Bring In The C. P. R.!

Bring In The C. P. R.! In a letter to the Chignecto Canal Editor of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal, also published in The Halifax Chronicle-Herald and The Halifax, MaitStar, Gordon B. Isnor, M.P.-elect, makes the interesting suggestion that before the Chignecto Canal is under-taken "favorable consideration should be given to the establishment of a car ferry operating between Saint John, N. B., and Digby, N. S., in this way linking up the Canadian Pacific Railway at Saint John with its subsidiary line, the D.A.R., at Digby, and thus mak-ing Halifax the eastern terminus of the C.P.R. Of all the great ports in the Dominion, Halifax is the only prevalue is not served directly by both of the great national' trans-portation systems, and the fact that the C.P.R., as a transcontinent-al railway, has no direct connection with this port has worked to its detriment for many years. While we are at least twenty-four hours nearer the great ports of Liverpool and Southampton than Saint John, Halifax has been for years and continues to see occan linere pass us by and take the longer route to our sister city, simply because the latter is and has been served by both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National laukays.

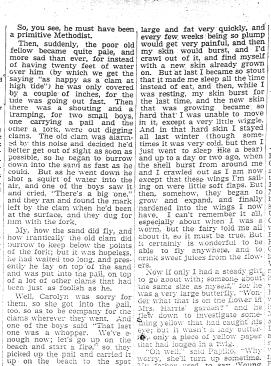

seen for years and continues to see ocean inters pass us by and take the longer route to our sister city, simply because the latter is and has been served by both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways. For more than half a century the people of Nova Scotia have been agitating to bring the CP.R. to this province, and Mr. Isnor has now suggested a practical method of doing so. It is true that difficulties are involved in placing a car ferry (similar to that operating between Borden and Tormentine) on the route between Saint John and Digby, but what worthwhile project is free from difficulties? There is the first cost of construction of the ferry, probably somewhere in the vicinity of five or six million dollars. Then there is the problem of the great rise and fail of the tide at Saint John and Digby which can only be overcome by special terminal facilities at both ports, but the cost of such facilities, while substantial, is by no means prohibitive. In these days when all methods of transportation have their problems, not the least among them are the railways. With high costs of construction and abnormally nigh operating costs, it is too much to expect that the C.P.R., a privately owned company, should bear the whole cost of establishing the link which Mr. Isnor has suggested should connect its transcontinental system with this great.port. The Government should certainly provide the terminal facilities, and we think should also subsidize both the construction of a suitable ferry and its operation. In the light of large governmental expenditures being made to maintain railway services to P.E.L and Newfoundland, in the light of the huge sums paid annually from the public funds for the maintenance of the St. Lawrence waterways, including the up-keep of the canal system—it does not seem to us that the necessary governmental assistance for the establishment of this car ferry is too much for Nova Scotians to ask or expect, and we believe that Nova Scotians would enthusiastically welcome the C.P.R. to Hal one of the boys said "That last one of the boys said "That last one was a whopper. We've e-nough now; let's go up on the beach and start a fire," so they plicked up the pail and carried it up on the beach to the spot where some stones and iron bars had been made into a sort of fire-place, and then, having gathered sticks, they lit a fire, and prepar-ed to bake the old clam and his friends over it—and then each clam knew his time had come, so they all said goodbye to one an-other and to Carolyn, and with-drew into their shells, and would come out no more. Then the fairy, for the last time, waved her wand and summoned a help-er, and lo, a magnificent goid and black butterfly, with blue spots on his wings and two long tails (for which he'd been named a "Swallow-tail") came floating by and lit on a flower by the shore, and Carolyn found herself seated on his back, even as she'd been on the backs of the bee and the butterfly. "Hone," cried Ca-rolyn galy. And away they went. Caro-lyn thought he was a gorgeous boy, as a certain girl in Ottawa once described Lindbergh. 'and would have liked to ask him questions, but he seemed sort of struck on himself, so it took her some time to get up her courage. They flew by the Pines gardens, where they saw the mermaids and the mermen splashing in and out of the pool, keeping their backs wet so that the sun-tan wouldn't crack, and they came over the Racquette Gardens be-fore she said. "Please tell me your name." "Papilio, the Swallow-tail." re-piled he, which seemed to Caro-lyn like a buil fighter say.

It is a human tendency to lame everything and every-ody but ourselves for our failures. Jack complains about his working conditions, his boss and everyone he deals with on, the job. Somehow it hasn't occurred to him that, although his environment is not perfect and should be improved, the main cause of his trouble lies within himself.

Reports show that the com-monest cause of job failures is not lack of technical skill, but poor personality qualities—par-ticularly a non-cooperative attitude, unreliability and lack of initiative. Reports show that the com-aonest cause of job failures is ot lack of technical skill, but routlarly a non-cooperative finitiative. Those who have the opposite qualities — cooperativeness, dependability and driving ini-tiative — are not blind to the defects in their environment. But instead of criticizing, you will find them trying to im-prove those defects through their own efforts.

Above all, you will find them trying to correct their own personal shortcomings. To such men the world offers the biggest rewards!

TANTE HALWAX

THE WORLDLY MAN'S VACATION

By JOHN W. FRASER. By JOHN W. FRASER. Doesn't jar me one iota if the meeting house is closed, I'm no reg'lar church attender — not religiously disposed. But beneath a shallow sufface I've a love for sacred things. Though I feel no call within me when the bell for worship rings.

Though I feel no call within me when the bell for worship rings. I am such a busy mortal, I have never time to pray; Seems I'm always inconvenienced with the shortness of the day; There are many titings unfinished when the sun sinks in the West; And I'm wrestling with problems when my mind should be at rest. I've no time to read the Bible or peruse its many books; I'd much rather read of gangsters and the underwordd of crooks. When the preacher talks of Heaven and the glories waiting there, Who has time to think of angels climbing up the golden stair. I have golf on Sunday morning; in the afternoon, a swim; In the evening Charl McCarthy suits my every taste and whim. I'm a busy man on Sunday, and am always on the jump; If I failed to join the rabble I would he a sily clump!

There is baseball every Sunday, and cear Master. I'm afraid I could never sit in meetin' with it ninety in the shade. I have paid a year's concession selling temonade and pop; If I went to church on Sunday wouldn't business be a flop?

I have bought a brand new flivyer which I needs must go and try; Had to buy it on instalment, and the price of gas is high. I must take the whole of Sunday, have to work hard all the week; Can't afford a cent for meetin' — reason is not, far to seek!

Every Sunday through the summer we just live inside the car; How the kids enjoy the outing — be it near or be it far; And my little baby daughter, ere she leaves the family door, Prays: "Good-bye, dear Lord in Heaven, we are going to the shore!"

I've a book of prayerful readings which I purchased for a dime; I have never scanned its pages, just because I haven't time; But each night upon retiring I invoke each unread line, And I say to God in Heaven: "These are sentiments of mine!"

I've a quarrel with Church attenders, and some busy-bodies, too, Who persist in passing judgment on the pulpit from the pew. I'm not saint g nor am I sinner; but these underhanded blurts Wound the preacher of the gospel; and they wound him till it hurts!

five been told of shady deacons making long and solemn prayers; And I laugh at worldly elders putting on their Sunday airs; I have heard it said that people user religion as a cloak; f Cannot class me with such mortals - 1 am no religious bloke!

When the Sunday School was cancelled, and the mid-week meetin', too, No one thought of 'tendin' service all the joyful summer through! It was not the preacher's doing, but the people in the pews Who curtailed the hours of worship and Teneged on paying dues.

Folks have told me that religion hasn't lost its ancient power,
But I couldn't sit in meetin' if it went beyond an hour.
I attend all social functions, 'specially when they're serving beans;
There I meet the wrinkled spinsters and the young ones in their teens.

I've a spattering of knowledge — always tried to dodge the school Not unlike the ancient sinner who confessed "Tve played the fool." To convince you I'm no dullard when it comes to Bible truths, I can pass a test in Scripture with the brainlest of youths.

I have heard of Jacob's ladder which ascended to the sky; Annanias and Sapphira, who conspired to tell a lie. Of the fish that swallowed Jonah when he tried to run away; How the sun stood in the heavens; and prolonged a summer day.

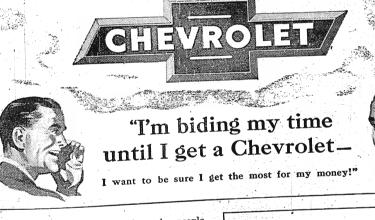

That the years of man are numbered and that flesh was naugh

but grass; How the Philistines were slaughtered with the jawbone of an ass! How the Philistines were slaughtered with the jawbone of an ass! Of the flood and ancient Noah, liftle Moses in the rushes; Of the men who came from Eschol with the grapes both large and Of the men who came from Eschol with the grapes both large and

Of the gourd that covered Jonah when he gazed upon the city; Of the king who threatened David-when he tried to play a dity! Of the miracle at Cana, of the man receiving sight; The disciples toiling, weary, and the fish refused to bite.

The disciples toiling, weary, and the fish refused to bite. I'm not keen on 'tending' service, 'nor' religiously disposed: Would not shed a tear or holler if the meetin' house was closed, In the balmy summer weather. I'm not found in Church at all; If I feel like 'tending worship, you may see me in the Fall. Have received many compliments from readers of The Courier on 'Minister on Vacation'. Thank you. Glad you enjoyed it. Have not seen any of the ministers since its publication (?). Am indebted to Mrs. Hardd E. (Enna) Marshall of Digby for having given me a possible due to the identity of the author, in a letter just received. Also four additional verses that preceded the poem when it was copyrighted back in 1890. Read it and insert it in your scrap book with the other. TOM FARNHAM

The building was first occupied by Robert S. Fitzrandolph, who came to Digky in-1852 after security ing an appendiceship with Law-to and Vassie, Saint John, to open a business of his own. Mr. t Fitzrandolph founded his busi-ness on principles which were somewhat an innovation at the time, but which proved dedidedly successful. He was one of the first merchants in Digby to an anedle to an anchor. In 1874 J. Loran Peters came to Digby from Westport and en-tand del almost everything from Mr. Fitzrandolph's death in 1890 Mr. Peters purchased the busi-ness from the estate and operat-ed it most successfully for many. # It's great to be home again!

They have been good enough to grant me a month's "vaca-tion" from the "San". Nearly half of that month has been spent. But, during that time, I have seen many of my old friends, and hope to see more before I return to Kentville around the 22nd of August. You'll find me at "J. J.'s", up on Birch Street, in a lovely new sunporch that has been built on the house for my benefit.

While I am home I seem to have a terrific urge to get "back to the old grind" and do a bit of newspaper reporting . . . to lay out a few ads . . to design a letterhead or two, and then go out to the back shop, set them up and print them, however, I guess it will be some little time before I really get to be doing those chores compared.

Nevertheless, that day will come, and when it does come you are going to see me, as of yore, parading down "front street" with printer's ink smooched all over my otherwise handsome face — for me that will be a truly happy day!

Again folks, let me again say I hope to see and hear from you while I am home . . . and to the many of you who have called on me, who have sent me cards, gifts and other messages of cheer and hope during these two long years I have been confined to bed, let me again say . . .

A great big "THANK YOU" that comes from the bottom of my heart. _J. M. W. (Mac).

is going ahead and are proud of it. The people of Clare character-ize themselves as "very neigh-bourly" and the place as "very homelike." Because of the pro-valence of a few surnames like Comeau everyone is known by his given name, and if this is al-so common, his own name and his father's name are both used. If these two are common, then the grandfather's name is also added so that sometimes combin-ations are found like "Luca Jean a Jacques." One man said that the people are like a big family and that they are very co-opera-tive.

With CHEMISTRY to brighten his way!

THIS LITTLE FELLOW is a lucky boy ... with Chemistry and its products to serve him at every turn. The water he drinks and bathes in is purified chemically. Chemistry improves his food and makes the containers in which it is served; his nursery gleams with specially created paints and enamels. Nylon, "Cellophane" cellulose film and plastics add to his comfort, safety and enjoyment. And Chemistry, symbolized by the oval trademark of C-I-L will continue to protect and serve him throughout his life, its uses and value broadening with every passing year.

The above figures so familiar to the newspaper world, marking the ending of a story, have been writ-ten to mark the end of a career for a man to whom the newspaper, the smell of printing ink, and the clatty of the presses were the very elements of life.

James MacNaughton Wallis, Associate Editor of he Digby Courier, has gone, but his memory and the narks of his living will long remain. His career as a newspaperman was but a brief one in span of years, but it was one filled with rich experience and marked by a devotion to the trade and avocation which he foi-lowed which is shown only by those who truly believe in and love the work they do.

"Mac", as he was familiarly known to his asso-clates and his wide circle of friends, can truly be said to have sacrificed his life on the altar of his profession for it was his single minded devotion to his work and his labours for long hours and for weeks unending during the wartime rush in the printing industry which lead to the illness that finally marked him as its fatal victim.

Even in the last few days of his illness when, all unknown to him, the shadows of death hovered close around, it was his fond hope to return soon again to the work which he loved; to hear again the rumble of the press, to know the joy of laying out, setting up and running a job, of writing a story or a feature' article. These things have been denied him, but in every line of copy and in every sheet from the presses of The Digby Courier will his spirit remain for many years to come.

Those with whom he worked mark his passing as a close, personal loss, but count their lives the richer for knowing him and enjoying the privilege of associ-ation with him.

Do you think you're too old to achieve success? Have you resigned, yourself to a life of mediocre achievement? Henry Ford was more than forty before he became estab-lished on the road to fame and fortune. Yet he was but one of a host of great leaders in all fields who did not make their mark until they reached middle age.

mark until they reached mark age. This is not surprising. For there is plenty of evidence to prove that, in almost every kind of work, peak efficiency is only attained after many years of experience. An efficiency test of factory workers showed that top producers averaged forty-seven years of age!

Vonsense! Modern psy-chology has exploded this idea sky high. The middle-aged can learn just as well as youth—if they want to. So if you feel that lack of education or technical knowledge is holding you back, don't just bemoan the fact. Start a planned program of study. It's worth the effort!

Practical men of middle-age make definite preparations for their retirement. Millions of people have saved for their old age through life insurance and enjoy basic comforts — and often such "extrast" as mer homes or travel — which bring happiness in "sunset years".

75 Years Of Continuous Publication

With this week's issue the Digby Courier marks the comple-tion of 75 years of continuous publication.

Down through the years since 1874, when the Courier was led by the late R. S. McCormick, this paper has recorded the enings in Digby and its surrounding districts faithfully and In the columns of the Courier files from 1874 to the present be found much of the history of Digby for that time; the re-of the births, deaths and marriages of its citizens and record-f the happenings of the town and its surrounding communiwill be

The Courier has, in the past 75 years, recorded happenings that gave cause for rejoicing in the district which it servers; it has also recorded with sympathy and understanding happenings that brought sorrow to many. Throughout the years it has consistent-by followed the policy laid down by its founder, to present the news fully and fairly and to be a true family newspaper.

Through the years since it was first founded, the Courier has progressed with the times, modernizing its equipment, adding new features to its pages and in general keeping up with progress in the best features of the weekly press. As we mark our 75th anni-versary we renew again the pledge made by the Courier's founder and assure our readers that the Courier will continue, as it has in the past, to present fully and fairly all the news of the community which it serves and strive constantly to increase and improve its facilities for so doing.

At this time we extend to all our readers, correspondents advertisers our sincere appreciation for their splendid support co-operation and voice the hope the harmonious relations that exist will continue for many years to come.

Visit of Archbishop Worrell to Trinity Parish is recorded in the Courier of November 22, 1929.

What precisely is meant by that familiar phrase, "freedom of the press?" I Fundamentally is not a special privilege reserved for newspaper publishers. It is rather a phase of a much larger freedom—the freedom of all men to speak their minds openly and without fear. The press claims no right, which should not belong to every cltizen in a democracy. But freedom of the press is an all im-portant part of this larger freedom because, under modern conditions, the press is the principal agency by which the ordinary man receives the information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public affairs. Without newspapers, or with only gagged and blindfolded ones, lie is in the dark, and helpless. An unfettered press is therefore one of the essential bulwarks of a democratic nation. If any proof he needed, it is provided by the record of the modern totalitarian of the present day. Rigid control of all sources of public information, and especially of newspapers, was of the present day. With it they could keep their peoples in blinkers through the yéars, and drive them on any course they chose. How much of the insecurity and misery in the world today stems from the simple fact that the Russian people—like the German and Italian peoples in earlier years—are prevent-simple fact that the Russian people—like the German and Italian peoples in earlier years—are prevent-sional provide a warning against any attempt, by government or by private interests, to restrict the ea-son which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear of direct or indirect as one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear earlier of direct or indirect is one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear easis staft under, sone which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear easis the the outside pressure. ### A History Of The Legal Profession In Digby

and, while attending the sittings of the court in the various coun-ties, they would be consulted and retained by local parties, who had, or thought they had, need of their services. In this way they picked up many fat fees and con-siderably enlarged their practise and reputations. Notable among the earlier weet. From old files of the Digby Courier and from an article pub-lished in 1934 by the late Frank Jorés K. C., we have compiled the following account of the his-tory of the legal profession in this County. This account is by no means a complete one, but will serve to give an impression of the development of bench and bar in this area. and reputations. Notable among the earlier resi-dent practioners in the town of I Digby were James A. Dennison J and John C. Wade. The former had an office on Water Street in the building now occupied by Yates Studio. He was a man of sound judgement and had the confidence of the people, many of whom regarded him as a guide and philosopher and friend. He lived to a ripe old age and many of his descendents still reside here. bar in this area

In its early days, apparently, most of the legal business in not attended to by this county, lived to a ripe old age and many of his descendents still reside here. John C. Wade was a man of a different type. He was more of a politician than a lawyer, although he enjoyed a good practise. He became a member of parliament for Digby County and experien-ced the ups and downs of a po-litical career which was in those days perhaps more stormy than those of modern day politicians. Two of his sons, Harry and Alan V., also became lawyers. But Harry, a young man of much this county, not attended to by the magistrates, was transacted by lawyers from other parts of the province, mostly from An-napolis and Halifax. First resi-dent barrister was Terrence Kerin in 1789. Several prominent Halifax barristers were in the habit of going on circuit with the Judges of the Supreme Court

But Harry, a young man of much promise, died soon after he began his practise; and Alan V. accept-ed a position in the Civil Service at Ottawa, where he spent the remainder of his life. Undoubtedly, one of the most talented and picturesque charac-tiers that ever adorned the courts of this county was Alfred W. Sa-vary. He was a native of Digby County and was born in 1831 and died in 1920. He resided in the house now occupied by .M. C. Denton on the corner of Birch and Carleton Streets. Tall and graceful in figure, deeply learned in law and gifted with eloquence and originality, he quickly took the lead in his profession. He, i too, turned to the political-field and represented Digby County af. He was later offered and accepted the position of first County flocurt Judge for this district. He enter-ed politics and more than once was elected to represent this li-county at Ottawa. He was born in Amherst in 1858 of Loyalist stock and graduated from Sack-ville. University. He was admitted to the Bar in 1879 and for several years held the position of Crown c prosecutor for this district. # 'Digby Acadian" Early Digby Paper

The Digby Acadian, which was established in 1859 by Albert E. Dodge of Annapolis and Ingram Gidney of Sandy Cove, was a predecessor of the Digby Courier. This paper continued from 1859 until 1863 when its plant, which was located on Water Street be-tween Sydney Street and Birch. Place, two doors north of the Andrews homestead which later became the Waverly Hotel, was destroyed by fire. In 1860 Mr. Gidney withdrew from the part-nership and the paper was then operated until, it ceased publica-tion by Mr. Dodge. Several copies of this interest-ing old paper are still in exist-ance in the files of the Courier The Đigby Acadian, which was tablished in 1859 by Albert E.

From the Courier files, October 16th., 1874.) The very wide-spread interest taken in the government of the country by the people of this county was manifested yesterday by the large number of people who thronged our streets from all parts, with the aim, we take it for granted, of witnessing the nomination of the candidates for nomination of the candidates for the seat now vacant in the Hourse of Commons. When, early last week, the fact became known that the Hon. Mr. Vall was to meet with opposition an interest was excited in the el-ection which was not previously felt. The amount of warm discuss ison usual on such an occasion-was heard—the opposing opinions clashing together in all sorts of jokes, and sometimes rather stin-side we do not find ourselves in a position to interefere with. As the hour of tweive drew near, the people gradually gathered in and Sheriff Srith (pened the Court, when Hon. Mr. Vail and Mr. Tay-lor were nominated for election, in the usual manner. Hon. # Digby Celebrates Dominion Day

Dominion Day From the time of Confedera-tion until the early 1900's, Digby citizens went in for celebrations on Dominion Day in a really grand style. Large amounts of money were subscribed by local stores and business houses to make the day a success and every one joined in the celebration. From the files of the Courier of July 6, 1838, we have taken the following account of one of these gala celebrations. "Digby presented a gala scene on Monday .... Early in the morning visitors from the im-mediate neighborhood, were fil-ling the streets and later, as suc-cessive trafns of the Western Counties Railway arrived, large assessions were made to the num-bers by arrivals from Yarmouth. Weymouth and all along the line. The parade of the Polymor-phians at S o'clock aroused the laggards from their beds with the music of brass bands which headed the parade, containing the usuic act brass bands which headed the parade, containing the usuic act actures and local hits. The most prominent among them was "The Scott Act" and the "Missing Link", the latter being the name of a celebrated grog-shop. The idea which was conveyed was that the Act was dead and liquor selling much alive, as was fully evidenced la-ter in the day. This caricature received the prize given for the best local ht: Grotesque repre-sentations of the rivery between alive, as was fully evidented fa-ter in the day. This caricature received the prize given for the best local hit. Grotesque repre-sentations of the rivalry between the Amherst boots, sold by Let-teney Brgs, and those sold by R. C. Cann and J. Daley was much enjoyed. Atter the parade, a special train bearing the Yar-mouth fire Company under di-rection of Captain Sweeney, ar-rived and was met by the Digby company. The two bodies united and paraded the principal streets. The music furnished by the Dig-by Band was excellent, and the hose reels were tastefully deco-rated. That of the Yarmouth fire-men was especially so. It was hose reels were tastefully deco-rated. That of the Yarmouth fire-men was especially so. It was supposed to be drawn by two white swans guided by reins in the hands of miniature firemen and produced a most pleasing ef-fect. At the close of the parade, an alarm called out the Dark. Town brigade to extinguish a fire in a shed put up for the purpose at the railway crossing. The grotesque manner in which this burlesque was carried out, eli-cited peals of laughter from the crowd and was one of the most amusing events of the day. The horse races at twelve o'clock were held about a mile out of town, near Syda's corner, and thither large numbers on foot and in carriages wended their way.

Elderly People In Digby Churches

An interesting article in the Digby Courier of March 29, 1895, tells of the elderly people in the Digby churches of that day.

Two years previous to the invention of the telephone The Digby Courier was born. Time and progress have made your paper what it is today ... a paper worthy of Digby and the community which it serves.

The Telephone, too, has come a long way since its inception. Today, like the management of The Digby Courier, we are proud of the part we have played and are playing in modern communications. (Long distance calls from Coast to Coast go through in 8 sec onds).

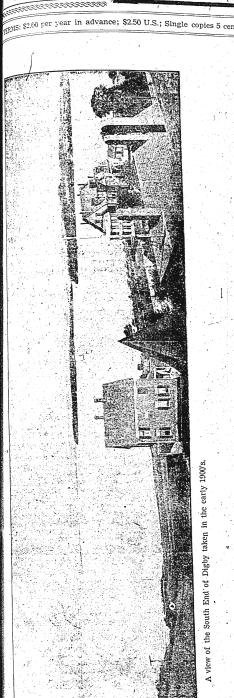

The Telephone, like the newspaper, has become an integral part of our daily lives.

We are happy indeed to be associated with so many others in wishing The Digby Courier continued success and good luck in the years to come.

Small Pox Victims Buried Here

Buried Here It is recorded in the early re-cords of the Anglican Church here that, in the latter years of the 1700's, a tranpsort with small pox on board put into the port of Digby. Seven persons were dead aboard the little craft, five adults and two children. The bodies were given over to the care of the Rector, Rev. Roger. Viets, and there being no consecrated burial ground in the town at that time, he gaye them a Christian buriat in his own pasture, which was situated on the cannon bank, near the foot of Carletor Street. It is reported the piece of ground was on the edge of the water, sepa-rated from his house by a cattle road; As the years went on the un-road As the years went on the un-derground springs or the tide washed away the land and the coffins were exposed. The Rec-tor, faithful to his sacred trust, attended to a second burial. The coffin scontaining the two chil-dren and one adult, were missing ord the others in such a state of coffin scontaining the two chil-dren and one adult were missing and the others in such, a state of decay that new ones were needed. These were provided by the Rec-tor and the bodies re-interred in the middle of his orchard across the road from the original scene of burial. All were buried in one mound over which Mr, Viets planted beautiful white roses. It is recorded in the Courier of May 14, 1897, that a Mrs. Chea-tam, living in Digby then, could remember this second burial. The article in the Courier, from which this story is taken, goes on to say that "many of the pre-sent genetation remember the tangle of sweetness in the Viets orchard." The Rev. Roger Viets had a little still, in which he used to distill the blossoms gathered from this mound. It was the duty of one of the Viets daughters to collect the blossoms and they were then made into sweet smiel-ling attra of roses.

of one of the Viets daughters to collect the blossoms and they were then made into sweet smel-ling attar of roses. The Courier goes on to say that the erosion of the soil had so progressed by 1897 that the coffins again became visible in the high clay bank near the pler and there they were seen by A. Viets, who was in a tug boat on the harbour at the time, the re-ported the finding to his isster. Adelaide, who looked up the old records to find out whose coffins' these might be. Feeling, after tracing the story surrounding them, that these relics of human-ity were an ancient trust of the Viets family, she had the bones removed to consecrated ground.

snip was later released. From the files of the Courier of November 1st., 1889, we repro-duce the story of the capture of the "David J. Adams", an early American poacher in our waters. The story follows: THE DAVID J. ADAMS Confiscated for Violating the Fishery Treaty of 1818.

In the Admiralty Ot 1818. In the Admiralty Court yester-day, Chief Justice MacDonald de-livered judgement in the case of the American fishing schooner, "David J, Adams". His Lordship confiscated the vessel to the Crown. This was the first poach-er captured after the abrogation of the treaty of Washington. She put into Digby basin, hid her name under canvas and purchaput into Digby basin, hid her name under canvas and purcha-sed a quantity of bait. The crui-ser, Landsdowne, was telegraph-ed for by Collector Viets and happened along just as the Adams was making her way out of Dig-by Gut. She was promptly cap-tured and placed in the Admiralty court Her defence was undertured and placed in the Admiralty court. Her defence was under taken by the United States go-vernment and a test case made of it. The prosecution was conduc-ted by Graham and Borden. When the purchase of the bail was fully proven, the defence made the point that the word "fishing or preparing to fish" meant that a vessel must no!

meant that a vessel must not fish or prepare to fish inside the limit, but when in British waters she might "prepare to fish" out-side the limit. Chief Justice Mac-Donald elaborately reviewed the treaty and statute, the facts con-nected with the seizure and the arguments of counsel and susarguments of counsel and sus-tained the position taken by the consul for the Canadian govern-ment in every particular. In refe-rence to the "preparing to fish" arguments of the defence, the judge held that the whole intent of the treaty and statute was to prevent the Americans making the Canadian coast a base for their, fisheries. ,The judgement, though a lengthy one, has no their fisheries. The judgement, though a lengthy one, has no important bearing on the fisher-ies question. The point at issue was the bait question and that was pretty effectually settled by law enacted in 1886 which pre-vents American vessels entering Canadian waters for any purpose except "wood, water, shelter and repairs".

A further story on the fate of the "David J. Adams" appeared was also a recent guest of Cap. tain and Mrs. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goodwin of Montreal spent a few days re-cently with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Potter at their summer cottage. Mrs. W. H. Garden was called Mr # true community service ....

With the exception of the first 7 years, the Digby Courier has chronicled, through its news stories, the entire history of the Dominion of Canada.

Few papers in Canada today can look back through their files to headlines telling of the execution of Louis Riel, the completion of the C.P.R., the South African War and the death of Queen Victoria.

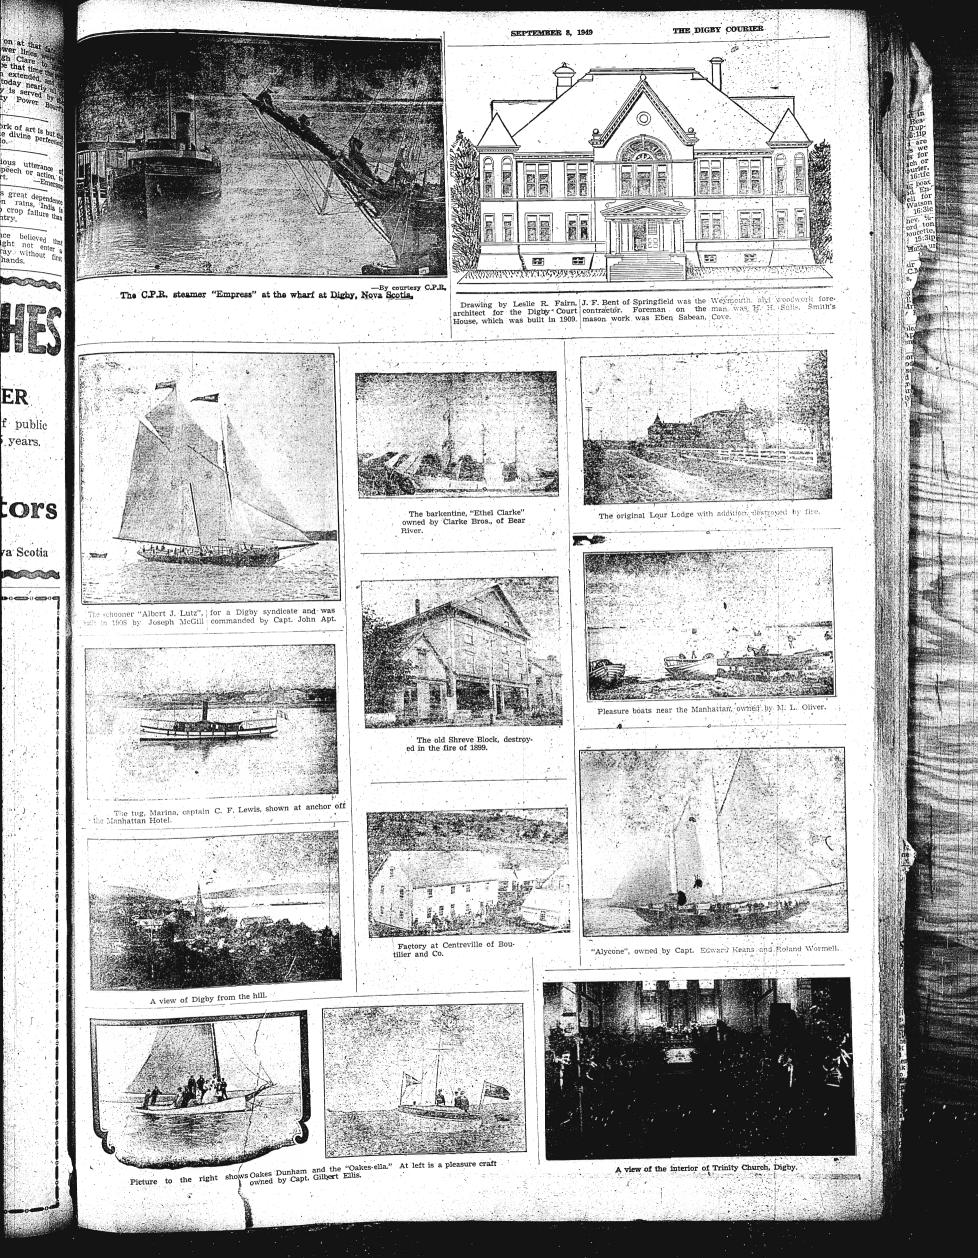

The Digby Courier has served the people of Digby well .... not only in recording national and international history in the making, but, by supplying thousands of items of local news, it has woven a strong thread of unity through this district, and given us a closer understanding of our neighbours. This is true community service.

The Bank of Nova Scotia, which came to Digby in 1877, is proud to have shared, with the Courier, so many years of service to the people of this district.

SUPPOSE you have what you feel is a good opportunity which calls for bank credit. If one bank cannot see it your way, or if you think you can get a better deal elsewhere, you're free to "shop around".

Banks compete to serve the most diversified needs, no matter how specialized any of them may be ... personal, business, or farm loans, money transfers, collections — to name just a few.

More than 95 out of 100 bank loan applications are devided "right in the field"—in the branches—by bank managers who take a personal interest in serving their customers' individual requirements.

A 75th Birthday

A 75th Birthday The Advocate no infant itself, congratulates The Digby Cou-fer and its editor, J. J. Wallis, on reaching the respectable age of 75 years. Last week's issue celebrated the event with a 32-page issue which Editor Wallis in an announcement headed "Our Anni-versary Number," says is "the largest paper ever produced by The Courier and is the largest weekly ever produced in Western Nova Scotia." The anniversary issue is one of which Mr. Wallis and the form of Digby may well be proud and no doubt it will be carefully preserved in many homes as it contains a wealth of historical mat-erial on the Digby of other days. Not the least interesting part of them showing the town as it was before the disastrous fire of 1899 which practically wiped out the business district. It is evident that an enormous amount of hard work and practically and the Advocate had planned an anniversary issue for its 50th birthday, which fell around Christmas of 1943, but the exigencies of war put an end to that. We are looking for ward to our diamond jubilee in 1953 and The Courier has given us a mark to shoot at which will keep us on our toes. —Pictou Advocate.

Digby Courier Celebrates 75th Anniversary With last week's issue The Digby Courier celebrated the completion of 75 years continuous publication and service to the community it serves.

community it serves. Commemorating the event, The Courier came out with a thirty-two page paper filled with much historical data, many pic-tures, ancient and modern, and a large number of congratulatory advertisements, which in all, was a big job well done. To the editors and staff we extend our congratulations and the wish that the paper will continue on its good work.—Middleton Outlook.

London, Ontario. She carried a white prayer book and two white carnations. Her two sisters, Mrs. Gien Mer-ritt of Clementsport, and Mrs. Ross Chisholm of Toronto, wear-ing similar frocks and headdress. were matrons of honor. Their gowns were of turquoise moire silk, with deep pointed peplums, with hat also designed by Mr. Moulton. They carried sheafs of peach and white gladiol. The Misses Sharon Merritt of Clementsport, niece of the bride, and Nancy Preble, of Annapolis Royal, wearing long gowns of peach sain and matching bon nets and carrying old fashioned nosegays, were little flower girls. Ross Chisholm, of Toronto, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man and the ushers were Glen Merritt, brother-in-law of the bride, and John Eatennan of Wolfville, and Arthur Moxon of Xannapolis Royal and Halifax. Miss Jean Parker of Halifax. Miss Jean Parker of Halifax, ang "I Love You," by Beethov-en, during the signing of the re-gister. A reception was held at the District Community Centre, when Mrs. Wallis, wearing a grey ensemble with wine colored hat,

Digby Welcomes School Teachers

Next week Digby will play host to some three hundred and school teachers from the counties of Queens, Shelburne, Yar-h and Digby. These teachers will be meeting in Digby for a day Institute session on October 5th, 6th, and 7th.

The visit of these teachers to Digby will give our citizens a marvellous opportunity to demostrate the hospitality for which Digby has become known. Billeting arrangements have been plac-ed in charge of F. C. Purdy and Mrs. Eva Wendell of the Rural High School staff and every effort is being made to find accommo-dations for all of the visitors in time for the opening sessions.

The provision of the visitors in time for the opening sessions. It is hoped our citizens will respond fully to this call for the provision of accommodation to these members of an honoured profession. We are not being asked to make this accommodation a gratis offering, every teacher will pay his or her way. All that is needed is the assurance of sufficient accommodation in Digby so that everyone attending these Institute sessions may be assured of a place to sleep and eating accommodation while here.

or a place to steep and eating accommodation while here. Those who have rooms available for these teachers, either with or without board, should contact immediately either Mr. Purdy or Mrs. Wendell at the Rural High School and register their accommodation and their rates. In this way everyone will be helping to put over a big task and will be assisting to make sure that these people, who are meeting here to discuss ways and means of better educating our children, are relieved of worry as to where they are to stay while in Digby.

OBITUARY Mrs. Wm. C. Comeau The death of Mrs. William C. Comeau of West Bathurst, N. B., occurred at St. Bernard's, N. S., on Thursday, September 15. Taken suddenly ill, she passed a-way within a few hours. Widespread regret is being felt throughout the Maritime Provinc-es as Mrs. Comeau was known far and wide. News of her death came to her very large circle of friends as a great sur-prise and shock. In early July Mrs. Comeau left for Nova Scotia on a vacation trip as had been her custom for trip as had been her custom for trip as had been her custom for trip as to fhe summer with rela-tives and friends who always a-waited her arrival with interest and joy.
