EASTER

'Tis like the Birthday of the World,
When earth was born in bloom;
The light is made of many dyes,
The air is all perfume.

There's crimson buds, and white, and blue—
The very rainbow showers
Have turned to blossoms where they fell,
And sown the earth with flowers.

A LITTLE MORE CONSIDERATION IS REQUESTED

A Correspondent Does Not Like the Idea of Mixing Dances and Religion.

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR.—In view of the fact that some of our churches have, for the last two weeks, been conducting revival or Lenten services and that in at least two churches the leaders have most ardently denounced dancing and card playing, I was somewhat surprised at the announcement made in your last issue by the Women's Canadian Club, and I thought what is the use of having spiritual leaders? What is the use of their preaching? Of even before the words are out of their mouths a club such as I have mentioned, and as I understand it, is composed of a great number of the leading men and women of the town takes it upon itself to invite the very young people who have been attending these services to a social dance at their Club rooms. It seems like flying in the face of Providence. It is not the matter of morals but the spirit of the thing that jars on me.

This is only a small town and we are all more or less interested in the same things and the same people

HOW YOU CAN TELL GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only acid imitations. Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been prescribed by physicians for nineteen years and proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis. Handy in boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages, can be had at any drug store. Made in Canada. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada), of Bayer Manufacturing of Monacoeindustrial of Salisfeld. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, the Tablets of Bayer Company, Ltd., will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross".

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

These fine days put me in mind of the fact that garden time is near. It would be just as well for the amateur gardener to be seeking advice from his knowing friends and from the numerous "guides" put out by seed dealers who make fortunes off the amateur. Still there are a few rules they can't remember. For instance corn is not planted by the whole ear and it is not wise to cut turnips up quite so fine as potatoes are cut when wanted for seed. Be careful to plant all seeds right side up and be sure to take them out every day or two to see that they are sprouting.

The prices quoted for spring suits give us a pain in the pocket book. Last spring we could buy a twenty-dollar suit for forty dollars but now the price is fifty-five and up. I was thinking some of putting my suits away and take up wearing of overalls and jumpers—and may it be we can get the mayor and town council to adopt them first so that I will not be too conspicuous.

I dropped into a cobbling shop a day or two ago and found the proprietor unoccupied—a very unusual thing. I was rather surprised to find there are "seasons" in shoe repairing the same as in other lines of business. The continual wearing of overshoes and rubbers this winter has protected the boots and there has been comparatively little repair work. But such work will increase from now on as rubbers are gradually discarded and possibly a little quicker this season than last for on account of the large quantities of rough material which it was found necessary to use during the icy weather and in repairing the sidewalks following the recent flood.

When the threatened high price of gasoline is staring the automobilist and boatman in the face, the pleasant dream of driving along the country roads or going by water to any of the various points of interest are dissipated. Everybody is munched these days and nobody escapes, so that a little pleasure next summer is going to be costly. We will certainly welcome the day when things reach a new level based on supply and demand instead of the highway robbery of hoarding and combining of interests.

My little paragraph on historical points last week aroused considerable interest—and favorable interest, too. I heard quite a number of people talking about it and it was the general opinion that a mistake had been made in allowing them to be done away with or destroyed. But the excuse was made (and properly, too) that the men of the past generation or two had not realized the importance of these points as interest and looked upon them of sources of danger or trouble. So instead of restoring them they were done away with as being the easiest way of disposing of them. I heard one of my readers suggest that an historical society be formed to look up these points, restore them and mark them with tablets. He also remarked that we ought to take some steps right away while we have with us such men as Judge Savary, Isaiah Wilson and others who have made a deep study of these things and whose advice could be invaluable.

Many of the American papers run a series of small daily cartoons called "Hambone's Meditations." One published last week made Hambone say this: "Ah cain make no money haulin' wood!—Ah starts out wid a two-dollar load but de roads so rough, gin' ah gets dah it done shuk down 't a dollar size!"

I would like to have a leaf out of the notebook of some young fellows that I see, who remind me of that good old Biblical text, "They tell not, neither do they spin, and yet I say unto you that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." And the strange part of it is, they can always produce a good-sized roll. I wonder how they do it?

I am mighty glad the winter is over but there is one thing at my house I dread. When the youngsters commence to play ball in the street, the go-carts are out for their afternoon parade, and a multitude of other signs that tell you that spring is here, we are reminded of that approaching event—house-cleaning. How we love it! But the busy housewife must clean her house and that is all there is to it. So get out the carpet, heater, fenders, and go to it, for summer will soon be here.

HOW THE GREAT W.C.T.U. HAD ITS BEGINNING

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR.—It has been my pleasure to read in the Digby Courier of March 12th a most interesting and instructive article on the work and growth of temperance and I take this opportunity of acknowledging Mr. Editor, the prominence you have given it.

The writer was present at an immense gathering, to meet Miss Frances Willard, at Tremont Temple in Boston, when she was encouraging the organization of the Union for temperance and social reform, and I saw that great (possibly the greatest) petition ever presented to any government for the noble cause of temperance.

"The Women's Christian Temperance Union." The band of white, inscribed with so many thousands upon thousands of names (I believe I had the honor of being enrolled among them) reached round and round that great auditorium many times, and the people were moved as one in devotion to a great spiritual uplift. But the suggestion had been put to me that the fruition of the work and faith of that one woman and her helpers, would within forty years, result in the complete crushing of the liquor traffic and of its retinue of abominations throughout the mightiest single nation of the earth, comprising over one hundred and ten millions of people. I would have said as so many did then, while they hoped and prayed, "It is a fantastic—a utopian dream!" Surely the faith of those devoted women has been rewarded! They not only dreamed dreams, they saw visions! Visions of great and mighty things that "some may say, are the result of the war."

Yes, a mighty and great struggle began nearly 2,000 years ago and one of the great Master's helpers was Frances Willard.

God grant this growth and strength may be extended to our community in the society of "THE WHITE RIBBON."

WHY THE TOWN LOSES SOME TRADE

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR.—I notice in your paper a great deal of urging to buy in our home town. That is all right for the one who lives in the town, but have you ever thought of what we come to town in winter with our horses? There was a time when we could drive into Hayden's or Elridge's stable, throw the reins from our cold hands and go down town to do our shopping knowing our "faithful friend" was well taken care of. But now we must drive along until we find a post without "Don't hitch here" printed on it, tie up to it as best we can with our cold numb fingers, throw a blanket over the horse, (which the refreshing sea breeze will remove as soon as we do) and rush away to buy what we need the most.

Is it any wonder we take our mail order catalogues and sit down beside the good warm fire and make out our orders knowing our horses are warm and comfortable.

You may say there is at least one stable in town. True! But how many of them care to go into a stable with a lot of strange horses, and no one in charge, and put her horse up and worry all the time she is in town for fear there is a kicking match going on.

Music in the Home

FORM IN MUSIC—No. 10

A Series of Talks on Music, now running in the Courier By C. C. Lainger, Mus. Bac., Bowmanville.

One of the most interesting subjects in the theory of music is Form. Form is the plan or design upon which a composer builds his building, and having in mind no particular shape, does not even know how many rooms to have, and he is building just the same, the result will be no form, no order. A composer must work on his composition according to the plan he has in mind. We must also analyze the form of a composition in the same way that you investigate the size of a house or building. Just for a moment, think of a piano composition, just a short piece, it may have two parts, if so, we call it binary form; again it may have three separate parts known as ternary form. Each part is more or less complete in itself, just the same as each room of the house may be complete in itself and the two or three rooms will form a complete, compact little house. While speaking of a house, let us continue on this subject: each room of the house must have a doorway or door through which to pass from room to room, the door is termed in music a Cadence or Close, partial, temporary or final.

A period in music is like unto a sentence and in length usually about eight measures, again this period may be divided into phrases, it is well to remember a phrase as the guiding principle of all compositions. A SECTION is considered a musical thought, usually consisting of two measures, and again this may be divided. The smallest subdivision or musical germ is called the Motive, which at times consists only of two or three notes. Various kinds of Form in music, such as Vocal Form, Instrumental Form and Mixed Instrumental Form with Vocal Form.

Again Instrumental Form may be divided, or separated something like this: Canon, Contrapuntal Composition, Fugue, Subject, a large Composition for Solo Instrument.

As building structures vary in size such as, small dwelling house, a large house, the Mansion, and the Castle; so do the composition structure vary in size. Let us study a simple MARCH, the kind we hear every day. We will analyse it first; we have four measures introduction which usually suggests the kind of make up of the March, following the Introduction we are led into the first part of MAIN portion, then into the second part, also important; same size but different Melody and Harmony, then we return to the MAIN part again; next to this we have the TRIO, a different structure, a different tone of key, we do not dwell there long but return to the MAIN portion and wind up right there. How much like the small dwelling is this March (note the likeness: first the HALL (Introduction), then the LIVING ROOM, (main portion), in the KITCHEN with its different make-up; again we return to the MAIN LIVING ROOM in order to pass to the PARLOUR (trio) we again return to the LIVING ROOM (main theme) and wind up right there with a FINALE or CODA (satisfaction).

MASTER SINGERS.

Early in the 14th Century there was an organization called the Minne-singers, a band of musicians made up from the common people. A little later another organization was founded calling themselves "The Master-singers." This association being much more particular as to membership, also forming rules in music, regarding the observance of these rules as the all important thing in music. They arranged tournaments and their schools were conducted with great pride and solemnity.

These organizations originated in Germany but soon spread to other countries and were soon in general formation.

DEVELOPMENT.

Form in Instrumental music, and Harmony soon developed with the improvement of the Organ and Keyboard Instruments. The Choral "hymn tune," the Motet "sacred part-singing without accompaniment."

Each great Master made some improvement to Form, according to their gifts particularly those of the eighteenth century, such as Bach who invented different Forms, and was afterwards known as the Father

TOWN COUNCIL

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening, April 1st, 1920, at 8 o'clock. Present—His Worship the Mayor, and Councillors Anderson, McPhee, George Keen, S. A. Keen and Read.

The minutes of the last meeting of the Council were read and approved. The report of G. A. Vye, Superintendent of Streets and Water, was read as follows:

On motion of Councillors Anderson and McPhee the report was received and adopted.

The Committee appointed to confer with a Committee of the Municipal Council in regard to a County Health Clinic reported progress.

The Committee appointed to ascertain if arrangements could be made for an all night electric service during the summer months, reported progress.

The Clerk read the following resolution which had been passed by the Town Council Commissioners of the Town of Digby:

Whereas the present School Building has become overcrowded and inadequate for the purposes of a County Academy and public school by reason of the largely increased number of pupils now attending school in Digby;

And where it is imperatively necessary to increase school accommodation at the earliest possible period, to accommodate the increasing number of pupils now attending school and applying for admission thereto;

And whereas the present School Building is totally lacking in the essential requirements of light, ventilation, sanitation and accommodation necessary for the health and well being of the pupils and teachers;

And whereas the said building is so constituted and situated that it is impossible to enlarge or extend the same;

Therefore resolved that this Board of School Commissioners request the Town of Digby to purchase the land on which the said building stands and erect thereon a modern school building containing at least ten classrooms with Assembly Hall and all modern conveniences.

Moved by Councillor Read, seconded by Councillor Anderson, that the Town of Digby expend a sum not exceeding $50,000 for the purpose of purchasing a suitable lot of land and erect thereon a modern school building containing at least ten classrooms with Assembly Hall and all modern conveniences.

Resolved that the Town of Digby expend a sum not exceeding $50,000 for the purpose of purchasing a suitable lot of land and erect thereon a modern school building containing at least ten classrooms with Assembly Hall and all modern conveniences.

Local and General

The Baptist quarterly meetings are being held at Centerville this week. A full account of proceedings will appear in our next issue.

With potatoes over $4.00 a bag, sensible people will substitute rice and macaroni. No potato ever grown was worth more than two cents a bushel for its food value.

The local mail carriers have maintained a splendid service throughout the winter and despite the difficulties encountered during the stormy season.

A Menominee deputation, after exploring the world for a better country to live in than Canada, has returned with the information that, "there ain't no such country."

Importations of tomatoes from the South will be held up by the exchange rate, and local varieties will have to stick to the canned variety unless things alter very materially.

Be careful about trying out your motor car in a closed garage these early spring days. Sling the doors wide open. The deadly carbon monoxide gas, the exhaust is a real danger and has killed many a careless and ignorant man.

Next Sunday in the Baptist Church the pastor will preach on "The Proper Employment for the Risen Life" and at seven the choir and members of the Sunday School will give a programme entitled "The Light of Victory."

At the close of the religious service at Mount Pleasant on Monday evening, October 26th, a musical offering was presented to Rev. W. I. and Mrs. Croft, a substantial sum of money, in which the whole community was represented.

Between Carleton street and North Water street.

On motion of Councillor W. F. Read, seconded by S. A. Keen, the matter was referred to the light committee to have the light installed if necessary.

Moved by Councillor Read, seconded by Councillor S. A. Keen, that the salary of the Town Clerk and Treasurer and Town Solicitor be $1100 a year from January 1st, 1920, carried.

Moved by Councillor Read, seconded by Councillor Anderson that the salary of the Chief of Police and C. T. Actuator be $540 a year and uniform. Carried.

There's a home

for little children

NOT an orphanage, or an institution—a home.

THE children there are not all total orphans. Some have fathers; some have mothers.

It's a heart-warming sight to see fathers come there on Saturdays and Sundays to spend happy hours with their motherless bairns.

EQUALLY comforting is the appreciation of widows whose little ones are well taken care of while they are at work.

MANY totally orphaned little ones are very early placed in good homes where they may renew the love of father and mother.

To preserve the atmosphere of home that's the guiding spirit of the Orphan Children's work of the Salvation Army.

PAINS SO BAD STAYED IN BED

Young Mrs. Becroft Had Miserable Time Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pain in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular unless I overwork or stay on my feet for early morning until late at night. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble. I have recommended the Compound to several friends."—Mrs. Emily Becroft, 269 Victoria Ave. N., Hamilton, Ontario.

For forty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female troubles. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from native roots and herbs and contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

North of Fifty-Three

Bertrand W. Sinclair

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The story opens in the town of Greenville, Ontario, where Miss Hazel Weir is employed as a stenographer in the office of Mr. J. H. Brown. She is engaged to Jack Briggs, a young man who is a student at the law. While walking with him one Sunday they meet Mr. Bush, a local lawyer, who is attracted to Hazel. Shortly afterwards, at his request, she becomes his private secretary. After three months Mr. Bush proposes marriage, which Hazel declines, and after a stormy scene in the office Hazel leaves her employment. Mr. Bush warning her he would make her sorry for leaving him.

CHAPTER II.—Bush makes an effort, by a gift of flowers, to compromise Hazel in the minds of her friends. She scorns them. The next day Bush is thrown from his horse and is badly hurt. Hazel, who refuses to see him before he dies, is forced to go to his bedside. Three days afterwards Hazel is informed that Bush has been killed. Hazel, in retaliation for any wrong she may have done, decides to leave Greenville. She takes a room at the hotel and at once what construction will be put upon the words "North of Fifty-Three."

CHAPTER III.—Jack Briggs, in a fit of jealous rage, demands from Hazel an explanation of her conduct. Hazel is hurt and she refuses. The engagement is broken. She takes a room at the hotel and at once what construction will be put upon the words "North of Fifty-Three."

CHAPTER IV.—Hazel, who is now a free woman, decides to leave Greenville. She takes a room at the hotel and at once what construction will be put upon the words "North of Fifty-Three."

Hazel saw it quite distinctly, saw him who jumped down a vicious blow and clobbered with the other; and saw, moreover, something which amazed her. For a young fellow away from his adversary a second or two, then lifted him bodily off his feet almost to the level of his head, and slammed him against the hotel wall with a sudden twist. She heard the thump of the body on the logs. For an instant she thought him about to jump with his booted feet on the prostrate form, and involuntarily she held her breath. But he stepped back, and when the other scrambled up, he side-stepped the first rush and knocked the man down again with a blow of his fist. This time he stayed down. Then other men—three or four of them—came out of the hotel, stood uncertainly a few seconds, and then the young fellow said:

"Better take that fool in and bring him to. If he's still hungry for trouble, I'll be right hand. I wonder how many more of you fellows I'll have to lick before you'll get wise enough not to start things you can't stop."

They supported the unconscious man through the doorway; the young fellow resumed his seat on the box, also his pipe filling.

"Roarin' Bill's goin' to get himself killed one uh these days."

Hazel started, but it was only Jim Briggs who had spoken.

"I guess you ain't much used to seein' that sort of exhibition where you come from, Miss Weir," Briggs' wife put in over his shoulder. "My land, the 'dickens' every body can see 'em. Thank goodness, it don't happen very often. 'Specially when Bill Wagstaff ain't around. You ain't shocked, are you, honey?"

"Why, I didn't have time to be shocked," Hazel laughed. "It was done so quickly."

"If them fellows would leave Bill alone," Briggs remarked, "there wouldn't be no fight. But he goes off like a hair-trigger gun, and he'll start a dozen quick as one. I'm lookin' to see his finish one uh these days."

"What a name!" Hazel observed, caught by the appellation Briggs had first used. "Is that Roarin' Bill over there?"

"That's him—Roarin' Bill Wagstaff," Briggs answered. "If he takes a few drinks, you'll find out tonight how he got the name. Slaps and like a hammer—bears him all over town. Probably whip him two or three men before mortal."

His spouse called him at that moment. Briggs detailed no more information about Roarin' Bill. And Hazel sat looking across the way with considerable interest at the specimen of a type which hitherto she had encountered in the pages of fiction—of a log man, what the West called a "bad actor."

She had, however, no wish for closer study of that particular type. The men of her world had been altogether different, and for a first experience she had met at the Briggs' dinner table had not impressed her with anything except their shyness and manifest awkwardness in her presence. She had, however, been spoiled to her, his bigness, his nearness to the absolutely primeval, but not the people she had so far met. And so she looked at Roarin' Bill Wagstaff, over the way, with a quite impersonal interest.

He came into Briggs' place for supper. Briggs was by his own father. Briggs himself sat beside Hazel. She heard him grunt and saw a faint look of surprise flit over his countenance when Roarin' Bill walked in and coolly took a seat. But not until Hazel glanced at the newcomer did she recognize him as the man who had fought in the street. He was looking straight at her when she did glance up, and the mingled astonishment and frank admiration in his clear grey eyes made Hazel drop her gaze quickly to her plate. Since Mr. Andrew Bush, she was beginning to hate men who looked at her that way. And she could not help feeling that many did so look.

The next Saturday Hazel went for a tramp in the afternoon. The few walks she had taken had dulled all sense of uneasiness in venturing into the infolding forest. She felt that those shadowy woods were less sinister than man. And since she had always kept her sense of direction and come straight to the Meadows whenever she went abroad, she had no fear of thought of losing her way.

To reach her objective point, she crossed a long stretch of rolling land, well timbered, dense in parts with thickets of herry bushes. And when she came upon a little brook, purging a monotone as it crawled over pebbled reaches and bathed the tangled roots of trees along its brink. By this time it was a while. Then she did stop, coming after considerable difficulty to abruptly rising ground. She could not see the town, but she could mark the new hills behind it. At any rate, she knew where it lay, and the way back.

So she thought. But the short afternoon had, and, warned by the low dip of the sun, she left her book on the hillside to make her way home. Though it was near sundown, she felt no particular concern. The long northern twilight gave her ample time to cover the distance.

But once down on the rolling land, among the close-ranked trees, she began to experience a difficulty for the town. But she walked far enough to have overrun it, and was yet upon unfamiliar ground.

She blundered on, not admitting to herself the possibility of being unable to find Cariboo Meadows. As best she could, and to the best of her belief, she held in a straight line for the town. But she walked far enough to have overrun it, and was yet upon unfamiliar ground.

The shadows deepened until she tripped over roots and stumbled. She managed to keep her hair and clothing on branches she could not see in time to fend off. As a last resort, she turned straight for the light patch still showing in the northwest, hoping that to cross the wagon road that ran from Soda Creek to the Meadows—it lay west, and she had gone northeast from town. And as she hurried, a fear began to tug at her that she had passed the Meadows unknowingly.

Presently it was dark, and darkness in the woods is the darkness of the pit itself. She found a fallen tree, and climbed on it to rest and think. After what seemed an age she fancied she saw a gleam far distant in the timber. She watched the spot, fixedly, and thought she saw the faint reflection of a light. That thought led her. She advanced toward it, hoping that it might be the gleam of a ranch window. Her progress was slow. She blundered over the litter of a forest floor, trippingly over unseen obstacles. But ten minutes established beyond peradventure the fact that it was indeed a light.

She kept on. The wavering gleam came from behind a thicket—an open fire she saw at length. Beyond the fire she heard a horse snicker. Within a few yards of the thicket through which she had waded the yellow gleam she halted, smitten with a sudden panic. The darkness had not been so great. All that she knew or had been told of frontier men reassured her. She had found them to be a man courteous, awkwardly considerate. And she could not wonder about all night.

She moved cautiously, however, to the edge of the thicket, to a point where she could see the fire. A man sat humped over the glowing embers, his hands and feet in the shadows. He seemed to be a piece of wood. His head was bent forward, as if he were listening. Suddenly he looked up, and she gasped—for the freight showed the features of Roarin' Bill Wagstaff.

She was afraid of him. Why, she did not know nor stop to reason. She turned to retreat. In the same instant Roarin' Bill reached to his side and stood up.

"Hold on there!" he said coolly. "You've had a look at me—I want a look at you, old feller, whoever you are. Come on—slow yourself."

He stepped aside out of the light as he spoke. Hazel started to run. The crack of a branch underfoot betrayed her, and he closed in before she took three steps. He caught her bodily by the arm and yanked her rudely into the daylight.

"Well—for the love of Mike!" Wagstaff drawled the exclamation out in a rising crescendo of astonishment. Then he laid his gun down across a roll of bedding and stood looking at her in speechless wonder.

"For the love of Mike!" Roarin' Bill said again. "What are you doing wandering around in the woods at night? Good Lord! Your teeth are chattering like castles."

AN ENEMY OF MANKIND

A Subtle Foe to Deal With

The subtle, unsuspected enemy, which, taking hold on the kidneys, saps them of their strength and vitality, rendering them inactive and unable to remove the poisons and waste substances from the blood, should immediately be dealt with. All who suffer from backache, pains in the sides, sciatica, rheumatism, neuralgia, constant headaches, constipation, that helpless feeling of lassitude; stiff, swollen joints, hands and ankles, sore muscles, sleeplessness, floating specks before the eyes, irritability, should at once begin treating the kidneys with Gila Pills, which are by far the most effective remedy for diseases of this vital organ.

The first sign of pain in the back or side is warning enough. Do not delay. Once the kidneys and bladder get out of order, most serious and often fatal consequences are likely to follow in quick succession. Get a box of Gila Pills today, and correct the derangement before it is too late. At all druggists or dealers, 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied. Free sample on request.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny little of Freestone's lifts off any corn or callus. Apply a few drops on the corn, callus, and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off with your fingers. Freestone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Stagnant Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headache come from a torpid liver and sluggish bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which turns and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental depression, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten 'em out by morning. They work while you sleep—10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

Dr. DeWitt's French Pills for Stomach and Bowels. Sold at all drug stores, or by mail from Dr. DeWitt's French Pills Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

PHOSPHORUS FOR MEN restores vitality, increases energy, builds up the system, and is a tonic for all who are weak and nervous. It is a tonic for all who are weak and nervous. It is a tonic for all who are weak and nervous.

C.P.R. EXHIBIT AT BIRMINGHAM ENG

One of the most striking features of the British Industries Fair at Birmingham was the Canadian Pacific Railway exhibit in the Town Hall. The majority of the exhibitors had their stands made in Birmingham to a standard pattern, but the Publicity Department of the C.P.R., with its customary foresight, decided that they would get away from the regular stands and have a special exhibit designed by the well-known architect, Mr. A. H. Jones. The work was carried out by Messrs. Gaze & Co., of Kingston-on-Thames, and the exhibit was sent from Kingston to Birmingham on a motor lorry. Three expert fitters went down from London to Birmingham, with the result that the C.P.R. stand was the first to be finished in the whole of the British Industries Fair.

The representative of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Birmingham, Mr. Owen of the Birmingham office, received many congratulations upon the Canadian Pacific Railway exhibit.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN

(New York World.)

Nearly forty years ago Prof. William G. Sumner of Yale prepared a lecture on "The Forgotten Man." The Forgotten Man, in the American theme of things is one who is delving away in patient industry, supporting his family, paying his taxes, casting his vote, supporting the church and school, reading his newspaper, and cheering for the politician of his admiration, but he is the only one for whom there is no provision in the great scramble and the big trade.

His biography is simple: He works, he votes, generally he prays—but he always pays—yes, and above all, he pays. He does not want an office, his name never gets into the newspapers except when he gets married or dies. He keeps production going on. He contributes to the strength of parties. He is flattered before election. He is strongly patriotic. He is wanted, whenever in his little circle there is work to be done or counsel to be given. He may grumble a little about the time he spends with his family, but he does not frequent the grocery or talk politics in the tavern. Consequently he is forgotten. He is a commonplace man. He gives no trouble. He excites no admiration. Therefore he is forgotten. All the burdens fall on him, or on her, for it is to remember that Forgotten Man is not seldom a woman.

The Forgotten Man was never more numerous than he is today, and he was never more completely forgotten. At present he is engaged in liquidating the time of the war, having incidentally created about 12,000 new millionaires. He is also working hard to support the vast army of public employees who have come into existence on account of the war and congress and prohibition, and centralization and other evils. It was easy to demobilize the troops, but demobilizing the civilian office holders is quite a different job.

Incidentally, the Forgotten Man is hustling around to sustain the profiteers in the luxury to which they have become accustomed, to get hold of enough money to pay his national and state income taxes, and to meet the increased rent which the landlords say is necessary on account of the enormous cost of repairs that are never made.

CANADA STANDS SECOND

Ranks Next to U.S. in Manufacture and Ownership of Autos.

Canada is now the second nation in the world in the manufacture of automobiles, the number of cars owned, and the number owned per capita. The United States is first, and Great Britain third. Figures taken from a Government report show that the automotive industry in Canada employs 15,000 workers and represents an investment of $50,000,000. The total sales of cars last year amounted to $100,000,000 and the payroll exceeded $15,000,000. During 1919, 94,000 automobiles were manufactured in Canada and it is believed this total will be increased 35 per cent. in 1920. Latest registration records show that about 350,000 motor vehicles are in operation throughout the Dominion.

One in every twenty-three persons in Canada owns a motor car. There are 6,000,000 automobiles in the United States or one to every twenty inhabitants. In England there are only 10,000 cars or one to every 268 persons. There is one automobile to every 402 persons in France, to 684 people in Germany. Ontario continues to be the banner province for automobiles with 127,860 passenger cars, and 11,428 trucks in use, with Saskatchewan, Alberta, Manitoba and Quebec following in order. The rural population owns more than half the cars in the Dominion and in the prairie provinces the percentage is higher.

Popular Mariner Tells of His Experience With Tanlac—Is Remarkable, He Says.

"My friends all know what a bad fix I was in before I took Tanlac and will tell you that I am now just like a new man," said Captain Alfred H. Eisenhaur, of Indian Point, recently.

Captain Eisenhaur, one of the most popular and influential citizens of Lunenburg County, he is at present engaged in general merchandising at Indian Point, but was for many years a sea captain and is well known all along the East coast of Nova Scotia.

"For three or four years" he continued, "My stomach and bowels had been troubling me, but outside of taking a few pills now and then I never paid much attention to it. Last January, however, I took a sudden turn for the worse and found out I was suffering from a very bad case of catarrh of the stomach. Well sir, I was in such bad shape for six months that I couldn't do a day's work and it is simply impossible for me to describe how badly I did suffer. There was a constant cramping, gripping pain in my stomach and bowels that would almost draw me double and at times I thought I would go distracted. I was forced to live on the very lightest of foods, for if I ventured to eat anything at all heavy I would almost die with indigestion. I was constantly coughing up mucus from my stomach and would blow very badly with sour gas. I lost fifteen pounds in weight and was so weak that I could hardly get about the house.

"Realizing that I could not hold out much longer I went for an examination. I was told that my condition was very serious and that nothing but an operation at once would do me any good. I would not consent and went home greatly discouraged. I noticed Tanlac being recommended very highly in the Halifax papers and as a last resort I decided to try it, and before I had finished my second bottle I could see quite an improvement in my condition. I have taken several bottles of Tanlac and I firmly believe I wouldn't be living today if I had not taken it. I have been relieved entirely of all the pain and other symptoms of catarrh and my food is digesting itself, for I am gaining weight right along. My appetite is fine and my stomach is in good condition and I am now eating just anything I want and never have a pain or an uncomfortable feeling afterwards. The way Tanlac has helped me is nothing less than remarkable. I cannot praise it too highly and would advise anyone to try it.

of Modern Music, who tempered and tuned the scale, so that all keys sounded equally well. Bach was also well known for his Gavottes. Gilbert wrote the words to the Operas "Pinafore" and the "Mikado" got off a pun at the expense of a gushing, but ignorant young lady, who asked Mr. Gilbert if Mr. Bach had been writing any more of his charming Gavottes lately. Mr. Gilbert replied no madam. Mr. Bach no longer composes, he de-composes. Oratorio Form was greatly enlarged by Handel, his works show Grandeur and Solemnity combined with Melodic simplicity.

The greatest Form in Instrumental music is "Sonata" and invented by (Papa) Haydn; he also invented the String Quartet and the Symphony. Haydn is known as the Father of Modern Instrumental Music and of Musical humor. The greatest tone-poet that ever lived was Beethoven, he enlarged upon the symphonies, sonatas and string quartettes that Haydn had invented, and these became Beethoven's greatest master-pieces. Soon these Forms, particularly Orchestration and Opera were re-moulded by Wagner who formed a new species of Orchestration, creating a unity of ensemble, making his work unique. Wagner was known as a peculiar man in some respects particularly his expensive way of stimulating his imagination. If his compositions of works were to be great and bright, he would dress in satin and have much perfume and flowers around him; if his work was to be dark and gloomy he would have everything draped in black.

In this chapter I have endeavored to explain in a simplified manner the architecture or Form in Music; although compositions are many and varied, yet all are built up with regard to the rules and methods laid down. Read the following verses on a child's view of music:

"LEARNING TO PLAY."
Composers must be funny men
At least that's what I say,
Because they write down notes and notes
For us poor things to play.
Now don't you think it would be nice
If they would never try
To write their music in a book?
You know sometimes it's dry!
To play it just exactly right
Is very hard to do,
If I could only play it wrong
How easy it would be!
But still I'll try to do my best
And learn each thing I can,
And never make a single slip
But play just what they wrote.
For they're the men that made the
And so they ought to know.
The way the music's meant to sound
And how it ought to go.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

The prosperity of Digby and every other town or city is bound up with that of its business houses, its industries, its workmen, its merchants. They all have to depend upon one another. If the money of all these factors in civic prosperity stays within the home circle, the town flourishes, its civic undertakings prosper, and its inhabitants are well off. If they scatter their money abroad in making out-of-town purchases, then some other city thrives as a result, while our own town's prosperity suffers. The result reacts upon every one. The plain duty of everyone, therefore, is to support one another. So long as the money of Digby citizens stays within the town everyone shares therein and mutual prosperity naturally follows.

Easter day is always the first Sunday after the full moon, which happens upon, or next after, March 21; and if the full moon happens on Sunday, Easter Day is the Sunday following. There is also the old way of reckoning: "First comes Candlemas (Feb. 2) and then the new moon; that moon out and the next moon's full, and the first Sunday after is Easter."

Assessment reform is much needed in some, most town and cities at least. Something should be done with land, lots held for sale at fancy price. We heard of a case in point not many miles from Digby and it is only one of many. The case we refer to was this: A lot on a main thoroughfare was held for a price, $5,000, whilst the assessment book showed that for taxing purposes it was valued at $1,000. If assessment for tax is two thirds' market value that property was getting by to the extent of more than $1,000, exempt more than that amount, and yet that is only one of many cases.

In spite of the fact that there is some complaint about the streets that there is little work now following for the labor man in Summerside, the other day the street force man approached a number of men and offered the usual $3.00 per day for men to work temporarily on the streets—but we understand there was not one taker. $4.00 a day was demanded, but since the foreman had no authority to offer this, he was forced to look elsewhere—Summerside Journal. There are contractors in Digby who tell stories similar to the ones from Summerside. They find it very difficult to get men to do any work that is a little hard or dirty. Men who have been idle for weeks will find excuse after excuse for dodging a job. When you come to think of it why should anyone work in Digby when so many can live without working. "I would be an awful calamity if this town ever got a real boom," the loaders would have to leave their happy homes in order to dodge the jobs that would be thrust at them.

WHY NOT HELP THE FISHERMEN AND THUS HELP CANADA AS A WHOLE?

To the Editor of the Courier:—
SIR:—Feeling reasonably sure that a practical suggestion in the interest of a large section of our provincial population will meet with careful thought and favorable consideration, I do not hesitate to use my humble efforts in the hope that the scheme may bear fruit, because I think its consummation would bring prosperity and progress, as dreamed of among the fisheries of Nova Scotia.

Canada today is faced with a condition unparalleled in her history, and although production has increased tremendously during the past few years, still there are resources in this vast Dominion that are only partially developed, and the fisheries of Nova Scotia are among the number.

Among the solutions offered against the high cost of living, increased production stands out far ahead of all the others, but the means of producing must be the disposal of the producer, or else production can never supply the vastly increased demand.

Motor boat fishing is carried on extensively in Nova Scotia but much depends on the weather and during the winter months the catch from motor boats is very slim and in a great many places nil.

The Government of Canada has adopted a housing act and also a land settlement act whereby people of small means may borrow money to build a home and pay back the loan on a long term installment plan.

The land settlement act is a boon to soldiers who care to take up agriculture, and where the act is administered in a proper manner it is a grand idea.

If the government would include in its shipbuilding plan the building of small trawlers and sell them to the fishermen of Nova Scotia on terms similar to the housing act, I do not think it would be long before Nova Scotia would be one of the most prosperous fishing centers in the world.

Picture twenty or thirty trawlers coming into Digby loaded with fish, at nearly all seasons of the year. Freshets it would slacken during the winter but a trawler would go farther, catch more and provide a much safer means of making a living than a frail motor boat.

Would not the increased production of the fishermen help materially to lower the cost of living for the masses and at the same time increase their own earnings? And would it not provide more employment for men needed to handle the increase?

What is possible for Digby is also possible for every town a village in Nova Scotia where fishermen earn a living. If Nova Scotia ever hopes to keep pace with the other provinces a way must be found to keep the young men at home, but they will never remain where the means of livelihood are so burdensome and well nigh intolerable.

American fishing ports are among the best in the world but they owe that fact to a large measure because they are composed to a great extent of hardy fishermen who were compelled to leave their homes in Nova Scotia because conditions were unfavorable.

At Halifax there are about 130

trawlers and drifters that are now out of commission since the government announced its change in the naval policy, and I think it would be a good idea if they were retained by the fisheries department and with a few slight changes sold to the fishermen.

I would not attempt to dictate to the government what procedure to follow, but I think they could evolve a plan without any more difficulty than the housing act.

I know that Canada is facing a period when the government must exercise the most strict economy in national expenditure, but in calculating benefit would be derived from such a scheme; it would help increase the population by bringing home sons of the province and retaining others; it would mean better living conditions for the fishermen, a better future for their children, and a share for the general public in real prosperity which would be bound to follow the introduction of such a God-send measure. It may be said by opponents of the scheme that it may be alright in theory but the adoption of the plan would be of such a complex nature that it would not be practical, but I shall answer that by saying that many so-called hairbrained theories were laughed at by scoffers until the execution of the same proved their value.

Faith, Mr. Editor, is one of the most wonderful things in the world; faith in men's power joined the Atlantic with the Pacific; Panama; faith in his ability to fly enabled man to sail above the clouds in a heavier than air machine; faith in his scientific knowledge enabled Marconi to communicate with steamers countless miles from land; the sublime faith that Marshall Foch had in the allied soldiers enabled him to execute strategy that smashed the mightiest war-machine the world had ever seen; faith in Britain's unsurpassable navy enabled millions to sleep without being haunted by the spectre of a German fleet bent on the destruction of their homes, and in conclusion I say that I have faith in the ability, the progressiveness and the enterprising spirit of our fishermen if given the chance to place the fisheries of Nova Scotia in the fore-front of the industries of our great Dominion.

JAS. F. HILLMAN.

BEAR RIVER VETS. PASS RESOLUTIONS

At the regular meeting of the Bear River branch of the V. V. V. the following resolutions received from the Amherst branch were unanimously adopted.

Be it resolved, that this branch of V. V. V. place itself on record as being decidedly opposed to purchasing goods in the United States at the present time, and pledge themselves not to purchase any United States made goods except where it is impossible to get the same or a suitable substitute in Canada or Great Britain; and further pledge themselves to do all in their power by collective and individual effort to spread the propaganda of "buy everything you need in Canada."

Be it also resolved that this branch of V. V. V. place itself on record as being bitterly opposed to having any of the Hearst publications enter or to be circulated through Canada, and that each individual do his utmost to have the sale prohibited.

A motion was also passed that this branch of the G. V. V. hold a Memorial service some early date in honor of the comrades who fell while on active service.

CORRESPONDENTS, PLEASE BE CAREFUL.

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR:—Your Joggins Bridge correspondent made a mistake in one of their news items published in last week's Courier, in which they said that "John C. W. W. of Deep Brook sent Wednesday with Mrs. A. M. COSSITT." Mr. Dumas came to bring me a message from his father about some dressmaking, and then went to Digby hoping to be in time to attend to some business and return to Deep Brook on the express.

Yours truly,
MRS. A. M. COSSITT.
Joggins Bridge, March 30th.

Digby's Main Chance

(By Arthur Hunt Chute)

The eyes of all America are on Nova Scotia today. The opportunity now presents itself to Digby to become, if it will, one of the great Tourist centres of this continent.

Recently it was my privilege to visit the Digby Golf Course in company with O. C. Jones, W. E. Tupper and Dr. Reid. Then I saw the greatest source of potential wealth for this lovely little town, cradled in its peaceful hills, serene above its tranquil waters.

The beauties of shore and sea have been bounteously bestowed upon this land-locked haven. Nature has done her utmost for the charm and grace of Digby.

But tourists cannot live on scenery alone. If we are to attract to our shores these thousands of Americans, who would welcome the cool of our summers, and the richness of our landscapes, we must add to these attractions, adequate playgrounds for their recreation.

On account of my connection with the Wall Street Journal I met during the past year many of the leaders of American finance. Often I spoke to them on the allurements of Nova Scotia.

Invariably these men, came back with the same query "Have they got any Golf Links there?" Without decent Golf Links, Digby can be written off the map as a tourist centre. With adequate facilities for that, game there is no limit to the numbers which will be attracted. In plain dollars and cents there is no investment which the citizens of Digby can make which in the end, will offer larger return, than to build up the finest possible nine hole Golf Course on that unrivalled situation above their town. The turf there is perfect. The situation is probably as rich in scenic beauty as any Golf Course in North America. It only remains for the enterprising citizens of Digby to get busy and make these first class Links in keeping with such a setting. When this is done, the revenue, which indirectly will accrue, is assured.

It is the duty of all to support this scheme, as all will participate in its benefits, principally in the vast increase of business which it will bring to Digby and incidentally in this added means of pleasure which will offer to the residents. It is a law of God that we never get anything for nothing.

Many of our Nova Scotians are, alas, always waiting for a windfall. But wealth and everything else worth having, comes only to those who roll up their sleeves and do their share toward its production.

The riches of the mines belong to those who do the labor to mine it. So with this potential wealth of Digby. It will come to the citizens if the citizens will themselves only do their part.

In this case their part is to give the Town that one added attraction of Golf, which inevitably will draw its hosts of monied visitors, who in the end will make of Digby one of the Tourist Meccas of this continent.

Camouflage in Reverse.

Reversal of the camouflage principle, greatly increasing the visibility of its subjects instead of concealing them by blending them with the background, is declared a possible new development by the naval officer who developed that particular nature-faking system. Since every positive has its negative, color applications opposite to those used for confusing the eye are being studied for a possible standardized system of making distant objects conspicuous.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Extracting Salt From Ocean.

Experiments in Norway with a view to extracting salt from ocean water by means of electricity have been successful, and two salt factories will be started for this purpose in the near future. Each factory is calculated to produce 50,000 tons of salt a year for a start, but they will be so built that the production can be brought up to double the quantity, if necessary. Besides the salt, different by-products will be made.

Chinese Superstition.

Superstition is rampant in China and when Chen Ying Yin, a trader in Straits Settlements, after his return to Kaping, his own village, proposed to open the hands along the Ngon mountain as a field for grazing, his suggestion could hardly be carried out as his village bitterly protested against the project on account of their belief in "Feng Shui," a superstition relating to the locations of places.

Goat Good Milk Producer.

Mr. Windrop Howland of Redlands, Cal., last year had a Swiss Toggenburg goat, kept on the University of California farm, which broke the world's record for milk production by over 300 pounds. For the period of one year this doe produced 2,941 pounds of rich sweet milk, or more than 24 times her own weight. The period of lactation for a good doe should be from seven to eight months.

Too Cool for Comfort.

The coldest place on earth inhabited by man is Verkhoyansk, above the Arctic circle, in northeastern Siberia. MORE SMOKE!

The Ontario tobacco crop has been harvested without damage by frosts. This is the largest and the best crop that has been grown in Ontario since the writer began the annual statistical crop report. In 1911 the production was larger, if tradition is correct, but we have no figures covering that year.

The Tobacco Division began the work of securing the exact acreage planted to tobacco each year in 1915 and issuing an annual report each fall since that time.

These reports are secured by having a grower in each school section in the tobacco districts of Ontario report the acreage devoted to tobacco in his school section, and also the yield per acre. Township reporters give the same information for the township in which they reside throughout the tobacco-producing area. All figures thus obtained are checked by the tobacco inspector, who, late in the summer and early fall visits every school section, and practically every farm in checking up all reports and estimates.

The remarkable fall for harvesting and curing, too many growers made the mistake of leaving the harvested plants in small piles in the fields for several days, and in many cases rains came and sand and mud covered the leaves. This damaged the quality and the cured article very materially. This is a very poor method of handling, and such tobacco cannot be expected to command the price that the carefully handled article does. Tobacco should never be raised on after it has been cut and thoroughly wilted. Placing in small piles for two or three days starts the yellowing and curing process, but scaffolding on rough scaffolds in the field would be better and leave the plants free of dirt and mud in case rains came before the tobacco could possibly be housed.

The following figures give the acreage and estimated production of the tobacco crop for this year—1919:

Kind Tob.	Acres.	Pounds.
Essex, blue-cured	1,450	1,300,500
Essex, burley	3,010	2,512,300
Essex, Havana
gold seal and dark types	800	942,000
Peter Is., Burley	700	895,400
Kent, Burley	2,700	3,210,500
Kent, Zimmar
Sault, etc.	265	291,900
Welland, Burley	8	9,000
Elgin, Burley	162	181,200
P. Edward, Burley	24	25,000
Lincoln, Connecticut
cut Havana	35	36,300
Pelee Is., Burley	12	15,000
Brant, Burley	20	22,000
Norfolk, Burley	60	85,000

Total for all types of tobacco... 9,226 10,709,400

It can be seen that the total acreage for all varieties in all of the tobacco-growing districts of Ontario amounts to 9,226 acres, which, placing the estimate exactly where expected, the crop indicates, will yield 10,709,400 pounds. The secured tobacco acreage shows only a slight increase over 1918, the same is true for the Sault, Havana, Zimmar, Comstock and all types other than the White Burley. The White Burley shows a considerable increase of 50 per cent. increase over 1918.

The following tables give the 1918 acreage and production for Ontario:

Kind Tob.	Acres.	Pounds.
Essex, blue-cured	1,450	1,300,500
Essex, burley	3,010	2,512,300
Essex, Havana
gold seal and dark types	800	942,000
Peter Is., Burley	700	895,400
Kent, Burley	2,700	3,210,500
Kent, Zimmar
Sault, etc.	265	291,900
Welland, Burley	8	9,000
Elgin, Burley	162	181,200
P. Edward, Burley	24	25,000
Lincoln, Connecticut
cut Havana	35	36,300
Pelee Is., Burley	12	15,000
Brant, Burley	20	22,000
Norfolk, Burley	60	85,000

Market Outlook. The market outlook is never brighter. The fact that secured tobacco is selling in the Southern States at higher figures than for this period last year, though the crop is considerably larger, indicated in a measure a shortage of tobacco stocks. This year's crop will be sold in a considerably larger volume than last year's, and the home requirements, high prices prevailing in the Southern States and the adverse exchange on Canadian money in American markets, all go to increase the demand for our 1919 crop of tobacco.—H. Frasch, tobacco inspector.

Canadian Fair in London.

The organization of a Canadian Fair in London next year is the object of a visit to Canada by H. Greville Montgomery. The British Industries Fair is to be held at London in 1920, and the Canadians are invited to exhibit, but very few have responded. It is thought, however, that if Canada could compete at Lyons Fair the London Fair could have an exhibition of its own in the centre of the British Empire at a time when Canadian manufacturers are so anxious to embark in the world export trade.

Mr. Montgomery is a well-known public man, former Liberal M.P. for Bridgewater, and an editor and newspaper proprietor. He revived the Building Trades Exhibition at the Royal Agricultural Hall in 1915, said to be the largest series of trade exhibitions in the world.

How Much One Eats.

It is not easy to estimate the amount of food consumed by each person in a year, but one dietetic expert who kept a record of his meals during a twelve-month period declared that he ate 180 loaves of bread, 180 pounds of meat, drank sixty-one gallons of milk, and ate no fewer than 380 eggs.

It is promised that Helen Keller, the deaf-blind and deaf-blind, is to appear in the "movies."

Advertising Talk

WHEN you put an ad in The Courier you send your message into 2,500 homes. Allowing the small average of five to a family, that means that your message appeals to 12,500 possible buyers.

If an advertisement costs you $3.00 per week it is at the rate of $1.00 per 835 families or $1.00 per 4,175 possible buyers (36 per 100 buyers)—12 per 42 buyers.

Is there any cheaper way of placing your business message before the people of Digby and the surrounding country than by an advertisement in The Courier?

Who Should Own The Building?

A landlord lately sent a notice to some of his tenants that the rent was to be increased. The tenant naturally felt sore on the matter, and wrote a reply, in which he stated that the landlords were taking advantage of the war conditions to oppress their tenants.

To this the landlord replied: "You accuse the landlords as the guilty parties who cause an increase in the rents. In that you are mistaken. It is the tenants who are to blame. If the tenants did their duty as citizens very soon every industrial, frugal man would own his home without any mortgage. If you fight as you should do to get the taxes removed from buildings and every other product of industry and get them placed on the value of the land, so as to get rid of the land speculator and the ground-lord, then you will no longer have to complain of landlords raising the prices."

"In the meantime, so long as you make no exertion to get rid of the incubus, you must stay in bondage and send your monthly remittance with as good a grace as possible." — The Square Deal.

OLD HOME SUMMER

March has a nature duty to perform. With its characteristic winds and gales it sweeps away the foul air and dust; thrashes all tree life into exercise to receive in rotation the sap, bud, leaf, blossom and fruit.

So likewise Crowell and Chute came on us on Wednesday evening of last week with their breezy March wind and rain. They did not leave them really missed a Spring tonic. With clearly-cut, logical argument these gentlemen outlined the object of the Old Home Summer project; they cleared up the air of doubt as to its practicability and advantage, and ending by the close attention and applause accorded by a good sized audience, they merit the encouragement they merit. Having created the desire of public interest throughout the province in their scheme now budding, will eventually blossom and bring forth fruit for their Old Home Summer harvest.

Mr. Chute's remarks were listened to with close attention; he said we must be done with belittling ourselves to the advantage of other parts of Canada and the United States. And it is lamentable to think and know that our neighbors take our brains young men from us, who by their ability actually, unthinkingly, become our commercial enemies.

To remedy as far as possible all these conflicting disadvantages the Old Home Summer has been conceived, and in order to carry out this plan there has to be some vigorous wind shaking. The Government must be approached and should look upon this as a good business proposition, co-operate and advance the money, being assured of big interest and eventually the principal paid by wealth of population—a far reaching advertisement—thrill and enterprises it would surely bring and also the stimulating desire and influence created in the effort to do our best during the next few years to make our province more attractive; will be of lasting benefit to coming generations.

So Mr. Crowell and Mr. Chute come to us with a message, not to kill as in the past war, but rather a message to build up a message to repopulate our beloved Nova Scotia. And these men are practical fighters—true Nova Scotians; therefore there will be no turning back from the effort in which they have set out to accomplish. They realize what they are up against and also know that success never comes by the easy job, side doing, should we not then heartily back them up; get after the Government; get after everybody with whiskers on their brain who oppose them. The word has gone broadcast that there is to be an Old Home Summer in the province. People are talking and planning for it. Shall we bushily say "it was a mistake"? Not on your life. It must come. We have said it as fervently it will take place on scheduled time in 1924—The Old Home Summer plan.

G. F. PARKER, Yarmouth

MANY VACANT FARMS IN THESE COUNTIES

Two hundred and fifty Chertoff Army emigrants, mostly ex-soldiers and their families, sailed for Canada by the Empress of Britain a few days ago. King George sent a farewell message, expressing the hope and the desire that each one of you may prosper and be contented in the new land. The emigrants are a brave and enterprising lot, and are well equipped with the might of the Dominion of the West.

Almost every summer that has arrived of late at St. John has brought a number of Canadian emigrants to the people who left England, Scotland, Wales, France, Italy, and other countries, and have come to the Dominion of the West.

Local and General Local and General

Today is "Vimy Day."

No more holidays until May 21.

Canada has nearly 15,000 motor tractors.

Truro is about to number the buildings in that town's streets with a cost of $2,000.

Service will be held on Sunday afternoon at Smith's Cove Methodist Church at 3 o'clock.

Sometimes one almost believes that Eve was made out of Adam's backbone, instead of his rib.

It becomes daily more apparent that the motor truck has sounded the death knell of the street car.

A musical concert will be held in the Salvation Army hall next Thursday evening. Admission ten cents.

The monthly meeting of the Baptist W. M. A. S. will be held in the home of Mrs. M. A. Condon this evening.

The name of the contractor who is engaged on the new building for the W. M. A. S. is J. H. Benson, not J. H. Benson as stated.

The Alms house acknowledges with thanks the receipt of five easy chairs through the efforts of Mrs. J. H. Benson.

The W. M. A. S. of the Methodist Church will hold a social on Friday evening at Lettens's store on the afternoon of April 17.

Some New York state authorities say that the province will be in the year at this time. Thanks for the hope of this much relief.

A very enjoyable Easter dance and social was given in the court house on Monday evening under the auspices of the Woman's Canadian Club. It was very largely attended.

Staff Capt. Penfold, of Halifax, will take charge of the services in the Salvation Army tomorrow and Sunday.

It is a strong recommendation that large congregations.

"In Captain Kidd's day," says Editor Perkins of the Cigar Makers' Official Journal, "they called them pirates (pirates). They have softened up the term somewhat and now call them 'prostitutes'."

In the supreme court at Halifax on Monday the appeal in Banks vs. Webber, a case tried at Digby before Judge Russell and a jury, in which a verdict was given for the plaintiff for $70, was dismissed with costs.

In the Baptist church next Sunday the pastor will preach at 10 o'clock on "The Soul's Springtime," being the first in a series of seven sermons on "The Messages to the Churches," and at seven on "The Tragedy of a Broken Friendship."

The total value of sea fish at the point of landing in Canada during the month of February was $49,108, according to the Naval Department statement. This is an increase of $5,872 over February, 1919, when the total was $43,236.

Through the Canadian Co-operative Wood Growers' Association the farmers of Nova Scotia marketed 110,000 pounds of wood in 1919, valued at $126,000, and in 1918. The whole shipment averaged sixty-five cents per pound.

Services as usual in the Methodist Church on Sunday next. At the evening service a tablet will be unveiled to the memory of six young men, formerly connected with the congregation, who made the supreme sacrifice during the war.

The La Have trawling fleet are all on the banks of their first frozen hating and when the weather improves, they will be ready to materially improve. The hand line fleet of Halifax will be fitted out and will be ready to start in time this season.

The Annapolis Royal schooner, A. W. Longmire, Capt. Longmire, arrived at Yarmouth on Friday evening for a harbor and will still be in port on Sunday. On Monday afternoon the schooner was at Evangeline wharf, having her compasses adjusted.

All that was left of Canada's expeditionary force passed into history on April 1st, and nothing but its glorious traditions remain. The expeditionary force remained in service and these were officially transferred to the permanent militia.

During the past few days lobster fishing has greatly improved all along the coast and the fishermen at the present time are doing principal work. The prices in Boston are only fair but the canners everywhere are bidding strong for the factory stock.

The Forward Movement among the five Protestant Churches in Canada has now reached a total of over $134,000. The Anglican has received $13,000, the Baptists, $70,000, Congregationalists, $115,000; Methodist, $4,575,000, and the Presbyterians $4,640,000.

It is said that companies are now being organized to develop water power on the Gasper river, Nova Scotia. Well-to-do people are being made to light that town by hydro-electric power. The surrounding country will also be furnished with power.

"Sinner" Takes Issue With Principle.

The average yield of crops grown by four farmers in the neighborhood of Bridgeport, was 73 bushels per acre. These four men were the prize winners in the Field Crops Competition in western Nova Scotia last year.

We must apologize for the fact that the Courier is not up to its usual standard in this issue, but the fact that we have only a few columns for us on their line type this paper would have been very much lacking in local news.

A widely known surgeon was just finishing an operation on a patient when a fire started in a warehouse across the road, illuminating the whole operating room. The surgeon turned to the nurse and said: "Nurse, the patient is coming to. I think you had better draw the blinds. That fire is too suggestive. I don't want him to think the operation hasn't been a success."

The celebration of the Jewish feast of the Passover began on Friday evening, and is continuing for eight days, during which time people of the Hebrew faith use unleavened bread. There are services in the synagogues but the religious exercises of the week are mainly in the home. The Feast of the Passover is intended to commemorate the time when God, smiting the first born, passed over the homes of the Israelites—the sacrifice offered to the Lord.

The effort to revive athletics in this town should be given encouragement and judging from the talk that one hears, the people are quite enthusiastic over the plan. A member of last year's ball team told the Courier yesterday that they were willing to make a start, but would not do so unless the business men would help in the organization of an athletic club.

"The young fellows," he said, "are going to do the playing but they want some one else to conduct the business for them."

"Foolishest Thing I Ever See" Below is presented a batch of "Foolishest Things" which we have culled from our files. What the "foolishest thing" you have ever seen? The COURIER will pay a dollar for the best one of five lines, and fifty cents each for the second and third best verses sent in before April 23rd.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The story opens in the town of Cariboo Meadows, where Hazel Weir is employed as a stenographer in the office of Mr. H. W. Sinclair, a young real estate agent, and the wedding day is not far off. Hazel is a young woman of twenty-two, and is very attractive. She is a native of Cariboo Meadows, and has been living there since she was a child. She is a very kind and generous person, and is very popular with everyone who knows her. She is also a very capable and efficient stenographer, and is very well liked by her employer, Mr. Sinclair.

CHAPTER II.—Hazel makes an effort, by a gift of flowers, to compensate Hazel in the minds of her friends, the return of the day. The next day, Hazel is very busy, and is very tired. She is very happy, and is very content. She is very much in love with Mr. Sinclair, and is very much in love with him. She is very much in love with him, and is very much in love with him.

CHAPTER III.—Jack, a young man, is a friend of Hazel's. He is a very kind and generous person, and is very popular with everyone who knows him. He is also a very capable and efficient stenographer, and is very well liked by his employer, Mr. Sinclair.

CHAPTER IV.—Hazel is very busy, and is very tired. She is very happy, and is very content. She is very much in love with Mr. Sinclair, and is very much in love with him. She is very much in love with him, and is very much in love with him.

CHAPTER V.—Hazel is very busy, and is very tired. She is very happy, and is very content. She is very much in love with Mr. Sinclair, and is very much in love with him. She is very much in love with him, and is very much in love with him.

CHAPTER VI.—Hazel is very busy, and is very tired. She is very happy, and is very content. She is very much in love with Mr. Sinclair, and is very much in love with him. She is very much in love with him, and is very much in love with him.

"Up a few minutes," said he, "I'll pack up and try to deliver you as per contract. Meantime, I'm going to smoke."

He did not ask her permission, but filled his pipe and lit it with a coal. And for the succeeding fifteen minutes Roaring Bill Wagstaff sat staring into the dancing blaze, Hazel watched him uneasily after a time. He seemed to have forgotten her. His pipe died, and he sat holding it in his hand. She was uneasy, but not afraid. There was nothing about him or his actions to make her fear. On the contrary, Roaring Bill at close quarters inspired confidence.

In the midst of her reflections he got up.

"Well, we'll make a move," he said, and disappeared abruptly into the darkness.

She heard him, moving around at some distance. Presently he was back, leading three horses. One he saddled. The other two he rigged with his pack outfit, storing his varied belongings in the two pairs of kyaks, and loading kyaks and bedding on the horse with a deft speed that bespoke long practice. He was too busy to talk, and Hazel sat beside the fire, watching in silence. When he had tucked up the last rope end, he turned to her.

"There," he said, "we're ready to hit the trail. Can you ride?"

"I don't know," Hazel answered dubiously. "I have never ridden a horse."

"My, my!" he smiled. "Your education has been sadly neglected—and you a schoolma'am, too!"

"My walking education hasn't been neglected," Hazel retorted. "I don't need to ride, thank you."

"Yes, and stomp your toe and fall down every ten feet," Bill observed. "No, Miss Weir, your first lesson in horsemanship is now due—if you aren't afraid of horses."

"I'm not afraid of horses at all," Hazel declared. "But I don't think it's a very good place to take riding lessons. I can just as well walk for, I'm not in the least afraid." And then she added as an afterthought: "How do you happen to know my name?"

"In the same way that you know mine," Bill replied, "even if you haven't mentioned it yet. Lord bless you, do you suppose Cariboo Meadows could import a lady school teacher from a civilized East without everybody in fifty miles knowing who she was, and where she came from, and what she looked like? I guess you don't realize what old Cariboo means to the West. Cariboo means a lot of things, but especially where girls are concerned."

Hazel stiffened a trifle. She did not like the idea of Cariboo Meadows knowing her with such freedom.

"Well," said he, "we won't argue the point."

He disappeared into the dark again. This time he came back with the graven of his hat full of water, which he sprinkled over the dwindling fire. As the red glow of the embers faded in a spitter of steam and ashes, Hazel realized more profoundly the blackness of a cloudy night in the woods.

"It's going to be nasty traveling," Miss Weir. Roaring Bill spoke at her elbow. "I'll walk and lead the packs. You ride Silk. He's gentle. All you have to do is sit still, and he'll say right behind the packs. I'll help you mount."

If Hazel had still been inclined to insist on walking, she had no chance to debate the question. Bill took her by the arm and led her up beside the horse. It was a unique experience for her, this being compelled to do things she had never even heard of.

But here was Roaring Bill Wagstaff telling her how to put her foot in the stirrup, putting her for the first time in her life astride a horse, and her to lead her low branches. In his mind there seemed to be no question as to whether or not she would ride. He had settled that.

Unused to mounting, she blundered at the first attempt, and flushed in the dark at Bill's amused chuckle. The next instant he caught her under the arms, and with the leverage of her one foot in the stirrup, set her gently in the seat of the saddle.

"You're such a little person," he said, "these stirrups are a mile too long. Put your feet in the leather holders. Now, just follow your leader. Give Silk his head."

He moved away. Obedient to Bill's command, she let the reins dangle, and Silk followed close behind his mate. Hazel lurched unsteadily at first, but presently she caught the swinging motion and could maintain her balance without holding stiffly to the saddle horn.

The night seemed endless as the wilderness itself. Unused to riding, she became sore, and then the sore muscles stiffened. The chill of the night air intensified. She grew cold, her fingers numb. She did not know where she was going, and she was assailed with doubts of Roaring Bill's ability to lead Cariboo Meadows.

"Mr. Wagstaff!" she called.

"Yours truly," his voice hailed back, away to one side. "I'll be there in a minute."

In less time he appeared beside her. "Will you fall off, or be lifted off?" he said cheerfully.

"Where are we?" she demanded.

"Ask me something easy," he returned. "I've been kept blind for an hour, trying to hit the Soda Creek trail, or any old trail that would show me where I am. It's no use. Too dark."

"What on earth am I going to do?" Hazel cried desperately.

"Camp here till daylight," Roaring Bill answered evenly. "The only thing to do. Good Lord! The lead has been dentally rested on you. You're like ice. I didn't think about you getting cold riding. Get down and put on a coat, and I'll have a fire in a minute."

"I suppose if I must, I must," but I can get off without any help, thank you," Hazel answered ungraciously.

Roaring Bill made no reply, but stood back, and when her feet touched solid earth he threw over her shoulders the coat he had worn himself. Then he turned away, and Hazel saw him stooping here and there, and heard the crack of dry sticks broken over his head. In no time he was back to the horses with an armful of dry stuff, and had a small blaze licking up through dry grass and twigs. As it grew he piled on larger sticks till the bright flames waved two feet high, lighting up the nearby woods and shedding a bright glow on the three horses standing patiently at hand. He paid no attention to Hazel until she came timidly up to the fire. Then he looked up at her with his whimsical smile.

"That's right," he said, "come on and get warm. No use worrying—or getting cross. I suppose from your civilized, conventional point of view it's a terrible thing to be out in the woods all night alone with a strange man. But I'm not a bear—I won't eat you."

"I'm sorry if I seemed rude," Hazel said penitently. "I can't help thinking of the disagreeable side of it. People talk so. I suppose I'll be a nice day's wonder in Cariboo Meadows."

Bill laughed softly.

"Let them take it out in wondering," he advised. "Cariboo Meadows is a very warm and insignificant portion of the world, anyway."

He went to one of the packs, and came back with a canvas cover, which he spread on the ground.

"Sit on that," he said. "The earth's always damp in the woods."

Then he stripped the horses of their burdens and tied them out of sight among the trees. That task finished, he took an ax and rustled a pile of wood, dragging dead poles up to the fire and chopping them into short lengths. When finally he laid aside his ax, he busied himself with gathering grass and leaves and pine needles until he had several armfuls collected and spread in an even pile to serve as a mattress. Upon this he laid his bedding, two thick quilts, two or three pairs of woolen blankets, a pillow, the whole inclosed with a long canvas sheet, the bed tarpaulin of the cattle ranges.

"There," he said, "you can turn in whenever you feel like it."

For himself he took the saddle blankets and laid them close by the fire within-reaching distance of the woodpile, taking for cover a pack canvas. He stretched himself full length, filled his pipe, lit it, and fell to staring into the fire while he smoked.

Half an hour later he raised his head and looked across the fire at Hazel.

"Why don't you go to bed?" he asked.

"I'm not sleepy," she declared, which was a palpable falsehood, for her eyelids were even then drooping.

Pure Air is as Necessary as Pure Food

THE ENTERPRISE BLAZER FURNACE heats your home in Nature's way. It draws in the sweet pure air from the big outdoors, moistens it thoroughly, turns it into heat and comfort and passes it on to every corner of your home.

The best that base burners and radiators can do is to heat the air that is already in the house—that has been breathed again and again. Stoves choke the air with dust and in real cold weather they fall short of their job. Another reason for the

is economy. For thirty-five years we have been learning how to take all the heat out of a piece of coal and then how to make most use of it. The Enterprise Blazer is the result. And it costs a great deal less to install than a hot water boiler, pipes and radiators.

Health and Comfort

An Enterprise Blazer will wear for years and years. Every part is made a little better than it needs be, and it carries the famous Enterprise guarantee of satisfaction. Get your dealer's advice and write us today for our free booklet "Warmth and Comfort."

Add years to the life of your house

TIME was when the "appearance" of a freshly painted house was the only thing that counted; but now we must also realize the importance of the protection good paint affords against wear and tear. Any paint will give some protection, but if you want paint protection for years—not merely months—use

B-I PAINT 70% Pure White Lead 30% Pure Zinc 100% Pure Paint

A 100% formula (70% of which is Brandram's Genuine B. B. White Lead) providing a coat of such body, brilliance and "toughness" as to defy rain, sun or snow, where cheaper paints will chip, peel and crack.

If your house is painted this Spring with B-I it actually has a surface protection which renders it impervious to the decay of passing years.

You have the choice of 36 attractive colours as shown on color card which is supplied on application.

"I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up without assistance.

I tried different medicines I saw advertised and was treated by doctors in Annapolis, also in my home town, but the Rheumatism came back.

In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that 'Fruit-a-lives' would stop Rheumatism, and took one box and got relief; then I took them right along for about six months and the Rheumatism was all gone and I have never felt since.

Anyone who would care to write me as regards 'Fruit-a-lives' I would be glad to tell them what 'Fruit-a-lives' did for me."

YOUNG WOMEN AVOID PAIN

This One Tells How She Was Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Regina, Sask. "For two years I suffered from periodic pains and nausea so I was unable to get around. My mother had me take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am much better and able to go about all the time, which I could not do before. I recommend Vegetable Compound to my friends if I know they suffer the same way, and you may publish my letter if it will help any one, as I hope it will."—Miss Z. G. BLACKWELL, 2078 Oster Place, Regina, Sask.

Every girl who suffers as Miss Blackwell did, or from irregularities, painful periods, headache, dizziness, drowsiness, pains, inflammation or ulceration, would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lowell, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

KARSDALE

The Karstale Union Bible Class held their third anniversary at the Baptist church on Friday evening last.

The president referred to the deep interest in the class in the past year, and the large and representative gathering present. He described the object and aims of the organization, and then introduced the Rev. Mr. McCabe who delivered a most illuminating address showing a very extensive knowledge of the Bible. Rev. Isaac Brindley, who had come from St. John to present, then made a very eloquent address. He was followed by John K. Winchester, president of the Island club, who also made a very appropriate address. Excellent music was interspersed. Miss Mildred McNeill singing at the organ.

At the close E. H. Porter, president of the Karstale class, invited both classes to his house, which they did. Ice cream and cake were served. Music and witty speeches followed and with a psalm read by Mr. McCabe and a prayer by Rev. Mr. Brindley the company dispersed at a late hour all saying this anniversary was the best of them all.

John Hall, of Lawrencetown, spent the week end with E. H. Porter.

Mrs. Lydia F. Thorne spent last week with her daughter, Mrs. Bishop in Paradise.

MILFORD.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Farnsworth are expected home this week, having spent the winter in Florida.

An old fashioned "candy party" much enjoyed by all present was held at the home of Mrs. A. D. Thomas, on Tuesday evening, March 20th.

On Friday afternoon, April 2nd, "chopping frolic" was held at the Milford house, followed by a party in the evening.

The young folks enjoyed a sing at the home of Mrs. Reid Orde on Easter evening.

Miss S. Carr spent Easter at her home in Le Quille.

BOOK LOVERS IN TRANSPORT

Expect Literary Treasures to Be Unearthed From the Volumes Stored at Constantinople.

Some of the books of Livy undoubtedly will be found among the great number of volumes ascertained to be stored in crypts under the public buildings of Constantinople, but will the best books of Livy be found there?

The report that the long-awaited discovery is about to be made may rest on no better foundation than the vague impression of some uneducated Turkish official, and indeed, in the absence of any information whatever, on the subject, what more natural conjecture than that the lost, historical works will be restored to the world when vast collection of the ancient books whose existence was previously unsuspected come to be examined?

Of the 35 books of Livy preserved to us out of 142, two are incomplete. Of the other 107 books the summaries remain, so that their contents are known. Their full text probably would not add so much to the sum of knowledge, but their recovery has been the dream of classicists for centuries. The occasional discovery of even a fragment in the Vatican or other libraries has been a sensation for scholars.

These lost and long sought books, which it was supposed the Turks buried during their conquests, but which, it appears, they took back to their capital, may increase stores of learning and make more definite our knowledge of particular town and particular periods. It is agreeable to think that forgotten authors of great merit and forgotten works of undisputed value will find new recognition.

If the missing works of the Roman historian are among the volumes found, their cause will be given for congratulation. The Turkish downfall, St. Louis Post Dispatch.

MAKE TROUBLE FOR DENTIST

Successful Treatment of Wisdom Teeth Always is More or Less of a Problem.

Wisdom teeth, especially lower ones, are much more difficult to handle than any of the others in the mouth. When their nerve dies or has to be killed by a dentist, it cannot be sure for some time that it is really dead. The reason is that the roots of a wisdom tooth are twisted or curved in such a manner that the root canal cannot be explored.

The upper wisdom teeth have three roots, "frequently fused together, forming a grooved cone, which is usually curved backward," says Gray's anatomy. The roots of the lower, two in number, are compressed together and curve backward.

It is this backward curving of the compressed roots that gives trouble to the dentist. The roots of the lower teeth run through each root is so narrow and so curved that the finest of the "brooches" used to draw out the dead nerve will not penetrate, and sometimes when it has penetrated it will not come out.

When this happens there is only one thing to do—leave the brooch and apply iodine, which will very soon eat away the steel of which the brooch is made.

Las Vegas Has Future.

Las Vegas was founded by some Mexicans when New Mexico was a part of old Mexico, in 1835, and the Mexican government granted to the new community an area of some 400,000 acres. The Mexicans took up what they needed of this land and built a village in the middle of the settlement. It remained a sleepy Mexican town until some time in the twenties, when it was suddenly simultaneously by several Yankees and Jews, and by a wave of prosperity.

The Mexicans, who had been squatting on a part of the community grant, showed that they were capable of learning modern methods by claiming the whole 400,000 acres. After a long contest the courts confirmed them in their titles to the lands they actually occupied, but decided that the rest of the area belonged to the community. And so it is today. This town owns great grazing areas, which are open to all citizens, and valuable timberlands. Ultimately Las Vegas will be rich and her people tax free.

The Essential.

The new doorkeeper at the museum turnstile had learned the book of rules by heart before taking over the job.

"Here, sir, you must leave your umbrella at the door," he said to a visitor who had failed to hand over that article.

"But I haven't an umbrella," the visitor pleaded.

"When you must go back and get one," said the doorkeeper. "No one is allowed to pass in here unless he leaves his umbrella at the door."—Exchange.

A NEW SPANISH TEXT BOOK

Poco a Poco, 312 pp., postpaid, containing over 300 pages, entirely in Spanish, profusely illustrated, and published by The World Book Co., Yonkers, N. Y.

This is a new departure in Spanish text books for teaching by the "direct method," as we learn our mother tongue. The lessons are arranged so simply that a beginner may start at once in the study of pure Castilian according to the most recent rulings of the Spanish Royal Academy.

A portion of the text deals with commercial Spanish, including business letters, invoices, checks, receipts, etc. Grammar is administered in small doses as needed, in a very clear manner. This is a wonderful, great, little, up-to-date work that really exceeds one's expectations.

SMITH'S COVE

Cecil Raymond, of Acadia College, is a guest of Mrs. Sara Cossaboom over the Easter season.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Weir were in Clementsport last week.

A. T. O. Morgan was a passenger to St. John on Saturday, returning on Tuesday.

Miss Cumming entertained a few friends on Friday afternoon, a quilling party.

Mrs. Carey Morgan, of Lunenburg, visited Mrs. T. G. Morgan recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cossaboom were called to Boston last week by the serious illness of their daughter, Mrs. McIntyre.

We are glad to report her condition much improved. Mr. Cossaboom returned this week.

Quite a number from here attended the marriage of Miss Annie Weir and George Winchester, at the home of the bride's friends, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cossaboom, on Wednesday evening.

Miss Weir was recently left Smith's Cove and will be missed by her many friends.

Our teachers, Miss Young and Miss Eldridge, spent Easter with friends returning on Monday.

Miss Josephine Winchester visited friends here at Easter.

Miss Annie Cossaboom came home from Plympton for the Easter holidays.

Mrs. T. O. Morgan, Mrs. Longworth and Miss Frances Austin, were in Digby on Sunday morning for the Easter services.

Mrs. Ralph Cossaboom has been quite ill but we are glad to say is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Berly have moved into the house which they recently purchased.

G. H. Holdsworth, Digby*Farmer Boy to Millionaire

A FEW thousand Ontario students should pause a moment to contemplate what would have happened another student thirty years ago if fortune's foot had slipped. On a backwoods farm in Lanark county a farmer with a growing son on his hands applied his gauge to the cause of trouble, and reached a stern decision.

Then, on the eve of the entrance examinations, he took the boy aside. "John," he told him solemnly, "you are going to try your examinations for H. H. School tomorrow. If you pass I am going to see what can be done to send you to school. But in case you don't pass, I have arranged to article you to the village blacksmith."

Thick in the chest, broad in the shoulders, he seemed built for the sledge and anvil. But he passed the exams, and missed that avocation. And when he died early this year he had close to $2,000,000 for a fortune. He was Hon. W. J. Hanna, for instance.

Mr. Hanna, who, as a political campaigner, cultivated a sensitive appreciation of effective ammunition, used to relate the story to his constituency. It made "great stuff."

Did he need money? Why, when "Jack" Hanna studied law in the office of McKenzie and Gurd, thirty years ago, he joined the volunteer brigade so he could sleep in the old north end house. He used to take care of the building, wash the hose, and scrub the floor for $5 a month. And when the month was up he was always there for the money.

Mr. Hanna used to tell that story, too, on the political stump. Folks in Sarnia say that he had an Auburn bent for politics. His days as a law student and volunteer fire fighter were concurrent. The brigade developed into a sort of social club, held dinners, and tested the oratorical proclivities of the membership. Young Hanna never missed a chance to speak. When he misadvised and backed his political opinions and then, like Demosthenes, mousing his pebble on the seashore, he tackled his notions for the education of the brave fire-fighters down on Sarnia's water front.

According to the mature opinion of Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, the North Sarnia house was the abiding place of the muse of speech and an abiding field of political wisdom. He always claimed that he felt at ease on his feet after he learned to make his voice loud and vigorous in the ears of the old brigade.

The late Provincial Secretary doubtless would have made a first rate blacksmith. Sarnia people agree that the goods he was made of could not fail at any occupation. Marked "Exhibit A" in the evidence, they put in the fact that he rose to the rank of foreman in the fire company. Some years ago while stump pulling on behalf of the Whitney Government in Ridgeway, Mr. Hanna brought the audience home in his hand satchel by a little reminiscence.

"Remember when you held a volunteer fireman's tourney here years ago?" he asked.

Sure, everyone remembered that. Fire teams came from all over the province.

"Remember how the Sarnia team cleaned up everything?"

Sure, that was a fact. The cronies in the front row nudged each other and wondered how this fellow came to know about it.

"Well," he explained, gleefully, "I was the lead runner on that Sarnia reel!"

Mr. Hanna commenced his political career by opposing J. P. Lister, afterwards Judge Lister, in a fight for Sarnia's Federal seat. He was then a lawyer, but young, and seemingly so new at the game, that his opponent, so Sarnians say, simply killed him off by scorn. He didn't pull enough votes to save his deposit. And that was money he could ill afford to lose in those days. But he started the fight—and he never lost an election afterward.

To-day there is a man in Sarnia, a gentleman of prominence, and modesty, who feels that he was a cog in the gear that elevated Mr. Hanna in the world of finance. When the oil derrick came into the Sarnia Imperial connection turned up in Sarnia they had need of a lawyer to provide for certain conveyancing and other routine work. The aforesaid gentleman had in view a friend who used to serve with him on the fire brigade.

Mr. Hanna was able to look after those matters for you," he ventured.

The oil officials supposed he would do and made a note of his name. The budding barrister's legal connection was at first far from lucrative, and when a client turned up he pained himself to serve him. So it was with the oil company.

In fact, the services were so particularly satisfactory that the Sarnian grew in favor until his activities spread beyond the fatcats of the Sarnia plant. No particular spectacular legal gymnastics hurried him to higher planes, but accumulating prestige increased the corporation's appreciation of him from year to year until the boy of the backwoods farm in Lanark found himself with two big pools at his command. He made his choice and quit the Provincial Cabinet to head the Standard Oil in Canada at a reputed salary of $50,000 a year.

One day in the rush of business a telegrapher called an error to his attention.

The Hon. W. J. Hanna, with seven figures in his pass book, heated for a moment. He said, "If they didn't spoil a good blacksmith!"

Young Sarnia—"On my last voyage I saw waves 40 ft. high. Old Salt—Get out! I was at sea 30 years and never saw one! That's right! Young Sarnia—"Well, things are getting higher now than they used to be. Look at the price of bacon, for instance!"

A BATTLE WITH ICE.

How the "Lake Ontario" Reached the Ocean.

The "Lake Ontario," built on the Great Lakes, began her career by forcing her way to the ocean through ice in the St. Lawrence river so thick that she was almost blocked up.

Having got her hand in, so to speak, she became one of the mine-carriers operated by the naval ordnance service. In the work she dodged torpedoes and floating mines, was followed one thousand miles by a German submarine, drove another boat with five well-placed shots, was used as live bait in a convoy to trap a submarine, weathered an eighty-mile gale while steaming four miles an hour with her engines turning 100 revolutions per minute on the "go ahead."

Through it all never had an accident. These are some of the high lights in her very interesting story, which is told by her commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. E. Gordon Rattray, in the Chicago Tribune. According to Commander Rattray:

The "Lake Ontario" was launched November 20, 1917. Five days later we left Manitowish for New York City.

While in Montreal, on the way to New York, we received orders to proceed with never other ships through the ice to Quebec before we were all frozen in, as was the last fleet on the ice. It was then from seven to ten degrees below zero. With the rivers and small lakes covered with ice.

The huge Government Ice-crusher, the "Gracie," was used to break a way through the ice as far as Quebec, where we would receive the assistance of another large Canadian Government ice-crusher, the "Bell View." The two were then to break the fleet out through to clear water. The "Lake Ontario" was last to leave Two Rivers and first to arrive at Quebec, smashing her way through seven feet of ice, and through the bridge. The "Gracie" stopped all night at Quebec. The next morning at 7 o'clock we started out through very heavy ice. After proceeding for five hours, through ice that measured up to twenty feet, the Canadian ice-crushers turned back with six of the other ships.

The "Lake Ontario" continued bucking the ice, with the War Fox following. This is where the battle commenced. All the buoy men were gone for 157 miles in this river, carried off by the heavy ice, in times that ran as high as seven knots per hour in places.

This battle with ice lasted three days and nights with a temperature of 15 to 20 degrees below zero. At times ice started to come over the top of the ship and her sides and frames were springing in and out with the pressure and the grinding of ice which had reached a thickness of thirty feet. By the twisting of the tides and by filling the cargo hold with water and laying her down on her side, we managed to reach open water after three days and nights of continuous work. The ice extended for 510 miles, from Montreal out into the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The balance of the fleet was frozen in at Quebec, the steamship "Angeline" going down. We lost track of the "Fort Henry," "Gait of Canada," "Nova Scotia." We started out together again, but the "Lake Ontario," being faster, we arrived in New York City.

After being fitted for naval operations as a mine-carrier with depth charges and gun mounted for and aft, we made the trip from New York to Norfolk, Virginia, thence to Tampa, Mexico. We fueled up two warships, and proceeded back to Key West, where we finished discharging our cargo at the naval station.

While in convoy bound from Norfolk to Lochlash, Scotland, we passed over a nest of eight mines which had been laid for us the night previous by a submarine. These were picked up the next day by British torpedoes and mine-sweepers. After leaving Kyle we returned to Glasgow for fuel and provisions. On our way from Glasgow to Hampton Roads we passed over the United States steamship "Lake Moor" wreck.

After receiving numerous wireless messages from ships being attacked by German submarines, we arrived in Hampton Roads none the worse for our trip. It was always very quiet for us, but we had a narrow escape from a German submarine in the north coast of Ireland, where submarines and mines were very plentiful.

At our home port, we changed our course as high as three thousand times.

Indians as Farmers.

It is expected that Indians in the three Western Provinces will have 2,000 acres of grain to be harvested this year. With a favorable season the Indians will garner over two and a half million bushels of coarse grain, to say nothing of the food and hay which will be harvested for the live stock. During the past three years they have made phenomenal strides of advancement in agriculture generally, and their live stock, having come through the winter in prime condition, will show considerable increase in numbers.

Never Too Late.

The wedding took place on May 30, in the presence of members of the Victory Hall congregation on University street, Montreal, of John Truett, 81 years of age, who was connected with the firm of Goodwin's Limited. The bride was Mrs. Ellen Truett, of Simcoe County, aged 61 years. The marriage was performed by Pastor D. K. Byrne. At the close of the ceremony the newly married couple left for Quebec for their honeymoon.

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS

Thousands of Canadian boys have been waiting impatiently for the week of April 19-24. The time will soon be here. On those days Tuxis Boys and Trail Rangers in all parts of Canada will gather for the events of the National Athletic Contest.

The events are:
Trail Rangers:
Standing Broad Jump.
Running High Jump.
One Potato Race.
Three Potato Race.
Floor Push.

Tuxis Boys:
Standing Broad Jump.
Running High Jump.
Three Potato Race.
Five Potato Race.
8 lb. Shot Put.

Any Camp of Trail Rangers or any Square of Tuxis Boys that can meet with another group for running off the various events can take part in this contest. There is no expensive journey to a central point and no elaborate athletic equipment necessary. The groups must be properly organized Sunday School groups with a regular Sunday attendance. The events can take place in almost any open space or a basement floor or vacant lot.

The average score made by the members of the group will then be sent to the Secretary of the Provincial Boy's Work Board and from these scores the winner for the province will be decided. The winning scores will then be sent to the National Boy's Work Board and from these the Dominion Championship will be determined. One big thing about this Contest is the fact that it is the group score that counts and that receives recognition; the individual boy receives no honor or recognition for himself, he merely strives his utmost to swell the score of his "bunch of fellows." He forgets himself in his concern for the honor of his team and club. No individual boy will be crowned as national champion but some Camp or Square of wide-awake fellows, because of the strenuous team play of all its members, will receive the laurel as winners for all of Canada.

The Tuxis class of the Digby Baptist church have subscribed $150.00 toward the Forward Movement fund.

M. C. Denton, the efficient mentor of the "Live Wires" square, has recently returned from Montreal, having attended the Great War Veterans convention. He is now ready to push the spring drive in Boys work.

Election of officers took place at the "Live Wires" club rooms last Friday evening and the following are now on the job.

K. E. Collins—Deputy-practor.
D. H. Collins—Scriptor-Comptor.
One of the boys of the Baptist "Live Wires" square, has recently decided to devote his life to the ministry and will be ready to start his college career in the fall.

Hello—I hear that the girls J. O. Y. class under the teaching of Mrs. D. E. Hatt are to give the "Tuxis Boys" a feed on Friday evening. Will we be there? Well! I'll say we will.

FIRE LIGHTER.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

The street department had hardly finished cleaning up Water and Birch streets the other day when children began to scatter paper and other rubbish. This must make Superintendent Vye good and mad and I don't know as I can blame him. And there is another matter which ought to be given more attention, namely that of spitting on the sidewalks. The Board of Health rules forbid it and there is no reason why the rule should not be enforced. It seems to me that the matter is one which should be looked after.

One of my friends argues that the continuing cold snap is due to a large quantity of snow "up north," and the weather cannot become warm until it melts, and it will not melt till the weather gets warmer. So there you are.

For a chilly period the past two weeks certainly have been a record one for the month of April. With ice-hanging from buildings and patches of snow scattered here and there, one could hardly believe that the spring season is almost four weeks advanced.

Do you remember how when the amusements were signed we waited for prices to go down with a thud? As prices go up from day to day we now realize that war's effects are cumulative. Just as the coldest weather of winter comes after the days begin to lengthen.

The world's getting crazy; we're all growing lazy and trying to live without labor. We are spending our dollars for neckties and collars and try to keep up with our neighbors. The tinsmith and plumber, the clerk and the drummer are striking for this, that and 'tother. Even the blushing young bride is not satisfied, and she's going right home to her mother. The man who sold booze is now making shoes and is kicking, for what, he don't know. The great profiteer gets a million a year, while the baker is kneading more dough. The kickers are kicking whether standing or sitting, and they rave at the high price of meat, their heat out of wheels and automobiles. Oh, the kickers who kick with both feet!

Everything indicates an even better summer season than last year and I am sure everyone will be glad of that. I cannot understand how anyone wants to go abroad this year with every country in Europe in a turmoil, with revolutionary armies, and blood on any point. When I predict that those who do go abroad will find travelling far different than it was in 1913. This country is good enough for anyone after all.

The Victorian Nurse--- One of Digby's Needs

To the Editor of "THE COURIER" SIR:—Will you kindly publish the correspondence received from the Chief Superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses, which clearly explains their position as Social Service workers and all the details of organization, etc.

W. F. REED, M. D.
Digby, April 5th, 1920.

Willard F. Reed, Esq., M. D.,
First Ave., Digby, N. S.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of March 23rd received and in reply I would say that our nurses engage in Social Service work and in school inspection in districts where such work is not already taken over by another organization. In addition to doing district nursing. Our nurses are all that Social Service workers, school nurses, Public Health nurses are, and a little more.

Trusting that soon your people will realize the need and the value of the Victorian Order of Nurses in their community and when they do we will have one to supply. Nurses are very scarce.

Your faithfully,
J. CHARLOTTE HANINGTON,
Chief Superintendent
Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada.
Where a number of citizens feel that a branch of the Victorian Order should be established in any locality, the usual procedure is to call a representative meeting as possible of men and women to discuss the question and appoint a preliminary committee to find out all about the ways, means, etc. When this committee is ready to report another meeting is called. If the report of this committee is satisfactory and it is decided to organize, you proceed at once to form your Local Association. You do this just as you would form any society. The subject is to supply a nurse or nurses, for town or district, as the case may be. The Local Association fix the membership fees. A moderate one is advised so as to take in everyone.

It is well to take the advice of the nurse with regard to your scale of fees for nursing services. She, by practical questioning, can soon find out the financial condition of her patients and charge accordingly, and she often makes an excellent collector. This should be so handled that any one needing nursing care should not be deterred from having it. Annual subscriptions from individuals, industries, societies, or clubs can be obtained. After your first year, in which period you will have your greatest struggle, your community will not care to be without the services of a nurse or nurses, and people eventually give very cheerfully to this work.

It has been found advisable for the nurse a straight salary and her find her own boarding place. She cannot now get a nurse under $100 a month. If your nurse is giving good service she is worth more every year she stays and she is worth more salary. This is hard work, a nurse is always on call and should have sufficient salary to allow her to lay something by for a rainy day. It is a mistake to let a nurse go for a few extra dollars a month. In the initial expense for district nurses' bag, which amounts to about $25.00. These bags last long, time and belong to the L. O. N. Committee. You will also have to provide a telephone at your expense and there are always little supplies, soap, etc. for the nurse.

Each nurse is allowed a month's vacation a year with full salary. Local Association to provide a substitute. All Victorian Order nurses are graduates of training schools—good standing.

Each district is inspected by Inspector of the Order yearly and Chief Superintendent. Inspections are made from time to time as possible. Districts are urged to write to office at any time, they require help of any kind and are always at liberty to ask for a visit from the Inspector in case of difficulty.

Yours faithfully,
J. CHARLOTTE HANINGTON,
Chief Superintendent
Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada.

REPORT OF MISS CHRISTINA HALL, ON SACKVILLE, N. B.,
OCTOBER, 1919.

I spent part of a day visiting patients with Miss Anderson, and her work is very hard. She does more for her patients than the average nurse. She takes the whole family up, and she is already a power for good in this community. She was elected a member of the L. O. N. and they paid their dues. She is also a transient officer, as she insists on the children attending school. The other day she got two boys of twelve and fifteen who were hanging round the street to start going to school.

She will soon begin a course for the junior girls in home nursing, and she is in touch with all clubs and agencies to relieve mothers and suffering. To illustrate what I want you to know: Miss Anderson heard of a man who was very ill and whose family was in distress. She went to the house and found the man paralyzed; the house swarming with flies and dust, and the food and food. She at once got in touch with the Methodists and they provided a screen door and mosquito netting which she put up. Then she got the L. O. N. making bedding and clothing for the children, and asked the Civic Council to send groceries, etc. She also asked these organizations to keep in touch with the family. The man died in a few weeks, but the family was comfortably clothed and sent to friends in Nova Scotia.

Yesterday she took an insane patient to St. John's. B. O. on these days she will get hold of school inspection. After the Baby Welfare on Thursday of last week she will start on a Baby Clinic.

Miss Anderson is in touch with all the people who do things, from Professor Deane down and up. She is very busy.

Even now there are many things which could be done to improve and beautify the water front. In the mental picture of a beautiful village the tree has an inseparable part. Tree-lined Streets, the background of foliage, the play of light and shadow on the pavement, the screening of the sun's glare upon walk and window, these are factors of beauty which are universal in appeal.

The tree is a mighty factor in Village beauty and a hundred or two hundred trees planted along the water front would add just that much to the beauty of the place. A man plants his house or lays a new side walk and holds his head high because he has done something for his neighbor's good as well as his own. But as to setting out trees whose full beauty he may not live to enjoy, that is a demand upon public spirit which too often staggers him, and where there is a bare spot on the bank or break-water a few climbing roses would spread over the ground and when in blossom would look beautiful.

I believe a little money expended during the Summer Season in advertising the attractions of Digby, in the Boston Transcript, the Brooklyn Sunday Eagle and one or two of the leading Newspapers of New York City would bring good results.

What Digby needs also is several manufacturing establishments of some kind which would give employment to some of the young men and boys, thereby keeping them from going away to the "States" or some other place to find employment. This is a matter which the Town Council should look into and see if they could not by offering attractive terms, induce one or more manufacturers to locate in Digby.

Speaking of trying to keep the young people at home, I consider this a most important matter and one which has never received the consideration which it should have. Of course there are some restless young souls who would come away regardless of all the inducements offered them to remain in the old home town. They have in them an inborn desire for freedom. If the young man desires to appear respectable there is a certain standard of Village morality to which he must conform, and under the restraints of home and friends he feels in some respects like a prisoner.

valuable woman. There is much to do here not only for this town but also for the surrounding district. The Child Welfare Exhibit held this week is the first one to be held in New Brunswick.

FROM A VICTORIAN ORDER NURSE IN WHITBY, ONTARIO.

The question is often asked "Is a Visiting Nurse a Public Health Nurse?" I think there can be no doubt in the mind of the nurse who has been in the trained nurse in some of our towns and villages. There she has to give bedside nursing care, be school nurse and social service worker all in one. In the town where I have been nursing for the last year, we have a population of about 3,500, a few of these are foreigners, mostly Russian and Polish Jews.

There is no hospital in town, but we have a home where the sick are cared for by a housekeeper. We have two rooms which are fitted up as wards, and we take in patients who cannot get proper care in their own homes. They pay according to their means and no one is turned away because they have not sufficient money to pay for their care. We have a few obstetrical cases. I fix the mother and baby up first thing in the morning and do not need a doctor's hands. I have a few obstetrical cases. I fix the mother and baby up first thing in the morning and do not need a doctor's hands.

We have three public schools, with an average of about 25 children in each. I examine the children once a month. The schools are old and need a great deal of repair. The classrooms have large windows, we use them and they do very nicely. The children on a whole are clean and healthy. The teachers are very good, co-operating with me regarding clean hands and faces and teeth. In the Junior class we have a few of the little ones on the board and those who come to school clean and tidy and have brushed their teeth get a reward. Their names, these great rivalry to see who has the most stars at the end of the week. We have printed instructions for the mothers to take care of their children's heads, etc., and the danger of enlarged tonsils and adenoids. These we give to the mothers to take care of their children's heads, etc., and the danger of enlarged tonsils and adenoids.

We started our well baby clinic last of all, first it was for the free women to understand that it was well babies we wanted, but now the majority are keenly interested. If it will encourage any other nurse let me tell you that we started our first clinic with only baby but now we have an average of seven or eight every Saturday afternoon. I hold the clinics at the Home. We have no doctor but the sick babies I send to my family physician and show the mother how to prepare the medicine. I can usually suggest something that will be a help to baby. It is difficult to get the foreign women interested but I have one who comes quite regularly now so that will mean others will follow. This Jewish woman used to wait for Saturday to come to see how much my baby make fat.

Through these clinics I keep in touch with all my babies born either in the Home or on the district. If more than one baby comes after the mother comes I visit them to see what the trouble is. Any baby that has to be bottle fed I usually go for a few mornings and then the mother how to prepare the milk. We have a Samaritan Committee composed of some of the ladies of the town and they keep my cupboard well stocked with extra bedding and sick room necessities for the P. N. in the district. Any little luxury in the way of nourishment, or extra milk, for a nursing mother they will supply to me.

Now the time is a centre, where anyone can come for help and advice. A man who has lost his wife comes for us to find a good home and board for his baby. A mother comes after her boy of ten who has gotten beyond her control and we put her in touch with the Children's Aid Society in the next town.

These are only a few of the many cases which come to the visiting nurse every day.

DIGBY AS SEEN BY A FORMER RESIDENT

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR:—Referring to the several letters which have appeared in the Courier during the past winter as to who is interested in the place, to give you a few of my impressions.

I was born in Digby but left there when a boy, consequently my recollections of the town as it was at that time are very vague and I am not qualified to make comparisons between that time and the present. But after forty years of life in the great city of New York, and the strife, where the average man or woman does not seem to count for much more than the grain of sand upon the sea shore, my thoughts turn backward to my old native town. During the past seven and eight years I have spent a few days each year in Digby. To me it is the place of bright sunshine, azure skies, sparkling waters, green fields, apple blossoms and air like the sweetest perfume. In my travels back and forth I have never seen any place which could compare with old Digby in any of these things. This is why, a few years ago I purchased a little summer home there which I am trying to improve and beautify every year, and where my wife and I may some day settle down to spend the rest of our days. I tell my wife sometimes that we have the prettiest little place in the prettiest town in all the world. Nature has wonderfully favored Digby, but I am afraid that as a rule the people of the town fail to realize this fact. Hence so many curiously constructed buildings so out of harmony with the surroundings. Buildings without any architectural beauty or graceful lines. Take Water Street, for instance. With the exception of the Post Office and the Bank of Nova Scotia, Water Street is a line of Architectural Incongruity. It is said that first impressions are most lasting. Therefore the first impressions of strangers who come over on the boat from St. John and walk up Water Street are not the most favorable. To illustrate what I mean, a year ago while traveling on the "Train" from Boston to St. John on my way to Digby, I had the pleasure of making acquaintance of a retired Judge from Tennessee, who was going to Digby with his wife and daughter to spend the summer. I sat up, until midnight telling him of the beauties of Digby as a Summer Resort. When we arrived at the wharf he said that instead of driving to Four Lodge where I had recommended him to stop, they would walk and better see something of the town. He told me next day that when they had walked as far as the Post Office, his wife and daughter were so disappointed in the appearance of that part of the town that they wanted to go back to the steamer and return to St. John.

Now I do not presume to say that the main street of Digby is any worse architecturally than thousands of other towns but it seems to me a pity that being endowed by nature with such beautiful surroundings a little more attention has not been paid to the architectural beauty of the buildings.

Even now there are many things which could be done to improve and beautify the water front. In the mental picture of a beautiful village the tree has an inseparable part. Tree-lined Streets, the background of foliage, the play of light and shadow on the pavement, the screening of the sun's glare upon walk and window, these are factors

Mothers' Advice

The responsibility for a daughter's future largely rests with the mother. The right influence and the information which is of vital interest to the daughter imparted at the proper time has not only saved the life but insured the success of many a beautiful girl. When a girl's thoughts become sluggish with headaches, dizziness, or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs and a desire for solitude, her mother should come to her aid and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, will at this time prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities. Thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtues of this medicine, and what it has done for their daughters.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she had to stay home from school most of the time. She suffered agonies from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For 3 months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and side aching so I did not know what to do. I read in the papers about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained in weight and feels much better. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters. M. E. Farnas, 615 Macy Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y."

VICTORIAN ERA WORTH WHILE

Deserved Rebuke for Those Who Smile at Epoch Which Had Many Good Points.

Why do the heathen rage against the Victorian epoch? Men who lived through a great part of it found it exciting, interesting, amusing and sometimes terrible. Tallyrand once said that nobody could understand the real delights of society unless he had lived before the French revolution. Similarly, what young person, or near-young person, of today can experience the delights of the time when it was possible to begin at once the first chapter of a volume of Dickens or Thackeray, to wait impatiently for George Eliot's new novel or even to bear the shock of Robert Buchanan's famous review of Swinburne? There were too the terrors occasioned by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe when her fierce Puritan friendship induced her to print the confidences of Lady Byron! Our eyes were turned towards England, it is true, yet Hawthorne and Emerson were not only discussed, but read. Among the lesser lights there were Gail Hamilton and James Fields, whose very satisfying literary essays were great features of the Atlantic Monthly. People really did not spend their time in singing "Jesu! He! He!" or in reading "Golds" on the sly, nor did all the women dress in the rags and soles of their shoes in which contemporary satirists clothed the ladies of the middle periods of Victorian and Eugenic. The Crimean and Civil wars, so microscopic to the careless young, the Franco-Prussian struggle which precluded the chaos of 1914, were events that kept our minds from stagnating; and there were doers and thinkers in Europe worth our constant consideration. —Maurice Francis Egan in Yale Review.

FORGOT PROMISE TO CLIENT

Eminent Lawyer Talked Altogether Too Freely Over His Whisky and Soda at the Club.

Sir Thomas Lipton spoke in a Y. M. C. A. address in New York about honor among business men.

"Too many business men," he said, "fall from honor through dishonesty. They are like an eminent divorce lawyer whom I overheard one night prattling over his whisky and soda at the club."

"Yes," said the eminent lawyer, "she's a very beautiful woman. Nervous, of course—of course very nervous just now. So I said to her gently, as soon as I'd sent my secretary out of the room: 'Now, my dear lady, I know in these cases there are many little details which a woman of your position and refinement is most reluctant to divulge. But it is necessary, if our case is to succeed, that I be fully acquainted with all you have and will suffer. Of course you will understand that what you tell me will never go beyond the four walls of this room. I shall regard your confidence as absolutely sacred, and you need have no hesitation in revealing all, for you may be sure that no other human being will ever learn from me the details of your troubles.' Well, that gave her more confidence, of course, and, gentlemen, this is what she told me."

London and the Birds.

After the news from Strasbourg that the storks have returned with the end of the war to the old Alsatian city, and are to be seen daily, as in time past, pluming themselves in the Place de Broglie, comes the news from London that one of the unusual features of this first spring after the war is the presence of the beautiful larger birds in the English capital. So writes a correspondent of the Observer, of London. "On the fringes," he says, "kestrels are now quite common, and in many places you may see their wonderful flight. The handsome jays betray their presence in many wooded gardens that knew them not, by their screech, or the white flash of their wings; sparrows and other common crows are coming to be common; and even the magpie has been seen where for years he has been unknown." And now that they have come, no doubt some way will be found of so convincing them of their welcome that they will come again.

The Claim of Runymede.

Every now and again, it is given to some man somewhere to utter a "heaven-sent phrase," which brings with it instant and almost startling illumination on a question, where long columns of explanation and long fragments of eloquence might utterly fail. Such a phrase came from Joseph Daniels, the secretary of the United States navy, the other day, in the course of one of his speeches in England. "No Englishman," declared Mr. Daniels, "has more claim to Runymede than I." —Christian Science Monitor.

Tunnel Through the Pyrenees.

The rigors of mountain weather, opposition from the national ministries of war and a difference in gauge have all united in the past to prevent an effective joining of French and Spanish railways, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Work on the project has been carried on since 1914, however, and it is now announced that a new tunnel from Ax, in France, to Puigcerda, on the Spanish side, has been broken through, and will cement this desirable union more firmly.

Not So Equal.

"Don't you like to get back to nature, where all men are equal?" "Yes, but it doesn't always work out that way. Summer cottagers are inclined to snub the campers."

Relic Querily Preserved.

A steel ladle seven inches long, supposed to have been used by Indians in melting lead for bullets many years ago, was found imbedded in the heart of a red oak tree saved up for firewood at South Alton, Pa. Rings on the tree indicate it was more than one hundred years old. The ladle, made of the finest charcoal steel, is believed to have been driven into the tree when it was a sapling.

Reading Useless Without Action.

If you want to get value out of a book, however, don't lend on it as though you were a cripple. A book can't take you by sheer force and project you into a good job, or put more money in your pocket, or make you industrious or patient when you see otherwise. All you can expect of a book is that it tells you how these things can be accomplished. The real job lies with you.

The Predicament.

Teddy had the usual nine o'clock sickness and did not go to school as a result. But at ten o'clock he found that he had recovered, and after dressing sought his mother in the kitchen. "I'm well, mother," he announced, "but I can't go to school till noon. You see it's too late now just to be counted tardy and too early to be counted absent."

Why Hens Cackle.

Hens cackle when they lay for the same reason that the doing of anything which human beings are meant to do gives them pleasure. It is an instinctive action. For the same reason a dog wags his tail when it is pleased. Even humans, when pleased with themselves, want to sing, or whistle or dance, or express their emotions in some way.

Mischievousness of Youth.

A young wife put down her book with a sigh. "What is it, darling?" her husband asked. "Ah, dearest, I am so happy!" she replied. "Yes, but you had such a sad look in your eyes just now." "I know, I've been reading about the unpleasantness that the wives of men of genius have always had to bear. Oh, Alfred, dear, I'm so glad you're just an ordinary sort of fellow!"

May Have Been Lincoln's.

Abraham Lincoln had the habit of carving in his pocket four or five cents each with a hole so that they were strung on a string. One of them he lost. Recently Mrs. J. L. Underwood, Newcastle, Pa., found such a cent bearing date 1851 in a field near Lincoln City, and she has refused $250 for it.

Cleaning Photographs.

Dirty photographs are so unsightly that you will be glad to know there is a way to clean them. Moisten a soft cloth with water to which a little ammonia has been added; wring the cloth out well and wipe the photographs very lightly, drying them immediately with a soft, dry cloth.

Clever.

"What makes you think Windyman's wife is such a clever woman? She never says anything particularly interesting." "No, but she always manages to monopolize the conversation so that 'husband' won't have a chance to make a fool of himself." —Boston Transcript.

No Time for Sadness.

THE RURAL DEANERY

A chapter meeting of the Rural Deanery of Annapolis took place at the Clermont Hotel on Monday and Tuesday, April 12 and 13.

All the rectors of the Deanery were present on Monday. Rev. J. McAllister, who was detained by his wife's illness. After the usual prayers and reading of the Gospels, St. John, XXIX, verses 5 to 8, and St. Paul, I Corinthians, II, verses 14 and 15, the Rev. Canon MacNeil, a very able, vigorous and devoted parson, presided over the meeting.

The meeting then proceeded to elect a Rural Dean. On motion the Rev. Wm. D. MacNeil was elected to the office. He was nominated by the Archbishop for appointment to that office.

Very interesting discussions took place concerning the Anglican Forward Movement and also the affairs of King's College, Windsor, and a resolution was passed for transmission to the University Board of Governors.

Two papers were read, one by the Rev. John Reeks on "Past Relations between the Anglican and Eastern Branches of the Church," the other by the Rural Dean on "The Rural Deanery." Each gave rise to an interesting conversation. The usual routine business was done and the Rural Dean was elected to the office of the Rural Dean.

The official business of the Deanery took place on Tuesday morning, when the Rural Dean presided over the meeting. The Deanery was held in St. Edward's Church, Clermontport, on Tuesday morning, when the Rural Dean presided over the meeting. Other services arranged by the Rector were as follows: Evening Prayer with sermon by the Rev. Canon MacNeil on Monday at Clermontport and Evening Prayer with sermon by the Rev. E. Underwood on Tuesday at St. Matthew's, Deep River. The latter was followed by a recitation tendered by St. Matthew's Guild, and a service of very high order. A good number of parishioners were present both at church and at the home of Mrs. Purdy, where the reception was held.

On Wednesday the clergy returned home, with sincere thanks to the Rector and Mrs. Smith for the hospitality which they extended kind hospitality.

The next meeting is arranged for Monday at the beginning of August. The Deanery will be held at the home of Mrs. Purdy, where the reception was held.

An interesting lecture on retail merchandising was given Monday night at the Bijou Dream Theatre by Mr. B. J. Bond, Halifax, representing The National Cash Register Company, told of the causes for loss in retail trade, and how they could be avoided. A great many merchants and salesmen were present. Stereoscopic slides and motion pictures were used throughout the lecture by Mr. Bond to emphasize the various points.

"Inefficient business methods cause the great majority of us to fail," said the lecturer. He then cited figures to prove this fact, showing that last year 6,430 merchants failed. "This means thirty-one failures every business day, or every twenty minutes."

Particular emphasis was laid on the value of newspaper advertising to the retail merchant in the lecture. Mr. Bond said in part: "More people can be reached by newspaper advertising than by any other medium. But don't spend a few dollars advertising, and then say advertising doesn't pay. Make advertising a continuous policy of your store, and you will not be disappointed with results."

The proper method of preparing newspaper advertisements was shown by Mr. Bond. Window display problems, efficiency of clerks, store organization, selling methods, system in retail business, and delivery problems were also discussed in an interesting manner.

The feature film, "Troubles of a Merchant and How to Stop Them," which was a big feature of the evening, in a vivid manner, the troubles of a merchant who conducted his business incompetently were shown. Although this particular merchant was slaving many hours a day, he was on the verge of bankruptcy, with no prospect of ever getting out.

His store was located in old, unattractive building. High windows prevented a good display of merchandise. The sidewalk in front of the store was dirty. Consequently, many people passed by without stopping. His clerks were inefficient. Poor business methods lost him what money he took in. He seemed to be hopelessly in debt.

At this point a change came. He was induced to install modern business methods. He cleaned up his store, did more advertising, kept constantly in touch with every detail of his business, and he soon became a prosperous merchant.

Other subjects dealt with by Mr. Bond included "The New Scotia Summer 1920" and the "Shop at Home Campaign." G. I. Letteney presided.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, liver, and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels are clogged at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Paying Toll for Neglect

Needless exposure to damp and cold frequently result in a derangement of the Kidneys and Bladder.

When these important organs fail to do their duty, various evils arise, such as rheumatism, swollen hands and ankles, stiff joints, lumbago, sciatic neuralgia, stones in the bladder or gravel, excruciating pains in the back and sides, constant headaches, dizziness, specks floating before the eyes, uselessness of mind without reason, and general debility.

These are signs of serious kidney and bladder trouble, which require immediate attention. The most dependable remedy is found in GIN PILLS. They often prevent the operations which are most neglected and most necessary. ### THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that gleams with beauty and is radiant with life, has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application dissolves the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair falls out, becomes dry and brittle, and the hair falls out. Surely get a small bottle of Keweenaw Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

THE RELIABLE REMEDY

FOR CAKED EYEBROWS DOUGLAS' EGYPTIAN LINIMENT

"I have now used Douglas' Egyptian Liniment for 2 years, and find it gives me the best relief from my eye troubles. I used the liniment on 4 crows during the winter, and my eyes were clear and bright each case in 25 hours. I use it for all eye troubles, including cataracts and lumbago." (Signed) M. J. McMillan, New Hamburg, Ont.

This Liniment will also stop bleeding at once and prevent blood poisoning.

WHO?

Ah! I see a strange light come into your eyes when you hear these words, "Button, Button, who has the Button?" Yes, it has been a long time since you heard them; so long you dare not count the years and would not tell for the world. No! Oh, how they stir the memory, you see those dear ones whom you used to meet at social gatherings where they played the game "Button, Button, who has the Button?" The castles which you built in the air those days have vanished and some of the hopes have been crushed, your life shaped different from what you imagined, the currents of life carried you away and you had forgotten those lovely times, but the familiar words brought the scenes trooping back again. The game is seldom played now, not in the way of old, but different, for instance, they play it at Letteney's store. Yes, they have the buttons, millions of them, largest stock outside of Halifax, male and female. The he buttons are for men's garments and the she buttons are for female clothes. If some greenhorn were to make a mistake they (the buttons, we mean) would soon let him know which side of the fence they belonged. Yes sir. We have one eyed, two eyed and four eyed buttons, cross eyed, wall eyed and kinked eyed. Now this is enough nonsense about buttons, so we will close by saying our new goods are arriving daily and they are a breezy lot. Don't fail to see them.

COULDN'T WORK FOR WHOLE YEAR

Veteran Was all Run-Down,
But Gains It From Health Now.

"For one year before I began taking Tanlac I was so weak I could not do a lick of work, but now I have gained fifteen pounds in weight and am in the very best of health," said Arthur F. Ingram, of 4 George St., Halifax, N. S., a few days ago. Mr. Ingram saw four years of service in France with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, being attached to the Fifth Artillery. He was engaged in some of the heaviest fighting of the whole war, including the battles of the Somme and Cambrai.

"I have been in miserable health ever since I got out of the Army last Spring. In fact, my trouble started when I was gassed in France, just before the Armistice was signed," continued Mr. Ingram. In six months I lost forty pounds and some days I was so weak that I came near collapsing. My appetite was so poor that I had to force myself to eat enough to keep alive, and sometimes just the smell of food would nauseate me so that I would have to get out of the house. You can imagine how weak I was when I tell you I went for days at a time without eating a bit. I could hardly retain a thing on my stomach. Why, sometimes I would become so nauseated while seated at the table that I would have to get up and leave. The cramps and pains in my stomach would nearly draw me double and at times the agony was almost more than I could bear. I was so nervous and restless that I got but little sleep and some nights I lay awake the whole night through.

"My brother-in-law had been taking Tanlac and it had done him so much good that he advised me to try it too. I had taken so many medicines that I had about lost faith in them, but I made up my mind to give it a trial. Well, Sir, I was so surprised when I began to improve. I could hardly believe it. That gave me encouragement and I kept right on taking it without missing a dose until now I have finished my fourth bottle. And today it seems almost too good to be true, but it is a fact, just the same that I am in perfect health and am feeling as fine as a man could want. I have a splendid appetite and can eat anything I please, my stomach was never in better condition and I digest anything I eat without the least trouble of any kind. The cramping pains have all disappeared and it is no trouble for me to retain what I eat. I sleep like a log every night and when I get up in the mornings I am ready for as big a day's work as any man. My strength and energy have come back and already I have gained fifteen pounds and am just gaining right along. In my opinion Tanlac has no equal as a medicine and I recommend it in the very highest terms."

will remain so. But if he is weak, when he goes to the place where he is known, with all the restraints of home removed, he will soon go down to ruin. What I would like to see in Digby is a greater interest in the Church and religious matters, among the people.

I am sorry to say that I have observed considerably juvenile delinquency in Digby. Whether this is the fault of the children or the parents I do not know. What I would like to see in Digby is some place where the young people could meet and enjoy themselves evenings instead of wandering around the streets and in out of the way places. I believe the people should as much as possible encourage home industry by patronizing the stores in the village instead of sending out of town for their supplies. The custom which seems quite common in Nova Scotia of getting up a club and sending to Montreal or Toronto to buy a quantity of goods because they can be purchased a trifle cheaper than they can be had in the Home Town, is bound in time to react on the people themselves. No town can flourish and grow if the inhabitants spend their money elsewhere, and if the local stores are not patronized and do not flourish there is little chance of their giving employment to those people in the town who need it.

As to the Memorial Hospital, I think it would be a grand thing for Digby but why spend $30,000 for a new building when there must be several buildings which would be available for the purpose and which could be bought probably for one third that money?

I have many good friends in Digby whom I can never forget. When I can get down there, if for only a few days out of the year, it seems like a new lease of life for me and as I said in a former communication to you, there are some things in Digby which I would like to see different but "with all her faults I love her still."

A two-cent toy balloon caused the death of five-year-old Pappy Doyli, at his parents' home, New York. The child put the balloon in his mouth to inflate it, but drew in his breath instead and choked himself.

Felix Bernard, composer of "Dardanella," the musical number now so popular, sold his rights for $100 to the publishers on the representation that the tune was a "fizzle." He has brought action for a portion of $50,000 royalties received by his co-composer, J. Black.

Freaks of the recent Western tornadoes are reported. In Elgin, Ill., a tree five feet in diameter was uprooted, while 25 feet away a slender sapling stood firm and strong. The Elgin, Ill., chief of police tells of a baby that was lifted from the floor where it had been playing and laid on a bed, where it was found crying by a frantic mother, who had seen the roof of her home go sailing away.

A Blackburn Kangaroo aeroplane, piloted by R. W. Kenworthy, which left Brough, Hull, G. B., for Amsterdam, with a consignment of ladies' costumes, returned with 1,200 pounds of airline dyes, contained in small casks, consigned to a Bradford firm. This was the first trip of the proposed commercial air service between Yorkshire and Holland.

Grover C. Kenney, manager for a Charlottesville, Va., orchard company, committed suicide by blowing his body to fragments with dynamite. He had been grieving over the recent death of his wife, and told his eight children he was going to end his life. They followed him as he started toward a nearby hill, carrying the dynamite, but he drove them back with rocks, and then ignited the fuse.

AN OPEN LETTER TO "SINNER"

DEAR SINNER:—Somehow it strikes me that, in spite of your letter in defence of cards and dancing, your conscience must be slightly troubled—else why the signature? But my dear sir and friend (?) I think you must have seized your pen on that occasion somewhat hastily, or was it righteous indignation that prompted your letter?

In my letter of April 2nd, I did not make any statement as to whether or not I personally disapproved of the before mentioned pastimes. I was merely criticizing the attitude of the people towards the teachings of their spiritual leaders. If their teachings are correct then the motives are wrong and what is the use of having spiritual leaders at all unless we at least make some attempt to follow their lead? As I said before "it is the Spirit of the thing that jars." I am no preacher myself nor any relation to one, but I like at least to give their teachings a chance to represent God to us, especially for the sake of the young. "Times change" as you say, and I hope in its changes it may bring to you the "twenty-five children" that you may teach them—all of all the good things of life. Sincerely yours,

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS BY FIRELIGHTER

"THE SMELL OF THE WOODS."

One hundred-picked Canadian men will break away from their usual ways of life next August and spend ten days together in Algonquin Park, the North Woods region of Ontario. They will come from all walks of life: lawyers, doctors, ministers, farmers, teachers, educators, V. M. C. A. and church secretaries, and a number of choice older boys will be there.

Why will they come? They will be there because of their interest in two things—out-of-doors life and Canadian boys. They will learn something about Boy Behaviour; they will give some time to the Canadian Standard Efficiency Training as a program of fourfold work with boys, but they will give the bulk of their time to the Campcraft features of this program. They will learn how to make from wildwood materials a shelter that will not leak, how to get rid of a fear of the water, how to fry bacon and flapjacks that will not ruin the digestion of an ostrich, how to say "Good Morning" to a bird and know to whom they speak, how to distinguish the birds from each other and to say it briefly, how to live on friendly terms with Mother Nature. They will go back home to put the atmosphere of the woods, the camps and the trails, not only into their program of work with boys, but also into the lives of other workers and of the boys themselves.

These men, after ten days in the open, will know the truth of Walt Whitman's words: "I know the secret of great lives now -- to live in the open and associate with green growing things." G. Stanley Hall has studied boyhood long and deeply and it is his opinion that the ideal life for a boy is not in the city, for he should know of animals, rivers, plants, and the great out-of-doors. These men will form the first "National C. S. E. T. Leaders' Camp," August 20-30, 1920.

LOCAL NOTES.

The National Athletic Competition is on this week. Why not try to see if the Digby Tuxis Boys cannot get in on it?

The Drummond Recital given by Rev. D. E. Hatt, under the auspices of the "Live Wire," on April 15th, proved to be a great success. This was one of the rare treats of the season. We hope another may be held sometime soon.

The J. O. Y., class of girls gave a leap year banquet for the Tuxis, "Live Wire," last Friday evening. You may get fine things to eat at home but you certainly can't trim what we had for eats down there. The only trouble is, that Leap year comes every four years. We wish it came every four days instead. After eating, a few short speeches were made, then while the girls cleared off the tables the boys carried off some stunts. Some fine games were played and after singing God Save the King the company adjourned.

FIRELIGHTER.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

I notice that the suggestion has been made that the pupils in the schools go back to the old days of slates owing to the high cost of paper, which is no small item in the expenditure of the school department. Of course, there is objection, for slates went out many years ago in "deference to the wishes" of the students of medicine, who insist that they are dangerous to health. They may, doubtless be, but under proper restrictions of personal use, the dangers, which are commonly attributed to them might be avoided.

I wonder how many motorists remember their license number, their motor number, make of tires, and the other distinguishing features of their machine? If your car was stolen today could you give the Chief of Police a detailed description that would assist in its recovery? Do you carry your license card in your pocket and your registration in your car? Do you leave it at home or have you mislaid it?

Have you noticed that the spring hats of the ladies this year are unusually bright colored and flowery? They seem to combine all the colors of the rainbow with the jarring discord that sometimes accompanies bright coloring, and are in marked contrast to the styles of some years when the prevailing mode seemed to be plain bonnets with just a bow of plain ribbon or one feather.

Did it ever occur to you that some of the loudest shouters against the high cost of living are some of the people who are now getting about three times as much in wages as they were a few years ago?

I cannot say that I was very much surprised at the action of the ratepayers in voting down the new school building last Monday, because, you see, I know the people of the town pretty well. But I was surprised at the discourtesy shown one of the speakers—Inspector Foster. Of course I realize that this was a meeting of ratepayers and possibly he should not have been invited to speak. But the Mayor had invited him and no one in the hall had protested. In view of that he should have been heard through with courtesy. It was discourteous to the extreme to interrupt him with a protest during his speech and I would hate to think that such a thing would ever happen again.

But I wonder where the school board and council stands now? Practically everyone who spoke condemned the present school building. They advocated that it be repaired and put in shape, one of them even going so far as to mention a figure of $10,000—but no one moved an amendment or made an effort to give their suggestions any legal effect. So the only question voted on was the one naming $90,000 for a school building of a certain type. As far as the school board is concerned it seems to me they are in the same position, they were before the meeting, except that they have a lot of opinions they can't cash in on.

AERONAUT.

Ratepayers Vote Against Proposed New School By Big Majority

General Opinion Expressed Was That the Present Building Is Not Satisfactory But the Time Is Not Opportune for Building.

There was a very large gathering of the rate payers held in the court house on Monday evening, called to deal with the question of a new school building. The mayor presided.

The town clerk read the law governing the calling of a meeting and the voting on the question and after that the mayor explained the position of the council towards the matter. The council had been told by the supervisor of education of the province that a new building was necessary but it was a matter solely for the ratepayers of the town to decide upon.

G. I. Letteney, the chairman of the school board, remarked that the board had been severely criticized. The board was not trying to force anything on the town, but they were against a serious proposition. The present building can not accommodate the children who want to go to school. If the town wants to enlarge the present building, secure another, or build a new school it is for them to decide. He moved the following resolution:

"Resolved that the town of Digby expend a sum not exceeding $90,000 for the purpose of purchasing a suitable lot of land and erecting thereon a modern school building, containing not less than six classrooms, a room, teachers' room and assembly hall, and that an act of the legislature be obtained, authorizing the town of Digby to borrow the sum of money for the purpose aforesaid."

Frank L. Anderson seconded the resolution.

Inspector Foster, who was present, addressed the meeting. As representative of the superintendent it was his duty to inspect the county academy. As ratepayers our most valued assets are our children and they are first in our minds. Do get lost sight of that fact when you vote tonight? You have no proper building at the present time. He could now see how the town has tolerated their building for so many years. There is one room where a three months' stay will cripple a child's eyesight for life. It is urged that a high tax rate will be a hindrance to your town. Which is the worst a high tax rate, or a school like that you have? Many of you have felt the need of a building for years and many of you are prepared to support it. The tax you pay for education returns you a hundred fold. Dr. DuVernet asked for data as regards the cost of a building, plans, etc.

The mayor said the issue before the meeting was whether the citizens wanted to build a new school (and what they wanted to spend). H. B. Short said undoubtedly the council and school board had considered the matter and had formulated some plans. Why couldn't the meeting have them?

G. I. Letteney informed the meeting that the board had had an expert examine the building and a report was on the table. The clerk read the report which was very concise and complete, and which practically condemned the building.

The mayor read a letter from the superintendent of education condemning the present building. The school house, and the Court House stood on the most valuable land in town. He expressed his opinion that the present building could be repaired and made efficient. H. B. Short thought everybody in town was of the opinion that the present building was inadequate at present—and never was adequate. Any school board which would accept such an abortion did not have the interest of the ratepayers at heart. Under present conditions with a tax rate at 3 1/2 per cent, he could not see where the town was in a position to add $70,000 to the expenditure. If there were any way in the world which could carry the expenditure without a burden he would support it, but he really could not see how the town was going to take on another expenditure such as this. It is a crying chance to send our children to this building, but can we build a new one? He did not think we could. The bonds would be hard to sell. The time has come when we can't spend less on the streets and we cannot count on our taxes being less than they are at present. If we can repair this building to put us over a few years and secure another building for the overflow perhaps in eight or ten years conditions may be better, but at the present time he could not see how the town could take on a new building.

CLARE FARMERS PLANNING FOR LARGER CROPS

May Be the Greatest Potato Section of Eastern Canada—Back Roads Must Be Improved.

At the request of the various Associations, and particularly the Faculty of the College of St. Anne at Church Point, whose Professors have been so successful in their efforts for improved methods of Agriculture, the Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the "Educational Film Department," of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, under the direction of Mr. George E. Graham, General Manager, arranged for the entire week of April 12th-17th to be given to the district of Clare, when qualified representatives gave lectures, film displays, etc., covering all methods pertaining to agricultural development, especially the care and culture of potatoes.

These lectures or talks, being of an informal nature, everyone had an opportunity to participate, with the result that much information was furnished by the audience that enabled the Government Agricultural expert to offer satisfactory suggestions for overcoming many of the drawbacks.

In the matter of spraying, the farmers of Belliveau's, Church Point, Little Brook, Saulnierville and Meteghan were unanimous that better and more systematic work in this line must be carried on if they were to offset the blight that so often renders their potato production below the average that makes their work profitable. To assist the farmer, the Government Department of Agriculture is arranging to keep an expert at Church Point, whose service is at the disposal of every potato grower free of charge. In this way anyone being uncertain as to how to mix or apply the spraying material, has only to telephone the College at Church Point, which will at all times be in touch with the Government expert and arrange for him to carry out the work.

The people fully appreciate the assistance received, and every meeting was equally enthusiastic. The attendance at the five meetings was two thousand three hundred, which gives some idea of the awakened interest in agriculture along this shore, where soil and climatic conditions should have made it the premier seed potato section of Eastern Canada, and only now is coming into its own.

The serious drawback to increased acreage is the question of roads. For generations the crops of potatoes were shipped from the shore in small schooners, and the cross-country highways were only used by lumber teams and such as were compelled to travel back to catch railway trains, with the result these roads were never in shape to carry heavy traffic, such as has been thrown on them since the start of war, when the schooner practically disappeared.

But even if the schooner is again put on the ocean, the potato ship, perils will never return to so uncertain a means of marketing a perishable article. This means the roads between the shore towns of Belliveau, Church Point, Little Brook, Saulnierville, Meteghan and the railway line are actually of more consequence to the farmer than the main highways.

It is suggested that the Municipality of Clare send a strong delegation to wait on the Minister of Public Highways at Halifax to get his cooperation in having a certain amount of work done during the coming summer. Since the Road Act came into effect and statute labor passed out, not a day's work has been done on these back roads to the railway, where in the future all the crops must go to reach the market. The road mileage to be put in shape is by no means alarming. Some twenty miles would cover all of the most important, and would serve a population of something over ten thousand people, as well as those who already have back roads and will continue to do so in increasing numbers when roads are made possible to move their crops.

A BIT OF FRENCH- ACADIAN HISTORY

At the beginning of the last century (in 1815) there was only a tiny strip of French descent throughout Canada. Mr. Plessis was the bishop and administrator of all this vast region. I have before me a journal of his pastoral visit to Acadia in 1815-16. The way of communications were not like today. There were no railroads, no automobiles, and I should say no good roads in this part of the country. In some places there was only a single path, where persons could ride on horseback. It was not even the days of the old stage coach.

On the 6th of August Mr. Grace Bishop Plessis, left Church Point, where he had arrived a few days before, for Meteghan, then Moncton, where he arrived with his suite a little after one o'clock. They stopped in Meteghan at the house of a certain Charles McCharley, Esq., an Irish merchant, who was residing in the vicinity of the present convent of the Sacred Heart by whom they were hospitably and joyfully received. Not far from his house was begun the erection of a plain wooden church, and His Grace gave it to patron St. Mandé, the name of the patron saint of the Abbé Sigogne, who had charge of the whole French Acadian flock from Church Point to Bel Brook. (The corner-stone of that church can now be seen in one of the porches of the present magnificent church, Stella Maris, Meteghan, bearing the inscription 1815.) After a copious dinner at Mr. McCharley's the party left for Salmon River, ten miles below, to spend the night at Jean Jacques Deveau, the ancestor of all the Deveys in Clare and Yarmouth. In Salmon River there were only six houses then, with no church. This Jean Jacques Deveau lived on top of a high hill, now facing Gullison's Brook, where in the field now owned by Abner Pothier, whose mother is a Deveau. The cellar of this old house can still be seen. In my young days it used to be all overgrown with wild gooseberry bushes. This Mr. Deveau had a well dug out below the high hill about 600 feet from the shore, but higher than the sea level. This well was considered an extraordinary affair in those days. At high water the well would completely dry up, but at low water it would be filled to the very edges. (This well is still been located. Although it has been filled up with stones for a number of years.)

It is also on the property of Abner Pothier. These ancient landmarks should be conserved as souvenirs and our friends, the American tourists, would be probably interested to visit such spots. I should think it would pay to have this well opened up again and kept in a state of preservation, as well as those old cellars, the place where the first road used to pass in Salmon River. Mr. Plessis and his suite, in coming back from Ed Brook, stopped again at Mr. Deveau's and the next day returned to Meteghan on their way to St. John, N. B., leaving on the 10th, of August, Mr. McCharley had put a small vessel of about 15 tons and fitted it up especially for the use of those Acadian visitors. The small vessel was put in care of Rene Saulnier, the ancestor of the Saulniers back of Meteghan River, and of Frederick Robichaud, the grandfather (if I am not mistaken) of Emedee Robichaud, Esq., councillor for Corbierie, and also an uncle of Louis B. Robichaud a respectable old gentleman of over 80 years old, and father of our Creamery manager, Andrew L. Robichaud.

Let Action Follow Thought.
A philosopher once said that there is no value to any thought, no matter how fine or noble, unless it is transformed into action. If you feel uplifted by beautiful music, do something that will tally with your mood, and then the music has been worth while. If you read something that is inspiring, at once do something, no matter how small, that is a little different and a little superior to your routine. The theory applies with equal truth to the reading of books as more than a pastime.—Chicago American.

Sacrilege.
The Kansas Industrialist says skunk oil and rattlesnake oil are worthless as liniments for rheumatism and kindred ills. Just how far should college papers be allowed to go in interference with free beliefs founded on the traditions of centuries? Pretty soon these young whippersnappers will be telling us that snakebite ointment, ward off neither germs nor devils, and that red beads around the neck won't stop nosebleed.—Grit.

Labor-Saving Devices.
Water is used to transport fine coal through pipes, and in Oregon a blast of air is used to load hay in freight cars. The hay is drawn up to a deck or float beside the car to be loaded, a crane then lifts the hay to this platform, and a blower, driven by a gasoline engine, blows the hay forcibly into the car, packing it better than can be done with old-fashioned hand fork.

Substitutes for Hickory.
Specifications for handles for fire-trenching tools were prepared during the war by the forest products laboratory at Madison, allowing seven substitute species in place of hickory and also certain minor defects, thereby making possible greatly increased production for this class of material and at the same time giving satisfactory handles.—University Bulletin.

Look Decent.
Bobby's father was a photographer, and the little fellow had often seen him take pictures and heard him admonish the people to "Look pleasant, please." One day he obtained a small, worn-out camera and pretended to take his little playmate's picture. Getting her to stand for a snapshot, he directed: "Now, Hazel, stand still and look decent, please."

Lime Water.
Slack one-half cup of lime with about one-half pint of water, slowly added; when clumped well add one quart of water and stir thoroughly, allow it to settle, decant closely and pour the water away, then add one gallon of fresh, clear distilled water or rain water to the washed lime; shake often for a day or two and let settle.

Shark-Food.
In Bermuda small ground sharks are used for food and much are related by all classes. The fish average from eight to ten pounds and sell for 12 cents each. In Honolulu the hammerhead shark is frequently seen in the markets and its flesh is considered very nourishing and is extensively salted.

Lake With No Outlet.
Lake Chad, in the heart of East Africa, has no known outlet for the many rivers pouring into it. Its waters rise and fall with great rapidity. The Alexander expedition records that frequently spaces over which they had sailed in the morning had by evening become stretches of dried mud.

Peanuts or Steak?
An article on nutritious foods says: "There is about as much nourishment in a quart of peanuts as there is in three pounds of steak." But—no gravy—nothing for the dog, and no hash the next day.

Seek to Retain Youthfulness.
As I approve a youth that has something of the old man in him, so I am no less pleased with an old man that has something of the youth. He that follows this rule may be old in body, but never can be so in mind.—Cicero.

Dates of Western Trading Companies.
The Hudson's Bay company was chartered in 1670 by Prince Rupert and others. The North West Fur company of Montreal was formed in 1779, and the two joined forces in 1821.

GENERAL NEWS IN BRIEF

(By C. P. R. Telegraph.)
Vancouver, B. C.—The February catch of fish in the Fraser river fisheries district is valued at $43,632. This is almost double the catch for the same month last year.

Consul Sack.—The Imperial Oil Company has filed an oil claim on twenty sections of land south of here along Little Creek. Wells will be sunk in the spring.

Chicoutimi, P. Q.—Work has been commenced on the erection of the model city of Saguenay by the Price Bros. Company, which will cost about $20,000,000. It will contain 100 houses at the outset, built of brick and will be electrically heated and lighted.

Huntingdon, B. C.—Sumas Indian Reserve, comprising 160 acres of land watered by the Little Sumas, has been purchased by the Soldier Settlement Board for soldier settlement and will be divided into four farms.

Winnipeg, Man.—A sale of farm land amounting to a quarter of a million dollars was effected recently by Charles Applegate, of Minneapolis, representing a number of Iowa farmers. The land sold is in the Huron district and the purchasers will arrive over the C.P.R. in time to get the seed in this spring.

Toronto, Ont.—Growing conditions in the provinces are reported on all sides as very favorable, fall wheat being in very good shape and preparatory for seeding well under way. Fruit growers are optimistic over the season's prospects. Many farms are changing hands and wages of farm help has reached the record of from $20 to 750 per year.

Vancouver, B. C.—The steel freighter, S.S. "War Charger," built by J. Coughlan and Sons, was recently sold to Greek operators for $1,800,000.

Ottawa, Ont.—It is expected by industry interested that there will be introduced at the present session of parliament legislation permitting private firms to manufacture industrial alcohol. This is at the present a government monopoly and the production is considerably short of the supply. The paint industry among others being badly affected.

Alaska, Sask.—Gold was found in a shallow well on a farm ten miles west of here, and already twenty-five claims have been taken out in the sector. The gold was assayed at Calgary and declared to be the genuine metal. The well is located near an old creek or river bed and is said to be ideally situated for placer mining.

Yorkton, Sask.—Two local men have started a Belgian horse farm and secured their nucleus of seven animals from George Rupp of Lampman, famous all over the American continent as a breeder of high-class Belgians. They also purpose bringing stock to the province from the big farms of the United States.

Quebec, P. Q.—Five new agricultural districts have been created in the province for the advancement and further development of modern farming. These districts are supplied with agricultural experts who give advice on all branches of the pursuit and encourage up-to-date farming methods.

Fredrickton, N. B.—An insistent demand has been made that a thorough investigation of the possibilities of harnessing the tides at the head of the Bay of Fundy, as a power development proposition, be made. It is believed that with the help of the railways the project could be carried out successfully, and some investigation work has been undertaken.

Fredrickton, N. B.—The transfer of the crown lands held by the estate of the late Sir William Van Horne, a former president of the C.P.R. to the Dalhousie Lumber Co., a subsidiary of the International Paper Co. of New York, has been accomplished. The lands consist of 122½ square miles in Northumberland County, on the Serpentine.

Calgary, Alta.—Arrangements have been made by the Belgian government for credits amounting to ten million dollars for the purchase of western Canadian cattle. Since the signing of the armistice, a large trade in livestock has been maintained with Belgium and France.

Save the surface and you save all. Make a real job of it.

PAINTING becomes necessary as your property increases in value, and as property was never so valuable as today there is a greater need than ever for that kind of paint which actually preserves the surface and thus saves the entire house.

This spring, to make a real job of it, use B-H "ENGLISH" 70% Pure White Lead (Brandram's Genuine B.B.) 30% Pure White Zinc 100% Pure Paint because it combines permanence, covering capacity and economy.

If B-H "English Paint" was dearer than it is, it would still be the most economical—the shorter life of other cheaper brands makes them more expensive in the end.

It contains the famous Brandram's Genuine B.B. finely-ground white lead—70%—to which is put 30% of pure zinc—a guaranteed formula that no other paint can boast. To this mixture is added fine turpentine and linseed oil from the B-H mills, which is of a quality in keeping with the other ingredients.

When you use B-H Paint you will notice its "body" and brilliance—you will compare the extreme covering capacity with other brands—the permanence you will be able to prove by other exteriors painted with B-H paint years ago.

This Store sells B-H Products—Color cards free on request.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—The story opens in the town of Granville, Ontario, where Miss Hazel W. Sinclair is engaged to be married to a young man named Mr. Bush, Hazel's employer, who has just returned from a business trip. The wedding day is set for the first of May. Hazel is a beautiful girl, and her fiancé is a well-to-do man. They are both looking forward to the wedding with great anticipation.

CHAPTER II—Bush makes an effort, by a visit to his friends, to convince Hazel of the wisdom of her decision. He tells her that he has a great future ahead of him, and that he is sure to become a very successful man. Hazel, however, is not convinced. She feels that there is something about Bush that she does not like, but she cannot say what it is. She is torn between her love for him and her own instincts.

CHAPTER III—Jack Barrow, in a fit of jealousy, tells Hazel of Bush's secret life. He tells her that Bush is not the man she thinks he is, and that he is in fact a very dangerous man. Hazel is shocked and horrified by what she has heard. She now knows that she must choose between her love for Bush and her own safety.

CHAPTER IV—Cariboo Meadows is a wild part of British Columbia and Hazel, who has been told of the dangers of the place, is very nervous. She is staying at a small hotel in the town of Cariboo, and she is waiting for Bush to arrive. She is very lonely and misses her home in Granville.

CHAPTER V—Hazel is very nervous and is waiting for Bush to arrive. She is very lonely and misses her home in Granville. She is very nervous and is waiting for Bush to arrive. She is very lonely and misses her home in Granville.

er in touch with other people—well, she would show Roaring Bill. Of course, getting back to Cariboo Meadows meant a new start in a new world for she had no hope, nor any desire, to teach school there after this episode. She found herself facing that prospect unmoved, however.

Roaring Bill made his camp that night as if no change in their attitude had taken place. To all his efforts at conversation she turned a deaf ear and a stony countenance. She proposed to eat his food and use his bedding, because that was necessary. But socially she would have none of him.

Thereafter, day by day, the miles unrolled behind them. Always Roaring Bill faced straight north. For a week he kept on directly and a consuming desire to know how far he intended to go began to take hold of her. At last they dropped into a valley where the woods thinned out, and down the center of which flowed a sizable river. This they followed north a matter of three days. On the west the valley wall ran to a timbered ridge.

Then the stream they followed merged into another, both wide and deep, which flowed west through a level-bottomed valley three miles, or more in width. Roaring Bill halted on the river bank and stretched his horse clean, though it was but two in the afternoon and their midday fire less than an hour extinguished. She watched him curiously. When his pack was over he beckoned to her.

"Hold them a minute," he said, and put the lead ropes in her hand.

Then he went up the bank into a thicket of Saskatoon. Out of this he presently emerged, bearing on his shoulders a canoe, old and weather-beaten, but staunch, for it rode light as a feather on the stream. Bill seated himself in the canoe, holding to Silk's lead rope. The other two he left free.

"Now," he directed, "when I start across, you drive Nigger and Satan in if they show signs of hanging back. Bounce a rock or two of them if they lag."

Her task was an easy one, for Satan and Nigger followed Silk unhesitatingly. They stepped along the sleek sides of them for fifty yards. Then they dropped suddenly into swimming water, and the current swept them downstream slantwise for the opposite shore, only their heads showing above the surface. Hazel wondered what river it might be. It was a good quarter of a mile wide, and swift.

Roaring Bill did not trouble to enlighten her as to the locality. When he got back he stowed the saddle and pack equipment in the canoe.

"All aboard for the north side," he remarked, and Hazel climbed obediently amidships.

On the farther side, Bill emptied the canoe, and stowed it out of sight in a convenient thicket, repacked his horse and struck out again. Hazel drew upon her knowledge of British Columbia geography, and decided that the big river where Bill hid his canoe must be the Fraser where he scooped trout from the mountains. And in that case she was far north, and in a wilderness indeed.

Her muscles gradually hardened to the saddle and to walking. Her appetite grew in proportion. The small supply of edible dainties that Roaring Bill had brought from the Meadows dwindled and disappeared, until they were living on bannock baked in a pot by a long shot. You merely wandered into my camp, and it wasn't convenient for me to turn back. Therefore circumstances—not my act, remember—make it advisable for you to accompany me. Of course I'll admit that, according to custom and usage, you would expect me to do the polite thing and restore you to your own stumping ground. But there's no law making it mandatory for a fellow to pilot home a lady in distress. Isn't that right?

"Anyhow," he went on, when she remained silent at that. And you have to lay the blame on nature for making you a wonderfully attractive woman. I did honestly try to find the way to Cariboo Meadows that first night. It was only when I found myself thinking how the it would be to pike through these old woods and mountains with a partner like you that I decided—as I did. I'm human—the woman, she tempted me. And aren't you better off? Do you know that you work any per cent better for these few days of living in the open—the way every normal being likes to live! You're getting some color in your cheeks and you're losing that worried, archangel look. Honest, if I were a physician, I'd have only one prescription: Get out into the wild country, and live off the country as your primitive forefathers did. Of course, you can't do that alone. I know because I've tried it. We humans don't differ so greatly from the other animals. We're made to hunt in couples or packs. There's a purpose, a law, you might say, behind that, too; only it's terribly obscured by a lot of other non-essentials in this day and age.

But she would not take up the cudgels against him, would not seem to countenance or condone his offense by discussing it from any angle whatsoever. And she was more determined to allow no degree of friendliness, even in conversation, because she recognized the masterful quality of the man.

After a lapse of time they dropped into another valley, and faced westward to a mountain range which Bill told her was the Rockies. The next day a snowstorm struck them. It was not particularly cold. Bill wrapped her in a heavy canvas coat, and plodded on. Noon passed and he made no stop. If anything, he increased his pace.

Suddenly, in the late afternoon, they stepped out of the timber into a little clearing in which the bare outlines of a cabin showed under the wide arms of a leafless tree.

The melting snow had soaked through the coat; her feet were wet with the clinging dikes, and the chill of a lowering temperature had set Hazel shivering.

Roaring Bill halted at the door and lifted her down from Silk's back without the formality of saying a word. He pulled the latchstring, and led her in. Beside the rude stone fireplace wood and kindling were piled in readiness for use. Bill kicked the floor mat, dropped on his knees and struck the fire. In five minutes a great blaze leaped and crackled into the wide throat of the chimney. Then he piled on more wood, and turned to her.

"This is the house that Jack built," he said, with a sober face and a twinkle in his gray eyes. "This is the man that lives in the house that Jack built. And this is the place that he lives in."

"That's a lie!" she flashed stormily through her chattering teeth.

"Well, we'll see," he answered cheerfully. "Get up here close to the fire and take off those wet things while I put away the horses."

And with that he went out whistling.

When Home Seems Good

A BLIZZARD OUTDOORS—warmth and comfort within. There is nothing in the home so necessary as a good furnace. Stoves and base burners are unequal to the task—they choke the air with dust and only warm parts of the house.

And buying a furnace is a matter of knowing how. The warm air heating system is the least costly. It is the most effective and healthful too. The

WHO?

Ah! I see a strange light come into your eyes when you hear these words, "Button, Button, who has the Button." Yes, it has been a long time since you heard them; so long you dare not count the years and would not tell for the world. No! Oh, how they stir the memory, you see those dear ones whom you used to meet at social gatherings where they played the game "Button, Button, who has the Button." The castles which you built in the air those days have vanished and some of the hopes have been crushed, your life shaped different from what you imagined, the currents of life carried you away and you had forgotten those lovely times, but the familiar words brought the scenes trooping back again. The game is seldom played now, not in the way of old, but different, for instance, they play it at Letteney's store. Yes, they have the buttons, millions of them, largest stock outside of Halifax, male and female. The he buttons are for men's garments and the she buttons are for female clothes. "Is some greenhorn were to make a mistake they (the buttons, we mean) would soon let him know which side of the fence they belonged. Yes sir. We have one eyed, two eyed and four eyed buttons, cross eyed, wall eyed and kinked eyed. Now this is enough nonsense about buttons, so we will close by saying our new goods are arriving daily and they are a breezy lot. Don't fail to see them.

GENERAL NEWS IN BRIEF

(By C.P.R. Telegraph.)
Lethbridge, Alta.—The Lethbridge Brick Company is commencing operations with a capacity of 15,000 bricks a day, which they expect to increase shortly to the full capacity of 35,000 bricks.

Sydney, N.S.—A large order for rods and bars has been secured by the Japanese government by the Dominion Steel Corporation, which will keep the rod and bar mill in operation for a long time to come.

Edmonton, Alta.—A new market for the Alberta potato crop was opened up recently when a first consignment of a carload of this vegetable was sent to San Francisco.

Winnipeg, Man.—The first paper bag manufacturing company in the west will be established here in the near future. The Western Canada Paper Bag Co. is at present being organized by A. Seabrook, and equipment costing $50,000 being purchased for the plant.

Charlottetown, P.E.I.—With the slogan of "Spend your vacation in Canada" being taken up everywhere, Prince Edward Island is looking forward to a large holiday traffic and a great influx of visitors.

Virden, Man.—Dairying is making rapid strides in Manitoba. In 1912, 55 cars of creamery butter were imported; in 1913 the number dropped to 35; and in 1914 to 20 cars. In 1915, 50 cars were exported; in 1916, 68 cars; in 1917, 96 cars; in 1918, 176 cars; and in 1919, 150 carloads left the province.

St. John's, Nfld.—The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who has just returned from the United Kingdom and Europe, states that great interest in Newfoundland affairs is being taken in England and that capitalists are more inclined than ever to embark on the exploitation of the colony's natural resources.

Halifax, N.S.—Arrangements have been made to employ a wireless equipped fisheries protection cruiser during the coming season for the purpose of scouting mackerel in order that fishermen may be advised of the arrival of schools, their location, approximate size and direction and movement.

Montreal, P.Q.—A total sum of $5,253,120 was realized at the fur auction sales here. Prices were proportionately higher than at the New York and St. Louis Sales, beaver bringing as high as $100 each, minkskin $150, muskrat $7.50, wolf $45, and fox $70.00, ditch $3.50, lynx $25.00, fisher $35.00, silver fox $12,225.00.

Victoria, B.C.—Canadian Holstein cattle are highly regarded in Australia, according to H. A. Simmons, who recently delivered a small herd of these cattle there. He claims that the Holsteins bred in the Antipodes are not as good as the Canadian bred stock and is making preparations to assemble another herd for export.

Regina, Sask.—More settlers are coming into Saskatchewan from the United States this spring than at any time since the outbreak of the war, according to statistics which have been received by local C.P.R. data. While this influx is considerable, it is said by those same railwaymen to be nothing to what may be expected later in the summer. During the first three weeks of the month twenty settlers arrived here from U.S. points, and it is probable that they had taken up. Five carloads of settlers' effects were registered at Portia as passing through to points in the province and twenty-three cars to Alberta points. Settlers are also coming through Kingsgate and Emerson, the traffic at the latter place being particularly heavy and as many as 46 carloads of effects passing through the port of entry in a day.

CANADIAN NEWS IN BRIEF

(By C.P.R. Telegraph.)
Ottawa, Ont.—The Soldiers' Settlement Board announces that action is being taken to dispose of 75,000 acres of Hudson's Bay reserve land in Saskatchewan and Alberta, which have been cancelled by the Crown. Also 10,000 acres of Dominion Reserve lands near Kamusack, Saskatchewan. Another 30,000 acres of grazing land will also be opened up. The whole 115,000 acres will be available for soldier settlement after April 30th.

Ottawa, Ont.—A return brought down in Parliament places the total enlistments in Canada for the Canadian Expeditionary Force at $90,572. By provinces the number was as follows: Ontario, 243,877; Quebec, 32,733; New Brunswick, 25,864; Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, 33,312; Manitoba, 66,319; Saskatchewan, 37,665; Alberta, 45,145; British Columbia, 51,438; Yukon, 2,327.

Ottawa, Ont.—The applications of over 100 Imperial veterans who desire to take advantage of the Soldier Land Settlement scheme, have been approved. These veterans will be required to spend at least one year on farms in Canada to become familiar with Canadian methods. The others will be absorbed into the Board's training establishments and will be required to spend at least two years farming in Canada before becoming eligible for the loan benefits of the Act.

Quebec, P.Q.—During the last 15 years the province of Quebec has spent $200,000,000 on highways. In 1920 the ordinary annual provincial grants for education are $2,000,000. The capital invested in public and paper plants within the province is $4,000,000 and the number of mill employees about 10,000.

Sherbrooke, P.Q.—The Campbell-Howard Machine Company, formerly of the Sherbrooke plant, has been sold their business to G. L. Bourne and F. A. Schaaf, of New York. These gentlemen are respectively president and vice-president of the Locomotive Super-heater Co. of New York, railway supply people. The Dominion Government is manufacturing railway supplies for Canada, also to carry on a general foundry and machine business.

Vancouver, B.C.—According to announcement made by R. J. Leyland, vice-president of the Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., this company will shortly start the construction of a new theatre to be erected close to the C. P. R. Vancouver Hotel, which will have a seating capacity of about 2,000 and cost $400,000, construction at which will start shortly.

THE SEA MUSSEL INDUSTRY

A novel industry which promises rapid expansion and great popularity is no less than the development of a substitute for the succulent but somewhat costly oyster. This is the sea mussel, found in vast quantities along the low tide mark of the Atlantic coast, chiefly in New Brunswick. The Dominion Government, with the co-operation of scientists, has conducted experiments to this end in Western University laboratories and it is now claimed that mussels can be produced commercially and sold profitably at 15 cents per quart, as compared with the $1.00 per quart around which oyster prices hover.

This mussel is by no means a new article of diet to the people of Canada, and besides being used extensively in coast towns has found its way to the tables of inland cities in Central Canada. Its delicacy of flavor and high food value have been much advertised since the establishment of government investigation and experiment, and deserve to be much better known. There is yet much to be done in the line of research to ascertain conditions under which production would be most rapid and profitable, and to this end the Council of Industrial and Scientific Research is devoting its efforts.

A survey of the mussel beds of the St. Croix River, which constitutes the boundary between New Brunswick and Maine has occupied the attention of a scientist of the council for three years now, and it is expected that this summer will see the satisfactory conclusion of the research. It is believed that the beds of mussels are practically unlimited, and the work occupying those engaged is merely the best conditions of development. It has also been determined that mussels become sweeter and more palatable the farther south they are found, and in this regard Canada has a distinct advantage over the mussel beds to the south of the Dominion. Those of the Hudson's Bay make particularly excellent eating.

The sea mussel cannot be produced in fresh waters so that there is no possibility of its developing any of the diseases which are prevalent in the Great Lakes. It is believed that there are possibilities, however, for the development of fresh-water mussels and the Dominion Government at the instigation of the Ontario Fishermen's Association is conducting a series of experiments which will probably result in interesting developments.

Nova Scotia Lobsters Tempt American Palates

Canada produces 90 per cent. of the lobster supply of the world, and in addition, the finest lobsters. The lobsters of the New England coast are the little brothers of the noble crustaceans native to the more northern and colder waters of Labrador. And indeed, Canadian female lobsters are selected for use in American hatcheries to improve the strain. The Labrador coast has the greatest known supply, but is too distant to be available for commercial purposes at present. The main supply now comes from the Gulf of St. Lawrence, particularly around the famous island of Anticosti, and from the waters about Nova Scotia.

Nova Scotia is famous for its lobster supply, and its lobster industry is one of the most important of the province. The lobster is also guarded out of season by strict protective laws.

The Nova Scotia 1919 lobster season has been very satisfactory. The total catch is given as 5,825,096 pounds, valued at $1,296,946. The catch was somewhat smaller than in 1918, when the quantity was 6,525,820 pounds, but a much higher valuation is put on the 1919 catch. The value of the 1918 catch was $730,397. In 1919 there were 1,029,854 pounds of lobsters put up in the canneries and 4,831,232 pounds of the lobsters were exported. In Nova Scotia the price for live lobsters was 10 cents a pound, but much higher prices were paid in Boston, where canned Nova Scotia lobster brought 67.3 cents a pound.

The 1919 season lasted only from March 1 to May 31, instead of from December 15 to May 31, as in previous years.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

It sure is a healthy sign to see so much activity in real estate and I am glad to see it. Digby is a beautiful home town and there are dozens of families who would come here to live if they could get accommodations. I have heard of sixteen families who have tried to locate here during the past six months but could not. Fourteen of the sixteen were families of commercial men who thought our position ideal for their purposes and they are a splendid class of citizens, good earners, good spenders and fully able to hold their own from every point of town life. I hope to see more of these changes in real estate, but above all I would like to see some of these families come here to build homes for themselves.

I understand the town council has taken up the matter of the truckmen's rates and no doubt under the by-laws they are justified in doing so. Personally I think the rates as advertised are too high, but no doubt the truckmen were entitled to some increase over what they were getting. Like everything else the cost of operation of a truck has gone away up, and the truckman has to get a living. But still it looks funny to me that the town council can regulate that time of business and can not look after other lines in which profiteering is so far more advanced.

I have spoken several times of the pleasure I have derived in reading the "Old Man's" letters in the Chronicle. Following is another excerpt I have clipped from it again referring to the street signs. This time the "Old Man" is a little nearer the truth.

"I had quite a few complimentary things to say about Digby a few weeks ago, among others drawing attention to their lovely street signs. At that time fully realizing the progressiveness of the Jones family, and knowing that one Jones was the Mayor, and another one a Town Councillor, I quite naturally fell into the mistake of supposing that they were the whole thing.

Once more the Old Man was wrong, and if this thing keeps up his stock of apologies will be all used up. But the facts are that, at that very same time, Digby had another town councillor who was a member of the Fourth Estate, and who even went to the expense (where he got the hint) to have a new sign made, of buying a metal street sign, so as to get the town to adopt the improvement.
That same man was my friend Dunham, now editor of the Bridgetown Monitor, and Bridgetown will surely be the better for having men of his stamp in their immediate vicinity."

It has been estimated that the English language possesses fully 75,000 more words than the French, German and Spanish languages combined.

Whales' teeth pass as currency in the Fiji Islands. They are painted white and red, the red teeth being worth about twenty times as much as the white.

I have often heard of sea sick people who vowed they had lost everything clean down to their boots, but I heard for the first time this week of a man who even threw his teeth into the discard. It was a local business man, too. He had business across the Bay last week and coming back the sea was quite rough, and while leaning over the rail gazing for New York (or some other place) he lost his set of teeth.
(No, they weren't the set God made). The incident was put into verse and sent in by a friend of the Courier.

As the Chevrolet man came over the bay.

To the fish he made a bequest;
He stretched his mouth wide, and threw over the side.

An elegant set of false teeth.

The editor has passed over to me the following conundrum which was sent in to him by J. E. Robbins, of Clementsport. Don't ask me what the answer is—I don't know. If you "give it up" drop a postal to Mr. Robbins and he will tell you.

To be seen a most wonderful Proprietor, who not the wandering Jew, nor the son of Noah, nor an old Levite, nor Saint John, for before they were, he was. He is frequently mentioned in the Scriptures. He is no impostor.
Nor did he ever know his parents.
Nor suckle his mother's breast.
His board is red, he goes barefooted like a Friar. He wears no hat. His coat is neither dyed, knit, woven, or spun, it's neither silk, hair, linen, or woolen, yet it is of very fine and radiant color. It is moderately drinks only pure water, takes no money. He is indifferent to all the pomp and vanities of life. He would rather dwell in a barn than in a king's palace. He marches boldly without stick or weapon; yet will often encounter the boldest man.
He interferences with no man's religion though Protestants are his greatest enemies, but they profess to use him kindly. He sleeps either sitting or standing and cries out on the waked world with outstretched arms and calls upon all men to say that the day of the Lord is at hand, and the doors and windows fly open at his prophesy. Poor women have reason to rejoice that ever such a prophet came into the world to set before their husbands a pattern of sobriety. Both men and women who follow his example live to great age. He was with Noah in the ark, and with Christ when he was crucified. His voice is shrill and powerful. He once preached a sermon that converted a good man of his sins and drew tears from his eyes.
People are flocking to see him daily and are fully convinced that he is no impostor.

What is he?

AERONAUT.

THE SCHOOLS OF ANNAPOLIS AND DIGBY

The school system in this inspective now number 191, a decrease of two from last year. In Annapolis County, Roxbury and Davidson, no longer having inhabitants, were dropped from the list of organized sections; Lake May and Northfield were united in June, 1918. In Digby County a new section, Saunierville Station, was formed in the District of Clare.

Five sections were without school during the year. These are Stoddards and West Springfield in Annapolis County; Riverdale, Sissiboo Falls and Byron in Digby County. The former two sections together have four children of school age. These attend school in the neighboring sections. Sissiboo Falls find it difficult to obtain a teacher for the low salary offered. Burton has no school building. Riverdale was erecting one. In these three sections there are in all about 25 children who were without school privileges during the school year.

The four colored schools in this inspectorate were open during the year. Two had regularly licensed white teachers. The other two were taught by permissive licensed colored teachers.

The work of inspection was much hampered by influenza. I was fortunate to escape it myself, but a large number of my teachers were afflicted with the disease which visited every part of the county.

I am pleased to report a marked improvement in school buildings, grounds, and equipment. North field, No. 44, District of Annapolis West, has its school house on its new grounds, with only a debt of one hundred and fifty dollars. Hectanooga has now creditable school house on good grounds with only a debt of one hundred and fifty dollars.

Lower Saunierville, No. 29, District of Clare has voted $500 for new or better grounds. These have not been secured as yet but will be, before the end of the present school year.
Riverdale, No. 26, District of Digby has a new school house costing one quarter as much as the entire assessable property in the section.
They will have a school the coming year.

There are many places where improvement is needed. The most outstanding one is a new Academy Building for Digby. It is past my comprehension why such a poorly planned building should have ever been erected. It is simply a two story building, each floor divided into four compartments by partitions, making eight rooms in the building.

There are no halls or stairs to assemble the children and no cloak rooms. One can scarcely conceive of a more poorly lighted building.
On dark days, certain rooms are so dark, it is with difficulty that pupils and teachers can do their work.
The citizens of Digby are progressive, and some are already alive to the need of a proper building. Others are indifferent and will only show their interest, when the necessity of a new building is brought to their attention by the present one being condemned by the Department of Education, or the Department of Public Health.

Salaries show an increase of about fifteen per cent over last year. This is indeed small, compared with the increased cost of living. I am not looking for any greater increase the coming year. Altho the "minimum salary" has been of some value in some districts, it is the great scarcity of teachers, and the increase in the cost of board, that deserves the credit of bringing about the small increase we now have. The "minimum salary" has its advantages, but in most cases it is entirely too low to materially aid in the bringing up of salaries. The whole list should be revised, consideration being given to what sections can really pay.

In Annapolis County there are a score of sections having assessable property exceeding fifty thousand dollars, who employ only one teacher.
These sections could easily pay double the salary they are now paying. Because they are favorably situated, they secure local teachers at a low salary, and offer enterprising, trained, and experienced teachers at the rate of $1.00 to $1.50. In the Western Provinces, in order to receive proper remuneration. The result is that inexperienced young teachers fill these schools, and in order that the poorer parts of the country be supplied with teachers it is necessary to issue Temporary Permissive licenses. If these wealthy sections were compelled to pay a proper salary, our best teachers would go to the Western Provinces, and the Permissive licensed teachers would not be needed.

The recent legislation increasing the Municipal Fund from thirty five cents, to fifty cents per inhabitant has met with universal favor and has

TOWN COUNCIL ONLY HAS POWER TO FIX TRUCKMEN'S CHARGES

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening.

Present—His Worship the Mayor and Councillors Anderson, Mc-Phee, Geo. Keen, S. A. Keen, Read and Smallie.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

The monthly report of G. A.
Vye, Superintendent of streets and water, was read as follows:

Digby, N. S., April 26, 1920.
To His Worship the Mayor and Council.
Gentlemen:

I beg to submit the following report. Work has been done on the streets as directed by street committees.
Gravel taken from the south end and Green Point gravel pits and put on King, Carleton, North Water, Queen, Montague streets, Green Point and Raquette Hill.
Motor trucks used 8,122 days. Teams used for filling in and repair work when it was not practicable to use motors on King street, St. Mary's, Mount, Church streets, Raquette Hill, First Avenue, and school grounds.

Drain on Prince William street, which was washed out by big rain storm, filled in with stones. The curb stone taken away from Prince William street and stored at barn. Bridge put down at the corner of Montague and Raquette streets.
Two new service systems put in, one for C. J. Blundie, Sydney street, one for W. H. Hayden at claim factory.

On motion of Councillors Anderson and S. A. Keen, the report was received and adopted.

The light committee reported that an all night service was assured for the summer months.

The water committee reported progress in revision of water rates.
Letter of Canadian Good Roads Association was read, asking the Town to become a member. On motion the letter was laid on the table.

Letter of W. W. Kenney re. Edith Vandasse, was read and referred to committee consisting of Dr. Read, Dr. DuVerney and the clerk.

Letters of T. McAvity & Sons and W. H. Thorne & Co. were read and on motion referred to the street committee.

The following bills were reported up by the Finance Committee:

Mrs. Alice Handspiker $ 20.00
Hudson Fish Corp. Ltd. 20.00
Daly's Electric Light 93.94
G. A. Vye 2.45
Ernest H. Block 14.75
W. L. Holdsworth 67.73
P. W. Holdsworth 13.45
Hudson Industrial School 31.50
Turnbull & Co. 1.43
N. S. Hospital 80.63
Canadian Brass Co. 26.13
A. J. Treloar 1.20
Maritime Telephone Co. 4.00
Pay Roll (Streets & Water) 667.25

On motion of Councillors McPhee and Smallie the bills as read, were ordered to be paid.

On motion of Councillors Mc-Phee and Read the salary of G. A.
Vye, Superintendent of Streets and Water was fixed at $960.00 per year, beginning January 1st 1920.

Moved by Dr. Read, seconded by Councillor McPhee, that the five children of Percy E. Keen, deceased, be placed in charge of Ernest H.

Blois, Superintendent of Neglected and Delinquent Children. Carried.

The finance committee reported that they had examined the Rate Book for the year 1920, and found it correct and had approved it.

Moved by S. A. Keen, seconded by Geo. Keen, and resolved that the first day of July, 1920, be fixed as the date on or before which the rates and taxes rated and set down in the Rate Book in respect to real and personal property and income, shall be payable and that the rate of discount on all taxes paid on or before the 1st day of July, 1920, be two and one-half per centum per annum and that interest at the rate of six per centum per annum be charged on all taxes or balance thereof, due the Town of Digby that are unpaid after the 1st day of October, 1920.

Councillor Smallie reported that Vernon Bent had erected a smoke house in the rear of his property on Water St., without a permit. The matter was referred to the Fire Committee to investigate.

Councillor Read asked for information as to whether truckmen had the power to fix rates and charges for trucking. The Town Solicitor replied that under the Towns Incorporation Act, and the By-Laws of the Town, the power to fix rates and charges for trucking, was placed in the Town Council, and in Chapter 22 of the Town By-Laws these rates and charges had been fixed by the Council.

After an informal discussion the matter was, on motion, referred to the License Committee to prepare a new schedule of charges if necessary and report to the Council.

WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furried Tongues, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which causes and ferments like garbage in a sour barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, flat gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental frazzle, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

been a great help towards maintaining schools in the poorer parts of the country. The increasing of this fund makes the municipality more the unit in the support of schools. I would like to see the fund raised to one dollar per inhabitant. This to my mind is the only way schools can be maintained in the poorer parts of the country, and proper salaries paid.

This Inspectorate is decidedly in favor of the March Annual Meeting. The Education Act requires the rate roll to be posted in September. This gives ample time for the collecting of taxes before March. All the incorporated towns except the rate roll in 1919 and 1920, and it has become necessary for the county districts to follow their example. Sections felt it would be better for the new Board of Trustees to engage the teacher, who is to teach under their authority. Again it often becomes necessary to make extensive repairs. The time between the present year of the meeting and the opening of school is too short to get the material and have the work done.

A Mechanic Science department was maintained in Middleton, Bridgetown, and Annapolis, under the management of Mr. G. E. Palfrey. I am pleased to report that the arrangement will continue during the coming year. Middleton also maintained a Domestic Science department. Mr. C. FOSTER, M. A. Inspector, Bridgetown, N. S. Salvation Army
A Strong Force

and Women and For Happy Homes.

The Appeal of The Salvation Army for half a million with which to carry on its peculiar and particular work brings again to notice a strong force, not merely in the spiritual realm, but in the cause of order and reconstruction. When war called every class of the Empire into special service the Salvation Army was about the only religious force really prepared to take up the burden. In writing this we ignore neither the Y. M. C. A., nor any other Organization. They had great efforts to make before their organization could expand to the new task, and frequently found themselves at a loss with a new difficulty. According to the men who have served, "The Salvation Army never failed and it did not matter, at either rest camp or base, whether the soldier came in drunk or sober, whether he had money or had squandered every penny on unworthy objects. The first principles of William Booth were to get the man up from the gutter and his apostolate based on the old injunction with new strength and vigor.

The normal work of The Salvation Army makes for contented men and women, for happy homes, for a strong desire to improve the surroundings, for a mighty pity for the unsuccessful and those unfitted for the hard service of life. The Fund which the country is asked to give in "Self Denial" will be devoted to rebuilding the edifice of social and religious work which has been largely neglected during the war period, and to making foundations for further developments.

BUY AT HOME

BUY AT HOME has ever been the motto of The Weekly Courier. If you're a Dollar to spend, spend that Dollar with the Home Merchant, Home Dealer, or Home Manufacturer, from whom you earned it.

A Dollar Saved is a Dollar Earned. It is a maxim which applies to no more forcibly to the thrifty housewife or the industrious wage earner than it does to the life of a community. A Dollar Bill spent with the Bridgeport manufacturer will in turn find its way back to the wage earner, to the housewife, to the farmer and huckster, and again in turn, to the Retail Merchant or Dealer, and back again once more to the wage earner, to be again spent on through the channels that bring prosperity to the community.

That's the chief reason why you should Buy at Home.

SOUTH RANGE

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baxter and baby who have been visiting her parents, have returned to their home in Digby.

Miss Clara M. Dore and baby, spent one day last week at the home of Mrs. Hanford Marshall.

Helen Marshall seems to be the order of the day.

Stephen Marshall, who has been spending the winter at Bear River, returned to his home on Monday last, on a visit.

POULTRY RAISING AS A VOCATION

Although the value of poultry and poultry products in the three prairie provinces of Canada amounted to more than twelve and a half million dollars in 1919, it cannot be said that the poultry industry in these provinces is anything more than a side line with the majority of farmers. The high prices paid for eggs during the last few years, however, has caused farmers to turn their attention to the possibilities of poultry raising as a means of increasing their income.

This is shown by the interest which is being taken in the teachings of the agricultural colleges and the Dominion and Provincial Government experimental farms throughout the country. Farmers are looking for advice regarding poultry, and are endeavoring to put into practice the valuable information made available by the agricultural colleges and experimental farms. The work that is being done at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Lethbridge, Alberta, is characteristic of what similar institutions throughout the country are doing, and indicated the enormous profit possibilities poultry raising in the prairie provinces offers. If the profession is taken seriously, at this farm a return of no less than $30 weekly is being received from a flock of 220 hens which require but part of the time of one man to look after them.

The value of the poultry at the Lethbridge Experimental Farm is measured by the number of eggs a hen lays. Many of the best birds at the farm would not stand very high in the estimation of a judge at a poultry show. But they are egg producers, and eggs mean more revenue to the farmer; and it is the object of the Experimental Farm to teach the farmer methods that will produce more revenue.

The flock which produces such satisfactory results has been got together by intelligent selection of proved laying strains. The birds are barred plymouth rocks. In 1918 Mr. O. A. Crossfield, who is in charge of the poultry section at the experimental station at Lethbridge, trapped about 160 hens. Of these 84 hens which had laid more than 150 eggs during 1918, included 37 which produced 200 and more, were selected. These were mated with cockerels of a good egg producing strain, and out of the hatchings of last spring 220 pullets were taken. These 220 birds were divided into flocks of fifty-five each and penned together in the fall.

One lot was placed in the pen last October, a month earlier than the rest. These fifty-five hens netted a profit of $1.12 each during the month of December. They laid 1,083 eggs more than ninety dozen—which were sold wholesale at 80c a dozen. Every hen laid during the month. One pullet laid thirty eggs in the thirty-one days. Many others laid twenty-five and twenty-six each in the same period. The average number of eggs laid by the pullets in this pen during the month was somewhat less than twenty eggs each.

The pens for the other birds were not ready until the middle of November, and the results in December were not quite so good in these pens as in the one just mentioned. They were, however, very satisfactory. All but seventeen hens laid. One hen laid thirty eggs, yielding a gross return of $2.20 for the month. This is a good deal more than the cost to keep, which some farmers are well satisfied to get from their hens during the winter months. These pens were doing much better later and in January fourteen dozen eggs were being taken from the four pens daily. This works out at about one hundred dozen eggs a week, and at present prices means a return of $80 a week from 220 hens.

Mr. Crossfield claims there is no great secret in getting such results as those from poultry in Southern Alberta. The dry atmosphere, the sunbiny days, and the absence of rain during the hatching season contribute greatly to the successful raising of strong and healthy chicks. The housing of the birds is very simple and can be duplicated at little expense by any farmer, or by anyone else as a matter of fact, who might want to take up chicken raising as a profession. The floor of the pen is the ground and the roosts are about three feet away from the ground. The roosting space has a covering of canvas which is placed over the openings at night to prevent draughts. The heat from the hens is thus confined to a small space, and no artificial heat is provided. Good clean straw covers the floor.

During the cold weather the hens are given a mixture of two parts of corn and six parts wheat in addition to their other feed which consists of oats, bran, shorts, and cornmeal in equal parts, as well as green alfalfa leaves, grit, oyster shell and charcoal. In warmer weather the corn and wheat ration is reduced. Clean water is always available. The food is given in hoppers which are arranged a few inches from the ground.

It would be interesting to see what results could be obtained in Western Canada from specializing in poultry raising on a farm where the greater part, if not the whole of the crops, would be grown for feeding the poultry. On account of the great variety of crops that can be grown on an irrigated farm it would seem that these farms offer special advantages to anyone wanting to make poultry his profession, but satisfactory results could undoubtedly be obtained from almost anywhere in the prairie provinces. The possibilities of the industry are being realized, however, and during the last six months reports have been received of more than a dozen different people who have started, or who have planned to begin poultry raising on a commercial scale.

LITTLE RIVER

Mrs. Wm. Denton left on Saturday via Yarmouth, to visit her son, Dr. Frank Denton, of Philadelphia. She will also remain a few days with her sister, Mrs. Rice at Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Denton were passengers to St. John last week, where Mrs. Denton has undergone a successful operation.

Miss Laura Denton is spending a month or so with her sister at New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Denton, of Regina, who spent the winter with Mrs. Chipman Denton, have returned to their home in the West.

Our pastor, Rev. G. C. Durkee met with an accident last Thursday night while returning from Sandy Cove. The night was dark and at a turn in the road his wagon collided with that of Oscar Trask. Mr. Durkee was thrown into the ditch and was picked up unconscious. A great party of it is preventable. The poor, it is true, we have always with us. Time was when we had always had slavery and smallpox with us. Now out of half a million persons each person dies annually of smallpox in the United States. Time was when slavery and smallpox were generally taken as a matter of course. As soon as they ceased being taken as a matter of course they were put into the way of practically disappearing—not by any magic formula but by tireless, sure-footed, practical-minded effort.

At length we have the means of reducing poverty to its practical, irreducible minimum. It is only very recently, as history runs, that we have had these means. But now we have the means to conquer poverty, for a limousine and a grand piano to every inhabitant and a four-hour workday; but enough for the essentials of decent physical existence to every family. We have the social and industrial organization and the body of scientific knowledge. Poverty is a social loss and a social danger. We can take out an insurance policy against it.—Wm. Fayne, in Saturday Evening Post.

Our popular nurse, Mrs. Alonzo Morehouse, is in Sandy Cove for a week or two. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Morehouse were the week end guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Morehouse.

Mrs. Clayton Denton, who has been visiting her mother, at Ashmore, has returned home.

Cecilia Fernald, of St. John, spent last week with her aunt, Mrs. J. C. Trask.

G. W. Wightman, Digby, was the guest of C. L. Denton on Wednesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Folkin, of St. John, are the guests of the latter's mother, Mr. Minnie Trask.

Rev. I. D. Harvey left on Monday for Caneauport to assist in the Evangelistic services being held there.

Mrs. Burpee Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Denton, Aubrey, Walter and Cleveland Frost are passengers to Weymouth last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Small, East Ferry, were the week end guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Denton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Lagerrold, of Grand Manan are visiting the latter's old home here. They are staying at "Hillside Cottage."

We are sorry to report Mrs. Howard Denton confined to the house by reason of a very bad cold, received on Friday last.

Many attended the prayer services held in Tidville last week. Much good has been reap, and the spirit of God has abundantly blessed that place as well as Little River.

Edison Frost and bride, left for California a short time ago where they will make their future home.

The storm passed over this village a short time ago, leaving en route a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Frost and Mr. and Mrs. Emdon Tibert.

FREEPORT

Nelson Thurber returned home on the 16th, after spending the winter in Cuba and foreign ports.

Loran Nass has returned to Boston after spending the winter here.

Mrs. Ernest Collins, of Digby, is the guest of Mrs. Allen Ferry.

W. H. Stevens returned from Digby the 14th.

Dame rumor says another wedding soon.

Miss Alma Stevens spent last week with friends at Westport.

H. M. Mullen, of Weymouth, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. A. J. Nickerson, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Peters, of Westport, spent the week end the guest of Mrs. Wm. Tibert.

Beecher Nelson and Clarence Morehouse, Milford, Hubley, Victor Finigan, George Powell and Austin Nickerson, spent Sunday at Centreville.

William Flus, of Centreville, visited here last week.

SOCIAL EVENING AT FREEPORT. One of the important social events of the season, was held at the home of Dr. A. Weir on Thursday evening, April 10th. Eighteen invited guests assembled there and spent a delightful evening with the new resident. After the evening was well spent in dancing and games the guests were ushered to the dining room by Miss Sarahina Thurber, where a beautiful repast awaited them.

The guests were, Misses Dorothy Haines, Reta Thurber, Florence Stevens, Jessie Eaton Mac Haines, Alma Stevens, Ernestine Thurber, Dorothy Morrell, Mr. Allan of Newfound, George Wymore of Yarmouth, Dr. C. L. Boylan, of Bear River, Ralph Thurber, Earl Haines, Bernard Blackford and Edwin Crocker, of Freeport.

TO INSURE AGAINST POVERTY

Writer is Confident That a Practical Scheme Will Be Worked Out Before Many Years.

Sickness is an insurable risk and there is no doubt that a very comprehensive and acceptable scheme of insurance against it will yet be worked out. Whether, in the United States, it will be a compulsory, state-managed scheme, or one to be carried out by the more that, subject is agitated the faster sickness loss will be reduced, for agitation will direct attention to public health, and means that are tried and proved to be more extensively employed to prevent sickness.

Steady, intelligent public attention is what the whole problem of poverty needs. There is no doubt that a great part of it is preventable. The poor, it is true, we have always with us. Time was when we had always had slavery and smallpox with us. Now out of half a million persons each person dies annually of smallpox in the United States. Time was when slavery and smallpox were generally taken as a matter of course. As soon as they ceased being taken as a matter of course they were put into the way of practically disappearing—not by any magic formula but by tireless, sure-footed, practical-minded effort.

At length we have the means of reducing poverty to its practical, irreducible minimum. It is only very recently, as history runs, that we have had these means. But now we have the means to conquer poverty, for a limousine and a grand piano to every inhabitant and a four-hour workday; but enough for the essentials of decent physical existence to every family. We have the social and industrial organization and the body of scientific knowledge. Poverty is a social loss and a social danger. We can take out an insurance policy against it.—Wm. Fayne, in Saturday Evening Post.

ASKED HIM TO SEND THORAX

Specialist invited to Forward X-Rays by Parcel Post Became Some-what Satirical.

Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute, who has just received one of the French government's highest honors, told a story at a New York dinner.

"The medical ignorance of some people is staggering," he said. "I know an X-ray specialist who got a letter from a patient asking for the other day. The farmer wrote:

"Dear Sir: I have had a nail in my thorax for 17 years. I am too busy to come to New York, but want you to send down here to Paris Corner with your rays, as my case will be worth your while. If you do not find time to come, send a dozen rays boxed, by express, with instructions to say, 'I want to see you again.'"

"The X-ray specialist wrote back to the farmer of Paris Corner:

"Dear Friend: I regret to say that business engagements prevent my coming to Paris Corner, and I am unfortunately out of rays just now. If you cannot come to New York, send me your thorax by parcel post and we will see what can be done."

The Persistent Echo. "Good morning."

"Good morning."

"Can you remember that horse you sold me last week?"

"Certainly."

"Well, I had my wife up to see it yesterday, and now I want to sell it back to you again."

"But you said you admired the horse."

"I did."

"What fault do you find with it now?"

"It has an echo in it."

"That doesn't hurt it."

"Yes it does."

"Yes it does."

"When my wife scolds me for staying out late the blamed old house will repeat it six or seven times, and gosh, now I do hate nagging!"—Rebobbath Sunday Herald.

Apricot Oil. One good thing is working out of the evil of war is the demonstration that chemists, under the spur of demand, can readily surpass the accomplishments of German science. The following is a concrete example: California has an acre by-product crop of 7,000 tons of apricot pits, which were formerly sold to Germany and Denmark at $45 a ton. When the war closed this market, and the price dropped to $15, a California chemist bought a supply and started experimenting.

He is now marketing a substitute for olive oil; a meat used in cooking; oil of apricot, known as bitter oil of almonds; American blue, from which Prussian blue can be made, and a number of other by-products.

American University in France. At Beaune, 175 miles southeast of Paris, is the seat of the new American University, which, perhaps, the most outstanding of the educational work carried on by the American expeditionary force, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Based in what was formerly an American hospital are 15,000 soldiers, students and a force of 500 teachers. The curriculum is notable for its agricultural college with a 600-acre farm.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—The story opens in the town of Granville, Ontario, where Miss Hazel Wain is employed as a stenographer in the office of Mr. and Mrs. Bush. She is engaged to Jack Barrow, a young real estate agent, and the wedding day is set. While waiting for him one Sunday they meet Mr. Bush, who is employed by the first time seems to notice her attractive features. He is attracted to her and becomes her private stenographer. He proposes marriage, which Hazel declines. He leaves her employment, Mr. Bush warning her he would make her sorry for refusing him.

CHAPTER II—Bush makes an effort, by a gift of flowers, to compromise Hazel. The minds of her friends, who return them. The next day Bush is thrown from his horse and fatally hurt. He sends for Hazel, who refuses to see him before he dies. Three days afterward, it is announced that he left a legacy of $50,000 to Hazel, and that her name was to be "Hazel Bush." Hazel recognizes at once that this will be a trap to ruin her.

CHAPTER III—Jack Barrow, in a fit of jealous rage, demands from Hazel an explanation of Bush's action. Hazel's pride is hurt, and she refuses the engagement. Broken hearted, Jack determines to leave Granville. He sees an advertisement for a school teacher at Carleton Place, British Columbia, and secures the position.

CHAPTER IV—Carleton Meadows is in a wild part of British Columbia, and Hazel, shortly after her arrival, loses her way while walking in the woods. She wanders until night, when attracted by the light of a campfire, she turns to hoping to find somebody who will guide her home. At the fire she recognizes a character known to Carleton Meadows as "Roaring Bill Wagstaff," who had seen her at her boarding house there. She promises to take her home in the morning, but she is compelled to spend the night in the woods.

CHAPTER V—They start next day. Hazel supposes, for Carleton Meadows, but is surprised to find that he is taking her to his cabin in the mountains. He is a rough, but not unkind, man, and though protesting indignantly, is helpless and has to accompany him.

CHAPTER VI.

A Little Personal History.

Hazel discarded the wet coat, and drawing a chair up to the fire, took off her soaking footgear and toasted her bare feet at the blaze. Her clothing was also wet, and she wondered pettishly how in the world she was going to manage with only one garment on her back—and those dirty and torn from hacking through the brush for a matter of two weeks. According to her standards, that was something to be thankful for. But presently she gave over thinking of her plight. The fire warmed her, and, with the chill gone from her body, she bestowed a curious glance on her surroundings.

There was furniture of a sort unknown to her, tables and chairs fashioned by hand with infinite labor and rude skill, massive in structure, upholstered with the skins of wild beasts common to the region. Upon the walls hung pictures, dainty black-and-white prints, and a water color or two. And between the pictures were tailed heads of moose and sheep, and the antlers of deer and caribou. Above the fireplace spread the huge shaggy horns of a moose, bearing across the prongs a shotgun and fishing rods. The center of the floor—where she could see of hand-smoothed logs—was lightened with a great black and red and yellow rug of curious weave. Covering up the bare spots were seats, the cushions besprinkled black and brown. Her feet rested in the fur of a monster silver-tip, fur thicker and softer than the pile of any carpet ever fabricated by man. All around the walls ran shelves filled with books. A guitar stood in one corner, a mandolin in another.

Except for the dust that had gathered lightly in its owner's absence, the place was as neat and clean as if the housemaid had just gone over it. Hazel shrugged her shoulders. Roaring Bill Wagstaff became, if anything, more of an enigma than ever, in the light of his dwelling. She reflected that Carleton Meadows had regarded him as a villain, and wondered why.

He came in while her gaze was still roving from one object to another, and threw his wet outer clothing, boy fashion, on the nearest chair.

"Well," he said, "we're here."

"Please don't forget, Mr. Wagstaff," she replied coldly, "that I would much prefer not to be here."

He stood a moment regarding her with his odd smile. Then he went into the adjoining room. Out of this he presently emerged, dragging a small steamer trunk. He opened it, got down on his knees, and pawed over the contents. Hazel, looking over her shoulder, saw that the trunk was filled with women's garments, and sat amazed.

"Say, little person," Bill finally remarked, "it looks to me as if you could outfit yourself completely right here."

"I don't know that I care to deck myself in another woman's fancy, thank you," she returned perversely.

"Now, see here," Roaring Bill turned reproachfully, "you've been sitting here, and you haven't even looked at the things in that trunk. You're a queer one, you are."

even acquire in two weeks on the trail, with no toilet accessories and only the clothes on her back. She tried to snatch the mirror from him, but Bill eluded her reach, and laid the glass on the table.

"You'll feel a whole lot better able to cope with the situation," he told her smilingly, "when you get some decent clothes on and your hair fixed. That's a woman. And you don't need to feel squeamish about these things. This trunk's got a history, let me tell you. A bunch of slim-pure tenderfeet strayed into the mountains west of here a couple of summers ago. There were two women in the lot. The youngest one, who was about your age and size, must have had more than her share of vanity. I guess she figured on charming the bear and the moose, or the simple aborigines who dwell in this neck of the woods. Anyhow, she had all kinds of unnecessary fixings along, that trunkful of stuff in the lot. You can imagine what a nice time their guides had packing that on a hike, eh? They got into a deuce of a pickle finally, and had to abandon a lot of their stuff, among other things the steamer trunk. I lent them a hand, and they told me to help myself to the stuff. So I did after they were out of the country. That's how you come to have a wardrobe all ready to your hand. Now, you'd be awful foolish to act like a mean and stiff-necked female person. You're not going to, are you?"

He wheedled. "Because I want to make you comfortable. What's the use of getting on your dignity over a little thing like clothes?"

"I don't intend to," Hazel suddenly changed front. "I'll make myself as comfortable as I can—particularly if it will put you to any trouble."

"You're bound to scrap, eh?" he grinned. "But it takes two to build a fight, and I positively refuse to fight with you."

He dragged the trunk back into the room, and came out carrying a great armful of masculine belongings. Two such trips he made, piling all his things onto a chair.

"There!" he said at last. "That end of the house belongs to you, little person. Now, get those wet things off before you catch a cold. Oh, wait a minute."

He disappeared into the kitchen end of the house, and came back with a wash-basin and a pail of water.

"Your room is now ready, madam, and it pleases you." He bowed with mock dignity, and went back into the kitchen.

Hazel heard him rattling pots and dishes, whistling cheerfully the while. She closed the door, and busied herself with an inventory of the tenderfoot lady's trunk. In it she found everything needed for complete change, and a variety of garments to boot. Folded in the bottom of the trunk was a gray cloth skirt and a short blue silk kimono. There was a coat and skirt, too, of brown corduroy. But the few, she instinctively asserted itself, and she laid out the gray skirt and the kimono.

For a dresser Roaring Bill had fashioned a wide shelf, and on it she found a toilet set complete—hand mirror, military brushes, and sundry articles, backed with silver and engraved with his initials. Perhaps with a spice of malice, she put on a few extra touches. There would be some small satisfaction in taunting Bill Wagstaff—even if she could not help feeling that it might be a dangerous game. And, thus arrayed in the weapons of her sex, she slipped on the kimono, and went into the living room to the cheerful glow of the fire.

Bill remained busy in the kitchen. Hazel felt. The gleam of a light showed through a crack in the door. The big room only the fire gave battle to the shadows, throwing a ruddy glow into the far corners. Presently Bill came in with a pair of candles which he set on the mantel above the fireplace.

"By Jove!" he said, looking down at her. "You look good enough to eat! I'm not a cannibal, however," he continued hastily, when Hazel smiled. She was not used to such plain speaking. "And supper's ready. Come on!"

The table was set. Moreover, to her surprise, she was beginning to expect almost anything from this paradoxical young man—it was spread with linen, and the cutlery was silver, the dishes china, in contradistinction to the tawdry of his camp outfit.

As a cook Roaring Bill Wagstaff had no cause to be ashamed of himself, and Hazel enjoyed the meal, particularly since she had not so great a reprieve in the morning. After a time, when her appetite was partially satisfied, she took to glancing over his kitchen. There seemed to be some adjunct of a kitchen missing. A fire burned on a hearth similar to the one in the living room. Pots stood about the edge of the fire. But there was no sign of a stove.

Bill finished eating, and resorted to cigarette material instead of his pipe.

"Well, little person," he said at last, "what do you think of this joint of mine, anyway?"

"I've just been wondering," she replied. "I don't see any stove, yet you have food here that looks as if it were baked, and biscuits that must have been cooked on a stove."

"You see no stove for the good and sufficient reason," he returned, "that you can't pack a stove on a horse—and we're three hundred odd miles from the end of any wagon road. With a Dutch oven or two—that's my round from thing you see there—I can guarantee to cook almost anything you can cook on a stove. Anybody can if they know how. Besides, I like things better this way. If I didn't, I suppose I'd have a stove—and maybe a hot-water supply, and modern plumbing. As it is, it affords me a sort of prideful satisfaction, which you may or may not be able to understand, that this cabin and everything in it is the work of my hands—or stuff I've packed in here with all sorts of effort from the outside. Maybe I'm a freak. But I've group of this place. Barring the inevitable loneliness that comes with it, and then, I can be happier here than any place I've ever struck yet. This country grows on one."

"Yes—on one's nerves," Hazel retorted.

Bill smiled, and, rising, began to clear away the dishes. Hazel resisted an impulse to help. She would not work; she would not lift her finger to any task, she reasoned, and went into the living room to the cheerful glow of the fire.

He put more wood on the kitchen fire, and set a pot of water to heat. Out in the living room Hazel drew her chair to one side of the hearth. Bill sprawled on the hearth rug with another cigarette in his fingers.

"No," he began, after a long silence, "this country doesn't get on one's nerves—not if one is a normal human being. You'll find that. When I first came up here I thought so, too; it seemed so big and empty and forbidding. But the more I see of it the better it compares with the outer world, where the extremes of luxury and want are always in evidence. It began to seem like home to me when I first looked down into this little basin. I was looking at the things like cheese and t'ables and shelves, and fixing up game heads whenever I got an extra good one. And maybe two or three times a year I'd go out. Got restless, you know. I'm not really a hermit by nature. Lord, the things I've packed in here from the outside! Books—I hired a whole pack train at Ashcroft once to bring in just books; they thought I was crazy. I guess. I've quit this place once or twice, but I always come back. It's got that home feel that I can't find anywhere else. Only it has always lacked one important home qualification," he finished softly. "Do you ever build air castles?"

But did not use it because she did not learn to play. But she wanted piano

W. C. T. U. AT WEYMOUTH

A well attended meeting of the W. C. T. U. (Weymouth North) was held with Mrs. Blackadder on Wednesday afternoon. Business occupied the first half hour or more. On the arrival of guests the program for the Mother's Meeting proceeded dealing with the absorbing subject of the "Moral Training of the child"—we regret that our leader was unable to be present and we sincerely hope that nothing will happen to prevent her being with us at the next of the Series which she is making so interesting and it is hoped, profitable to all who avail themselves of the privilege of attending these meetings.

The material contained in prepared papers and readings was so well chosen that every point seemed to be brought to the attention of the hearers, who could not but be impressed with the ideas presented.

The paper on "Co-operation of teacher and parent in relation to the moral welfare of our children" seems to voice the thought of so many people at the present time that we are asking the editor to publish it for his "Children's wrongs" brought out the idea that "real governing power is in the character of grown ups" and the parent must be what he wishes his child to become, for the child "lives a life" of unconscious imitation.

The reading on "Misplaced Values" severely censured the mother who fails to realize and appreciate the priceless gift of a child, and to "recognize the divine responsibility that increases as the days of the child increase—showing some of the ways in which she may be inadequate to the sensitive feelings of her little ones.

The importance of "Obedience to Law" was considered in another prepared paper, stress being laid to learn on the fact that only by insisting on the strict observance of carefully made rules at home and in school, will the youth of today become the law abiding citizen of to-morrow.

Many other helpful suggestions for parents and teachers were considered such as care in the choice of companions; the evil effects of the cigarette; the mental as well as the physical development of youth; and the systematic memorizing of scripture passages and fine quotations all of which ought to prove of great benefit to those who are in any way interested in the uplift of our community.

It seemed fitting that our gathering should be graced by the presence of charming yet girl whose model behavior left nothing to be desired!

MEN WE MUST ADMIRE

THEY PROTECT LAW AND ORDER IN YOUNG COUNTRY.

The Royal Northwest Mounted Police have been Mustered Out of Service
After Making a Record That Cannot Be Matched in the History of Modern Frontier Undertakings Under Any Flag.

The famous Northwest Mounted Police has been mustered out of service.

For half a century, "The Scarlet and Gold" of the riders of the plains had been a symbol of law and order. And the territory they policed is as vast as the United States west of the Mississippi.

On the prairies, in mountains and forest, through the ice-bound reaches of Arctic coast, they made the "long patrol," protecting the settler, succoring the weak and administering justice with relentless hand to Indian and white man, to British and alien.

The territory covered by the Royal Northwest Mounted Police has now reached a point in population where a different form of policing is called for.

The many provinces which at the inception of this famous corps were populated by hunters, trappers and Indians, have been thickly settled by farmers, merchants and professional men. And these provinces have formed their separate laws for governing, which must have many times interfered with the methods of administering law and order as carried out by the Scarlet and Gold.

It is now merged with the Canadian Mounted Police.

Only in the far-north is any of the original police force left here. Here in the Great Barren, along the desolate shores of Hudson Bay and the Arctic Ocean, through the Rockies Dawson, the "long patrol" will be needed.

But the famous corps has done its work and its identity in the new national force.

The uniform has been preserved,
but the old romance has departed.

For nearly two centuries the Hudson Bay Company had ruled that vast territory between Hudson Bay and the Rocky Mountains. The Dominion of Canada gained possession.
The great company which had been guardian to the white-Indian trade, Assiniboine and Cree Indians, had kept in a fashion law and order.

The hardy Scotch factors had interested themselves in the Indian tribes, and their influence was powerful and firm. Then came a change in control. It became a "no-man's land," a great company without authority and the Dominion Government without any machinery to enforce its laws.

It was a dangerous period. The United States Government was seeking to curb the fierce Sioux. They in turn were making overtures to the Canadian Indians to join them.
The whiskey runner was unchecked and the lawless element in present order in this great territory.

Three companies were mobilized at Winnipeg, or as it was then called "Fort Gary." Three other companies joined them later. In all, 1,950 men restored and preserved order in a territory as large as Europe, without a railway, and peopled with nearly 100,000 Indians, reft with tribal hatred, and without any other whites by the depletion of the bu-falo herds, the almost sole source of their existence.

It was then that the famous "scarlet and gold" uniform was adopted.
To the Indian the "red" coat symbolized the power of the white White Mother and Col. Robertson, Ross, organizer of the force, suggested the uniform in his report.

From the Indian the name of the made its first long patrol. Through what was then known as the Great American Desert it struggled for 800 miles, establishing posts, and finally wintered in Fort McLeod, in the foothills of the Rockies.

From there its activities spread until now, on the Hudson Bay, Coronation Gulf, the frozen Arctic and the desolate Yukon, are posts from which patriots keep watch.

By horse, canoe and dog train they carry the authority of the law to the Edkington of the Arctic, the whalers of Herschel Island and the gold seekers of the Rockies. In the last fifty years they have bridged the wild Indian into treaty, have made the cattle rustler or whiskey runner only a name, and in the Klondike rush, that seeking mining camp Mr. Dawson was as safe as an eastern hamlet.

During the regime of the riders, Canada's western domain passed from a country of tribal conflict through the railway stage, when our first continental was won across the prairie without provoking strife with the original owners of the country, to the period of peaceful settlement and the upbuilding of modern cities.

From the time of the confederation of the Canadian Indians, but also of the fierce Sioux, who sought refuge in Canada after the Custer massacre.

Sounds Like Fiction.
Out at Guntown, a village near Winnipeg, would parade the streets in bright and colorful uniforms, and the station to meet incoming trains.
So says Christopher Possett, Possett, who is station agent in the village, and champion wrestler in the vestrict, usually stays two or three in the morning before breakfast, he told the reporter that he had been in when he applied for a permit to buy a revolver.

A critic isn't always a person who has tried to do it and failed. Sometimes he is a person who feels too darned superior to try to do it.

MANITOBA DIVORCES.

Province Is Not the "Reno of Canada."

"No, distinctly not," replied Chief Justice Mathers when asked if Manitoba would ever become the Mecca for divorce pilgrims.

"I would not say that Manitoba divorce laws are as lenient as and sane," he declared. "On the one hand there are laws of great leniency and the courts will grant divorces. The applicant must show that he or she is really entitled to relief from conditions of marriage, and on the other hand, the law is framed so as to be within the reach of rich and poor alike."

With good grounds, costs for a divorce will not exceed $50 or $60, according to legal experts.

"That many applications for divorces have been granted by decrees since the law became operative for Manitoba last September.
In a month from the date of issue the decrees become final upon application."

"It may seem to be a high total for the period of five months, but conditions which have been responsible for large numbers of divorces are going hand in hand with the Chief Justice Mathers said. "The great majority of applications have been made by women, and the abnormal conditions existed during the war and what is true for Manitoba can be said, generally, to be true for the whole world."

"Again, there are many cases which go back to conditions of several years standing. Formerly there was no obtaining a divorce except by Act of Parliament. The expense of such proceedings was very high, and the delay was great.
The wealthy, many potential divorces have piled up during the years and they are just coming out."

Considerable decrease in the number of divorces is expected when applications from these two classes are exhausted.

Flying In the Arctic.
Canadian aviators, with active service experience, are being sought through the Aero Club of Canada to be located in the Arctic.

The Aero Club of Canada is looking for a pilot to photograph the Belcher Islands, on the east coast of Hudson Bay.

The Belcher Islands are located upon a difficult one owing to the inaccuracies of the maps. On the Belcher Islands, there is a large iron and oil, and the description given by the discovering parties make the pilots scratch their heads in wonder at the view of the islands.

The islands are mere pin points on the maps, and far out in the Hudson

Islands, there is a large iron and oil, and the description given by the discovering parties make the pilots scratch their heads in wonder at the view of the islands.

FIRST LADY OF ALBERTA.

Mrs. Charles Stewart Came From an Ontario Village.

From a country home in the little village of Midhurst, near Barrie, Ontario, to a homestead on the Western prairie, and from there to the province of Alberta, Mrs. Charles Stewart has lived a life of adventure and far cry, surely, yet the experience of Mrs. Charles Stewart, wife of the former Premier of Alberta, has been a life of adventure and far cry, surely, yet the experience of Mrs. Charles Stewart, wife of the former Premier

TWICE THOUGHT TIME HAD COME

Case Was Pronounced Hopeless. Gratitude to Tanlac Is Unbounded, He Says.

What is doubtless one of the most remarkable statements ever published in connection with a medicine, was made by Georges Boudreau, a grocery clerk, living at 1888 Avenue Du Parc
West, Montreal, a few days ago.

The story of Mr. Boudreau's recovery to health is profoundly interesting and is given below just as related by himself in a conversation with a Tanlac representative.

"Two and a half years ago I began suffering from stomach trouble and twice during that time my case was pronounced hopeless and I was thought I could not live. My trouble began with a feeling like a big lump after nearly every meal, in the pit of my stomach. I would then have to drink a great quantity of hot water in order to get a little relief. I had to live mostly on milk and my stomach pained me so at times that I fainted and thought I would surely die. The least efforts would cause me to persire a great deal of my legs were swollen terribly and my heart would palpitate at a frightful rate. Six months after my troubles started I had to give up all idea of work. I ventured to go for a walk on the street the least little breeze would almost take my breath away and I had to go back in to the house. I could not sleep at night and had to prop myself in bed with pillows.

"I was bloated all the time with the gas on my stomach, was constipated the worst kind and had absolutely no appetite. I also had rheumatism in my joints so bad that I had to take something to ease the pain. My case seemed to be a puzzle as no one understood it, and I got worse in spite of all that was done for me. I was often caught weeping in despair over my condition.

"But I am now a happy man and my gratitude towards Tanlac is unlimited. It has not only restored my health, but I believe it has saved my life, and I can see that I will soon be able to take up the work again that I was doing before my troubles began. Why, my appetite is so ravenous that I simply can't get enough to eat and my digestion is so good that I never have a pain or an uncomfortable feeling no matter what or how much I eat. My legs do not swell any more, the rheumatic pains are gone, and I sleep every night just like a child. I am feeling perfectly well and I mean to say by that I haven't an ache or a pain of any kind. My recovery has been a surprise to just lots of people and some who have met me on the streets lately seemed absolutely amazed at the wonderful change that has taken place in me. All the praise, thanks and gratitude belongs to Tanlac. It is simply wonderful and I wish everyone knew its value as I do."

"Tanalac is sold in Digby by P.
W. Holdsworth and by the leading grocery in every town."

More than 200 rescue homes for fallen girls are maintained by the Salvation Army throughout the world.
More than 85 per cent of those passing through these homes are permanently restored.

Long-Standing Evil

Effective Measures Taken

Since childhood Mr. A. Gail was under the shadow of a great evil, which always menaced his comfort and safety. Read what he says:—
"I was troubled with my kidneys since childhood, and spent a large amount of money trying to get cured. Instead of getting better, I kept getting worse until a friend of mine advised me to try Gail's Pills. I did so, and after taking one box, I was able to get out of bed and walk around. Two more boxes relieved me completely,
and since then I have had no return of the trouble."

Many people have kidney and bladder trouble without knowing it. They think nothing of the backache, the pains in the sides, the constant headaches, the rheumatic, sciatic and neuritic pains, the floating specks before the eyes, the swollen joints, the highly-colored urine—all signs of trouble—all signs which should receive immediate attention and treatment with Gail's Pills, which are by far the most effective of all preparations, which may help you to avoid a fatal operation. They quickly relieve pain and heal the inflamed tissues, bringing the organs back to normal. At druggists and dealers, 50c a box. Money back on refund. Send for free sample.

Long-Standing Evil

Effective Measures Taken

Since childhood Mr. A. Gail was under the shadow of a great evil,
which always menaced his comfort and safety. Read what he says:—
"I was troubled with my kidneys since childhood, and spent a large amount of money trying to get cured. Instead of getting better, I kept getting worse until
a friend of mine advised me to try Gail's Pills. I did so, and after taking one box, I was able to get out of bed and walk around. Two more boxes relieved me completely,
and since then I have had no return of the trouble."

PAPER MADE OF COTTON WASTE

Even in the days of an acute
print paper shortage, it is a far cry from cotton to paper, but the Forest Products Laboratory of the University of Wisconsin, after long experiment, has succeeded in turning out a high grade paper derived from waste cotton seed hulls. The new paper is extremely fine in texture, excellent for bond and book use and is difficult to tear. During the years of the war when conservation was the watchword in industry, the laboratory took a prominent part in the movement and devoted its resources, time and study to means of lessening the annual consumption
of the natural products of the country, especially those devoted to war uses. When the war was ended and the country returned to the arts
of peace, the laboratory in turn devoted itself to aiding in the new problems of the day. The shortage in news print paper came and the cry was heard from ocean to ocean.
The laboratory began experimenting in waste materials in the hope of finding a new process for the manufacture of print paper. Cotton seed hulls came to the attention of the men conducting the tests. It appears that in the ginning of cotton some fibrous matter is left on the hulls of the seeds and it is impossible to remove it. Combined with the hulls the two form the basis for the manufacture of a wood pulp. Then follows
the constant experiments and finally the new paper was produced and pronounced of a quality suitable for the highest grade uses. Not only has the new formula assisted in obtaining a new supply of pulp for the manufacture of paper, but it also has given to the United States Government a means for the disposal of 700,000,000 pounds of cotton linters, which were acquired during the war for the manufacture of explosives. Since explosives no longer are needed, at least not on the scale as when battles were a daily feature in the life of Europe, the Government found itself with this large supply of left over material. It's utilization, according to the Forest Products Laboratory, in paper manufacture is of great commercial importance. So far as is known there was no means for the utilization of the Government supply of linters, with the possible exception as a cattle food. This was unsatisfactory because of the preponderance of the fibrous matter in the hulls and the slight nourishment in the entire cotton seed.

of the natural products of the country, especially those devoted to war uses. When the war was ended
and the country returned to the arts
of peace, the laboratory in turn devoted itself to aiding in the new problems of the day. The shortage in news print paper came and the cry was heard from ocean to ocean.
The laboratory began experimenting in waste materials in the hope of finding a new process for the manufacture of print paper. Cotton seed hulls came to the attention of the men conducting the tests. It appears that in the ginning of cotton some fibrous matter is left on the hulls of
the seeds and it is impossible to remove it. Combined with the hulls the two form the basis for the manufacture of a wood pulp. Then follows
the constant experiments and finally the new paper was produced and pronounced of a quality suitable for the highest grade uses. Not only has
the new formula assisted in obtaining a new supply of pulp for the manufacture of paper, but it also has
given to the United States Government a means for the disposal of 700,000,000 pounds of cotton linters, which were acquired during the war for the manufacture of explosives. Since explosives no longer are needed, at least not on the scale as
when battles were a daily feature
in the life of Europe, the Government found itself with this large supply of left over material. It's utilization, according to the Forest Products Laboratory, in paper manufacture is of great commercial importance. So far as is known there was no means for the utilization of
the Government supply of linters,
with the possible exception as a cattle food. This was unsatisfactory
because of the preponderance of the fibrous matter in the hulls and the slight nourishment in the entire cotton seed.

Even in the days of an acute
print paper shortage, it is a far cry
from cotton to paper, but the Forest Products Laboratory of the University of Wisconsin, after long experiment, has succeeded in turning out a high grade paper derived from waste cotton seed hulls. The new paper is extremely fine in texture, excellent for bond and book use
and is difficult to tear. During the years of the war when conservation
was the watchword in industry, the laboratory took a prominent part in the movement and devoted its resources, time and study to means
of lessening the annual consumption
of the natural products of the country, especially those devoted to war uses. When the war was ended
and the country returned to the arts
of peace, the laboratory in turn devoted itself to aiding in the new

WARNING TO LOBSTER CANNERS AND DEALERS

SIR:—After a thorough investigation of the lobster canning operations now being carried on in western Nova Scotia, it is learned that the provisions of the "Meat & Canned Foods Act" are not being strictly complied with. Discrepancies in the weights have been discovered, and as any infringement of the articles provided in the Act will not be tolerated, the canners and dealers are warned that prosecution and other action will follow any disregard of the regulations. Section 12D provides that,—

There shall be five sizes of cans for canning lobsters. The cans of each size shall contain not less than three ounces avoirdupois, six ounces avoirdupois, nine ounces avoirdupois, twelve ounces avoirdupois and sixteen ounces avoirdupois, respectively, of dry lobster meat. No other size of can shall be used for packing lobsters without first obtaining the written permission of the Minister. Such written permission shall state the minimum amount of dry lobster meat that is to be packed in each size of can so authorized.

The "dry lobster meat" referred to in the above section means the quantity of meat in the cans after processing, and not to the quantity put in the cans before processing. Any infringement of the regulation in this respect will subject the offender to a penalty of five hundred dollars for each offence, and also the closing of the cannery and the cancellation of the canning license.

It is also learned that the pack from many of the canneries is shipped at frequent intervals to the dealers at Halifax and other export points. These dealers are therefore warned that section 12D must be adhered to. This section provides that,—

"No person shall offer or accept for export, or shall export any fish or shellfish subject to inspection under this Act, unless the requirements of this Act and of the regulations regarding inspection and marking have been complied with, and every person offering any fish or shellfish for export or exporting the same shall furnish such proof with respect to inspection and marking as is required by the regulations, whether the fish or shellfish so offered for export or exported are subject to inspection or not."

The dealers should therefore take the precaution before accepting any such shipments, to ascertain whether or not the pack has been inspected and the weights found in accordance with the regulations. Any underweight canned lobster found in possession for export or domestic use will subject the dealer to the penalties provided for in Section 26, and also the retention of the canned goods until they are returned to the factories for repacking.

The above applies to all canners and dealers of canned lobsters in Canada.

Halifax, N. S., April 30, 1920.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, so it is recorded, would never enter a room left foot foremost and brave Marshall Saxe was in terror at the sight of a cat. Peter the Great was in a tremor of fear if he had to cross a bridge, and Byron turned pale if he spilled salt at the table.

There is in the northern part of Finland, a curious stone which serves the people instead of a barometer. This stone, which the Finns call Ilmakivi, turns black, or a blackish gray, when bad weather is approaching. Fine has the effect of turning it almost white. The Finns regard the stone with superstitious reverence, but the scientists say that its change in color are due to salts contained in its composition.

CO-OPERATION OF TEACHERS AND PARENTS NEEDED

At the present time, the public at large does not demand a school that educates. It demands some kind of a shelter called a school house. It also demands that inside this school house a nominal teacher shall keep order from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. What is taught, what happens at recess and noon, what the school-house looks like inside, whether it is properly lighted, whether it is properly heated, whether it is properly ventilated, whether the sanitary conditions are such as to not worry the public mind. A complete mastery of the three R's is not in itself an education. These are the tools where by we acquire and use an education, and just so long as a teacher's success is judged by the "order she keeps" and by the number who pass the government examinations, just so long will our schools be inefficient. But when the people learn to look upon the schools as the centres from which must come our leaders in all that goes to make for citizenship—Honesty, the Rights of Others, Self Control, Co-operation, etc.—then a change will be demanded, and secured.

Until, however, the school house stands as a ground for sympathy in architecture, interior decoration, cleanliness and landscaping with the best residences in the community, until the children are trained to be law-abiding, good natured, clean boys and girls with a knowledge of school regulations, and as young citizens, and an ability to assume leadership, they will have missed a very necessary part of the education. But the schools do not fulfil this mission until the public realize that the children must do and be something worth while as well as know something, not "worth while" and are willing to co-operate with the teachers to bring about its materialization.

Having then recognized the necessity for the deepening and strengthening of the Moral side of our education, it is at once brought about by co-operation between the home and school. What is the first requisite towards this development? Co-operation. Co-operation to co-operate with. Co-operation as long as our parents see fit to lead a living life to these principles, the manners and the morals of their sons and daughters, as long as Normal School graduates receive less money than street sweepers, and country school teachers less to teach the farmers children than the city hired men to feed the pigs, who is the inducement to lure men and women into teaching as a permanent profession? The second advertisement, which is side in the "Taleith" North Carolina, "News and Observer" of Jan. 12th, 1912. One of them reads: "Wanted—Colored barber for white trade in camp town; I permanent position. The guaranty is $25 per week. Let me hear from you at once, Fleming & Elliott, 6 Market Square, Fayetteville, N. C."

The second advertisement, wasted no words: "Wanted—Teacher of Latin for Cumberland High School, Cumberland, N. C. Salary $70 a month. W. H. Cale, Supt."

Here was a guarantee to a negro barber that he would be paid $25 a year, fifty a good prospect of $1800 a year. The Latin teacher, drawing his salary for only nine months, would receive $2000. The man to feed the pigs, who is less than half of the negro barber's community church and school? Then, minimum. Is it any wonder that the profession is being stripped of its best brains. Can you parents afford to let this happen? No. Do not think of the situation in terms of teachers, but in terms of students. Schools are not maintained to make a living for those who teach; they are maintained to give trained minds, vision and understanding to children. And in order to obtain the highest educational results for our people the community must provide enlarged opportunity for the education and training of teachers, raise the standard of education for admission to the teaching profession, taking means at the same time to attract men and women of special gifts for this high service by raising the social status of the teachers and providing a scale of remuneration so liberal as to free them from economic anxiety.

So much for the teacher! Now, how may the home and school best co-operate in looking after the Moral Welfare of Our Children? What good citizen? The moral education of the boys and girls must depend on the development of sound physical bodies, a sound mind, and a sound heart. It is fundamental, also much effort may be wasted. To this end every possible means should be taken for guarding and promoting the health of children—therefore as parents do not think of school in terms of the school days when drinking cup sat side by side in some dusty corner of the room, and tooth brushes were "scarce as hen's teeth". Rather, let us inaugurate habits of individual cleanliness and care in the child at home, and do not pool the idea, but insist on individual cleanliness, supervised play, medical and dental inspection and cultured habits at school. These are important factors in the welfare of the child and neglect of these means neglect of a very vital part of the child's education.

Have you visited your own school this year, to see how far these things are being carried out, and to find out what the school is trying to do? If not, why not? You have no doubt thought and perhaps said—that it wasn't just what it should be, but what have you done to help make it any better? Study your school, and study it in the right way.

It is as might be possible. In this period of readjustment, communism should be uprooted to study Canadian homes, not aristocratic homes, but the homes of poverty, but homes like yours, what would you want them to look for? World you want them to consider? What kind of men to feed the pigs, who are trying to breathe into your children; what handicaps there are over which you have no control whether you are forward looking patriots clear sighted in facing the problem that your children must solve in the what would be your attitude towards the constructive criticism given by this commission? Would you welcome it, study it, and understand it, and work it out? Let me hear from you at once, Fleming & Elliott, 6 Market Square, Fayetteville, N. C."

GOOD ROADS BENEFIT ALL

To the Editor of the Courier:—

SIR: I am pleased to know that the subject of better highways is occupying the minds of men who have a knowledge of facts as they are. The man who runs knows that the farmer, is of all men the most benefited by good roads as all farm products must be trucked more or less. If roads are good more and heavier loads can be drawn, better time can be made and a boy can handle a team where a man would be required if roads were bad, not to mention the saving in wear and tear good roads give the farmer who lives some distance from town a chance to bring his produce direct to the consumer thereby eliminating the middleman's profit. Moreover good roads enhance the value of lands through which they pass. Land along well built highways may be sold for more than twice as much as land if only dirt, as we say, with here and there a sprinkle of gravel is worth from seven to fifteen dollars per acre, whereas land equally as good if not better in the same neighborhood but on a bad road, cannot be sold at any price.

As a matter of fact a certain man whose farm is in a fair state of cultivation but borders on a bad road asked me to try and send a man to buy him out. But what's the use? Any intending purchaser would turn back before he would get there on account of the road. It is my belief that good roads are absolutely essential if we are to keep our young folk on the farm. The number of young people who have left the country on account of rough and muddy roads would be difficult to estimate. Yours for better highways.

The old saying that "One man's meat is another man's poison" appears to be true in the case of different kinds of live stock. It is a fact that some plants which poison horses are not injurious to cattle or sheep, and some which cause loss among cattle and sheep are not eaten by swine and horses. In Bulletin No. 39, Second Series of the Experimental Farms, "Principal Poisonous Plants of Canada" by Miss Faith Eyles, B. A. obtainable free upon application to Publication Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, a list of plants which do injury to the various classes of animals is given. The bulletin, which is prepared for live stock owners, gives information regarding poisonous plants and enables the farmer to distinguish the most harmful species in his neighborhood so that he may be able to avoid pasturing animals on infested areas until the danger is past. The yearly loss due to plant poisoning is known to be on the increase but the amount of the loss is not ascertainable because many fatalities are attributed to other causes through lack of knowledge of poisonous plants.

Silos and Sunflowers Multiply Farm Profits

Silos and sunflowers promise to revolutionize farming methods in Western Canada. That silos on the farm practically double the stock carrying capacity of the land is a fact well proved by the experience of thousands of farmers in all parts of the American continent; while practical experiments in the growing of sunflowers made on farms and experimental stations in various parts of Western Canada show that twice as large a yield per acre can be obtained with sunflowers as with corn or any other ensilage. So very satisfactory were the results obtained last season in widely separated parts of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, both in growing sunflowers and using them for ensilage, that it is safe to say that a considerable area will be planted to this crop in 1920.

Perhaps the best crop of sunflowers in Western Canada was that harvested on the Demonstration Farm of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Strathmore, Alberta. From about eight acres of land an average yield of 34½ tons to the acre was obtained. The land on which it was grown was irrigated. Generally speaking, twenty to thirty tons of sunflowers to the acre can safely be looked for on irrigated land in Southern Alberta.

Sunflowers were also grown with great success on land in districts where irrigation is not necessary. At Olds a yield of thirty tons to the acre was obtained by one farmer. At Custer fourteen tons to the acre was gathered and at Daysland Thomas Noble harvested fifteen tons to the acre. All these places are in Central Alberta and the yields were obtained in a season that was unusually dry. Given a season with an average rainfall the yields would have been enormous. Mr. Noble finds sunflowers a good silage crop, and feeds his cattle with them in July and August, besides filling his silos.

Yields similar to those obtained in Central Alberta were harvested in the various parts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba where sunflowers were grown, and it seems to have been sufficiently proved that they will grow and give enormous yields almost anywhere in Canada. Feeding tests show sunflowers in just as favorable light as the harvested yields. Professor G. H. Hutton, Superintendent of Agriculture and Animal Industry of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has shown that the feeding value of sunflowers ensilage is superior to that of corn or of peas and oats mixed during the past winter. Forty Holstein cows on the company's farm at Strathmore, Alberta, were successfully rationed on corn, peas and oats and sunflower silage for periods of two weeks, each cow being given thirty pounds of silage daily. Only the last seven days of each period were counted in the test. The results show that during the period of sunflower feeding the cows gave more milk, the milk contained a slightly higher percentage of butter fat, and the animals gained more weight than during the periods with the other food.

Tests that are being conducted at the Manitoba Agricultural College, while not quite completed, show similar results to those obtained at Strathmore. At the College six cows are being used in the test, which is being made over several periods of three weeks each, with different rations. During the three weeks they were given sunflowers, these cows gave 47.7 pounds more milk than during the previous three weeks when they were fed corn silage. They also showed a slight increase in weight.

Professor G. E. Cutler, head of the Department of Field Husbandry of the University of Alberta, has devoted much time to the study of the sunflower as a silage crop for the Canadian prairie. "The mammoth Russian is the variety that gives the most satisfaction," says Professor Cutler. "This is a single stalk variety having huge heads from twelve to fifteen inches in diameter. Under conditions even in the driest parts of the country this crop can be expected to yield from twenty to thirty tons of very good forage, per acre. The usual tonnage of corn is easily exceeded."

number of live stock to be supported on the same land, and with the use of silos this number can be further multiplied. With this crop generally grown, the dairy industry will receive further impetus. And since it is claimed that equally satisfactory results are obtainable with sunflowers in the feeding of beef cattle, sheep and hogs, the growing of this crop will enable mixed farming to be carried on more successfully, thus insuring still greater prosperity, not only among the farming community, but to the country generally.

DOG LOVED MURDERER

FISK WAS THE WITNESS OF TWO CRIMES.

Adopted by Mounted Police Following the Death of His First Master —Cane Still Survives and Is the Property of a Red-coated Officer, Corpl. Watts, Late of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

FISK witnessed two murders and one attempted murder, but he could not testify. Not that he was an unwilling witness, or because he evaded the authorities and could not be produced on the stand, but simply because Fisk was not made to speak; he is a dog.

With the passing of "E" Division of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police from Calgary, Fisk, the faithful canine, who was owned by John Fisk, the murderer who slew Tucker Fisch, is sold to his new home in southern Alberta several years ago, is aged and worn now and he has left Calgary and all its bewildering surroundings for the dog. He was at the Peach home with his master, John Fisk, on the early morning of the crime and had been produced as a witness on the stand against his master, the evidence would have been more convincing than that on which the slayer was sent to the gallows.

Long after the crime, when his master was suspected and arrested at a laundry stable in Carbon, Fisk came on to Calgary with the police and while his master lay in the cell under the charge of murder hanging over his head, Fisk stayed with the mounties. He was outside the courthouse while his master stood trial that famous hearing when the late Paddy Nolan fought through the volumes of law in a desperate attempt to save his client from the grip of evidence which gradually closed about him and eventually strangled the life from the prisoner on the sillows in the R.N.W.M.P. grounds.

Fisk found a new home, however,
and was happy with the mounties.
The redcoats learned to love the faithful canine and he came to recognize Constable Davis as his master.
Fisk, officer took a great fancy to Fisk and it was not long before a great friendship grew between the dumb animal and his new guardian.
On their many hunts throughout the land, Fisk accompanied different detachments of the mounties whenever Davis was absent. He checked along behind the dashing steeds that bore the redcoats over the plains for miles and life again seemed to him more than a mere job. For the former master died a dishonorable death by hanging.

But that cloud of gloom was destined to cast its shadow over poor old Fisk again. Constable Davis, accompanied as usual by his faithful canine, visited an Indian settlement to apprehend one Running Wolf, an Indian wanted by the police for an infraction of the law. Running Wolf shot Davis dead and Fisk was alone again. His second master fell victim to the bullet and he died an honorable death in the performance of his duty.

The mounties were the old consolation for the poor old dog. His two owners had cherished him as a friend and they had passed on, but still Fisk sought the companionship of faithful master and he was next taken by Corpl. A. E. C. Watts of the mounties. Though it took Fisk a long time to make up with his new master, he eventually came to care for him with that same faithful spirit as he had marked his friendship for the other two who had since left him behind. Strangely enough Fisk seemed a hoodlum for his owner, Corpl. Watts while in the man hunt after the murderers at Exshaw, narrowly escaped death at the hands of one of the desperados in the dense woods at the foot of the Rockies many years ago. Fisk followed his master on the hunt for he became attached to Watts just the same as the other two and here again he nearly had been a witness, had he the tongue, intelligent enough to speak in court. The murderers were afterwards caught and Watts was avenged.

In his last days in Calgary Fisk limped around with a drooping head, his back had become thick and matted. He was old, but still beloved by the mounties. The redcoats had long since come to recognize Fisk as a member of the force. Before the redcoats took their final departure, Fisk held his silent inspection. As the mounties trooped by, Fisk watched with sadness in his dim, bleary eyes the faithful officers of the law, who have made a home for him for many years. They passed, but in their passing this dog had taken his last long look, fastening in his ungoverned mind a picture of the red-coats, which will long remain with him, and doubtless be carried to the day when the life of his age-worn eyes close forever over the eyes that had witnessed but could not tell.

Fisk is spending his last days in Corpl. Watts in Vancouver, far from the scenes where dastardly crimes were committed and he was the star witness—Rod and Gun in Canada.

Brought Up On a Bottle.

While sea fishing with a friend a doctor lost his sinker. Rather than cut the day's fishing short, he hit upon the happy idea of utilizing his bottle. The bottle was filled with water, carefully corked and sent down on its mission. A few minutes later the doctor was lucky enough to pull up a pair of whitebait, one on each hook.

"Ha, doctor," exclaimed the companion, "win this time!"
"Yes," replied the doctor, with a smile, "and brought up on the bottle, too."

In the English language there are more surnames beginning with "W" than any other letter.

FEW MURDER MYSTERIES.

Eight Unexplained Crimes in Toronto
Since 1887.

Is Hamilton in danger of losing first place to Toronto in the matter of unsolved police mysteries?
Many anxious citizens of Toronto are alarmed at the fact that there are on the police books two recent murders in that city, one unsolved shooting, and the disappearance of a prominent millionaire citizen.

That there is no cause for alarm and little room for criticism of the city and county police in all these mysteries is the claim of prominent city police officials and lawyers. A complete list of unexplained and unpaid murder mysteries in Toronto since the year 1887, shows eight. In every one of them, that element of chance which always enters into the relation of crime versus police, was extraordinary. Against eight mysteries in thirty-three years in a city the size of Toronto, there is to be credited the solution of hundreds of murder cases and crimes of violence.

In two of the murder cases, the names of the suspected murderers are known. The fact that both victims and both suspects are foreigners adds to the problem, for a foreigner has advantages of escape and security owing to the clandestine and secrecy of foreign laws. On November 19, 1917, Joe Canandi was killed by a man who struck him on the head with a shovel in a sandy works. Gio Mustolini is wanted for this. On September 24 last, Joe Canandi was shot, and Frank Lombardo, a well-known Toronto Italian, is wanted in the only real mystery of recent years.
On September 25, 1918, the year before, Dio de la Salandra was shot in the railroad shops at the foot of Spadia avenue. No trace of the murderer has ever been found.

The two chauffeur murder mysteries are real mysteries, and both occurred in the county on the outskirts of the city, and therefore come under county police. But both victims were Toronto men who drove out to the outskirts, as it were, to be murdered. The Toronto police assumed some of the burden in both cases.

On November 5 last, John G. Howland, a chauffeur, was found murdered in his car out at Leaside. On July 26, 1917, two years before, Carmen Lapelle was killed in a chauffeur case, was found murdered and wrapped in a blanket beside his car out at Swansea.

These both occurred out in lonely suburbs. The police, either of county or city, could not be expected to do more than search for available source for motives, which they did.
These are the type of cases where the police have to deal with unknown or unknowable quantities. The recent addition of several fast motor cars to the city police equipment gives the police a great show in dealing with these undefined, detached crimes.

Another old unsolved mystery in and around Toronto are those concerning Hugh Harsan, found murdered on the beach at Exshaw, 1913; Frank Malato, murdered, November, 1917; John W. Dick, who was punched by an unknown man on the beach at Exshaw, 1911, and the Argonaut-Tiger rugby match, who died; and away back, Frank Westwood shot, 1887, and Rachel Perguson, murdered at the entrance to the Don Jail in 1894; Joseph Priest-man, murdered at the Exshaw grounds in 1887, and Jane Speers, the old charwoman, found murdered apparently from motives of robbery, in 1887.

Indians First Used Radium.

Radium was first used by the Indians of Utah, having been first employed by them to paint their bodies a bright canary yellow. The first coat worn by man is said to have been a coat of paint. The early American Indian painted the lower half of his face red and the upper half blue, and so on.

He painted weird pictures on rocks and the faces of cliffs, and his wooden houses or his steps were designed with symbolic and descriptive figures.
He painted his bow and arrow, his monstrous mask worn at ceremonials and his pottery.

Paint was the most precious of all things to the Indians, a deposit of mineral pigment being a mine of wealth to them. The Indian women, as well as the men, used pigments for cosmetic purposes. They painted their faces with quaint conventional designs, in obedience to the demands of aboriginal fashion.

Aerial Game Laws.

Modern inventions beget new manners and new laws to govern the changed customs. The man who nets fish wholesale seems about to be outclassed by the airplane operator who gathers in wild birds by means of a net. So apparently, think the sportsmen in one locality of Canada. As a consequence, an association of them has presented a request to the Government to prohibit the flights of airplanes over marsh lands, and the use of flying machines in pursuit of wild game.

When warned of anything approaching, these birds do not seek cover, but rise straight up into the air and obviously become open at once to the ingenious contrivances of airplane pilots. Rapid-firing guns, and nettings attached beneath the body of the machines, would seem to be easy means of possible extermination of the birds, and this it is sought to avoid.

Prairie Dogs.

The little ground squirrels, or prairie dogs, of the western plains have their homes 12 or 15 feet underground, with corridors and rooms.
The entrances to the chambers are rel family lives, and in others food and various materials are stored.

100 Cigars a Day.

The Cuban workmen can turn out 100 cigars a day each, all identical in shape, size and weight, without using any mould or pattern.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—The story opens in the town of Granville, Ontario, where Miss Hazel is a well-known beauty. In the office of the Granville agent, she is engaged to a young man named Bush. The wedding day is set. While waiting for him, she meets a man named Wagstaff, who for the first time makes her feel that she is not alone. She becomes his mistress. Bush, who is a doctor, is a very good man, but he is a little slow. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow.

CHAPTER II.—Bush makes an effort, by a bit of coaxing, to get Miss Hazel to leave him. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow.

CHAPTER III.—Jack Barrow, a big, strong, and handsome man, is a very good man, but he is a little slow. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow. He is a very good man, but he is a little slow.

one every against my will. You can't explain or excuse that."

"I'm not attempting excuses," Bill made answer. "There are two things I never do—apologize or bully. I don't think that you are the only one who gives me such a black eye. If they weren't a good deal afraid of me, and always laying for a chance to do me, they wouldn't be here in the town overnight. So you can see what a handicap I was under when it came to making your acquaintance and coming back to the orchard business."

"You've made a great mistake," she said bitterly. "If you think you've removed the handicap, I've suffered a great deal at the hands of men in the last six months. I'm beginning to believe that all men are brutes at heart."

Roaring Bill sat up and clasped his hands over his knees and stared fixedly into the fire.

"No," he said slowly, "all men are not brutes—no more than all women are angels. I'll convince you of that."

"I believe them," she cried scornfully. "That's the only way you can convince me or make amends."

"No," Bill murmured, "that isn't the way. Wait till you know me better. Besides, I couldn't take you out now if I wanted to without exposing you to greater hardships than you'll have to undergo here. Do you realize that it's still raining and the high tides?"

"This snow may not go off at all. Even if it does it will storm again before a week. You couldn't wallow through snow for weeks in forty-below-zero weather."

"People will pass here, and I'll get wet," Hazel asserted desperately. "You've got too much conventional regard for what you term your reputation to send word to Cariboo Meadows that you're living back here with Roaring Bill Wagstaff and won't come to please come and rescue you."

He paused to let that sink in, then continued: "Besides, you won't see a white face before spring; then only a few Indians, has ever seen this cabin or knows where it stands."

She sat dumb, gazing inwardly. For the minute she could have killed Roaring Bill. She who had been so sure of her independence carried whether or not, into the heart of the wilderness at the whim of a man who stood a self-confessed coward, in ill repute among his own kind. There was a slumbering devil in Miss Hazel West, and it took little to wake her temper. She looked at Bill Wagstaff, and her heart heaved. He was responsible, and he could sit coolly talking about it. The resentment that had smoldered against Andrew Bush and Jack Barrow concentrated on Roaring Bill as the arch of fender of them all. And lest she yield to a savage impulse to scream at him, she got up and ran into the bedroom, closed the door shut behind her, and drew herself across the bed to muffle the sound of her crying in a pillow.

After a time she lifted her head.

Outside, the wind whistled gustily around the cabin corners. In the hushed intervals she heard a steady pad, pad, sounding sometimes close by and again faintly at the far end of the room. A beam of light shone through the generous latching hole in the door. Stealing softly over, she peeped through this hole. From end to end of the big room and back again Roaring Bill paced slowly, looking straight ahead of him with a fixed, stony stare, his teeth closed on his lower lip. Hazel noticed nothing.

Many an hour in the last three months she had walked the floor like that, biting her lip to mental agony. And then, while she was looking, Bill abruptly extinguished the candle, and the red gleam from the hearth she saw him go into the kitchen, closing the door softly. After that there was no sound but the swirl of the storm whirling at her window.

In line with Roaring Bill's forecast, the weather cleared for a brief span. But for instance, a man who has a very definite idea of the kind of woman he would like for a mate, the kind of woman he could be happy with and could make happy.

But within the cabin they were snug and warm. Bill's ax kept the woodpile high. The two fireplaces were fed the twenty-four hours through. Of flour, tea, coffee, sugar, beans and such stuff as could only be gotten from the outside he had a plentiful supply. Potatoes and certain vegetables that he had grown in a cultivated patch behind the cabin were stored in a deep cellar. He could always salt corn and get meat. And the ice was no bar to fishing, for he would cut a hole, sink a small net, and secure overnight a week's supply of trout and whitefish. Thus the material wants were provided for.

As time passed Hazel gradually shook off a measure of her depression, thrust her anxieties and misgivings into the background. As a matter of fact, she resigned herself to getting through the winter, since that was in ing little things about the house, finding things that time flew when she busied herself at some task in the interval of delving in Roaring Bill's library.

On one of these days Hazel came into the kitchen and found Bill piling towels, napkins, and a great quantity of other soiled articles on an outspread tablecloth.

"Well," she inquired, "what are you going to do with those?"

"Take 'em to the laundry," he laughed. "Collect your dirty duds, and bring them forth."

"Laundry!" Hazel echoed. It seemed rather a far-fetched joke.

"Sure! You don't suppose we can get along forever without having things washed, do you?" he replied. "I don't mind housework, but I do draw the line at a laundry job when I don't have to do it. Go on—get your clothes."

So she brought out her accumulation of garments, and laid them on the pile. Bill tied up the four corners of the tablecloth.

"Now," said he, "let's see if we can't fit you out for a more or less extended walk. You stay in the house altogether too much these days. That's bad business. Nothing like exercise in the fresh air."

Thus in a few minutes Hazel, fated forth, wrapped in Bill's fur coat, a flared cap on her head, and on her feet enormous, tasseled moccasins that Bill had procured from some mysterious source a day or two before.

The day was sunny, albeit the air was heavy with continental frost particles, and the tramp through the forest steadily brought the roses back to her cheeks.

Bill carried the bundle of linen on his back and trudged steadily through the woods. But the riddle of his destination was soon read to her, for a two-mile walk brought them out on the shore of a fair-sized lake, on the farther side of which loomed the conical lodges of an Indian camp.

"You sabbie now!" said he as they crossed the ice. "This bunch generally comes in here about this time, and stays till spring. I get the squaws to wash for me. Ever see Mr. Indian on his native heath?"

Hazel never had, and she was duly interested, even if a wife of the red brother who stared so fixedly. She entered a lodge with Bill, and listened to him make laundry arrangements in broken English with a wrinkled old headman whose features resembled a ham that had hung overlong in the smokehouse. Two or three blanketed bucks squatted by the fire that sent its blue smoke streaming out the apex of the lodge.

"Heard fine squaw!" one suddenly addressed Bill. "Where you ketchum?"

Bill laughed at Hazel's confusion. "Away off," he gestured southward, and the Indian made a somewhat intelligible remark in his own tongue at which Roaring Bill laughed again.

Before they started home Bill succeeded in turning the squaw into a pair of moccasins after much talk, and a pair of moccasins after much talk, and a pair of moccasins after much talk, and a pair of moccasins after much talk.

In the morning, sunset they went home through the frost-bitten woods, where the snow crunched and squeaked under their feet, and the branches of the trees crackled like snap when they were bent aside.

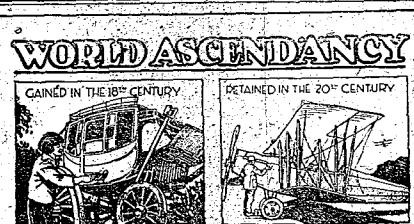

A hundred yards from the cabin Bill challenged her for a race. She refused to run, and he picked her up bodily, and ran with her the very door. He held her a second before he set her down, and Hazel's face whitened. She could feel his breath on her cheek, and she could feel his arms quiver, and the rapid beat of his heart. For an instant she thought Roaring Bill Wagstaff was about to make the colossal mistake of trying to kiss her.

But he set her gently on her feet and opened the door. And by the time he had his outer clothes off and the fire started up he was talking whimsically about their Indian neighbors, and Hazel breathed more freely. The clear impression that she had, aside from her brief panic, was of his strength. He had run with her as easily as if she had been a child.

After that they went out many times together. Bill took her hunting, initiated her into the mysteries of rifle shooting, and the manipulation of a six-shooter. He taught her to walk on snowshoes, lightly over the surface of the crusted snow, through which otherwise she floundered. A sort of truce arose between them, and the days drifted by without untoward incident. Bill tended to his horses, chopped wood, carried water. She took upon herself the care of the house. And through the long evenings, in default of conversation, they would sit with a book on either side of the fireplace that roared defiance to the storm gods without.

And sometimes Hazel would find herself wondering why Roaring Bill Wagstaff could not have come into her life in a different manner. As it was—she never, never would forgive him.

World Ascendancy

THEY used it for the stage-coach of olden days in England—we use it in Canada today. Compare it with any other white lead or white paint, and you will decide that your house—or anything you wish to have truly white and remain white—must be painted with this brand which has survived as the leading white lead for nearly two centuries.

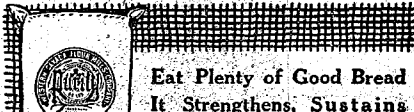

Thinned with linseed oil and turpentine, it makes a perfect white paint. Combined with coloring matter, it makes the satisfactory tinted paint of any shade. It is the basis for that finest of ready-mixed paint, B-H "English" Paint.

Made in a modern Canadian factory, and by the same process as was employed for its manufacture by its inventor in England, it is today the only survivor of all the patented white lead processes of that earlier generation. It has survived because it results in a white lead of exceptional fineness, whiteness and durability.

But did not use it because she did not learn to play. But she wanted piano music—plenty of it—so asked what we would allow her in exchange on a Player-Piano.

Because of the advance in piano prices since 1914, we were able to give her what she paid as part of a Player-Piano purchase—so that her piano cost her nothing. And because we bought 40 Player-Pianos at the 1919 price, she avoided subsequent increases. We can help you too to save at both ends.

THIS WOMAN'S RECOVERY

Shows Remarkable Curative Power of Lydia E. Pink- ham's Vegetable Compound.

Chesley, Ont.—"Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had terrible pains in my sides and was not regular. Finally I got so weak I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest half way up the steps. I tried two doctors but they did me no good. I saw your medicine advertised in the newspapers and thought I would give it a trial. I took four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and was restored to health. I am married, and the mother of two children, and do all my housework, milk eight cows, and do a hired man's work and enjoy the best of health. I also found Vegetable Compound a great help for my weak back before my babies were born. I recommend it to all my friends who are in need of medicine, and you may print this letter if you wish."

Mrs. HENRY JAMES, R. R. No. 4, Chesley, Ont.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer from giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this little book indeed relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

4 LOVES

Mr. and Mrs. John Lovejoy had sipped the last drop of coffee at the breakfast table and were about to arise when Mrs. Lovejoy, with beaming countenance, said, Oh, Jack, I love you. Do you wonder that a happy smile spread over his face, for man you know, is fond of being loved. Oh yes, and then she said, Oh Jack, I love something else. Well you would have pitied poor Jack, yes you would, for the smile vanished quickly and a frown awful to behold took its place, for he misunderstood the word for someone else, and she, like all women, quick to detect, saw the trouble and remarked: I love no one else but you Jack, but I love something else, something at Letteney's store. Then the sun came out and the sky was clear again. What did you see, my dear, asked her husband. And then she tried to describe the beautiful dresses and suits and one in particular she grew eloquent over. She told him of its beauty of color, drapery, design, lining, etc. I tried it on, Jack and it made me look heavenly. Yes, said he, my darling, you must have it. Go at once and buy it before it is sold. Now Jack loved his wife, and she loved her husband, and they both loved the dress. That makes 4 loves, does it not? Other goods as attractive as that dress at Letteney's.

Instantly it starts burning, keeps burning until the corn, callus or corn is off, and all without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

MONTREAL
WOMAN GAINED 20 POUNDS

Had Spent Hundreds of Dollars without Benefit—Like New Woman, Now.

"Tanlac has brought me health, strength and happiness, and I am glad of the opportunity to give my testimonial, which I sincerely hope will be of benefit to others," said Mrs. Phileas Coude, residing at 72 Mosse street, one of the most highly esteemed women of Quebec, in an interview, a few days ago.

Mrs. Coude in relating her experience also reported a gain of twenty pounds in weight and her statement, while indeed remarkable, is by no means unusual, as many thousands have used and testified to having used Tanlac with the same wonderful results.

Captain Phileas Coude, Mrs. Coude's husband, has been a navigator for forty years and is widely known, especially in maritime circles. "It just seems like I am starting life all anew," explained Mrs. Coude, "for I no longer feel like same person. My stomach has been in such a bad fix for the past forty years, that is until I took Tanlac, that I was always sick. I was troubled so with indigestion that I had ceased eating any kind of substantial food. In fact, nothing agreed with me, and I had pains all over my body. My arms and legs, especially, hurt me dreadfully. Even the white part of eggs caused me trouble and I had gotten where the only nourishment I could take was milk and vichy water. Three months ago I was brought home from Montreal lying on a bed and just suffering agony. I had become so nervous that even the crumpling of a newspaper annoyed me and I have gone through many a night unable to close my eyes in sleep. All energy and strength left me and I felt many times that I had come to the end of my way. My heart would often beat so hard and fast from the gas on my stomach that I thought I could not live.

"Many hundreds of dollars have been spent on my case, but nothing ever seemed to give a particle of relief until I began taking Tanlac. I am the mother of twenty children and have had much experience with medicines, having taken most every thing else I eat hurts me in the stomach, and I feel that my wonderful recovery to nothing but Tanlac. The very first bottle of Tanlac made a decided change in me, and since I have finished my fourth bottle I am feeling just like a new woman. I have an appetite like I never had before and meats nor anything else I eat hurts me in the least. Since I began taking Tanlac my weight has increased twenty pounds and my strength has returned so that I can now do all my house-work without feeling tired except in the natural way. My pains have all disappeared, I sleep soundly all night long and get up mornings thoroughly rested and feeling fine. My nerves are again normal and I have regained all my energy. Words cannot fully express the gratitude I really feel and I want to recommend Tanlac to all others who may be suffering from stomach trouble and run-down condition like I was before taking this grandest of all medicines."

Co-Operation

or the children had whooping cough keeping you awake nights with its attendant disorder in household arrangements. Go so often that your coming will pass unnoticed. Takes time? Yes, it does, but the responsibility is yours.

Now the child's training begins at home with his parents and outside of the teaching of honesty and truthfulness there are no things better that can be taught the boys and girls to help them in making good and desirable citizens than obedience and civility. "Civility" does not mean "servility," and strict obedience in the home and to all constituted authority should be insisted on. There is at present a lamentable lack of discipline in home training, and yet the teacher is severely censured if she fails to bear thirty or forty children in "apple pie order" six hours of the day!

The home and school should also cultivate by teaching and example, a feeling of local pride and patriotism not sectional nor sectarian but general.

Fathers and mothers must take a greater interest in public affairs if the children are to find their proper places in improving and assisting the community. And there can be absolutely no true loyal citizenship apart from Bible teaching. Bible teaching should have a definite place in the school as well as the home and a place too, in teachers' examinations. Our government is putting into action a program that these things may be accomplished that our children may be sound physically, sound mentally, morally, to read and speak English fluently, and be master of unexpected situations. Are you as parents ready to co-operate with the schools in carrying out this program?

DECLARES THE MILLENNIUM IS DUE TO ARRIVE IN FIVE YEARS

Frederick Cleeve: Anybody who can manage to live through the next five years will have nothing more to worry about for he or she will be among the elect who are to live forever on this earth in peace, contentment and happiness.

That was the cheering message which Judge Rutherford, of New York, brought to an audience of about 3,000 persons in the Waldorf Theatre yesterday afternoon. Yet the audience didn't get in the least excited over the prospect, but that is the way with a Boston audience, cool in the face of eternal bliss when it is promised by a New Yorker.

But the Judge was not dreaming in his fancy. He has a legal mind and he presented his evidence in a legal way, citing facts and statistics to prove his case. He didn't advise anybody to cancel their insurance policies, however, for he could not give any very strong assurances as to the number who were liable to survive the trials and tribulation of the next five years. There is trouble ahead for the next five years, though not quite as much trouble as there has been the past five years.

Judge Rutherford assured the audience there will be a very serious pestilence, not unlike the Spanish influenza, but that, and some minor international troubles, will be about all, and then in exactly five years will come the new era with life everlasting on the earth. Then there will be neither Republican, Democrat, Socialist, Bolshevik, Capitalist, Laborist, Jew or Gentile all will live together in a world ruled by Divine Wisdom instead of selfish human interests, as in the past 3,500 years.

Somehow the advertisements announcing Judge Rutherford's lecture seemed to convey the idea that he was going to talk about spiritualistic or spiritual lines and that he was going to give assurances about the hereafter much like those Sir Oliver Lodge gives. Perhaps this had something to do with the size of the audience, even though it was a free lecture. But in point of fact Judge Rutherford has no use for Sir Oliver Lodge. Sir Conan Doyle or Prof. Hyslop. He regards them as false prophets agents of the devil and incidentally as a bit of the proof that the world of darkness and error is about to end and world of light and everlasting happiness to begin in five years.

Judge Rutherford is a Biblical student and all history reveals itself to him in the light of Biblical Prophecy. He cites evidence to prove his case with the same precision that a lawyer cites evidence to prove the case of a client, except that his chronology and citations are based on sacred rather than civil law.

He gave, no very clear clue to the kind of life on earth which is to be initiated in 1925, except through one flash of humor that seemed to please a number of people in the audience and caused the others to laugh.

He said that in the New Dispensation those who like himself were held headed would grow a new thatch of hair and be thus the fairer to look upon. He also inferred that people would not grow physically old and wrinkled.

He said not touch on domestic life nor social relations. Nevertheless he seemed to suggest that there would be no question about the hours of labor nor any necessity for efficiency experts nor industry, nor for a minimum wage. Nor would there be any prohibiting and no giving to the Government of excess profits. It is not going to be that kind of a Government.

Judge Rutherford assured the audience that he had not come from New York to enter a controversy but to deliver a message. He said the end of the world means the end of an era had been reached in 1914, when the World War began. It would take ten years of reconstruction to fit the world for the new era which is to see her in everlasting life to those who manage to survive the next five years.

He said all this should have been known, and would have been known, to the world if people had only studied their Bibles more carefully. One reason for the lack of light on the subject has been the fact that the churches have been political instead of spiritual.

To prove his case Judge Rutherford cited the words of the prophets in the Old Testament and of Jesus and the Saints in the New Testament. The World Wars prophesied as were the man and events leading up to the great conflict. In fact, the world had to go through what it has been going through to fulfill prophecy.

The new telescope of the Mt. Wilson Observatory in California is a quarter of a million times more powerful than the human eye.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Give Digby a spring tonic. That's your job—it doesn't belong to the fellow across the street. Let's clean up—paint—shine up—cheer up Digby. Put the sunshine of cleanliness, the cheery, glistening atmosphere into every dirty corner of the town. 14 points of cleanliness: 1, fix up; 2, sweep up; 3, rake up; 4, clean up; 5, dig up; 6, build up; 7, screen up; 8, pen up; 9, glaze up; 10, paint up; 11, dress up; 12, lift up; 13, cheer up; 14, keep it up. Here is a plain-duty you owe yourself and your neighbor. Go over everything from curb to back fence, make it a list of things needful to clean up your part of Digby. Do your share towards administering a spring tonic—Now, Clean up and paint up.

What has become of the old-fashioned word "earn"? Servants are "getting" high wages, bricklayers are "paid," a dollar an hour, and practically everybody is "making" big money. But nothing is heard about anybody "earning" anything. Has a conscience-stricken nation dropped the word?

The price of sugar has gone up, one alleged reason being the increased demand for candy as the result of the abolition of beer. The price of raisins has gone up on account of the demand for them in connection with domestic brews. Will the price of dandelions also make a jump on account of the demand for them for making dandelion wine?

Shellac, which has increased enormously in price, during the last few years, is the product of a tiny insect which infests certain trees in the East Indies.

A Swiss hotelkeeper has papered his rooms with banknotes of small denomination. The cost has proved very little above the price now demanded, for first-class wallpaper.

Court plaster is so called because it was originally applied by ladies of the Court as patches on the face. It is made of silk, varnished with a solution of isinglass.

Newspapers and wise people everywhere are demanding new houses, and some are explaining how to get them. But there will be no new houses worth mentioning as long as the present high cost of building keeps up. None but a fool or a philanthropist would build houses now for rental. Fools we have in plenty, but few of them have money to spare; and genuine philanthropists are almost as rare as empty dwellings. The moral is, stop blathering and double up, if you must for the present.

A farmer who was over to the Farmer's Convention in Truro the other day started in all seriousness to say that the farmers were not as well off today as they were twenty years ago. After a little gentle argument he admitted he was wrong. The farmers of the country must be prosperous to make the rest of us prosperous, and the rest of us wish the farmer greater prosperity than he has. But it kind of gets your goat when a chap comes in and tells you the man on the farm is worse off than he was twenty years ago. That may be all right to tell to somebody down in Buenos Ayres or out in Siam or Swat, but it is awful poor fodder for home consumption and gets no one no where.

A railroad man remarked to us that it was awful the way the farmers were profiteering, with potatoes at $3.25 per bushel, and left us a railroad magazine, with an article marked to show how merchants were robbing the people. A farmer told us it was fearful waste of money that was being paid to the railroad men in big salaries, and that the merchants charged too much.

A merchant said he did not see how a farmer had the heart to charge the prices he did for his stuff and that with high freight rates and goods stolen in transit there was no money in trying to run an honest business. Every one of these three men was sincere. They all thought the other chap was getting the better of them. The truth of the matter is that not one of them is suffering, that every one of them is a road man, merchant and farmer—is better off than he was five years ago. There is just one class that is suffering—the clerical class, and we might add to that, those on fixed incomes of one kind or another. For anyone else to talk hard times just because they pay out more while they take in more is pure buncombe.

Intelligent readers of the Saturday Evening Post who have refused to believe that there was a shortage of paper, will now perhaps begin to realize it, since the S. E. P. has been forced to cut out its Canadian circulation for a time. What the newspapers tell you about paper shortage isn't fiction, by a jugful. Neither is the present price of paper fiction. Neither is the advance in paper prices, which is right at hand, fiction. It's all truth and we're getting to a higher level of truth every day.

OUR PEOPLE AND THE AMERICANS

A gentleman, connected with a well known educational institution in the Maritime Provinces, and who had formerly been a teacher in an American college, was recently asked what he thought was the main difference between our people and the Americans. The questioner was amazed at the answer he received. He had thought of fifteen or twenty things that it might be, but the one he got surprised him. "The American people love to paint their houses; the Canadian people apparently do not," this educationist said. And then he went on to say that in the small town in which he lived across the border for some five or six years, the average householder apparently thought quite as much about spending money for paint as he thought about spending money for food for himself and his family. "And I am prepared to say," said he, "that he gets as much comfort out of his paint money as he does out of his clothes money; he takes just as much pride in seeing that his house, verandah and garden fence (if he has a fence) looked spic and span as he would get in seeing himself in a new spring overcoat and hat to match."

"But," said the questioner, "do you think all the residents were that way? Do you think that all the men in the place in which you lived who painted their houses were really bent on seeing them made attractive?"

"Well, no," he replied, "perhaps it might be too much to say that, but perhaps it might also be too much to say that all men and women who buy new clothes buy them because they enjoy being well dressed. Sometimes they do so purely for the purpose of 'keeping up with the Joneses.' The man in the little college town in which I lived, who would not paint his property, made himself conspicuous by its neglected appearance, and it was not long until he had the feeling that people were talking about him—saying, perhaps, that he was not a nice man to have on their street. At any rate, whatever the cause, all the people painted, and as a result their town was a delightful place—a beautiful place in which to live."

The psychological effect of a place that is pleasing to the eye is to inspire a man with increased interest in the local affairs of his town and a general wish to make him a better citizen. Paint, we admit, is an expensive article these days, but it would need to be twice as dear before a town that wants to be all that a town should be, could afford to ignore its use. Each citizen has an obligation to his own community in this connection.—The Maritime Merchant.

POTATO GROWING CONTEST

Great interest is being taken in the Potato Growing Contest which has been arranged for Western Annapolis, Digby and Yarmouth Counties, by the Provincial Department of Agriculture in conjunction with the Management of the Dominion Atlantic Railway.

The main object of the contest is to encourage spraying of potatoes for the prevention of blight and the ensuing rot. Each field entered must be sprayed at least four times during the season. The minimum size of field to be entered is one acre, with land, not necessarily be in a single plot.

Mr. Comeau, General Freight Agent of the D. A. R., received last week no less than twenty-four entries from Metegun and vicinity. If other parts of Western Nova Scotia take as keen an interest as this district, success of the undertaking will be assured, and a big gain in potato production may be expected. In any case, the entries already received indicate that this season is to see a big increase in potato spraying for blight in Nova Scotia.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING OF WOOL

Plans have now been completed for the continuance of the co-operative marketing of wool in this Province, under the management of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Ltd., of Toronto. Nova Scotia farmers who marketed their wool through this Association last year realized on the average 40 per cent, more for their wool than those who sold it in the ordinary way. There is every reason to believe that an equal gain will be scored this year by those who sell through the Canadian Co-operative.

The Provincial Department of Agriculture has appointed Mr. L. A. Black, a student at the Agricultural College, to assist farmers in taking advantage of the machinery for handling their wool provided by the above organization. It is still uncertain what the price of wool is to be this season. The outlook, however, is that high prices will continue for medium and fine grades, which constitute by far the greater portion of the Nova Scotia clip. For coarser classes there is more uncertainty.

Sheep growers are invited to correspond with the Department of Agriculture, Truro, if in doubt as to the steps to be taken in order to avail themselves of the advantages of marketing with the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers.

OUR GROWING BOYS AND GIRLS GREATEST ASSET OF THE TOWN

The Ontario Reformer of Oshawa, which is ably edited by A. R. Allway, late of Stratford, has been advocating the 'establishment of clinics in interest of Oshawa babies, and now turns its attention to the welfare of the older boys and girls of the town, which it very pertinently claims are the finest asset of the community and the one that should receive the most thoughtful care and attention. It goes on to say that the responsibility rests on every citizen and the community at large to spare no effort or expense to make conditions for the growing lads and lassies as helpful and wholesome as possible. But what do we find? There is scarcely any place for the children to play except on the street.

It is not time that the Parks Commission look up this matter with a view to establishing one or more suitable community playgrounds where the children might gather after school and on Saturdays to engage in games and sports? Here is a point we cannot afford to seem to state the case for the children and the attitude towards their needs which unfortunately seems to prevail in many communities; it is by Dennis A. McCarthy and while perhaps a trifle overdrawn when applied to Oshawa it is none the worse for that as it will drive home its argument the more forcefully.

Plenty of room for drives and dens (glitter and glare and sin!)
Plenty of room for prison pens (gather the criminals in!)
Plenty of room for jails and courts (will-ing enough to pay!)
But never a place for the lads to race; no never a place to play!

Plenty of room for shops and stores (Mammon must have the best!)
Plenty of room for the running races that rot in the city's breast.
Plenty of room for the lures that lead the hearts of youth astray.
But never a cent on a playground spent, no never a place to play!

Plenty of room for schools and halls, plenty of room for art;
Plenty of room for tea and balls, platform, stage and mart.
Proud is the city—she finds a place for many a lad today—
But she'll more than find if she fails to find a place for the boys to play.

Give them a chance for innocent sport, Give them a chance for fun—
Better a playground plot than a court and a jail when the harm is done!
Give them a chance—if you stain them now, to-morrow they'll have to pay.
A larger bill for a darker life, so give them a place to play.

The oldest piano in existence was made by Cristofori 200 hundred years ago, and is still in good condition. But its sound is more like that of a harp than a piano, for its wires, instead of being struck by hammers, are plucked by points of quill or of hard leather.

Tuxis Boys AND TRAIL RANGERS

A BOY'S CREED.

I have just read what is called "The Indian's Creed". It seems to hit off so accurately just what many Canadian boys are trying to live up to that I am going to copy it for them here. It is as follows:

1. He keeps himself in good condition.
2. He is temperate.
3. He helps his parents in their old age.
4. He never steals.
5. He believes in speaking the truth.
6. He believes in making everything in his life as beautiful as possible.
7. He believes in the simple life.
8. He believes it a crime to be afraid.
9. He meets death cheerfully, singing his death song.
10. He loves nature.

Although the old-time Indian was sometimes cruel to his enemies, he tried to live up to the standard set in his creed.

OUT GOES THE FIRE.

Most boys when they first light a fire, pile on too much wood and so set it out. The whole secret of getting a good fire, first to make a little pile of ferns or dried grass with a handful of small pieces of wood as small as matches. Then get four or five other thin logs about one inch in thickness and eight long and prop them up in pyramid fashion. Before setting the fire alight, have ready beside you some logs and splinters with which to feed it.

A WEIGHTY QUESTION.

Tuxis Boy: "When do we get heavy weather?"
Trail Ranger: "At night".
"Why at night?"
"Because it's light in the day time."

FIRELIGHTER.

After having Mr. A. M. Gregg visit Digby, the boys of the team aged in the Methodist church decided on a reorganization.

The evening of May 11th, the fellows gathered together.

The first business was an election of officers:

Alton Snow, Praetor.
William Trehon, Deputy Praetor.
Milton Turnbull, Scriptor.
Claude Connell, Comptor.

Those present beside officers elected were H. Warrington, D. Burnham, O. Turnbull, L. Syda, S. Handspraker.

These Tuxis Boys whose name is "Alerts" with their efficient Mentor, R. C. Smallie, are to be congratulated, and Firelighter wishes them every success.

CALL OF THE SEA

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR: They lie who say Nova Scotia fishermen are behind the times. Your town will bear me out in that. They only need to be "co-ordinated," as the food fakirs called it when the war was on. Some people are talking about British Columbia's enormous catch all because there have been a college for fishermen. So be it. But at the bottom of the page adding up the figures for the Province, we are told that $5,000,000 worth in one year was landed from American bottoms.

Take that off, and Nova Scotia runs neck and neck with her Pacific sister. But who gets good of it out there? The boats that will net salmon are not even allowed to carry an engine. Imagine! Here is a photo sent me last week from Prince Rupert, showing a string of those "whale boats," sloop-rigged yachts.

No fishermen can sell his salmon catch across the line. Doesn't that remind you of the late lobster bill? Both were conceived in inequity. One was still-born. Talk of a college for fishermen! How much could such a diploma improve a Digby skipper? You might as well found an Agricultural College on Cannet Rock.

M. H. NICKERSON, Boston, April 24th.

W. C. T. U.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union, Weymouth, met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Copeland, on Wednesday afternoon, of last week. The meeting, which was well attended, was called to order by the President, Miss F. Campbell.

An appropriate address was given by Rev. U. Farquhar on the subject of "Christian Citizenship." In this he outlined the largeness of the question of Christian Citizenship, that the latter embraces the people of the social, the economical and political societies. We, as good Christian Citizens, should be thoroughly interested in the youth of our land—our boys, and girls. Consequently the churches undertake something to attract them. The cause of the tobacco habit and the righting of Church relations were also not mainly before the Union. The whole address was exceedingly interesting, bringing out a nice line of thoughts, and was eloquently delivered.

A valuable account of the "Civil Life of a Christian" was given by Mrs. Copeland, wherein she stated the fact that the making of civic officials involves care, thought and wise judgement. That the making of civic officials involves care, thought and wise judgement. That the making of civic officials involves care, thought and wise judgement.

Many other important truths were set forth, regarding the security and prosperity of Civic Life and invite attention to Solomon's wisdom who declares that it is by "Righteousness that nations are exalted." Prov. 14. On the whole the paper was splendidly put together.

Quotations were also read by Mrs. G. D. Campbell, which were both inspiring and helpful.

A fine close of the afternoon's program, refreshments were served, after which the friends dispersed, to their homes, everyone feeling that it was good to be there.

A Canadian Humorist

GORGE T. LANIGAN, one of the most brilliant writers that Canada has given to the world, was born at St. Charles, near Three Rivers, in the Province of Quebec, on December 10, 1845. He died in Philadelphia, while on the staff of the Record, on February 5, 1886. In Montreal he attended the High School, where he became the favorite pupil and life-long friend of George Murray, the famous classical teacher and poet. At about sixteen Lanigan took up telegraphy, soon acquiring uncommon speed and accuracy, and forming a friendly rivalry with Thomas Alva Edison, he perfected a handwriting as legible as print. During the Fenian raid on Canada, in 1866, he sent important despatches to New York journals. In 1867 he established in Montreal, with Robert Graham and other friends, the Free Lance, a satirical weekly paper, largely directing its assaults upon the City Hall. From that little paper grew the Star, of which Lanigan was the first editor, contributing a serial story, never reprinted. In 1870 Lanigan removed to the United States; in 1871 he was in Chicago on the fateful night of its great fire. Without a moment's delay he sped to South Chicago, took hold of the wire at a local office, and telegraphed the New York World a story such as appeared in no other newspaper of New York. Much of his racy work was published in its pages, including the famous Fables. These Fables, with pictures by F. C. Church, were issued as a booklet in 1875. A few days afterwards the World office was burned down, with almost the whole edition of that booklet. This accounts for its rarity: a copy easily commands ten dollars.

In person Lanigan was short, and in his later years inclined to stoutness, with a light fluffy beard. He was always the life and soul of every social gathering of his friends. To this day both north and south of the Canadian frontier, his taking-off at but forty years is deeply mourned. He had barely begun to develop his rare gifts of wit and fun, satire and pathos. Two of his brothers survive: William B. Lanigan of Winnipeg, and F. R. Lanigan of Montreal.

KIND-HEARTED SHE-ELEPHANT.

A kind-hearted she-elephant, while walking through the jungle where the Spicy Breezes blow soft o'er Caylon's Isle, heedlessly set foot upon a partridge, which she crushed to death within a few inches of the nest containing its callow brood. "Poor little things," said the generous mammoth, "I have been another myself and my affection shall atone for the consequences of my neglect." So saying she sat down upon the orphaned birds.

Moral.—The above teaches us what Home is Without a Mother; also, that it is not every person who should be entrusted with the care of an orphan asylum.

But Lanigan's most famous achievement, and one which seems to be permanently enshrined among the world's finest gems of parody, was his Threnody on the Akhond of Swat. One day he found that the only news item on his desk was that the Akhond of Swat had said farewell to earth. Seizing his pen, Lanigan dashed off a few verses which soon were reprinted the world over:

A THRENODY
What what, what?
What's the news from Swat?

Sad news,
Bad news,
Comes by the cable led Through the Indian Ocean's bed,
Through the Christian Gulf, the Red Sea and the Mediterranean—he's dead,
The Akhond is dead!

For the Akhond I mourn,
(Who wouldn't?)
He strove to disregard the message stern.

But he Akhond's
Dead, dead, dead;
(Sorrow Swats)
Swats has his Akhond bled, Swats whom he hath often led Onward to a gory bed,
Or to victory,
As the case might be.
Sorrow Swats!

Tears shed,
Shed tears like water,
Your great Akhond is dead!
That Swats the matter!
Mourn, city of Swat,
Your great Akhond is not,
But laid 'mid worms to rot.

His mortal part alone, his soul was caught,
(Because he was a good Akhond)
Up to the bosom of Mahound,
Though earthly walls his frame surround.
(Forever hallowed be the ground)
And skeptics mock the lowly mound
And say "He's now of no Akhond!"
His soul is in the skies—
The azure skies that bend above his loved

Metropolis of Swat.
He sees with larger, other eyes,
Awhart with larger mysteries—
He knows what's Swat.
Let Swat bury the great Akhond
With a noise of mourning and lamentation
Let Swat bury the great Akhond
With the noise of the mourning of the Swatish nation!

Fallen is at length
Its tower of strength,
Its sun is dimmer as it had nooned;
Dead lies the great Akhond,
The great Akhond of Swat—
Is not!

TRANSMITTING SOUND.

New Invention.

An invention which may, among many other possible uses, be employed as a complete insurance against error at transcription of court testimony by stenographers, has been achieved by Major Lionel Guest, brother of the Coalition Whip in the British House of Commons, and Capt. H. O. Merriman, a Canadian electrical engineer. It consists of apparatus for recording and reproducing sounds carried electrically over a wire.

In a demonstration of the device a message was dictated into a telephone placed in the drawing-room of Major Guest's house, No. 82 Seymour street, west, London.

At the other end of the wire in another room was a recorder which automatically inscribed the message on a gramophone record. In a few seconds the record was placed in a gramophone and the message was repeated with great clarity.

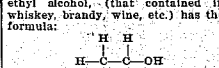

Major Guest claims that the best results hitherto obtained in recording the voice or music over the telephone have been unsuccessful through being "blurred" or mottled in tone. "The development," he said, "has immense possibilities. I think in the near future it will be placed in a part of the hall where the speaker's voice is hardly audible, say in Manchester, and at the other end of the wire in London the message will be reproduced by the telephone recorder for instant reproduction through ear-phones to the newspaper offices."

"If the receiving operator misses a word he presses a button and the line or any number of lines are repeated or else, as he likes."

"The key to the development is the 'vibration motor' which receives the impulses of the speaker's voice and cuts the message on the wax record. It amplifies the voice impulses to such an extent that the responsive movements of the instrument are visible to the naked eye."

Alcohol and wood alcohol are two very different substances. Both are combinations of hydrogen, carbon and oxygen, but the arrangement of the atoms of these elements is dissimilar.

H. S. Howe says in the Scientific American that wood alcohol has a molecule represented by the formula:

usually written C<sub>2</sub>H<sub>5</sub>OH. Grain or ethyl alcohol, as is commonly known, has the formula:

usually written C<sub>2</sub>H<sub>5</sub>OH.

Naturally, the effects of such different substances on the human body are as different as can be imagined. Mr. Howe writes:

When ethyl alcohol is taken into the body it produces a temporary stimulation through its effect in rapidly increasing the circulation, which in case on horses, at the expense of the body temperature and, as is well known, is followed by a reaction excessive to the body's organism. The alcohol itself is soon broken down into water and carbon dioxide which are harmless substances always present in the body. The poisonous materials are constantly eliminated through the lungs and the kidneys.

When wood alcohol is taken into the body it is believed to act in an entirely different manner, remaining for a considerable time in its original condition and then breaking down slowly into formic acid, which is a poisonous substance.

The work which has been done by Dr. Reid Hunt and others has led to these conclusions. There may be other decomposition products resulting from the action of wood alcohol in the blood stream, and some believe that acetone, formaldehyde and similar substances may contribute to the poisoning. Nausea and vomiting, violent headache and vertigo, ending in coma and death, are the various progressive stages of the poison's effect, and very often, due to the degeneration of the ganglion cells of the retina, amblyopia, which is a dimming of the vision without discoverable change in the eye, takes place. The result in that case is, at best, temporary blindness and usually permanent blindness, depending upon the extent to which the ganglion cells are destroyed."

Dr. Johnson's Prejudices.

Dr. Johnson's prejudices against novelty never quenched his intellectual curiosity in regard to mechanical inventions, which in his later life were, giving the country a new distinction. In his romance of "Rasselas" he shrewdly argued out the possibilities of mechanical dying. "He that can swim need not despair to fly. He foretold the day when 'the distant aspects would survey with equal security the marts of trade and fields of battle'; but he deemed it inhuman to see the world in the London Times, to restrict the knowledge and practice of the art of flying to people of virtuous instincts, who should apply it solely to purposes of peace. With horror Johnson imagined 'a flight of northern savages,' who should 'bore in the wind and fight with irresistible violence upon the capital of a fruitful region.' On the first experiment in ballooning, which were made in Johnson's latest year, Johnson remarked that balloons would serve no use until we could guide them.

Still Poor.

"This multimillionaire was once a poor boy."

"The adjective still clings to him."

"How is that?"

"He is that."

"He is that."

100% Pure Paint

If you would avoid constant repainting—if you would have the paint that has maximum covering capacity, investigate the cause of the high reputation attained by B-H. You'll find that the favor in which it is held by so many experienced painters is due to a truly remarkable degree of purity—purity attained by using such ingredients as the famous Brandram's Genuine B.H. White Lead—together with pure zinc and the purest linseed oil. Your investigation will result in a trial of this brand—and that trial will make you a confirmed adherent of this paint that goes so far and that lasts so long. Its fine, smooth surface never cracks or peels—the tough, slight coat it gives affords the surest kind of surface protection against time and weather.

North of Fifty-Three

Bertrand W. Sinclair

pass you on a street somewhere. This world is very small. Oh, yes—when you go to Vancouver go to the Lady-smith. It's a nice, quiet hotel in the West end. Any back driver knows the place."

He dropped his hands, and looked steadily at her for a few seconds, steadily and longingly.

"Goodbye!" he said abruptly, and walked out, and down the gangplank that was already being cast loose, and away up the wharf without a backward glance.

The Stanley D.'s siren woke the echoes along the wooded shore. A throb that shook her from stem to stern betokened the first turnings of the screw. And slowly she backed into deep water and swung wide for the outer passage.

Hazel went out to the rail. Bill Wagstaff had disappeared, but presently she caught sight of him standing on the shore end of the wharf, his hands thrust deep in his coat pockets, staring after the steamer. Hazel waved the envelope that she still held in her hand. Now that she was independent of him, she felt magnanimous, forgiving, and suddenly very much alone, as if she had dropped back into the old, depressing Granville atmosphere. But he gave no answering sign save that he turned on the instant and went up the hill to where his horses stood tied among the huddled buildings. And within twenty minutes the Stanley D. turned a jutting point, and Bella Coola was lost to view.

Hazel went back into her stateroom and sat down on the berth. Presently she opened the envelope. There was a thick fold of bills, her ticket, and both were wrapped in a sheet of paper pencilled with dots and crooked lines. She laid it aside and counted the money.

"Heavens!" she whispered. "I wish he hadn't given me so much. I didn't need all that."

For Roaring Bill had tucked a dozen one-hundred-dollar notes in the envelope. And, curiously enough, she was not offended, only wishful that he had been less generous. Then she took up the map, recognizing it as the sheet of paper Bill had worked over so long their last night at the cabin.

It made the North more clear—a great deal more clear—to her, for he had marked Cariboo Meadows, the location of his cabin, and Bella Coola, and drawn dotted lines to indicate the way he had taken her in and brought her out, she put away the money and the map, and bestowed a brief scrutiny upon herself in the cabin mirror. Six months in the wild had given her a ruddy complexion of perfect physical condition. But her garments were tattered and sadly out of date. The wardrobe of the steamer-trunk lady had suffered in the winter's wear. She was barely presentable in the outfit suit of corduroy.

The Stanley D., upon the evening of the third day, turned into Bernard Inlet and swept across a harbor speckled with shipping from all the Seven Seas to her berth at the dock.

So Hazel came again to a city—a city that roared and bellied all its untold riches in long ears, long grown accustomed to a vast and broadening silence. Mindful of Bill's parting word, she took a hack to the Lady-smith. And even though the hotel was renowned for its best heart of the city, the rumble of the city's herculean labors reached her far into the night. At last she fell asleep, and dawn of a clear spring day awakened her.

She ate her breakfast, and set forth on a shopping tour. To such advantage did she put two of the hundred-dollar bills that by noon she was arrayed in a semi-tailored suit of gray, spring hat, shoes and gloves to match. She felt once more at ease, less conscious that people stared at her frayed and tattered habiliments. With a complete outfit of lingerie purchased, and a trunk in which to store it forwarded to her hotel, her immediate activity was at an end, and she had time to think her next move.

And, brought face to face with that, she found herself at something of a loss. She had no desire to go back to Cariboo Meadows, even to get what few personal treasures she had left behind. Cariboo Meadows was wiped off the state as far as she was concerned. Nevertheless, she must make her way. Some she must find a means to return the unused portion of the—to her—enormous sum Roaring Bill had placed in her hands. She must make her own living. The question that troubled her was: How, and where? She had her trudge at her finger ends, and the storied office buildings of Vancouver assured her that any efficient stenographer could find work. But she looked up, as she walked the streets at the high, ugly walls of brick and steel and stone, and threw herself wearily on the bed. She was tired, body and spirit, and lonely. Her brief experience in Cariboo Meadows had not led her to look kindly on teaching as a means of livelihood. And stenographers seemed to be in demand. Wherefore, she reasoned that wages would be high. With the list in her purse, she went down on Hastings—which runs like a huge artery through the heart of the city, with lesser streets crossing and diverging from it.

But she made no application for employment. For on the corner of Hastings and Seymour, as she gathered her skirt in her hands to cross the street, someone caught her by the arm and cried:

"Well, furthermore, if it isn't Hazel Weir!"

And she turned to find herself facing Loraine Marsh—Granville school chum—and Loraine's mother. Back of them, with wide and startled eyes, loomed Jack Barrow.

He pressed forward while the two women overwhelmed Hazel with a flood of exclamations and questions, and extended his hand. Hazel accepted the overture. She had long since gotten over her resentment against him. She was furthermore amazed to find that she could meet his eye and take his hand without a single flutter of her pulse. It seemed strange, but she was glad of it.

They stood a few minutes on the corner; then Mrs. Marsh proposed that they go to the hotel, where they could talk at their leisure in comfort. Loraine and her mother took the lead. Barrow naturally fell into step with Hazel.

"I've been wearing sackcloth and ashes, Hazel," he said humbly. "Shortly after you left, somebody on one of the papers ferreted out the truth of that Bush affair, and the vindictive old hounds raised for that compromising legacy were set forth. Bush appears to have kept a diary—and kept it posted up to the day of his death—poured out all his feelings on paper, and repeatedly asserted that he would win you or ruin you. And it seems that that night, after you refused to come to him when he was hurt, he called in his lawyer and made that confession—and spent the rest of the time till he died gloating over the chances of it being his own character."

"I've grown rather indifferent about it," Hazel replied impersonally. "But he succeeded rather easily. Even you, who should have known me better, were ready to believe the very worst."

"I've paid for it," Barrow pleaded. "You don't know how I've hated myself for being such a cad. But it taught me a lesson—if you'll not hold a grudge against me, I've wondered and worried about you, disappearing the way you did. Where have you been, and how have you been getting on? You surely look well!" He bent an admiring glance on her.

"Oh! I've been every place, and I can't complain about not getting on," she answered carelessly.

For the life of her, she could not help making comparisons between the man beside her and another who she guessed would by now be bearing up the crest of the divide that overlooked the green and peaceful vista of forest and meadow, with the Babine range lying purple beyond. She wondered if Roaring Bill Wagstaff would ever, under any circumstances, have looked on her with the scornful, angry distrust that Barrow had once betrayed. Barrow's attitude was that of a little boy who had broken some plaything in a fit of anger and was now woefully trying to mend it, the pieces together, again. It amused her. Indeed, it afforded her a distinctly un-Christian satisfaction, since she was not by nature of a meek or forgiving spirit.

Hazel visited with the three of them in the hotel parlor for a matter of two hours, went to luncheon with them, and at luncheon Loraine Marsh brought up the subject of her coming to the Granville with them. But the Bush incident was discussed and dismissed. On the question of returning, Hazel was noncommittal.

"Of course you'll come!" We won't hear of leaving you behind. You can consider that settled," Loraine Marsh declared at last. "We're going day after tomorrow. So is Mr. Barrow."

Jack walked with her out to the Lady-smith, and, among other things, told her how he happened to be in the coast city.

"I've been doing pretty well lately," he said. "I came out here on a deal that involved about fifty thousand dollars. I closed it up just this morning—and the commission would just about pay us as that little house had pleased once. Won't you let bygones be bygones, Hazel?"

"It might be possible, Jack," she answered slowly, "if it were not for the fact that you took the most effective means a man could have taken to kill every atom of affection I had for you. I don't feel bitter any more—I simply don't feel at all."

"But you will," he said eagerly. "Just give me a chance. I was a hot-headed, jealous fool, but I never will be again. Give me a chance, Hazel."

"You'll have to make your own chances," she said deliberately. "I refuse to bind myself in any way. Why should I put myself out to make you happy when you destroyed all the faith I had in you? And I don't think I'm going to care—except, perhaps, in a friendly way."

And with that Barrow had to be content.

At dusk of the following day she and Loraine Marsh sat in a Pullman, flitting their noses against the car window, taking a last look at the environs of Vancouver as the train rolled through the outskirts of the city. Hazel told herself that she was going home. Barrow smiled friendly assurance over the seat.

Even so, she was restless, far from content. The thought of the looking. At half after eight she called the porter and had him arrange her section for the night. And she got into bed, thankful to be by herself, depressed without reason.

"A spin in the country! The hamper full of good things to eat, the tank full of Imperial Premier gasoline and the crank-case filled with Imperial Polarine. Nothing can mar the day's pleasure."

Thorough Lubrication

IMPERIAL Polarine can be depended on to give you thorough lubrication, to keep the engine running quietly and faultlessly, to take you a 100 miles or 1,000 miles at the least cost for fuel, oil and repairs.

Imperial Polarine forms a piston-to-cylinder seal that maintains compression and utilizes the full power of the fuel. It spreads a thin, yet unbreakable oil film over every friction surface that minimizes wear—it is the perfect lubricant.

Imperial Polarine will not break up under high operating heats. It burns freely with hardly a trace of carbon. Costs less because it saves depreciation and fuel. Sold in gallon and four-gallon steel cans, half-barrels and barrels, also 12½-gallon steel kegs, by dealers everywhere.

Look for the Imperial Polarine Chart of Recommendations when you buy oil. It shows which of the three grades, described below is recommended for your car. Use the grades specified, exclusively.

INSPECTORIAL TEACHER'S TRAINING INSTITUTES

1. The Education Department is authorized to organize under the principalship of each Inspector an elementary training course during the four weeks beginning with the first Monday after the 25th of July, to be held at any convenient center selected by him in his Division for untrained teachers and students of High School scholarship desiring to teach on Temporary or Permanent Certificate.

2. The Inspector shall have special charge of the subject of school Law and Form, and his two (or four) associates appointed by the Education Department shall be scholarly and competent teachers of the Theory and Practice of Teaching and of the subject of the Institute.

3. The Institute will include daily lectures, study of prescribed texts and teachings practice for at least four hours a day and at least five days each week; and be conducted by an examination written as well as oral; and by practical teaching during the course.

4. The successful completion of the course may be recognized by the award of a general M. P. Q. Certificate of the Education Department or a Temporary or Permanent License shall be recommended by the Inspector to any one within the range of attendance of the Institute who had not attended the course.

5. A low high school pass may be raised to a high pass on a subject in course, if the Inspector presiding can prove to be merited; and evidence of higher M. P. Q. promotion will be similarly considered.

6. The time of instructors employed, attendance of pupils for teaching practice, and the recommendation of the Inspector can be credited when deemed fair to regular school affected and Inspectors are authorized to use all school buildings and apparatus for the service, subject to compensation for any damages.

7. The common School Register shall be used to record attendance; and the common school texts, and general equipment of common schools, must be specially kept in view by the Instructor, and the location of their Institute, submit their estimates of the cost of each, and nominate their associate instructors, by the first week in June, to the Superintendent of Education who is authorized to provide for emergencies falling within the general scope of these regulations.

Instructors may be paid at the rate of twenty-five dollars for each week at the close of the course, and at a maximum of $100.00, accompanied with vouchers, and sent to the Superintendent of Education, Halifax, as soon as possible after the close of the course. The Inspector shall send the Superintendent of Education a general report on the work of the Institute with a classified list of the students in attendance. His recommendation for their professional standing and any bills for necessary charges on vouchers.

"Fundamentals in Methods" by Joseph Kennedy (Macmillan, New York) is authorized as a text in the Institute, of which will be obtained at cost price for teachers giving notice of attendance in due time.

"The Extract of Roots, which is pure and natural, Seltzer, Carlsbad Syrup, has no drugs or strong ingredients; it cures indigestion, biliousness and constipation. Can be had at any drug store." Get the genuine. 50c. and $1.00 Bottles.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of foot.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store, a few drops upon the corn or callus, instantly the stinging burning, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root the corn or callus out, and the corn or callus is gone. Try it! No kumquat.

BAY VIEW

Rev. Dr. Ross, of Halifax, and Rev. J. Layton, of Kentville, held a service here on Monday evening, May 17th.

Reported to the congregation that owing to the scarcity of students, there would be no Freshman supply for the new future. Dr. Ross suggested that the Methodist Church of Digby be invited to supply until such time as a new supply was appointed to confer with Rev. W. L. Croft the following evening and this decision was agreed upon.

ONE WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE

Of Interest to Childless Women.

Toronto, Ontario.—"I suffered for a long time from a female weakness, inflammation, and a terrible backache caused by that condition. One day one of your booklets was left at my door, and I read how other women with troubles like mine had been made well, so I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash, and it helped me wonderfully, and I now have the finest little baby that any mother could want. I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who has female troubles." Mrs. Joseph L. Ellis, 773 Shaw Street, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared to understand how to properly care for herself. Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong, and this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

Sale - THURSDAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY - Sale

This ONE CENT SALE Plan was originated by the United Drug Company for the Rexall Drug Stores. The United Drug Company are the largest manufacturers and buyers of Toilet Articles, Remedies, Chocolates, Perfumes, Rubber Goods, Stationery and Drug Sundries in the world, and this is an advertising plan pure and simple, of which they bear most of the expense. Instead of spending money in the regular way, such as Free Samples, etc., it is their desire that we place full size packages, or articles, in your hands, giving you an opportunity to judge the real value of these goods, the cost of which they charge to advertising.

We will only be permitted to run this sale occasionally. Beware of imitations in other stores, and take advantage of this exceptional opportunity. We can not afford to charge or deliver goods during this sale. So please don't ask us to do it. These prices do not include the War Tax.

There are five simple ways to tell good tea.

First, by the bright copper color of the tea when steeped.

Second, by the exquisite aroma.

Third, by the delightful, refreshing flavor.

Fourth, by the satisfying richness.

Fifth, by the economical strength.

Make a brewing and you will find all these qualities combined in Red Rose.

Red Rose Coffee is as generously good as Red Rose Tea

A BAD ROAD LESSENS LAND VALUES

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR.—While I agree with the idea prevailing just now, of impressing on the people the necessity for good roads, nevertheless it is hard for me to believe that there is any person living in this Province who does not already realize the benefit that would accrue, not only to the farmer, but to every class of citizen and the country as a whole from improved roads.

It would be a waste of time for me to attempt to point out the many ways in which improved roads would benefit the farmer, but I have recently had one phase of the question forcibly brought to my notice. Hence this letter.

A widowed lady recently asked me to find a purchaser for her farm which she is unable to work. The farm contains 200 acres, about forty cultivated, with a practically new house and barn. The buildings alone are worth $2500 to $3000. I offered the property at a great bargain, namely $1500. Have had several prospective purchasers who have not been able to work it. They are ready to pay for it at less than half value, but they decline to buy it because of the bad roads on which it is located.

I have no hesitation in saying that if the road leading to it were a first class one, I could obtain $3500 for the property.

Yours truly,

ROBERT GASS.

"HAS NO EQUAL" STATES SHIRLEY

So Run Down Was Ready to Give Up When He Started Taking Tanlac.

"In my humble opinion Tanlac has no equal as a medicine; at least that has been my own experience," said Shirley, a man of St. Albans, N. S., a valued employee of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. Ltd., when speaking to the Tanlac representative, recently.

"I had been in a run-down condition for nearly four years and had suffered a lot with stomach trouble. My appetite was very poor and I had to be very careful of what I ate. Anything like meat or heavy food would give me indigestion for hours afterwards. My food soured and the gas that formed pressed against my chest and throat so as to cause a smothering feeling. My sleep was very disturbed and I was continually waking up with a start. I had a tired worn-out feeling all the time, with no energy to do my work. I lost weight continually until my clothes were too big and just hung loose on me. I got into such a bad state that I thought I would have to give up altogether."

"I don't know how many medicines I tried without getting any relief, but I heard of so many people getting help from Tanlac that I decided to give it a trial myself. That was last September. Well by the time I had finished the third bottle I was like a new man. My appetite is so much improved that I am hungry all the time and can eat three good square meals a day. My food goes with me and I am eating meat for the first time in years and can digest it perfectly. I've already gained ten pounds in weight and all my old time strength and energy has come back. I sleep like a log and get up in the mornings feeling refreshed and ready for my work. All the boys down at the works tell me how well I look, and I just feel fine all the time."

"Tanalac is sold in Digby by F. W. Holdsworth and by the leading druggist in every town."

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION.

Appropos of greater agricultural production a Washington correspondent sends us the following:

"Decrease in agricultural production may result in the United States becoming dependent on overseas food supplies," Herbert Hoover to Representative Riddick, Republican, Montana, setting forth the former food administrator's views, "as to practical measures to insure better returns to the farmer for his labor investments."

From practically all parts of the world reports are received indicating a shortage in crop acreage as compared with 1919. The reason for the reduction in acreage is blamed on scarcity of labor, and shorter hours of the day's work. Nova Scotia seems to be no exception to this general world condition. The farmer's opportunity seems to be at its zenith for profitable returns in this country. Will he take full advantage of it?

The advice given through the Press and the hundreds of public meetings held throughout the Province, and particularly through the Annapolis Valley, and the territory from Truro to Yarmouth, by the Department of Agriculture, Truro, the Experimental Farm, Kentville, and the Entomological Department, Annapolis, has been to obtain the best methods of fertilizing, cultivating, Digby County holds the record for the largest potato yield from an acre of ground, where 600 bushels were harvested in 1919. Another grower had 550 bushels to the acre. The farmer sowed every eight days, after the first week in July, and kept the vines green until digging time. It is fair to assume that persistent spraying would increase the potato crop more than 100 per cent over the yield of 1919, without increasing the acreage.

To complete the work of the country must "carry on" another two or three years, and produce to the country's full capacity. Failing this a calamity of alarming proportion may have to be faced, worse than the present high cost of living.

BOTH SKIPPERS ARE EXONERATED

Court Finds No Ground for Blame in Prince John Albert Collision.

Victoria, B. C., May 19.

Complete exoneration of both masters and the highest commendation of their actions under the conditions in which they found themselves, that was the verdict of the court of enquiry, which sat in connection with the collision of the steamers Prince John and Prince Albert off Skidegate. The findings of the court were made public by Wreck Commissioner Captain J. G. Macgregor today. The report signed by the commissioner and the two assessors, Captain G. E. Bridge and James R. Stewart, is in part as follows:

"The court having carefully enquired into the circumstances attending the collision, and finding that the collision between the Prince John and Prince Albert took place in such a manner, and under such unusual circumstances, as not to have been capable of being prevented by ordinary skill, on the part of those in charge of either vessel, and that no blame is imputable to Mr. Walter Scott-Morsehouse, the master of the Prince John who holds a foreign-going certificate of competency nor to Mr. Harold Langhorne Robertson, the master of the Prince Albert, who holds a similar class of certificate, or to any of the officers or crew of either vessel."

"The court is of the opinion that both masters exercised considerable care and nerve, when they suddenly found themselves placed in such an unexpected and difficult situation, and that after the impact had occurred the conduct of all concerned was of such a nature as to be worthy of the highest commendation; for in the opinion of the court there can be no doubt that the Prince John would have foundered in comparatively deep water, with a probable loss of life, had it not been for the presence of mind, resource, energy and coolness displayed by the masters, officers and crews of both vessels."

Capt. Morsehouse is a native of Sandy Cove, in this county.—Editor Courier.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Once again we advise, plant a garden and do it now. There is still lots of time to put in beans, tomatoes, and summer vegetables, for by so doing you will not only be helping out the food supply, but will be keeping your table supplied with nice fresh vegetables. In conversation with a local dealer the other day, however, I was informed that the sale of seeds had been slow and up to the present time had not averaged up to the amount as sold in the year just preceding the war.

If every household would save all the paper that comes into it there would be an aid in the solution of the paper shortage. Waste papers are purchased by the box-board manufacturers and by rolling paper men to pulp over again into their products. They can be used in other lines of paper manufacture also, but not as yet successfully in making over into newspaper. So if all the waste paper could be saved to be sold to the producers of the lower forms of paper products it would relieve the market just that much, and not so much new stock would be needed, thus leaving more for the newspaper writing paper men. It is surprising how much paper comes into a household. A household baler can be made out of a box and little rope and it will fill the bill. You will find your premises much cleaner if you collect your paper, you will be helping conserve a dwindling supply and you should find ready buyers in the junkmen. All you need is a little activity in keeping your wastes together. It may cost you a little energy, but it is worth it.

A great, many years ago a merchant of Taunton promised to a lady living in an adjoining village, prior to the time of the great flood, from the Bible that he could, not answer—she won it, with the following one. To most of your readers I conjecture that it will be very easy.

—OLD TIGE.

Adam, God made out of dust But thought it best to make me first. So I was made before the man. To answer God's most holy plan.

My body God did make complete But without arms, or legs, or feet, My ways and acts he did control, But for my body gave a soul.

A living being I became And Adam gave to me my name. I from his presence then withdrew, And more of Adam never knew.

I did my Maker's laws obey Nor found a never weary day. Thousands of miles I go to fear, But seldom on the earth appear.

For purpose wise which God did see He put a living soul in me. To save from me my God did claim, And took from me the soul again.

For when from me the soul had fled I was the same as when first made, And without hands, or feet, or soul I travelled on from pole to pole.

I labor hard from day to night, To save from me my God did claim, Thousands of people young and old, Will by my death great light behold.

No right or wrong can I conceive, The Scriptures I cannot believe, Although my name is therein found They are to me an empty sound.

No fear of death doth trouble me, Real happiness I never shall see, To Heaven I shall never go, Or to the grave or hell below.

Now when these lines you please to read Go search your Bible with all speed, For that my name's recorded there I honestly to you declare.

Answer to last week's scriptural riddle and puzzle.

I had eyes but I saw not, so truly was "blind," And my head, being brainless, was "void" of a "mind."

The stock that I came from could not be alive, For trees that are felled do not long live and thrive.

Though the place of King David I filled in the lead, I never sat on his throne, or was crowned in his stead.

And though Michel might call me her husband and Lord, Having ears, yet I heard not, nor though Saul's daughter nursed me, wretched and poor.

Yet Saul must have cursed me, in secret I'm sure, And though ages have passed since I sank in decay,

The worship of idols remain to this day, May the prophets I bring help to take them away.

(See 1st, Samuel chap. 19.) This riddle I puzzled out some years ago as it is not at all a hard one. Afterwards finding the answer in verse 1 placed it along side of the riddle.

E. C. B.

Westport, June 1st, 1920.

But Mr. Editor I would like an answer to that one commencing, "I sit on a rock while I'm raising the wind" in your paper of two or three weeks ago. Signed,

—OLD TIGE.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezes—costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store. Apply only a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops burning, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

SELF FEEDER FOR SWINE

(Experimental Farms Note.)

One often hears the statement made that it does not pay to perhaps give pigs more than the most ordinary attention and the farmer can scarcely be blamed in this respect, if his hired help is inexperienced and yet has to be paid as high a wage as a real good experienced man.

The keeping of a few pigs is practically always a paying proposition but, to make it more so, means must be resorted to whereby the labor can be reduced to a minimum, particularly as the pigs are apt to receive the scantiest attention in any case. Towards this end, therefore, it seems only natural to try to find out just how well pigs will thrive if allowed to feed themselves. By feeding themselves is meant the adoption of a "self feeding" method whereby the pigs are allowed access to a limited supply of dry feed whenever they feel so inclined. This system is of value to the breeder who goes in for swine-raising on a large scale and also to the small farmer who has other countless duties to perform but finds the feeding of pigs the worst chore of all. The latter might find the "self-feeder" of great value particularly in reducing expenses.

With a view to gaining some definite information on the use of the "self-feeder" for swine, experiments have been carried on at the Experimental Farm, Agassiz, B. C. for several seasons. Comparisons have been made in the use of the "self-feeder" as against the trough-feeding method. As far as cost of feed is concerned, results go to show very little difference one way or the other but when the labour question is considered the value of the "self-feeder" cannot be ignored. This comparison of the "self-feeder" with the trough feeding method is being continued absolute and definite results are obtained but up to date, however, the advantage of the "self-feeder" have been strikingly evident.

With all classes of feeders this device can be used to advantage while it also may be made use of in the feeding of young sows up to breeding age. With mature breeding stock, however, it is wise to avoid the use of the "self-feeder".

The "self-feeder" for swine has many features to commend it, one of the most important being the fact that, of all farm animals, none adapt themselves so profitably to this method as do swine. While only two or three pigs are kept, the use of a "self-feeder" can hardly be recommended but, with more than ten pigs the adoption of a "self-feeder" is well worth a trial. Finally, as a means towards the reduction of labour expense, the "self-feeder" has a distinct advantage over hand-feeding methods.

THE SMART LIBELS VESSEL FOR $5,000

The tern schooner Jean Campbell, Capt. Taylor, arrived in Shelburne two days ago accompanied by the Digby fishing schooner Dorothy M. Smart, Captain Ross. The Jean Campbell left Philadelphia on the 6th, for Newfoundland with a cargo of soft coal. Two or three days out she commenced making water. It was decided to make for port. A search was made for the leak and one was located aft around the closet pipe. Oakum was used and the inflow of water was slackened considerably. A hole was cut in the cabin floor and through it quite a quantity of coal was thrown overboard so as to lighten the vessel. The men worked faithfully at the pumps, and Saturday morning last the schooner Dorothy Smart hove in sight and stood by while the run to Shelburne was made. Captain Ross placed a number of his men aboard the Campbell.

Last week a survey was held on the vessel by Captain John A. Thorburn, Capt. Harry R. Muir and John McKay. As a result of this the cargo is being lightened sufficiently to repair the leaks. It is possible other leaks may yet be discovered.

Both vessels are Shelburne built. The Campbell is now owned in Newfoundland and is three years old. The vessel has since been labelled at the instance of the Dorothy M. Smart who claims $5,000.

Daniel Phillips, a brakeman, who fell from a freight car, 100 feet, through a trestle, was not hurt, because he landed right side up in the bed of the river underneath and sank in the mud up to his knees.

Prices of all vegetables have dropped from 5 to 35 per cent. on the Chicago market in the last ten days. Market experts said the decline in prices was due to increased receipts.

BECAME SO THIN SHE WAS AFRAID

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Made Her Well, Strong and Vigorous

MADAME ARTHUR DEACHER
805 Cartier St., Montreal.

"I suffered terribly from Constipation and Dyspepsia for many years. I felt pains after eating and had gas, constant headache, and was unable to sleep at night. I was getting so thin that I was frightened and saw several physicians who, however, did not seem able to help me.

At last a friend advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives". I did so and soon I felt some relief. I continued with "Fruit-a-tives" and in a short time, the Constipation was banished, I felt no more pains or headache or the disagreeable sensations that follow dyspepsia. Now I am well, strong and vigorous."

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Peasey of London.

London, Ont.—"I suffered with periodic pains, was weak and run down, could not eat and had headaches. The worst symptoms were dragging down pains so bad I sometimes thought I would go crazy and I seemed to be sinking. I was in this condition for two or three years and could not get better. I tried all kinds of remedies and had been treated by physicians, but received no benefit. I found one of your booklets and felt inclined to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I received the best results from it, and now I keep house and go out to work and am like a new woman. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to my friends, and if these facts will help some poor woman use them as you please."—Mrs. J. P. Peasey, 266 Rectory Street, London, Ont.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

RE-UNION OF WESTPORT PEOPLE.

A gathering of former residents of Westport, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Welch, 8 Vista Street, Rosindale, Mass., May the 12th. It was like a real Westport picnic, with a fresh fish chowder and lots of cake.

The real outcome of the affair was the formation of a club to be known as "The Westport Association" and to include in its membership any person who has ever lived in Westport and who wishes to be a member. The association was organized with a membership of sixteen, and the following officers were elected:

President, David L. Welch.
Vice-President, Edward R. Thompson.
Secretary, Mrs. Alva Childs.
Treasurer, Miss L. Myra Welch.

The meetings are to be held quarterly at the homes of the members, or are to take the form of outdoor picnic—in picnic season, in some park near Boston.

Mrs. Frances A. Morell, who was present with her daughter, Mrs. Lois Grobe, of Dorchester, was made an honorary member.

In addition to those already mentioned, the following were present: Mrs. E. R. Thompson and Mr. Bertha Coggins of Everett; Mr. and Mrs. David Young of Medford; Mrs. Maude L. Barnes of Alton; Mrs. Sarah E. Saunders, of Boston; Frank Piper and Miss Gladys Piper, of West Roxbury; and Bertrand Syda, of Arlington.

In addition to a request being sent to Westport, asking those there who have friends in this vicinity who might be interested in this association to mail to the names and addresses of same to Mr. Alva Childs, 23 Reed Ave., Everett, Mass., before July fifteenth.

The business having been disposed of, the remainder of the evening was given over to recitals of school day experiences, recalling of old friendships, etc.

After a vote of thanks to the host and hostess David and Minnie Welch the party broke up. We almost felt that we had visited dear old Westport.

North of Fifty-Three

Bertrand W. Sinclair

"Here your private mount henceforth," Bill told her laughingly. "You'll ride him with more pleasure than you did the first time, won't you?"

Presently they were ready to start, planning to ride past Lupton George's camp and sell him what they were bound. Hazel was already mounted. Roaring Bill paused, with his toe in the stirrup, and smiled whimsically at her over his horse's back.

"I forgot something," said he, and went back into the cabin—where he shortly emerged, bearing in his hand a sheet of paper upon which something was written in bold, angular characters. This he pinned on the door. Hazel rode Silk close to see what it might be, and laughed amusedly for Bill had written:

"Mr. and Mrs. William Wagstaff will be at home to their friends on and after June the twentieth."

He swung up into his saddle, and they jogged across the open. In the edge of the first timber they pulled up and looked backward at the cabin, growing silently under its sentinel tree. Roaring Bill reached out one arm and laid it across Hazel's shoulders.

"Little person," he said soberly, "here's the end of one trail, and the beginning of another—the longest trail either of us has ever faced. How does it look to you?"

She caught his fingers with a quick, hard pressure.

"All trails look alike to me," she said, with shining eyes, "just so we hit them together."

"What day of the month is this, Bill?" Hazel asked.

"Haven't the least idea," he answered lazily. "Time is of no consequence to me at the present moment. They were sitting on the warm earth before their cabin, their backs propped comfortably against a log, watching the sun sink behind a distant skyline all hidden with purple mountains upon which snow still lingered. Beside them a smudge dribbled a wisp of smoke sufficient to ward off a pestilential swarm of mosquitoes and black flies. In the clear, thin air that altitude the occasional voices of what bird and animal life was abroad in the wild broke into the evening hush with astonishing distinctness—a lone goose winged above in wide circles, uttering his harsh and solitary cry. He had lost his mate, Bill told her. Fur off in the bush a hawk barked. The trailing light of the wild geese from Crooked Lake to a chain of swamps passed intermittently over the clearing with a soft, white, cloud-like wings. To all the wild things, no longer the two who watched and listened to the forest traffic, it was a land of peace and plenty."

"We ought to go up to the swamps tomorrow and rustle some duck eggs," Bill observed irrelevantly—his eyes following the arrow night of a mallard duck, that his wife was counting audibly, checking the days off on her fingers.

"This is July the twenty-fifth," Mr. Roaring Bill Wagstaff, she announced. "We've been married exactly one month."

"A whole month!" he echoed, in mock astonishment. "You don't say so? Seems like it was only day before yesterday when you did this."

"I wonder," she snuggled up a little closer to him, "if any two people were ever as happy as we've been?"

"Bill put his arm across her shoulders and tilted his head back so that he could smile down into her face. "They have been a bunch of golden days, haven't they?" he whispered. "You won't forget this joy time if we ever do hit real hard going, will you, Hazel?"

"The bird of ill omen creaks again," she murmured. "Why should we come to hard going as you call it?"

"We shouldn't," he declared. "But most people do. And we might. One never can tell what's ahead. By and by when the novelty wears off—maybe you'll get sick of seeing the same old Bill around and nobody else. You see I've always been on my good behavior with you. Do you like me a lot?"

His arm tightened with a quick and powerful pressure, and suddenly he relaxed to let her lean back and stare up at him tenderly.

"I ought to punish you for saying things like that," he said. "Only I can't think of any effective method. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof—and there is no evil in our days."

"Amen," he whispered softly—and they fell to silent contemplation of the rose and gold that spread in a wonderful blaze over all the western sky.

"Twenty-fifth of July, eh?" he mused presently. "Summer's half gone already. I didn't realize it. We ought to be stirring pretty soon, lady. These northern seasons are so blissful. We ought to try and do a little good for ourselves—make hay while the sun shines. Well needs a moon."

"Needs a moon," he laughed. "What do we need money for? It costs practically nothing to live up here. Why this sudden desire to propose the dollar? Besides, how are you going to pursue it?"

"No pursuing," he replied promptly. "Hit the trail for a place I know where there's oodles of coarse gold. If you can get to it at low water. How'd you like to go into the Upper Nana country this fall, trap all winter, work the sandbars in the spring, and come out next fall with a sack of gold it would take a horse to pack?"

"Have I changed her luck?" she cried.

"Oh, Bill, wouldn't that be fine?" she cried. "I'd love to."

"It won't be all smooth sailing," he warned. "It's a long trip and a hard one, and the winter will be longer and harder than the trip. Still, there's a chance for a good big stake, right in that one trip."

"But why the necessity for making a stake?" she inquired thoughtfully, after a lapse of five minutes. "I thought you didn't care anything about money so long as you had enough to get along with. And we've never had that. We've over two thousand dollars in real money—and no place to spend it—so we're compelled to save."

Bill blew a smoke ring over his head and watched it vanish up toward the dusky roof beams before he answered.

"Well, little person," said he, "that's very true, and we can't truthfully say that stern necessity is trending on our heels. The possession of money has never been a crying need with me. But I hadn't many wants when I was playing a lone hand, and I generally let the future take care of itself. It was always easy to dig up money enough to buy books and grub or anything I wanted. Now that I've assumed a certain responsibility, it has begun to dawn on me that we'll enjoy life better if we were assured of a competence. We won't stay here always. I'm pretty much contented just now. So are you. But I know from past experience that the outside will grow more alluring as time passes. You'll get lonesome for civilization. It's the most natural thing in the world. And when we go out to mix with our fellow humans we want to meet them on terms of worldly equality. Which is to say, we want good clothes on, and a fat bank roll in our pocket. And last, but not least, old girl, while I love to loaf, I can only loaf so long in contentment. Right? I've got to be doing something that's not just loafing, or not has never mattered, just so it was action."

"I see, as you call it," Hazel smiled. "So are you, then. Only I say, people are to go to the time. I love this place, and we might stay here for years and be satisfied. But—"

THE DANCE!

It must have been in the air, for that strange, expectant feeling had seized upon everyone. Not a sound was heard. Men and women again and again came to their open windows and doors to look, but not a word was spoken, the birds even feeling the spell, ceased their singing. Amidst this silence one voice rang out: "Here they come!" It was the voice of a child who knew not what he said, but they were coming, sure enough, for they were just turning the corner at Mr. Eber. Turnbull's home. The rhythm of their foot fall was music to the ear; all were held spell bound. When they were passing Dakin Bros. store the Col. came out, stroked his chin whiskers and smiled. When they reached LETTENNEY'S store they stopped, the men and women separating, for they had marched arm in arm thus far. The Monarch Sweaters they had were beautifully matched in color. The male sweater of yellow had upon his arm a female of blue or green or red, for these colors harmonize. There was exquisite music in the air, no musicians however could be seen. Something it might be the angels sounding their harps upon a beautiful silver cloud passing overhead, for it seemed to come from above. At this point there came a Monarch Sweater from Lettenney's with an arm full of Monarch Yarn and fastened the thread of corresponding colors to each sweater and then the music again started for it had ceased for a while, and it was discovered by the Digby Symphony Orchestra, around the town clock and then the sweaters began to dance the "Lancers" and in their weaving in and out they wove the following beautiful, exquisite verse:

The Monarch Sweaters are the idols today
For which the men bend the knees and pray.
Ye women who wish for a man to adore,
Rush! Rush to buy a Monarch at Lettenney's store!

C. S. FIRMS BANK HERE.

One of Results Due to Exchange Problem.

Toronto bankers generally seem to be of opinion that the present rate exchange is tending to drive south Canadian producers and Canadian buyers to Europe. The buyer has a cheaper market—and the producer gets more. The European buyer, for instance, finds that two-dollar wheat is cheaper in Canada than in the United States. On the other hand, there is difficulty in getting raw material—and steel bids fair to be a tremendous question.

The Toronto correspondent of Women's Wear, New York, says: "It is now pretty generally conceded here that the only way the adverse exchange situation can be overcome is by manufacturers and distributors of commodities combining their purchases within the Dominion. American sellers have a very high regard for the Canadian trade, but few are willing to suffer the loss through the present value of the Canadian dollar."

"This fact has been demonstrated to the operators of the Dominion's largest department stores. A short time ago one company sounded some of the principal sellers across the border with a view to the obtaining whether they would cash Canadian cheques at par or at least bear part of the loss. In practically every instance the American sellers have given a negative answer. One of the principal reasons was that profits were too narrow to allow of any concession."

Commenting on this, D. A. Cameron, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, says: "This was the only answer an American firm could give without acknowledging that its profits were too high."

A large number of merchants here are opening accounts in Canadian banks, which makes them, for business purposes, Canadian. He believes that Canadian firms in this exchange predicament are turning largely towards other nations in the Empire and to Europe for goods that they had formerly bought in the United States.

United States firms have bought largely of Victory Bonds in this connection in order to get the higher rate of interest. On the other hand, the question of raw material is a very serious one, and in the opinion of at least one banker, the sooner the exchange is returned to parity
the better for all concerned.

It is somewhat of a gamble, surmised, that "Great Britain" is extending long credits to Europe at present rates. When conditions are restored and parity returns the bank will get the benefit of the higher rates. Against this is the chance that European countries may not be able to pay the debt they incur."

Marshall Saved the Situation.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, at a dinner given to visiting stockmen in Toronto, told a number of humorous stories in the course of his speech.
At one point he got himself into a slight tangle by striking a "chestnut" but he extricated himself very cleverly. He was talking about cowboys and was telling a negro story to illustrate his point when he needed something worse than what he was spreading. He stopped. "Has somebody told this before?" he cried.
There were vigorous denials. "Did you 'Lookie Wilton'?" he went on fixing him accusingly with his eye.
Mr. Wilson laughed denial. "Go on with your story," was the cry on all sides.

"No, I won't," answered Mr. Marshall. "But it reminds me of a story I heard once about two Ministers in the late Ross Government when the Hon. Jim Connors had down speaking for him in Port Arthur and William. One spoke first at Port Arthur and then switched, the meeting being kept going while also change was being made. Afterwards they compared notes."

"I told a story at Port William that made a great hit," said one.
The audience started laughing as soon as he began. They laughed all the way through and when I ended the tears were streaming down their faces. It never worked so well."

"What was it?" asked the second Minister. The first told him.

"You durned fool!" cried the second. "Why I told the same anecdote that story twenty minutes before you arrived."

Mr. Marshall then finished the negro story and the honors were his.

New Bridges in Quebec.

Work has begun on the construction of the bridge across the Battiscon river, which will complete the Montreal-Quebec Highway. The bridge will be 2,211 feet in length and 18 feet in width, and according to contract will be ready for traffic on June 1, 1920. The Provincial Department of Public Works has also a number of other bridges under construction, among them being the Metacombouan Bridge, which is one of the most important under the control of the Quebec Government.
It is expected that next summer about seventy-five bridges of all sizes will be built under the supervision of Ivan Vale, engineer of the Quebec Department.

Canada's Tire Production.

Figures made public in Montreal show that there were about 2,000,000 automobile tires manufactured in Canada last year, requiring about 6,000 square yards, or 12,000,000 to 16,000,000 pounds of tire fabric, and that only about one-third of the fabric required in the manufacture of these tires was made in Canada. The remainder came from the United States. Increased production of tire fabric is now aimed at.

And He Still Talked On.

The preacher's evening discourse was dry and the congregation gradually melted away. The verger tip-toed up to the pulpit and slipped a note under one corner of the Bible. It read: "When you have finished up you please turn off the lights, lock the door and put the key under the mat!"

Reduced Operating Costs

IMPERIAL Polarine reduces automobile operating costs in many ways. By providing a piston-to-cylinder seal which assures maximum power. It helps to save friction waste in every moving part, keeps the engine running smoothly and on of the repair shop and minimizes depreciation.

Imperial Polarine prevents friction by coating every wearing surface with a heat and wear-resisting oil film. It seals all the power in the piston chamber. Imperial Polarine gives correct lubrication to every part of your car.

One of the three grades described below is specially suited to your motor. Look for the Imperial Polarine Chart of Recommendations when you buy oil and learn which grade to use.

Imperial Polarine is sold in sealed gallon and four-gallon cans, 12 1/2-gallon steel kegs, steel half-barrels and barrels, by dealers everywhere.
There is an appreciable saving in buying half-barrels and barrels.

Two Good Reasons

Two good economical reasons why you should eat more fish; It is cheap and nutritious, and provides a thrifty meal.

One of Canada's greatest sources of wealth is her fisheries, and you help develop the industry by eating fish, and also help to put Canada in a better financial position.

Probably you are not aware how little fish Canadian people use.

Great Britain is one of the greatest fish consuming countries in the world. During 1918 she had a per capita consumption of 58 pounds, and in 1919, it is believed, this was increased to 60 pounds. This means that each individual consumed at the rate of more than one pound per week.

In the United States last year it is estimated by officials at Washington the per capita consumption was 19 pounds. Although little reliance can be placed in this estimate, there is no doubt but that the local consumption in the United States has increased greatly in recent years.

A few years ago the per capita consumption in Canada per annum was a matter of ounces.

Through the combined efforts of the Canada Food Board and the Fisheries Branch it is estimated that the local consumption at one time reached a point equal to 45 pounds per capita. During 1919 it is estimated the per capita consumption was somewhere between 23 and 25 pounds per annum.

Canada is one of the greatest if not the greatest, fish producing countries of the world. Why have our people so little faith in fish?

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Tell about trying to have the streets clean. On a recent afternoon a fine auto drove up through Water street and a lot of orange peel was dumped out into the street and yet I'll bet a nicker that the people in the car called themselves respectable. If I could have got the number of the car, I certainly would have entered a complaint against them.

There is no better or saner way to boost your town than a prompt and early payment of all town taxes. In the face of rising costs which are unavoidable but obligations which must be met, the town council are called upon to increase every business shrewdness and economy to make a fair showing and maintain every department with efficiency. Don't be a knocker, but play the game and meet your share of the financial obligations.

In driving about the country one often sees piles of tin cans and broken dishes, together with other rubbish dumped by the side of the road by some careless individual. There ought to be some regulation against this defilement of the roadside. There doubtless is, but if so it is not very well observed. People would not defile their own dooryard by these unsightly dumps, and they should not similarly spoil the pleasure of those who drive about the country, and whose senses are naturally offended by these defacements.

It is not easy to disabuse the minds of many, perhaps most, owners of autos of the idea that when they buy a car they acquire exclusive proprietary rights in the public streets as well. In their view, the responsibility of looking out for their own skin rests upon the vulgarians who walk. An occasional fine is sometimes a wholesome corrective.

Local business men are finding a considerable change in the attitude of wholesale houses in recent days. For a long time they had found it difficult to place orders, the wholesalers refusing to accept them or to fill them in full, taking but small chances on a market that was always advancing. In recent days, the same wholesalers are improving the retailers for orders and at prices much below those at which they had previously declined to sell. Business is always fairly good in Digby, but the merchants are no longer buying on the "any old price" plan. They stopped that some weeks ago and the tumble in prices soon followed. Trade journals are everywhere and in every line are prophesying still lower prices to follow.

Motor car prices are ascending to another new high level. Dealers tell me that almost every day brings notice from the factories of advances that have been made, or which are to be put into effect in the near future, accompanied by warnings to the dealers not to take future orders for future delivery except at the new scale. At the present rate cars in general will be on a new price basis before the first of July. And there is no certainty that there will not be further advances, when the new models begin to come along during the summer months.

The editor has rapped the prevailing styles in feminine dress a number of times but he has never dared to say so much as a leading English lady writes as follows:

"That it is a sign of the times, when frocks are fashioned to reveal rather than clothe, when women have but one idea in dress (at least that section of womanhood who follow fashions' caprices), to become audaciously daring. Bare necks began it. Most of us were glad to discard the disfiguring collar. But the 'line of revelation' began shriveling and shriveled until the bare-back vogue came in for evening exploration. And as the dresses shriveled from their neckbands, and revealed more and yet more of the vertebral columns of their wearers, they diminished at the extremities, so that comparisons of calves was easy. A few ostrich feathers, a rope of pearls, a wisp of chiffon, a breast plate, forms a woman's evening robe, and like the cucumber-Madame's shivers from the more striking effect of nudity the more delighted is the wearer. Just exactly why do women wear nude fashions? Why do they seek to reveal as much as possible of their bodies? I do not pretend to knowledge of why creates a mode, but I do know that women themselves make it. No world-famous, or infamous, designer could foist a fashion on women if women themselves refused to take up that fashion. It follows, then, that the naked vogue is pleasing to women. Bullfrogs in the pond today make one think of butchers' shops, and I have heard more than one man laugh over woman's attempt to make a public display of her body. Why does she do it?"

P.S.—Since writing the above, the editor tells me that some members of the Courier staff were reading the copy, and one remarked "Wonder if she is deformed? I must write and ask her." A.

COUNCIL CONSIDERS MANY MATTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

Complaint Regarding Cattle Disposed Of—Truckmen's Charges Again Deferred—New Water Rates Ready, etc.

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held last night. Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Councillors Anderson, McPhee, S. A. Keen, George Keen, W. P. Reed, M. D. and R. C. C. Smallie.

The minutes of the last regular meeting of the Council were read and approved.

The monthly report of G. A. Vye, Superintendent of Streets and Water was read as follows:

Digby N.S. May 31st, 1920.
To His Worship the Mayor and Gentlemen:—I beg to submit the following report: Work was done on King, Sydney, West, Warwick Sts., Second Ave., Victoria Road and Sable grounds. No work was done on North Water and Queen Sts. Road machines used on Green Point road from just above Raguette bridge to North side of town. Cut bushes from Green Point Road. Cleaned up leaves and rubbish. Repairs made to sidewalks on First Avenue and Prince William Street. Curbs placed at corner of Moniac and Mount Street. Street cleaned at corner of First Avenue and Warwick Street. Stones raked from streets.

New service system put in for Mr. Westwater, Water Street. Mr. Tebo, Warwick Street. Mr. Spinnery, West Street. D. A. R. station, Prince William Street. D. A. R. water tank at Raguette. Service systems taken up and repaired for J. E. Peck, H. B. Peck. Pipe leading from Reservoir to Church Street put down and repaired made to look at Reservoir.

G. A. Vye.

On motion the report was received and adopted.

The quarterly report of E. Du Vernet, M. D., health officer, was read as follows:

Digby May 31st, 1920.
To the Mayor and Town Councillors of Digby.

Gentlemen:—I herein submit my report for the quarter just ended. Early in March the Town was again visited by influenza which fortunately did not reach a panic level, but caused many only few houses. Several never made its appearance, the first time in a number of years. It was of a mild type and subsided to the two houses in which it originated.

The sewer along the water front have been inspected and many of them were found to be broken up and out of commission. The owners of them have been notified to have them repaired at once.

A number of complaints re unsanitary conditions have been received and attended to.

E. Du Vernet, M. D.
M. H. O.

On motion the report was received and adopted.

Letter of L. A. Sings, complaining of cattle going at large on the streets, was read and adopted.

On motion the clerk was directed to publish the by-law concerning cattle going at large in the "Courier".

Letter of Ernest H. Blois re. Pyne children was read and on motion ordered to be placed on file.

A copy of the order made by the Railway Commission in reference to the closing of Prince William Street for station purposes was read and on motion ordered to be placed on file.

Councillor Reid reported that Edith Vantassel had returned from the Victoria General Hospital and was at home.

Harry Gavel submitted the plans of a dwelling and garage which he proposed to build on First Avenue. On motion the plans were approved.

ed and the clerk was directed to issue a permit to Mr. Gavel to erect the building.

C. E. Walker addressed the council in reference to the rink owned by him. He said he had endeavored to get a purchaser for the building but, so far without success. He thought the town might get a manufacturing concern to take the building for a plant. He offered to sell at a reasonable figure.

On motion the matter was referred to the committee on public property.

Councillor George Keen reported that the License Committee had met to consider the proposed increase of charges of truckmen. The truckmen had appeared before the committee and presented their views. The committee had asked the truckmen to revise their proposed schedule of charges and submit it to the council.

W. S. Winchester stated that the truckmen could not see their way clear to lower their schedule of charges owing to the high cost of feed.

On motion the matter was referred back to the license committee.

The following Bills were reported up by the Finance Committee:—

Norris Collins	$ 3.00
Oliver Rice	3.00
Digby Courier	27.85
Vernon Bent	11.20
H. L. Denison	114.71

T. McAvity & Sons	56.64
Maritime Telephone Co.	6.50
Workmen's Compensation Board	9.65
Albert J. Trolan	1.55
Pay Roll (Streets & Water)	489.00

On motion the bills were ordered to be paid.

On motion the clerk was directed to publish a notice that the discount on taxes would cease on July 1st in two issues of the Courier before that date.

Councillor S. A. Keen, chairman of the fire committee, reported that the committee, together with the firewards, had inspected the smoke house erected by Vernon Bent in the rear of his premises on Water St. and had made some suggestions to Mr. Bent to insure greater safety against fire which Mr. Bent had promised to carry out and the committee had given Mr. Bent permission to use the smoke house.

Councillor S. A. Keen reported that the water committee had prepared a new schedule of water rates and presented the schedule for the consideration of the council.

On motion of Councillors Reid and McPhee, the consideration of the schedule was deferred till the next meeting of the council.

Janet Fairbairn, of Fife, Scotland, who was burned to death on the eve of what was to have been her wedding day, was buried in her wedding dress and veil. The marriage ring was also placed in the coffin.

David's Lintment Cures Rheumatism

A wave of price-cutting is reported in the U.S. Long may it wave.

It is intimated the indemnity of the members of Parliament may be increased, but no mention is made of the luxury tax being placed thereon.

Mrs. Charles Whittick, sitting in the grand stand at Fairground Park, St. Louis, watching her husband play ball, screamed when she discovered that a man underneath the stand was cutting her Spring dress of blue organdy. When a policeman caught him, with a piece of the dress three inches square in his possession, he explained that he liked the dress so much that he wanted to get a sample for his wife, and was afraid to ask the lady for it.

In two years Washington, D.C., consumed 2,212 carloads of potatoes. In the same two years—1918 and 1919—New York consumed 37,000 carloads.

Police have found whiskey concealed in potato bags; but the worst of it is, says the Quebec Telegraph, there is no certainty about it, and the chances are if you buy a bag of potatoes you merely get potatoes, even though you pay enough to justify you in expecting something else.

Pure alcohol can be produced from sawdust and pulp waste by treating with acid, at a cost of 50 cents a gallon, said Dr. R. F. Alcohol is one of the most important raw materials in the industrial and chemical world, according to Dr. Rutman. He advocated all-free alcohol for industrial, chemical and hospital purposes.

TO SAVE SUGAR

In cooking rhubarb much sugar may be saved by the use of baking soda. Dissolve the soda in boiling water, in the proportion say of a good-sized teaspoonful to a quart, and pour it over the rhubarb. Let stand for about five minutes, and then turn into a colander to drain. Stew with not much more than half the quantity of sugar you have been accustomed to use.

English stenographers in Cuba get from $200 to $300 a month and do not have to know Spanish, since most large houses there have both Spanish and English stenographers.

A Carlisle, C. B., man, who since his discharge from the army had been subject to delusions, murdered his three-year-old son with whom he was playing, and then committed suicide.

The John A. Roberts' Corporation of Utica, N. Y., dealers in wearing apparel, were fined $55,000 by Federal Judge Howe, following its conviction on profiteering on eleven counts.

RED CROSS CLINICS.

The Red Cross Clinics of Nova Scotia will start from Halifax early in July to tour Nova Scotia. They will traverse two routes—one east and one west. Included in the latter are: Church Point, Pictou, Clyde, Port, Moncton, Isaac's Harbor.

These points are, of course, subject to change if it is deemed desirable to substitute another place in the vicinity.

The work of the clinics will be from early in July to the last of August, so it is possible to estimate roughly from the suggested itinerary the approximate date the clinic will arrive in your section.

It is deemed desirable that the work of these clinics, aside from the tuberculosis aspect, on children, including those of school age, be made available to the public. Arrangements be made whereby the professional men of the clinic see and inspect as large a proportion of the school children of the surrounding schools as possible.

Practitioners, health officers, school teachers, trustees and school boards are requested to make special arrangements to have all children brought before the clinic during the days that it is in their part of the country. The same applies to children not yet of school age. It is intended to provide public health talks and entertainment for all children and parents as attend. You may rest assured that the time spent in visiting the clinic will not be wasted in any way.

Entertaining and instructive and entertaining features will be used.

The Red Cross clinics are composed of dental practitioners, nurses, teachers, trustees, school boards, churches, Sunday schools, Red Cross children's aid societies, county, municipal and local councils and other public bodies is absolutely necessary to obtain the fullest benefit from the money expended.

THE MACKEREL STUDY.

(For the Courier.)

The boat performing scout service among mackerel schools may follow up the migration as far as the North Bay. At present no one knows the spawning ground of those fish, or the exact time they start to return. It is remarkable that in going South they show up only at a few points on the Nova Scotia coast, and yet they must turn the shore quite closely all along. Most of the catches are made by moored nets, and drifting has not yet been tried, simply because the spawning ground of those fish, and their winter haunts have never been ascertained. But those fall mackerel always bring a better price than any of the spring run. Then it is surely worth while to launch a systematic study concerning the route they take and spot where they breed. The science of fish is at present occupied with shoal water species exclusively, and the deep-sea research has been neglected. It is urged that this mackerel patrol be the beginning of better things.

Clip the Coupon and Save $4.36

United States newspapers are paying $240. a ton for some classes of newsprint. Canadian prices have advanced and will advance again in less than three months. Other costs in the production of a newspaper are advancing steadily, silently, every day.

But this won't affect you if you clip the coupon in the corner—in fact you save $4.36 by so doing.

From the front to the financial page The Morning Chronicle is the most readable and most reliable paper in the province. And naturally it has the largest host of friends in the morning field. You can join this army—enjoy the privileges they have—and reduce your cost of reading by clipping the coupon right now. You will? That shows good judgement!

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

This is a Short Letter, But It Proves the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bothwell, Ont.—"I was weak and run down, had no appetite and was nervous. The nurse who took care of me told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I am getting stronger. I recommend your medicine to my friends, and you may use my testimonial."—Mrs. W. A. Brady, R. 2, Bothwell, Ont.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming women's ills is because it contains the tonic strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women are continually testifying to its strengthening, curative influence, and as it contains no harmful or dangerous drugs it is a safe medicine for women.

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Incorporated), Lynn, Mass., U.S.A. Your letter will be opened, read, and answered by women only.

CHAPTER X.

En Route.
Long since Hazel had become aware that whatsoever her husband set about doing he did swiftly and with inflexible purpose. There was no malingering or doubtful hesitation. Once his mind was made up, he acted. Thus, upon the third day from the land staking, they bore away eastward from the clearing, across a trackless sea, travelling by the sun and Bill's knowledge of the country.

"Some day there'll be trails blazed through here by a paternal government," he laughed over his shoulder, "for the benefit of the public. But we don't need 'em, thank goodness."
The buckskin pony Hazel had bought for the trip in with Limpas George ambled sedately under a pack containing bedding, clothes and a light shelter tent. The black horse, Nigger, he of the cocked ear and the rolling eye, carried in a pair of hays six weeks' supply of food. Bill led the way, followed by Hazel on easy-gaited Sisk. Behind her trailed the pack horse, like dogs well broken to heel, patient under their heavy burdens. In the east the sun was barely clear of the towering Rockies, and the woods were still cool and shadowy, full of aromatic odors from plant and tree.

There was no monotony in the passing days. Rivers barred their way. These they forded or swam, or ferried, or made shift to get over, as the most of it. Haps and mishaps alike they accepted with an equable spirit and the true philosophy of the trail—to take things as they come. When rain deluged them, there was always shelter to be found and fire to warm them. If the flies assailed too fiercely, a smudge brought easement of that ill. Each day was something more than a mere toil of so many miles traversed. The unexpected, for which both were eager-eyed, lurked on the shoulder of each mountain, in the hollow of every cool canyon, or met them boldly in the open, naked and unafraid.

Bearing up to where the Nachaco touches from Fraser lake, with a Hudson's bay fur post and an Indian mission on its eastern fringe, they came upon a blazed line in the scrub timber. Roaring Bill pulled up, and squinted away down the narrow lane fresh with ax marks.

"Well," said he, "I wonder what's coming off now? That looks like a survey line of some sort. It isn't a trail—no wide. Let's follow it a while."

"I'll bet a nickel," he asserted next, "that's a railroad survey."
Half an hour of busy jogging set the seal of truth on his assertion. They came upon a man squatting through a brass instrument set on three legs, directing, with alternate wavings of his outspread hands, certain activities of other men ahead of him.

"Well, I'll be—," he bit off the sentence, and stared a moment in frank astonishment at Hazel. Then he took off his hat and bowed. "Good morning," he greeted politely.

"Sure," Bill grinned. "We have morning like this around here all the time. What'll it be you fellows doing in the wilderness, anyway? Railroad?"

"Cross-section work for the G. T. P.," the surveyor replied.
"I'll guess," Bill grinned, "it's a dead end, or is it something that may possibly come to pass in the misty future?"

"I'll hear a clinch as anything ever is," the surveyor answered. "Construction has begun—at both ends. I thought the few white folks in this country kept tab on anything as important as a new railroad."

"We've heard a lot, but none of 'em has transpired yet; not in my time, anyway," Bill replied dryly. "However, the world keeps on moving. I've heard more or less talk of this, but I didn't know it had got past the talking stage. What's their Pacific terminal?"

"Prince Rupert—new town on a peninsula north of the mouth of the Skeena," said the surveyor. "It's a rush job all the way through, I believe. Three years to spike up the last rail. And that's going some for a transcontinental road. Both the Dominion and B. C. governments have guaranteed the company's bonds away up into millions."

The Surveyor Lifted His Hat With a Swift Glance of Unconcealed Admiration at Hazel.

by within a hundred miles of our shack. Three years. It'll be there before we know it. We'll have neighbors before long."
"A hundred miles?" Hazel laughed. "Is that your idea of a neighborly distance?"
"What's a hundred miles?" he deflected. "Two days' ride, that's all. And the kind of people that come to settle in a country like this don't stick in sight of the cars. They're like me—they need lots of elbow room. There'll be hardly souls looking for elbow room up where we are before very long. You'll see."

They passed other crews of men, surveyors with transit, chainmen, stake drivers, as they widened the path through the timber. Most of them looked at Hazel in frank surprise, and stared long after he passed by. And when an open bottom beside a noisy little creek showed the scattered tents of the survey camp, Hazel said:

"Let's not stop, Bill."
He looked back over his shoulder with a comprehending smile.

"Getting shy? You take you uncomfortable to have all these boys look at you, little person?" he bantered. "All right, we won't stop. But all these fellows probably haven't seen a white woman for months. You can't blame them for admiring. You do look good to other men besides me, you know."

So they rode through the camp with a nod to the aproned cook, who thrust out his head, and a gray-haired man with glasses, who humped over a drafting board under an awning. Their noon fire they built at a spring five miles beyond.

By length they fared into Hazelton, which is the hub of a vast area over which men pursue gold and fur. Some hundred odd souls were gathered there, and Hazel saw the steamers that ply the Turge Lake reach the head of navigation. A hand-recording office and a mining recorder Hazelton boasted as proof of its civic importance. The mining recorder, who combined in himself many capacities besides his governmental function, undertook to put through Bill's land claim.

"Well, I'll be," he nodded, over the description. "If some more of these boys that have blazed trails through this country would do the same thing, they'd better off, I think, than anywhere in this country. It's a good bet now. We'll have rails here from the coast in a year. Better freeze into a couple of ice blocks in the snow now while they're low. Be plumb to the skies in ten years. Natural place for a city, Bill. It's astonishing how the settlers are coming."

There was regular evidence of this last, for they had followed in a road well rutted from loaded wagons. But Bill invested in no real estate, notwithstanding the positive assurance that Hazelton was on the ragged edge of a boom.

"Maybe, maybe," he admitted. "But I've got other fish to fry. That one piece up by Pine river will do me for a while."

Here where folk talked only of gold and pelts and railroads and settlement and the coming boom that would make them all rich, Bill bought and sold two more ponies to his pack train. These he loaded down with food, staples only, flour, sugar, beans, salt, tea and coffee, and a sack of dried fruit. Also he bestowed upon Nigger a further burden of six dozen steel traps.

"And in the cool of a midsummer morning, before Hazelton had rubbed the sleep out of its collective eyes and taken up the day's work of discussing its future greatness, Roaring Bill and his wife draped the mosquito nets over their heads and turned their faces north."

They bore out upon a wagon road. For a brief distance only did this endure, then down to a path. A turn to this and eight of the clustered log houses and tents, and the two steamers that lay up against the bank. The river itself was soon lost in the stretches of forest. Once more they rode alone in the wilderness. For the first time Hazel felt a quick shivering from the North, an awe of its huge, silent, cold, and cruelly engulfing thousands as they still remain a land untamed.

On the second day they crossed the Skeena, a risky and tedious piece of business, for the river ran deep and strong. Presently the way grew rougher. If anything, Roaring Bill increased his pace. He kept an unrelenting spirit. When the steepness of the hills and anyone made the going hard the packs were redrafted, and henceforth Sisk bore on his back a portion of the supplies. Bill led the way tirelessly. Through firs, river crossings, camp labor, and all the petty irritations of the trail he kept an unrelenting spirit, a dog, enduring patience that Hazel marveled at and admired. Many a time, wakening at some slight stir, he would find him cooking breakfast.

There is in the world, a curious mixture of method in madness and madness in methods.

The Campaign for Funds

The campaign for funds in aid of Dalhousie University, hitherto confined almost exclusively to the city of Halifax, is now being extended to the other portions of this province. We understand that a committee, of which His Honour, Judge Grierson, of Yarmouth, is chairman, and F. Jones, K. C., of Digby, is secretary, has been formed for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions from residents of this county, and that a canvass will shortly be made. Although excellent work is being done for the cause of higher education by all the Nova Scotia colleges, and all are worthy of every encouragement and assistance, Dalhousie has undertaken a wider range of instruction than any of the others, and is consequently in need of larger endowment. With very limited means in the past, she has made a noble effort, and has sent from her halls hundreds of men and women who, in every walk of life, have done credit to her and to this province. The appeal she is now making is deservedly meeting with a ready response from all quarters, and Digby County should be no exception. Many of our leading men are indebted to Dalhousie for at least a part of their education, and two of the present professors there, viz., Professor Howard Jones, and Professor E. Nichols, are natives of this county.

We need hardly remind our readers how vital is the necessity of placing the means of a liberal education within reach of all our young people. Every dollar given to the cause of learning is a distinct aid to the greatness and welfare of our country. We hope that all classes of our citizens will take this opportunity of giving to Dalhousie according to their means, when the call is made.

Reverence may be exact for the moment, but for lasting sweetness there is nothing to equal forgiveness.

A. S. Hawker, superintendent of the C. P. R. bay service, was in town a few days ago. A Courier representative interviewed him and secured a statement as to why the Empress was withdrawn from service for such a long time this spring. It seems that the company had tried every possible way to get a boat as a substitute but none were available. Vessels are scarce, particularly the kind of vessels would for this service which should have a speed of not less than fifteen knots, with ample room for freight and comfortable accommodation for passengers. The Northumberland, a sister ship of the Empress, was tied up in Pictou, but was not in condition to run as she needed a lot of overhauling. The C. P. R., regretted that inconvenience had been caused but it was absolutely unavoidable.

Your energy doesn't want your temper, but he keeps to see you lose it.

The Courier is pleased to be able to announce that the "Masonic Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia" will meet in Digby next year. We are of the same opinion that if more of the grand bodies of the various societies, as well as church conferences and conventions, realized the ease with which their delegates could be accommodated in this town, the majority of them would meet here year after year. The town is easily reached from any part of the Maritime Provinces, the climate is delightful and the scenery is all one could wish. Pretty villages and towns in easy distance surround us, and, above all, we have the hotels. No town or city in Eastern Canada is in a better position to house several hundred or even a thousand delegates with so little confusion as Digby can during the month of June. All our splendid hotels are open, but the regular travel has not commenced, and there are hardly enough guests to fill one comfortably. There would be no inconvenience to private homes, no last minute looking around for accommodation for the unexpected guest, no confusion whatever, that everyone would be comfortable, happy, and above all independent.

MEDICOES DELVED INTO MYSTERIES OF CLAM BAKE

One of the most successful meetings in the history of the Valley Medical Society was held at Bayside Farm, Weymouth North, Wednesday, the residents, Dr. B. C. Hallett presiding. The afternoon session was devoted to the business end of the Society, while in the evening very instructive papers were read by Dr. Hogan and MacKenzie, of Halifax, and Dr. Hamner, of Boston, the latter's paper being illustrated by lantern slides which added much to its interest.

A 630 a sumptuous repast was served by the proprietor, Mr. Leatt, and after the meeting was over all adjourned to the beach where a clam bake with its mysteries and uncertainties was much enjoyed. Those of the Society present were Dr. Moore of Kentville, Dr. Baskin, of Aylesford, Dr. Fales, Sponagie and Kirkpatrick of Middleton; Drs. Morse and Phinney, of Lawrencetown; Dr. Dykeman, of Bridgetown; Drs. Duvernet and Rees of Digby; Dr. Dicks of Barton; Dr. Hallett and Elderkin of Weymouth; Dr. Thibault, of Little Brook; Dr. MacDonald, of Meteghan, and Dr. Blackadder.

The afternoon session was devoted to the business end of the Society, while in the evening very instructive papers were read by Dr. Hogan and MacKenzie, of Halifax, and Dr. Hamner, of Boston, the latter's paper being illustrated by lantern slides which added much to its interest.

A 630 a sumptuous repast was served by the proprietor, Mr. Leatt, and after the meeting was over all adjourned to the beach where a clam bake with its mysteries and uncertainties was much enjoyed. Those of the Society present were Dr. Moore of Kentville, Dr. Baskin, of Aylesford, Dr. Fales, Sponagie and Kirkpatrick of Middleton; Drs. Morse and Phinney, of Lawrencetown; Dr. Dykeman, of Bridgetown; Drs. Duvernet and Rees of Digby; Dr. Dicks of Barton; Dr. Hallett and Elderkin of Weymouth; Dr. Thibault, of Little Brook; Dr. MacDonald, of Meteghan, and Dr. Blackadder.

Seed-Growing in the Okanagan

The Okanagan Valley Has Many Beautiful Scenes. - This is Penticton.

During the war, the seed supply in Canada was thought to be very low and the Agricultural Experimental Station was asked to make a war measure of its production. Through the efforts of the various stations, farmers were educated and interested in this class of work to such an extent that many of them have now taken up seed-growing as part of their work. The eastern provinces have given special attention to the results in the Okanagan valley in British Columbia, which is especially adapted, with its great diversity of soil, for seed growing. The "grown-in-Canada" idea, also makes a strong appeal.

Mr. R. H. Helmer, Superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Station at Summerland, has extensively promoted the industry. The special function of the Experimental Station is to grow seed from selected crops to supply seed-growers. The Summerland station will grow two varieties of each root crop, will avoid crossing and will remove the crop each year. To guard against cross fertilization, each district is selecting one variety of mangels, carrots, turnips and various standard vegetables. It is hoped by this means to obtain a purer strain of seed. This station has met with fine results in the growing of mangels, turnips, carrots, swiss chard, corn, cabbage, celery, peppers, tomatoes, beans, peas, cucumbers, water-melons, musk-melons, marrows, parsley, alfalfa, clover, onion and other grasses, soy beans, parsnips, potatoes, certified grains and numerous varieties of flowers. It was found that lower seeds which were hard to mature in moist climates were harvested with ease at the Okanagan station. These seeds were distributed to the various farms of Canada and have received special recognition. The yields have been large - mangels have run from 1,000 to 2,500 pounds per acre, sweet corn 2,000 to 3,000 lbs per acre, muskmelons, 600 pounds, tomatoes, 400 pounds, carrots 800 to 1,200 pounds, beets 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, cabbages 300 to 800 pounds. Tomato seed from this farm sold as high as eleven dollars an ounce.

Mr. Helmer stated that it was hoped, by producing seed of guaranteed quality and variety, to build up an industry that would pay the grower, and give the farmers of other provinces confidence in the Canadian grown seed as superior to imported seed of unknown origin and quality. "All eastern men who have visited the district," stated Mr. Helmer, "say that our plants throw more seed than in the east and our harvest weather is ideal for seed work."

growers towards the production of seeds of high germination are the real commercial advantage and the elimination of poor seeds. They aim to sell the seeds on a co-operative basis direct to the grower and the trade. This organization takes the roughly cleaned seed, re-cleans it, tests it for quality and germination and the finished seeds are stored in the Penticton warehouse. The dry climate makes this course most suitable for the purpose.

To finance this organization, stock has been subscribed all over the province to the extent of about $20,000 and is held mainly by seed-growers. Approximately 100,000 pounds of seed will be put on the market in British Columbia this summer.

TOO MUCH SCHOOL.

Our Forget Education is Doing the Children a Wrong, Says a Writer.

You wouldn't ask a child to lift a 50-pound sack of flour, would you? You would know that a child's muscles had not developed sufficiently to attempt a task of that nature.

And yet, long before the muscles inside of a child's head, which we call the brain, have been developed, we overload it with burdens that should not be forced upon it until mature years have made it strong.

There can be no question whatever as to the fact that we are doing the children of the country a serious wrong by forcing them so much at school. The pace we have cut out for our children defeats the very purpose intended. The idea is to create a race of highly educated men and women, but what we are really doing is to create a race of nervous mental wrecks. Three generations under our system will produce a race of imbeciles, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

Also it is sheer brutality. What a dreadful thing it is to rob a child of childhood. And that's just what we are doing. It is unspeakably pathetic to see little children hugging books to school, children rushed to their studies, never permitted to stay away from school, and jabbed up against examinations like deserters jabbed with bayonets.

This system will not produce new Abraham Lincolns; it will not produce new Susan Anthonys.

In the name of high heavens let us give the child its childhood. Let them play in the sand and make mud pies. Let it run wild and harden while it is still a child. The world will put gyves and shackles on it soon enough, never fear.

TIME FOR THE THIRD SPRAY.

(By G. E. Sanders.)

After the blossoms have fallen and before the calyx has closed.

On account of russeting the fruit Bordeaux cannot be used for this spray. The formula that has given good satisfaction in the past is soluble sulphur 1 lb., hydrated lime 5 lbs., arsenate of lime 1-2 lb. to 40 gallons of water.

If Green Apple Bug is present the formula should be 2 lbs. soluble sulphur, 1 pint black leaf 40 to 100 gallons of water.

If biting insects are very bad such as Tussock Moth, Codling Moth, the sulphur spray may be eliminated and 3 lbs. dry lead arsenate to 40 gallons used. This will not only control the biting insects better than a combination spray but it will prove a better fungicide than soluble sulphur.

The pests controlled by this spray are, Apple, Scab, Codling Moth, Green Apple Bug, Tussock Moth, Green Fruit Worm and "Pit Rot".

Year in and year out this spray will probably average the most important in the production of apples, although in many seasons others are more important.

Excepting where Green Apple Bug is present it is advised to apply this spray as a fog mist in Nova Scotia.

HOW FOREST FIRES START.

The rise in the price of lumber has awakened all Canadians to the fact that the forests comprise one of Canada's greatest resources. The land on which our forests stand is in the majority of cases not fit for farming, and consequently the time when no forests are growing there represents a dead loss.

Forests cut down grow again with comparative rapidity, but areas burned over by fire are slow to reproduce, and when trees come on again they are likely to be of inferior kinds.

Thus there is every incentive to save the forests for the axe and to save them from fire. Yet in Canada eight or ten times as much lumber has been burned as has been cut. Our governments and lumber companies are now fighting forest fires, but they still take a long time to get them under control.

From many causes, but camp-fires left alight by tourists and hunters, and cigarette stumps and burning matches thrown carelessly into the underbrush are among the most prolific. It is to the advantage of every citizen, young and old, to aid in keeping down the forest fire evil.

About 20,000,000 feet of lumber is used each year in making clothespins.

WAS A BLESSING TO HIS WIFE, HE SAYS

Nerves Steady; Headaches Gone, Eats Anything Since Taking Taulac.

"It has been six months now since Taulac overcame my wife's troubles after she had suffered for ten years, and to day she is still enjoying perfect health," said Arthur Hillier, a well-known carpenter residing at 25 Dawson street, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, a few days ago.

"Nearly eleven years ago my wife's health broke down," he continued, "and since that time she has gone through her share of suffering. Her digestion was so bad that nearly everything she ate caused trouble and gave her pains in the chest and stomach. She complained of a heavy, smothering in her chest and at times she was so choked up with gas she had to fight to get her breath. Many a night she was in such misery I had to be up for hours trying to help her get relief so she could get a little rest, but often it was nearly daybreak before she became easy. One time last winter she had an attack of acute indigestion and they sent for me to come, as they thought she would die. These spells got to coming on her often, and whenever they did she would be in bed for two or three days at a time. She was badly constipated and subject to severe headaches. Her nerves were in a wretched condition and she was about fifteen pounds under weight. Many times I have seen her so weak she could hardly walk and it was impossible for her to do any of the housework."

"We had been reading about Taulac, and when she saw it recommended by several of our friends we decided to give it a trial. Well, sir, before my wife had finished the first bottle I could tell she was improving, she looked better and was picking up in weight. In all she took six bottles, gained fully fifteen pounds in weight and was restored to perfect health. This was six months ago and she has never been troubled in any way since. She is eating more than she has in many years and it all agrees with her perfectly. Her nerves are steady and strong, she sleeps like a child at night and does all her housework without any trouble. She is free from constipation and headaches and she never complains of an uncomfortable seat of any kind. Taulac has certainly been a blessing to her and she never loses an opportunity to praise it."

"Taulac is sold in Digby by P. W. Holdsworth and by the leading druggist in every town."

MAKING STREETS SAFE FOR AUTOMOBILES.

Now that the auto obiding season is with us again we feel that we can confer a signal honor on pedestrians by publishing "Safety-first" propaganda. So if you would save yourself a broken limb, read the following and we suggest that it be enacted into law.

1—Pedestrians crossing street at night shall wear a white light in front and a red light in the rear.

2—Before turning to the right or left, they shall give three short blasts on a horn or least three pushes in the horn.

3—When an experienced automobile driver is made nervous by a pedestrian, he shall indicate the error, and the pedestrian shall hide behind a tree until the automobile has passed.

4—Pedestrians shall not carry in their pockets any sharp instruments which may cut automobile tires.

5—In dodging automobiles, pedestrians shall not run more than seven miles an hour.

6—Pedestrians must register at the beginning of each year and pay a license fee of $3 for the privilege of living. There shall be no rebate if they do not live the entire year.

7—Each pedestrian before receiving his license to walk upon the street must demonstrate before examination board his skill in dodging, leaping, crawling and extricating himself from machinery.

8—Pedestrians will be held responsible for all damages done to automobiles or their occupants by collision.

Tenders for Highway Construction

SEALED TENDERS will be received at the office of the Provincial Highways Board, Province of Nova Scotia, Halifax, N. S., up to—

Monday, June 21st

1920, for the construction of the following road:

1-2 miles of Broken Stone Water bound Macadam between Digby and Rossway.

Plans and specifications governing such work can be inspected at the office of the Chief Engineer on and after June 11th, 1920.

Each tender for the work must be accompanied by an accepted cheque equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender. See paragraph 14, General Conditions of Contract. No interest will be paid on this deposit while it is held by the Board. Should the bidder to whom the contract is awarded refuse to enter into a contract with the Highway Board within five (5) days after the notice of such award, the amount of such cheque may be forfeited to the Highway Board.

No contract will be awarded to any party or parties who cannot show a reasonable experience, acquaintance with and preparation for the proper performance of the class of work for which tenders are submitted.

If required, each bidder must file evidence of his ability to execute the work to be contracted for to the satisfaction of the Board, and furnish a Guarantee Company's Bond to the amount of twenty-five per cent. (25 p.c.) of the tender.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF LOCAL HAPPENINGS

The death rate by automobile accidents has grown in startling proportions in recent years and now exceeds the rate by typhoid fever by nearly 50 per cent. It is 60 per cent., higher than from suicide or homicide. This is a sad commentary upon the manner in which automobiles are run. In the United States there were only 183 fatal automobile accidents in 1906 and in 1913 there were 6325. Of course the increasing number of machines accounts for the increase in proportion of accidents, but even at that there are more than that necessary. It is safe to say that 90 per cent. of the fatalities by automobiles is due to carelessness or recklessness in driving. The conditions are such today that conservative drivers dislike to go on a main travelled road on Sundays or holidays and take to the woods, where there is more quiet and safety.

I Rather Think the men who are urging home gardens this year are giving good advice. People who travel about the country insist that food production is to be short this year. There are signs of it on many hands. It is undeniable that high wages in the cities have attracted many from the suburban districts who were relied upon for aid in farm work, and now the country is to reap the penalty. Of what avail are high wages if you can't buy food with your money? Better a dollar a day and plenty to eat than a wage in your pockets with all kinds of food scarce and high. Sometime the sensible wage earner will see the importance of this phase of the question.

Harking back to the "good old times" when wages were far from being as high as they are now, but every workman was willing and tried to give full value for every dollar he received, a retired building contractor in another town in talking with me the other day called attention to the rivalry which had existed between gangs of workmen as to who would accomplish the most work in a given time. As he put it, if there were two gangs shingling a roof, each gang would do their best to get their side of the roof finished first.

In contrast with this was the statement of a carpenter recently who had been at work on a repairing job in one of the suburbs, and who remarked that he supposed that if he worked 10 or 15 minutes overtime, he might have finished the job, but by carrying it over till the next morning, he managed to get in another half day.

I have had the pleasure this week of reading the "copy" and the advance proofs of a small booklet of poems, being published for Rev. D. E. Hatt, under the name of "Digby Chickens." As the name implies the poems have reference to Digby in some way, and deal with fact and legend. They are written in English, Acadian-French dialect, and negro dialect and are full of quaint folk lore. We all know Mr. Hatt as a reader, and I think we will soon know him equally well as a writer. I hardly know what steps he is going to take to put "Digby Chickens" on the market, but I do know I would like to hear a Digby Chicken recital and I have no doubt he could fill the theatre any night such a recital should be announced.

A TRAINING SCHOOL FOR TEACHERS

In order to meet the shortage in the supply of teachers, and to provide training for teachers who are unable to attend Normal College, Training Institutes are to be established in various centres throughout the Province. One of these schools will be established in Bridgetown in charge of Inspector Foster. The staff is as follows: M. G. Foster, M.A., Inspector of Schools, School Law and Forms, School Management; J. T. Archibald, B.A., Principal of "Bridgetown" Public Schools, Theory and Practice in Teaching; B. R. Hall, B.A., Principal of Pearsboro Public Schools, Hygiene, Nature Study, Methods in Teaching.

Mrs. H. L. Margeson, Primary Teacher Annapolis Royal, Primary Reading and Beginners, English. The school will open July 26 and will continue for four weeks. School will be in session from 8.30 A.M. to 1 A.M. Daylight Saving Time. This will allow teachers from Middleton to Annapolis by using the trains to board at home. There will be a Saturday session.

The Institute offers opportunity to:

(1) Candidates holding a Grade IX Certificate may receive a third rank M. P. Q. This will enable them to procure a Temporary D License good for one year. These will be able to get a school only on the condition that not enough licensed teachers are available.

(2) Candidates holding a Grade X High School Pass Certificate may have this raised to a Teachers Pass and receive a third rank M. P. Q. This will give them a permanent D License.

(3) Candidates who have taught and are holding a D License on a B Certificate may have their B Certificate raised to a Teachers Pass and receive a second rank M. P. Q. This with the Physical Drill Diploma will give them a C License.

(4) Candidates who hold a Grade A or B Certificate but who have never taught may receive a third rank M. P. Q. and where ability in teaching is shown, a second rank M. P. Q.

Application for enrolment should not be made later than July 3rd. Give age, also send copies of High School Certificates held. Tuition is free. Board will cost from $6.00 to $12.00 per week.

The Physical Training Course opens in Truro July 7. It is hoped that arrangements may be made for those who wish to attend both courses to complete the Physical Training Course in time to enter the Training Institute.

No permissive or temporary licenses are to be granted, unless they attend the Institute.

GET YOUR BIRDS READY FOR THE POULTRY FAIR

The officers of the Maritime Poultry Association are preparing for a greatly enlarged exhibit by poultry breeders of the Maritime Provinces at the Amherst Winter Fair in December next. They met with nearly a complete attendance, in Amherst, on June 8th, to devise plans whereby the Exhibition can be improved in point of numbers and quality of exhibits, prize list, care of the birds and in many other ways.

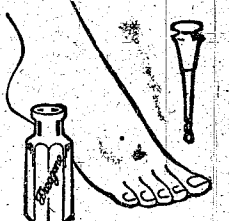

The report of the prize list committee will be recommended to the Winter Fair Board for adoption. This prize list is a great improvement over that previously used and should be satisfactory to every prospective exhibitor. The choice of judges which includes the best in the business, as well as many improvements of a general nature will likewise be recommended.

Members of Executive present consisted of: J. R. MacLennan, Truro, N. S., Pres.; A. F. Houston and J. A. Clark, Charlottetown, Vice Pres., and Director respectively for P. E. I.; R. P. Allen, Fredericton, Vice Pres., Moncton; and W. E. B. Tait, Dorchester, Vice Pres., and Directors for N. B.; T. C. Latham, Alma, Director for N. S., and A. C. McCulloch, Fredericton, N. B., Secretary Treasurer.

Maritime poultry raisers will do well to begin now the preparation of their birds for the Winter Fair which will be one of the largest and best on record.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, and the hard callus from bottom of feet. A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it starts hurting, then shortly you lift the bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

THE RAISING OF SHEEP

In introducing the estimate for his department to the House of Commons the Hon. Dr. T. A. C. Dominion Minister of Agriculture, pointed to the fact that in Australia there are no fewer than 80,000,000 sheep, in the United States 40,000,000, in Great Britain 27,000,000, and in Canada only 3,500,000. As shown in The Agricultural Gazette of Canada for May efforts are being made in all the provinces to remedy this state of things. That is to say encouragement is being given to the raising of sheep in a variety of ways, by pure-bred rams being distributed or sold on easy terms, by the holding of competitions, at which generous prizes are given for the best ewes and for the best flocks, by obtaining the highest price for wool through the Departments, and through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association, by organized sheep sales, and, in Ontario, in particular, by placing flocks on a share basis. Amended legislation has also been passed for the protection of sheep from dogs. As a sample of the good work that is being performed it might be mentioned that in Saskatchewan in the last four years the amount of wool consigned to the co-operative branch of the Provincial Department of Agriculture increased from 179 consignments, weighing 69,404 pounds, for which the average price realized was 17 3/4 cts., to 916 consignments, weighing 394,068 pounds, at an average price of 21 1/2 cts. per pound. The articles in The Gazette would imply that what has been done in Saskatchewan is also being accomplished in the other provinces of the Dominion.

METEGHAN MEN TAKE PART IN BIG CELEBRATION

Sunday was a memorable day for the Township of D'Esouasse. The celebration began with a procession of the members of the local societies, with ensigns and banners, from the public hall to the parish church. There, solemn high mass was offered by Monsignor Cote, parish priest, of Meteghan; Rev. Father L'Archeveau, of Scoudouc, gave the sermon. At twelve o'clock a banquet was served. The unveiling of a fine monument of black and white granite, erected by the township in memory of six heroes who gave their lives and 87 who enlisted in the Great War, took place in the afternoon at which the following spoke:

Monsignor Cote, Meteghan, N. S.; N. Deschamps, Montreal; Dr. Hurtubise, Montreal; G. W. Kyte, St. Peter's; A. P. Hache, Meteghan; Dr. B. A. LeBlanc, M. P. P.; A. Frichet, C. B.; and Dr. J. A. McDonald, M. P. P., St. Peter's C. B. In the evening at a public meeting, a costly banner, brought from Montreal by members of the Executive of La Societe des Artisans, was presented to the local branch.

PLAN TO GROW CLOVER SEED THIS YEAR

While many farmers in Nova Scotia were paying from 65 to 90 cents per pound for clover seed this spring others had their own which they grew at small expense, thereby saving themselves a substantial cash outlay and also providing themselves with an ample supply of clover for all their needs. Many more should plan to grow their own clover seed.

The best way is to cut the first crop of clover about June 10th to 25th. The second crop will then get a good early start and will in all likelihood provide a good crop of seed to be harvested in October. Sometimes a satisfactory crop of seed may be obtained by allowing the first growth of clover to thoroughly ripen but it will not be as clean and generally not as heavy as the yield from the second growth. The farmer who cuts his clover so early in the season will get a fair amount of fodder and when he has added to this the straw from the second crop he will get almost as much fodder as he could get if he had cut his crop in the ordinary way and he will have his valuable clover seed to the good.

A farmer in Antigonish County, Nova Scotia cut one half acre of his clover on June 25th 1919; he harvested from this half acre in the fall 215 pounds of clover seed of prime quality. Some of this he sold at eighty-five cents per lb. at the rate of $365 per acre. Half the yield he obtained would have been a very profitable return for his work. Many other farmers in Nova Scotia could do as this Antigonish farmer.

In respect to threshing this clover write the Department of Agriculture who annually operate one clover thresher in various parts of the Province and who have bonused two other clover threshers one in Kings County and one in Pictou County. The Department is also trying out a small easily portable machine which will handle the clover after it has been put through an ordinary grain threshing machine. Thousands of dollars could be saved by farmers in Nova Scotia and thousands of dollars added to the fertility of the soils of Nova Scotia if many more farmers would copy an example of the foregoing Antigonish farmer.

HAD RHEUMATISM FOR FIVE YEARS

No Return of the Trouble Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. JOHN E. GUILDERSON

P. O. Box 123, Parrsboro, N. S.

"I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up without assistance. I tried different medicines I saw advertised and was treated by doctors in Amherst, also in my home town, but the Rheumatism came back. In 1915, I saw in an advertisement that 'Fruit-a-tives' would stop Rheumatism, and took one box and got relief; then I took them right along for about six months and the Rheumatism was all gone and I have never felt it since. Anyone who would care to write me as regards 'Fruit-a-tives' I would be glad to tell them what 'Fruit-a-tives' did for me."

A New Character

When, four years ago, KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE TEA first appeared, something more than a new tea had been produced—a new character in tea had been created. Only after most searching experiments in flavor-blending were we at last able to develop that peculiarly mellow richness of flavor so delightful to the taste, which has won for KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE the high place it holds. The total annual sale of KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE has doubled twice in the last two years.

We are confident that you will say that it is different to any tea you ever tasted.

Imperial Polarine Available Everywhere

WHEREVER you tour, throughout the length and breadth of Canada, you can secure the grade of Imperial Polarine you now use for lubrication—exactly the same uniform grades are sold by dealers everywhere from Halifax to Vancouver.

Imperial Polarine reduces your greatest expense—depreciation, yet costs less than storage, tires, repairs or gasoline. It reduces friction to a minimum, maintains a piston-tight seal under heaviest engine heat, helps the engine extract the last ounce of power out of gasoline.

Imperial Polarine holds its body, maintains compression—keeps the motor running smoothly and quietly. The Imperial Chart of Recommendations shows the grade recommended for your car. Ask to see it when you stop for oil.

Imperial Polarine is sold by good dealers everywhere in sealed one-gallon and four-gallon cans, half-barrels and barrels, also in 12½-gallon steel kegs, the handy size for the home garage. Buy the larger sizes to save money.

North of Fifty-Three

Bertrand W. Sinclair

"I'm afraid we can't get over here with the horses," he answered slowly. "And if we can't get a pass of some kind—well, come on! It isn't more than a quarter of a mile to the top." Just short of the top Bill halted, and wiped the sweat out of his eyes. And as he stood his gaze suddenly became fixed, a concentrated stare at a point northward. He raised his glasses. "By thunder!" he exclaimed. "I believe—it's me for the top!"

He went up the few remaining yards with a haste that left Hazel panting behind. Above her he stood balanced on a bowlder, cut sharp against the sky, and the reached him just as he lowered the field glasses with a sigh of relief. His eyes shone with exultation.

"Come on up on the perch," he invited, and reached forth a long, muscular arm, drawing her up close beside him on the rock.

"Behold the Promised Land," he breathed, "and the gateway thereof, lying a couple of miles to the north." They were, it seemed to Hazel, reaching precariously on the very summit of the world. On both sides the mountains pitched away sharply in rugged folds. Behind them, between them and the far Pacific, rolled a sea of mountains, snow-capped, glacier-torn, gigantic.

"Down there," Roaring Bill waved his hand, "there's a little meadow, and turf to walk on. Lord, I'll be glad to get out of these rocks! You'll never catch me coming in this way again. It's sure tough, but I've been scared to death for a week, thinking we couldn't get through."

"But we can!" "Yes, easy," he assured. "Take the glasses and look. That flat we left our outfit in runs pretty well to the top, about two miles along. Then there's a notch in the ridge that you can't get with the naked eye, and a wider one you run down into the basin. It's the only decent break in the divide for fifty miles so far as I can see. We're lucky to hit this part of the mountain."

"Suppose we couldn't get over here?" Hazel asked. "What if there hadn't been a pass?" "That was beginning to keep me awake nights," he confessed. "Do you realize that it's getting late in the year? Winter may come—bing!—in side of ten days. And me caught in a rock pile, with no cabin to shelter my best girl, and no hay up to feed my horses! You bet it bothered me."

She hugged him sympathetically, and Bill smiled down at her. "But it's plain now," he continued. "I know that basin and all the country beyond it. It's a pretty decent camping place, and there's a fairly easy way out."

"There's everything that one needs, almost, in the wilderness, isn't there?" Hazel observed reflectively. "But still the law of life is awfully harsh, don't you think, Bill. Isolation is a terrible thing when it is so absolutely complete. Suppose something went wrong? There's no help, and no mercy—absolutely none. Nature, when you get close to her, is so inexorable."

Bill eyed her a second. Then he put his arms around her, and patted her hair tenderly. "Is it getting on your nerves already, little person?" he asked. "Nothing's going to go wrong. I've been in wild country too often to make mistakes or get careless. Life isn't a bit harsher here than in the human ant heap."

"What does the old fellow count on to you when you have neither money nor job? It treats you worse than the worst the North can do, for, lacking the price, it denies you access to the abundance that mocks you in every shop window; and bars you out of the houses that line the streets. Here, everything needful is yours for the taking. No, little person, I don't think the law of life is nearly so harsh here as it is where the mob struggles for its daily bread. It's more open and generous here than here up to the individual. But it's lonely sometimes. I guess that's what ails you."

"Oh, pour!" she denied. "I'm not lonely, so long as I've got you. But sometimes I think of something happening to you—sickness and accidents, and all that."

"Forget it," Bill exhorted. "That's the worst of living in this big, still country—it makes one introspective, and so confoundedly conscious of what puny atoms we human beings are, after all. But there's less chance of sickness here than any place. Wait till I get that cabin built, with a big fireplace at one end. We'll be more comfortable, and things will look a little rosier. This thing of everlasting hurry and hard work gets on everybody's nerves."

The best of the afternoon was still unspent when the last of the day terminated, and Bill declared a holiday. When the fire had sunk to dull embers, and the stars were peeping shyly in the open flap of their tent, she whispered in his ear: "You mustn't think I'm complaining or lonesome or anything. Billy-boy, when I make remarks like I did today, I forget how deep and how happy anywhere with you. And I'm really and truly at home in the wilderness. Only—only sometimes I have a funny feeling, as if I were afraid to look up at these big mountains, and they seem to be scowling—as if we were trespassers or something."

"I know," Bill drew her close to him. "But that's just mood. I've had that same sensation up here—a foolish, indefinable foreboding. All the out-of-the-way places of the earth produce that effect, if one is at all imaginative. It's the bigness of everything, and the eternal stillness. It would be hard on the nerves to live here always. But we're only on a holiday here. I'll be all the pleasant places of the earth are open to us; with that little old log house up Pine river for a refuge whenever we get tired of the world at large. Cuddle up and go to sleep. You're a dead-game sport, or you'd have hollered long ago."

And, next day, to Hazel, sitting by watching him swing the heavy, double-bladed ax on the foundation logs of their winter home, it all seemed foolish, that heaviness of heart which sometimes assailed her. She was perfectly happy. They had plenty of food. In a few brief months Bill would wrest a sack of gold from the treasure house of the North, and they would journey home by easy stages. Why should she brood? It was sheer folly—a mere ebb of spirit.

Fortune favored them to the extent of letting the October storms remain in abeyance until Bill finished his cabin, with a cavernous fireplace of rough stone at one end. Followed then the erection of a stable to shelter the horses. Midway of its construction a cloud bank blew out of the northeast, and a foot of snow fell. Then it cleared to brilliant days of frost. Bill finished his stable. At night he fed the horses therein. By day they were turned loose to rustle their fodder from under the crisp snow. It was necessary to husband the stock of hay, for spring might be late.

After that they went hunting. The third day Bill shot two moose in an open glade ten miles afield. It took them two more days to haul in the frozen meat on a sled. He also laid in a stock of frozen trout by the simple expedient of locating a large pool, and netting the speckled denizens thereof through a hole in the ice. So theirarder was amply supplied. And, as the cold rigidly tightened its grip, and succeeding snows deepened the white blanket till snowshoes became imperative, Bill began to string out a line of traps.

Pure Air is as Necessary as Pure Food

THE ENTERPRISE BLAZER FURNACE heats your home in Nature's way. It draws in the sweet pure air from the big outdoors, moistens it thoroughly, turns it into heat and comfort, and passes it on to every corner of your home.

The best that base burners and radiators can do is to heat the air that is already in the house—that has been breathed again and again. Stoves choke the air with dust and in real cold weather they fall short of their job. Another reason for this is economy. For thirty-five years we have been learning how to take all the heat out of a piece of coal; and then how to make most use of it. The Enterprise Blazer is the result. And it costs a great deal less to install than a hot water boiler, pipes and radiators.

ENTERPRISE BLAZER FURNACE

An Enterprise Blazer will wear for years and years. Every part is made of a little better material than needed, and it carries a famous enterprise guarantee of satisfaction. Get your dealer's advice and write us today for our free booklet "Warmth and Comfort".
