, that "cooperative" in this case does not just mean that the fishermen are banded together only for the advancement of their marketing interests but that they are also being "cooperative" in seeing that the law is observed. It proves that they realize wise restrictions in fishery operations and designed for the fishermen's own benefit and that they are ready to do something about it on their own initiative to see that the regulations are rigidly observed. Altogether it is a condition which makes officials feel that the Magdalen fishermen are really appreciative of the efforts put forth to make sure that lobster fishing continues "good" on Canadian grounds.

Young People's Convention Closes

At the last session of the United Church Maritime Young People's School, which came to a close at Mount Allison Academy, Sackville, N.B., July 22, Rev. W. S. Godfrey, Director, announced that the registration, including full and part time delegates, totalled 80. Mr. Godfrey said that, while the number was smaller than the average attendance in recent years, it was the opinion of all who were present that the School touched a spiritual peak not often reached by summer camps. He paid tribute to the Leaders who made the camp such a helpful experience. The Theme of the School was "Towards a Christian Canada." Dr. Frank Archibald, Stewiacke, N. S. Theme Speaker related this Theme to the Cross of Christ. Rev. D. G. Ridout, of Toronto, ably directed illustrated Lectures, Missionary Pageants, Planned Conversations and Panel Discussions. Rev. G. A. A. Beveridge, Shelburne, was song leader. Rev. T. D. F. Everett, New Mills, N.B. Dean; Rev. Murray MacDonald, Inverness, N.S. Leader of Citizenship; Rev. W. E. Aitken Edmundston, N.B. Leader of Fellowship; Mrs. Aitken, Camp Mother and Mr. Godfrey Leader of the Administration Course, made the School a marked success.

The Recreation was supervised by two of the students George Bennett, Matapedia, P. Q., and Arthur Langille, Halifax. At the lawn Tea Sunday afternoon Kenneth Parker, Headmaster of Mount Allison Academy and former Principal of the Academy in Kobe, Japan, gave an excellent talk to the School on Japan.

The Fellowship Groups in the Chapel each morning at 7 o'clock; the regular Chapel services; the Vesper services; the Communion Service, the Installation of officers; the Presentation of Certificates; the Picnic; the Concert; the Games all made up a program rich in content and variety.

Among those in attendance were: Frances Watts, Collingwood Corner, at one time of Digby, and Kathleen Fitzgerald, of Halifax, formerly of Weymouth.

Children's Snacks Should Be Nourishing

These vacation days when children come 'round for mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks, mothers would do well to see that something nourishing is on hand so that young bodies will have extra health and resistance built up when school begins again.

A glass of milk with raisinfilled cookies or tomato juice and graham wafers are tasty alternatives with plenty of goodness, or a packet of peanuts and raisins make a convenient hand-out.

A good sandwich filler is made of peanut butter thinned with milk and mixed chopped raisins. Put in a cool place this will keep for several days. Spread on whole wheat bread, it makes a nutritious sandwich for a lunch box as well as a snack. Sandwich cheese mixture spread on nut bread is also very nutritious.

Any between-meal eating should supplement the day's diet and should not be regarded as sufficient to stand alone advises Nutrition Services, Department of Pensions and National Health. It should provide enough energy to offset that tired feeling but should not be large enough to spoil the appetite for the next meal.

Salvaged Household Fats Serve Many War Purposes

Inedible household fats saved and disposed of through local salvage agencies have many uses in industry, in addition to supplying glycerine for explosives, the chief purpose for which fat salvaging was begun. Glycerine is only a small percentage of the fats and one of the ways to get it is by first using the fats to make soap.

Soap itself is indispensable part in the manufacturing processes of many major industries. It is used in cleaning, scouring, bleaching and for many steps in the processing of various kinds of fabrics. Its uses are numerous in the precessing of metal, mostly in the cleaning processes. The war will take some of the fats you save in the casing of shells as well as the explosives inside.

Soap has an important place in some of the paper-making processes, and in some cases, in the "sizing" spread over the paper to give it smoothness.

In shoes and all leather products soap is used to impart suppleness and strength.

Fat in the form of stearic or fatty acids is used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber. It is also a major ingredient in paints and varnishes.

Finally lubricating oils and grease for every kind of machinery in every kind of plant need fats.

Keeping the Baby Cool in Summer

When a baby is healthy and comfortable it is usually a good baby, even though the summer days are hot. Modern babies are lucky in that the one-piece costume for the infant is no longer reserved for the day the little one has its picture taken. All that a baby needs to be well dressed in summer is a diaper.

In addition to the morning bath, light spongings several times a day will help to keep the baby cool. Wrap the baby's own clean wash cloth around your hand. Dip into cool, sudsy water and squeeze out until the cloth does not drip. Then wipe lightly over the baby's body. Do not rub, as this stimulates circulation and makes the baby uncomfortable.

Change the crib or carriage sheets several times a day, even if they are not wet or

Canada Calls Her Womanhood

Immediate need of the Canadian Women's Army Corps for recruits to help relieve able-bodied soldiers for combatant duty is graphically portrayed in this picture of soiled, for the feel of clean linen is as soothing to an infant as to grownups. Diapers should, of course, be changed without delay as soon as they are wet or soiled.

Diaper washing can be made easier and more agreeable by putting the soiled diapers into a prepared covered pail until the washing period. Half fill the pail with a solution using a tablespoon of borax to each two quarts of cold water. Drop wet diapers into it and add soiled diapers after flushing them with cold water. A sizable pail will be needed for the daily quota.

Wash the diapers in the morning so that the strong sun can bleach and sterilize them. Transfer from the borax solution into a tub of warm soapy water, rub until clean, and rinse three times. Fold smooth, but do not iron. Twice a week the diapers should be boiled in soap solution, rinsed thoroughly and dried in the sun.

Campbell.

Perhaps many of the "Courier" subscribers have seen the poster calling for enlistment of young women to train in the nursing profession, and have noted the young nurse portrayed on this poster. The great honor of posing for this work was given Miss Margaret Horsfall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Horsfall, of Upper Clements, who is in training in The Children's Hospital, Halifax, and whose expression should appeal to many young women, calling them to service, even "In the Blackout" as the poster entitles the portrait. During the coming week solicitors will cover this district in the interests of the Bear River booth, to be conducted at the Digby Hospital Fair on August 19th. This year, owing to the sugar restrictions, donations of any kind will be welcome, and a miscellaneous sale will be held. Please be prepared to help with this work in your usual generous way—as our Hospital serves a great need in the Community—and who can tell when an emergency might arise when its services would indeed be invaluable.

Pinned to Barn Wall by Tractor.

Britain's 3,000 Pig Clubs

Eighty new pig clubs are being formed in Britain each week. The pigs are kept mainly on waste foodstuffs and surplus vegetables, and the 3,000th club was registered by the Small Pig Keepers' Council a few weeks ago.

About 9,000 tons of bacon or pork, or 80,000,000 4 ounce portions are being produced each year by these amateur pigkeepers, and a good half of this goes into the pool for the general public. The rest is the reward of the pig club members, who are allowed for their households the meat from two pigs a year, representing a 3 lb. joint of meat each week.

Workers in hundreds of war factories are finding that a pig club attached to their canteen means not only extra meat, but choice meals of pork or bacon which otherwise they would not see. Providing the club sells half its pigs to the Ministry of Food, the remainder can be killed for consumption without affecting the canteen's normal meat allocation.

Schools, hospitals, fire and police stations are all joining in the movement to turn kitchen and garden waste into food for next winter. Parsons have organized pig-keeping among their parishioners, and many local "pubs" have their clubs. On farms usually far from restaurants, the workers are avoiding meatless days by making use of empty sties and other buildings.

Some of the clubs are run co-operatively, the pigs being kept in a communal sty and owned jointly by the members, all of whom bear a hand in looking after them and collecting the swill. Others are pig-owners' clubs, in which each member tends his own pigs on his own premises.

Most of the people forming clubs today previously knew little or nothing about keeping pigs, but all assistance and advice, as well as special supplementary meal allowances and insurance facilities, are provided by the Small Pig Keepers' Council, Henley-on-Thames.

England's Orchards

Yield Tracer Bullets

English farmers digging holes in the orchards of Gloucestershire are helping to make tracer bullets and signal flares for shipwrecked seamen.

Under their apple trees and elsewhere they find a mineral called celestite containing strontium salts. These give flares the vivid red colour which can be seen for a greater distance than any other.

The celestite deposits in this quiet corner of rural England are by far the most important in the world, and in peacetime are almost the only ones worked commercially. New workings are found by means of a boring tool about 9 ft. long by 3/4 in. diameter, which is "jumped" or drilled into the ground until a comparatively hard bed is reached. Experts can tell by the "feel" if it is celestite or some other rock. A small pit is dug with picks and shovels and when the deposit is worked out it is filled in with marl and the turf replaced so that the land can revert to agriculture.

Sometimes the mineral has from the famous thermal been deposited on hazel nuts springs of Bath, while it has also been found in the boilers of Transatlantic liners, in egg-shells and even in the livers of human beings.

Apart from flares for ships, aerodromes, and ordinary fireworks, strontium compounds are used to crystalize sugar from beet, for fillers in electric batteries, and in the chemical, pharmaceutical and ceramic industries.

Prize Winners Escape Ceiling

If a beef animal is good enough to win a prize at a recognized fair or exhibition it is good enough to escape the Wartime Prices and Trade Board's price ceiling. This is according to a ruling of the WPTB made public by F. S. Grisdale, Deputy Food Administrator, Ottawa. It states, "beef animals having being awarded prizes at fairs and exhibitions and meat therefrom shall be exempt from the Wartime Prices and Trade regulations." There are rules governing the sale and handling of this prize winning stuff. These are designed to guard against abuse. Provincial Departments of Agriculture are required to apply to the Foods Administrator for exemption from the WPTB regulations. Such applications should show that the fair or exhibition was recommended by the department. The department is also requested to keep record of each sale of a prize winner, and each slaughterer must furnish a return to the department showing the disposition of all such carcasses, and all such carcasses shall be branded in a way that they can be identified. All such meat displayed in retail stores must be labelled to show that it is from a prize winning animal.

Rains Greatly Benefit Crops

All sections of the province have now received rain, including the areas that have been especially dry. Thus, at the N.S.A.C. Station, Truro, in the two day period ended the morning of July 24, two and one-half inches of rain fell. This was almost ten times as much as the total fall from the first of the month until then. While too late to return the greatest benefit, these rains, however, tend to again start the pastures and help second as well as late growth. Roots and potatoes will be particularly benefited as well as the late grain. Haying is well along in most parts of western Nova Scotia. While the crop has been variable, the western part particularly has had a heavy crop, and even in central Nova Scotia new seeding has for the most part been good, with a large proportion of clover. It should be remembered, however, that the season was an early one, and much hay was too mature when cut. Haying will continue for dyke lands for a considerable time.

The labor situation has been very acute, but by exchanging help, men going from farm to farm, and by the greater employment of women and boys and girls, the crop has been gathered. Grain in the Valley and South Shore and Western districts is already starting to ripen. Some of the fields of fall rye in Annapolis and Kings counties have already been cut and fields of early oats are now being cut.

Farmer Has Right To Lumber

Considerable misunderstanding has been reported concerning the right of farmers to engage in seasonal work in the woods. While Order-in-Council 2251, Section 3, paragraph 1, provides that no person wholly or mainly employed in agriculture shall enter into employment outside agriculture, it specifically exempts from that restriction certain activities. One of these is defined as "seasonal employment in a primary industry". Lumbering, logging, forestry, fishing, trapping are all included in the primary industry list. It is thus clearly intended that no one whose major activity is that of agriculture should be considered as having relinquished, or in any way disturbed, his status as a farmer by accepting work in any one of these primary industries.

Companies engaged in lumbering and forestry operations advise that they have been unable to obtain men and that operations are being greatly restricted. They report this is due to fear on the part of farmers and agricultural workers generally that they will lose their status if they accept employment in the woods and if they leave the farm to work in the woods action may be taken to compel them to remain there.

Farm workers should realize the necessity of accepting work in the woods, as they have in the past, but of course only during those seasons when they are not required on the farms. Clearly it is not intended that acceptance of such seasonal employment should in any way alter a farmer's status under Selective Service regulations and no action is contemplated that would prevent him from returning to the farm.

This is News

The unusual happened last week in Antigonish county. There were two visiting representatives of a group in the county interested in securing farms and not interested in government assistance. S. J. MacKinnon, agricultural representative for the county, in referring to the visitors, who came from Glace Bay, stated, "they were unique in that they were not looking for government assistance but were planning the project with a fund they have accumulated themselves". The plan they have is to have six families and operate one large farm.

What Are They Building?

Mystery of Britain's Biggest War Job

There is much speculation in London about the nature of "the biggest construction job of the war" for which Britain's building and civil engineering industries are now being combed for tens of thousands of men.

A week or two ago the Ministry of Labour suddenly stopped the transference to the Forces of 28,000 working builders, due for enrolment this month. The men have been forbidden to make munitions. Their service age has been put up to 41. They are being withdrawn from normal building work at the rate of 100 a day. There is a call for volunteers up to the age of 50. A general staff from the Government departments concerned and from the industry itself has now been created to direct operations and they will send off selected men to any part of Britain at a moment's notice.

The job is being speeded up by mass production where mass production is possible—with pre-cast concrete units, hollow beam concrete floors, plaster board sheets for ceilings and walls, paint spraying equipment; everything to save labour and get on with the job.

The demand grows for bricks, asphalt, cables, piping. Canada's lumber jacks are thinning Scotland's forests for timber.

What is it all about? The "changing strategy of the war" is the official explanation, and with that, meanwhile, the curious must remain satisfied.

Watch Your Step

"Watch your step" is the good advice given people who cross busy streets or highways. It is just a reminder, but one that may prevent an accident. It suggests that the trifles of life are to be reckoned with, and that a minor factor may be closely related to a major consequence.

We think we are careful, vigilant, and painstaking, that our insight and foresight are sufficient to safeguard us and build up protection against potential danger. It is the other fellow, of course, who is careless. He needs counsel, not ourselves. The point is the human element looms large in all our doings.

Hence, "Watch your step!" Be careful, and guard against the things which might happen. Adopt and build up certain reserves, and take reasonable precautions, for such measures square with logic and common sense. We are ever encountering irritating experiences because we were napping. Embarrassments multiply because we did not watch our step, did not foresee, and were blind to probabilities.

Mortal beings cannot foresee all. And for that very reason we should defend ourselves against the uncertainties which might militate against us. If there is an impending danger in the community life or in our personal lives, the least we should do is to watch developments. Many a disease is a race with time, and the race is won by the medical profession if a perilous delay is avoided.

Many a personal battle in life is won against tremendous odds because the first steps in the battle were begun in time. Often the difference between success and failure is thoughtfulness, looking ahead, thinking twice so that there is no regret later.

Of all sad words of tongue or pen,

The saddest are these, "It might have been"

It is a fairly safe rule to assume that what has happened before may happen again, and that a thing may happen even though it has no precedent. One should not be oversolicitous, borrow trouble, nor cross too many bridges before he reaches them. Nor should one be rash by going to the other extreme.

It is plain common sense for one to watch his step.

Enjoyable Band Concert

Delightful weather and a fine concert by the Digby Civic Band, Paul Yates, conductor, afforded a most enjoyable evening last Thursday to a throng of listeners at the Band Pavilion. Although the unavoidable absence of two leading players weakened the volume of sound, it seemed that all the other players did their utmost to make up for it, and the Director substituted lighter numbers for two heavier numbers requiring a full band on the original program. A special feature of the concert was the presence of M. Penn Spicer as guest conductor. He conducted Bagley's greatest march "National

A seaman listed as "Ralph Dakin of Boston", who was reported missing from a torpedoed United States merchant ship in the Gulf of Mexico, was identified by a distant relative as Ralph ("Dick") Dakin, an able bodied seaman from Digby, N.S.

The relative who made the identification is Morse B. Dakin, Newton, Mass.

The sinking was reported Aug. 6. Twenty-five lives were lost when a torpedo, at first thought by crew members to be a large fish, suddenly "came to life" and struck the ship aft in the engine room. Nearly 400 passengers were rescued.

Ralph Dakin, reported as missing in a torpedoing is a native of this town, 55 years of age, and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Outram Dakin. He was a veteran of the First Great War, and a short time after his return from overseas went to California. Seven years ago he joined the Seaman's Union and sailed for the Eastern Steamships until the service was cut off by the war.

Besides a daughter, Cora, in Palm Springs, California, he leaves three brothers, John in Washington, Frank in New Jersey and Ted here; two sisters, Mrs. G. H. Hamilton, Montreal, and Mrs. A. L. Menning in California.

MARRIAGES

Simpson - Potter

A beautiful outdoor setting was the scene of the wedding ceremony and reception Wednesday afternoon on the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ozias W. Potter, of East Ridge road, Middletown, Conn., when their daughter, Miss Hazel Grace Potter, became the bride of Charles Douglas Simpson, also of East Ridge road. Rev. C. Frank Schrader, pastor of the South Methodist church, officiated. The couple made their vows under an arch having a large white wedding bell in the center and flanked on each side with baskets of summer flowers. The background of two large white lattice trellises, banked with laurel greens and ferns, had yellow and white flowers and palms on each side. An altar effect was arranged in red velvet and the aisle posts, decorated with small summer bouquets, were banked with palms, and marked the long red runner laid down for the bridal party. Many large pottery vases filled with mixed summer flowers completed the setting. The entire wedding ceremony, for which transcribed, was recorded. Miss Potter has many friends in Digby County.

Gidney - Beeler

At the United Baptist church in Digby, on July 31st Rev. M. C. Munn officiated at a marriage of interest to a wide circle of friends, when Mrs. Alice (Mohar) Beeler, of Smith's Cove, was married to Edwin B. Gidney, of Mink Cove. The bride wore blue with matching hat and accessories to correspond. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Gidney, of Mink Cove, brother and sister-in-law of the groom. After a short visit with relatives and friends they will reside in Mink Cove.

Lieutenant A. Balcom, of Middleton, was a visitor in town last week.

Leading Salvationist Resting in Digby

One of the best known and best loved of all officials of the Salvation Army, Commissioner David C. Lamb, (retired) C.M.G., L.L.D., O.F., of London, England, arrived in Digby Saturday morning to recuperate at the Digby Pines.

Commissioner Lamb, a veteran of the London blitz, has been in Canada and the United States for several months. He was accompanied to Digby by his daughter, Mrs. J. Carton, and his two granddaughters, who are evacuees now living in Ottawa.

He recently underwent a major operation, and during his serious illness, his daughter flew from England to be at his bedside.

This pioneer of the Salvation Army worked in close conjunction with the late General William Booth, and with the second general, Bramwell Booth, and is a member of the Order of the Founder, a coveted recognition of outstanding service in the Salvation Army. For many years he was International Commissioner and Dominions' Secretary, a post which brought him to Canada and other dominions of the Empire.

About This and That

As announced the middle of July, casualties suffered by the United States armed forces since Pearl Harbour were 4,801 dead, 3,218 wounded, and 36,124 missing, most of them presumably prisoners. This is a total of 44,143.

During the same period casualties to American workers were 30,000 killed and 2,500,000 injured. And not an inconsiderable portion of these were skilled workers, key men in the national war program that cannot be spared.

Someone ought to be ashamed of this. We don't hear anyone cheering it except Hitler. It is as one national safety leader says: "Those who fall in battle die for a cause; those struck down by accidents die in vain." A little more care, a little more vigilance here at home is needed if we are to make the best of our boasted manpower.

Some Canadians have become so petted they expect the government to do nothing that interferes with their personal comfort and pleasure.

It isn't fair if they don't get as much sugar as they want. They go up in the air when they are requested to put ten per cent of their earnings in war bonds. When the aluminum drive began some talked of hiding cookers to keep the government from getting them. Others hold on to their idle tires, placing their own selfish needs above the needs of the nation.

Why can't we realize we are the government, and everything being done to win the war is for the protection of our country, our homes, and our children?

Enlist Help to Pack Ditty Bags

The Nova Scotia Division of the Navy League of Canada are asking the women of Nova Scotia to help in filling ditty bags for the men of the Merchant Navy for Christmas time. They will be given to all men in port at that time and 10,000 are to be filled in Nova Scotia. The ditty bags are similar to parcels sent to soldiers overseas.

Mrs. John Baker, of the Department for Sailors' Comforts, Halifax, will be coming to Weymouth on August 20th to speak to the women and enlist help. We all know how much we depend on the work of the Merchant Navy and how dangerous their work is.

They do not get entertainment and privileges accorded to service men. Here is our chance to show our appreciation. Please attend this meeting and be ready to help.

A Story of Hong Kong

Dr. James Mutchman tells that during the month when reinforcements of essential war supplies for our men at Hong Kong were allotted cargo space only on a slow vessel that didn't get there in time, tons of Canadian beer were given space on fast ships. In brief, since the shortage of allied shipping makes every cargo a choice of this or that, the terrible truth is that for months food and clothes and armaments have been left behind in Canadiana ports beer has gone instead. This indicates a serious situation. It becomes a startling situation when we discover that the room so grudged to the women of Canada has been granted a thousand fold to the brewers of Canada. Through these critical months, whatever shortage of cargo space there has been for clothes, or even for armaments, there has been no shortage of beer. An article in a recent magazine has made public that in three months of this past winter, one Canadian brewery secured space for 19,000,000 bottles of beer; and further boasted that during this war the brewers of Canada had secured cargo space for sufficient beer to fill a train of box cars fifty miles long. These facts in themselves are sufficient to throw the first searchlight on the larger fact that through the agony and peril of this war, the liquor interests of Canada have kept liquor a privileged product to a degree that now amounts to a national scandal. The liquor trade has succeeded in this because of what our church rightly calls a "conspiracy of silence" for which not only the party in power, but the entire government, is at least partially to blame. It is time that the conspiracy of silence be broken.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Joseph Comeau

On Sunday, August 9, the village of Centreville, Digby County, was saddened to hear of the death at the Digby General Hospital, of Ivy May, wife of Joseph Comeau. She underwent an operation during the week for ruptured appendix, and it was thought by her friends that her condition was favorable. Mrs. Comeau was 45 years of age, and a native of England, coming to Centreville at the close of the last world war, having married Mr. Comeau overseas. Besides her husband, there also survive three daughters, and three sons: Joyce (Mrs. Ashton Lewis), Waterford; Nellie (Mrs. Lloyd Varner) Kingston, N.S.; Ada at home; Pte. Mighol Comeau, at present stationed in New Glasgow, Reginald and George at home. The funeral service will be conducted on Tuesday, by Rec. F. B. Gaskill, of Digby, rector of the Church of England.

you and I going to do about this situation? Are we going to stand idly by and by our silence sanction a traffic that is bringing sadness and sorrow to so many hearts and making our soldiers unfit for their work of winning this war for us. They are standing between us and the injustice, slavery and murder. Isn't it up to us to clear the way of every stumbling block? Rise up, O men of God! Have done with lesser things;

Give heart and soul and mind and strength
To serve the King of Kings.
Rise up, O men of God!
His kingdom tarries long!
Bring in the day of brotherhood
And end the night of wrong.

Mr. Lent, who has lived in Massachusetts for a number of years, expressed his interest in having read in the Digby Courier of the active life still being had by Mrs. Adams, who is now 88 years of age. He went on to say that, although he had had no communication with Bay View for many years, he always remembered that it was here that he taught his first school, 65 years ago; that he had at that time boarded first with James Hayden, sr., later with Mrs. Allan Adams. That was his first year away from home and he expressed deep appreciation of the many kindnesses shown to him by all during that period.

Corn Loses Sweetness If Allowed to Stand

It has taken years to bring sweet corn to its present state of goodness, and even now much of the sweetness can be lost in careless handling.

Lucky the individuals who have corn growing in their own gardens, for the quicker the corn hits the boiling water after being picked the better it is going to be. At least buy corn the day you are planning to use it.

Corn loses some of its sweetness if allowed to stand after picking because the sugar begins to turn the starch as soon as the ear leaves the stalk.

Now for a way of selecting freshly picked corn on the market or from the huskster's truck! Crisp green husks are pretty good indications of this and will also show that the corn is not over-ripe.

Kernels should be plump and milky, just firm enough to withstand a little pressure. The cob should be completely filled with well-developed kernels.

Worm injury is quite common. If indications of it appear only at the tip of the ear, you will not be wasteful in buying it. But if the injury extends the full length of the ear, it is not advisable to buy the ear.

In the event corn must stand a few hours before cooking, husk and cool it immediately, wrap the ears in a damp cloth, or place them in an oiled silk bag and store in the coldest part of the refrigerator.

Corn should be cooked just long enough to set the milk. Place the ears in a kettle of boiling water with sufficient water to cover the ears. Keep the corn simmering 10 or 15 minutes, depending on the size of the ears and the maturity of the grains.

Get Shelves Ready For Food Storage

Now is the time to plan for storing the vegetables raised in your victory garden and the apples and pears which will taste so good during the coming fall and winter.

Potatoes, root vegetables, cabbage, celery, pumpkins, squash, apples, winter pears, and other products will keep well in cellars, in above-ground or under-ground structures, mounds, pits or trenches.

Worthy of your consideration are such points as ventilation, controlled temperature, and moisture for certain products. Canned goods should be stored on dry shelves in a cool dry place with good air and circulation. If canned in glass, protection from light will help the foods to retain their color.

Dried food should be kept in a warm dry place such as an airy attic or near the furnace. Brine vegetables will keep in the cellar in stone jars or jugs. These foods should be completely covered with brine.

Is Goodness Old-Fashioned?

There's Much to be Said for a Quality Which Leads to Sincere Self-Respect

You remember, sitting on the back porch with your mother at the age of five as she shelled peas. The day before your aunt had taken you to see the stock players in the nearby park theater and you were still thrilled by the glamorous part the heroine played.

"Mother, when I grow up, don't you hope I'll be a wonderful actress?" you asked.

Mother broke a well-filled pea pod with more than usual fervor. "That's the last thing in the world I would want you to be!"

"But why? What do you want me to be?"

"Just be good," was the answer.

Even at five, the theme of "Be good, my child, and let who will be clever" did not sound very exciting. What you did not know was that your mother had known the actress you admired—knew the trail of broken hearts she had left in her wake, her grasping determined nature using everything, and everybody to further her ends.

You thought your mother was just old-fashioned. But now, having passed through many of the trials and tribulations of adult life, you realize there is great merit in living not self-righteously, but uprightly.

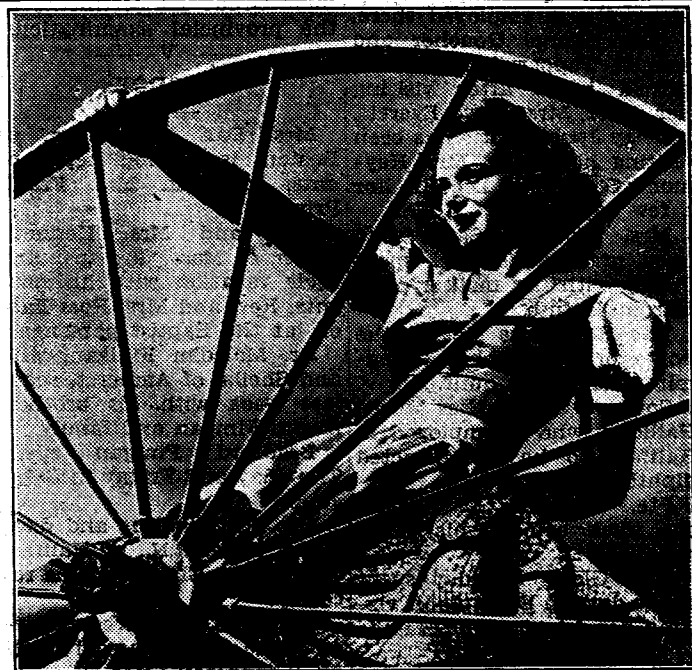

You are the one person you must live with from the cradle to the grave. If friends disgust you, you can walk away, but you can never get away from yourself even for a moment.

Goodness leads to peace, that pearl of great price which the world is seeking. A life of goodness may at times seem dull, but it is ever so much better than an exciting life which may lead to regret, bitterness and disillusionment.

Success, fame, possessions are worthless baubles if deep within you is the remembrance you paid in compromise with evil, the souls you trampled over, friendships you used to gain your own ends. Better by far to be at peace with yourself and have your self-respect.

So you try to inculcate in your children the early principles which your mother taught you. Down through the years, goodness has been the wish of every mother for her daughter. It is this unbroken chain which has kept where evil is so rampant. And so long as mothers keep the goodness alive in a world faith and carry the torch to

The SNAPSHOT GUILD FRAMING

Greater appeal was obtained in this picture by using a hayrake wheel as a frame for the subject. Watch for similar properties to transform your snapshots into good pictorial studies.

FIND a natural frame for your picture subjects, and, as a rule, you'll get more appealing and interesting snapshots. This is especially true when shooting a landscape, but can be very effectively used when snapping pictures of people.

A "frame" may be a doorway, an arch, or a branch of a tree framing one side and top of a scenic view. This adds depth or third dimension to a picture, aids in "holding it together," and often permits blocking out undesirable objects. It can also be used to concentrate attention on a subject which, without a frame, might appear "lost" or too small.

Consider the picture above. By employing the wheel of a hayrake as a "frame," what might have been just another record snapshot of this young lady has been transformed into a novel, effective picture. The wheel is naturally large and accentuated because it is nearer to the camera than the subject. Wherever your eye strikes the photograph, it is immediately carried to her face, either by the spokes of the wheel or by the steel tire. In addition to lending a dramatic touch, the wheel also provides a medium for holding the picture together.

Note that both the wheel and the girl are in sharp focus. This was accomplished by using a small lens opening to get as much depth of field as possible. A medium yellow filter, commonly called a "K-2," was slipped over the lens, to render the sky in a medium tone of gray, thereby separating the light tones of the clothing from the background.

Before you release the shutter for your next pictures, see if it isn't possible to border the subject with some type of frame. By walking around a tree near your subject, you can almost always find a branch that forms an arch over the center of interest. Or you may find an arch of a bridge, ornamental iron grille-work, or many other things that can be used for this purpose.

Framing your subjects is a knack easily acquired, and by so doing, you can often change everyday material into a picture that contains many of the appealing elements for an artistic, pictorial photograph. Try it and see if it doesn't yield more interest-compelling snapshots.

Fabrics Will Wear If Treated Right

Perspiration is the enemy of fabrics, and this makes summer particularly hard on clothes. If perspiration is left in the material for any length of time it soon weakens fibers and causes them to rot.

Washing underwear nightly is doubly important in hot weather. Vests, panties, shorts and undershirts, whether of cotton or rayon, silk or a combination of fibers should not be crammed into a hamper to await weekly wash day, if they are to give longest service.

If clothing is soiled in addition to being perspiration soaked and there isn't time to wash it, completely, at least cleanse it enough to remove the perspiration. With cottons, this can be done by soaking in lukewarm sudsy water for 20 minutes. Rinse and hang to dry. Then put the garments into the laundry bag for complete washing on the regular laundry day.

Silks, rayons, and combinations of fibers should not be soaked. They wash out quickly and effectively in lukewarm suds. Rinse thoroughly in water of the same temperature.

Knit-wear in any of the fibers is especially useful in summer because it launders readily and needs no ironing. Seersucker undergarments are popular for the same reason.

Cranberry Culture

The importance of flooding facilities for insect and frost control of cranberry bogs is being recognized by the new growers of the cranberry crop throughout Eastern Canada, writes E. L. Eaton, Assistant in Cranberry Investigations, Experimental Station, Kentville, N.S. With the high acre cost of grading, turving, ditching, and sanding, annual crops are necessary, if reasonable returns for labor and capital are to be assured.

On many of the older bogs, winter flooding only was provided and the season of 1942 has again shown that this is not enough. The early advance of spring brought cranberries forward just as it did fruit trees and other crops, and the severe spring frosts which followed have reduced cranberry yields on these unprotected bogs, in some cases as much as ninety per cent. On the other hand, the bogs where water was available for frost protection have a full stand of bloom and fine clear weather throughout the blooming period has been ideal for pollination.

Goes to Jail For Raising Rent

A heavy fine and a jail sentence for violation of rental regulations figured in last week's news from the War-time Prices and Trade Board. Fines totalling $375, with costs of more than $30, were imposed on Mrs. Agnes O'Brien, of Fort William, Ont. The fines, results of four charges, were heavy, the magistrate admitted but were imposed because evidence showed that the accused was fully aware of the regulations.

The first instance in Canada of a person going to jail instead of paying a fine for an infraction of the rentals regulations occurred in British Columbia.

Mrs. Slavenka Wicks was fined $20.00 and costs in Nanaimo Police Court on July 22 and Magistrate Beaver-Potts added the alternative of 30 days with hard labor.

The accused refused to pay the fine and costs and on July 25 was picked up by the police and taken to Aakalla Jail to serve her sentence. The imprisonment runs from the date of the conviction.

AN OLD CANADIAN CUSTOM

When our pioneer grandparents had a big job to do they called in their neighbours. A barn raising brought help from miles around. Skilled barn framers took charge; sides were chosen and competition between teams lent interest to the work. This old Canadian custom was revived when Canada's National War Finance Committee was formed and went into operation. Under the leadership of the National and Provincial Committees—men experienced in the organization and conduct of financial operations—Local Committees were formed in all communities. Cooperation and competition characterized the work. The biggest "raising" in Canada's history got away to a magnificent start.

WE'VE GOT A BIG JOB TO DO NOW

The War goes on. The National War Finance Committee carries on. Some will serve on the committees organized to promote continued sales of Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps. All of us must continue to buy these securities. We must save every dollar, every cent we can—and lend our money to Canada. We must provide the money required to carry on the war—the money required to win the war.

Our fighters must have more ships and tanks and guns and planes. They must have better ships and tanks and guns and planes than the enemy has. We must all work, and save and lend. The safest investments we can find for our savings are Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps—and they will provide money for us to buy things that we will want when the war is ended.

Sheep Field Days Announced

In order to line up a sheep program for the year a number of sheep field days will be held at which James Telfer, Canada's leading authority on sheep, will meet breeders and demonstrate on breed type. C. Eric Boulden, provincial animal husbandman and J. A. Steele, secretary of Nova Scotia sheep breeders, department of agriculture, will also be present to discuss problems of sheep breeders in Nova Scotia. The final meeting at Margaree will include also the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia sheep breeders association. Sheep field days are:— Windsor, Thursday, Aug. 20, 9.30 a.m.—4.30 p.m.; Demonstration Bldg., Lawrencetown, Friday, August 21, 9.30 a.m.—Pictou, Monday Aug. 24, 9.00—3.00 p.m.; J. C. White's, Margaree, Tuesday, August 25, 4.30 p.m.; Hooper Brothers, 9.00 a.m.—3.30 p.m.

Besides classes of purebred sheep of various breeds, breeders are asked to bring out their ewes and old rams for sale. These field days should be excellent events for new breeders to attend in order to get information and buy sheep. Orders for sheep or rams will also be booked if desired.

Poultry Pool Held At Bridgetown

Nearly five tons of poultry was handled at a pool held July 31 at Bridgetown by the Middleton Livestock shipping club. About sixty per cent graded A. The high percentage grading B and C was on account of feed in the crops. A plucking machine was used in preparing the birds for the pool, the 1835 being put through in less than three days.

Weather Report For July

The rainfall at the N.S.A. College station, Truro, for July amounted to 3.07 inches, which was only slightly below the 32-year average of 3.14 inches, most of this though fell during two days ending the morning of July 24 with 2.50 inches. During the first twenty-two days of the month there was only .38 inches. There was practically as much rain during the last eight days of the month as there was during the months of May, June and up until July 22.

The maximum temperature for the month was 86 reached on July 14. On 28 days it was 70 or above. The minimum temperature was 41, on July 11, with seven days under 50. The month was a hot and dry one, an excellent one for curing hay, with the result that most of the crop has gone in in excellent condition except for some that is over-ripe. The grain is ripening rapidly and harvesting is already on the way in the Anna.

Valley and western part of the province.

The meteorological record from the Dominion Experimental Station at Nappan states the month of July was in most respects an average one. The mean temperature was 64.01 degree as compared with a 33-year average of 64.48 degree. Precipitation was recorded on twelve dates and there were traces on two other days. The total for the month was 3.25 inches as compared with a 34-year average of 2.97 inches. The sunshine was 228.4 hours as compared with a 30-year average of 227 hours. There were four days on which the sky was completely overcast. The major part of the rain fell between July 18 and 23. The heaviest rain was on the 20th, when one inch was recorded. From the 5th to the 18th very satisfactory weather prevailed for hay making, but from the 18th to the end of the month it was very close, muggy and with considerable overcast weather, thus cutting down on the rapidity of curing hay satisfactorily. Grass pastures have suffered most of all from the drought which prevailed throughout the month of June and into July 2.

The experimental station at Kentville reported two inches of rain fell in July. There were 243.7 hours of sunshine and only one day, July 21, when there was no sunshine. The maximum temperature was 89 on July 14, and the minimum 42 on July 11.

Assistance Offered To Sheep Breeders

Assistance to new breeders in getting established is now offered jointly by the provincial and dominion departments of agriculture. The new breeder should preferably buy his ewes in his own vicinity so he can see the stock he is getting. However, if he cannot get them personally, he should consult his agricultural representative who will assist him in getting them from the same county or other parts of the province.

The dominion department of agriculture will assist by paying freight charges on approved shipments and by loaning rams to new breeders who are starting with fifteen or more ewes on a farm where sheep have not been kept for a year or more and agrees to carry on at least two years. Under the ram club policy Rams may also be obtained under which a deposit of $11 for an XX ram lamb or $14 for an XXX ram lamb secures a ram of Oxford or Shropshire breed or any other breed if ten or more farmers apply for rams of the breed chosen.

Ernest Faulkner, Carribou Island, reports that he got a good crop of lambs and 15 lbs. of wool from the XXX Shropshire ram lamb he obtained last fall under the Ram Club Policy. As the average Nova Scotia fleece weighs about 6 lbs., it is evident that the use of a purebred ram was a good investment from the standpoint of wool alone.

Lists of purebred sheep for sale are being prepared by Nova Scotia sheep breeders' association, Truro, and agricultural representatives will have lists of grade ewes available. It is probable that a shipment of sheep from Ontario will be brought in. Those who have ordered in Ontario should write the Sheep Breeders' Association, Truro, so as to get their purchases brought down free of charge. Sheep look like one of the best investments in agriculture today and with the current shortage of labor should fit in very well on many more farms.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Stannage Currell

On Sunday, August 9, there passed away peacefully at her home in Victory, Mrs. Emmeline Currell, at the age of 81 years, following an illness of weeks duration. Some years ago Mrs. Currell suffered a stroke, from which she had recovered partially but not completely, all her illness being borne with patience and cheerfulness toward those caring for her. During the past few years she was cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trimper, who came to live with her in her home, and who gave her every attention. Before her marriage she was Emmeline Hannah Wagner. Born in Lunenburg County, she came to Victory something over fifty years ago, when she married Stannage Currell, who predeceased her some years ago. All her married life was spent in Victory, where, a few years ago, she was joined by her sister, Mrs. Colp, who made her home with her. She is survived by Mrs. Colp, also by Mrs. Oziah Darress, of Victory and two other sisters in Lunenburg Co. Known throughout the district in which she lived for her unflinching Christianity and helpfulness to all her friends and neighbors, particularly in any time of sadness or trouble, she will be greatly missed, as until the time of her last illness, her interest never failed. The funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. A. W. L. Smith, of the Church of England, to which she belonged and to which she was deeply and sincerely attached. The interment was in the Victory Cemetery.

VOLUME LXVIII, NO. 49

African United Baptists Meet At Acaciaville

The 89th meeting of the African United Baptist Association of Nova Scotia, was held in Acaciaville, in the Acaciaville African Baptist Church over the week end. There was a very large attendance, two churches being necessary to accommodate the hundreds who attended, the Hill Grove United Baptist Church being placed at the disposal of the colored people both afternoon and evening.

The first session was held Saturday morning and was largely of a routine nature, the registration of delegates, rules of order, election of committees, formation of a choir, etc. The opening address was given by the Moderator, Rev. A. A. Wyse, of Halifax, who stressed the need of co-operation among the churches and of helping those in the smaller fields.

In the afternoon twenty-one churches reported by letter showing an increase in membership of 61—41 by baptism and 20 by letter.

The executive committee reported that seven requests for licenses to preach had been received, from Willard Clayton and Samuel Clayton, Hammond's Plains; C. H. Johnston, Halifax; William Barton, Acaciaville; Joseph Diggs and John Colley, Preston. This committee also recommended that everything possible be done to increase efforts for war services and also that the National Anthem be sung at least one service every Sunday.

The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand.

Rev. A. W. Thompson, of Truro, and Rev. W. P. Oliver, of Halifax, were named as delegates to the Maritime United Baptist Convention.

Hammond's Plains was named as the next place of meeting. Rev. W. P. Oliver to be preacher, with Rev. A. F. Skinner as alternate.

At the evening session a formal welcome was extended by Rev. M. L. Anderson, and replied to by Rev. A. M. Morgan. At 8.30 the Young People's Rally took place with Lic. H. D. Thomas, Tracadie, in charge.

Sunday's services were particularly interesting, especially those of the afternoon and evening. People were present from far and near and the roads near the churches were almost blocked. The association service in the afternoon was by Rev. A. W. Thompson, who took as his subject, "The Unchanging Christ in a Changing World."

In the evening the sermons were by Rev. E. S. Mason, president of the Maritime Conference, and Rev. A. A. Wyse, of Halifax.

Monday's sessions were largely of a routine nature. Rev. Dr. Mason gave the denominational report, the Maritime Baptist report and the Foreign Missions report. Rev. Mr. Hart, Lawrencetown, gave a report on Acadia University, and Rev. A. Gibson presented the claims of the Grand Ligne Mission. The election of officers resulted as follows: Moderator, Rev. A. M. Morgan, Windsor Plains; Vice Moderator, Rev. A. F. Skinner, DeLaps Cove; Secretary, Rev. W. P. Oliver, Halifax, and Treasurer, James A. R. Kinney, of Halifax.

In the afternoon the women's auxiliary elected their officers who were inducted into office that night as follows: President, Mrs. Arnold Smith, Halifax; First Vice President, Mrs. Annie Mitchell, Bridgetown; organizer, Mrs. M. J. States, Dartmouth; assistant organizer, Mrs. M. L. Anderson, Brooklyn, Yar. Co.; secretary, Mrs. W. P. Oliver, Halifax.

One Pullet That's Doing Her Bit

Mrs. Walter Dunn, of Prineedale, has a four months old Barred Rock pullet which laid first two double-yolked eggs; then the third egg had three yolks, and the fourth contained four yolks. The girth of the last mentioned egg was 8 in. by 6½ in. and Mrs. Dunn asks: "How is this toward keeping up egg production?"

Congratulations Mrs. Russell

We extend hearty congratulations to Mrs. Josephine Russell, who, on Monday, passed another milestone in her life. We understand this was her 95th birthday. Here's wishing her many "happy returns".

Digby Hospital Fair Is Success

Everything favored the Hospital Fair, held at the Mrytle Hotel yesterday. The weather—oh, we are not allowed to mention that—but at any rate no one stayed home on account of it. The grounds were particularly attractive and there were more booths than usual, all prettily decorated. The chicken supper served in the hotel dining room, was well patronized, and hundreds were present on the grounds. The drawings, of course, took place last night and we are unable to give the results in this issue; neither can we give an estimate of the receipts as the final counting will not take place until some time today. They will be given in our next issue.

Masons Dedicate Their New Hall

Last Thursday was a Red Letter Day with the Free Masons of Digby, as on that day was dedicated the new hall, owned by King Solomon Lodge, of Digby, in the 150 years and over of Masonic history in the town. The Grand Master, Geoffrey Stephens, and the Grand Secretary, J. C. Jones, with a staff of Grand Officers were present to perform the very impressive service of dedication. There was a large attendance, almost every lodge in the district being represented.

After the dedication the Masons partook of a chicken supper in the Oddfellow's Hall, served by the ladies of Zelma Rebekah Lodge.

Repairing to the lodge room again at 7.30 the members listened to a very interesting address by the Grand Master, followed by a number of short addresses by others.

At this session Rev. Dr. T. W. Hodgson was installed as Grand Chaplain, the third time he has held that honor.

CORRECTION

The Courier wishes to correct an item published last week re the Sale of the Peters' House, Digby.

It was stated that this house had been purchased by the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation to be used as a Rectory. This is definitely wrong. The house has been purchased by Andrew Deveau, of Meteghan, and his prospective bride, Miss Mary Morrissey, of Digby, who will occupy it shortly.

The Courier regrets this error and any inconvenience caused Father Murphy.

Gyro International Holds Convention At Pines Hotel

The first session of the annual Convention of the Gyro International was held Thursday afternoon at the Pines hotel here. There were 60 delegates present from Saint John, N.B., Halifax, and other centres of the Maritimes. This convention is expected to be the last for the duration, but interest is still very high, and members are determined to carry on despite the fact that 40% of members have joined the Armed Forces.

Gyro International is strictly a friendship club, designed to keep alive schoolday friendship. Thursday's affairs dealt mostly with preliminary matters. Mayor E. J. Theriault gave an address of welcome in the Game Room of the Hotel, and this was followed by golfing, tennis, and swimming. The Governor's Ball was held in the evening, with the Pines' Orchestra in attendance.

John D. Mosher, the active secretary treasurer of Gyro, kept the members informed with a daily bulletin, which he published at the hotel.

The Convention concluded Friday evening with a banquet after which a closing dance was enjoyed. Delegates expressed the belief that the two day Convention had been a highly successful one.

Highlights of Friday's sessions were the election of the new Governor and Lieutenant Governor, and the awarding of the trophies. William T. Blair, of Kentville, N.S., was succeeded as Governor by Gaius Avar, of Moncton, and the newly elected Lieutenant Governor is Morton Dew, of Charlottetown.

The Man-Mile trophy (presented to the organization sending the most delegates the longest way) was presented to Charlottetown, President Leo Doucette; Gyrette cup, won by Campbellton (M. Bessie Clark), the organization sending the most lady delegates; Attendance Shield won by Halifax (Dave MacDonald); Bulletin trophy went to Campbellton (Clarapce Clark).

The afternoon session was addressed by Gyro's Second Vice-President, Frank Nightingale, of Halifax, who urged the members to keep Gyro going strong as ever for the duration. External expansion, it is realized, will be impossible, but the members are determined that the members of the organization who have left to join the fighting forces will have a wide-awake Gyro to return to.

Mayor E. J. Theriault addressed the gathering at the banquet, and extended his congratulations on the splendid work being done, after which a 30-seconds silence was observed out of respect for Hubert Miller, of Windsor, N.S., a member of Gyro who has been reported missing in the R.C.A.F.

Band Concert Led by Lady

Thursday night's concert by the Digby Civic Band was one of the finest of the season. The Band was in splendid form and rendered every number with skill and precision that spoke well for Bandmaster Yates' efforts in training and directing these boys.

For the first time in its history the band was directed, at Thursday night's concert, by a member of the "fair sex". Miss Kathryn Hassler, of New York, a noted American conductor and a visitor to Digby, who consented on request from Bandmaster Yates to lead the Band in two American patriotic airs.

Mr. Yates has this to say concerning Miss Hassler's conducting: "The Digby Civic Band has never had the pleasure of playing under a more proficient and masterful conductor. She actually talks with her fingers, and the players could quickly read the meaning of her every gesture. I am sorry there was no opportunity for us to enjoy her direction of more elaborate compositions."

Highlight of Thursday's concert was the splendid rendition of three lovely vocal solos by Miss Hassler, accompanied by Mrs. Harold Nichols at the piano. These were "Danny Boy", "None But The Lonely Heart" and "The End of a Perfect Day". Miss Hassler is a very distinguished conductor, musician and contralto soloist. She has a splendid record of musical achievement in the United States. Leader of a chorus of sixty voices that have won exhibitions for seven consecutive years, thrice winner of musical honors in state wide musical scholarships at American universities and a noted radio artist, Miss Hassler's contribution to the Band Concert on Thursday night was indeed greatly appreciated. While in Digby Miss Hassler was a guest at Terrace View Cottage.

The six-months engagement of Mr. Yates as Director of the Band ends September 1st. Plans for the future maintenance of the Band have not yet been considered. The two concerts, on the 20th and the 27th of August may be their last.

Mrs. Clifford Rice and children, who have been guests of Mrs. Rice's mother, Mrs. Frank McPherson at Hampton, N.B., have returned to their home in Kentville, N.S. They are former Bear River people.

About This and That

THE UNITED STATES ARMY has issued a pamphlet as a guide to American boys who are going to serve in Britain, entitled, "A Short Guide to Britain," an excellent little publication showing splendid understanding. It is intended to help the American boys feel at home in Britain and also to take away any hard feelings that may have existed between the two countries in the past.

To some American boys, sailing to besieged Britain at a time when enemy U-Boats may rear their Nazi heads in the most unexpected places, is indeed something worth crowing about. They are reminded that Britain has been at war since 1939, and that the hardships the people of the British Isles have undergone far exceed any hardships soldiers have encountered sailing across the Atlantic.

"You are going to Britain," the guide states, "as part of an allied offensive—to meet Hitler and beat him on his own ground. For the time being you will be Britain's guest. The purpose of this guide is to start getting you acquainted with the British, their country and their ways."

"America and Britain are Allies. Hitler knows they are both powerful countries, tough and resourceful. He knows that they, with the other United Nations, mean his crushing defeat in the end. So it is only common sense to understand that the first and major duty Hitler has given his propaganda chiefs is to separate Britain and America and spread distrust between them. If he can do that his chance of winning might return."

"Our common speech, our common law; and our ideals of religious freedom were all brought from Britain when the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock. Our ideals about political liberties are also British and parts of our own Bill of Rights were borrowed from the great charters of British liberty."

The American boys are warned not to brag about how much better the people "back home" do things. They are told, as an instance, that London has no skyscrapers. This is because London is built on swampy ground and not on a rock as is New York. Instead of being shown tall buildings they will be shown buildings like Westminster Abbey where England's Kings and great men are buried, St. Paul's Cathedral with its famous dome and the Tower of London, built nearly a thousand years ago. Greater London's huge population of twelve million people is the size of Greater New York City and all its suburbs, with the nearby New Jersey cities thrown in. The American printed guide also states that the British people are the most law-abiding people in the world, adding that there are fewer murders, robberies and burglaries in the whole of Britain in a year than in a single large American city.

The men are advised that this is no time to fight old wars over again or to say that "they came over and won the last war" or what the Yanks will do. These things, together with the old war debt, are now history and the only thing that really matters is beating the pants off Hitler and all his gang.

There is a lesson in the small publication for we civilians. All of us spend too much time talking about history or what has transpired in the past. Enemy propaganda fills our everyday conversation and we have been guilty of saying that the blow received by the United States at Pearl Harbour "served 'em right; they accused Britain and France of sleeping."

It's time we awakened and faced the real issue of the war. It's time we really got to work turning out the tools to finish the job. It's time we realized that all the Allies are important, all on equal footing and all supplying an equally important link in the chain of victory. It's time we realized that Canadians and Americans are friends fighting for their very existence. One of the biggest victories Hitler could win in this war would be the splitting these two great nations. Let's see to it that such a Nazi wish never becomes a reality.

"HOW GREEN WAS MY VALLEY" GREAT PICTURE

Great families make great pictures. Hollywood has proved this many times from the days of "The Birth of a Nation", through "Calvacade" and "Beau Geste" down to the "Grapes of Wrath" and "Gone With the Wind". And now in Richard Llewellyn's "How Green Was My Valley" comes the brave story of a family never conquered—not by armed men or hardship, hunger or hate—nor by the turbulent years that stole the greenness from their valley.

The enthralling film about the Welsh family, the Morgans, which focuses attention on the various members, is more than just the saga of one particular group of individuals; it is the story of a whole community. What happens to them separately and together doesn't set them apart from their background, but rather makes them more a part of it.

An that is why the casting of "How Green Was My Valley" was so important. More time was consumed on the selection of this outstanding cast than it took to complete the actual shooting. The laudatory reviews received and the attendance records the film has set, justify the inordinate pains taken by Production Chief Darryl F. Zanuck and his staff in their careful selection.

Ten people make up this Morgan family and each contributes his share to its strength. From Gwilym, the father of the clan, to youngest Huw, the balance is well spread so that each is a key character on which hinges the success of the film. And in addition the role of Mr. Gruffydd, the community pastor, is just as important.

Walter Pigeon, who is emerging at the top of the heap in Hollywood, ably plays the part of Mr. Gruffydd, "a man of rock and flame, he could speak for others but not for himself." Others in the cast include Donald Crisp, Sara Allgood, Roddy McDowall, Maureen O'Hara and Anna Lee.

John Ford directed "How Green Was My Valley" which is coming to the Capitol Theatre, Digby, Monday and Tuesday, August 24-25.

SELL with WANT-ADS

CANADA MUST HAVE MORE WOOL TO MEET WARTIME NEEDS

In normal times Canada produces 20,000,000 lbs. of wool and consumes about 40,000,000 lbs. Today wartime conditions have more than doubled the consumption. It has passed the hundred million mark.

NOVA SCOTIA FARMERS ARE ASKED TO TAKE IMPORTANT PART

The farmers of Nova Scotia are asked to take part in a program to increase Canada's sheep population by one million head in 1943. This should mean an increase of six or seven million pounds of wool.

FARMERS SHOULD

1. Keep all good breeding ewes that can be properly looked after.
2. Keep ALL good ewe LAMBS that can be fed and given proper attention, especially the early and well developed lambs and have them bred this fall.
3. If unable to keep all the good ewe lambs try to interest a neighbor in purchasing them to add to his flock or start a new flock.

4. If unable to dispose of ewe lambs near home consult the agricultural representative. He will endeavor to place them where they can be bred.

5. If unable to get required ewes or ewe lambs near at home advise the agricultural representative. He will do his best to have good ewes brought in under the federal assistance freight policy.

6. Order rams early as good rams may be scarce this fall.

County agricultural representatives should be consulted at once about government ram policy, the securing of ewes, the disposal of ewes and anything else regarding sheep.

MARRIAGE

Lombard - Comeau
One of the most fashionable weddings of the season was solemnized at St. Joseph Roman Catholic church, Weymouth, Wednesday morning, at 8 o'clock, August 12, when Augustus Lombard, son of the late Germain Lombard and Catherine Lombard, of Corberrie, was united in marriage to Miss Madeliene Comeau, Vice-Principal of the Weymouth school and daughter of the late Pius Comeau and Mrs. Elizabeth Gaudet, of Weymouth. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Peter Comeau, C.J.M., brother of the bride. Solemn nuptial high mass was followed immediately celebrated by Rev. Fr. Comeau, with Rev. Fr. Charles Freiker, rector of Weymouth, as deacon, and Rev. Fr., Luke Gaudet, rector of Plympton, as sub-deacon. The bride was the very picture of loveliness attired in a dress of white satin with long train and silk veil in train with wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a spray of choice flowers. She was attended by her sister, Miss Catherine Comeau, who wore a floor length dress of rose taffeta trimmed with antique lace, and also carried a spray of flowers. The groom was attended by his brother, Edward Lombard. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Dixon Rice, who also directed the well trained choir throughout the whole ceremony. The church had been very beautifully decorated with potted plants, cut flowers and fern, and was filled to its utmost capacity by relatives and friends, and the pupils of Weymouth school. The ushers were Sergeant G. A. Comeau, R.C.A., of Halifax, brother of the bride, and Edward Gaudet, her godfather. After the ceremony at the church, a reception was held at the home of the groom followed by a delicious luncheon at which were present over 100 hundred invited guests. Previous to the marriage the bride was tendered surprise shower by her numerous friends and the pupils of the Weymouth school, a which she received a large collection of magnificent wedding presents, thus

"Canada's Kitchen" Tests Recipes

Good preserves, jams and jellies can be made under the sugar ration. This has been proved in "Canada's Kitchen" which operates in Ottawa, under the direction of Miss Laura Pepper, chief of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture. For weeks past, Miss Pepper's staff has been testing fruit recipes and the results have proved very satisfactory. Above are shown Miss Pepper (centre) and Miss Eveline LeBlanc, home economist, tasting the jams and jellies and making notes on their quality. These tested recipes can be obtained by writing to the Publicity and Extensions Division, Department of Agriculture, for its bulletin "Wartime Jams and Jellies."

Sugar For Harvest Crews Available On "Honor System"

All over Canada farm women are asking, "What about extra men employed during harvest?"

The latest sugar order from Wartime Prices and Trade Board deals with this very question. Canadian farm women have been so cooperative in remaining strictly within their sugar ration that the "honor system" is to be used to ensure them sufficient sugar to feed threshing and silo filling gangs, fruit pickers or other harvest groups.

In order to obtain this extra sugar allowance, the housewife must secure from her merchant a voucher (similar to that used when buying sugar for canning) to be signed by herself or by the person making the purchase. On the line stating the type of institution or business the applicant should write the number of workers and the number of days present on her farm, for example, "10 harvest workers, two days."

The housewife is expected to compute accurately the amount of extra sugar required by these men, over and above her family's weekly quota.

TAKE CARE OF KNIVES

Speaking of conservation, what about the paring and other utility knives in your kitchen? They should be washed promptly and thoroughly in hot soapy water after using, scalded, and wiped dry. Never allow them to soak in water. They will also keep their sharp edges better if hung in knife racks designed for the purpose or kept in separate part of drawer.

Sharp knives should never be thrown carelessly into a drawer. Besides being hard on the knife, the practise is hazardous to fingers that later come reaching for them. Attention to these few details means you may not have to buy new knives for a long time to come.

Wool Resources Are Increased As Old Sweaters Become New

With wool for sweaters getting more and more precious, women of Canada are going to do a lot of unravelling and re-knitting this year.

This is how to unravel an old garment. Remove buttons, or fasteners, and unpick any double crochet around the edges. If the collar was knitted on picked-up stitches, unravel this next, starting at the end where you finished knitting.

As you unwind, roll the wool into balls. There may be some short lengths and it is wise to keep these all in one ball. When the wool is all in balls, wind into one or two ounce skeins round a tray with one hand under the wool so it isn't drawn tight. Before taking it off the tray, tie it in two places with a loose loop, leaving ends for tying to the clothes line.

Wash each skein absolutely clean in tepid water and pure soap flakes. Rinse several times in water of the same temperature. Squeeze dry and tie to the clothes line or dry flat on clean towels, turning from time to time. In either case, slip along the loops when the rest of the wool is dry, and leave long enough for the wet patches to dry thoroughly.

Mechanical Servants Need Constant Care

Electrical Appliances Are Almost Irreplaceable and Should Be Conserved

Holidaying, if even for a few days, in camps and cottages without electricity makes housewives appreciative of their electrical appliances at home.

Studies have proved that in laundry, cleaning and cooking alone, electricity saves seven work hours a week. Quite apart from convenience, this is good reason in busy days for an all-out campaign to conserve electrical equipment which is practically irreplaceable until after the war.

That handy aid the vacuum cleaner will be more efficient and will last longer if given proper care. Empty the bag after each cleaning. Occasionally turn it right inside out and clean it with a whisk. Pins, tacks, pebbles may damage the belt or other moving parts. Be careful not to pick these up with the cleaner.

The cord of the machine is precious. Avoid running the cleaner over it. Do not wind it tightly but coil it loosely around the cord clips. Take time to pull the plug out carefully when disconnecting; never jerk it out. Keep the brushes clean, free from hair and threads.

For oiling and manipulating the cleaner, follow the manufacturers directions. Repairs, when necessary, should be made promptly by a reliable repair man.

Picking Up Pins Today is Patriotic

See a pin and pick it up, is an old maxim and one that should be remembered these days. Needles, pins, hairpins and bobby pins—treat them with care, save them. This is the advice given out by government authorities.

Steel, tin and aluminum—these are the metals vitally needed for airplanes and these are the metals used in tanks, for ships and guns, and needles, pins, hairpins, bobby pins and curlers.

These things are still on the market although in some instances their quality is changing because of the disappearance of supplies. You may be able to get the kind of hairpins you like today, and you may not be able to get them tomorrow. The same applies of course to every kind of household equipment made out of metal.

Get into the habit of saving things, authorities advise. Examine the contents of the dust pan for stray pins; keep needles where they will not rust and clean those already rusted with emery cloth or powder. By saving these things now, available supplies will last longer.

Close Slide Fasteners

Always close side fasteners on garments before laundering. This keeps them in good order and keeps from tearing other garments.

Damp Cloth Best

When using scouring powders, use a damp cloth, not a wet one. Too much water lessens the friction and wastes powder.

AIR FORCE TWINS

American Soldiers Dot Entire World

So far as American armed forces are concerned, talk of a "second front" would be more accurate if it were described as a "thirty-second front". United States troops are scattered over 31 different areas, perhaps more. If the navy is added, the list is even more impressive.

Largest forces are in Ireland and Australia, the size of the armies there a military secret. New Guinea and New Caledonia supplement the Australian front in the Far Pacific.

American soldiers are established at nine British bases in the Western Hemisphere: British Guiana, Trinidad, Jamaica, Santa Lucia, the Bahamas, Antigua, Bermuda, Labrador, and Newfoundland. Military outposts of the United States are also established in Guatemala, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Cuba, Brazil, Ecuador and Venezuela. Many small outposts for the American army ferry command dot three general regions in Africa—British, French and Belgian Africa.

Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell heads an air force in China. Another American air corps unit, with ground troops for maintenance, is based in India. United States forces have a base in Eritrea at the mouth of the Red Sea to protect incoming cargoes, and a unit at Basra at the head of the Persian Gulf.

There are United States troops also in Iceland, Greenland, and Egypt, not to mention garrisons in Alaska and Hawaii.

Gas, Tire Shortages Put Shoes On Spot

People Walking More, Must Learn to Care for Footwear

People are walking a great deal more, now that the tire and gasoline shortage is what it is. Shoes, therefore, are playing a much greater part in everyday life.

Regular polishing and the use of shoe trees are of first line importance in extending the life of footwear and in maintaining a proper appearance.

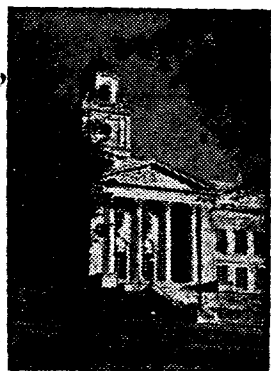

Extra care should be taken in the buying of shoes these days. They should be the correct size and width to ensure plenty of foot room for walking. What is more, care in buying will mean added life to shoes.

The first rule in making shoes last longer is regular polishing. A good polish protects shoes by acting as a kind of weather conditioner, and makes them more pliable. This doesn't mean that rubbers shouldn't be worn in wet weather. Shoes which are wet are easily put out of shape. When shoes get muddy they should be washed off with a damp cloth and wiped dry. Shoe trees should be inserted immediately and then shoes should be allowed to dry slowly, but completely, away from direct heat. As soon as they are dry they should be given a good polish.

Plenty of Game Birds in Maritimes

Woodcock shooting in the province of New Brunswick this year will open October 1st in all counties except Victoria, Madawaska, Restigouche and Gloucester and continue throughout the month, the season closing on October 31st according to Ernie Poole, fish and game representative for the Canadian National Railways, these dates being officially announced by the provincial government. For the counties named, the season will be from September 29th to October 20th. The daily bag limit is 8 and not more than one hundred birds for the season. In the adjoining province of Nova Scotia the season opens October 11th and in Prince Edward Island October 15th with the same bag limit.

For partridge the season in New Brunswick is the same as

Rail Employees Must Not Give Information On Troop Movements

No information regarding movements of troop trains in Canada may be issued by the railway companies, imperative instructions to that effect having been issued by the Department of National Defence and the instructions have since been reiterated, states a joint release by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways.

The reason for prohibiting the issuance of information regarding troop train movements is fundamentally to ensure the safety of trains and ships engaged in the transport of troops. Enemy intelligence is keen and active and the publication of news regarding the arrival of men from overseas could readily form the basis from which to make a calculation as to the probable date on which the transports would again be at sea. With such information available, an enemy submarine could establish a station in the approximate route of the vessel. The probable consequences can easily be imagined.

It does happen that individuals, believing that a relative or friend has reached Canada and is travelling towards his home, make inquiries and are greatly disappointed when told that no information is available. In such instances no fault applies to the railway officials and the disappointment of the individual must be accepted as a contribution to general security of men and ships which must face the perils of the sea and the risk of enemy action.

The Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific railways make every effort for the expeditious movements of troop trains but in a period when both systems are being confronted with the task of carrying peak loads to aid in Canada's war effort such delays as may occur occasionally are due to the unusual conditions of these days and to the fact that there are priorities in railway traffic. Considering the vast scale of daily train movements through the Dominion, delays are at a minimum and there are no bottlenecks such as sometimes occurred in the first Great War when freight traffic was in lesser volume.

TCA Traffic Reaches New High

Passenger, air mail and express traffic on the Trans-Canada Air Lines rose to new heights in June, according to the monthly report of the Board of Directors. The majority of them on war business, passengers numbered 10,317, an increase of 768 over May and of 1,688 over June 1941. Mail amounted to almost six thousand pounds a day; the total for June was 174,104 pounds, 7,694 pounds greater than the month before and 55,201 pounds heavier than the volume in June a year ago. Express also reached its highest peak, rising from 22,184 pounds in May to 27,406 pounds, an increase of 5,222 pounds. The increase over June 1941 was 16,803 pounds.

Autograph Hunters

Besiege Babe Ruth On Trip To East

If George Herman Ruth can't sign his name with his eyes shut, it won't be for want of practice given to him by autograph hunters. From the time the "Babe" arrived in Halifax by Trans-Canada Air Lines to assist at the inauguration of a new recreation centre sponsored by the Navy League of Canada, he was eagerly sought after by fans for his autograph. One person nailed him in the plane in behalf of his young nephew—needless to say that uncle will be tops with his nephew. The one-time pride of the New York "Yankees" provided a one-man show whenever he moved into the open from his quarters in the Nova Scotian Hotel.

First Aid Courses For Rail Workers

Now that residents in every Canadian community are being trained to aid in air raid protection work, increasing importance is attached to first aid instruction for Canadian National Railways employees throughout the country. For years this work has been carried out as part of the normal training of men and women in every branch of the C.N.R., system activities particularly in shops and along the right-of-way.

Parrot Gives Good Advice

Passengers hurrying to board the Maritime Express in the Canadian National Station in Montreal were startled when a voice shrilled out over the platform: "Good-bye, and don't forget your war savings certificates!," The speaker was a parrot in a cage being carried by the express car. He was on the way to Riviere du Loup, where the family he belongs to—that of Col. J. Harvey Hough—is spending the summer. Expressmen said he was quite talkative while waiting for the train.

Vaughan, President of the System, referring to the wartime work of the railway employees: "The harder you work, the more concentrated your effort, the greater your need for relaxation. An outing like the annual picnic is a safety valve; it has great therapeutic value."

Hoseless Days Ahead, Gardeners Warned

As there will be no new garden hoses available because of the rubber situation, it is very important to give present hoses proper care and attention. The hose should never be left outside lying on the ground or coiled over the water tap where it is subject to sunlight and heat and all kinds of weather conditions.

Remember never to drag the hose along where it is liable to catch on stones or the sides of the building and thus stretch. It should be stored off the ground indoors so that it will dry out free from dirt, grit and grease. It is advisable to coil hose on a reel in order to prevent bends and kinks. In this way all the excess water left in it can be carefully drained.

Horse Has New Job As Result of War

The horse has a new job! Not only is he to return to his role of pulling wagons and supplying transportation to people no longer to drive their cars, but he is also to supply Canada with brushes.

War in the Pacific has thrown this new duty upon the horse. Formerly pigs' bristles imported from China and Siberia supplied this continent with the right kind of brushes and brooms. Pigs in this country haven't grown the right kind of bristles although now it is reported some are being specially bred for the purpose. In the meantime, however, manufacturers have been forced to turn their

Once again the horse has risen to the occasion. Other animal hair was found to be unsatisfactory but "horse tail hair" when mixed properly with the available hogs' bristles was proved a satisfactory substitute. This has given horse hair a new importance and has resulted in an order being passed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board controlling its distribution and price.

MARRIAGES

Deming - Morehouse
(Republished by request)

On Wednesday afternoon last, at 4 o'clock, a lovely summer wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Morehouse, when their daughter, Laura May Morehouse was united in marriage to Donald Deming, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Deming, Digby. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. C. Munh, pastor of Digby Baptist church. As the wedding procession descended the flower flanked stairway, Lohengrin's Wedding March was played by Mrs. Harold Nichols. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her youngest sister, Edith Morehouse. The groom had for his best man Malcolm Moores, of Yarmouth. The bride was gowned in symphony blue sheer, its only trimming being self pleating at neck, sleeves and hem. She wore a halo head-dress of the same material fastened in place with white roses. She carried an arm bouquet of roses, lilies and daisies. Her bridesmaid wore pale pink chiffon and pink rose head-dress. She carried a mixed bouquet. The bride's mother wore blue flowered chiffon and large white hat. The groom's mother wore a navy sheer jacket dress with navy and white hat and white accessories. The bridal party stood under an arch of hydrangia and phlox, green vines making a pleasing background. The rooms of the home were made most attractive with harmonizing summer flowers tastefully arranged. A reception was held at Mountain Gap Inn. The bride's table was centered by a three-tiered bride's cake and the guests place cards were attached to white wrapped wedding cake. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Deming left by motor for a trip through the Maritimes. For travelling, the bride wore a suit of dusty pink with brown hat and brown accessories. The groom was a former member of the Royal Bank of Canada, but is now a Leading Writer in the R.C.N.V.R. and is stationed in Newfoundland. The bride was formerly order office supervisor for Robert Simpson Co., and recently teacher in the Digby Business College. Among guests from out of town were Mrs. Edward R. Spielman, sister of the bride, and her husband of Lynnbrook, Long Island, N.Y.; Mrs. Ronald Hodgson, sister of the groom, and her husband, Lieut. Hodgson, of Montreal.

Rawding - Brooks

A very pretty wedding of interest to many friends was solemnized on Saturday evening, August 8th, at Westminster Church Manse, Temperance Street, New Glasgow, when Rose Willabroad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Brooks, became the bride of Sergeant Keith Rawding, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Rawding, of Deep Brook. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hugh Munroe, D.D., minister of the Westminster church. They were attended by Miss Cora Johnson as bridesmaid and Gilbert MacBeth, Plymouth, as groomsmen. The bride looked lovely in her costume of white lace over satin, a street length model, her hat and accessories were white and her corsage was sweetheart roses and baby's breath and for ornament a gold locket worn by her mother on her wedding day. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony. The reception table was decorated with vases of varied flowers. The bride's father and mother received with the young couple. When felicitations had been extended a dainty wedding supper was served. The dining room decorations were in patriotic colors, red, white and blue. Mrs. James W. McClean presided over the attractively arranged table. Red, white and blue bachelor buttons were used in the decorations of the bride's table. The three-tier wedding cake, the top layer depicting a little bride and groom, centered the table. The soft glow of ivory candles in brass candlesticks, heirlooms of the family, a wedding present to the bride's great grandmother, heightened the pretty effect. Later, Sergeant and Mrs. Rawding left on a honeymoon trip to the Annapolis Valley and are now visiting the groom's mother at Deep Brook. Shortly after their return the groom, who has been at the Parkdale Military Training Centre expects to leave for Brockville, Ontario, to take the Officer's course. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold wrist watch and cheque; to the bridesmaid, a vanity case and to the groomsmen a military set. The bride received many beautiful wedding presents in silver, china, crystal, pyrex, linens and from Sergeant Rawdings fellow staff sergeants, a pair of two-toned Kenwood blankets, and from her parents, a chest of flat silver. Sergeant and Mrs. Rawding have the best wishes of a host of friends for a happy future.

EMPLOYERS
If you have not received your copies of Table of Tax Deductions and Instructions, communicate with the office of your local Inspector of Income Tax at once.

Income Tax is Fair to All

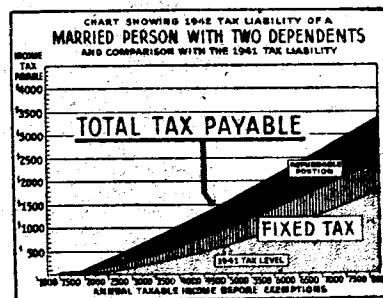

In the fourth year of war, Canada will need almost four billion dollars. This is the equivalent of nearly $350 from every man, woman and child in the country.

Even with the highest income tax in history, 52% only of the money Canada needs will be raised by taxation. The rest will have to be borrowed by means of War Savings Stamps, Certificates and Victory Bonds.

Starting with the first pay period in September representing September earnings only, your employer is required by law to deduct your income tax from your wages or salary, and send it promptly to the Government. Everybody will pay his share as he goes along.

It's going to be tough . . . but not too tough! Here are some good features:

1. You will pay as you earn, so that you will not be faced with a large lump sum payment next year.
2. The National Defence Tax already deducted during the first 8 months of this year has been taken into account in the Table of Tax Deductions.
3. Though the income tax rates show a sharp increase over last year, a large portion of this increase is actually savings, to be paid back to you with interest after the war.
4. The money you are paying for life insurance premiums, annuities, principal repayments on your home, or into a pension fund may be deducted (up to a certain maximum) from the savings portion of your income tax. In many cases this may be sufficient to make payment of the savings portion of the tax unnecessary.

Unless you are single, without dependents, and not making payments of the types mentioned in paragraph 4 above, you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise, you may not be allowed the credits to which you are entitled. DO NOT DELAY. File Form TD-1 with your employer at once so that you may get the full allowances from the start.

VOLUME LXVIII, NO. 50

Old St. Edward's Church Observes Anniversary

The 145th Anniversary of the Consecration of Old St. Edward's Church, Clements-Port, was celebrated last Thursday afternoon by a special service held in the old Loyalist fane, which is picturesquely situated on a hill overlooking the Annapolis Basin. Due to gasoline restrictions the service was not as largely attended as the annual service usually is, but the interest was as great, if not greater than has been shown in former years.

The Church was consecrated in 1797 by Bishop Inglis. Services were conducted in Old St. Edward's Church, and elsewhere before the church was built, by the Rectors of Annapolis and Digby during the early years. Alternately, once a month, the Rev. Jacob Bailey, of Annapolis, and the Rev. Roger Viets, of Digby, visited Clements for this purpose. From that time on, until 1841, when the Parish of St. Clement was set aside, the Rectors of Annapolis and Digby ministered to the needs of the people of this countryside.

The sturdiness of the old building is no doubt due to the manner of its framing. Most of the timber was cut on the hill where the church stands, and these were hand hewn and joined together with wooden pins. The shingles were hand made, and even the nails were hand wrought. The lime for the plaster was made by burning clam shells from the shore. Surrounding the church are the graves of the old Loyalist founders who worked untiringly to build a church worthy of their name.

The first part of the service was taken by Mr. Bishop, student pastor at Sandy Cove, Digby County. The first lesson was read by Rev. B. Fream, of Round Hill, and the second by Rev. G. F. Bickley, of Granville Ferry. Special prayers were given by Rev. A. S. Hart, of Weymouth. Announcements were given by the Rector, Rev. A. W. L. Smith. Climax of the impressive service was the inspiring address by Donald Fraser Forrester, S.T.D., of New York, who made the appeal that man should be brought in closer fellowship with God, especially in these critical times. This, he said, could be accomplished in many ways, taking for instance the picturesque site chose by the founders of Old St. Edward's. Here we see God expressed in trees, the flowers and the birds. The founders of the historic church put their whole heart and soul into every little task and, he declared, we see their efforts were not in vain for the atmosphere about the historic landmark is filled with the Spirit of God.

The speaker referred to the architecture of the present time being that of extensiveness, while that of the old church is of peace and devotion. His prayer was that those present should go forth from service fired with the love of God and radiate same in the work of man. This alone would bring peace out of the present chaos.

Among those present was R. V. Ditmars, of Deep Brook, who has never missed an anniversary service of St. Edward's church since they were inaugurated. Other clergy present from outside villages, not participating in the service were Rev. F. B. Gaskill, Digby, and Rev. Canon Underwood, Annapolis Royal.

The Rector of the Church, Rev. A. W. L. Smith, came to the Parish in 1916, and raised the Old Church from a deplorable state of neglect and decay to the fine church it is today. He emphasized that perpetual care of the lots around the church be maintained.

The financial statement showed a current account, credit balance, of $186; Old Church Endowment Capital Account of $600, and for care of burial lot, invested, $2130.

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Potter celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in Milton, Mass., on Monday, Aug. 24th. Mr. Potter, formerly of Clements-Port, married Kate E. Daniels, of Freeport, Digby Co., on August 24th, 1892.

They made their home in Lynn, Mass., until two years ago when they moved to 195 Eliot St., Milton, Mass.

Weekly Newspapermen Confer At Saskatoon

"The fires of freedom will never burn out as long as they are fed with printer's ink".

The above words from the annual report of C. V. Charters, of the Brampton (Ont.) Conservator, and managing director of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, made a profound impression upon all delegates who represent weekly newspapers from Newfoundland to British Columbia. This association held its 23rd annual convention at the Bessborough Hotel, Saskatoon, Sask., August 13, 14, and 15. J. M. Wallis, associate editor and Mrs. Wallis, represented the Courier. They returned to Digby on Saturday last. Another Nova Scotia newspaper the Kentville Advertiser was represented by its editor, Frank Burns, a past president of the C.W.N.A., and Mrs. Burns.

"Our part in hastening total victory" was the theme of the convention. Mr. Charters in his report stressed it was the task of the weeklies to take it upon themselves through their editorials, news columns and pictures, the task of enlisting every one in the battle to win the war, secure the peace and build a new world. It is the duty of the newspaper publishers to build in their readers a fighting spirit that would face all the news, bad and good, without becoming discouraged or falling prey to easy optimism, Mr. Charters said. Concluding his report he stated:

"The weekly press must use its space to build on the home front the courage, unselfishness and faith in God we need for total strength; and keep before the people a picture of the new Canada our soldiers are fighting for on the battle front. Today religion and democracy are being challenged as never before. Our papers enter the home and are read by the family and read again, not glanced over hurriedly and cast away—but thoroughly by young and old. They are part and parcel of the life of the country. This being so, it is the duty of all weekly publishers to make their papers what Canadian families require and desire—a clean, honest informative publication, advocating and defending that which will make for the lasting welfare of the people".

Prior to Mr. Charter's report (which included in addition to the extracts printed above) statistical and other matters relating to the business of the association, addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor MacEachern, of Saskatoon, and premier W.

Garage Destroyed By Fire

The fire department was called out shortly before six o'clock Tuesday morning for a fire at the garage of Harold Reicker, Warwick Street. The building was totally destroyed. The origin of the blaze is a mystery. Mr. and Mrs. Reicker have been spending the summer at their camp on Mallett's Lake, and had rented their home to the Soffron Bros., operators of the International Shellfish Co., plant here. The Soffron car was parked in the driveway near the garage. As far as known nobody had been in the garage. The paint on the Soffron car was considerably scorched before it was removed to safety.

Dr. Morton Senior Golf Champion

Dr. L. M. Morton, of Yarmouth, is the new Maritime Senior Golf Champion, winning the title Tuesday with a gross of 169 for 36 holes. Dr. Morton was runner up at the close of Monday's 18 when he came home with an 84 and D. S. Biggs, of Amherst leading with an 82.

Biggs went out Tuesday with a 42, two more than on his outward nine of Monday. He came in with a 45 against his 42 for the previous 18. Thus his total gross for the 36 holes bracketed with Dr. Morton's 169.

It was necessary to play six holes to break the tie. Three times the new champion and the new runner-up played two holes, the first two rounds tying 5 and 5. On the third try Dr. Morton broke the tie with a beautiful 5 against the Amherst player's 6. Dr. Morton's last put from the edge of the fairway straight into the hole was one of the highlights of today's play.

Dr. A. D. Crowell of Eden club, who finished fourth Monday, and John Ryan of the Pines, who wound up in fifth position at the end of the first 18, bracketed for 3rd place, both with 176. Ryan was the most consistent player in the tournament, scoring all 44's for each nine of the thirty-six. F. L. Lewis, Truro,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What's The Use?

What's the use saving fats, and bones, and rags?
What's the use of saving jute zinc and lead?
Why save scraps of copper, and burlap bags—
Cluttering up the attic and the shed?
What's the use of saving rubber boots and hose?
What's the use of newspapers galore?
If it's not collected, how do you suppose
Salvaging will help to win the war?

(By Margaret Nickerson)
Halifax Herald, Aug. 14

To the Editor Courier,

Sir: The above verses express feeling of the would-be savers I know. There has been no collection of salvage in this district for three months and most of us are getting tired of this lack of cooperation and patriotism. Does the Government want our salvage or does it not? If it does, and the fault lies with the county authorities, I should think they would be ashamed of themselves.

Sophia M. Hensley
Barton, N. S.

To the Editor of the Courier,

Sir:— Congratulations to you, Brother Wallis, on the general improved appearance of the Courier this week. The make-up, display heads, advertising display and the press work all go to make the Courier a more welcome visitor to our homes.

I have been reading the Courier since 1875—about 67 years, and I enjoy its weekly visits with as much enthusiasm as ever. (I began reading at the age of 2).

You go to press on Thursday. Our postman delivers the paper here, at Watertown, Mass., the following afternoon at 3 o'clock. It shows your mailing department is on its toes, under your supervision.

I doubt if you have many subscribers who have read your paper for 67 years.

I am credited with having more patience than the average man, long-suffering, a will to forgive and forget—especially with country newspaper editors.

I had the pleasure of acting in a like capacity for 25 years on the same Courier also the Weymouth Free Press, the Weymouth Echo and a French weekly, L'Evangeline, published by V.A. Landry, now deceased, and believe me, those years had many heartaches and headaches—and I was often on the receiving end—I would hate to tell you about some of those ends.

So the Cranston press has been discarded. Well, I had the job of taking down (or apart) the intricate parts of that old Cranston press when the Courier occupied the top floor of Turnbull and Welch's building (about 55 years ago) and installing it in the basement of the building you have just vacated, with the assistance of James Keen, chief engineer of the Digby Fire Department, and Ned Dodge, assistant to the chief in the same outfit, with me as fireman.

I could go on forever with these random thoughts, but few of the old timers are around now to enjoy it, so for the sake of the young people, I will shift.

My sub-conscious mind is beginning to function. Before I listen I want to again congratulate you on the well merited support you so well deserve, and wish you continued success in your new location, for the duration at least.

Now, see here, Brother Wallis, why spoil the first page write-up of your appreciation of the interest taken by the Publicity Committee of the Red Cross Society, by heading the article "We Like to be on the Receiving End"?

Question—When is the editor of a country newspaper on the receiving end?

Answer—Always.

I would not be surprised to learn that right now you have in cold storage, gifts from admiring subscribers, of fancy pumpkins, squash, cucumbers, lettuce, etc., and in a few weeks you will be receiving choice cuts of moose steak and roasts given by friendly sportsmen who have risked their lives to capture the animal. Then comes a bushel of a new kind of fancy potatoes decorated with Kentucky wonder beans, etc.

Spring and fall you have pounds of speckled brook trout laid on your editorial table, almost forgetting the first and last strawberries, mayflowers, buttercups and dandelions—harbingers of spring.

You are about due now for a choice ham of that 400 lb. hog some farmer will soon kill.

Then all the reserve seat tickets you editors get from advance agents of circuses and shows that pass through the town throughout the year.

The lady trapeze artist and high-diver gives you a "reck" the leading lady closes one eye for you, while you smile and applaud in the reserve row.

I could go on forever—what's the use. You have been guiding the public for 70 years, and only last week you say, "It certainly feels good to be on the receiving end".

I might say that the above applies to every editor of a country paper, from Yarmouth to Halifax, including the South Shore.

Fraternally yours,

"Tom" Farnham

Urges Child Health Administrator

Appointment of a child health administrator for Canada was urged by Dr. Allan Brown, prominent child specialist and physician-in-chief for the Hospital for Sick Children, at a joint session of the Canadian Public Health and the Ontario Health Officers' Association recently.

"Why should business men be given such sweeping control of things material when public health administrators have to literally beg, borrow or steal to get money for health projects and have to implore the profession and public to adopt modern health methods?" asked Dr. Brown. "When Mr. Donald Gordon was appointed administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, did he ask the business men of the country if they would cooperate? Decidedly no. He told them what to do and he is seeing that they do it."

"If a child health administrator were appointed, do you think we could continue to have deaths from diphtheria or whooping cough through lack of immunization? Do you think that we would have the crippling effects of bovine tuberculosis through lack of pasteurization of milk? Do you think we would suffer from the effects of improper diets? Decidedly no. Why should we ask the public what they think about pasteurization? We know what it means. It should be compulsory that all milk from Halifax to Vancouver should be pasteurized at once."

Instructs Women On Filling Ditty Bags
For Merchant Navy

Mrs. John Baker, of Halifax, spoke to the women of Weymouth on Thursday afternoon on filling ditty bags for the men of the Merchant Navy, to be given to them around the Christmas season.

This will be the only gift most of them will receive as they will be at sea, or away from their home and country. We depend on them for much of our food, they face danger and battle and have no uniform and few privileges that service men enjoy. The Navy League have undertaken this task but 100,000 bags at least are needed. The task is so great they have called on the women of Canada to help. Very few ladies attended the meeting but it is hoped many will support the cause. Mrs. Dixon Rice has consented to be Convenor for the undertaking; Mrs. E. P. Gates, Treasurer and Mrs. A. S. Hart Secretary.

50 bags were promised from Weymouth and district and more if possible. The contents are as follows:

Sewing Kit—made of flannel, to include needles, white and black coarse thread, buttons, straight pins and safety pins.

Smokes, shoe laces, gum, tooth paste, tooth brush, razor blades, pocket comb, pencil, soap. Socks, mostly size 11. Playing cards or Cribbage Boards, small zig-saw puzzles, Books, Penguin Series or Di-

"THE GAY SISTERS"
COMING TO CAPITOL

Another great novel, "The Gay Sisters", has been brought to the screen by Warner Bros., who are noted for their fine treatment of important novels. The picture, which will be shown locally starting Monday at the Capitol Theatre, has an exceptionally fine cast. In the leading role is fiery Barbara Stanwyck as the eldest of the three Gaylord sisters, a sometimes fierce, brusque and levelheaded person who thinks that sentiment is a silly emotion.

Her two sisters, the other members of the Gaylord family (the trio was dubbed by newspapermen, "The Gay Sisters") are played by Geraldine Fitzgerald and Nancy Coleman. Gig Young, a dynamic, breezy newcomer to the screen makes his debut in the film as a young artist, and advance reports have it that he is a sensation. George Brent, in his usual casual, but at the same time forceful manner, plays the role of a civil engineer who becomes a millionaire.

It was with deep regret that the many friends of Mrs. N. Hall Humpherson bade her goodbye on Saturday as she left for Toronto. Mrs. Humpherson organized the Service Wives' Association over two years ago and it is largely due to her leadership and enthusiasm that the association has proved such a success. She leaves them on a strong foundation but her presence will be greatly missed. Her work as secretary of both the A.R.P. and Salvage Committee called for much time and work which was freely and gladly given.

Accused of breaking into and stealing a quantity of tea and cigarettes from Farmers' Market, Bob Woodgate and James Savary were sent up for trial at a preliminary hearing on Monday. Savary will be tried by Judge K. L. Crowell, county court judge for district no. 3, on Monday. It is understood Woodgate will elect for trial on the same day.

Small Bros.' motor vessel was damaged at the Weymouth traffic bridge yesterday morning. The craft had arrived at Weymouth and attempted to swing around in the river in order to dock with bow headed down stream. The cuddy house at the stern caught under the traffic bridge and the boat's power failed. Meanwhile, as the tide continued to rise, the house, caught beneath the bridge began to crack and splinter. It was necessary to free it by cutting it away with axes, otherwise the boat would have been pushed under water.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Curtain Weights

Curtains can be prevented from blowing out of the window and becoming soiled by using lead dress weights. These weights can be covered with material the same color as the curtains, then slipped into the bottom hems of the curtains. Using about five weights in each hem will make the curtains hang evenly.

Spots on the Floor

Spots on the floor, or any wood, can be treated with a very dirty spots on polished cloth dipped in paraffin. This will remove the dirt and stickiness and leave it clean, and ready for the furniture polish.

Renovating a Rug

A one color rug that is worn in some places more than in others can be renovated by mixing a little water with a package of dye, the same color as the rug, and applying to the faded spots with a stiff brush. If carefully done, the rug will look like new.

Creaming Butter

To cream butter quickly, heat the mixing bowl with hot water. Wipe, and put in the butter. It will cream in much less time than required when the butter is put into a cold bowl.

A Shampoo Hint

Grease the area around the eyes with vaseline or cold cream before the shampoo, and soap will be prevented from entering the eyes.

The Double Boiler

Always be sure to add boiling water, and never cold, when water in the bottom of the double boiler boils away. If this is done, the temperature will not be lowered and the cooking will not take any longer.

Chintz Curtains

Shiny chintz curtains can be cleaned by dusting thoroughly, then washing with a rubber sponge, dipped in luke warm water and soap suds.

Bleaching

To bleach table linens, muslins, and other unbleached goods, prepare a boiler of bluing water as for rinsing clothes. Then place the articles in the boiler and allow them to boil well. Hang on the line without further rinsing and at their next washing these articles will be perfectly white.

French Dressing Improved

Half a lime, with as much lemon, mixed with the French dressing, will add an unusually pleasant flavor.

White Spots on Furniture

Any one of the following treatments will remove white spots from furniture: Rottenstone or pumice moistened with linseed oil; sweet oil and camphor; powdered pumice and linseed oil. Apply with a soft cloth, rub dry, and polish with the grain of the wood.

Perspiring Feet

Feet that perspire excessively should be bathed every night in epsom salts. Dry thoroughly and massage with a well-shaken half-and-half mixture of alcohol and mineral oil. In the morning sprinkle between the toes a powder made of boric acid powder and talcum powder. Dust the inside of the shoes with this powder.

Substitute Solder

A leak in the sprinkling can, or any such article, should of course be repaired with solder; but in an emergency, yellow soap pressed securely into the leak will prove a good substitute.

Uses for Salt

Salt water is excellent for a throat gargle. It is also an effective spray for catarrhal infections. Salt is a wonderful tooth powder and aids greatly in making the gums more firm. Salt used generously in the water will both cool and rest tired feet.

Cheese is an important source of calcium.

Green leafy vegetables furnish generous amounts of calcium.

A pint of milk every day will supply the adult's need for calcium.

Use any left-over water from cooking vegetables to make soups, sauces or gravies.

Milk dishes, cheese dishes, meat and eggs all need to be cooked at an even, moderate temperature.

Housewives Urged Avoid Butter Waste

Creamery butter production is down and to stimulate production the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has granted a producer's subsidy of six cents a pound on butterfat used in the manufacture of creamery butter.

It is pointed out that until butter production is built up Canadians should make every effort not to waste butter. Housewives are reminded that in cooking, other fats can frequently be substituted with equally good results.

Elastic Lasts Longer

Conserve elastic. Instead of sewing elastic into garments, put it in with hook and eye or fastener so it can be removed easily and quickly before the garment is laundered. It will last much longer.

Do not add soda to vegetables when cooking. This destroys a great deal of the valuable vitamins.

Eat Hash - and like it!

"I tell my family that as long as Jack is overseas, we'll eat hash and like it."

"WE ARE at war. It costs lots to win. It would cost everything to lose. So I don't figure that because we'll soon pay a small amount as compulsory savings, I can fold my hands and say 'That's that!' No sir! Some people may need compulsory savings to save something for their own good. But that's the minimum. I'm out to save all I can to buy War Savings Stamps and Certificates to help win the war and have something substantial put by for the days when there won't be all this work and overtime."

"I've christened my garbage can 'Hitler' and believe me he doesn't get anything that's worth anything."

Farmers Get $85,000 for Wool

Nova Scotia farmers received approximately $85,000 for 250,000 lbs. of wool that passed through the government wool grading stations at Truro, Antigonish and Mabou during their ten weeks operation. The stations opened the latter part of May and while the announced time for receiving wool ended the last of July there were still some odd lots to be graded this week. The wool is now being packed for shipment to mills in various parts of the country. General satisfaction has been expressed with the results accomplished during this the first year of compulsory grading under the Canada Wool Board Ltd. Nova Scotia wool has graded high, being about 85 per cent military style and being equal to the best for military purposes produced in Canada.

Sheep Field Days Start Aug. 20

The first of a series of sheep days to be held in various parts of the province will be held at the farm of W. C. Oulton, Windsor, Thursday Aug. 20, from 9.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. The second will be the following day at the Demonstration Building, Lawrencetown. The third will be at Hooper Bros. Pictou, August 24, and the fourth at J. C. White's, Margaree, August 25. James Telfer, Canada's leading authority on sheep, will be present at all these meets to demonstrate on breed type.

Big Increase In Capon and Chicken

Poultry marketing through dressed poultry pools is well underway this year and already three large pools have been held, one in Bridgetown, by the Middleton Livestock shipping club three weeks ago, one last week at Grand Pre, by the Cornwallis Poultry club, and one this week by the Aylesford Egg & Poultry Station. A total of over 30,000 birds have been marketed, with a good percentage of high quality birds, especially capons. There is a big increase in capon and chicken production in Nova Scotia this year. It is estimated that over 60,000 capons are being raised. If these are well prepared for the market before killing, by proper growing and fattening for a period of three to four weeks, they will return good prices to producers, especially if they are marketed through co-operative pools or through other organizations buying poultry on grade. This increase in dressed poultry production this year should relieve to a good extent the shortage of beef and other meats.

Information on preparing poultry for the market and on marketing can be secured from the provincial poultry promoter, dept. of agriculture, Truro, or from the county agricultural representatives.

Butter Production Shows Slight Decline

Nova Scotia's creamery butter production totalled 888,450 lbs. in July. This was a decrease of 5.1 per cent as compared with July of 1941, and a very marked decrease as compared with the 1,644,844 lbs. of June 1942, when for the first time the million lb. mark was reached. In June there was excellent pasture while in July much of the province was suffering from drought. The decline in production in Nova Scotia synchronizes with a decline in Canada's butter storage. On August 10 creamery butter in storage totalled 42,766,504 lbs., while on August 10, 1941 the total was 52,209,593 lbs.

Report Good Shelled Pea Crop

Pea harvesting for the canneries is about completed, reports Donald White, agricultural representative for Annapolis County. In districts with the heavier soils the yields generally have been real good. Many fields have threshed from 1½ to 2½ tons per acre. The prospects for string beans for the canneries are good on the heavier soils.

Favorable Lime Reports Received

Favorable reports are being received on the use of agricultural lime. Robert Swallow, Falkland Ridge, Anna. Co., states that he has saved enough grass seed, from limed land, to pay for the lime used. He, and others in the neighborhood who used lime, have raised good crops of clover on land where previously such was almost impossible.

With the outstanding results showing this summer a heavy run on lime is expected this fall and next spring. Considerable quantities of lime are already being moved from Pugwash. Due to the season being so early the farmers have an opportunity to haul their supply of limestone early.

This Machine Plucks 100 Chickens An Hour

Time is money on the farm today. That being the case, the plucking machine, as shown above, is valuable equipment where there is much poultry to prepare for market for with it an experienced operator can pluck 100 chickens an hour. Recently 1335 poor birds were done in less than three days. And when a bird is plucked it is clean—clean to the last pin feather. A pleasing feature is that the materials for this plucker, less the motor, cost under forty dollars. Here is a brief description of the above shown plucker which was designed and constructed by Angus Benting, agricultural engineer, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture.

The machine is 36 inches high at the table, at the front, and about 30 inches wide. The important part of the machine is the revolving drum, on the outside of which are 200 rubber fingers. The drum is supported on the frame about 30 inches from the floor and 21 inches from the front of the machine.

It can be driven by a motor or gasoline engine 1 H.P. and should travel 400 r.p.m. in a direction away from the operator at the top. The fingers are pieces of rubber hose $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, clamped $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches off centre between pieces of oak. To keep the hose from collapsing, a piece of $\frac{1}{2}$ inch dowl one inch long is placed in the end of the hose. There are ten pieces of hose on each bar. There are twenty bars in all.

The bars are fastened on the outside of reels welded to a shaft. The bars have to be placed so that the fingers are staggered. The reels welded to the shaft need to be about 11 inches in diameter.

Accompanying cuts show left, a general view of the machine and, right, a view of the back. It will be noticed that about $\frac{1}{2}$ of the fingers have nicks cut in them. This need not be done, as it was found that these nicks were of no advantage. In the rear view cut it will be seen two rows of fingers have been removed which gives a better idea of the construction of the apparatus.

More detailed plans and pictures for the construction of this machine can be obtained at a cost of 25 cents a copy from the Department of Agriculture at Truro.

Cost of Living Bonus

(Form Liverpool Advance)

It would be nice if the Government at Ottawa when preparing advertising supposed to instruct us in the cost of living bonus, income tax collections etc., that they would employ some one with plain common horse sense so that they could get the idea across to the common people. For instance take the instructions for the Cost of Living Bonus which appeared in The Advance last week—not one in five hundred knew what it meant and that includes us. However, a circular letter came from The Canadian Chamber of Commerce this week which simplifies the case and here it is in a nutshell so that all may understand:

1. 60c a week to be paid to all male employees 21 years of age or over, regardless of their earnings;

2. 60c a week to be paid to all employees earning $25.00 or over a week;

3. 2.4% of actual earnings of females receiving less than $25.00 and employees under 21 receiving less than $25.00 a week.

Just as simple as A B C—providing you have the money. If not you either cut down your staff or go out of business.

Greater Wool Production

An appeal to keep all good lambs and breed them this fall, was made in a letter sent out recently by Hon. John A. McDonald, minister of agriculture, to the 3,500 sheep owners of Nova Scotia. The wool situation, said the Minister, is so serious and so vital in our war effort that we believe every healthy ewe and ewe lamb should be retained for breeding this fall.

In normal times, he pointed out, Canada used over 40,000,000 pounds of wool a year and produces about 20,000,000 lbs. Today Canada needs more than 100,000,000 pounds. That which is not produced at home must be brought in by water transportation, which is dangerous, costly and uncertain.

If Canada, continued the appeal, can increase her sheep population by one million head this year, it will mean another six or eight million pounds of wool. Farmers, by co-operation along this line, can help in the war effort and also help themselves, providing they have feed and other facilities, as lamb and wool prices are better than they have been for years.

The Minister drew attention to the fact that the sheep population of the province was low and suggested that parasites, internal and external, might have been responsible for the lowering of the number of sheep. "Today," he said, "we know how to adequately handle these parasites and in some sections where treatment is coupled with good feed, flocks are increasing in size and quality." He suggested that any questions arising along these lines should be referred to the county agricultural representative. Mr. McDonald's letter concluded with the following 5-point appeal: 1. Retain all the good breeding ewes that you can adequately look after. 2. Retain all the good ewe lambs that you have feed and facilities for, especially the early and well-developed lambs which can be bred this fall to have lambs next spring. 3. If you are unable to keep all the good ewe lambs you have, try to interest your neighbor in purchasing them to start new flocks. 4. If you still have some good ewe lambs beyond your own and neighbors requirements which you feel would be of valuable breeding purposes, advise your agricultural representative. 5. If, however, you should desire to secure additional ewes or ewe lambs, and cannot secure them in your local community or adjacent communities pass along your requirements to the agricultural representative who will try to assist you.

Car Backs Over Wharf

What might have been a serious accident, but which happily turned out otherwise, occurred at Bear River about 4 o'clock, Monday afternoon, when a car driven by John Simpson, of Victory, in some unexplainable manner backed over the end of the steamship wharf, landing on its rear end then turning completely over on its top in the river bed with all four wheels in the air. Fortunately the tide was out, otherwise the accident would likely have had a fatal ending for Mr. Simpson, who was tossed about inside the car, but escaped with only superficial injuries.

Dr. A. B. Campbell was driving by near the scene of the accident when it occurred, and brought Mr. Simpson to his office, where upon examination, it was discovered he suffered a bruised scalp and shoulder. Otherwise he was uninjured, and was able to return to the scene of the accident shortly afterward. However, he will suffer from his injuries for some time. The drop from the wharf to the river bed was some 28 feet.

Later the car was turned over, and with the aid of oxen was towed along the wharf to where the river bed slopes, and brought to dry ground. The engine turned over, although other parts of the car were damaged.

Mr. Simpson is well known, and for many years was driver of the Victory mail. His family and friends are thankful the accident had no serious ending.

Employment of girls as messengers has now passed out of the experimental stage, according to D. A. MacNeill, Superintendent of the Canadian National Telegraphs, Moncton, who adds that girls are being given permanent work in various city offices throughout Canada, that is, as permanent as any messenger employment may be. As a sign of the new order, girls are now receiving uniforms. The movement began in Vancouver and has extended to Montreal, continuing eastwards as uniform material becomes available. Girl messengers are employed at Fredericton, N.B., Woodstock, N.B., Antigonish, N.S. and Glace Bay, N.S. Office managers of the Canadian National Telegraphs report that girl messengers have proven satisfactory at a time when boys are being called to the armed forces and war occupations. Many "messengerettes" who have the necessary educational qualifications have been advanced to clerical positions in the offices of the company.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Frost

The death occurred Monday of last week, of Mrs. Mary Frost, at 108 Quinpool Road, Halifax, after an illness of four months. She was born in Digby County, but for the past number of years she has been residing in Halifax, where she is well known. Mrs. Frost had been employed by the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company for 26 years. The body was forwarded to Digby for burial.

the supervision of Mrs. E. J. Theriault, who had christened the ship. Mrs. Theriault has since received a letter of thanks from the Navy League in Quebec, stating that the bags were received just in time for distribution before the ship sailed.

During the month of July our Merchant Marine committee also provided knitted comforts for twenty-two members of that branch of the service who were in port. This ship came so soon after the one outfitted in June, that our knitters had not had time to make so many sweaters as the men really needed. When this was reported to the Provincial Headquarters, a shipment of 50 sweaters and 100 prs. of mittens were forwarded to the Digby Branch to be held for future requirements of this kind.

At the Red Cross work meeting held on the first Wednesday in August, we were fortunate in having a visit from Mrs. Hanway, of the Provincial Executive, and former chairman of the Work Committee for Nova Scotia. She was very interested in our quilting activities, and particularly in making quilt tops out of such discards as old neckties and socks, and in a brief address, emphasized the necessity of such conservation on account of the growing scarcity of materials. She urged that, although Red Cross workers might not have as much material as formerly for knitting and sewing, they should not slacken their efforts in other ways since the Red Cross program calls for ever-increasing funds for such work as prisoner-of-war parcels, now being packed in such large

Red Cross News Digby Branch

The July activities of the Digby Branch of the Red Cross included, in addition to its regular work, the supplying of 55 Ditty Bags which were forwarded at the request of the Quebec Navy League for distribution to the minesweeper "Digby". A Red Cross contribution of 1 turtle-neck sweater, 1 helmet, 1 pr. mittens and 1 pr. seaboot stockings was placed in each bag, these having been supplied from the Provincial warehouse for the purpose, and the assortment of miscellaneous articles, including soap, face cloth, shoelaces, stationery, etc., were purchased from a grant of $150.00 made by the Town of Digby to H.M.S. "Digby". A box of books and a piece of electrical equipment were also provided for the ship's crew out of the above amount. A donation of 55 hussifs from the Ever Ready Club of Mount Pleasant was much appreciated. The making and packing of the Ditty Bags was sponsored by the Red Cross Work Committee, the work being done under

Newspapermen Meet At Saskatoon

J. Patterson, of Saskatchewan. The convention opened by invocation pronounced by Rev. A. J. Herriges, publisher of the St. Peter's Messenger, Muenster, Sask. Dr. J. S. Thompson, president of the University of Saskatchewan also addressed the opening session of the convention.

With all due respect to the many speakers who gave address and talks during the course of the convention, Dr. Thompson's address was perhaps the most outstanding. He appealed to the publishers of the weekly newspapers to put religion back into education and to restore faith as a guiding motive in a civilization that has become secular.

"The greatest power in the world today is religion", Dr. Thompson declared. He said Nazism, Communism and the force impelling the Japanese were religion, but when Christian morals were removed, something vicious took their place. "Civilization", he said, "can be saved only by religious faith".

"The kind of education we have been having has almost ruined the world" he continued. "It has dealt with the techniques of life. Technicians of all kinds have been trained. But would anyone say that a scientific civilization would save the world?"

"The countries that have made the most amazing progress are those that have lost their faith". In this, he pointed to Germany as an example, and continued "it was not intended, in education and in technological aims to return to the spinning wheel of Chandi, but what is necessary is to dedicate education and civilization to new ends.

The Church had realized the little Sunday School was not enough. Religion had to be put back into the day school. The average man, Dr. Thompson observed, had been concerned with "the other fellow teaching his children what he didn't like".

The churches were united in a group to approach the government with the request to put faith back into education. Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, had said "religion must be caught rather than taught".

He continued "The weekly press, sharing community influence with the church and school, had a great opportunity to support the injection of faith into modern civilization. The weekly press has been marvellously clean—far more so than the daily press," he asserted. "Thank God you have never put red ink on your front pages, nor screamed at us with big headlines."

There were other speakers, including J. S. Woodward, managing editor of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, who addressed the weekly publishers at a luncheon given in their honor by the city of Saskatoon and the Saskatoon Board of Trade on the opening day of the convention. Mr. Woodward gave a vivid outline of the growth and history of the lovely city of Saskatoon. At a banquet given that evening to the publishers by the government of the province of Saskatchewan, Premier Patterson, was chief speaker.

G. Herbert Lash, director of Public Information, delivered an outstanding address on Friday morning in which he said "The price tag of freedom is whatever sum the people who desire freedom want to set.....no matter what the price of freedom be, we shall pay it". On request of the convention, copies of Mr. Lash's address were given to each of the delegates, a number of publishers stating they hoped to find space to publish it in full in their papers, and although we cannot promise to give our readers the full text of this splendid talk, it is our intention to deal more fully with it in a later issue. Mr. Lash's radio talks are known to all of us.

Gillis Purcell, general superintendent of the Canadian Press, and a veteran of the present conflict (Capt. Purcell, formerly of General MacNaughton's staff, lost a leg overseas) warned publishers against the popular fantasy that the second front was at hand, and declared that Canadians should be the last persons in the world to urge a premature second front in Europe. "Our boys are eager to get into France; their Commander has stated that they will. Why not leave the job with the people who are on the spot; they will be the ones to pay the shot—not the easy way with war savings stamps and bonds, but with their lives". He said it is virtually certain that Canadians will be the spearhead of any second front operation; Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton, Commander of the Canadian Army Overseas will never waste the lives of any of his men. "When his men fight their way into Europe they will have a reasonable chance. The operation will be fully planned; thoroughly backed by naval and air power. It will not be premature. Failure would influence the course of the war almost as decisively as a successful invasion, but the other way" the speaker declared.

The speaker at the association on Friday evening was Miss Hope Saunders, director of the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and former editor of Chatelaine, who declared that on the home front the consumers' part in this war is greater than that of any other group. Whether our boys in the firing line are equipped and clothed to win us victory depends to a considerable extent on the things we buy. She went on to say that what the woman puts in her market basket today would write the peace of tomorrow, declaring it had been estimated the average woman with a family of five bought four tons of food a year. "Think of that figure when tied up with our population in terms of buying sprees or of hoarding, and you can see how quickly devastating shortage can occur".

The writer, who attended this convention, would like to tell Courier readers more of the splendid addresses, but to do this, it would take columns of more space; he would also like to tell of his wonderful trip into the prairie country, and of the marvellous crop in the offing for this year. Perhaps he can at a later date, along with some impressions of the cities of Saskatoon and Winnipeg where we spent most of our time. It was a pleasure, on our arrival to be met by "Bill" Jones, manager of the Bessborough, and a native of Bridgetown. He has been in the west for five years, and prior to that, gained much of his experience as a hotelman in the Pines Hotel here. At Winnipeg we were taken on a tour of the city by P. H. Hamon, who, with Mrs. Hamon wish to be remembered to their many friends in Digby and vicinity.

Board of Trade Hears Interesting Addresses

Rev. (Major) George Ambrose, senior chaplain for Military District No. 6, and Lloyd Fraser, Supervisor for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Wolfville, were guest speakers at a dinner given by the Digby Board of Trade at supper meeting in the Digby Pines Hotel last evening. R. B. Murray, president of the Board was chairman.

Major Ambrose in his remarks declared there was a great difference in the men of this war and those of the last. He said those of this conflict appear to lack the sense of humor and the ability to sing on any occasion as did the men who fought in the first Great War. However, he declared, their recent conduct in France proves they have the same fighting spirit as their fathers who fought in 1914-1918, and as fighting men they will uphold the honor and glory of Canada.

Mr. Fraser told something of the work and purposes of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and remarked during the course of his address to the business men of Digby, "You have been hurt, but not one half as much as you are going to be hurt".

The purpose of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, he explained was to keep prices down to as nearly normal as possible, and to avoid inflation. There are those, he said, who because the cost of living has risen 2.4% have condemned the efforts of the Board, but, he explained, 80% of this increase is due to two items alone—the cost of meat and potatoes. Had other items risen accordingly there would have been an enormous rise in the cost of living. He predicted a lowering of the cost of living by the close of the next period due to the fact meat and potato prices have been reduced.

He said that in spite of a few small time chiselers, the Board was receiving excellent co-operation from the general public with regard to sugar rationing. With regard to allowing sugar for pickling vegetables, he said the Board did not allow any because of the fact the food value of pickles was so low that in the opinion of the Board, the sugar could be used to better advantage. Those who wish to put down pickles will have to use their regular coupon sugar rations for this purpose.

At the present time sugar, tea and coffee are the only food items rationed by coupon and advises from the Board are that there will be no further rationing for at least three months.

At the present time, he stated, 50% of industry is engaged in war work, and for that reason the variety of ordinary commodities has been considerably reduced.

With regard to the cost of administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board he declared the cost is heavy, but has proven well worthwhile when its effect of keeping prices at a normal level is taken into consideration. He said that in respect to issuing sugar ration cards and books from the Wolfville office the work was done at one-twentieth of what the government estimated it would cost.

Archie Rutherford Safe At Hong Kong

Mr. and Mrs. Pollis Rutherford, 81 Brunswick St., Truro, have received a letter from their son, Archie, a prisoner of war at Hong Kong, who writes in part:

"Sure getting lots of pointers from life here. No hardships not experienced in every day life. The Nipponese show a very respectful attitude toward us and nothing we ask of them is too much for them to do. We have as recreation organized sports, organized card games and schools in language and different vocations. Only allowed a limited number of words so will say so long for this time. Better days are coming. Love to all. Your loving son Archie."

The above letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford was dated "Hong Kong Prisoners War Camp, June 3, 1942."

Archie is a sergeant with the Winnipeg regiment, which he joined in Winnipeg a few days after war was declared. He went overseas with his unit last Fall and Saturday's letter was the first received by his parents since the fall of Hong Kong.

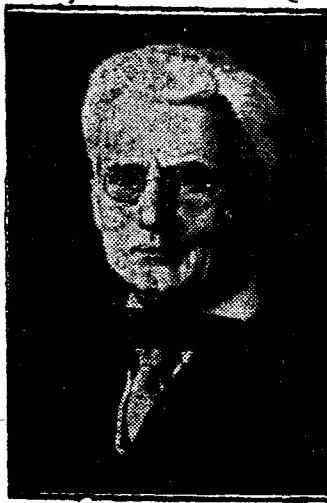

He is well known in Digby where he was manager of the C. P. Telegraph office for some time. The fact he is safe is good news to his many friends here.

Digby Band Without Leader

The six-month contract with Paul Yates as Director of the Digby Civic Band came to an end August 31, leaving the band without a leader.

A fully attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Band was held on Tuesday night and the generous offer of Mr. Yates to conduct a limited number of rehearsals or concerts without pay was received with hearty applause.

The Band has given a series of concerts without remuneration but has decided to present another concert at the Band Stand next Monday evening, (Labor Day), there being no other celebration of the holiday.

"Joe" Steadman And Family Return

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Steadman with their two daughters, Patricia and Joyce, and their small son, Bobbie, returned to their home in New Glasgow Thursday last. Mr. Steadman was granted his release as Flying Officer with the R.C.A.F., which he joined the first of the year to resume his position as Principal of the New Glasgow High School and Supervisor of the Common schools. Mr. Steadman has been stationed at North Sydney the past few months and Mrs. Steadman and children have been there since the end of June. They are being warmly welcomed back to town and Principal Steadman is busy preparing for the re-opening of the schools next week.

Mrs. Steadman is a daughter of Mrs. Wm. Cossaboom, Smith's Cove.

Salmon Anxious To Be Caught

From all reports salmon are caught in Bear River with the least effort of any place in Canada—at least George Benson "landed" one weighing 10 pounds and 2 ounces, and measuring 31 inches from head to tail, with no effort whatsoever. Mr. Benson was in his motor boat Tuesday afternoon, just above the bridge that goes through the business section of the town, when Mr. Salmon gave a leap out of the water—landing right on the floor of Mr. Benson's boat. It is not known whether Mr. Benson or the salmon was the most surprised. The "catch" was witnessed by several who were in the vicinity at the time, and within ten minutes after the big fish had been brought ashore, it was cut up and sold at the Bear River Meat Market.

Last Concert for Summer Season

Baptists Conclude Annual Convention At Wolfville

enning, Thursday night's concert by the Digby Civic Band was well attended. An appreciative audience heard the Band under a very splendid program made up of well known overtures and waltzes.

Thursday's concert was the last of the summer series by the Band. At the close of the program, which ended very fittingly with Auld Lang Syne, Victor Cardoza, who has been acting as announcer for the Band, expressed the Band's hope that the summer's concerts had been enjoyed and the wish that the Band might again be privileged next year to play for the people of Digby.

Special speaker at Thursday's concert was Major C. W. Pickles, who spoke concerning Army recruiting.

Properties Are Damaged By Fire

The home of Joseph O'Neill, Marshalltown, was badly damaged by fire early last week. The blaze, which originated from a chimney fire, set fire to the roof and spread down one side of the building. Through the efforts of a bucket brigade formed by men and women of the community, the dwelling was saved from complete destruction.

The Digby Fire Department was called out Friday afternoon to fight a blaze on the roof of the house occupied by Guy Morehouse, jr., Warwick Street, which also started from a chimney blaze. Damage was slight. The Department was also called out on Saturday by a fire which threatened the sample room of the Waverley Hotel. Little damage resulted.

On and after the first day of November no private commercial vehicle shall be operated at a greater distance from its registered address than 35 road miles except under the authority of a written permit issued by the Administrator.

The registered address means the address from which a truck normally operates. The signs may be attached or painted on. Ap-

Raise Money To Paint Parsonage

A party of unusual interest was held on Tuesday evening of last week at the Baptist parsonage, Centreville, and was known as a "Dollar Social." The purpose was to raise funds with which to have the parsonage painted. The idea was for each member, or anyone interested, to earn an extra dollar, if possible—then to make a rhyme telling how the money was earned. There was a great deal of amusement and merriment as the various "poets" made their contributions. The evening was spent in games and singing, and at the close sandwiches were served. Financially and otherwise, the party was a decided success.

Application forms for permits to operate at distances in excess of 35 miles can be obtained from the nearest local office of the Board or from the Regional Office in Halifax.

Word has been received of the death in Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 27, of Mrs. Deborah Augusta Chicoine, 77. Deceased was born at Bear River, a daughter of the late James and Sarah (Quigley) Thomas, and is survived by one son, Victor B. Chicoine, Winter Park, Fla.

About This and That

One who did not mean to disparage the efforts of men and women in Canada now giving leadership in this country during wartime, declared recently,

"Canada's true leaders are the boys in uniform who are fighting on the seas and overseas."

Few will argue against that opinion. Good leadership embraces the ability to inspire a people to higher achievement, and there is nothing so inspirational as a good example.

In all the self-denial and hard work required from us at home, we are inspired by our gallant leaders who scour the ocean to protect our troops and war materials, who sweep the skies to shelter our homes and industries, and those who dash into enemy territory to crush the heartless wretches who plunged the world into war.

Each of those Canadian leaders has voluntarily offered to stop living, if necessary, that we may live. Each has turned his back on chesterfields and pillows and the joy of doing what he likes. Each has forgotten the ease of an eight or ten hour day and the weekly pay envelope that permitted him to buy a new suit or a shirt and take a girl out to a dance. Each will work twenty-four hours at a stretch when called to do so.

No Canadian soldier puts a limitation on the extent of his service. He is truly going all out for victory.

With such leaders, Canadians will not fail in any task ahead. What Canadian father would drop his tools and slow up war production needed by his fighting son overseas? How many Canadians would deliberately spend money for comfort and amusement, when that money is needed so desperately to give our soldier leaders overseas the last bit of equipment they need to conquer the enemy?

As we read the names of scores of young men who suffered and died on the beaches of Dieppe, how precious few of us will want to withdraw our money from the war chest in order to have a good time with it or to spend it on goods that will make our own lives more comfortable!

Newspapers and Magazines Free From Price Ceiling

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board have announced removal of the over-all price ceiling from Canadian and imported newspapers, magazines and periodicals publications in general, leaving the press "free to adjust rates and safeguard its revenues."

The exemption applies to newsstand and street sale prices and to subscription rates. Advertising rates already are exempt.

In announcing its decision, the board said a careful survey by the administrator of publishing, printing and allied industries showed that while larger revenues had offset higher operating costs in 1940 and 1941, revenues recently had suffered a "serious decline".

"There are too many variations of circumstances to deal with each case individually so as to maintain a control of price," the Board said. "Accordingly, it has been decided to remove the over-all price ceiling and leave the press free to adjust rates and safeguard freedom and independence of the press may be preserved."

"This decision brings the Canadian regulations into conformity with those of the United States, where newspapers, magazines and periodicals were from the outset exempted from the price ceiling."

Certain economics were believed possible in the publishing field and all publishers were being urged, "individually and collectively", to keep prices down and conserve materials and labor as far as possible. Publishers were expected to try to maintain service at existing prices where possible, although it was recognized that economics were not always possible or did not afford any great saving, particularly in the case of rural newspapers and weeklies.

But competitive conditions within the industry, the announcement said, "make it highly unlikely that price adjustments can be made in any unreasonable manner."

In outlining its reasons for removing the price ceiling, the board said it was impossible to establish a common measurement of value for all publications or any general principle governing price increases. It was also impractical to provide a direct government subsidy for sections of the press unable to operate under a direct price ceiling, "since a subsidy of this kind would not be compatible with the democratic principle of a free press."

Give Little Fish Their Chance to Grow Up

What in the world the object may have been can only be conjectured but several somebodies (identities so far undiscovered, unfortunately) recently raided stocks of young trout placed in an eastern lake by the Dominion of Fisheries and scooped them out in large numbers. The fish were still too small to be of any honest use and the only effect of the marauding will be to nullify, in part at least, the department's efforts to improve the fisheries resources of the area in question by stocking operations.

The raiders were on illegal business and stupid business. Stupid business because, if it's true that "you can't have your cake and eat it," by the same token there can't be continued good fishing in any water if the little fish are taken from it before they have a chance to become big fish.

Each year the Fish Culture Branch of the Department of Fisheries raises millions of trout and salmon in departmental hatcheries and then liberates them in selected streams and lakes. Last year, for instance, there were distributions of 29,000,000 little fish in waters of the Maritime Provinces where fisheries administration is a federal job. These annual distributions or "plantings" have the purpose, of course, of improving fishing in the waters which are stocked, the creation of better fishing conditions for the benefit both of anglers and commercial fishermen. Plantings are made carefully, in such numbers as may be judged necessary to bring about improvement.

Needless to say, there are always some losses among the little fish through natural causes and if to these there are added wanton destruction by unlawful or unthinking persons the purpose of the plantings will be largely defeated. It's not much use to say anything to the lawless folk—John Law will have to deal with them when he can catch up with them—but decent people may be reminded that if they thoughtlessly retain the small fish which they chance to capture the future fishery will suffer. Everybody is cautioned to return small fish to the water unharmed, and residents and frequenters of lands adjacent to stocked waters are urged to co-operate in protecting the young fish and thus to assist the department in its efforts to conserve and improve the fisheries.

Seven Men Saved Millions of Man-Hours

An officer and six privates in Britain's Royal Army Ordnance Corps were responsible for setting on foot a movement which has saved Britain's war industries many millions of man-hours and tons of material.

After Dunkirk, R.A.O.C. depots became cluttered up with masses of broken, damaged or out-of-date stores. It happened that these seven men had all been in business before the war, and they knew that there was a vast reservoir of garages, backstreet firms and small engineering shops where repairs could be done. Realising that manufacturers do not like to have their production held up by repairs to their own articles, they persuaded business acquaintances to make room for repairs to vital equipment without interfering with Ministry of Supply contracts.

From this small beginning has grown the Central Repair

Depot, where hundreds of thousands of pieces of equipment might never have been used again, find their way back into service.

An uncanny foresight has been shown by the officers and men at this depot in dealing with raw materials. Long before shortages occurred they husbanded materials which are now worth their weight in gold.

Sixty per cent of the articles repaired are in first-class condition within a month and are placed into stores for re-issue to units.

Although this Central Repair Depot saves the British tax-payers, many thousands of pounds a year on new equipment, its real value, which cannot be measured in money, is in relieving the pressure on the war factories treble the use of man-power and making double or even put into the original manufactured article.

"We'll have a real nest-egg after this war!"

OUR FAMILY went through hard times once. It taught us that you can't keep your independence without foresight and sacrifice. We learned what we could do without when we had to. So we know that a real nest-egg means more than just compulsory savings. It means all the War Savings Stamps and Certificates we can lay our hands on.

They're safe. And they're an investment every Canadian should make. Why? Because they help equip our fighting men to protect everything we've got. And because, too, they pay back $5.00 for every $4.00 we put aside now. We've got to win this war no matter what it costs — and we've got to prepare against the time when the boys come home.

Buy War Savings Stamps from druggists, banks, post offices, telephone offices, department stores, grocers, tobacconists and other retail stores. Certificates may be purchased for immediate delivery in denominations of $5, $10, $25 from Banks, Trust Companies and Post Offices.

Canadian Women Serving in Ground Crews

A BRIGHT yellow tractor, skillfully guided by a driver in blue overalls, hooks on to a two-engined Avro-Anson aircraft in a flight hangar, hauls it out and swings it into line on the tarmac. More blue-overalled figures swarm around the plane, delve into its motors, clamber up on to the broad wings. A fuel truck pulls alongside and gasoline is fed into the wing tanks; the plane is checked over by the figures in overalls.

There is nothing unusual in this scene at any airport, military or civilian, except that in this case, the overalled attendants are not brawny, grease-stained men, but attractive, capable young women, who somehow manage to retain their natural measure of daintiness despite the grease-smears that go with working in a ground-crew.

These photos were taken at No. 8 Air Observer School, Ancienne Lorette, P.Q., which is operated by Quebec Airways (Observers) Ltd., under the supervision of Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited in conjunction with the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Seven such civilian-conducted flying schools across Canada are sponsored by Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited on a non-profit basis.

More and more women are being recruited for this type of work, and still more are being sought for it. It's another phase of the war effort being shouldered by the fair sex—in addition to those on active service with the auxiliary services, work in office jobs or in war industries order to release more men for armed forces.

Women in Town and Country Work in Volunteer Centres

Adopted as the most logical answer to Canadian women who are anxious to work harder on Canada's home front are Women's Voluntary Service Centres formed within communities.

Mrs. W. E. West, director of Women's Voluntary Services in the Department of National War Services sees in them the best method of making use of women's ability to help and their evident desire to do so.

The Volunteer Centre is actually a registration depot or a voluntary labor exchange where women who want to do something to help are directed to work in their own community where they will be most useful. It does not eliminate already existing organizations but rather makes it possible to co-ordinate their work with the work of others and prevent duplication and overlapping.

"Holding the home front offers one of the most thrilling challenges of the war," Mrs. West believes. "Service First" should be the motto of the women at home, she says, and points to the following paths of service: Salvage, nutrition, rooms registry, nursing aids, recreation and entertainment for the armed forces.

She believes that co-operation between town and country women could be achieved through the Volunteer Centre. Many women are carrying too heavy a load on farms, with their husbands and sons in some instances in the armed forces. "It is exceedingly important to keep production up on farms but it is increasingly difficult to get help on them," Mrs. West points out. "This offers an opportunity for town women, accustomed to housekeeping, could spend some time in farm homes, taking over household tasks—such as baking, canning and mending. This would leave the women free to do the outdoor jobs on farms, with which they are familiar."

The Annual Hospital Fair which was held on August 19 at the Myrtle House was a huge success in every way.

The grounds were most attractive with the gaily decorated booths and the many places of amusements. This was added to by the presence of members from the Royal Air Force Station, Greenwood, N. S., who took an active part in several money-making games. Thank you, R. A. F.!

This year we were most fortunate in having with us Mr. Houlton, of Toronto, who entertained hundreds with his magical tricks.

The Supper Committee deserve a vote of thanks for the delicious Chicken Dinner that was served in the Myrtle House dining room from 5.30 to 7.30.

In the evening a dance was held in the Hotel at which the Pines orchestra attended. Due to Harry Cochrane and members of his orchestra this dance was the highlight of the evening and resulted in a financial success. Those dancing found that 1 o'clock came much too soon.

The Hospital Board wish to give a special vote of thanks to the Site, Planning and Arbitration Committee (E. B. Richardson, Chairman; F. R. Eisener, H. M. Turnbull, F. L. Anderson and M. C. Denton) for the splendid work they did. It was through their untiring efforts that the Fair was so successful.

At this time the Board wishes to thank the members of the Hospital Ladies' Aid who continually are preparing for this annual event; also all committees and individuals who in any way contribute towards the help of the Fair.

To the ladies of Bear River who had a booth; the Weymouth ladies who brought a cash donation through ticketing, we say, Thank You!

Many outside districts who help with the supper and have supper tables we wish to take this opportunity to express our thanks.

Infantile Paralysis Closes Down Town's Activities

A demonstration on the treatment of polio or infantile paralysis was witnessed at the Digby General Hospital on Sunday afternoon by more than a score of doctors who made the trip to Digby from villages and towns along the Annapolis Valley from as far as Kentville in one direction and from Yarmouth in the other. Many nurses were also present. The demonstration of the "Nurse Kenney Method" of the treatment of this dread disease was under the direction of Dr. Kinley, of Halifax, who made a study of this treatment at the Mayo Clinic.

He was assisted by Miss Maude MacClennan, R. N., a former supervisor of the Digby General Hospital. The doctors and nurses were addressed by the Hon. Dr. F. R. Davis, Nova Scotia Minister of Public Health.

Dr. Kinley and Miss MacClennan demonstrated on three patients suffering with the disease. All are from communities outside the town. Two of them are brother and sister, son and daughter of Major and Mrs. J. H. Vroom, of Deep Brook. The elder of the two, Miss Phyllis Vroom, is a nurse-in-training at the Yarmouth Hospital, and was stricken with the disease while vacationing at home.

The other is from Smith's Cove, the victim being the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cornwel, of that village.

As the result of these cases a special meeting of the Digby Board of Health was called last Saturday. Acting on the advice of the Medical Health Officer, Dr. E. DuVernet, the schools, churches and theatre have been closed for a period of ten days, and all public meeting banned.

Concert Cancelled

The "blackout" this week in fear of an invasion by polio myelitis, disappointed several Digby organizations and the Digby Civic Band was one of them. Mr. Yates had prepared an exceptionally fine program for their last appearance indefinitely. Monday night, the 7th, and "Billy" Christie was to be the special soloist. Bobby Weir was to handle the big Sousaphone. These two Digby boys have won a high position in musical circles outside of their home town—a striking illustration of the age-old saying: "A prophet is not without honor, except in his own country". Many another Digby boy has "gone up head" without due appreciation from his home town. The Civic Band will take a vacation until the first week in October. Its future is uncertain, but it's many loyal members are not likely to let it drop.

Miss Dolores DeSota left on Wednesday for New York, after spending the summer with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Reicker.

Accommodations a Serious Problem

Labor Day passed quietly in Digby, although no celebration other than a band concert was planned. The band concert was automatically cancelled as the result of the ten-day "quarantine" imposed by the Board of Health because of infantile paralysis cases in the Digby General Hospital from villages near the town.

The most of those who took the holiday remained at home. Tires and gas are too precious for holiday gallivanting these days.

At Deep Brook work went on as usual at the big construction job. Every effort is being made for the early completion of the Deep Brook Naval College. Already many large buildings have been framed, and it is expected one or two will be used within the next two weeks to house some six hundred workers on that job. Many of the carpenters are now sleeping in tents on the grounds.

The housing problem has been one of the big problems. Men are being boarded at Annapolis Royal, Digby and Bear River, all several miles from the scene of their work. There are not sufficient accommodations in these three towns to care for all of them, although in all three the number of households taking "boarders" is increasing. Nevertheless, it is hoped that by providing sleeping quarters in the dormitories nearing completion, it will relieve the situation considerably.

The Present Potato Situation

From the latest information which we can gather regarding present and future potato supplies for Canada and the United States it would seem to be good business for producers not to further overload markets at the present time as present indications are that the potato supplies are not up to what the requirements will be, and therefore we should conserve wherever possible. At present it would seem that after the next six weeks to two months potatoes will be in greater demand.

Dr. G. V. Turnbull Promoted

The many friends of Capt. (Dr.) G. Victor Turnbull, are pleased to learn of his promotion to the rank of Major. A veteran of the last war, Dr. Turnbull joined the Canadian Dental Corps in May, 1940, and is now stationed with the Eastern Air Command.

He is a son of the late Dr. George D. and Jessie Turnbull, of Digby, and was graduated from Dalhousie University in dentistry in 1924, and from that time practised his profession in Digby until his enlistment in 1940. He was president of the Nova Scotia Dental Association in 1938-39, and for fifteen years secretary-treasurer of the Western Counties Dental Association.

Dr. Turnbull was in the heavy artillery in France during the first Great War and was twice wounded.

Dedication of New Church, Sept. 24

Rev. Father Eli LeBlanc, P. P., of St. Bernard, has left for Moncton, where he will attend the ordination of Archbishop Robichead and Bishop LeBlanc.

The date of the blessing of the new St. Bernard church has been fixed for September 24. Most Rev. J. T. McNally, Archbishop of Halifax, will officiate. A large number of clergy will assist at the ceremony. The edifice which has been under construction for over 25 years is about complete and is one of the most beautiful in Eastern Canada.

"Dick" Turnbull Makes 14th Raid

Sunday night's raid when the German city of Duisburg, was bombed, was an old story for Flight Sergeant Richard ("Dick") Turnbull, son of Mr. and Mrs. Osborne Turnbull, of this town. The trip was Dick's fourteenth over enemy territory. Dick's record has been a splendid one. He has been twice mentioned in dispatches, and last winter was hospitalized because of injuries received when the plane in which he was one of the crew was forced down off the north coast of England.

Urges Greater Use Of Lime This Fall

The Minister of Agriculture Dr. McDonald, expressed the hope that the farmers would use more limestone this fall and also fertilize for pasture improvement. This would help out materially next spring when the rush is on. We should remember the difficulties experienced last spring in the delivery of both fertilizer and lime due to shortage and transportation difficulties.

Potato Crop Partial Failure; Hay and Root Crops Good

What promised to be, until a few weeks ago, one of the best potato crops in the history of Digby County, is proving a disappointment to the farmers of this vicinity. The potato fields have been affected by the "blight" and growers have found a large proportion of this crop has rotted in the ground. The people of Digby experienced a potato shortage last winter—and in spite of a larger acreage this year, it looks as though Digbyites will enforce a self imposed "spud ration" during the winter of 1942-43.

Serious Fire At Meteghan

Fire which broke out at about 11.00 Monday night, raged for several hours through a large pile of lumber on the property of E. M. Comeau and Sons, Ltd., Meteghan, manufacturers of various types of wooden boxes, etc., caused considerable damage. The stubborn blaze was fought by local volunteer firemen, and members of the Yarmouth Fire Department who responded to a call for assistance. 300,000 feet of lumber, outlined at more than $8,000 were destroyed.

Firemen were handicapped in their efforts by the scarcity of water. It was not long before the water in the nine wells was used up, making it necessary to run hose to a near-by lake.

Several buildings in the vicinity of the lumber pile, including the cookhouse, office, and a mill, were kept from catching through efforts of the firemen, who were successful in confining the blaze to the lumber, which is located in the centre of the business district. The men at the cookhouse were the first to notice the flames, which even then were well underway.

Farm Notes Of Interest from Yarmouth County

The date for the fourth annual community fair to be held at West Pubnico has been set at September 16th. The Fair was sponsored by the West Pubnico agricultural society and combines agriculture, fishing and home arts. It is carried out strictly on a community basis.

Fifteen garden club shows are scheduled to take place in the French speaking districts of Yarmouth county between September 9th to 24th. Over two hundred club members will be exhibiting.

The third annual poultry pool held by the West Pubnico poultry club will be held very early in October. Between 800 and 1000 capons and chickens will be marketed through the pool.

The prospect for other crops is said to be brighter. Root vegetables have fared well despite the fact in some areas the young plants were destroyed by insect pests early in the season. These were replanted and prospered.

Many of the clover fields have yielded two good crops and there are suggestions a third crop is not improbable in a few cases. Upland hay was heavy, but, due to labor shortage, much was late in harvesting (there are still isolated cases of haying at this late date); some was left unharvested.

Grain crops, although good, have also been affected by the farm labor shortage for harvesting and threshing, with the result considerable grain was fed to the cattle as green fodder.

Hill Grove Fair Next Wednesday

The Maple Leaf Agricultural Society met for their September session at the home of the Secretary, Joseph Specht, Barton, on Tuesday evening, Lloyd MacNeill, presiding. The principal business of the meeting was to make final plans for the Field Day and Community Fair which will be held at the farm of James Roope and Son on Wednesday, September 16th, commencing at 9 o'clock a.m.

Special features will be a horse and ox pull, at which several well known teams of horses and oxen are expected to compete. A Household Arts section has been added to the prize list and it is hoped that many entries may be placed on exhibition by the ladies. Members are requested to be on hand on Tuesday afternoon to prepare the different booths, etc. There is no regular admission fee to the grounds, but the local Red Cross will erect a large V which they hope to cover with silver and in return will issue a tag which will serve as an admission ticket.

The members enjoyed a clam bake on the shore before the meeting which was enjoyed by all.

About This and That

The second Great War has now entered its fourth year. This conflict, which, in its early stages was dubbed by many as "a phoney war" has developed into the costliest and bloodiest of wars the world has known; it has spread to the four corners of the earth. Men, women and children are being slaughtered by the hundreds of thousands—by the millions; millions of others are facing starvation and conditions worse than death. There is not a continent on God's green earth where mankind is not battling for existence.

During the three years that have passed the impossible has happened—the unbelievable has become a reality. Had anyone attempted to prophesy three years ago that British troops would be ousted from Europe and Germany would become the master of the continent; that our enemies would be at the very gates of Alexandria; that much of the Far East would be in enemy hands—such a prophet would have been laughed at or called an enemy sympathizer.

Yet, all this and more, has come to pass. Our greatest achievements have been our Dunkirks! In spite of it, there are still those who have the complacent attitude that "Victory is just around the corner". Actually "Victory Corner" is still afar off. The road is paved with "blood, sweat and tears". It is a long road, stretching into the future for days, weeks, months and even years.

Let's not fool ourselves. We have not won. We are not winning. Our record so far has been one of defeats, setbacks and bitter disappointments. Here and there the sun has broken through but there is still no cause for national rejoicing.

We are going to win this war and win it decisively, but, before we can begin to win it we must learn to face the realities, to do away with the all too common practice of trying to dodge them. The facts are too evident to dodge. It is past time all of us got down to taking the war seriously—by "all of us" we are not referring to those in the forces, but to the workers and the home folk. There is much we can do that will help turn the tide of battle.

New labor regulations; the new income tax; government control of things and the fact we can no longer live as we were accustomed to in the early days of this conflict, concern all of us. We are affected in many ways because we cannot buy and sell, or hire and "fire" as we like. "Some have gone so far as to suggest that we in this country have abandoned democracy. Perhaps we have to some extent. The war front has taught that the enemy can best be fought by his own methods. The same applies to the home front.

In spite of our complaints and grumblings, what we have to put up with now cannot be called "sacrifice". Those who have given their all, those who have seen their homes and dear ones blasted to bits; who know oppression or who rot in concentration camps are the ones who are making sacrifices. To call our denials, whether self- or government-imposed, "sacrifices", is sacrilege.

We sacrifice nothing to purchase war savings stamps and bonds—we do it for our country's good, and at the same time have made a sound investment for ourselves.

We cannot all see eye to eye with those in charge of our war effort. Ofttimes we feel it our duty to voice our complaints. We know they appreciate sincere criticisms. Nevertheless, we are well aware that the regulations and restrictions they have put in force have not been made law unless they were felt to be in the best interest of the country, the people and our war effort. Our bit is to do our part to see they are enforced.

Here's a tip on cutting wood for fuel. If it's being trimmed from live trees let the leaves stay on the branches for a couple of weeks after the limb is felled. While the leaves wither they draw out moisture from the wood and hasten drying. Two weeks of this drying is said to be equal to three months of ordinary seasoning, without leaves. To season wood for best efficiency six months is ordinarily required.

THE NEW INCOME TAX

PART I - As it Affects

SALARY AND WAGE EARNERS

1. Question: WHO MUST PAY?

Answer: All persons in receipt of incomes over $660 single—or $1200 married.

2. Question: WHAT FORMS DO YOU HAVE TO FILL OUT?

Answer: Unless you are single, without dependents, and not making payments for allowable personal savings (Item 5D), you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise he must deduct the amounts provided by the Table of Tax Deductions for a single person without dependents or personal savings.

If $\frac{3}{4}$ or more of your income comes from salary or wages, you must file your 1942 Income Return by 30th September 1943. If your income is not over \$5,000, including not over \$100 from investments, you will use Form T1-Special; otherwise you will use Form T.1.

3. Question: WHEN AND HOW IS YOUR TAX COLLECTED?

Answer: Your employer is required by law to make deductions from your salary or wages on account of your 1942 tax during the period September 1942 to August 1943. Each deduction must be the amount provided by the official Table of Tax Deductions for your current rate of pay, and family status and personal savings as declared on Form TD-1 (Item 2 above).

The Table is designed to collect about 90% of the tax on your salary or wages, leaving a balance of not more than 10%, in most cases, (plus tax on your other income, if any) to be paid with your Income Return to be filed in September 1943.

If your salary or wages are less than $\frac{3}{4}$ of your income, you must pay tax on your other income by compulsory instalments. (See Part II below).

4. Question: WHAT CONSTITUTES TAXABLE INCOME?

Answer: Your income is made up of your full salary or wages before any deductions whatsoever, plus living allowances, gratuities or bonuses (including cost of living bonus) and the value of any board, living quarters or supplies, etc., given you by your employer. It also includes such receipts as interest and dividends, rents (after taxes, repairs, etc.), royalties and annuities. From your total income you deduct payments (up to $300) into certain types of employees' superannuation or pension funds, charitable donations up to 10% of your income, and medical expenses over 5% of your income (maximum—$400 single, $600 married, plus $100 for each dependent up to four), to find the amount of your taxable income.

5. Question: HOW MUCH DO YOU PAY?

Answer: (A) Normal Tax—(whichever rate is applicable is applied to the full amount of your taxable income from the first to the last dollar).

- (1) Single—
with taxable income between $660 and $1800—7%
with taxable income between $1800 and $3000—8%
with taxable income over $3000—9%
(2) Married (or equivalent status)— with taxable income over $1200—7%
(3) Dependents—tax credit for each—$28

(B) Graduated Tax—

(1) On first $660 of taxable income—No Tax.
30% on next $ 500	55% on next $ 5,000
33% on next 500	60% on next 7,000
37% on next 1000	65% on next 10,000
41% on next 1500	70% on next 20,000
45% on next 1500	75% on next 20,000
50% on next 3000	80% on next 30,000
85% on excess over $100,000

- (2) Married (or equivalent status)—tax credit—$150
(3) Dependents—tax credit for each—up to $80

(C) Surtax—4% on investment income over $1500 without exemptions.

NOTES

- (1) In no case are you required to pay a net tax (i.e., after credit for dependents) which would reduce your taxable income below $660 single or $1200 married.
(2) If a wife has unearned income over $660, then both she and her husband are taxable as single persons, but any amount a wife earns does not affect her husband's right to be taxed as a married person. A married woman is taxed as a single person under all circumstances except only when her husband's income is less than $660.

(D) Tax Credit for Personal Savings—

You may deduct from the savings portion of your tax (Item 6) 1942 payments on account of—

- (1) an approved employees' (or trade union) superannuation, retirement or pension fund;
- (2) premiums on life insurance policies issued prior to 23rd June 1942 (if issued after that date ask your insurance company or Inspector of Income Tax);
- (3) annuity or savings policies not postponable without substantial loss or forfeiture; and
- (4) principal payments on a mortgage or agreement of sale, existing prior to 23rd June, 1942, on one residential property:

provided (a) they do not exceed the savings portion and (b) receipts are produced for the payments when filing your Income Return.

(E) National Defence Tax—

This tax does not apply after 31st August, 1942. The deductions made during January to August 1942 apply as a payment on account of your 1942 tax.

6. Question: HOW MUCH OF YOUR TAX IS SAVINGS?

Answer:

- (1) Single—the lesser of
 - (a) $\frac{1}{2}$ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax; or
 - (b) 8% of your taxable income (maximum $800) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).
- (2) Married (or equivalent status)—the lesser of
 - (a) $\frac{1}{2}$ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax; or
 - (b) 10% of your taxable income (maximum $1000) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

You will get back the savings portion of your tax which you actually pay, plus 2% interest, after the war.

7. EXAMPLES OF AMOUNTS PAYABLE ON 1942 EARNED INCOME (after allowing for National Defence Tax actually deducted Jan.-Aug. 1942)

About 1¼ cups of brown sugar is equivalent to 1 cup of granulated sugar by weight. Strained honey may be used instead of sugar in cakes and quickbreads. Use it cup for cup in place of sugar, but reduce the liquid in the recipe by one-quarter. If using half sugar and half honey do not reduce the liquid any.

In adding chocolate to a recipe let the chocolate take the place of some fat and flour. One ounce of chocolate is equivalent of about 1 tablespoon fat and 1 tablespoon of flour. Kidney, brains, heart and liver should be considered economy headliners because they furnish so much food value.

Always serve pork well-cooked.

Crackers can be restored to their original crispness by heating them slowly in the oven.

With every glass of milk—there's protein, fat, calcium, phosphorous, milk, sugar and some vitamins added to the diet.

Care in cooking cheese is absolutely necessary. Temperature must be kept low—the cheese should merely be heated enough to melt it. Overheating toughens cheese and makes it stringy.

Copper Latest on List Of Metals for Salvage

Canadians must pitch in and dig out all the copper they can find. Metals Controller G. C. Bateman has warned that there is a severe shortage of copper. The increased consumption of brass, an alloy metal of copper, is one example of the wartime demand which has brought about this shortage.

Lighting fixtures which have no further use, wash boilers, copper tea kettles, water faucets, name and address plates, curtain rods and poles, brass bedsteads, jardinières, door knobs, fire screens, copper wiring, discarded eavestroughs—all copper, bronze, and brass articles which are no longer useful are needed urgently. Copper coloured and bronze articles are particularly wanted.

Any usable articles should not be turned in because they would only have to be replaced by new articles, many of which have already been taken off the market.

A slight indication of the way the production lines chew up this metal is shown when it is known that one type of bomber requires more than two miles of copper wire alone to keep it flying. Another type of bomber needs 500 lbs. of copper which would make thousands of toy electric trains for Christmas.

Travellers by Railway Are Partial to Beef

As part of the requirements for the 2,369,000 meals served on Canadian National Railways dining cars during a year, 775,000 pounds of meat were requisitioned. Of this total, beef in the form of loins, ribs and other cuts represented 360,000 pounds. Other meats cooked in dining and cafe car kitchens totalled 415,000 pounds, headed by chicken which contributed 135,000 pounds of that total.

Breakfast bacon obtained from supplies available after overseas requirements had been filled served to the extent of 80,000 pounds with ham a close second at 75,000 pounds.

More than 400 Canadian National Railways apprentices have dropped tools and left benches to join the armed forces. Of those reported killed on active service, three were with the navy and three with the air force. One of the latter lies in North Africa.

Annapolis Presbytery Condemns the Liquor Traffic

The Social Service Committee of the Annapolis Presbytery of the United Church of Canada would reiterate its deep conviction as to the serious menace of the liquor traffic to Canada's best efforts in the great war struggle in which it is now engaged.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that this Presbytery reaffirm its unfaltering opposition to the liquor trade as it is now carried on in the Dominion. We call attention to the glaring anomaly of asking for a day of prayer in the face of our government's deliberate refusal to listen to the respected appeals of the Christian Churches and Christian organizations throughout our land in behalf of improved temperance regulations. It is surely evident to thinking people everywhere that peoples and governments must seek to live out their own prayers before the Almighty can have anything to do with us or our prayers. Praying for peace and victory and, at the same time by the liquor business creating the very conditions which cause dispeace and defeat, is but the height of folly and inconsistency.

We urge, therefore, that our governments—provincial and federal—take an active and vital part in answering their own prayers and the prayers of the Christian Churches by taking strong measures immediately in curtailing the traffic of strong drink during the war years. We regard this as just and reasonable because of the immense amount of money and material waste in the wake of this business, and also because of the demoralizing effect upon the health and character of the young people who have gone forth to push back and defeat a strong and vicious foe.

The people of the Churches, who are among the best thinking people of Canada, have been noble in their response to all government appeals since the war began, but many are bound to become weary and intolerant when their appeals meet with such scant consideration from their political leaders.

We ask for our people, therefore, fair and equitable dealing once more.

Nazis Send Dutch to a New Colony

Deportation of Netherlands Jews to Eastern Europe, which, according to official German announcement, will not be stopped until all Jews between 18 and 45 have been removed, is believed a prelude to the bloodless extermination of the entire Netherlands people.

German plans regarding the Dutch became clear with the inauguration of the Netherlands East Company in Holland, when it was revealed that 3,000,000 Netherlands, more than one-third the total population, would be transferred to Eastern Europe and replaced by Germans.

Nazis do not intend to exterminate the Dutch by murdering them, nor is the plan inspired by hatred. The Hollanders must disappear because the Germans want their land—a land that is extremely rich for agriculture.

This, however, is not the main reason. Hitler needs the Netherlands so that the North Sea and Great Britain can be dominated. Berlin wants to make its front in the west strategically impregnable.

Besides deporting Hollanders to Eastern Europe, Hitler also is sending hundreds of them to Germany to work in factories there. Like other conquered peoples, however, the Dutch are doing all possible to sabotage nazi factories by slow and bad workmanship.

Holland youths and young girls also are being sent to Germany in order "to be trained" for agricultural work in Eastern Europe. They do not receive wages, their task being to replace German labor, without payment.

Home Pickle Makers Denied Extra Sugar

There will be no special sugar ration for pickles. This is the decision made by Food Administrators of the War-time Prices and Trade Board, who have made it possible for housewives to get extra sugar for preserving and jam making.

Dietitians say that while pickles add flavor and interest to meals they are eaten in such small quantities that they supply little or no nutritive value to the menu. It is considered more important to use available sugar for more essential foods.

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE IN CASE OF WAR DAMAGE TO PROPERTY

OWNERS OF PROPERTY ARE URGED TO INSURE AGAINST LOSS BY ENEMY ACTION

The Government of Canada, by Act of Parliament, has set up a Plan of War Risk Insurance against damage to property caused by enemy action—by countermeasures taken against the enemy—by explosions of war munitions handled by third parties.

In terms of general information, it may be stated that the Plan provides a certain limited FREE COMPENSATION for damage to owner-occupied homes and to chattels, but the main feature of the Plan is that owners of most types of property can protect their property by PURCHASE of GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE at very moderate rates.

This type of War Risk Insurance is not being sold today by private insurance companies, because of the risk involved. Consequently, the Government has established a national scheme to make it possible for each citizen in Canada to purchase the sense of security that comes from knowing that if his property does suffer war damage (and the war has come much closer to Canada in the last twelve months) he can call on the resources of Canada to help him make good his property loss.

HOW TO OBTAIN GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE

The Fire Insurance Agents and Companies of Canada have volunteered to the Government the services of their extensive facilities and personnel, on a non-profit basis, thus avoiding the setting up of the large organization that otherwise would be needed to handle details of this nation-wide Government War Risk Insurance scheme.

YOUR FIRE INSURANCE AGENT OR COMPANY WILL GLADLY SUPPLY COMPLETE DETAILS OF THIS GOVERNMENT INSURANCE PLAN.

THIS ANNOUNCEMENT IS PUBLISHED so that the public may have notice of the Government War Risk Insurance Scheme. The information given above is not intended to be a complete resumé of the Scheme. Full information regarding conditions, exclusions, etc., is available elsewhere.

TO HOME OWNERS HOUSEHOLDERS and OTHERS

Limited free compensation is provided under the Act for War Damage by enemy action to owner-occupied homes up to $3,000. Damage to Householder's Chattels, up to $800—for those of his wife, up to $400—for each child under 16, up to $100—for others, not householders, up to $200.

No policies are needed in this classification but insurance additional to the above amounts may be purchased.

Ask any Fire Insurance Agent or Company for complete details.

Hon. J. L. Ilesley for Prime Minister

(The Printed Word)

It is learned on excellent authority that James Lorimer Ilesley does not wish to be prime minister of Canada. We think he ought to be. He should be drafted for this job just as his department—or a wartime branch thereof—drafts men from business and industry.

The reason Mr. Ilesley should be the wartime Prime Minister is that most Canadians—as proved by the plebiscite—favor total war. If Mr. Ilesley were prime minister it could be expected that the whole government of Canada would speedily get into high gear.

There is no denying Mr. Ilesley's earnestness. But what is also evident is a tendency on his part to concentrate on his own department and to leave other public questions to other ministers. Thus the only way one could expect his total war-consciousness to spread over every department of government is for him to be prime minister.

From the time Mr. Ilesley became minister of finance he has been giving us total war—financially and economically. When eight out of nine provinces called for total war, Mr. Ilesley slapped on a new tax. Mr. Gardiner produced a national questionnaire as to whether we could milk a cow. Mr. King produced another of his well-known rabbits, and Mr. St. Laurent waved the august fist of justice under the nose of Col. George Drew.

Mr. Ilesley would be the first to claim that he isn't a genius. And much as we admire him it can be argued that some serious mistakes have been made. Several times, and at the risk of being called saboteur of anti-inflationary policy, these pages have directed attention to what we believe are serious faults in the price-control scheme—faults which are destroying consumers' faith in the cost of living index and faults which are compelling farmers to reduce their production of essential foodstuffs. We also have pointed out that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has assumed unnecessary burdens in attempting to police the prices of diamonds and English bone china and night-club charges. The mistakes in this part of the economic front have been mistakes due to giving too much credence to theory and not enough recognition to fact. For instance, in the sugar beet situation the acreage is heavily reduced in a year when U-boats are sinking many cargoes of cane sugar. THE PRINTED WORD. as a believer in the printed word, is not one to decry the value of study of authentic textbooks and the opinions of professors of marketing and political economy and banking. But practical experience is also known to be important in some quarters.

We think that many of the mistakes of administering the price ceiling would have been avoided if all concerned had remembered that price control is the desirable and popular policy and that price control is not necessarily an overly rigid price ceiling. In fact there are some signs that an overly rigid price ceiling leads to shortages of essentials (shortages of non essentials don't matter). Shortages of essentials lead inevitably to black markets which lead to a runaway inflation in the dark, as seems to be the present condition in Germany.

The 1942 budget will go down in history as a notable one—unless perchance Mr. Ilesley manages to produce an even more severe one next year. Modification of some of the income tax features is a fine thing not only for those who get justifiable benefits, but also because it reveals in the Minister of Finance a man big enough to change his mind when convinced that he should. And observation suggests that he is more likely to be convinced by the validity of argument than by the size of a delegation.

For the severity of his income tax rates, Mr. Ilesley has been commended for his courage. Curiously there is less unanimity as to his wisdom in this respect, although in a statesman one quality is surely as important as the other. The question as to wisdom goes back to the commendable pay-as-we-go policy instituted early in the war.

The exodus of married women from worthwhile production jobs because it would not pay them to work while husbands also paid income taxes, quickly brought a change in the steep schedule of payments affecting that class. But it will be too late to make a change if in September it is found that income taxes and compulsory loans deducted by employers make it impracticable for loan salesmen to sell or workers to buy bonds which must be issued.

It is well for us not to go into debt for war purposes in that pre-war year when the minister of national defence did not even manage to spend the tiny appropriation for preparation that parliament had allowed him. It was obviously good, later, when our war production was in the starting stage. But now that we are spending such vast sums, it becomes difficult to determine how much we should borrow and how much we should pay by taxation. This country in the past has gone into debt for many foolish things. Going into debt for freedom as a nation is a debt properly chargeable in reasonable part to the future.

It would be unfortunate if the Minister of Finance found himself in the position of the local preacher whose week-day occupation was that of bailiff. Having as bailiff one Saturday divested one of his parishioners of all he possessed, he rebuked him for not voluntarily placing something on the plate when it was passed to him in church the following morning.

While youthful theorists seem to have great influence in the shaping of our economic policies, there is a strange obliviousness to the teachings of history. A lot of what is being tried today has been disastrous in other times and in other countries. And one thing that we had in this country toward the close of the last war was a consumer tax on retail sales such as at present applies to silver, but not oilpaintings; women's hand-bags but not dancing slippers; schoolbags but not Wedgwood dinner sets.

When Mr. Meighen ended those taxes of the other war the country cheered and most of us who thought we could learn from experience were quite sure that, whatever mistakes were made in the future, that kind of a tax would never again be imposed by a government as wise as an Ottawa government should be. Yet here it is. In some occult way it seems to be considered inflation. Actually it is not necessary. And it adds to the cost of tax collection and, as regards those items charged as the point of ultimate sale, is largely collectable.

We are in favor of Mr. Ilesley for prime minister because he does things. His price ceiling may not be necessary to control inflation under such severe taxation as will be felt by every person with an income tax after September 1st. But Mr. Ilesley believes in making Johnny Canuck wear both belt and suspenders when either might be adequate.

That he makes mistakes is evident to any discerning person, let alone a critic. But one recalls a framed motto of the fumed-oak, passe-partout era which stated that the man who never made a mistake never made anything. It seems to be the policy of the Government of Canada, outside the finance department, never to make a mistake. The most important job—the only real job—in front of us is to win the war. Finance is important, but it is a sideshow. The man who has been running this sideshow should be made ringmaster under the big top because the man show is pedestrian in a mechanized age. And if he put the forceful, stubborn Donald Gordon in a place where he could do some good militarily, even Rommel would quail before him.

MARRIAGE

Comeau - Saulnier

A very pretty wedding took place Monday morning, Aug. 21st, in the Sacred Heart church, Saulnierville, when Rev. Father J. Doucet, C.J.M., pastor, united in marriage Denis L. Comeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund M. Comeau, of Meteghan, to Miss Nelida Saulnier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jérémie Saulnier, Saulnierville. The bride, belonging to the Sodality of "Children of Mary", wore a white sheer robe with a long white veil, and carried a pretty bouquet of white gladioli. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elise Saulnier and Leo Comeau, the groom's brother, was best man. After the ceremony breakfast was served to relatives and immediate friends at the bride's home, after which the wedding party motored to Yarmouth. Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

The order also provides:

That anyone, coming into possession after September 15 of scrap iron or steel weighing 500 pounds or more, must dispose of it within 20 days.

That any person having a valid reason for not disposing of scrap metal as scrap metal or who believes that it can serve some essential purpose, must send in a report by September 15 to the Used Goods Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Lumsden Building, Toronto. His report must reveal the exact description, quantity, and location of his scrap metal.

The provisions of the order do not apply to scrap dealers who are already subject to previous orders; nor do they affect metal fabricators and processors who are in legal possession of metal to be used in manufacturing.

A copy of the order, S.C. 16, may be obtained from the Steel Controller, Department of Munitions and Supply, Ottawa.

Infractions of the new regulations are subject to a fine of up to $5,000, or imprisonment of up to five years, or both fine and imprisonment.

Successful Fair At Weymouth

Hundreds of people from Weymouth and surrounding districts attended the big fair held here Labor Day under the auspices of the Weymouth Agricultural Society, recently revived after a lapse of 29 years.

A large number of entries of livestock, poultry, vegetables, needlework, flowers, etc., featured the fair which began early in the morning, continuing through the day until late evening. A. S. Hart, secretary; and Raymond LeBlanc, Meteghan, agricultural representative, played a large part in the successful promotion of the enterprise.

Judging of the livestock entries, which included horses, cows, calves, and oxen, was carried out by R. B. Banks, Truro, superintendent of exhibitions. Exhibits of vegetables and poultry were judged by Mr. Guntler, editor of the Maritime Farmer.

The Home Economics section drew much interest, with its many attractive home-made quilts, afghans and rugs, as well as home-made bread, etc., on display. In this section also were a number of oil paintings and water colors, together with a fine display of cut flowers. Judges of these exhibits were Mrs. George Sack and Mrs. Hatfield, of New York, summer residents of Weymouth.

Judging of livestock was continued in the afternoon, at the conclusion of which the local Reserve Army unit, under command of Lieut. Leger Comeau, put on a display of drill, marching and platoon attack.

Other features of the day's program were two tug-of-war competitions between a local team and a Royal Navy team, both of which were won by the local team, and a boxing match in the evening between two Royal Navy members.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the fair comprised: Andrew Elliott, Israel Melanson, Lieut. Leger Comeau, Richard Rice and Blanchard Grant.

No Extra Tea or Coffee Allowed

There will no extra tea or coffee ration allowed for threshing gangs, according to the Consumer's Branch, War-time Prices and Trade Board.

Although a special ration of sugar can be obtained by voucher for feeding threshing gangs, this will not apply to tea and coffee. It is visually important for Canadians to stay on their rations in order to make available supplies go round. Members of threshing gangs each have ration cards and these should be used. Men working on neighboring farms are advised to bring along their own ration of tea or coffee if they want it served at their meals.

Attends Early Mass On 100th Birthday

Augustin Dugas, the oldest man in the Clare District and probably throughout the County of Digby, celebrated Sunday at his home in Meteghan, his 100th birthday. He was able, in spite of his age, to attend at the first Mass of 7.30 a.m. in the Stella Maris Church, being accompanied by his wife and Dr. and Mrs. P. E. Belliveau. He received many gifts and greetings, especially from the United States, where he had worked as master carpenter for over 50 years, being a member of the Brookline Fire Department since 1871.

Supply Of Apples Adds Variety To Wartime Meals

What to do with surplus supplies of early varieties of choice apples? Canned apple sauce that will round out meals from late fall till the apple season comes again. That's the perfect answer for conserving this healthy delectable food this year when sugar is rationed, and nothing must go to waste.

Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, suggests the following recipes:

Canned Applesauce

20 medium sized apples (approximately 4 lbs.)
1½ cups cold water
1 cup sugar

Wipe, quarter and core apples; add the water and cook until the apples are soft and tender. Press through a sieve; add sugar, stirring until dissolved, and pack hot in hot sterilized jars. Process in water bath for 12 minutes, counting time from when the water begins to boil or in oven at 275F for 15 minutes.

Canned Quartered Apples

Peel, core and slice or quarter apples. Cook 5 minutes in syrup (1 cup sugar to 2 cups water) for 5 minutes. Pack hot in hot sterilized jars. Process in water bath for 30 minutes, counting time from when water begins to boil or in oven at 275F for 50 minutes.

Extra Laundering Care Adds Life To Linens

Get more wear out of household linens and cottons by extra laundering care. When ironing towels, table cloths, sheets and pillow cases, avoid pressing in the folds. Pressure from the iron may cause yarns to break where they are creased. Changing the place of the folds from time to time may be an added safeguard. Since absorbency is one of the most important characteristics of bath towels, these should never be ironed because the flattened loops will not absorb moisture readily. All that is necessary is to shake the towel before it is hung up to dry and again when it is folded.

DIGBY, NOVA SCOTIA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1942 VOLUME LXIX, NO. 1

Digby County Air Force Boys Missing

OFFICIALLY REPORTED MISSING AFTER AIR OPERATIONS OVERSEAS:

Pilot Officer Reginald Woof, of Conway;
Sgt. Hamilton Earl Prime, of Freeport.

There will be widespread regret throughout this district at news that Pilot Officer Reginald Woof, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Woof, Conway, is missing in air operations, and hope will be general that news will soon follow that his life has been spared. This family has a fine war record, with two other sons, James and Eric, serving in the R.C.A.F., and also son-in-law, William Warren, in air force uniform.

The three Woof brothers came over to Canada from England some 16 years ago with their parents, first settling in Lansdowne, this county, and after three years moving to Conway.

Reginald, the one now missing, was born in Middleton St. George, England, and was educated at the Durham County Council High School at Stockton-on-Tees. For a time before going overseas, he was stationed at Dartmouth. The father served as a steel worker in the Old Country, and in that task, played a helpful role in the First Great War. Reginald received his commission as Pilot Officer in July of this year, while serving overseas.

Digby Neck and the Islands have learned with deep regret that Sergeant Hamilton Earl Prime, R.C.A.F., son of Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Prime, of Freeport, is missing after air operations overseas.

Prime, who is 25 years of age, was for a number of years an employee in the Bank of Nova Scotia, in Freeport. Some two years ago he married Miss Joyce Gidney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Gidney, of Mink Cove. No details as to where the air operations took place are available, but it is presumed his plane was forced down in some of the recent heavy Allied raids over France and Germany.

Missing Airmen

DUE TO certain new regulations no newspaper is allowed to publish names of airmen missing overseas until after a certain length of time, although next of kin are notified immediately. Reasons for this measure is to keep the word from reaching the enemy and thus promoting their chances of escaping if they are still alive.

Hill Grove Holds Community Fair

The Hill Grove Community Fair, held yesterday, was a very successful affair, considering it was the first of its kind ever held in that vicinity. It was a project of the Maple Leaf Agricultural Society and that body deserves great credit. The fair was held in a large field on the farm of James Roop and Son, with a beautiful background of trees. It was under those trees that the horses and cattle were tethered, and the result was a surprisingly pretty picture. One long table held the display of vegetables and grain and there was a goodly number.

To a layman it would seem to be rather a difficult matter to judge them and we noticed that it took some time and the judges themselves seemed puzzled occasionally. The flower table was also pretty. Of course the domestic work—quilts, etc., was of special interest to the ladies. The lunch table served principally sandwiches and pie; the sandwiches were free but the pie cost 5 cents a cut. Then you could buy corn on the cob, piping hot, with butter, 1 cent an ear. Ice cream and pop filled up the niches, after you had purchased from purveyors on the ground, a good hot dog as a foundation. More details will be given next week.

We are glad to take this opportunity of asking our readers to give generously to this cause, realizing at the same time there are many additional demands on all of us on account of the war. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind has done, and is doing a wonderful work in helping the blind to establish themselves as self supporting citizens. This work must be continued. Rev. Ross Eaton Discusses "Freedom"

Preaching in the Central Grove Baptist church on Sunday, Rev. Ross Eaton declared that we of the Democratic countries have put our freedom to the wrong use. Although he said he would not recommend leaders like the Dictators of Europe, yet he said we were like sheep without a shepherd, and that our young people, without any aim, were "all dressed up with no place to go." The war has given us a goal for the present, but unless we place God at the head, even though the Allies are materially victorious, our efforts will be in vain.

"Human nature", Mr. Eaton said, "may well be compared to the wild horses, powerful creatures, but of no benefit to civilization until a trainer takes them and makes them useful."

"We clamor for freedom—freedom for what? How many of us are capable of using our freedom to the right advantage?" he asked, adding that all of us need Divine guidance in all our undertakings.

Donald L. Thurber

The death of Donald L. Thurber, native of Freeport, but a resident of the United States for the past twenty-five years, occurred at his summer home, Shore Road, near Digby, early Thursday morning. Mr. Thurber was 56 years of age, and had been in poor health for the past two years, suffering from a heart ailment. He is survived by his widow, the former Georgia Ellis, daughter of James Ellis and the late Mrs. Ellis, Shore Road, and two sons, Harry and James. The remains left Digby on Friday for Belmont, Mass. Funeral service will be conducted at Cambridge, Mass., on Monday.

Mrs. H. L. Ingersoll

Mrs. Charlotte Ingersoll, wife of the late Hattell L. Ingersoll, died suddenly at the Digby General Hospital last week at the age of 73 years. She was a member of the Church of England. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. F. Bate at the Church of the Ascension, North Head, Grand Manan. Mrs. Ingersoll leaves to mourn one son Preston, Newark, N.J.; two daughters, Mrs. Henry A. Garnett, Newark, and Mrs. Harry O. Turnbull, Digby, the latter with whom she made her home, and two brothers and one sister, Henry Dunbar, North Head; Harding Dunbar, Saint John, and Mrs. Judson Burt, Dorchester, Mass., also five grandchildren. Mrs. Ingersoll will be greatly missed by many friends on Grand Manan and at Saint John where she formerly resided.

Permissible To Buy Sugar For Anticipated Preserving

General Geo. L. Carpenter, international leader of The Salvation Army, with headquarters in London, England, who arrived in New York by plane late in August, and who soon after spent an hour with President Roosevelt in Washington. General Carpenter, who was chosen for the top post in The Salvation Army while in charge of the Canadian Territory in 1939, will visit Canada in September and October, and will conduct special Diamond Jubilee Anniversary Congress meetings in key Canadian cities.

Ralph C. Walker

Ralph C. Walker, of Waverly, Mass., died September 7, at the age of forty-six. He was the son of the late John and Annie Fenwick Walker and had resided in Waverly for four years. He had been a Master Radio Expert until his illness and a universal favorite among his friends. He leaves a daughter, Jeanne, his mother, Mrs. Annie Fenwick Walker and two brothers, Clifford S. of Wellesley Hills and Harvey J., who is now on the high seas. He spent his vacations in his younger days in Digby at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Annie Fenwick. Services were conducted Wednesday, September 9 at the Cox Funeral Home by Rev. Wm. R. Leslie of St. Mark's church, Brookline and Rev. Denton J. Neely, of Nashua, N.H. He was laid to rest in the beautiful Cambridge cemetery in Cambridge, Mass., amid a profusion of flowers.

The body of Everett Glavin, Westport, was recovered from Halifax Harbor on Saturday last, and the remains forwarded to his home for interment. Glavin was lost with the sinking of the tug Lavaltrie on June 30. Six others lost their lives in the same disaster.

Shortly after the announcement that no more sugar vouchers would be obtainable after September 30, we inquired of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board whether it would be permissible to anticipate sugar needs for preserving native grapes, cranberries and quince, and purchase sugar by voucher prior to September 30. Yesterday we received the following reply to our inquiry:

"I am sorry to be so long in writing you on your enquiry concerning grapes, quinces and cranberries which mature after September 30."

"Our Ration Officer, J. P. Hillion informs me that the answer to your question is yes, it is permissible to anticipate sugar purchases for these items not later than October 31, 1942."

"Yours very truly,
(signed) L. M. Morrison, Field Representative."

99 Years Old

Mrs. John S. MacNeill, of Barton, Digby County, celebrated her 99th birthday quietly at her home on Saturday, September 12. In spite of her age, Mrs. MacNeill is enjoying excellent health, and is able to maintain an interest in the affairs of the community in which she lives, and too, keeps well informed on the news of the day. Mrs. MacNeill is the widow of John S. MacNeill, who was twice elected to the Nova Scotia House of Assembly in 1882 and 1886.

About This and That

"Volume LXIX, NO. 1".

The above refers to this issue of the Courier, and means in simple language that today we cross the threshold of another year, and have begun our sixty-ninth year of continuous publication. In other words, this is the Courier's birthday.

Sixty-nine years seems a long time. We believe in the years that have past this newspaper has rendered a valuable service to the community. Had it been otherwise we could not have survived. However, even if this is our birthday, we will not make it an occasion to write of ourselves. Recent research on our part has brought to light that in spite of our years, the Courier is a mere youngster insofar as newspaper history is concerned.

We have discovered that in spite of the fact Johann Gutenberg is credited by the western world as the inventor of printing what is believed to be the first newspaper was published more than 1200 years ago. Tching Pao, usually translated as Peking Gazette first appeared in 713 A.D. during the Chang dynasty in China, for the purpose of making known decrees of the court. This paper only ceased publication in 1900.

Whether Tching Pao was actually "printed" or not, we do not know. Our source of information states "China was using movable type as early as 1030. Paper was developed there before 105 A.D., and ink soon after". Gutenberg introduced movable type in Europe in 1438, at least 400 years after the Chinese.

It is then to the Chinese we must give thanks for the invention of the greatest tools of education, of religion, and of freedom—paper, ink, and the process of printing, both from blocks and from movable type.

Coming down through the years to more modern times, we find the first newspaper published in Europe was the Gazette, of Nuremberg, Bavaria, from 1457 to 1534, and that the first newspaper to be printed in the English language seems to have been printed in Holland in 1620 for export to England. The London Gazette, started in 1665, is still published, although this is more of an official government organ for the announcement of decrees than a newspaper, however, the Barrows Worcester Journal (a weekly), traces its history back to 1690, making it 252 years old, while the Leeds Mercury is England's oldest existing daily, and dates back 224 years. The London Daily Post started in 1772 and the Times in 1785.

With these facts before us, we realize the Courier is a mere youngster, nevertheless, at all times, it is our task to inform our readers accurately, promptly and with honorable purpose; to help them govern their thoughts and acts so that they may acquire a correct sense of value. Viewed from this light, mere age retires as a factor of any special significance in judging a newspaper's worth. Editorial responsibility, ideals and skill emerge as the correct standards by which all newspapers must be measured. We share in the great responsibility that has been placed upon the shoulders of the men and women of the fourth estate in these trying days, and more than ever we must keep in our minds the words of Clarence Charters, "remember this, the fires of freedom will never burn out as long as they are fed with printers' ink".

"Though trodden under feet of men,
Truth from the dust will spring,
And from the press—the tip—the pen—
In tones of thunder ring."

Our Reserve Army

Most of our readers are aware of the fact that in addition to our regular active Army, a Reserve Army is being recruited and trained throughout certain sections of the Dominion where the creation of such a Reserve Army has been deemed necessary. A great many of our readers however, are unfamiliar with the real aim and purpose in the creation of this Reserve Army and it is proposed briefly in a series of short articles to point out the real purpose and object in creating this additional branch of our armed forces.

This war has since its beginning in 1939 spread in increasing ferocity to practically all parts of the world. At its beginning, not one of us would have ventured to suggest that it would have taken on such world-wide characteristics. It would therefore be complacent and unwise reasoning for us to continue to say today that this war cannot spread further and that we ourselves are secure from attack.

Wars are fought both offensively and defensively. Our brave sons, citizens and allies are making gallant efforts in carrying this war to the enemy. But let us remember that we are fighting a very powerful, crafty and resourceful enemy, who are also capable, if the occasion arises, in carrying the war to us.

Our government has pointed out to us this danger in designating a certain section of Eastern Canada as a danger area. This does not of necessity mean that we are faced with the possibility of a large scale invasion or attack, but it is apparent to our government and therefore should be apparent to us that certain areas can be attacked because of the geographical position. It is therefore only reasonable and proper that we should take steps to create and maintain some sort of an efficiently trained defensive force throughout this area. Our regular active Army has its own job to do. We other citizens who are not in the regular active Army or who are not subject to call in the regular active Army, and by assisting to build up and maintain this very necessary force for the defence of our homes, our persons and property in case of an attack along our shores. We can do this and still carry on our own civilian occupations in the usual ordinary manner. This opportunity to bear arms for the protection of our country, our homes, our persons and our families is a privilege and at the same time a duty.

A branch of this Reserve Army force has been created at Digby. It is our aim and object to create and maintain a company. Let us who are eligible respond to this privilege by joining now.

Britain's "National Emergency" Biscuits

Thousands of tons of Britain's new "welfare" biscuit are being stored away in preparation for a national emergency.

The biscuit has been evolved, after many tests, by British biscuit makers who are now, to the number of 240, united with the cake makers in the Cake and Biscuit Manufacturers' Wartime Alliance, a non-profitmaking organization.

The Welfare is a sweet biscuit made from wheatmeal flour, the purest vegetable fat, and the finest grade of sugar. It gives the maximum of nutrition at the low price of 9d per lb., and the industry regard it as the best value ever offered to the public.

The biscuits are mainly oblong, for, although the ingredients are standardised, the shapes vary a little so as not to limit production to a few cutting machines.

They are carefully packed in tins stored in cases of 50 lbs. weight which will preserve them indefinitely in all climates.

Speeding Up Radiolocation

By the last train to leave free Czechoslovakia there came to Britain the drawings for a new type of soldering iron which has beaten everything else for speed in Britain's aircraft, radiolocation and tank factories.

It is the invention of a Czech manufacturer, who, with very little money and only two cases of personal luggage, passed the German Army of Occupation as they were crossing the frontier. When he arrived in London, he concentrated his whole attention on his new "quick" soldering iron, realizing how vital a part so simple a tool plays in war production and maintenance.

Put to its first speed test at radio control and transmitting stations, the tool is now supplied from a South Wales factory at the rate of three to four thousand a week to radiolocation centres, aerodromes, shipyards, ordnance factories, telephone exchanges and in a wide range of general factories.

Feature of the new soldering iron is that it is equally effective when used with the new soldering alloys with tin content introduced in Britain to save stocks of tin.

Commandos Rescued In New Stretcher

A new kind of stretcher for wounded Commandos which can be carried by one man is now being turned out in London.

It is made of leather, webbing and cane and it straps on to a man's back. On it a Commando can carry a wounded comrade and still leave his hands free for a rifle or a Sten gun.

Another novelty from this workshop is a petrol tank. Hung on the wings of a plane these tanks can be jettisoned in an emergency.

The workers here can also turn webbing into Army anklets at the rate of 20,000 a week and they are making scabbards for the machete knife used for cutting a path through jungle undergrowth.

A quieter effort in one corner of the workshop is the manufacture of a few baseball gloves for the Canadian troops now in Britain.

Caravans Follow The Blitz

Ten flying squads of builders are now being rushed round Britain doing emergency construction work in record time.

Each squad has 60 men who travel about the country in motor caravans specially designed for them, with bunks and kitchens. Five-ton lorries carrying materials and plant complete the cavalcade.

When the town is blitzed overnight, one or more flying squads are on the spot next morning in their mobile homes which have everything the men need to keep them going until the job is done. They therefore make no demands at all upon the blitzed

The new squads take an urgent service work anywhere, arriving in an empty countryside, quite indifferent to the absence of huts, beds or canteens. Their first job was a site construction for an Army camp in a remote part of Britain. Normally there is a delay of three weeks between inviting tenders for new camps and beginning the work upon them. Coming along during this interval the mobile builders in 16 days ran up huts for the advance party of the main contractors and put down their roads in the rough.

Magdalen Islanders Moved To Quebec

A second party of Magdalen Islanders has been transplanted to Northern Quebec to be settled on land in the Abitibi District. The party, which numbered 104 and included thirteen families, travelled to Pictou by steamer and from there by the Canadian National Railways en route to LaSarre, Quebec, via Quebec City. The largest family in the group was that of Avile Turbid in which there are twelve children. The average size of each family is eight children. A similar sized party moved from the Magdalen Islands last year to the Abitibi District of Quebec where they are reported as making satisfactory progress.

Most of the women and children have never seen a train. Several of the men have worked in the lumber woods on the mainland during the winter season and others have been employed as stevedores in Eastern Canadian ports.

Due to economic reasons it was decided to transplant some of the surplus population of the Magdalen Islands to Quebec under a colonization project which is under the auspices of the Quebec Government and in which the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways is cooperating.

Accompanying the party were representatives of the Provincial Colonization Department Quebec, along with Miss Dolores Delaney, nurse employed by the Colonization Department of the Quebec Government, who is a native of the Magdalen Islands, and C. E. Coutroue, representative of the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways, Montreal.

Mystery of Old Hickory

Andrew Jackson was an ignorant man. It was generally agreed that this must be so because he missed school due to being wounded in the American Revolution when he was twelve and due to being busy from then on fighting duels and Indians and the battle of New Orleans. They called him Old Hickory because he was tough, but they had small respect for his learning. In the Presidential election of 1824 he was opposed by the New England scholar, John Quincy Adams. A ditty went the rounds during the campaign, setting out the respective merits of the candidates: Jackson who can fight or Adams who can write. Adams won and Old Hickory retired to his cotton plantation on the Cumberland.

Here he did nothing of an educational nature except to read forty newspapers. He chose the papers carefully to give him a fairly good sampling of opinion from all over the twenty seven states which made up the United States in those days. Like another homespun man of great heart the late Will Rogers, Old Hickory knew nothing except what he read in the papers. After four years of littering the house with all the issues of forty newspapers, Andrew Jackson had another try for Presidency. This time he overwhelmed Adams and he remained Chief Executive for eight years, the greatest president between Jefferson and Lincoln. Even then some people insisted that he must be ignorant because he hadn't been to school. "All he reads is the newspapers," they said. They never could understand how Old Hickory came to know more than they did.

An Example of Good Farm Management

Percy A. H. Archibald, agricultural representative, Baddeck, reports that Murdock MacRae this year cut about forty-seven tons of hay, whereas two years ago he only cut twenty-seven tons. He has already cut a second crop of clover, which was about eighteen inches high and an excellent crop. This is an illustration of what good farm management will do along with the proper use of fertilizer and lime. The farm is one of those under the farm management plan directed by A. B. Banks.

Study Regulations Is Advice To Fishermen

Even Unintentional Violations Can Bring Prosecution, Though Officials Aim to Co-operate in Safeguarding Fisheries

"Ignorance of the law is no excuse" is an old maxim. However, in some cases it is better to temper justice with mercy, and enforcement with understanding. One such case involving all of these sidelights was recently encountered by an inspector of the Dominion Department of Fisheries in a certain section of New Brunswick, when undersized clams were found at a cannery in the district.

Under the regulations as applied to New Brunswick (other regulations apply elsewhere) it is laid down that: "No one shall fish for or take any clam of a less size than two inches across the widest part of the shell, and any clam that may be dug that is less than two inches in length shall forthwith be returned alive and uninjured to the area from which it is taken." Suitable penalties are, of course, provided for in case of violations.

However, in this particular instance, co-operation rather than persecution was the method adopted by the fisheries officer in dealing with the violation. There were extenuating circumstances. First of all the company involved was one with a good record. Secondly, the fishermen who took the clams were of good reputation and honestly unaware that they had broken a regulation. The offending act had simply been unintentional all 'round. Instead, therefore, of persecutions being started under the Fisheries Act, as they might have been, the inspector warned the cannery, who promised not to accept any more undersized shellfish, and detailed a guardian to draw the size-limit proviso to the fishermen's attention. There'll be no undersized clams taken in that area in the future.

The moral of the tale seems to be "study regulations before undertaking fishing operations." Fishery regulations, of course, differ in the various provinces and in some cases in various areas within a province. They are, however, clearly set forth and there is no excuse for violation. There's a good reason for these regulations, too, for they are designed to make sure there is no depletion of the fishery wealth of the various provinces, and thus to ensure the successful continuance of the fishing industry and livelihood for fishermen.

Atlantic Fishermen Share $160,000 Bounty

During 1941 bounties totalling $160,000 (a few dollars less to be exact) were paid to Atlantic coast owners of fishing boats and vessels and fishermen operating the craft, under authority of "An Act to Encourage Development of Sea Fisheries and Building of Fishing Vessels", according to official records of the Dominion Department of Fisheries. This legislation, effective only on the eastern coast, was enacted years ago.

Sharing in the 1941 bounty payments were 15,564 boat fishermen, 3,096 vessel fishermen, owners of 9,080 fishing boats, and 608 boat owners.

As compared with the figures of 1940 there was a decrease in both the total number of boat and vessel owners, and the total number of fishermen sharing the bounty. There were 846 fewer fishing boats and 103 fewer vessels receiving the bounty than in 1940. The number of boat fishermen showed a decrease of 403. The decreases are explained, of course, by the special factors operating in wartime.

The basis of distribution in 1941 gave to vessel owners eligible to receive the bounty, $1 per registered ton of the craft, payment in any one case not to exceed $80; to vessel fishermen entitled to receive the bounty, $7.90 ea.; to owners of boats measuring not less than 12-foot keel, $1 per boat, and to boat fishermen entitled to receive the bounty, $7.40 each.

Nova Scotia, scene of the greatest fishing activity on the Atlantic coast, received a total of $78,551, awarded to the owners of 4,193 boats and 399 vessels, and to 6,406 boat fishermen and 2,300 fishermen on vessels. In New Brunswick the bounty total reached $19,663, which was paid to 859 boat and 159 vessel owners, 1,544 boat fishermen and 586 vessel fishermen. Total bounties for Prince Edward Island, $10,563, were divided between the owners of 805 fishing boats and 1,340 boat fishermen. Some increase in bounty payments was shown in Quebec during 1941, with figures reflecting fisheries expansion in the province. Total bounty $51,181, was divided between the owners of 3,233 fishing boats 50 vessel owners, and 6,220 boat fishermen together with 210 vessel fishermen.

Fish Suffer "Sunstroke" When Temperature Soars

News Item: "Fish Suffer Sunstroke!" No we're not fooling! Admittedly it sounds strange. But fish do suffer "sunstroke", or perhaps for the sake of accuracy, better put it this way: Too much sun may be fatal to fish living in small and shallow streams.

It all happens this way, and incidentally this is exactly what did happen in one district in Nova Scotia not so long ago. The hot sun has a twofold effect on the stream. First, it reduces the water level, secondly it raises the temperature of the water to an unusually high degree.

In the Nova Scotia area in question there was a prolonged period of hot weather and the temperature shot up as high as 92 degrees in the shade. Lack of rain-fall and the continued hot weather spelt danger for the fish population in the little streams, though, of course, not in the main and deep waters of the bigger rivers. Reports came in to the district offices of the Dominion Department of Fisheries telling of numbers of dead fish being found in the shallows and along the shores of several streams. Investigation showed water temperature was causing the trouble. Trout, salmon fry, and gaspereau, all were falling victim to piscatorial "sunstroke". Even some suckers were found to have expired due to the hot water.

Trout and salmon, by the way, require relatively cool water temperatures. Coarse fish such as suckers, for example, can stand more heat.

This is but one instance of how sometimes Nature herself seems to work against the fish conservationists and fish culture officials. Charged with the responsibility of maintaining and replenishing the water of Canada with food and game fish in the areas where the fisheries come under federal jurisdiction, the Dominion fish culture men thus find themselves sometimes faced with the necessity of making good "sunstroke losses". As to the condition which causes mortality, there is nothing, of course, that man can do about that. However, restocking can help offset natural loss and help bring the streams back to their former position, though, naturally, that does not mean that restocking can be done in every stream.

All of Nova Scotia's 1941 scallop catch was marketed in the shelled state, as is usual for this prime sea delicacy. Nova Scotia fishermen during the year brought in catches totalling some 65,000 gallons and the marketed value of the catch reached a total of nearly $163,000—the bulk of which came from Digby.

Fifty thousand hundred-weights are probably a lot of clams. Just the same Nova Scotia fishermen took almost that many—a few hundred-weights less—during 1941. They were sold fresh, in the shucked state, and some were canned both as plain canned clams and as clam chowder. The catch had a marketed value of $83,000.

From The Canadian Friends Of Poland

General Sikorski, the Prime Minister of Poland, has received an appeal from his fellow-countrymen in Poland who are still carrying on, with heroic fortitude, their underground resistance to German terrorism.

"For more than two years and a half" says the appeal, "the Germans have been carrying out a systematic plan prepared years beforehand to exterminate the Polish nation which they consider a natural object to their eastern expansion. The fury of their wrath reached such a pitch during the past few weeks that it threatens the Polish intellectual classes with complete annihilation, and the whole nation with such loss of strength that after the war we may not be able to deal with the great tasks awaiting us."

"From various parts of Poland alarming news confirms that the Teutonic fury has reached murderous paroxysm and is sewing mass murder and fire among innocent Polish people. As an instance, for delay in delivering agricultural quotas very often exceeding all possibilities of fulfilment, the penalty is torture, dispossession, forced labour, and concentration camps, equivalent to a death sentence. Recently in Lublin the Germans have gone to the length of burning down whole farms together with the family locked up in the buildings. Those who try to escape are shot down."

"If a German is attacked, if shelter or help is given to escaping Russian soldiers or guerillas, if communications are damaged by saboteurs, hundreds of innocent Polish people living in the neighborhood are executed immediately in reprisal."

"The discovery of secret publications, or any kind of sign of an underground movement for freedom, is followed by torture and death sentences or long terms in concentration camps with prolonged torture. Even the discovery of trading articles of daily use is punished by forced labour, concentration camps and death sentences. For any kind of patriotic gesture or criticism towards the occupants, the offender is sent to a concentration camp."

"As evidence for these 'crimes' the Germans have nothing more than denunciations resulting from personal spite. This terror and Wave of Murder has engulfed the whole of Poland, although only fragments of news of German barbarism gets thro' to the civilized world. It has gone so far that there is not one Polish family which does not mourn some dear one, murdered in a concentration camp. In these conditions the protection of human life in Poland assumes a fundamental meaning for her future, and must be the main subject of concern of our Government. There is, therefore, an urgent and definite necessity of awakening the consciousness of the whole civilized world against the German Barbarism, and of applying the most severe reprisals permitted by international law.

This appeal, together with appalling figures and instances of German atrocities in Poland, was recently brought before the British Minister of Information at a press conference in London. Mr. Bra-chen then gave this solemn pledge:

"I as a member of His Majesty's Government can assure our Polish friends that the people responsible for these murders and outrages will be brought to justice and treated as common murderers. The Governments of the United Nations are in complete agreement on this question. Every effort will be made to secure names of persons responsible, so that justice may be done."

From time to time reference has been made here to the unspeakable concentration camp at Dachau. George M. Karst, an Austrian whose crime was that he had told the truth in Austrian newspapers, went through the hell of Dauchau, and lived to put what he had suffered and seen there in a book, The Beasts of the Earth. Here is the conclusion of a review of the book:

"Quite seriously, we think that it ought to be given to all those who have been unwilling to believe in the existence of the Devil. It certainly does not make pleasant reading, but it is a cowardly attitude to flinch from revolting sights. All the people who think that Hitler is but a worse edition of Bismarck or William II, and that this war is but a continuation of the World War, are stricken with blindness. Nazism is something worse than anything that has ever happened before. In vain we search for a parallel in history. It is crime and evil in a completeness never before attained by rulers of a great nation. It breaks men without killing them, it infests their souls, it petrifies their hearts, it stuns their brains. But divine justice wills that still worse than for its enemies it is for its own possessed, the beasts of the earth, and in the end they will be subdued."

Many Crossties Used By Canadian National

While experiments have been carried out with steel and concrete as railway cross-ties, wood continues to furnish the standard method of securing rails to the ground. The number of ties per mile of track on the Canadian National Railways rises to 3250 on heavy traffic main line, each 39 foot rail, requiring 24 crossties. In an average year the railways of Canada and the United States install about 60,000,000 cross-ties.

NO USE PANHANDLING

Canada and Canadians would have a better chance of coming through this war if Canadians believed in themselves. We don't believe in ourselves. It is a national paradox that, although impressed by the tradition of having bravely chopped down and ploughed up a wilderness, we still lean mentally on the people of other countries.

This quality of mind makes us fairly good cooperators with Britain and the United States, with whom are obviously bound up our hopes of survival not only as a nation but as families and a people. But Britain and United States have a right to expect something better from their ally, Canada, than tractable cooperation. They have a right to expect a spirit of forthright enterprise that aims at winning the war on our own account, for it is on Canada's own account that she is in league with these others and with Russia and China in carrying on the struggle.

An indication that we are not sufficiently serious about our responsibilities to ourselves is seen in the recurring comparisons which we make between our own war efforts and those of our allies, or between what we are doing now and what we have done in the past. These comparisons are interesting but they are not very important. The only vital consideration is that we must perform miracles, going beyond anything that our ingenious and ruthless enemies can contrive.

We Canadians must realize that we are not playing before a gallery. The gallery is down on the field with us and too heavily engaged to watch and commend our feats. We are on our own, with our own destiny at stake.

This is a new situation for Canadians and we must grow up to the responsibility of it now in the midst of limitless peril. It puts to the supreme test our national character and we are ill-prepared to meet the test, for we have come through the years without attaining to any well defined national character. The original pioneers, the hardy French, were settled here by a paternalistic state and then taken over by another remote and dominating people. The United Empire Loyalists, for all their stubborn will, were established in this country under a species of dole from Britain. These origins and a score of other factors have tended to give us a face-overshoulder attitude that 1837 and 1867 and the development of the Commonwealth idea did not altogether change. It must change now because it is suicide to continue with our face over our shoulder to see what the big fellows are doing. Our big fellows are up against other big fellows who are, to date, beating them. The fight is so close that eleven million Canadians, if they got angry, might tip the balance.

Much is said today against the "butler mind", as though the British connection were not the great fact which has made us something of a world power, when by ourselves we should have been a straggling political improbability. And there are others who breathe fears of encroachments by the United States, as though we all did not know that the ghosts of the War Hawks are long laid. Canada needs every bit of strength it can suck up from being politically and spiritually part of the Commonwealth and geographically and spiritually part of North America. But to these strengths Canada must add something of her own. We cannot panhandle our way through this war.—Printed Word.

Sugar Available for Fall Feeding of Bees

Authority has been received from the Sugar Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board allowing the purchase of sugar by beekeepers for fall feeding of bees. H. G. Payne, provincial apirist, commenting on this, suggests that all requests for a permit to purchase sugar for the fall feeding of bees in Nova Scotia should be made to the provincial apirist, agricultural college, Truro, stating the number of colonies to be fed and the minimum amount of sugar required for this purpose. No permit for sugar will be issued after the middle of October unless under exceptional circumstances.

Save Clover Seed

Many very good stands of second growth clover have been noted in several of the better agricultural districts, and the department would hope that where possible much of this clover seed can be saved and threshed, as the seed will be worth to the farmer in the neighborhood of 25 cents per pound. The farmer should consider this as a war contribution for it will be a saving on the importation of clover seed from possibly other areas where it is needed fully as much as in this province.

But Nova Scotia Graded A or B Lamb

We desire to take this opportunity of reminding our readers that they should remember when buying their meats to ask for Nova Scotia graded A and B lamb. Especially is it desirable to keep this in mind, as at present and in the future, there will be a scarcity of beef. We are in possession of information which shows that the health of the English people was never better than it is today, and in this connection we are reminded that the people in the Old Country have been everly rationed in beef supplies. As compared to our people in Great Britain we are indeed fortunate with our own lamb, poultry, what beef we can supply, and pork.

Nova Scotia Livestock field day showed considerable optimism at their meeting Saturday night, Aug. 29, at dominion department of agriculture offices, Truro. Large donations have been received from many sources including the merchants of Truro and breed associations. Breed representatives report prospects of a larger and more varied exhibit than last year including exhibits from Cumberland, Pictou, Hants and Antionish, and are giving financial assistance to help insure that no breeder is out of pocket on the trip to Truro with stock. In the case of some breeds a flat allowance per head will be given.

Fire Pervention — Threshing Machinery

Every year in Nova Scotia there are a number of "thresher" fires and in nearly every case the fires have caused heavy losses to farmers. On the 1st September, 1942, at 9.30 a.m., a well-known farmer at Shubenacadie, lost his life in a fire that appears to have resulted from threshing operations. Investigation shows that most "thresher" fires have been caused by: 1. part of the machinery resulting in overheating which in turn sets fire to the dust, etc., in the machine and to the machine itself. 2. Moving parts worn or out of alignment setting up friction with same results as in No. 1. 3. Foreign matter entering the thresher—small stones, metal scraps, dirt and dust. This causes friction of sparks which in turn sets fire to dust, etc., and flame is blown out into the barn. It has been observed that in a large percentage of "thresher" fires the fires have come near or at the end of operations when "sweepings" are picked up and passed through the machine. It is recommended that machines be regularly checked and lubricated and that sweepings are not passed into the thresher.

Lime Produces Clover

Here is one of the best testimonials for lime that has been received by the Department. A party states that he will have nothing more to do with lime. He had his land seeded to grass seed and oats, and as grain in those parts is hand threshed, he is complaining because his clover is fully as high as the oats, and in general his oat crop is unharvestable.

Store Restrictions May Create Hardship

Limitation of retail stores to 56 hours of operation a week as proposed by the War-time Prices and Trade Board may create hardship for many independent retailers, according to a letter from the Canadian Council of Distribution to Edgar Burton, Retail Price Administrator. The letter, which is signed by W. C. Fisher, president, suggests that the proposed restrictions on store hours should not be put into effect on October 1 but that action might be deferred until January 1, pending the results of window-lighting curtailment in the central provinces.

Representing a large number of retail stores operating across Canada, the Canadian Council of Distribution states that most chain stores are now operating at or near the proposed limit of 56 hours weekly and would not be seriously affected by the order. As a matter of practice and policy, the Council approves shortening of store hours. The letter points out, however, that many small retail merchants depend mainly on evening trade. These retailers, the Council states, perform a service for the public and as the result of the restricted changes can be studied and necessary adjustments made by the retail trade the new order limiting store hours would impose an additional hardship on small retailers, the Council states.

The Smaller Fellows

It will surprise most folks to learn that New York is a city of small business men, comments a periodical. The town has 35,421 factories, and 14,446 of these have less than five workers. The average is 19. It's biggest industry is clothing manufacture with 11,435 factories, but more than 3,000 of these employ fewer than five persons. Of the 3,630 shops producing metal goods, 1,781 work less than five employees.

Community
Fair Report

To the President and Members of the Weymouth North Agricultural Society: Gentlemen,— I have much pleasure in making a report on the recent exhibition and community fair held on Labor Day.

Entries and attendance were well above expectations and good prizes were given to all winners. The treasurer will present his report when all accounts are settled and so far we hope to donate about $200.00 to War Charities.

On your behalf I would like to acknowledge and thank the following: Assisting on the ground—R. Sabean, B. Grant, A. Elliott, Elmer Jarvis, O. Langford, L. Comeau, I. Melanson (who organized bowling and dancing), F. Lent, who kindly helped with truck, W. Melanson (poultry), G. Campbell, N. Bartlett. We thank the students of Weymouth North High School for their fine sandwich stall and Miss K. MacNeill and Miss E. Hallett for helping in the canteen. To the Red Cross ladies for tickets of admission.

Gertrude Cromwell passed her grade XI. Irma Jarvis obtained a partial pass, failing in algebra. Both girls are from Weymouth Falls and are attending Weymouth High School.

At a meeting of the Agricultural Society a report was adopted. It was also resolved to make an annual event of the exhibition. The annual meeting was fixed for Oct. 12th.

The Junior Women's Auxiliary of St. Peter's church of Weymouth North, re-opened its session on Monday afternoon. This is a Missionary Branch and the girls are knitting dolls' and babies' garments to be sent to the Mission Fields.

most enjoyable by a magnificent effort. Thanks are due to A. Comeau and N. Bartlett for running side shows. To R. Taylor for loan of lumber. To Lieut. L. Comeau, N.C. O's and men of the defence platoon we are grateful for the admirable display.

To the Scout Committee for loan of hall ground.

It would be a great misfortune if our exhibition now launched were not placed on a more permanent basis. There is no reason why a decision should not be reached now to make Labor Day the annual exhibition. I feel that you have the full support of the dozen school sections surrounding Weymouth. Let it be known that the fair will be held and folks will look forward to it and prepare. If the three societies band together as trustees of the show and safeguard any loss incurred by the weather there is no reason why a fair should not be attempted on a much larger scale. Let the prices be worthwhile as this year and there will be shortage of exhibitors.

It is hoped that the Department will donate $75.00 towards the prizes awarded this year. This does not include the calf prizes which are separate.

In conclusion I would say that the team work displayed in the organization was most pleasing and I feel that all cooperated in any way by work, by exhibiting, by attendance, were satisfied by the complete success of the fair.

At this particular time we are all deeply interested in China and the wonderful manner in which she is fighting for her freedom from aggression. We hope for a large attendance at this lecture; proceeds for W. M. S. work. Adults, 20 cts.; Children, 10 cts.

The show, which promises to be a good one, will be held in the Bear River Exhibition Building. There will be no admission.

On behalf of the three young people who are ill with infantile paralysis, we wish to thank those in Bear River, Deep Brook, Smith's Cove and Lansdowne who donated all wool blankets to be used in the "Kenney method" of treatment of these cases. Quite a number of wool and part wool blankets were received—more are needed. The type needed is the old soft home woven woollen blanket—or the more modern kind that has been worn to the point where it is soft, but unbroken. These blankets are cut into the required sizes for the hot pack, a covering of rubber sheeting applied next, and a woollen blanket outside. If anyone interested—can contribute all wool soft woven blankets for this purpose, please leave at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Campbell; or at a point convenient to be picked up, and advise of this. The blankets will be taken to the Hospital for this most worthy purpose.

Ditty Bags For Christmas

The Nova Scotia Division of the Navy League of Canada ask for your help and support for the appeal they are making to the people of Nova Scotia, for Christmas ditty bags for the men of the Merchant Marine.

These are the men who man the cargo boats, which carry food to Britain, and implements of war and the men who use them, to the battlefronts of the world. Without them we could not carry on this war at all, but it is only recently that we are beginning to realize their importance in keeping the lifeline of our Empire open. They face death every time they go to sea, and a very large number of them have met it, in the service of their country, and also a pitifully large number of them face what we consider worse than death, living the rest of their lives as cripples, for very many of them have had to have arms and legs amputated, as a result of frost bite from exposure in open boats.

They face this prospect bravely, but quietly, with no bands, no uniforms, and no medals, for these men are civilians. They are volunteers. They cannot be conscripted for this work, and many of them could get better and safer jobs ashore. They are doing a hard job, under difficult circumstances, and are doing it magnificently, but because they are merely civilians, they are not looked after like the men in the regular services, and very little is done for them.

These men are far from home and lonely at Christmas time. Many of them have lost their families in the bombardment of Britain, and many of them, from the countries of our Allies, Norwegian, Dutch, Belgian and Greek sailors, do not know what has happened to their families.

For these reasons the men of the Merchant Marine would appreciate very much a gift from the people of Canada, and the Navy League is endeavoring to see that they get it, in the form of a ditty bag.

These bags are filled with small personal gifts, somewhat in the nature of a Christmas stocking, and make the men feel that they are not quite forgotten, by the people for whom they are doing so much.

In nearly all cases this will be the only Christmas gift they will receive, and surely, we people of Nova Scotia can give just one more gift at Christmas time to bring a little brightness into their lives.

Mrs. John Baker, of Halifax, visited Digby last week in the interest of this work. The public meeting having been cancelled, a small committee of Red Cross workers met Mrs. Baker and agreed to sponsor the filling of 100 ditty bags in Digby.

The bags are supplied, ready-made, by the Navy League, and are to be filled with the following articles, the value of which is approximately $3.00:

Sewing Kit (made of flannellette, to include needles, white and black coarse thread, buttons, straight pins and safety pins), Smokes, Tooth Brush, Pocket Comb, Shoe Laces, Tooth Paste, Penicil, Gum, Razor Blades, Soap, Socks (mostly size 11), Playing Cards or Cribbage Boards, Small Jig-Saw Puzzles, Books (Penguin Series or Digests), Writing Pads and Envelopes, Coloured Handkerchiefs (large size), Salted Nuts in tin, Turkish Hand Towel (about 14 x 27"), Hard Candy, Chocolates or Dates could be included if placed in a tin container.

There is every indication that the public is ready to respond generously to this appeal. Already the nearby communities are preparing to take their share of the bags, and local groups and organizations are cooperating with work. Ditty bags may be obtained from the Red Cross Committee, Mrs. H. M. Warne, Chairman, and the filled bags are to be returned on or before October 15 for shipment to Halifax. Cash donations will also be gratefully received, no amount being too large or too small to be appreciated.

Infantile Paralysis Ban Lifted

The ban imposed on Saturday, September 5th by the Digby Board of Health because of the three infantile paralysis cases in the Digby General Hospital, was lifted Monday morning. Schools, churches, theatre and public gatherings are now permitted.

We are pleased to report the polio patients are progressing favorably and responding to treatment.

General Knox Interviewed

Two girls whose forebears came from Suffolk met in the nation's Capital recently.

Major-General Jean Knox, Controller-General and Director of the Auxiliary Territorial Service in Great Britain, who is on a tour of Canada in connection with the Canadian Women's Army Corps, was interviewed by 2nd Lieut. Barbara Bullock-Webster, of Victoria, B.C., public relations officer to the C.W.A.C.

General Knox congratulated the Canadian officer on having graduated from MacDonald College Training Centre, Ste. Anne deBellevue. "I know you must be very proud of your 'pips' said General Knox. "I think it's grand, and now your real work begins, doesn't it?"

"I know just how you feel," the A.T.S. Leader said. "When you tell of the parade in Montreal when you marched shoulder to shoulder with your brothers-in-arms, do you realize that in Great Britain, in Canada, in Australia and in New Zealand, as well as in South Africa, young women are doing exactly the same thing and feeling just as you did about it? Can anything but good come of that feeling of unity? I think not".

Second Lieut. Bullock-Webster who had been a member of the editorial staff of the Daily Colonist, is the daughter of W. H. Bullock-Webster, well-known British Columbia barrister, whose father served in the British Army in India, and whose relatives belong to Suffolk, the home county of General Knox. "Some of the best people come from Suffolk", she laughed, adding, "I wish you the very best of luck".

Old Rags Help The Bombers

Britain's old rags, going into the factories at the rate of hundreds of tons a day, are coming out in the form of Army blankets, surgical dressings, Air Force maps, Navy charts. Even old rope and string reappears as, camouflage netting.

One place alone is converting old clothes, sacking, carpets and rag scraps to the tune of 250 tons a week. A cutting machine tears two tons of them up an hour. The shreds are shot into a huge tank where they are beaten to pulp at the rate of 50 cwt. an hour. This muddy mass, pressed and dried, becomes felt for padding the seats of tanks and transport lorries, for packing aircraft for shipment, and for protecting armoured cars from vibration.

And old rags are also being turned into thousands of the wipers which munition workers need for taking the grease from shells before they are varnished, for keeping aero engines in order, and for varnishing aeroplane propellers.

If the rags be of wool they become uniforms, blankets, cloth for "utility" suits and dresses.

THE DIGBY COURIER

TERMS:—$1.50 per year in advance. Single copies, 4 cents. DIGBY, NOVA SCOTIA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1942

VOLUME LXIX, NO. 2

Reduction In Hydro Rates Is Granted

A rate reduction to wholesale customers of the Digby County Power Board has been granted by the Nova Scotia Board of Public Utilities. The customers benefiting by this reduction are the Town of Digby, the village of Weymouth, the Municipality of Digby and the Municipality of Clare. The saving to these customers will amount to approximately $5,000 annually, it is understood.

Under the old rate these customers paid 2 cents, 1½ cents and 1 cent a kilowatt hour for electricity purchased from the Digby County Power Board. Under the new rate the first step has been done away with, and charges in future will be 1½ cents and 1 cent per kilowatt hour.

The Town of Digby has also made application to reduce its rate to consumers, but have received no report to date.

Ten Children of One Family at Same School

Mr. and Mrs. Zacharie Malet, from Mavillette, have ten children at the public school of their village. Norman, Clifford, Phyllis, Ambrose and Ambrosine (twins), Bradford, Arsenia, Anne, Ira and Irene (twins). There are five girls and five boys. Four children are in the Advanced Department, and six are in the Primary Department. In fact all their children are at school.

It would be interesting to know if one could find such a record in other schools, in the province, or in fact, in all Canada.

Staging Collapses

A staging collapsed at the Deep Brook Naval Project yesterday, with the result a number of men at work on a building were spilled to the ground. Fortunately none were seriously injured, although Kirk Pinkney, of South Ohio, Yar. Co., was brought to the Digby General Hospital suffering from shock, bruises and a sprained ankle.

The School Problem

For more than a generation ratepayers of Digby have been faced with a problem—one that has been "settled" time and time again by compromise—and one that in spite of the war MUST be faced again. The problem is none other than the Digby school.

There has been a rapid and steady growth in the school population. It has been necessary to cut up assembly halls into class rooms; five years ago a large addition was built on our school—this addition, it was thought, would take care of the situation for many years to come. Within two years there were again overcrowded conditions and the new assembly hall was cut into class rooms to take care of the situation.

Today, in the first grade, there is an enrolment of more than one hundred pupils. Next year and in the years that are to follow the registration of beginners will grow larger and larger. To care for the needs of the first graders it is now necessary to employ two teachers, and at that the little tots are only attending a half session a day (a practice we hope will be continued even after overcrowding is remedied—if it is).

The total school enrolment has increased by approximately 10 per cent over the highest enrolment of last year. Before this term closes the registration is expected to reach the 500 mark!

What is to be done? The situation cannot continue much longer, and the problem of facing it must be dealt with in the very near future. In view of the acute shortage of teachers in many of our rural areas it might be well to consider a consolidated school for the Digby district.

School Enrolment Highest On Record

Registration of 102 pupils in the first grade of the Digby Academy have made it necessary to divide the grades into two classes, viz: Grade 1a and Grade 1b, with Mrs. Gordon Turnbull teacher for the first group, and Mrs. Baden Powell, teacher for the second. Pupils in these classes are attending school for a half session only each day.

The total registration for the school this term is 466, the highest on record. It is expected the registration will reach the 500 mark before the term comes to a close. Registration by classes is as follows:

The high school grades have an enrolment of 73, and are in charge of the following teachers: Charles E. Eaton, principal and supervisor of the Digby Academy; Miss Elizabeth MacWhinnie, vice-principal; Miss Greta Zinck and Miss Ruth Campbell (Miss Campbell is also Domestic Science instructor). Meria Stonehouse is Manual Training instructor.

Miss Violet Woodman, teacher for Grade VIII has 25 pupils under her instruction. Thirty-nine are registered in Grade VII with Miss M. Woodworth. Miss Vera Mason, teacher for Grade VI has 38 pupils on her roll, while Miss Grace Hubley for Grade V has 43.

In Grade IV there is an enrolment of 46 with Miss Bessie Turnbull as teacher; Miss Lillian MacRae, teacher for Grade III has 46 in her class, and Miss M. Winter, Grade II has 42. Forty-eight pupils are registered in Grade Ia and 54 in Grade Ib.

Folk along Digby Neck and especially Tiddville, are going to miss Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Stanton, who leave on October 1st for Willimington, Mass., where they will make their home with their daughter, Mrs. Reginald Merritt. Mr. Stanton was a visitor at our office yesterday. He is now 84 years of age, and has been living in Tiddville all his life.

W. E. VanBlarcom went to Meteghan today on business.

ACCIDENTS ARE FATAL

Donald Sanford, of the Royal Canadian Engineers, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sanford, of Clementsport, died in hospital in England, Thursday morning, as the result of an accident during target practice. Sanford was 22 years of age, and was very popular. He was a graduate of Annapolis Royal Academy, and before going overseas, worked with his father as a carpenter. His brother James, is serving in Newfoundland.

Word has been received by the family of Charles Doucet, of St. Bernard, of his accidental death in Labrador. Details of the accident were not given in the telegram. He had just been working there for about a month. He is survived by his widow and six children, all at home, Hilmarion, Jennie, Pierre, Marguerite, Pius and Bernard and two brothers, Fred at St. Bernard; Willie on the police force of Attleboro, Mass.; two sisters, Mrs. Alphonse Gaudet of St. Bernard and Grace at Lincoln, Mass.

Deceased was 51 years of age and was a widely travelled man, having gone on a two years' voyage that took him all around the world.

Destroyer "Ottawa" Sunk By Enemy

Naval Minister MacDonald has announced a German torpedo sent the Canadian destroyer Ottawa to the bottom of the Atlantic with loss of 113 lives.

The loss was just one more indication of the grim fighting in which the ships of the Canadian navy have been involved since the enemy swung his submarine forces northward to strike at trans Atlantic convoys after leaving them more or less alone for some six months while hunting coastwise tankers and other ships further south.

It was the third naval loss announced in a week and the 10th ship lost by Canada's sea fighting force in the present war. In the death-toll it approached the loss of the destroyer Margaree in 1940 when 142 lives were lost.

Among those lost with the Ottawa are two young men, well known in this section: Arthur Haliburton King, O.S., R.C.N.V.R., son of Mrs. Mary King, Annapolis Royal, and Roy Munroe Roop, A.B., R.C.N.V.R., son of Mrs. Catherine Roop, Clementsport.

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Gabriel, of Bedford, are spending part of their vacation in town.

Miss Kate Tobin has returned to Halifax after spending a few days at her home.

Mrs. W. E. VanBlarcom went to Halifax yesterday to visit her daughter and granddaughter.

Mrs. J. M. Small, of Tiverton, and her mother, Mrs. Leslie Finigan, of Freeport, were in town yesterday.

Band Members Join Reserves

A special meeting of the Digby Civic Band was called for last Thursday evening by Mayor Theriault to consider joining up, in a body, with the Digby Defence Unit, as the official Band of the organization. All the bandmen attended. Bandmaster Paul Yates explained the advantages to the Band and to the community, and the conditions necessary to avoid interference with regular band practice without which the Band would soon disintegrate. The recruiting officer, Mayor Theriault, followed with an address outlining the importance of 'Home Defence' and the very important part the Band could take in helping build up the Digby unit by encouraging new recruits, and by adding greatly to the interest and pleasure of the men while drilling, besides giving Digby the prestige of being the only small town Defence organization having its own Band.

Mr. Theriault explained to the bandmen that their rehearsals would not be interfered with, because once a week, or oftener, the Band could spend its drill night in rehearsing in the Band Room after answering roll call, with a second roll call at the Band Room.

The Band responded heartily at once and every male member "signed up", with the exception of a few whose physical disabilities made them ineligible. David Daley, who had previously been appointed by Mr. Yates as Assistant Leader of the Civic Band, will have charge of the branch band during drills. At present only 14 players are available, and capable musicians are urged to join. Applicants must apply to Bandmaster Yates for qualifications tests and assignment to the instrument needed, and must join as member of the Civic Band. The new Band will be known as the "Home Defence Branch of the Digby Civic Band". All instruments in use are being loaned by the Civic Band.

Will Hold Fair Again Next Year

A resolution was passed at a meeting of the Maple Leaf Agricultural Society, at Hill Grove, Monday evening, to hold another Community Fair, similar to the one held last week on the farm of James Roop & Son, next summer. Reports of the committees in charge of last week's fair—the first of its kind to be sponsored by the society, were most encouraging from every point of view. Net proceeds were approximately $140, which amount was divided equally between the Society and the Red Cross, three local auxiliaries receiving $70 to be shared between them.

Members of the society who won prizes at the fair, advised the committee they will turn their prize money into the Society's treasury as a contribution to go toward the expenses of the fair planned for next season. It is expected other no-member prize winners will make a similar gesture.

Today will be a great day in Clare. After 30 years of hard work the beautiful new church at St. Bernard, undoubtedly the finest country church in Nova Scotia, will be officially opened and dedicated to the service of God. The church stands as a monument to the devotion and faithful work of the people of St. Bernard and surrounding districts. For 30 years they have given of their means in cash, time and material to complete this work which was begun by Rev. Father E. LeBlanc, then parish priest but a year or two later elevated to the bishopric of Saint John, where he died a few years ago. A number of other parish priests, among them Rev. Father Bourneuf, D.P., now rector of Meteghan, but the work of finishing the church fell upon another LeBlanc, Father Elie LeBlanc, now parish priest. Most Reverend John T. McNally, D. D., Archbishop, will direct the ceremony this afternoon and will be assisted by a great many of the priests of the diocese. This ceremony will be deeply impressive and no doubt the church will be filled to its capacity—and it is a large church. The people of St. Bernard have the best wishes of all their fellow citizens in the county—Catholic and Protestant.

Attention, Please!

Last week in publishing an article on our front page re. purchases of sugar for preserving grapes, cranberries and quinces, a line from Mr. Morrison's letter was accidentally omitted, resulting in a misunderstanding. In order to clear the matter we are repeating the last paragraph of the letter:

"Our ration officer, Mr. J. F. Hillion, informs me that the answer to your question is 'yes, it is permissible to anticipate sugar purchases for these items before September 30. The sugar must be used for this purpose not later than October 31, 1942.'"

The original, as it appeared in the Courier, seemed to infer that purchases may be made up until October 31. However the fact is the purchases must be made before September 30 and the sugar so purchased must be used before October 31.

Aged Man Badly Hurt In Accident

Leodore Doucette, 79, was critically injured Tuesday evening, while crossing the road in front of his home in Saulnierville. According to report a car driven by Dennis Germain, Concession, was involved in the accident. Taken to Yarmouth County Hospital, he was found to have both legs broken, also an arm, and various other injuries.

He was for many years foreman of D.A.R. extra gangs, and for the last few years engaged in large scale lumbering operations.

Bless Flags Of Meteghan Scouts

An impressive ceremony took place on Sunday 13, after vespers at 7.30 in the Stella Maris church, at Meteghan, when Right Rev. Mgr. Bourneuf, pastor, blessed the three flags, emblems of the Scouts who attended in a body in front seats of the church and at the rail. Rev. Father Delbie Comeau, curate at Yarmouth, Scouts' chaplain, Rev. Roaul Dèveau, General Scouts' Master of Meteghan River, assisted in the ceremony.

After the benediction and the reading of the consecration to the Sacred Heart of Jesus, Mgr. Bourneuf delivered an appropriate sermon on the duties of the Scout.

Rev. Father A. Theriault, curate, directed the choir with Joseph LeBlanc at the organ.

Hold Funeral Of Shipping Man

Funeral services for Donald H. Thurber, 65, one of the best known shipping men on the Atlantic coast, who died in Digby two weeks ago, were largely attended on Monday, the 14th, at Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Thurber's home was at Belmont, a suburb of Boston.

He was president and general manager of the Coastwise Oil Transfer Company with offices in New York and Boston. He was at one time in charge of maintenance for the old France and Canada Steamship Lines. He was only 18 years old when he went to the United States from the Maritime Provinces to follow a career in marine transportation.

Mrs. Harry Saunders, of Sandy Cove, has been a visitor at the home of Mrs. G. J. Matthews.

About This and That

Our Reserve Army

Last week in these columns the purpose of our Reserve Army was discussed. World events in the past three years should have removed all doubts as to the necessity for the creation and maintenance of such a unit. Many ask the question, "Who is eligible to join the Reserve Army?" The answer is very simple. Single men between the ages of 17 and 19 and between the ages of 35 and 50 inclusive (C category or better) are eligible, (as are single men of C category age 20 to 35 both inclusive). Married men between the ages of 30 to 50 are eligible. In the case of married men for the purpose of eligibility for the Reserve Army in the married category, they are only considered now as married men if they were married before the 15th day of July, 1940. A man being married after the 15th day of July, 1940 is within the Army regulations considered single, but is eligible to join the Reserve Army as a single man if now within the proper age limits of a single man. As a further condition of eligibility, a man must have a medical category of C or better.

Many ask the question, "How and where do we join?" The answer to this is simple. All you have to do is contact one of the officers in the local unit. Persons interested should go to the barracks situate at the Racquette on Monday or Thursday evenings and see for themselves what the training is like. He will provide you with the necessary application form and arrange or you can arrange yourself for a physical examination by your own doctor.

The local unit trains two evenings each week. Each evening session consists of a two hour training period. In addition it is proposed to carry out weekend manoeuvres and training schedules that will be arranged by the officers in charge so that they will not conflict with the ordinary civilian duties of the men. Your training is all carried on in the above manner locally. The only exception is that in the summer you can, if your civilian duties permit, attend Camps for a period of two weeks. Your instruction is given you by competent, well-trained instructors and the type of instruction is similar to that given in the regular Army. You are paid on the Reserve Army schedule for the time devoted.

The men who have joined the unit to date enjoy the work thoroughly. It provides a medium of healthful exercise, good comradeship and excellent training in military drill and tactics, and to a far greater measure it is providing a well-trained local unit that will eventually be prepared to acquit itself well in case it should ever be called upon to do so.

The Reserve Army needs men in the categories listed above. See one of the officers of the local unit now and accept the privilege which is offered you by joining this unit.

Thousands of young men in uniform are becoming better acquainted with Canada, just because they are in the service. Some may never go overseas, but if they do nothing more than train in the Dominion, the experience will have been well worth while. It's a fine thing to know your own country, anyway. Hundreds of thousands of persons have lived a lifetime in the Dominion without having gone far from their own community. They missed a lot. Canada is well worth looking at.

The enforcement of a superabundance of red tape may, from the official viewpoint, be a necessity, but to the man in the street it could be greatly reduced with general relief and advantage to everybody concerned. Citizens spend so many hours struggling with forms and other documents. Privately, they have their doubts as to how clearly they understand it all, or the good it will do. But they do know there is too much of something.

Recently R. S. Hudson, Britain's minister of agriculture, announced that England was now producing two-thirds of its own food as compared with one-fourth before the war. He was asking for still more and was coming to the point of proving the contention of those few—widely held to be reckless irresponsibles—who have maintained that Britain could and should raise practically all her food requirements.

In war, hard won individual rights have a tendency to be foregone, in the greater need of the moment. Never before, however, has the disclosure of private affairs to the employer been contemplated on such a scale as in Mr. Daley's 1942 budget proposals.

ABIDE WITH US

The following beautiful lines were written by Rev. R. D. Bambrick, rector of Yarmouth as "a prayer to be sung", for use by the congregation of his church during the duration of the First Great War (1914-18), the music being by his organist, Mr. Spicer.

ABIDE WITH US

Tune: Spicer's "Bathouse."

When the days are dreary,
And our heads we bend,
As sad hearts grow weary
Waiting for the end.

GOD OF COMFORT hear us,
Heal our blinded sight;
Whisper Thou art near us,
Battling for the right.

When the days are dreary,
While our foes succeed;
When fond hearts grow weary;
For their boys who bleed.

GOD OF BATTLES hear us,
Keep our courage bright;
Tell us Thou art near us
Battling for the right.

When the days are dreary,
With the thought that sin
Makes the task more weary,
For our men to win.

GOD OF MERCY hear us,
Cleanse from evil's blight,
Pardon us, be near us,
Triumph for the right!

Strong Foundations

Every task of any importance should be done thoroughly, of course, but the future should be considered in its performance. All work faithfully and efficiently done is destined to live. Therefore it bears a relation to the future.

Every task performed is a potential foundation upon which will rest a superstructure. We are living not merely for today, but also for tomorrow. Others as well as ourselves will build upon the foundations that we are laying today, just as we are building upon foundations laid by our fathers in years gone by.

Unfortunately there are flimsy foundations being laid today, if indeed they can be called foundations. Short cuts, superficial efforts, material attainments, strivings for personal gains, partisanship, response to a temporary stimulus that will produce something alluring and enticing for the time being, but which will not stand the acid test of time—these are the temptations and tendencies of the day.

Many a person, having lost the precious opportunities of a lifetime, and failing to lay in impressionable and critical years a strong foundation, is today finding it difficult to attain usefulness and success.

Authorities tell us that Napoleon, employing conscription, for years took the largest sturdiest, most healthy of the nation's manhood for his armies. Thinking more of the present than of the future, he thereby shortened the stature of the next generation two inches, for second-rate men were those left behind.

In numerous relations today what we are doing, thinking, reading, saying, praying for, and striving for, will have its effect on the next generation.

Half of Italian Fleet Now Sunk

More than two-thirds of Italy's merchant vessels have been sunk or damaged and about 50 per cent of Italy's naval striking power lies at the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea after 25 months of war with Britain.

That claim is based on figures obtained after a check of confirmed sinkings and damage inflicted upon axis supply ships and warcraft by British forces over, on, and under the sea.

The British assert that Italy definitely has lost 1,479,000 tons of merchant ships since her entry into the war, in June, 1940. The total tonnage sunk or damaged is given as 2,366,000—and Italy's merchant marine at the beginning of the war was a little more than 3,000,000 tons, covering all categories.

Of Italy's fighting ships, four eight-inch gun cruisers of a possible dozen are listed as sunk by the British. Italy was tagged for the heaviest losses in the destroyer category, where Britain lists 50 definitely sunk.

English navy sources stress that it is doubtful whether Italy has been able to do much about replacing her losses because of a shortage of steel and other materials. It is known that Italy had to hold up work on two new battleships for some time because of lack of armor plate with which to protect themselves.

This is a battle for your homes and rights—Enlist now.

Not all the bait which will be used in next season's lobster fishing is being brought from across the Bay. While a lot is being freighted from Campobello and Grand Manan, considerable has been secured at points on this side of the Bay, principally from weirs up in St. Mary's Bay. Captain Alfred L. THE BOMBER PRESS VISITS ENGLAND

(By Walter R. Legge in collaboration with C. V. Charters)

Being the first of a series of articles on Canadian Forces in England written especially for the weekly newspapers of Canada by their two representatives on a sponsored tour of England.

To pay a visit to England under present day conditions, it is necessary to have government permission or invitation. In the case of the recent visit by Canadian editors, the result of a suggestion by Gen. McNaughton that a party of Canadian Editors should be given an opportunity to see just how the Canadian forces were living and training overseas. Two weekly editors were asked to become members of the party. The choice fell to C. V. Charters, managing editor of the C.W.N.A., and Walter R. Legge, immediate past president of the association.

The party assembled in Montreal and prepared to leave for England by Bomber Ferry Command. Preparation for the trip gives the first definite feeling that one is entering the war zone when the "briefing" takes place. This is a long and serious procedure involving a complete check of passports, life details and credentials. Following the clerical details, the prospective voyager is fitted with parachute harness.

This is a heavy and cumbersome affair which has to be fitted tightly and leaves the victim feeling he is something like a trussed ox. After receiving full instruction on how to operate the parachute, measurements are taken for the flying suit which is necessary in most flights which are at varying heights from 10,000 to 25,000 feet. Next comes fitting and instructions in the use of the oxygen mask, also necessary at those great heights.

Baggage, which is limited to 40 lbs. is weighed in. After further details, passengers are sent to the hotel with instructions to await a call.

On comparing notes after this routine, we found that nearly every member of the party was told a different story as to when we might start. Some were told that there was no plane available while others were told to be ready at 8.30 the next morning, and others were instructed to expect a call sometime in the middle of the night.

This is probably part of the plan to keep movements as secret as possible. Actually the cars called for us at the hotel early the next morning.

The plane arranged for us was a large four-motored Liberator, which had been fitted with two long benches for us to sit on. Seven of our party had left a couple of days before, but other passengers with us made the party up to 13, a fact which did not seem to bother anyone.

Several in the party were going into the air for the first time and could not escape a feeling of trepidation. Those big machines give a feeling of tremendous power and it did not seem strange to be far above the clouds in a few minutes.

The amount of room in the plane was surprising, and while there was not enough space for everyone to lie down it was not really crowded. The noise is deafening, and prevents and lengthy conversation. There is really nothing to do but read, but it did not seem a long time before we were in Newfoundland. This is the real way to see what the country looks like, and the plane coming down to about 5,000 feet, we had a fine view of the country, and could really appreciate the amount of water in this island.

Four hours and a half after leaving Montreal, we were gently set down on a huge airport in Newfoundland.

A railway train attracted our attention and the engine carried a message painted on its sides, "Britain Delivers the Goods".

After a stop of about four hours, the party embarked again. We settled as well as we could for a long tedious night as the plane steadily forged ahead at a high speed. Looking through the small windows we could see a breathtaking vista of a fleecy floor of clouds brilliantly illuminated by the moon.

The longest night comes to an end, and soon after a wonderful sunrise, views of Northern Ireland could be obtained through breaks in the clouds. The views of the Irish countryside, which looked like an old fashioned patchwork quilt will always remain as one of the most beautiful sights we have ever seen. Soon we approached our destination and the pilot set the huge plane down with hardly a tremor.

Our formalities with the customs and immigration were expedited and after breakfast that we had not enough time to finish, we started on the train journey to London, a journey which took longer than the trip from America. Everyone has to look after his own baggage these days on the English railroads, and space on the trains is at a premium. The first group of our party were forced to stand up for hours on this long trip, but we were more fortunate in that respect, although we had nothing to eat all day until late at night at London.

We have described our trip across the Atlantic in some detail, but until after our return to Canada when we can write at leisure, only the outline of our activities will be given.

It had been announced that we would have four days to rest up after our arrival, but we soon wondered what they meant by "rest". Every moment seemed to be crowded with some appointment.

Saturday was taken up with registration, and application for ration cards, photos for our passes of which there were so many that Napier Moore claimed that he had to buy a duffle bag to hold them.

Just before noon, we had a conference with the Canadian High Commissioner, the Hon. Vincent Massey, at which he welcomed the editors. In the course of this informal discussion Mr. Massey remarked that there were too few Canadian resident correspondents against 15 Australian and about 200 American.

For lunch we were taken to the Canadian Officers Club, which is near Canada House, and found Mrs. Vincent Massey behind a counter serving the meal.

The program for Sunday was a full one. Starting out, the two representatives of the weekly press attended early service at St. Martin-in-the-fields. Then after a hurried breakfast, the whole party started off in cars to visit a farm which had won many medals as the best farm in Berkshire. This will be described in more detail in subsequent articles.

Afterward we went on to Maidenhead, on the banks of Monday was an even more exacting day. Lengthy visits were paid to Canadian Red Cross Headquarters, a Canadian Legion Hostel, the Salvation Army hostel on Southampton Row, the Y.M.C.A. hostel, on Leinster Court Road, the Knights of Columbus hostel in the same street, the Maple Leaf Club, the Union Jack Club, and the Beaver Club. Then we visited the Daily Telegraph, the Reuters Building, and ended up late at night at the Daily Telegraph. In each of these places we went up and down stairs and through room after room so that most of us welcomed our beds.

On Tuesday, the High Commissioner gave a luncheon for the members of the party which was a notable affair in that much valuable information was secured. After visits to various places in the afternoon, the day concluded with a visit to the Daily Express.

Wednesday morning was spent at the British Ministry of Information, and at noon we met Major General, the Hon. P. J. Montague, who is senior officer of the Canadian Military Headquarters.

This conference lasted some time, after which detailed instructions concerning the forthcoming trip was given, and we prepared to really start work the next day.

The summary of our activities will continue in the next article, and more detailed accounts of the various phases of our activities will follow later.

"The Fleet's In" Promises Gobs of Tunes, Laughs

A smooth blending of the talent of three popular stars and a host of top flight entertainers, plus nine top tunes swung out by one of the nation's best bands, and a story that's got hilarious possibilities, can be confidently expected when "The Fleet's In", new paramount comedy with music ties up Monday, Tuesday at the Capitol Theatre.

The chief roles are occupied by Dorothy Lamour, who wears a sarong or not, as the occasion requires (this time it doesn't); William Holden, last seen in an aviator's uniform in "It Wanted Wings," and Eddie Bracken, popular screen funster.

The roster of featured entertainers looks like the impressive line-up of talent for a United Service Organization show for the boys in camp. There's Betty Hutton, America's Number One Jitterbug; Betty Jane Rhodes, song stylist; Jimmie Dorsey and his orchestra with vocalists Bob Eberly and Helen O'Connell; Cass Daley, singer of song novelties; Gil Lamb, who does amazing things with a harmonica, and Lorraine and Rognan, well-known comedy dance team. All this, and Dorothy Lamour, too!

Half of the carload will be 54 Oxfords, mostly special orders. The next shearling rams and breeders' largest group will be 32 Cheviots, mostly rams for ram club members. Eight Leicesters, Eight Dorset Horn, four Southdown, three Hampshires, two Suffolks and two Shropshires make up the balance of the shipment.

Orders for rams through ram clubs and provincial policy for assistance to purebred breeders at September 15 totalled 105 Oxfords, 25 Shropshires, 20 Cheviots and 12 Leicesters. Private orders for Hampshires, Suffolks and Southdown bring the total list of rams required to date to 175 head. Farmers who wish to secure good purebred rams should ask their agricultural representative as soon as possible for details of assistance before the supply is all gone.

Livestock Feed Situation

This year's crop of wheat is the largest in the history of Canada. Along with other grains it will be double that of last year. The 1941 crop of wheat, oats, barley and rye amounted to 739,000,000 bushels. This year's crop is estimated at 1,574,000,000 bushels. Analysing these statistics, F. W. Walsh, Director of Marketing, says: "It would seem that there should be ample feed for the livestock requirements of Canada, and further that there is a real possibility that there will be considerable low grade wheat, even in excess of that which can be fed on western farms, so that it will have to be sold in Eastern Canada. If this is correct, and there is considerable low grade wheat, it may result in a situation that we had on our last big crop, namely 1928, when we had 567,000,000 bushels. That year there was a great deal of frosted wheat which was graded 5 and 6, and sold from .25 to .30 cents a bushel below No. 1 grade. The reports of the last eight months show that No. 5 is selling from 9-10½ cents below No. 1. If, therefore, this spread widens because of a surplus of low grade wheat, and if the subsidy of 8 cents a bushel applies to low grade as well as high grade wheat, the price of wheat landed to Nova Scotia should again be a good buy."

Rafuse - Bacon

The Hill Grove Baptist church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, Sept. 16, when Miss Helen Gilmore, daughter of Mrs. Frances and the late William A. Bacon, became the bride of Walter Hilton Rafuse, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rafuse, of Young's Cove, N.S. Rev. Milton C. Munn, officiated, the double-ring ceremony being used. The church was prettily decorated with a profusion of cut flowers and fern. The guest pews were marked with nosegays of blue bachelor buttons and white alysium tied with white satin bows. The bridal couple took their places under a white arch entwined with evergreen and pink rosebuds. The bride's sister, Miss Marion Bacon, presided at the organ and played for the processional, "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin. The recessional was Mendelssohn's "Wedding March". While the guests were assembling and during the service, Miss Bacon played special nuptial music. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Catherine Bacon, as maid of honor. Joseph Rafuse was his brother's groomsmen. The ushers were Lloyd Adams and Garnett Adams, cousins of the bride. The bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Fletcher Adams, and looked charming in a floor length jacket dress of white bridal satin, fashioned on princess lines, having a sweetheart neckline and trimmed with tiny self covered buttons to the hipline in back. The jacket had lace inserts. Her veil which was held in place by a halo of orange blossoms was of silk embroidered net and extended beyond the hem of her gown, forming a slight train. Silver slippers completed her costume. The bride's only ornament was a Kingfisher Wing brooch fashioned in the form of a Butterfly, a gift from HongKong. She carried a cascade bouquet of Crimson Roses, Calla Lilies and bouvardia. The white satin streamers held tiny rosebuds. The maid of honor was gowned in a floor length model of triple sheer in minuet blue with shirred bodice and deep yoke of silver leaves and rhinestones. Her coronet was fashioned from pink shirred tulle and had a blue bow on either side. She wore silver slippers. Her cascade bouquet was of Briarcliffe roses and bouvardia. The bride's mother wore a dress of black crepe, having a V-neckline and bracelet length sleeves. She wore black and white accessories. Her corsage was of mauve gladioli. About 150 guests assembled at the home of the bride's mother, immediately following the ceremony. The rooms were decorated with a profusion of cut flowers. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, surmounted by a miniature bride and groom; and ivory tapers in silver candlesticks. The linen cloth which covered the gift table was an heirloom, having been woven by the great-great-aunt of the bride, from home grown flax. Blue and white streamers completed the decorations. For travelling, the bride donned a crepe dress in diplomat blue, dove grey coat and matching accessories. She wore a black fox fur. The happy couple received many beautiful gifts including silver, china, linen, cheques, etc. The bride's gift to the maid of honor was a pearl necklace, to the organist, a Yardley's set. The groom's gift to the groomsmen and ushers were billfolds. Mr. and Mrs. Rafuse are spending their honeymoon, touring the An-
