THE EMBARGO AND CONSERVATION

I have been very much amused at some of the comments being made with reference to the embargo on unmanufactured wood. I am not aware that any one ever said that an embargo would solve the problem of forest conservation. I had believed this to be the case. I certainly never would have paid a prize of five thousand dollars for the best method of suppressing and combating the attacks of the spruce budworm, neither would I have paid several thousand dollars in prizes for the best essay on practical forestry, for prizes to fire rangers of all the eastern provinces for the best showing in the prevention of forest fires, for prizes for the best town or municipal forest plantations, prizes and bonuses to farmers for tree planting and for the destruction of porcupines. In addition to this I have advocated eight important forest conservation measures to our Government, namely:

1. Prohibit the export of unmanufactured wood;
2. Reduce the cut on all Crown lands fifty per cent. thereby automatically making a market in Canada for all fire land and farmers wood, as we export half as much as our mills use;
3. Withdraw all forested land from settlement;
4. Prohibit hunting, fishing and camping in the woods in dry periods and at other times require a permit or license for entry;
5. Universal slash burning during the fall and winter;
6. Permanent force of trained, uniformed fire rangers;
7. Electrification of all railroads, where possible, through forested country;
8. Greatly increased appropriations for all forestry and entomological departments, schools of forestry and the Canadian Forestry Association. Forest insect entomologists are just as essential to our day as foresters, we must have both for the future. The insect pest is ruining neck and neck with the forest fire menace in the destruction of our forests.

I place the prohibition of export first as it is the one measure whereby we can obtain immediate and substantial conservation for our home industries, without the expending of one dollar of the people's money.

One of the asinine questions asked is as to what difference it makes in so far as conservation is concerned whether the wood is manufactured in Canada or exported? The answer to this is that when a paper company invests a large sum of money in a permanent plant they will practice forest conservation in every way possible in order that they may be sure of a continuous supply of raw material, buying wood of the farmer just as long as possible so as to preserve their own holdings, while the company who is merely exporting pulpwood has nothing at stake except to strip the country and then move on. In addition to this the people who own this wood have a right to the full benefit to be derived from their own forest devastation.

With regard to any fear that may have been instilled in the mind of any farmer or fee land owner with regard to the possibility of pulp mills not moving to Nova Scotia when the embargo goes into effect it is only necessary to point to the result of the embargo on Crown land wood in Quebec and Ontario; before the embargo was applied there was practically no pulp and paper industry of any moment in Canada, while today it is one of the very mainstays of the Dominion. The pulp and paper industry was being advanced while this wise legislation was being discussed that are being put forward today, in fact the arguments were of necessity much stronger at that time than any that can be presented today despite the fact that American pulp and paper interests have employed some of the ablest legal talent of Montreal, Halifax and St. John to plead their case.

I should feel that my cause was very weak indeed if it were necessary for me to employ legal talent and hire witnesses to plead a case in the public welfare where the jury is the people, and let no one overlook the fact that this cause is being tried before the bar of public opinion and the final verdict will not be rendered by any commission or by any government at present holding office but by the larger court of the whole Canadian people.

I care nothing for commissions, I care nothing for governmental decisions so long as I know my cause is just and that I know, as in the case at issue, that the great mass of the Canadian people are behind my campaign. Two per cent of the people do not elect governments, it's the 98 per cent that finally win out, the two per cent make much noise at times, but false cries today will not fool the people, they have been fooled just once too often. There is no question as to the result of the present campaign for an embargo, then there is of the rising of the sun on the morrow. No amount of American gold, nor all the legal talent within or without the Government can prevent the passage of an act prohibiting the export of manufactured wood from Canada.

The fear that all the pulp mills that we can supply wood for will not immediately move to Canada is groundless. The U. S. Government has at last discovered that their virgin timber will be exhausted in ten years and the Senate Committee now reports that the timber in the State of Washington which is one of their best, if not the best, timbered state in the Union, will be exhausted in eighteen years, which would reduce the average life of their forests for all the States to practically the thirteen years claimed by me in an announcement last year. Under the present circumstances there are any sane man who will say that they will not be only too glad of an opportunity to manufacture pulp in Canada and thereby save their own wood as long as possible?

In this connection I wish to repeat again that I know of at least three pulp mills that will be built in Nova Scotia immediately the embargo is announced.

If the Government of Nova Scotia will appoint the man I have recommended and who is now available and will give him full charge of the fire ranging organization this province can be made practically immune from forest fires. There is no province in the Dominion that has the natural advantage in this respect that exists in Nova Scotia. The im-

A DOG'S RIGHT TO HIS BONE

A legal precedent of considerable moment as affecting the dog was probably established in a San Francisco police court a short time ago. Having a bone in his possession, a dog bit a five-year-old child who was interfering with him. The death penalty was demanded for the dog's act. The dumb defendant was represented by an attorney. It was merely shown that the dog had borne an unimpeachable reputation for a number of years. He was guilty of the charge. His teethmarks in the child's arm were in evidence.

Judge Lazarus, sitting on the case, rendered a remarkable decision. Its logic, equity and humanity will commend it to all fair minded persons who favor a square deal for the dog. The judge's decision is reported substantially as follows: "This dog has done nothing to deserve death. The evidence has shown that he was gnawing upon a bone. That bone was his own property and what more valuable property could a dog have than a large, juicy bone."

"Anyone trying to deprive a dog of such property has violated the latter's most sacred property rights, and it is an invasion which the dog has a right to prevent with force."

"No one would condemn the man who shot a burglar. Yet, if we can get the viewpoint of the dog, his provocation was as great as would be the man's."

"Judges should always try to comprehend the emotions which actuated the animal on trial."

"Had I or any other man been in that dog's place, undoubtedly we would have done as did the dog—try at all hazards to protect our property."

"Though their actions may sometimes appear uncomprehensible, perhaps some superior being looking down on us may find our so-called ethical actions, just as puzzling."

"The case is dismissed."

Why You Should Use a Mild Soap

Harsh soap dries the natural oils and is apt to irritate the skin and make it scaly.

In the mild, soothing, creamy lather of Palmolive you have an ideal cleanser. It is lotion-like in its action. It soothes while it cleanses.

Artificial application of rouge and powder may lend your skin the appearance of smooth freshness, but when this is washed off, what a cruel revelation!

You can easily possess a fine complexion by giving your skin proper care. Instead of putting your skin to sleep with cold creams and cosmetics, wake it up with soap and water. Cleanse each tiny pore and skin cell, revive sluggish circulation. Get rid of the blackheads which are only accumulated dirt.

Use Palmolive Soap and apply it with your two hands. Massage it thoroughly into your skin and remove with many warm rinsings. This treatment makes your skin fresh as a dove.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first-class dealers.

Mrs. F. Rinehart, Campbellville, Ont., writes:

"I had trouble with my kidneys and very frequent urination. This was followed by pains which at times were very severe. The doctor said I had inflammation of the bladder and that an operation might be necessary. To this I refused, and began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. From the first few doses I felt the benefit. The pains left, urination was corrected, and I have had no recurrence of these ailments."

YARNIS ARE DRAWN FROM THE SING

Baron James De Rothschild of a former generation was once asked for his support in a certain business matter. The baron did not fancy the idea and said so rather abruptly.

"Anyhow," said the man who approached him, "I hope you won't eat me up."

"My dear sir," was the reply, "my religion forbids me."

On another occasion the baron, meeting an upstart young Frenchman who had just come from Tahiti, inquired if anything had struck him in that island.

"Nothing particular," said the Frenchman, "except that the women are very pretty and friendly, besides which I noticed a total absence of pigs and Jews."

"Let us both go there at once," my dear fellow," promptly replied the baron. "We shall make our fortunes."

The above are the words of Mr. Ralph Nevill in "Yesterday and Today." Writing of newly rich families, Mr. Nevill declares that the second generation often shows little trace of its origin, and is apt to consider itself superior to the founder of the family.

An instance of this was the host who, when giving a great party, upon being asked: "Is your father here?" replied: "Well, no; hang it all, you know one must draw the line somewhere!"

Here are more of Mr. Nevill's stories.

The second Sir Robert Peel, whose fondness for gambling would break out now and again, once went to see a paracheutee descend at the Alexandra Palace. Walking up to the scene of the operations, a three-card-trick man at the roadside chanced to catch his eye.

"The old swindle," said he; nevertheless he stopped and listened to the man's patter. In the end he started forgetting just for fun and a while, by losing every penny he had in his pocket.

"Do you know," said he, "that you are a swindle, a thief, and a scoundrel? Upon my word, as a magistrate, I do not know that I am doing my duty by not giving you in charge," after which Sir Robert strode away in high dudgeon.

A well-known man was in such reduced circumstances financially that one reason he had to hunt on a carriage horse.

"How ever do you get him to go over the jumps?" asked a friend.

"The simplest thing in the world," was the reply. "Whenever I come to a fence I catch my saddle a sound little crack and shout: 'Get home! Thinking it's the carriage door which has shut, the gallant animal jumps the obstacle like a bird.'"

A rich American financier having purchased a country estate, some neighbors who came to pay a call found, in place of the new acquire, his brother, a man endowed with a considerable sense of humor. Being naturally unaware that their host was not the owner of the house, they at once began to apologize for not having called before.

"Pray don't apologize," was the reply. "I see you are taking me for my brother, the Earl of Eileanan. As a matter of fact I'm only the German!"

The mother of a very wealthy American girl recently hesitated for some time whether her daughter should marry a rather dissipated foreign grandee or an innocent but quiet British peer. Owing to unsatisfactory reports concerning the foreign grandee, choice ultimately fell upon the British peer.

The American lady then telegraphed: "Grandee off; send the Lord."

Host who wished to have the reputation of giving excellent dinners, but who yet wished to economize, adopted various devices to keep the food bill down.

For example, a gorgeous fruit was always in the center of the table, but when the time came for dessert it was handed round with lightning rapidity and in a manner which made people reluctant to disturb the beauty of the dish. The truth was that the fruit was usually hired for the night.

Maori War Oris.

The meaning of Maori war-oris worn by New Zealand regiments on badges is as follows:

Second Wellington-West Coast Mounted Rifles—Ake ake, kia kaha. Be strong forevermore! Ever, ever, be strong!

Eleventh North Auckland Mounted Rifles—Kia Tupato! Be on your guard!

Sixth Hauraki Regiment—Whaka tangata—kia kaha! Play the game—be strong!

Eighth Southland Regiment—Kia Mate Toa! Die hard, warrior!

Thirteenth North Canterbury Westland Regiment—Kia Pono tonu! Be ever faithful!

Fourteenth South Otago Regiment—Kia kaha ake! Be strong evermore!

Ninth Hawke's Bay Regiment—Kia toa! Be bold! Or, be brave! General motto, too, really a welfare country—Kia Ora! Let there be health! Or, good luck!—Tom L. Mills in Adventure Magazine.

Levy Was Misunderstood.

The Parliamentary candidate who was defeated by the blind M.P., Mr. Martin, in East Aberdeenshire, Scotland, is telling a good story of his future. He is Sir Henry Cowan, and he was leaving Buchan after the declaration of the poll. As he was setting into his car with Lady Cowan two men passed, and one of them asked: "What's the lady with Sir Henry?"

The other replied: "She must be the capital lady we heard she must be at the election speeches!"

Were Sorry.

Dramatic Actor: "Did you see how the audience cried last night when I played the death scene?"

His Rival: "Yes. They knew you weren't really dead."

Chicago now has more negroes than New Orleans or Baltimore. Migration has trebled the Illinois metropolis' colored population in twelve years.

Father Gives Facts In Daughter's Case

"After the way Tanlac has helped my daughter, I feel that I should tell everybody what a fine medicine it is," is the appreciative statement made recently by J. Dorais, well-known contractor, 210 Boulevard Montclair, Villa St., Laurier, Quebec.

"My daughter, Bertha, was in a run-down condition for a year or more, and nervous indigestion affected her so seriously she had to stay home from school at times. She became very thin and frail, and was so nervous she could hardly write. She could seldom sleep, and got so she did not even care for diversion. "She has gained seventeen pounds by taking Tanlac, and is the picture of health. She eats splendidly, sleeps like an infant, her nerves are steady, she is strong and alert, and enjoys her school work and outdoor life and exercise like other healthy girls. Tanlac is worth its weight in gold."

WHAT MAKES A LIVE TOWN

How Every Citizen Can Help to Make it More Prosperous
---Every Dollar Spent at Home Helps to Make the Town a Live
One

Stay away from that town. It's a dead one.

Do you want that to be said of your town? Of course you don't, for you wish, as a matter of local pride, if for no other reason, to have your town stand high in the estimation of the world.

But are you sure that you are doing everything in your power to place your town in that position which you wish it to occupy?

That is the question that every person should ask himself or herself at frequent intervals.

When things are running smoothly, when times are good, and when it is fairly easy to make a good living for the wife and kiddies, it is so easy for a man to forget that these things do not come to a town as a matter of course, but are the result of the citizens of the community.

It is so easy for a man to grow careless and think that, because this condition existed, it will continue to exist without any effort on his part or that of the other residents of the community.

That is why it is important for every one to stop and think seriously once in a while about what it would mean to him if the prosperity that makes life worth living for him should take wing and fly away.

Nobody likes to live in a dead town. No one even likes to visit a dead town. That is why you sometimes hear that warning:
"Stay away from that town. It's a dead one."

The town which has the reputation of being a dead one suffers as if from a pestilence.
Business men seeking new locations will have none of it. The live travelling salesman, even, will give it a wide berth. Those who live in it will get away if they can.

When a town is live and prospering, local business is good, real estate values are high and stable, labor is in demand, and wages are good; the streets are well lighted, the residents and their property are protected from robbery and fire, and good schools are maintained for the education of the children.

When a town is dead, there is little money in circulation, store buildings stand empty with "For Sale" signs hanging on the front door; there is little employment for the laboring man, the streets are dark, the schools are crippled.

What sort of a town do you want to live in? There is only one answer to that question. You want to live in a live town and enjoy all the good things that come to the residents of such a community.

The only question then is as to how these prosperous conditions can be created or maintained and it is the easiest thing in the world to find the answer to that question.

If the people of a community will keep their money at home and keep it in circulation among themselves, they need have no fear of being compelled to live in a dead town. If the people will patronize their own business men instead of sending their dollars to the mail order houses, the prosperity of the community will take care of itself.

The local stores, to a very good extent, make every town. The taxes paid by the business men of the community are the principal support of the schools and public institutions.

It is the taxes paid by the storekeepers, to a large extent, that make possible the public improvements, the fire protection, the street lighting and the many other things which make a town worth living in. The mail order house does not pay any taxes in the town from which it gets its money.

It does not help to support the schools or the churches. It does not help light the streets or maintain the fire department. It is the aim of the mail order houses to drive small town merchants out of business, so that the people will be compelled to send their dollars to their merchandise, and they are spending thousands of dollars every month to accomplish this purpose.

If they should succeed, where would they pay the taxes that are now paid by the local merchants? It's a certainty that the mail order house would not pay them.

Every dollar spent at home helps to make the town a live one.

Every dollar spent away from home to the mail order house helps to make the town a dead one.

The issue is a cut one and is squarely up to every resident of the town itself or of the country surrounding it.

The man who does not care whether he lives in a live or a dead town, if there is aught to be said for the subject, but the man who wants to live in a live town cannot get away from it. It is up to him to make his town a live one or a dead one.

DEEDS, NOT WORDS, WHAT COUNTRY NEEDS

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—I would like to write a few words regarding the letters on the embargo by Frank J. D. Barnjum.
He seems to think he is the only man in all Canada who has any sense regarding the conservation of our forest supplies.

He says if the embargo goes on he knows that three pulp mills will be built in Nova Scotia. What is the object in waiting? Is it to still further oppress the poor already here, who cannot get a decent price for their wood as it is? If the object is competition, and to raise the price to the poor man, all well and good. But why wait for the embargo, if in all sincerity Mr. Barn-jum has only the welfare of the public at heart? In this part of the province we already have a mill, but it is not doing all the good it should by any means. All they will pay for a cord of wood is six dollars delivered to the mill, and a man has to haul that, in many cases, six and seven miles. If a man is fortunate enough to possess an ox team, or a pair of decent horses, he can haul a cord at once, but if he only has one small horse, the most he can take is six feet, and that is a whole day's work. He is barely paid for his time and labour therefore he gives his wood away. You will ask why does he do it? He has to, to try to make both ends meet, as it is impossible to make a living on the small farm, no matter how hard a man may work to do so.

The embargo goes on and it will mean hardship and starvation to many in this part of the country, as at present they can get the same price per cord as the pulp company pay, and they can make from two to four trips a day, to the wharf.

We are not all blest with the means to carry on while hard times are here, and we have to live today, (tomorrow we might not be here), and I do not think it was ever intended for us to starve to enrich the future generations. Mr. Barn-jum seems very proud of himself about the awarding of prizes for the best essays, and talks on forest conservation. To our way of thinking it would have been much more to the point, had he taken those thousands and built a paper plant in connection with one or other of the pulp mills, which are already in operation, thus creating one of those industries which he deems necessary, and is forever advocating. If he is afraid to expend some of his capital in such an enterprise, how can he expect others to do so.

A lot of talk gets no one anywhere, and what we would like to see would be deeds, then we would think that Mr. Barnjum was sincere in all he says. Who would care if the embargo did go on, so long as a man got a fair price for his wood at home? As it is we do not get a fair price, and with the embargo we will certainly get no show at all. Whose was the bright idea that conceived the plan of building the pulp mill near Smith's Cove? It cost an enormous sum of money, and was the ruin of many who put their trust in it. Some good was done to a certain number of people who were employed in the building of it, but many claim that towards the last those employed did not receive the wages due them.

Today it stands a landmark of uselessness, when so much was promised in the way of employment, industry and progress to that part of the country. One could write a whole volume on the matter, and then the subject would not be exhausted. As it is I am expressing the sentiments of the majority who have to make their living in this part today.

If Mr. Barnjum can supply the remedy for the bettering of present conditions, we shall be only too ready to receive them.

WHY BARNJUM DID NOT SHOW UP IN DIGBY

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR—I enclose copy of a letter
I have just sent to the Chairman of the Pulpwood Commission and you have my full permission to publish the same if you so desire.

FRANK J. D. BARNJUM

Montreal, October 17th, 1923.
Joseph Picard, Esq., Chairman, Royal Commission on Pulpwood, Ottawa, Ont.

DEAR SIR—
Because of my known interest in the question of conserving Canada's fast-vanishing supply of pulpwood, some comment is being made in the public press, on my abstention from the hearing of your Commission in Nova Scotia, my home province. It is being said that I was invited to appear before you and give evidence and that I failed to do so. What was the reason, is a question that is being asked.

It is true that I was advised that your Commission was to sit in Digby and in other places quite near my home and that I might have appeared had I so desired. The reason why I neglected to do so are to be found in my belief that the appointment of your Commission was merely a political manoeuvre on the part of the government to evade the issue, that your per-quisitions about the country impose a useless expense upon the tax-payers and constitute a wanton waste of public funds, and that your findings, whatever they may be, can have no effect upon the situation, either good or bad, because the government at Ottawa has already taken the means to render such findings abortive should you, by any chance, recommend the stoppage of the exportation of unmanufactured pulpwood, the only means at present offering any sort of an immediate remedy for a situation which is little short of a public scandal.

My distrust of the government's bona fides in this matter, and incidentally my lack of interest in the Commission, is built upon solid ground. For upwards of three years I have devoted the greater part of my time and a large share of my means to bringing to the attention of the government, and that of the people of Canada, the absolute necessity for restricting the exportation of unmanufactured wood if our country is not shortly to find itself in a predicament similar to that in which the Eastern States, the principal seat of the paper industry of the United States, is in as a result of its wanton and prodigal use of its pulpwood forests. The evidence and the arguments which I brought to bear on the government were so convincing, and were backed so strongly by public opinion as expressed by the newspapers and in other ways, that the government decided to take action. It went to parliament with a bill empowering the Governor in Council to regulate or stop the exportation of pulpwood.

After vigorous discussion this bill was passed by the House by a majority of 39, greatly in excess of that accorded to many other government measures during the session; despite the fact that it received no open advocacy from any Ministers on the floor of the House, showing conclusively that parliament, the people's representatives, were convinced of the gravity of the situation and the necessity for immediate action. It was debated in the Senate and passed with practical unanimity and later received the Governor's sanction.

During the progress of this measure the prime minister, in the presence of a member of the House pledged himself that as soon as possible

A Cook's Tour

A package of Moir's Chocolates, weighing 3 lbs., was recently sent to Korea—postage 96c. Another order came in from India. Thus within a few days Moir's Chocolates have circled the globe.

In the long stretch from noon to night meals, a chocolate bar brings the monotony to advantage. Many are very fond of Moir's Mello Milk, made after the Swiss style, a big bar for 10c.

With the coming of cold weather and earlier evenings, indoor functions are more the rule. The demand for Fig Newtons is accordingly very great. Tom Thumb type Fig Bars.

Although more machinery has been installed and the staff increased, it is hard for Moir's plants to catch up with the orders rolling in from all directions.

Editor Wallis Leaves the Courier

This issue of the Courier is the last to be issued by J. J. Wallis, who has been the editor since December 28, 1918. For almost five years we have written of the joys and sorrows of the people of Digby and of the time that have passed the pleasure of meeting very many people, and have made many many friendships. We have to give up the work but after more than thirty years working on small town and country newspapers, we find that we worry over the constant fault finding of unthinking people more than we should and it has got on our nerves. It is hard work to satisfy the public, in fact it can't be done—and it has taken us thirty years to find it out. However, we shall look back on our five years with the Courier with a great amount of pleasure and wish for our successor, Edmund Stratton, as much pleasure in the work as we had. Although leaving the Courier it is not our intention to leave the town—a town to which we have taken a great liking—and any of our friends can find us at our new place of business on First Avenue.

MORE FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The following letter has been received from the Town of Sackville, N. B., in connection with the operation of their 50 H. P. Fairbanks Morse type of oil engine.

We installed one of your engines three years ago and have found it entirely satisfactory in every way. It is very economical and has developed its rated power on less fuel than the contract called for and has been running with the engine in every way. In fact, this engine has carried as high as 75 and 80 horsepower for a short time.

It is your continuous running through the day with a load ranging from between 70 and 75 horsepower.

This engine has been so satisfactory that we have been considering the installation of two larger units; one 200 horsepower and one 100 horsepower.

The Eastern Electric and Development Co. Ltd.

C. W. FAWCETT, President.

The Fairbanks Morse Co.'s guarantee on the above engine is:

This engine will run on a fuel consumption of 0.50 pounds of approved fuel oil per brake horsepower hour at fuel load on the engine; 0.52 pounds at three-quarters load and 0.60 pounds at one-half load.

The guarantee on the 75 horsepower engine is as follows:

This engine will run on a fuel consumption of 0.51 pounds of approved fuel oil per brake horsepower hour at fuel load on the engine; 0.55 pounds at three-quarters load, and 0.65 pounds at one-half load.

Lubricating oil guarantee on the above engine is as follows:

This engine will operate for 2000 rated horsepower hours on an oil consumption of one gallon of new unused lubricating oil of an approved grade.

When these engines are direct connected to Fairbanks Morse alternators current can be supplied at the switchboard at a cost of one and one-third cents per K. W. H. F. MARR, Canadian, Fairbanks Morse Co.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE

Home Division, Sons of Temperance, Smith's Cove, has got into its regular stride for the year and has installed the following staff of officers:

FORMER BAY LINER IN SCIENTIFIC WORK

The former Bay of Fundy liner St. George, which was built by the Canadian Pacific, is being used by the St. John and Digby, owing to her palatial nature and the size of the ship, has been chartered by the Scientific Expeditions Research Association of England, for a 10,000 miles journey to the South Seas. The voyage will last ten months.

The St. George was lying idle in St. John for several months, after being withdrawn from the Digby route, when the war broke out. After doing a duty between Halifax and Bermuda, she was sent on the same mission to the English Channel and never returned to this side. She had remarkable speed and crossed from St. John to Digby in less than two hours.

The St. George will be well remembered by Digby people and the travelling public generally as a fine ship, and the news of her entry into the scientific service will be of interest to many here.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Mr. Hannant will preach at Culloden on Sunday at 3 p. m.

Do you know that Dillon's Shoe Store has a Bargain Counter?

The S. P. C. acknowledges with thanks the receipt of $3 from "A. Friend."

Miss Barbara VanTassel brought a spray of blackberry blossoms to this office on Wednesday.

Why are the electric lights so late coming on now? "I'm afraid to go home to supper in the dark."

Why not look at the "Specials" on our Bargain Counter, it may save you money—Dillon's Shoe Store.

The harvest supper which was held in the Acadiaville African Baptist church was successful. The sum realized was $71.81.

The auxiliary Grace Lee, Capt. Welch, of Westport, is in port loading sail for a partial cargo. She will return to Westport to finish.

Rigging up for the Masquerade Dance at the Travellers' Inn will not be the business of the people of the window of Council's store.

The steam trawler Mikado arrived in port on Wednesday and is discharging 140,000 pounds of fish for the Maritime Fish Corporation.

The beauty of this town is one of its most valuable assets and every effort should be made to preserve it. The town which nature has bestowed here lavishly.

The Digby Baptist choir have visited the Baptist church in Hill Grove, Digby, and their singing has been greatly appreciated as has been evidenced by the fact that many people have been reading music and song books.

The Women's Missionary Society, of Grace Methodist church, held a birthday social a few evenings ago. It was well attended and the receipts were exceptionally good. Mrs. Watts presided and a short program of reading, music and games enjoyed. Generous refreshment ended the entertainment.

Grace Methodist Church Minister, Rev. W. H. Watts, held a Sunday service at 11 and 7 p. m. Morning service, "Outstanding Characteristics of the Early Church." Evening service, "Worship and Service." Divine service will also be conducted at Smith's Cove at 3 o'clock. Preacher for the day, the minister.

Our Tiverton correspondent says: "Three nice large strawberry blossoms were picked by Stephen E. Outhouse on Tuesday. The blossoms were picked on the day with a load ranging from between 70 and 75 horsepower."

This engine has been so satisfactory that we have been considering the installation of two larger units; one 200 horsepower and one 100 horsepower.

FORMER BAY LINER IN SCIENTIFIC WORK

The former Bay of Fundy liner St. George, which was built by the Canadian Pacific, is being used by the St. John and Digby, owing to her palatial nature and the size of the ship, has been chartered by the Scientific Expeditions Research Association of England, for a 10,000 miles journey to the South Seas. The voyage will last ten months.

The St. George was lying idle in St. John for several months, after being withdrawn from the Digby route, when the war broke out. After doing a duty between Halifax and Bermuda, she was sent on the same mission to the English Channel and never returned to this side. She had remarkable speed and crossed from St. John to Digby in less than two hours.

The St. George will be well remembered by Digby people and the travelling public generally as a fine ship, and the news of her entry into the scientific service will be of interest to many here.

FLAG FLYING

To the Editor of the Courier:

SIR: I saw a communication from the dockyard in Halifax, giving permission to a gentleman to fly two National flags as they are flying today. I cannot help but think that the Admiralty has been misinformed. The flags are flying today, the British from the gale, the American from the main pole more than it's depth above the British. Now I think an American has a just right to fly his flag on his own ground but I do not think he has any right to fly both nations' flags on the same ground at the same time, even on separate poles, for the simple reason he cannot be an American subject and British too at the same time.

If it is an insult to a nation to fly one flag above the other, it surely must be an insult to a British community, and I for one, feel very much grieved. Now there are three types of flags or ensigns authorized, the white ensign which the Royal Navy flies, the blue ensign, the red ensign, the red ensign belongs to the Merchant Marine, Canada and the other Colonies have been permitted to put their badge in the fly just to distinguish them and the red ensign being a marine flag, cannot be properly flown on shore.

The only proper flag to fly in my opinion, is that God guided, God-honored flag, the Fortress Jack, commonly called the Union Jack, which flies over the British Kingdom, the greatest Kingdom that ever was in ancient or modern time, so great that the Sun never sets on it. A united family of nations, with common ideals, common interest and a common cause, and all devoted to human progress and peace. Hoping that I have not taken too much space.

I remain,
CHAS. EDWARD KILBY, Master Mariner BAPTIST.

The services will be as follows: Morning at 11, subject "Some Disappointments in the Life of Christ." Sunday School at 12. Hill Grove at 9 p. m. Alms House at 4.30, evening service 7 p. m. A united family of nations, with common ideals, common interest and a common cause, and all devoted to human progress and peace. Hoping that I have not taken too much space.

SEWING CIRCLE GOSSIP

There was some discussion at the circle this week about the best way to pickle tomatoes. Some of the different ways were mentioned. The new book Manager's wife when called upon for her way said she picked them in vinegar. She said that she would tell the circle if it wanted a good cup of coffee the brand to use was KUKOR ORIENTAL COFFEE.

Genius of Lord Tennyson

Eclipsed His Brothers,

Who Were Minor Poets

To the world at large the name Tennyson means Alfred Tennyson. It is likely to forget that there were three Tennyson brothers, Alfred, Charles and Frederick, all of whom drew from their common inheritance the gift of poetry. The two last named are quite overshadowed by the fame of Alfred, and Frederick is least known of the three, but there is at least one production of his for which he should be remembered. This is his "Skylark." Some years ago it was reprinted in an American periodical, with the signature "Tennyson" attached, but with no further claim at least to a man as Henry Van Dyke when asked about it did not recognize it. It was submitted to James Whitcomb Riley and to a Cad, and many others who were questioned were equally ignorant. A letter from Mr. Riley in regard to the clipping said: "It is certainly a poem, but not one that I can write. But for Shelley's 'Skylark,' obviously, this one had not been written, which fact simply clears the master's mind at least to my mind. It is a poem and a fine poem for precisely the same reasons that, originally found in a 'Skylark' by Shelley. Indeed it seems to the subscriber, an almost exact imitation, yet by a poet who recognizes its economy and interest in glowing his critical acumen. It reads:

"The Skylark (signed Tennyson) is certainly a poem, but not one that I can write. But for Shelley's 'Skylark,' obviously, this one had not been written, which fact simply clears the master's mind at least to my mind. It is a poem and a fine poem for precisely the same reasons that, originally found in a 'Skylark' by Shelley. Indeed it seems to the subscriber, an almost exact imitation, yet by a poet who recognizes its economy and interest in glowing his critical acumen. It reads:

It is obvious at once that the poem is in conception, does not show the originality of the "master poet," but its imagery and color and felicity of expression so suggest him that one is tempted to think that the poet had, in an idle mood, taken Shelley's creation and played upon it simply to try his own powers as an imitator. This is probably what Frederick did, for he was credited with being rather a dilettante in verse who wrote primarily for the pleasure of self-expression. This "Skylark" with its poetic borrowings interest when set beside Shelley's famous poem, at least to one who likes to make a study of the creative process. It follows:

How the blithe lark runs up the golden stair
That leads through cloudy gates
From Heaven to Earth.
And all ye birds in the morning air
Fill it with jubilant sweet songs of mirth;
How he seems, how far
With the light upon his wings
Is that shines, and sings?

What matter if the day be dark and drear,
That sunbeams tell of other days
And glow in the light that floods him
And ever makes futurity
Under the cloud-arches wait
He heeps, and sees behind Great unnumbered coming fates Adown the wind.

And now he dives into a rainbow's
In streams of gold and purple he is Shrilly the arrows of his song he
As the storm drops were turned To the sound.
And now he issues thro',
He scintles a cloudy tower;
Faintly he seems to glow
His last notes shower.

Let every wind be hushed, that I may hear
The wonderful things he tells the world below.
This is the dream of, he's watching near;
Hopes that we never dream'd he would bestow.

Alas! the storm hath roiled
The vision of his dream again,
Or surely he has told
A vision to man!

So the victorious poet sings alone,
And sings with light his solitary home.
And thro' that glory sees new worlds
foreborn.

And now he sings, and triumphs
yet to come;
He weaves the air of Time
With chords of golden chords,
And makes the world to clomb
On linked words.

What if his hair be gray, his eyes be dim,
If wealth forsake him and if friends be few,
Wonder unborn her thousand gates to him, Tears never fall, nor Beauty waxes old.
More than he tells his eyes and his heart's secret
Of grief and joy and sighs
Twist joy and tears.

Blest is the man who with the sound of song
Can charm away the heartache and forget
The frost of Penury and the stings of fear,
And hush the fatal whispers of Regret.

Darker are the shades
Of kings' thro' his poor,
Whence come the gods,
Pass through his door.

Singing thro' scales Heaven upon thy wings,
Thou hast a glad heart unto the skies,
He maketh his own sunrise while he sings,
And turns the dusty earth to Paradise.
I see thee sail along
On the wings of dreams.
Unseen, I hear his song
I see his dreams.

Bishop Von Medall.

The only bishop who has received a medal for life-saving is the Bishop of Dover, England, Dr. Blibrough. It was when he was a curate in Tyne Dock. A pit lad fell into a coal-pool deck, and in spite of the heavy foot drop and the dark, eddying hole on the water, Dr. Blibrough dived in and rescued the drowning boy. For this he received the Royal Humane Society's medal.

Mr. E. O'Leary is well-known in Halifax as a member of the crew of the Government cable boat "Tyrian." He has been bothered for some time with digestive troubles, but happily heard of Dreco, which speedily helped him.

"Indigestion and stomach disorders had bothered me a long time," said Mr. O'Leary. "I could get nothing to help me overcome these ailments. My stomach was in such bad condition that I was afraid to eat. Gas would form after each meal and cause awful pains and a bitter taste in my mouth. I was also constipated and troubled with my kidneys."

"I am much better now, thanks to your wonderful medicine, Dreco. Have no more gas or pains, nor am I troubled with constipation. Dreco deserves all the praise it is getting and I strongly advise everybody who has troubles such as mine, to use it."

Dreco is especially prepared from herbs, roots, bark and leaves as a corrective for digestive troubles. It tones and regulates the organs, restoring them to normal, healthy action. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs, and is valuable at all times as a tonic for run-down systems.

THE "BLUENOSE"

Staunch Defender in the forthcoming International Sailing Event is finished with CANADA PAINT PRODUCTS

When the "Bluenose" sails out to defend its title against the American Challenger everything possible will have been done to make this Canadian Craft staunch and seaworthy to the last degree.

For the "Bluenose" is out to win! And to assure her winning, the men who man her are sparing no pains and neglecting no detail to make her more trim and more fit to race for Canada this year than ever she has before.

And full well have they done it where the painting of her sturdy hull, her deck floors and her stately masts and spars are concerned. They've used the most dependable and durable Marine Paints available—Canada Paint Company's Marine Products—the paints that will protect the gallant little craft against weather, exposure and the destructive action of undersea life.

And so the "Bluenose"—Canada's pride—swift, strong and graceful, will sail down the line, finished from stern to stern with Canada Paint Company's Marine Paints. Canada's Boat—"Canada Painted"—good luck to her and her stout-hearted crew!

The Educational Value Of Entertainment In The School

By Lillian M. Henry, Teacher of Grade VII and VIII, Bear River

The Educational value of a good school entertainment near Christmas and later on Empire Day can hardly be over-estimated together with the correct observance and suitable exercises for Halloween, Thanksgiving, Armistice Day, Valentine, St. Patrick's, Arbor Day, Easter and Field Day. To work very many of these in successfully requires a full knowledge of the value of time both by pupils and teacher, for much time simply cannot be taken from the regular studies. Nor is there any need of doing so except in the case of the one Christmas time.

The Christmas entertainment should consist of quite a good program, a short, poorly prepared program, even with a tree, does not reflect much credit nor show up many live wires in the school. The numbers should be carefully chosen and given due preparation and pupils should be taught in order to have this entertainment and tree, the pupils, as well as their teacher, should put forth an extra effort so as to crowd out as few lessons as possible. Nothing in life worth striving for is ever attained without this extra effort. This is a valuable lesson to learn at school, for as soon as we leave school this extra effort is required of us. Someone has said, "There is still room at the top," but the top is higher than it used to be. Every calling or position demands more efficiency. Every position is harder, to gain and to hold. There can be no lagging climbing and he who has his feet on the ladder, and does not try to go up, is sure to be pushed aside by the more earnest and courageous ones below. I think of this concert as the concert of the year and sufficient time and work should be given to it to make it the very best the pupils can produce. Of course their minds are bound to be diverted from their lessons to some extent, but I question if it is possible to avoid this even by leaving out the entertainment, for at this time festivities are being held in every home, so even if it were not educational why should the children not have their chance to be merry at this time of the year?

But it is educational and in the highest sense. There is no more effective way of teaching children to interpret what they read, than the preparation of some good play, well adapted, of course, to their abilities. That indefinable something that brings out of pupils is better felt and seen than described—the imitation of gestures, the drawing out of some latent talent lives and achievements of outstanding men in Canadian history, a few facts about the size, natural beauty, and wealth of our vast Dominion or paper on "Our Country's Resources" will lead us all to consider her future. The boys and girls should be led to realize the great privilege of being Canadians and the responsibility that privilege entails. "What can I do for my Country?" is a question we should always keep before us; the proper salute to the flag adds to the effectiveness of the Exercises and the whole program interspersed with some of those beautiful fairy tales.

Last and best a good address should be given to the pupils, making them see that the supreme duty Patriotism makes of them is that they keep their bodies strong and pure and clean; that they train their intellects to be keen and broad-minded, and that they try to develop stalwart, true and noble characters which will be not only a credit to their country, but a genuine asset.

An easy and pleasing way to recognize Halloween is in the drawing lessons. Pupils should have their sense of humor developed too. Cards may be made with goblins, witches, cats, bats etc., and invitations in original style to a real or imaginary party. Of course they dearly love to have a real party or parade devising their own costumes. The enjoyment they receive from it really pays one, but of course this is not so very much an educational point of view. Still we must admit they gain something from the orderly amusement, in the exercise of originality in planning costumes and the parade is really worth while. Thanksgiving can also be recognized in the school by large and attractive drawings of all kinds of fruits and vegetables, grain and fowls, etc., and a talk the day before. Armistice Day and Thanksgiving were to be kept together but some of the cities and towns kept them separate last year and I won-

It is a very real and vivid thing in our minds, for we are not far enough removed from the war to forget or to miss some of its significance. As a memorial to them who did not return, none is so suitable. It is a grand opportunity to impress on pupils the great necessity of peace in the world and to show them how foolish war is. We all know that what is impressed in childhood remains longest. The children's minds should be saturated with the world's desire for peace; then when they grow to manhood and womanhood they will be more disposed to bend their energies to the furthering of peace. The other days can be made equally instructive, and the knowledge gained and the self-confidence derived from all these things will surely go a long way toward fitting us for our various stations in life. Too often students are graduated unready for life and unable to cope with its practical realities.

Now while I am, I suppose, a bit of an enthusiast on these entertainments, I firmly believe in the "fitness of things"—everything at the proper time and in the proper place—so therefore am strongly opposed to having anything whatever bordering on concert work at the examination at the end of the term.

Nothing should be given but that is a school curriculum and teacher and pupils should endeavor to give parents and visitors a clear idea of the work done during the term. No training or extra preparation should be given except the gathering together of drawings, essays, etc. School would be indeed a very beautiful place if we could but carry out all our ideas and the reflex influence would be felt in our communities—all at the best and beautiful in childhood would be brought out and developed. I just think of a successfully conducted school without some of these entertainments as of striking the key-note and no one making melody.

I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and given me strength and health. I feel that I give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. Ida Rye, Glen Allard, Alberta.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

The opening day of the Baptist Centennial celebration was an unqualified success. The weather was all that could be desired and a large congregation listened to a very able sermon by Dr. H. T. DeWolf of Acadia, in the morning.

In the evening the audience was enlarged by visitors from Digby, Smith Cove, Deep Brook, Clementville, and the surrounding country, also the Methodist people in a spirit of Christian brotherhood, closed their church for the evening, joining in worship with us and the many expressions of satisfaction after the service proved a joyful one, which Dr. DeWolf can present the Gospel judged by the first day's work and the interest manifested by church and congregation, the week will be one long to be remembered.—Edm.

Help Came Just In Time, Declares Clark

"If I hadn't got Tanlac just when I did I believe I would have had to give up my business and go to the hospital," said C. H. Clark, 42 Craig St., Montreal, well known contracting painter.

"I don't believe a day passed in fourteen years that I didn't suffer. Every time I stooped to pick up my brush it seemed like my poor back would break. My kidneys had me up seven or eight times every night. I lost about twenty pounds in weight, and was losing three days from work out of the week.

"I've gained sixteen pounds by taking Tanlac and am so well my work is like play. I never have to get up at night, sleep twelve hours some nights, and get up feeling as refreshed as a school boy. Tanlac is priceless."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Worth Its Price

"We have cheaper teas, madam, but I think you'll find 'KING COLE' is worth its price." So said a wise grocer recently to a questioning customer. He was there not merely to serve her, but to serve her well.

He might please her purse with the cheaper article but her final judgment of his service would be on the quality of the tea supplied. He wanted a satisfied customer.

This was one of the many merchants using "KING COLE TEA" in their own homes, and so he could say with sincerity: "It is worth the price."

after the adjournment of the House the government would pass an order-in-council prohibiting the further exploitation of our pulpwood resources for the benefit of foreigners. He was very explicit that in his opinion it would be very much in Canada's interest to do so.

The introduction of the measure in parliament naturally attracted much attention both in Canada and the United States. The American interests who felt that it jeopardized their future draft upon Canada's raw pulpwood, took instant alarm. They appealed to Washington for "protection." They organized amongst themselves a "Committee of Defense" to defeat the proposed action and raised an enormous fund for that purpose. They got busy among the politicians of Canada and they had their emissaries in Ottawa and elsewhere pulling wires with the Ministers. There were also co-related interests in Canada equally intent and equally interested in bringing about a change of heart in the Prime Minister and his colleagues. And soon the Prime Minister and his colleagues began to "hedge."

The first sign of this came when the Prime Minister, while the Bill was up for final reading, told parliament that it was the government's intention to exempt farmers' and settlers' woodlots from the operation of the Act. The second was his device of a "Royal Commission"—a favorite expedient for sidetracking a troublesome issue to "investigate" the subject. (If the government up to that time had entertained any doubts as to the wisdom of the proceeding why did it go to parliament and ask for power to stop pulpwood exports and, having obtained much power, why did it now dodge the issue?)

During the pendency of the legislation authorizing the appointment of a "Royal Commission" the Prime Minister was again interviewed in regard to his intentions and he again gave assurances that his government would very soon put an embargo on pulpwood into effect regardless of the Commission and without waiting for its findings.

His next public move, however, was to give assurance to the British Empire Forestry Conference (of all bodies!) that the government would interfere with pulpwood exports only as a matter of last resort, and if no other expedient could be found.

No sooner had the Commission been appointed than the foreign interests and their Canadian coadjutors, intent on keeping Canada's pulpwood reserves open to their unrestricted depredations, redoubled their efforts to kill any action that might even remotely threaten their interests. The result was that the government on August 14th, 1923, passed an order-in-council (P. C. 1563) exempting for a period of ten years all wood exported under contracts bearing date prior to June 1st, from the provisions of any embargo that might later be applied under the authority which the government had itself secured from parliament. In so doing, the government tied its own hands and the hands of your Commission, because with the farmers' woodlots already exempt, as declared by the Prime Minister in the House, and fee-hold wood "under contract" exempt by special order-in-council, there remains practically no pulpwood which an embargo, if applied, could now effect.

There is something peculiarly sinister and secretive about Order-in-Council P. C. 1563. At whose behest was it passed and upon what representations? Why has it never appeared in the Canada Gazette where, orders-in-council affecting public matters are usually printed? Why was it given the character of a "private" order-in-council? Why have citizens who have applied to Ottawa for authenticated copies of the order been advised that they are not available for public distribution and can only be obtained if the request is sanctioned by the Prime Minister or the Minister of Finance? And, lastly, how does it come about that this order which has been carefully suppressed in Canada and which, so far as I am aware, has received no attention whatever from the daily press of this country (for the reason, apparently, that knowledge of it has been kept from them) is printed in full in the "strictly confidential and for your personal use only bulletins issued by the American interests who have all along exerted every effort to defeat this Canadian legislation for the education and, doubtless, the comfort of the members!

The government's insincerity was further evidenced by the fact that it already had at its command all the worthwhile information on the subject in the form of official data gathered by its own agents, showing that the appointment of your commission was merely a subterfuge. I myself offered to bear the entire expense of a four months' investigation by any representatives they might name, the investigation to take place in the actual woods, if the government would consent, and was informed by a responsible Minister that such a proceeding was unnecessary as he was already convinced that my statements of fact were correct.

Notwithstanding this milestone about its neck, your Commission, Mr. Chairman, is travelling about Canada at public expense, enquiring into conditions supposedly affecting Canada's supply of pulpwood. Appearing before you are some of the highest paid lawyers in Canada, openly and zealously representing the American interests that employ them. There are no lawyers there representing the Canadian public. So far the majority of witnesses have been hand-picked—picked by the same American interests that are employing the high priced lawyers. Their "testimony" thus far amounts no more than to an expression of personal opinion, their opinion being that their pocket-books and those of the American interests they represent are likely to suffer if an embargo is placed on pulpwood. No real facts have yet been put before you. One witness who had the temerity to come forward, bent on presenting the Canadian side of the issue, was subjected to a merciless cross-examination by the eminent lawyers employed to protect the American interests. He was brow-beaten and made to feel that he was an unwelcome intruder. But, apart from the manner and the matter of your hearings, is Announcement has been made that a Government wireless station is to be erected on St. Paul's Island, which stands in the entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, off the most north-easterly point of Nova Scotia. One hundred and forty thousand Canadian school boys have been banded into an army of guards to watch for and prevent forest fires in the Dominion this year, according to an announcement made by the Canadian Forestry Association. The new organization, which is known as the Young Canadians' Forest League, will, it is expected, save several million dollars' worth of timber from fire ravages.

That "prospects for increased immigration into Canada are excellent" was one of the most important statements made by E. W. Beatty, K.C., upon his return from an extended tour of England and European capitals. The president of the Canada Pacific Railway believes Canada is progressing in the matter of immigration, but that efforts are essential, he considers, to offset erroneous impressions abroad that Canada does not require new settlers.

A record run between Winnipeg and Quebec was recently made by a special Canadian Pacific train when passengers from the Orient were, through delay caused by landslides in danger of missing their connection with the C.P.S.S. "Empress of Scotland" at the eastern port. The train covered the 1,579 miles in a little over 36 hours whereas the schedule time for trains between these two cities is 53 hours. The passengers had crossed the Pacific on the C.P.S.S. "Empress of Russia" and were taking advantage of the 21 day Orient-to-Europe service of the Canadian Pacific.

The United States has invested in Canada $2,500,000,000, according to the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, which has just completed a survey of Canadian industry and the amount of United States capital invested. Of the total sum invested, $1,200,000,000 is in bonds, and the remainder in farms, mortgages, small businesses, industrial enterprises, banking and private loans. It is computed that more than 200 branch factories have been opened in Canada by United States concerns in 1919, and a great number in 1920 and 1921, and that late in 1922 the number of these came to 700.

A colic dog is reported to have saved the life of a London West girl, while accompanying the child to a nearby store. On the way she stopped on the G. E. R. railroad tracks in the path of a westbound dier. Realizing the child's peril, the dog threw himself against her with sufficient impact to knock her clear of danger, and was cut to pieces by the train before he could regain safety.

The girl's mother tried to discourage the dog from going when the daughter started for the store, but he went, and was the means of saving the child's life, and died heroically as a result.

RETIRE AFTER FIFTY YEARS IN BUSINESS

Large Dry Goods Firm of S. A. Letteney sold to O. Wright of P. E. I.

G. J. Letteney, of the firm of S. A. Letteney & Co., who have recently sold their business in Digby, has earned a rest from the care and responsibility which is ever present in a retail business.

Fifty nine years ago, as a boy, Mr. Letteney secured a position as clerk in Geo. Henderson's store in this town and since that time has been continuously engaged in the dry goods business. Part of that time he was employed in the city of St. John. Coming back to his native town he began business on his own account, and about fifty years ago he opened a store which then would be about where the present telegraph office is. A few years later he took his brother into partnership with him, the firm being known as G. J. Letteney & Bros. The business under the management of this firm grew to such an extent that larger and more commodious quarters had to be built and a larger building was erected on the opposite side of the street. After carrying on a successful business there for a number of years Jonathan Letteney retired, and G. J. Letteney continued after the retirement of his brother. Twenty-three years ago the present firm was established, and Mrs. Letteney associated herself with her husband.

In conversation with The Courier reporter Mr. Letteney spoke with much feeling of his relationship in business with the people whom he has served so many years. Pleasant memories rush upon his mind and friendships have been formed which time cannot destroy.

O. Wright, of Charlottetown, who has purchased the business of this well established firm, is a young man of splendid personality, experienced in the business, and a citizen in whom we feel sure the citizens will receive very cordially.

Disinterested Observer Favors Purchase of Oil Engine

The Courier is in receipt of the following interesting letter from a subscriber in New York City, and we pass it along to our readers. It is a pleasure to receive letters from natives of Digby who are living in different parts of the world, especially those who take such a deep interest in town affairs as the writer.

To the Editor of the Courier:

Dear Sir: As a resident of Digby County for six months every year, and as an interested subscriber and reader of The Courier for many years, I wish to offer my sincere wishes for the success of The Courier under its new management. I shall be sorry to miss my friend Mr. Wallis when, as is my custom, I run in to The Courier office many times during the summer; but I extend to the new editor, Mr. Stratton, not only my good wishes but my promise to send from time to time, during my winter sojourn in Europe, any items of interest that might appeal to the readers of The Courier. I have just read with interest, the issue of Nov. 2nd. I like the new editorial column, and consider it a welcome innovation.

While I cannot pretend to any technical knowledge on the subject, my vote would certainly be for the purchase of an oil engine for the Electric Light Plant; as a careful reader of all the accounts of meeting to discuss this matter it seems to me, as a disinterested observer, that the best interests of the town are not being considered by those who oppose this measure. Perhaps, woman-like, I am influenced in my judgment by my appreciation of the character and attainments of my friend and family physician, the wise and public-spirited Mayor of the town.

With renewed good wishes, believe me to be yours for the good of Digby.

Large Audience Attend Pageant At Freeport

Excellent Music Furnished By Church Choir--Good Sum Realized

The Women's Missionary Aid Society of Freeport presented a pageant entitled "Women of the Bible", in the church on Sunday evening. There was a large congregation, including friends from Central Grove and Tiverton. Representations of the principal Bible women from Sarah, the mother of the Hebrew nation to Dorcas the philanthropist were given by the members of the Society. A group of children rendered, "When He Cometh to Wake Up His Jewels". The church choir gave delightful music which greatly added to the charm of the service. The three leaders who interpreted and introduced the various characters were Mrs. Frank Lent, Mrs. Chas. Morrell and Mrs. Fred Harris. The collection for missions realized $24.

A baptismal service was held on Sunday morning at 10.30, when Mrs. Rodolph Thuermer was baptized. The Thanksgiving sermon was given at the morning service, the text was psalm 118, verse 1. Special appeals for remembrance of the Armistice of 1918 were included in the sermon and thanksgiving for the harvest, christian homes, religious privileges, and personal religion were expressed. The men's class warmly welcomed Earl Haines from Prince Rupert. The attendance numbered 33.

Armistice Day On The Digby Methodist Circuit

Armistice day began in Grace church on Sunday the 11th, by the solemn observance of the two minutes silence requested to be observed throughout the Empire. Harvest hymns were sung, and a suitable anthem was rendered by the choir, the duet of which was taken by Mrs. Ross C. Smallie and Mrs. Frank Hayden. The minister gave an address on "Thanksgiving Day 1923", in which he stressed the religious value of our National Thanksgiving Day. Three reasons were given why we should give thanks: 1. For the beautiful harvest. 2. For the gradual return of more normal conditions industrially and commercially. 3. For the church and the varied activities. At Smith's Cove in the afternoon, and again in Digby in the evening, the idea of Armistice Day is a "Day of Remembrance" was stressed. In the evening service the members of the G. W. V. A. organization were officially invited through their secretary, and the men attending the service were very heartily welcomed. Appropriate hymns were sung. The quartette "Remember Me" was, very finely rendered by Mrs. Smallie, Mrs. Hayden, and Messrs. Warrington and Dillon. In the anthem the solo parts were taken by Mrs. Smallie, Mrs. Hayden and Mr. Warrington, whilst the large congregation assembled joined heartily in the singing of the hymns "O Beautiful Our Country" and "Lord of the Lands", the latter to the tune of "O Canada". Mr. Watts gave an address entitled "Remembrance", emphasizing our duty to remember the bravery and sacrifices of the men who died on the field of honour, as well as those

Good Roads
And Maintenance

It is strange but true that the man who will finance his business sensibly and carefully, who will buy and sell a house with acumen and wisdom, who will choose his bank with meticulous care and guard his personal financial affairs with the utmost skill, frequently throws caution to the winds when considering the raising and spending of public money for roads.

It is so pitifully easy to arrange to have someone else pay for the roads. A bond issue to run a number of years puts the burden of paying on the men and women who come after us, while we use the road. This is bad enough, as a matter of unsound economics, but it is worse when the money so raised is so unwisely expended as to produce a road which wears out long before the bonds become due. In such cases, and there are many of them!... the body politic finds itself in the position of paying for roads which no longer exist, and faced with the additional necessity of rebuilding the road, and maintaining it, as well as paying the interest and finally the principal, on the bonds which built roads which wore out.

There are many cases where long term bonds are justified, and necessary. But there are no cases where the expenditure of such funds is justified for anything less than a permanent road, so located, so built, so planned as to length, gradient, width, and location as to make it of service to the people to come as well as those who now use it.

It has been said that there is nothing permanent about any road except maintenance is an after thought. It is as unsound to build a road and let it ravel to pieces as it is to build a house and let it go unpainted and uninsured. Paint the house, insure it, repair it, and it may stand for a hundred years or more. Build a permanent road, maintain it as it is used, and it should last indefinitely. Only such roads should be built. To do otherwise is poor business and a detriment to the success of the town.

One Sided
People

There are many people whose opinion on any given set of circumstances can be predicted in advance with perfect accuracy.

Certain people in any industrial controversy always take the capitalistic point of view. They denounce all organizations of wage earners as a challenge to the discipline of society and declare that the country is going to its ruin as the result of the "More pay and less work" spirit.

On the other hand are the extreme radicals, who look at everything from a view of class warfare. They find that the capitalists are always wrong, they are robbers and parasites on society, also that the wage earners are always right, and strive merely for economic justice, which is all they ask.

People with fixed notions could not possibly get a new idea into their heads. They will go to their graves with these immovable opinions.

Life is broader and bigger than these narrow opinions. The world is gradually advancing, and there are good folks in all classes. The possession of money does not necessarily make a man a rascal, lack of it does not necessarily make him lazy and indolent.

Human society is full of oscillations. At due time the greatest peril may come from one political party and one element of people. When that party or that element gets too much power, it in turn becomes arrogant and over-reaching. The man who wants to be a good citizen must be an original thinker and a constant reader of the news.

so that he can know what is going on and be able to weigh men and events impartially.

You Never Know
Until You Try

Complaint is made in some places that a pushing and aggressive type of people shove themselves ahead and manage somehow to get the leading position in civic life. Yet people of that type may be of more use in a town than the shrinking flocks who lack the courage to take hold of their share of public work.

If you ask some people to take an office in an organization, they immediately reply, "O, I couldn't do that. I haven't the ability and talent for that." Many people who are perfectly capable of taking positions of leadership will take that attitude. This is one reason why a few people have to do all the work of a good organization.

The best judges of whether a person is able to perform a certain task are the people who associate with that person. If some one is invited by the leaders of an organization to take a certain official responsibility, it is a pretty good sign that that person is capable of the job, and is held back only by an excess of timidity.

The people who refuse these chances to exercise leadership, limit their future and contract their share of usefulness.

They come to be regarded as people who lack sufficient force and self assertion to assume responsibility. They may be very admirable and charming persons, but they are frequently failing to exercise talents that they possess.

There was a penalty in the sacred scriptures for the man who took his talent and buried it in the earth. So that people who fail to exercise their powers suffer a contract of those powers. Talents grow as they are used, but if not used they decline.

We Say It
In The Courier

The Courier has been criticised in certain quarters for telling its readers of things that are said regarding the good qualities of this paper and what others say of it, but our position is justified by the following taken from Newspaperdom, one of the leading trade papers:

"The newspaper that fails persistently to tell its readers about those qualities in which it excels is overlooking one of its prime opportunities for successful promotion. It has been demonstrated that self-exploitation is the route to greater success and greater success. It increases circulation, it builds up display advertising. It adds to each classification in the want ad pages, and it makes a fine impression on the national advertisers."

The constantly increasing subscription list of this paper, which carries with it greater advertising opportunities, as well as the reputation which The Courier has of being one of the best weeklies in Eastern Nova Scotia, is something which we are proud of and it is a pleasure to tell our readers. We are not content to rest with our laurels but will continue to give our readers the best weekly paper in every way that it is in our power to publish. The loyal support of all our readers is very much appreciated and has been clearly shown during the past two weeks. We have on numerous occasions been congratulated on the improved appearance of the paper and we wish to thank those, both far and near, for their kind remarks.

Rubs by Rambler

The morning papers of Wednesday gave figures indicating a remarkable increase in the tourist travel to Nova Scotia this past summer over the previous year. This may cause some surprise to us in Digby who were under the impression that the tourist season was much below the average this year. Generally, the only inference is that Digby did not get its share compared with other parts of the Province, and if this is true it brings us back to the old argument that if we are to expect any increase in this profitable business we must get after it in earnest, and not merely expect tourists to come here by accident or because they happen to hear of Digby.

The tourist travel to Nova Scotia next year should exceed that of any previous year. Apart from the natural yearly increase, the advertising incidental to Old Home Summer and the re-establishment of the "Business" service will prove important factors in stimulating travel, and admitting that thousands of additional visitors will not only come to our Province but will actually travel via Digby, we shall certainly be dead to our opportunities if we do not exert every effort to at least double the number of visitors to our own town.

It is for those directly and indirectly interested—meaning the hotel owners and every live merchant and business man who wants to make a dollar—to get together immediately and take definite aggressive steps to get our share of next summer's boom. Hoping for the next six months, or complaining next fall won't do a bit of good as we know from experience—why not try some other method?

A number of the small towns through the Valley have placed signs at their town limits or where their roads join the main highway, offering some sort of welcome such as "To Berwick—Look us over." An increasing number of tourists enter the Province by motor each year and the vast majority travel through the Valley from Halifax to Yarmouth, either coming or going.

Unfortunately Digby is off the main road BUT—if we placed large conspicuous signs at Taylor's corner and at the corner of the main road opposite King's bridge, pointing out that our town—the far famed DIGBY—was only one mile distant, and that we possessed excellent hotels, splendid golf links, tennis, boating, bathing, beautiful drives and scenery etc., we might be able to side-track a few of the thousands who drive by unthinkingly of what they are missing. The point is that we must advertise our town by every means possible, and until we do we may expect to continue having off-years in the tourist trade while other less attractive resorts are booming.

One of the reasons given as to why merchants do not keep their store windows lighted at night is that their electric light bill for the month might exceed the minimum of $1.50 which they have to pay whether any current is used or not, consequently, and in order to be on the safe side, they turn all the lights out at closing time.

Would it not be possible to have the town electrician figure out and publish the cost of the minimum of $1.50 which they might light their shop windows without paying more than at present, we might have a number of them in the evenings, and even if it didn't greatly increased business, think what a cheerful influence it would have on the whole community.

Of course there are some people who don't give ainker's care whether we have our town lights or not, but if we consider them somewhat a nuisance, just as some men consider work an unnecessary annoyance and waste of time, we can consider them somewhat a nuisance, just as some men consider work an unnecessary annoyance and waste of time. One must complain that they ask too many questions and instance a case last summer when the train from Halifax, on which we were returning to Digby, was held up near Smith's Cove. The train came to a rather abrupt stop and one of the trainmen hurried through the aisle a woman grabbed him by the arm and asked "What's the matter, is there an accident?" "No," the man replied, "we merely ran over a cat." "Was it on the track?" she asked. "Oh no, madam, the engine chased it off an alley."

A Halloween Party

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perry, 31 Corbett St., Dorchester, Mass., Oct. 30, the occasion being a Halloween party and reception tendered to Earle Haines and Clarence Campbell, who are visiting friends here for a few days, on their way to Newport, N. S., from Prince Rupert, B. C., after an absence of over a year. The house was prettily decorated with black and orange lanterns, candles, etc., and all the guests wore paper caps. The evening was spent in games, dancing and music, violin selections by Sheldon Miller, old and new songs by Earle Haines, J. L. Haines, Frank Perry and Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Perry, were enjoyed by all. THE MERRY
GO ROUND

It's the picture that costs a fortune—and is worth it! It's the picture which has been a year in the making—and was worth waiting for. The picture with the most magnificent settings, and the greatest cast that the motion picture public has ever seen. The voluptuous, scintillating life of royal Austria before the catastrophe of World War in its all its colorful revelry—the night life of Vienna at the height of its glory, the gayest, most fascinating city in the whole globe. A magnificent, powerful picture of the merry go round of life, whirling and spinning to the tune of pleasure—a mad whirl of love and life; a love such as you have never seen before—a picture that you will never forget! See it tonight at Bijou Dream.

HER QUINSY
YIELDS TO VICKSThe Direct Action of A Vaporizing Salve Is Best

Mr. Joseph Haley of 199 West Milk St., Brantford, Ont., says: "My wife has suffered with quinsy for years, but Vicks Vaporub must have prevented it for she got through the winter without a single attack. We sent part of a jar to a neighbor, who boy was very sick with a cold or grip. He also got relief. Vicks surely salve is in every home."

They used to treat cold troubles externally with tallow, rose or camphor. Recently, internal dosing has been the habit and people naturally, doubt the value of a salve.

For this reason, Canadian druggists introduced Vicks Vaporub, the vaporizing salve for all cold troubles, by giving away dozens of samples to responsible families and every jar sold was on 30-day trial.

The above report is just one of the great many received from enthusiastic Canadian families. With such endorsement and a positive money-back guarantee, every household ought to give Vicks a thorough trial as the home remedy for colds, croup, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrh, neuralgia, croup, burrs, bruises and sores.

At all drug stores, 50 cents a jar. For a free, test size package, write Vicks Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal, P. Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

A BIG THING FOR THE FARMERS

Farmers, you have been annoyed to death all your days with mowing machine troubles, whenever the blades of your knife get worn out or broken it meant cutting and hacking and punching, often times wearing out your patience, causing you to say naughty words, to get the old blades removed and new ones reviled on again. This often meant a trip to the blacksmith shop and a great loss of time in the very busiest season. By using the A. M. T. Suckle Bar which I offer you, your mowing machine troubles are at an end once and for all. The sections of this knife are instantly removed and replaced, simply by applying a wrench to a key which fastens on the blades. They are made to fit all makes of mowing machine mowers. This wonderful invention originated with a farmer and is manufactured by The American Machine & Co., of New York. Address all communications to

Asquith Is Now a Tragic Figure

Unquestionably the most pathetic figure that has appeared in the British House of Commons is Mr. Asquith. The party of which he was once the leader is split into factions, and these factions united have not the strength of the Labor party. Even that faction over which Mr. Asquith himself presides is said to be looking for Sir John Simon to give it leadership. Asquith himself is a spent force. No longer can he dream of one day forming a Government. His career is over, and yet he lingers in the House. The country has forgotten the great things he did in the past. It remembers, when it thinks about him at all, only the things he neglected to do. It sees him as an old man thrust ruthlessly aside by Lloyd George, and it no longer regards Lloyd George as a hero, it certainly does not view Asquith as a martyr. The published indiscretions of Mrs. Asquith last fall in her husband's coffin politically, has lived to see the downfall of the man who supplanted him. It is difficult to believe that he will live long enough to enjoy any more such thrills.

Asquith is a member of that middle class which in the past 40 years has given such statesmen as Gladstone, Chamberlain, Morley, Lloyd George and John Law to the British Empire. He was a member of the shire manufacturing family, and because it lacked the social ambition, he was sent not to one of the great public schools but to the City of London School. There, however, he won a scholarship in Oxford and went to Balliol, then presided over by the famous Dr. Jowett, who is said to have exercised through his distinguished pupils more influence in British public affairs than any other man of his time. Of all his pupils, Jowett thought most highly of Asquith. When he left he said: "Asquith is the one pupil of mine for whom I most confidently predict success. Asquith will get on, he is so direct."

Jowett was not mistaken. Asquith did get on. He became a lawyer and one of the leaders of the bar. He was clear-minded, truthful, a speaker of uncommon lucidity, persevering, and he had an unusual ability to remark both as a lawyer and as a member of parliament of stripping a question to its essential, and never being lured aside by a red herring. Asquith was never popular in the way Lloyd George was. He scorned the arts of popularity, and never sought to have his newspaper friends build him up into a romantic or striking character. At bottom he was a perfectionist, and he was a man to his fellows, especially if he has with the weaknesses unusual abilities.

In the early days of the war Asquith's leadership was not questioned. Nobody accused him of having left anything undone to avert the conflict, or to keep it out of it if it could be done without a sacrifice of honor. But there came a time when there was general agreement among those who worked with him that he was a failure. It may be that posterity will revise this verdict. But as it stands, and assuming it to be correct, one critic says that Asquith failed because he was too old, too tired for the job. The right hand was against the House of Lords and for the Home Rule Bill had exhausted him mentally. He was burnt out. The war was not a success. He responded for a while, and some of his speeches rang throughout the world. His famous "We shall not surrender" speech, which we have not lightly drawn, was one of the noblest utterances of the war.

Toward the end of December, 1918, he and Lloyd George had ceased to work together, and the latter offered his resignation, accompanied by a letter in which he accused the "villain" of his chief, and asserted cruelly that his policy had thrown away many opportunities of victory. The Government over which Asquith presided was a coalition, he having been forced by the shell scandal of the previous year to call the Unionists to help him. The majority of the Ministers seemed to favor Lloyd George. So, Asquith resigned, and Lloyd George took his place. Asquith took to-day that he was the victim of the basest treachery and ingratitude. He never could have acted as Lloyd George acted, but throughout the war he never opened his lips in public, save in support of the man who thrust him out. In the famous "victory" elections he failed to retain his seat, but came back in 1920, and now is the head of sixty members, though it appears that even this distinction will presently be taken from him by Sir John Simon.

Corroborating Evidence

Although it is true that rarely, if ever before, has any archaeological find so plagued the curiosity of those interested in Egyptological discoveries as the treasures recently unearthed at Luxor in the tomb of the ancient King, Tutankhamen, yet there is another side of the matter which it is well to remember. It is said, for instance, that Asquith is entertained that when the papirri and other records are unopened it may be possible to determine whether the story of Moses' departure from the land of Pharaoh really happened as described in the Book of Exodus. Maybe it did, maybe it didn't, but the fact which cannot be controverted is that there is a deep lesson in that description for those with eyes to see, which all the discoveries in the world will never overthrow—not in the least degree.

The judges of the costumes were Mrs. W. G. Blackadar, Mrs. J. D. Rice, Louis Stetelin, Donald Barkhouse, and J. A. The gentlemen's first prize went to John Cormier, who was dressed as a Fairy Queen, although he was given a close call by Israel Melanson, who was dressed to represent a farmer, and who took of his part to perfection. # Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in capsule form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles. Peps contains certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs. In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence healing.

Is the Young Man Safe In Digby?

Able Sermon On Above Subject Delivered
Last Sunday Evening By Rev. W.H. Watts

A very interesting and able sermon was delivered last Sunday evening in the Methodist church by the pastor, and The Courier is of the opinion that every reader will be interested in the subject.

The reverend gentleman took for his text 21 Samuel, 18-29, "And the King said, is the young man, Abraham, safe?"

"Probably the story of David and Absalom," remarked Mr. Watts, "is just as deeply affected as the story of David and Jonathan, only in an entirely different connection and having an entirely different termination. In the case of the latter we have a friendship and love gradually ripening into that eternal quality which has made them the touch-stone of all other true friendships. In the case of the former, however, we have the record of an ever widening gulf down which rush the swift waters of Hate—a hatred which finds outward expression in Rebellion. The question of our text was addressed by King David to the messengers who brought tidings to him of the ending of the War of Rebellion. This evening we want to consider his question in the modern application. Today we hear a great deal about the 'Safety First' movement, and it is a good one. We have great need to more seriously consider the question. 'Is the growing man safe?'

"What does the young man of today represent? Verily, it is in his hand that the future destiny of the race and of the world has been placed. Tomorrow the Community—Province, Dominion, the Empire, and the World will be what the young-men-of-today make them. It is from the ranks of our young men that the future statesmen and preachers, the future teachers and lawyers and leaders generally are to come. They are our young men being properly guarded and trained? Are they breathing in a health giving atmosphere? Are the purest and loftiest ideals of life being held before them? Will the future of the world be safe in their keeping? These are the issues we are called upon to face in this our day.

Let us then consider together some of the dangers which lie in the way of the boy and young man of today. The Change Home Conditions, and Ideals.—Very remarkable have been many of the changes which the passing years have recorded. Some have been good, others have not worked out well. That old time severity which has driven many a highly son or daughter from the shelter and care of home has passed away; but alas; we have today the extreme swing of the pendulum in a collapsed parental authority.

How is this laxness manifesting itself? In relation to Education.—We have in Canada a system of Education un-rapped by any nation in the world. The highest positions in the land are open to boys and young men of brains and grit, no matter how poor they may be. But have we stopped to consider the member of people who can neither read or write, notwithstanding all these privileges? Have we sensed as we should the injustice done to our young people, when on the slightest pretext, we excuse them from attendance at school, or encourage them to treat highly the lesson work assigned to them by their teachers? The fact is, only as there exists the fullest and heartiest co-operation between parent and teacher can there be real success. Perhaps it is easier to loaf than to study; it may seem to provide more fun, to plan to annoy one's teacher, then to really apply oneself to study; but who wishes to engage a boy whose chief reference is that he is a loafer, a graduate, from the street corner, one who has been unwilling to study himself, and who has more or less deliberately planned to make it impossible for others to study? However compulsory education partly remedies parental indifference.

In Relation to Religion.—The changes in this regard represent a tragedy most deplorable. For the most part family Religion has gone. The effects of business competition, and the ever increasing complexity of domestic arrangements have come in to destroy that most valuable and cementing agency in our home life. Our commercial and social ideas today are reaching in a harmful way upon our Religious Ideals. The time was, when the great man was the Good man, when Scrupulous Honesty was the foundation of our commercial life. Today Goodness is received somewhat suspiciously; the big word is Success; and success means, making money and lots of it, quick! The time was when in the parents' thoughts and prayers, they related their young people to the Kingdom of Jesus Christ; books and talks were made to point that way. The Master of the Gospel as the Messenger of God was revered. Today too often the Minister and the Church are talked down in the presence of our boys and young men, and then we profess to be amazed at the incontinence and lack of respect all too common, apparently unaware of the wrong we have done.

There is another thing to be considered very carefully and it is in the relative value we place upon other things in actual practice. In the olden days the claims of the mid-week service for prayer and praise were not highly set aside. Have we stopped to consider the effect that our action must have upon our boy's estimate of the urgency of the claims of religion, when he finds us attending church perhaps once on Sunday, but during the week whilst we have time for whist parties, and dances, and movies, and lodge, we are unable to find time for attendance upon the mid-week service? Rest assured of this, our boys and young men are watching us; they are forming their estimates; they are sizing up the situation.

Beloved, it is one thing to have costly houses; to have the latest in house furnishings and decorations; to have Victrolas, and the latest Jazz music on the market, to have the latest in sensational novel, and the latest in sensational dress; but it is an entirely different thing to have "Homes"—Homes where God is honoured; homes where righteousness and truth are exalted; homes in which pure and lofty ideals are held before the youthful mind; homes in which kindness and firm-

MRS. HENSLEY ON A TRIP TO EUROPE

Interesting Account Of Her Travels Received By A
Barton Friend

The following communication from Mrs. Hensley of New York, addressed to Dr. Johnson of Brighton will prove of interest, and by consent of all parties is published exclusively in The Courier. Mrs. Hensley is one of Barton's summer residents.

312 West 109th, St.
New York City, N.Y.
Nov. 12th, 1923.
My Dear Mr. Johnson:—I was glad to receive your letter of the 4th, and to hear that you are improving in health. I was indeed sorry to hear of good Dr. Dickie's fire loss; I trust he had some insurance to help him out. I also sympathise with the Haight family in Joshua's sad predicament; and still more with the boy himself.

I am booked to sail to Cherbourg, France, by the steamer "President Van Buren" an oil-burning, twin-screw passenger steamship of the United States Lines. I have a fine stateroom, with a bed, I can't stand those narrow berths on the Promenade deck. I plan to go direct to Paris from Cherbourg, and shall spend Christmas there. I have not been in France since the war. I wonder if I shall find changes. I will try to make time to send you a line or two from there. After spending a week or so in Paris, revisiting old scenes, I plan to go down to the Riviera, Cannes, Nice, and Monte Carlo. Don't picture me at the gambling-tables in Monte Carlo. There are just two things that I hate. One is gambling and the other is swearing. Do you know I never said a bad word in my life! A horror of it is born in me.

But though I shall not gamble myself I shall probably have a look at the tables, and watch those who do; I am tremendously interested in the study of human nature, and I believe one sees it there undisguised. Unless I change my mind I shall take a boat from Marseilles about Jan. 7th, and go to Algiers, where the climate is very mild and salubrious. I may go on to a wonderful little town called Biskra, about 40 miles from Algiers; one travels through the desert and comes upon this oasis in the desert, a beautiful place where the average winter temperature is 76 degrees and one can pick off the trees olives, pomegranates, apricots and dates. The great Sahara, desert extends to east, south and west for hundreds of miles.

The middle of Feb. I go to London. I haven't decided whether I shall go by steamer from Algiers, through Gibraltar, or over land through France, crossing from Calais to Dover.

I saw Mrs. Tilley off for Constantinople on Oct. 10th, by the big S. Canada of the Fabre Line. It was rather a coincidence that that should be the name of that particular steamship. Mrs. Tilley and little Elaine left in fine spirits, hav-

Just Talks --- On Digby Citizens

His Worship Dr. E. DuVernet

THESE considerations have nothing to do with men's politics except as a by-product. It may be that some day some of these contemporary portraits about Digby citizens will be published in a book, and if I have my way they will be under the title of "The Inner Man." That's what I am about. They will be published on this basis, if ever. No man has ever known that a word was to be written about him in this way; no person has been advised or warned or his consent asked, and they are the opinions of a citizen who has only been a resident of Digby for three weeks.

Neither have I gone to any man to get his own construction of himself. That's not the point. What I am about is to suggest to future readers, the manner of men, these seem to be to a stranger what impress they are making in contemporary life. What sort of a portrait would I paint. Mine may be no better or more true than others; it may be all wrong; but it is mine own.

I suppose that in this year of the Lord 1923, the most interesting person in Digby is Dr. C. E. DuVernet, Chief Magistrate of the town. I forgot his politics; for I have not much regard for a person's politics, any way. By and large it is accidental; some crook in the mind; some impulse either of hope, ambition, vanity, desire, peace of mind—and (naturally, since real men and women do exist) the sincere reaction of definite purpose for public service.

I never got acquainted with Dr. DuVernet until three weeks ago. I confess that, originally, I had a sort of antipathy to His Worship. I did not know him. Now I am so fond of him that I hardly dare to let in any sort of print what I feel regarding this consistent, idealistic, intellectual and strongly self-reliant man, able and educated to be of great service to society.

But I must not go too fast. I admire him because I feel that he is worth while; that he is a personality which may be of great service to the town; because he has prudence, wisdom, background, knowledge, culture and a clear purpose, as lucid as the dawn and as honest as the day.

The fault that I find with His Worship is that he has never been forced to mix and mingle with life the same as newspaper writers have to do. I said, "fault," it is merely an accident. It is far better for any man to have to fight his way along and thus learn so much about people that he will not have to learn later in life. What good are established principles, if no one has a chance to know about them? What good to have desire to know and to mingle among your fellowmen unless you have the pass-word, in the easy approach, the homeliness, the fellowship. It may be in your heart, but you have had no training to meet us rough-necks and get along with us. A certain isolation results from such accidents that are overcome only by such experiences of legislative bodies. In the Digby Town Council the uniform helpfulness and courtesies of Dr. DuVernet and his serious purpose to be of greatest possible use to the town is appreciated by all. No person goes to him for service in preparing a measure that he does not respond. No one goes to him expecting any favor of vote unless it appeals to his judgment and principle. He is above any suggestion of outside influence. He has a reputation of incorruptibility. He has stood at the very top of the list in estimate and ability and forcefulness as a Mayor.

His life is clean and his estimate of the value of one's usefulness here on earth very much settled. I have restrained my writing into this very positive statement and have denied myself the pleasure I might have had in being more eulogistic. But when I see a man of ability and idealism; of thoughtful habit; with a desire to serve his fellowmen, I feel like making the truth public as I happen to see it. I have found him a most sensitive talker; a most inspirational thinker and a most cultured and able man. The commonest thing I have ever heard about him is this: "I never knew him; I have come to know him; he is a most brilliant and lovable man."

ing imbibed doses of my husband's own particular sea-sick cure for several days previous to their starting. We have had letters posted at The Azores, Lisbon, and Naples; as they journeyed along; now we shall soon hear from Constantinople. I had planned to go to Constantinople myself, as you know, but when I found how little time I should have in the East if I must be back in England by the middle of February I decided to postpone my trip to the Holy Land, Egypt and Constantinople till next winter, and be able to take my time.

My son is playing with Richard Bennett in The Dancers at the Broadhurst Theatre, and I am glad to be able to enclose a picture of

Make Home and The Town Attractive

Why is it the average young man of twenty has an intense longing for life in the big cities?

Why is it that millions of men of maturity in the cities have an equally intense longing for the peace and quietness of the rural districts they left in their younger days?

The country town does not blaze with the bright lights of life as do the great cities. It is small, but it is solid, and substantial, and inclined to be subdued. It's citizens words are as good as their bonds, and their reputation stands high in the sight of their fellowmen, but the variety and excitement that appeals to youth is too often missing. Hence youth becomes fretful, and impatient of restraint and finally breaks the home ties and rushes into the maelstrom of metropolitan existence.

Once in the great city, possibly one in ten succeed, and a few forge gradually to the front. In time these few are known to the world as self made men. The other nine are not so fortunate.

Opportunities are numerous, it is true, but where there is one opportunity there are many young men of varied experience to grasp it.

Thus the great majority of young men from the country who invade the cities expecting to set the world afire, find that about the best they can do is to burn the candle at both ends.

Too proud to go back to the home town and confess failure, they just plug along and do the best they can, disillusioned and wiser but not better.

They are millions who, later in life, long for the peace and quietude of the home towns they left in their younger days.

The remedy is simple. Pull the home town out of the rut and the boys won't want to rush out of the town.

Loosen up on the purse strings and introduce some spice and variety into our community life.

Make the country town and the farm so attractive to our young people the city will no longer appeal to them.

Don't expect our boys and girls with red blood in their veins to be content with spending their lives in a cemetery.

Begin to live yourself, and you won't be opposed to allowing the rising generation to do the same.

Life is full of changes, and there is only one end for the person who is not willing to change with the times.

Every Country Home Should Have Good Surroundings

The interest of the farmer to-day is being directed almost entirely towards means of herd improvement, crop rotation, seed selection, and other very necessary and important phases of agricultural activity. Our agricultural magazines and papers are filled with information along such lines, yet it seems that we have overlooked and often forgotten the chief attraction offered by living in the country. Farm life can hardly be expected to appeal to a young man or woman of ambition and culture, if the home surroundings are devoid of the beauty and pride that practically every country home (however humble) can so cheaply and easily provide. How many of us, who live in the country, realize that we possess what nine out of every ten people in the city strive to obtain. A man owning a house built on a town or city lot of one-tenth of an acre will diligently strive to develop a garden and improve the attractive appearance of his property. The city man does this, actuated by three chief motives—his pride in his home; the greatly increased enjoyment in living in such surroundings, and the added value and salability of a property improved in this manner. The farm home is not limited to a few square feet as is the city home. The farm house can be surrounded by beautiful trees and shrubbery that the average city home is denied.

It is readily understood that the amount of time that can be spared on a farm to attend to the home surroundings is strictly limited, but the style of planning would not imitate that of a home built on a few square feet, and when one considers the very material increase in value, to say nothing of the enjoyment and pride to be derived from living in a home surrounded by trees and shrubs, it is a matter that should receive far more earnest attention than has been the case in too many instances to-day.

VICKS FOR BABY'S COLDS

Nova Scotia Mother Swears By Vaporizing Salve

Some children seem to take one cold after another—never having a chance to build up any strength. This is apt to make them puny and delicate—just sets them back for months.

Every day when more mothers are finding that they can best break up a cold with Vicks VaporRub, the externally applied vaporizing salve. While it acts like a liniment or plaster, it is also inhaled as a vapor, and so gets into the throat and lungs immediately. The cold is often broken up over night.

Vicks is prompt, too, a croup and equally good for skin hurts and itches. Mrs. Sherman Black of 8 Silver St., Annapolis, Nova Scotia, writes: "I tried Vicks VaporRub on my thirteen-month old baby, who had bronchitis. It relieved his breathing when he was choking. Vicks was also good for my other little boy who had the croup. I advise anyone who has a cold of any kind to use Vicks. I think it is the very best remedy I have ever tried, and I have tried many for bronchitis. I even sent to England to get medicine, but none is as satisfactory as Vicks."

All drug stores 50 cts. a jar. For a free test size package, write Vicks Chemical Co., 244 St. Paul St., Montreal, P. Q. Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

Smith's Cove Institute Elects Officers

The November meeting of the Smith's Cove Women's Institute was held on the 14th at the home of Mrs. T. O. Morgan, it being the annual meeting for election of officers. Such business occupied nearly all the scheduled time of the afternoon. The following officers were re-elected for the coming year—President, Mrs. George Austin; Secretary, Miss Irene Rich; Treasurer, Mrs. George Weir; Vice President, Miss Francis Austin; Directors, Mrs. Ed. Winchester, Mrs. H. H. Weir, Mrs. John Smith, Miss Bessie Sells and Miss A. L. Fugate.

The membership list numbers about twenty-two. Reports of committees were read and proved interesting, specially that of the treasurer and home and school committees, the latter showing activities through the year in improving conditions and equipment in the school, and in providing special talks for the children on entertaining subjects outside their regular curriculum. Next meeting, appointed for December 12th, at the home of Mrs. George Weir.

"The Wonderful Heroine"

A subject of conversation throughout Canada at the present time is the identity of "The Wonderful Heroine" whose amazing life story has been published in the "Family Herald and Weekly Star" of Montreal. Living under appalling conditions, handicapped more often than aided by her surroundings, this wonderful woman strived and achieved, where ten million others might fail.

It is now announced that a beautiful painting of "The Wonderful Heroine" has been secured, and a reproduction in true colors, size 18 x 24 inches will be given free to subscribers of the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal, that is to those who subscribe in time.

SEWING CIRCLE GOSSIP

There was some discussion at the Circle this week about winter trips to the Mediterranean. The wife of the new Bank Manager said that she once started, she would like to go as far east as Turkey on the Nile. She thought that if this place were only as interesting as LUXOR and CORINTH it would certainly be worth a visit.

All the popular magazines and newspapers now on sale at Holdsworth's Pharmacy.

Rubs by Rambler

In common with other small towns probably we have in Digby a number of juvenile delinquents or bad boys, and most regrettable of all, some are as young as ten years of age. An incident occurred last week in which two very young school boys displayed tendencies of a very serious nature. These same boys have been more or less troublesome to the school in the matter of terrorizing little girls on their way to or from school. We believe the police authorities are acting in the case, and we think it the duty of the school board to inform the parents of these boys that unless they can exert some influence and authority, the officers of the law will be in and have them removed to the Industrial School.

The father of one little girl attending the public school was promptly curbed he would feel compelled to take the law into his own hands. This juvenile lawlessness was promptly curbed he would feel compelled to take the law into his own hands. The father of one little girl attending the public school was promptly curbed he would feel compelled to take the law into his own hands.

We have little faith that the authorities will act with firmness, the tendency being to let young culprits of this stamp down too easy, altogether overlooking the fact that to spare just and deserved punishment is to encourage criminal tendencies rather than to check them. A case in point occurred last year when one of the same boys accused of the above mentioned outrage, stole a valuable watch. He was arrested with the watch in his possession and admitted his guilt. Moreover he had a rather doubtful reputation. Yet he was let off with a few words of warning instead of well merited punishment, and no doubt scoffs at the law. This shows the grave error of overkindness and leniency in dealing with youthful offenders with criminal tendencies, and we consider the authorities derelict in their duty to the public at large when they fail to administer punishment when due. But a few weeks or months in a reform school than jail, or the penitentiary later on.

We wonder if parents and ratepayers are aware of the crowded condition of some of our public schoolrooms. To be quite frank, we wonder if members of the school board are aware of it. We are expecting one woman teacher to look after over fifty pupils in one class. We say "look after" advisedly, for none of ordinary intelligence would expect one teacher to be able to give the full and necessary attention and instruction to each individual scholar in a class of this size, that it is entitled to receive. There is also the important question of the health of the children. Would you consider that there was sufficient air and ventilation in these crowded schoolrooms? If our public school building is not large enough to accommodate all our children of school age, and apparently it is not, why not arrange to lease the old Presbyterian church opposite and move one or two classes over there? This would be done immediately. In fact the problem was solved a year ago, and today we are no nearer a remedy. Why not grapple with these public problems and solve them to the best of our ability and means?

We have heard nothing recently concerning the night question. A citizen went so far as to say that we never would get any action in the matter of an oil engine—that public opinion would be quickly and permanently ignored. Nice way to run a town isn't it? In Halifax they form a citizens committee to stir up civic consciousness and see that civic affairs were managed in accordance with the will of the majority of better thinking citizens. They are strongly opposed to taxation or poor management and clique rule. As a matter of record, clique rule is invariably detrimental to the best interests of any community.

The Board of trade acted wisely in the matter of protesting against the curtailment of the telegraph service in Digby. By having the telegraph service cut at noon or from 6 to 7 in the evening, as far as the travelling public is concerned we might just as well hang creeps on the station building and have the trains stop without stopping. It looks sometimes as if circumstances were all combined to wipe Digby off the map as a live town. All the more reason why we should pull together and work to boom our town instead.

RURAL DEANERY MEETS AT ANNAPOLIS

The clergy of the Rural Deanery of Annapolis met on Monday and Tuesday last, in the parish of St. Luke's Annapolis Royal.

The Rev. W. Driffield, Rural Dean, presided and the clergy present were the Rev. Messrs. E. Underwood, secretary; Archdeacon Watson; T. C. Mellor, M. Taylor and A. Smith; while the Rev. E. D. P. Parry, rector of St. John's, Annapolis, was warmly welcomed to the Deanery.

Mrs. Parry has temporarily exchanged parishes with the Rev. J. Reeks, rector of Rosette. After the opening service, a portion of the Greek Testament was studied and an exposition of the same read. Great regret was expressed at the unavoidable absence of the Rev. Canon Morris, who is leaving the parish of Middleton. Canon Morris has been one of the most valuable members of the deanery, and his learning and kindly spirit have endeared him to all his brethren. A resolution expressing the regard and affection in which he is held was unanimously passed and he was also elected an honorary member of the deanery. Papers were read as follows—

Contrasts by the Rev. E. D. P. Parry. Mr. Parry was for some years a priest in this diocese and is thus able to indicate the points of difference between clerical work here and at home. "Reminiscences parochial and otherwise," by the Rev. M. Taylor, dealt with his adventures as an explorer and his life in the East, India, and Canada, and his later clerical experiences. "Cathedrals I have visited," by the Rev. T. C. Mellor, was a most interesting account of some of his recent travels in the Old Country. The official Deanery service took place on Tuesday morning at St. Luke's church, when the Rural Dean celebrated the Holy Communion and also preached a sermon. The service was read loud. Monday and Tuesday, when good congregations were present. The preachers were the Rev. E. Underwood and the Rev. A. W. L. Smith who both delivered instructive and practical sermons. The clerical hospitality of the Rector and Mrs. Mellor, the entertainment furnished by several parishioners, the stimulating debates and the lively bracing weather, all combined to render this a meeting long to be remembered. The next meeting is arranged to take place at Granville Ferry.

Common Sense Way For Mothers To Keep Family Healthy, Happy And Prevent Expensive Sickness

All mothers know how hard it is to get their husbands and the rest of the family to take ordinary medicine. Yet, this is the reason why they are bothered most frequently with indigestion, coated tongue, constipation, nervousness and the many symptoms of a general run-down condition. And, unless they get rid of these troubles and build themselves up, they are not able to throw off coughs, colds, sore throat and the more dangerous winter flu that every mother fears.

Try this with those in your family who are in need of a strengthening, nourishing tonic. Just a spoonful of Dr. Thacher's Food and Blood Syrup Tonic in a wineglass of water after the next few meals. Notice the quick difference in the way they look, eat, sleep and feel. This wholesome, vegetable tonic is pleasant to take and usually makes them feel so much better the next day that they are anxious to keep on taking and building up the system. They have proved to themselves what it will do and they will keep up their doses to increase appetite, improve digestion, tone the tired liver, gently correct constipation, regain strength, energy and vigor and have purer, healthier blood coursing through their veins to keep them warm these cool, crisp days.

Get a bottle today. The cost is small and you may well be returned by any of the following druggists unless you are completely satisfied.

Dr. Thacher's is sold in Digby by P. W. Holdsworth and H. E. Jones and by leading druggists in every city and town.

A BIG THING FOR THE FARMERS

Farmers, you have been annoyed to death all your days with mowing machine troubles, whenever the blades of your knife get worn out or broken it meant cutting and backing and punching, often times wearing out your patience, causing you to say naughty words, to get the old blades removed and new ones reeved on again. This often meant a trip to the blacksmith shop and a great loss of time in the very busiest season. By using the A. M. T. Sickle Bar which I offer you, your mowing machine troubles are at an end once and for all. The sections of this knife are instantly removed and replaced, simply by applying a wrench to a key which fastens on the blades. They are made to fit all makes of mowing machine mowers. This wonderful invention originated with a farmer and is manufactured by The American Machine & Co., of New York. Address all communications to

We don't mind saying we are looking for this very thing ourselves and we are gradually getting closer to it. One thing about this loss is that we, all of us, can help regain it and can all share in the reward. "See Canada First" is a slogan and can be applied to the "Old Home Town." How about "Try Digby First" and send away afterwards. You will be surprised at the results you will see in both prices of goods and variety of goods obtainable.

The policy of buying out of town before asking for it at home lead to a condition where only the actual ready sellers are kept on the shelves. It is a simple matter of demand and supply.

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very weak and I had started to take it. ## The Doll Lady Says:

I want little girls all over the Province of Nova Scotia to have this "Wonder Mama Doll."

She is 26 inches tall, more than one-half taller than this picture—as large as a real live baby. Her skin is pink and white, just like a baby's, and she shows her little pink tongue and two white teeth. Her hair is long and curly, real hair tied with a jaunty bow of ribbon.

She has clothes, too, just like any baby's clothes, that can be taken off when you want to put her to bed—a pretty organdie dress trimmed with lace and ribbon, dainty underclothes, knitted socks and patent leather slippers.

She has learned to go to sleep when you put her to bed, and when she wakes up she says "Mama". If you hold her by the hand she will walk along beside you just as a real live baby would.

You needn't be afraid of breaking her. She is strong enough to stand a tumble now and then, as all babies must be.

You will want to keep her "always."

Write to me to-day, and I'll tell you how this little girl can come into your home.

Death Of Popular Lady

It is with deep regret that we record the death of Mrs. Josephine Melanson, which took place at the home of her stepdaughter, Lena Harding, Barton, on Saturday morning at ten o'clock.

Mrs. Melanson was born at Lower East Pubnico, Yarmouth County, sixty-eight years ago, and about thirty three years ago moved to Barton where she has resided ever since. She had been ill only about three weeks, and her death was due to a paralytic stroke. Her husband predeceased her a little over a year ago.

The deceased leaves to mourn their loss one daughter, Charlotte Melanson, and one son, Dominic Melanson, of Digby; two stepdaughters, Lena Harding, Barton, and Marie Deveau, Melville; and two step-sons, Charles Melanson, Plympton, and Hubert Melanson, Halifax.

The funeral was held on Monday morning and was largely attended. Requiem Mass was sung by Father Doucette, after which interment took place in the St. Croix cemetery, Plympton.

Mrs. Melanson was a lady of kind disposition and loved by all with whom she came in contact. Up to the time of her illness she was enjoying the best of health and her loss is being mourned by a host of friends and companions.

To the bereaved The Courier extends sympathy.

Give A Hand

The town owes much to the clergymen who are devoting so much attention to the young people's societies in the different churches. In training the children they are building for the future, and it seems to us that the Clergymen should receive, in this work, more assistance from the laymen of the community. In most cases about all the burdens fall upon the clergy which is hardly fair. If the laity would give a hand greater good would be accomplished to say nothing of the encouragement it will mean to the pastors.

ness are so blended, that homes the dearest spot on earth, a refuge, and an inspiration. Having such homes we may say, so far as the home is concerned "the young man is safe."

(A) Companions.—Should a boy choose his own companions? Should there not be a kindly oversight assisting boys and young men in this regard? Are the companionships of the streets good? Should we not resort to the use of the Curfew Bell as a safeguard in this connection? We have come to hear a good deal about supervised play on public school grounds. What is the idea back of supervised play? This, that there are companionships, the effects of which are evil and vicious, and in so far as it is possible the taint is thus arrested, at least its ravages are being restricted.

(B) Books.—Every boy wants to read. The boy is scarcely normal who does not desire to read. What are our boys reading? Do we know, or care. Who can estimate the evil efforts of a bad book?

"Thank God for Tea! What did the world do without it—how did it exist? I am glad I was not born before Tea."

Thus wrote the brilliant Sydney Smith in the early days of the nineteenth century, and countless thousands have echoed his sentiments since. But if Sydney Smith could so enthuse over Tea as it was, then, what would he say of it to-day, when science in growing and art in blending have brought your cup of Tea to such a high point of perfection.

And what would he think of to-day's cost? At an incomparably lower price you are able to enjoy Tea of a deliciousness Sydney Smith never knew or imagined.

(C) Movies.—The movies have come to stay, but in the interest of our boys we need a much more rigid censorship. But alas, the confession of the many proprietors is that the most popular pictures are those which have the most thrills, and which border on the obscene.

(D) The Churches opportunities.—Thank God, at last the Church is arousing herself from her sleep of indifference with regard to an adequate programme for young people. Today the task and opportunity confronting Church is appreciated. Through the C. S. E. T., and C. G. I. T., and young people's programmes, the protestant churches of our Dominion are making provision for our young folks between the ages of 12 and 24. There is an honest endeavour to safeguard our boys and girls, our young men and young women, to safeguard them by linking them up with the church in every possible way on Sunday and during the week also.

"Is the young man safe?" What is our answer? Let it be the consecration of the home, the school, and the church, a co-operative endeavor to guarantee safety so far as it is humanly possible to do so. In this let us ever remember that we are not alone, but are workers together with God.

Just Talks --- On Digby Citizens

H. B. SHORT, ESQ.

I KNOW of nothing more difficult than to characterize your neighbours in public print. It is like to be impertinent and intrusive; fit ground for resentment and even a suit for libel. I am hardened to these things, however, and have a course to pursue that leads straight on and on regardless of other people.

I am going to write a short sketch this week on, what I believe to be, the most popular citizen in Digby, a friend to all and a citizen worthy of the highest respect and honor of every man and woman in the town.

I don't just remember when I first ran across Mr. H. B. Short, but I think it was about a month ago, or shortly after my arrival in Digby. Anyway, no one can say that Mr. Short is not a courageous and bustling man. He has no doubt about the value of effort and the need of having responsibility. No one takes over the care of a business, who is unwilling to undergo trouble. I know of no responsibility greater than that to manage a going concern like the Maritime Fish Company---only one, to run a newspaper, which is exceeded only by the job of running two or three.

Travel over the entire county wherever one may, nowhere is there a man who has and is giving so much of his time for the benefit of the town, and his idea of furthering the interests of the town are being noticed outside of the county.

For a number of years Mr. Short was, I am told, Mayor of the Town of Digby, and during his tenure of office filled the Chief Magistrate's chair to the satisfaction of every ratepayer in the town. He has lived a life of service. His long career is sweetened by so many a generous deed, so many a careful and tender a solicitude that he has his basket of life very full. An honest, loyal gentleman. And many who have disagreed with him and yet have to agree with him on any subject, know none the less the pure gold of this most unusual man of power and abilities.

I suppose there are always a certain number of people who have differed from other positive people who have reservations about what I may say about all these people whom I characterize in this open way. What of that? We have to judge people by a service and willingness to hazard their fortunes in public ways. It is a sign of greatness to forget and forgive. Nobody can go through public life and keep all the tender eggs for hatching their own chickens perfectly intact. We judge people by results. Mr. Short occupied and is occupying a prominent position in the affairs of this far famed Digby of ours. He wields influence and has organized means of exerting it. He is a steady-going, persevering and unflinching person. He shows no settled resentment at opposition and has a gentle word for everyone. He is yet young, and the county ought to look fair to him. He has settled religious convictions; is of exemplary life and habits; is domestic and retiring. He has none of the habits of oratory or excessive self-expression. He is rarely in the public eye, if he can help it. With more men like Mr. Short in every section of the county, its growth would exceed the dreams of the biggest booster that every lived.

Considerable Business Transacted At Regular Meeting Town Council

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held in the Council Chambers on Monday evening last, the Mayor and all the Councillors being present.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, and a number of bills were read and ordered to be paid.

Coun. McBride withdrew his notice of motion made at the last meeting of Council re the reconsideration of a motion regarding the appointing of a committee to secure information on the purchase of an oil engine.

Report of Supt. of Streets was read, and this report dealt with the work done during the past month. Gravel has been placed on several streets in town, water connections had been made and several breaks in the water main had been attended to.

The report of the Medical Health Officer, Dr. W. F. Read, for the past quarter, was read and showed that during that period only one case of infectious disease had been reported. The pupils of the public school had been examined and found to be in a healthy condition.

Coun. C. A. Jordan brought to the attention of the Council the matter of street work, and wished to secure a statement of the amount of money which had been expended on our streets and sidewalks during the past five years. Had the town at that time started the erection of permanent streets and sidewalks we would today have something to show for our money. Thousands of dollars were being wasted each year in patching up the streets, declared Coun. Jordan.

Considerable discussion took place over a bill presented to the Council by ex-inspector Peck for services rendered under the M. S. T. Act. The Solicitor was asked to give his advice on the bill and this was followed by a heated discussion between the Solicitor and Coun. Jordan. It was finally settled when a motion was moved by Coun. McBride, that the bill be not paid.

The sum of $5 was granted G. A. Robinson for services rendered in connection with the Electric Light plant.

An application for a hydrant from several citizens of the town was ordered to lay on the table, and to be dealt with at a later date. Coun. Abramson, chairman of the street committee, reported back to Council re the building of H. T. Warns and the committee had found that Mr. Warns's building was overhanging the town street by nine feet. This matter was also allowed to stand on the table until a future date.

Council To Ask Ratepayers For Power to Borrow $15,000

Oil Engine to be Purchased By Town And Installed As Soon As Ratepayers Vote to Issue Bonds

Considerable discussion took place at the regular meeting of the Town Council, which was held on Monday evening, regarding the purchase of an oil engine for the Town of Digby. A large number of ratepayers were on hand to listen to the discussion between the different Councillors and the representatives of the Fairbanks-Morse and Worthington firms.

The committee consisting of Mayor DuVerne, Coun. Abramson and Peck, appointed at the last meeting of the Council to investigate the purchase of an oil engine, brought in the following report which was presented to the Council for discussion:

"Our investigation re an oil engine for the Digby Electric Light plant have brought out the following facts:

1. That for our ordinary winter load it would take a 50 h. p. engine. For our Saturday winter load it would take a 60 h. p. engine, and for the summer peak load it would take a 80 h. p. engine. Expert opinion is unanimous on these figures.

2. Expert opinion is also unanimous that to connect a 75 h. p. or an 80 h. p. engine with our present generator would result in loss of generator efficiency and would not be practical.

3. No oil engine man will guarantee that a 75 h. p. engine will take care of an 80 h. p. load.

Taking these facts into consideration your committee recommends that the Town of Digby purchase a direct connected unit of from 85 to a 100 h. p. engine."

His Worship Mayor DuVerne gave a synopsis of what he believed would be the best for the town, and outlined a plan whereby the citizens would eventually get cheaper power and light. The fuel for a 90 h. p. engine would cost the town, at present rates, against an expenditure of $4,400, which the town is paying today, and this alone would be a great saving to the people. Two propositions had been presented to the committee, declared His Worship, one from the Fairbanks Morse people, who were prepared to install a 100 h. p. semi-diesel direct connected, for the sum of $10,500; and the Worthington Pump and Machinery Co., Boston, would furnish an 86 h. p. diesel engine direct connected unit for $11,275. He had also been in communication with the Federal government regarding an oil engine which was at present idle at Barrington Passage, and which could be secured at a very low price. Nothing definite, however, had been received from the Dept. The Clerk had also received a number of letters from different firms asking for an opportunity to submit a tender to the town.

Mr. Hill, representing the Fairbanks-Morse firm, explained to Council the engine which his company proposed to install. The cost of erecting engine would be in the vicinity of $150, and a tank holding 7000 gallons of oil, enough to last the town a year, could be purchased for not more than $500. Regarding the engine at Barrington Passage, Mr. Hill said that it would consume five times as much lubricating oil and it was an old model, and no guarantee whatever could be given as to the condition of the engine. A new engine would be more satisfactory to the town and one in which his firm would guarantee and stand behind that guarantee.

The Worthington firm was represented by Mr. Otto Nonnenburch, an expert on engineering devices, and who had furnished the town a complete report of the needs of Digby. This firm had repeated statistics showing the town covering a period of twenty years, and that a public meeting of the ratepayers of the town be called to authorize the issue of such bonds to the amount of $15,000 to cover the cost of installation.

It was decided to hold the ratepayers meeting on Monday, December 10th, notice of which appears elsewhere in this issue.

100 h. p. engine, not including generator, for $6,875 and Coun. McBride thought this would be the best buy for the town, as he believed that eventually hydro would be developed, and he favored the Allan engine offered by this firm.

Considerable discussion pro and con on the difference between the engines took place between the different Councillors. Some of the ratepayers favored the purchasing of an engine, having it installed, and then submit the question of the ratepayers for their approval, but His Worship wanted the Council to decide on the engine which they wanted to purchase, and then go to the ratepayers for power to borrow sufficient money to pay for the same. At this point a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Nonnenburch for the comprehensive manner in which he had gone into the matter of the needs of Digby, and for the report which had been presented to the Council.

Some difference arose over the size of the engine required to supply the needs and to take care of increased business.

Coun. Peck, after considerable delay and discussion, moved the following resolution, which was seconded by Coun. Jordan and carried unanimously:

"Resolved that the Town of Digby purchase a direct connected unit with generator and Excits 100 h. p. oil engine and accessories, to be paid by an issue of bonds of the town covering a period of twenty years, and that a public meeting of the ratepayers of the town be called to authorize the issue of such bonds to the amount of $15,000 to cover the cost of installation."

It was decided to hold the ratepayers meeting on Monday, December 10th, notice of which appears elsewhere in this issue.

No Chartered Accountant For Digby.

When the question of the appointment of auditors for the town came before the Council at its meeting Monday evening, Coun. C. A. Jordan wanted to have a chartered accountant audit the books of the town for the year 1923, and believed that the ratepayers would stand behind him in his demands. After explaining his reasons he moved that an outside auditor be secured, and his motion was seconded by Coun. Peck. On a vote being taken, the motion was declared lost, Coun. Anderson, Abramson, Carty and McBride voting against the motion, showing their disapproval of such action. Coun. Anderson then moved that two local auditors be appointed as before, and recommended the names

The Man Who Laughs

The man whose hat reaches from one end of the street to the other may be the same fellow who scolded his wife and spanked the baby before he got his breakfast, but this laughter is only a cradle of thorns under the pot. The man who spends his laughter through his life---before a late breakfast when he misses the train, when his wife eyes visiting and he has to eat a cold supper; the man who can laugh when he finds a button off his shirt, when the furnace goes out at night, and the twins come down with the measles at the same time---he's the fellow that's needed. He never tells his neighbor to have faith; somehow he puts faith into him. He delivers no homilies; somehow the sight of his face, the sound of his happy voice, and the light of his blessed daily life, carry conviction that words have not power to give. The blues see before him as the fog before the west wind. He comes into his own home life a flood of sunshine over a meadow of blooming butter-cups, and his wife and children bloom like June roses. His home is redolent with love and sympathy. The neighborhood is better for his life, and somebody will learn from him that laughter is better than tears. The world needs this man. Why are there so few of them? Can he be created? Can he be evolved? Why is he not in every house, turning rain into sunshine and winter into summer all the year around until life is a perpetual season of joy.

Let George Do It

It is a very simple matter to find fault with whatever is being done in a community, and to complain that certain persons are always running things.

Do we consider WHY this occurs?

Summed up in a very few words: it amounts to the fact that we have LET GEORGE DO IT, and instead of helping the figurative George, and taking and DOING our share of any work for our mutual good, we talk it over anywhere but in George's vicinity, because we may be asked to assist.

Where has all our PUBLIC SPIRIT gone?

Starting with our Town Council, after we elect them, how many of us attend the meetings, or even when we have read the published report of the meeting, how many call up the Council for their district and congratulate or criticize him on his attitude on certain subjects, or do we rather talk it over in our kitchens with the neighbour and let it go at that. Why not see him, and if you have any suggestions to make, tell him himself, and see why he acted as he did, and what information or reasons he has that we know nothing of?

How many women have been at the meetings and said anything "on the matter of the electricity problem in which they are more concerned than the men, as the latter only want it in the majority of cases for light, a few for power, but the women want it for lightening their labors as well as lighting their houses?" The use of electricity for sweeping, washing, cooking, sewing and heating would cut down their work and make housework a pleasant pastime instead of slavery.

The children, both boys and girls, would take an interest and part in it to the general benefit of the family personnel. The boys when they grow up will be self trained to make less needless work round home, and the girls will not wish to go away to the States where these labor saving devices are in everyday use. This will give more leisure for study, and by study we do not mean "Reading, riting, and rithmetick," but affairs in general, both national and international as well as local.

Similarly, take an interest in our members of parliament. Cause them to give an account of their actions after, and even during, each session, so as to ascertain your wishes on the various subjects under discussion.

Let us attend these meetings and take part also. Let the ladies say "I shall be the only woman there, but as I have a vote, I'm going to learn how to use it intelligently, in spite of the men's thinking they have all the intelligence," and they will be surprised how many other women will think the same and be there too.

Then there are the churches; certain members are elected or chosen for office. Do we ASSIST them? Think it over and answer it yourself.

We hear about prohibition not being enforced in town. How many who complain have reported specific violation of the law to the proper authorities, and how many know of these "remours" and "they say" were ordered out of town long ago as undesirable citizens, so please do not associate with them. If any real ground exist, and you know of infractions it is your duty to give the information to headquarters for action, and if you do not you are an accomplice yourself and therefore have no ground for complaint. Do not be afraid you may make bad friends with your neighbour, or inform on your relative. It is said somewhere to this effect: "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you." Apply this, and by considering yourself as one of the OTHERS, and whereas "YOU" has made trouble for you by breaking the law, make trouble for them in a proper and legal manner. Until you do this, you are only wasting your breath.

Taking the boys, and girls too, for our next paragraph, last week it was asked if DIGBY were safe for them. How many, outside of the Boy Scouts, take interest enough in your own children to make things entertaining in a clean and healthy way for them? Pool rooms and movies are accused of being hotbeds of everything evil. ARE THEY? If they are, why allow them? Would it not be better for those who decay either or both to go and see for themselves how they are conducted, and then act on their findings, than listen to rumour. Read again what I said about "RUMOUR".

Besides, what other places are there to which they may go?

Who gives the children the money to attend the movies? If the pictures are not what they should be, there is nothing to prevent you from being your own censor board, and unless there came an improvement, the very simple remedy is in your own hands, keep the cash in your own pockets till there is. If conditions there are alright and satisfactory, and it is only the stay-at-home armchair faultfinder who objects, help them out of their misery by treating them to a show, and tell them the sum is still shining.

If still unsatisfied, let them supply a substitute.

Now for ourselves. Why not make life happy during the winter?

Dances and card parties are all right for those who enjoy them, and these can and are in most cases conducted properly, and it is not necessary to gamble if you do play cards, any more than in any outdoor sport. How about a Community Club, using one of the several public halls in town, where we can meet for discussions, debates, music, games, and general sociability. How often do we hear it said, "I don't like him or her," and the reason when sought turns out to be that we did not know the person, but when we became acquainted, what a source of pleasure we uncovered. Let us uncover more of these.

I hope these rambling remarks will bring forth, not storms of protests, but helpful suggestions, and offers of aid in restoring or awakening the dormant public spirit and community brotherhood and sisterhood of our town.

Let us see what we can do for ourselves this fall, and give George a chance to go away for a vacation, and let us DO IT OURSELVES.

All interested are requested to send in their names to this office, and any remarks or suggestions will be welcome, and further steps will be taken to bring on a celebration of the awakening or resuscitation, and help to keep it alive and staying (not "going") concern.

DO IT NOW!

Keep Your Money In Digby

The next three weeks will be busy ones for merchants and their customers. With Christmas about three weeks away, those who have goods to sell and those who must buy the season's gifts already are beginning their annual rush. For Santa Claus, in his great wisdom, never waits until the last week to lay in his stock. He knows that those who buy early buy to the best advantage.

Customers who would get the most for their money should get the messages which the merchants set forth through the columns of the local newspaper. In this connection it is permissible for The Courier to refer particularly to the stores of Digby. No more attractive windows, no prices, more reasonable, no clerks more attentive, are to be found in any Canadian town than one may see during a casual stroll through the business street of this enterprising community. It is well to remind ourselves of this fact occasionally because it is well for us to spend our money here rather than in some larger city in the belief that it is necessary to go to the larger cities to get a wider selection and better bargains. We have in our stores all these things, and that being so we should remember that the less we spend outside and the more we benefit Digby the better we make it for ourselves as individuals. It is not a parochial view; it is a fundamental principle of economics. It is the Digby merchant, and the Digby consumer, whose taxes keep up our streets and other services, and there really is a moral obligation to buy at home if we can do so as cheaply and with as much satisfaction as we can in other cities. A careful reading of the advertisements in The Courier each week will soon convince one of the fact that our merchants offer bargains comparable to those that can be secured elsewhere.

And in this connection it may be pointed out that nothing is gained by leaving Christmas shopping until the last week. In fact, a great deal is gained by not leaving it that late to say nothing of the consideration one should have for the clerks upon whom the last few days of Christmas rush imposes so great a burden. Do your Christmas shopping early.

SEMI-DIESEL ENGINES IN SMALL CENTRAL STATIONS

Before the development of the internal combustion engine, it was almost out of the question for a small town to maintain an electric lighting plant on a paying basis, on account of the limited revenue and the excessive fuel and other operating costs encountered with the customary small steam installation.

The internal combustion engine has long since reached a point where this form of power is as dependable as any other for this service. Because of the fuel economy and reasonable life, and costs it is possible for small communities to have just as good service as the larger cities at reasonable rates.

The most satisfactory fuel obtainable in the Maritime Provinces for the use of Oil Engines is known as "Semi-Diesel" and is a by-product of crude oil, an unlimited supply is always available at reasonable prices. In fact at the present price of fuel oil it is possible to generate electricity and deliver it at the switchboard at a fuel and lubricating oil cost of considerably less than TWO CENTS PER KILOWATT HOUR.

It is generally known that FAIRBANKS-MORSE and COMPANY were pioneers in the development of the internal combustion engine, and the fact that they have turned out approximately 500,000 engines of various types, both marine and stationary is ample evidence that their product has met with the general approval of the public. Every FOG SIGNAL station on the Atlantic Coast is equipped with one or more of these Engines some of which have been in constant use for fifteen to twenty years and still running satisfactorily as when first installed. Their Semi-Diesel Engines are also used by various Government Departments for generating electric power in connection with Wireless stations, Quarantine and Naval Bases, in fact wherever a reliable individual power plant is required.

The standpoint of efficiency FAIRBANKS-MORSE & CO. have achieved more than any other manufacturer of Engines. No can shafts, no roller arm drives, no chain or gear driven governor. In other words a minimum number of moving part coupled with extreme accessibility all of which means longer life and minimized repair expense.

Over ten thousand FAIRBANKS-MORSE engines of all sizes and types have been distributed throughout the Maritime Provinces during the past fifteen years and at the present time have almost two hundred Crude or Fuel Oil Engine owners in this territory among which are the following Municipalities who are using these engines for Town Lighting or Pumping purposes, Chatham, Hartland, Blackville, Sackville, Canoe, Parrsboro, Antigonish and Souris, P. E. I.

One of the most important factors that has contributed to the universal acceptance of their product in this part of the country is the A. F. W. STOCK OF PARTS FOR ALL ENGINES IS KEPT ON HAND AT ST. JOHN, N. B., at each point a staff of practical service men expert in this line of work is maintained so that instant service can be rendered. This feature is of tremendous importance to an owner who should receive serious consideration by prospective buyers.

SEWING CIRCLE GOSSIP

There was some discussion at the circle this week about the recent defeat of prohibition in Alberta. The majority of our members denounced the change which had taken place in public opinion out there. Who was the first to make the announcement? She said she believed in permitting people to drink whatever beverage they liked. As for herself, she said she was drinking the likes of LUXOR ORIENTAL COFFEE.

Mary Elizabeth Suits has been visiting in town, Mrs. Matilda Turnbull at Bay View.

Miss Jean Parker has been visiting Miss Daisy Suits this week.

Rubs by Rambler

It required one hundred thousand men thirty years to build the Pyramids and it took King Tut three thousand years to get himself into the limelight, but it takes only twenty minutes to sign an order for an oil engine and about ten days to install one, yet up to the time of writing the nearest approach we have made to an oil engine is an old oil lamp of our grand-father's purchased at the time that tallow candles became obsolete, but which we are simply compelled to use every afternoon from 3:30 until the electric lights reluctantly come on.

We should congratulate ourselves, as well as the committee in charge and the Superintendent, upon the neat and clean condition of our streets and sidewalks. Considering the unfavorable weather, they are in better condition than at any time during the year.

Anyone who is inclined to dispute this claim need merely visit any of the towns, large or small, between Yarmouth and Halifax, and if they would be willing to do much walking about any of them without hip boots, then we admire their courage.

Since the Town council meeting on Monday night we feel quite encouraged and inclined to believe that after all the councillors intend to act in the interests of the people and give us ratepayers what we want. A man from this town was driving through another part of the Province, and not being quite certain of the road inquired of a farm hand how far it was to a certain town. Eight miles, he was told. After driving for an hour he became anxious and inquired of a passer by. About eight miles, he was informed. He drove on feeling discouraged, but presently his face lighted and during to his companion he remarked "Thank Heaven we're holding our own." The point we are trying to make is this, that while we may appear to be no nearer an oil engine than we were three months ago, yet we're no further away, and if the ratepayers will attend the meeting that is to be held shortly for the purpose of voting the necessary money, and will get down to business instead of releasing a couple of million cubic feet of balloon juice, otherwise known as beer, and thus not only delay the proceedings but discourage people with attending public meetings, then we may get the important public question settled before another epidemic of sleeping sickness hits the town.

It is quite honest, we were afraid that the council would nurse the question along for another two months and then pass the buck to the incoming council, but apparently someone with a retentive memory pointed out that that stunt had been worked so often that it lacked originality.

BARTLETT-PRIME

A St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, was the scene of a quiet wedding, Wednesday morning at nine o'clock when Miss Pearl Whitford Prime, daughter of Stephen P. Prime, of Weymouth Mills, was united in marriage to Robert Journey Bartlett, third oldest son of Mrs. Jessie Bartlett. Rev. Mr. Taylor, rector of the church officiated at the nuptial ceremonies, having returned Tuesday from Annapolis where he had been attending the Deanery meetings for the occasion. The bride, one of the town's most popular young girls, looked very pretty in a navy blue suit with a blue and grey hat. She was attended by Mrs. Donald Barkhouse whilst the groom was assisted by Capt. Donald Barkhouse. Only the immediate members of the contracting parties families were present at the marriage. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple drove to the station where they took the train for Digby, and from there to St. John where a brief honeymoon will be spent. After their return the bride and groom will take up their residence in the groom's new house. Both bride and groom are valued employees of the Weymouth Shipping Company, the bride being the stenographer and bookkeeper for the company for several years past, and the groom being connected with the same company in a clerical capacity. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett have a host of friends here and elsewhere who join in wishing them many years of happy wedded bliss. The happy couple were the recipients of many costly and useful presents consisting of cut glass, silver ware, chinaware, linen etc. testifying to the high esteem in which they are held by their many friends.

TRAPPER FINDS VICKS HANDY FOR A HOST OF ILLS

Ontario Man says It Is A Most Useful Remedy.

Mr. C. Phoenix, of 755 Grey St. London, Ont., writes: "I am very pleased to recommend Vicks VapoRub. I am a hunter, trader and trapper, also a fisherman. I use Vicks VapoRub in place of liniments, because it is very handy to carry and it gives me quick relief for small animal and insect bites, and for chapped hands and lips. My boots would blister my feet and I rubbed it on them and it made them just right. When I go trapping next fall I will have plenty of Vicks VapoRub in my kit. I call it the Trappers Friend. I have not had a cold all winter and I go out at the time and some times stay out all night with my traps."

Vicks VapoRub, the discovery of a Southern druggist, is a combination in salve form of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine, etc.

Absorbed through the skin and at the same time inhaled as a vapor, Vicks reaches immediate inflamed, congested air passages.

It is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles, the successor to goose grease, camphorated oil, liniments, poultices and plasters. Used for croup and children's colds, Vicks gives remarkably quick results and also avoids nauseating internal dosing. Just as good for cuts, burns, bruises, bites, stings.

At all drug stores, 50c a jar. For a free test-size package, write Vicks Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., Montreal, P. Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

Want American as Queen

Bulgaria's peasant Premier has expressed the wish that King Boris should marry an American girl, and it may be that in a short time the American field will be surveyed for likely candidates. In Bulgaria the throne is not "by hereditary" upon the people's will." It is in a precarious condition. Ex-King Ferdinand, father of Boris, was given just twenty-four hours to abdicate and leave the country, and if Boris were to marry into one of the former or reigning European dynasties it is feared that it would produce political complications which would result in a demand that the monarchy be abolished altogether. Democracy is much to the fore in Bulgaria as a consequence of the war, and the deluded Bulgarians still regard the United States as the most democratic of countries. They believe that the princess chosen from among the beautiful daughters of Uncle Sam would constitute a guarantee that the part of the monarchy there would be no attempts to encroach upon the rights of the people. Incidentally, it is assumed that the American girl would be fantastically rich and this is an important consideration for the Bulgarians to-day.

Concerning the prospect of the King of Bulgaria choosing an American for his queen, Mr. Frederick Cunliffe Owen, C.B.E., remarks in his New Times that only one American woman has ever been called upon to share a throne, and has been received with sovereign honors at some of the principal monarchical courts of Europe. This was Miss Alice Heine, of New Orleans, who became the wife of the reigning Prince of Monaco. The marriage took place in 1889, but after fourteen years the prince had died, dissolved the princess still retained her title, but is no longer accorded the honors due to sovereignty or even royalty. The former Mrs. William Leeds was married to a Greek prince and not long ago her son married Princess Xenia, of the Royal House of Romania, but neither the former Mrs. Leeds nor her son is ever likely to sit on a throne.

For many centuries it was the inviolable custom of royalty to deem marriages of convenience not of royal rank as not a legal bond. The children of such unions were specifically debarred from inheriting, and of royal rank. They were considered free to have a morganatic wife and also a queen, the progeny of the latter inheriting title and estates. It was Peter of Greece who put his foot through this convention by marrying a kitchen wench of notorious antecedents, and raising her to the throne as Catherine the Great. Later on, Napoleon upset several royal traditions when he proclaimed himself Emperor, married an ex-convict, who was crowned empress, and set up his brothers and some of his generals as kings. Nevertheless, when his royal brother, Louis married Miss Elizabeth Patterson, of Baltimore, he had the French Government decline to recognize the union as legal, although it had been made without his sanction.

Queen Victoria's views concerning the marriage of royalty with commonalty changed decidedly in the course of her long reign. She refused to recognize the wife of her favorite uncle, the Duke of Sussex, although she came of a titled family. She created her Duchess of Inverness, but denied her the status of a royal duchess of course. Similarly, she declined to receive at court the wife of her first cousin, the Duke of Cambridge, who had been Miss Farnborough, a distinguished Dublin actress, and to the end of her days the duke's wife was known as Mrs. Fitz-George, a name borne also by their children. However, Queen Victoria permitted the marriage of her daughter to the Marquis of Lorne, who, though the son of the Duke of Argyll, was a commoner in the eyes of the law at the time of his marriage. Later on she gave her approval to the marriage of her granddaughter, the eldest daughter of Edward, then Prince of Wales, to Lord Fife, and had the marriage solemnized in her presence.

No other royal house was ever so tolerant of marriages between its members and persons of less rank as that of Britain in the past fifty years. But in other parts of Europe it required a great war to shatter old prejudices. More than a score of continental monarchies were overthrown in the course of the struggle. Their members have since married persons who before would never have been considered eligible. They have, in fact, married the men and girls of their choice, and monarchical and political considerations have been absent. If King Boris marries an American girl nobody will regard it as a more daring experiment than anyone else makes who marries an American girl.

End of Yuletide. The first day of February, Candlemas Eve, was the anniversary of the appointed day for taking down and burning all the Christmas decorations, the tradition being that it was unlucky to have any relic of the Yuletide festivities about the house on Candlemas Day. Modern housewives, with more advanced ideas of cleanliness and hygiene than their predecessors, clean away all the dust-gathering evergreen much earlier.

In Philippine Politics. Miss Natividad Almada is proof that equal rights have spread to the Philippines. Miss Almada has recently been appointed assistant attorney-general; needless to say, the first of her sex to hold the post in the islands. Previous to her appointment the Philippine Islands had a remarkable legal record in private practice.

Teaching Children To Work

Teach him to strip off for his job. Teach him to shake off fear—fear of criticism, of conventions, of worn-out ideas. Teach him to welcome every new experience as a gift, an inspiration to effort. Teach him to work with all his might, at whatever he undertakes and to fear nothing but and invasion of what he believes to be his duty. If he learn this, he will be intitled to the collar of his choice and he will wear it with a difference which will be all that matters to him or to anybody else.

Having decided that you want your child to have this standard of workmanship, this ideal of earning his happiness through working to the end of his job, you will have to think it over and decide that you are willing to pay the cost. Success built upon honest workmanship comes slowly. Can he wait for it? Can he?

What is the measure of his success? What material recognition will satisfy you? Must it be money piled upon money until he is lost under its bitter weight?—or will less do? Do you want him to take his place among the Canadian gentlemen whose name has stood for an ideal?

Then teach the standard of truth and simplicity and labor. Teach the beauty of thorough workmanship.

Explain to the child exactly what is expected of and the best way to go about it—then let him alone. Give him enough work to keep him healthily busy, and no more. Crowding the work makes for bad workmanship and the careless finish.

Let him into the secret of the work. Let him feel that he is sharing hopes as well as labors.

Teach him to work to a standard and raise the standard as his power grows.

Buffalo Herds Grow Beyond Accommodation

A Few of the Superb Buffalo

To nearly all Canadians the news that the buffalo, which we have been accustomed to regard as nearly extinct, have recently so increased as to necessitate the slaughter of a herd of 5,000 at the Canadian Buffalo Park, Watrous, Alberta, will come as a very pleasant surprise. The mere existence of this surplus definitely announces that, though we will never see a large wild herd again, we yet may hope to see the prairies repopulated with numbers of buffalo, and that this magnificent animal, monarch of the Plains, will be always with us.

The buffalo were in their glory when the construction of the first American transcontinental railroad was begun in 1868. Herds of fifty thousand had been seen on the western plains of this continent as far south as Utah and as far north as Hudson's Bay, and as many as 100,000 robes were marketed annually. So easily were they obtained that whiskey-traders could purchase a robe for one cup of liquor. In 1874 the North-West Mounted Police, on trek for the Rockies, saw several immense herds, notably near the Sweet Grass Hills, when the force marched all day through a herd of 50,000 which blackened the horizon. This romantic scene, so vividly contrasting the wilderness and its denizens with the gleaming representative of civilization, is surely a fit subject for artists and poets.

The work of destruction, once begun, was not so easily checked.

By 1880 only vast quantities of buffalo skulls remained to show that the great herds had ever been. The mighty half-breed hunter had fallen to collecting these skulls and bones for the sugar refineries and bone dust factories of the United States. It is worthy of note that the first eastbound freight run by the Canadian Pacific Railway was loaded with moose robes.

The present encouraging state of affairs is due to the foresight of the Canadian Government, which in 1907, purchased a small herd of buffalo in Montana and brought it over the border to form the nucleus of the 6,000 head now at Watrous. To this wise purchase we owe the fact that the buffalo has not become merely a heraldic beast as extinct as the unicorn or the griffin.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. Just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it for a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little bottle you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

Different Kinds Of Citizens

Every citizen should be actively interested in community betterment—first, for the good of the community, and second on the theory that what benefits the community is of equal benefit to the individual.

Some people are aggressive, and work continually for the welfare of the community in which they live. Some hold back through modesty, some through timidity, and others through a disinclination to "neglect their private affairs."

The modest man is respected, although it is to be regretted that his modesty keeps him in the background.

The man who is timid, is to be pitied for his timidity in a serious handicap—yet a handicap that, happily, is often overcome.

The modest man and the timid man should assert themselves. The community needs their efforts, just as it receives the co-operation of their more aggressive friends and neighbors.

But what of the citizen who is averse to "neglecting his private affairs?"

Is he the kind of man who makes a community, or is he one who profits from the community that owners make?

The man who is too busy with his own private affairs to aid in community betterment may be possessed of many of the good qualities found in mankind. He may be highly respected by his neighbors, and his honesty and integrity may be beyond question.

But no community can thrive on neighborly respect and integrity alone. Aggressiveness is required if a community would not slip backward instead of pressing forward.

Every man owes a duty to the community in which he lives, and that duty should be performed, even though it entails an occasional personal sacrifice.

No man should consider himself "too busy" with his own private affairs to aid in community betterment. He should not expect others to do all of the work while he reaps the share of the benefits.

"King Cole" Preferred

A growing preference is expressed for KING COLE TEA. What other explanation could there be for its persistently increasing sale? Every year of the twelve that it has been before the public has marked its strong steady advance. A good long testing time—long enough to prove the merits or reveal the weakness of any article.

Public confidence has been demonstrated in no uncertain way. The testing stage has been passed with honour.

Just Talks--On Common Themes

On "The Lamplighter."

A LITTLE boy sits on the door-step in an old Nova Scotia town fifty years ago and he is seven years old. The night-hawks are flying over with their raucous screams, and he knows what they are; for all the boys then knew much about birds and much about woods and much about rivers and tides and eddies and eels and sarsaparilla root and Indian tobacco and where the white-oak acorns grew.

The night clouds still carried the crimson and purple of the summer day dying in the arms of the evening whose stars were not yet out. He was contemplative as small boys sometimes get to be, in spite of what seems to be "doing nothing"; for do not mistake the periods of thoughts in small boys "mooning" of twilights. It may be the reactions of previous incarnations stirring their little souls.

He yet remembers that it was very pleasant for the little boy to sit thus after a strenuous day on the river and in the blueberry thickets and over the hills and far away. He was somehow interested to see the town fold up its day's pack and prepare to go to bed. And especially to wait for what he knew was coming—the lamplighter.

It was a long street, nearly a mile, down which he could look—a street of bending arches of elm trees almost meeting in the centre of the highway. The old wooden sidewalks lifted on cross-ties gave a resounding echo to boot-heels and even slightly whispered by means of broadcasting the shuffle of old shoes that might be without heels at all. He might see far and hear far in that quiet old town. And, far down the street appeared a dot of light and then, across the street, a little farther along, appeared another and he knew that the lamplighter was coming with his torch and his little ladder.

Did I say torch? Well, maybe it was one of those wax-taper things that were new-angled in those days. Of the ladder I am sure; for the little boy seen the ladder very plainly; so plainly that if he should see it again, he might find his eyes moist for the longing of the return of another hour of such peaceful contemplativeness and such absorbing interest. He heard the ladder set up against the lamp-post; watched the lamp-lighter step up three rounds; heard him unlock the lamp-post door; saw him turn on the gas—for we did have gas in those days—and heard him again close the door, take away the ladder and shuffle on and away up the hill, over the hill, leaving behind him irregular tiny glows of light thru the trees and along the street.

The boy grew up and is alive today; at least he believes himself to be, moderately alive, and he lived to see the old lamplighter pass on over that hill for the last time. He was a lame man, with a funny wobble in his walk; saying nothing much, but liked by the boys, because he was not unwilling to accommodate the curious boy now and then by permitting him to climb the ladder and light a lamp. By this means, he allayed a natural desire of lads and protected his business against day-time assaults. Uncle Tommy would not be so likely to be troubled if he were open to any reliable boy to perform the rick occasionally, when he was on the spot and was willing to be fair about it. Whereas, if he had been gruff and inconsiderate, the boys might have been tempted to have done it illicitly, just the same, and that would have made trouble for him.

Those were friendly, trembling beacons that they lit in the long ago, filled with moths and grimed by the dust of the streets. They were modest servants of the people who did not expect so much and were accordingly not so prone to finding fault with what they did get. They made darkness visible and were delightful places to rally about; where boy-moths might gather of the early evenings to make up expeditions for the next day.

I believe that Uncle Tommy's son, or maybe it is his grandson, yet is lamplighter in that town. Trades run in some families. The gas-man makes gas and the lamp-lighter lights the town.

But how differently he does it! Night shuts down just as it did—the night-hawk circles about of a summer night these passing years as then and his cry is the same. The evening clouds are of the same varying color and the little boy may be supposed to dream fair dreams now as then. Uncle Tommy's son or grandson has changed more than these. He carries about no ladder; he walks no silent streets and carries no tapers. He battles against no winter storms as he used to, with his breast padded with the sleety snows along the wind-driven night as he lights his lamps.

No! he sits in his office with his desk before him; he reads his evening paper whose machinery is driven by his dynamo; he smokes a cigarette and Uncle Tommy never did; he looks at the clock; he notes the hour of sunset; he hears his dynamo singing their songs of power in the oil-scented room beyond the next doorway and then slowly turning to the wall, he gives the word or pushes the button or slides the switch. In an instant, lo! as the sun burst of a dawning over the hills, a city bursts into radiance and never a plodding lamplighter in storm and summer twilight to go about with his match.

Uncle Tommy! Little Boy! Where are you? One is as dead as the other. Every day you died—both of you, and every day a new one was reborn in your shoes. Only Uncle Tommy was reborn one day in his spiritual shoes, while you, little boy, are yet held weary and tired out in your physical shoes.

Over the hill, behind the crest, no doubt, Uncle Tommy lit the evening lamps. Are they burning today for the little boy as they were burning then? He hopes so, for otherwise, the way would be dark. Or will a new radiance of a New Heaven light the way, all at once, as Uncle Tommy's grandson punches the button to limitless, universal, yea, Eternal light.

PULPWOOD EMBARGO

Frank J. Barnjum Explains Why Commission Was Appointed

To the Editor of the Courier:

If there is anyone in Canada so ignorant of the facts that he would even suggest that it is necessary to make a careful study of the situation with a view to ascertaining what are the chief contributing causes of our forests depletion, then his case must be hopeless indeed; but when he further states that this is evidently just what the Government had in mind in appointing the Royal Pulpwood Commission it will cause even the most credulous to wince at the smile. Even the cynical comment of one of the ministers responsible for the appointment was "we do not expect the Commission to discover anything that we do not already know."

This Commission was appointed for political reasons. Any figures with regard to the amount of wood being cut either for home consumption or export, as expressed by statistics published in the past, must be entirely ignored inasmuch as they will have no bearing on the future. Every available man is being pressed into the service of cutting pulpwood for export and the supply of labor is the only thing that will govern the output just so long as the government allows this deplorable depletion of our forest resources to continue, while the amount necessary to keep our own wood-using industries operating is increasing by leaps and bounds.

The reason I stress the embargo is that its enactment would immediately save to Canada the loss of at least 35,000,000 trees annually without the expenditure of one dollar of the people's money, and this is the only forest conservation measure whereby this happy result can be obtained.

When anyone goes so far as to deliberately state that I am concentrating my campaign on this factor of the situation for private reasons, he says what he knows to be absolutely false. This is only one out of eight other important measures that I have urged upon the Government. I have also personally expended thousands of dollars in the interests of forestry and fire protection in Canada, and have only recently secured the services of one of the best foresters obtainable so that the province of Nova Scotia might have the benefit of the advice of a highly trained expert. In addition to this I am having a nursery prepared so that the farmers of Nova Scotia may be supplied with spruce and pine seedlings free of charge. While I hesitate to refer to my efforts in this respect, I do so only to refute the despicable and false statements made by this correspondent.

With regard to the amount of wood that is being exported from Canada, an amount so small, according to this correspondent, that it is almost necessary to use a magnifying glass in order to read the figures. If the amount of wood

Musical Concert Tonight

Musical lovers have an opportunity to-night of enjoying a real treat. All the more enjoyable that it is being given by one of our own girls, and therefore worthy of support in every way.

Miss Louise Jones' Song Recital in the Bijou-Grand Theatre will display the flexibility and sweetness of the vocalist, who has chosen from her repertoire songs by Woodferde-Finden, La Forge, Testi-Brewer, Wishaw, Jacobs-Bond, Coleridge Taylor and others.

Miss Jones has completed her College Course at Mount Allison and is taking music as her profession, and home talent should be liberally supported, especially when equal or better than outside.

Dr. Connor, besides accompanying, will give selections from Mendelssohn, Heller and Chopin.

DIGBY UN-SURPASSED

Son Of Former Digby Lady Writes About Our Town

Mrs. N. A. Libbey, of Bartlett St., Roxbury, Mass., who was visiting her former home and relatives (the Condon's) Bay View, last month, has received the following letter from her son Robert, which we publish as it has most complimentary references to Digby and Digby-people—

Los Angeles, Cal.

DEAR MOTHER: I was mighty glad to get a letter from you. It was fine that you took the trip as you looked forward to it for so long and I know it will do you a lot of good. Gee don't I wish I could be with you! I have in late years travelled over a lot of country and seen some wonderful spots yet there is no place that I have seen that I have enjoyed like Digby, no place that I long to vacation at there. True there is beauty in the Rockies, both in U. S. and in Canada also in Northern N. Y., resorts wonderful places to see and I am glad that I have been permitted to enjoy them, but the rugged coast of Nova Scotia with the ocean cannot be beat by any place that I have seen or hope to see in the future. I just long to drop a line from off the Light House rocks and catch a large potlock and then to have it corned and served with Digby potatoes and real pork scraps with Aunt Lid's "down East" biscuits. It makes me hungry to think of it. I cannot help but think of my childhood days when the summer vacation brought me to Digby and met by Uncle John with hearty laugh and greeting and then the trip to the Gurt always with the molasses keg—and what molasses, we don't have that kind now. First the stop at the Racket at Mrs. Van-Tassels—something to eat there also and then with some of the beautiful tea roses she grew off the farm. Next a stop at Aunt Mary's and a big tough apple and off again. These seems just run through my mind and I cannot but truly say that they are the happiest moments I can remember. Off to the weir the next morning, if the tide was not too early, and the lobster and fish—sometimes a salmon on the beach—even the smell of porpoise would be as Mary Garden to me now. Oh the changes in the years, so many have passed on and things are not the same, yet it is pleasant to think of the past, and God knows no one could get a more welcome greeting than from Uncle John and Aunt Lail with all the large family, one felt so homey and welcome. Perhaps some day I shall be able to travel there once more. I sure hope so. I shall be in San Francisco again in two weeks. Hope you had a wonderful time and feel much better. Love to them all especially to yourself.

What Is Home?

Ask the above question to any person you chance to meet, who has wandered from home, and in nine cases out of ten the answer will be that Home is a green spot in memory, a center about which the grandest recollections of his life are gathered. ## A Great Tribute to a Great Canadian

A new photograph of the LATE LORD SHAUGHNESSY, taken shortly before his death.

THE death of Lord Shaughnessy in Montreal, on December 10th, brought back into the public mind something of the history of those days, immediately following upon Confederation, in which Canada took her first strides towards nationhood. He was one of the last of that remarkable group of pioneers with imagination to see Canada's potential future and the force of character to give it such a start towards realization as did the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Great men all, Lord Shaughnessy was as great a nation builder as any, but his personality lost nothing of its humanity as his greatness became more widely recognized.

The tribute paid his memory by E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is a just appreciation by one who knew him as intimately as another man could. Mr. Beatty said:

"The death of Lord Shaughnessy has removed from Canadian life its most outstanding figure. Public men have come and gone, and their respective merits as I think have been duly appreciated by the people of this country. But in no single instance, so far as my observation goes, has one man combined the achievement, the mentality, the force of character and the human qualities of generosity, charity and consideration for his fellow-men in the same degree as the late Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway."

"Always he was a strict disciplinarian, but his discipline was impersonal, and his warm Irish disposition reflected itself in numerous acts of kindness, which increased the loyalty he always inspired in those who were associated with him."

"He possessed in a remarkable degree an acuteness of mental reasoning which few men enjoy. Nothing was overlooked by him, and no act that was meritorious escaped his commendation. Thoroughly schooled as he was in the advantages of good reading, he became a great student of literature and a sagacious critic of public affairs. To those who knew him intimately, his qualities of sympathy and charity were perhaps the most impressive."

"He had a unique career, filled with initiative, enterprise and courage. Having run the three-score years and ten he has departed with a record that few Canadians have ever made, and all his accomplishments and successes were clean. Never in his official or his personal life has a suggestion been made against the complete integrity that characterized all his actions."

"In Lord Shaughnessy, Canada loses its most distinguished, most loyal and most efficient citizen."

Mr. Beatty had a final interview with Lord Shaughnessy at his bedside a few hours before his death, and at a time when Lord Shaughnessy realized that he had only a few hours to live.

"Lord Shaughnessy's last words to me," said Mr. Beatty, "were significant of sentiments which had actuated him in his administration of the company over a long period of years. They were 'Maintain the property. It is a great Canadian property, and a great Canadian enterprise.'"

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT AT BEAR RIVER

On Monday evening, Dec. 17th, a Christmas Pageant entitled "The Greatest Gift" was presented in the Methodist church, Bear River. The Goddess Bountiful, heralded by a page, and accompanied by her maidens, Peace and Plenty, and her train bearers, took her place upon the throne in the court room of the Palace of Gifts, and summoned before her the various gifts who had blessed mankind. First came "Harmony" represented by the adult choir in caps and gowns, and the children choir in pure white. These furnished the musical part of the evening. Healing, Labor, Friendship, the Church, Sleep, Home, Invention and Prosperity. These characters wore appropriate costumes, and after speaking of their gifts took up their appointed stations upon the platform. All of all came the three shepherds, in eastern dress, telling the story of the birth of Christ. As they knelt, and the choir sang softly, "Who is He in your stall?"

At whose feet the shepherds fall? the Goddess descended from her throne, and humbly kneeling, "I declare 'Jesus the greatest gift' number two, dost bless," and the whole company responded, "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift."

When all the participants were assembled upon the platform they presented a pleasing and striking spectacle. Much credit is due to them all. Special mention should be made of Miss Henry, who took the leading part, and whose untiring efforts assured the success of the entertainment. In the near future the pageant will be presented again as a Sunday evening service.

The large number of members present heartily voted twenty-five dollars from the institute funds for this purpose. ## NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, J. M. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Be A Live Community

In the early days of Canadian development, a large degree of community spirit was inevitable. Take the case of the pioneers who went out from the East to settle the prairie provinces. They found that to provide schools for their children, moral standards, justice between man and man, means for transportation etc., they must constantly co-operate.

So while they improved their own farms and develop the wilderness, they were all the time working with each other to build up the essentials of community life.

But after a community becomes settled for a period of years, after it has acquired some of the basic essentials of life, there comes a tendency for many years people to lose their civic feeling. They have the institutions that are vitally necessary to their comfort and well being, and the tendency is for people to give their lives to just two ends, earning their own living and making money, and going in for sports and amusements that will give them a good time. Manifestly when a lot of people concentrate their attention to these objects, the strong desire for community improvement tends to fade out of their minds.

That is what is the matter with many cities and towns today. The people or the bulk of them have no strong civic consciousness, and are not deeply interested in projects for community development.

Freeport Man Breaks Ankle

Rev. Mr. Harvey Great Favorite With Congregation—Other Local News.

During the recent absence of Rev. G. W. Brooker, who has been away for a short vacation, on account of ill health, the Freeport congregation were favored by the services of Rev. Mr. Harvey of Little River. Mr. Harvey, although not a pastor of any church, is, one might say, almost more than that term implies. He is a man, eventually filled with the desire to walk in the way of the one "who went about doing good." He is always ready to help, where help is needed, and in this case his chief object, aside from the help and encouragement which he might give the people seemed to be that he might help lift the burden of care from a brother minister while he was compelled to lay aside his work for a time. Mr. Harvey held several special meetings during his stay, and his plain gospel talks were greatly enjoyed. It is to be hoped we may at some future time have another visit from this consecrated high-souled servant of God, and under more favorable circumstances. Pastor Brooker has returned home somewhat improved in health although at present indisposed by a severe cold.

Wm. Sullivan, night watchman of F. E. Davis Fisheries recently had the misfortune to fall, breaking an ankle. While laid aside, his place is being filled by Austin Nickerson, of the same firm.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Nichols have a new little son in their home.

Schr. Firelight, Capt. H. M. Thurber has just discharged a load of coal, brought from Halifax, and is now loading it for the Gloucester market.

Schr. Cora Gerie, Capt. W. H. Stevens arrived from Grand Manan with a load of lobster bait, and is now waiting a favorable wind to return to the North Shore for another load for the lobster fisherman.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Perry have started housekeeping in the house on Pleasant St., owned by Charles Young. Word has been received from Windsor, Ontario, where Mr. and Mrs. Young have lived for the past two years, that they have left there for California, to spend the winter.

Mrs. F. H. Teed has gone to Boston to visit relatives.

The Preacher's Hard Lot

A preacher has a hard time. If his hair is white, he is too old. If he is a young man, he hasn't any experience. If he has ten children he has too many. If he has none, he should have and isn't showing a good example. If his wife sings in the choir, she is presuming. If she doesn't, she dislikes her husband's work. If a preacher reads his notes he is a bore, if he speaks extemporaneously, he isn't deep enough. If he stays at home in his study, he doesn't mix with the people; if he is seen around on the streets he ought to be at home getting up a good sermon. If he calls on a poor family, he is playing to the grandstand. If he calls at the home of the rich he is an aristocrat. Whatever he does someone could have told him how to do it better. He has a time living off of donations which never come in. Next to being an editor it is an awful life.

Just Talks--On Common Themes

On "The Edge of Christmas"

THE lights twinkle by night now, in a Christmas tree in the home of my friends and nieces and I can sit under it and see a wibble lot. The little things that the little folks have collected for their Christmas giving are on the tree and are catalogued in their minds. They have the notion of giving.

I can also see a little lad, twenty-two years ago, under a Christmas tree at a church. I recall a boy who came to me and told me that, on top of that tree was a pair of skates that were marked for me. I can see them tonight as plainly as I saw them then. They held a star cut out of the prows of the blades where they turned up over the toes. They shone in nickle steel and were by far the fairest thing on the tree.

There was no one to give me those skates. My folks were not giving skates; but I was a shy, wee little lad who had been a good scholar in school if I do say so and somehow I constructed a notion that someone, recognizing a shy and inconsequential boy might give him a pair of skates.

I was very happy until the last things on the tree were given away. Never once was my name called. I was quite apart from that Christmas tree. And then they reached up a long pole and took down those skates. I was breathless. And then the room turned black. The boy had died. The skates went to a lad with an armful of presents. I hoped he liked them. I went home alone thru the night, with blinding tears.

It is a shame to harass childhood with promises, or to scatter distress needlessly thruout the world. This is Christmas season and the word is "Good Cheer." If ever in the year, this is to be the time of Courage, Optimism, Faith, putting the BEST Foot Forward. We have no reason to magnify things that distress us. Business succeeds by having courage and faith. This is a wonderful country and Business which hangs high on the Christmas Tree is going to be distributed to someone.

I don't believe in croaking. For two months now, I have been doing my best to make good cheer in this column. I have tried, if nothing else, to say "Merry Christmas" every day--so I am preaching no new doctrine or making my "right-about face." I don't believe that in this little column of common talking you will have found ten words of pessimism in two months. What is the result? Is the town worse off? Are we downhearted? No-o-o-o!

Carry Christmas spirit along with you. It is a form of portable wisdom that pays. I remember being told that in 1873 this country was going to be hit by a panic. In a year, so I am told, we had so much business that the folks did not know what to do about it. We can't have panics now--we have a fine banking system.

Let the lights gleam in the Christmas tree and reflect in our hearts and lives. There is a gleam in the Child; two faces, the child here peering into them; and the child in the Manger so long ago.

I can hear and hear the Christmas Waits ten years ago and can look down at a little group of people out in a snow storm of great warm, woolly flakes sitting down past the electric lights. I had a little sister, I think, to the window and could almost hear her little throbbing heart beat. She reached out with eagerness for the lights of that Christmas dawn and heard the songs of the Christ from the singers out there in the snow.

We sit in a little mist of days
Neath the gloom of a winter sky
And someone whispers and someone prays For the shadows to flutter by
And we tell and mend and play our part
And worry and fret and mean
And that's because in the human heart
We think too much of our own content
We think too much of our own content
And the kind of pleasure that suits
And the kind of weather that's over us sent
And our share in this life's fruits
Of our aches and pains and grief and gloom
Our comfort and fame and pride
And the I and the You and the great big Me
Are the stakes to which we are tied
If we were broader and bigger men
We'd smile and sing together
Comrades of life in the world again
In every condition of weather
And instead of a mist of little days
This earth would swim with shining
And lift its voice in a shout of praise
Instead of a wail and a whining.

That will pass for common-sense as well as poetry. It is by Folger McKinsey. Let's cheer up. This is one of the brightest of Christmas. Let's all be happy. Let the town be happy. Let the lights stream from every window. Set the candles to the panes. Make merry.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL.

The Radio Hog

The road hog, who takes the road and holds it, regardless of other drivers, is a familiar spectacle. The radio hog, a new development, is still more exasperating, because he discards models so many more people. Just as several thousand listeners have tuned in and settled down happily to the enjoyment of a fine radio concert, the music is interrupted by a loud voice butting in and calling some other amateur. If the voice makes connections, it may go ahead and hold the air for half an hour, drowning out everything else and forcing the big widely scattered audience either to listen to a lot of drivel of no general interest whatever, or to shut off the instrument in disgust.

The worst thing about these interruptions is that the decent people, handling their radio sets with due regard to law and courtesy, are helpless. They cannot tell usually who the boorish butter-in is, and they are powerless to talk back.

If the radio is to realize its full possibilities for purposes of social enjoyment and instruction, some way will have to be found to eliminate these hogging interruptions. There are times and wave-lengths enough for amateur communications and experiments, as there should be, without interrupting public programs. But they are not sufficiently heeded or enforced.

The Word "Christmas"

Brevity may be the soul of wit, but abbreviation is not the soul of the high sentiment and sacredness that attach to Christmas. Why abbreviate the syllable that carries its sacred meaning? Why make it "X"? Surely the ink or space or trouble saved does not warrant marring a word that holds such high place in heart and memory. Certainly Christmas should not be cut down by abbreviation. It is "Christmas" in speech. Let it be so in writing.

Celebrates 97th Birthday

New Tusk Lady Hale and Hearty--Local and Personal News

Alphonse Thibeau of Hectanooga and Ulysses Smith are visiting in this place at time of writing.

Chester Stevens spent Sunday with his friend, Miss New Gaudett.

Elis' little five year old daughter of Mr. A. J. William Gaudett is very sick with appendicitis at time of writing. Dr. E. J. Elderkin of Weymouth, in attendance.

Miss Nellie Lewis spent the week end with her aunt, Mrs. Judson Mullen, Havelock.

Mrs. Luke Gaudett, who has spent the past two months in Weymouth, returned to her home on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Greene left Friday for Boston to spend the winter.

Miss Clara Sabean spent the week end at her home here.

Rev. L. T. Sabine, of Port Maitland, occupied the pulpit of the reformed Baptist church on Sunday.

Mrs. David DeLong celebrated her ninety-seventh birthday on December 9th. She had been in good health until just recently when she was confined to her bed for a few days. She is wonderfully smart for a woman so old. Mrs. DeLong was formerly of Kempt, Queens Co.; but for the last few years she has been residing with the youngest of her thirteen children, Mrs. C. F. Sabean.

Moody Mullen has taken a contract for C. O. Hankinson of logging and sawing timber near Sabean's mill. It will take about five years to complete the task. Mr. Mullen is already getting his camp built. We wish him success.

Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Mullen spent Sunday with the latter's mother, Mrs. Stephen Mullen, Havelock.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mullen on the arrival of a baby boy, Dec. 7th, Walter Edward.

Tourist Traffic

George E. Graham left this morning for Portland, Maine, and other New England centres, in connection with the development of tourist traffic to Nova Scotia in 1924.

With the restoration of the "Bluenose" train, and the placing of a third boat on the Yarmouth route, the transportation interests will be in a position to provide a service far in advance of present day requirements. They feel, however, in view of the importance of the tourist traffic to Nova Scotia, as a whole, that the Government, through a Tourist Association, or some such organization, will shortly realize the possibilities in this connection and indicate a real interest in the matter. No section of the country is so well equipped as regards location, climate, scenery attractions, etc., as Nova Scotia, but, outside of the propaganda broadcasted by the transportation companies, little or nothing has been done to advertise the Province.

Over seventy-five thousand persons will pass through the Yarmouth gateway during 1924, and with concerted action on the part of all concerned, the figures can easily be doubled, the greater number coming in our direction.

The State of Maine, with no greater attractions than those possessed by Nova Scotia, has in a few years increased her annual revenue from the tourist traffic from three to forty million dollars.

This is a non-partisan issue; every citizen should appreciate his or her responsibility.

Preparations are under way for the holding of a meeting of all interested bodies in Halifax early in the new year at which men prominently identified with work of this nature will present facts and figures, and out of which it is earnestly hoped will be evolved a strong, permanent organization for the development of the tourist traffic to Nova Scotia--Kentville Advertiser.

L's Family Herald's Offer

Readers of the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal are noted for the enthusiastic support which they give their paper. Their enthusiasm and trust seems to be well placed. They never look upon the $2.00 subscription as an expense, but rather as a safe investment which yields them big dividends every year. They are no doubt right when they claim that each issue of the Family Herald and Weekly Star contains news, saving and money-making ideas which would pay the subscription price over and over.

Readers of the Family Herald and Weekly Star are indeed lucky, because it is now announced that heaped upon the phenomenal value already contained in the journal itself, the publishers are giving free to each new subscriber who renounces in time, and to present subscribers who renew their subscription for another year, a most beautiful picture entitled "The Wonderful Horne". The reproduction of the original masterpiece in colors has been done to perfection. In size the picture is 15 x 24 inches, on rich, heavy paper.

The life story of the Wonderful Horne has been printed in booklet form and a copy can be obtained cost free by any of our readers who send a postal card to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal.
