Caught Beneath Pile of Lumber, Child is Killed

Hectanooga was the scene of a tragedy on Monday, when Marcel Mazier, 7-year-old son of Paul Mazier, of that place, lost his life when buried beneath a pile of lumber which toppled over on him.

The lifeless body of the boy was found buried deep beneath the lumber by his father. Subsequent examination showed the young lad had died of suffocation.

Just what the actual cause of the tragedy was would be learned, but it is supposed the little fellow in some manner must have pulled out of the pile some cross pieces of the pile and sent the pile falling down on him. Another belief is that the lad may have crawled up on the top of the pile, and so overbalanced it. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of "death by suffocation."

BAND NOTES

A meeting of the Music Council directors, held recently, discussed importance concerning the Civic Band. It was unanimously agreed that nothing should be allowed to interrupt the steady progress of the band even though its treasury needs immediate replenishing. It was shown that approximately $600 is required to finish paying for three instruments already bought on the installment plan, and to put permanent improvements needed on each out of order, besides paying a large bill for music and purchasing more music and numerous accessories necessary to complete its equipment. The above amount is required in addition to all the Band can earn by concerts and engagements. These expenses would be small if the Band had the necessary outfit at the start.

Few people know what music costs a band to acquire a library to meet all needs. For instance the march "There's Something About a Soldier" was just bought for $1.80, while "Blue Danube Waltzes" cost $4.75. Between 300 and 400 selections are required to make a repertoire of fair size. Most music suits a particular band, and is not suitable for an older one. When once bought it is rarely preserved for continual use.

Paul Yates was re-appointed band leader for one year under the same arrangement as heretofore. Lorain Hayden was chosen to collect arrears. Music Council dues, $1.00 per year.

The band could earn quite a sum by putting out engagements. They could wear uniforms, but without them they would not be able to do so, as the numerous uniforms bands available would give the preference for any engagement. A classy outfit of blue cape and map, with white trousers, would be both inexpensive and very attractive. Bands without uniforms don't look like one, and doesn't seem to sound like one. The means of securing uniforms were discussed.

A Grand Concert in the theatre is planned for some time in May, with singing and dancing. The concert was attempted in Digby heretofore, but an outbreak was a condensed rendition of Balfe's Grand Opera, "The Bohemian Girl," with prologue and epilogue, and with solos, choruses, and feature dances in gypsy costumes, accompanied by the Band.

Vocal music and stage management of the "Bohemian Girl" will be directed by Harry L. Y. Beaman, who is splendidly qualified to handle it. This is a grand opera, and a number of a grand opera troupe which rendered this opera many times in the tour of the Eastern states, producing it almost every city east of Chicago.

Last year the Band was a grateful recipient of several beautiful pieces of hand-work from ladies in Digby, and realized a neat sum by using them as prizes for lucky ticket holders. This is a grand idea that any thing in that line, or indeed any thing from a box of chocolates to a radio, would be welcome before the next season of the lottery. It has been most successfully tried elsewhere, and it is worth trying in Digby.

The Band has an idea it can give a big boost to Saturday night business in Digby next summer by playing short concerts somewhere down the highway, and if the idea is good, if a suitable platform can be provided. If the concerts were advertised around the country, the streets would be thronged every Saturday night, and half-hour intermission in the program would leave the people nothing to do but look into the stores, and business would be lively. It has been most successfully tried elsewhere, and it is worth trying in Digby.

HAVE WE A RIGHT TO KEEP PETS?

Yesterday we were informed of a case where a woman had clubbed a kitten (not belonging to her own household), and struck it five times because "she didn't want everybody's cats around her place." (Don't investigate we found the kitten in question was our own pet white angora, and for a time we thought we would have to destroy it.)

We have also been advised of another party who states that they will beat any cat or dog seen about their premises.

It strikes us that these people are going to extremes. Cats will be cats, and dogs will be dogs. The owners of these pets love them, and if they have aged hock-hold "furry" keep their children from going places where they ought not to go, how can they restrain their pets? It has been ruled in the courts, time after time, that cats and dogs, being predatory animals, cannot be restrained and confined in one yard or house.

It is about time that some of these cases of absolutely unnecessary cruelty to animals should be brought to the attention of the proper authorities.

BROTHERS AT SEA

Proof of an inherent fealty between British and American seafarers that transcends any written code again manifests itself in accounts of a daring exploit at sea, says the Christian Science Monitor. Out of a storm on Hong Kong the other day came an SOS from the United States gunboat Fulton, of the China Sea piracy patrol, afloat in Bias Bay.

First to reach the scene was the British warship Wishart which ranged alongside the blazing gunboat and took off her imperilled people.

Naval history offers a striking analogy to this rescue by an occurrence in those same waters many years ago. England and France were allied against China in a dispute over a vessel named the Arrow. In naval skirmishes a British gunboat was sunk, her men cast into the sea.

Close to the range of fire was an American warship. Should her commander risk international complications by attempting to rescue those floundering British tars? He took the risk. In a tense moment that determined his action he voiced a phrase that is now famous. "Blood is thicker than water!" The saying is borne out again.

In repaying that debt British sailors have risen to inspiring heights of coolness and courage. The skillful seamanship and unflinching judgment that marked the thrilling rescue of the Fulton's 18 officers and men commands a whole-hearted admiration of all who comprehend the hazards that beset the rescuers.

That heroic deed cannot help but strengthen the natural affection that binds the English-speaking peoples.

FRANCE WILL CELEBRATE DISCOVERY OF CANADA

Following the lead set by Canada, France has appointed a national committee to prepare plans for the celebration in that country of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of Canada by Jacques Cartier, French navigator and explorer. On this committee is Marquis de Montcalm, direct descendant of the Marquis de Montcalm who commanded the French troops in a losing battle in 1759, on the Plains of Abraham, Quebec, against the British under General Wolfe, a battle which brought to an end French rule in North America and made of Canada a British possession.

"WAR BABIES" AGAIN

The world, as every newspaper reader knows, is full of war talk again. The nations are forming just as they were doing before the World War. And the international armament makers, who sell impartially to both sides, are prospering again— with more prosperity in sight. How close these things are related may be seen from a Wall Street broker's statement inviting his customers to participate in the "war baby" stock. Pointing to some recent war orders he said:

"While one may regret the social side of warfare, the business perspective is so indisputable that it may not be overlooked. Money in the great corporations that produce armaments of astounding proportions during the decade following the World War, laid the foundations for the production of war material long before America entered the conflict.

"The immense industrial machine of this country, now on a peace basis, could rapidly be converted back to a war basis, with the United States as purveyor to the world in arms."

consideration that may not be dismissed from the present viewpoint of the securities of certain companies that have the means of this quick conversion."

In short, get into the war business and make a lot of money! And what, asks the Gloucester, Mass., Daily Times, if we also got into the war ourselves through selling armaments for those wars, as we did last time? The college girls who get out the Vassar Miscellany News, "Come and Buy," is their taunting headline. "Gently insinuate itself before our eyes comes the suave reminder that war is the most profitable business in the world."

"This seems the most vicious piece of propaganda we have ever seen. While one may regret the social side of warfare, the business possibilities are so tremendous, they may not be overlooked. Apparently the public has now reached the stage where it will accept anything on a commercial basis, even the traffic in human lives. If the profit religion is so strong, within us that we shall buy and sell the welfare of our fellowmen as casually as cotton bales, the present social order has no excuse for existence. The broker's statement must not be allowed to stand unchallenged. But it is more important that we refuse to be taken in, or allow others to be taken in, by the more sugar-coated invitations to war."

SUBTERRANEAN

Even now Without a sound, Spring is stirring Underground, Hurrying, Eager, Here and there Under asphalt, Wondering where She can find A bush or tree Where her sap Can be set free, Though the city pavements May Bind her, She will break away, And her gushing green Will run Like a fountain To the sun.

"The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER"

By ALFRED BIGGS

Don't take beauty at its face value.

No man ever realized his full potentialities.

We often do good to solve our consciences.

Happiness is a state of mind open to everybody.

Let tomorrow take care of troubles which may happen.

It takes a finer character to endure prosperity than adversity.

BEHIND THE DEPRESSION

We are apt to argue that a drop in the government's sales of liquor these depression years shows the success of "government control" as a temperance measure, forgetting that decreased sales in liquor, like decreased sales in anything else, have been due in part to the fact of scarcity of money to buy. We ought indeed to deplore the fact that, when money for food and clothing has been so scarce, so large an amount has been spent in buying liquor. But, "lest we forget," let us get behind the depression years and ask some questions of "government control" results in Canadian provinces prior to 1929.

Query—Did the gross revenue of government liquor stores in Quebec show increase or decrease in those years?

Answer—The gross revenue steadily increased from $15,212,801 in 1922 (10 months) to $34,229,624 in 1928.

Query—In how many places was liquor legally sold?

Answer—The number of places legally selling liquor in 1922 was 1961, but in 1928 it had increased to 3138. In both periods this included hotels, taverns, restaurants, beer stores, breweries, clubs, steamboats, dining cars, banquets and trading posts.

Query—Did so much provision for legal sale do away with boot-legging?

Answer—No. In 1928 for example, there were 9,069 complaints of illegal selling, 1,675 persons jailed, 400 persons fined, and 22 stills seized. This was an increase over 1924 when the complaints totaled 5,355, persons jailed 874, and persons fined 539.

Query—Did the sale of wines tend to lessen the sale of hard liquor?

Answer—The official reports show that while the sale of wines increased from 716,015 gallons in 1925 to 1,434,863 in 1928, the sale of spirits also increased from 718,635 gallons in 1925 to 919,673 gallons in 1928, nearly 27 per cent.

Clearly demonstrating its opposition to service, meter and like charges not based on the amount of commodity furnished, the House of Representatives of Massachusetts, on Monday afternoon again went on record in favor of the elimination of all forms of gas and electric service charges.

A young lady, when asked if she played golf, replied: "Oh, dear, no! I don't even know how to hold the caddy."

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

BELOW PAR

The human family can be divided into those who are sick and those who are well, but such a sweeping division ignores the various grades of health. Obviously, those who are suffering from actual disease are not healthy, but among those who are free from disease there are a vast number who do not enjoy health.

Health has been described as the harmonious working of all parts of the body. Loss of harmony means loss of health, and when discord occurs we have disease. A certain level of health is par. This level is not the same for any two individuals because no two individuals are born the same physically and mentally.

When we say that a man is physically below par, we mean that he has fallen below the health level which he can and should maintain. This loss of health usually occurs gradually. There are certain diseases which strike suddenly, but most diseases are insidious in their onset and for that reason, the term "below par" should be accepted as a warning of the possible onset of disease.

One of the most common symptoms of declining health is fatigue. The individual may say that he has lost his pep, or that he is always tired, or that he feels "all in." Every one experiences fatigue, but can overcome it by rest. It is the chronic fatigue or the unusual fatigue which should be looked into.

The normal healthy person keeps his weight at about the same level. He may add a few pounds or take off a few, depending upon his physical activity, but his weight is fairly uniform. A steady loss of weight, for no apparent reason, should never be disregarded. Repeated colds, a persistent cough, or fainting spells, should all be viewed the same way.

The person who has his physical condition checked through a periodic health examination will not drift into the below par state. The periodic health examination will reveal any abnormal condition or faulty habits of living, and these can be corrected before health suffers.

The person who has not had his physical condition checked in this manner assumes the serious responsibility for his own health of noticing any condition which suggests that his health is slipping away from him, and of securing treatment before serious harm results. Unfortunately we are apt to find some ready excuse for the below par feeling, and so go on in a false sense of security, thus losing the precious time when treatment might be the most helpful.

Early adequate treatment is all we have because it is the most effective and it is always the least expensive in the long run. Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

A TEA THAT THRILLS THE PALATE AND SAVES THE PURSE

Some consumers buy Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe Tea for special occasions—when they give social functions, entertain strangers, and so forth—but there is a growing number who use it all the time. The reason for this is not merely because of its superior flavour, but because of its spending power. People are coming to realize that it doesn't cost them much if any more to enjoy this superior tea. Particularly is this so today in view of the remarkable advance that has recently taken place in ordinary grades of package teas. While the cheaper grades of package teas are costing the housewife considerably more than they did a short time ago, Morse's Selected Orange Pekoe, Canada's tea de luxe, is still sold at 70 cents per pound. At this price it costs so little more than the cheaper teas, that there is a distinct economy in using it.

THAT "LIKE THE DICKENS" FEELING IS LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile. Feel Fit. You Needn't use Calomel To Do It.

It's your liver, failing to pour out the vital two pounds of bile, daily, into your bowels, that makes you feel so off-colour. Lack of bile means poor digestion. Food stays too long in your bowels and decays. Your system is poisoned. You go through the misery of gas, bloating, pain, heartburn. You have a dark brown, slimy taste in your mouth and bad breath. Your skin's unwholesome and often your head aches. Your whole system seeps out of liver.

How can you reasonably expect to clear up all these ills, if you're taking calomel? Calomel is a harsh, irritating, and even deadly poison. It doesn't wake up your liver bile. It merely moves the bowels, and that's not enough. You must wake up your liver bile. Calomel (mercury). Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. They're purely vegetable, gentle, pure and safe. They'll make you feel a hundred per cent better in a very short time. Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name—and get them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 25c. at all druggists.

STAND BEHIND THE BEAR RIVER EXHIBITION

To the Editor of the Courier:—

Sir—At the 1st quarterly meeting of the Bear River Agricultural Society, held last March last, the secretary pointed out that the annual Exhibition was not being supported very well by the nearby towns and villages, as the following will show: The towns of Digby and Annapolis Royal were represented by one exhibitor each, and the villages of Belliveau's Cove, Greenland, Cutaway North, Bear, Fullerton, Culloden, Freepoint, Lansdowne, East Ferry, Brighton, also had one exhibitor each. Smith's Cove and Deep Brook had five exhibitors. The very fact that at least one exhibit was received from the towns and villages in question shows that the question of the annual exhibition was not a deciding factor. If one could do it, then others could also do it, and the object of this letter is to bring before the residents of all the towns and villages in the counties of Digby and Annapolis that their exhibits will be welcomed at our Annual Show. We feel that our show should be representative of farmers and their wives, for both of the counties and that if the residents of the surrounding towns and villages will take more interest in the annual exhibition, by sending exhibits and attending the show, it will be to their advantage. Therefore, we urge that when the Prize Lists are sent out, and they will reach you early in the summer, you make plans to have as many exhibits ready for the show as possible.

As will be seen elsewhere in this issue of the Courier a Short Course is to be held in Bear River on the 10th of April and prominent agriculturists will speak on Dairying, Sheep Raising, Fertilizers and Field Crops. The lectures will start at 2 o'clock p.m. sharp, and the meeting is open to the public.

In the near future a social evening for members of the Agricultural Society and their friends will be held and it is hoped that as many as possible will be able to attend. The plans are not as yet complete but will be announced in due course.

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

Golden Text:—"Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven."—Matthew 19:14.

Lesson Passage:—Matthew 18:1-6, 12-14; 19:13-15.

My little daughter shuns the shadowy dark
With childhood's blind, unreasoning fear.

Yet she will brave the blackest night
In her hand

In mine, secure if I am near.

A child of larger growth, I dread dark ways
Of life I cannot understand;

And I have also triumphed over fear
By holding fast a Father's hand.

—Mabel Coriella Matson

Child Study

Seated in the laboratory of a college, a young girl dissecting a frog said, "I would much rather know what goes on in the mind of a child than what happens in the stomach of a frog." The remark was remembered by her desk mate, and after her death, a disquisition of child study was endowed which has continued to grow. One graduate of the department went to a large city and organized a clinic for stutters, cured. Another was alarmed at the and nearly every case treated was high rate of maternal mortality, and carried on an educational campaign by which in the course of a few years her city had the lowest mortality rate on the continent. Experts both in day schools and Sunday Schools are carrying on research in child psychology. In Canada the costs for education have gone up to $178,000,000. Compared with the huge sums spent on many things of lesser value, the amount is not excessive. It is an indication that the child is coming into his own.

Christ and the Child, 1-3

How did Jesus know so much about children? Many adults in middle age assert that they remember very little of their childhood experiences, but it may be that Jesus had a very clear recollection of his own childhood. We know that in the Nazareth home there were younger brothers and sisters, and he would observe them. Perhaps he started his use of parables by telling stories in the evenings. He had observed children in their play and spoke of their game of marriages and funerals. The gospel records tell of several children whom Jesus healed. Doubtless he talked with children in the homes where he visited. He knew how trustful and teachable they were, and he sought to develop in his disciples the same attitude. When they asked who was the greatest in the kingdom of heaven, he called to him a little child and set him up in the midst. Frequently adults tell children to act like grown-ups, but Jesus told the disciples to become as little children. He did not wish his disciples to be childish, but he did wish them to be childlike.

The Childlike Heart, 4-6

Christ exalted the humility of a child. He identified himself with children and warned them that it was better to be drowned in the sea than to harm a child. What made him lay such emphasis upon childlike hearts? Had he seen children ill-treated? Did his soul revolt against children being regarded as chattels and taken as slaves for debt? Had he met instances where parents had neglected the Jewish law, and had allowed children to grow up without religious training and moral guidance? What would Christ say about the economic mismanagement that has made children suffer in a land of plenty? What would he say about children being starved by war blockades? What would he say about little children having to work twelve hours a day in factories and mines? These are not childish sins, but adult sins having their rise in greed and avarice. To cure these adult sins, Christ held up the humility and naturalness of a child, and told his followers to become childlike. It is not an impossible ideal.

The Worth of People, 12-14

One of the ways in which the Pharisees showed contempt for people was in their harsh treatment of the outcasts, the "who had transgressed the ceremonial law and were not in good standing in the synagogues. These were spoken of as dogs and lost sheep. Jesus spoke of a shepherd leaving his ninety and nine sheep that were safe and going out to find the one that was lost. If a shepherd values one sheep, how much more effort we should make to reclaim a human being who has gone astray? It is always a social loss when a person with possibilities of spiritual and moral growth gives up in despair and is content to abandon hope. How may this individual and social tragedy be averted? The best way is to begin with the child. Some of the most valuable religious attitudes may be established by the age of three, under wise teaching. If we give the right kind of education to youth, age will be less likely to go astray. The only way to grow more roses is to plant more bushes. To reformat an adult at sixty is too late. The right path at six. So may old age be as a lusty winter, and the best of the wine come at the end of the feast.

The Children's Charter, 19:13-15

An artist has pictured Jesus sitting with the children of the world around him. The picture is not overdrawn. Christ has been the friend of children, hospitals, playgrounds, toys, books and pets all bear witness to the ideals of child welfare inspired by Jesus who laid his hands upon little children and took them up in his arms. The disciples rebuked the parents of the children for approaching, but Jesus gently rebuked his disciples for keeping the children away. He said: "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Nineteen centuries have not exhausted the truth in that profound saying. It is as been more powerful in the last century than ever before. Christ's love for children must spread until there are no hungry children, no ignorant children, no ill born, maltreated and underprivileged children. The world moves forward on the feet of little children. The destiny of humanity tomorrow depends upon the training of the children today.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—How far has the business depression affected children?
- 2.—Is medical science conquering children's contagious diseases?
- 3.—What right has the state to train the child?
- 4.—How may children's aid acts be improved?

5.—What would Christ have us do for children in the home and church?

SAM LANGFORD'S CAREER

In attaining a title in any avenue of human endeavor, luck is prominent as a contributing factor.

In the sports sphere, luck is more often predominant over skill. In particular, this is evident in the racing shuffling realm. Very often, it is apparent that the champion of today would hardly have penetrated beyond the prelim. category of yesterday. Frequently, there is an overdose of talent, and each of the top liners of titular caliber. Later, there is a dearth of worthwhile performers, and the champion smells of camembert.

Canada has produced an army of near champions, uncrowned champions, battlers on whom Lady Luck has frowned, and who have been denied world titles. Yet, man to man, the unlucky ones could have mopped up on some of those who have been privileged to call themselves class kings of fist flinging.

Sam Langford, five feet, six inches of black dynamite, was the peer of uncrowned champions. At his best, today, Langford could taunter Primo Carnera, Jack Sharkey, Tommy Loughran and Max Baer, in a round each the same night. In his right hand was TNT, while his left hand toted nitro. It is questionable if there was a harder puncher in the history of the ring, with the exception of J. L. Sullivan, of Boston. Langford and Jack Johnson went 16 rounds at Boston, when Langford weighed 160 and Johnson was 200, and six feet in altitude. The decision went to Johnson by a very narrow margin, but after that Johnson steadily evaded Langford who was in his element when he weighed 170. Jim Jeffries, Jess Willard, Tommy Burns, all evaded Langford as champions. In order to get ring dates, he had to play serials with whites and blacks of the roped, enclosure, and allow his opponents to win, quite often. Sizzling Sam is now almost totally blind, at night, being able to see a little during the day. . . . Each summer season, he tours the eastern provinces with a tent show, giving exhibitions despite his vision handicap. The balance of each year he lives in Boston. He has saved nothing from his ring earnings. His birthplace is Weymouth, which is his summer base. Occasionally he squares a few dollars a week by hugging pipes in shops.

(Editor's note.—The above is from an article which appeared in a recent issue of the Halifax Chronicle, and was written by William J. McNally.)

SHE LOST 32 LBS.

New Frocks No Longer Worried Her

“How did she lose that 32 lbs. of fat?” which you will be asking. Let her tell you herself.

“About 18 months ago I weighed 178 lbs.—which can assure you annoyed me very much. Everything seemed a worry to me, especially new clothes. Nothing would fit me comfortably, and walking was unbearable. I was advised by a friend to try Kruschen Salt, and I am very glad I did, too. During the first ten months I lost 24 lbs. of fat. Now for the last six months my weight has been 146 lbs., and I feel much better in health. I have [in my weight] tickets to substantiate my statements.”

(Mrs.) M.P.

Kruschen contains those six mineral salts, proportionately balanced, found in the waters of those famous European spas used by generations of fat people to reduce weight.

Kruschen helps blood, nerves, glands and body organs to function properly—you gain new strength and energy—feel years younger—look better, work better.

THE HAWKS DEPART

When the Moncton "Hawks," holders of the Allan Cup, representatives of the Dominion senior amateur hockey championship, left Moncton on the Ocean Limited of the Canadian National Railways, to meet the Quebec Champions in the title series for 1933-34, their emblem adorned the pilot of the huge locomotive. A large crowd gathered on the station platform to cheer them on. The following day a Hawk special made up of rosters from the Maritimes rolled out of Moncton station for Montreal, and on arrival there, the "Hawks" emblem which adorned the locomotive was surreptitiously taken by the undergraduates of McGill University with the intention of draping it in crepe and hunting it back to the Hawks after the series with McGill. The emblem has never been handed back, draped or undraped, the Moncton Hawks defeating McGill Redmen in both games and are again senior amateur hockey champions of Canada, following their decisive defeat of the Fort William Thundering Herd in the final series.

Rev. E.W. Forbes Tenders His Resignation

At a meeting of the Grace United Church Board, on Wednesday evening, Rev. E. W. Forbes, who has been the faithful pastor for the past seven years, tendered his resignation which will take effect at the end of the conference year.

The resignation was accepted, but not without expressions of regret from the members of the Church Board. Mr. Forbes states that his relations with the church and the board had been most pleasant at all times.

Other charges of the circuit include the United Churches at Bay View and Smith's Cove. Since coming to Digby, Rev. and Mrs. Forbes have made a host of warm friends who will regret to learn of their departure. They have taken a keen interest in the work of the church and community. For several years Mr. Forbes has been president of the Children's Aid Society.

Mrs. Harrison Jones won the first prize at the Ladies' Bridge Club, which met at the home of Mrs. Ephraim Gates, Weymouth Mills, on Monday.

Mrs. (Capt.) Ernest Lewis has returned from Digby.

H. J. Campbell and W. C. Outhouse were in town on Monday.

Queens County Woman Meets Very Tragic End

Miss Annie S. Kempton, 55-year-old Milton, Queens Co., lady, leaped to her death from the promenade deck of the Princess Helene, while crossing from Saint John to Digby, on Saturday last. The tragedy occurred some seven miles off the Gut.

The unfortunate woman is said to have boarded the train at Toronto, where she had been visiting her two nephews, and was en route to her home in Milton. Passengers on the steamer, who were climbing over the rail and leap to the swirling waters beneath, were unable to do anything to prevent the tragedy.

A number of sculler boats were dragging in the vicinity, and it was the crew of the sculler Jessie May, Captain Shirley Tidd, who recovered the body.

The remains were put on board the Princess Helene and brought to Digby. From here they were sent to Milton, on Monday. Miss Kempton was identified by a money order and bill of lading made out in her name, which were contained in her hand bag.

BAND NOTES

Mentioning uniforms in last week's Band notes the printer changed a letter, and instead of "sapes" and "c-a-p-s" said the band needed new "m-a-p-s". The boys are wondering if he meant it—they had an idea they were a fine looking lot of fellows already.

With an ambition to improve their playing, several bandmen are exchanging the inferior instruments they started with and are getting better ones. This will make a great improvement in the tone-quality of the band as a whole. Ross Turnbull is the modestly proud possessor of a new Holton Revelation Gold Trombone. It is doubtful if a finer trombone could be had anywhere.

The Annapolis Regimental Band is determined to maintain its high standard of playing, and find it necessary to keep a well-paid director. Charles Wilson, leader for the past two seasons, has returned and "practices" have begun under his instruction.

The North Sydney Band starts the season with vigor. At the recent election of officers, the Mayor and two Town Councilors were chosen President, Honorary President and Secretary-Treasurer.

Six rehearsals every week keep Director Bates busy. The new Junior Band of fifteen players meets three times a week, and are making fine progress with almost 100 per cent attendance. Several older players meet with them to brush up on weak spots and to help the new fellows.

The Digby church choir rendered unusually good music during Easter season. It was greatly enjoyed and deserves recognition. Some of their numbers were sung in a manner that large city choirs would find it hard to excel. Male singers who to the Band found the musical training of the band room a great help in their choir work.

Dr. D. E. Dickie, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Dickie, who returned to Sackville last week to resume his studies at Mount Allison University, is in the hospital at that place with pleurisy. His condition is not considered serious.

The scarcity of clams in the vicinity of Gloucester, Mass., has created a demand for "razor fish" for bait, says the Gloucester Times, and in consequence a number of former clam diggers have turned their attention to harvesting the razor plants that have become far more numerous in the beds than the legitimate razor valve, it is said. The buyers are offering $4 for a 30-quart firkin of the new bait, all shocked. The razor clam is so called because of the similarity in shape to the old-fashioned razor. It is "straggle-limbed" and like other species, can develop quite a burst of speed when pursued, by a clam fork in the hands of a digger. To capture the ordinary clam it is necessary to dig to the bottom of his den, but a "razor" always leaves a way for retreat. At the first prod of the fork he will go into reverse, and it takes a smart digger to head him off in his zigzag course.

About two weeks ago the Courier published in its Bear River local paragraphs a hint to the effect that the C. G. I. T. group of the Baptist church in that town were planning a hike to J. E. Langley's maple sugar grove. That was the only mention of the grove made, but Mr. Langley informs us that he has received letters from all over the Maritimes ordering sugar and syrup. He says on the strength of that local. He just it was impossible for him to fill the orders as he only made sufficient for the local demand, but he is convinced that advertising pays.

Marriages

Mansfield—Sulis

Holy Trinity church was the scene of a very pretty wedding at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sulis, of this town, became the bride of Samuel Mansfield, of London, England. The bride, who was, unattended, entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. W. E. Tupper. She looked charming in a pink georgette dress, with chiffon jacket and hat to match. She carried a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty roses and lilacs of the valley. During the signing of the register Miss Marie Flemming sang, "O Perfect Love." Following the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. A. E. Gabriel, rector of the church, a dainty buffet luncheon was served to the immediate relatives and friends, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother was becomingly rowed in black satin, with accessories to match, and wore a corsage of pansies. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. A. G. Sulis and Henry Sulis, of Dix Brook; Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Clarke, of Bear River; Mr. and Mrs. George Reg. J. Annapolis Royal; Miss Clara M. Sulis, Miss Gladys Sulis and Mrs. James Rippey, of Windsor. Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield left on the business railway in the afternoon for Saint John, where they took the steamship Montcalm, on their wedding trip to England. The bride's travelling costume was a swager suit of brown flick tweed with brown accessories to match. On their return they will reside at their new home in Drummondville, Que. Mr. Mansfield is employed as a chemist in the celanese plant at Drummondville.

Mrs. Mansfield was showered by her friends, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. B. J. Roop, at which she received many lovely gifts.

Kiwanis are to Observe Father and Daughter Day

The Kiwanis Luncheon on Tuesday will be observed as Father and Daughter Day. Each Kiwanian is obliged to bring his daughter—or if he has no daughter—someone else to school (daughter age preferred). The luncheon is in charge of the Programme Committee and arrangements have been made whereby the luncheon will not interfere with school on Tuesday.

On Tuesday last Kiwanian Dillon gave an interesting and humorous talk on his yachting experiences. It takes Arch to tell a good story, and his stories of his own reminiscences were among the best the Digby Kiwanians have ever listened to.

Beech Trees of Digby County are Dying Out

Has the beech trees of western Nova Scotia been smitten with some rare disease?

We have been told that hundreds of the older beech trees in Digby and Yarmouth Counties are dying off. For the most part the trees affected are those more than five inches through the younger trees appear to be sound and in good condition.

Lumbermen say that this malady first became noticed in Yarmouth County, and has spread up into this vicinity at an alarming rate. Beech is one of the most valuable of our hardwood trees.

This section of the province, has during the past few years, lost a large number of grand old willow trees—they also have been stricken by some disease and died off. Last year in particular large numbers of these fine ornamental trees had to be cut down, and destroyed.

Cercle Acadie Meets

The "Cercle Acadie" held its regular meeting Sunday with a good attendance. Willie J. Belliveau, vice-president, presided at the chair. Addresses of much interest were delivered by Basile Belliveau, B. Sc., on the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, and Lin Comeau, B. A., on the War and the Consequences, as Causes of Future Conflict. Short impromptu addresses were made by Willie J. Comeau and Jean J. Comeau. The meeting was held in Church Point.

Mrs. W. E. VanBlarcom, of Annapolis Royal, has been a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. C. H. Carly and Mr. Carly.

Obituary

Avard Campbell

The death of Avard Campbell occurred very suddenly at his home at the Racquette, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The deceased was 74 years of age, and was the son of the late John Campbell and Lavinia Stark. Mr. Campbell was apparently in the best of health on Tuesday and was about town most of the afternoon. His death came as a surprise and a shock to the whole community. The deceased, who was unmarried, lived with his sister, Miss Minnie Campbell. He was a retired farmer and for many years conducted a successful milk route in Digby. He was also a member and ardent supporter of the Grace United Church, Digby. Surviving are three sisters, Miss Minnie Campbell and Mrs. R. C. Smallie, Digby; Mrs. Nyrone S. Calhoun, Conough, N. J.; two brothers, Hallet, of Hawthorn, N. J., and Ezra of Kildwood N. J.

SOLDIERS KNOW WAR

From all over the Dominion, veterans who fought for Canada in the World War go up to Ottawa for a "soldiers' parliament," says the Jacksonville, Fla., Journal. They have one big motive, the promotion of peace. They speak to the world out of an experience as full, as sacrificial, as heroic as the World War brought to any of its participants, they say: "We want no more war."

These are the men who endured the mud and blood and filth and vermin. They know the "glories" of war and evaluate them without any false standards.

When such men are out of the list of supporters of war as a means of settling international differences, who are left? None, but the stay-at-home flag wavers; the patriots for profit; the enthusiasts for other men's sacrifices.

There should be tremendous authority in the declarations of these men of Canada who out of bitter experience condemn war and implore the nations to join them in making war impossible.

FRANCE MAY DEVALUE

France is operating its government on borrowed money. Business is bad, debt rises and there is rebellion against taxes. Premier Doumergue, given power to balance the budget and deflate prices, is going ahead on that principle. But there are plenty of critics in France to maintain that the country cannot stand any more deflation—that it needs reflation.

The most radical part of this group seems to be made up of industrialists. They want to live in luxury by devaluing the franc, just as the United States devalued the dollar. A former minister of finance finds no argument against this procedure. The fact that France cut the franc to one-fifth in 1928, that, says, is a "past event," and "no one" vaccinates us against the worst crisis, which has undermined the bases of the two greatest, strongest currencies in the world—the pound and the dollar.

All the sounds familiar. Economic problems in all the industrial countries are much alike. If France does devalue its franc, it will aim at parity with current values of the pound and dollar. That would make it possible for France, Britain and America to stabilize their currencies on the same gold level, and that, in turn, would be a big step to international finance and trade.

THE CHALLENGE OF 1934

A united womanhood could out-war wars. An intelligent, understanding womanhood must educate the coming generation to be peace-minded. They want to talk peace, not only at home, but in the community where their activities can be felt. Women must spread the knowledge of how war propaganda is originated. Women must organize themselves in their educational peace work; in their training of the young people; in their hatred of wars; in their comprehension of what is happening in the world today.

Women must come out of their homes to realize what conditions the community is facing today in relief administration. Women must make it their business to see that there are proper conditions for relief work in their district. Unending cries of maladministration indicate that there is a need here for a more satisfactory handling. Women must come out of their homes to give a little life and color to those who are facing the bitterness and misery of continued unemployment. So much can be done in the community centres to teach listless fingers the joy of creating something; to spread a little of that blessed feeling of neighborliness.

Women, representing half the voting power of a nation, must take an active, intelligent interest in the spending of public moneys. They must banish, once and for all, the suggestion that they are lethargic.

These days are the equal, in many respects, of war days. War-time courage and enthusiasm are needed.

Come out of your homes and see what is happening in your community. Get together and discover ways and means of setting to rights some of the cruel, stupid, unnecessary mistakes that are being made in every part of the country. Raise such a storm of protest that you cannot be ignored!

It is 1934's challenge to Womanhood.—Byrne Hope Sanders, in the Châtelaine (Toronto).

"A DRINK TO WARM ME UP"

In a book entitled "Alcohol and Life" the author suggests this experiment:

"Take two pieces of blotting paper and dip one in water, the other in alcohol. Place one on each wrist and cover with something to prevent evaporation, such as a watch glass, egg cup, or large tumbler. Leave for a few minutes and then note the wrist covered by the one dipped in alcohol is redder than the other. This is due to the blood vessels being dilated."

Now in this simple experiment we see at work the process that makes alcohol an enemy to be dreaded. It has a way of dilating the delicate mechanism that regulates the heat of the body. My good neighbor Ben has often said "there's nothing to warm one up when he's cold like a good glass of whiskey." And he is quite sincere, but the heat there is deceptive. Nature provides that in cold the little blood vessels coming out to the skin are tightened up so that the heat of the body is kept inside where it is most needed, just as in a cold day we close the windows of our homes to keep in the heat. The alcohol in a drink of whiskey relaxes these little blood vessels. The blood rushes out then to the surface of the body, giving a feeling of warmth. No new heat is created, and the heat there is tested to escape at the surface. The inner vital organs of the body are robbed of the heat they need.

Let the microbes of pneumonia be around somewhere, and he would certainly be a "chump" sort of person if he wouldn't take advantage of the lowered heat of the body within, slip in and take possession, and that, too, when the leucocytes in the blood, the defence garrison, have been numbed by all this chatter about the value of a drink of whiskey to warm one up. But the men who have been really up against the cold of the Polar regions in a real world while test, have no delusions about propaganda. The great explorers to the Arctic and Antarctic regions simply let the liquor drinkers to stay at home when they want good hardy rugged men to stand the rigors of their expeditions. Ask Captain Kennedy who spent many months in the frozen regions searching for Sir John Franklin. Ask Captain Ernest Scott, Sir Ernest Shackleton, Fridtjof Nansen, Sir William Edward Parry, and others who dared the north and south frigid zones what they think—and with one voice they will say that "alcohol and cold do not mix."

"The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER"

BY ALFRED BIGGS

Love hope and you're lost.
Truth rarely has to justify itself.
Envy is an admission of inferiority.
Light love may turn any time into hate.
Big minds are not hurt by little criticism.
A good listener never lacks a confidant.
Repentance is largely fear of consequences.
Insincerity indicates weakness of character.

BABIES

Over six hundred babies are born every day in Canada; twenty-five new babies arrive every hour of the day and night, which means that we can boast of one new Canadian every four or five minutes.

The first few hours of life are the most critical period of human existence. From the point of view of survival, despite the fact that infants are given a much better chance to live today than ever before, nevertheless, the first year of life is still the period when one in six of all deaths at all ages occur, and of all the deaths which occur during the first year of life, a large percentage take place on the first day following birth.

There is one way open to us by which we may hope to prevent these very early deaths, and that is through the care of the mother before the birth of the child. These children do not die as a result of any occurrence after birth, but from conditions arising during pregnancy and at the time of birth.

The baby who survives this period is absolutely dependent. Babies cannot do anything for themselves; they must depend upon their parents for the care which they need. Some children seem to grow up like Topay without any care, but taking children as a group, it is the child who receives proper maternal care who escapes the pitfalls which beset the infant.

There is nothing of greater importance to the child than breast feeding. Practically every healthy mother can nurse her baby, and no mother should think of not nursing her baby or of weaning him without seeking the advice of her doctor. The doctor, if breast feeding is impossible for whatever reason, will, when comes, will prescribe proper artificial feedings.

The baby requires water, and because he cannot ask for it, he must be offered a drink of water at frequent intervals. The baby who is clean is more comfortable, and so he should have a daily bath. His clothes should be loose and comfortable; he should wear enough clothing to keep him warm, but not enough to make him hot. Regularity in feeding is essential to health. Feed by the clock, waking the child if necessary. This promotes good habits, insuring better rest. The old habits of rocking the baby to sleep or sitting by his crib until he goes to sleep are undesirable for both child and mother. The comfort is another bad habit. The baby does not have to have something always in his mouth, and the comfort should never be used because it is really irritating and dirty, as well as being deforming to the mouth.

Never Does Liberty

—appear more desirable than when we are enslaved.

—offer more than when we are under our own tyranny;

—seem more necessary than when we are best governed;

—seem more sweet than when it is just beyond our reach;

—stand more in need of friends than when most men are avoiding friendship;

—seem more in jeopardy than when lovers of liberty abuse her;

—stand in greater hazard than when in the hands of the ignorant.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

Here and There With G. R. T.

Well! Here we are once more getting our Weymouth news from the columns of that sturdy old pioneer of Digby County Journalism, "The Digby Weekly Courier", established by a very agreeable and well known gentleman, H. S. Dyer, who published the first number on September 18th, 1874. I think that the Courier was the first newspaper that I ever read, when I arrived at Weymouth when the reading of newspapers began to be one of my favorite indoor diversions. And the Courier, reaching Weymouth every Friday evening, came at just the time when I could give it my undivided attention. Its columns were always well filled with interesting news of county and happenings. There was always a "kick" for the reader, as well as for the writers, in the various letters to the Editor from "Taxpayer," "Vox Populi," and other mysterious gentlemen, who loved them, just as we do today, to voice their objections to the acts of the municipal council and other legislative bodies, and tell the members and the rest of the world how they felt about them. The tax-payers' letters were just as difficult to suit some of the taxpayers all of the time and all of the taxpayers some of the time, in those days as it is to suit all of the taxpayers all of the time in our day.

The Courier at that time ran several short stories each week that were sometimes thrilling and always entertaining. Tales of the sea, detective stories and yarns by commercial travellers. In the Wit and Humor section there was always something from Mrs. Nye's "Boomerang" and Bob Burdette's "Harbinger." Both of these writers were noted humorists of their day and some years later, after I had grown up and journeyed away from home into the far West, I had the pleasure of meeting both of these writers personally. Dr. Burdette after giving up newspaper work, became a Baptist preacher and was the pastor of the Temple Baptist church in Los Angeles at the time of his death. He was very much beloved by his large congregation and thousands of others who knew him.

It was in Duluth, Minnesota, that city at the head of Lake Superior, at one time known as the Zenith City of the Great Unsalted Sea, that I met Mr. William E. (Bill) Nye. He and Mr. A. P. Burbank, a noted reader, were billed to give an entertainment in the Lyceum Theatre. They happened to be house guests of a very good friend of mine, who was gracious enough to invite me to dinner that evening and to meet these two delightful gentlemen. I had always enjoyed the droll humor of Bill Nye's writings and on this night it was my great pleasure to meet him and hear him tell of his experiences and his travels around the country. Having heard both men talk I am inclined to say that our outstanding humorist of today, Mr. Will Rogers, reminds me very much of Bill Nye. A. P. Burbank's part of the evening's program was very enjoyable. One of his readings was Dr. Drummond's poem about the "Wreck of the Julie Plante." Burbank's patois was perfect. Basil Saulnier (of Weymouth) himself could not have rendered the piece any better.

The Courier will soon be sixty years old. Friday does not seem to have been a very unlucky day for the paper. A publication that can weather the storms and gales, floods and dry seasons, hard times and hard times, in sixty successive years of journalism in a small town and still be going strong, is certainly entitled to its share of the medals it and when they are ever passed out to publishers of country newspapers.

I was reading a few days ago in the Canadian Herald a Review of a short article about another paper that was published in Digby in 1868, called the "Bluehouse". In the issue of March 4th, of that year, the editor—whose name was not mentioned in the Review—wrote a very warm article in favor of seceding from the Dominion and uniting with the United States. Apparently the powers that were at that time in Halifax were rather perturbed over such radical actions and were inclined to take action toward suppressing the paper and locking up the editor. Whether it was on account of the proposed action, or whether the editor having had his say and decided to say no more, it seems that no further issues of "The Bluehouse" were ever printed. This is the paper that Bro. Isaiah Wilson failed to mention in his history of Digby County.

Speaking of the Bluehouse, do you remember the days of the old "Fly-in-Bluehouse"? The crack train of the Dominion Atlantic Railway between Yarmouth and Halifax? "Some train," we called it then. A few days ago I went out to the railroad yards to look over the new Union Pacific train that is being exhibited over the country. It is a three-car affair with the car bodies built of aluminum; the weight of the entire train is slightly more than the weight of one of the late steel Pullman cars. It is propelled by a 600-horse power motor which is built into the front end of the baggage car. This motor develops a speed of 110 miles per hour, which says I is "too darn" fast for rail traffic as the railroads stand at the present time. A great amount of time changing and straightening over mountain and plain will have to be done before they ever get me to ride on that kind of a train at that rate of speed. Imagine hitting some of those curves west or east of the Weymouth station at 110 miles per hour! The old Sissiboo River would have a new kind of a submarine embedded in its muddy bottom before we could even say "Wait".

And, by the way, that is what the new train looks like—a submarine on wheels—a stream-line affair, 204 feet long, with a fish like head and tail, the body resting on low trucks and small wheels, and when side doors are closed it appears to be one single car—so closely are the coaches coupled together. One of the two coaches are used for passenger traffic, the first car of the train being occupied by the motor, mail department and baggage. The two passenger coaches are supposed to seat 116 passengers. One of the coaches is known as a daylight train. There are no sleeping accommodations, and if you will believe me the seating accommodations are none too ample either. Two fairly large people would have a rather uncomfortable time of it trying to be comfortable in one of those double seats. The aisles, too, are very narrow. There are some folks I know who would have a rather bothersome time of it in getting past a fellow passenger in one of those narrow passage ways. A case of back-up, or lie down and be walked over, which might result in more or less serious complications if one were rushing down the aisle for a drink of water or something.

This train has a new feature and one that I have often wondered why the railroads of the country have not adopted before. It is a cooling system for the passenger cars which I am sure will be much appreciated by the passengers while travelling through some parts of the country in hot weather. There are no smoking compartments on this train, but who cares? Everybody smokes where she chooses in these times. The wash rooms, if they may be called such, are quite in line with the space saving idea which is so noticeable throughout the entire train. One at a time and hurry out. There is no dining car on this train but a buffet kitchen is located in the extreme rear of the last car. It is a light lunch place which looks as if the railroad company had learned its lesson from previous sad experiences with dining car operation. The price of a dining car sandwich being usually prohibitive, the idea of carrying a large stock of sandwich makings and lunch fixings would be fully indeed. "Take a tip—bring your sandwiches from home."

Otherwise the new train of the Union Pacific Company is a fine little train. Here's what the railroad company says about it: "There is a completely new type of railway train, graceful in form, highly pleasing in color harmonies and pre-eminent in utility, convenience and comfort. The train is fully equipped with roller bearings, and trucks are designed to incorporate the use of rubber to the fullest extent for elimination of noise and to improve riding quality."

"The train is operated from a cab situated above and in front of the engine compartment. The engineer has an unobstructed view ahead and on both sides. A powerful fog-piercing headlight is supplemented by a light which throws a ten-inch beam high in the air for added safety. Warning signals are given by a powerful siren and an electric cone. The color of the exterior of the train is canary yellow, which can be seen for a greater distance than any other color."

This is the answer of one large railroad company to those of its patrons who have been asking for greater speed with safety and comfort. But just the same, I am waiting to see what happens to this yellow speed demon before I purchase any ticket on such a swift ride. It is possible that this sort of a train will sooner or later, cause the present day passenger trains to be stored away on some rusty repair track in the railroad yards, but I hope not. For solid comfort on a long trip of three or four hundred miles or more there never will be anything to equal the luxurious Pullman cars, dining cars and observation cars that make up the splendid transcontinental trains of the American and Canadian railways, and how that fare have been very sharply reduced it is less expensive and a lot less tiresome to ride the trains than driving your own automobile. Less dangerous, also.

Los Angeles, Cal.Obituary*Mrs. Margaret McLean

Mrs. Margaret McLean, widow of the late Hugh McLean, of Digby, passed away in the Melrose Hotel, Melrose, Mass., on Tuesday last week. Mrs. McLean was born in River Dennis, Cape Breton; her father, Archibald McLean, was born in Scotland, and her mother, Mary Cummings, was born in River Dennis, Mass. She was held in Somerville, Mass., on Thursday, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, many from Digby. Interment was in Fairview cemetery, Digby, after services in the United Church, conducted by Rev. E. W. Forbes. The choir sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Jesus Cares." She leaves to mourn three brothers, John, in Cobalt, Ont.; Angus, in Ipswich, Mass.; and three stepdaughters, Mrs. Burton, Robinson, Waterville, Mass.; Mrs. A. P. Humphrey, Somerville, Mass.; and Mrs. Arthur Reedtz, Everett, Mass. Mrs. McLean came here 20 years ago, as the wife of Hugh McLean, Shore Road, and won many friends, who, with relatives will miss her goodness and willingness always to help. There were many beautiful floral pieces, from Boston, and from friends in Digby. The body was accompanied to Digby by the three stepdaughters.

WHO HAS THEM?

Some year ago—possibly 20 and it may have been 30—quite a number of the bound files of The Digby Weekly Courier, were borrowed, and taken away from the office, but by whom nobody knows, except those who have them. The late Isaiah Wilson once told us that he was not sure about them, all being bound—but he knew they had been loaned, as a former manager of the Courier told him. It is possible that some are still in existence in somebody's attic. They belong to us and we would like to have them. But we do not want those who have them to have their trouble for nothing after all these years, as the chances are that the party who borrowed them has "passed on" ere this, so we will give two full years' subscription for every year's file returned.

Youngsters Travel Alone

Loaded with a large paper bag, full of sandwiches and fruit, five young Canadians "voyagers" are seen at Windsor Station, Montreal, where they more than enjoyed themselves while waiting for the train to take them to the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York and England. "They are

Billy Anderson, 14, and his four sisters, left to right above, Ena, Blanche, Greta and Gwena. Greta, the youngest, is only six. Few youngsters of his age are ever called upon to chaperone four young sisters on a 5,000 mile journey, but Billy shouldered his responsibilities like a man. He was shepherd, guide and constant census-taker of his little flock. The children are going to live with their grand-parents at Parley, near London. Canadian Pacific representatives and the Traveler's Aid Society "cared for them en route. On board the Duchess of York the little girls were looked after by a motherly head-stewardess.

THE FRIENDLY MAN

Honored By All Canadians—National Chairman of the Victorian Order of Nurses

On March 31st, Colonel, the Right Honorable George P. Graham, celebrated his 75th birthday, being as, as active, as optimistic as ever. As the man who has served as Minister of the Crown, in three administrations, he is the friend of all and the enemy of none—something that can be said of very few who have been mixed up in politics for the greater part of a lifetime.

The son of a Methodist Episcopal clergyman, he attended the local schools of Iroquois and Morrisburg, Ont., and showed considerable oratorical ability at an early age. His playmates thought so much of his speech making that they put him on a soap-box at recess and let him spout to his heart's content on any subject that entered his head.

It is one of the Senator's proud boasts that he has been almost continuously at work since he was 12 years of age. Working in country stores, during the holidays, teacher in a country district, manager of the village newspaper, and through various vicissitudes of newspaper life, until he became sole proprietor of "The Recorder," a Brockville newspaper. Elected to the Ontario legislature for Brockville he became Sir George Ross's provincial secretary, and on that gentleman's death succeeded him as liberal leader in the province. In 1907 he was drafted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to become Railways Minister at Ottawa, and through the years he has held prominent political positions under the liberal banner, until his elevation to the Senate in 1926. Finding his duties there a bit easy, in addition to his business interests, he has tackled various extra-parliamentary responsibilities. The Canadian Prisoners' Welfare Association knew him as its president for a number of years and he looked after the great Confederation Jubilee of 1927. Just now his job as National Chairman of the Victorian Order of Nurses claims much of his attention. "Looking backward do we not experience a deep thrill and feel blessed beyond measure, in having been permitted to follow closely in the footsteps of Him who 'went about doing good'?" In the knowledge that our Mission is Heaven-sent, and the reward beyond comprehension, let us face the coming years with joyous hope and unswerving confidence," is one of his messages to the V.O.N.

From his cheerful sympathy and readiness to assist with work and subscriptions in many benefactions it is easy to explain why of all Canada's so-called "senior statesmen," Hon. George P. Graham is probably the best beloved.

Johnson Signs Lobster Code

The United States National Recovery Administrator, Hugh S. Johnson, has signed the code for the lobster industry, which included the clause limiting lobster sales to those between 9 1/2 and 13 1/2 inches in length.

Inclusion of the size limitation on lobsters was urged by the industry and by the Bureau of Fisheries in the face of Canadian protests. The Bureau of Fisheries and Lobstermen asserted that the restriction was necessary for conservation purposes in that lobsters below that size are immature and that 85 per cent. of the lobsters most efficient in reproducing their species are above the maximum size.

The restriction embodies the provisions of conservation laws in Maine and other lobster-producing states. Canadian lobster producers had protested through the State Department that the restriction would militate against Canadian exports to this country.

The code adhered to the labor provisions of the general fisheries code, but included provision for a $60 per month minimum for smack employees, $67.50 per month for pound employees, and $20 per week for others. It would permit the employment of no person in the industry less than 18 years old.

The code will take effect on Monday.

Mrs. C. J. Eldridge returned on Tuesday, after spending the winter at Daytona Beach, Florida.

It is understood that there are a number of students who have graduated from this grade are anxious to take up further studies and will also sign the petition which will be presented at the next meeting of the school board.

We understand that G. E. Torrie was successful in catching a big trout this week—fourteen inches long and four inches across, near his camp on Mallett's Lake. We haven't been advised as to the weight.

Government to Consider Plan to Aid Fishermen

The Stevens Committee, said the Prime Minister at Ottawa, recently will hear representations designed to increase prices of fish and lower the spread between producer and consumer. The plight of the Canadian Fishing Industry will be investigated by this committee and the government has pledged itself to give favorable consideration to any scheme advanced by provincial authorities to place the industry back on its feet.

Father and Daughter Luncheon a Success

The "Father and Daughter" luncheon of the Digby Kiwanis Club held on board the Princess Heine on Tuesday, was a rousing success. Most of the girls who were not blessed with daughters managed to borrow them for this occasion. The others who could not borrow, beg or steal, were fined fifty cents. It was a merry party.

President R. H. Lockward was chairman of the meeting, with him at the head of the table sat his two daughters, Misses Lois Walker and Harriett Campbell.

Miss Walker, who has charge of the Girl Guide Group in Digby, gave a short talk on what has been accomplished and what this organization hopes to accomplish. The Digby Girl Guides were organized in February with an enrollment of 30 girls ranging in ages from 11 years to 16 years. The troop has been divided into two groups of eighteen each.

The Girl Guides is an organization for girls very similar to the Boy Scouts for boys. Most of the newly organized group are now ready to pass their tenderfoot tests. Miss Campbell, assistant leader, gave a reading "He Was There and So Was I". Following this she gave a further outline of the work and possibilities of Girl Guiding in Digby.

Each girl present at the luncheon was presented with a needle book, a gift of Kiwanian C. Wright.

The next regular luncheon of the Kiwanis Club will be held at the same hour on board the Princess Heine on Monday of next week instead of Tuesday. Every Kiwanian is urged to be present at this luncheon.

Court Case Over School Taxes

The case of the Trustees of the North Range School Section, No. 9, vs. Hbber C. MacNeill of North Range, was tried before Stipendiary Taylor here on Saturday and Monday.

This dispute is over a matter of taxes, the trustees suing MacNeill of $10.00 he is alleged to be in arrears in his school taxes.

MacNeill and his family swore that the sum had been paid, and that the receipt for the same was lost.

On the other hand, the trustees claim that the sum has not been paid and that their records for the period (1929) have been mislaid or lost. At the time A. W. Andrews was Secretary of the North Range School Section.

Stipendiary Taylor has reserved his decision. E. J. Theriault was solicitor for the plaintiffs and P. Jones, K. C., for the defendant. The case occupied the attention of the court for two days.

WHY SELF DENIAL?

Again the Annual Appeal of the Salvation Army is at hand; no merely an effort to collect the valuable dollar, but an invitation to all to drink deeply from the Pool of Altruistic Goodness by giving.

When men cease to look at themselves only, and with practical compassion look at the plight of others less fortunate, they begin to climb the hill of true greatness.

The broad-visioned man will be aware of the masses of unfortunate people, and will desire to come to their help. So while your time may not allow you to engage in this work of benevolence, which is truly the work of the Master, The Salvation Army is rising up to meet the need, with its world-wide organization composed of consecrated men and women, who are giving their lives to this labour of love.

Institutions such as Rescue Homes, Hostels, Hospitals, Social Service Centres, Police Court Work, etc., all afford you an opportunity to help humanity with your support, just in the way you would like to do it, and at the same time help to build one of the world's greatest and most practical Missionary efforts.

The years of economical depression have placed greatly increased demands on the Salvation Army; and in spite of the difficulties arising from a support of voluntary contributions during times of financial limitations, the Salvation Army has met the demands of the many who have turned to us in confidence with their need. We have been doing this in many cases at the personal sacrifice of the devoted workers and officers of the organization.

We appeal therefore, again this year to our many friends of this district for your generous support, in the name of Him who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these ye have done it unto Me."

It will be our pleasure to call on you in the near future.

Yours for the welfare of humanity,
Captain A. Pedersen
Local Representative

Scallops Fishermen's Petition Largely Signed

A petition, largely signed by the fishermen and business men of the town, is being circulated by the Digby scallop fishermen. This petition asks:

"That the dredged Basin on the west side of the spur pier be widened and continued shoreward in a north westerly direction, until intercepted by the main wharf and to be deepened to such a depth as deemed necessary by the engineers to assure sufficient water to float this class of boats at low water, together with the necessary landing stages and ladders.

At the present time there are some forty-five or fifty boats dragging in the Digby district. The majority of these boats operate out of the port of Digby. The continual growth of the town, the increasing number of boats, the cramped facilities, it is not an unusual sight on stormy days to see boats tied up three and four abreast at the spur pier. Others tie up at the main wharf, and the mooring facilities cramped. It is not an unusual sight on stormy days to see boats tied up three and four abreast at the spur pier.

From Digby and the Raquette. The scallop fishermen which have grown from one boat, not more than ten years ago, to the present fleet, is due to the fact that the fishing industry in this county, and gives employment to more than two hundred men. More scallops are caught in the vicinity of Digby than any other section of the Maritime Provinces, and one of the largest along the Atlantic seaboard.

Better Summer Season Prospected

Although local hotelmen are not saying much on the subject, it is prophesied that there will be a considerable increase in the tourist trade this year. It is said to go as far as to say it will be 50 per cent. better than that of last year.

In Digby, and all over Nova Scotia, it is hoped that such will be the case. Digby, perhaps, depends more on the tourist trade than any other town in the province. In this town hundreds of thousands of dollars have been invested in summer hotel accommodations and other tourist attractions. The tourist industry—if it can be called an industry—is Digby's main source of income.

During the past four years, and the last two in particular, there has been a decided slump in the tourist travel, which has been felt directly and indirectly by every citizen of the town, but, nevertheless, Digby, as a tourist town, has not felt the "premonition" to the same extent as the industrial centres.

The drop in the tourist travel has been attributed to many things, all of which have had something to do with it. The main cause, of course, is the lack of money, but other factors blamed are the Century of Progress Exposition; roads and lack of publicity.

Nature's Oversight Made Good by Man

Mother Nature overlooked Hart Lake in Colchester County, where stocking Canadian waters with fish but Dominion fish culture workers have remedied the mistake and Speckled Trout are now getting along in tip-top fashion. It's another of the numerous cases in which human culture has stepped in to enlarge the country's fisheries resources.

There used to be no fish at all in Hart Lake, which, by the way, was otherwise an attractive bit of water. Then 1921 rolled around and in that year the Fish Culture Branch of the Dominion Department of Fisheries liberated in the lake 2,500 Speckled Trout fry from the federal hatchery at Bedford, N. S., having first made a careful examination of course, in that year the lake was found to be well suited to this variety of fish.

In 1932 another 30,000 fry were added to the original lot. Then, when the summer of 1933 came round, observations were made to ascertain what had happened to the little strangers, and here's what the officers found out:

Some of the lot, weighed well over a pound, most of them at least a half a pound, and all of them were apparently as lively and healthy as any Speckled trout to be found anywhere. Examination showed that they would spawn during the ensuing autumn. The smallest yearlings among them were from six to seven inches long.

April Meeting of Smith's Cove Women's Institute

The April meeting of the Smith's Cove Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. O. Morgan, president. Mrs. G. R. Weir, presiding. After hearing committee reports, and the transaction of general business, an interesting programme dealing with the program for the household was given. Tempting refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting by various members of the institute.

Next month's meeting will be held at the home of Miss Janet Cornwell. The Public Health Committee will be in charge of the programme.

F. L. Anderson returned this week from a business trip to Montreal and Ottawa. On Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left on a trip to Boston.

Little Interest Shown in Golf Club at Meeting

Thursday evening of last week, the shareholders of the Digby Golf Club held an open meeting in the Town Hall. Business men and citizens of Digby were invited to attend to discuss what was to be done about the town golf course this summer.

There were ten persons present. We understand that forty were asked individually; most of them said they would try and be at the meeting. An invitation was also extended through the columns of the Courier.

We are all aware that these have been lean years for the Digby Golf Club. During the last two years the course has been leased and operated at a loss by the individuals who undertook the running of it. This summer we understand, that the operation of the course hinges on the purchase of a mower—an expenditure in the vicinity of $300.

We are also aware of the fact that the Digby Golf Course is one of the biggest drawing cards for tourists in the town has. Many of our tourists visitors come to Digby almost for the express purpose of playing over this course, and should the course cease to function there would be little incentive for them to come.

In other words, the Digby Golf Course benefits every one of us, directly and indirectly. To let it drop even for one year would be a serious loss to the town—and if for no other reason, the business men of Digby should do what is in their power to prevent such a thing from happening.

It is an acknowledged fact that the Pines Course is one of the finest on the North American Continent. Nevertheless, it is easily understood why so many of our older tourists and beginners prefer the town course.

All of us are hopeful that conditions will improve this summer. Some will go so far as to say that there will be a 50% increase over the tourist trade of last year. When conditions get even part way back to normal, the Digby Course will again be able to pay its way.

No matter Thursday evening, the matter will be more fully considered this week, but it seems a pity that the business men of Digby did not take sufficient interest in so vital a question to attend Thursday night's meeting and consider the matter with the Golf Club directors.

Rev. W. I. Croft, a former pastor of Grace United Church, here, was among those to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity, at the Convocation of King's University College, which took place at St. Matthew's Church, Halifax, Wednesday evening. Others upon whom this honor was bestowed were Rev. J. B. Bonnell, Rev. F. H. MacLennan and Rev. C. A. Munro.

Mrs. Howard Anderson has returned to her home on Queen Street for the summer.

More Fishermen Paid Bounty In 1933

Fishing bounty payments on the Atlantic coast show an increase of over 350 in the number of fishermen receiving bounty for 1933, and increase, too, in the number of fishing boats and fishing vessel tonnage on which bounty was paid.

These bounty payments are made in the Maritime Provinces and Quebec from the sum of $160,000 appropriated annually by the governor in council under the authority of a statute entitled, "An Act to Encourage the Development of the Sea Fisheries and the Building of Fishing Vessels." The money traces back to the Halifax Award of 1877 under which the United States paid compensation in connection with certain fisheries concessions which the republic had been granted in Atlantic territorial waters.

Figures from the records of the Dominion Department of Fisheries show that 1933 bounty has been paid to 21,597 boat fishermen and 3,102 vessel fishermen, an increase of 274 in the first case, as compared with 1932, and an increase of 91 in the case of vessel fishermen. Boat owners entitled to bounty under the regulations numbered 11,784, or 78 more than in the year before. Payments to fishing vessels are made on the basis of registered tonnage and in 1933 the eligible tonnage was 11,313 as against 11,232 tons in 1932. A few late claims may change some of the figures slightly. The 1933 payments were at the rate of $5.20 to each boat fisherman entitled to bounty, $6.10 to each vessel fisherman, $1 a ton to each eligible boat owner, and $1 a ton to fishing vessel owners, with a limit of $80 on the amount allowed the owner of any vessel.

PRAYERS FOR PROFITS

"We are indeed devoutly thankful for present mercies, but may I add that for what I hope we are about to receive, may the Lord make us truly thankful." These words might have been taken from a benediction. Actually they are part of an address delivered by a leading arms maker to his shareholders recently.

The speaker had just alluded to the depression from which the armaments business has been emerging—no doubt swiftly—in the most troublesome year. Otherwise "present mercies" might be read as meaning a continuation of an all too precarious peace. In its context, however, the phrase is more likely to be interpreted as referring to the military operations of Japan in the Far East, to the slaughter over South America's Chaco, to the "jitters" in Europe. It is conceivable that armament makers, gathered together to consider their profits, might speak of these things as "mercies".

Similar remarks may be found in other addresses. They mark as sharply as anything could—unless it be the trade of arms with enemies in war time—the beautiful detached view with which the arms vendor regards humanity. They illustrate equally well the way in which the interests of one industry in particular oppose the interests of mankind generally. What men fear, these interests welcome. What men call blessed, these interests oppose.

Yet even arms dealers know the workings of prayers: "For what I hope we are about to receive, may the Lord make us truly thankful." But, as if even he were conscious of the ironic humor of the situation in which he finds himself, the speaker of these words added: "And I say it is in no irrelevant spirit."

May be not. But no doubt many readers of his address, recalling the betrayals of peoples to the gods of dividends and counting the millions who perished in the last arms makers' heaven, will speak another prayer: "From what they hope we are about to receive, may we be truly delivered."

ONE THOUSAND INCHES OF ADVERTISING!

This spans like a lot. It is! We regret that although we have a number of good advertisers in our town who use our columns, we haven't many of them who use that much space in the run of a year to advertise all the products they have for sale.

Yet only last week we signed a contract for that much space to be used within a year—to advertise a product that sells for a few cents a package in every grocery store in the United States and Canada!

The product is Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

The manufacturers of this product know they have a splendid article—the whole world knows it—and yet they are wise enough to spend thousands of dollars each year for advertising—1,000 inches in the Courier—and similar contracts have been awarded to practically every newspaper in the Dominion—at regular contract rates.

Furthermore, they furnish cuts to these papers. The cuts themselves cost nearly as much as the advertising.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes are sold in every city, town and village in Canada where there is a store of any kind. They have a reputation that is envied by manufacturers of other like products. The merit of their product gives momentum to its sales, but in order that sales will continue to increase, they spend thousands and thousands of dollars for advertising, and their advertising tends to increase the sale of their product in every store that sells it. Without advertising, Kellogg's Corn Flakes, despite their quality, would hardly be known to-day. Persistent advertising of a quality-product have built up their business.

Advertisers of other nationally known products know from experience that it pays to advertise. No nationally known product, regardless of how high a quality it is, becomes nationally known until it is nationally advertised.

A DIGBY SHOPPING DAY!

Why not do something a little out of the ordinary. All winter we were tied up with snow blocked roads—during the early spring the roads were next to impassable. Trade in Digby was paralyzed for months.

And, now spring is here. The roads are getting back into shape again, every day we see more cars in from the out-of-town districts, and every car brings people to town—and we might, as well say that every person leaves some money in town. We all benefit.

So let's celebrate the coming of spring. One of the best ways to do it would be to hold a shopping day. Let every store in Digby put on a grand sale for one day and give their out-of-town customers something special in the way of values. Make it a bang-up Digby Shopping Day.

We'll wager that such a day, properly handled by Digby merchants, would bring hundreds into town—the urge to buy is greater than during any time since 1930! say a radio speaker.

The New Glasgow Board of Trade has issued an invitation to the merchants of that town to attend a meeting where the matter of Shopping Day—or Days—will be discussed. They even suggest that the railways co-operate with them by giving reduced rates to their town from outlying districts on these days.

ALCOHOL A STIMULANT?

The British Medical Research Council, in a study dealing with the effects of alcohol on the human organism, says "Alcohol is a depressant." And again, "The popular idea that it is a stimulant proves on examination to be scientifically untenable." It is a narcotic drug and when carried by the blood stream to the brain paralyzes the brain cells and first of all the higher cells. Because a person thus affected acts in a sort of unreasoned fashion, others imagine the brain is stimulated when it is really drugged. Deaden the brain cells through which reason and conscience function, and of course, with cares no longer troubling and moral restraints slackened, Tom Jones feels fine, dares heroically, chatters brilliantly, seems like a new man. And so he is but not so much because his mentality has been quickened as because the moral forces that make him a man—judgment, responsibility, self-control—have been put to sleep, leaving impulses and passions to their own sweet will.

If a sedate, self-worshipping driving horse, there are two ways of dealing with the situation. The driver may speed up the horse with spur or whip until the giddy is left behind; or he may drop or kill the giddy, and the horse, thus released from the worry, prances along with renewed grace and ease. The man who is being worried with cares is stimulated when his normal powers are accelerated to the point of out-distancing his cares and putting them in their proper place. But he is only drugged when his joviality and cleverness are produced merely by the delling or stupefying of the senses. Only a few hours pass until the drugging effects of the alcohol have worn off, and the reaction reveals how he has really gained a little while of light-headedness at the expense of a serious drain upon his normal powers of body, mind and heart. Tea, coffee, and cocoa, have no depressant after-effect and do not cause tissue degeneration. They have, therefore, a right to be called stimulants. But not so alcohol, which both depresses and destroys.

Reporter (to film star)—There's a crowd of people outside waiting to see you. Among them is a bishop who says he married you some time ago.

Film Star—"I'm practically certain I never married a bishop."

Dear Old Dad—"Space—nothing but space."

Here and There With G. R. T.

Tomatoes are on the market, that nice luscious ruddy vegetable pronounced here "to-may-to" but in jolly old England and her Dominions across the sea, upon which the sun never sets, the vegetable is, I believe, still called "to-mah-to". Be that as it may, however, the tomato, when fully ripe and sliced and served with a little French dressing or olive oil, is one of the finest of vegetables that can be placed upon the table. Some call the tomato fruit, and why not? For tomato juice is now being served regularly for breakfast and other meals and many prefer it to the juice of the orange.

The tomatoes in the market now are not California grown but come from the San Jose del Cabo district on the west coast of Mexico, and are brought to Los Angeles by steamers engaged in the West Coast trade.

Yesterday 23,368 boxes of ripe toatoes were discharged from the steamer Sission, which was a record shipment. Later we will have plenty of home grown tomatoes, but the finest grades are grown in Northern California, near San Francisco. They are large and firm and have a fine flavor. These grown in the southern part of the state are inclined to be soft and mushy with a rather indigestible skin. Tomato juice is supposed to be exceptionally rich in vitamins—if that means anything to you—and the fresh sun-ripened tomatoes are considered beneficial in affections of the liver. The word tomato is derived from the Spanish-American word "tomate". The English originally called the fruit the "love apple" on account of its supposed aphrodisiac properties—which is something else again.

Yes, we have bananas, too—lots of them. The banana tree flourishes in Southern California but runs mostly to loaf, the fruit rarely ever getting beyond the size of ladies' fingers and never ripens. Our grocery store bananas come from the west coast of Southern Mexico and Central America, and are brought in by steamers of the United Fruit Company, one of which discharged half of its cargo at Los Angeles harbor a few days ago—54,000 bunches; the balance of the cargo went to San Francisco; they are shipped green and are ripened in the curing rooms of the wholesale fruit merchants.

The Los Angeles Wholesale Fruit and Vegetable Market is one of the interesting sections of the city, and these districts, along about 5 o'clock in the morning it is the busiest place in all California. The small grocerymen and peddlers are there in swarms selecting their fruits and vegetables for the day. Japanese, Chinamen, Armenians, and on both the buying and selling ends of the game, and the Jews—how could I forget them when they practically control the fresh and dried fruit business of the country.

I spent several days in the district last December with a concern called the "Los Angeles Nut House," dealers in nuts and fancy dried fruits of all descriptions. They had nuts from everywhere: Chestnuts from Japan; cashews from India; brazils from South America; filberts from Oregon; pecans from Texas and Georgia; peanuts from Virginia; hazel nuts from Indiana; pine nuts from Utah; walnuts and almonds from California; and hickory nuts from Iowa—but not a single beech nut from Nova Scotia. I asked the manager why, and he said that the one nut he never had heard of and never had an order for. This firm had figs and currants from Turkey and Greece; dates from Arabia; better figs and better dates from California. The desert date farms, 150 miles east of Los Angeles, produce wonderfully fine dates, but they are more expensive than the Arabian dates, which retail here at ten cents per pound against twenty cents for the home-grown product.

Strawberries are in the market now in rather large quantities; the berry fields near Los Angeles are busy places just now. Strawberry production is practically controlled by the Japanese. These people are wonderful gardeners. The green vegetables and sweet peas and other blossom growing business is also largely in their hands. The Japs are very industrious and keen in matters of business. Under California laws they cannot own land but they have no difficulty in renting all the ground that is suitable for their purposes from the lawful owners. In my opinion the Southern California strawberries do not amount to much. They are too sour and watery. The farther north one travels the better the berries are, and the best are found in the Hood River Valley in Oregon.

Cherries are on the way also, the first shipment, a very small one, came out of the Sacramento Valley this week. The southern valleys produce the best cherries in this state, and the very best come from Oregon—large, sweet, and juicy, in both black and white varieties. Up in that country they also have a cherry plum which makes splendid preserves and jam. How do you like your cherries? Fresh, or in pie, or bottled? I have been told that in some sections of the state the people use the cherry as a principal ingredient in soup, which according to my way of thinking is putting the fruit to a nasty poor use. I would almost as soon have a dish of ice cream and jam.

Sunrise services on Easter morning will give the features of the day in a large part of California. The great outdoor theatre in the Hollywood Hills, known as the Hollywood Bowl, will be the location of one of these early morning services. Some very noted singers will take part and special music has been arranged for the occasion. I plan to be there if I am not run down and flattened out by the mob in getting into the place. Perhaps I can tell you more about it next week.

Los Angeles, March 30

"Sir, your daughter has promised to be my wife," said the young man.
"Well, don't come to me for sympathy. I knew something would happen to you, hanging around the house every evening," was the unexpected reply.

By ALFRED BIGGS

Safety often lies in silence.

True heroes seek no medals.

The heart often fools the head.

Ability rarely descends to tricks.

In deceiving others we deceive ourselves.

Love your temper and you lose the argument.

Generosity often is merely a bid for popularity.

One is rarely as glad or as miserable as he thinks he is.

White driving to Weymouth North to give a music lesson, about five o'clock Monday afternoon, Miss Pauline Melanson met with an accident, when she lost control of the coupe she was driving, and it crashed into a fence along the roadway near the United Church parsonage. The car was quite badly twisted and bent but Miss Melanson escaped with a few bruises and scratches.

Of the heavy post holding the fence and the wire was badly bent. This fence was placed along the roadway last summer as there is a very steep bank at this point, where many accidents have occurred. Had the fence not been there the car would have undoubtedly gone down the bank and a more serious accident.

Glebe House Burns, Fire Threatens Village

Rev. J. M. Devau, parish priest at Stella Maris Church, Meteghan, was carried from the Glebe House by rescuers on Thursday afternoon of last week while hundreds of others fought frantically to save the village from disaster.

Flames were first noticed at 4 o'clock in the three-story glebe house. The first persons reaching the scene found Father Devau had risen from his sick bed and was playing an extinguisher on the flames which had run down the walls from the third story where the fire started from an undetermined origin. So great a headway had the fire made that his efforts were unavailing. He was immediately carried to the home of a neighbor where he suffered from shock and where, for a time his condition was considered critical.

The fireproof construction saved the beautiful Stella Maris Church. The intense heat from the flames melted the lead binding the glass in the stained glass windows, ten of the windows were destroyed.

A heavy north east wind carried the embers for a quarter of a mile over the heart of the village. The glebe house, seven residences, two garages and the stables were all burning at the same time. The glebe house and most of its furnishings became a total loss.

In Memoriam

1933—GRANT—1934

In sad and loving memory of Marion Hannah Grant, who departed this life March 29, 1933.

"She Is Just Away"

I will not say that I dare not say. That she is dead, she is just away. She has wandered on to an unknown land.

It must be so for she lingers there. And we, oh, we who are left to mourn.

For the good of her and the sure return.

And that is why I will not say. That she is dead, for she's just away. Sadly missed by her husband, parents, sisters and brother.

BOY SCOUTS

Weymouth Troup

At the regular meeting held April 10th, songs were sung and a story was told by the Scout Master, also games were played in which the Owl Patrols score, was 97, Wolves 90 and Beavers 58.

Last week a number of scouts including Assistant Coggins, spent a night in the forest in travelling in the woods. It gives the scouts not only experience in woodcraft but an idea of the old pioneer days.

During the meeting of this week Scout Harry Walker took the names of those who wanted to plant gardens. Seeds will be bought soon. Major Stanley Hallett examined the plans and Coggins on map reading and drawing.

The 15th book to be given out through the library was "Pee Wee Harris in Darkest Africa", presented to the scouts by Scout Harold Journey.

A scout shirt is going to be put on by Scout Master Baden Powell in the Community Theatre in the near future.

OUR ALL FOR THE KINGDOM

Golden Text:—"It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20:35.

Lesson Passage:—Matthew 19:16-30.

We are all blind until we see.
 That is the human play.
 Nothing is worth the making, if it does not make the man.

Why build these cities glorious—
 If man unbuilded goes?
 In vain we build the world, unless
 The builder also grows.

Doing Good, 15-20

The rich young ruler asked a good question, but his question showed a misunderstanding about life. He could do to know what good thing he could do in order that he might have eternal life. He had the idea that if he obeyed enough rules faithfully, he could attain life's highest blessing. That is not the basis upon which character is won. Eternal life does not consist in doing good things. It is possible to keep doing good for years, and yet miss spiritual salvation. The rich young ruler kept the commandments before him, and was quite well satisfied with the way that he was observing them outwardly, yet he was fully conscious that he was missing the inner peace. The fact that he came to Jesus and said, "What lack I yet?" indicates that with all his moral striving there was a civil war within his soul. This conflict was more than a personal matter with the rich young ruler. It was about the essential difference between the Old Testament attitude towards law and the New Testament spirit of grace. In the last analysis what we do is decided by what we are.

Being Good, 21, 22

Christ detected at once the secret of this rich young ruler's trouble. He accepted the man's own statements about his upright life. That just made the personal tragedy all the more pathetic, because the man was really trying to be good. Jesus discovered that the dominant desire of the young man was not goodness but, possessions. The young man had made a great surrender of his

WHO HAS THEM?

Some year ago—possibly 20 and it may have been 30—quite a number of the bound files of the Digby Weekly Courier, were borrowed, and taken away from the office, but by whom nobody knows, except those who have them. The late Isaiah Wilson once told us that he was not sure about them, all being borrowed, but he knew they had been loaned, as a former manager of the Courier told him he had handed them out himself. It is possible these files are still in existence in somebody's attic. They belong to us and we would like to have them. But we do not want those who have them to have their trouble for nothing after all these years, as the chances are that the party who borrowed them has "passed on" ere this, so we will give two full years' service for every year's file returned.

FUNERAL SERVICE

C. C. NICHOLL—Weymouth, N.S.

After two years' study of the proper equipment necessary for Digby Co. roads, we have modeled a Funeral Car that is adaptable to our roads at all times, practically similar to the cars used in the larger cities of United States and Canada, demanding instant recognition and traffic rights as a Funeral Car.
 Our Equipment is valued today at seven times its value eleven years ago, proving our continual growth. We are constantly adding new equipment as it demonstrates its value to the public.
 We employ no agents, entirely collecting patronage by the merit of our service. Prices are kept down to the minimum and our service the best, with transportation easily possible to and from any point in Nova Scotia.

soul, not to God, but to riches, and so he had a dual personality. Outwardly he was keeping the commandments and making an earnest effort to be respectable, but all the time he had to force himself to do what was right. When he was alone and off guard his mind turned to property. Jesus knew that the dominant desire cherished in the secret of one's heart in the end decides destiny. If the young ruler really wished to live a unified life, he must make a decision between God and mammon. Once he surrendered himself unreservedly to a love of goodness, then he would no longer have to strive to keep the commandments, lifting himself by his own bootstraps, but would have such a desire to do right that his actions would be prompted by goodness, and not by a formal obedience to laws. No halfway measures would solve the difficulty. To achieve inner peace he must live all for God.

There has been much discussion among the scribes as to the meaning of the needle's eye. It has been interpreted not as an instrument of sewing but as a small gate through which camel had to stoop to enter Jerusalem. This kind of interpretation does not do justice to oriental figures of speech nor to Christ's own habit of making truth plain by vivid contrast. The essential meaning of his saying is that it is difficult for rich men to be deeply religious. They have many distractions in their lives, and because of wealth there are temptations. The care of property and large sums of money requires such constant attention that cultivation of the spiritual life is crowded out. Jesus had seen this fact demonstrated in the lives of rich men, and the rich young ruler whom he had just been speaking was a case in point. In fact the rich young ruler has many parallels. There are business men who have been upright, honest and law-abiding, yet these men have so devoted their time and thought to business that religion has played little part in their lives. In later life these men often express regrets that the cares of office and factory have kept them from growing soul.

Still a Possibility, 25, 26

Speaking about the difficulties of rich men in religious growth, Jesus did not overlook the power of divine grace working in human personalities. When the disciples who had been brought up to think that wealth was a sign of divine favor, asked who could be saved, Jesus replied that it was difficult for rich men to live religiously, but that it was yet possible. Through the centuries this saying of Jesus has been demonstrated over and over. There have been men who were able to give God first place in their lives, and use their wealth in the service of God. To do this requires great strength of character, but it has been done and is being done. The working hand and using their best human judgment, nevertheless great wealth has not been the first objective in their lives. Christian discipleship has been their supreme purpose in living. They have sought first the kingdom of God, and the other things have been added unto them.

Spiritual Rewards, 27-30

In the past century, by reason of the vast natural resources of Canada, it has been an easy matter for some men to acquire great wealth. Without detracting in the least from the industrial achievements of business men, the opportunities have been so great that it was hardly possible for them to escape prosperity. At the same time those who have sought conquests in the realm of the mind and spirit in Canada have had many handicaps. There has been a materialistic environment yet those who have sacrificed the dream of wealth for the sake of culture and character have been rewarded. Musicians have lived for melody. Scholars have lived for truth. Scientists have worked for control over nature. Artists have lived for beauty. Religious leaders have worked for an unseen kingdom of justice and love. Some of Canada's greatest souls never earned a thousand dollars in one year, but they have left legacies in poetry and in lives made better by their presence. There is satisfaction in living for truth, ideals and spiritual achievements unknown to those whose wealth can be recorded in ledgers. The disciples left all to follow Christ but his companionship and teaching were abundant compensation.

Questions for Discussion

1. Are Christ's warnings about the dangers of riches taken seriously?
2. Why did Jesus choose poor men as disciples?
3. What does it mean to surrender our lives to Christ?
4. How does religion develop morality?

LONDON'S LABORITES

The Labor Party in England has been losing parliamentary elections lately, but in the city of London, 69 Laborites have just been elected to the County Council, a majority of 14 that gives them control. The Labor Party has been working for this opportunity for 27 years. Now that it is in power in the city, the program of making truth plain by vivid contrast. The essential meaning of his saying is that it is difficult for rich men to be deeply religious. They have many distractions in their lives, and because of wealth there are temptations. The care of property and large sums of money requires such constant attention that cultivation of the spiritual life is crowded out. ## ARE WE CIVILIZED?

(Ottawa Journal)
 They buried Lilyan Tashman, screen star in New York last week. Men and women crowded about the funeral chapel. Women fainted, men climbed lamp posts for a better view. Thirty police could not keep order. When Mary Pickford left the chapel by a side entrance the crowd ensued, her women pushed her up against a wall, tore orchids from her sash. Miss Pickford sobbed. Women were trampled and scratched. "Why can't we get in?" the crowd shouted. "We're the fans!" Famous persons were applauded as they arrived. Ten thousand persons pushed into the cemetery. When the body had been lowered hysterical women rushed the police, knocked over benches, and to shrill floral tributes piled beside the open grave. Are we civilized?

2 LATER

I KNEW IT WOULD! ASPIRIN IS THE QUICKEST SAFE RELIEF FROM PAIN KNOWN...

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN—When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headache, toothache, neuralgia, etc. It is said, yet undiscovered. These results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking. The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. An Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly as you swallow it. And this is ready to go to work almost instantly. When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN, quick relief, be sure the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

WHY ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop an Aspirin Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate. What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

OLD RITES ARE OBSERVED BY PEACEFUL ENGLANDERS

Old customs die hard and it is good that this is so, observes a writer in the Chicago American. For the origin of the majority of old customs is shrouded in the mists of antiquity and through the years have surrounded themselves with all sorts of quaint ideas, England is one of those countries that is rich in quaint customs that are still as vigorously reported by the press as though they were current happenings of grave import.

Recently the English papers carried a report of the award of the Dunsford Pilch, and anyone who has been present at this ceremony has a memory that will always endure. For he sees before him a group of married couples every one of whom claim to be eligible for the award of the side of bacon which is given to the couple who can come forward with the most convincing evidence of having lived in perfect harmony and mutual understanding during the year. The custom has been traced back as far as the restoration of Dunsford Priory in Essex early in the Thirteenth century. Some say that the great faith and piety of the priory instituted the amusing custom. There is a record that at the ceremonies held in the sixteenth century, the judges were six bachelors and six maidens before whom the married couples had to kneel and recite an oath written in quaint doggerel.

Nancy Jane Kenney.—Clark's Harbor lost one of its most respected citizens in the person of Mrs. Nancy Jane Kenney, whose death occurred on April 11th at her home in that town. Mrs. Kenney was born at West Head, in 1855, and was a daughter of Benjamin and Dorcas Newell. Her husband, Loran B. Kenney, predeceased her forty years ago, leaving her with six small children, all of whom with the exception of one son, Nelson, who was for several years manager of the Grand Hotel, in Yarmouth survive. They are Joseph, in Boston; Daniel B., in Westport; George W., the present manager of the Grand Hotel, Yarmouth; Annie, wife of Thomas C. At a meeting of the official board of the Grace United Church, held after the church service last Sunday evening, it was decided unanimously to extend a call to Rev. Thomas W. Hodson, D. D., of Canning.

For the past seven years Rev. E. W. Forbes, who came here from Sydney, has been pastor of this church. He tendered his resignation at a recent meeting of the Board.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND NOTES

Rev. A. E. Gabriel, Rector

The services on Sunday are as follows:

8:00 a.m.—Holy Communion.
10:00 a.m.—Sunday School.
11:00 a.m.—Matins.
2:00 p.m.—Service at Marshalltown.
3:15 p.m.—Confirmation Class.
7:00 p.m.—Evensong.

At 3:30 o'clock on the afternoon of July 15th last, Byron S. Small, of East Ferry, threw from the new pier in that place a bottle containing a message. At 3:30 o'clock on the afternoon of April 13th, this year, it was picked up at Meteghan, by J. Denis Comeau, one mile north of the government wharf at Meteghan. In the pipe months it had not travelled a very great distance, and had probably been carried to and fro in the St. Mary's Bay tides all the time.

BAND NOTES

The Civic Band has done hard work during this six or seven months, and will be prepared with a remarkable repertoire for so young a band when the season opens. These will include numerous difficult overtures and other high class selections, but will have a liberal sprinkling of the good old tunes that everybody knows and likes to hear often. Among the popular hits will be "There's Something About a Soldier," "Hinky Dinky Parley-Voo," "Londonderry Air," "Listen to the German Band," "Old Spinning Wheel," "Church in the Wildwood," "Deep River," and dozens others. The favorite classics, "Barcarole," "Flower Song," "Cagliostro Rusticiana," a symphonic band arrangement of the "Blue Danube Waltz," and similar compositions will make their concert delightful to the listener who appreciates music, and the variety of numbers will appeal to everyone else.

The swift pace set by this band has forced some inefficient players to drop out, failing to keep up with the more diligent and ambitious ones. A half-dozen who acquired just sufficient skill to play the first season's easy and simple music, but who lacked the stamina to keep it up will not appear this season, and further weeding out will reduce the size of the band, but will greatly improve its standard. It was a case of courses to be expected but the junior players will gradually fill up the vacancies. The playing strength of the senior band is now about thirty-eight.

There were never so many bands in the world as today, nor such large ones. American school bands numbering 150 players are quite common. Throughout Canada bands are forming everywhere, perhaps stimulated by radio band performances. Saint John now has five bands, one at Fairville having just been organized. The I. O. O. F. band of Moncton has been revived and were ready to welcome the home-coming Hawks. The Victoria band has been organized, their new uniforms were not delivered in time for the event.

At the request of Director Yates, the Amateur League of Canada, designers of uniforms, have prepared a color sketch of a uniform especially suited to the Digby Band. It is the best thing in uniform style, and the cost is very small—less than $10.00. The sketch is displayed in the Little Art Gallery window.

R.C.M.P. to Probe Wreck of Scow

It is currently reported that the R. C. M. P. of Saint John, will probe into the mystery of the wreck of the Saint John lumber scow, Corine Goto, which came ashore near Gulliver's Cove, some twelve miles from Digby, on February 21st. The Corine Goto, a 20-ton scow, owned by William Goto, left Taymouth Creek with a cargo of 60,000 feet of deals for Saint John, 35 miles distant. It is reported that the scow was rammed by a steamer while passing her destination and now it is said the Saint John police are checking up on the movements of the steamer and out of that port about that time.

It will be recalled that in the news despatches, before the scow was reported ashore at Gulliver's, a derelict lumber scow, sunk to the water's edge, had been reported drifting in the Bay of Fundy by Digby scallop fishermen, who reported a "shape indentation in her side, which looked as though it had been in collision with another vessel. The life boat crew of the Bay View life saving station, who were out on duty last night, but could not find her. Later, it was reported ashore and going to pieces at Gulliver's Cove.

Several days after the wreck the fishermen of that district probed the shores for the bodies of the three men, namely, Capt. William Goto, Harold Stewart and John Goto. The bodies of the three men were never found.

In several issues of the Courier we have commented on the faithfulness of several of our local mail carriers who did their duty faithfully and well in spite of the adverse weather conditions of the past winter. During our recent trip to the Islands we were told of the regularity of the service of the ferry between Digby and Tiverton—and, we believe, the same applies to the Westport ferry. The daily mail-service started on March 28, 1932, and only once on December 24th, 1933, did the mail miss, and then it was weather conditions which prevented the bus from arriving; the ferry boat was at the pier ready for it. Since the 24th the ferry boat has made its regular trips and although frequently there was no mail for it, the trips were made. This is remarkably good service, and we hope those passengers can get in certain ways.

FORCES FOR GOOD

An American college president, returning from a six-month tour, during which he visited twenty-eight different countries, admits the seriousness of the war-threat in many parts of the world. He found, he believes, deliberate and malicious attempts to provoke war spirit among nations. At the same time he found hopeful factors often overlooked by persons concentrating on the war scare.

"The forces for international amity are stronger than they were a generation ago," says this observer.

That may seem contradictory, but need not be so. Wherever intelligent people hope and work to preserve world peace, they are doing so not blindly, by mere wishful thinking. They are seriously studying the causes of war in order to develop the cure. A competent observer becomes aware of the strength of the international peace movement as soon as he becomes aware of the strains and tensions making for war. The forces for evil seem more powerful than ever, but the forces for good are also more powerful than ever and more numerous. Continued faith in them and a little steadier support of them by all of us can hold the evil in check.

NAZI HYSTERIA

President Roosevelt gives an impression on the whole of having a good time governing. Chancellor Hitler doesn't. Mr. Roosevelt laughs Herr Hitler rages. Roosevelt gets tired out, goes fishing and comes back rested for another bout with his problems and his critics. Hitler seems incapable of rest.

It is partly a racial difference, perhaps. Americans have more humor than Germans, more gambling spirit, and take things more lightly. But the fact seems to be that Hitler personally is in bad shape. Sensitive, high-strung, struggling to put over a program probably impossible for any man, going on his nerves, he grows more irritable and ties more readily into rages as his policies fail.

K. H. Von Wiegand, veteran American correspondent in Berlin, reports that during the next few months Hitler will face the most severe test of his continuing popularity, his power and his capacity as a statesman. Between the lines of Von Wiegand's despatches there seems to be a hint that Hitler personally may blow up or cave in, as a result of the growing criticism and resistance.

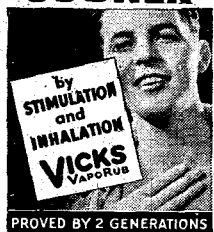

It would be a natural result of such a crazy and impossible program as Hitler has tried to put through, in defiance of common sense and human nature. Government by hatred and hysteria cannot succeed long anywhere.

PROVINCIAL UNION NOT FAVORED

Very little support was given by leaders of Alberta political parties to the proposal now being revived by the Saskatchewan legislature that a union of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta be sought as a saving in administrative costs, and to unify the viewpoint of the Prairie Provinces.

The proposal was first made two years ago by the premier of Manitoba, and is to be debated in the Saskatchewan legislature. J. E. Brownlee, Alberta premier, stated that while the scheme might have certain merits, he felt the savings would not be as large as some thought. It is unlikely that the question will be discussed in the Alberta legislature.

WHAT ABOUT THAT CIGARETTE?

One of the things we have inherited from the Great War is an enormous epidemic in the cigarette habit. The compassionate heart of the world ignored any harm in the cigarette in its passion to relieve the sedition and the terror of the trenches. Cigarette smoking became fashionable everywhere and has gone on with quickened pace until its evil is like a world epidemic. In 1919 Canadians smoked 1,600,000,000 cigarettes, but in 1932 the number had increased to four billion at a money value of forty million dollars. In the United States the people smoked 123,000,000,000 cigarettes in 1930, a full one thousand for every man, woman and child in the whole republic. This was twice as many as in 1920, fourteen times as many as in 1910, and forty-one times as many as in 1902.

And one of the worst features of the practice is that the youth of our time, mere boys indeed, seem to think that in order to be a man one must smoke a cigarette. Now it is bad enough for grown-up men to smoke. They cannot do so without sustaining injury. But the boy who smokes cigarettes is injured to a very much greater extent. Physicians and public health authorities the world over recognize the blighting power of tobacco on minors. And in spite of the fact that cigarette smoking is the worst form of tobacco using, nearly all boys who smoke start with cigarettes.

But there are powerful voices being raised against the practice. Thomas A. Edison once said: "I employ no person who smokes cigarettes." Dr. A. C. Clinton of San Francisco, physician to several boys' schools, says: "A good deal has been said about the evils of cigarette smoking, but one-half the truth has never been told. Cigarette smoking first blunts the whole moral nature. It has an appalling effect upon the physical system as well. It first stimulates and then stupefies the nerves. It sends boys into consumption. It gives them enlargement of the heart, and it sends them to the insane asylum. I have seen bright boys turned into dunces and straight-forward honest boys made into cowards by cigarette smoking. I am speaking the truth that nearly every physician and nearly every teacher knows." Some years ago the Cadillac Motor Company posted this notice throughout its large factories: "Boys who smoke cigarettes we do not care to keep on our employ. In the future we will not hire anyone whom we know to be addicted to this habit." The National Education Association says this: "The rapid increase in cigarette smoking among people of all ages and both sexes, and especially among growing boys, is not a cause of alarm—it is a call to arms."

We must do the thing we must. Before the thing we may. We are unfit for any trust till we can do duty.

Here and There with G.R.T.

What's on at your movie theatre this week?

When you get the chance do not fail to see "Little Women," the screen version of Louisa M. Alcott's story that you read years ago in the book borrowed from your Sunday School library.

When the picture was first released by the producers, the exhibitors or managers of the movie theatres throughout the country, turned up their noses and made wry faces when the picture was offered them. The play was too old fashioned and would ruin their business, they said. So the R. K. O. people were obliged to exhibit the picture exclusively in their own theatres. The result from a box office point of view was most amazing. The picture is one of the hits of the year and incidentally was just what was needed to boost Miss Katherine Hepburn to the position of top actress in the motion picture academy awards this year.

Katherine is a great little actress there is no doubt about it. She says so herself. There are others, however, who are convinced that she is a bundle of conceit and a bit goofy along with it.

"Little Women" has been a great success; it opened with a six weeks' run in the Los Angeles R. K. O. theatre—then came back for another run of three weeks. The public must be served. Other theatres are beginning for the picture but will have to wait their turn. Other movie makers are searching for stories of forgotten writers hoping to find something with the same appeal which pervades the story of "Little Women."

Perhaps we are going to witness—for a while—a change in screen productions from the unwholesome and indecent to the wholesome, clean and respectable.

A scenario writer friend of mine, who has achieved considerable success in the movie game, once told me that there is nothing that makes such a hit with the people as a good old fashioned story, properly directed.

When Cecil DeMille, Hollywood's greatest director decides to put on something worth while, he selects a well known story by some past and gone writer or some story from the Bible older than the Hollywood hills. Other directors who run out of ideas and can think of nothing new and decide to shock the public, by poking around in the filth of stock-yards and gangland districts and give us a picture under an innocent name, which ought to bring the producers a sentence of seven years at hard labor.

Hollywood is full of English actors and mighty good actors too, they are: George Arliss, Clive Brook, Leslie Howard, Ronald Colman and Cary Grant are living lights in the British colony. Charlie Chaplin is still there, but remains "silent."

The new Arliss picture, "The House of Rothschild" now showing at the Grauman Theatre in Hollywood, is drawing crowded houses. Arliss will be 68 on the 10th of April. Grauman has promised something special for this event. All Hollywood is joining in the celebration; screen celebrities are expected to be in attendance at both afternoon and evening shows, as a mark of respect to Arliss who is very popular with the motion picture people.

Clive Brook is one of my favorite actors. Being English he has no difficulty in speaking English in the proper English accent, and being an English actor he has no trouble in acting as many of the English actors are in the habit of doing, acting in a decidedly natural—eh, what? Brook insists on remaining English—everlastingly so. It is alleged that when he was in New York he sends his collars to London to be laundered.

But when it comes to being English and continuing to be English into the third and fourth generation and forever, Leslie Howard, with his love for English traditions, has proved backed clear off the cliffs of Dover and into the jolly old English Channel.

Howard has achieved great success both on the stage and screen in America as well as in his own country. He says he likes California, and well he may. California's Hollywood has been mighty good to him. But he prefers to live in England and spends most of his time there between pictures. He insists upon having his two children educated there and no doubt his children's children will be educated in England also; and raised according to English tradition.

Well, they're your children Mr. Oward; I'm hoping that you won't be disappointed.

Norma Shearer's new picture, "Rip Tide" is quite ripping. I'm thinking that Miss Shearer is making a desperate effort to extricate herself from the quagmire where she has been languishing for some time past.

That will be all for today. I'm off to a little eating place out on Wilshire Boulevard where they have something special in the form of roast lamb, new potatoes and fresh green peas. Ice cream and pie, also.

CHRIST'S STANDARD OF GREATNESS

Golden Text:—The Son of man not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many.—Matthew 20:28.

A Fateful Hour, 17-19

During the war a soldier in training was seen sitting alone with a thoughtful look upon his face. Asked the reason, he replied: "There's not much joy in thinking of going over to Europe to be shot at and killed." His pronouncement was unwarranted for within a few weeks he was among the slain. It was a commonplace thing for soldiers to face death before going into engagements from which only a very small percentage could possibly return. Yet they had the moral support of comradeship and he fact that their sacrifice was for their country. Jesus had to face his cross alone, knowing that he was being put to death by his own nation, and by the very leaders of his church. At the very time he most needed the moral support of his disciples, they failed him. On their journey to Jerusalem Jesus told the disciples frankly what would happen, and calmly predicted his crucifixion. His mood was that of a great soul in a tragic hour, but his disciples were incapable of feeling what he felt, seeing what he saw. They were together in one little company, but in thought and outlook the Master was far apart from his men.

Ambitious Disciples, 20, 21

Ambition is a great driving power, but selfish ambition is a degrading force. The disciples had left all to follow Christ, but they carried their personal ambitions with them. Here we find two of the inner circle plotting to get the first place for themselves. It may be that jealousy of the leadership of Peter has inspired their scheme, but the underlying cause was their misconception of the nature of Christ's kingdom. They were still thinking in terms of earthly Messiahship in which the power of imperial Rome would be replaced by a different form of dictatorship. If there were to be rulership, if there were to be a kingdom to have the most important places, I was quite unfair to the other disciples for them to try to get priority through favoritism. It was a derogatory to help Master to assume that he would be a party to any such underhand plan. It is this same thought that makes all public service fraught with danger and difficulty. There are great public ownership projects conceived in the highest idealism and with the best of motives of public service that in time become corrupted by the self-seeking of those who want positions and salaries for themselves and their friends. Any order of society will be imperfect as long as one tries to overreach the other and regards personal advancement as more important than the welfare of the group.

Are Ye Able? 22, 23

Jesus must have been grieved to discover that when he was facing the cross his disciples were discussing patronage. He showed no anger, but asked them if they were able to be baptized with his baptism. They faintly said that they were able. They were honest in thinking that they could measure up to the responsibilities to be laid upon them, but they did not understand that it meant to share Christ's sacrifice. Within a short time they demonstrated their inability to be his followers. The two disciples of Jesus failed the same as the ten. Afterwards they did not demonstrate the ability to share Christ's suffering. Jesus was the first of the disciple group to be martyred, and according to tradition John was the last. Even as they drank of the cup of which their Master has partaken, and shared his baptism of blood.

The Greatness of Service, 24-27

The worst thing about favoritism is that it causes friction. When the disciples heard of the up and coming plans of James and John they were resentful. Jesus showed both the two and the ten how far they had fallen short of the spirit of love and place power, he said, was a pagan ideal. Illustrations from Roman imperialism were at hand. "The Christian ideal is the very opposite. True greatness comes through useful service. Christ was not magisterial but ministerial. In the wilderness temptation he had faced the temptation to be a military conqueror, but he chose, instead to be a teacher and a spiritual leader. Judged by the same public policy given in the press, teachers and preachers are not nearly so prominent as athletes and politicians, yet much of the noblest work being done is carried forward by those who receive little publicity but are never lacking service. On an ocean liner during a first voyage, the people most in the public gaze were military officers and men of great wealth. Seated on a deck chair spending his days reading and writing was a humble looking man to whom no one paid any attention. Yet he was the author of a medical discovery that is gradually winning victory over a dread disease. Tens of thousands of people owe the preservation of their lives to his devotion.

When Jesus talked in this way about the greatness of service he was just crystallizing into teaching what had been his habitual practice. If Christ had lived for personal ends, seeking political power, military glory or material wealth he would merely have added to the long list of those who have devoted their lives to their personal ambitions. He chose rather to be a preacher and healer a revealer of God. He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. His chief concern was not what he could make men do for him, but what he could do for the welfare of his fellow men. Because of his life service he is the blessed man-kind as none other who ever lived. His services to education, medical science, human brotherhood, world religion have been great in the past and bid fair to be much greater in the future. Jesus left no legacy but his garments and his love; but who shall say he failed in greatness judged by the test of useful living? He gave his life a ransom for many both during the days of his public ministry and in the hour of his death. The aim of Christian education is to instill this ideal of service. Governments, schools, factories and churches are great in the measure in which they serve human welfare.

The Great Example, 28

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—In the world's opinion, who is the greatest living person?
- 2.—Judged by Christ's test of service who is greatest?
- 3.—Have you had too much or too little ambition?
- 4.—Can you suggest a better method for appointments than party patronage?
- 5.—How did Christ minister?

Town Council Holds Monthly Meeting

Mr. Tanner, representative of the LaFrance Fire Engine Company, appeared before the regular meeting of the Digby Town Council, explaining the trucks and other equipment handled by his firm, and urged the necessity of the purchase of one of these trucks by the town. Should the town obtain one of the trucks recommended (a pumper) there would be a drop in insurance rates in the business section. The matter of purchase, however, will have to be decided by a meeting of the ratepayers.

A resolution was passed unanimously that the town carry a blanket insurance policy covering the 25 members of the fire brigade, and including disability and death allowances, providing that the town has authority to do this.

S. A. Keen appeared before the Council in reference to the bound volumes of the Digby Weekly Courier. He was asked to make the necessary arrangements for storage in the Court House vaults. It will be recalled that late last fall the council voted to keep the files of the local paper in a fire proof place, as a perpetual history of the town.

The new rate book for 1934 was received and read, setting the rate at $2.00, including a 10 school tax. The accounts for the month were read and passed.

The question of licenses for transient traders was discussed on the instance of the license committee and instructions were given that proceedings be taken against all those operating without the necessary licenses.

It was decided that the question of collecting unpaid taxes of previous years, as well as electric light and water accounts, be referred to the finance committee with power to act at an early date.

The report of W. W. Hayden, superintendent of streets and water, was received. This report stated that a large hole on Queen Street, near the residence of Dr. DuVernet, caused by the breaking-down of a cellar drain, had been repaired. The report also stated that a hole in the abutment near the band stand, a thick coating of gravel along the north end of Victoria Street; the railing of the Racquette bridge repaired; grading of streets, etc.

Mrs. G. H. Peters has returned from a visit to Boston.

SUPREME COURT DOCKET

Charles H. Burgess vs. James A. Rice.

Both of these cases arise out of automobile accidents.

Dennis T. Thibodeau vs. Willie Thibodeau.

MRS. LOCKWARD RECEIVES PRESENTATION

On Tuesday evening the home of Mrs. H. Reicker, Queen Street, was the scene of a presentation to Mrs. R. H. Lockward by the ladies of the Women's Guild of St. Patrick's church. At 8 o'clock the ladies assembled and having taken Mrs. Lockward entirely unaware, read her an address expressing their regret at her departure and their appreciation of her efforts while she was president of the Guild. A large colored and framed photograph of Digby was presented to her, and she expressed her deep gratitude and assured her co-workers that she would always remember her happy associations with the parish.

Following the presentation a happy hour was spent and a delightful lunch served. Father Murphy, who was present expressed his appreciation of Mrs. Lockward's work during her residence in the parish.

If a travelling apron knocks at your door this month Mrs. Lockward requests that you take time to view it for the benefit of the Ladies' Hospital Aid. Inside of the pocket are patches and it is hoped that the housewives will get out their donation and patch on any empty spot on the apron. Please help Mrs. Lockward to make this apron heavy with your donation.

Home Division, Sons of Temperance, of Smith's Cove, paid a fraternal visit to Clements West Division. At Deep Brook, on Tuesday evening, there was a good attendance. No fixed form of programme had been prepared but after a few short speeches, at the request of the Deep Brook division, which has but recently been reconstituted after many years, Home Division exemplified the initiative ceremony, which that division knows how to do in pretty good style. Refreshments were served by Clements West Division.

Fisherman Has Narrow Escape When Boat Sinks

When his boat was fouled by the stern schooner A. W. Longmire, David Ossinger, 24-year old Tiverton fisherman, had a narrow escape from death by drowning on Tuesday in the Bay of Fundy.

Ossinger, who has left his trawl out over night, set out on Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock, to attend to them. When he did not return grave fears were felt for his safety, and the lifeboat from the Bayview station and government patrol boat Capelin, were pressed into service to search for him.

A number of boats, including one occupied by his father, 'Vesper' Ossinger, and a brother, also set out in search of him, and late in the afternoon a trawl tub known to have belonged to young Ossinger, the missing man, was found near Centreville, some seven miles up the Digby Neck coast from Tiverton.

Later, a message was received from Saint John saying that the schooner A. W. Longmire had fouled Ossinger's trawls, capsizing his 26-foot motor boat. Ossinger was taken on board the schooner and taken to Saint John. He is now in the hospital.

Mr. Ossinger's Own Story

David Ossinger, the young Tiverton fisherman, who was run down by the schooner A. W. Longmire, on Tuesday told us his experiences over the telephone yesterday, shortly after he arrived at Tiverton on the steamer Keith Cann.

He says he considered himself lucky to be able to tell his story. He left Tiverton for the fishing grounds about five o'clock Tuesday morning, and the wind blew from the east. About fifteen minutes off Bear's Head he saw the three-masted schooner rounding the head, coming in his direction. He could see two men on deck, and thought that they had sighted him.

When he realized that he had not been seen he sped up his motor to full speed and tried to get clear, but too late, the schooner striking the stern of the boat and rolling it over.

Ossinger was thrown clear, and managed to cling to the side of the boat, and then caught hold of the rudder of the schooner just before his boat sank. In a few minutes, which seemed a lifetime, a boat was launched from the schooner, and he was taken on board. The schooner continued on its voyage to Saint John, arriving in the stream about 2.45 p.m. It was not until after four o'clock, however, that the captain was able to get ashore to report the accident and telegraph the news of Ossinger's safety to his people in Tiverton. This news was received with joy all along the coast, for just about that time, all hope for the missing man had been given up.

The young fisherman speaks highly of the treatment given him by the captain and crew of the vessel. He says, though, he wouldn't want to go through such an experience again. Both his arms and his left leg are still giving him some pain and for a time his stomach troubled him. He was examined by a doctor who assured him that he will be as good as ever in a few days.

The accident cost Ossinger his 26-foot motor boat, powered by a 6-horse power Acadia engine. He considers his loss to be in the vicinity of $400.

Municipal Council Discusses Child Welfare Problems

Declaring that if sterilization cannot become law in this province then some provision, such as a central prison for delinquent fathers and mothers should be provided, Warden J. Van Andrews expressed himself strongly on the problem of delinquent children at the opening of the semi-annual session of the municipal council, on Tuesday.

In most cases, he said, the children under municipal care are the offspring of mentally deficient parents. The problem, he said, has become a big one, inasmuch as there has been a large increase in the number during the last year.

The strain on municipal finances has been relieved to a considerable extent through the Old Age pensions; said the warden, who also stated that a drop of $2.00 a week for boarding patients at the Nova Scotia Hospital for the Insane, will mean a big saving.

Austin L. Robbins, agent for the Children's Aid Society, of Digby and Yarmouth, appeared before the council and discussed with them some of the problems that confront the municipality and the Children's Aid societies. After a discussion on indigent poor, a committee composed of the warden, Councilors Marshall and Cossaboom, and the municipal solicitor, H. A. Nicholls, was appointed to investigate cases of questionable settlements of parents.

The council is not satisfied with settlements have been properly adjusted and as a result of this investigation some redress is expected.

The problem was further discussed on Wednesday, and as a solution the council decided to have a survey of children who had become wards of the Municipality, was considered. The council feels that the cost of maintaining these cases for one year would be good investment on the cost of erecting such a home.

Miss Elizabeth Woodman was appointed deputy clerk and treasurer, without salary, to act in case of any unavoidable absence of Miss Stewart.

Those Attending

The councillors present were Woodman, Smith's Cove; Marshall, Marshalltown; Hillman, Collieden; Lent, Freeport; Chisholm, Bear River; Cossaboom, Centreville; Cuthouse, Tiverton; Haskins, Weymouth; Fitzgerald, Weymouth North; and Cornwall, Rossway. Councilor Pugh of Westport, was unable to attend on account of illness.

KIWANIANS HEAR OF LITERATURE AND TOURISTS

Father Lee Murphy addressed the Digby Kiwanis Club at their regular weekly luncheon, on Tuesday, Mr. Kolins, who was the first speaker, spoke on "the furtherance of a liking for better things in Canadian literature". Among other things he said "the geniuses of this land must cross the border before they can hope to obtain recognition in their own country". He also paid tribute to the other guest speaker, Rev. Father Murphy, whose book and play, "The Hill of Triumph" has been presented on the stage in hundreds of cities in the United States and Canada. In closing he gave an impersonation of Al Jolson.

Father Murphy made reference to his play which is to be presented in Digby shortly. He referred, too, to the fact that he was to become a "builder" as the construction of the new Roman Catholic church in this town would be commenced this year. He also referred to the fact that the present St. Patrick's church will celebrate its centennial this year.

He made reference to our tourist possibilities, and suggested that we should become alive to them. "We are in competition with the whole North American continent" he said. The Micmac Indian carnival, which was held last year at Bear River, and will be held this year at Deep Brook, is one of the possibilities we should become alive to, he said, and thus make to live something which has been neglected.

A pageant which will re-enact the ancient customs of the Micmacs, will be arranged by Miss Daisy Foster, who is taking charge of the Apple Blossom Festival, present at Kentville this year. Micmac Indian villages will be constructed; braves will be dressed in costume, ancient Micmac customs will be enacted; Indians and white men will match their skill in wood craft. He is firmly of the opinion that in time the Indian carnival will be one of Nova Scotia's great events, and will attract hundreds to this section of the province.

The sewing circle of the Ladies' Hospital Aid met with Mrs. Reicker on Wednesday. Mrs. Howard Anderson will entertain the circle next Wednesday. Please show your interest by attending these last meetings of the circle.

BAND NOTES

The promised Grand Concert, and Tabloid Band Opera, planned for this month, will not be presented until early in June, owing to extensive alterations being made in the theatre, and to the precedence given by the Band to the coming Keweenaw Minstrel show.

The season's first practice parade of the bands took place Sunday, the Junior band getting its first experience in marching, though not playing. An entire new arrangement of the playing positions resulted in improved tone effects, the volume of sound being concentrated instead of scattered, as in the old-fashioned line-up, though the latter was much more showy in appearance. It was noticed that the 'trumpbones' were removed from their time-honored position at the head of the line to the rear ranks. The director has the authority of Edwin Frank Goldman, conductor of the famous Goldman Band of New York, for the new arrangement which Mr. Goldman declares much the best. However, no kind of arrangement could produce a fine appearance of any band without uniforms.

It has been frequently remarked in these columns that the Band wants every musician visiting town to come in on practice nights, and to come in on playing. The pleasure will be mutual and the Band wishes to be informed of the presence in town of such players. Last Monday night they enjoyed the presence of George Higgins, who is a skilful clarinetist, and a member of various musical organizations in Saint John. Mr. Higgins is with Belys & McNice, chartered accountants.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Warrington and family, of Wolfville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Warrington over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Spurr are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Woodbury, at Round Hill.

Adrift for Several Days in Small Boat

Helplessly adrift since Tuesday the little 35-foot fishing boat, A-9800, Capt. Guy Moon, was picked up last Friday evening by the harbor boat Capelin, Capt. Ernest Lewis, of Digby, and towed into port where she was docked at the government pier.

The little craft, with a crew of three—Guy Moon, of Lunenburg; Harvey Paul, a Nova Scotian, formerly of Caledonia, Queens County, and John Fernd (Periniani) a Newfoundland, now living in Campbellton, N. B.—left Cutland, Maine, on Tuesday morning of last week. Off Marblehead, Mass., the engine went bad, a jury sail was rigged and the boat was carried to the vicinity of Grand Manan by a northeast wind. On Thursday night the wind changed to southwest, blowing a gale. They were forced to leave to port some five hours, and Moon stated that he had doubts as to whether or not they would be able to hold out until morning.

By 2 a.m. the wind moderated and they headed for the Nova Scotia coast. At 5 o'clock that evening they were picked up by the Capelin.

The crew boats they saw were the St. John-Digby steamer Princess Helene, too far away to hail, and the Capelin.

Their food lasted a day and a half. Most of their water was spilled when the boat upset early on the trip. They slept when they could on the bottom boards of the boat.

The men are none the worse for their experience, and returned in their boat to Cutland.

The "Busy Helpers" Sunday School class, of Tiverton, held their regular monthly social meeting at the residence of Mrs. Dalton Solows, on Wednesday evening of last week. A business period was held, followed by a programme which was in keeping with the topic, "The Cross."

SO THIS IS AMERICAN LAW

For weeks the law has been defied by John Dillinger, murderer, who escaped from a so-called jail with a wooden gun and since that has been roaming the country. The police of at least four states—Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota—have been made to look silly by this ba. li.

New York—on the same day that Dillinger eluded police in Wisconsin—a child with a toy gun scraped up some mud in Central Park, and for this heinous offense the mother and child were forced to spend an entire day in court and in jail. The sun was shining outdoors, but the majesty of the law must be upheld, and so the two-year-old child was soundly spanked in the courtroom. Justice—if that is what it is called—must not be outaged!

Here is a perfect illustration of why the police and the courts in the United States are held in low public esteem. Politicians, politicians and judiciary play games of drop-the-handkerchief with blatant thugs, racketeers and burglars. Then they turn around and persecute women and children who cannot defend themselves. Let it never be said that they qualify before a woman or child! They have their duty to perform! If they can't protect citizens, at least they can harry and annoy them.

OUR FATHERS HAD MORE FUN

A writer in a current magazine says that we are homesick for the past. People are tired of the hectic search for happiness in which toiling pleasure seekers have indulged. They have grown too tired to have fun.
They are turning back to more simple pleasures. They want simpler music, more wholesome pictures and amusements which are not so fast and furious. We all went far the other way during hectic prosperity. Flaming youth led the van. We all followed. We made tiresome automobile tours and had to go back to work in order to regain our strength. Perhaps the lack of money has forced us into simpler amusements. We have found how delightful they are and we want more of them.

Looking back into the past we see that our fathers on the whole had more fun than we. They had simpler and less costly amusements and they took greater delight in them. They owned inexpensive boats and the enjoyed sailing and camping at on distant sandy shores.
It did not cost them as much for a fortnight's vacation as it does us for two days' touring.
The drove old-fashioned buggies all over the country side.
The horse might be a plodder but the whole family went along and had a grand good time. We scored such simple amusements. We bought expensive cars and toured all over Canada and New England, and wondered why it made us so tired.
The vicaried in some grove by the water side while we insisted on driving to distant roadhouses and having expensive dinners.

The mature men of today look back on those childhood amusements and are disturbed to see that their fathers had a better time with their simpler, more rational amusements than they do with their labored search for pretentious pleasure. Naturally we turn back to that simpler era and try to recapture their happiness and peace of mind.
We may have twice the money they had. We may be able to spend many times the amount that they did on their pleasures, but the exasperating fact is that they had twice the fun. That is what the magazine writer meant when he said that we are homesick for the past.

RESTRICTED EDUCATION

One of the Nazi edicts forbids the admission of more than 15, 000 students each year to German universities. This is fairly typical of German inflexibility, and her attempt to reduce everything to a dead level. However, there is something to be said in favor of regulating the output of degree-holding young people who, under existing circumstances, stand but the slightest chance of occupying the positions for which they have been trained.

If modern education in the universities were purely cultural it might be different; but it is now to a great extent specifically vocational, and when a country is stocked with a surplus of young doctors, engineers and other professional graduates, it finds itself faced with an unemployment problem no less serious than that which affects the trades and unskilled labor. On top of this is the waste of the students' time and usually of the country's money in training young people for things they will never do.

These matters usually adjust themselves in the end, but the process is often painful. Without advocating flat regulation of numbers, as in Germany, it is well not to encourage aspirants for university education and subsequent enlistment in professions whose ranks are already crowded.

"MEN, IDEAS—AND WORK"

(George Matthew Adams)
A man with an idea is one of the most useful assets in the world. Even a single idea, in the brain of a strong and determined man may in time bless the entire world. As George Stephenson's idea of a locomotive did, as Edison's idea of an electric light did, as Henry Ford's idea of a low-priced automobile did, and as the ideas of scores of such men have revolutionized means and methods.
Men, ideas—and work—make good times. And the more men there are who are kept at work the more ideas are likely to be planted.

There is nothing more fascinatating than the story of a man's life—a man's life who has achieved great results. Always there is to be discovered an idea at the start. Then ceaseless work, patience, courage, and an indomitable will to win. There are too many men in the world who merely do what they are told to do. It is a good plan to do what you are not able to do—even though you make a blunder now and then through such a procedure.

There is a heap of joy attached to the soul of a man who explores, who goes out of his way, and out of his hours, that he may discover and learn. A good observer always profits. But a good thinker profits much more.
He is the father of ideas. No one can be happy without working and it is a good thing to know something about many things, though everyone should know much about one thing, and make that thing the important task in life.

"Just why do you want a married man to work for you, rather than a bachelor?" asked the curious chap.
"Well," sighed the boss, "the married men don't get so upset when I yell at them."

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake Up Your Liver Bile and Get A New Lease of Life. No
Calomel Is Necessary.

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels, every day. Without that bile, trouble starts promptly.
Your food just won't digest the way it should and your bowels are sluggish. Food doesn't in-dine you and your entire system is undermined by this poisonous waste matter. You have indigestion, the discomfort of gas, bloating, heartburn and all the other troubles that come from a sluggish liver.
A tongue like cotton-wood, a nasty taste in your mouth, bad breath and upset skin. You have nothing like the top a healthy person should have. In fact you are generally wretched.

How can you expect to clear up a condition like this completely by taking mere bowel movers like salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy, cocoa, ginger, or rhubarb? They can't wake up your liver bile.
Avoid alcohol (mercury). Buy yourself a box of "Laxative Bile" from the Laxative Bile Co. All-natural, safe, gentle, safe. They'll wake up your liver bile without upsetting you. Bring back the old-to-be feeling, once more.
Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be deliberate. Ask for "Laxative Bile" by name and get them.
Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label.
It's at all drug stores.

SPRING

Spring more than any of the other four seasons calls forth a kindly feeling. If we are to judge by the many familiar quotations which describe spring as "gentle" or "sweet" and associating this particular season with "thoughts of love."

The housewife's feelings may still be romantic but necessity has given to her a practical view of life. Spring time to the housewife is a time for cleaning but spring cleaning is not what it was in the old days—thank goodness for that!

When floors were entirely covered with carpets, well tacked down, when heavy drapes adorned the windows and furniture and when vacuum cleaners were unknown, the "storm troops" were called in when rooms were to be given a real cleaning. Now that homes are differently furnished, and we have facilities for regular cleaning, the home can be kept clean at all times, and spring cleaning is just an extra polish in keeping with the spirit of the season.
Just as houses used to be smothered in heavy carpets and hangings, so the human body was laden with heavy woollens, the women encasing themselves in corsets under stifled dresses. The house was kept tightly sealed against the cold and so people of those "good old days" felt half-dread when spring came and quite naturally they thought that they needed sulphur and molasses to free them of the winter's evils and sarsaparilla to purify the blood.
Spring would not have been complete for them without some deoption which could be called a spring tonic.

Many people still live in the past.
They cling to the idea that health can be found in a bottle of medicine, that a "tonic" takes the place of fresh air, sunshine, exercise and proper foods. Sunlight and fresh air are the real spring tonics and they cost nothing.

With the coming of spring, as much time as possible should be spent in the open air and sunshine.
Start to walk all or part of the way to work; take a stroll outside at lunch time and in this way get exercise, fresh air and sunshine.

When resuming regular exercise, go at it slowly. Stop before you are exhausted. Regulate your exercise according to your age. For the child and young adult, vigorous games are good; after thirty, moderation, and avoidance of over-strain, are desirable.

The secret of good health lies in a balanced diet, fresh air, sufficient exercise and rest. Use water freely inside and outside. Secure regular elimination. Be moderate in all things.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by women of the next generation, is of a more honorable position, as well as a more important one, than any so-called successful man in it."—Theodore Roosevelt.

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

(Sponsored by the Social Service Council and Temperance Alliance)

ARE YOU OUT TO WIN?

Are you out to win in the summer sports? To win for yourself and your team? Here's a hearty hand-shake for your success. Of course, you are ready to pay the price of winning. And you would be a queer chap now wouldn't you, if you refused to listen to the voice of experience and profit by the gains and losses of others. No, it is not the word of some old fogies who never take any interest in real live things with their stunts and frolics; but of some good red-blooded, sport-loving fellows like yourself who have no desire to spoil your fun. They have learned from clear, sheer trying it out, to put their word on to you. You've heard of Yost, the great football coach? Yes, of course you have. Well he says, "Nothing tries a man's staying power like football." And here's an enthusiastic sportsman by the name of Brown, one time manager of the Boston Athletic Association. He said once, "I positively know from experience in fifteen Marathon races that alcohol in any form in a race of this kind is a positive detriment."

An so, my worthy lad, the question for you to settle is your own personal attitude towards alcoholic drink. Do you want to play your best? Do you want to be physically, mentally, morally fit for your job on the diamond or the race track? Then there is just one thing for you to do with alcoholic drink—leave it absolutely alone.

wages and salaries. Of the two, the latter is the only one which assures large and steady accretions. Profits are uncertain both as regards regularity and amount.
"There is nothing in the new measures which would keep a wage earner or salaried employee from being thrifty and following the old self-dependence ideals of his forefathers, other than that the system must inevitably reduce the total he will, or would, receive. The measures do not make profits or increase wages and salaries. They merely take percentages of profits, and wages and administer them for certain definite purposes.
"It is safe to assume this. The increasing difficulty of the middle-aged to get employment or keep employment, will become greater and the younger men will have to bear the increasing burden of providing for the older men. Administration of the funds will be, at best, difficult and, at best, attended with inequities. Employers will be under increased pressure to pay larger salaries and higher wage scales so as to help provide for the aged and the unemployed, and at the same time urged to make larger profits so that the profits can be taxed for these funds and for income taxes.
"These measures will create new problems, which may prove far more serious than the problems they seek to solve. There may come a time when the urge to own a business and to engage in undertakings to employ labor will be lost. Then there is nothing left, but some form of state socialism or rigorous form."

"Old age insurance and employment insurance may soon be provided for under Federal Laws. Security for the aged and security for the young are willing to work are the ideals back of these measures. The thought of the day is turning to the viewpoint that the average citizen isn't able to provide for old age and the average man able and willing to work is unable to finance himself during periods of unemployment.
These measures would probably be financed by levies upon gross payrolls and then placed in the hands of distributing agencies. The total required is unknown, but the estimates run upwards from 5 per cent. for old age insurance to 10 per cent. for employment insurance. Regardless of the amounts, there are but two sources for these funds. One is from profits and the other is from

CAST OFF UGLY FAT

Woman Loses 28 lbs. in Three Months

"Three months ago," a woman writes, "I was persuaded to try Kruschen. I was 222 lbs. I had tried other things, but all to no avail. Now I know that Kruschen Salts are different. In three weeks I lost 5 lbs. and I felt five years younger. I really must say I feel a different woman. I have now lost 28 lbs. to date." (Mrs.) S. G. E.

If you are overweight, take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. There will be no rapid or alarming loss of weight, but just a steady decrease of that flabby fat which is as unhealthy as it is unsightly. Kruschen is a delicate blend of six mineral salts found in the waters of those European spas that have been used by generations of over stout people to reduce weight.

HAVE A "SHOW DOWN" ON THESE DODGE FEATURES

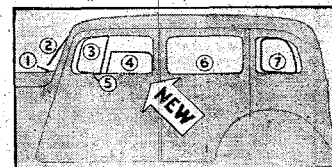

SENSATIONAL DODGE "SHOW DOWN" PLAN TAKES GUESS-WORK OUT OF CAR BUYING... LETS THE BUYER COMPARE

INSIST ON HAVING ALL OF THESE DODGE FEATURES IN YOUR NEXT CAR

Car buyers all over Canada are using the Dodge "Show Down" plan. It's the fair way to judge automobiles—lets the buyer compare new cars feature-by-feature, point-by-point.

You see exactly how Dodge hydraulic brakes work. Why they're safer. More dependable. You see why Dodge all-steel body, reinforced with steel, is safer than wood... Why Dodge double-drop X-type box section frame keeps the car close to the ground. How you can take sharp curves with safety. You convince yourself that "Floating Cushion" wheels smooth out the bumps in the road... do away with back-seat bouncing. You learn for yourself that patented Floating Power engine mounts smother engine vibration.

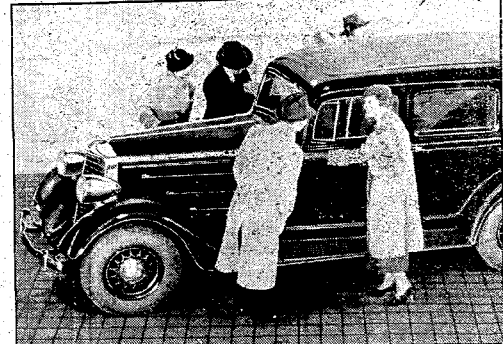

See your Dodge dealer today and arrange for a "Show Down" demonstration—and remember—Dodge is Priced Right Down Among the lowest-priced cars!

DODGE "POINT VENTILATION": 1. Cowl ventilator. 2. Wind shield open. 3. Front half of forward window opens. 4. Rear half may be lowered. 5. Rear window which may be raised or lowered as an ordinary window. 6. Rear door window raises and lowers. 7. Rear window has "butterfly" draft control.

DODGE HYDRAULIC BRAKES stop on a dime. Dodge hydraulic brakes do not need constant adjusting. They save you money. Constant equalization prevents wearing when you stop suddenly. This is a protection for you and your family.

THIS NEW DODGE IS A BEAUTY! Canadians everywhere are thrilled by its modern design. They are amazed that big 114-inch wheelbase car is priced right down among the lowest-priced cars. There are two models, one with 77 horsepower on 114-inch wheelbase, another with 82 horsepower on 117-inch wheelbase.

DODGE "FLOATING CUSHION" WHEELS. A method of independent front wheel springing the same as used in many of the world's highest priced cars. The long, soft coil springs cushion front and "backing" and back-seat "bounce."

DODGE ALL-STEEL BODY is a real modern body for modern people. It's made of steel and reinforced with steel. Look at the big Dodge engineers are giving this car. Priced over the cliff... rolling, bounding, leaping into the air and finally landing right side up. The doors opened and closed—the engine ran and the car drove away under its own power.

THE LITTLE COUNTRY PAPER

(This poem is reprinted from The Tiny Tattler. The verses were dedicated to The Tiny Tattler by Mrs. Fred Haines, of Freeport.)

It gives no clever verses by the syndicated bards. But states that Mrs. Williams entertained some friends at cards; "Ye Scribe" saw Judge McArthur shaking hands with friends today. It says the Curtis family sold out and moved away.

On Boulder Dam it's silent, and there's nothing on finance—It tells that the Rebeahs gave an "Installation" dance. That Miss Day is returning soon to open up her school. That Alexander Hargrave lost a valuable mule.

It's glad that Jimmy Gallagher can be around again. It claims that the alfalfa crop is much in need of rain: The supervisors voted for the road work to commence; Will Anderson hauled lumber for his new garage and fence.

The worldly ones may smile at it, but theirs are tender smiles—These home town items form a bond through many years and miles. Oh, little country paper, with your forthrightly talks I like to wonder with you down remembered roads and walks.

AFTER ALL

A blazing fire in winter and a garden in the spring—
A bed of pansy blossoms and a tree where robins sing;
Some trinkets in the corners of the little home we keep;
A few brave years of laughter and the tears that all must weep—
'Tis only these we gather through the time we have to live.

As soon we shall discover these are all this life can give;
Though fame and wealth may lure us, though both of them we gain
The home must ring with laughter or all the rest is vain—
And love must bid us welcome when all the struggle's done

Or patry are the prizes our strength and skill have won,
So let's give some thoughts to tulips and a garden in the spring—
Let's take the time to listen when the robin redbreast sings, plan the home for laughter, and let's not forget to keep
The faith we shall be needing when it's time for us to weep.

For if there be no friendships and loved ones cease to smile Then neither fame or fortune for long can be worth while.

much benefit to the children

On Monday, evening over fifty neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Isaac Teabo, a life-long resident of Doucetteville to help him celebrate his eightieth birthday. Al though surprised Mr. Teabo was, as it is his custom to be, was cordial to all. The evening was very pleasantly spent by all present. Two tables of cards were laid out and both young and old had a chance to show their skill at card playing. Mr. Teabo's daughters and niece served delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and fruit, after which Mrs. Carrie Doucette gave an appropriate reading, composed by herself, especially for the occasion.

Kind Friends: We have met here tonight in good fellowship and neighborly love, in honor of the eightieth birthday of one of our oldest citizens, Isaac Teabo, who is our host for the evening. This little verse seems very appropriate for this occasion as it tells of the warm hearty welcome always shown to neighbors, friends and passers-by.

This little white house, with its leaf-green rim,
Has a friendly doorway, which beckons you in;
On the wide-open hearth, the logs blaze high;
There's a smile and a welcome for all passers-by.

There's not much gold in the little white house—
But money brings sorrow they say. But there's gold in the garden—golden bloom.
That banishes heart-aches away.

So stop a space in the garden,
Sit down and rest for awhile;
Come sit with this friend in the twilight dim,
And turn once again, how to smile.

This is believed to be the general feeling of every one who knows Mr. Teabo. For never was a place where one was made more welcome or felt more at home than they did at his home. "He is everyone's friend" and a good friend is better than riches. Several songs were sung and the company disbanded after singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds"—all wishing Mr. Teabo many happy returns of the day.

In their economy programme the British Forestry Commissioners have restored 250,000 worth of plants.

STAGES PLAY

"The Borrowed Wife," a sparkling three-act play presented by the Gaiety Club, in the Temperance Hall, Smith's Cove, on Tuesday evening.

The fun started when Montgomery Ray was forced to borrow both wife and home to appease the wrath of his father-in-law, his grandpa, who threatened to shut off his allowance unless he produced the requisite (wife and home) of a "settled" man on grandpa's arrival to visit him with twenty-four hours.

The expected case of amnesia disrupted the routine of the borrowed home, and the atmosphere clears only after Koompsy "spills the beans."

THE SPARROWS!

A note from the Chronicle files of sixty years ago, April 9, 1874, states:

"Capt. Davison, of New Glasgow is making an effort to introduce sparrows into Nova Scotia. Twenty pairs are expected in a few days."

Which reminds us of a story which went the rounds a few years ago. A teacher was giving her class a lesson on the sparrow, telling how it had been introduced many years ago, being a voracious eater, to offset the damage to orchards by enemy insects. Further, she touched upon the undesirable and unforeseen increase of the imported birds, which in some parts had developed into an actual nuisance. Suspecting that one of her pupils was not giving his undivided attention to the lesson, she suddenly called upon him: "Tommy, you may tell us which, in your opinion, is the worse, the sparrows or the worms."

"Please," he said in a small voice, "I've never had the sparrows!"

JESUS, ACCLAIMED AS KING

Golden Text:—[Wherefore God hath highly exalted him; and given him a name which is above every name.]—Philippians 2:9.

Lesson Passage:—Matt. 21:1-14.

Lord, come away: Why dost thou stay? Thy road is ready and Thy path made straight. With longing expectation wait. The consecration of Thy beautiful feet. Ride on triumphantly; behold! we lay Our lusts and proud wills in Thy way. Hosannah! welcome to our hearts; Thou hast a temple, too, and full as dear As that of Zion.

—Jeremy Taylor Property, 1-3.

The triumphal entrance of Jesus into the Temple is commemorated on Palm Sunday at the beginning of Passion Week. It was a prelude to the upper room's Gethsemane and Calvary. One fact seldom noticed is that in this strange pageant Jesus made use of borrowed property. He did not own a saddle-beast, but an unnamed disciple loaned one to Jesus for the occasion. It is a mistake to picture Jesus as an ascetic completely independent of material things. He asked for a drink of water at Samaria's well, found shelter in a Bethany home, a flock of sheep in the home of Peter, Matthew and Zaccheus had a treasurer who carried a purse for the disciple band, and rode into Jerusalem upon a colt. Our social troubles arise from the misuse of wealth and property rather than from their use. Possession is good gifts of God, intended to minister to our lives, but not to become idols of our ambition and causes of strife between fellow citizens. Christ could use things as practical means to higher ends. For all too many today, "things are in the saddle and ride mankind."

Peace, 4-8

A distinguished University leader in Canada has confessed that in youth he became a Pacifist, but when the Boer War broke out he backed: Again, when he thought he was reinstated as a Pacifist, in 1914 his pacifism vanished and was replaced by the notion that it was a war to end war. He holds it possible "that far down the years the historical reviewing centuries of world peace will see in the Great War the destruction of War and the beginning of humanity's new 'warless era.'" This will not come about by treaties and disarmament conferences as these are but the result of the living of the Christian religion by Christians. "Except in metaphor, far removed and well understood, Jesus is never represented as a warrior or a soldier, or a man of arms. Against such a representation the Church in all ages would have made united protest. He is the Great Teacher, the Great Healer, the Good Shepherd, the Children's Friend. Never has the Church been without a deep sense of the antagonism of the spirit of War, and the spirit of Jesus." The triumphal entrance was a deliberately planned peace pageant.

Peace, 9

A current world wide religious movement is criticized for not singing hymns in its meetings. Former revivalist meetings have made great use of singing to warm up the audience and create a spiritual atmosphere. Hymns have great emotional power. The novel thoughts, expressed in beautiful language and sung to rhythmic tunes, unify people and create a group feeling. Every army has its war songs. Many people go to church to hear the music rather than the sermon. The disciples of Jesus sang a hymn at the Last Supper, and when Jesus heard the children singing in the Temple he said they had perfected praise. Music is the handmaiden of religion, yet it has subtle dangers and temptations. There may be aesthetic appreciation without moral courage, and there may be hearty singing without surrender to the kingship of Christ. When Jesus entered Jerusalem the crowds who went in front of him and who followed behind shouted, "Hosanna to the Son of David," but Christ endured his agony, stood his trial and ried his cross alone. The crowd sang but it would not suffer.

Prophet, 10, 11

When Jesus entered Jerusalem, the whole city was in excitement over him. In former years military conquerors had ridden through the streets with great display, but for the first time the Prince of Peace had come with palm branches instead of swords, and songs of praise instead of battle songs. The citizens of Jerusalem asked who this was, and the crowds replied that their leader was the prophet Jesus from Nazareth in Galilee. The word "prophet" meant more to them perhaps than it does to us. To rank the Galilean teacher in the line of the historic Hebrew prophets was high praise. Yet this noble word with its sacred personal associations told only part of the truth. He was a teacher, but he was more. He was at once Son of Man and Son of God, one who could bring men to God and one who was ready to lay down his life as a sacrifice for the sins of mankind.

Lordship, 12-14

This lesson begins with a representation of Jesus as Prince of Peace, riding on no war charger but on a peaceful donkey, with followers in holiday mood rather than in battle array. The lesson, ere it ends, pictures Jesus cleansing the Temple and driving the hucksters before him like sheep. How are we to reconcile these two pictures? One suggestion is that Jesus lived in a day when there was so much linguistic talk about Jewish revolt against the Roman Empire. To all these Jesus counselled nonviolence. He knew that those who take the sword are likely to perish by the sword. In the Temple, however, he was in his Father's house and he asserted lordship there. Was injustice and dishonesty in the name of religion worse than tyranny in the state? What would Christ say to the revelations of sweated labor and mass buying conditions heard under oath at the Ottawa investigation? Would he drive out any traders and upset any tables of the money changers? Amid such conditions would Christ again be majestic in rebuke?

Between Ourselves

A little rushed with job printing last week—consequently no "Between Ourselves." I hope you missed it!

But, after reviewing last week's Courier, I couldn't let another week go by without writing a little something on the splendid records made by the Bear River sportsmen in their recent Boston show. They sure did themselves credit. The whole province is proud of them. It is commencing to look as though Nova Scotia can always be assured of "bringing home the bacon" in such competitions, provided a representation from Bear River is there to do their stuff. Eber Peck has just about won a world-wide reputation for his ability as a woodsman.

Keep up the good work, all of you!

Rev. Father Murphy, in addressing the Digby Kiwanis Club, last Tuesday, spoke of the possibilities of an Indian Carnival, in Western Nova Scotia, as a tourist attraction. As he expressed it, such an event, held annually, would bring numbers of tourists. It is something different—and tourists are always on the watch for something different. Furthermore, it is typically Nova Scotian, and, as he puts it, it is making to give something that has been neglected.

I think that most of us will agree with Father Murphy in this, and I do hope that the citizens of the town will get behind him and really push and work for his 1934 Indian Carnival, which, as he told the Kiwanians, will be held this year at Deep Brook.

It certainly is time that we actually woke up to the fact that scenic beauty is not all that is necessary to attract tourists. We are well aware of the fact that the Creator made ours a beautiful country, but it was time, long ago, that we considered doing something for ourselves. Quoting Father Murphy again: "We are in competition with the whole North American continent."

There is another thing I would like to write about this week. There were two sadly disappointed groups of people in this town on Monday night. It happened that both of these groups chose the same night for an entertainment in their halls. Both programmes were splendid—the very best—but, in both cases the attendance was very slim. The reason is very evident—just clear sheer lack of co-operation.

This thing has happened time and time again, and it doesn't make for a better feeling between groups. True, it is sometimes difficult to arrange dates, and to my mind, it would be better all round to cancel one, if they are to conflict. It would be a comparatively easy matter to get together and decide which one. When dates conflict, there cannot help but be some ill feeling which is bound to be felt when the time for another entertainment rolls round.

Here and There

Princess Junho, sister of the Emperor of Manchukuo, with her husband T. K. Cheng, were passengers aboard the Duchess of Richmond, recently. They travelled across Canada via Canadian Pacific Railway and sailed from Vancouver to the Orient on the liner Empress of Canada.

Heaviest Easter traffic in years with main line trains running in extra sections and with added coaches and parlor cars on branch line trains, Canadian Pacific Railway, was reported over the recent holiday, right across the Dominion. Special low fares attracted many passengers.

In the annual statement of the C. P. R. for last year, published recently, it was brought out that as a result of decreased earnings the great majority of railway employees have taken a cut of fifteen per cent. in wages; higher officers have been reduced 20% and the Company's directors have had a 25% cut in their fees, while E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President, has at his own request taken a reduction of forty per cent.

Eight days only after they had witnessed the Grand National classic at Aintree, near Liverpool, a number of Torontonians reached their homes in time for the Easter celebrations. The achievement was made possible by a fast voyage of the Duchess of Richmond under her new commander, Captain Arthur Rothwell.

Announcement is made by the Canadian Pacific Railway that it will now accept shipment of freight via Port McNicoll and its lake and rail route subject to delay at Port McNicoll, pending the first sailing. Three Canadian Pacific steamers will be in service on the Great Lakes during the coming season.

"Bride ship of the Atlantic," as she was called by reason of the large number of prospective brides she carried from Great Britain and the continent to Canada, the Metagama of the Canadian Pacific Steamships is to be sold for scrap, her owners announced recently.

Fifty years of railroad service, 35 of them with the Canadian Pacific Railway, were honored recently at the Royal York Hotel by a banquet presented to Robert E. Larnour, retired general freight agent at Toronto. E. W. Beatty, K.C., LL.D., chairman and president of the company; Grant Hall, vice-president; and George Stephen, traffic vice-president, were among those who attended.

L. G. Prevost, K.C., assistant solicitor-general of the province of Quebec, succeeded the Honorable Francis, K.C., the appointment being effective as from April 1.

Captain David Sinclair McQueen, commander of the Canadian Pacific liner, Duchess of Athol, will retire on May 1, after 44 years spent on sea service, most of which was in the employ of the old Allan Line and Canadian Pacific Steamships.

Mrs. James Rippey, who attended the Mansfield-Sulis wedding and visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sulis, has returned to her home in Windsor.

Monday, June 4th, will be a holiday this year in celebration of the King's birthday. A proclamation published in the current issue of The Canada Gazette changes the holiday from Sunday, June 3, His Majesty's actual birthday anniversary, to the following day. King George was born in 1865.

UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA—DIGBY CIRCUIT

Rev. E. W. Forbes, Pastor

The services on Sunday will be as follows:
Digby, 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.; Bayview, 3:00 p.m. Sacrament of the Lord's Supper and reception of members. At the evening service five illustrated plays will be shown and the story of the hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," will be told.

The E. G. G. Club meets this evening at Mrs. Evan Dunn's. Last Friday the Club held an enjoyable social when each person present came dressed as a screen star.

The Annagolis Presbytery meets on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the United Church hall.

Those who attended the entertainment at the Centerville Young People's Society on Monday evening, in the United Church hall, were greatly pleased with the programme. The first short play, "Liebestraum," a dream of love, was written by one of the actors—Mrs. Vernon Greer. Other actors were Mrs. Myrtle Morehouse and Victor Titus. It was splendidly rendered, showing real dramatic ability on the part of both composer and players. The second one-act play, "Ici on Parle Français," was full of fun and action and the players were well taken. The players were the Misses Miriam Morehouse, Joyce Comeau, Norma Morehouse, Evelyn Dakin and W. C. Hankinson, Ernest Shaw, and Oscar Morehouse. The violin music by W. C. Hankinson, and songs by him and the Misses Myrtle and Joyce Morehouse, was a fine addition to the programme.

GENE MEN OF THE GAS PUMP

Dr. Millikan, the distinguished scientist, has transferred his interest to the moment from cosmic rays to the more genial rays of human kindness and courtesy. And what he has to say, in his findings will be confirmed by most of the automobile boys of North America.

The roadside men who dispense five gallons of gas and a quart of oil—and just as cheerfully do the non-paying job of filling the radiator or checking the tires—have won a well-deserved word of praise from the scholar. These men, Dr. Millikan declares, have done more to raise the national level of manners, courtesy and consideration than all the colleges in the country.

Since Dr. Millikan was praising the filling station rather than belittling the colleges, his statement deserves special attention. The filling station man is ubiquitous, and his tactics might not be amiss. And because the colleges have been used in comparison, in a glance at the business of higher education might show how the standards of the filling station could be applied.

The filling station man, from the moment he takes up his duties, is embarked upon a business where service is the keynote. There must be a profit, certainly. But experience shows that profit in his business is closely allied to courteous service. And since the automobile has come to epitomize this machine age, it would seem that the lesson learned at the filling station might be more generally applicable.

The colleges then would turn out more young men and women imbued with the idea of service. With the close correlation of all the activities of mankind, more of the heaven of courtesy and consideration is needed to put the world's business on a satisfactory basis. Teachers and preachers of vision have been saying this for a long time. Now the filling station men are giving the practical proof. Millikan's praise is timely.

According to the records of a prominent life insurance company, the rate during the past several years was considerably less than in previous years, which was completely mild. That was a real welcome guest, it is at least a welcome one.

The world has received 90 per cent of its political wisdom from Thucydides, Plato and Aristotle, as well as from Florentine historians and publicists. So it Greece we have to lay our political theories, too.

The claim has been made that the winter's unprecedented cold has killed insects that lay dormant in the ground.

LOWER GRANVILLE

Mrs. George Purchase has been called here by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Arch. Covert.

John MacNeill, of New Brunswick, was a Sunday guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James MacNeill.

The ladies of the Riverside United Baptist Church held a supper in the Lower Granville Hall, on Wednesday evening of last week. The proceeds were for church purposes.

Miss Jessie Baskin, who spent the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Morrison, has returned to her home here.

A Parker has purchased a new Ford delivery truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Broughton, of Liverpool, visited at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Angers, recently.

It is during the war. A patriotic woman, visiting a farm, noted a stallion named "Milk". "See here, young man! Why aren't you at the front?" she demanded.

"Well," said the milkster, "I guess it's because this cow ain't any different from any other!"

The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER

By ALFRED BIGGS

Tricksters can't face a steady eye.
Harsh words always hurt the speaker.
Adverse criticism often is merely jealousy.
Mean people always expect most generosity.
Some folk find happiness in being unhappy.
No man ever realized fully his potentialities.
It is easier to excuse our bad habits than to overcome them.

THE 1934 PSALM

The politician is my shepherd—I am in want.
He maketh me to lie down on park benches.
He leadeth me beside the still factories.
He disturbeth my soul.
He leadeth me in the paths of destruction for the Party's sake.
Yea, tho' I walk through the Valley of the Shadows of Depression, I anticipate no recovery for he is with me.
He prepareth a reduction in my salary in the presence of mine enemies.
He diminisheth my small income with taxes; my expense runneth over.
Surely unemployment and poverty shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in a mortgage house forever.

SAVES IN LICENSE PLATES

Year after year the owner of a motor car sends in his fee, receives his license plates through the mails, discards the last year's plates and puts on the new ones in their place. One year the plates are one color, the next year they are another, and the following year the color is changed again, all of which has of course its own particular purpose. Needless to say the new plates cost the country something, the wrapping and mailing and accounting of them cost something more, and the postage constitutes another item.

The State of Massachusetts Highway Department has decided to change this system and save money. The 1934 plates are being issued in preparation so that no action is to be taken until 1936, but on that year the annual sending out of new number plates is to come to an end. Instead, the car owner, in paying his registration fee, will have sent to him a small button which will be attached to his license plate for the previous year, which changes the last digit in the year's number, so making it read for the current year. By this change Massachusetts expects to make between fifty and one hundred thousand dollars a year.

It is easy to foresee difficulties in carrying out this program, but Massachusetts has worked out its plan and if it works there and saves money, it should equally work elsewhere.

Did you ever stop to think
EDSON WAITE
Barnstable, Ohio

In these days of high pressure business and scientific competition, towns can go ahead by using careful students of economic forces and fundamentals.

One of the greatest insurance companies in the world is a town that is a diversity of its sources of income, such as farming, manufacturing, logging and retail businesses. Each one of these enterprises is a separate source of income, to a certain quota of its citizens, and the failure of any one of them would not create a very depression, as the other sources of income would be able to carry the town over.

A town can take what comes its way without an effort and be a good city sometimes. Occasionally some valuable industry will drop in unasked, but that does not happen often.

But the town with vision energy and a go-getting spirit is the one that has a consistent growth and creates new wealth and happiness for its constantly growing population.

ALL TOO SCARCE

Traffic rules and regulations are of the highest importance in this motorized world—but the courtesies of the road also have their place.

In the days of the horse and carriage the person who did not observe the courtesies of the road was an exception, but, unfortunately, one of the younger generation have forgotten these courtesies, or perhaps never learned them.

A movement to promote courtesy on the part of the motoring public would find many earnest supporters.

Young wife (anxiously)—Do you think I've put too much salt in the soup, dear?

Model Husband—No, darling, not at all; there's perhaps, not enough soup for the salt that is all.

During a case recently heard in a London police court a woman said: "I admit that my husband earns the money to keep us and he does the washing but apart from that he is not very helpful." Apparently the poor chap simply loafed around and gets eternally in the way.

Wanderer—Yes! My folks came over in the Mayflower.

Woman—They did, really?

Wanderer—Yes! They did—and furthermore they were chased a mile by a German submarine, too, mum!

OF FIRST IMPORTANCE

Civilization, a much abused word, stands for a high matter apart from telephones and electric lights. It is a matter of imponderables, of delicate beauty, of honor, grace, courtesy, delicate feeling. Where imponderables are the things of first importance, there is the height of civilization.

Temperance Table Talks

SWIMMERS—LISTEN

Just the other day I came across this interesting note. It is probably a year or two old but years do not make true things false. It belongs to far away Alberta. George R. Jackson, a Y. M. C. A. secretary there, told the story of a young man who in prohibition days in that province was a total abstemious.

By the way, one good feature about a prohibition law is that it creates a conscience on this drink question and gives a safe warning against its use. Well, this young man, naturally influenced by the new public teaching incidental to the coming in of government control, took to drinking beer. You see a lot of fine folks kept saying that beer is alright, doesn't harm anybody, and none but extremists and cranks could object to it.

This young man lived in a city. Look regular exercise as every young chap should, and finished off his gymnastics with a swim in the pool. But he noticed that he was easily winded. Why, after swimming only two or three lengths of the pool he was "all in." He was seriously disappointed with himself and wondered what was wrong with him.

A friend who knew his habits suggested that he give up his glass of beer. He did, and in three weeks' time he was able to swim a mile and finish quite fresh. He simply surprised himself. Government Control advocates had made him believe that a drink of beer was just the thing.

And now, friends, and now how far wrong they all were. He declares, said Jackson, that he has drunk his last glass of alcoholic liquors.

And since we are talking of swimming and swimmers, it is worth while reminding ourselves that George Young, who captured Canadian championships as swimmer from 220 yards and upwards, and who won out in a thirty-mile contest against all more than one hundred competitors, has yet to know the taste of tobacco or intoxicating liquors.

HEALTH

Earaches occur at all ages, but children suffer more frequently than adults. The pain is usually sharp and is often accompanied by a dull ache to an excruciating sharp one. There is no relation between the severity of the pain and the gravity of the cause. A boil in the external canal, which is not as a rule serious, causes a particularly severe pain while a dangerous mastoid may give rise to nothing worse than a dull ache.

Earache may be due to an irritation or inflammation of the canal which leads from the outside to the ear drum. Any foreign body which lodges in the canal will likely cause irritation. Children are apt to poke things into their ears and some of these articles swell with heat and moisture, thus blocking the canal and at the same time injuring the lining membrane. Forgotten pledges of cotton wool are not infrequently found in the ears of adults, causing earache. A collection of wax pressing on the drum, causes pain.

Infections, such as boils in the canal, are particularly painful because the lining membrane adheres closely to the eardrum leaving but a little room for swelling. This means pressure and pressure on nerve endings means severe pain.

Behind the drum lies the middle ear which is connected with the throat by the eustachian tube. Otitis media, or inflammation of the middle ear is the most common cause of severe earache and it is always preceded by some infection of the nose and throat such as the common cold or influenza. It is especially prevalent in children up to puberty because of diseased tonsils and adenoids, together with an eustachian tube which is comparatively short and wide at that age.

Otitis media should be thought of when the cause is being sought of an unexplained fever, restlessness at night, crying or occasional screaming. Usually the diseased ear is kept next the pillow and the child often pulls the ear when the drum membrane is opened, (paracentesis) there is immediate relief as the pus escapes and pressure is relieved.

If the infection spreads back the mastoid becomes involved and the pain is then referred to the mastoid bone, behind the ear, may be severe or may be only a dull ache.

A hot wrapped hot-water bottle may be applied to relieve the pain. Nothing should be put into the ear, excepting by a doctor's order.

Many earaches and ear troubles in children would be avoided by keeping the nose and throat healthy, by removal of diseased tonsils and adenoids and by the proper treatment of colds.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 181 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

WE GROW OUR OWN FEARS

At John Hopkins University, Dr. John B. Watson put two groups of eighteen-months' old infants in two separate rooms and let snakes and rats run around among them. The group of children from normal homes hollered; the other group, consisting of babies born and raised in the hospital and thus protected from the fear suggestions platted in most children, permitted snakes to crawl over them, watching with delight. Experiments like this indicate that practically all our special fears are cultivated and not natural—and it is from our special fears that we come—John T. Flynn, in American Magazine.

Two club members were discussing a third who was rumored to be on the verge of bankruptcy. "By the way," asked A, "what's his line of business?" "Well," said B, "he was in the meat trade up to a few days ago, but now he's in the soup."

CRAWLING ABOUT WITH LUMBAGO

Here is some useful information for anyone troubled with that uncomfortable complaint, lumbago. A woman writes:

"For years I suffered from lumbago. During wet weather, I could only turn in bed with great effort and pain. I was so stiff and ached so much. Two years ago I had both lumbago and sciatica, and crawled about for a fortnight, feeling very sorry for myself and looking 103 instead of 32. Someone said, 'Try Kruschen Salts, so I did, and I have taken them ever since, with the result that I hardly ever get a hint of lumbago these days.'—(Mrs. G. P. C.)

Why is it that Kruschen is so effective in keeping lumbago at bay? Simply because it goes right down to the root of the trouble and removes the cause which is an impure blood stream. The six salts in Kruschen keep the bloodstream pure and vigorous by promoting a clockwork regularity of all the organs of elimination.

Here and There With G. R. T.

Spring fever seems to have gotten into my blood, so I took a day off today and sort of loafed around on Broadway, Los Angeles, and who did I run into but the "Old Chief" himself. None other than Jackson Barnett, wealthiest Indian in the United States of America. He was standing outside a sign stand, a big sign upon his face and a cigar of heroic proportions, gripped between his teeth at an angle of 45 degrees. He was dressed in natty new spring suit and seemed to be at peace with all the world.

Jackson is not a Cigar Store Indian by any means; in fact, it is only upon rare occasions that he gets down town. His pet diversion is playing bridge free from the front of his residence in the fashionable Wilshire district, at the corner of Wilshire Boulevard and Rosemead Avenue to be more exact, and in case you want to look him up where you visit Los Angeles. In addition to his palatial residence in town, he owns a ranch of 100 acres or so in the mountains, where he keeps his pet ponies which he visits nearly every day.

Barnett is about 90 years of age, tall and erect, not too fat, not too thin. His hair is grey but his face is remarkably free from wrinkles and an Indian of his age. Otherwise, he is just a dumb old Indian who would be perfectly happy living in a teepee with a pony or two, in a nearby corner. But he does his best to be a white man, and he has a white woman married to him. He is, or was until recently, married to a white woman who looks after him very carefully even to providing a couple of handmaids who are with him always and doing for him out of their cloth for his private life. Barnett takes no chance on having his million dollar husband kidnapped or snatched with him.

Prior to 1920 Barnett was just another Indian living on his land allotted near Tonietia, Oklahoma, drawing forty dollars per month from the United States government for living expenses. Oil was discovered in that vicinity, and Barnett's land allotment was found to be rich in the black fluid from which gas and oil are made and the wells on his land quickly jumped his wealth to more than $1,000,000. Barnett was then a Texas oil promoter and real estate agent, who, according to government estimates, set his own record for his money, and it is asserted that she sort of kidnapped the old boy and carried him away for a marriage license office. But Barnett was a guardian who had been appointed by Uncle Sam to look after him, and the guardian forthwith objected to the marriage and overruled the marriage license office. However, did not discourage the lady from Texas, so she decided that a marriage in Kansas would, for all practical purposes, be just as good as Oklahoma. Barnett did not object to the marriage, and over the line they dashed, only to find that the laws of Kansas did not permit the marriage of an incompetent without the consent of the guardian. By this time it appears that the lady having decided to have that man, had no man at all, made up her mind to take a long chance, and having a justice of the peace who was about horse trading on marriage laws, she had no difficulty in having the ceremony performed. The poor old Indian, not knowing what it was all about, found himself married, and he supposed that he was just going on a happy ride. At this point the United States government stepped in and asserted that there had been a kidnapping of one of its wards.

But if Mrs. Barnett had any rights she was not sleeping on them, and she had her lawyer look up the marriage laws of other states, and it was found that the good old state of Missouri entertained no laws prohibiting the marriage of an incompetent without the guardian's consent, so Barnett was taken by the woman to a little village over the line into Missouri, where a grand wedding ceremony took place. Mrs. Barnett then proceeded to thumb her nose at Uncle Sam, while Barnett merely said, "Ugh, ugly ride heap good." But the federal government has sought to have the marriage set aside, but did not press the case very vigorously until it learned that Mrs. Barnett had obtained, upon the death of her husband, Jackson Barnett, $550,000 worth of government bonds belonging to him, from the sale of which she purchased in her own name, the residence property in Los Angeles. And Barnett is to thumb-print his cheque for $250,000 as a gift to the American Baptist Missionary Society for the movement of two Indian schools in Oklahoma.

After a long drawn out trial the federal court in Los Angeles recently decided that the $550,000 must be returned to Barnett's estate, and that the American Baptist Missionary Society is invalid because of Barnett's mental condition. The court also annulled the marriage.

Speaking of the Indians of the Creek tribe, the judge said, "The great wealth that has fallen to Barnett through the chance of fortune is his own property, while he is alive."

no person has a claim to it. Simple minded and child like, every whim and notion which he may entertain, if it conforms to his pleasure, amusement or comfort, is entitled to be gratified.

"He should not be shunted about, but be allowed to live where his choice dictates, if he chooses to sit in an easy chair that costs $100 or more, and watch a herd of ponies range in a pasture, all his own, that is his right."

The chief fault that may be found in the handling of him by Mrs. Lowe is from his own country and people and established him in a mansion. She was suiting herself in this. If he desires to have her continue to manage his household, that ought to be arranged if he is permitted to choose the place. A monthly allowance of $2,500 would be ample to cover all charges, including compensation for Mrs. Lowe. Barnett is entitled to peace in the closing days of his life.

Mrs. Annie Laurie Lowe Barnett, however, looks at the matter quite differently. She says that she will carry the case to the supreme court and if that body is against her she will take up arms. She claims that her marriage was "on the level."

But old Jackson Barnett rolls his big cigar from the east side of his mouth to the west—and grins and grunts, "Ugh! Heap Fine Squaw." The chances are that the old boy will stick to remain in Los Angeles, and with $2,500 per month—well, if that is not a fairly reasonable allowance, ask Louis Har

THEY crackle IN CREAM

THERE'S no other cereal like Kellogg's Rice Krispies. Bubbles of rice so crisp they crackle and pop in milk or cream.

Obituary

Leander Alcorn

There passed away on Friday evening last, at his home in Bear River, Leander Alcorn, after a short illness, aged 7 years. Mr. Alcorn was the son of the late Thomas and Annet (Berry) Alcorn, and had lived a most life in Bear River. He was a devoted member of the United Church of Canada. He is survived by four daughters and two sons: Mrs. (Dr.) Hamilton of Hudson, Mass.; George L. Hamilton of Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Lewis Benson, of Fall River, Mass.; Mrs. Louise Hilyard, at present at home in Murray and Ralph Alcorn, Bear River; one sister, Mrs. Albert Yarrille, and four brothers, Charles, Reuben, Edward and Benjamin, all of Bear River. His wife predeceased him two months. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon at his late residence, when Rev. C. L. Blanchard, assisted by Rev. S. L. Stevens of the United Baptist church. Music was furnished by the United Church choir, and Mrs. Lillian Sanford and Mrs. Harry E. Harris sang "The Old Rugged Cross," one of his favorite hymns. The pall bearers were H. W. Purdy, Maurice Benson, Fred R. Harris and J. L. W. Elliott. Interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

For the body you gave me, for the bone and sinew, the heart and the brain that are yours my mother, I thank you. I thank you for the light that you gave me, for the blood in my veins, for my speech, for my life, for my being.

For the love that you gave me unmeasured from the beginning, my Mother, I thank you. I thank you for the hand that led me, the voice that directed me, the breast that nestled me, the arm that shielded me, the lap that rested me. All that I am is by you, who nursed me.

For the faith you had in me, the hope that you had in me, the joy I trust and your pride, my Mother, I thank you. I thank you for your prayers and your chiding, for the justice you bred into me, and the honor you made mine. All that I am you taught me.

For the tears I gave you, for the alarms and dreads, my Mother, forgive me. Forgive me for the joy I brought you, for the hours the days and the years I claimed from you, Mother forgive me.

For the times I hurt you, the times I had no smile for you, the times I did not give you, my Mother, forgive me. Forgive me for my anger and revolts, for my deceptions and evasions for all the pangs and sorrows I brought you. Mother forgive me.

For your lessons I did not learn, for your wishes I did not heed, for your counsels I did not obey, my Mother forgive me. Forgive me for my pride in my youth and my glory in my strength that I forgot the holiness of your love, the venerability of your weakness for my neglect, for my selfishness, for all the times I loved you, the love that I have not paid Mother, sweet Mother, forgive me.

And may the peace and the joy that passeth all understanding be yours, my Mother forever and ever.

BEAR RIVER BASE BALL CLUB HOLDS JOLLY PARTY

One of the gayest social affairs of recent months was the card party and dance held last week by the Base Ball Club, in Sanford's Hall which had been prettily decorated with flags and colored shaded lights for the occasion. The hostesses were Mrs. J. A. MacKenna, wife of the president; Mrs. L. J. Lovett, wife of the hon. president; and Mrs. Waldo Chute, wife of the manager, who received the guests and presided over the refreshment table.

J. A. MacKenna, president, gave a short speech, outlining the status of the club and H. C. Anthony, convenor of the evening's entertainment, organized the card games.

Seventeen tables were in play, seven of contract bridge, and ten of 45's.

The first prizes were Season Tickets to the Ball Games, and were won by F. R. Harris (bridge), and R. R. Baxter, (45's) the consolation prizes going to Clyde Brown and Clifford Stewart.

The orchestra, comprised of four members of the team—Bill Parker, Clayton Hirtle, John Harris, and John Harris, who were the evening, and received many encores from the guests.

After the conclusion of play and the serving of refreshments dancing commenced, and the evening was a success.

The prize winning couple in the "Ballet Dance" was Mrs. A. G. MacIntyre and Sam. Willard, the couple in the "Sport Dance" being Nancy MacIntyre and Bill Anthony.

The proceeds—over $20 net—will be a good start for the club's finances.

THEN AND NOW

On May 3rd, 1883, the writer made his first trip from Saint John across the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Digby, N. S., by the "Empress." There was a strong freshet running and the boat had difficulty in turning in Saint John harbor. The boat was not arriving this side. The mistake link of railroad from Digby to Annapolis had not then been built, and the steamer proceeded with her passengers to Annapolis, arriving there just in time to see the Halifax train pull out. Result, 24 hours' detention at Annapolis.

It was Ascension Day and bright and sunny so the day did not run unpleasantly. The well remembered Joe Edwards was conductor on the train next day, and his amusing little relief of the tedium of the trip was a relief. The "Princess Helen" was nearly thirty minutes late leaving Saint John. In spite of the heavy freshet, she, with her passengers, had no difficulty turning and was soon headed into thick fog. She was crowded with persons going to the house party at Kentville, of the Oxford Group Movement.

The sea was as calm as a mill pond, and the steamer got to Digby on time. The train from Yarmouth arrived sharp on the dot, and when it pulled out was crowded with passengers, some having to stand.

While waiting in Saint John it was interesting to watch a man standing on the fender between ship and shore, with a raft of his property with his bare hands from the tide-way.

FIRE AT WEYMOUTH NORTH

A fire of unknown origin burned to the ground on Wednesday, the house known as the William Jones property, one of the old landmarks of Weymouth North. The fire started about 1 o'clock in the morning and as the house had been untenanted for some time, it is not known how it could have started. Hobbes have been known to sleep in this house previously, and it is thought that one of them might have been sleeping there, and in some way set fire to the house.

Friends of Andrew Merkel, of Halifax, will be pleased to learn that his son, J. W. Arthur, passed every subject on entrance into Dalhousie University, for second year.

OLD SCALES REMOVED

The old scales which have stood for years between A. R. Turnbull's store and the MacPhee block, on the east side of Water Street, have been moved to a new location, near the site of the old D. A. R. station, on First Avenue. These scales were built by W. E. VanBlarcom more than thirty years ago—a few years after he went into the coal business in Digby. They replaced a set of scales which had been removed from the present site of the Bank of Nova Scotia, after the Digby fire of 1899.

When Mr. VanBlarcom quit the business some time ago, his business and scales were bought by A. R. Turnbull. The scales have a capacity of 8,000 lbs. Mr. VanBlarcom tells us that in the old days when large livery stables were doing business in Digby they paid for themselves time and time again. Mr. Turnbull, the present owner, says they are too small for the requirements of today—four-ton scales are rather light in these days of motor trucks.

Play Written by Pastor Presented

"The Hill of Triumph," a sacred drama, adapted from the novel of the same name by Rev. Father Murphy, parish priest of Annapolis Royal and Digby, was presented before a large audience at the Bijou Theatre, on Tuesday evening. The production was staged and directed by the author.

The stage, arranged for the first three acts to represent the home of a Roman general, formed a beautiful setting for the rich costumes of the characters and especially effective was the dance of the Vestals, clad in white tinselled gowns, and carrying shimmering scarves of delicate colors. In the fourth act the stage was denuded of its draperies, to represent a prison, the thrilling climax of the story.

Paul Collins, of Saint John, the "Strolling Vagabond of the Air," took the leading part of Paestinus, a colonel of the Roman army, with his superb ease of manner and dramatic power, and was ably supported, by a cast of Annapolis people.

Father Murphy, in a short address, thanked the members of the cast, who had worked so hard to make the play a success, and also the citizens in general, for their assistance and support.

BAND WILL HELP CELEBRATE VICTORIA DAY AT HOME

Digby almost forgot to plan any celebration for Victoria Day (May 24), until members of the enterprising Civic Band suggested a plan to Mayor Ghaffney, who promptly endorsed the proposal that the Band should go ahead and do something to liven things up. Entering heartily into the project the boys have promised an unusually good concert at the band stand, at 7:30 p.m., making the hour early to enable visitors to also attend a good show in the theatre, starting immediately after the concert, and so get a full evening's enjoyment.

The public is getting hungry again for good band music, and this first concert of the season will temporarily satisfy the appetite, and should attract a good crowd from town as well as from the countryside. The Band receives no pay from this concert, but being deep in debt, has good reason to expect a big collection with a liberal sprinkling of large coins and currency in appreciation of their earnest effort to furnish the community with highly enjoyable entertainment.

Director Yates has arranged a programme consisting almost entirely of music never heard by this band in public before, but including a few old-timers, of course. They will introduce their favorite new march, "Florida," which promises to be their "theme" march. It is too new to be reduced to print, but among radio favorites the program may include "Happy Days are Here Again," "Home on the Range," "Listen to the German Band," "Nightfall," and other numbers of higher order.

Patriotic Digby citizens should not forget this anniversary of Queen Victoria's birthday, which is appropriately observed throughout the British Empire. The least we can do is to make a liberal display of buying Let's have the streets adorned with flags that day.

Clergyman Has Wine and Beer Plebiscite to be Decided on May 28th

Death by drowning was avoided by a hair breadth by two New Glasgow clergymen, when two common-law fishermen, on McIsaac's (McEachern's) Lake, in a row boat, on Wednesday morning of last week, thrown into the deep icy waters of the lake, when their frail craft tilted and sank, thirty yards offshore, a desperate struggle, hindered by hip boots and cumbersome clothing, was waged before the exhausted men reached safety, with one of the party unconscious.

In the party who so narrowly escaped with their lives were the Rev. George R. Allan, supplying minister at St. Andrew's, the Rev. Harvey L. Denton, pastor of the First Baptist Church; E. Zinck, well known New Glasgow fisherman, and Thomas Roper, leaving town by car early Wednesday morning, the group arrived at McIsaac's (or McEachern's) Lake in Antigonish County, about 9 o'clock. Any old man, with a few dollars and a few fish, usually the case with such craft—lying on the shore, was pressed into service and the four men, after launching it pushed off from shore. A board in the forward end was used as a platform, and the water splashed quickly. Hastily moving to the stern, the men kept the weight off the bow, but unknown at the time, to them, water was pouring in under the stern seat.

When, approximately thirty yards off shore, they perceived the gunwales to be but a scant few inches above the water's edge. Within a few seconds the boat sank beneath them precipitating all four into the deep, cold water.

Rev. Mr. Allan and Mr. Zinck could not swim; Rev. Mr. Denton could swim a little, and Thomas Roper was the only expert swimmer in the party. Weighed down by heavy clothing and hip boots, ninety feet from shore, in deep very cold water, the fishermen were in a serious plight. Roper hastily went to Mr. Allan's assistance, only grasping him after he became unconscious, and in immersions beneath the surface, while the other two headed for shore. Keeping cool, Mr. Zinck, although he had never swum before, followed the motions of Mr. Denton, and, swimming strongly, he was able to reach the shore, where they waited until Roper brought Mr. Allan within reach and together carried him to the shore, where, after a few minutes, artificial respiration, he revived.

Naturally the fishing expedition was over, and the fishing party returned to town as quickly as possible, in their wet clothing. A more narrow escape from death has seldom been experienced and the community will thankfully be glad that the four men suffered nothing worse than the hair-breadth escape.

The Rev. Harvey L. Denton referred to is a native of Little River, in this county, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Denton, and a grandson of Rev. I. D. Harvey. He has many friends in the community, and it is a relief to hear that he is suffering no ill effects.

(Editor Courier).

SO THE PEOPLE MAY KNOW

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir: That the young people of Digby are becoming keenly interested in outdoor sports such as baseball and tennis is a matter of deep satisfaction to many of us.

When I came to Digby about five years ago the younger set benched the fact that the South End Tennis Club was a thing of the past, and suggested that I try to start it up again. The club exists, and we are waiting your time and money for the young people of today want everything done for them.

However, failing to purchase the old South End grounds, I built two tennis courts on the Rectory grounds for the use of the young people of Digby, regardless of religious denomination.

These courts are still in debt, with only about fifteen members to pay for their upkeep. Does it not seem unwise to build more tennis courts and appeal to the town for financial assistance? Of course if any church wishes to build tennis courts for their own people, that is a private concern.

Again, Holy Trinity Church has granted the use of the field adjoining the churchyard for baseball, which has proved to be a source of worry to the church authorities who wish to prevent traffic over graves. Personally, I would rather see the citizens erect a proper fence and other desirable equipment to better control the prevailing situation there, rather than build more tennis courts.

Rev. A. E. Gabriel

David Ossinger the young Tiverton fisherman who so narrowly escaped, fishing boat was rammed by the stern of a schooner, on May 10, when his schooner A. W. Longmire, off Bear's Head, was in town on Wednesday. He told the Courier that his boat had been picked up off Hampton, Annapolis County.

Forrest Fisher was a recent visitor to Halifax.

Digby's plebiscite for the sale of wine and beer will be held on Monday, May 28th. The ballots, which are already in the hands of the printer, will be worded as follows:

"Are you in favor of or opposed to the sale of wine and beer by the glass or open bottle within the town of Digby?"

There will be two columns, one headed "in favor of," and the other headed "opposed to." The electors will mark their "X" in one of these columns.

TOWN COUNCIL DECIDES TO CALL A PLEBISCITE

At a special session of the Digby Town Council, last Friday afternoon, a resolution was passed which provided a surprise to the whole province. This resolution, which was moved by Councillor E. C. Soloway and seconded by Councillor S. S. Aymer, calls for a plebiscite of the voters of Digby to determine whether they are in favor of or opposed to the granting of permission to the hotel keepers within the town of Digby to sell beer and wine by the glass or open bottle during meal times, and to be served only thereto.

Such sale would come under the supervision of the Nova Scotia Liquor Commission. The resolution further stated that "the clerk shall forthwith take a vote of the electors in accordance with the act and regulations."

Both O. C. Jones, of The Pines, and A. T. Stuart of the Myrtle Hotel, were present, and were given permission to speak.

Digby is the first town in the province to call a plebiscite on this question, and the vote, which will be taken here, will be the first test of the sentiment of the people since the plebiscite of 1930. Consequently, it is expected that Digby will be the stamping ground of the dry and wet forces of the province. The opening gun of the temperance campaign was fired last evening when Dr. H. R. Grant, secretary of the Nova Scotia Social Service Council, addressed a gathering in the United Church Hall.

It is quite evident that Halifax intends to call a similar plebiscite at an early date, and other towns will likely follow. However, the action of the town council in passing this resolution does not of necessity say that the dry states are in favor of the sale of beer and wine. The resolution is merely to give the people of Digby an opportunity to vote on the question, and thus express their approval or disapproval.

The hotel men argue that the sale is necessary in order to compete with resorts in the wet states, particularly the New England states, which are giving Nova Scotia resorts keen competition. They emphasize the fact that drinks will be served with meals only.

The resolution only calls for the hotel sale of these beverages. Restaurant sale is not included, and considerable opposition is expected from that quarter; and the temperance people are offering opposition from the moral standpoint. On the whole, there seems to be a great deal of difference over the matter in the town.

BAPTIST CHOR ON ANNUAL TRIP

The choir of the Digby United Baptist church will hold its annual picnic and lobster chowder supper at East Ferry tomorrow. Every year, on the Saturday nearest Guy Morehouse's birthday, Mr. Morehouse takes the choir and their friends on a trip down the Digby Neck to East Ferry in the bus. At East Ferry they are treated to a lobster chowder supper at the home of Mrs. Ella Harris. In the evening the choir conducts a song service in the Sandy Cove Baptist church, where a collection is taken and the proceeds go into the funds of that church.

Mr. Morehouse has held the Digby Neck mail contract for more than a score of years, and is a member of the choir of the Digby church. Mrs. Morehouse is the organist. He has given the choir this little treat on his birthday for several years.

Here and There With G. R. T.

Last week I wrote something concerning Jackson Barnett, America's richest Indian, now a resident of Los Angeles. Barnett, however, is not the only wealthy Indian in Los Angeles; there are a number of others who draw fat royalty checks from oil produced, from their lands in the Osage nation, in Oklahoma. The Osage nation is now Osage County, and the county seat is the thriving little Indian village of Pawhuska. No longer a village, however, but a rather up to date country town, with buildings of concrete and brick. Department stores, millinery stores, gent's furnishings, automobile salesrooms, picture theatres, public schools for white children and larger schools built and maintained by the United States government for Indians exclusively. There are churches of the various denominations.

A strange story is that of this tribe of mid-west Indians who originally sprang from the Dakotas, later moving into the prairie country of Kansas. They were a troublesome tribe until Uncle Sam rounded them up and placed them on a reservation and established them in the cattle business and sent a bunch of Quaker school teachers among them to teach them the three R's. Some of the ideals of Mr. William Penn, of whom historians have informed us, was no slouch at getting along with the Indians. The cattle raising plan did not make much of a hit with the Osages; there was too much work connected with the project; and never within the memory of the oldest warrior of the tribe had an Osage ever done any real work. To hunt and fish and do a little fighting now and then that was the life that the Osage loved, and that was the life he was going to continue to live. So the great father at Washington decided that inasmuch as they were determined to live their own lives, why not let them do it? They were getting troublesome again and he might have another Indian war on his hands; besides there were many things to be done in Kansas, looking for homesteads, and the Kansas lands were level, fertile and rich, the territory occupied by the Osages was some of the best land in the country. The Osages wanted to hunt and fish; very well, Uncle Sam knew a fine place just across the line, into what was then known as Indian Territory (but now Oklahoma).

It was a wild country, with many hills of sandstone that were well stocked with rattlesnakes, but what was a rocky hill to an Osage, he would never have to do any traveling over them at least not on foot, and as for rattlesnakes, well, the Indian minded them not at all; in fact, upon occasion, could eat them alive. So the deal was made, the Osages sold their rich farming and grazing lands, with most of their cattle, back to the government taking part cash and the balance in supplies to be delivered as and when needed by the tribe into Indian Territory they moved, and located themselves on what was later to be known as the Osage Nation. Tribal headquarters were established at the Indian village of Pawhuska, so named after one of the chiefs of the tribe. Here everything was lovely and the hunting and fishing excursions were on.

In the Osage Nation there were some fertile valleys suitable for raising of grain and in some more favorable spots it was possible to grow cotton. These tracts held no appeal for the Osage; he wanted to be rid of them. So an arrangement was made with the government whereby Uncle Sam, in his wisdom, permitted the surface rights to be sold, but the mineral rights forever were to be retained by the tribe, all monies received from such sales to go into the general fund of the tribe to which each member, including women and children were to have an equal share.

Then came the discovery of oil in Oklahoma and in the Osage Nation or Osage County, it was found that these hills and pastures were the ceilings and walls of huge pools of petroleum that had been stored there by nature down through the ages since dinosaurs and other prehistoric animals roamed the hills and valleys of the country, now known as the mid-continent oil fields. Some say that this oil is the product of those reptiles of former days, caught in one of nature's up-heavals and cooked and sizzled until nothing but oil remained. Be that as it may, the discovery of oil in the Osage country put its Indian population and many of its white people also, into possession of much of the country's cash.

Leases sold at fabulous prices and royalties in cash poured into tribal coffers in a huge stream. Indians and squaw men became rich overnight. While the squaw men had no tribal rights, their nice fat stupid "mammas" had a full and complete individual title and interest in all of the cash and other assets of the tribe, and it was no trick for some white man to talk his squaw out of her tribal inheritance. The parties, however, were not allowed to collect the royalties due the Indian children. This money was held in trust by the Federal government until the children became of age, half breeds having equal rights with full bloods.

This gave certain lawyers with little regard for the ethics of their profession an excellent opportunity to work a "racket" by getting around the fathers and mothers with a plan to have some legal gentleman appointed guardian for the children in order that their interests might be more fully "protected" and sometimes they made this scheme work.

On what an orgy of spending took place when the Osages came into possession of their oil money. The older ones bought new blankets and went wild for watches and fancy jewelry. The younger bloods, however, the benefit of white man's schooling, went in for silk shirts, fancy suits and the white man's whiskey, the girls for bright colored shawls, millinery, silk undies and fancy foot wear; and all ages went crazy over automobiles; the money was all right in his place but the automobile was the thing for fast travelling—and no cheap cars, either Cadillacs and Packards, in sport models, were none too good for old Chief White Turkey or any of his tribe.

In 1920, when the oil business was at its best, I spent several months in the Osage country, and witnessed much of the activity in oil production and spendthriftness, that after the government collected and paid or credited to its wards in this district upward of $40,000,000, which amounted to approximately $20,000 per head for every man, woman and child of the tribe.

Business was booming; the automobile agents and merchants were getting rich; the Indians were spending as fast as they received the money. The Hudson Company put out a fancy sport model, with red wheels, that year. The young bucks liked it; they wrecked them over the rocky and miry roads; left them by the roadside and came back and bought another. The Hudson agent retired from business that year, immensely wealthy. An old buck came down town one morning and noticed a new automobile hearse in a show room window; he clapped his hands for joy. Here was a wagon in which he could ride while lying down. "How much, cost?" he asked the dealer. "$5,000," says the dealer. "Mebbe so, me buy 'em," replied the buck; "me take um tomorrow." "Okay," said the dealer; "$5,000 cash tomorrow, and it's yours. What are you going to do with it?" "Fine sleep wagon; me put bed in there—squaw drive, me sleep." "Fair enough," replied the agent; "but you're only supposed to ride once in one of those buggies." "Me like um," said the Indian. So he bought the hearse and rode in it, and had a good time until one day a driver of an oil truck collided with the old Indian's travelling show case and smashed it to smithereens. The next day a good Indian started on a long trip in another hearse belonging to an undertaker.

The government agent, who holds a good deal of authority and influence over the tribe, does as much as possible to prevent the wasting of their wealth and induced many of them to build homes for themselves and their families and on the bluffs overlooking the town of Pawhuska, the Indians built fine houses, some of them with a terrace in the back yard, where the old folks would retire when the youngsters became ashamed of them and ridiculed them for holding on to their old time customs of wearing a blanket, and a hat with a feather stuck into the band, and being unable to conquer that longing for roast dog: 1920 was a great year for the Osages.

Oil production is still fairly good in that part of Oklahoma, but not as good as it was fifteen years ago. Still, for all that, the members of the tribe find that they can eke out a fairly satisfactory existence with the some three or four hundred dollars per month which still comes to them. And as for the youngsters, who were under age in those flush days of 1920 and had their money impounded for them, well the good old government at Washington rearing its responsibility towards its wards, and guided by past experiences and performances of the older members of the tribe in the art of reckless spending, has done some figuring for the benefit of the younger members of the tribe.

Giving them their right to have their fund from the age of 21 onward, it has been computed that expectation of life for the average Indian would entitle some of them to an allowance of $1500 per month, for life from the impounded funds; which is not bad considering the present purchasing power of the dollar and steadily declining price of American whiskey.

I know of such young Osage, now living in Long Beach. He gets away with his $1500 per, with the greatest of ease. He drives a Rolls Royce; he has been arrested so many times for speeding and drunk driving that the police judge had to take his car away from him. The boy now has a body guard at $300 per month, who drives the car and keeps its owner from falling overboard. Some people are born rich, others have riches thrust upon them. Here is a tribe of useless and unintelligent Indians who were troublesome, lazy and drunk and yet their laziness and cunningness boosted them into a land of riches and a life filled with more of the world's comforts than they knew how to use.

It's a strange world that we live in, but a pretty good one at that. I do not believe that I would change it if I could; nor even change places with an Osage if he would.

AFTER ACCIDENT SHE PUT ON WEIGHT

Kruschen Took It Off Again

A woman sends the following account of the consequences of an auto accident in which she was involved:

A year ago I had a very bad automobile accident, which left me more or less a cripple. Having to lie in bed all day so long, and being unable to move, I began to put on flesh. When I was able to walk, a little again, I found I was 144 lbs., and being just under five feet you may guess how I was placed. So I thought I would try Kruschen Salts, and I must say they have done me a lot of good in every way—but chiefly in keeping my weight down.

In the month of last year, when I left off taking the Kruschen, and I soon went up to 142 lbs. again. So at once I got more Kruschen, and am again steadily reducing. My weight last month was 134 lbs.

Kruschen combats the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to perform their functions properly—to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate, will be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue.

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICES AT BEAR RIVER CHURCHES

Sunday's programs of service at the various town churches drew exceptionally large audiences.

The congregation of the United Baptist Church at the morning service listened to a fine sermon by the pastor, Rev. P. Steeves, subject "Faith of Our Mothers."

Beautiful music by the choir, under the direction of Mrs. J. L. Warren, the special feature being an anthem, and a duet by Mrs. Warren and Mrs. R. Benson.

The altar was a mass of flowers, one especially beautiful piece of carnations, placed in memory of the late Mrs. Melbourne Rice, by her children.

In the evening a short service was held in this church after which the congregation united in the community musical service in the United church.

The United Church of Canada's morning service was marked by beautiful floral altar decorations, an eloquent sermon by Rev. C. I. Blanchard, a duet, "My Mother's Prayer," by Mrs. H. Harris and Mrs. L. Sanford, and the singing of hymns of the "long ago" by the choir.

The evening service was a gala one, and of special interest, celebrating as it did, the fifty-second anniversary of Ralph H. Purdy's services as organist of this church—truly a remarkable record.

After a short address by the pastor, the Middleton male choir of the United Church of Canada, of that town, took the stage and rendered a wonderfully fine programme of music to the delight of the audience of nearly four hundred persons which filled the church to capacity.

The Ladies Aid of the church entertained the visiting choir, and members of town took part in the vestry following the completion of this service; and here was made the presentation of a handsome arm chair to Mr. Purdy in recognition of his great service, the presentation being made by Rev. Mr. Blanchard, who has thanked the Middleton choir for their splendid contribution to the service.

J. D. MacKenzie, M.L.A., president of the choir, replied for the choir, which has become famous throughout the "Valley" for its musical ability.

Tell Your Friends

WHEN writing to friends in Central Canada, or the United States, make a point of mentioning in each letter at least one of the many varied features of Nova Scotia as a holiday centre. For example, our pleasantly cool summers...our sport fishing...our evergreen forests...our beautiful lakes and shores...our many points of old-world interest...our improved scenic roads...and abundance of modern hotel accommodation. In addition, please send the names and full addresses of these friends to the Provincial Bureau of Information, Halifax, and illustrated publications will promptly be mailed to them with your compliments. Nova Scotia's tourist business brings important revenue to us all, and to co-operate in the way suggested will be decidedly in your interest and in the interest of your Province.

Life's most important document

MOST men sign business documents frequently—deeds, notes, cheques, contracts, and countless others—and give careful thought and painstaking attention to each one. Yet even the man who is most cautious in such matters may not have given any consideration to a document far more important than any he has ever signed—his Will. Through it he disposes of everything he possesses, makes provision for those he will leave behind, and creates for himself a sense of freedom from responsibility he could not otherwise feel. Is it not worth while to have competent trust officials discuss this vital matter with you? There is no obligation in doing so.

should carry some reference to the wealth of summer delights in this province. A personal word, this kind of reference to sport fishing, golf or some public event such as the Nova Scotia Guides' Tournament, or the Apple Blossom Festival—makes more of an impression on the reader than any printed word can do. The tourist industry, inadequately developed in Nova Scotia, will bring many millions of new money into this country. As we shall all share in this stream it is an obligation on every one of us to help along the good work.

We recommend, therefore, to our readers that at least during the months of May and June every letter written by them to Central Canada or to the United States carry some holiday suggestion. This might be one sentence only, such as "The sea trout are running." "The trout are taking the fly." "There are 22 scenic golf courses in Nova Scotia." "Summers are cool in Nova Scotia." These and other phrases that will occur to individual minds may well be mentioned as calculated to win attention and urge to visit us.

"THE CHARM SCHOOL"
To the Editor of the Courier:—The comedy given under the auspices of the Girls' Club of Trinity Church, on Tuesday evening of last week—"The Charm School"—deserves more than a passing notice, as few of the girls had taken part in amateur theatricals before.

Mrs. Lloyd Harvey, a law student; Mrs. David Davy, the accountant; George Boyd, the Misses Eldridge and then all joined in singing. "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."—Truro News please copy.

Between Ourselves

Digby is again in the headlines of the daily papers! How many times does that make for this year?—First, the Matheson mystery; then the "strike"; and now the sale of beer and wine by the glass to be served with meals in our local hotels!

The question is, what is going to be the outcome of this latest development? Digby happens to be the first town or city in Nova Scotia to grant a plebiscite on this question. As for myself, I don't believe I'll venture forth with any little opinions of my own, that is for the present, at least.

But never, at any meeting of the Digby Town Council have I witnessed such a quiet meeting as during that special session on Friday afternoon last. The meeting was called to order by the business of the mayor or put before them, then O. C. Jones said a few words; A. T. Spurr a few; the town solicitor, E. J. Theriault, a few more. These were interspersed with remarks from the mayor or members of the council, but there must have been a full five or ten minutes without a word being said by anyone before the resolution was put.

From all appearances the proposed Digby plebiscite is going to start something! Digby, during the next few days, promises to be the battle field of the wet and dry forces of Nova Scotia. For Digby is the first town, city or municipality to venture forth with this plebiscite idea. Mark my words, the eyes of the temperance and wet forces of the province will be focussed on this little town during the few days before noon and May 28th, when the vote will be taken.

Quite naturally we are curious to know how the vote is going to go. Votes will be cast by the electors of Digby town only. As a test we are printing a "straw ballot" in this issue and ask that all citizens cast a straw vote in order that we may make reasonable forecast in our next edition. Some may think that this will be a true test, but we are inclined to think differently, and feel that it will show quite conclusively the sentiment of the electors of Digby in this matter. The results of this straw vote are published elsewhere.

The deaths of two well known residents of Digby and Annapolis Counties occurred during the past week. They were Judge J. A. (Gordon) of Weymouth, and Mrs. (Capt.) Edward Keane, of Port Wad, both of whom were warm friends of the Courier. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones.

—Y Junior Ed.

VEGETATION WELL ADVANCED

In spite of the seeming backward weather, the vegetation in this vicinity is well advanced for the time of year, and seeding is well ahead. From present indications Digby and western Annapolis farmers are preparing for big crops.

In the turnip belt, around Deep Brook, thousands of seed turnip sets have been in the ground for weeks, and shortly this section will be yellow with turnip blossoms. It is in this section, near the boundary line of Digby and Annapolis counties, that thousands of pounds of turnip seeds are grown annually for R. V. Dilmars & Son, a firm of Deep Brook.

W. A. Bacon, of Hill Grove, has been bringing Hubbard to town for some time, and anticipates a sale of more than 2,000 pounds in the town of Digby before the season closes.

Miss Mills was a former teacher at Sandy Cove. Mr. Carthy is a member of the Y. P. S. and has taken an active part during the past winter.

Rev. W. H. Forsythe, on behalf of the society, presented the bride-to-be with a silver butter dish, sandwich tray and plates. Miss Mills and Mr. Carthy although taken completely by surprise, responded in a fitting manner.

The evening was spent playing games and in a "sing-song". At the close refreshments were served by Mrs. Forsythe, assisted by Mrs. Sylvia, Mrs. Hugh Motherhouse and Miss Bertha Eldridge, and then all joined in singing. "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."—Truro News please copy.

FRANK JONES, K. C. ADDRESSES KIWANIS

Frank Jones, K. C., addressed the Kiwanis Club at their regular weekly luncheon on the Princess Helen, on Tuesday. His address was in the nature of a sequel to his splendid talk on "The Evolution of the British Empire," which he gave to the club some months ago.

On Tuesday he dealt principally with the development and growth of the British Empire since the World War. He acclaimed the Empire as the greatest the world has ever known; but, in his opinion, the Empire has reached the limit in regard to territorial area; in fact, he expressed himself of the opinion that the Empire will decrease rather than increase.

Great Britain will never enter another war of conquest, he said; and will likely gain independence to more of her possessions, such as she has done in Iraq and Egypt. There is no feeling of kinship or mutual bonds uniting these countries to the Motherland and in many respects the Empire is better off without them.

In speaking of the former German possessions over which Great Britain has been given mandatory powers since the War, by the Treaty of Versailles, Mr. Jones stated that he feared Germany would make an effort to regain these possessions. "Germany feels the loss of her colonies more than any loss in the Great War," he said.

He spoke of the ties which kept the Great Empire together. He felt that these bonds which unite one quarter of the globe's surface into one mighty empire, were all the stronger because they were a mutual understanding and not by any written constitution.

Tuesday's luncheon of the Kiwanis Club was "Empire Day Luncheon." James J. Wallis was chairman, and this luncheon was R. F. Fillmore, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, was made a member of the Club. Next week's luncheon will be in charge of the committee on Kiwanis Education. E. A. Thornton will be the chairman.

Lunenburg Sea Products Re-open Branch

The Centreville branch of the Lunenburg Sea Products, which has been closed for more than a year, has been re-opened. Mr. Whydnacht, of Lunenburg, is local manager, and Leonard Dakin, of Centreville, foreman.

The re-opening of this branch is very much appreciated by the fishermen of that district, and provides a local market for their catches as well as employment for several men.

From all reports the fishing industry in the county is showing healthy signs of improvement. Fish are not yet being caught in any large quantities, but it is understood that prices are much better than they have been for some time and the markets are holding up well.

Miss Virginia Budrow, spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morehouse, Centreville.

St. George Lodge, I. O. O. F., attended Divine Service in Holy Trinity Church last Sunday.

"SO THAT ALL MAY KNOW"

To the Rev. A. E. Gabriel:

Dear Mr. Gabriel:—When I came to Digby sixteen years ago the young people of the United Church and vicinity were bemoaning the fact that it was too far to walk down to the South End Tennis Courts and play tennis after a day's work, and urged upon me, as their leader, the need of a tennis court in the North End of the town. As time went on I grew to appreciate their point of view and began to lend my efforts to help them find a way. For at least ten years we have talked and planned, but not until less than two years ago were we able to see hopes of our plans being realized, when the Church Board finally consented to allow us to use the lower end of the church property, provided we could raise the money for the erection of the court ourselves. It was then that the Anti Cants (then a class of young ladies but later a mixed class) earned their first money towards this end by rendering an "Edgar Guest Recital"; and I am sure those of the town who were fortunate enough to be present got their money's worth twice over; again on June 1st, (next Friday) the Centreville Players are putting on a play in the church hall to give us a lift. I am sure no one can for a moment consider these as "an appeal to the purse strings" of the community.

I assure you every cent they have spent on the new court is real "honest" young blood earned money, which you may see being applied generously almost every evening if you care to walk past the church grounds.

Perhaps, had the young people for whom you so generously built two courts on your rectory grounds, been compelled to wait until they could earn and build one for themselves you would not need to complain of lack of membership or appreciation.

While I should be very sorry to see the new tennis court interfere in any way with or detract from the success of those on the rectory grounds, I feel that if the young people of the United Church have sufficient grit and ambition to build a court in their own church grounds surely they should be able to build one for themselves. I believe that the prospective members of the North End Tennis Club will be mostly young people; residing in the North End of the town, who would not in all probability, join a club which would have to cater to all of whom, regardless of denomination, will be most cordially welcome.

Trusting that this may clear up any misunderstanding or ill feeling and "so that all may know" that the Anti Cants are of the very best I remain,

Yours, sincerely,

(Mrs.) Harriette L. Wallis

MEN OF THE "13" CLASS TO BE HERE

It is expected that quite a large delegation from the "Bible Class," of Portland, Maine, will be here next week on their way to Port Maitland. A. Jefferson Neal and others, will be heard. More particulars will be announced in the next issue of the Courier. A small charge will be made for the luncheon to all but the Portland delegates, but the day is a holiday; it is expected that quite a number will be here from out of town to meet the men they have the pleasure of listening to every Sunday.

As the prices will be only 25 cents, give them the encouragement of a full house.

Water Front Activity

The waterfront of Digby has been the scene of considerable activity this season.

In addition to the large sailing fleet operating out of this port, many craft have taken on large cargoes of lumber and pulpwood. A large proportion of the lumber has been consigned to Great Britain.

On Wednesday the motor vessel Till completed loading a large cargo of pulpwood at Digby. Part of the Till's cargo had been taken on at Port Wade. The wood, which was consigned to the Morsey people, at Liverpool, was shipped by H. T. Warner.

The three-masted schooner Francis Parsons is also taking on a cargo of lumber at the government pier, a large barge is loading another cargo. Since March many lumber has been shipped out of Digby that at any time for several years. Local mills—H. T. Warner's, The MacMillan Lumber Company's, and the Colp Lumber Company—have been the principal shippers.

The water-front activity is a sure sign that general business conditions are improving. Many men have been given work in the woods, in the mills and on the docks.

Digby, however, is not the only district in the county where there is a marked activity in shipping. When passing through Westmount last week we noted a schooner loaded with lumber in the stream; another looking at the wharf, and a third taking on pulpwood at Westmount North. Wharves in sight of the river are piled with pulp wood, cordwood and lumber ready for shipping. The lumber yards are filled with manufactured lumber and timber awaiting the saw.

The Plebiscite

(Published by request.)

There appears to be some misapprehension in the minds of Electors respecting the forthcoming plebiscite and the apparent chance between the question they are asked to vote upon, and the former suggestion of permission to sell by hotel-keepers. The Act governing the Sale of Alcoholic Liquors is most certainly sufficient of interpretation, and has led to confusion and some change of ideas in reference thereto. Originally application was made to the Town Council for the sanction by that body of "an appeal to the Electors to enable the Hotel-keepers to apply to the Commission for Licenses to sell beer or wine by the glass or open bottle during meal-times to be consumed only thereon; the Town Council by resolution authorized the Clerk to take a vote of the Electors in conformity with the Regulations of the Act.

This resolution of the Town Council was quite in order, in so far as the matter of "permitting or refusing to permit the sale of beer or wine by the glass or open bottle within the Town of Digby"; that is the question on the ballot paper, and they are asked to answer this on Monday next.

An answer in the affirmative by a majority of Electors does not give the right to any person or persons to sell beer or wine by the glass or open bottle—it only gives persons the right to apply to the Commission for a license under the Act, that on the approval of the Governor-in-Council. The vote of the Electors will decide whether any such application to sell beer or wine by the glass or open bottle can be made by any person or persons within the Town of Digby.

In a statement at a conference of social workers in the town, in the United Church, on the question of the sale of beer and wine in hotels, H. E. Grant said that the Social Service Council opposed such a sale for reasons:

1.—As declared by Synods, conferences and various churches in the province, the sale of liquor for beverage use is productive of untold misery and evil, the hotels by selling beer and wine would desecrate the teachings of the church.

2.—The sale of liquor in hotels or elsewhere would be inconsistent in view of the teachings in our public schools to the effect that the beverage use of alcohol is harmful physically and mentally, and the only safe thing to do is to leave alcohol alone. Why should hotel men discredit such teachings?

3.—The contention of those who claim that the sale of beer and wine by the glass would increase tourist trade is disproved by public records. Statistics show, for instance in Ontario, that only a very small proportion of tourists entering the province purchase liquor. The average American tourist comes to Nova Scotia to see our beautiful province and enjoy our beautiful climate, not to drink beer.

4.—If as a result of the plebiscite hotel-keepers would be authorized to sell beer and wine by the glass or open bottle during meals it should be better understood that under the provisions of the act the commission could authorize also the sale of liquor.

or taverns. The vote that would permit the sale in hotels would also permit under authority and by direction of the commission the sale in places other than hotels.

5.—Those who are working to provide greater facilities for the drinking of beer and wine are doing what would be detrimental to the best interests of the people.

6.—In the coming plebiscite we expect electors who desire the social and moral welfare of our citizenship to vote against the sale of liquor.

BIJOU THEATRE BEING MODERNIZED

Mr. Walker is to be congratulated on the improvements already made in the Bijou Theatre. The sloping floor is a big change in itself, and those who have attended the show since this was done report that they enjoy the pictures much better than formerly. The vision is clearer, and the necessity of 35-ray eyes in order to see through the heads of those in front has been done away with.

Mr. Walker is also making preparations to install a new talkie projector; other improvements are also to be made. The theatre and with the latest and best pictures that are scheduled to come to Digby, local picture-goers will be able to boast of a real up-to-the-minute theatre.

Has Narrow Escape

Another fisherman is thankful that he has been spared from a watery grave, and that fisherman is George Theriault, of Meteghan, who left his home port Tuesday morning for the fishing grounds. He had only been gone a short time before his engine went dead, leaving him at the mercy of the seas.

A heavy easterly wind carried him across St. Mary's Bay; his boat was driven ashore at a place known as Cave Cove, on Long Island, and a big pole stuck in its side on the rocks. Theriault made his escape and was at Precept that night very little the worse for his experience.

Digby Tennis Club

Members have had the privilege of using the courts during April and May, but after June 1st, only paid-up members will be allowed to play. The fees are the same as last year, but as the membership increases on Monday, June 4, School Children, $2; Ladies, $3; Gentlemen, $5. Get your membership ticket from Rev. A. E. Gabriel.

Our Straw Ballot

To say the least we were somewhat disappointed in the response to our straw vote on the plebiscite question. Only four ballots were received, three against the sale of wine and beer and one in favor. We wonder if this is an indication of how the vote will go on Monday?

At least, we feel that it shows the indifference of the citizens of Digby as a whole.

DON'T make any engagement for Friday, June 1st, because on that evening the 14th of June will be observed as a day of mourning for the victims of the plebiscite.

Centerville players who will give you a treat by presenting two well-acted thoroughly entertaining and most original plays in the United Church Hall, look for the advertisement in next week's paper, and save that date for a good cause and a good time. If you live out of town do not fail to drive in and enjoy this.

or taverns. The vote that would permit the sale in hotels would also permit under authority and by direction of the commission the sale in places other than hotels.

5.—Those who are working to provide greater facilities for the drinking of beer and wine are doing what would be detrimental to the best interests of the people.

6.—In the coming plebiscite we expect electors who desire the social and moral welfare of our citizenship to vote against the sale of liquor.

FRIDAY, MAY 25, 1934

THE AMERICAN DOLLAR

Abroad the good old American dollar has been ruthlessly reduced to the value of 59 cents, with some very curious consequences. The decrease almost doubled the expenses of every American living abroad or who goes there for a vacation. First this juggling with the currency made a lot of trouble for the subsidiaries in the legations. With their wages they could not live and keep out of debt. They began to send their wives and children home where the dollar refuses to assume any such ridiculous level. The administration has set apart two billions of a mythical and magical increase in the value of its stored gold in order to keep the poor old dollar down to 59 cents abroad. It is liable to take the whole two billions before they get through, and allow the dollar to assume a natural level abroad.

The second result of the decreased dollar—a result which may prove of benefit to Digby—is to turn the touring tide the other way on the Atlantic. None but the wealthiest can afford to go to Europe. The comparatively poor in Europe can now afford to come this way. Already cheap excursions from England to New York have been managed, including a few days in the metropolis to admire skyscrapers and enjoy the night life. Heaven help the poor visitors if they get their ideas of America from New York. There will be German excursions to New York, French trips with stop over privilege to Philadelphia and low priced trips from Liverpool to Boston.

A further result is increased expenses in all missionary fields. Church missions of all kinds are bothered enough with the depression which has greatly decreased the funds at their disposal. But the dollar collected in America will now do, roughly speaking, only 59 cents worth of work in foreign countries. In India, foreign exchange is further complicated by the use of silver, to the great perplexity of the mission boards.

BEER BY THE GLASS

The Pictorial Advocate says: "Down in Digby they are going to take a plebiscite on the question of the sale of beer by the glass, and at once the Halifax dailies feature the affair with full page headlines. In an interview the mayor of Halifax says that he will move to a plebiscite in that city. Our bet is that some of the hotel proprietors are back of the agitation in the headlines. They may or may not get what they want but we would say that the Halifax papers were oversteering a minor news event in order to spread beer propaganda. It is wonderful how both sides, the hotel men who want beer and the H. R. Grants who don't want beer, magnify the importance of whether it is to be sold by the glass or the bottle."

NEWS ABOUT NEWSPAPERS

An American newspaper passes out some "news about newspapers," and those engaged in the work of making them. It says:

Ramblings of a Rolling Stone

"Empire Day"! We used to call it the "twenty-fourth of May" or "The Queen's Birthday." Back in the "nineties" that day meant something! In the hearts of the young people, yes, and older ones as well, it ranked second to Christmas as a day to be looked forward to and be planned for.

If a team could be obtained there was much music; but band or not, there was sure to be a "grand celebration!" The events of the day were usually ushered in by a "Cathartic Parade" after which foot races, hauling contests, tub races, target shooting, and for those who cared, dancing; and last but by no means least, there was usually a "fish pond."

I recall one such "celebration" in which a local (Weymouth) jeweller held the "fish pond" concession. For months afterwards the vest pockets of many an adolescent male bulged with brass and nickel watch cases, attached to somewhat deponent appearing chains the odor of which was as "loud" as were the various patterns. There were other fish taken from that prolific source beside those time deserted ruins so much cherished by those youthful "sports." The fingers of his sister, and the other fellow's sister as well, were adorned with rings, in the manufacture of which, graphite in some areas, must have largely entered, if one were to judge the component parts thereof by the evident effect upon the finger of the fortunate (?) possessors.

As the day waned so waned the enthusiasm of those whose patriotic fervor had not been kindled anew by potent importations from the "light little island." (Isn't that term "light" a suggestive one?)

I recall one weary celebrant in Weymouth, who, when weary of the "maddening" crowd," sought, and found a resting place beside the fence which marked the bounds of the festive arena. The scene was a touching one. The mother seated upon the ground with the fence as a back stop; the father, asleep with his bushy head pillowed on the abundant calico clad lap of his spouse, while the "mute, inglorious Miltons" and "guileless Cromwells" of the family snuggled beside them, sufficed with "sweet crackers" and the ambrosial fluid which flowed so freely when some lucky swain had triumphed over the round glass ball which so safely imprisoned the fizzing, orange flavored nectar of the gods.

I often wonder if "Empire Day" holds as large a place in the thoughts of the people of Weymouth as the "Queen's Birthday" did? I do not remember of having seen more than a passing mention of this anniversary for quite a number of years. If the celebration as I knew it has been discontinued one of the "red letter days" has been lost to our calendar, with nothing, except perhaps "Armistice Day" or "Remembrance Day" to take its place.

It would be interesting to know if people have changed as much in their mental as in their physical attitude towards celebrations such as was that of the Natal Day of Victoria the Good.

A New Kind of Motoring

Thanks to these McLaughlin-Buick Triumphs

ALL over Canada, you'll find others acclaiming the new McLaughlin-Buick. Just as much for the fashion in which time-proved fundamentals have been refined as for its new "Knee-Action" floating ride... Vacuum-Power Brakes... Automatic Starting... and improved No-Draft Ventilation. If your neighbor is one of those happy motorists who owns a 1934 McLaughlin-Buick... ask him about the new kind of motoring that McLaughlin-Buick has achieved. Or better still, come to our showrooms—drive the car itself—and make your own exhaustive test of this challenging new Straight Eight.

KNEE-ACTION WHEELS
"Knee-action" permits each front wheel to follow the irregularities in the road without transmitting shock to the opposite wheel or to the frame and body of the car. No pitching, bouncing, jarring.

AIR-CUSHION TIRES
Air Cushion Tires of entirely new design "roll over" vibrations resulting from riding over rough pavements. They carry only 24 lbs. pressure for traction, safety and comfort.

CENTER-POINT STEERING
Center-point steering, in connection with the new front end design, provides 10% increased efficiency and ease in turning and parking the car. Wheel shimmy and wandering are eliminated.

RISE STABILIZER
The new Rise Stabilizer—a rising steel bar—is mounted across the rear end of the frame to prevent the car body from pitching or rolling from side to side. Corners are rounded on even keel.

VACUUM-POWER BRAKES
Inch sized brake lines are a great efficiency and long life feature of the new brakes. Adjustment is automatic, the reduced line frequency than formerly. And the brake pedal is more positive.

NO-DRAFT VENTILATION
Improved No-Draft Ventilation permits easy entry of fresh air. Every inch of air circulating within the car is constantly filtered and purified. A built-in over-ride valve permits direct entry of fresh air.

NEW BODIES BY FISHER
Interior styling and appointments of a new standard of comfort and quiet. With seat and back for maximum air circulation. Streamlined exterior is a feature. Many modern conveniences.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE CLUB PRESENTS PLAY

The Community Theatre, Weymouth, was well filled with an appreciative audience on Friday evening, when the three-act comedy-drama, "George in a Jam," sponsored by the Young People's Service Club, of the Heart Memorial United Church, was presented for the first time. The play was under the direction of Rev. M. R. Ewing, and the cast was well chosen, each member performing his or her part in a most creditable manner, so that it would indeed be hard to pick any as special performers. The sum of over $40 was realized. The scene of the three acts was laid in the living room of Jim Grey's home.

Act I—A fine morning in summer: George in a jam; furnished rooms; the pearls stolen.

Act II—Morning a month later; the pearls found; a wife.

Act III—The following morning; unmarked; happiness.

Play

With the opening curtain the audience was introduced to Missy Brown and her youthful guardian, Jim Gray, who were secretly in love with each other, but each thought that the other did not love them. When Geo. Forbes, another ward, appears, Jim informs him that he is taking Missy to Paris to live with an aunt, and that he is going to Europe for six months, during which time he will not advance George any money and that he must work and earn the $500 then needed to pay his creditors. George's chum, Jack Carson, hits upon a plan for them to keep roomers to earn the money and offers to dress up and act as a German maid to assist Odessa, the cook. From then on things began to happen in the Gray household.

The first boarders to arrive were Ma and Pa Larkins—Ma being a typical hard working type of country woman, very nagging and domineering, and who handled the money for the family, they having recently "struck oil."

Pa was a very henpecked husband, who finally stood up for his rights and put Ma in her place. Their daughter, Sara Jane, a rough diamond who had been brought to the city to be polished up, also her social tutor, Nellie Morrow.

Missy gave Jim the slip and returned home to be followed by Jim, disguised as a deaf Frenchman, who becomes a roomer and was immediately charged to the cook, especially after Sara's $200 pearl necklace was stolen. Zeke Stebbins, a country bumpkin, who thinks he is a detective, is the last roomer to arrive and added lots to the enjoyment of the evening.

The play, which had a good plot, was sparkling with wit and humor, and contained many laughable scenes. The cast was as follows:

Jim Gray, a youthful guardian—George Taylor.

Missy Brown, his mutinous ward—Miss Katharine Blackadar.

George Forbes, another ward—Jack Hankinson.

Jack Carson, George's chum—Baden Powell.

Odessa, the colored cook—Miss Kathleen FitzGerald.

Ma Larkins, Sara's mother—Miss Geraldine FitzGerald.

Pa Larkins, Sara's father—Gerald Tingley.

Sara Jane Larkins, a rustic heiress—Miss Louise Mullen.

Nellie Morrow, a social tutor—Miss Dorothy Hankinson.

Zeke Stebbins, a rural detective—Lindset Saunders.

Specialties were introduced between the acts by the Hawaiian guitar duets by the Misses Mabel Sablin and Alice Payson, vocal songs, "The Old Spinning Wheel," "Home on the Range," and "Cowboy Jack," by the Little Misses Barbara, Margaret and Esther Potter, with musical guitar accompaniment by Miss Barbara Potter. Vocal duets, "Underneath a Big Umbrella," and "Goodnight Little Girl of My Dreams," by Anna and Donald Barkhouse, with piano accompaniment by Miss Clara Hankinson.

The play was presented at the Barton Hall, on Monday evening.

Mrs. A. I. Thurber, of Weymouth North, was a supper guest of her son, Mr. Willis Cosman, and Mr. Cosman, at Ashmore Shore, on Sunday.

A large number of the members of the Weymouth Amateur Athletic Association, went to Digby on Wednesday evening of last week to attend the annual meeting of the Digby County Baseball League.

SCOUTS WIN TRIP

For general all round scouting efficiency, Troop Leader Fred Knowlton, 16, a Kings scout and holder of numerous proficiency badges, and Harold Coggins, 17, a patrol second and also holder of several badges, of the First Weymouth Scout Troop, won trips to Saint John.

They arrived in Saint John last Thursday and took part in both the Loyalty celebration and the various scout activities during the holiday week-end, including the church parade on Sunday.

While there they were guests of L. C. Rudolf, formerly of Weymouth North, and the Saint John District Boy Scouts, at their club, Glen Falls. The boys returned home on Monday, greatly enthused over their trip.

Mrs. A. D. Foote visited relatives and friends in Barton last Sunday.

George Hankinson, Jr., who has been attending Mount Allison University, returned home on Saturday.

Mrs. Emma Wesley, of Weymouth North, left on Tuesday for Boston and vicinity to visit relatives and friends.

Mrs. J. C. Cornwall, of Weymouth North, left on Tuesday for the United States to visit relatives and friends.

Lindset Saunders spent the week end at his home in Windsor. He was accompanied from Digby by his brother, Melbourne.

Miss Ethel Grant, R. N., who has been spending a week with her mother, Mrs. Albert Grant, at Weymouth North, who is quite seriously ill, returned to Halifax on Sunday to resume her duties as matron of the Infectious Diseases Hospital.

The ladies of St. Peter's Guild held a farewell party and supper at the rectory on Tuesday, in honor of Capt. Hutchinson and Capt. Payne, who are soon to leave this parish.

The steamer Liverpool Rover, Capt. Ralph A. Williams, arrived at Weymouth North on Friday and sailed on Tuesday with a cargo of pulpwood for the Mersey plant, at Liverpool. The cargo was shipped by H. E. Wagner of Weymouth, and H. T. Warner of Digby.

The "Hill of Triumph," the sacred drama written by Rev. Father Murphy, and which pleased such a large audience in Digby last week, was produced in Weymouth on Monday, but only to a few audiences. It is rather unfortunate that the play had not been better advertised in that vicinity, as many who would have liked to attend knew nothing of it.

The schooner Nova Queen, Capt. John J. Taylor, left for St. John's on Thursday of last week for Havana, with a cargo of spruce lumber, which was being shipped by Rev. J. M. Taylor. While towing down the river the vessel took bottom just above the railway bridge, and remained there until next day, when she was floated and taken down the river to Weymouth North, where she was still at anchor on Wednesday.

At the Reformed Baptist Church in Saint John, on Mother's Day, the pastor, Rev. H. S. Mullen, formerly of New Tuskot, preached appropriate sermons. In the morning his subject was "Mother," and in the evening "What Must I do to be Saved, What Must I do to Keep Saved, and What Must I do to be Eternally Saved."

In the morning Mrs. Mullen and son, DeVerne, sang a duet, "Think of that Mother," and in the evening a quartette composed of Rev. H. S. Mullen, DeVerne Mullen, W. K. Traflet and Earl Watson, sang, "When Mother Prayed."

Here and There With G. R. T.

"A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!" shouted King Richard III, when he got into a jam at Bosworth Field, away back in the year 1485. That was quite some price to pay for a horse. I fancy that that offer has never been equalled in all history as a top bid for a saddle pony of any age or breed. If we can believe the reports that we read in the papers today, there are still some people in the land who are willing to pay a price for a horse.

But if one looks for a horse on any of the California city streets or in any of the old livery stables or sales yards, it is doubtful if he will find a single horse for sale—not even in a gypsy camp will he find a sign of one. The movie companies have a few pastured out on their studio ranches. The circuses still have as many as of yore and at the Riding Academies you can rent one for a morning horseback ride, but try to buy one and you will find there are none for sale. Even the very old Mexican who comes jogging into town behind an ancient nag hitched to one of those old-fashioned rubber tired buggies—once the finest thing on wheels but now a relic of the past and a curiosity—will say, "Ah, no, senior; not for sale." In spite of this, however, there are said to be some thirteen million horses in the United States working in some sort of service. No doubt there are a large number on the farms in the various states but there are very few, indeed, in the State of California.

California was once noted for its extensive horse ranches but now the only one of any importance remaining is the Kellogg Arabian Horse Ranch, near Pomona, established several years ago by W. K. Kellogg, of breakfast food fame, who operated it as a breeding farm for pure blood Arabian horses. It was and still is one of the show places of Southern California. The Sunday afternoon exhibitions and performances of these beautiful animals draw large crowds. Mr. Kellogg, apparently became tired of this plaything and turned the whole business—horses, land, buildings, equipment and all appurtenances—over to the State of California to be used as a breeding station for pure Arabian stock. The farm is now operated by the Agricultural Department of the State University. The official name of the farm is "Kellogg Institute of Animal Husbandry," which is a pretty fancy name for a horse ranch, but make a note of it, you may want to visit it when you come to California. You will want to see "Robal," the finest horse on the ranch and a magnificent looking animal, standing fifteen hands and three inches high and said to be the world's largest Arabian horse.

Perhaps you remember the beautiful animal that Rudolph Valentino rode in his famous desert picture, "The Sheik." The horse was loaned to the picture people by Mr. Kellogg. If the would-be buyer is unable to find what he wants in the way of horseflesh, in California, he need not be discouraged for over in Oregon, Utah, a fine little city in the extreme northeast corner of the state and within shooting distance of the horse and cattle ranges of Nevada, Idaho and Wyoming, he will find one of the largest and perhaps the only horse market in the United States. And there he will find, at the old horse-auction ring, that horses are at a premium and that the highest prices since the world war are being paid at the semi-monthly sales.

Buyers go to the Ogdan market from all parts of the country. From Boston and Philadelphia for horses to pull wagons on milk and bakery routes. From New York for horses for mounted police work; and from the southern states for horses to work on the plantations.

The buyers call for good stock, full-fleshed, under five years of age, "broke," and fresh from the western farms and ranges.

The Mormon farmers of Utah and Idaho are a little slow about keeping up with the "progression," and many of their stock to their horses in boom times when their neighbors were buying tractors and automobiles. These are the buyers who are now "cleaning up" in this horse market, for there is no depression for those fortunate enough to own a bunch of horses good enough to bring top prices in the Ogdan market.

Recently an Eastern buyer paid $192 for a four-year-old brood mare and a team of roan geldings brought a price of $380 at the same sale.

It may sound strange that horses are being shipped back to Boston and Philadelphia to work on bakery and milk routes. But it is not because the cities are slow. There is method in the madness of the bakery and dairy owner. Here is the time to see what is going on along a street. It was told to me by a man who owns a large dairy and operates a fleet of fifty milk trucks in Los Angeles. Said he, "I could do it I would dispose of all but two or three of those trucks and replace them with horse drawn wagons. The trucks are too fast and the drivers they never notice when their new families have moved into their territory. In industrial sections—where most of the business is located—people move around more than they do in residence districts. They all buy milk. If the driver does not contact the new arrival, the chances are that the new comer will not wait around to hail the driver but will go to the grocery store for her milk or get it from some other dairy. But with old Dobbin hitched to a wagon, clod clopping down the street at an easy jog, the driver has plenty of time to see what is going on along his route and naturally picks up his share of the new business. Another trouble with the truck is that if the driver has a "sweetie" on his route or is inclined to play cards or pitch horse shoes or engage in other diversions, he is usually in such a hurry to get to these places where he can loaf for an hour or so, he hurries over his route and neglects his work, and the employer suffers accordingly."

"Fair enough," said I; "but why don't you have your inspector follow the boys up and see that they attend to business?"

"Oh, yeah," he replied; "you would think of that. Say, I'd have to have an inspector with every truck." G. R. T.

DO YOU WANT TO LIVE LONGER?

That life insurance agent who called on you recently represents a world wide institution that has done, and is doing, a tremendous service to mankind. Besides educating people in regular habits of careful money-saving, in the fulfillment of obligations to those rightly dependent upon them, and in the investment of their money in safe and serviceable securities rather than gambling in all sorts of get-rich-quick (often get-poor-quick) schemes, the life insurance companies have been exploring the wide and complex field of human habits and conditions and discovering the effects of these on the fact of life itself. And, mind you, in all the observations he has to be exact in his observations and calculations. The very existence and success of their business, not to speak of the welfare of millions and tens of millions of people, depends upon strict accuracy here.

Well, in all this they simply could not avoid taking note of the effects of the use of alcohol, in all quantities and qualities, upon the length of the lives of individuals. Oh, no, they have not been giving lectures on temperance or intemperance. They have just been doing business, business that is intensely human in all its bearings. But the observations they have made are the very best kind of sermons, both in warning and appeal. Here are some figures given out by the New York Insurance Company carefully gleaned from an experience of seventy-five years. This company has found that the average number of deaths that actually occurred in 100 expected deaths among persons forty years of age was 53 in the case of abstainers from alcoholic liquors, 66 for moderate drinkers, 71 for regular beer drinkers, and 89 for regular drinkers of spirits. Taking these above forty years of age the showing of drinkers was even worse, the regular wine and beer drinkers suffering very heavily. These figures are surely eloquent in warning and appeal.

Miss Gertrude Chisholm was a recent visitor to Annapolis Royal.

DEPRESSED BY ACUTE ACIDITY

There can surely be no doubt about the effectiveness of a remedy for acidity that can give such permanent relief as in this woman's case:— "I suffered for many years from acidity in various forms," she writes. "At last it became so acute that every morning I woke with a gnawing pain and a great depression of spirits. I tried Kruschen Salts, and the effect was magical. The pain subsided and the depression lifted like a cloud. I have taken the daily dose of Kruschen ever since. This was about five years ago, and the Kruschen does not lose its effect." (Miss E. M. H.)

Kruschen is so effective with acidity because it neutralizes acid, takes all the torment out of it, and gently expels it from the system. And by stimulating your organs of elimination to perfect regular action, Kruschen will prevent this harmful acid from ever accumulating again. After that, you'll experience no more misery after meals.

Major, a well known and respected resident of Cape LaRonde, Richmond, N. S. "Different Remedies were recommended to me, but none of them I tried did me any good until I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. They certainly fixed me up fine and I think they are the best on the market."

Marriages

McCleave-Graham

An interesting and pretty wedding was quietly solemnized on Saturday morning last, at 10 o'clock, when Muriel Kathleen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Graham, Digby, became the bride of Dr. John R. McCleave, Digby, son of the late Mr. McCleave, and Mrs. John H. McCleave, of Lunenburg. The marriage took place at the residence of the bride's parents. In the drawing room the festive touch was provided by pink anemones and lilies, while in the dining room madonna lilies formed the entire decoration. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. W. Forbes in the presence of immediate relatives. Miss Carolyn Roop, Middleton, presided at the piano, rendering the wedding march. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, looked most charming in gown of powder blue chiffon, a halo of white and slippers of the same color, her bouquet being a shower bouquet of pale pink roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Jean Anderson as bridesmaid, who wore a pink chiffon with hat, and accessories in harmony. Her bouquet bore pale pink waxed lilies. E. H. McCleave, Halifax, attended his brother as groomsmen. After the ceremony a buffet breakfast was served. The table was presided over by Mrs. J. E. Snow, grandmother of the bride. There was the time-honored ritual of the cutting of the wedding cake by the bride, and after receiving the felicitations of the group present, Dr. and Mrs. McCleave left on a motor trip through the province.

On Thursday of last week the Canadian government patrol boat Cape-lin, Capt. E. H. Lewis, towed a small motor fishing boat, owned by William McDonald, into Westport. The McDonald boat had left for the fishing grounds with others of the Westport fleet, but developed engine trouble. The Capelin noting the signals of distress, went to the rescue.

Alfred Dickie has returned from Sackville where he has been attending Mt. Allison University, to spend the summer vacation with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Dickie.

Mrs. R. H. Lockward has returned from Montreal, and left yesterday to join her husband in Liverpool.

BARTON

The School and Community Club will hold their regular meeting in the Barton Hall, on Friday next.

Barry Smith, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Smith, for the past month, has gone to Boston.

Miss Fraser, helping teacher, visited several schools in this vicinity on Friday last, making arrangements for the Sport Day, to be held in Weymouth, on June 11.

NOVA SCOTIA INVENTED KER- OSENE

Nova Scotia, this province of so many first things in Canadian history, was the home of the inventor, or discoverer if you like, of kerosene, and so put light into millions of homes. Born at Cornwallis, May 2, 1877, the son of Harry Gordon, a Loyalist, he went to London to study medicine and graduated with honors. Returning to Halifax in 1894 he did not pursue the practice of medicine but mineralogy, and wrote a treatise which is the basis of all provincial information of this subject. He then took up the development of artificial illuminants. In 1881 he experimented with Trinidad asphalt and obtained from it an illuminating oil. One experiment led to another. In course of time he distilled an oil suitable for burning in lamps, from caribou coat and blubberous shale. He named his product Kerosene, from the Greek, but later shortened it to Kerosene. In 1882 he went to New York, took out several patents for the manufacture of kerosene but did not derive much pecuniary benefit from his discovery which revolutionized the lighting of homes and shops all over the world. He sold his patents to a New York company, but his royalties did not last long. The discovery of Petroleum in Pennsylvania, and the western Ontario lessened the value of his process but could not take from him the honor of his discovery. His later years were devoted to literary work in Halifax, where he died April 29, 1924. He was buried in Camp Hill cemetery. For nearly 70 years his grave was unmarked but last year that neglect was remedied.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Theriault went to Halifax on Friday, returning on Tuesday.

Eric Armstrong and Jeffrey Dillon have returned from Acadia University to spend the summer months at their homes here.

The Kananaskis Dude Ranch operated by Mrs. Bill Brewster, is well known throughout Canada and the United States, and is surrounded by the most magnificent of Canadian Rocky Mountain scenery.

Governor Frank Murphy, of the Philippine Islands, was the guest of Commodore R. G. Latta, of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, at Manila on March 15. Connecting sailings from Canada for the three cruises are the Empress of Australia from Quebec June 21, the Duchess of Atholl from Montreal July 6, and the Duchess of York from Montreal July 20.

Your favorite picture stars, from Greta Garbo to Betty Boop will be seen as well as heard aboard the "Empress" liners, as well as the "Empress" of the Canadian Pacific this summer. The Duchess of Bedford, the Duchess of York are already equipped with talking picture machines and the Duchess of Atholl and Duchess of Richmond will have them for their first voyages this summer. The Empress of Britain and Empress of Australia, have been showing talkies for some time now.

The Easter holidays, commencing March 29 and ending to April 3rd, offer an exceptional opportunity for travel. The Canadian Pacific Railway is making generous fare concessions and indications are that extensive travel programmes will be carried out by Canadians and visitors to the Dominion.

A large party of Holy Year pilgrims from the Maritime Provinces sailed from Halifax recently in the Canadian Pacific liner Montclare. On Easter Eve they will be received in audience by the Pope. They will visit London, Paris, Milan, Assisi and other cities in Europe before returning to Canada at the end of April.

Frank Jones, K. C., was a passenger to Saint John on Saturday, returning Tuesday.

WILL MARS ANSWER?

British astronomers are working today on a plan to flash earth signals to Mars next year from the summit of Jungfrau, in the Swiss Alps, 14,000 feet up in the clouds. On the very top of the mountain they will set up three giant projectors, each shooting forth a beam of light far more powerful than glares today from any lighthouse in the world.

A few thousand feet above the earth, the three beams will merge into one giant lance of white light—the most powerful light ever created by man—a light greater than the illumination of 15 million candles. When that terrific flash goes stabbing into the dark mystery of the universe, every astronomer in the world will have his eye pressed to a telescope in tense vigilance—waiting for answering flashes which would prove that the people of Mars—if there are any—had been seen and understood.

Mrs. Daniel MacIsaac and son, of Yarmouth, spent the week end with to one giant lance of white light—her mother, Mrs. M. Saulnier.

THE GIRL WHO WORKS

God bless the girl who works! She is not too proud to earn her own living, not ashamed to be caught at her daily task. She smiles at you from behind the desk or counter or printers' case. There is a sweet memory of her in everything she touches. She is like a brave mountaineer already far up the precipitous climbing, struggling, rejoicing. It is an honor to know this girl and to be worthy of her esteem. Lift your hat to her, young man, as she passes by. She is a queen in the realm of womanhood. She is a princess among the teachers. Her hand may be stained by dish washing, sweeping, factory grease or printers' ink. But it is an honest hand. It stays misfortune from the home; it supports an invalid one, maybe; it is the potent shield that protects many a family from the wolf that sniffs at the door. All honor to the brave toiler! God bless the girl who works!

THE LAST JUDGMENT

Golden Text:—"We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ."—2 Corinthians 5:10.

Lesson Passage:—Matt. 25:31-46.

God's Dreams

Dreams are they—but they are God's dreams! Shall we dream them and scorn them? That men shall love one another? That white shall call black man brother? That greed shall pass from the market place? That lust shall yield to love of the race? That man shall meet with God face to face? Dreams are they all. But shall we despise them—God's dreams!

—Thomas Curtis Clark

The Searchlight, 31-33

By order of the Dominion Parliament, there has been an investigation on business practices. The scale of wages, hours of labor, first and last costs of materials have been passed under review and management of large firms have had to give evidence on oath. An employer of labor when asked whether he had to appear or not, said, "No, I'm safe. I've paid more than the minimum wage law requires." This investigation has brought to light unhealthy conditions in several trades. How would our lives stand up if we had to give evidence about ourselves, telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth? And what if our questioner and judge should be Jesus Christ? How would we face his kind but fearless gaze? What would be Christ's test?

Social Service, 34-36

The usual test of church membership is belief. The churches have demanded subscription to certain creeds. The formal list of questions is concerned with, "Do you believe?" Christ, much more concerned about the way people acted towards their fellows. About him he saw people who were hungry and sick, half clad paupers and sinful convicts. Surely religion has nothing to do with such people, the self-righteous thought, but Jesus used the attitude towards those in need as a test of the genuineness of religion. He himself spent much of his time ministering to the outcasts, the lepers, the sick, the publicans and sinners of his day. The calendar of a city congregation listed ten different social service activities for one week. Nearly every Christian community has orphanages, rescue homes, hospitals, fresh air camps and hospital visitors. The calendar of it all has come from Him who went about doing good, and was among men as one who served.

Spiritual Motives, 37-40

Some think that if they do unto others as they would be done by, it will be sufficient. There is more to religion, however, than being active in social service work. It is not altogether easy always to follow the Golden Rule: a spiritual incentive is necessary. The self-same church calendar that listed ten social services for one week had over a dozen teaching and worship services. The uplift produced the outreach. The greatest impulse to social service is spiritual devotion to Jesus Christ who loved his fellow men. In fact, Christ said that if we help a child, give a cup of water to a tramp, visit the sick or help prisoners to a new start, it is the same in his eyes as though we had done it directly for him. So closely did Christ identify himself with suffering humanity. A federated charities' organization in a great city took as the watchword of its campaign the one word, "Inasmuch." It was unnecessary to complete the sentence, so well known has it become.

Sins of Ommission, 41-45

For which do you feel the sharpest guilt, of actual evil deeds you have done or the possible good deeds you have left undone? In the eyes of Christ, to leave a good deed undone is a positive fault. The sins of omission are actual sins, perhaps in some cases worse than sins of commission.

for CUTS & SORES

Apply Minard's freely. It is a sure cure for cuts, sores, and other skin ailments. Any wound heals quickly after its use.

There's nothing better!

MINARD'S

LINIMENT

To cheer for soldiers as they march away to war and then to leave our reputation cases almost friendless in a military holiday year after year is not only unpatriotic and ungrateful but it is a sin against brotherhood. To allow children to play in dirty gutters in the downtown slums and never make an effort to get them a playground or a holiday in a fresh air camp is to do an injustice to children and injure the future citizenship of our land. To complain about a cut in salary or reduction in income from investments and never to do one personal act of kindness to those unemployed and on relief is to show a social selfishness that be- comes a positive act of heartlessness.

Deeds Decide Destiny, 46

If we are headed in the wrong direction the fault is not in our stars but in ourselves. What we choose is what we get. Let us come what we desire. Our fate is formed by our actions. It is idle to place the blame upon others: we have taken a hand in making ourselves what we are. To do nothing stifles character and to do wrong things debases character. To grow into moral strength requires actions and right actions. Christ laid emphasis upon action: "Inasmuch as ye have done this," "Do this and ye shall live." "This ought ye to have done." How much Christ himself did! He did not counsel others to be active while sitting at ease himself. He went about doing good, working long hours and expending his energy and sympathy in unselfish service. Those who live in this spirit grow out of kind of souls. Those who live for selfish ends, grow quite another kind of souls. In time the destiny becomes fixed, not by the arbitrary decree of a judge but because of the moral consequences of one's deeds. Thus we may judge ourselves, here and now, as before the judgment seat of Christ.

Questions for Discussion:

- 1.—Would we be willing to have Christ look into the cellar of our souls?
- 2.—Are governments undertaking too many social projects?
- 3.—What leads you to help a person in need?
- 4.—How is Christ judging the world to-day?
- 5.—Which is more helpful, to think of heaven and hell as places or as spiritual states?

HELP PREPARE FOR THE SUMMER VISITOR

Everybody likes to see a well-kept home. The owner of such a place derives real satisfaction therefrom. We wonder whether he fully realizes that by improving the appearance of his property he is making a valuable contribution to the tourist industry. The sight of improved premises adds materially to the pleasure of a holiday tour.

It should be remembered that one well-kept property in a community is an incentive to other residents to improve their premises. It serves as a constant reminder that the appearance of his property is a matter that should engage the attention of every citizen. Fences can be straightened, detached buildings repaired or removed, buildings painted or whitewashed, all eye-sores either covered up or eliminated. A little thought and effort will accomplish gratifying results at small outlay. What expenditure is necessary is more than repaid by the improved appearance of the premises and the actual greater cash value imparted to the place.

Many visitors after a lengthy tour through Nova Scotia have praised our scenery and outdoor sports but have referred in surprise to the unattractive appearance of so many homes and other properties. It is a poor excuse to say that money is scarce. Our visitors know that tidying up premises, removing eye-sores and whitewashing outbuildings and fences is not an expensive procedure. Many of them come from places where paint and whitewash are freely used as an excellent investment from the point of view of both protection and improvement.

This spring let us clean up our premises and paint or whitewash our buildings. In so doing we shall increase the value of our properties, help create a favourable impression on the stranger within our gates, and induce in him the desire to revisit our Province.

Pageant to be Presented

The folk lore and history of a country presented in tragic form by its own people—this is the keynote of the dramatic pageant which will form one of the feature attractions of the Annapolis Valley Apple Blossom Festival, to be held in Kentville, the heart of the apple country, on June 1, 2, 3, and 4 of this year. Glooscap, the mighty deity of the Micmac Indians, aboriginal inhabitants of Nova Scotia, is the figure around which the pageant is planned. From an elevation on a magnificent stage setting, representing Blomidon, on whose misty heights Glooscap lived, the Indian god will watch, as the people of Nova Scotia history from the times of the explorers and the early settlers to the present day pass in review before him.

This pageant is a standard feature of the Apple Blossom festival and bids fair to become as much a part of the life of the people as the Obergammas play to the natives of the little German town. There is this difference: while the one represents events which are part of the life of every civilized country, the other is strictly a presentation of the folk-lore and history of one region. The revived interest in folk-lore and history, together with the splendid possibilities of presenting in pageant form the historic events of the past century, led to this pageant representing the equally striking scenes of the last year, symbols of the apple, and its place in history.

The first scene of this year's pageant shows Glooscap on Blomidon, looking down upon the Valley. As he watches, dancers depicting the mountains, the valleys, the rivers, the forests, the sea breeze, sunshine, rain snow—very characteristic of the province—appear on the stage, and under colored lights, present an allegorical ballet.

The lights fade, and the scene comes on again to show a scene at the court of King Henry IV. of France during which he gives to de Monts, Poutincourt, Champlain, and other men with names famous in both French and Canadian history, the Royal Charter permitting them to explore this new country.

Again the lights fade, to come up on a scene showing the historic Order of Good Times, at Port Royal, looking at about the first smoking of their long pipes, members of the Order gather around the table, while the roast is brought in ceremoniously to the strains of ancient French music played by a fiddle seated high above the table.

The scene which follows will present the most romantic and most tragic figure in Nova Scotia history, Madame LaTour obliged to surrender her husband's fort to treacherous O'Aulmy Charnisay, and forced to stand by helpless while Charnisay shamelessly violates the terms on which the fort was surrendered to him.

Then comes the end of French occupation of Acadia. Colonel Paul de Nicholson, the first British governor of Nova Scotia, takes Port Royal from the gallant Subercase.

A brief, but impressive scene in which the white fleur-de-lis flag of France flutters slowly down from its proud position at the top of a mast and is replaced by the Union Jack, while the strains of the Marseillaise are imperceptibly into Rule Britannia, dissolves into a scene showing a herald heading the proclamation of Queen Anne to the settlers of Nova Scotia.

Next comes a scene of the deportation of the Acadians, in which Evangeline takes an important part. This is followed by a ballet of the Sun-tine, the Breezes, and the Rain-trops.

The last scene of the pageant presents the Harvest Home, introduced

"Good Tea"

—nothing so good costs so little

THE CEYLON TEA BUREAU advertise "everybody can afford good tea". We agree that there is nothing so good that costs so little as a cup of "good tea". The slogan "Good Tea" has been an integral part of our name for forty years. In thousands of Canadian homes Red Rose Tea and "Good Tea" have come to mean the same thing. It is a reputation which we treasure. The price we have paid for this good reputation is entirely due to an untiring vigilance in the maintenance of a superior quality that has won the good opinion of discerning Canadian women.

Red Rose Tea

"is good tea"

by a dance of the Autumn Wind, the leaves, and the Baby Snowflakes, then follows a Farnhouse Scene, with old songs from Nova Scotia. After an Apple Ballet, is presented a tableau of Confederation, when five provinces of Canada welded themselves together to form one Dominion. The sounding of the Last Post loses a reminder of the tragic days from 1914 to 1918.

The presentation closes with a pageant of Nova Scotia and her eighteen counties, supported by Hope, Ambition, Religion, Knowledge and Industry. The entire case takes its place on the stage a ballet by all the dancers is given.

Everything is not finished when he curtain falls. Thousands of Nova Scotians will return to their homes with a new appreciation of the story of their country; and thousands of visitors will take away with them an understanding of Nova Scotia, a feeling that they have witnessed indeed the romantic story of the country from the days of the mystic figure of Glooscap, wrapped in the fons of Jetty Blomidon, to the present time which lies so close to the future.

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

BE CLEAN

At the time when John Wesley said "cleanliness is next to godliness" one of his audience remarked, in all truthfulness, "and sometimes it is next to impossible". The good old days may have been romantic and picturesque but on the whole, conditions were very dirty and uncleanliness and uncomfortable, because of vermin.

As the standards of living improve, so the standards of cleanliness are raised. One of the striking contrasts between the civilized and the uncivilized is the different attitude which exists regarding cleanliness of person and in the handling of foods.

A great deal of cleanliness has no direct bearing upon health; most of it is a matter of what we would call decency; its practice grows out of a sense of comfort and self-respect associated with a clean body in clean clothes, and consideration for others to whom a dirty body is offensive to sight and smell.

Some forms of cleanliness have a very direct bearing upon health. Dirty hands are almost sure to be soiled with body secretions which so often contain disease germs. These germs on the hands gain entrance into the body in putting fingers into mouth, by touching the lips or thro' handling food which is later eaten without being cooked.

We do not know of any other way in which we can so definitely protect ourselves against disease germs than our own habits as by thoroughly washing the hands before eating or handling food. If the hands are to be kept really clean, the nails must be fairly short so that they may be cleaned regularly. Use soap and warm water freely and do not hesitate to apply the nail brush.

A clean skin is a healthier skin than when freed from dirt it is able to do its work better. There is less danger of skin infections and life are not found among those who bathe regularly and change their underwear frequently. A warm bath at least once a week is advised, and oftener, if necessary, dependent upon the type of work and the weather, to keep the skin clean and free from odours.

Use clean handkerchiefs. When soiled handkerchiefs are not only unsightly but the secretions they contain are picked up by the fingers, and it is these secretions which must always be regarded with suspicion. Most of the communicable diseases which occur in this country are spread by the germs that are found in secretions from the nose and mouth.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

RAILWAY NEXT TO BED AS SAFEST PLACE IN WORLD

In a recent "Believe It or Not" release by Ripley it was brought out that next to a bed a railway train is the safest place in the world, there being an average of one fatality for each 739,018,847 miles travelled. This spectacular record was not achieved over night but is the result of long experience in training men and improving equipment and appliances. Railway employees, state the Canadian National Railways, are one of the highest trained bodies of men in any industry and those in charge of the operation of trains are compelled to undergo medical examination at stated periods so as to insure their continued fitness for their duties.

ANTS ENTER FIELD AS WEATHER PROPHETS

A new prognostication in the art of season forecasting turned up in Springhill, Nova Scotia, recently. Partridge with feathered pants, squirrels and their stores of nuts, buzzards with thicker skins, breast bones of banyard fowl, all have made their debut and now along come black ants. There is a party in Springhill, William Reece, who has been keeping tabs on the comings and goings of black ants for a number of years and he states that this year they have appeared the earliest he has ever noticed according to the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways. The black ants put in their appearance in the early part of May while other years it was not until the early part of June that they appeared on the scene. Indications from this are that the weatherings will have a very early summer.

Th countryside is now very pretty with its different shades of green and the hundreds of cherry trees in blossom. In a few days the apple trees will be adding their beauty to the scene.

Here and There

The British Columbia Chapter of the I. O. O. F. held its "coming of age" meeting at the Empress Hotel, Victoria, recently, at its twenty-first annual convention. Premier Bute welcomed delegates from all over the province, and many distinguished guests were present.

The annual reduction in cost of summer railway travel under the heading of low summer fares, will be put into effect by the Canadian Pacific Railway on May 15th next, according to official announcement. The reduced fares will have extensive limits and stopovers.

Port Hope, on the south bank of the Fraser River, ninety miles from Vancouver by the Canadian Pacific, is a place where the Almighty has most lavishly set down in a land of wonderful beauty rivers and lakes abounding in game fish, writes B. Smith, Kennedy, editor of Western Fisheries.

Dr. Frank N. D. Buchanan, leader of the Oxford Group movement, is expected to launch another campaign in western Canada this spring, commencing at Winnipeg May 1, taking in Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria, and culminating with a selective "house party" at the Banff Springs Hotel early in June.

The success of low cost all-expense tours in the Canadian Rockies instituted by Canadian Pacific Railway last summer has prompted the company to repeat these four, five and six-day trips during the coming summer. Each trip averages 125 miles of motor-ing, and can be made either east-bound from Banff, B.C., or west-bound from Banff, Alberta, at the convenience of passengers.

A. C. Leighton, R.B.A., president of the government art college at Calgary, who will again this summer hold his summer art school for selected students from the Province of Alberta at the Ramnaskis Dude Ranch, near Banff, has picked a location surrounded by the most magnificent of Rocky Mountain scenery.

The stunk is not the king of the words, said George Corson, naturalist, addressing the Kiwanis Club at the Royal York Hotel recently. "Hold him up by his tail," said Mr. Corson, "and he will become innocuous." He didn't tell the Kiwanis if he had actually accomplished this feat.

Toronto got its full measure of music-makers lately when the most famous bandmasters of the continent assembled at the Royal York Hotel for their annual convention. Captain Charles O'Neill was the president and they came from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Between Ourselves

I suppose I should write something about the plebiscite this week—but, much has been said in other columns so there much to write about? So this week's column, that it doesn't have much for me.

The ambiguity of the act governing the plebiscite seems to be a matter of great concern. An article which appears elsewhere in this paper states "the act lays down very distinctly the question and the only question that can be submitted to the electors who have the sole right to decide the matter of 'permitting or refusing to permit the sale of beer or wine by the glass in open bottle within the town of Digby'." It is the question on the ballot paper which is to be answered on Monday.

However, it is not necessary for me to comment further on this matter, the article, already mentioned, entitled "The Plebiscite" gives the situation pretty clearly, or so clearly as I believe it can be given under the circumstances. Last week I would have been almost willing to wager that the electors of the town of Digby would vote for the sale of wine and beer in hotels; this week I feel almost certain the vote will be at least three to one against "the sale of beer and wine by the glass or open bottle within the town of Digby." Some people are not inclined to "buy a pig in a bag," neither are they inclined to vote in favor of so ambiguous a question on their ballot paper.

Most of us would like to see a little less weather about now. I think it has managed to rain a little every day so far during the month of May, and the sun has managed to keep itself pretty well in the background.

GOOD PELT SEASON

Nova Scotia, along with New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island, had a most successful pelt season. The Nova Scotia Fur Breeding Association, report a value of over $200,000, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. Some 5,200 pelts were shipped and prices were about twice what they were three years ago. The highest price reached for any one black fox pelt on the London, England market was $150; the pelt came from the ranch of Frank Balth, near Bridgetown. Two pelts from other ranches brought $140 each and one shipper averaged $65 for his entire output.

AUTOS IN WEST INDIES DRIVE TO THE LEFT

Automobiles for the West Indies differ from those used in Canada, in the steering arrangement, due to the fact that the rule of the road is to the left rather than the right. Many made-in-Canada "drive to the left" automobiles were loaded into the Canadian National freighter "Cornwallis" at Montreal recently for use in islands of the Lesser Antilles and in Barbados, Trinidad and the continental colony British Guiana. After completing loading the "Cornwallis" proceeded to sea, the first vessel out of the St. Lawrence this year for Caribbean ports.

HIDES USED EXTENSIVELY IN MOTOR CAR INDUSTRY

One of the most important outlets for hides in the United Kingdom market is for use for upholstering in the motor car industry. The value of a hide is based on its splitting capacity, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Branding of animals on the body instead of the neck or leg seriously depreciates the value of the hides, such branding rendering them unfit for splitting.

SOUTH AFRICA WANTS CANADIAN LUMBER

There are great possibilities for Canadian lumber and box shooks in the South African market, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Practically every industry using box shooks is rapidly expanding, according to reports received, with many of the importers and co-operatives requesting Canadian supplies. South Africa can be divided industrially into two main branches, agricultural and pastoral and the other mining. The manufacturing industry, com-

- ADVANTAGES:
- 1.—The thoroughness of its courses, including all grades from I to XII.
  - 2.—The exceptional opportunities it affords for the study of French, special attention being paid to conversation and composition in that language.
  - 3.—The attention that it pays to the moulding of character.
  - 4.—The training that it gives in Art, in Music, in Plain and Fancy Sewing, in Light Domestic Duties.
  - 5.—Its exceptionally low rates, notwithstanding the fact that the board is of very good quality.
  - 6.—Its accessibility, not only to pupils from the Maritime Provinces, but also to students from Boston, New York and vicinity, it being only an hour's journey from Yarmouth, the terminus of the boats from those cities.
  - 7.—Its delightful and healthful situation, removed from the distractions of town life, which makes it an ideal spot for study.

Digby Rejects Wine and Beer

Monday's vote was a very decisive victory for the temperance forces of Digby, and all of Nova Scotia. By a majority of 243 votes the sale of beer and wine by the glass or open bottle within the town of Digby was defeated by the town electors. The official count was 332 opposed to the sale and 87 in favor of it.

Neither the wets or dries can complain with the way the polling was conducted on Monday. Agents for both sides were allowed in the booths by last minute permission granted by Nova Scotia's premier, Angus L. Macdonald. Voting was orderly and from all indications the canvass was open and aboveboard.

The number of ballots cast was somewhat of a surprise to all. A very indifferent ballot was expected. Realizing the indifference of the people in this matter, the temperance forces set to work to bring out as big a majority as possible, not merely for the sake of swelling their majority in Digby, but also for the purpose of showing the rest of the province, who were watching Digby very closely, that the people were strongly opposed to a more free sale of alcoholic liquors. Digby's vote was most decisive.

In Digby the temperance forces were led by Rev. A. A. MacLeod, of Bear River, field secretary of the Sons of Temperance. On Sunday morning Mr. MacLeod addressed the congregation in Grace United church and in the evening he spoke at the Baptist church. His messages, it is felt, had a big influence in arousing the people from their indifference. Local clergymen and others also did their bit in the cause of temperance.

The temperance campaign was admirably handled. Their forces showed such an attitude of indifference right up to the last minute that workers for the other cause hardly thought them interested.

The temperance people struck their blows during the dying minutes of the campaign so quickly and effectively that those in favor of the sale had a chance to strike back.

Those favoring the sale based their arguments on the ground that such sale would be of great benefit to the tourist industry. Originally the hotelmen applied to the town council asking them to call a plebiscite for the sale of beer and wine by the glass or open bottle during meals and only thereafter. Such sale was to be confined to the hotels.

Had the ballot, when printed, con-

Obituary

Alva Elnora Henderson

The death of Alva Elnora Henderson, wife of John Henderson, occurred at their home, Sea Brook, suddenly, on Saturday last. The late Mrs. Henderson was 69 years of age, and was born in Centerville, the daughter of the late William Morehouse and Hephizah (Swift) Morehouse. She has resided at Sea Brook for the past 17 years. Funeral services were conducted on Tuesday, with Rev. E. W. Forbes, pastor of the United Church, Digby, officiating at the short service held at the home, and Rev. W. H. Forsythe, pastor of the Digby Neck United Church, and Rev. H. F. Dimock, of the Centerville Baptist Church, officiating at the funeral. Interment was in the cemetery at Centerville. Surviving are her husband; one sister, Mrs. Charles R. Morton, Centerville; and one brother, Ernest Morehouse, Sand Cove.

LITTLE LAD KILLED IN SAINT JOHN

Charles Haynes, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Haynes, of Saint John, was instantly killed on Wednesday, when, chucked between a car and a power pole within 100 feet of his home. The car had been in collision with a heavily laden truck at the corner of St. James and Charlotte Streets, careened, and struck the little fellow, crushing him against an electric light pole.

His 3-year-old sister, Betty, and 18-year-old cousin, Lily Deahov, were also injured in the crash.

The little lad has many relatives in Digby and Victoria Beach.

He died the sale to the hotels, the result of Monday's balloting might have been altogether different, but the wording on the ballot, which, we understand, was the only wording permitted by the Liquor Commission—was, "Are you in favor of or opposed to the sale of beer and wine by the glass or open bottle within the town of Digby?" a question altogether too open to suit the people of Digby, regardless of whether they were "wets" or "dries". We know of many so-called "wets" who voted against the sale on account of the wording on the ballot. We also know of a few so-called "dries" who might have voted for hotel sale with meals, but who voted against on account of the openness of the question.

PRETTY SERVICE IN ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

The annual coronation of the Blessed Lady took place Sunday in St. Patrick's (Roman Catholic) Church, when forty little girls and boys participated. The procession was led by the altar boys, followed by the choir singing, "Mother Dear, O Pray for Me"; then followed little girls in white dresses and veils with baskets filled with flowers, which, each in turn, deposited at the feet of the statue representing the Mother of God. Next came a little girl carrying a crown of flowers upon a saith pillow, which was placed on the head of the statue. The boys followed, with bands of white ribbons on their arms, genuflecting as they passed the altar. A large basket of flowers was deposited before the Blessed Sacrament by little Jean Sullivan and Erin Cole. An act of consecration to the Blessed Lady was read by Helen Saulnier, Benedictine of the Blessed Sacrament followed with a very appropriate sermon by the pastor, Rev. Leo Murphy. The children, all standing, sang, "This is the Image of Our Queen." The pillow and crown were carried by little Norma Theresa Saulnier, and the crowning by Reta Ward. The children were under the instruction of Mrs. Clifford J. Beaton.

COUNTY COURT IN DIGBY

Judge Sangster presided over the sittings of the County Court here on Wednesday when the case of the King vs. W. L. Gilliland, charged with breaking into and entering the summer home of Christina Melanson, of Plympont, and stealing a number of articles therefrom, Gilliland, of Lynn, Mass., was sentenced to 30 days in the County Jail, and will be deported at the expiration of the term. The break occurred on March 26th.

This same Gilliland was arrested and sentenced to 30 days, with deportation at the end of the term, a short time ago at that time he was charged with carrying concealed weapons. The latter charge, which was heard Wednesday, was brought against him, and it was due to the fact that he is to be deported that he was not given a heavier sentence.

Another case heard on Wednesday was the "proving of the will of the late Miss Annie C. Dunbar, of Weymouth, in solemn form. In this case the executor of the will, Mr. J. F. Williams, of Weymouth, was assisted by Mr. Nettie Cusman, Dr. Melanson and Mrs. Johns gave evidence. The late Miss Dunbar bequeathed her estate to others than her heirs who requested the "proving of the will in solemn form."

The heirs were represented by Frank Jones, K. C. of Digby; G. O. Hankinson, executor of the will, by G. Nowlan, Kentville; Scott Hankinson, of the beneficiaries, Joe H. A. Nichols, Digby; the Yarmouth Hospital and the Old Ladies' Home, Yarmouth, by C. Sanderson, of Yarmouth.

SHIPPING NOTES

The motor vessel Walter C. Captain Sam. Poole, arrived from Yarmouth on the 25th with 560 bushels of salt. Cleared the same day for Freeport.

The barge Joan Kéibore, Captain Lippert, cleared for Saint John on the 25th with 356,880 feet of spruce lumber. The barge left in tow of the ocean tug, Foremost 43, Captain Jack Rush, which arrived here in ballast from Portland, Me.

The schooner, Hancock, Parsons, Capt. Durbin, cleared on the 26th with 259,043 feet of spruce lumber consigned to the Gloucester Coal and Lumber Company, Gloucester, Mass. The lumber was shipped by the McMillan Lumber Company.

PRESENTATION TO R. H. LOCKWARD

A number of the trustees of the Digby General Hospital met at the residence of Dr. E. DuVernet, on Wednesday evening of last week, and presented Dr. H. Lockward with an address and a handsome clock, as a small token of their appreciation and respect. Mr. Lockward had faithfully served the Hospital Board as secretary-treasurer, without remuneration, for seven years, and although the trustees were glad of his promotion to a larger field, they nevertheless keenly felt the loss of so tried and efficient an officer.

UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA

On account of the interference at Sackville and the pastor's absence there will be no services on Sunday either at Digby or Bay View. Sunday School at the usual hour—12 noon.

Victor Peters and Ralph Hamilton, two Bay shore fishermen, being home from Digby, were rescued by the life boat after their boat had developed engine trouble and had gone ashore in the Gut. The boat was towed in to the life saving station.

JAIL BILL AGAIN TABLED BY THE TOWN COUNCIL

The regular May session of the Digby Town Council was interrupted for a few minutes on Monday evening by a bright-eyed little five-year-old Indian girl who appeared before the town fathers with a note asking that they "help us to go home."

Chief of Police Thibault was sent out to investigate. He found an Indian woman with three small children, stranded, and wanting to return to their home near Cambridge, Kansas County. The council voted three dollars for their transportation and food, and the chief was instructed to see them safely on board the night train.

At this session all the councillors were present with the exception of Coun. G. M. Morrell. Bills were read and those "O. K." by the finance committee ordered paid. One bill for something over $169, for the keeping of transients in the county jail some two years ago, was tabled. This account makes a more or less regular appearance before the council, and always meets the same fate.

The council are of the opinion that this account should be made part of the joint expenses between the town and municipality, as the transients given shelter in the county jail come from the municipality and not from the town. However, there seems to be a difference of opinion between these local governing bodies and the bill continues to be tabled.

At this session it was also decided to give the Digby Volunteer Fire Department protection in the way of remuneration through a blanket insurance policy which will cost the town $85 a year. This policy protects the firemen in the case of accident while fighting fires to the extent of $10 a week and hospital expenses, and to the extent of $1000 in case of death.

The matter of a license or an assessment for the MacMillan Lumber Company was also discussed, and left in the hands of the license committee.

Following the regular session the council went into committee, when Mr. Tanner representative of the Canadian Lumber Fire Extinguisher Company appeared before them. The council decided to call a meeting of the ratepayers on June 11 to discuss the authorization of the council buying up-to-date fire fighting equipment, and to issue a license for this purpose not to exceed $6,500. The resolution appears in an advertisement in this issue over the signature of the town clerk.

Other matters pertaining to the collection of rates and arrears of water and electric light rates were discussed. The clerk was authorized to insert advertisements warning all those in arrears with water and electric light rates that their water and lights would be cut off if the arrears were not paid in full by July 1st. Those in arrears with taxes are given until June 15 to pay up.

Please notice the V. O. N. posters in F. May's window. The annual V. O. N. meeting will take place in the first week in June.

RAIN IS MUCH NEEDED

Digby farmers are predicting a dry season. During May, they say, there has been quite a bit of rain, but never more than enough to dampen the surface. Below the surface, particularly in the upland sections, the ground is parched.

However, crops are making good progress. In some places peas are in blossom and potatoes well along. The strawberry crop, which looked particularly promising early in the season, will be a failure unless a few good rains come soon. So far this crop looks very good, but without rain in the very near future, it will be ruined.

BUT—the farmers are not blaming the Digby plebiscite for the dry weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Comeau have returned here to live.

Rev. A. E. and Mrs. Gabriel have been spending the week in Halifax.

Mrs. Mackay, of Halifax, was a guest at the Adams' Cottage on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Mills, of East Mapleton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Anna Dorothy, to Kenneth H. Cartwright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cartwright, Sandy Cove. N. S. Marriage to take place in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimball, of Rochester, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to Walter B. D. Hickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Hickey, also of Rochester. Mr. Hickey is a graduate of the Baldwin School, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and of Smith College, Mass. of 1932. Mr. Hickey is a nephew of Archbishop Thomas Hickey, who for many years was Bishop of Rochester. The wedding is to take place early in July. Mr. and Mrs. Kimball and family have been among the summer visitors at Harbor View for a number of years, and are well known here.

Marriages

Thibaults—Allen

An interesting wedding took place on Tuesday evening, May 22nd, 1934, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Allen, Mount Forest, Ont., when their youngest daughter, Ivy, was united in marriage under the Salvation Army flag, to Willis M. Thibault, of Brighton, Digby, Canada. The service was conducted by Brigadier Best, of London, Ont., and was characterized by a spirit of rejoicing and solemnity as befitted the occasion. Miss Dora Manser supported the bride and David Jeffery, the groom. Solos were rendered by Mrs. (Brigadier) Best, of London, and Mrs. J. Simpson, of Dundas, Ont. Congratulatory messages were received from distant parts. After the ceremony a reception was held, when the happy pair received the good wishes of numerous friends. Mr. and Mrs. Thibault will reside at Brighton.

The Digby Civic Band was invited to take part in the big Blossom Festival parade in Kentville next Monday, but were unable to accept owing to the delay in securing uniforms, without which the boys thought they might not compare favorably with the appearance of the other bands taking part.

"Class 13" Members to Visit Digby

There has been a change made in the programme of the visit of Class 13, or Portland, Maine, to Nova Scotia. It had been intended for the last minute it was found more convenient to travel by way of Yarmouth. However, Mr. Merrill and Mr. Blake are coming this way and will arrive here on the boat tomorrow. The party will spend tomorrow and Sunday in Port Maitland, on Monday a party of them intend to go fishing. On Tuesday Mr. Merrill and from twelve to twenty of his associates, it is expected, will arrive in Digby before noon and will be entertained at lunch in the United Church Hall by the Brotherhood of the United Church. Table space will be limited but possibly room can be made for a few at the tables at a moderate price. But an opportunity is to be given for all who would like to meet and hear them to have the opportunity; should there be more than the hall can accommodate the church is at the disposal of the Brotherhood. We have heard of a great many who would like to be here, and it is hoped they will be able to "make the grade."

CLIPPINGS

A business woman whose salary and generous impulses had enabled her to extend many gifts and favors to her friends lost her position two years ago, and has been obliged to economize to live within her means.

With leisure on her hands, she thought of even more things to do for her friends, but couldn't. Working on her scrapbooks one day, she had an inspiration. She would share her hobby—clippings.

Now when she clips her daily paper, she clips for her friends as well as her scrapbooks. The cookie recipe goes to the mother of four, whose chief problem is making nourishment attractive. A comment upon a new book is clipped for the friend who is interested in literature. Menus are sent to the friend who has a tea room, and for whom menu planning is a daily chore. The unusual recipe is mailed to the professional friend who loves to entertain. The travel article is put in an envelope addressed to a globe-trotting friend. Thus daily the clipping fan keeps in touch with the hobbies and interests of her friends.

The clippings are put into envelopes which have been addressed ready for a time when she will be writing letters, thus saving extra postage expenses. The recipients enjoy the clippings the more for the knowledge of the sender's interest in their club work, homes, gardens, travels, babies, parties and hobbies and watch for the bulging letters eagerly.

BOYS GO VISITING

Not long ago the towns of Weymouth, Wash., and Penticton, Kelowna and Vernon, in British Columbia, exchanged boys for three days. Fifteen high school boys from the American city lived in private homes on the Canadian side of the border and fifteen Canadian boys from those homes took their places.

As soon as they arrived, the Canadians were taken on a tour of the Weymouth Valley and shown about the town itself. Then they were turned loose to get better acquainted with the American boys they met and to experience American home life with the families whose sons were in Canada.

There were doubtless some things reported by the three-day tourists in each group when they finally returned to their own countries and kin. On the whole, one suspects, a pretty good time was had all around. Hospitality has a way of breaking down barriers. Its recipients feel kindly toward the hosts even if the latter do have different manners, menus and speech.

All this effort to get young people of different lands to know and like each other makes an older person regret his stay-at-home youth. There is a lot of international correspondence going on among school children and such events as the international Boy Scout jamboree, exchange scholarships, and visiting back and forth of small groups as in the Wenatchee project, all help to create good will.

OLD LANDMARK REMOVED

Horton Stark last week tore down the old building on First Avenue, near Trohman's bookshop, which he has been using as a barn. The building was almost a hundred years old, and formerly occupied a site in "Jew Cove" about where the Maritime Federation's building now stands. It was built by Ken & Hutchinson as a carpenter shop, and at one time the late John G. Rice was employed there. It went through the first big fire Digby had but was hardly damaged. It was then purchased by Horton's father who moved it to the First Avenue site over 60 years ago. When torn down last week a lot of the old charred wood was still in it.

The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER

By ALFRED BIGGS.

When honor goes, all is gone.

Don't do it if you can't do it right.

If it isn't the truth, don't repeat it.

A good life is better than a long one.

Prudence and haste can't live together.

Good health, plus good sense make a full life.

There's more greatness in goodness than goodness in greatness.

Fainters and plutocrats are equal in death.

FAT OR THIN

Hippocrates, the father of medicine said, "Largeness of person in youth is noble and not unbecoming; but in old age it is inconvenient and worse than a smaller stature." From this it is evident that overweight and underweight are not new problems and that while styles may change and fashions differ, medical opinion has been consistently in favor of the young and plump and the old and thin.

This attitude of medical science is not an expression of artistic taste, nor has it any aesthetic basis. It is the cold unromantic truth that slight overweight in youth is a health asset whereas it becomes a liability after forty.

General statements must not be interpreted literally in their application to individuals. There are, at all ages those who are slightly above or below the average weight and who are, at the present time, in good health. In such cases, there is no cause for worry, nor is there any reason for attempting to increase or lower weight.

When the variation from the average is marked, then it is well to consider the subject, not with alarm, but simply to find out if there is any abnormal condition responsible or if it is a question of diet.

Weight is not dependent upon diet alone. If a person eats too much he will put on weight and if he eats less than his body requires he will lose weight. There is also involved the question of the proper digestion and utilization of the foods that are eaten. This is linked up with all the hygienic habits of life.

Children who are definitely underweight are usually children who do not secure sufficient rest. Their diet may be faulty and they are likely poor eaters. No one eats well when tired and added rest will do more for many of these children than anything else. It should be said that children of this group seldom complain of being tired; indeed they are usually active and always ready to "go places and see things."

Adults who are overweight—have in general added weight because they continue to eat as much, and likely more, as they did when leading active physical lives. In general, it is true that definite overweight in adult life is a physical handicap. There is a preference for the fat and jolly Falstaff rather than for Cassius with his "lean and hungry look." Nevertheless, the expectancy of life is not dependent upon diet alone.

WELCOME TO THE TOURIST!

The tourist—let us greet him with a handshake and a smile. He comes from another world into ours, to see us at our best. To our roads and highways, fish in our waters, and lakes, ponds, and streams, and join in the hum and bustle of our busy towns and cities. Sometimes he is just a brother, drawn by the ties of home and kinship back again to the hills and dales of boyhood. Often he is a stranger, come to see the place and the people of a new romantic world.

And it is good to have him come. It tones us up a bit. We build our highways just a little better. Our lawns and garden plots wear a finer dress. Our homes and shops are given a neater, tatter trim. And it is all because the eyes of the world look upon us in the glance of the tourist who shares our life with us for a few days or weeks. We make new friends and mark new contacts with the big, bustling world that rims our little campus far off to yonder horizon and farther still around the curve of our earthen sphere.

We are the better for his coming. Let us hope too, he is better for his touch with us.

Of course we want to be at our best—our best in honor, in good will and service. We want to minister most worthily to the tourist, his name indeed is Legion, for he is many. These visitors are in a sense our guests while here within our midst. Their coming and going among us ought to cultivate good neighborhood on a widening scale.

The tourist season ought to be one great adventure in friendship, helping the goodwill of the world at large. What does our old panicky world need more just now than a whole season of downright goodwill? What a chance we have during all these months ahead to minister to the spirit of peace and happiness in the world by just being friend and neighbor to the strangers who come within our gates! Let us refuse to get in the way of making the tourist simply because they bring money to our country, drop coins and cheques into our tills and treasuries. Can't we refect in their coming because of their own human worth? Let us think of them as friends and neighbors to honor and serve, not simply as strangers to exploit. And then when we do that, I wonder if we will talk so much about the "tourist trade" or the "tourist industry."

And I wonder how many of us will be so much clamor for license to sell the tourist more alcoholic liquors! Would we be selling them among ourselves if we were the right sort of friends and neighbors?

It has been said that in ordinary times there are nearly two millions of people in Great Britain who are unemployed and idle. It is now said there is a prospect that by July the number unemployed will be less than that figure.

The industries and the great construction programmes in the cities absorb more and more work-people. It is a remarkable record and the more so that the improvement has a solid foundation.

THE SELF-HEATING Coleman IRON

Some towns need to make plans for better business and then go to work.

Politics may be bewildering, but it gives one the pleasure of watching a very fascinating mental game. There are the peaks, but what lies below is obscure and the game is to take the news as published and try to fit the news into the picture as in a jigsaw puzzle. Maybe you can—and maybe you can't.

This is not the time to think of the past, but to help plan for a glorious future.

An investigation has shown that the best decisions in most towns today are those that did not have the major advantages in the beginning, but men with foresight, courage and energy have co-operated to overcome natural disadvantages and have overcome them to the point where they are all but forgotten that they ever existed.

It seems strange with the allegedly best brains in Europe spending years and much money in trying to find a formula for disarmament that there has not as yet been a way found.

Many towns are in a position to move ahead. All they need is for a lot of citizens to give the live ones a chance.

Competition between towns spurs them on to civic achievement.

"PERSONS NOT FAT LIVE LONGEST"

Eminent Physician Declares

In a recent lecture before the American Academy of Medicine, a prominent physician stated that persons who aren't fat live the longest.

Common sense confirms this. Insurance companies often reject overweight folks, or charge higher premiums on account of the risk. Fat crowds and weakens body organs. It slows you down and puts unnecessary strain on the heart. A host of ailments (even rheumatism, acidity, shortness of breath and lassitude) are often associated with fat. So get rid of this dangerous, unhealthy fat. There's no reason why you shouldn't, when science has given you this safe, effective treatment—a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning.

This healthful "little daily dose" of Kruschen keeps the system free from harmful toxins, it helps to re-establish normal and proper body functioning—it keeps you feeling fine and fit all the time. Energetic activity takes the place of sluggish inactivity all while you lose excess fat gradually and without discomfort.

JESUS IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

Golden Text:—"He went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt."—Matthew 26:39.

Lesson Passage:—Matt. 26:31-46.

Into the woods my Master went, Clean forsook; Into the woods my Master came Forspent with love and shame. But the olive trees they were not blind to him, The little gray leaves were kind to him. The thorn tree had a mind for him. When into the woods he came.—Sidney Lanier

The Unknown Future, 31, 32

Nearly everyone would like to know the future in order to be prepared in soul and to make plans. The future, however, is hidden from us. We can see some dim outlines of the landscape, but the pathways are not clear. After long experience of life many people think that it is a merciful providence that we do not know the future. Could we foresee all the dangers, heartaches and disappointments, we might lose courage and cease from striving. Living one day at a time we learn to appreciate each day's good, and to feel with Christ that sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. Instead of borrowing trouble for the future, let us have hopes of joy, we take each day as a free gift from God and leave the future in his care. How far did Jesus foresee the future? Clearly he had premonitions of his death for months, perhaps years, before he was crucified. He told his disciples that he would die and rise again. But even when he was predicting what was to happen to himself, he was thinking of others, preparing his disciples to bear the blow, and assuring them that he would meet them again. Even facing death, the mind of Christ was not self-centred; he thought of others.

A Boaster's Self-Confidence, 32-33

It is easy to condemn Peter as long as we do not think how often we are guilty of the self-same fault. When Peter said that he would never deny his master though all the other disciples might prove false he was speaking sincerely. He could not fore-fancy himself lapsing from loyalty in such a way. He had many reasons for self-confidence. He had been one of the most intimate companions of Jesus. He had made a striking declaration of Christian faith at Caesarea Philippi. As a rule he was the spokesman for the disciples, and he had entertained Jesus in his home. He did not think that he deserved to have his loyalty suspected or doubted even for a moment. Christ understood his impulsive disciple better than Peter understood himself. Christ needed not that anyone should tell him what was in man, both the evil and the good. Peter was a likeable man, and had many good impulses upon which he acted, but he had been long enough with his Master for Christ to know that Peter was too self-confident, and that his impulsiveness would one day lead him astray. Very frankly and very lovingly Jesus warned his disciple, but Peter would not take the warning. Indignantly he rejected the suggestion that he would ever deny his Master. Likewise also said all the disciples, so sure were they of themselves.

Gethsemane, 36-38

This frank warning did not break

School Club Notes

Holding a Social

Evelyn VanTassel, of the Mount Pleasant School, writes that they are holding a social for the benefit of their Junior Red Cross Club. This school, also Rosville and Rosway, may meet at Rosville for a Field Day, on June 14th.

Observed Arbor Day

From Deep Brook comes a good report from the club secretary, Marie Bartheaux. She says they planted many seeds and bulbs on Arbor Day and spent some time in cleaning up their school and its surroundings. They decorated their room with new borders and pictures for the walls. They are practising a Folk Dance in the advanced and singing game in the primary room, for Field Day at Clementsport, on June 8th.

Doing Exhibition Work

We are wondering how many exhibits of school work we shall have for this year? Surely it is not too much to expect each school to have at least one entry. From Milford comes word that they want exhibition entry tags necessary this year. If your teacher has not received any yet she should write me for some. Exhibits should be sent in to the Agricultural Representative not later than June 20th.

Helping Teacher

The bond of fellowship between Jesus and Peter for Peter was taken with Jesus and John into the garden of Gethsemane to the companions of their Master in his hour of agony. Gethsemane was a garden of olive trees, but it was not the olive trees about it on that night of our Lord's passion. Christ knew the temptations to which his disciples were to be exposed. He knew the suffering that awaited himself. In such an hour of crisis, he felt the need of prayer ever more than of human companionship. He must seek the will of God. While he was praying in that hour of direct need, his disciples fell asleep, even Peter who had boasted that his loyalty would never fail. The disciples had been true to Jesus in many lesser crises, yet here they failed him in the hour of his deepest need.

Unanswered Prayer, 39-44

A boy ten years of age prayed for a chum of his own age who was suffering from whooping cough, and added a prayer that his chum's baby brother might not take the disease. The next day he learned that the baby brother had whooping cough also. His parents had to explain about the workings of the laws governing health and disease, but explained that prayer could do nothing. The boy's prayer was both answered and unanswered. So with the prayer of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane. He prayed that the cup might pass from him, and in a few hours he had to drink that cup. Yet his prayer was truly answered. He accepted death as the will of God for him, and all rebellion was banished from his heart. He could still address God as "My Father." No prayer is really unanswered when that relationship to God endures.

Failure of Friends, 45, 46

The cup from which Christ prayed to be delivered was now full, he was overflowing. As though it were not enough to face the Cross himself, he had the added sorrow that his disciples slumbered while he prayed. Eleven of his disciples slept; Judas was plotting and appeared on the scene ready to betray the Son of Man into the hands of his foes. How needful had been the words of Jesus to his disciples, "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." These things are written for our learning. It is not enough that we should know the story of Christ's agony in the Garden of Gethsemane or that we should condemn his disciples who failed him in his hour of need. The real issue is—Are we failing Christ today? In our daily lives, is the flesh winning a victory over the spirit, or is the spirit triumphing over the flesh?

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—Would you really like to know more of the future than we do?
- 2.—How do you explain Peter's denial?
- 3.—What was the deepest cause of Christ's agony in the Garden?
- 4.—What is the meaning of the Fatherhood of God to you?
- 5.—Do we have to fight our hardest battles all alone?

Every citizen of Nova Scotia who, whether accidentally or otherwise, comes in contact with a visitor, should greet him with a pleasant word. Any information desired should be readily and promptly given if available. Some of these visitors come from large centres where good manners have been lost in the selfish scramble of business and industry. It is easy, therefore, to realise that examples of courtesy and helpfulness manifested here, by very contrast with home conditions, create an indelible pleasing impression.

It needs hardly be said that courtesy in all things is absolutely essential. A discourteous hotel employee is about the most expensive thing that any hotel can have about the house. It would be appreciated by visitors. If hotel proprietors, hotel clerks and service station men would familiarize themselves with the beautiful spots, game reserves and histories of the town or village in which they reside. They should be ready also with accurate data as to how to reach the various local points of interest.

Let us remember that the greater the knowledge of this province, which a visitor is able to take away with him, the more apt he is to tell about Nova Scotia on his return home and to visit us again.

SALUTE OF GUNS

A recent amendment to the King's Regulations and Admiralty Instructions directs that salutes shall be fired in honour of His Holiness the Pope and his representatives. The firing of guns has been regarded as a mark of respect ever since the first cannon was invented, though why the making of a noise should be regarded as displaying respect is not entirely clear. The theory is that salutes at sea are derived from the custom of firing the guns and so unloading them before a ship entered a foreign port, by way of demonstrating that she came unarmed.

Of all the places in the world where salutes of guns are regarded as of extreme importance, India leads the way. Six of India's native rulers are entitled to salutes of twenty-one guns, and the princes are very jealous of this privilege. A maharajah has been known to remain in his palace all night longer than without his salute when the local battery has not been ready to do him honour. So highly valued in India is the salute that the British government has used deprivation of it as a punishment.

The Sovereign receives a salute of 101 guns when present in person; the Prince of Wales, or any other member of the Royal Family receives 31; but should the Prince be representing the King he is greeted with the full 101. The smallest salute laid down in instructions consists of three rounds, salutes of this number being given to Red Sea Sheikhs when paying official visits to His Majesty's ships.

An admiral's flag is greeted with guns according to his rank, and there must be returned round for round. A ship carrying the body of a dead admiral receives the admiral's salute, but, instead of allowing a ten-second interval, minute-guns are fired. Each ship always has guns loaded when salutes are being rendered, in case of a mistake.

Special powder is used for salute firing; and it may be remembered that it was the blowing up of the magazine containing reserve black-powder ammunition for salute firing that resulted in the destruction of the U. S. battleship Maine, in Havana Harbor, in 1898, an event which helped to bring about the Spanish-American war.

BRIDE'S FLOWER

The makers of artificial flowers in London and Paris now produce such exquisite specimens that, for personal adornment, the fashionable world seems to prefer the copy to the real. Even the real orange blossoms seem to have been superseded by the artificial ones on some occasions when it used to be considered indispensable, although one society-bride in England the other day insisted on having it and had branches sent especially from Bordighera to her home in Wiltshire.

Years ago French orange blossom farms were exceptionally busy in early summer, preparing to send out hundreds of carefully-packed flat wicker baskets, known in the trade as "pads." These baskets contained the choicest sprigs of orange blossom destined for the fashionable weddings of London and Paris, and as the flowers were exceptionally fragile, wilting quickly in damp as well as in warm weather, far more than was actually needed had always to be ordered.

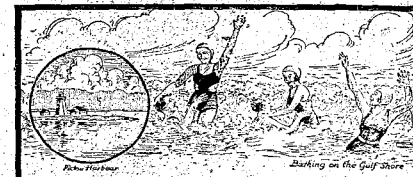

Now, practically all the blossom is used for scent-making; and the demand is so great that, in France, orange trees are actually grown more for the flower than for the fruit. A matured tree will produce 30 to 40 hundred lbs. of blossoms, 1,000 pounds of which are necessary for a yield of one and a half pounds of the essential oil of the flowers.

Orange blossom land lies just south of rose and jasmine country, while roses and jasmine bloom on the sheltered hillside behind the Riviera towns from spring until the end of autumn, the pale lovely blossoms of the orange tree appear to know hardly any break throughout the year. In fact, the groves are planted in the big farms with a view to some of the trees being always in flower.

At harvest time carts full of waxen petals may be seen wending their way up to Grasse, the little medieval town in the hills which has for many years been famous for its scent distilleries. The sweet fragrance of the flowers is like the scent of all the gardens in the world, and cannot be quenched even by the thick clouds which rise from the dust-covered roads.

The essential oil of the blossom is extracted very simply by means of distillation, and is called "Neroli," after a princess of that name who, in the latter part of the sixteenth century, made orange blossom oil the fashionable ornament of her day.

Bootlegging is still going strong in the United States. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the strong liquors consumed there are of the bootleg variety and vintage. Those in administrative circles claim that high federal and state taxes have made liquor so expensive that repeal of the 18th amendment has by no means reduced the illicit sale.

To Nova Scotians Abroad

Why not tell your friends and acquaintances that there is no finer vacation-ground on this continent than your native Province, with its pleasantly cool summers and varied attractions. Tell them that in Nova Scotia they can enjoy all manner of sports and recreations, golf, surf-bathing, canoeing, yachting, sport-fishing—with bird-shooting, and moose and deer hunting, in season. Mention, too, our historic sites and battlefields. Tell of Nova Scotia's scenic beauty, with its forests, lakes, and streams, and picturesque coastline; of the improved roads and wide choice of first-class hotel accommodation. And, finally, assure them that in Nova Scotia they can obtain all-round summer recreation at moderate cost. Then, if you send us the names and addresses of these friends, we will forward to them, with your compliments, copies of our 1934 Travel Publications on Nova Scotia.

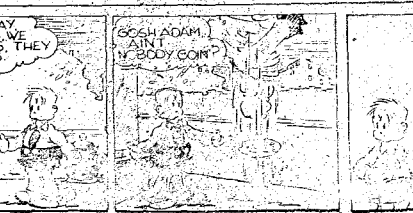

An answer of fifty words won a holiday money prize of twenty-five pounds in an English contest. The question was: "Where would you go, and why, if you won a twenty-five pound holiday?" The winning answer was: "Fifty years ago a girl sat on a fence outside a little Cornish village, and a young man leaned beside her and asked her to marry him. Now I am a lonely old woman, but for my last holiday I should like to find that little Cornish village again."

TELLS OF WORK OF VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES

At the 36th annual meeting of the Board of Governors of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada, held at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, recently, a comprehensive outline of the great work being carried on by the Order was given by the Chief Superintendent, Miss Elizabeth Smellie, C.B.E., R.R.C., who stated that during the past year 315 Victorian Nurses made 72,081 visits to 76,675 patients. Each of the associations has an interesting story to tell, she stated, of the growth, some of decreases in work, and the majority of financial problems. They are all doing their utmost to carry on as usual. Decreased budgets, reductions of staff and hours of duty, eventually mean drastic limitations of service or else overwork and strain on the part of the staff. During 1933 there was less acute illness reported in Canada, a lower death rate and a higher birth rate. Insurance work has decreased by 35,000 visits; revenue derived from this source decreased by approximately $34,375. There were 25,873 more free visits than last year. He also paid high tribute to the visiting nurse association, saying that it has clearly demonstrated its usefulness in the public health field. He also spoke in very high terms of the visiting nurse as a community asset. "Her objective always is the prevention of disease and the promotion of health, yet she is in direct competition with no profession."

His advertisement, which appears elsewhere in this issue, announces his opening show and others to be shown during the week.

"SO THAT THE PEOPLE MAY KNOW"

To the Editor of the Courier:
Sir—My letter in the Courier was not intended to cause any discussion, but since a reply has appeared addressed to me personally, I must answer and for my part end the matter.

Knowing that Mrs. H. L. Wallis made a formal application to the Town Council for permission to hold a tag day in an effort to raise money for the North End Tennis Court, I thought it wise to put forward a suggestion that it would be more in order if such an appeal were made in behalf of the Baseball Diamond, since it serves a greater number of young people in the town.

MAYOR SHORTLIFF COMPLIMENTS BAND BOYS

The Digby Civic Band, conducted by Paul Yates, put a grand finish to Victoria Day events by playing the best programme this remarkably progressive young band has yet performed. They were greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience, cores of cars being parked in all available space near the pavilion and showing approval of every number by a roar of horns. Thirty-eight players took part.

Mr. Yates introduced the Mayor, remarking that His Worship was present to encourage the boys, and his presence was proof that the public values a good band and appreciates its efforts to boost the town and set an example of patriotism and public spirit. Mayor Shortliff complimented the boys on their diligence in study and their excellence of performance. He asserted that every thinking person must consider the Band as a real asset of value and importance, especially in a town catering to the trade of visitors and tourists as Digby does. He spoke of the interesting and profitable occupation given the boys during the past sixteen months by keeping them busy with the study of music, when otherwise having nothing to do, now would they have spent the time? No doubt His Worship remembers the old saying about Satan finding some devilry for idle hands. He regretted that the Town Council was not in position just now to give the financial support the Band deserves, but he felt sure that during the summer the Council would make special effort to give the necessary aid. He concluded his remarks in a most convincing manner by handing over a generous cash donation to the Band. The collected funds were good for so early in the season, but too many of the listeners are apparently addicted to the big nickel habit, and their reformation is devoutly hoped for the next concert. At present the Band is dependent on these collections for its existence, and listeners are requested to contribute more liberally if they wish the concerts continued.

BEAR RIVER SCHOOL TEACHER TO TESTIFY

The sensational seduction suit of Miss Vivian MacMillan, Alberta girl, against Premier J. E. Brownley, of the province of Alberta, has a peculiar interest to Nova Scotians, and particularly to the people of Bear River, in view of the fact that Carol Snell, who tutors a private class of Grade Six pupils at Bear River, has been called upon to give important evidence in this suit.

Miss MacMillan, the plaintiff in the suit was a pupil of a high school class at Edmonton, Alberta, of which Snell was teacher. This was in 1930. Snell will go to Halifax within a few days and tell what he knows respecting the case before a commissioner.

DIGBY CONTEMPLATING MODERN FIRE EQUIPMENT

Some weeks ago the firemen of Digby circulated a petition about the town, stressing the need of modern fire-fighting apparatus. This petition was largely signed, and presented to the town council, who have called a meeting of the ratepayers for June 11, to go into the matter and decide whether or not the council will be given authority to purchase a truck.

One of the trucks the council has in mind at the present time, is a 5-cylinder valve in head, 98-horse power motor; a hosebox with a capacity of 1,000 feet 2 1/2 inch hose; pump with a capacity of 500 gallons per minute at 120 pounds; pump pressure; chemical tank; hose and hose box; 3 extinguishers; all in addition to other accessories which include a powerful search light, ladders, ladders, axes, siren, etc.

The Courier has been given to understand that should the town decide on purchasing this new equipment, insurance rates in the business section of the town will be reduced 30 cents on the thousand. We all know that it is time we had some thing a little more modern than the antiquated equipment now in use. Not saying anything against our firemen, but they realize as well as we, that should a fire not start here, our position would be almost hopeless with the tools the firemen have to work with at the present time. It is all right to trust in Providence, but it is also a good idea to be prepared against emergencies.

Moses, Saulnier, an aged farmer of Saulnierville, was dragged off his feet by an infuriated ox which he was driving to a blacksmith's shop last Friday afternoon. He sustained terrible injuries and is not expected to recover.

MINISTERIAL CHANGES

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. W. Forbes will be pleased to learn that they will remain in the Annapolis Presbytery. Mr. Forbes will take charge of the Granite River circuit of the United Church, succeeding Rev. G. T. Bryant (a former pastor of the Digby Neck Circuit) who has retired from the active work of the church. Mr. Forbes, who has been attending to Maritime Conference of the United Church, will be succeeded here by Rev. W. H. Hodges, of Canning, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes have been stationed here for the past seven years, and although their many friends regret their leaving they are pleased to learn that his new charge is so near. Another change of interest to Digby is that Rev. W. H. Watts, now pastor of Grace Church, here when the United Church became a reality. He will be succeeded by Rev. C. M. Mack, a former Bear River pastor.

PUPILS OF MISS EDDIE BURNHAM SCORE HIT

A host of fairies, elves, pirates and other fascinating personages, all in lovely costumes, trooped across the stage at the Theatre Arts Guild playhouse Wednesday evening (last) to give an appreciative audience two plays of "The May Treasure" and "A. A. Milne's 'Make Believe'." They were presented by Miss Eddie Burnham, who has a wide experience in this type of work, being a graduate of the Curry School of Expression. Miss Burnham is one of our Digby girls. She is the daughter of Mrs. A. A. Burnham and the late E. B. Burnham. Digby people need not be told of her wonderful ability as an elocutionist, and Digby people are proud of her successes in that field. Among those who took part were Miss Elizabeth Merkel and Gordon Burnham (a brother of Miss Burnham), both of whom are well known in Digby.

In other references to this presentation the Halifax press has been very complimentary. The Halifax Star closes their account as follows: "The show was a decided success, and the little actors as well as their directors were showered with congratulations."

SHIPPING

The motor vessel, Till, Capt. Cooper, arrived on Friday from Bear River to complete loading pulpwood for the Mersey Company, Liverpool.

The motor vessel Beatrice L., Capt. L. McInnes, arrived from Boston on the 2nd, in ballast, and cleared the same day for Gloucester, with 70 cords of hardwood.

A number of the Clementsvale school boys and girls, with their teacher, Miss Hilda Christie, attended the Apple Blossom Festival at Kentville, Saturday. The girls took part in the folk dancing and performed their part of the program in a very creditable manner.

Local and Personal

W. C. MacKenzie and family have arrived from Kansas City to spend the summer in Digby.

Rev. F. W. Kirkus, D. D., and Mrs. Kirkus arrived from Philadelphia on Tuesday to spend the summer at their summer home here.

Mr. Hooper returned yesterday from Montreal, where they have been attending the graduation exercises at the Maritime Women's Hospital, where Mrs. Roop's daughter, Phyllis, was graduated.

We have received a letter, signed "A Citizen of Digby," protesting against the displays of hooked rugs around town. As the writer failed to send his or her name we cannot publish it. We wonder how often this fact has to be published before the public really realize that we mean it. We must know the names of our correspondents.

While at work in his yard recently George Nadeau turned over a large mound, underneath he found a copper coin, about the size of an English penny. On one side was the inscription, "Trade and Navigation" and "1838," and a figure of Britannia. On the other side was the figure of a Dutch coin value at two cents or one English penny. However, the inscriptions are all in English and the image of Britannia hardly suggests that the coin is of Dutch origin.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND—PARISH OF DIGBY

Rev. A. E. Gabriel, Rector

The services on Sunday will be as usual. Interest and it is earnestly hoped that large congregations will be present. Dr. F. M. Kirkus, a summer resident of Digby, is to be the special preacher at the 11:00 o'clock service, and His Lordship, Bishop Mackenzie will confer the Rite of Confirmation and preach in the evening. Bishop Mackenzie always draws a large congregation of men wherever he goes and is widely known as an excellent preacher.

8:00 a. m.—Holy Communion.

10:00 a. m.—Sunday School.

10:40 a. m.—Confirmation and Holy Communion at Marshalltown.

11:00 a. m.—Matins (Preacher, Rev. Dr. Kirkus).

3:00 p. m.—Service at Rossy, conducted by Capt. Payne, of the Church Army.

The school children of the schools in this portion of the county are preparing for the field day, to be held in Weymouth on Monday. This event is sponsored by the Digby West Teachers' Study Club, and will include the following schools: Weymouth, Weymouth North, Weymouth Falls, Weymouth Mills, Ashmore, Gilbert's Cove, Plympton, Barton-Brighton and North Range.

On Sunday a number from Digby and vicinity motored to Port Maitland to take part in the services held in the Baptist church. Dr. F. M. Kirkus, D. D., and Mrs. Kirkus, who were in the class meeting, Rev. Jefferson Neal, pastor of the St. Lawrence Congregational Church, of Portland, and chaplain of the 13th, preached a sermon in the Wesley United church, in Port Maitland. So large was the crowd that an overflow meeting in the Baptist church, at which Mr. Merrill was the speaker, was found necessary.

In the afternoon an open air service was held on the shore at which it is estimated 6,000 persons were present. Mr. Merrill was the speaker of this huge gathering. Mr. Neal also gave a short address. While Rev. H. J. Friend, pastor of the Port Maitland Baptist church, led in prayer.

The Class 13 band was in attendance at both the class meeting in the morning and the open air service in the afternoon.

Class 13 and Mr. Merrill are well known to all radio listeners in this section of the Maritimes. Excited during the summer months they are heard over the radio every Sunday morning. The class is one of the largest of its kind on the North American continent. The class band, considered one of the best bands in the State of Maine, is heard frequently over station WCSI.

The visit of the class to our province is a return visit to the one made by them before they left for Port Maitland and Digby last February.

PEDDLERS FIGHTING LICENSES

We understand from Mayor Shortliffe that a number of men peddling in the streets have been joined together and engaged the services of Dr. Owen K. C. of Annapolis Royal, as their solicitor to bring the question of licenses before the full bench at Halifax. The town recently increased the license fee charged to transients.

The transient meat men maintain that according to law the town cannot charge them a license for selling products of the farm or stock.

The town maintains that these peddlers buy their goods for resale from the local farmers, and are therefore hawkers or peddlers, and according to the sanction given the town in 1911 by the then Deputy Attorney-General of the province, they are subject to a license.

The tangle has aroused considerable interest in town.

The School Board Community Club of Barton and Brighton, held its regular monthly meeting last Friday evening. The guest speaker was Alfred Boden, of Digby, who spoke on his topic, "England, the Land of History and Romance." He briefly followed the course of English history from the ancient times to modern times, touching the most momentous and interesting events. His pleasing manner of presentation captivated the interest of even the small children who were present.

On Tuesday a group of the visiting Class 13, of Portland, Maine, accompanied by a number of their Port Maitland friends, were entertained at a lobster chowder luncheon tendered them by the Brotherhood of Grace United Church in the church hall. The luncheon was served by Port Maitland Tuesday morning.

They were accompanied by a section of the Class 13 band, under the leadership of their leader, Mr. Blanchard. The band rendered several selections on the lawn of the church both before and after the meal. The Digby band was also in attendance and played during the meal time. The music of both bands was greatly appreciated and enjoyed by all.

James J. W. was chairman of the meeting. He welcomed the visitors and introduced the speakers on the other side was an address by Mr. Merrill, teacher of the Portland class who is so well known to radio listeners in this vicinity. He gave an inspiring address. He began his remarks by relating the experiences of himself and Mr. Blake, who was also present on Tuesday, on their first automobile trip to Nova Scotia and back, 24 years ago. (At that time there were not more than two or three cars in the province.) In 1905 there were only ten. Mr. Merrill also related the first automobile tourist to visit the province, and his account of their adventures was amusing and interesting. Conditions then were vastly different to what they are now.

He paid high tribute to the people of Nova Scotia and to Canada. He lauded the Union Jack and the stars and stripes, and told what these flags meant to Canada and to the United States.

"There are those in your country and in mine who would tear down our flags and raise in their places the flag of contempt for our liberties, our God and our religion. These people are spreading their poison daily through secret and open meeting in both countries."

He mentioned the fact that International Brotherhood of Labor, held in Portland last winter, and over this past week end in Yarmouth, Port Maitland and Digby, were bonds of kinship.

GOING TO EXTREMES

It may seem strange here, but in many of the streets in New York stands or tables are permitted on the sidewalks for the sale of lunches, fruits and soft drinks. Perhaps, in the course of time, they will be allowed to sell beer and wine, if not hard liquors.

In the meantime little use is being made of the beer which the customer stands up with his feet on the brass rail and takes his medicine. The people prefer to sit down at tables, since it is easier to take it that way. Moderation is a word which has no place in the passion for social experiment, that is an interesting phase of life in the United States. Prohibition is launched with crusading zeal, promptly thrown overboard with even greater enthusiasm, and the country that officially was the "dryest" in the world now seems desperately bent on making itself the "wettest."

New York's state since repeal has been making and re-making its liquor laws with so much expedition that for the outsider at least there is some difficulty in keeping up with the latest style of drinking. First the bar was eliminated, now it has come back and the drinkers once more are permitted to put their feet on the traditional brass rail. Furthermore abolition of the order that drinkers must do their drinking at tables has opened the way to the licensing of many small places which could not meet the table requirements, and the beer licenses become available for lunch counters, luncheonettes, hot dog stands, roadside refreshment places and so on. Officials of the state board expect 25,000 applications from establishments of these kinds for beer permits under the new law becoming effective July 1st.

Apparently it will be possible for the New Yorker to get beer pretty nearly everywhere, except with his morning milk, and it will be profitable to see whether this facility of opportunity causes a great increase in beer drinking or if, on the contrary, familiarity breeds contempt. There will be no novelty about, nor any adventure in buying or drinking it, when it may be secured as conveniently as gasoline.

HELP ENCOURAGE OUR TOURIST TRADE

More than 30,000 citizens of Nova Scotia have joined the League of Loyal Nova Scotians. These men and women have pledged themselves to purchase, when feasible, the native products of Nova Scotia in preference to the imported varieties. They adopted this pledge because of their interest in Nova Scotia and their desire to reduce unemployment.

How many of these patriotic citizens realize that another opportunity for service lies at hand? This additional service is the encouragement of our tourist trade, an industry capable of enormous expansion. It is only in large volume that the benefits really accrue. Every tourist who visits us has to expend some money for food, for gas and oil, for transportation and frequently for other supplies. If this province could secure a sufficient number to come to the province, expenditures would be very great. There is no reason why through our tourist trade the population of Nova Scotia should not be doubled.

But this will not come about without a strenuous endeavor. In efforts to attract tourists Nova Scotia is up against stiff competition. Let there be no misunderstanding about that. Nova Scotia is far from being the only country with fine scenery and a relatively cool summer climate. It behoves us, therefore, to work all the harder if we are to obtain satisfactory results.

Make it so that every member of the League, when wrapped in circumstances abroad to mention some local summer attraction? This may be a public event, or a fact relating to the local scene, or a mention of the local surf-bathing, or other local facilities. A sentence or two along that line is likely to stick in the mind of the reader. It has been suggested also that names and addresses of persons who would likely be interested in Nova Scotia should be forwarded to the Provincial Bureau of Information, at Halifax.

Then there is the work of improving home premises, painting or whitewashing buildings, removing eye-sores, fixing-up school, church and cemetery grounds. Let it be noted that all this work is just as much in the interest of Nova Scotia as the purchase of native products. The improved appearance of our Province will create a better impression on our visitors and make them more desirous to visit us again. The money they will leave here will go directly into circulation and will help to furnish additional employment to men and women now unemployed.

The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER

By ALFRED BIGGS

Use everything; abuse nothing.

Only ignorance deserves education.

Real generosity lays no strings to it.

Adversity is a true test of friendship.

Fear of death is more fearsome than death.

Live every day as though it were your last.

Man can be the most cruel animal on earth—and the most kind.

The lives of multi-millionaires and criminals are full of fear.

RUN SHIPS WITHOUT LIQUOR

Some are saying we cannot run hotels now without liquor. But here is a story of the sea where passenger ships were run, and run successfully, without liquor. The late Captain Robert Doherty as a young man lived in Brackbridge, Ontario. He worked as a logger in the forests of Canada. Then he rose to be a great lumberman. He came to own a steamship line that operated in all parts of the world. He was the original of "Cappy Ricks," a famous character in some of Peter B. Kyne's stories. Let him tell his own story about his ships and liquor, given a few years before his death, which occurred but recently:

"When I took over a fleet of twenty ships, five years ago, all kinds of people told me I could not run them successfully unless I served liquor on board. Not a drop of liquor has ever been served on these ships—and they are running still, and the passenger list is always filled. If ever I have to turn back because of no liquor on board, I'll give up or go broke. I won't do it. And what kind of a man would I be if I carried liquor on my ships and at the same time sold to my officers and men? Anyone of you who takes a drink of liquor will be fired instantly? No, sir; my ships never have carried liquor and never will."

And don't you think that the "live-up or go broke" spirit with regard to the use or sale of liquor is just the kind of dramatic we need about the running of hotels and lots of other things in this and other areas of the world today? Let us exchange all defeatist timidity for the bold ruggedness of good Captain Doherty.

THE 1934 GOLF ASSOCIATION

The following letter has been sent out to the various Golf Clubs by George E. Graham, the president of the Nova Scotia Golf Association:

Course, I had the privilege this afternoon of making a thorough inspection of the Pines Golf Course here, examining in every detail every tee, fairway and green.

"The excellence of the general condition of the course at this early date was a distinct revelation to me. The course is to all intents and purposes now ready for play, and by the opening date (June 25th) will be in true championship form."

"There is no sign whatever of winter-kill, either on the fairways or the greens, so prevalent on other courses throughout the country, consequent upon the unusual severity of the weather during the past winter."

"The grass on the fairways is healthy and vigorous, and is turning up rapidly, and already presents a very fine playing surface."

"The greens show a most marked improvement over last season, and are rapidly developing the velvety texture so desired for good golfing."

"A great deal of work has been done in clearing out brush and trimming up trees along the fairways. There are a number of innovations and improvements under way looking to the added pleasure of the golfer."

"For the golfer who has already played the course, its condition this year will add much to the keenness of his game, while for the golfer who plays it for the first time, there is a very real going thrill in store. Even at this date it is not too early to begin figuring on your golfing vacation, or on your participation in the tournament this year."

"You will find the clubhouse and its surroundings, spacious verandas, etc., most attractive, and a very delightful resting place from which to view the course."

"In conclusion, it is a very great pleasure, indeed, to be able to state with the utmost confidence, that the dream of the originators of the idea of the Pines Hotel Golf Course will be very largely realized this year, in that there is at Digby now, and for the future, the finest golf course in Eastern Canada, neutral or otherwise."

HEALTH

by Dr. Ross

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

MEASLES

A red spotted rash appearing on top of what has been thought to be a common cold, lasting for a week or so, is likely measles. This, however, is not always the case because a red spotted rash may and does occur in other diseases, such as smallpox, for example.

Measles was known to the ancient world, and is described in the earliest of medical writings. Today, it is known throughout the civilized world as a children's disease. All are susceptible to measles, and as exposure likely occurs early in life, particularly among residents of congested areas, the disease is seen most frequently in children, although it is by no means uncommon among adults.

During the world war, it was noted that men brought into military camps from rural areas frequently contracted measles, never having had the disease; these later had practically all had measles as children. Second attacks of measles do occur but they are comparatively rare.

The specific cause of measles has not been discovered. Measles is one of the most readily spread of the communicable diseases, and it is difficult to control because it is infectious before the rash appears, when the running nose, inflamed eyes, the cough and the fever are believed to be an ordinary cold.

The younger the child, the more serious is the attack of measles. The younger the child, the greater likelihood is there that the attack will be fatal, or that it will be followed by serious complications. It is for these reasons that parents should exercise every reasonable precaution to protect their younger children. The best place for such a child is in bed, this both in his own interests and for the welfare of others. Neglected colds lead to serious trouble. Measles and other complaints begin as ordinary colds.

During the past few years, we have learned that the blood of patients who have recovered from measles—human convalescent serum—will, when injected, confer a temporary immunity or resistance to measles in the person injected. In the absence of convalescent serum, the whole blood of the parents is used, for they, as children, will likely have had the disease. Both methods are safe and valuable in protecting temporarily the young or sickly child who has been exposed to the disease.

Because measles so often leaves a trail of damage, the child who has recovered should be examined several months after recovery, to ensure that any damage may be found and treated.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

ARM IN SLING WITH NEURITIS

"A token of gratification" this woman says she is giving when she writes of her relief from neuritis.

"For twelve months I have had neuritis in my arm, and up till the last two weeks have had to carry it in a sling. Since then I have abandoned my sling, am able to sleep undisturbed, and can perform household duties that previously I would have been unable to do. These benefits have received from Kruschen Salts. This all happened in two weeks, and I am optimistic enough to think that in another fortnight I shall have said good-bye to neuritis once and for all. Call this a testimonial if you choose—do me it is a token of gratitude."—(Mrs. N. E. L.)

Neuritis is a result of impurities in the blood. And it is impure blood, circulating all over the system and setting up inflammation in the tissues, that causes those excruciating pains. Kruschen Salts can be safely trusted to do the matter right. Because Kruschen contains just what Nature needs to persuade your internal organs back into a healthy, normal condition.

Marriages

Lent-Littlewood

Married 3,000 feet in the air, was the experience of a young couple of this section of the province, last Friday. They were Russell Lent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lent, of Deep Brook, and Miss Margaret Littlewood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Littlewood, of Lower Granville. The ceremony took place over Pictou Island. The couple took passage in a plane at Charlottetown, with Rev. J. G. Wakeling, of North River, P. E. I., on board. As their license was a Nova Scotia license the plane had to fly to a spot over the Nova Scotia shore in order to make the ceremony a legal one. Then 3,000 feet above Pictou Island, the engines were shut off, and in the silence which followed, the ceremony was performed. Walter G. Fowler, the pilot of the plane, and Walter S. Grant, manager of the Island Telephone Company, were witnesses. It was Mr. Wakeling's first trip in the air, but he did not suffer from nervousness and solemnly went through the complete ritual, which lasted about five minutes. After formalities over they returned to Charlottetown, where they were met by a large crowd, and afterwards departed on a wedding trip through the provinces. The groom is an employee in Jack Pickels' garage in Annapolis Royal.

Robichaud-Comeau

The marriage of John T. Robichaud to Mrs. Henry J. Comeau, took place at the Sacred Heart Church, at River LaSalle, on June 6th, Rev. Father Doucet officiating. Fred Comeau presided at the organ and Gustave and Alphonse Comeau acted as soloists. The bride, who was beautifully attired in a swan gown of navy crepe-de-chêne, with matching hat and accessories, was attended by Mrs. Charles P. Melanson, of Meteghan River, who was dressed in navy crepe-de-chêne, with matching accessories and sister for scarf. Mrs. Melanson acted as bridesmaid. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at their home, a number of the neighbors and the older residents of the place being present. The bride couple, attended by the bridesmaid and bridesman, motored to Yarmouth for lunch, returning to Beaver River, where dinner was served by Mrs. Armande Comeau, and the Misses Helen, Gertrude and May Comeau, to about 150 guests. They were the recipients of a large array of pretty and useful gifts.

Bijou Theatre Packed to Hear Kiwanis Minstrels

The Kiwanis Minstrels were presented Wednesday evening before a crowded house, in the re-modelled Bijou Theatre. The entire proceeds will be used in furthering the work of the Digby Kiwanis Club among the under-privileged children.

This show was under the direction of A. J. Dillon, assisted by Miss Isabel Williams, the circle, with fluff, Bobby as interactor, was made up of eighteen black-faced singers, dancers and comedians, with Ross Turnbull, Raymond Winchester, Fred Harvey and Fred Turnbull as the funny and men who "strutted their stuff" in fine style, with E. J. Theriault at the piano.

Special numbers during the circle were, "The Old Covered Bridge" by Chester Levy; "That Old Irish Mother of Mine" by Arthur Robinson; "Thursday Is My Jonah Day" by Fred Rockwell; "Go, Go, Go" by Ross Turnbull; and "You Done Me Wrong" by Fred Turnbull. There were also selections by the Kiwanis Minstrel Quartette; "Maggie, Come Klunk Upstairs," by Raymond Winchester and Ross Turnbull, and a Banjo Solo by Lawrence Dickson.

The opening and closing choruses were exceptionally well rendered. The Kiwanis Minstrel Band was under the direction of Paul Yates. After intermission came a special dance by the Harlem Harlequins; a number, "The Singing Boot Black," by Norman Wright and Raymond Winchester; a dance by "Puss" MacNutt, and then followed the side-splitting one-act farce, "The Coconut Millionaire."

The proceeds from the sale of seats and candy will be in the vicinity of $200.

Just before the curtain went up the troupe received the following message from President R. H. Lockward, and Mrs. Lockward:

"We are with you in spirit tonight. Best wishes for a successful entertainment."

HORSE SWALLOWED UP IN QUICKSAND

Buried to its ears in quicksand, a horse owned by Arch. Grant, farmer, Shelburne Road, was found dead a few days ago in the pasture of John Balser. It is possible that no trace of the animal would have been found at all had not Mr. Grant wanted to drive to town and went to look for it. It was not quite dead when found but it died a few minutes after it had been pulled out of the hole.

The existence of quicksands in this vicinity was unthought of. The pasture has been used for that purpose for years. Mr. Grant, the owner of the animal, is a returned soldier in poor health. The loss to him is a heavy one, especially at this time of the year, but friends are making up a purse for him to enable him to buy another.

TELLING THE TRUTH

Referring to a deceased citizen as one who is mourned by the entire community when he is dead—that he will only be missed by the poker circle—$10.30. ## Forgot to Pay Hotel Bill - - - Brought Back

Chief of Police Fred Thibault received a complaint yesterday morning from the Windsor Hotel that two women had left, forgetting to pay their hotel bill. He immediately got in touch with Constable R. Snow, of the R. C. M. P., who set out in search of them, picked them up in Annapolis, brought them to Digby where the bill was paid and they were released. It is alleged that there were four in the party—two men and two women—but warrants were only issued for the women. Only one man and two women returned to Digby with the officers yesterday morning. From what information the Courier is able to glean, they were taking orders for snap shot enlargements.

We have also learned from other sources that the "enlargement racket" is going pretty strong in this vicinity. The agents call at your door, get some prize snap shots you want enlarged, take it away with them and tell you that the price of the enlargement will be $1.00—which you pay. A binding contract, read over hurriedly, is signed. When the enlargement is delivered you find you have to pay $4.00 and not $1.00; the extra $3.00 is for a cheap frame worth half a dollar or so, but, when you signed the contract, you signed an agreement to take the enlargement with the frame. Although you did not notice it at the time, the $1.00 you paid was just a deposit, and unless you come across with the other $3.00 you lose your deposit, and the original picture you wanted enlarged.

Ratepayers Vote 51-18 in Favor of Fire Truck

At a meeting of the ratepayers of Digby, held in the Court House on Monday evening, the ratepayers, by a vote of 51 to 18, sanctioned the Digby Town Council to spend a sum "not to exceed $6,500 for the purpose of providing additional fire protection by the purchase of a modern fire truck, fully equipped."

The resolution, discussed at this meeting, was moved by H. A. Nichols and seconded by Fritz Dakin, and was worded as follows:

"That the town of Digby authorize the town council to expend a sum not exceeding $6,500—Five thousand and five hundred dollars in the purchase of such fire apparatus as may be decided by them."

And that debentures of the town of Digby be made and issued therefor.

And that an act of legislation be introduced authorizing the same."

Mayor Shortliffe presided over the meeting. In the absence of Town Clerk Boden, E. J. Theriault was appointed clerk for the meeting. Only those assessed for real and personal property and taxes in the town of Digby were allowed to vote.

Several citizens expressed their opinions on the matter. Mr. Tanner, representative of the LaFrance Fire Engine Company, of Canada, was given permission to speak, and gave a general description of his machine and its advantages over the present gravity system.

The engine he recommended is fully equipped, has a capacity of 100 gallons per minute with a net pressure of 120 pounds to the square inch. Mr. Tanner also gave statistics regarding water pressures at various hydrants in town. These pressures ranged from a high of 74 pounds per square inch to a low of 14 pounds per square inch.

One point which was strongly emphasized was the fact that through the purchase of such a machine with the specifications of the one described, insurance underwriters would lower the rate of insurance on annual risks by 90 cent on the $1,000.

The majority of those who spoke were of the opinion that Digby needed something better in the way of fire protection, although many appeared to feel that $6,500 was a big amount to pay. It was pointed out that the resolution was to spend a sum "not to exceed $6,500," and that the majority could control their own expenditure as to the type of machine they would purchase.

Among those to speak was Fire Chief Harry Hersey. He said the boys were ready, and willing to become out-and-fight any fire when called upon at any hour of the day or night, they would leave church or any of their duties in order to protect any of our citizens from the fire menace, but he said, what we have to work with would be next to useless in a big fire. He referred to the present truck as "that there animal."

Captain Amos Potter

The funeral of the late Capt. Amos Potter, a former well known resident of Annapolis Royal, took place on Wednesday afternoon of last week, at Woodlawn cemetery. Annapolis after the remains arrived from Saint John, where the demise had occurred at the General Hospital, on Monday. The service was conducted by Rev. A. J. Prosser, with F. M. Daniels, L. Oliver, P. Vance and F. J. Miller acting as pall bearers. Capt. Potter was born in Clementsport, 81 years ago, and for many years was commander on the Bay service, being one of the most popular captains of his time. He was also associated in Annapolis in business with his brother, the late Edwin Potter, but later made his home in Saint John. Captain Potter's first wife was Mrs. Edna Hoyt, of Lequille, who passed away in 1891. He afterwards married Miss Ella Carno, of Saint John, who, with two sons, survives him. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. Hingham, in the United States, and a brother, Horatio, in Clementsport.

John Stoddart, of Lawrencetown, was in town on Wednesday.

Mrs. David Daley is visiting relatives and friends in Boston.

Richard Lynch is attending the school closing at Rothesay, N. B.

Mrs. Amasa Eldridge, Sandy Cove, was a visitor to Digby on Wednesday.

An Annapolis Valley Association has been formed in Boston. Eligible for membership are all those who formerly belonged in that section of Nova Scotia from Windsor to Digby. Some fifty former residents of the Valley, gathered at the Hotel Bradford on Thursday last for a banquet and "get-together."

WHIZZING TRAINS

A speeding passenger train used to be a loud noise and a big wind. Now it is a Zephyr. That is the name of the latest streamlined speed train which whizzed more than a thousand miles from Denver to Chicago in thirteen hours, making very little noise and, like the performer in the trapeze song, moving through the air with the greatest of ease.

Trains like that will soon be flitting around the country in all directions, giving such service as has not been dreamed of until recently except on airplanes. And they will have some advantages over the planes—more room and more comfort.

Much preparation will be necessary, though, besides merely building the trains, before their use can become general. Grade crossings must be abolished or greatly reduced in number. Safety devices of all sorts must be multiplied. Grades must be flattened and curves straightened and rails strengthened and fastened more firmly to the road bed. Better bridges must be built.

All this might bring a wave of new construction stimulating business as much as the first big railroad building era did, more than half a century ago. Such great things might come of a little automobile streamlining.

BETTER HISTORY

History will be easier, pleasanter and more profitable to learn hereafter, if John H. Thompson, editor and short story writer of Torrington, Connecticut, has his way. Addressing a state group of New England history teachers, he condemns the lack of human interest in many of the history text books, and the dates with which they are cluttered. A time will come, he predicts, when American history texts will contain not more than four dates—1492, 1776, 1861 and 1913. The rest will be relegated to the index or discarded altogether.

"But dates are pegs on which to hang events," some one will say. Mr. Thompson's answer is that the Bible, "the greatest history ever written," hasn't any dates.

"A youthful mind bewildered by a jumble of dates," he says, "isn't fertile ground in which to sow the seeds of information as to causes and effects, and peoples and their times. I would rather have a vivid picture of Abraham Lincoln as a real, living, breathing man of high ideals, a man worthy of emulation, than to have him remembered the date when the little of Chickamauga was fought."

So would the youngster—any youngster. Only so can history, the record of man's achievements, be made to live. And little by little, writers and teachers imbued with the new idea will get it done.

ANNUAL INDIAN FETE WILL OPEN IN DIGBY

Scenes of 300 years ago will be re-enacted throughout this district on Tuesday, July 31st, when the annual Indian carnival and water sports take place. Redskins from all parts of the section will compete in the unique fete, which yearly draws thousands of spectators. The Indian carnival is one of the outstanding tourist attractions of the Nova Scotia summer.

The fete opens at 10 in the morning when Champlain's ship anchors off the Pines, in this town, where the Premier and other notables, the mayors of the various towns and the committee men embark and mingle with the "early explorers" in costume, for a sail up the Annapolis Basin, followed by Indians in full regalia, in canoes.

The pageantry gets into full swing at 11.15 a. m. when the party descends to the Champlain's habitation at Lower Grandville, and upon greeting by the Indians there, a pipe of peace is smoked. Miss Daisy Foster will then present a group of players in "Neptune's Theatre," old-fashioned British drama.

The Order of Good Cheer, in Annapolis Royal, in costume, will serve lunch to the official party at noon, with the Indians in costume forming a background.

At 1 p. m., the official party re-embarcs on Champlain's ship and sails into Annapolis Royal, where a landing is made for inspection of the old Fort. The main gates of Fort Anne, closed 150 years ago, are to be officially re-opened, and the corner stone of the Memorial Gates to L. M. Fortier, is to be laid.

At 2.30 p. m., the gala Indian carnival is slated, with low rolling, canoe races, and similar sports. Land sports will start at 3 p. m., with an exhibition of Indian habits in a Micmac village. At 7 p. m. there will be a band concert and Indian singing and at 8 o'clock a monster historical pageant staged by Miss Daisy Foster.

The day's events will come to a close at 10 o'clock, with crowning of the "white girl" selected as the Micmac princess, the honors being performed by an aged Indian, with his committee. There will be a presentation to her, and a great bon fire and sing-song.

The sports will all take place at Deep Brook.

Coppers

Having need of some small change the mistress of the house stepped to the top of the back stairs.

"Bessie," she said to the maid below, "have you any coppers down there?"

"Yes'm—two," faltered Bessie; "but they're my cousins, please m'm."

WHEN A MAN GOES FISHING

Above all he is looking for solitude. He wants quietness for his nerves, he wants a bit of climbing for his heart and legs, he wants fresh air for his lungs, he requires no papers or magazines to try his eyes. He wants to go somewhere where he can dash himself with fly dope and no one will have any remark to make about the smell of it or to make fun of his appearance. He wants to go somewhere where he can throw himself on his cot without having to take off his boots, where nobody has anything to say about whether his shoes have been wiped or not.

Occasionally in dry official documents there is a touch of humor. An applicant for a civil service position in filling out his application form came to the question: "Length of residence in Canada." His answer was "thirty by forty feet."

"How is your boy Josh doing in the College of Agriculture?" "Fine," answered the farmer. "Showing profound knowledge of soils and fertilizers."

"I couldn't say as to that. But he has taken several prizes for oratory."

Temperance Table Talks

By UNCLE JOHN

HE CAN'T COME HERE—NO SIR!

Another place where the drinker is "taboo." And where do you suppose it is this time? The man who drinks to intoxication has long ago been declared unfit for decent society. He has been driven away from handling the machinery of our great industries, away from our railway trains, out of our life insurance offices, away from the wheel of the motor car. But would you believe it?—there is no longer a place for him even in the prison. No, sir—when he comes to prison he must come sober. The superintendent of a prison in a leading Maritime city just a few weeks ago refused to take a prisoner consigned to his care for terms until he sobered up. He would not have him around his prison house.

And of course the superintendent was right, as he was allowed his rights. The prisoner was kept in custody elsewhere until he was sober enough to go to prison, where, willy-nilly, he will be a total abstainer during the whole time of his imprisonment. Maybe he has already learned his lesson and from this time on will be a sober man. I wonder if by this time he sees the sordidness of drinking. And I wonder, too, if other chaps who are drinking but not getting drunk, see it. I wonder if that moderate drinker, who, if he were downright honest with himself, would admit that he is fast losing his self-control—I wonder if he sees it. And will he stop before that deadly habit-forming, narcotic fastens him in its coils, preparing him for the day when, resistant to his own will, he topples over not decent enough to be received into a prison-house.

And that man behind the bar, whether he sells a glass of liquor or bottles of it—does he realize that he is master or agent of a business that needs only one way? And that master of a brewery or a distillery—does he see that he is really making, not simply liquor but men in different stages of unfitness for a prison? And that respectable shareholder in the distillery, does he see that he can make his money only by making men and boys unfit even for a prison? That was a worthwhile lesson you taught the world the other day, Mr. Superintendent, when you refused to accept a prisoner because he was spoiled with drink.

Do you ever stop to think?

EDSON C. WAITE

Business has been in somewhat of a chaotic state for some time, due to a great deal to the fact that politics has seemed to take the place of business as our main industry, leaving business up in the air and not knowing which way to turn.

The different political parties are split up in a most complicated fashion and it is exceedingly difficult at this time to recall the numerous and finely divided factions.

Political fluctuations are as capricious as a hill breeze, but in spite of the harm the politicians have done to business, the indications at present point to a revival of trade, which may be of widespread nature, provided, of course, that the politicians will give business a chance.

On account of conditions brought on mostly by political agitation, most people are living as cheaply as possible, not knowing where their next meal is coming from.

Many manufacturers are working short handed. Many merchants are curtailing in every way. Many people are out of a job, and much of this is caused by too much attention being given to inventing ways to increase taxes and hot air talks when all such time should be given to the developing business, increasing export trade and bringing conditions back to normal.

Again may I say, what we need is less politics in business and more business in politics.

THE ROYAL VICTORIAN NURSES

(Fred Williams)

In March, 1897, a public meeting in the Parliament Building at Ottawa endorsed the proposal of the Countess of Aberdeen that there should be formed an organization of nurses to commemorate Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee. Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave the suggestion his most hearty approval and it was upon his motion that the meeting resolved that the suggestion should become a reality. The Victorian Order of Nurses was born. A national fund, begun with a substantial donation from Lord Strathcona, was created, and Lady Aberdeen was elected the first president. Application was made to Queen Victoria for a royal charter and this was granted May 19, 1898. At the same time permission was given to the Victorian nurses in Canada to wear badges similar to those worn by the Queen's Jubilee Nurses in Great Britain. Miss Charlotte McLeod, a New Brunswick woman, who had had long experience in the United States, was brought back to Canada as superintendent and the work was under way.

Few remember today the part played by the Victorian Nurses in the rush to Yukon. An expedition came in to QUANA for nurses. At once four Victorian nurses—the Misses Powell (in charge), Scott, Payson and Hanna—were equipped and went in with the military expedition. Their names live in the nursing history of the north as that of Jeanne Mance lives in Montreal. Lieut. Col. Evans, who commanded the Yukon field force, and the great Sam Steele both paid tribute to the V. O. nurses. A few years later came the South African war, and Royal Victorian nurses went with the Canadians. Since then in peace and in war, particularly in war with Germany, the R. V. O. N. have done their work efficiently, and they have earned the respect of all citizens from the wife of the governor-general to the mother in the humblest home in the isolated distances of our great Dominion. Lady Aberdeen's suggestion has brought forth fruit a million fold.

DID YOU KNOW THIS?

(Winnipeg Tribune)

It is astonishing to discover sometimes how little one knows of one's own country. This comment is inspired by a perusal of a few issues of an interesting little news-letter put out periodically by the Government Information Bureau. From recent numbers the following interesting and curious bits of news have been gleaned.

Quakers refer grandiloquently to the celebrated "3,000 miles of undefended frontier" between Canada and the United States. As a matter of actual fact that frontier is 5,300 miles long.

It is generally conceded that Canada lies north of the United States. But there are ten states of the United States wholly north of Canada, most southerly parts, and three-quarters of Canada's total population is domiciled below the famous "parallel."

Although Canada ranks first in the world in per capita production of wheat, she is only thirteenth in per capita consumption.

No fewer than 33,000,000 Canadian trees were planted in Great Britain between 1920 and 1932, most of them having come from British Columbia.

Despite the belief that Canadian women wear nothing but silk stockings, no less than 22,000,000 pairs of cotton, woolen and wool and cotton stockings were made here in 1932.

The first wheat raised in North America was grown at Arnapolis Royal, in 1605.

Despite our "frozen north" reputation, Canada produced over 35,000,000 pounds of tobacco in 1933. In 1932 the figure was more than 33 per cent higher, the production for that year being 48,000,000 pounds.

Canada is the largest tobacco growing country in the Empire.

Canada sustains a loss of $10,000,000 a year on the average, through forest fires, eighty-five per cent are due to human agencies and more than half of pure carelessness.

The foregoing are but a few of scores of interesting facts which may be gleaned from the news-letter issued from time to time by the Dominion government's information bureau.

Digby's Scallop Fishing Fleet Great Increase in Ten Years

The importance of the scallop fishing industry to Nova Scotia and to Digby County in particular is emphasized by a report from the Canadian Bureau of Fisheries. This report on the scallop fishing industry of Nova Scotia and South Western New Brunswick appeared in several Marine newspapers recently, and goes to prove that Digby is the base of this branch of the fishing industry in the Maritimes, if not in all Canada.

During March of this year 10,722 barrels of scallops were landed in Nova Scotia and south western New Brunswick, of this number 5,122 were landed by Digby County fishermen. In other words, practically one half of the catch was landed by Digby County fishermen. There are some thirty-five boats operating out of Digby County ports, most of them out of Digby.

Scalloping is more or less in its infancy in Western Nova Scotia. It was a little more than ten years ago when scallop beds were first discovered near Digby. Less than ten years ago the May catch comprised of one lone boat, but from that time on the industry grew until it ranked amongst the foremost of Western Nova Scotia. The fleet has been much larger than the present fleet, but the May catch of 1934 was the highest since 1923.

Like everything else, scalloping was hit by the depression. Prices dropped, and the size of the fleet dwindled. At the opening of the 1932-33 season the industry started its comeback.

In those years these shell fish were found to be a little not much, but nevertheless a lot. The high value of the American dollar had something to do with the renewed activity in scalloping then—most of the Digby scallops and their way to the American markets, and with the American dollar away above par, it was not an unusual occurrence for scallop boat skippers to pay for their gas and oil out of their exchange money.

The American dollar, however, hasn't been an important factor this year, but scallops have been plentiful—there have been days when the Digby fleet has landed 200 barrels—and the weather, although against the fishermen in many respects, has been just bad enough to keep the price up.

Good weather is essential for scallop draggers. When weather conditions are against the Digby scallopers, prices are bound to fall, for the Digby catch has a big influence on the market.

Scalloping is not the safest business in the world. The Digby fleet has seen many accidents, some of them fatal. Others have been maintained for a time, but unfortunately have been less serious, but like all who glean their living from the sea, the scallopers are a fearless crowd, and carry on in spite of everything. Capt. John W. Hayden, of Digby, one of the pioneers of the industry, was one of the first victims he lost an arm while dragging in the Digby Basin. Capt. Hayden and Capt. Roland Wornell were the first to make a business of dragging scallops, and their boat comprised the first Digby scallop fleet.

Most of the accidents have occurred while men were working with drags and machinery. Your correspondent cannot recall an incident where a man has been drowned while scallop fishing, but men have become caught in the drags and cables and carried down almost unbelievable depths below the ocean's surface; others like Capt. Hayden have become maimed by their limbs being entangled and crushed by the gear used in the dangerous occupation.

The scallopers, however, do not consider their lot any more hazardous than that of any man who makes his living by gathering the harvest of the sea, and in spite of dangers, the Digby scallopers consider the risk of their lives as part of the day's work, which must be done in order to earn their daily bread.

More successful than usual, and for that reason the publicly given large catches attracts outsiders. They do not want to "hog" it all, but they feel that scallops cannot last forever, and the more boats there are dragging the scallop beds, the sooner they are going to be dragged out.

But, to get back to Digby County's catch of 5,122 barrels during the month of March, valued at approximately $20,000. It is almost impossible to picture how many scallops such a catch represents, for, unlike other shell fish, only a small portion of the scallop—the muscle which opens and closes the shell—is eaten. The rest is discarded and 5,122 barrels of scallops represents 51,222 barrels of scallop muscles, only!

A few years ago there was a small industry here in the grinding of scallop shells for chicken feed. This, however, has been discontinued. The shells are of no commercial value, and those that are not disposed of by dumping them over the side of the boat, are just for ballast in wharves, or just "dumped" anywhere.

Some artistically-minded person, however, has found a novel use for a few of them. Souvenir typical of Digby, with a little scene painted in colors or in silhouette, are on sale in Digby novelty stores, and are quite in demand for summer tourists. A Digby merchant uses them as an advertising medium. His advertisement is hand-lettered on the inside of the shells which are distributed to the summer hotels and used as ash trays by the guests. He says he finds it one of the best advertising mediums he has ever used, and has often had tourists call at his store for some of these unique ash trays to take back to his friends in the United States.

FASCINATION IN PLACE NAMES

Is there any region where there is as much fascination in place names as in the Maritimes? Indian, French, Scotch and English have contributed their share of names rich in national and historic lore. How musical and charming are many of these names familiar in childhood. Halifax, named after the President of the Lords of Trade and Plantations, and to the first English settlers a reminder of the old home, Charlottesville, named in honor of Queen Charlotte, consort of King George III. Saint John, named after the day on which it was discovered by DeMonts. (June 24, 1604) and Annapolis Royal, named after the reigning sovereign, Queen Anne—the oldest town in America north of Florida.

Dear to its sons and daughters scattered throughout the world is the name Capt. Breton, oldest name on the North American continent. The name was given by the fishermen who visited its shores from the continent of Europe in memory of their homeland.

The original inhabitants of the land the Micmac Indians, have left a heritage of beautiful and musical names to all the peoples that follow them.

The Scotch brought to Cape Breton many names dear to them in the Highlands. Loch Lomond, Inverness, Glenelg, Belair, Lochaber Lake, Strathgairn, Siltirring and Craigmore, to mention a few.

English names are abundant. Amherst, named after one of the conquerors of Louisbourg; Barrington, named after Viscount Barrington; Digby, named after Admiral Digby; Bedford, named after the Secretary of State when Halifax was founded; Dartmouth, after the Earl of Dartmouth, named for the father of Queen Victoria; Sydney, named after Lord Sydney, a member of the British cabinet.

Many other meaningful, historic and interesting place names abound in our land. Their very mention brings to the mind "fond recollections." Perhaps it is not too much to say that the "Provinces by the Sea" are as rich in such names as any region in the world.—The Maritimer.

A Fishing Story With a Moral

Here's a little story about, some youthful anglers—and some who weren't so youthful—and the moral which goes with it.

One nice summer day a federal fisheries research worker came upon a couple of boys fishing for trout in one of the Maritime Provinces. He stopped to look at their catch. They'd been having pretty fair luck. Between them, they had taken 51 "trout," and naturally, they were young youngsters. On another occasion, as he went about the particular piece of research on which he was engaged at the time, the scientist chanced upon four other young anglers who had caught 64 fish. On still another day, at still another stream, he happened upon three grown-ups and a lad who had been having pretty good luck, too. This party had landed 70 fish.

But what the scientist had not noted was that of the 185 "trout" taken by the three groups of fishermen 191 weren't trout at all but little salmon—young salmon at those early stages of development when they are known technically as parr and smolt. None of the anglers knew that these fish weren't trout. They didn't know they were catching and killing them by were doing harm to the salmon fishery upon which so many commercial fishermen depend for much of their livelihood. Innocently but nevertheless certainly, they were cutting down to some extent the stock which must be counted on to maintain the salmon supply for the future. They were innocently breaking the law, too, for the Fisheries Act forbids the capture of "salmon" fry, parr and smolt.

One or two cases of this kind wouldn't make much difference, but there are a good many of them every year. In the aggregate, the number of smolt and parr landed by anglers not fully acquainted with the different species of fish, and believing their catches to be Speckled Trout, is probably large and their capture means that future breeding stocks of one of Canada's most valuable fish are reduced by so much. The fact that the damage is done quite innocently in most cases—do, not lessen its effect.

There are several points which might well be emphasized for the future, especially by the same societies, school teachers whose pupils live in the country or spend the summer holidays in the country, and by everybody interested in proper conservation of Canadian fisheries, and here are some of these points:

To catch and kill smolt and parr is to do damage to one of Canada's valuable fishery resources, and to jeopardize the interests of commercial fishermen, sportsmen's guides, etc., who depend upon a salmon fishery for livelihood. And it is against the law to do it, too.

If smolt or parr are caught by accident, the hook should be removed carefully and the fish returned at once to the water. Investigation has indicated that if a young fish is handled gently, and care is taken in removing the hook from the mouth or gill, it will recover quite quickly if returned promptly to the water after its trip ashore.

How To Know Them

But how is one to be sure that the captured fish is a salmon smolt, parr or speckled trout? Sometimes it is quite too easy. Generally, however, identification can be made without a great deal of difficulty. Smolt are more silvery in colour than the trout, the vermillion spots are less vivid, and the body is longer in proportion to depth than the body of the other fish. The differences between salmon parr and small trout may be less pronounced but even at that early stage in its life the parr is rather more silvery than the trout, so far as size goes, the smolt usually run from five to seven inches and the parr from two to five inches.

And nobody should forget that it is important from the standpoint of as well as from the standpoint of conservation of the salmon fishery, that the angler, whether youthful or grown-up—should return every smolt or parr which he happens to land.

THE RISEN LORD AND THE GREAT COMMISSION

Golden Text:—"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you:"

and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—Matthew 28:18, 20.

Lesson Passage:—Matt. 28:1-10, 16-20.

Beauty they thought was dead, was dead that day. They sealed the Master in his new-wrought tomb. And wondered that along the dusty way White lilies of delight were all in bloom.

Dear Christ, so long ago, so long ago, And men have dreamed again that gladness dies, Chanted her requiem and laid her low And turned to meet the smiling of her eyes.

Devotion, I. The first disciples of Jesus were all men, but women were last at his Cross and earliest at his tomb. It was his own mother, Mary, who had the glad faith of the Maginificat, and who protected his life during the flight into Egypt, and who during his visit to the temple at the age of twelve, and throughout his public ministry, never lost her love for him. Women ministered to the disciple band, and women offered Jesus a drug to deaden his pain when he was upon the cross. On the resurrection morning Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to the sepulchre. They did not anticipate his resurrection, but they wanted to see where he was buried and weep anew at his tomb. Fitting is it, therefore, that the first appearance of the risen Christ was to two devoted women. Throughout the Christian centuries more women have been faithful disciples of Christ than men. This is but natural as in some ways Christ has done more for women than for men. A constant stream of women in pre-Christian times and in non-Christian lands with the position of women in Christian lands today, is a convincing proof of the debt of gratitude women owe to Christ.

The Risen Christ, 27. Admittedly there are many details concerning the resurrection which we may never know, but there can be no doubt about the fact that something happened which completely transformed the attitude of the disciples and other followers of Christ from black despair to confident hope. The disciples did not yet expect a resurrection, and yet they spent the remainder of their lives telling of the power of Christ's resurrection. It made them sure that in the future Christ would end in a glorious defeat, but that the Cross was the beginning of an age-long and world-wide victory. Scientists have explored all the physical conditions of the resurrection, but no one has been able to explain the power Christ has exerted in the world. With all other great teachers the centuries reveal a diminishing power, whereas in regard to Christ the centuries show an increasing power. The changed mood of the disciples, New Testament in the Christian Church, the consciousness of Christ's presence experienced by his followers to this very day, are all indications and proofs of the fact that something happened, and that the tomb of Joseph was not the end of the life of Christ. Because he lives we may live also.

"All Hail," "Fear Not," 9, 10. The lessons for the first two Sundays of the month of June deal with the agony in the Garden of Gethsemane and Christ's death upon the Cross. There was almost-unrelieved tragedy and gloom in these two narratives. In this story of the risen Christ there is a note of triumph. The Master is no longer uttering a quotation from the Psalms about being forsaken of God. He meets his friends saying, "All Hail." His second word is "Fear Not." And he is still thinking of others as he sends forth his disciples to meet him in Galilee. This is the mood of the hymn which is so popular, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." He had promised to his disciples abiding joy and his victorious spirit has made this joy a reality to his followers. A New Testament writer said that Christ could not be hidden of death. The historical fact is that he has not been bound or limited by death. Only through his resurrection did his world wide conquest become possible.

Faith and Doubt, 16, 17. There have been many people who have been hesitant to believe in resurrection. It is such a stupendous miracle. Because of intellectual difficulties some have tended to accuse themselves of doubt and infidelity. It is a comforting assurance to know that when the eleven disciples went into Galilee where Jesus had appointed a meeting place, some of the disciples believed and some doubted. In time they all came to believe without any question whatever, but for a time some actually doubted, even though Christ appeared to them. It may be that for some of us our faith will at first be timid and uncertain. There is no reason, however, that we should remain in any twilight faith. So many people have had an experience of direct contact with the spirit of the living Christ that the fellowship is not the privilege of a restricted few; it is the rightful heritage of every Christian. The impact of Christianity upon the world was not made by doubting disciples, but by disciples of vigorous, confident faith. Pentecost happened when the disciples were filled with the spirit of the risen Christ.

Missions, 18-20. The boundary line of Christian missions has been changed. There is no longer any distinctive difference between home and foreign missions. Sin separates people from God and their fellow men in so-called Christian lands as well as in pagan lands. Missionary effort is necessary in Canada as well as in China. Probably great cities in Christian lands are as needy missionary areas as the heart of Africa. In fact civilized pagans may be more degraded than untutored savages. Christ's world remains true that the field is the world and not any one country or section of humanity. Likewise the power for missionary effort remains constant. If Christ has commanded his followers to go into all the world and make disciples, he has also promised to be with his fellows to the end of time.

Questions for Discussion

1. Has the evangelization of the world been slow or rapid?
2. Why is Sunday called "the Lord's Day"?
3. Why is Christianity a missionary religion?
4. How has Christ strengthened our immortal hope?
5. How does Christ's presence become real?

Here and There
with G.R.T.

San Francisco, May 28

Motored up from Los Angeles on a short business trip. The ride along the coast route is one of the most delightful in California. The first 100 miles—Los Angeles to the old Spanish town of Santa Barbara—is along the edge of the Pacific Ocean. Santa Barbara, now the home of many Western Coast cities. Spend a few days there when visiting this part of the country. You will enjoy every minute of your stay.

Then on to San Luis Obispo with a short stop at Pismo Beach for some of its famous clams. But do not make the mistake I did. I ordered steamed clams and got them, but learned that they came from San Francisco Bay. Then the proprietor of the little restaurant fried for me one of the Pismo clams—delicious. I will stop there on my way back to Los Angeles and get a full order. These clams are the large hard-shelled variety and are dug from the sand. None under five inches are permitted to be taken from the beach. The bathing there is excellent—a safe beach with no undertow. The sand is packed so hard that you can drive your automobile along the beach for a distance of ten miles if you wish.

Through the hills to Paso de Robles is the once flourishing town of Alascadero, a community of small fruit and almond farms, promoted by an enterprising gentleman who sold these farms by the mail order method several years ago. He owned the printing plant and published a magazine in which he presented in glowing terms, along with many attractive pictures of the new town and surroundings, a story of how to provide for one's old age and live in perfect comfort and independence through the purchase of one of these almond farms.

The buyer had only to make a down payment of a few hundred dollars and easy monthly payments thereafter until the place was paid for, and by that time the trees would be in full bearing. The cultivation and growing of which would be taken care of by the company at an additional expense to the purchaser. The magazine was extensively circulated by mail throughout the entire country; possibly some of them reached Nova Scotia. Many eastern people purchased these farms and when they had completed payments and decided to move to their new California home, were terribly disappointed upon their arrival to find that the crop of nuts from their land would hardly produce enough revenue to buy birdseed for a cuckoo clock let alone providing food and clothing for the family.

Some of the would-be almond growers took their troubles to the Post Office department of the United States, which promptly issued a "fraud order" and brought the enterprising promoter to trial for using the mails to defraud. One witness, a lady from an eastern city, when asked by the prosecuting attorney if she ever received any almonds from her Alascadero farm, promptly replied, "Not a nut." The result of the trial was that the promoter received a sentence of six years in the Federal Prison, which he recently completed, and is now in Los Angeles, probably looking for some of that variety of fish of which one is said to be born every minute.

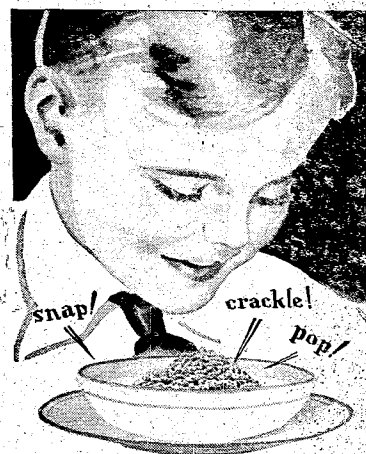

Moral—Investigate before you buy—and don't buy a farm or a pair of pants without making an inspection.

Paso de Robles, 24 miles from Los Angeles, is a splendid place to break the journey and spend the night. A quiet old town, with some good hotels and some very comfortable auto courts at reasonable prices.

One of the interesting places on this trip is the town of Salinas, in the heart of a prosperous grain and stock-growing country. Many vegetables are grown in this vicinity, especially lettuce and artichokes, are shipped in large quantities by rail and truck. Salinas is famous for its yearly rodeo (pronounced ro-day-oh), an exhibition of rough-riding, bronco busting, steer roping and all the thrills that go with these cowboy sports. Cowboys and cowgirls, too, come from all of the western states to take part in these contests. Rough stuff but a great show!

San Francisco, with its early morning fog and its noonday breezes, has the finest climate in the world if you like to be pepped up. It gives one that grand and glorious feeling with the three V's—Vim, Vigor and Vitality.

Crossing the Bay from the Oakland side by ferry one is struck with the progress that has been made in the building of the bridges that are to connect San Francisco with the mainland at Oakland on the east and Sausalito on the northeast. The latter will span the Golden Gate at a height to permit any ship in the world to pass under. The bridges are expected to be completed some time in 1937.

More steamers are anchored in the Bay and tied up at the docks in San Francisco, than I have seen for a long time. The Longshoremen and dock workers' strike is the cause.

The strikers battled the police in a bloody riot here today. Dozens of police and strikers were injured. But when the strikers felt the impact of the police clubs and heard the pounding of the hoofs of the horses of the mounted officers as they swung into action, they fled in wild disorder; but tonight all is quiet along the water front. The strike has been settled, both sides claiming the victory.

There are many steep hills in the City of San Francisco, and if you are not accustomed to driving straight up and straight down you will get some practice in gear shifting. The view from the top of some of these hills is superb, especially that from the top of Telegraph Hill, where one may look out over the harbor and the bay from the Golden Gate to the Oakland Estuary and for up into the Carmine Straits. The city has built a fine winding boulevard to the top of the hill, with plenty of parking space at the top, where you may stay as long as you like and enjoy the view to the fullest.

In the days of '49, Telegraph Hill was a signal station where lookouts kept for ships entering the Golden Gate. The news of which was made known to the people up town by hoisting and wig-wagging, or flags. At that time the water front extended up to what is now Montgomery Street, a distance of about twenty blocks. This territory was filled in by cutting down hills, and is now covered with large buildings, Montgomery Street is the "Wall Street" of San Francisco.

I was much interested in something that I saw today, at the corner of Clay and Sansome Streets, near Montgomery.

A bronze plate on one of the corner buildings carries this bit of historical information:

"The emigrant ship Mantic stood at this spot in early days and was used for a warehouse and offices, the offices being on the deck which was hoisted over the hull, with entrances cut through the side, was made into store rooms. Fire of 1851 destroyed all but the submerged hull which was later used as the foundation for the Hotel Mantic, a famous hostelry which stood until 1912."

The insurance agent asked the prospect: "Did you ever have appendicitis?"

"Well," answered the prospect, "I was operated on, but I have never been quite certain whether it was appendicitis or professional curiosity."

COOK ELECTRICALLY for LESS on a Northern Electric RANGE

The Northern Electric is designed for economy. Its minimum current consumption and our low rates bring the monthly operating cost of this master-range to an unbelievably low level. It costs less in fact than it would take to buy wood or other fuel over the same period. And this is ONLY ONE of the economies that Electrical Cooking brings. It ends food waste. Nothing is underdone or overdone. Roasts are tender, soups are perfect. No further because all their nourishment values are retained. Nothing is "cooked out" when you cook electrically. These food economies are speedily reflected in your housekeeping bills. Cook electrically in a cool, clean, comfortable kitchen for better meals prepared with far less trouble and to reduce the cost of living.

LEGISLATIVE PERSONALITIES

Hon. J. Willie Comeau, M. P. P.

(The Eastern Chronicle, New Glasgow)

The Dean of the Nova Scotia Legislature is the Hon. Joseph L. Comeau, member of the MacDonald government without portfolio, and member for Digby County. He is not the oldest member of the house by several years, and he is one of the younger, appearing members, but he was first elected to the Assembly when some of his present colleagues had not reached their teen ages. That's a way the true Frenchman has—he starts early and retains his youth. The nearest to him in point of years as a member of the Assembly did not make his bow to the Speaker until thirteen years after this fine representative of the French Acadian race.

Hon. Mr. Comeau was first elected by acclamation in 1907 at a by-election, when an uncle, the Hon. A. H. Comeau, member for Digby, was elevated to the Senate. He was re-elected in 1911, in 1916, in 1923 and in 1933. To carry a county for five elections is a sure tribute to one's popularity, but when it is noted that in 1933 he was accorded the largest majority ever given a candidate in Digby County, that is a real tribute. Hon. Mr. Comeau lost one election, but when he tells of it the reader can gather that he is most proud of that election than any other. In the wartime election Sir Wilfred Laurier asked Mr. Comeau to represent him in that election. To do so, he resigned from the Murray government of which he was a member, and from the Provincial House, to become the Liberal candidate for the federal

MANY MINOR CHANGES AND IMPROVEMENTS

During the past few months Digby's business section has seen many changes. A building is now under construction for Reginald Weir, which will be used as an up-to-date machine shop. This structure closes up one of the last gaps in the Jew Cove section.

The building next door to the one now being built, and formerly occupied by Bent's Restaurant, has been purchased by F. K. Hayden, who is using the upper floor as a tool room. The lower floor has been remodelled for an automobile show room and is occupied by MacDonald Motors. The building, formerly a dining affair, has been fixed up and painted, and now presents a very attractive appearance.

The Ocean Gardens, Digby's well-known restaurant and tea room, has been purchased by Loran Hayden, who has changed the name of the establishment to the Scotch Inn. The interior has all been re-arranged.

Across the street from the Scotch, Eureka Cottage, one of the smaller hotels, has been converted into a very attractive restaurant and tea room.

Art's Spa, a little distance further south, which has always been one of the most attractive eating places in town, has been re-decorated, and is receiving a good share of the trade.

Art's Book Shop and a tea room, given a coat of paint and the interior brightened up.

Miss Gertrude Oliver is occupying the little store around the corner of Water and Sydney Street as a millinery shop and laundry.

Some little time ago a partition was built through Baxter's Barber Shop, and the building divided into two stores. George Ryan is occupying the other half as a grocery store. The Bijou Theatre, which has been thoroughly remodelled, presents an altogether different appearance.

A small store has been built on the site of the old Winfield building, on the corner of Prince William and Birch Streets, which will be occupied by Jack Rosenthal.

The old Goucher place, so called in the south end, has been purchased by Frank K. Hayden, who has completely re-modelled it, providing a kitchen, dining room and a tea room and living quarters down stairs, which he will occupy himself.

BAND NOTES

The two crack organizations of Digby—the Fiddlers and the Crows—made a fine showing in the decoration services parade last Sunday afternoon. The music was fine and the marching very good but will be improved with practice.

George Burzyński, an expert bandman and bandmaster, is a valuable acquisition to the ranks of the Civic Band. His playing was an important factor in the last parade, and Ralph Warrington, of Wolfville, always a welcome addition to the band, gave valuable help to the trombone section.

Tuesday evening ten Digby bandmen attended the concert at Weymouth, given by the excellent 6th Divisional Signals Band, of Weymouth, and enjoyed a splendid performance, though unfortunately playfully admonished was given to the boys through the courtesy of the Weymouth management—a thoughtful act of good fellow ship which the Digby members appreciate and hope for an opportunity to reciprocate.

Local people and summer visitors will be glad to learn that the Cherry Festival at Bear River will be held this summer. After people July 13th, or two, it will take place July 13th, under the auspices of the Legion. The Digby Civic Band has been engaged for the morning parade and an afternoon concert.

Another open air concert by the Band is proposed for Thursday evening, June 21, at 7.30, in the pavilion. These concerts must be paid for entirely by the collection taken, and it is hoped that quarters and dimes will take the place of decorative big nickels that some people seem to think sufficient.

Word has been received from Boston announcing the death of Charles Harvey, a salesman of that city, who was killed in an automobile accident at Portland, Maine. He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Edythe Bellevue, R. N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bellevue, of Bellevue's Cove.

Still hale and hearty, besides being able to attend to some of her household duties, Mrs. Eude Comeau, of Cape St. Mary, is now in the hundredth year of her age, and if her life is spared she will celebrate her centennial in December of this year.

At St. Mary's Church, Church Point, Tuesday morning, Rev. Father Dignan, parish priest, united in marriage Miss Zita Saulnier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valere Saulnier, of Little Brook, and Theodore Dugas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Georges Dugas, of Grosses Coques.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of beige crepe with veil and apple blossoms and carrying a white prayer book. Miss Bernadette Dugas, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, while Adolphe Saulnier, brother of the bride, attended the groom. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home. The happy couple left on a trip to Digby, and in the evening a reception was given them at Grosses Coques, at the home of the groom, where a large number of relatives and friends assembled. Mr. and Mrs. Dugas were the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts. They will make their home in Church Point.

Marriages

Dugas-Saulnier

At St. Mary's Church, Church Point, Tuesday morning, Rev. Father Dignan, parish priest, united in marriage Miss Zita Saulnier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valere Saulnier, of Little Brook, and Theodore Dugas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Georges Dugas, of Grosses Coques.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY

A rally of the Young People's Societies of the Annapolis West Presbytery of the United Church, was held in the hall at Centerville, on Wednesday evening.

A devotional service was conducted by members of the Centerville Society, and the meeting was presided over by George Dugas, Weymouth.

The special speaker of the evening was Rev. D. T. I. Forsythe, of Montreal, Field Secretary, who spoke very interestingly and inspiringly on the subject, "Being Alive," basing his talk on the need of our aliveness to Nature, Literature, Others and God.

Mr. Tingley tendered his resignation as President of the Annapolis West Presbytery as he is leaving in the near future for another part of the province. Expressions of appreciation of his work as President for the past two years were made, and regret at his leaving expressed, by Rev. D. T. I. Forsythe, of Montreal, and Rev. W. H. Forsyth, of Sandy Cove.

Representatives were present from the societies in Bear River, Weymouth, Sandy Cove and Centerville. A meeting of the Executive was held immediately after the Rally.

Capt. Bernard N. Melanson, of Gilbert's Cove, is buying up large quantities of pulp wood along the St. Mary's Bay shore, from Barton to Yarmouth. He is also having a lot of hardwood staves sawn at Ben Comeau's mill, at Meteghan Station, for export to the West Indies, where they are made into molasses hogsheads.

F. G. J. COMEAU TO ADDRESS CONGRESS

F. G. J. Comeau, retired D. A. R. official, left Halifax on Wednesday for Meteghan, where he is to be one of the chief speakers before the regional congress of "La Société d'Acadie," named after de Saint-Jovite, on Sunday. Dr. J. Emile LeBlanc, of West-Union, second vice-president of the society, will preside, and other speakers will include Rev. Legesley, superior of St. Anne's College; Rev. Father Dumont, of Saint-Jovite; and Rev. Father Sauré, of Sauré's Island, Yarmouth County.

BAND NOTES

The band acknowledges, with high appreciation, a handsome gift from Miss Elizabeth MacGregor. It consists of a beautiful and valuable band-embroidered centrepiece, with cushion top to match. The work is most skilfully done in dainty colors, and will be highly prized by its ultimate owner. Arrangements for its sale will be announced later.

This band needs a Ladies' Auxiliary. Their opinions and advice on many matters would be helpful in various ways, and they could be a wonderful aid in devising means of raising money for uniforms and the many other smaller necessities. The ladies are noted for their enthusiasm in the support of musical organizations everywhere, and the fact that they might take in bands of girls here would be an almost certain guarantee that a really first-class band would become a permanently successful fixture, and a most beneficial influence in the community.

New band uniforms caps of the class "Souza Pattern"—navy blue with red and gold trimmings, have been ordered and are expected to be in use before July 1st, having been shipped from the factory yesterday. To complete the uniform a military salute to match is required, and will be considered later. Each player will buy his own cap, but it is anticipated that money for the caps will be raised by other means.

The band is indebted to H. J. Campbell, of the Power Board, for the donation of several electric lamps to replace those broken or mysteriously missing.

Claim Against Denton Estate is Disallowed

In a probate hearing before Judge Sangster, acting County Court Judge and Judge of Probate, on Tuesday, the claim of Mrs. Jessie Frude, wife of Charles Frude, for $602 against the estate of the late William H. Denton, was disallowed. E. J. Threlkeld was the solicitor for the administrators of the estate, and F. Jones, E. C. for the claimant.

Funds available from the estate were $603. Mrs. Frude's claim for $602 was for caring for the deceased during his last illness. As Mrs. Frude and her husband had both received sums of money, and the property of the late Mr. Denton had been divided over to them, the court felt that they had been sufficiently reimbursed.

The history of the Denton estate is unique in many ways. Mr. Denton, who was in his 93rd year at the time of his death in 1932, had two years previously divided most of his cash assets among his heirs and charities. Among the beneficiaries were the Digby General Hospital and the Halifax School for the Blind. After the division was made by the court, a cash balance of approximately $1800 in the Bank of Nova Scotia, in Digby, remained.

About the same time he made arrangements with Mr. and Mrs. Frude to care for him during the rest of his life, paying them a large sum in cash and property bonds.

At the time of his death he had a balance of some $700 in the Bank of Nova Scotia; he had also left a paper with the manager expressing his wish that $100 be paid to the Baptist church, Digby; $100 be put aside for the upkeep of his lot in the cemetery; that his funeral expenses be provided for, and that the balance be turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Frude. The document, however, was not witnessed, and as a consequence, his wishes as set down on that paper will not be carried out.

The moral of this case seems to be that all documents should be properly drawn up and witnessed.

Miss Allen Perry, accompanied by Mrs. Linwood Perry and son Allen, have been spending a few days in town with Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Collins. Mrs. Perry was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Littlewood.

Mrs. Janet Shine, of West Roxbury, arrived home last week and will be spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Purdy.

Mrs. D. H. Simpson, of Lawrenceville, and daughter, Miss Helen Simpson, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sherman for the vacation season.

KIWANIS BEAR TALK ON CITIZENSHIP

On Tuesday the Kiwanis Club held its last luncheon for the season in the dining hall of the Princess Hotel. Next Tuesday, luncheon will take place in the evening at Harbor View House, Smith's Cove, when the Kiwanis Queens and the cast at the recent minstrel show will be guests.

Rev. Father Murphy was the guest speaker at Tuesday's luncheon. His subject was "Citizenship." He opened his remarks by saying that his subject was a dry one, but that citizenship was something we all had in common which affects a great deal and accomplishes much. "There is a need of an awakening of the citizens of Nova Scotia to the fact that much can be done," said Father Murphy. "In the right channel, the right citizenship makes for progress and peace; when overdrawn, it results in intense nationalism, he said, when directed to a supreme example of overdrawn citizenship."

Another guest at the luncheon was Samuel Giffey—"Singing Sam"—of Halifax, who favored the club with several songs.

AN APPEAL TO THE COUNCIL

Advertisements have appeared in the Courier during the past month stating that ALL arrears of taxes and public utilities is not to be questioned: the town is only within its rights to see that these arrears are collected as quickly as possible. Nevertheless, to insist that ALL arrears be paid by July 1st will work a hardship on the citizens who depend almost solely on the summer tourist trade, directly or indirectly.

It might be a better plan to insist that a certain percentage be paid by July 1st, and the balance be paid in installments during August and September, and that if the installments are not met before given dates during those months, the same measures respecting the advertising for sale, or the shutting off of water and electric light be taken.

In most cases these arrears would have been paid by that time, but due to conditions over which they had no control, many of Digby's citizens are unable to pay their obligations to the town. It hardly seems fair that the town should expect them to pay all arrears at once, and that measure cannot help but work hardship to the citizens.

Although not a large industry the building of small motor boats, particularly adapted for the fisheries, appears to be growing. Driving through the fishing village, along the "French Shore" of Digby County to Yarmouth, and even in the villages around Yarmouth, one sees a number of these boats under construction. Every year many fine craft are built in Digby, but this year their number seems to be greater than usual.

On Saturday last the Digby streets were given a dressing of oil by the Digby Corporation. The oil was applied by the Digby Service Station for several days. Needless to say, there were many complaints from store keepers, householders and car owners on account of the general spraying and tracking of oil over everything. But it looks very much as though the oil dressing will be worth the inconvenience caused for a day or so, as from all appearances the dust is well settled for some weeks to come.

Commencing this week the Digby Neck mails have been running on a new schedule. The mails from the Neck and Islands are delivered as usual in the morning. In the afternoon, instead of waiting for the mails to be sorted at the post office, the bus takes what mail sacks there are made up before the arrival of the train from Halifax, at the post office, then goes to the station and takes the balance of the mail for that section of the country, direct from the mail car. Previously all the D. A. R. mails for Digby Neck villages have been made up before the arrival of the train. The new schedule saves about twenty minutes each day.

SMITH'S COVE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The June meetings of the Smith's Cove Women's Institute was held in the hall on Wednesday afternoon last. Owing to illness the president, (Mrs. George Weir), was unable to attend, and the chair was taken by Miss Cecelia Thomas. Mrs. T. O. Morgan acted as secretary in the absence of Miss Irene Rice, who is also confined to her home through illness.

Business was quickly dealt with, and reports were received from members who attended the district meeting at Middleton, on the 6th of June.

At 3:30 the meeting was thrown open to the public and Inspector M. C. Foster, M. A. of Bridgewater, gave a very interesting address on "The New Curriculum." The small attendance at this meeting seemed to show lack of interest in school work. What is needed to promote better education is the co-operation of all the forces of parents, pupils and teachers. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

The September meeting will be at the home of Mrs. T. O. Morgan, with Mrs. Longworth and Miss Thomas as hostesses.

Mic-Mac Indian Carnival to be Staged End July

A big celebration in Digby on July 31st, that sounds good to everyone. At the regular luncheon of the Kiwanis Club, on Tuesday, that body decided unanimously to stand back of Rev. Father Murphy in his efforts to put over a Mic-Mac Indian carnival and Sports Days, which will be held on July 30th and July 31st—the first day in Annapolis Royal and the second day in Digby. A special meeting of the Kiwanis Club was held after which the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening, the details were gone into and committees appointed. A tentative programme was outlined. Digby will be the centre of the activities. On the morning of July 30th, a ship representing Champlain's ship of the "long ago" will leave the wharf at Annapolis Royal, for Lower Granville, carrying the Premier of the province and other prominent men; the committee and officials of the celebration. At Lower Granville, near the site of Champlain's first residence, a short memorial service will be held after which the vessel will proceed to Annapolis Royal, where a sports carnival and grand parade will be held.

Following this, a parade, with caldringuan bands, will go through the principal streets of the town, to the Pines grounds where the activities will centre. The afternoon will be devoted to water sports and in the evening the program will take place, and Mrs. Miles Evers will be crowned and awarded a trip to Boston. ## WORD ACCENTS

Speaking of "that terrible accent", which is becoming so prevalent in Canada, there is a form of it that probably deserves attention. It is the tendency to put the word accent or stress on the wrong syllable.

A columnist makes an instructive poem around several words ordinarily abused in this fashion, thus:

"Oh, Mary is a clever maid,
And pretty, too. I must confess;
But I can't love her, I'm afraid,
For she says Address of address."

And so on, with a stanza apiece for ALLY, INQUIRY, EX-PLOIT and ROMANCE, all of which should have the second syllable accented. Other common examples of such error are COMMUTE, DETAIL, DIVERSE, DETOUR, DILATE.

These examples illustrate a curious tendency, which seems to be found especially in the Middle West, to move word accents back to the first syllable, even in the case of long words.
Thus we get, incorrectly, CONdolence, instead of conDOLence; IMperfect instead of imPERfect; CONTRactor instead of con-TRACTor; IDEal instead of IDEal; INdefinite instead of in-DEFinite, and so on.

"WHISKY FACES"

Beauty is passing from the big towns to the small towns, according to Henri Gordon, Hollywood "makeup adviser." Or rather it is persisting in small towns and disappearing from large ones. Drinking is the reason he gives.

Much of the stuff in circulation, "quick grin, whisky that is too young, and poor blends," are destroying feminine complexions, he says. "Beauty and alcohol don't mix, anyway. We must get women away from the bottle." It gives them "whisky faces."

But whisky isn't the only complexion destroyer, either. He observes, as many women themselves do, that many a formerly attractive face is ruined from unwise use of cosmetics. When the drink havoc begins to show, there is a stampede to beauty shops to cover it up. That may add to the disaster, if not done expertly. Nine-tenths of the faces on Michigan Avenue and Fifth Avenue, says this expert, are just plain paint jobs. And when the paint comes off, the effect is shocking.

It isn't evident, though, that anything can be done about it.

KITCHEN YEAR FOR GIRLS

The German government, like many others, is trying to solve a serious unemployment situation, complicated by the addition of large numbers of boys and girls just completing their formal schooling. For their own sakes, they must be given interesting and helpful occupation of some sort.

The Nazi government has recently announced a "kitchen year" for girls leaving school this spring. It has issued an appeal to housewives to co-operate in what is to be voluntary arrangement on both sides. The girls are to be taken into homes and taught the foundations of housekeeping. They will receive their board and lodging, but no additional pay. Housewives are to keep their regular domestic help through this period.

After completing her "kitchen year" each girl will receive a certificate. The labor bureau promises then to place the girls in "domestic or other feminine occupations." It seems like a large promise, but doubtless the authorities expect general conditions to be sufficiently improved by another year to make good.

It will be interesting to watch the working out of this scheme.

THEY'RE

Table Talks

"COME—BE LIKE ME!"

Not long ago I heard a public speaker tell a story from his own experience. It was of a man, a neighbor of his own, in his home city. This man, whom for the sake of the story we will call John Smith, was several years his senior, when one day he offered to treat his junior to a drink of liquor. But the younger man (the speaker above-referred to) replied: "No, thank you. I am a total abstainer." John Smith looked at him with a sort of superior air.
"Say," he began, "did you ever see me drunk? Did you ever see me boozing around a rum shop? Did you ever see me stagger or be the least unsteady on my feet? Did you ever see my eye dulled, or smell ill from my breath, or hear me speak with a tongue a little thick with drink? Did you ever see me a least unfit for my day's work?" And the younger man admitted frankly that he had not. "Then be like me," said his senior, straightening himself up and beating his expanded chest. "Be a man. Have courage to take a drink and control yourself. Never will you see me the worse for its influence. I'll live and die a sober man." And of course he meant it, every word, and believed it of himself. And as men go, probably none had a better right to boast of himself in this way than had John Smith.

Fifteen years passed. The young man had in the meantime gone out into the world and mingled with all classes of men, but had maintained his total abstinence principles. One day he was visiting in his home city.
He was suddenly started by weird shrieks from the house just across the street, where, by the way, John Smith of our story, lived, whose boast of fifteen years ago the younger man had almost forgotten. "What noise is that?" he asked his homefolks. "Haven't you heard?" came the hushed reply: "that is John Smith. He has been killing himself with drink, and he is now having his spell of the delirium tremens, with all the horrors of every stage." Think of it! Fifteen years before, boasting of his self-control, declaring he would never come under the undue influence of liquor, and now dying in the delirium tremens! No wonder the younger man was shocked.
But his story, with variations, could be duplicated thousands of times.
Who that plays with drink will dare to think he is safe from its deadly mastery? "Come—be a man, and you will never drink liquor!"

ALLERGY

It is a fact you may have a running nose, or swollen spots on your skin, or that you are easily annoyed by a breath, all from the same cause. To put this fact in other words we might say that hay fever, asthma, and hives and other skin disorders are related one to the other in that they all represent a reaction which is known as allergy.

The pollen of some grasses will cause hay fever; a strawberry may bring out a crop of hives and a feather pillow be responsible for an asthmatic attack. In each case some people have a peculiar sensitivity to certain substances which have no effect upon the vast majority of persons.

When called upon to deal with such a case, the doctor assumes the role of a detective, with the hope that he may discover the particular substance or substances to which his patient is sensitive. To assist him in this, he will use certain tests.

These tests consist of rubbing into a light scratch on the arm an extract of the suspected substance. If a number of substances are under suspicion, then a series of scratches are made, one for each substance.
At the point which has been rubbed with the substance to which the person is sensitive, a wheel will appear.

In practice it is not always as simple as this because the person is, as a rule, sensitive to more than one substance, and there are so many to which he may be sensitive, that it is not easy, in many cases, for the doctor to find the culprit.

Knowing the responsible substance, it may be possible to avoid it when it is an article of food, a feather pillow, a dandruff from a horse. If, however, it is something like milk or eggs, it is difficult to eliminate them from the diet, and again, if pollens are responsible, necessity may keep a hay fever victim working in a district where these abound.

Fortunately, something may be done to overcome this sensitivity.
Through a series of injections, in proper doses, the person who is sensitive to pollens may be desensitized, provided the responsible pollens have been recognized. Tolerance to foods may be built up by gradually increasing, from the most minute amounts, such as one single drop of milk for example.

REVIEW: A COMPREHENSIVE PROGRAMME

Golden Text:—"Of his kingdom there shall be no end."—Luke 1:33.

Lesson Passage:—Micah 4:1-5.

What if I say
That Jesus Christ is Lord divine:
Yet fellow pilgrims can behold Naught of the Master's love in me.
No grace of kindly sympathy?
To call Christ Lord, but strive not To obey.
Belies the homage that with word I pay.

Matthew's Gospel

For the past six months, in the Uniform Series the Sunday School lessons have been from the Gospel of Matthew. The whole Gospel has been surveyed covering the whole life of Christ. Matthew's Gospel is topical rather than chronological. He grouped together collections of sayings and groups of similar incidents. The book becomes more vivid when we remember that Matthew himself was an eye witness of much that he described and recorded. What deep feelings he must have had as he remembered the day when Jesus called him from his tax collector's office to become a disciple! Writing years after the events he could recall the visits to Jerusalem and Capernaum and the conversation of his fellow disciples. Ont that stands out in Matthew's Gospel is the comprehensiveness of Christ's programme. The thought of the kingdom of God is stressed. The richness of truth and purpose still amazes us after nineteen centuries of Christian development. One result of six months' study of the Gospel of Matthew is surely a desire to know more of this wonderful book and the Christ of whom it tells.

A Help to Individuals

Christ has a programme for individuals. It begins with a personal relationship to Christ himself. Christ did not tell his followers what they should do in the details of their lives. He merely drew them to himself and allowed them to share his friendship. In this way they learned his truths and caught his spirit and were able to carry on his programme for the world. Many people are ready to affirm that life would have been a poor, starved experience without the companionship of Christ day by day. By the same token they are ready to declare that their thinking and their purposes have been decided and purified by comradeship with Christ. In the Gospel of Matthew we read over and over of individuals who were changed by meeting Jesus. This process is still going on. Among rich and poor, educated and illiterate, the spiritual impulse comes from some word of Christ or by an introduction to him as Leader, Teacher, Friend and Saviour. Christ spent much of his time dealing individually with people. Other teachers have put their strength into books and organizations, but Christ shared his life with his disciples and with casual strangers. His living power and leadership have been due to his first-hand contacts with the hearts of men.

A Fellowship

Jesus craved fellowship himself. He called his disciples to be with him because he needed company. By operation: great results could be achieved. During the public ministry of Jesus the disciples shared the rich fellowship which Christ offered them and learned about his program for mankind. It was difficult for them to understand all that it contained. The sheer daring and simplicity of it appalled them. Gradually, however, they came to make Christ's purposes their own, and in the sharing of a common purpose they found fellowship one with the other. After their leader was no longer with them on earth this fellowship grew. It has spread until the Christian Church is now world wide. The reason why Christians meet in societies and congregations is that they may enjoy this fellowship with one another and with Christ. When a church becomes formal the members complain that they miss a living fellowship. Many congregations are being transformed during these dark years by groups meeting for comradeship, helpful service to those in need, and a frank discussion about religion. It is in this fellowship that we become conscious of the meaning of the Christian Church. Christ has a message for individuals, but he does not expect us to stand alone. We are strengthened by fellowship with other Christians. Their strength is given to us in our weakness.

A Spiritual Kingdom

Christ based his programme upon teaching. The Roman Empire afforded a great example of international organization, but Jesus was content to love, teach and serve. He used spiritual means for making it looked like sublime folly to trust his world-wide project to a dozen men who had received only a brief training, but he knew that God's Spirit could use them and give them a wisdom higher than their own. He said: "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you." This promise was literally fulfilled. In the measure that the disciples surrendered their wills to Christ, they became the Holy Spirit, and in time the Roman Empire took second place in influence and extent to the kingdom of Christ. The same power that upheld and guided the apostles is available for us today. What Christ did for Peter and Paul he is still able to do for us. His truth has all the novelty and surprise of a fresh discovery as each generation seeks to interpret it. The unworn freshness of his life is an enduring miracle of his personality.

A World-Wide Basis

The land in which Jesus lived was a small country and his followers were insignificant people. After the baptism Jesus was in the wilderness alone dedicating himself to the service of God. From that day the Church and disciples who were pupils and helpers during his public ministry. At the most Christ touched directly only a few thousand lives. On the Day of Pentecost there was a great accession in the number of his followers. From that day the Church has grown steadily but slowly, and now approximately one-third of the people on earth have come under the influence of Christ. In the last century non-Christian nations have been learning of him on a very wide scale. Some non-Christian leaders are familiar with the New Testament and have adapted many of its truths. Through trade, science, education and missionary work it is possible for Christ's kingdom to permeate all humanity within the next hundred years. We can say with even greater confidence than the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews: "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today and forever." "Of his kingdom there shall be no end."

DESTRUCTION OF ROAD SIGNS A MENACE

The majority of summer visitors to Nova Scotia enter this province with motor cars. Being generally unfamiliar with our roads they rely greatly upon the direction signs. The safety and direction signs that have been erected on the highways. These signs warn them of the approach of sharp curves, of road intersections, schools, railroad crossings, and other features of the roadway. It is important therefore that all these signs be safeguarded. Travellers note with concern that in too many instances these road signs have been defaced or destroyed. The elimination of a "dreadful" sign is serious enough inasmuch as it may cause annoyance and delay. But the destruction of a safety sign may cause injury to someone and possibly even death.

It is probable that in the majority of cases injury to these signs is caused by thoughtless youths. Nevertheless, anyone guilty of tampering with these roadmarks should be summarily dealt with. These highways signs have been placed in position at substantial cost to the taxpayer. Their removal is often an inconvenience to native travellers more or less familiar with our roads. Their destruction is an absolute menace to visiting motorists who naturally rely on them not only for their direction but also for their personal safety.

KIWANIS ENTERTAINS GUESTS AT HARBOR VIEW

Seventy-eight persons—Digby Kiwanians, their Queens and guests, and members of the cast of the big Kiwanis Minsirel Show which was staged here recently, were present at a supper given at the Harbor View Hotel, Smith's Cove, Tuesday evening. The supper was given as an expression of thanks by the Digby Kiwanians to those who worked for the success of the show, the proceeds from which went toward the Kiwanis underprivileged children's fund.

Rev. Father Murphy, of Annapolis Royal, was the guest speaker. Father Murphy, in his address, gave a further outline of the tentative program of the Mic-Mac Indian Carnival, to be held at Digby and Annapolis Royal, on July 30 and 31. The carnival is sponsored by the Mic-Mac Indian Reservation at Bear River, the Order of Good Cheer, Annapolis Royal, and the Kiwanis Club of Digby. Father Murphy is "the power behind the movement." He asked particularly that the ladies co-operate with these bodies in making the Indian Carnival a success this year, and in years to come.

Following the supper there was dancing in the Harbor View Casino. Music was furnished by the Kiwanis Minsirel Band, a section of the Digby Civic Band.

The high school boys will hold their annual field day on the school grounds, on Monday. There will be numerous sports events in the morning—running, jumping, etc. In fact July 2nd will be a regular high school track meet. There will be a baseball game in the afternoon. We regret that we were unable to secure a copy of the programme before going to press.

Marriages

Perry-Elliott

A quiet wedding took place Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Greenwood, when their youngest daughter, Dorothy, was united in marriage to Scott Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Perry, of Fredericton. The ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Father Murphy, of Annapolis Royal, and a few relatives and friends.

Pearsons-Cornwall

The First Baptist Church, of Nashua, New Hampshire, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday evening last, when Bertha Jean Cornwall, niece of Rev. D. J. Nelly, became the bride of Vaughan Wren Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Pearson, New Sweden, Maine. The bride, who was attended by her cousin, Miss Alice Nelly, entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Rev. Mr. Nelly, who later performed the marriage ceremony, solemnizing the double ring service. Mrs. Pearson was graduated from the Nashua High School in 1930, and following the completion of her studies at Plymouth Normal College taught in the public schools at Lisbon, Maine, for two years. She is well known in Digby, having lived here a number of years with her grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Cornwall, and was a popular pupil of the Digby Academy. For several years she and her grandmother have been residing with Rev. and Mrs. Nelly at Nashua, but have spent every summer in Digby since moving to that city.

Harvey Sabine, who has been a patient in the Digby General Hospital, is convalescing at his home.

Council Meeting Held Monday Ev'g

Just what took place in full at the Council meeting on Monday evening we are not able to say. We were suddenly brought up against something which we had never seen done before in a regular meeting of a town council—and we have reported council meetings in Yarmouth, Truro, Bridport and Lunenburg, as well as municipal councils in all these counties, but never before saw a town council in a regular session, or a committee and clerk the room in order to discuss something they wanted to keep from the public. The editor himself, as the regular reporter of the Courier was otherwise engaged, reported this meeting, the first time for some years, but in speaking of the incident afterwards, he said that this was a regular stunt of the Council. We have heard members of previous councils complain because the public did not seem to take any interest in the sessions and did not attend; they took the ground—or seemed to—that the public should take a deeper interest in the town and its affairs, and that the meetings were not a success. Now quite a number do attend the meetings, and the council, after anything of vital importance comes up, goes to the council chamber and the room. That's what you'd call a paradox, isn't it?

The regular monthly meeting of the town council was called to order at 8:15 o'clock on Monday evening, with Coun. Anderson as the c. y. absent.

A representative of the Pickels Fire Engine Company was present and was given permission to address the council. He showed a number of photographs but did not go into any details.

The report of the superintendent of streets and water was read, showing that a lot of work had been done during the month. The government is to pay half the cost of oiling the street. Several new water services have been installed and the mains flushed out.

The report was received and adopted. The Clerk read the report of the Ratepayers' Meeting held on June 11, and it was referred to the fire committee, they to report back to the council.

Quite a large number of bills were read and ordered to be paid.

Coun. Anderson arrived and took his seat. The supplementary assessment roll was submitted and approved, with the exception of an assessment of Capt. William Snow, and in that case the additional amount which had been put down to him was transferred to his daughter.

The Digby Music Council asked the council to endorse the band for twelve concerts at $40 per concert, and that $200 be voted at once, in advance, to pay off necessary bills. The music council is in favor of the band, but the way our finances look, it doesn't seem very promising.

Coun. Anderson—The town is almost $1400 better off than at this time last year.

Coun. Morrell—I think we should stand back of the band, but as a debt and they need the money. If they can get this money it will help them out.

Coun. Turnbull—I don't see why the band goes in debt. They must be very optimistic. I can't run bills and trust to God to pay them.

Coun. Solows—(to Coun. Turnbull)—Would you like to see it dropped?

Coun. Turnbull—(to Coun. Solows)—I could never see where it was much of an asset to the town.

Coun. Anderson moved that the band be engaged for four concerts during the month of July, at $40 per concert.

The solicitor explained that the only way the council could vote money for the band was to pay them for concerts and that could only be justified on the grounds that it was a form of advertising for the tourist trade.

Coun. Solows—We could call it advertising?

The Solicitor—Oh, it is a form of advertising. Think about it, there may be a difference of opinion.

Coun. Turnbull—Why doesn't the band submit statements to us when they make such a request? They say, "Bills Payable, $245," but they give us no idea what the bills are. Everything else is specified—leadership, music, instruments, etc.

The motion passed unanimously. The article on the collection of monies due the town, under the caption, "An Appeal to the Council," which appeared in last week's Courier, was read by the Clerk. The reading was followed by an informal discussion.

Coun. Anderson, as chairman of the Finance Committee, said we have got so much money owing to the town they make such a request. A lot of people who owe take no notice of these notices. I don't want to do anything to work a hardship. If people who owe will come in and pay some on their accounts and will promise to pay so much in another two weeks or a month we will be glad to help them. If they will show a willingness to pay we will help.

Correspondence was read ending with a letter from R. W. E. Laundry, of Yarmouth, in reference with the Bragg case. This is the case where Bragg and his colleagues are fighting the town on the matter of licensing a matter which affects everybody and in which everybody is interested—but the council went into a matter to deal with it and cleared the council chamber.

What went on after that we are not in a position to say as we certainly did not intend to hang around the back of the town hall—it looked so much as though we were eavesdropping and if we had to get news that way we don't want it.

Preparing for Indian Carnival

The schooner Lena K., Capt. Edward Keane, at Port Wade, has been selected by the committee in charge for the Mic-Mac Indian Carnival, to be held at Annapolis Royal and Digby, on July 30 and 31.

This little vessel will play an important part in the re-enacting of the most important events in the history of Nova Scotia and of the Dominion of Canada. The Lena K. is to be Champlain's ship, which will sail on the waters of the picturesque Annapolis Basin to Port Royal during the days of the carnival.

Workers will commence work immediately to convert the little vessel which for years has carried lumber and other freight between Digby and Port Wade into a sixteenth century craft. Heavy canvas will be used to give the vessel the appearance of the ships of the days of Champlain and DeMonts, who, more than three centuries ago, visited these waters and sailed up the Basin to Lower Granville where Champlain made his first residence. The town of Port Royal, (now Annapolis Royal), a few miles from that location, is the oldest settlement in the Dominion of Canada.

It is expected that the Mic-Mac Indian Carnival—two days of sport and historic pageants and ceremonies on land and sea—will attract thousands to this vicinity. The ancient customs of the Mic-Mac Indians, the Acadians and the United Empire Loyalists will be re-enacted.

Mrs. Chipman Saunders, of Sandy Cove, was a visitor to Digby on Saturday.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Sweeping statements are dangerous because they are usually too emphatic, and also because, as they are general, they ignore what is unusual but important. Nevertheless, we find it necessary to make a sweeping statement to the effect that most stomach trouble, usually described as "indigestion," does not come from the stomach itself, is to blame, we person who owns the stomach.

First of all, let us qualify our remarks by stating that appendicitis, gall-bladder infections, and ulcers of the stomach and duodenum, unfortunately exist only too often. They cause stomach trouble, and the only way to cure such forms of stomach trouble is to treat the appendix, gall-bladder or ulcers.

Leaving these, and returning to the statement that it is the person who owns the stomach, rather than the stomach itself, we is to blame, we say that, by far, the most common causes of stomach trouble are emotional upsets, fatigue, and lack of moderation in eating.

Everyone knows that fear may make the throat dry, and also, that the mouth actually waters at the sight of or sight of attractive foods. The stomach too waters at the same time as the mouth. The watering of mouth and stomach is their proper preparation for the reception and digestion of food. It does not occur when we are angry, worried, tired, or disgusted.

The stomach and intestines have strong muscular walls which contract, forcing the food contents of these organs along. It has been shown by X-Ray examinations that strong emotional influences will stop the muscular activity of the digestive tract, and so bring digestion to an end; thus the upset which follows the hurried lunch or a rush for the train may be accounted for.

During the period of digestion, the stomach receives an extra supply of blood as does any organ at a time when it is most active. If this required extra blood supply is diverted away from the stomach by too much activity, such as games or other sports shortly after meals, it follows that trouble may be expected.

A great number of people believe that they are unable to eat some particular food. Most of these beliefs have grown out of an unhappy association with the food in question. Digestion may have been faulty for one of a number of reasons, but ever after, the particular food which is blamed for the upset is regarded with fear and suspicion, which, in turn, may cause trouble if that food is taken. The fussy, apprehensive person is sure to have digestive trouble.

Some foods are more readily digested than others, but unless the stomach is overloaded, at one time, with foods that are difficult to digest, in the sense that it takes time for the gastric juice to penetrate, so that the foods are fibrous, rough or irritating, we can say that foods do not, as a rule, cause stomach trouble.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

FAMOUS WRITER'S FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF NOVA SCOTIA

Here is what George Matthew Adams, the well known newspaper man, wrote about Nova Scotia following his first visit to this Province:

"Ever since I was a boy, I have looked forward to the time when I might visit Nova Scotia. Now this dream is a reality. The drive through this Province was one of the loveliest I have ever taken. I at once wanted everyone, at some time or other, to take the same ride. It is impossible to put into words the beauty of this countryside."

"The country, generally speaking, is rolling, but every once in a while, you find yourself at the top of a high elevation and see a panorama of beauty that almost takes your breath away. And then you wind about streams and lakes and pass through forests that are thick with pine and evergreen. There are interests everywhere you go. We stopped at quaint old villages, went through antique shops, stopped at the roadside and took pictures. We kept stopping a great deal of the time, for this is a country that you want to drink in at you go. We broke no speed laws. We slowed down our car so that a partridge might pass."

"Just before dusk one day we came upon the city of Halifax. How much I have read of that famous city! You approach it by a winding road and soon see the city beyond nestled upon the rocks and heights, bordering a magnificent harbour. From my window I can see the sea. A fog like light scampers away and a hill is seen in the distance. The bay is grey-blue, and the sun is dropping its golden rays upon the green tops of trees that half hide the city."

"This city of Halifax, like so many other places in Nova Scotia, is steeped in tradition, history, romance and adventure. We are going to stay several days so that we may get a little of its story. In many ways this city makes me think of my beloved New Orleans. I have just met a man from California who has arrived here after driving 5,000 miles. He said he wouldn't have missed such a country for anything. Neither would I."

AMERICA

If one hundredth of the caustic things we read in the United States were written about the United States itself, it would be a deluge of protesting letters to the Editor from United States citizens. Canada, who would resign claim office, and put forth a vigorous defence of the land of their birth. Under the caption "America," the following recently appeared from the pen of H. L. Phillips, New York Sun staff man, in a Florida newspaper:

"A land which throws up its hands in righteous horror at the idea of a national lottery for charitable purposes, but stands for gangsters, assassinations and general racketeering."

"A country which boasted for 150 years that every man had a chance to become a millionaire and now takes the attitude that the only place for a man with money is a delousing station."

"A country originally dedicated to liberty and the pursuit of happiness, now taking the position that no pursuit is necessary."

"A land where its leading legislators can double-cross a president when he is away fishing and then welcome him home with a brass band and cheers."

"A land where they arrest women for taking lap dogs out on leash, and five men for absent-mindedly parking near a hydrant but can't catch a thief."

"A land where an obscure fellow who makes a slight error in computing an income tax will be detected overnight and the Lindbergh kidnapping remain unsolved for four years."

"A land where they work up a sweat over a few suggestive novels and allow Hollywood to flood the cities with smut, fifth and sex situations that would bring a blush to the cheeks of Popeye the Sailor."

"A land developed by hard work now dedicated to the idea that America is a super rest station."

Between Ourselves

Some day I hope to write a few words on "minding our own business."

We have all heard men and women brag that attending strictly to their own affairs is one of the virtues. Sometimes we swallow their say-so—book, line and sinker; other times we look as sober as possible, then laugh up our sleeves; that laugh that tickles our funny-bones; sometimes we don't even bother to laugh up our sleeves—we laugh out loud then and there.

Should I ever write such an article I don't believe I could state that "minding my own business" is a virtue—it is a vice that is too often overdone. Often we are inclined to label it "indifference."

I've very little use for the gossip or for the man or woman who is continually prying into the private family affairs of the neighbors. On the other hand I am not averse to think that the man or woman who "attends strictly to their own affairs" can ever make a good citizen!

In order to progress we have to do a little mind our own business. To my mind the person who "minds his own business" to the extreme is a most selfish person. True, he may prosper in dollars and cents—but the satisfying of a gluttonous pocket book is not the only thing.

Our churches, our schools, our hospitals and clinics, our welfare societies, our fraternal organizations and service clubs; our parliaments, our town councils and various governing bodies; the boy scout organizations and countless other societies and organizations of high ideals, whose aim is to relieve suffering and poverty, to make this world a better world for themselves and the generations to follow, are all governed by men and women who are too unselfish to "attend strictly to their own business"—and they have made their business the problems, the sufferings and the needs of the community. They have been ridiculed and severely criticized because they found more important things to do than "mind their own business."

Science and industry, too, owe their growth, perhaps their very existence, to men and women who couldn't "mind their own business." The White House, the great civilization would still be in the stone age.

REV. E. W. FORBES SAYS FAREWELL

Rev. E. W. Forbes preached his farewell sermon to the congregation of Grace United Church on Sunday evening last. Rev. and Mrs. Forbes will leave this week for Granville Ferry, where he will be in charge of the Granville Ferry circuit of the United Church of Canada.

Coming here from Sydney seven years ago, Rev. and Mrs. Forbes have made a host of friends in this community who will miss them greatly. They have taken an active interest in community and welfare work as well as in the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Forbes have been having been associated with the Digby Branch of the Victoria. Order of Nurses, and for several years Mr. Forbes has been President of the Digby Children's Aid Society.

For his farewell sermon Mr. Forbes took as his text the 9th verse of the 12th chapter of Second Corinthians: "My grace is sufficient for thee and my strength is made perfect in weakness."

In closing he spoke of the pleasant relations between pastor and congregation which they had enjoyed during the past seven years.

He will be succeeded in Digby by Rev. T. H. Hodson, Ph.D., of Canimole.

In the Sunday School, J. Oakley Turnbull, superintendent, presented Mr. Forbes with a beautiful framed picture of Digby, from the scholars of Grace United Sunday School.

He will be succeeded in Digby by Rev. T. H. Hodson, Ph.D., of Canimole.

On Tuesday evening at the regular session of the Quarterly Official Board of the Grace United Church, Mr. Forbes was presented with a floor lamp as a token of remembrance from the members of the Board and of the Church.

RESTORATION OF AN OLD BAPTIST CHURCH AT ROXBVILLE

"There will be a strawberry festival in the Roxville Community Church, on Thursday night. The proceeds will go toward shingling the church," said an item in the Sea-View and Roxville "village notes" in the last issue of the Courier.

The Roxville church, about five miles from Digby town, was built about 55 years ago by the Baptist denomination and was supplied by the Digby Baptist church for about 30 years ago. Since then, except for an occasional service, the edifice has been closed.

Recently a number of women of the two communities—Sea Brook and Roxville—banded together to re-open their place of worship and have named it the Roxville Community Church, and it is strictly non-denominational. Those who have taken charge of its work include Mrs. Mary Mulse, Mrs. Rebecca, Mrs. Clara, Mrs. Charles Hall, Mrs. Edith Baid and Miss Beulah Spence.

Already considerable work has been done on the building. One side of the roof has been shingled; the festival held last night was for the purpose of raising money to shingle the other side. Arrangements have already been made to replace the plaster on the interior which has fallen during the years of disuse.

Rev. J. T. Dimock, pastor of the Baptist church at Roxville, will likely hold a service in the Community Church on Tuesday evening.

Arch, housekeeper, lay preacher of Lake Midway has taken great interest in the work. It is hoped that regular services can be arranged for in the near future.

Thomas Gibbons, of Roxville, who gave the Courier this little story, says that James Gilliland, James Hutchinson, William Hall, Sandy Carr, George Ross, W. W. Small, Alfred Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. George Hall and Mr. and Mrs. William Hall, Mrs. Benjamin Seelye, Mrs. Tom Bess and himself are among those who helped to build the church. Of this number he is the only one surviving.

Sea Brook and Roxville are both very small communities. The first village one comes to after leaving Digby, travelling on the Digby Neck road, on School and Digby church serves both communities. It is interesting to note that at one time there was a Methodist church there, situated in Sea Brook. About 18 years ago this church was torn down and removed in sections to Burtonvale, near Weymouth, and is now the Rural Chapel (Anglican), built in memory of the mothers who lost their sons in the Great War.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HOLDS PUBLIC MEETING

A little more than a year ago the Bear River Agricultural Society introduced a new feature in their yearly program in the form of a social evening which was begun with a sumptuous repast. The enthusiasm with which this feature was received prompted the management to repeat their effort on Friday evening last. Public notice had been given and a general invitation issued to members of the society and their wives and to all those interested in the object of the society, which was most heartily responded to. Every department of agriculture and horticulture was represented, together with the membership of the local club, and a large delegation from the Digby and vicinity was present. After supper had been disposed of and the general business transacted, Prof. C. Blair of the Agricultural Experiment Station, was introduced by the chairman, and gave a very informative address on "Soil Improvement and the Growing of Potatoes." Following this, a horticultural display was made by the professor after which a general discussion took place on how best to improve the soil. The meeting was held in the hall of the Agricultural Society, and was most successful. The meeting closed at a late hour, with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

MARITIMERS BUY TEA AT LOW COST

Whatever the relative cost of living in the Maritimes as compared with the rest of Canada, one cannot be said that the people of these provinces pay too much for their tea. More's Standard Tea, which is the good old family tea of the Maritimes, sells in retail stores at 50 cents per pound package, which is 10 cents per pound less than brands claiming to be of equal quality and selling for in Central Canada. As a matter of fact 50 cents a pound is too low for tea of such quality, in view of the high prices of good tea in countries of production and there will inevitably come a time when an advance will have to be made. In the meantime, however, Maritime tea drinkers could themselves fortunate in being able to buy More's Standard Tea at its present price.

Miss Dorothy Morgan returned to Bear River recently from the Sacred Heart Academy, at Meteghan, and is spending her vacation with her aunt, Mrs. Clarence Morgan.

Mrs. Clarence Morgan has received word that her daughter, Mrs. R. S. Killam, is at present in the Yorkmouth Hospital, where she recently underwent a serious operation. She is progressing favorably.

Safety • Security • Yield.

INVESTORS to-day are interested not only in securing safety for their capital, but in obtaining rates of interest more advantageous than those generally available. Our Guaranteed Investment Certificates, issued in any denomination, pay a return of 4% on deposits from one to three years, and 3% for demand deposits. These are secured by sound trustee investments of bonds and first mortgages, plus the written guarantee of a company which has progressed from strength to strength since 1893. They offer absolute safety, and yield a rate appreciably higher than is usually obtained on such security.

Let's Get Acquainted

HERE'S a good resolution for each and every one of us: to learn more about Nova Scotia. And, if you will allow a personal question: how much of the Province, outside of your own district, do you know? But it's easy to get better acquainted. Just take advantage of week-ends and vacation-time to explore your Home Land. Each year visit parts of Nova Scotia you have never seen before. Why not start this summer? You can have a royal good time as well as gain helpful information about the Province, its products, problems, and possibilities. In addition, the knowledge you acquire of your fellow Nova Scotians—and they of you—will do much to foster a province-wide spirit of co-operation and understanding.

ABRAHAM AND THE DIVIDED KINGDOM

Golden Text:—"Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall."—Proverbs 16:18.

Lesson Passage:—1 Kings, 11:29-39.

The brute man of the planet, he will pass; Vanish like breath of vapor on a glass; And from his quaking pulp of life will rise The Superman, child of the higher skies. God-quickened, he will break these mortal bars, Laugh and reach out his hand among the stars. —Edwin Markham

Dominion Day

By a happy coincidence this lesson of The Divided Kingdom falls on the first of July, Dominion Day, when Canadians commemorate the achievement of national unity. The federation of nine Canadian provinces is a witness to the advantages of unity, the division of the Hebrew kingdom is a warning against national disunity. Some of the fathers of Confederation were really great statesmen—men of vision willing to submerge personal considerations and party prestige for the sake of forming a united nation. Canadian unity has always had a religious sanction. The verse, "He shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river under the ends of the earth," has in a sense become a national ideal. Christ for Canada and Canada for Christ is a great incentive for loyalty to both Church and state. Occasionally there are bitter cries from separatists, spasmodically from the Maritimes, Quebec or the West, but they are never taken seriously, and perhaps are not meant to be taken seriously. Canada one and indivisible is the prayer of all good Canadians.

Personal Influence, 29

Very frequently great decisions are reached in private before they are announced in public. Ahijah and Jeroboam had an understanding in secret which later was carried out in action. Talking things over, their purposes were unified. The spiritual leader influenced the military leader. Nearly every community has some man or woman with outstanding gifts of head and heart with whom consultation is an infallible function. Advice is given, confidences are kept, unobtrusively and those in difficulty find release by talking things over with such a trusted friend. One condition of in-

Keeping Pace

Down through the years—since it was established in 1832—The Bank of Nova Scotia has steadily kept pace with the advancing needs of Canadian industry and enterprise. Today, as in the past, it offers to sound business not only complete facilities for the performance of every banking function, but more—an individual attention to the needs of each client.

OVER A CENTURY OF BANKING SERVICE

There is absence of self-seeking. There is a current phrase that is frequently used—"double crossing"—which represents the opposite of integrity and reliability. Anyone who wishes to be helpful through conference and conversation with people in trouble must strive to be genuine, unbiased and discreet. It is here that character is tried and tested.

A Concrete Illustration, 30, 31

One reason why the literature of the Hebrew people is so full of concrete illustrations is that they did not have many abstract words. Modern English, reinforced by Greek and Latin roots, can express the finest shades of meaning and invent new words. The Hebrew language in the day of Jeroboam had a limited vocabulary. Probably Jeroboam would not use one-quarter of the words that are commonplace with us. Ahijah was not handicapped, however, in making his meaning clear; perhaps his method of expression made it all the more vivid. He took hold of the new garment he was wearing, and cut it in twelve pieces. Jeroboam did not need to be told that this had reference to the Twelve Tribes. Ahijah was giving an object lesson in politics, and the news of the divided cloak would spread rapidly. Lloyd-George during the War frequently summed up an idea in a striking metaphor. Very often teachers employ some concrete object as a fixed point for association of ideas. Constantly Christ used tangible things in his teaching. One can form a fairly complete picture of community life in Nazareth by his references to brooms, lambs, houses, birds and flowers. Public speakers and Sunday School teachers soon discover how attention is gained when a concrete illustration is employed.

For Jerusalem's Sake, 32

Ahijah predicted that the tribes would be divided into one group of ten and another group of two. Solomon's son was to lose control of ten tribes, but was to retain control of Judah and Benjamin. "For Jerusalem's sake." A lifetime would be too short to read all the history of the Holy City. Babylon was famed for splendor; Athens for beauty and philosophy; Rome for law and military power; Old London and New York have had a race for leadership in size; but in many ways Jerusalem has had a more lasting influence than any other city. Hebrews, Christians and Mohammedans have a vital interest in it. Lectures about the Holy Land are given around the world. A constant stream of pilgrims flows to it. The Christian world learned much about this city set on a hill when a great world-wide missionary conference was held in Jerusalem, and a morning prayer meeting was conducted on the Mount of Olives. Christians turn their minds toward Jerusalem during Passion Week, and hymns and sermons echo the geography and history of this ancient Judean city.

Penalty and Promise, 33-39

The division of the Hebrew kingdom was a national disaster from which the land has never fully recovered. There was some pain because Jerusalem was freed from militaristic ambitions and became more devoted to spiritual affairs. A conditional promise was made that if idolatry were renounced and obedience to God's law practiced, God would be with the Southern Kingdom and a great temple would be built. The lasting influence of Jerusalem has been due to religious power. The teaching of the Law, the literature surrounding worship, and the men with a flaming passion for justice and right, and the sacrifice of Christ have made the Law go forth from Mount Zion to the enlightenment of spiritual life throughout the world. The measure of Hebrew achievement is the degree to which they responded to the leading of God's Spirit.

Questions for Discussion

- 1.—What is Canada's greatest need today?
- 2.—Should ministers take an active part in politics?
- 3.—Why is Jerusalem one of the most significant cities in the world?
- 4.—Can national unity be built up by party politics?
- 5.—"I will be with thee." What does this mean to you?
