

Welcome to the Digital DIGBY COURIER

100th Birthday

The hundredth anniversary of the Digby Weekly Courier has brought to mind some fond memories as contained in the following historical chapter of the writer. But first, I wish to congratulate the current editor of the Courier, Mrs. J.M. (Edith) Wallis, for a job well done over the years and still being well done, good service rendered with great fortitude.

According to any record, I have at hand, the Digby Courier, in one hundred years of publication, was controlled under the same family management for 42 years, 1931 to 1973, under the control of Wallis Print Limited. The late J.J. Wallis became editor of The Courier the second time, in 1929, and at the same time of the business, which he had been running for some time previously and which became Wallis Print Limited sometime between 1929 and 1931.

I well remember the last year of the twenties when I worked in the office of the son with the husband and father of the late J.J. Wallis, the Courier. Sometime in 1928 or early 1929, the late J.J. Wallis (Mac), son of "J.J." engaged me to work every day after school hours, Saturdays, and for some months after finishing school. The place of work was in the building of the present Digby town hall on First Avenue. J.J. Wallis then worked occasionally at the print shop but mostly across the street at the Courier office which was then located on land in the general area where The Royal Bank of Canada is now.

Wallis Job Print operated in 1929 with a staff of four consisting of J.J. Wallis, J.M. Wallis, Miss Eva Haynes, who later became Mrs. George Kicup, and myself. I was engaged as a printer in the left Eva's job was to run the printing plant but mostly at the Courier office. "Mac" worked nearly full time at all the different jobs at the Job Print, and I worked at various duties, most of the time being spent at operating printing presses.

We worked ten-hour days, six days a week. "J.J." and "Mac" sometimes worked overtime. I worked only the regular hours being paid a weekly wage which was comparatively good for those times and my lack of experience. I received four or five dollars a week for working after school hours to six o'clock and on Saturday all day, and nine dollars a week for full weeks after finishing school. A two or three dollar a week raise was offered to me in the fall of 1929 for me to stay on at printing, but I had made up my mind to enter a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, starting salary of $300. The bank salary figured out about the same per hour as for the printing job. Nevertheless, the congenial atmosphere of the printing plant those days, and, experience however short, were helpful and appreciated by me.

"J.J." was very jovial in his occasional trip to the Job Print and did considerable kidding all in good fun. "Mac" was a witty person who mixed in a good natured sarcasm now and then for one reason or another. Eva most always had good answers to all the kidding she was called upon to take, and, generally held her own in a quiet sort of way, always busy setting type. We four all got along very well indeed. However, I do remember that some days did seem long and weary because of the monotony of some repetitious jobs.

In spite of the great demand for printing those last boom days of the twenties, business generally being brisk, it looked to me that people had to work long and hard to make any decent profit. There was including treatment of the hands. However, nails and finger ends were used and I was soon back to work.

Now and then a printing job had a dose on parchment paper which required a special kind of printers' ink which smelled very bad those days. I always dreaded it when "Mac" would do that job on the largest press, in spite of the fact that we always opened an outside door to lessen the effects on the constitution.

One of the jobs I had to do, being the junior and printers' devil on the staff, was to clean up now and then. One day not long after I started my job at the printing plant, I decided to clean the floor that apparently hadn't been cleaned in some considerable time.

"J.J." came along and said, "how are you making out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor. "J.J." laughed very heartily, he thought the remark pretty good and suitable.

Sometimes the gasoline engine or a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and after "Mac" the fix-it man had patiently worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without results, "Mac" would then stand back and cuss quite strenuously, then he would immediately start working. "See," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of cussing."

On other occasions when some gadget refused duty for me and, seemed to be broken, "Mac" would say, "use a little oil," and sure enough, often that is all it took. How often since, have I thought of the value of that remark and the actual need of "oil" in many life situations, applied at the right time, right place and, in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are, like the time I told "Mac" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1929 got together just before dark one evening and decided to initiate the newly built outdoor Pines Hotel swimming pool which had just been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just east of the pool; nobody else seemed to be around except the four boys; no thought or time for bathing suits up to the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in, the rest quickly followed and across the pool they swam. "Mac" listened to the story and hardly said anything, but the next "Digby Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story went something like, "Four Boy Scouts Officially Open Pines Hotel Swimming Pool." Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Earl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars (second world and Korean), was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Smith, now prominent druggist for many years in Digby; Clayton D. Snow, Digby wholesale lobster king merchant; and myself.

As a young teenager I used to like doing some writing about different events interesting to myself and mostly for myself. One day "Mac" said to me "how about writing your version of the story told about 'The Marooning of Jerome'." I had heard and read at least two somewhat different stories about the man who was found marooned on a beach at some point on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Digby County. When found this man's tongue had been cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

"Jerome" appeared to have been a man of some considerable social standing and possibly of some considerable wealth. However the only thing the man could or would ever say after being found and cared for by some family in the French shore was, something that sounded like the word "Jerome". He either could not, or, would not, write anything about who he was or why he was left the way he was. Well, it was, and is, one of Digby County's mystery stories, and, different ideas have been expressed over the years concerning this man. However my response to "Mac" was, I felt no urge to write anything more or different about this man. The mystery seemed to have been very well explored in the mind of many people, and, he was a sort of curiosity for many people who visited where he lived for many years.

Three years later, I was quite a young man, and I was back in the street that I had lived in, and I was clanking my powered up car, and I was thinking about "Jerome", and as I remember it, I was thinking about "Jerome". "J.J." was noted for his sense of humor and his ability to make people laugh. One day in 1928 during the time Mr. Wallis was editor of the Scott Act (Prohibition Law) he was about and advocated by some people, and I was attending a boys' conference in the town of Digby.

Digby 172 Years Ago

Compiled by David Sanford

From the files of the Courier of January 23, 1867, the following account has been copied concerning Digby in 1800.

"Among a number of old newspapers kindly sent to us by friends is a copy of the Saint John Gazette of May, 1802, says the Telegraph and among other advertisements contained in the issue before us is one describing the town and township of Digby, and offering for sale certain lots in the town. In this area we are told the township of Digby extends from the Gulf of Annapolis westward to the extremity of the province of Nova Scotia, and contains about 130,000 acres." The town plot is thus described:

"The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of St. Mary's Bay. This laid out from the water's edge, partly on level ground and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having with an eastern aspect, a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth of that name. It was settled by Loyalists from New York in 1783, the most of whom went early to farms, or, moving to older countries, left the whole free trade with the U.S.A., especially with the New England States. The question was then debated by some Digby High School students one of which was some Digby's daughter, Florence (now Mrs. Melvin O. Tibert, Freeport, Digby Co.) Some days after the debate a man from some part of Nova Scotia came to the printing shop looking for Florence, one of the successful debaters; I had the impression that this man was interested politically but, maybe I was wrong.

Well, I felt that I had learned considerable from my short experience at "The Wallis Job Print". I was learning to do beginner jobs, receiving some knowledge about things like: embossing, stapling, perforating, counting, cutting and trimming paper stock, mixing inks for certain desired colors, and so forth, but, the only experience I had at setting type was just enough to make a "pi", the printers name for a confused mess.

There was a taste of trying to sell job printing outside the plant. Work was a little slack one early fall day and so "Mac" said to me, "how about trying your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards?" I tried it, made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular house, and got an order, but, it was much time and got an order, but, side to be bought proved by about who now reside detached, built dwellings with orchards, and some fishery and. It has communal parts of the communal provisions in a cheap, built readily to be from many circumstances, probability of place of some shipbuilding, the West India a cheap and of residence. This advertised at the December, I were to be a No. 100.

65 Years

The first time wireless telegraph ran into Digby was in the "The equipment and was seen from her trip in December 23, 1910. The new light station was put into operation on January 15, 1911. The old Lighthouse Passage and stone Northeast of it.

Loss of the ship "W. Coombs" is a Courier of January 1911. The ship struck the Lighthouse Bay and was blown, and was with her cargo on the rocks. All the crew were saved. The ship was shipped to the "Hercules" in 1911. A heavy storm at the time the ship struck the Lighthouse Bay and was blown, and was with her cargo on the rocks. All the crew were saved. Red Cross Features 1,000th Quilt

The 1,000th quilt to be completed by the Digby Branch and Auxiliaries of the Red Cross Society, is featured in a display of Red Cross work in the Royal Department Store window this week.

Several weeks ago when the total number of Red Cross quilts reached 950, a prize was offered by Mrs. H. M. Warne, convener of the work committee, to the group making the 1,000th quilt.

Since then quilts have been received from many auxiliaries and church societies, but the prize winning 1,000th quilt was completed by the Digby Red Cross Quilters under the direction of Mrs. Howard Anderson. A coincidence is the fact that it was Mrs. Anderson who organized this group of ladies and made the first Digby Red Cross quilt in 1940 in response to an appeal for British relief during the blitz.

Mrs. Anderson was an active Red Cross worker during the last war, and has not only made quilts, but many pairs of socks to her credit.

Common School Closing

The annual common school closing of Digby Academy took place at the Capitol Theatre on Tuesday, June 29.

Hubert Warne, Chairman of the School Board, opened the exercises with a short address in which he expressed his satisfaction in seeing so many people present. He extended thanks to the faculty for having done such a fine job. He also expressed the regret of the school board for losing a number of the staff.

Mr. Warne told of the congested situation of the school, taking as his example Grade I which has been divided into two classes in order to accommodate all the students.

Mr. Eaton presented the prizes and diplomas to the students.

Immediately after the exercises Hank, the Yodelling Ranger, gave a short entertainment.

Pilot Officer Richard Turnbull, who has spent the past two years overseas, during which time he took part in many raids over enemy territory, has returned home. He arrived on Saturday, accompanied by his bride, and is visiting his mother at the home of his grandparents, Capt. and Mrs. F. A. Robinson. On the same day, Mrs. Robinson, who has been visiting her daughter and sons in the United States, returned, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Cronin.

About This and That

The Japanese war lords, who play with truth as a child plays with a toy, have populated Davy Jones' locker at the bottom of the Pacific with a navy consisting of 13 allied battleships, 11 aircraft carriers, 56 destroyers, 128 submarines, 69 other assorted warships, and 369 merchant vessels. At least that is Tojo's story, and to make it even more ridiculous he tells his people that the Japs have shot down 5,214 United Nations war planes. Japanese losses, he says, are about one-tenth of this number.

Most of us have been under the impression that Goebbels, nazi propaganda minister, was an artist when it came to lying. But Goebbels appears to be a tyro alongside Tojo. That slant-eyed war lord knows how to tell them. It is to be hoped, however, that Davy Jones does not take the Japanese claims too seriously. For we are positive that about three-fourths his "fleet" is still riding the Pacific waves looking for skulking Japanese warships to blast to their eternal reward.

Unless something is done about the matter, it will soon cost us more to exist than it used to cost us to live.

The purpose of rationing is to divide among ourselves as equally as possible food remaining after our armed forces and the peoples of the allied nations are fed. So divided, there is enough food for everyone's essential living.

But with higher incomes, many people are not content to get along on the minimum. Government figures show that today expenditures for food luxuries are the highest in our country's history.

Such spending has resulted in defeating the purpose of rationing, in creating "black markets," criminal inflation of food costs, and diversion of money from the promotion of our national war effort.

Essential living is patriotic; anything above it is disservice to one's country in time of total war.

We still are undecided whether it's human nature or politics that makes such a mess of things.

His name is Cohen, Sgt. Sydney Cohen, and he and two English buddies were flying a Swordfish plane over the Mediterranean when a sputtering engine warned the pilot his gasoline was about exhausted.

He glided down toward a tiny little island below, the dust and smoke from which indicated recent allied bombs. With the last dying cough of the engine he landed his plane on the shell-pitted airfield.

"It's tough luck, boys," said Sgt. Cohen to his companions. "But it's better than drowning in the ocean. These are Italians not Germans, so maybe they'll treat us decently as prisoners."

Italian soldiers came creeping toward the trio, and as the sergeant descended from his plane he was astounded to hear:

"Don't shoot—don't shoot! We surrender! We give up! Don't shoot!"

Sgt. Cohen was equal to the emergency. He gruffly ordered:

"All right; put it in writing, and get some big shot to sign it."

Thus the little Italian island of Lampedusa, in the Mediterranean, fell to the United Nations without a single bullet being fired. And this is why his buddies now call Sgt. Cohen "King of Lampedusa." The nerve of these Britishers!

If history insists on repeating itself, there ought to be some way to edit it.

Frenzied Machine of Nazi Cruelty

A Russian writer, in the Johannesburg (South Africa) Daily Times, writes as follows:

Why do we look down upon the Germans? Why is it that even during the days of our defeat we could not see in them either our superiors or our equals? Does this perhaps arise from the desire to slander, to humiliate any foe? No, for that is not our custom. When Charles XII and subsequently Napoleon invaded our country, the Russians hated but did not despise them. Our contempt for the Germans does not arise from the fact that they are our enemies, but out of our conviction that they are despicable. We are not fighting against people with more or less developed intellects but against machines that have revolted against man. For the last ten years Fascist Germany has created nothing. Hitler has hunted from Germany that last pale shadow of human thought that still haunted the cellars or garrets of German cities. Neither scientists nor writers nor daring thought flights nor true words existed here. Even in his best loved field—military affairs—Hitler's Germany was only an imitation of Hohenzollern Germany. We have every right to laugh at Field-Marshal Paulus who applied so ineptly the old theories of Schlieffen. Germany wanted to crush the world with tanks but it was the British who invented the tank, and a few years before the war Guderian admitted that he had learned tank fighting tactics from de Gaulle.

There is no question but that, in addition to creative conception, execution, organization and work are indispensable. The Germans were very successful in their preparations for war precisely because they were machines: machines do not argue, machines are not distracted by irrelevant thoughts, machines feel no emotion, invent nothing.

I cannot see any difference between the German tank and the German tankman. Tidy burghers who had their jackets turned, who were afraid to tread on grass in public gardens, who counted every fraction of a farthing in their savings, have laid Europe waste, trampled her gardens and fields, destroyed the labour of generations. They did this methodically, indifferently; during breathing spaces between despoiling and ruining two cities they munched sandwiches, wrote post cards to friends.

Here is an account, captured from Lieutenant Friedrich Rennemann, a German "intellectual," of how he passed his entrance examination for the Langemarck higher courses.

"I succeeded in tracing my ancestors only as far back as 1860. This was not sufficient, since the minimum demanded is the year 1800. The examiners were thirteen professors. I was asked most widely differing questions like, 'What do you know about the Germanic races?'"

"I had to outline the activities of Alexander of Macedon, Napoleon, and Hitler. Then we had to undergo a race test; this included all manner of measurements, investigations of features in a good light—the main points being that features should be clear-cut. Since my chin's outline is rather vague, I received low marks—2. In general, I was at a great disadvantage on the chin's account."

"Then came the final examination, the so-called spirit test. It proceeded as follows: An SS officer demanded 'why are you such a monster?', upon which I sprang up and spat. For this I received very high marks. Still, taking the marks in the aggregate, I failed. It was only natural: 'I could not produce ancestors dating back from 1860 to 1800, and my chin was nothing to boast about.'

Rennemann exhibits no indignation over his failure; he realizes that the examiners were right.

German atrocities belong not so much to criminal perversions, to the heart's dark undercurrents, as to the plan of exterminating other nations.

For twenty months the Germans have been busy improving the gallows. One has invented a two-storeyed gallows, another, an extension collapsible gallows, a third has invented a method of speeding up hangings by delivering the victims on motor lorry platforms.

A short time ago I was reading Sergeant-Major Schubert's diary in which he describes the latest "scientific experiments" made by his fellow countrymen: "Jews are placed in special cars where they are gassed and then the corpses are buried by excavator."

Scientists have used guinea pigs as a means of fighting deadly diseases. The Germans try out the action of suffocating gases on people.

It would be absurd to speak of cruelty in this connection; this is not a human malice, but the ideal soullessness of the frenzied machine.

In the struggle against

But we have one consolation—machines man has found confirmation of himself, he has not only grown, he has matured. Herein lies the historic significance of our war. We often call it "Holy." There is no better term. It is a holy war fought by man against frenzied machines.

Hereford Breeders Have Field Day

There is a tendency to get back to beef, Hon. John A. McDonald, Minister of Agriculture, declared in addressing the annual field day of the Maritime Hereford Association which was held at Fort Edward Exhibition Grounds Windsor, June 23. Thirty-two head of high-class Herefords were shown. There were present William O'Brien, Windsor Forks, who Mr. McDonald described as the "father" of the Hereford movement in this province; E. H. Horne, Enfield breeder of nationally famed stock, and others who have played an active part in the promotion of the breed. Messrs O'Brien and Horne were honored with being elected Honorary Presidents of the Association. Others elected to office were: Walter Oulton, Clarence, president; Chester Barteau, Clarence, vice president; Director for Charlottetown, Fulton Sanderson; Secretary treasurer, J. A. Steele; the remainder of the directors were re-elected.

A feature of the day was the fact that the judging was done by the exhibitors themselves with placings checked by J. A. Steele, Truro, Federal Fieldman, Department of Agriculture, and Dr. Robert O'Brien, Windsor, Federal District Veterinary. First placings were: Bluss (calves)—"Ethels Heir 3rd," Barteau; Older bulls, "Monta Vista Heir 11th," Barteau; Female heifer calves, "Monta Vistas Miss Blanchard 3rd," Horne; Yearling and two-year-old, "Windsor Lass," Horne; Cows, "Cornett 3rd," Horne; Steer, or grade heifer, O'Brien.

Mr. McDonald, in referring to the swing back to beef that is taking place today, said the determining factor in any line of agriculture was price and added that the farmer would produce what he was paid to produce. One of the big problems after the war will be to retain prices. Farmers can be successful along this line he remarked, by getting together to control graded markets or seek control of prices by government regulation. The farmer wants to carry on his own business, but in order to carry on he must work with other farmers in an effort to get a proper return. Greater strides along this line have been made, but still greater ones will come if the farmers work together.

Reg Gilbert, Moncton, Secretary of the Maritime Fat Cattle Show, congratulated the exhibitors on the excellent condition of their cattle and remarked that it was not necessarily the large show that was the best show. He suggested that in fitting cattle for the market the animals be placed in box stalls with a fair amount of light and a chance to move around. Often the mistake is made in trying to finish cattle in too short a time. Have animals go on the market, he appealed, when there is a meat deficiency. Cattle marketed in January and February will be better conditioned and give a higher return than those marketed in the fall.

Brief addresses were given by C. Eric Boulden, Principal of the Agricultural College, Truro, who declared that today perhaps more than ever before Canadians were beef conscious thus opening up an opportunity for beef cattle; President W. G. Oulton, who urged better fitting and larger carcasses, and Dr. O'Brien, who discussed dehorning. Chester O'Brien gave a demonstration of yoking oxen following which a business session of the Association was held.

Why Do You Work?

Three workmen engaged in erecting a house of worship were asked why they were working. One replied he was working for wages; the second to build a cathedral; the third, to make a happier and better world. All were good reasons. The second was better than the first. The third was better than the second.

Whatever be the kind of work you do and the reason for it, strive for quality. Regard the work as necessary, as an important contribution to the progress of the world.

One's attitude toward his vocation tells the all-important story as to whether it is important. Do your work so well that you will create a demand for your services. Then you have a mission, you are giving your fellows what they need, and your world, large or small, is a better world because of your contribution.

There is work for all to do, work that is necessary and that enriches life. The world is hungry for quality, whether the work is of the hand, the mind or of the heart.

"Despise nothing, my son," said a mother to her boy, and that boy grew up to be Sir Walter Scott.

"He piles lumber like an artist," said one of another who did his work so well his every move was a masterpiece, and people stopped to admire his diligence.

It was said of a public leader: "He is so useful that few could ever take his place." There is the test of one's value to the community. One's work may be producing a symphony, sweeping a house, or growing potatoes. Take the right attitude toward your task and you never need feel the task is beneath your dignity. Why you work and how you work are more important than the kind of work you do.

Awarded Degree At Bathurst

Professor George C. Van-Tassel, director of the commercial department of Sacred Heart University, Bathurst, N. B., was awarded the honorary degree of Bachelor of Commercial Science at the closing exercises of the university last week end. Professor Van-Tassel, of Digby, got his early education at St. Anne's College, Church Point, later to become a member of its faculty which he held for many years before going to the Bathurst institution. His late mother was the former Meretha Cottreau, of Wedgeport. One of her brothers, Charles Cottreau, was lost aboard the steamer City of Portland, which went down with all hands. Passengers included, when she was caught out in a storm off Cape Cod.

Badly Burned By Live Wire

Edward Blinn, who was badly burned while working on the hydro line at Meteghan River last week, is able to move around indoors. Mr. Blinn received the burns when he touched the high-tension wires while doing repair work. He received burns on the back, thigh and knee. He was unconscious for a time after the accident and it was thought that the shock was too strong to withstand but he showed signs of life shortly afterwards and was rushed to the hospital. He had fallen to the ground, after having come in contact with the high tension wires, but a stand on the pole broke his fall, which, it is believed kept him from receiving more extensive injuries in his fall.

Tough War Veterans Couldn't Kill a Rooster

(By a War Correspondent)

We call him Eustace, but he deserves the heroic name of Cypselus—in infant whom the oligarchs of ancient Corinth sought in vain to slay—for none of the ten men hired to do the deed could find it in his heart to kill the child.

More than ten men—tough veterans of the Eighth Army injured to bloodshed—mediated death to Eustace.

Eustace is in fact a rooster—as red an Orpington as ever was. We bought him from an Arab for 150 cigarettes, and we licked our lips in anticipation of tomorrow's dinner.

In the morning we were awakened by an ear-splitting noise, which echoing through wadis must have been heard by the Germans. At breakfast, while Eustace strutted round the table picking up bread and sausage crumbs, we discussed the problem of dinner. There were volunteers to pluck and cook the bird, but in vain we waited for a volunteer to kill the bird.

And when someone said: "He looks a bit scraggy, doesn't he? Let's keep him for a day or two and fatten him up," we all concurred.

Except for those awful moments in the dawn we liked the bird. He reminded us of other times and other scenes back home. But how our neighbors jeered at us: "Why don't you kill the bird?" they shouted as they passed; or "Why don't you find a mate for him?"

Our nearest neighbors, the B.B.C. unit, cried the loudest for Eustace's blood. The day came when we had to leave our camp and we set off on a long journey but to kill Eustace now was out of the question for there was no time to pluck and cook him. We gave him to the B.B.C. Later we returned and dropped into the B.B.C. camp. Eustace was gone.

We naturally didn't mention the subject. Suddenly above the blaring radio we heard a familiar, unmistakable note: "Cock-a-doodle-do."

We looked at the B.B.C. man and they blushed scarlet.

"Yes," one of them stammered, "it's Eustace. There's our Russian colleague the Tass Agency correspondent camped over there and we thought it would be nice as an Anglo-Russian solidarity gesture if we made him a present of the bird."

We went over to our Russian friend's camp and saw Eustace settling down for his night's roost in a tree.

Eustace evidently got the measure of all of us, and when the Eighth Army marched into Tunis he was there to crown the Afrika Korps—and us.

Roll Call Held By Two Churches

In spite of the inclement weather a very good congregation gathered in Clements-port and Deep Brook Baptist churches to hear special music and addresses on Sunday, June 20, as these churches held their annual roll calls. Rev. T. F. McWilliam, pastor of the churches, was in charge.

At Clements-port, music was furnished by the choir, assisted by Mrs. Hartley Marshall, Mrs. Max Nuttal, and Mrs. D. C. MacLean. W. C. Forbes offered prayer and Rev. A. Gibson, Baptist field secretary of the M.R.E.C. of Wolfville, preached the anniversary sermon.

A number of responses were received, including a letter of greeting from Rev. A. W. L. Smith, rector of the Anglican church.

At Deep Brook, the service took the form of a musical program. The choir, under the direction of Walter Dimars, with Mrs. Eric Adams as organist, rendered two anthems and a trio. Mrs. D. C. MacLean, guest soloist from the West End Baptist Church, Halifax, sang two selections. Rev. A. Gibson expressed the greetings of his Council and assisted in the service.

TWO-THIRDS of the total number of loans outstanding in Canada's Chartered Banks average less than $500 per loan.

Through bank loans, Canada's Chartered Banks help Canadians to benefit themselves, their fellows and their country. Many of these loans are small—but all contribute their share to the day-by-day activities of Canadian enterprise.

Some further facts about Canada's Banks:

Chartered Banks' loans related to agriculture as shown on the last official return to Parliament, totalled $340,118,473. This sum included loans to farmers, ranchers, fruit raisers and to grain dealers and grain exporters.

Every general manager today heading a Chartered Bank entered the bank as a junior in some small branch.

Up to and including February, 1943, no fewer than 6803 men and 154 women bank employees had enlisted in the armed forces.

Canadians in every walk of life and in every part of Canada are served by more than three thousand branches and sub-agencies maintained by the Chartered Banks to facilitate the nation's business.

Some complaints have reached the ration administration, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, that a few butchers have declined to make up the balance of coupon values by small quantities of other meat. It is pointed out that, if a housewife is buying less than a full coupon's worth of any meat, she may take the rest of the coupon value in meat from the same or any other group.

Chief Petty Officer Roy Denton of Sydney, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Arthur Denton. He has since been sent to Toronto.

William Denton is spending a week with his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Denton, Westport.

Baptismal Service was conducted recently by Rev. B. Cobham, when four candidates united with the Baptist church.

Joyce Cobham, Betty Trask, and Leonard Denton, pupils of Mrs. E. E. Graham, were successful in obtaining their Grade I certificates, in music.

An enjoyable evening was spent at the home of the clerk of the church, Mrs. Burton Frost, when a farewell party was tendered our pastor, Rev. Byron Cobham, and Mrs. Cobham, who have been with us for two years. A purse of money was presented to them and speeches made after which ice cream and cake was served. Mr. Cobham has accepted the church at Hammond Plains and expects to leave this week. We wish them every success in their new pastorate.

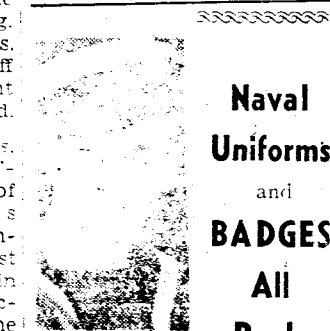

Under the direction of Miss Geraldine Denton, a pie social was held in the hall when the sum of $70 was realized for the hall which is undergoing very much needed repairs and a new roof. The upper storey which was blown off in last winter's gale, is now being replaced on a smaller scale and a small room is being built in the upper part, which will be used for Red Cross purposes and socials.

Ansley Tidd, of Whale Cove, purchased the home of Hugh Denton.

Miss Kathleen Durkee, with the help of the community, held a very successful pie sale recently in the East Ferry hall. The sum of $93.45, which is to be used for the hall and other benefits, was realized.

A farewell surprise party was given on Wednesday evening, the 16th of June, at the Baptist Church Hall in honor of Mrs. M. Munn, who left Tuesday to visit her home in New Brunswick and later to join her husband on the west coast. A very enjoyable evening was spent in games and a lovely gift of linen and china was presented by Mrs. Hugh Vincent on behalf of the ladies of the church. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion and about forty ladies were present. At the close of the evening refreshments were served.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week, Mrs. Moore, primary teacher, took the pupils on a picnic where they had a very enjoyable time with games and races. Florence Prime, of Digby, and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Cann, of Central Grove, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Prime. The Baptist Young People met at the parsonage one evening last week to re-organize for the summer. Following business session a sing was held. On Sunday a collection was taken at the Sunday School for the Greek War Relief Fund and over nine dollars was realized.

NEW D.A.R. DINER FOR CANADIAN SERVICEMEN

The "Blomidon", a dining car with accommodation for 40 persons, will go into service shortly between Digby and Halifax on the Dominion Atlantic Railway, it has been announced by H. J. Humphrey, vice-president of eastern lines, Canadian Pacific Railway and president of the D.A.R. The car's chief function will be to provide meals for the large groups of servicemen travelling on this important run.

Converted from a buffet parlor car at the Canadian Pacific's Angus Shops in Montreal under direction of H. B. Bowen, chief of motive power and rolling stock, the "Blomidon" accommodates four more than the usual number. This is accomplished by placing four tables seating four persons opposite each other and then following the usual plan of a table for two opposite one for four. A feature of the kitchen, a section of which is shown in the inset, is full insulation of the range to conserve fuel. A new departure is provision of a wash room. The conversion from buffet parlor is in line with the Company's policy of making fullest use of all equipment in wartime.

While catering to Canada's fighting forces is the main concern now, Laurie Ellis, manager of the D.A.R., has pointed out that the "Blomidon" is particularly suited for peacetime passenger traffic which comes to the D.A.R. at Yarmouth by steamship from the New England States.

The car is named after Cape Blomidon, the steep red bluff overlooking the Basin of Minas, centre of Indian and romantic legends.

Commencement Exercises Digby High School

Mr. Chairman, Members of the School Board, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is with pleasure that I present this, my second report to you and the public.

You have mentioned the staff changes that have taken place this year and the changes which will take place next year, so I shall not mention anything about them.

Our school has grown during the present year. Last June we had four hundred and forty pupils on our registers. This June we have four hundred and eighty-six pupils on the register—an increase of forty-six pupils. Our Grade I class is the largest in the history of the school. We have one hundred and six students on the Register. In the fall of the year it was necessary to cut our class into two equal parts and add a new teacher to the staff. The two sections of Grade I have been attending half sessions all year, alternating each week from morning sessions to afternoon sessions. This has definitely been a handicap to the pupil. It is, however, the only way in which the overcrowded conditions could be overcome. The teachers in the Grade I class have done an excellent job considering these difficulties.

In our first eight grades we have an average of fifty-one pupils per room. With an overcrowded condition such as this it is almost an impossibility to obtain good results.

The people of the town are not as yet educationally conscious. This is shown from the fact that so few of the students who start school in Grade I reach High School. Our present Grade XI class when in Grade I had fifty-seven members. Only eight of them have reached Grade XI together. The Grade X class had a membership of sixty-six students in Grade I. Sixteen of them have come to Grade X together. The Grade IX class had forty-eight students in Grade I, only seven of them have reached High School together. There were a few who failed a year somewhere along the road and are in High School. In these three grades there were one hundred and seventy-one in Grade I. There are now forty-four of them in High School. This is only twenty-five per cent of our Grade I getting into High School. The percentage who graduate is much lower than this. It is hoped that as the youth of our town remain in the services and find that an education is necessary for progress that they will do all in their power to write to their parents, who, in turn will encourage the younger members of the family to receive an education.

As teachers we have to consider that it is not only the mind of the student that comes to school but the body as well. With this in view we have tried to develop a varied program within the school.

A boys' club and a girls' club were organized—presidents, vice-presidents, secretaries, and treasurers. All student activities have been carried on under these two clubs.

Under the boys' club we sent a track team to the indoor track meet at Annapolis Royal in the fall of the year. Up until Christmas we had a boys' basketball team which played games with the Air Force Boys stationed in the town and with a team of town boys. The Cadet program was carried out under this club. In this course the boys studied foot drill, physical training, first aid, internal combustion engines, knots and lashings, map reading, field craft, woodcraft, and signalling. Those of you who were able to see the Inspection, I am sure, feel that the boys did a mighty fine job; especially when one considers that it is their first year as cadets.

The Girls' Club has sponsored the sending of Christmas cards to former students and graduates of school, the writing and sending of news letters to these same boys, the making and selling of novelties, High School Red Cross, Home Nursing and First Aid.

The two clubs worked together in the fall of the year and sponsored a dance from which they received one hundred and fifteen dollars.

The boys have sponsored two tag days from which they have received a total of two hundred and eight dollars. They have uniforms ordered for the senior cadets and sufficient money on hand to pay for these uniforms.

During the year the students of the High School have had several parties and a picnic. The two clubs have earned their own money for their own activities and have financed all of their activities without going into debt.

I wish to thank the school board for supplying us with sufficient funds to erect a set of swings for the lower grades. The swings have been enjoyed by so many of the students that the teachers have been conducting sandwich sales under the direction of Miss Campbell, and have raised sufficient money to build a group of teeters.

During the year a set of steps was built into the attic so that the waste space might be used. The bookcases, which have been placed in different rooms, were, this year brought into one room, which we now call our library room. Books, chiefly fiction, have been lent 868 times in Grades V to XII inclusive. This means about three books per pupil in these grades. In addition to the above activities the students of the school have contributed $33.51 to the Navy League of Canada, $77.23 to the Aid to Russia Fund, $43.37 to Junior Red Cross, and slightly over $4,000 to War Savings Stamps, Certificates, and Bonds.

CLASS PROPHECY, 1943

Grace Vincent

This is the time when, through the sweet June days, The graduates pass to seek their separate ways.

This is the time when their desires must be So strong, the gods must pause to hear their plea.

Who can predict how they may use The gifts of life before them so profuse?

Not I, indeed, but I've listened to their questions patiently and kind; And tried some word of counsel wise to find.

Here is the Senior Class of Digby High.

I'll start it first with Marguerite.

McNeill is her last name. We doubt though if it will always be the same.

What's this I see, why! Marguerite a nurse!

Well, now, that's good! I'm sure she might do worse. There's always need of a loving heart and hand To care for those who constant care demand.

And she seems gifted with a tender heart.

Yes, I believe she's fitted for the part.

I'll now call attention to Miss MacKay. She is quite sure of having her say.

From a large building up in the north.

A Social Welfare worker comes forth,

On looking again—whom do we see

Why, no one but Harriet—good gracious me!

Well! Well! She's bound to win the prize I guess.

Im sure I wish her every known success.

Look at Mr. Wright, who was the light of the school

Because he was ne'er known to break a rule.

Robert now has a kind little wife

And they live happily without any strife.

An electrical engineer is he Trying to invent something new, we see!

This is Mr. Franklin, I don't have to tell.

No leader he needs, he's doing well.

Squadron Leader, or is it Wing Commander?

Don't let the plane tip, Ave. when you first try to land 'er.

It needs much patience, in practice—years.

But that's forgotten as success appears.

As a dietician, whom do I see But myself counting out calories.

Oh, these proteins and carbohydrates!

I used to get them mixed. But Mr. Eaton saw that in my mind,

I got them "fixed."

I have now named all the Senior Class

Which from Digby High School is to pass;

I'm sure they're very brave and wise and true,

And they will prosper well in all they do.

CLASS WILL—Robert Wright:

We, the class of 1943, being about to pass out of this sphere of education, in full possession of a crammed mind, well-trained memory, and almost superhuman understanding, do make and publish this our last will and testament hereby revoking and making void all former wills or promises by us.

As to such estate as it has pleased the Fates and our own strong hands and brains to win for us, we do dispose of the same as follows:

Item.

We give and bequeath to the dear faculty who have been our instructors in all the wisdom of the ages, a sweet and unbroken succession of restful nights and peaceful dreams.

No longer need they lie awake through the long watches of the night to worry over the uncertainty of whether this one is doing her homework or that one will complete his lab. reports or the other one will have her French done in morning class.

It has been a hard strain on them, for Seniors are said to be at all times and under all conditions difficult to manage. But they have done their duty and they shall now have their well-earned reward.

Item.

Again we bequeath and give to our beloved faculty all the amazing knowledge and startling information that we have furnished them from time to time in our various examination papers.

We know that much of which we have imparted to them in this way must have been entirely new to them as well as to all teachers and students everywhere. If the faculty see fit they are hereby authorized to give out any such of this information to the world as they may feel the world is ready to receive. This of course is left entirely to their personal discretion.

Pasture Yield is Month Behind

Pasture yield at the Dominion Experimental Station at Kentville is fully a month behind that of last year according to information contained in notes on pasture plots made by A. Kelsall, station superintendent. There is a difference so great between the two years that it would be almost unbelievable if actual records were not kept, says Mr. Kelsall. Other points of interest contained in these notes are the comparative scarcity of white clover as compared with last year, the fact that nearly all pasturage to date is that on which nitrogen was included in the fertilizer mixture, and the marked difference in yield depending on fertilizer treatment. "The information on pasture yields," says Mr. Kelsall, "I would hardly have credited myself but for the fact we have the actual records."

On a twelve-acre field at the Kentville Station, says Mr. Kelsall, there have been conducted for a considerable number of years, certain fertilizer plots. Within this area there are eight fields each of exactly one acre and thirteen small fields of one-fifth acre each. These are all fertilized in different manners.

On May 29, 1943, twenty-three head of cattle, of various sizes and ages, were turned on to this area, the fields being pastured in rotation. At the time of making these observations, June 21, the growth of herbage had been sufficient to support these, but only just sufficient. The experimental plots do not occupy the entire area, and including check plots there is a considerable part which receives no fertilizer at all.

There are some remarkable differences in the herbage in 1943 as compared with that of 1942. The actual yields of grass are obtained by means of cages scattered through the field, the location of which are periodically changed, and the grass from which is frequently clipped and weighed. At the time of writing this note, June 21, the yield of herbage on every single plot was less than the yield of herbage on the same plot obtained on the date of May 28, 1942. Thus the yields from our pastures to date without exception, are very much less, in fact fully a month behind. This is a difference so great that it would be almost unbelievable if the actual records were not available.

A second point of interest is the comparative scarcity of wild white clover in all plots as compared with the previous year. In some of the plots at this date in 1942 the areas had an appearance of being almost solid white clover, whereas the corresponding plots in 1943 show mostly grass. However, this decline in white clover is only partly responsible for the decreased yield of herbage.

The following are some of the characteristics of a few of the plots. The herbage on the fertilized plots, depending on the amount and nature of the fertilizer tends to become more and more Kentucky Bluegrass and Wild White Clover, whereas on corresponding check plots there is almost none of either of these plants. Plots which receive nitrogen give good pasturage much earlier in the season than other plots. The plots receiving mixed fertilizers at higher rates have a more extended season over the others, being both earlier in the spring and producing grass likewise later in the autumn. In round figures, check plots have averaged approximately 4,000 pounds of grass per year. The grass, receiving superphosphate alone, 600 pounds per acre every three years, produced approximately 8,500 pounds of herbage. 600 lbs. superphosphate and 100 lbs. potash every three years has produced approximately 13,000 pounds of herbage per acre annually. 600 pounds superphosphate, 100 pounds potash every three years with 100 pounds nitrate of soda every year produced approximately 16,500 pounds herbage per acre. 600 pounds superphosphate, 100 pounds of potash and 100 pounds nitrate applied annually produced approximately 25,000 pounds herbage per acre.

Mr. Kelsall concludes with observing that in 1943 the areas which to date have given nearly all our pasturage are those on which nitrogen was included in the fertilizer mixture. The plots to which minerals alone were applied are very late indeed.

N.S. Bred Guernsey Makes Fine Record

Nova Scotian bred Guernseys sold to Ontario breeders have created highly favorable comment over a long period of years. One of the most recent R.O.P. records issued was that to CLOVER'S HONEY, owned by Donnelly Farm, Pine Grove, Ont. As a four year old she produced 12,717 lbs. of milk, 566 lbs. fat in 305 days. Bred by W. L. Cook, Salem, Yarmouth Co., N.S., she was sired by PATRICIA ST. PATRICK, which later was sold to Oakfield Estate, where he is now in service as Senior herd sire.

N.S.A.C. Calendars Now Available

The calendar of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College for the 1943-44 term has been printed and may be had on application to the College Registrar, at Truro. The calendar gives detailed information about the 5-months farm course which opens November 2 and the 2-year degree course opening October 3. Tuition in both courses is free. Those interested in taking either course should get in touch with the College at an early date.

Praises Work of N. V. Jankov

High praise for Nicholas V. Jankov, Head Gardener at the N.S.A.C., Truro, is contained in a letter received by Hon. John A. McDonald, Minister of Agriculture, from Francis A. Robinson, president of the American Landscape School, Des Moines, Iowa.

President Robinson, in announcing that Mr. Jankov had been awarded Grade "A" in all subjects in a recently taken course in Landscape Design said, "he completed our course in seven months which is far above the average student. We feel that the average student is doing nicely to complete the course in two years. Both the written work and design work was excellent. It showed he spent hours of constant study and thorough concentration."

In witness whereof, we the class of '43 have, to this our will, set our hands and seal this eighteenth day of June, A.D., one thousand nine hundred and forty-three.

VALEDICTORY, 1943—

Harriet MacKay

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the School Board, Members of the Faculty, Undergraduates, Classmates and Friends:

At last it is our turn to weigh anchor and leave the quiet harbour of High School life. As we make ready to leave port, however, we should like to pause for a moment before sailing into the unknown tides of the future.

While pausing and thinking things over, we realize how fortunate we are to be living in a Democracy and to have received the framework and part of the structure of our education in a school like Digby Academy.

Gentlemen of the School Board and Citizens of Digby: We offer to you our earnest appreciation for your interest and support in our education. It is you who have given us our school with its capable staff of teachers. You have done all in your power to make our school life more profitable and more enjoyable.

Members of the Faculty: It is to you we owe our greatest debt. Your patience and understanding have not gone unnoticed, even though at times our appreciation may not have been apparent.

We realize now, that were it not for you, we would still be groping in the dark waters of ignorance instead of swimming without great difficulty, toward our long-coveted goal.

Mr. Eaton, Miss McWhinnie, Miss Campbell and Miss Zinck, have our thanks and gratitude which spring deep from the heart.

Now for a word about our Cadets. We believe them to be very efficient, well-trained, and well-commanded. On their behalf we should like to thank everyone who showed interest by so generously supporting them on their tag day.

We should also like to pay tribute to the many boys and girls of Digby, including our former principal and teachers, who are now fighting to protect our liberty. Our High School Red Cross has remembered them, not only by knitting, but also by sending news letters to keep them informed on local and school happenings.

Undergraduates: We know that you are excellent material for next year's Grade XII class. This is made evident by your ability in social and athletic activities as well as in your studies. We all wish you luck and the very best of success.

Finally, I address my classmates: We know that we are to take different routes on the Ocean of Life and this may be the last time that we shall be together as a group. However, we shall carry with us many happy memories of the pleasures and successes which we have shared.

We are blessed with a good beginning and a multitude of opportunities. On our voyage, may we use these in such a manner as to command the admiration and respect of everyone.

Let's face the future cheerfully, meet our problems fairly, keep to our ideals devotedly, and struggle manfully to be true citizens in this war-torn world and in the world we hope to see when it has been freed from the forces of darkness.

I thank you.

WILL THE CROP BE HARVESTED?

Answer:--It Depends on Labour

This is a straight question and a straight answer.

There are no ifs, ands or buts. If the farmer gets the essential help the harvest will be brought in—if he does not the crops will stay on the farms.

FARMERS OF NOVA SCOTIA are making strenuous efforts to meet 1943 production goals.

Important factors are Feed, Fertilizer, Labour. The Government is paying freight on certain grains for feed from the Head of the Lakes. Fertilizer Sales in Nova Scotia are well ahead of last year. Thus it is seen Labour is the chief limiting factor.

A good part of the crop has been put in and the rest is being planted. The program would have been greater had there been more labour and more favorable weather.

What has been planted must be cultivated and harvested. In this connection men with farm experience are urgently needed.

High School students are helping but there are many men in nonessential industries that could help. There are experienced men in towns and cities who could be of real value at peak period. What are you doing? Spending your vacation, or whatever time you can spare, on the farm is one way you can help to produce food. If you can help in any way do so!

Struck by Steam Shovel—Loses Ear

Walter Gerrard, of Arichat, Cape Breton, narrowly escaped death Monday morning when he was struck on the head by the back of a swinging steam shovel at work on a war construction job, at Digby.

Gerrard, who is an oiler, says the shovel gave him a glancing blow, however, he did not realize he was hurt or that anything had happened until he felt blood running down the side of his face—the “glancing blow” having cut off practically one half of his left ear. The wound was dressed at the Digby General Hospital Monday morning.

Temperance Address Given

On Friday afternoon, June 25, Lic. Lawrence Atkinson addressed the pupils of the Advanced Department of the Centerville School on the subject of temperance. Everyone present enjoyed the attractive and interesting manner in which it was presented.

During the afternoon the following readings were given by pupils and teacher:

The Victory Garden—Murray Cossitt

The Two Portraits—Ralph Morehouse

Is It Nothing to Me?—Helena Clayton

The Tramp—Mrs. H. M. Clayton

Over There—Hilda Hubley

A Little Pilgrim—Mrs. H. M. Clayton

Ice cream was served and later, temperance blotters, contributed by the Grand Division of Nova Scotia, were distributed.

Roll Call Services Held

The annual Roll Call of the Lower Granville Baptist Churches was held at Port Wade Sunday evening, June 27, with a large congregation present. Rev. Harold Hopper, pastor of the churches, was in charge, assisted by Rev. G. D. Brydon, of Bear River, who preached the anniversary sermon. Special music was rendered by the different choirs: an anthem by the Victoria Beach choir; a duet “Have You Been in the Garden with Jesus,” was sung by Rev. Mr. Hopper and Mrs. William Winchester, of Granville Beach. Two anthems, “My Anchor Holds” and “Holy is the Lord” were furnished by the Port Wade choir, also a memorial solo, “God Understands,” sung by Mrs. Chester Nauss.

The Hill Grove Baptist Church held their annual Roll Call services on Wednesday June 30, with an afternoon and evening service.

In the absence, through illness, of Rev. F. E. Bishop, D. D., of Digby, who had planned to act as master of ceremonies, Rev. T. F. McWilliam, of Deep Brook, conducted the song and devotional services and also gave a forceful and soul-stirring message.

The church roll was called by the clerk, Lloyd McNeill, and the members responded with their favorite verse of Scripture. Among the many letters received from absent members and friends was one from Mrs. Daniel Roberts, of Vancouver, who has just past her 92nd birthday, (the oldest member), who despite her age is in full possession of all her faculties, and wished to be remembered to all her friends. At the close of the service the clerk asked the members present to observe one minute's silence in honor of the memory of those who had passed on during the year: Deacon J. A. H. Nichols, Mrs. John Balser, Mrs. Martha Denton, Joseph O'Neill and Mrs. Ruth Nichols. A beautiful memorial bouquet was placed on the communion table by Miss Florence Bacon, to which was a card suitably inscribed.

The evening session opened with a service of song, scripture reading and prayers by Rev. L. B. Wright, of Annapolis Royal, who also preached the anniversary sermon. His convincing and inspiring address made a deep impression on the large congregation present. The church choir under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Darcy Roope, furnished appropriate music for both services, including a number of special selections which were much appreciated.

This church, one of the pioneer Baptist Churches in Digby County, was organized and dedicated on July 2, 1837, and the services just closed, held in commemoration of the 106th anniversary, were in the point of numbers of responses, attendance and offerings, the most successful ever held. The total thank offering received to date amounted to $270.

Thanks is due the many workers and friends at home and abroad for this generous response. Thanks is also due the Wallis Print for their splendid cooperation in getting out the letters in record time and in such good shape.

Sunday School Conventions Held

The Sunday School Convention of the Digby Neck district was held in the Sandy Cove United Church on Thursday, June 24. Mr. Laurence Atkinson was chairman. The theme of the convention was the Sunday School Advance with its emphasis this year on “Teach All You Reach.” Encouraging reports were presented from the afternoon session under the leadership of

MARRIAGES

Cosman - Hankinson

A lovely outdoor wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Hankinson, of Weymouth, on Monday afternoon, July 5, at 4 o'clock, when their youngest daughter, Muriel Christie, became the bride of Sgt. Wilfred Cosman, C.A.D.E., son of Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Cosman, of Weymouth. The double-ring ceremony was used and the marriage was performed by Rev. Donald Stockford, of Lubec, Maine, assisted by Rev. F. M. Johnston, of South Range. The wedding march was played by Mrs. K. M. Hankinson. The bride looked lovely in her dress of white chiffon, as she entered the garden on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was floor length with a full skirt, and sweetheart neckline. Her bouquet was of white roses, pink carnations and orange blossoms. She wore the conventional veil while little Janet Powell, of Digby, who looked winsome in her dress of blue organdy, held her train. Little Jean Grant, niece of the bride, also dressed in blue organdy, was flower girl, and carried a basket of roses and snapdragon. Gordon Smith, in his suit of white and blue velvet, carried the rings on a white satin pillow, tied with red, white, and blue streamers. Mrs. Daniel Hankinson, matron-of-honor, looked charming in her floor length gown of pink chiffon, shimmered at the waist with a sweetheart neckline. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations, and wore a pink shoulder length veil fastened with a crown of pink flowers. Daniel Hankinson, R.C.M.P., brother of the bride, was best man. The outside decorations were red, white and blue streamers, cut flowers on the veranda, while the lawn itself was completely surrounded with mock orange shrubs in full bloom. The ceremony was performed under an arch of mock orange. The interior of the house was decorated with cut flowers. Mrs. F. O. Hankinson received in a dress of navy sheer over navy and white, and wore white accessories. Her corsage was of sweet peas. Mrs. Cosman, mother of the groom, also wore navy sheer with white accessories and wore a corsage of sweet peas. Refreshments were served to about 150 guests, those serving were: Maureen Hallett, Jessie Potter, Mrs. Clifton Goudey, Jean Doty, Estelle Doucette, Kathryn McNeil, Violet Nesbitt and Mrs. Donald Sabean. The groom's gift to the bride was an engraved sterling silver locket bracelet with his regimental crest. The bride's gift to the groom was an identification bracelet with his regimental crest. The gifts to the pianist and matron of honor, were sterling silver compacts and to the groomsmen a set of military brushes. The little train bearer and flower girl were presented with silver brooches engraved with their names, and Gordon Smith, with an ivory-handled pen knife. The bride's going-away suit was of navy blue with Roman stripe accessories. The happy couple left on a short trip through the province and Prince Edward Island. Mr. and Mrs. Cosman were the recipients of many costly and beautiful gifts including over $100 in cash, showing the esteem in which the two were held in the community. Mrs. Cosman was formerly a teacher in Weymouth Academy and for the past year has been on the staff of the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Sgt. Cosman is at present stationed in Halifax in the Dental Corps office.

Cookson - Morehouse

The Digby Baptist Church was the setting for a lovely evening wedding when at 8 o'clock on Friday July 2, Edith Hart Morehouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Morehouse, Sr., of Digby, and Frederick William Cookson, R.C.N.V.R., of Montreal, were united in marriage. The church was beautifully decorated with garden flowers and was filled to capacity with the many friends and acquaintances of the bride and groom. With the playing of the wedding march by Mrs. Harold Nichols, the bride entered the church on her father's arm. She was dressed in white chiffon and wore a train length veil of white net. Her bouquet was made up of beautiful callilies surrounded by white carnations. Her bridesmaids, Miss Frances Dickson, Miss Phyllis Dickie and Miss June Campbell were dressed in mauve, turquoise and rose with matching flower hats and carried sprays of garden flowers. The groom was supported by Clifford Wheeler, of Montreal, and ushers were William McEwan and Rod Thompson, all of the R.C.N.V.R., and at present stationed at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Dr. DeWolfe, of Wolfville. During the signing of the register, Hedley Dakin sang the forever lovely “O Promise Me.” After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home where refreshments were served to about fifty guests. The following day the bride and groom left for Montreal and the Laurentians where they will spend a month's vacation. Only out of town guests were Mrs. Jessie Cookson, of Montreal, mother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Saunders, of Sandy Cove.

“Tiny Tattler” Has Suspended

Canada's smallest newspaper “The Tiny Tattler,” founded ten years ago last February by a fourteen-year-old school boy, Ivan A. Shortliffe, has temporarily suspended publication. This little newspaper, during its career, received nation wide publicity, and was featured in many publications and on the screen.

Published in the little village of Central Grove, on Long Island, Digby County, the “Tiny Tattler” built up a circulation which at one time nearly the 2,000 mark, and within a short time after the first issue came off the press in February, 1933, received second class postage privileges, making it a “full-fledged newspaper.”

Ivan's partner in the venture was his school chum, Rupert E. Cann, who has carried on since Ivan vacated the editorial chair about three years ago.

To a large measure the paper owed its beginning to James J. Wallis, of the Wallis Print, Digby, and editor of the Digby Courier. Mr. Wallis, on learning of Ivan's interest in printing, made him a present of a small hand press along with other equipment and lots of encouragement. Others too, including the Mersey Paper Company, gave the young publishers their support and material help.

The founder of the “Tattler” is now in the make-up staff of the Halifax Herald, and was recently with the Canadian Press, Halifax. Prior to his joining the Canadian Press he served two years on the staff of the Digby Courier. We understand Rupert hopes soon to be with the R.C.A.F.

Muriel Hankinson “Showered”

The home of Mrs. P. K. Gates, president of the Weymouth Reg. Cross, was the recent scene of a “shower” given in honor of Miss Muriel Hankinson, who entered the room to the strains of the Bridal Chorus played by Miss Margaret Purdy. The room was artistically decorated with red, white, and blue streamers and the Union Jack. The bride - to - be was presented with a red, white, and blue nosegay of 28 War Savings Stamps, the presentation being made by Miss Freda Gates. During the evening Clifton Goudey entertained with several piano selections.

Miss Hankinson was again the guest of honor when a large number of young people gathered at her home to present her with a surprise shower. The group quietly entered the home, gathered about the piano, playing and singing the Bridal Chorus while Miss Maureen Hallett ushered in the bride-elect. Miss Hankinson was presented with a lovely bridge lamp by the group.

About This and That

The manpower shortage seems to be one of the country's chief problems. People in high places are clamoring for men for this and women for that. Men with wives and children are to be taken into the armed forces. Our armed forces are fighting and many are giving their lives to make the world a better place in which to live. At least they think so. But what about the professional politicians? There seems to be no shortage of manpower when it comes to federal employees. There are many thousand civilian federal employees and they do not all live in Ottawa. Scattered throughout the provinces these employees seem to be placed in the most strategic positions, not to make the world safe for the four freedoms, but rather to make the next election safe for the politicians.

With vegetables retailing at $6 an armful, it's no wonder country editors don't get them any more.

At meetings and gatherings of different kinds this year there can be noted a more serious air on the part of the people. Programs and exercises are less humorous than they were a year ago. The problem before this country, its people, and the other countries and peoples of the world is one of such weight that it has a sobering effect on all of us.

Now that victory for the allied nations seems assured, the question of a just and permanent peace is looming up. War called for quick thought, action, and activity on the part of all people. Peace calls for deep serious thinking and should be planned before the fighting ceases. The winning nations should constantly keep in close touch with each other regarding the peace as well as the war strategy.

An optimist is a victory gardener who still believes that vegetables grow faster than weeds.

The problem of finding school teachers for the ensuing term is appalling. Many competent teachers are leaving their profession to accept better-paying positions. They should remember that a few years ago, when teachers were more plentiful than schools, the government created jobs for them until they could be placed. Now that there is a serious need for competent teachers, why should so many leave? After a while, when there will be no more war jobs, there will still be schools and children to teach. Then the government will not be able to come to the rescue of the unemployed as it has done in the past. The teachers who stick to their jobs now will be the ones the school boards will stand by in the future. Teachers should think of these things before leaving something permanent for uncertainty.

Almost everybody in the country is now working for the government, but only a few hundred thousand get paid for it.

Strikers and strike leaders are mutineers aboard the ship of stabilized democracy upon the sea of war.

Pay increases obtained through promotion are justified and desirable, as they provide an incentive for advancement. But simply to raise the pay of workmen in their present jobs is purely inflationary. For people to believe that blanket pay increases will help them meet their increased budgets is only wishful thinking.

We must all face the grim reality that wars cost money and that much of the money must come from our present incomes. To do this we must eliminate luxuries and make our possessions last longer, and this is doubly desirable, with the supply of civilian merchandise limited. It is far better that we meet the cost of war now by sacrifice than later through the ravages of inflation.

Dominion Day Celebration
Successful Affair

The weather man smiled on Digby last Thursday, with the result that thousands of persons came to town to witness Digby's Dominion Day Celebration, sponsored by the Digby Board of Trade, and officially opening the new athletic field, located on the old golf course at the head of Church Street.

The programme (posted as to Carleton Street and back along Water Street to the reviewing stand at the band stand, where the entries were judged by Rev. Leo Murphy of St. Patrick's Church, Rev. Thomas W. Hodgson, of Grace United Church, and Rev. F. B. Gaskill, of Trinity Church.

The procession was headed by an exceptionally well-trained company of "Wrens" from H. M. C. S. Cornwallis, Deep Brook; B-Coy., Digby Reserve Army with their band, and some fifty members of the Weymouth Reserve Army, and the "Miss Canada" group, who promoted the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates. Then came the gaily decorated floats, bicycles, horse and ox teams and calithumpian entries.

In announcing their decisions, the judges awarded first prize for the floats to Gerald Sanford, of Farmers' Market. The second prize went to Jersey Farms Hotel. Miss Lillian Theriault, butterfly costume, captured the first prize in the bicycle parade, while Miss Emma Tower was awarded second place in this section.

One of the main features was the doll carriage parade. This group of youngsters did not follow the parade throughout its long route, but joined it just before the main body arrived at the reviewing stand. The judges gave first prize to little Joyce Warren, and second to little Miss Norma Haight. Special prizes of War Savings Stamps was awarded to the entire group of children which included Charlotet Watson, Mary Winchester, Marjorie Bremner, Juanita Weir, Shirley Everett and Lois Turnbull.

Horton Stark and Mrs. Dominic Melanson were prize winners in the calithumpian section; St. Patrick's Social Club for best horse team float, and Joe Jefferson for the best ox team.

The parade was immediately followed by water sports which took place in front of the band stand. In these events personnel of H.M.C.S. Cornwallis played an important part, the cutter and whale boat races attracting much attention. In these events ten whale boats and four cutters took part.

There were only two entries in the single canoe race, Watson Peck, taking first place, and Henry Peters (both of Bear River), second. The Peck brothers and Henry Peters with his father, fifty eight year old Louis Peters, also participated in a double canoe race in which the Peck brothers won. Eber, Watson, and Louis Peters also staged a log burling demonstration. The most exciting feature on the afternoon programme were the horse and ox pulls which took place on the road near the new athletic field.

There were four entries in the ox pulls, a team from H. T. Warne Ltd., winning first place, this team hauling 4715 pounds, or 158 per cent of their weight.

Second place went to Genos Sanford, whose team started 4495 pounds, or 153 per cent of their weight. Clifford Robbins' team started 4360 lbs., or 148 per cent of their weight, and another team of Genos Sanford's started 4495 pounds, 136 per cent of their weight.

Harry Jefferson's team took first place in the horse team pull, his team, weighing 2670 pounds started 4845 pounds, or 181 per cent of their weight. The 3200 pound team entered by Alan Taylor, started 5500 pounds, or 172 per cent, was given second place, while Louis Frude's team started 4660 lbs., or 157 per cent.

Soft ball games also had their inning in the afternoon's programme, while a picked navy and local team battled on the baseball diamond in the evening. This was followed by a concert presented by H.M.C.S. Cornwallis 55-piece band, boxing matches between Navy contestants and open air dancing.

A CALCIUM CHLORIDE-TREATED SURFACE LIKE THIS...

COSTS NO MORE THAN A LOOSE DUSTY SURFACE LIKE THIS...

IN HUNDREDS of rural districts, maintenance of gravel roads with Calcium Chloride has brought immediate relief to nearby farm homes. It has put an end to dust which damages crops, increases housework, makes driving on farm-to-market roads unsafe, unhealthy.

Highway and maintenance engineers have found that the Calcium Chloride maintenance method, which brings such benefits to rural residents, actually costs no more than ordinary maintenance without Calcium Chloride. The Calcium Chloride pays for itself by saving much of the frequent re-gravelling and dragging which is essential without it.

Thus highway officials get better value for their expenditures, conserve funds for other essential work and contribute more effectively to the welfare and comfort of rural residents when the Calcium Chloride maintenance method is used.

Calcium Chloride is made entirely in Canada.

Comeauville Home Burned

Marcel Comeau's house at Comeauville burned to the ground last Tuesday afternoon. Fire was discovered in the morning and the local bucket brigade soon had the fire out, it having started in the attic. Later in the day fire broke out again and this time it had gained too much headway and could not be put out. With no fire fighting facilities in this district the bucket brigade is the only means of extinguishing a fire and this serves very little purpose if the fire is discovered too late. The house was formerly owned by Adolph LeBlanc, now of Little Brook, and had been sold to Mr. Comeau but recently.

Mrs. Ordella Chute returned on Friday after spending three weeks at Sandy Bottom Lake.

H. M. C. S. Cornwallis at Deep Brook

H. M. C. S. Cornwallis, Deep Brook.—The Royal Canadian Navy has met the challenge of training as many sailors this year as in the past three with this new-born naval city on the lush shores of a Maritime summer resort.

On some 800 acres of land which rolls gently back from the salt water of the sheltered Annapolis Basin has been erected, more rapidly than any similar project in Canada, a ($12,000,000) naval training establishment that is one of the most modern, complete and efficient of its kind in the world.

It has solved what threatened to be a training bottleneck when Canada assumed nearly one-half of the vital job of convoy protection on the North Atlantic Ocean.

Its purposes are simple. It will take semi-trained ratings from basic training establishments and turn them into practical seamen; and it will teach ratings with sea experience to operate and maintain more complicated equipment and to keep up to date with constant innovations to such equipment. Similarly with officers: new entry officers will be given training in technical equipment, and those with sea experience will be trained for specialist duties. It has helped to solve an instructor bottleneck; one centralized, co-ordinated training staff trains more men more efficiently.

In terms of insurance its cost is trivial; a 50-ship convoy is worth several times 50 million dollars, to say nothing of the fact both ships and cargo are priceless in terms of war supply. One efficient anti-submarine rating may detect U-boats, and a crew skilled in seamanship, gunnery, torpedo and engine room practice may drive them off or destroy them.

On single convoy runs Canada's sailors have saved from enemy's torpedoes cargoes worth several times the cost of Deep Brook—and exacted a toll of enemy U-boats and trained men.

That is why Deep Brook has been built on a mammoth scale. Its water supply system would care for a small city; its coal dump will store 20,000 tons; its gun battery is the longest in the world; 6,000 men can stand on its five-acre parade ground; it has its own hospital, post office, bank, spur railway siding.

One year ago the first sod was being turned. Today bulldozers, cats and stone-crushers still snort past the columns of thousands of marching men who have moved in to occupy every available inch as fast as it has been built.

For the contractors it has been an ideal site. The land is sandy loam, easily worked, easily drained; there is no rock, no swamp or other natural impediments. It is served by a main highway and a rail line.

The moderate climate has made prefabrication practical, and even the contractors have surprised their own experts with the speed with which ready-made trusses, walls and roofs have grown. Some buildings, as big as anything of their kind in the world, have been complete a few days after the placing of the first uprights.

The buildings—there are about 100 in all, are of wooden frame construction, with fire-proof finish inside and out. Barracks blocks are provided with plenty of light, air and washing facilities.

For the navy, too, it is an earth. Here "D.C." men ideal site.

In the healthful summer-resort atmosphere of Deep Brook, away from the distracting influences of seaport cities, sickness among the men has dropped more than 25 per cent. In its sheltered valley and basin the weather does not seriously hamper training ashore or afloat summer or winter. The harbour is open, all year. In addition to the rail line and road, ships can anchor near by, and training ships of the establishment can proceed with classes throughout the year. It is handy to the large operational bases of the R.C.N., for manning purposes.

It has plenty of room for expansion, and for the phase of training that is receiving high emphasis today—physical culture and recreation. Men in the peak of physical condition study better, work better, fight better.

Total cost of the land has been about $52,000. So ideal a location was the main site of the present establishment that it had been chosen for a permanent estate by the late E. P. Morse, multi-millionaire. His 375 acres were purchased for $26,000. The residence, which had not been finished inside at his death, is being made over for the officers' wardroom; the farmhouse has been made over for the captain's house; the garage, which originally cost $22,000, has been made over into a fire hall and offices. Other buildings have been utilized by the navy.

Into the huge schools and shops are going the most modern equipment and training methods, the result of almost four years of war experience, and the best ideas of schools in the United Kingdom and the United States. Everywhere the emphasis is on the practical, with full-size and smaller models of the different parts of a ship and its armament—from the highly secret, most advanced submarine detection apparatus to the dry-land boat on which the prairie sailor first learns to feather his oars.

After instruction in school, classes get underway in ships to put their theory into practice, so that they graduate ready to take over their fighting jobs at sea as soon as they get their first ship.

Of the schools themselves, seamanship ranks high in importance. Along the corridors are "salty" signs: compass and helm, bends and hitches, anchors and cables, rigging—but perhaps the night and day lookout table is most interesting of all. Here in a huge room is built a model corvette bridge. On a false horizon controlled lighting simulates dawn, day, dusk, night, sunrise... on a gray-green sea between, convoys may move, subs may nose about, enemy raiders may fire with red flashes of cordite.

On such models as these men may be trained at will under artificial conditions for eventualities they might wait months to encounter at sea, although every opportunity is given to train on the ships attached to the base, and in whalers, cutters, and other naval craft. From the models, lookouts know what to expect; they may even taste a bit of seasickness for the first time, because the model bridge rolls, yaws, pitches and alters like a ship at sea.

Outside the door, on dry land, is a skeleton model of a ship, with bridge, voice pipes and depth charge throwers and rails jutting from the throw depth charges into sand pits until their instructors are satisfied they will act automatically even if tired, sick, or stage-struck, at sea.

In the gunnery school an arched dome carries a false German plane, and below anti-aircraft ratings try their skill at bringing it down... in the huge gun battery others learn the details of the big guns, some of them so new they are the only ones of their kind in use in Canada.

In the Mechanical Training Establishments the engine room men learn everything from the use of a lathe to how to clean a boiler.

In their leisure moments, the ratings, the hundreds of Wrens who are relieving men for sea duties, and their officers, explore the peaceful Maritime centres nearby... the tiny villages of Clementsport and Deep Brook, the towns of Digby and Annapolis Royal, both famed in Canadian history—Annapolis Royal, once capitol of Nova Scotia, one of its oldest centres. Officers, ratings, and Wrens have taken enthusiastically to a new hobby at the establishment—landscape beautification in the wake of the construction men, and victory gardening.

When the thousands of construction men and naval personnel descended upon the quiet shore, grocers' shelves were sold bare of every luxury, often of many necessities... restaurants were swamped, a town dance deluged with visitors. Only one service centre has been opened so far, although others are promised.

Service canteens in the establishment do a booming business, but cannot begin to cope with the demand for pop, chocolate bars, chewing gum, peanuts... the bank and post office have opened astounding numbers of new accounts that swell with every pay.

And in the evening the senior officers look with satisfaction at their young Canadian charges, not seeking the bright lights or dance halls of an international seaport, but training with zest for victory in cutter races, cross country runs, softball, baseball, football games—or, perhaps, relaxing in one of the camp's movies or service shows.

Plan Safe Storage Of Canned Goods

Government statistics show a temperature of 50 degrees or below is necessary to preserve the quality of canned foods. To much moisture causes the lids to rust and stored vegetables or fruits to rot. Furthermore, canned goods should be kept in the dark.

To hold your family's canned foods for use from October to April, you should have a storage room measuring at least four by six feet. A corner of the basement some distance from the furnace, preferably on the north and having a window is ideal.

For constructing your storage cabinet, use two-by-fours for the upright pieces and one-inch boards for the shelves. Use plasterboard or something of the sort for walls that can be nailed on, quickly. These double walls are important for insulation.

If you use the window for ventilation to let the cool air in and the hot air out, screen the openings with close mesh strong gratings to keep out mice and rats which might enter there.

Shelves should be about a foot wide. These will accommodate three rows of pint jars. For easy cleaning, proper ventilation, and a precaution against water in the cellar, keep everything off the floor. This goes for crocks of pickles, sauerkraut, and stored potatoes, apples, squash, and the like. Wooden bins with bottom slats to provide ventilation should be built for these stored foods.

If you haven't a cellar in which to build your storage cupboard, a sheltered section of a back porch may be used. Make a wooden cabinet to fit the space and use two or three sheets of insulating board as a lining to protect against frost.

NOVA SCOTIA FARM NEWS

Should Order Brooder Coal Early

Although it is a long time till next February or March poultrymen would be well advised to forget the calendar and at a very early date order coal that may be needed for the next brooder season. Departmental officers point out that the coal situation is serious and commend the Coal Controller for his foresight in advising poultry raisers to take early action so that they will be sure to have the necessary supplies for the next brooding season.

Wool is Grading High

Wool is coming in fast and is grading high according to reports received from the grading stations at Truro and Antigonish. Well over one hundred and seventy-five thousand pounds have been received at the end of June. Of this Antigonish reported 95 per cent graded Military Style and qualified for the four cent a pound government bonus, while wool at Truro graded about 90 per cent Military Style.

Wool received this year has given indications of improved care, shearing, feeding and general management. The percentage qualifying for bonus is about the highest in Eastern Canada. Formerly there was a depreciation of Nova Scotian wool on account of the condition in which it was marketed.

While all the wool should now be at the grading stations it is expected that the two stations will be kept open the greater part of July. Any producers who have not shipped their wool as yet should do so without further delay.

Means Floor on Strawberry Prices

On account of the great shortage of jams the government is giving a bonus of three cents a pound on strawberries used for making jam. This bonus will allow processors to pay producers not less than 15 cent a quart box of 20 ounces. Reports received from Ontario indicate that some processors have paid up to 18 cents with crates and boxes returned.

Provided there is ample processing of strawberries to remove the surplus this bonus will virtually place a floor of 15 cents or more per quart box on Nova Scotia strawberries this season, stated F. W. Walsh, Nova Scotia Director of Marketing. Translated in terms of fresh berries this means a minimum price of about 20 or 21 cents a box wholesale delivered in towns and cities. While in recent years consumers have been able to buy fresh strawberries at ten or fifteen cents a box it is doubtful if the price will drop this year below 25 cents a box.

While the season is ten days or so late, compared with last year, picking got a fair start in the Valley Friday, June 25, when one hundred crates of pints were shipped from both the Berwick and West Kings marketing organizations. Canning district started shipping Tuesday. Producers, while badly held up by the unreasonable weather, are hopeful for more favorable conditions and a fair crop.

Bees Should Be Well Supplied

People who have imported package bees this spring, should make an effort to assure themselves that the bees are well supplied with stores to tide them over during this present inclement weather. Recent investigations show that many of the packages installed a few weeks ago are starving for the want of adequate stores.

This is an abnormal season, and clover is not showing up in a normal way. A very small amount of sugar syrup will tide them over until the weather clears up. Otherwise, many of these colonies that are short of stores will perish. Where starvation is threatened, sugar purchase permits may be obtained from the Provincial Apiarist at Truro.

With the prospects of a good nectar flow from the clover and every possibility of an excellent fall flow, beekeepers would be well advised to give their colonies every possible attention. To neglect them may mean a total loss, while to give the needed stores now should result in a fair return.

Hatcheries Have Record Output

Nova Scotia Hatcheries operating under the Dominion Hatchery Approval policy reported chicks hatched to June 15 this year, 1,009,304 with an average hatchability on eggs set of 72.6 per cent. This is a record out put for the hatcheries of the province, which number 32 with a total capacity of 374,157 and is approximately 200,000 chicks more than the total chicks produced last year.

Two hatcheries operating in Cumberland County with an increased capacity over last season have hatched approximately 60,000 chicks. Most of these chicks have been sold in nearby districts and the mortality reported by the customers has been under one per cent. Chick mortality in the province on a whole has been normal and somewhat lighter than last year despite the unfavorable weather for brooding.

Steers Bring Good Prices

The Central Nova Scotia Shorthorn Club held a very successful show at Weldon Dickey's, Middle Stewiacke, with which were combined the Middle Stewiacke Calf Club show and a sale of twenty-five head of beef cattle. The improvement made over last year was remarked on by Hon. John A. McDonald, who spoke briefly, warmly commending the club for its excellent work.

W. W. Baird and Guy Dickson, of Aulac, divided the work of judging the large and good quality exhibits. Both gave interesting and instructive talks during the judging work. They spoke on the desirability of quality and finish in the cattle and commended the parents and farmers who were giving splendid assistance to the boys' and girls' clubs.

The sale brought out fifteen head approved by the committee. The champion steer exhibited by W. A. Flemming, Truro, brought a top of 16½c., the reserved champion owned by Perley McCabe selling for 15¼c. The average price of the cattle sold free of price ceiling restrictions under the special permission of the W.P.T.B. averaged 13½c. cwt., and the ten sold under ceiling restrictions afterwards averaged about 11c. While prices were not spectacular, sellers were well satisfied, as higher quality was recognized and paid for. W. McNutt, Truro, bought the champion steer; Vincent MacDonald, Antigonish, the reserve champion.

New Apple Varieties

The need for improved mid-season and late apple varieties in Nova Scotia is recognized more acutely as Annapolis Valley growers look to Canadian markets and processing plants instead of to overseas markets for sale of their product.

A project of apple breeding to improve the present variety list in Nova Scotia has been underway at the Dominion Experimental Station, Kentville, for several years. More than 31,000 seedlings of known parentage have been planted out, but it is only within very recent years that a sufficient number of these have fruited to give some indication of their possible value as replacement sorts for those already established in the Valley. By 1940, 1,000 seedling trees had fruited and of these, nine had been selected for further trial. Since that time about 3,000 more trees have fruited, all but 28 of which have been discarded. The 37 types saved for extended trial will be thoroughly tested at the Kentville Station for fruit size and quality, tree growth and cropping characters, and resistance or otherwise to apple scab. Those that stand the scrutiny of testers at Kentville will be distributed among Annapolis Valley growers for further trial.

There is no advantage in saving these seedling sorts, unless a new variety is definitely superior in quality, colour, uniformity or length of season to a standard variety already known to the trade. Of the main Nova Scotia varieties used as parents in this breeding project (Cox Orange Pippin, McIntosh, Gravenstein, Wagener, and Northern Spy), one in three seedlings already fruited have had Cox Orange as one parent. This variety seems to transmit its high dessert quality to a greater degree than the other parent varieties used.

Another parent that has been widely used in this project is Red Winter Reinette. This variety is not of high quality, but colors and keeps exceptionally well, and is definitely resistant to apple scab. It is confidently hoped that of the 31,000 seedlings growing at Kentville, several new varieties will be produced, that are superior in some respects to those already grown in the Annapolis Valley.

Canning Coupons Good Till Sept. 30

Letters received at the Regional Ration Office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board indicate that a large number of persons throughout the Province believe that they must use the June Canning Sugar coupons during the month of June. This is not the case, Major J.E. Campbell, Regional Superintendent of Rationing, states. All the Canning Coupons are valid from the first of the month marked upon them and do not expire until September 30. Thus the two June coupons, valid now, will still be good until that date, and the July coupon, becoming valid in a few days, can be used at any time until September 30. This arrangement will permit use of sugar as fruit for canning becomes available.

Unique Find In a Garden

Archie J. Amero, who lives on the so-called French Road, out of Plympton, made a unique discovery on Thursday last. Following the rain storm of the night before he found his cucumber rows filled with water. Digging to clear the water, about a foot underground, he found a spoon, blackened by age. He took it to his house and cleaned it and was astonished to find, engraved on the back, the name "J. R. Sullivan," and the year "1875" and the letter "C" in old English. The spoon is sterling silver. The ground in which it was found has not been worked for forty years.

Red Cross Notes

Digby Branch

The month of June marked the completion of the 1000th Red Cross quilt by the Digby Branch and auxiliaries. Although scarcity of materials has now slowed down our quilt making, the quilts are still needed, and all available scraps are being used for this purpose. Sewing materials are in stock for dresses and undergarments, and a plentiful supply of yarn for turtle-neck sweaters and seaboot stockings. More workers would be appreciated to help with all of these.

We regret that the South Range Patriotic Club, which has made such valuable contributions to the Red Cross during the past two years, has found it necessary to disband. In discontinuing their work, they made a generous donation of materials to the Digby Branch, besides three finished quilts and the sum of $7.50, all of which are much appreciated.

Donations received for the months of May and June are gratefully acknowledged as follows: 7 quilts each, Ross-way Auxiliary, Trinity Guild; 3 quilts each, Centreville Auxiliary, Baptist Guild, South Range Patriotic Club; 2 quilts each, Marshalltown, Hill Grove and Culloden Auxiliaries; 1 quilt each, Barton Auxiliary, Conway Ladies' Club, Grace United Church Aid, Loyal Workers' Club, Service Wives' Club, Victory Club, Digby Red Cross Sewing Group; quilt top, lining and batts, Mrs. Loran Adams; quilt tops, lining and materials, Mrs. Nosworthy, South Range Club; quilt lining and materials, Mrs. Fred May; 1 afghan, Miss Scott; Clothing, Royal Store Club, 3 sweaters, 2 skirts, 1 coat, 1 blouse, yarn; Barton Auxiliary (per Mrs. Fream and Miss Perry) 2 dresses, underwear, 12 pairs shelter slippers; Ross-way Auxiliary, 1 pair shoes, 1 dress; Mrs. Dick Sabean, 2 dresses, 1 jacket; Mrs. Deming, 1 blouse; Mrs. Nosworthy, 1 baby jacket; South Range Club, 1 dress; Mrs. Richard Lynch and Centreville Auxiliary, dress and coat material; Mrs. T. J. Harris and Mrs. Rankin, felt hats.

Shipments for May and June were as follows: 24 service sweaters, 1 pair service gloves, 13 knitted face cloths, 47 quilts, 2 afghans, 65 pairs boys' shorts, 12 boys' shirts, 24 women's slips, 26 girls' slips, 12 nightgowns, 28 dresses, 35 sweaters, 3 skirts, 1 three-piece suit, 1 coat and bonnet, 2 boys' two-piece suits, 12 pairs shelter slippers. Total 313 articles.

Red Cross Notes

Ross-way Auxiliary

The Ross-way Auxiliary sent the following completed articles to the Digby Branch for the month of June. 2 large quilts, 2 women's slips, 2 babies' slips, 1 woman's dress, 1 long-sleeved, turtle-neck sweater, 1 child's sweater, 2 pairs boys' pants, 1 girl's dress (donated), 4 children's dresses and 1 girl's coat.

Do You Remember Deep Brook?

Down in this section of Nova Scotia we have always regarded Deep Brook as one of the prettiest villages around. Deep Brook with its well kept homes and lawns and farms has long been considered one of the "best groomed" of Nova Scotia rural communities; a lovely village—the home of the Spurr's, the Ditmars', the Purdy's, the Sulis', the Adams' and others of old Loyalist stock. For years Deep Brook has been regarded a prosperous farming community (the home of Ditmars' Bronze Top Swede Turnips)—its reputation has been high among the summer resorts of the Dominion.

But Deep Brook is now another place. It is no longer a village, but a big town. True, it is as beautiful and well groomed as ever, but it is not the Deep Brook it was even a year ago. A year ago, had anyone asked us the population of the village, we would have replied "between 300 and 400"—but now, just take a glance at these figures from the 1943 Canadian Railway Guide:

Town	Population
Deep Brook	8,400
Stellarton	5,302
Yarmouth	7,999
Amherst	8,481
Kentville	3,928
Wolfville	1,910
Digby	1,660
Annapolis Royal	767
Liverpool	3,142
Lunenburg	2,833

The figures for Deep Brook include the 400 population of the village while the figures for other towns are exclusive of any service population and are given that our readers may better picture the size of the Deep Brook base.

Become a Member of Navy League

Commencing on Monday, July 26, canvassers will be calling on the people of Digby in the interest of the Digby Branch of the Navy League of Canada. They are deserving of generous support in the campaign and need town and district-wide membership to carry on the work this branch has planned.

By opening Lour Lodge, one of the most popular tourist hotels in Eastern Canada, as a hostel they have provided a place of comfort, enjoyment and entertainment to the men of the navy and other services, who may be with us this season and throughout the months to come. The operation of this hostel will require the whole-hearted support of all who are called upon to assist.

A house-to-house canvass will be made. Any contribution of $1 or over entitles the donor to membership in the League with the right to have a voice in the running of affairs at the annual meeting and helping select officers and managing board. Contributions are deductible from the income tax returns.

The Wife's Reward(?)

If a wife saves money out of her housekeeping allowance to whom does this money belong? This question is likely to provide material for lively discussion over many breakfast tables. For the judge at Oxford County Court has allowed a claim by a husband for 103 pounds standing to his wife's credit in a cooperative society on the ground that this had been saved out of the housekeeping money. His Honor explained that the legal position was that if a wife was able to save money from housekeeping such money was due to the husband. He added that money made by the wife from lodgers was also due to the husband, who provided facilities enabling them to be taken in.—Manchester Guardian.

Memorial Service

A very impressive memorial service for Pilot Officer Arthur Green, R.C.A.F., who paid the supreme sacrifice, was held in the United Baptist Church of which he was a member, on Sunday morning with members of the Legion and Reserve Army attending in a body.

Arthur lost his life in an air raid over Germany in October, 1942, and with six others was reported missing. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland K. Green but from childhood had lived with his uncle, and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Green.

He was beloved by all who knew him and great tribute was paid to his memory on Sunday morning. A ladies' quartet sang "Rest, Soldier, Rest," and other hymns were, "Faith of Our Fathers," "Lead Kindly Light" and "O God our Help in Ages Past."

The floral offerings in his memory were many and beautiful. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his country."

Last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Snow entertained in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Harry Purdy and a most enjoyable time passed all too quickly. Delicious refreshments were served, including the traditional birthday cake with "all the fixings" to show the esteem in which Mrs. Purdy is held by her friends, which was much appreciated by her.

More Coal and Oil in Sight

The most unpromising parts of the world sometimes have unsuspected attractions. The zero temperature is a warm wave, has great beds of coal underneath its icy surface. In Northwest Canada, the Mackenzie River region is nearly as bleak, and to most people has seemed almost as unattractive. All this may be changed before long. Vil-hjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, reports that the Mackenzie has oil fields which contain more oil than all the rest of the world's fields together. To know what this meant to that area's future development, ask Oklahoma and Texas.

Digby Stores "Up Against It"

A few weeks ago merchants and the general public of Digby were confident arrangements soon would be made to enlarge the present quota to Digby stores, however, generally the situation has shown no improvement, and in some respects has grown steadily worse. It is impossible for Digby merchants and people, under present conditions (it is estimated that due to the influx of new citizens and trainees at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, Digby's purchasing power has increased by 300 to 500 percent during the past year.)

Possibly the most acute shortage is in meats. This is in spite of rationing. It is not unusual for the two markets in Digby to be "sold out" of fresh meats. When fresh stocks do arrive the rush is so great they have on occasions been compelled to lock their doors until customers inside the stores were waited upon. Other food supplies are also in short supply. Grocery shelves are practically bare, and new stocks, on arrival, are frequently sold out in a matter of hours. The merchants are doing their best to cope with the situation and are careful not to let customers buy more than they really think they need, and claim the general public is co-operating splendidly. They also contend that Digby's short food supply has in too many instances encouraged hoarding. Certain groups learn in some manner when fresh goods arrive, and make it a point to go from store to store purchasing small quantities in each store, before the information becomes general knowledge.

Although confectionary is not regarded as a "necessity" there are actually only a few hours in the week when it is possible to buy candy in Digby. The store fortunate enough to get a supply is barely able to keep it in stock overnight. Others save their candy stocks until Saturday. Boxed chocolates are as rare as bananas.

Ladies' hosiery is also among the acutely short items, and it is next to impossible to get anything in the line of children's clothing, especially undergarments.

Membership Of Religious Bodies

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports that results of the 1941 census showed Roman Catholics, including those of the Greek Catholic faith comprised 43.3 per cent of Canada's total population, and that nine of the principal religious denominations in Canada had more than 100,000 adherents.

Leading Protestant denominations were the United Church of Canada, whose followers comprised 19.2 per cent of the total population; Anglicans with 15.2 per cent, and Presbyterians, 7.2 per cent.

Baptists were relatively most numerous in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, with 15.4 and 19.4 per cent of their respective populations professing this faith. They were followed by Prince Edward Island with 5.7 per cent, and Ontario with 5.1 per cent. Persons of Jewish faith were concentrated in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba with relatively small numbers in the remaining provinces.

CALCIUM CHLORIDE TREATMENT
MAKES GRAVEL ROADS SMOOTH, DUSTLESS, LIKE THIS...

OF A SURFACE, LIKE THIS

Tires Last Longer on Smooth Surfaces
The abrasive action of loose gravel on rubber tires causes as much as 47 percent greater wear than on paved or stabilized surfaces. Sidewalls take almost as much punishment as the treads. Smooth, tightly-bound consolidated surfaces are easy on tires. Sidewalls are not exposed to abrasion.

IN THESE times, when every available dollar is needed for a national war effort, highway officials are turning more to Calcium Chloride for maintenance of gravel roads.

Labour is limited and materials are costly. Both must be conserved. Calcium Chloride saves both and so pays for itself while it actually consolidates and improves gravel road surfaces—keeps them smooth and dustless.

So, wherever Calcium Chloride is used for maintenance, costly dust damage to roadside crops is ended, driving on farm-to-market roads becomes safer, easier, more comfortable; and housework in nearby homes is lightened.

That's the contribution Calcium Chloride maintenance makes to the welfare of rural communities... without extra cost.

Calcium Chloride is made entirely in Canada.

About This and That

The election of Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., as chairman of The Salvation Army National Advisory Board to succeed the late Sir Edward Beatty, serves once more to show how the work of this great organization is appreciated by men of discernment in all walks. Sir Edward gave unstintingly of his time to assist the worthy cause. Air Marshal Bishop has been a member of the national and Ottawa advisory boards for years, and it is fitting that a distinguished soldier become national chairman. In its early days The Salvation Army met violent opposition from both the ignorant and the intolerant, but today it stands not only as a monument to the sincerity and energy of its leaders, but as evidence of the newer spirit of human brotherhood. It was launched primarily to lend a helping hand to the humbler folk who were treated so generally with disdain by the more fortunate. It took to them the text and spirit of the Gospel, and offered them the hospitality and companionship they could not find in churches. Today The Salvation Army, still working on the fringe, and beyond, of church society, in a very large field, has won the admiration of all classes of people. It has carried on well a greatly needed crusade, and it is gratifying that the interest of able business men is readily enlisted in behalf of the cause so ardently pursued for humanity's sake.

There are no magnifying glasses powerful enough to enable a man to see his own faults.

Too many people today say, "It's my money, I earned it and I can spend it as I please."

But is it your money? Your government has spent for you—for your political, economic, and social security—perhaps more, and you must repay your government.

Until you repay your government, all the money you earn is not yours, and you cannot legally or morally spend that which is not yours.

Especially, you cannot spend in excess of your real needs and be honest with yourself and loyal with your government. That's your situation, and will continue to be until you are square with government.

For every way that is found to raise revenue, four new ones are unearthed to spend it.

C.P.R. Repays Loans In Full

Statements recently made in the House of Commons at Ottawa disclose the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway over the past few years has been a good client of the Dominion Government insofar as the latter has gone into the business of lending money to assist vital industries in the performance of services absolutely essential to the carrying on of the nation's business. Between the years 1931 and 1941, the Government advanced loans to the Company for various purposes as follows: During the summer of 1936 it was necessary to find work for unemployed men in many parts of Canada. To aid in this purpose the Government advanced to the Company a total of $554,700. This loan was fully repaid by installments between January 1938 and January 1942. Over the period the Company paid to the Government interest at 2½ per cent totalling $47,567.42.

Between September, 1935 and March 1936 the Government lent to the Company a total of $1,270,000 to finance the betterment and repairing of railway equipment. These were days when the depression had seriously reduced the Company's available funds for this work. The loan was fully repaid between January 1938 and January 1942. No interest was to be paid on this loan for the first two years, but later interest payments at 4 per cent were made to a total of $170,854.79.

During the period 1935 - 38 the Government purchased railway equipment to a total value of $5,730,000. This was sold to the Canadian Pacific under a hire-purchase agreement and the entire amount was repaid to the Government by January, 1943. This loan was interest free for two years. After that period the Company paid interest at 3 per cent, a total of $610,978.61.

A similar arrangement was made for the purchase of equipment over a period including the years 1939 and 1941. The Government lent the Company a total of $9,951,489.64, at 3½ per cent interest. This was fully repaid by December 1942, with interest thereon amounting to $844,990.53. Over the period until these loans were fully repaid, therefore, the Canadian Pacific made a total interest payment of $1,674,391.35.

The only other outstanding loans which the Company owes the Government are two which were made for the purpose of helping to keep the country's workmen employed between November 1931 and January 1933. The depression was then at its full height and it was necessary that something be done to check the growing unemployment.

Large industrial concerns were approached with this end in view and the Canadian Pacific agreed to assist by going on with the work that would otherwise have been left to more prosperous times when the Company's funds were better able to take care of it. For this purpose the Government advanced to the Company in 1931 a total of $1,447,221 repayable one demand without interest when the Company resumes dividends at a rate of more than 5 per cent per annum. In 1932 and 1933 the Government advanced another million dollars repayable on demand without interest before the Company pays any dividend on its common stock.

Promises More Equipment in 1944

There definitely will be a greater supply of farm machinery in 1944 than there was in 1943 and about 75 per cent of the tractors to be released in 1944 will be mounted on wartime rubber. A statement to this effect was made by R. W. Gallup, Ottawa, Executive Assistant to the Administrator of Farm and Construction Machinery and Municipal Services, when in conference with a number of farm machinery company officials at the Agricultural College, Truro, on Thursday. The meeting was called to discuss problems of rationing and was presided over by W. P. Ellerton, Farm Machinery Rationing Officer for Nova Scotia. Just how well this wartime rubber tractor tire will stand up remains to be seen.

Mr. Gallup outlined the progress of the rationing of farm implements in Canada, and compared the Canadian System of production and distribution control with the system in effect in other countries, and said he felt that the system had worked with considerable satisfaction.

Referring to the rubber situation Mr. Gallup said that implement tires already in stock and frozen should be distributed for use on implements for which they were designed, after sufficient supplies had been set aside for replacements. Furthermore, a limited number had been made available for tractor change over when the need of rubber could be sufficiently well indicated.

A number of those present spoke on the rationing situation, and, while there was some criticism of individual points, the rationing scheme as a whole received favorable comment. Also, there was considerable commendation given to the local Rationing Officer for the manner in which he had carried out his duties.

Is Pleased With Part-time Project

Great satisfaction with the part-time farming project in Cape Breton was expressed by Hon. John A. McDonald, Minister of Agriculture, following a recent visit to a number of the plots in the Glace Bay area. The project which got a real start last year is being operated on a larger scale this year with the number and size of gardens both doubled. The gardeners are industrial workers who are using time and land that formerly was for the most part unused. The gardens this year average half an acre. In addition to the home plots there are a number of neighborhood gardens worked co-operatively as regards preparing the soil and from there on worked individually, each man looking after his own part. These larger gardens vary in size, from being ten acres in extent. The work being done in the area was viewed by the Minister as a contribution to greater production by the industrial workers of the various communities and also as affording to indoor workers the best kind of outdoor recreation.

Representatives of the Department of Agriculture give advice to those interested in these part-time projects, the Department furnishes financial assistance with the plowing and harrowing, while the gardeners buy their fertilizer and seed co-operatively. All these engaged in the projects are expected to attend study classes given by the Department.

Pastures Coming Along Well

Pasture which was slow in starting has come along well and in many sections of the province is helping to further milk production, states Dr. W. V. Longley, director of extension, Nova Scotia department of Agriculture, in a month-end review of crop conditions for the province. An increase of 1.9 per cent in creamery butter production, with a total of 228,686 pounds, was shown in the report of the Dairy Superintendent for the week ended June 26.

Haying, reports Dr. Longley, started late in June in Yarmouth and Lunenburg Counties and is now in progress in some other sections. The crop on the old land is very light while on much of the low-lying land it has been definitely injured by the heavy rainfall. There is very little clover in the North Shore area while in most other parts of the province new seeded fields are showing up well and there are many excellent stands of clover.

Weather conditions have not been favorable to either little pigs or chicks. This, coupled with lack of proteins, has definitely affected their growth on many farms. Despite these conditions production is heavily increased. In poultry, Havre Boucher district reports 25,000 chicks, while Antigonish County has 85,000, Guysboro County 20,000, Hants County 100,000 and Lunenburg County 75,000.

The Annapolis Valley reports a heavy set of apples. While there has been some development of scab it would appear that on well-sprayed orchards control has been fairly well maintained.

The Valley reports a fifty per cent increase in the potato area.

Stations Report Cool, Wet Month

The adverse weather conditions the farmers of the province have had to face are revealed in a summary of the weather reports for the month of June issued from meteorological stations at Kentville, Truro and Nappan.

Nappan reported the heaviest rainfall of the three stations, the total precipitation being 4.95 inches. The average for the 35-year period is 2.79 inches. Kentville's precipitation was 4.59 inches and Truro's 2.93.

The month was cool as well as wet. Nappan had a mean temperature for the month of 54.65 degrees compared with a 34-year average of 57.95. The average mean temperature reported from Kentville was 50.99 degrees. Truro reported that on eleven days the mercury dropped below 40, with a minimum of 32 degrees. Kentville and Nappan both reported minimums of 31 degrees.

Kentville with a maximum reading of 86 on June 25 had the highest temperature of the month, Nappan coming second with 83 on June 25, while Truro's maximum was 77 degrees compared with a maximum of 85 degrees in the previous June.

Nappan reports the weather was too cool for good germination and growth, sunshine much below average and all crops much behind in growth.

Stallions Meet Requirements

The joint inspection for the Federal - Provincial Stallion Policy has been completed for the season. Stallions are inspected every three years and are classified as "A" or "B" according to size and conformation of their respective breed. Stallions classified under this policy are eligible to receive premiums from both the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, based on the number of in-foal mares in any season.

The total number of stallions in the province that have been classified under this policy is 33, eleven of which are classified as "A" and twenty-two as "B." Included in the latter are a number of three-year-olds, as "B" is the highest class in which this age group may be placed.

Eleven of the stallions are Percherons, eight Belgians, seven Clydesdales, three French Canadian, two Hackneys and one each of the French Coach and Standard Bred Breeds.

The young of the black bear are no larger than a cantaloupe when born.

MARRIAGE

Robicheau - Deveau
Sacred Heart Church, Doucetville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday June 28, when Miss Lena Deveau, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Deveau, became the bride of Payson J. Robicheau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robicheau. Rev. Father L. Gaudet, P.P., officiated. The wedding march and music was played by Mrs. Clifford Thibault. The bride looked charming in a floor length gown of white triple sheer with a floor length veil and a coronet of orange blossoms, her only ornament was a cameo. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and sweet peas with maiden hair fern. She was attended by her niece, Miss Violet Thibault, who wore a floor length gown of pale blue sheer and a picture hat of the same shade with a shoulder veil. Her only ornament was a cameo. She also carried a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas of pastel shades with maiden hair fern. The groom was supported by his brother, Frankie Robicheau. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's parents after which the bridal party motored to Digby. On their returning home a supper was served at the home of the bride's parents to nearly thirty relatives and friends. A reception and dance was held in the evening at the groom's parents, where they received many beautiful and useful gifts also a sum of money. The bride is residing at the home of her parents while the groom is employed at the Naval Base, Deep Brook.

Scary—but Overdrawn

The Army has finally confirmed the report that a Japanese plane flew over Oregon last September and dropped incendiary bombs in a national forest. When the chief of the forest service told a congressional committee all about it, "military reasons" ceased to require that it be buried in hush-hush. A lot of people must wonder why it was concealed in the first place.

This attempt to fire a national forest sounds menacing, but compare it with a rainless thunderstorm which hit the Olympic National Park in the summer before Pearl Harbor. The Japanese plane set one fire. The thunderstorm set not less than seventy-five. It took four men two hours to reach the "remote and inaccessible" Jap-set fire, which they quickly extinguished. It took from two days to a week to reach some of the Olympic fires, and 80 men to put them out. The Nipponese and the gods of lightning were up against the same obstacles—fire lookouts covering every acre of forest, and trained men ready to fight any blaze. —Chicago Sun.

Standard Railway Ticket Invented Century Ago

The familiar cardboard railway ticket with printed destination is in size and form exactly as when invented in Great Britain in 1836 by Thomas Edmonston for use on the Newcastle and Carlisle Railway. Edmonston, an astute Scot, was station master at Milton at the time. He adopted also a serial number to regulate the order of the passenger's admission to the trains and afterwards found that the serial number facilitated checking and kept accounts in order, a plan in use today. Soon after putting his system in operation, Edmonston standardized the size of his tickets at 2-1/4 inches by 1-3/16 inches and 1/32 inch thickness and although the ticket selling equipment in the Canadian National Central Station in Montreal is modern in every respect it will dispense tickets of that standard size which are in daily use on the railway.

Freight Canoes Still Best Bush Transport

Big freight canoes are still the most practical means of bush transport in the vast northern hinterland. Twelve 22-foot freighter canoes made in Fredericton were routed recently via the Canadian National Railways to far Northern destinations. Three of the canoes which are propelled by outboard motors are for Hudson Bay Company posts at Wabowden and Churchill in Manitoba and one for Waterways, Alberta.

Polish Women Get Training in Army

The Polish army, like the armies of others of the United Nations, is training women soldiers—but, unlike other countries, expects the women to go into actual fighting.

Girls throw grenades, put out incendiary bombs, fire rifles, and lay down smoke screens for attack in training on a large private state somewhere in Scotland. The first unit of girls is expected to replace men in the Polish air force as mechanics, weather observers and drivers.

Next comes a class to serve in the Polish navy. Four previous classes, intended for duty with the infantry, the signal corps, and other ground units, already have been given their basic training. Although they get the same course as men, with weapons and live ammunition, Polish officers stressed they are not to be used as combat troops.

Nevertheless, it is intended that women soldiers stationed at an airport under attack shall be able to defend themselves. Lt.-Col. Jan Rudnicki, chief of training of the Polish operational forces in Scotland, believes women could be used as combatants if necessary. He recalled that Poland in 1918 had a battalion of girls guarding supplies who made an excellent record and were quick on the trigger.

Their marksmanship instructor says that two-thirds of the class of women rated "very good" in marksmanship. In similar groups of men, he said, only one-fourth made that grade. Women soldiers are ambitious, keen to learn, and not afraid of weapons, he said, but they are not as good as men with hand grenades. They just don't have the pitcher's arm.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

LET'S LOAD THE SHIPS

TO BE used, most of Canada's war production must be carried beyond the seas. This means heavier ship loading and unloading operations than we have ever known before. The quick turn around of ships means more boats constantly on their way to the world's battle fronts.

The Port of Halifax—a strategic point in beating the U-Boat—needs more longshoremen. The Halifax men who fill the boats which pass out to the Atlantic deserve great credit, but their numbers must be increased. It will not be good enough to be content with the present rate of loading and unloading. More skilled longshoremen must be found.

By an order in Council (P.C. 5160 of June 25th, 1943) regulations are provided which require each "ex-longshoreman" to report his experience to his present employer, and also to report personally or by letter to the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office. He must report between July 15th and July 21st. He must then be prepared to accept direction to longshore work at Halifax. However, any man raising objections to transfer has a right of appeal.

For the purpose of these regulations an "ex-longshoreman" means any man who worked as a longshoreman for a total of not less than 12 months at any time since December 31st, 1938, or a man who holds, or has held a membership card, either temporary or permanent, in any longshoremen's association in Nova Scotia or New Brunswick, at any time since the same date.

The regulations require employers to make every reasonable effort to advise their employees of these regulations, and to discover among their employees any who are ex-longshoremen. Each employer must report on his employees in regard to this matter, to the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office not later than July 21st, 1943.

Ex-longshoremen and employers of ex-longshoremen are urged to follow out these regulations just as soon as possible. The need for longshoremen is urgent and vital. Ready compliance with the regulations is a duty to Canada!

Penalties are provided for failure to comply. After July 21st, 1943, it will be illegal to retain an ex-longshoreman in employment, except under special permit.

New Volcano Does Much Damage

The volcano that burst into eruption in the cornfield of an Indian near San Juan Paricutin, Mexico, last February continues its fiery freaks. It has killed hundreds of cattle, ruined crops within an area of 25 miles and driven between 8000 and 10000 peasants from their homes. Dr. Baz, Minister of Welfare, rushed to Michoacan aid that saved from starvation livestock deprived of pasturage by lava and white-hot ashes. Thousands of tourists have flocked to see the volcano, and the government is paving the road out of Urapan that connects with the volcano village. The Indian complains bitterly that after his cornfield had been taken from him "foreigners" overran his land.

Former Hotel Man Dead

Well known by the traveling public as the proprietor of the Acadia Villa Hotel, Wolfville, before its destruction by fire a few years ago, Frank Payson Rockwell died at his home there on Monday in the 83rd year of his age, following a lingering illness. Born at Westport he moved to Wolfville when a young man with his mother and sister and got his education at Horton Academy. Before going into the hotel business he conducted a book and stationery store in that town. He married Miss Grace Sutherland, of Westport, who died a few years ago. They had two daughters who predeceased their parents. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Fletcher Best, who lives in Florida.

Large Shipments Blood Serum

Large shipments of Canadian dried blood serum from countless donors in the Dominion have accompanied Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Units on the invasion of Sicily, according to cable advices received at the Society's National Headquarters from Major-General C. B. Price, Canadian Red Cross Overseas Commissioner.

"Thanks to the cooperation of Canadian Military Authorities, the Red Cross was afforded the fullest facilities during the planning stage, so that the moment action began the Society could furnish service immediately," the Commissioner said.

Base Medical Units attending the sick and wounded in the Campaign went forward completely equipped with Canadian Red Cross comforts, including bags containing cigarettes, combs, razors, writing material, shaving soap, tooth brushes, chewing gum and a considerable quantity of reading matter for patients. Large quantities of hospital supplies have also gone with the units.

A Canadian Red Cross depot has been established in North Africa under the direction of Major Bruce Jamieson, of Montreal, Deputy Assistant Overseas Commissioner, from which supplies will go to medical installations where casualties are being treated.

Plans made well ahead are being carried out to ensure complete Canadian Red Cross service to the sick and wounded in the theatre of operations.

Girls and Women Also Needed

At the present time women are taking an active part in ground duties in the R.C.A.F. and releasing men for aircrew training. Girls and women with civilian training as stenographers may be enlisted in this trade. Also, those wishing to realize their ambition to become stenographers may do so by enlisting for training in the R.C.A.F., and taking the special course offered by that Service. Other trades for which girls and women may be trained are: Clerks Operations Room duties and Wireless Operators (Ground). All information regarding enlistment in the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force may be obtained by writing or calling in person at the R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, Broadcasting House, 10 Tobin Street, Halifax, N.S., or by contacting the R.C.A.F. Recruiting Officer, when he visits the Community Hall, in Tiverton on July 28th from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.; the Community Hall in Freeport from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on July 29th; the Community Hall in Westport from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on July 29th; the Community Hall in Weymouth from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on July 30th and the Community Hall in Meteghan from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on July 30th.

Doctor Joins Air Force

Dr. Shirley E. Bishop, who was born at Freeport where his father, Dr. B. S. Bishop, of Kentville, once practised, has joined the Royal Canadian Air Force and reported for duty last week end. He is one of Kentville's well known physicians and was medical health officer for the town. He is a qualified pilot and ten years ago on his initial flight made from Halifax, following his graduation from Dalhousie with the degree of Bachelor of Science, he made a successful forced landing in a hayfield two miles from Kentville. His father, following his departure from Freeport, took up residence in Kentville and has been practising in the Valley for many years.

U. S. Ceiling Price On Scallops

Bad news for the scallop fishermen of Digby broke this week when it was announced that the United States had set a ceiling price on scallops. This action was taken by the Canadian government some time ago and last winter not a scallop could be purchased at any of the retail outlets. The ceiling price was 30 cents a pound but a change was made towards the end of the season which allowed a little higher return locally but the fishermen were getting such good prices in the United States that scallops were still out of reach of the local buyers. But now this big market is apparently closed, judging from the following clipping from a late issue of the Gloucester Times:

"The scallop dragger Alpar was the first to be affected by the new ceiling price ex-vessel on scallops and received the limit of 30 cents a pound. That's $2.70 a gallon. And that is a quick drop from the $5.40 per gallon that some scallop draggers received at Boston earlier this year. But the scallop draggers are not talking about tying up yet."

'22 Teachers Wanted'

The above is the caption of an advertisement appearing in this issue of the Courier over the signature of T. A. M. Kirk, Inspector of Schools for this area. The 22 teachers are required to fill vacancies in Digby Municipality and involve 21 of the 44 school sections in the Municipality. Freeport requires two teachers, one for the intermediate and one for the primary department.

Reception for Pastor and Bride

A warm welcome was extended to Lic. Bernard Manzer and bride on Tuesday evening, July 13, when a large number of friends from the three Protestant churches of Barton and Brighton met at Vista Cottage, the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Welch, for that purpose. Suitable and acceptable gifts were presented by Mrs. A. Specht for the ladies of the Baptist Church; by Mrs. M. Bacon for the ladies of the United Church, and by Mrs. P. Fream of the Anglican Church. Mr. and Mrs. Manzer responded happily. Mrs. Manzer, using a be-ribboned knife, cut the bride's cake. It, with other refreshments, was served. Games were played and a social hour enjoyed. The evening closed by all joining in a good old-fashioned "sing." Mrs. S. Cosman, organist of the United Church, presided at the organ.

Mr. Manzer is pastor of the Baptist Churches of the St. Mary's Bay District for the summer months and is being well aided by his young bride.

Oakdene Garment Club a Live Organization

The Oakdene Garment Club, Bear River, Digby County, is in every sense of the word, a live organization. Their activities for the year show just what a group of good, healthy normal girls can do for themselves and others when organized and well directed.

Here are some of the accomplishments of the year: won thirty prizes at the Bear River Exhibition; carried on regular garment club work and other club activities; designed and made sewing kits to be used in Ditty bags; made and sold many felt and wool novelties; held a Tag Day May 15 to provide further funds for club work; made health and nutrition a special project; started the idea of hot lunches at school, and filled three Ditty bags.

At their Club Show on June 3, the girls held their last business meeting for the year. At this time cheques were presented to the Red Cross, School Library Fund, and the Women's Institute for war work. Donations had previously been made to these organizations as well as to the Polio Fund, the Navy League, Ladies Hospital Aid Society, and Prisoners of War Fund. The Club also decided to pay the expenses of one member to the Girls' Club Camp at Pleasant Lake, Yarmouth Co.

Much regret is felt at losing Miss Pearl Campbell, who has been the local leader for the past six years. Miss Campbell has been untiring in her work with the girls, and it is through her efforts that the group has been so successful.

Celebrated 107th Birthday

Mrs. Sophie Comeau, widow of Vincent J. Comeau, Meteghan River, and who was born at West Pubnico on July 17, 1836, last Friday, celebrated her 107th birthday. She was formerly Miss Sophie d'Entremont, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sylvain d'Entremont (Marguerite LeBlanc) and is the last surviving member of her family.

Despite her advanced age, which now forces her to spend most of the time in bed, she enjoys all her faculties, sight and hearing being amazingly good. Many called Saturday to visit with her on the anniversary.

She was married 83 years ago by the late Father Blanchik, missionary to the Acadians. Her husband died twenty-two years ago, after sixty years of happy married life. Of ten children, four are living: Urie Comeau, Meteghan River; Henri Comeau, Haverhill, Mass.; Moise Comeau, of Malden, Mass.; and Rudolphe Comeau, Sergeant-at-Arms in the Provincial House of Assembly, and Warden of the Municipality of Clare, with whom she lives on the old homestead. She has her fifth generation by the birth of a daughter on May 24 to her great grandson's wife, Mrs. James Aymar, Meteghan, besides 95 grandchildren and 72 great grandchildren.

There will be an open air band concert at the Pavilion tonight, played by the eighteen members remaining in the Digby Civic Band under the direction of Paul Yates, bandmaster, with David Daley assisting. The original band of more than forty players has been cut down by enlistments in the Army, the Air Force and the Navy, and requisitions made by many of the larger and best known military bands in Eastern Canada. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock. Mr. Yates has invited a few players from the H.M.C.S. Cornwallis Band to join with the Digby boys for the occasion.

OBITUARY

Mark F. Thibedeau

Mark F. Thibedeau died on Thursday of last week at his home in Gloucester, Mass., at the age of 72 years, 10 months and 21 days. He had been ill at the Addison Gilbert hospital but returned to his home two days before his death. He was a native of Meteghan, son of Maurice and Helen (White) Thibedeau but went to Gloucester as a young man and followed the fisheries up to about two years ago. He was a member of Cape Ann Lodge, No. 1471, Loyal Order of Moose. He married Frances Comeau, who died on February 23, 1943. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Ethel, wife of Ernest Devere, and Mrs. Esther, wife of Thomas Rossiter; also a brother, Benjamin Thibedeau, of Nova Scotia; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Burke, of New Jersey; Mrs. Margaret, wife of John Moulison, of Rockland, Me., and Elizabeth Thibedeau, of Nova Scotia; and five grandchildren. The funeral was held from his home Monday morning with requiem high mass at St. Ann's Church at 9.45 o'clock. Burial was at Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. John A. Russell

Josephine, widow of John A. Russell, passed peacefully away at her home on Birch Street last Friday morning. She was one of the town's oldest residents having been born at Rossway on the 17th of August, 1850, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Titus. Since moving to Digby eighty-five years ago she has made the town her home with the exception of five years spent in Edmonton. Visit the Hostel Next Week

Everything is now in readiness for the drive for membership in the Digby Branch of the Navy League, which starts on Monday next. The town has been divided into nineteen districts, each with its own canvasser, and a house to house canvass will take place some time during the next ten days, and it is hoped that there will be a generous response.

The Navy League Hostel means a lot to the servicemen in this community. It is a "home away from home," a place where they can get a good meal at a reasonable price, a good bed if required, or it is a good place to spend a social afternoon or evening with games or other entertainment. Although sponsored by the Navy League of Canada, it is nevertheless a local institution to a large extent and the Digby Branch of the Navy League is responsible for it. To that end it is important that there be a live membership.

The Hostel is a busy place but next week they are taking three afternoons—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, between 2 and 5 o'clock—to throw the building open to the general public for inspection. Anyone may go and they will be met and shown through the institution by the members of the Ladies' Committee.

MARRIAGE

Morrison - Webber

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Digby, at 7 o'clock Monday evening, when Rev. T. W. Hodgson united in marriage Ada, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Webber, of Digby, and Calvin Morrison, of Glace Bay. The bride was prettily attired in a dress of powder blue with navy accessories and was attended by her sister, Josephine, who wore powder blue and old rose. The groom was supported by Peter Robinson, R.C.N.V.R., of "Cornwallis." Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left on a short wedding trip to Glace Bay.

Church cemetery. The pall bearers were A. R. Turnbull, A. J. Dillon, W. C. Warrington and J. J. Wallis.

Strawberry Crop Failure

To all intents and purposes the strawberry crop in the Digby area was a dismal failure. The crop was possibly the smallest in thirty years. The late and extremely wet spring was largely responsible for the small crop this year. Wet weather during the picking season was also responsible for the spoilage of a large percentage of the 1943 strawberry crop.

Retail prices in local stores did not drop below 25 cents a quart in comparison with the usual 10 and 12 cents a quart prices during the height of other seasons. Thirty-five cents a quart was the highest local retail price in Digby this year.

One merchant told us yesterday that his sales during the average strawberry season were in the vicinity of 1,500 and 2,000 quarts—this summer he has handled less than 500 quarts.

The scarcity of strawberries will also mean a scarcity of preserves and jams, as few berries could be obtained for these purposes.

About This and That

The Canadian people were given a peep into the post-war transportation world a few days ago when the Royal Air Force transport command told of the first successful sky train flight across the Atlantic Ocean.

This trip was made by an 84-foot glider loaded with a ton and a half of freight. It was towed by a twin-engined Douglas plane a distance of 3,500 miles across the Atlantic in 28 hours, landing safely on an airfield in England. Its start was made in Montreal.

That post-war sky trains have long been under serious consideration is shown by the fact that two American air companies already have filed application for permits to establish sky freight lines with the Civil Aeronautics Board at Washington. By 1950 they expect to see sky trains overhead with their loads of mail, express, and freight.

So the world shrinks daily. In the ten years following the close of the war we may expect the greatest development aviation has ever made, a transition that will have as much if not more effect on our daily lives than did the automobile less than a century ago. By 1950 we may expect to find thousands of military, commercial, and private planes in active service in this country.

Why do they spell "bureaucracy" with a "c"? Seems to us a "z" would be much better.

A great deal is being said, and deservedly, about the heroes of this war. Not so much recognition is being given to the heroines. Farm women and girls working in fields, operating machinery and doing numerous other tasks once performed by men. At the same time they are keeping up a wholesome home life. Without their helpfulness, courage, and spirit, our food production effort would certainly fail. In towns and cities, other women and girls are making Red Cross dressings, helping at the blood donor units, caring for children of working mothers, filling in for departed men at stores, gasoline stations, and shops. Many women are enlisted in the armed services. After the war is over have no fear, women will know their place and have a deeper love for the humble things in a world of peace.

Oh well, let's take comfort from the fact that present tax rates are only temporary. Next year they'll be much worse.

Post war plans are being discussed. New hope is springing up all over the world of allied nations. Eagerly we look forward to the day of peace when guns are still and our boys come home. War will belong to the past then, but we will not forget it as we forgot the last one. We will not say, "That is over. It cannot happen again." We know now that it can happen again. We know now that it can go on happening unless we establish conditions that invite no more wars. Experience is an old teacher and a harsh one. It has taken a bitter heart-breaking experience to awaken us to the realization that our own ignorance and indifference was partly responsible for this war. But we are wiser now—wiser by far!

So bring on the post-war plans. We are ready and willing to do our best toward building a better tomorrow.

If some of our higher officers would pull together as enthusiastically as they pull apart, this war might be won in no time at all.

German "Supermen" Tell Their Fears

(This article was written by a young Belgian girl who escaped to Britain a few months ago. No one should view it complacently with respect to the new German campaign in Russia or to the grim job of invasion now being undertaken by the allies, yet to some extent it may explain the eagerness with which so many Nazi troops surrendered in Africa, the reported mutiny of German submarine crews in Norway, and the stories of sagging Nazi morale in other occupied countries.)

If there is anyone who can tell you what is in the minds of German soldiers in Western Europe at the moment, I think I am that person. For though you may not believe it, and sometimes I can scarcely credit it myself, it is only a matter of weeks since I sat in the garden of my mother's home outside Brussels and talked with German soldiers and officers.

In June, 1940, they billeted six officers and nearly forty men upon our home, and since then, for nearly 3 1/2 years, we have lived side by side with the "masters" of Europe.

No longer do they believe that Adolf Hitler is god, no longer do the majority of them believe with an implicit faith in eventual victory. For Hitler has brought them, after three long years of war, more than victories, more than iron crosses, more than the spectacle of a plundered Europe. He has brought them disillusion.

I got to know the Nazis well. (To be sure, they did not know I was a member of the Belgian underground, whose job it was to remember and record all they told me.) No two of them will ever talk to you at one time, no matter how many years of friendship bind them together, for in each German there is the fear that the other may be a member of the dreaded Gestapo, the secret police. But when they are alone they will tell what lies in their souls.

One evening a young German soldier, who had recently returned from the Russian front, cried on my shoulder. It doesn't seem possible to conjure up a picture of a young Nazi weeping his heart out, sobbing over his pictures of a young wife and children, wiping away his tears to describe the hell which is the Russian front. Yet it is true. It has happened to me not once but many times during the last three years.

Let me give you a case of one man, whose morale slowly disintegrated.

It is one of many. X, a Gestapo man in the well-known Belgian town of Z., not a hundred miles from Brussels, came of a large Wurttemberg family. In 1940, when the victorious German army, with the Luftwaffe smashed its way through to the channel ports, he possessed five brethren. All five were in the German Army.

X was then a man of about 35; a typical Nazi, fanatical, brutal, believing only in one god, Adolf Hitler. Today he is a different man, a man whose soul has been rotted away by utter hopelessness.

You see, today X has no brothers. One by one he received word from his family in Wurttemberg that they had died for the Führer and the fatherland — four in Russia (two in the disaster at Stalingrad) and one at Alamein, all of them resulting from Hitler's "intuition."

I came to know him when I visited Z. to visit a sick relative. I had to report to him for a permit. In time I learned all about him.

As X's brothers were killed he began to drink. Then he spent his money on women.

This cost him more money than he had so he began to borrow, first from brother officers, then the quislings, finally from Belgian officials, who shrewdly led him into the pay of the Belgian underground.

Today he is working for us, having bartered his very soul to the patriots of those he had sent to concentration camps and firing squads.

As I said, his case is one of many. He is not the only German in Belgium who has been hounded to a hell on earth by disillusion and the specter of fear. The German suicide rate in Belgium is high.

But German soldiers in Belgium do not die by their own hands alone. Many have been executed by their comrades and many more will follow.

In January a young artist friend of mine, who had risen early to paint the winter dawn, was sitting on his stool outside the city in the country painting furiously away to capture the colors before they changed.

Suddenly two German transport vehicles drew up with a scream of brakes fifty yards away, at the fringe of a small copse of trees. They were filled with German soldiers. Some fifteen were in uniform with full equipment and carrying rifles. The other nineteen or twenty were dressed only in boots, slacks, and in collarless shirts. They stood huddled together in a terrified group.

At a barked command the twenty half-dressed soldiers were herded against the tree at the edge of the copse, where they were made to turn their faces inward toward the darkness of the underground. Another word of command and the firing squad was drawn up fifteen yards from their backs; yet another word of command and a volley, followed by a second, rang out.

Within three minutes the execution squad had thrown the corpses back into the lorries, and the vehicles had turned and were racing away down the road. Twenty German soldiers had been wiped off the roll of the Wehrmacht. For what reason he does not know. One can only guess. Probably they met their execution because of mutiny.

For disaffection among the German occupying forces in Belgium is rife. You have only to enter a movie theatre to learn that fact.

Usually at the beginning of the performance there will be a news-reel of some sort. Most of it will be devoted to scenes of fighting on Russian front. The commentators enthusiastically describing how the glorious German armies, advancing ever to victory in the name of the Führer, drives all before them.

He may believe what he is saying, but the German troops in the cinema, most of whom have seen service on the Russian front, most certainly don't. His words are greeted by catcalls, by jeers, by shouting and boos. Frequently the cinema is cleared by German guards.

You must remember what place the Russian front occupies in Nazi minds to understand how it is that a disciplined body of men such as the German army could enact such scenes. I have seen many divisions (or what was left of them) return from Russia at the conclusion of a spell of service there. They come back about one-third strong.

Just let that sink into your mind... of one whole division which was transported as a single solid fighting machine to Russia, with all its equipment and its freight of hope, two-thirds is left behind shattered and dead.

No single event in all this war, as I have witnessed it, has had such an effect upon the German soldier's mind as Stalingrad. For them it was the end of their hope, of their faith.

I do not say that the German army is not capable of another, tremendous campaign in Russia, even in the face of allied invasion. I do not risk another assault there. But I do not say that the German soldier individually and the German people themselves are sick of the fighting there.

A great part of the disillusion that has come to the German soldiers in Belgium has to do with the great bombing offensive of the allies. The soldiers hear the roar of the giant machines as they pass overhead in wave after wave through the darkness. They do not have to be told where the bombers are going. They know their destination is Germany, their own cities and towns.

The following day the news will leap from tongue to tongue, news which spread like forest fire.

"Last night it was Cologne—poor Hans—his wife lives in Cologne right in the centre of tenements in the factory area."

Or "Have you heard?—Himmel, it is terrible—Essen again for the third time in only ten days—God in heaven! How is it possible that we remain here when our homes have been blown out of existence—it is 2 months and 17 days since I have heard from Martina and the children. They are dead—they must have been killed—she always wrote so frequently—she would be bound to have written before this—"

You see, fear stalks these men, not only the fear of being sent to the Russian front, but the more intangible fear which they hold for their families in Germany. There exists for them no welfare service as you British have in your army to give the soldier news of his town when it has been bombed, to look after his family and provide for them until other homes can be obtained.

There is very little leave for the German forces of occupation. Sometimes they are not officially notified when their home towns and cities have been bombed until weeks afterward. Often they do not receive news of the death of a wife or a sister or a brother, a father or a mother, for many months.

That is the picture of the German army occupying Belgium today. The young, ardent fanatical Nazis still believe in victory and in Adolf Hitler. The older men are wearied of the war. They have lost hope, lost courage.

We Belgians see the fear on their faces. We smile grimly to ourselves. Yes, the struggle may be a long and desperate one; but the end is in sight. The Nazis are half-beaten. One day they will leave our land. Peace and freedom cannot lie far distant.

In Memoriam

IN LOVING MEMORY of a dear wife and mother, Bellezora, who passed away July 21, 1942. It's lonesome here without you. And sad the weary way. For life is not the same to us Since you were called away. But peaceful be your sleep, mother. It's sweet to breath your name Who loved you very dear in life. In death will do the same. You suffered much, you murmured not, We watched you day by day. We cried and prayed that your dear life Would not be taken away. To those who have a mother, Cherish her with care, There will never be another To fill her vacant chair.—Inserted by Merrill P. MARRIAGE

Thompson - Potter

A very lovely wedding was solemnized in the Clements-vale Baptist Church on Wednesday, July 14, at 10:30 a.m., when Edith Pauline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Potter, Clements-vale, became the bride of Sgt. Pilot A. Beresford Thompson, R.A.F., Greenwood, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Thompson, of Norton-On-Tees, England. The double-ring ceremony was used and the marriage was performed by Rev. G. D. Brydon, of Bear River. The wedding marches were played by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Watson Potter. The bride looked very charming in her dress of white chiffon, as, to the strains of Lohengrin, she entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was floor length and her full length veil of white net was shirred at front, caught with mock orange blooms. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and baby's breath, tied with white satin ribbon. The maid of honor was charmingly dressed in floor length gown of pink chiffon trimmed with net and hat to match. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas and fern. W.O. Harry Woolley, R.A.F., friend of the groom, was the best man. The beautiful arch under which the bridal couple took their place was of greenery decked with pink roses and mock orange from which hung white wedding bells. Surrounding the arch was a profusion of ferns, begonias, pink and white roses, peonies, and mock orange, making the setting, constructed by cousins of the bride, a very attractive one. During the signing of the register Mrs. G. D. Brydon gave a very beautiful rendition in song of "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Mrs. Watson Potter at the organ, after which the bridal party left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn. Mrs. Willis Potter, mother of the bride, wore navy blue and a corsage of roses and sweet peas. The ushers were Sgt. William Turner and W.O. Walls, both of Greenwood. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents immediately following the ceremony to eighty guests. Those serving were Mrs. Stewart Potter, Mrs. Frank Cashman, Mrs. Weston Sanford and Helen Potter. Miss Freda Potter presided as guest registrar and Miss Eileen Potter at the gift table. The wedding cake was exceptionally beautiful, of three-tier in square formation decorated with roses of icing and silver, topped with a miniature bride and groom under a white arch. The groom's gift to the bride was a silver vanity and the bride's gift to the groom, a smoking set. The maid of honor received a silver locket; the groomsmen, an identification bracelet; the ushers, billfolds; and the organist, pearl dress clips. Following the buffet luncheon, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti, by way of motor to spend their honeymoon at Evangeline Beach. On their return the groom will resume duties at Greenwood. The bride, a graduate of Yarmouth Hospital, recently resigned from the Annapolis Royal Hospital, where she was rendering valuable service as nurse. The bride travelled in a pale blue dress of sheer with hat to match and accessories of black. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were the recipients of many beautiful gifts as well as a sum of money. During the week preceding her marriage the bride was "showered" at the home of her parents.

Timely Recipes

Large Onions will cook in less time if you gash their centers. This allows heat to penetrate easily and quickly.

Leftover Meat Loaf makes a meal-in-one salad if the loaf is broken into chunks and mixed with hard-cooked eggs, cubes of pickle, mixed greens and mayonnaise.

A Little Tapioca prevents the juice from running out of fruit pies. Mix it with the filling.

Every Bit of unsweetened chocolate may be used if you heat it in its paper wrapper in the top of a double boiler. When soft, scrape it from the paper into cake or cookie batter.

Incidentally, you won't have to wash the melting pan. When Baking Pie make an extra nine-inch shell and some smaller tart-sized ones for use later. This saves time, labor and what is even more important, fuel.

Test boiled icing this way: Dip a spoon handle that has a hole in it into the syrup, then blow over hole. When syrup forms a balloon that does not collapse, the icing is done.

Shelling Peas long before you want to use them is one way of ruining freshness and flavor. Cook immediately, and in a minimum of water.

To Reheat Vegetables, place them in a wire strainer and set over boiling water, stirring occasionally. They will be piping hot in a jiffy, and will look and taste almost as fresh as when first cooked.

To Prevent Crying when you are peeling onions, try submerging them in cold water during the process.

Molded in lemon gelatin, a salad of raw diced celery and carrots gains added appeal. Chill gelatin until slightly thickened, mix in seasoned vegetables and chill until firm. Top with mayonnaise flavored with a teaspoon or more of vinegar and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Fuel Saver—Bake a big pot of beans, then place half in a sterilized jar and set in refrigerator. The beans will keep fresh for days and need only be heated before serving.

Apples become sandwich filling when prepared this way: Mix grated fruit with chopped nuts and enough mayonnaise to moisten, and spread on slices of whole-wheat bread.

Nutmeg enhances mashed potatoes. And if you have any sour cream, you might use it as a topping and save precious butter.

Hot Potato Soup becomes a meal in itself when slices of cold cooked frankfurters are added. And a sprinkling of finely minced parsley gives it a festive appearance.

Apple Pie tastes best, according to certain epicures when only sugar and a tablespoon or two of lemon juice are used as flavoring.

Grapefruit chopped with cabbage, mixed with mayonnaise and a bit of vinegar provides something different in the way of cole slaw. "Hospitality."

No Moldy Bread

To prevent a waste of baked goods, keep the cake can or bread box clean. Merely wiping out these containers will not discourage mold. A weekly washing with soapy water, rinsing, and drying in the air and sun are needed.

If bread still molds even in a container so treated, put the loaf in the refrigerator without removing its paper cover. Use the middle slices of the loaf and replace the heel each time the bread is put away. This will keep the bread fresh for a longer time.

And if you have trouble using up a loaf of bread, serve French toast once in a while. This can be done without the family suspecting you are using up stale bread.

People of Europe Given Radio News

One of the most powerful radio transmitters in the world is being used by the United States to tell the people of Europe the truth about the war in calm, matter-of-fact language. The station, located somewhere in North Africa, broadcasts news daily in the French, German, Italian, and English languages. And when the news is unfavorable to the allies no effort is made to hide that fact from listeners.

There are no musical accompaniments and other trappings of radio as is known in this country. The station's signature tune is "Over There," a song popular in the First World War.

The staff of the station, which is operated by the army, is made up of men from the commercial radio and newspaper field.

Propaganda is carefully avoided, and allied victories are described without bragging and exaggeration. Axis leaders never are attacked personally by the broadcasters.

The policy of telling the unfavorable as well as the favorable news is deliberate. For example, every development of the American coal strike was broadcast to the people of Europe.

Extreme care is used to avoid any extravagant claims of damage by air attacks on enemy-controlled areas.

In contrast to axis radio policy, announcers avoid any attempt to excite the listeners with bombastic utterances, and superlatives are seldom employed.

Little Hints for Laundry Day

(Written for the Christian Science Monitor.)

I am sure that every busy homemaker finds, as I do, that some duties in the home are tasks, while others are certainly a pleasure. May I share some of the short cuts and helpful hints that I have learned to do?

First, in the laundry. I find if the clothes are soaked overnight, using any good washing powder, the time for the washing machine to run is cut in half, clothes are much whiter and in this way the use of extra electricity and bleaching fluid is eliminated. As I have from 12 to 14 shirts a week to launder, I have had considerable opportunity to seek out the most successful method of doing them. Before I remove the shirts from the washing machine I take a small brush such as you would use in the bathroom for the hands, soap it lightly and briskly scrub the collar and cuffs.

When I take the clothes from the line I carefully fold rather than crumple the plain articles such as underwear, pyjamas, Turkish towels and the many plain everyday things and iron these first with a hot iron and put them away. The most important thing in the ironing of the starched clothes is the fact that I sprinkle them with hot water, using a brush to do so. They iron much more easily and can be done almost at once.

I want to tell you how I prepare my board for ironing for it has been such a help to me. I use a discarded woolen blanket, three thicknesses or four if the blanket is very thin. Then I tack this firmly on the board and cover it with a ready-made ironing board cover.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

The pioneers and statesmen who made this country great blazed a trail straight through a maze of confusion in the past, around pitfalls of empty promises of demagogues and over barriers of threats from the despotic. Their progress along this course of freedom has been made sure and unfaltering through the light shed by the free press of America. We who carry and guard the progress thus far achieved, still have the duty of keeping the light of a free press shining clear on the path of freedom.—Linwood I. Noyes, Publisher of the Ironwood (Mich.) Globe.

WE CAN'T HAVE IDLERS

The best way to insure against unemployment is to have no unemployment. There is another point: unemployed, rich or poor, will have to be topped up. We cannot afford to have idle people. Idlers at the top make idlers at the bottom. No one must stand in his working prime to pursue a life of selfish pleasure.—Winston Churchill.

Hatcherymen Establish Record Production

Nova Scotia chick hatcherymen have established a new high in production, and for the first time have topped the million mark. Reports received up to June 30 from the 32 hatcheries, some of them incomplete, showed the total of chicks hatched in the first six months of the year to be 1,100,952, which was twelve per cent over the total number hatched in the year 1942. The number of eggs set up to June 30 was 1,529,976, giving a hatchability of 71.9 per cent.

An estimate of the number of chicks that will be hatched in the year 1943, based on the number of eggs in the machines and the bookings by the hatcheries, gives a total of 1,230,000. This, if realized, will be 25 per cent over last year's production and will be well above the 20 per cent increase asked for as part of Nova Scotia's increased farm production program.

Eggs Are Getting Scarce

The curve of egg production is headed down. Receipts from 17 of the 27 egg grading stations in the province for the week ended July 10, totalled 623 cases. The same stations in the week previous reported 665 cases. While these receipts are somewhat higher than for the corresponding weeks of last year, they are about 50 per cent down from the first week of April, which was the peak week of this season's production. In that week 2,000 cases were received from all the stations. C. M. MacMillan, Poultry Division, Federal Department of Agriculture, commenting on the egg situation, said the decline in production which is seasonal would continue, and as a result, ceiling prices for eggs, in all probability would be in effect in less than a month. The ceiling price as in effect last year, was 53 3/4 cents per dozen, grade A large whole-sale, with a maximum mark-up to the consumer of 8 cents, making a retail selling price of 61 cents. No change in the ceiling has been announced as yet.

Egg importations into the province have now reached substantial figures, with Halifax receiving four cars a week from Ontario and a car a week from Prince Edward Island, and Sydney getting about two cars a week.

Many Grain Fields Not Seeded

Owing to the unfavorable weather conditions many fields of grain will not be seeded this year states Dr. W. V. Longley, director of extension, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, in his mid July review of crop conditions in Nova Scotia. The heavy rains of July 7 and 8, following previous heavy precipitation, made many fields on heavy lands and in low lying areas unworkable, covering thousands of acres of interval, dyke and meadow with water. Some idea of the intensity of the rain may be gathered from the fact that at Truro three inches fell in 12 hours.

While many grain fields have been badly hit by the weather, there are many excellent fields, but they were late seeded and on the whole acreage in the province is down.

The hay crop is variable. Some new seeding is excellent and there will be some heavy fields but in limited areas. Haying got a fairly early start in the western part of the province with the first cutting taking place in Yarmouth and on the South Shore late in June. On the North Shore of the province hay is late and poor. Haying has started as far east as Antigonish with some excellent fields reported. Old fields are light.

Potatoes are in blossom with some excellent fields. There has been a big increase in acreage, particularly so in the Annapolis Valley where acreage is up, in some places as much as fifty per cent.

Root crops generally are late with hoeing and thinning running into haying time, with the resultant labour complications.

The apple crop is definitely above that of last year.

N. S. Creameries Again Top Million Mark

Creamery butter production in Nova Scotia creameries topped the million pound mark in the month of June, and came within 1.2 per cent of the all-time record of 1,047,601 pounds established in June, 1942.

Production for June this year totalled 1,034,666 pounds, making the total for the first six months of the year 3,558,515 pounds. This is an increase of 13.9 per cent over the total of 3,124,299 in the corresponding six months of 1942. W. J. Bird, Nova Scotia Dairy Superintendent, commenting on the dairy situation said he looked for high production throughout the month of July. Production and consumption of milk in Nova Scotia is now going on at a record rate.

Changing to Capons Is Worthwhile

Changing cockerals to capons is worthwhile for the following principal reasons, states G. K. Samis, Chief Poultry Promoter, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture: (1) It reduces fighting among cockerals; (2) Capons do not become staggy, hence the marketing may be done as advantageously or conveniently; (3) Capons make better gains per pound of feed; (4) Capons, if grown to maturity usually weigh much more than cockerals; (5) Capons usually make the Milk Fed class and top grades.

Mr. Samis points out that there is no value in caponizing a cockeral unless it is going to be raised to six months or more of age, as the full benefit of doing the job is only obtained by growing the capons to their full weight. That is also when they will grade the best.

The Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, through its extension workers, has responded to hundreds of calls for assistance in training poultrymen to caponize their cockerals. Many demonstrations have been given of this relatively simple operation. The policy of the department is to teach poultrymen and farmers how to do the job. Not every one can learn to caponize as it requires good eyes, steady nerves and deft hands, but a fair percentage of those attending demonstrations usually find they can do the job after a little practice. In each community there should be at least one man qualified to do caponizing. Such a man doing the job for his neighbors on a commercial scale usually charges a reasonable fee for his services, which is generally based on so much per bird, and the mileage travelled. The speed with which this work is done varies, a hundred birds an hour being a high rate. Some (not many) skilled operators, working under the most favorable conditions, can caponize as many as one thousand in a day.

One important matter to keep in mind is that caponizing must be done before the cockerals are too far developed, and before they are eight weeks old.

The Great Poet

In vain does mortal man attempt
In words of poesy,
To write concerning nature:
Of heavens, earth, and sea.
No matter how he strives to gain
Thoughts, words, in what he sees,
His works fade to oblivion
Like leaves upon the breeze.
For mortal man cannot attain,
No matter where he trod,
The poetry of nature
Created by his God.

Lightning Strikes at Church Point

A short but sharp thunderstorm did quite a bit of damage in Church Point Thursday noon when lightning struck the residence of John McLaughlin. The chimney was demolished and the plaster in many of the rooms is cracked and fallen in parts. No fire took place and no one was injured. The chimney was totally demolished above the roof top and split from top to bottom inside the house. It is believed that damage of over $500 was done. Superficial damage was done in a number of houses in the village, such as cutting a hole in a window of Mrs. Fred Deveau's residence; burning out a couple of light bulbs in Bernard Stuart's house and several other villagers stated that they saw a ball of fire pass through their residence without any apparent damage being done. It also struck Emery Bourneuf's barn, tearing out a section of it and peeling the insulation off a wire leading to the barn. In no case was a fire set. The storm subsided as quickly as it had come. Preceding the thunderstorm it was very dark and most houses had the lights on.

At Centreville on Friday evening last at 7:30, eight girls between the ages of six and twelve years gave a short entertainment on Elwyn Morton's lawn, for the benefit of the Red Cross. Those taking part were Marilyn Hersey, Gladys and Virginia Morton, LaReta Shaw, Geraldine Pyne, Evelyn Hersey, Violet Titus, and Muriel Thompson. The program consisted of songs and recitations, which were much enjoyed and would have been a credit to even older performers. The admission was two cents, up to eight years of age, and five cents for all over that age, and $2.25 was taken in, which was turned over to the treasurer of the local Red Cross Auxiliary. In compliance with several requests it is expected that in a few days the program will be repeated.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald E. Dickson, Digby, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Frances Margaret, to Sgt. James Howard Tupper, C.D.C., only son of Mrs. Harriett Tupper and the late Forbes Tupper, of Clements-Port. Wedding to take place in August.

Sisters Arrive to Take Charge of Convent

Five Sisters of Charity, from Saint John, have arrived in Digby to take charge of the new St. Patrick's Convent and Junior School. This institution, established early this year by Rev. Leo Murphy, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, is under the distinguished patronage of His Grace Archbishop McNally, of Halifax.

The new venture has much historic significance. It marks the entrance of a new religious community into the Diocese of Halifax, and likewise represents the establishment of a school conducted by Religious for the first time since the early days of the seventeenth century.

At that time the Recollect Fathers, who were with DeMonts and Champlain in 1604, established a college at Port Royal. It ran successfully for a time, but was closed due to war conditions then troubling the New World. Now, after a lapse of over three hundred years, another convent-school opens its doors in this ancient of Annapolis - Digby, the oldest in Canada.

The St. Patrick's School will be a private school as well as a conservatory of music, and will welcome children of all denominations as well as Catholic. It is in charge of Sister Helen Agnes, Superior, who has associated with her Sisters M. Joanna, Mary Frederick, Theresa Marie and Mary Paul. The new convent school will be formerly blessed and dedicated by His Grace, Archbishop McNally, late in August, and will begin classes in September.

Tiverton Boy Lost at Sea

A gloom was cast over the community of Tiverton when it was learned that one of our young men, Glendon Farnsworth, R.C.N., who was stationed at Shelburne, N.S., was lost at sea July 22.

Glendon had many friends who received the news with deepest regret.

His parents reside in the United States. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Blanchard Thurber, of Freeport, and grandmother, Mrs. Annie Farnsworth, Tiverton. Harry Ruggles, of Tiverton, is an uncle of the deceased.

Halton Hayden Loses Property by Fire

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Halton Hayden, Lighthouse Road, was completely destroyed by fire Friday morning. The property had only recently been purchased by Mr. Hayden from Walter Barnes and the Hayden family had only moved into their newly purchased home Thursday afternoon.

The blaze was discovered by Lawrence Hayden, elder son of the family. His mother was upstairs at the time and the two children were eating breakfast in the kitchen. Mrs. Hayden stated she had smelled smoke all morning, but thought it was caused by a newly painted stove pipe, and paid no attention to it.

When she was warned the fire had gained such headway that it was necessary for her to jump a number of steps to escape the flames then spreading up the stairway. Before making her escape she managed to throw a new mattress out of an upstairs window. With the aid of the children they managed to save two trunks, and later succeeded in salvaging the radio and milk separator.

Help was then summoned from the home of James Bremner, and word was sent to Mr. Hayden, who is employed in town. By the time help arrived it was impossible to save the dwelling.

About This and That

In the early stages of the war in the Pacific there appeared a tendency on the part of naval and military authorities to deny the people information to which they were entitled about the progress of the fighting. This policy of secrecy was quickly censured by the press, which came to refer to the Pacific conflict as the "unknown war."

Since those earlier days of hostilities the military men have come to see the lack of wisdom in preserving unnecessary silence concerning important development, and news has come more quickly and completely from that zone.

But it has remained for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander in North Africa, to set an even better example in press relations. Days before the beginning of the invasion of Sicily he called together the accredited correspondents in North Africa and told them about the pending operation. Then, when the ships embarked for the Italian coast, more than 100 of the writers were permitted to accompany the troops.

Not only did this wise action by Gen. Eisenhower show his confidence in the integrity of the press but also made it possible for the writers to report day-by-day happenings far more intelligently. It was thus an emphatic indorsement of the belief that the people should have the facts of this war as quickly and as fully as compatible with military necessity.

A lie usually hasn't a leg to stand on, but it has wings to fly far and wide.

Some of us who boast we are "doing our bit" toward winning the war might do more. We compare what we do with what the other fellow does, although he may be doing very little.

We forget that each and everyone of us individually faces this problem of contributing to victory, and that we alone can determine our proper share.

It would be well to re-read the story of the Widow's Mite—she gave all she had.

Yes, the world does change. It was only a few years ago that a young man graduating from high school wondered what he was going to do.

The war has extended to such magnitude that it becomes difficult at times to step back and see present and future trends in intelligible perspective, much less foresee the effect the war will have on business trends months ahead. We are winning the war. That much we may now take for granted. By this we do not lightly depreciate the cost. Too many splendid young men are laying down their lives to protect your way of life and mine.—Western Fisheries.

One can always find plenty of parking space around a church, especially in the front pews.

Among the accomplishments of Australian troops who are being taught how to find sustenance in the bush, as the natives do, is toasting ants' eggs. A new instruction course aims to make them independent of ordinary supplies if cut off or isolated.

The troops learn that roots of certain trees contain water, four teaspoonfuls of water can be obtained from a dugout of dried mud; ants' eggs, toasted on a hot stone, taste like bread, onion weed bulbs are palatable, and certain shrubs and plants such as alfalfa, nettles, saltbush, and milk thistles are substitutes for spinach.

Man is a creature said to want but little here below, so rationing boards were invented.

Unpleasant—But Necessary

Rudyard Kipling was at his best when immortalizing the colorful British private soldier in prose and verse. A staff officer once asked Kipling why he did not do the same for those of higher military rank. The poet replied that it was impossible to become lyrical over Kings' Rules and Regulations.

It is impossible, of course, to become enthusiastic about rules and regulations of any sort, for the simple reason that by their very nature they invariably impose restrictions upon the freedom of actions of individuals. When anything of the kind threatens British people they write to the Times about it. Which is all to the good in time of peace; but in wartime, particularly in war against the most overbearing would-be conquerors the world has ever known, we should all think well before complaining about government orders which might temporarily deprive us of the right to live our lives in our own chosen way.

The various orders that are issued from time to time by the National Selective Service are cases in point. Nobody will contend that these orders could possibly be welcomed by anybody. But those in authority have decided that they are necessary if we are to win this war without too much dislocation of our national life.

The object of the most recent order issued by the National Selective Service is to make available for essential work men who are now employed in non-essential occupations, that is, men who are producing things or rendering services, which, in these difficult times, we can readily do without.

It is not pleasant to have the even tenor of our lives disrupted, but war is no respecter of persons. Thousands of our young men of military age have gone straight from the colleges and joined the armed forces of this country. Thousands of older men have given up lucrative jobs in which the future seemed so bright in order to play an honorable part in putting down oppression. Many of them have already taken their "lives." It is not too much, therefore, to ask that those men now engaged in non-essential occupations and who are not called to serve in the army, navy, or air force, report to the nearest N.S.S. Office for other employment which will enable them to make a very direct contribution to our united war effort.

Men In Training Work on Farms

Men in training may go out to farms as soon as their duties for the day are finished and on Saturdays may get passes after duty according to information received from Military Headquarters by Hon. John A. McDonald, Nova Scotia Minister of Agriculture.

As a purely temporary measure, states the word from the military authorities, and due to unusual conditions in agriculture the provisions of Routine Order 3112 will not be construed to prohibit members of the forces engaging in farm work during hours which they may be permitted to be outside the camp area and not on military duty.

Order 3112, referred to above, forbade anyone in the services from working at a civilian occupation while in the army.

"The Village Grocer"

(After Longfellow — Adapted from Verses by H. F. Phillips in the New York Sun)

Under a spreading web of rules
The village grocer stands;
His brow is all tied up in knots,
His head is in his hands.
And there hardly is from day to day
A rule he understands.
His hair is thin and getting worse.
His face is gray or blue,
His brow is wet with honest sweat;
The set-up is so new!
His customers are dizzy, but
The grocer's dizzy, too!
The children coming home from school
Look in at the open door;
(They love to see how their elders act
In a rationed grocery store,
When both sides figure coupons up
And dispute the final score!)
He goes on Sunday to the church,
And sees the people meek,
And marvels that they are the ones
Who fought with him all week!
And he's glad there are no coupons when
The Parson starts to speak.
His business isn't what it was;
And he knows that he is through
With the days he knew what he could sell—
And knew the prices, too!
And when "charts" were things a sailor used
When he sailed the ocean blue.
Thanks, thanks, to thee, my grocer friend,
For the lessons that you teach!
Into all lives some raindrops fall
With a coupon rate for each—I'll take a package of coffee and How many coupons for—?

St. Mary's Bay Roll Call

The Centennial Roll Call Services held by the St. Mary's Bay United Baptist church at Barton on July 15, were enjoyed by all who were able to attend. There was a generous response from many absent members by letter.

The speaker for the afternoon, Rev. T. F. MacWilliam, of Deep Brook, gave a very helpful and challenging address on "What the Spirit Saith to the Churches." The Lord's Supper was observed at the close of the afternoon service.

The supper which was served in the vestry was prepared by the ladies from the various sections and was enjoyed by all. Rev. and Mrs. MacWilliam did not remain for the evening service.

The Reverend R. E. Whitney's presence throughout the services was much appreciated. After the song service and devotional service a paper was read by Licentiate Bernard Manzer, the pastor, on the founding of the Church, which gave the minutes of the first meeting, names of the pioneer members, pastors, of whom Rev. William Randall was the first, also a list of the clerks.

Mr. Whitney delivered the centennial address, the theme of which was, "His Church Must Go On," an inspiring message which stirred the hearts of all.

The music was rendered by the combined choirs of Barton and North Range.

This church began a century ago,
We hope and pray will e'er continue on;
A light that will for ages overthrow,
The dreaded powers of darkness and of woe;
Until triumphant stands before His Throne.

Fewer Men, Boats On Fishing Bounty List

Atlantic fishermen receiving fishing bounty for the 1942 season were fewer by nearly 350 than shared in the 1941 payments and the owners of fishing craft eligible for bounty decreased by 160 or, to be precise, 161. In some measure the decreases reflect the effect of war in reducing fisheries' working force.

Bounty payments are made from the sum of $160,000 under authority of an act of long standing designed to encourage sea fisheries development and the building of fishing craft and, for 1942, a total of 18,318 fishermen shared in the fund—15,102 of them, men fishing with boats and the others, or 3,216 vessel fishermen. The number of vessel owners receiving payments was 668 and of boat owners 8,859. In the case of vessels and vessel fishermen the numbers were somewhat larger than in the year before but boats decreased by over 200 and the number of boat fishermen receiving bounty showed a reduction of well over 400, with the result that there was net increase both in total men and total craft. All told, the payments amounted to $159,930.

By provinces the aggregate bounty payments for the past season, using round figures in all cases, were Nova Scotia $75,250, New Brunswick $21,220, Prince Edward Island $9,600, Quebec $53,860.

Broadly stated, and leaving points of detail out of account, fishermen to be eligible for bounty must be British subjects and have engaged in deep-sea fishing in Canadian vessels or boats for at least three months during the year, and have caught not less than 2,500 pounds of sea fish. Boats, to be eligible for bounty, must have not less than twelve-foot keel and be engaged for not less than three months in deep-sea fishing. In the case of vessels they must be registered, owned and fitted out in Canada, of between 10 and 80 tons and must have been exclusively engaged for not less than three months in catching sea fish. Vessel bounty is calculated on the registered tonnage. No bounty is payable on shellfish, salmon, shad or fish taken in rivers, or the mouths of rivers, or on fish caught in trap-nets, pound-nets or weirs.

Import of Cotton Fabrics Limited

Imports of cotton textile fabrics from Great Britain into Canada will be restricted to those necessary for war requirements and special industrial uses according to an announcement made simultaneously in England by Cotton Board and in Canada by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Only those types of fabrics which cannot be supplied on this continent may still be imported.

With the United Kingdom imports limited to war requirements and special industrial uses, cotton fabrics needed in Canada for other purposes will be supplied by the United States and Canada. This arrangement goes into effect with the beginning of the July-September quarter year.

The import of cotton yarns from the United Kingdom to Canada will be maintained as in past months.

10,000 Bibles for Jewish Soldiers

His Majesty the King has graciously consented to grant a message for the special edition of the Holy Scriptures which is being distributed to each of the 10,000 Jewish men and women in the Canadian war services. This 512 page book is being sent to every Jewish soldier, sailor and airman by the Religious Welfare Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress with the co-operation of the Jewish chaplains.

The message from His Majesty reads:
"To all serving in my forces by sea, or land, or in the air, and indeed, to all my people engaged in the defence of the Realm, I commend the reading of this book. For centuries the Holy Scriptures has been a wholesome and strengthening influence in our national life, and it behoves us in these momentous days to turn with renewed faith to this Divine course of comfort and inspiration."

This book is the most recent in a series published for the Jewish men in the services which includes a special Jewish calendar, the Book of Jewish Thoughts which is edited by the Very Reverend Dr. Joseph H. Hertz, Chief Rabbi of Great Britain, a Jewish Prayer Book, and a special service book for Passover. The Jewish chaplains with the Canadian combat services both overseas and in Canada are co-operating in the distribution of these volumes, all of which are of a format fitting the pockets of uniforms.

The Mount Royal Lodge No. 729 B'nai B'rith have co-operated with the Canadian Jewish Congress in the distribution of the Readings from the Holy Scriptures. A message from Rabbi Dr. Herman Abramowitz, chairman of the Religious Welfare Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress, appearing on the last page of the Book, states: "The Holy Scriptures are your special heritage as Jews. They are also the Jew's principal contribution to our present-day civilization. The Freedoms for which we are fighting in this war have their origin in the Bible. The teaching on the very first page of the Bible, that every human being is created in the image of God, and therefore has a spark of the divine in him, has given sanctity to human personality, and has endowed every man with the right to freedom, equality and the pursuit of happiness."

"The Bible has been the Jew's constant companion, in all endless wanderings. It brought him courage in time of trial, inspiration in the hour of victory. It is in the hope that it will be of similar service to our Jewish soldiers, sailors and airmen, that the Religious Welfare Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress have made this volume available in its present handy form."

The Navy League Drive is now on, and from early reports from the canvassers, it would appear that the response will be most gratifying.

Now that the Navy is in our midst, more and more will be aware of the functions of the Navy League of Canada. Some of the accomplishments of the League were as follows:

100,000 ditty bags, filled with comforts, woollens, and many things so hard to get and so welcome to our seamen, were provided, along with scores of thousands of knitted woollens, and other clothing for shipwrecked sailors.

2,100,000 magazines and books and thousands of games victrolas and records were sent to ocean ports. Millions of cigarettes, chocolate bars, canned fruit and vegetables; fur and leather jerkins were also put in the hands of our seamen.

Many services were rendered sailors' families who have been temporarily embarrassed while husbands are absent.

All these services must be duplicated and even increased in 1943 and that is where the present drive for funds in Digby County comes in, as 86 per cent of the Navy League Budget must be raised by public subscription.

We have all read and heard about the heroic and never-to-be forgotten deeds of the brave men of the Merchant Navy and the men of the Royal Navies of the Empire during the present conflict. Contributing to the Membership we can all help to do something for those who are doing so much for us.

The people of Digby County have always helped a worthy cause, and now the Navy League are asking for this same support. The canvassers are doing their job—the rest is up to you.

The Weekly Paper Goes to Press

(Christian Science Monitor)

Suppose it is press night and the newspaper family has assembled. They sit on chairs and desks and tables and swing their feet and talk while Jack brings out the forms and places them in position on the press. (They'll never forget the night he "pied" the front page.) Then the great roll of paper is threaded into the press and Jack stands at his post, ready to start things off. The web begins to move. Grmpf... grmpf... grmpf... "She's rolling!" shouts the editor. But his enthusiasm is ill-timed. The appalling sound of ripping paper then the sudden squealing of brakes to stop the machinery. The grumble of the press ceases and there is the web gashed clear across.

Now the forms must be taken off and examined carefully. A bit of type sticking up sharply—a spacer standing higher than the type—these are the things that play havoc in a flat-bed press, which prints directly from the forms. The editor and the printers bend over each form and finally locate the offending piece of metal. Sometimes the web has broken three or four times before they found it. But tonight they are fortunate. On the second threading, the grmpf... grmpf... grmpf begins again and continues steadily, although everybody breathes very lightly for a bit.

The papers begin to drop into the rack. The editor grabs the first handful and distributes them rapidly. "Look over the headlines, everybody!" he yells. "Any mistakes?" None.

Now the editor and his wife glance over columns for typographical and grammatical errors. The proprietor's wife, who is also the bookkeeper, searches the ads quickly to make sure a fifty-dollar article hasn't been advertised for $5, or something equally disastrous. The stenographer, who also handles social items, looks anxiously to see if all is as it should be with the Tupperman-Smith wedding and if the Ladies' Aid notice got in. And the proprietor scans the news and editorial columns like an uneasy dove of peace, hoping his editor hasn't said anything to infuriate some perfectly good advertiser. It would be nice to be able to pay the staff at the end of the week.

John Southworth, who for thirty years has been the first resident to receive his paper, drops in, grunts his approval or disapproval of the headlines, folds his paper deliberately, and departs.

She's rolling. And she rolls until every paper is off and has been labelled and whisked away to the post office or added to the neat piles ready for house to house distribution in the morning; until the friendly voices have ceased chattering, the good-nights have been said, and the little low building in the alley is left alone under the quiet country stars.

She's rolling, very much like that, in hundreds of little communities all over the United States today. It's more than a county weekly going to press. It represents a little piece of America, exerting its inalienable right to live its own community life, elect its own leaders, make laws through its own representatives, and publish its own facts and opinions without fear or favor. It is one of the mainstays of democracy; and I'm glad to have seen it at work.

Grandfather

Seated in his old arm chair, into the fire he'll sit and stare, Smoking his pipe so worn and old.

Forgetting that mother is sure to scold;

For hours he'll sit in the library nook,

His head bent double over a book;

Who shortly will fade from this earthly scene,

Old men who sit, their eyes aglow,

Through with this world and its gaudy show

Fine glassware should not be subjected to sudden changes of temperature. Do not hold stemmed goblets under the hot water faucet for rinsing and always place a silver spoon in a cup or bowl before filling it with hot liquid.

Avoid stacking glasses as they may expand and stick together. Rinse glassware in lukewarm water and allow without wiping. In handling crystal, a towel placed in the bottom of the dishpan and another on the drain board will frequently save a casualty.

Feed Grain Situation Is Very Serious

The feed grain situation in Eastern Canada is extremely serious according to information gathered by Hon. John A. McDonald, Nova Scotia Minister of Agriculture and F. W. Walsh, Director of Marketing, during their attendance at the Eastern Agricultural Conference recently held at Ottawa.

It is estimated, they report, that Eastern Canada will have to bring in up to 130,000,000 bushels of Western grain including barley, wheat, oats, in order to carry on with her present production program till the 1944 crop is harvested. Last year's shipments from the West totalled approximately 40,000,000 bushels.

The grain crop in Eastern Canada is light this year. Delegates to the conference from Ontario and Quebec reported their provinces would not have more than sixty per cent of the grain crop of last year. Prince Edward Island reported a fair crop, although less than that of 1942, while Nova Scotia and New Brunswick delegates reported not over 50 or 60 per cent of last year's crop.

A statement issued on behalf of the delegates to the conference said that "a breakdown in our livestock program is probable before the end of the year and almost certain during the winter of 1944 unless bold action is taken immediately to control the distribution of the nation's feed grain supplies, assure an adequate supply of feed grains to Eastern provinces, overcome difficulties and handicaps of transportation from West to East, and get adequate reserve stocks in storage in the Eastern provinces during the summer and fall months to meet the abnormal requirements foreseen for the winter and spring of 1944."

The seriousness of the situation in the East arising from crop shortages is accentuated by large exportations of western grains to the United States where prices are higher than can be paid by Eastern farmers because of Canadian price ceilings.

One of the recommendations made at the conference was that a government agency be set up which would be charged with the marketing of all feed grains and that such an agency be in a position to assume full responsibility for the providing of adequate supplies to Eastern Canada. It was contended that if the providing of a supply of Western grains for Eastern feeders was left to the mercy of a completely unorganized movement the results would almost certainly be disastrous.

The transportation of this vast amount of feed grains from west to east is in itself a major problem. Even moving 300 carloads a day, said Mr. Walsh, the movement of 100,000,000 or more bushels, would take a large part of one year.

An important recommendation made to the federal government was that the price of all feed grains, especially feeding wheat, be held in line with the price which prevailed during September 1942 when the government adopted a drawback for wheat used for feeding.

An appeal made to the government that a subsidy be granted to assist the farmer to cover the costs of financing and protect him against possible loss in early purchase of his feed requirements has already been put into effect, said Mr. Walsh, but this alone will not meet the situation. The main thing is to assure the farmers of the east adequate supplies and reasonable prices.

Expect Large Potato Crop

From present indications potatoes will not be included in any list of food shortages that may present itself within the next year. In fact, there is every reason to believe the 1943 crop will be an abundant one, considerably larger than a year ago and well above average. And that goes for both Canada and the United States.

Reports from acreage in Canada, while not complete, show an increased acreage in Nova Scotia, of more than five per cent, over 15 per cent increase in Prince Edward Island, and over 20 per cent in New Brunswick.

Latest reports from United States indicate a crop of 434,942,000 bushels which is 17 per cent higher than last year's crop of 371,150,000 bushels and 20 per cent larger than the 10-year average. With a floor price which the United States has already demonstrated it will unquestionably support potato men across the line spraying and dusting as they have never done before.

In Canada there is no floor on potatoes but a committee from the Eastern Provinces, recently at Ottawa, recommended action which would result in the establishment of a floor that would protect the potato producers. Such a floor has been recommended a number of times previously.

One off-set to the increased production both in Canada and the United States are the starch plants and dehydrating plants that, it is estimated, will be able to handle up to 15 per cent of the crop. In the Annapolis Valley there is a potato dehydration plant which will, in all probability, look after all the increased acreage in that area.

Wool Totals Nearly Quarter Million Lbs.

Close to a quarter million pounds of wool had been received at the grading stations at Antigonish and Truro up to the end of the third week in July. Most of the wool has now been received but there is still some in the hands of growers which should be sent in without further delay as it is expected the two grading stations will complete operations soon after the end of the month. Of the 200,000 lbs. of wool graded up to the middle of the month ninety per cent qualified for the 4-cent a pound government bonus.

On the whole, said F. W. Walsh, Director of Marketing, wool has graded high this year and especially so in these districts where there is the greatest concentration of sheep and the sheep program has been carried on extensively. While later shorn wool has not graded as high as that shorn early it is hoped that the quality for the year will hold to the point where at least ninety per cent will be eligible for the bonus.

Reports from Antigonish, where 136,000 lbs. had been graded up to July 15, showed 125,313 or 92 per cent had made military class. Receipts and grading at the Truro Station were both lower. 50,276 lbs., or 80 per cent, of the total received up to June 15 made military style.

The need for the proper handling of wool was again emphasized by Mr. Walsh, who pointed out that not all the wool grading military style this year had been eligible for the bonus, this being largely due to improper handling, excessive dirt, tying with binder twine and other failures to comply with instructions.

High Prices Follow Low Prices

The 1943 strawberry season which is now pretty well finished was marked by exceptionally high prices, a small yield and fruit of average quality. Grand Lake, N.B., Canning, Berwick, Kingston, finished around the middle of the month with Mastown, Amherst and Memramcook N. B., being completed about 10 days later.

Even allowing for decreased acreage the crop was small with the result thousands of housewives were unable to secure their requirements for either fresh fruits or preserving.

F. W. Walsh, Director of Marketing, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, commenting on this year's prices said the producers had no desire to see excessive prices, rather what they wanted from year to year was cost of production plus a reasonable profit. Low prices in former years brought on the present situation. Shortages in all foods, said Mr. Walsh, reflect the serious labour situation on the farms coupled with the low prices paid for farm produce.

Cocoonut fiber is used to make the war armour of Gilbert Island natives in the Pacific Ocean region.

With the opening of the "Battle for Europe" the task of the Royal Navy is staggering. It is a pleasant fact that today, despite casualties, it has more ships than it had when the war began, thanks to the tremendous speed-up of Britain's shipyards, which built 900 warships during the first three and a half years of the war; and these shipyards are working at an increased tempo this year.

Prime - Doty

The Ashmore Baptist Church was the scene of a large wedding Saturday evening when Rev. G. D. Brydon, pastor of the Bear River Baptist Church, united in marriage Gordon Edward Prime, son of Mrs. Norman Prime and the late Mr. Prime, of New Tusket, to Marjorie Mae Doty, daughter of Mrs. Roger Doty and the late Mr. Doty, of Ashmore. The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Harry Lewis, entered the church to the strains of Lohegrin's Bridal Chorus. She was attired in a floor length dress of white sheer with full length veil and carried a bouquet of mixed summer flowers. The only ornament worn by the bride was a gold locket, a gift of the groom. Marjorie Smith, a friend of the bride who acted as bridesmaid, wore an evening dress of pink sheer. Her bouquet corresponded with that of the bride's. The groom was supported by Scott Manzer, a relative. The church was prettily decorated by friends of the bride, the couple standing under an arch of roses and other flowers. After the ceremony the bride and groom with their attendants were driven to the home by

F. H. Lent, where congratulations were received from a very large number of guests. They were recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts including money, silver, pyrex, glass, linen, etc. A buffet lunch was served by friends of the bride, after which the happy couple left on a wedding trip to different points in the province and Charlottetown, P.E.I. The bride was a graduate in 1940 of the Provincial Normal College. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Prime will reside in New Tusket, where Mrs. Prime will continue as teacher.

Digby Dairy, located in its new, modern tile building at the corner of First Avenue and Church Street, went into operation on August 1, with Herbert Crosby, of Yarmouth, as resident manager. The plant is the first to supply pasteurized milk, cream and butter in this area, and is a subsidiary of Yarmouth Creamery Ltd.

It was hoped to have the plant in operation before this date but because of delays in the shipment of essential machinery, postponements were necessary. Because of these delays the management decided to make no public announcement until they were in actual operation.

Some weeks ago this concern took over the milk route of Harry Jefferson, Mount Pleasant, and is now making house to house deliveries to his customers and others who wish supplies of pasteurized milk, cream and butter. The plant was established primarily to look after the demands of H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" at Deep Brook, and has the capacity to handle 3,000 quarts a day.

Digby Dairy is a modern plant in every respect. Milk received from local producers is first tested and inspected, and any contaminated products are rejected. It is then weighed, filtered, and pumped into the pasteurizing machine from where it is pumped through stainless steel pipes into the cooler. Other stainless steel pipes carry the cooled pasteurized milk to an automatic bottling and capping machine. Bottles are washed and sterilized by modern machinery.

After the milk is pasteurized, bottled and capped, it is stored in a large refrigerator room until ready to be delivered to consumers.

With regard to local milk sales, Digby Dairy has adopted a system new to Digby. All their milk (with the exception of milk sold to public institutions) is sold on a strictly cash basis, customers paying for their milk with cash or by tickets purchased in advance.

At the present time the dairy has a staff of six employees, three of whom are experienced in milk plant operation. Miss Mildred Oliver, of Digby, is in charge of the bookkeeping department.

It is hoped the operation of a dairy in Digby will, through providing a suitable market, tend to restore dairying in this area. A few years ago a number of fine herds were maintained in the district, but due to the depression, the war, and lack of proper marketing facilities, these herds have largely disappeared, and dairying, as an industry, became almost a thing of the past, with the result that at the present time we have few large producers. However, since it was known a dairy would operate here, there has been a marked interest in this industry, and increased production is sure to follow.

Canadian Boys Well In Front

The following is an extract taken from a letter by "Bus" Walker, received recently:

"Many chaps from home are in the present show. The West Nova Scotia are part of the First Division that is doing such a fine job. The English papers have gone all out in giving a grand word to the job they are doing—it is a fine one and Canadians can be definitely proud in knowing that their record in the last war is being kept up. Actually, and I don't say this because I call myself a Canadian, the men over here are the best in the world. They have the finest training, they are the most physically fit and the best prepared of any troops that ever went into battle. We here are sorry that we must be part of another army, even the Eighth, rather than having our own, but if it must be another at least they have done us proud in making us part of the best. A recent editorial in the 'Times' mentioned the first part of the war as being the Air Force's, the next portion as being the Navy's, this present and concluding portion as being the Army's. We have waited a long while but it has come at last."

Church Vacation School Held

A very successful Interdenominational Church Vacation School was held in the community of Sandy Cove, Digby County. The churches co-operating in this endeavor, with their clergy, are as follows:—The United Church, Rev. R. H. H. Barker; the Baptist Church, vacant; the Church of England, H. R. Cooper, student-in-charge.

Although the school was only conducted for one week, pupils and teachers enjoyed themselves very much, and both derived much benefit from the undertaking. This is the first time any work of this kind has been undertaken in this district, and it is hoped that this first school is an example of greater things to come.

The programme was varied and interesting consisting of worship, hymn singing, Bible study and other religious instruction, handicrafts and group games. In connection with the school a camp-fire was held to which all the people of the village were invited. The main feature of the camp-fire was a talk on "The Stars" by Mr. Bristol, of Philadelphia. One afternoon and evening was devoted to the annual International Sunday School picnic. The senior girls enjoyed several talks by leading school teachers and professors of the United States.

The staff of the school was as follows:—

Co-Supervisors—Mr. Barker and Mrs. B. Dakin.
Music—Mrs. B. Dakin.
Story Telling—Miss Hicks.
Worship—Mr. Barker.
Recreation—Mrs. H. Morehouse, assisted by all teachers.

Boys—Mr. Cooper.
Senior Girls—Mrs. W. McKay and Miss F. Jeffery.

Intermediate Girls—Mrs. H. Saunders.

Primary—Mrs. E. Morehouse and Mrs. A. Morehouse.

The school closed on Sunday morning with a Children's Flower Service in the Church of the Nativity, Church of England. The church had been beautifully decorated with garden flowers, arranged by the senior girls of the school. To the left of the altar stood a beautiful floral cross of chaste daisies and pink roses. The service was conducted by Mr. Cooper, and Mr. Barker spoke to the large congregation on the text "God planted a garden", Gen. 2:8. Mr. Barker used Sandy Cove and its surroundings as an example of God's garden and what it means to each and every one of us. The lesson was read by Philip Jeffery, one of the boys of the school. The senior girls sang an anthem "O Beautiful for Spacious Skies". The primary department sang the familiar hymn "Jesus Loves Me", a solo. "In Flowerland" was sung by Marilyn Morehouse, 13 years old, of Moncton, N. B.

The offering received through the week from the children, and the Sunday offering is being sent to the Chinese War Orphan Fund.

The parents and children were very much enthused about the school, and it is hoped that next summer a two-week school may be held.

Mrs. Blanche Kennedy, of Berwick, has been visiting friends and relatives in Digby County.

SUMMER SCHOOL CLOSING

The third session of the Summer School held at St. Ann's from July 5 to 30 ended Thursday evening. Seventy-five attended classes this year with 60 being from Digby and Yarmouth counties; 5 from Halifax County and 10 from Cape Breton. Three courses were held during July, namely, First, Second and Third Year courses.

Thirty graduated from the Three Year course and received Certificates of Studies; Thirteen received Certificates of Permanent License from the Department of Education.

A banquet was held at six o'clock for the students and teaching staff at which Miss Zita Logere and Rev. F. d'Entremont offered a toast to the graduating class. Graduation exercises took place at 8 o'clock in the college auditorium, which was filled to the doors with spectators. The valedictorian address was read by Miss Imelda d'Entremont. The guest speakers were: Hon. J. W. Comeau, provincial member for Digby County, and Adelard Gascon, Inspector of Bi-lingual Schools of Ottawa.

The first session of the summer school held at St. Ann's for the French school teachers of Nova Scotia took place in 1941. At the National Congress of Memramcook, N.B., of 1937, the commission of Education elected

Rev. Jules Comeau, superior of St. Ann's, Louis d'Entremont, inspector of schools for the French schools of Clare and Yarmouth County; Professor Willie Belliveau, of St. Ann's teaching staff; to form a committee to promote better teaching of the French language in our bi-lingual schools in Nova Scotia. The committee was composed of Professor Willie Belliveau, president; F. G. J. Comeau, vice president; Louis d'Entremont, inspector of schools, secretary; members of the executive—Rev. Jules Comeau, Superior of St. Ann's; Professor Edward Comeau, Provincial Normal College, Truro; Alphonse Comeau, inspector of schools, Cape Breton; Rev. A. Cormier, Margaree, C.B.; Rev. A. Boudreau, Petit-degras, C.B.; Rev. A. DeCoste, Grand Etang, C.B.

An advanced course in French was formed by this committee for the Acadian schools. The program was presented and accepted by the N. S. Government and in September, 1940, became a regular part of the bi-lingual school's curriculum.

Many of the teachers had never had the opportunity of taking an advanced course in French and were somewhat handicapped in teaching to the higher grades. It was to remedy this situation that the summer school at St. Ann's was originated in the year 1941.

Navy League Drive Nears Completion

As the closing days of the Navy League Drive draw near, the committee in charge express themselves as well pleased with results to date. The response throughout the country has been splendid and canvassers have been given fine receptions.

It is still too early to say how much has been collected through this canvass as most of the collectors have not as yet made their returns, however, the majority of these have made verbal reports of their progress, and everything points to a highly successful campaign.

It is Worth While!

"On February 9, 1942, I received a letter from my son and enclose herewith a paragraph I would like to quote for the benefit of the Navy League of Canada.

"We had a Christmas tree, Mom, and the Navy League of Canada sent us Ditty Bags with socks, peanuts, several canned fruit, corn, gum, chocolate bars, etc. These bags were distributed among us on the day before Christmas and the fellows were just like a bunch of kids opening them because we had left too soon to receive any Christmas boxes from home, and this was about all some of us boys did get."

"On February 10, 1943, my son went down with his ship, the corvette, 'Spikenard' which was torpedoed in the North Atlantic. There were fifty-seven men lost. All the men on board this ship had received those ditty bags and my sorrow has been lightened, for their last Christmas was made happier because of them."

DID YOU FILL ONE OF THESE BAGS?

Ditty bags may be obtained from the Committee, who will also accept cash donations to fill same: Mrs. J. A. Grant, Mrs. H. M. Warne, Mrs. C. E. Walker and Mrs. F. J. Thibault.

About This and That

That the small business man is a hard fighter too is abundantly demonstrated by the determined effort he is making for existence against overwhelming odds. In the first place, he is having a hard time getting the merchandise his business requires to make it pay. Then there is the extra work and expense entailed by the coupon rationing system. He is also compelled to get along with inadequate and inexperienced help. As a matter of fact, it's a headache from almost any point of view. Therefore it would be unfair to slight him when the medals for bravery are being dispensed.

Eat all the corn-on-the-cob you can get this summer because it's unrationed. But if you insist on lathering it with butter you're on your own.

We are hearing and seeing these days mischief and immorality in early teen age which, in reality, is caused by war hysteria. A similar situation always develops in times of stress and strain, unless adequate steps are taken early enough to direct the pent-up emotions into worth-while channels. One writer recently said: "Parents, churches, and schools have shirked their responsibilities to this most neglected age group, and unless something is done immediately, in a constructive way, we face a period of startling juvenile delinquency. We wonder if we older people have been 'asleep at the switch' too long already to guide and help our youth build clean, happy, and useful lives."

Parliamentarians now on vacation from Ottawa should not get the idea that they are the only persons in the country who are weary.

Plato said: "Music to the mind is as air to the body." The statement is true. Music and song are decidedly essential to a people during peace times, but so much more necessary to both civilians and soldiers in war times. Music helps to keep the morale high and is creative in producing a spirit of harmony which materializes contentment. The Bible gives an exceptional example of the value of music as Jehoshaphat won a great victory with an army of singers, routing the enemy as his soldiers sang. The richest child is poor without musical training, and the home that does not foster music is far from being ideal as music has the tendency to keep the child at home, and where there is music happiness reigns. Let's all remember that a happy and confident people is essential to win the war. Thus let's sing to victory.

Despite the gasoline situation, there are still too many people who drive too fast too much.

When we as a nation are fighting for political and religious freedom the world over, it is deplorable that among individuals and communities we find instances of religious and racial prejudices and intolerance. People of certain races and religions, regardless of their intelligence, community standing, ability or success in any line of endeavor are snubbed and persecuted. They are discriminated against and deprived of their rights as citizens. Communities and individuals should see to it that such practices are discontinued, lest our enemies say of us that we are not faithful to the ideals that we profess to be fighting for; that we are doing the very things that we say we are fighting against. Let us not be intolerant of good and successful people simply because they belong to a certain race or profess a certain religion. Let us practise what we preach and fight for.

Keep a smile on your face and you will always find a pleasant reflection in the mirror.

Farming to Figure Largely in Post-War Reconstruction

Duncan C. MacKay, well-known Hill Grove farmer, was the first witness heard Thursday morning last by the Royal Commission on Provincial Development and Rehabilitation, at the Court House, here, under the chairmanship of Dr. Robert Dawson, Commissioner. Other members present were Dr. Melvin Cummings, H. M. Ward, and Secretary Florence A. Swetman.

For the most part, matters pertaining to agriculture were discussed. The hearing was called for 9 a.m., but due to unavoidable delay the commissioners were late in arriving, and two leading representatives of the fishing industry in this area were unable to remain. It is understood the commissioners discussed that industry privately in the offices of these gentlemen later in the day.

Mr. MacKay, the first witness, stressed there was no more important industry in this district than the agricultural industry, but declared regulations and red tape have done much to dishearten and discourage the farmers and added, "if these things are allowed to continue there will be no post war problems for Digby County farmers because there will be no farmers." He strongly recommended the establishment on demonstration farms in each county to be operated on a "make it pay" basis, and expressed opinion such farms could be made to pay.

The "make it pay basis" he declared was the only way to convince the young people growing up in agricultural areas that farming can be a profitable industry and thus encourage them to remain on the farms.

Speaking of present conditions, Mr. MacKay stated there were many reasons (other than the weather and the fact that many of the farm boys are now serving their country) for reduced acreage and smaller crops in Digby County this season. He attributed this condition to lack of experience or any kind of farm labor due to the fact local farmers were unable to complete with wages paid for unskilled labor on nearby war construction jobs; another reason he said no fertilizer was available until it was too late to use it to best advantage. He also stressed the lack of opportunity to buy new machinery and parts, which, if available, would do much to relieve the manpower situation for the farmer.

He deplored the fact that present regulations regarding the butchering of pork and beef involved so much red tape that small producers are only producing for their own use, or not producing at all.

He pointed out that in his district 50 farms were producing to full capacity less than ten years ago. Today only three young men in the community have decided to make farming their vocation. Many of the farms are not operating, or are running out. He recommended the government take over these farms and put them in condition for the boys who will return from overseas after final victory has been won.

Rev. Leo Murphy was next to be heard. He pointed out the great changes in this area since the development at Deep Brook, and the fact the Tourist industry was Digby's No. 1 casualty as the result of the war. Today none of the summer hotels are operating as such and many of these have been converted into tenements and apartments. Although he believed there would be a great influx of tourists after the war, he feared the changes have destroyed Digby as a resort, and recommended plans be made to re-establish this industry, suggesting a further development of modern and attractive cabin colonies.

Lloyd MacNeill, president of the Maple Leaf Agricultural Society; Harvey E. Chisholm, warden of Digby Municipality, and Joseph Specht, secretary of both the Maple Leaf and Digby County Agricultural Societies, were next to be heard. All dealt chiefly with agricultural problems, stressing co-operation and education among the farmers. Speaking of the prospect of rehabilitating returned soldiers on farms, Mr. MacNeill said "before this is done, give them a thorough education in farming before putting them on farms, otherwise many of them will break." Warden Chisholm declared farmers in this district are a hard group to organize. "Many of our farmers are farming some, logging some and fishing some" with the result they have no special study of any phase of activity, and the farms suffer.

Mr. Specht recommended getting the farms ready for men before they take over, otherwise in many instances these men will be placed on run-down farms which will take years of skilled farming knowledge to restore profitable production. After the last war he said too many were placed on farms and given the idea all they had to do was "tickle the soil with a hoe and have it smile a harvest." He urged greater efforts be made in rural schools to educate pupils on matters pertaining to scientific agriculture.

Others appearing before the commission were H. W. Gardin, of Plympton, president of the Digby County Milk Producers' Association; J. Vian Andrews, of North Range, former warden; forest ranger A. W. Andrews, of North Range; V. G. Cardoza, of Jack & Cardoza, jam manufacturers, Digby, who discussed the possibility of establishing canning and preserving plants in the district; Raymond LeBlanc, agricultural representative, and J. A. Belliveau, president of the St. Bernard's Credit Union.

Teachers Must Stay on Job

"The general intention of Selective Service Regulations, as applying to teachers," according to C. D. Knowlton, Manager of the Local Employment and Selective Service Office, "is to retain teachers at their profession during the school year, and to make the best possible use of their services during vacation."

C. D. Knowlton said that there might be some misunderstanding among teachers as to their status under Selective Service Civilian Regulations. He explained this status in this way.

By order in Council of June 17, 1943, teachers were brought under Selective Service; previously they had been exempt in so far as employment at their profession is concerned. Now a teacher must continue at the teaching profession during the school year, and can only leave to take other full-time employment, except in the agricultural industry, under permit from Selective Service. It is not the intention to authorize teachers to leave the profession, where their services as teachers are needed. Teachers may still join the armed forces without permit, or they may engage at part-time employment during the school year, so long as it does not interfere with their teaching hours. During vacations teachers are encouraged to take other high priority work, but generally speaking and apart from employment from the buildings.

in agriculture, teachers must secure Selective Service permits before entering employment. Teachers will not require permits to engage at work in their own profession. The new Regulation defines a teacher as any person who teaches or instructs in a school, college or university not carried on for gain.

Men Wanted To Cut Wood

C. D. Knowlton, Manager of the Local Employment and Selective Service Office, states that the local office is having to give a good deal of attention these days to labour requirements for fuel wood cutting. This is one of the areas in which a substantial cut is looked for.

Through a recent amendment to National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, the Local Selective Service Officer now has authority to compulsorily direct men to accept work at fuel wood cutting. This may be done after a man has been otherwise unemployed for seven days, or a man in less important work may be directed to give his present employer seven days' notice, following which the Selective Service Officer may direct him to the cutting of fuel wood.

Of course the employment office is trying to find as many men as may be suitable for this work, among applicants who are registering for jobs. Any man who is available to go to the cutting of fuel wood, Mr. Knowlton states, will be a very welcome visitor to the employment office these days.

The Manager stated that transportation to the employment will be looked after, and where it is necessary a man may be accommodated with a very small loan to help him pay for necessities until he receives his first pay on the job. Head Office of Selective Service at Ottawa has repeatedly stressed to the local offices the importance of fuel wood as one of the leading Canadian fuels, and of course it follows that the heavy cut expected must be made at this time of year.

Many of the members of H. M.C.S. Cornwallis come from the central and western parts of Canada, and those from the prairie provinces are enjoying the sight of hills and valleys, salt water and "white water" for the first time, and many say that it will be hard to go back to the monotony of the "Granary of Canada" when the war is over. We, who are so close to beauty of scenery all the time, perhaps forget to be thankful for this beauty, and fail to appreciate it until, for some reason or other, we are removed from it for a time. Returning we see this beauty with fresh vision.

Tops in Africa

Willard P. Read, once known as one of Port Washington's most outstanding automobile salesmen, now engaged in helping build the big U. S. Arsenal at Gura, in the former Italian Colony of Eritrea on the Red Sea, has been made Commander of the American Legion for the Middle East Area. "We have over 200 members," Mr. Read has written to his family. "All of the boys in the armed forces in this area become members of our organization."

Mr. Read, who was with the Portlys Motors, 8 Hagar Avenue, Ford Dealers, before embarking for this service, left Port Washington March 16, 1942 for the Middle East to take part in construction work for the U. S. Army. Construction of this base at Gura, in the hills of Africa, compares with the magnitude of the Panama Canal project.

"The food is very good, but the shoes are not so hot," writes Mr. Read. "I have had five pairs of soles already. However, I feel great. This is a great country and I certainly enjoy it over here. Give my regards to my pals in Port Washington."

Mr. Read's wife and daughter Paula, reside at 146 Main St. A son Allison, associated with the American Export Co. in the Naval Reserves. Miss Paula is with the J. C. Penny Co., New York City. Although he is a member of the Port Washington Lions Club, Read says that he has not seen any of the real lions in Africa as yet, but if he does, he will certainly give them the "Lions Roar."

Mr. Read is a brother of Fred and Bruce Read of Bear River, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Emerson Read.

Poultry Conferences
Arranged for
August 18, 19

Two conferences of great importance to poultrymen of Nova Scotia have been arranged, the first to be held at the Agriculture College, Truro, August 18, and the second at the Agriculture Building, Lawrencetown, August 19.

Three meetings are being held on the one day, at Truro, namely, the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Poultry Council, followed by a meeting of the Registered Egg Grading Stations' Association. The Poultry Council meeting will begin at 9 a.m. In the afternoon the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Hatchery Approval Association will take place. This is called for 2 p.m.

Some items of great importance to the poultry industry in general are due for discussion at these meetings. At the Hatchery Approval Association meeting, in addition to the regular business session, it is expected that the very serious feed situation, which confronts the industry, will come under full discussion. F. W. Walsh, Director of Marketing, is being asked to give his version of the exact feed situation, while W. R. Pearce—a delegate to the recent conferences in Ottawa and Toronto—will give a report of the highlights of these meetings. G. K. Samis, Provincial Poultry Promoter, will discuss the protein situation.

These meetings are open to all poultrymen and others interested in the industry. An opportunity will be presented during the day for a visit to the College Poultry Farm.

The program for the Lawrencetown meeting is not as yet completed. It is hoped to have all the speakers participating in the Truro conference on the program at the Lawrencetown conference.

Lime Sales Increase
Two Years

The use of lime is very much on the increase. The value Nova Scotia farmers place on lime as a means of increasing farm production may be gathered from the fact that in two years there has been an increase of more than 250 per cent in sales of lime from the quarries to the farmers of the province. This year the quarries have been unable to keep pace with orders. In 1938 sales totalled 13,583 tons, in 1942 34,370 tons, while the objective for 1943 is 40,000 tons.

In order to further summer movement and keep the quarries in operation for a greater time the price by the Department of Agriculture is reduced in the summer months to $1.40 per ton at the quarry or in car lots at the railway station nearest to the farmer. This price will be increased this year to $1.50 on September 5. Farmers' organizations are co-operating by endeavoring to place orders at this time of the year.

Expect Visit from Hereford Secretary

Maritime Hereford Breeders are looking forward to a visit from D. A. Andrews, Vermilion, Ont., Canadian Secretary of the Hereford Breeders' Association. It is hoped he will be judging at the Hants County exhibition at Windsor, August 31 and September 1. An evening meeting, to be addressed by Mr. Andrews, has been scheduled for August 31 at Windsor.

Preparing for N. S.
Livestock Field Day

Arrangements are shaping up for the annual Nova Scotia Livestock Field Day to be held at Truro, September 8. At a recent meeting of the committee, C. P. Blanchard, of Truro, was elected president and George L. Cook, Truro, secretary—treasurer. The Holstein-Friesian branch hopes to make this field day an event where ALL Canadian entries may be selected. It is expected that C. D. Gram, Brantford, Ont., director of extension for Holstein-Friesian of Canada will be present. Committees were appointed for the purpose of getting out large exhibits from the various breeds.

Rallies Have Been Large, Enthusiastic

The series of twenty district rallies schedules for this year by the Women's Institutes of Nova Scotia concluded this week with a Digby County rally at Digby on Tuesday and a rally for North Queens at Kempt yesterday.

Miss Helen J. Macdougall, superintendent of institutes, reports that the rallies held this year have been more largely attended than ever and have in all cases been featured by enthusiasm. Despite transportation difficulties and farm labour scarcity the institutes members have been very active and have made their 1943 district gatherings outstanding success.

The finale of the rally season takes place at Truro, August 10 and 11. On the former date there will be a session of the provincial executive and on the latter a rally to be attended by the new presidents and secretaries of the various districts, the provincial executive, the superintendent and her field workers. These gatherings will serve as a medium for programming for the coming season.

Butter Production Increases

An increase of 10.7 per cent in creamery butter production for the week ended July 17 over the corresponding week of 1942 has been reported by W. J. Bird, Nova Scotia Dairy Superintendent. The respective totals were 198,564 lbs. and 168,590 lbs. There was an increase of 16.9 per cent in the week of July 10 over the corresponding week of last year.

Another favorable butter report comes in the statement that cold storage holdings in all Canada were up more than 40 per cent on July 1 compared with July 1, 1942. The totals were July 1, 1943, 41,843,465 lbs., July 1, 1942, 28,108,125 lbs. While this increase held good for Canada as a whole, holdings in the province of Nova Scotia declined in the year from 668,940 lbs. to 431,516 lbs., or about 37 per cent.

Garment Clubs Exhibit 900 Articles

An exhibit representing work done by the garment clubs in all parts of the province was on display in the main building of the Agricultural College during the week of July 26. The 900 entries consisted of an interesting variety of work including sewing, knitting, crocheting, weaving, embroidery, leather work, felt work, end novelties. All classes were filled with work of good quality.

Draft Dodger
Gets Thirty Days

James Allison Savary, Joggin Bridge, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail at Kentville by Stipendiary Yould on a charge of failure to report after being called up in December, 1942, for military service under the National Selective Mobilization regulations. In addition to the jail term the Court instructed that Savary be turned over to the military authorities at completion of his sentence. Savary after dodging the police for over seven months was arrested in Berwick by Constable Davis of the Kentville R.C.M.P. detachment—Berwick Register.

A Lesson On Fish

This week there passed through Pictou en route to Chicago, a car load of salt herring in other seasons used to bait lobster traps. The shippers receive $12.50 per barrels F.O.B. Pictou in American funds, or actually $13.75 per barrel.

The usual current price for these salted, boney fish has been about $2.75 per barrel.

County Institutes Meet at Digby

Mrs. John Smith, of Plympton, was elected president of the Digby County Women's Institute, at the first annual rally of that body, held at the Court House, here, Tuesday. A splendid representation of delegates from six institutes, namely, Meteghan, Meteghan River and Lower Saulnierville, Bear River, Smith's Cove, Bellevue's Cove, and Plympton, were present.

The morning session was presided over by Mrs. Mark Longworth, of Smith's Cove, and the delegates were welcomed by Mayor E. J. Theriault.

The response to the mayor's welcome was made by Miss Pearl Campbell, president of the Bear River Women's Institute.

Mrs. Edwin Crowe, of Steviacke, Provincial Convenor for the Red Cross Branch of the Women's Institute, was guest speaker, and presented an interesting paper on "Programme Planning" at the morning session.

Luncheon was served following this session at which members of the Meteghan Institute were hostesses, and served tea. Delegates brought picnic lunches. Officers were elected at an executive meeting which followed the lunch hour.

The slate chosen was as follows: President—Mrs. John Smith, Plympton.

Vice President—Mrs. Charles Deveau, Meteghan.

Secretary Treasurer—Mrs. Alvan Harris, Bear River.

Directors—Mrs. Oakley Smith, Smith's Cove; Mrs. Mark Longworth, Smith's Cove; Miss Amelia Comeau, Meteghan; Mrs. George Geddy, Meteghan River.

Definite plans were not made at this meeting for next year's rally, yet the enthusiasm of the large gathering was encouraging. This rally was the first for Digby County; previously Digby and Annapolis Counties had combined for this occasion.

St. Edward's Anniversary

Rev. William Hills, B.A., L.Th., Chaplain R.C.N., H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis," will give the address at the annual Memorial and Decoration Service at Old St. Edward's Church, Clementsport, which takes place this year on Thursday afternoon, August 19, at 3 p.m. The service marks the 146th anniversary of the consecration of the ancient church.

Old St. Edward's at Clementsport is one of the oldest churches in the province. It was built by the United Empire Loyalists and was consecrated by Bishop Charles Inglis, September 17, 1797. It served the Parish of St. Clements until 1841 when the present larger church, and the rectory, were erected.

The builders of old St. Edward's chose its site so that it might also serve not only as a place of worship for the devote settlers, but as a landmark for mariners coming into the Annapolis Basin through the Digby Gut from the Bay of Fundy. Built on a high hill it can be sighted by navigators from almost any portion of the Basin.

It seems fitting then, that at this service on August 19 to commemorate the 146th anniversary of consecration, the service should be especially dedicated to the officers and ratings of nearby H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis," one of the largest Naval Training centres in the British Empire.

The programme, giving the order of service and other information, to be used on this occasion, contains the following:

To H.M.C.S. "CORNWALLIS"

"The ancient fane of St. Edward has seen many changes around the historic Basin of Annapolis. To the Pioneers it was a landmark and a place of worship. Mariners steered their course up the Basin with eyes upon the tower on the hill top. On Sundays they and their families came to their family pews, and after having shut the pew doors worshipped God as a FAMILY."

"Now a new and mighty development has taken place. H.M.C.S. 'Cornwallis.' To you the old church would be a constant reminder of God's Love and Protection, and offers you the Peace and Quietness, Power and Inspiration of its sacred historic memories. It would be incorporated, if possible, in some way with your life. It remains for you to say HOW."

"St. Edward's welcomes you to the Parish and countryside and for all who at any time may be 'aboard' prays that he or she may be happy while here and live long, ever loyal to God, to King and Native land."

Vandals Busy

Numerous reports of vandalism have been brought to our attention during the past few weeks—these are in addition to more serious crimes, such as the break of Webber's Lunch and other similar breaks in the past few months.

Among the lesser crimes are chicken stealing; thefts of clothes lines and parked cars; pilfering of liftable items from store show cases and shelves; raiding berry patches and victory gardens, and others. Most of these have never been reported to police officials.

Only yesterday we heard of one of a Digby woman going out to her back yard cultivated raspberry patch and encountering two young men with pails, helping themselves to her berries.

The Royal Navy's motto is "Seek out, engage and destroy." By June, 1942, 6,178,681 tons of the 11,000,000 tons of Axis merchant shipping had been destroyed, captured or put out of action by the Royal Navy and the R.A.F. In addition, the Royal Navy had sunk 3 Axis (German and Italian) battleships, 15 cruisers, 62 destroyers or damaged 530 submarines. British submarines, alone, have sunk more than 300 enemy supply ships, including many troop ships, and have damaged many more.

Dr. R. A. Purdy Visits Home

Deep Brook welcomes back on holiday Dr. R. Allen Purdy, one of the village's former boys who has finally accomplished a childhood ambition of becoming a Healer of the Sick. Born in Deep Brook, son of R. W. W. Purdy, now of Windsor, he first worked in Halifax, later going to the United States in the employ of C. E. Hall's Trucking business, largest of its kind in New England, finally setting up a business of his own, and commencing studies which culminated in his graduation from the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy, June 9. It is Dr. Purdy's intention to continue studies for his M.D., and when world conditions return to normal, he hopes to come back to his native province to practise his profession. Dr. Purdy, with his wife and children, is spending two weeks at their Deep Brook home.

Sailors Break Into Webber's

The store room of Webber's Lunch was broken into early Monday morning and cigarettes and tobacco valued at between $100 and $150 stolen. The break took place about 2 a.m., and was witnessed by Miss Dakin, who lives almost directly across the street from the storeroom.

Entrance to the building was gained by smashing the glass window in the door. Miss Dakin heard the crash and looked out her window to investigate. She saw two men in naval uniform entering the warehouse.

She tried to telephone the police from the office of Dr. E. DuVernet, located on the lower floor of her home, but was unable to find the key to his office immediately. In the meantime the thieves left with part of their loot.

As they returned for another load Miss Dakin had located the key and apparently the burglars heard her ring central (on a "crank phone") and fled.

Other than their uniforms she has no other description of the men.

MARRIAGE

A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday morning of last week at the Catholic Chapel at Shelburne, when Father Comeau united in marriage, Greta May Winfield, eldest daughter of Augustus Winfield, and Joseph Louis Belliveau, of Meteghan River. The bride wore a white bridal gown and veil and was attended by Mrs. Alphonse Comeau. The church was tastefully decorated. The bride was given away by her father, Augustus Winfield. Following the ceremony and Mass a wedding breakfast was served the bridal party and members of their respective families, at the Atlantic House. The happy couple left on a two weeks' honeymoon trip.

Other points in which the Board requires the posting of cards stating maximum rates for rooms in the rooms rented are Halifax, Sydney, Liverpool, Shelburne, Digby and Liverpool.

The members of the Digby Yacht Club will regret to learn of the passing in Saint John last week of Fred S. Heans, for many years Commodore of the Royal Kennebecasis Yacht Club which has entertained Digby yachtsmen. Commodore Heans was 72 years of age and was owner of the cruising yacht Canada, a boat which had visited Digby on several occasions in the days of the Saint John-Digby yacht races.

Flower Show At Sandy Cove

On Thursday afternoon, August 5, Sandy Cove held its third Annual Flower Show in support of the Red Cross. In spite of threatening weather, the Show was most successful; in all, seventy-three exhibits were entered, the entrants ranging in age from ten years to eighty-two. After the judging of the exhibits, the Show was thrown open to the public. Such was the enthusiasm shown by the visitors that it was decided to continue the exhibition during the evening, at the close of which the flowers were auctioned off by Roscoe Foster. The proceeds of the day amounted to $25.

There were twelve classes for entrants, with first and second awards in each; in addition to which two so-called gold medals, and two special awards were given for outstanding exhibits. Boy Saved By Fishing Line

The presence of mind and boy scout training of thirteen year old Gordon Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ritchie, Halifax, in all probability accounts for the fact that ten year old John Rider, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Rider, Philadelphia, is alive today. Gordon and John, with Gordon and Sydney Greenwood, also of Philadelphia, were fishing off the Rocks near Point Prim Lighthouse at the entrance of Digby Gut on Friday evening, when John, the youngest of the group, had the misfortune to fall off the rocks into the tide.

Gordon, who is a good swimmer, was about to plunge to John's rescue when he realized he wouldn't stand a ghost of a show swimming against the strong tide that runs in that vicinity. John, who was struggling desperately in the water, had already gone down twice, however, the boys shouted words of encouragement while Gordon brought his fishing pole and tackle within John's range.

There were a few anxious moments before they succeeded in getting John to understand they wanted him to catch hold of the fishing tackle, but he did understand and acted accordingly, and the boys actually fished him to shore and safety.

At first John was so completely exhausted he was unable to stand on his feet, but the boys managed to get him to the lighthouse where light-keeper Frank Wilson, drove him to his father's summer home.

Gordon Ritchie is spending his summer vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ellis, Bay View.

The accident occurred about 8:30 Friday evening.

About This and That

The increasing speed of air service is indicated by the fast time made on the round trip of a big plane operated by Trans-Canada Air Lines crews in the newly established Canadian Government wartime trans-Atlantic service. The plane which took off from Montreal airport late on a Thursday afternoon, reached the British Isles in the record time of 12 hours, 26 minutes, landing early Friday morning. With just over twenty-four hours on land, the same plane started off for Canada on Saturday afternoon and arrived in Montreal Airport early Sunday, 15 hours and 6 minutes after take off, having faced rainstorms throughout the entire crossing. Thus, less than 72 hours, or three days as Canadians usually mark time, were required to traverse approximately 6,000 miles, with a bit of a breather in between. The eastbound trip from Montreal was a record, clipping off 25 minutes from the previous best non-stop flight from Montreal to Britain. On both trips large consignments of army mail were carried. On the record-breaking eastbound trip the plane was in charge of Captain Ronald F. George, operations manager of Trans-Canada Air Lines and a native of Sackville, N. B. while on the return westbound journey the plane was in charge of Captain M. B. "Jock" Barclay, also of the TCA services.

The U.S. treasury warns us that $10,000 bills are getting scarce. We do not know whether this applies to Canada or not, but $10,000 bills are just as plentiful with us as ever they were.

Two British princes each of whom afterwards ascended the throne, officiated at important official functions at Victoria Bridge, of the Canadian National Railways, the cornerstone of which was laid ninety years ago in July, 1853. The last spike was driven by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, afterwards King Edward VII, on August 25, 1860. In time, the traffic outgrew the single track bridge and the Grand Trunk Railway engineers designed a new open span double track bridge. When completed, it was officially inaugurated by H.R.H., the Duke of Cornwall and York, later to become King George V, during his tour of Canada in 1901. Victoria Bridge is one of the busiest crossings of the St. Lawrence daily carrying heavy wartime freights to East and South, and important passenger trains serving the Maritimes and providing service across the border to New England, New York and direct to Washington.

THE joyriders drive blithely on, carelessly oblivious of their trail of blazing butts and matches. But Hitler counts them among his important saboteurs—since they cause MOST of our forest fire damage. Beware of their example. Enjoy the highways, the woods, but—

1—NEVER BURN brush or slash in windy weather. Never burn without a permit and without help handy.

2—NEVER SMOKE on the road. Walk until you stop in a safe place. Be sure matches, cigarette stubs and pipe stubs are COLD.

3—RUBB CAMPFIRES. Rub the green end of the stick away from the butt with your thumb. The stick will burn DEAD before leaving.

4—KILL any small fires you find. REPORT ALL OTHERS immediately by telephone to nearest Ranger. And show this ad to at least three friends.

Farmers Having Difficulties

One thing Digby County farmers have this year is a good hay crop. The harvesting of that crop has already begun, but, even at this early date, it is feared much of that crop will not be stored in the barns but will remain in the fields for lack of harvesters—a much larger proportion than last year.

Much of last year's hay crop was burned off this spring and in many instances the new crop grew through last year's hay.

The shortage of farm help in this area is not solely due to the fact that many of the young men have joined the armed forces or have been drafted into compulsory training but in a large measure, is due to "competition." War work projects in this vicinity have claimed practically all the available farm labor, wages on these projects are so much higher than local farmers are able to pay. Also, many operators of small farms have practically abandoned their own work to work on these projects.

The hay is not the only farm "crop" affected by this reason. For years this district, including the town of Digby, has depended largely on wood for winter fuel, and because of the labor shortage, farmers, who in the past have got out hundreds of cords of wood, cut very little last winter. One farmer, who usually sells from 80 to 100 cords to customers in town, said a few days ago that he had barely enough out for his own use, and that he had to cut himself. He could get no help.

The late wet spring had an adverse effect on root and other crops. Farmers who prepared their ground late in the fall, or early in the spring, were forced because of weather conditions, to delay their seeding, and when seeding was possible, were unable to obtain help. The result has been that many ploughed acres, originally intended for potatoes, turnips, beets and other like crops have been seeded down to grass and grain, or not seeded at all.

On the whole, crops that were put in the ground are reported doing well, but because of reduced acreage over which farmers had no control, the harvest will be considerably smaller than last season. It is feared, however, that the wet weather will cause unestimable damage to the potato crop. Even at this early date, farmers are complaining their potatoes are showing signs of blight, even before they are in blossom.

So far, small fruits have been a practical failure. There were virtually no strawberries on the market at all (the local crop was estimated less than one third of normal years). The cherry crop is only fair, and many of these are rotting on the trees before they can be picked. Raspberries, never too plentiful in this area, appear to be yielding only a light crop, but indications are there may be a heavy crop of will blackberries, and a more than fair crop of blueberries.

60th Anniversary Reunion

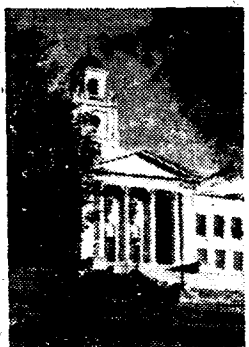

Mr. and Mrs. Chipman M. Cossaboom, of Berwick, formerly of Waltham, Mass., celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary at their home a few days ago, a little ahead of the proper date. They were married at their birthplace, Centreville, Digby County, by the Rev. Chipman Morse on October 16, 1883. The anniversary was celebrated early as all of their seven children were together for the first time, as the oldest was away before the youngest was born.

Their children are, Mrs. Edith M. Blackford, of Pasadena, Calif.; Charles Oscar Cossaboom, of Auburndale, Mass.; Mrs. (Alberta B.) Boyd A. Dakin, of Berwick; Mrs. (Ada B.) Melvin A. Nix, of Stanley; Mrs. Anstice, M. Nix, Windsor; Mrs. (Mildred M.) William Nix, St. Croix; Mrs. (June I.) Anson F. Harvie, of Waltham, Mass. There are seventeen grandchildren and sixteen great-grandchildren. A very enjoyable day was spent with other members of the family present.

Why Worry?

Our forefathers existed without Sugar till the 13th century. Coal fires till the 14th. Buttered bread till the 15th. Potatoes and tobacco till the 16th. Coffee, tea or soap till the 17th. Puddings till the 18th. Gas, matches, or electricity till the 19th. Automobiles and tinned goods till the 20th. So why worry over rationing or shortages? The old boys managed to get along fairly well.—Exchange.

The five battleships lost by the Royal Navy during the war have been replaced by mighty 35,000 ton battleships. Though over 80 destroyers have been lost in action, more than double this number have been built to replace them. When the war began, Britain had six aircraft carriers. After three years of war, only H.M.S. Furious survived; but when the American troops landed in North Africa, there were several Royal Navy carriers present.

Mrs. Frank Jones, now residing with her daughter, Mrs. H. C. Anthony, at Camp Arctadie, had the great sorrow of losing the last of her brothers recently, when the late James G. Douglas, of Stanley, N. B., passed away. Mr. Douglas lived in Saint John for many years, then, because of his great interest in farming he went to Stanley, where he owned a famous herd of Ayreshire cattle, of which he was very proud. His death is a great loss to that community and to his friends and surviving relatives.

Of interest to the many friends of the "Jones" family is the following: "Major William Morris (Bill) Jones, who, during the last war, lost an eye, and was awarded the D. C.M. with Bar, being determined to get into this war, went to England at his own risk and became a Flying Officer in the R.A.F., serving in the Middle East, and at Cyprus in the earlier days of the war. Early in 1942 he served in North Africa and this summer was transferred to the Army, with the rank of Major in the Black Watch Regiment, and is now in Scotland. As he served all through the last war and in the army of Occupation, he has the privilege of wearing the five bars which denote this service—to which will be added the years of this war, in which he has given his best service, achieved against early refusal in Canada. One knows of others who "forced" their way into the service, always giving unstintingly because their hearts are filled with love of country and freedom, and therefore being very valuable to the Army, Navy, or Air Force, as the case may be.

We, who remain at home to carry on our daily duties with scarcely any change from peace-time pace, should try to understand, appreciate, and encourage our enlisted girls, not discourage them. They, as surely as our men, are giving their youthful years to help bring peace to this world—it is not easy for them to give up their homes, their jobs, their freedom of action, and put on the uniform of OUR country—let us get behind them in every way possible. One back-biter can do more harm than ten truth-speaking citizens, so don't let us be back-biters. All glory to our girls in the services—the history of this great war will give them the honor some of our women and men (not too many we hope) would deny them now.

Herring Keep Mouth Open At Meal-Time

Following paragraphs will give two or three facts about some Canadian fishes. The facts are of different degrees of interest and importance. They're given in more or less condensed form, in no particular sequence.

Take first the case of the impolite herring. If there are authorities on etiquette among the fish "Four Hundred" they must be shocked by the herring's manners. Herring keep their mouths wide open when they're eating! Or, not to condemn the family too sweepingly, they keep their mouths wide open when they're doing some of their eating. At such times their mouths are wide so that, by means of the fine gillrakers with which Mother Nature has equipped them, they may strain from the sea water the very tiny but nourishing food organisms it contains. At other times, however, when they are doing more picking and choosing in taking in the day's meals, they open their mouths only enough to capture individual larger forms of animal life that come floating their way.

For the sake of cod and some other large fish it is just as well that the herring's manners at table aren't always all that they might be. The herring, wide-mouthed, eat the tiny particles of plankton and grow fat and then, in turn, the cod eat the herring and so get the benefit at "second-hand," so to speak, but none the less certainly of the nourishing microscopic organisms they would not otherwise obtain.

Incidentally, a major reason why there are so many sardines, or small herring, in the Passamaquoddy Bay area off south-western New Brunswick, is because the tiny food organisms are so abundant in the upper layers of the bay waters. Thorough mixing of the water brings stores of food to the water levels of the bay and it is in those levels that the little herring live.

No matter just where they find it or just how they eat it, Canadian herring quite evidently get plenty of food for they flourish in enormous numbers on both coasts of the Dominion, and are present, too, of course, in many freshwater areas. Landings of sea herring alone in 1940, for instance, totaled nearly 465,000,000 pounds and the freshwater members of the tribe added close to 4,600,000 pounds more.

Fresh water herring are all marketed in the fresh water form but most of their sea cousins are put through one process or another before they reach market. Great quantities of them are used nowadays in preparing canned food for shipment to Britain, and others go into the manufacture of fish meal and oil, many of them are smoked, others pickled. Most of the canning is done in British Columbia, most of the pickling and smoking in Atlantic districts.

Says Nova Scotia Wool is "Excellent"

High tribute to the quality of wool produced in Nova Scotia was paid by George E. O'Brien, Toronto, Vice-president of the Canadian Wool Board Limited, during a tour of the province when the wool at Truro and Antigonish was examined. "Excellent wool of its kind" was the phrase he used in referring to the Nova Scotia product. He was pleased to note that more attention was being given to wool production and said he hoped more farmers would go in for flocks of 25 to 30 head of sheep which is profitable business. The more farmers go into sheep, he said, the quicker will the dog problem be solved and the lambs will help solve the meat problem.

Referring to the Canadian wool situation he said the crop of fleece wool this year would total somewhere between eleven and twelve million pounds compared with ten million last year. In addition to fleece there will be about 3,000,000 pounds of pulled wool. While Canada will produce somewhere around 15,000,000 lbs., about 100,000,000 lbs. will be needed to meet consumption demands. The balance will be imported. This year's clip, said Mr. O'Brien, is somewhat lighter as fleeces have been lighter, especially so in the West.

There is quite a difference in weights of fleeces across Canada. In Western Canada range wool fleeces (sheep on range) average 8 to 9 lbs., while fleeces from farm flocks average 7 to 8 lbs. Fleeces in the Maritimes average 6½ to 7 lbs.

Rainfall Record Established

The rainfall in May, June and July of this year was far the heaviest of any years according to official information compiled by A. D. Pickett, officer-in-charge, Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Annapolis, where records are compiled for the Dominion Meteorological Service.

The figures, which give a pretty fair idea of one of the major problems involved in farming this year, show that the May-June-July precipitation this year totalled 15.42 inches. The highest previous precipitation, since records were first kept in 1909, was 12.04 inches in 1916. The average for the 29-year period was 8.85 inches while the low was 4.09 inches in 1924.

On a very rough percentage basis it may be said of the rainfall in May, June and July of this year that it was about 80 per cent above the average since records were first kept at the Annapolis station, 30 per cent higher than the next high year and 380 per cent above the low in 1916.

Gives 7 Suggestions for Handling Poultry

Poultry producers are reminded that in all legitimate transactions in poultry, live or dressed, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board ceilings must be followed. As no good Canadian will want to trade on the "black market" the safe and loyal way is to deal through recognized channels. Wholesalers must buy on a graded basis. Since there is a difference of seven cents a pound between Grade A milk-fed and Grade C producers can readily see that it pays to fatten and properly finish poultry before selling.

Here are seven suggestions for fattening and finishing, drawn up by G. K. Samis, chief poultry promoter, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture: 1. fatten birds in crates for best results; 2. start to fatten birds of heavy breeds when they weigh about five pounds; 3. do not wait until birds are stagg. Remember that hard spurs, very mature heads and red pigment showing down backs of shanks are indications of sexual maturity. Staginess is usually penalized, in grading, about 3 to 5 cents per pound; 4. starving, at least overnight, before killing or delivery to market, is very important; 5. never take to market thin or diseased poultry that you would not eat yourself; 6. pinfeathers, full crops, tearing and rubbing dressed poultry, all lower the grade; 7. dress the birds properly at home or deliver them in good condition to a pool or killing station where there are expert killers, automatic equipment, or both.

Makes Survey of Boys and Girls

Rural boys have the edge on rural girls when it comes to taking part in debates, having bank accounts, property ownership, milking cows and harnessing horses, according to a survey made at the recently held Boys' and Girls' Club Camps conducted by the Extension Division, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture. The girls, however, excelled in cooking dinner, first aid instruction and acting as club secretary, while there was practically an even break when it came to the number who could swim and those who had travelled outside the province.

It is not safe to assume, according to this survey, that because a girl comes from the country she can milk a cow or that a country boy can harness a horse. Fifty-seven girls said they could milk and 54 said they could not. All the 63 boys at camp said they could milk. When it came to harnessing a horse 61 boys said "yes" and two said "no", while 32 girls said they could and 79 answered no. The girls had their inning when it came to cooking a dinner. All but six of these professed to know how, while 19 of the boys admitted their inability along this line.

Reports 17.1 p.c. Creamery Butter Increase

Three In Family

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Ellis, Bear River, have been advised three of their sons were listed among the casualties of the Sicilian Campaign. On Tuesday they received word their son, Sgt. Richard Ellis, had been killed in action, this word came shortly after they had been officially advised that their sons, Corporal William and Sgt. Wallace had been wounded in the same battle. All three sons were with the West Nova Scotia Regiment. Four of the five sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis joined the colors. In addition to the three listed as casualties, another son, Lea, is stationed at Halifax with the R.C.A. Mr. Ellis is a brother to Mrs. F. A. Robinson, Digby.

Sicilian Casualties

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Smith, Smith's Cove, have been advised their son, Captain Stanley Smith, was wounded in the Sicilian Campaign. Captain Smith enlisted as Lieutenant in the 1st Division, West Nova Scotia Regiment, in 1939, and was sent overseas in November of that year to take a special officers' training course in England, and was promoted to the rank of Captain shortly afterward.

Word has been received by Mrs. Sadie Nichols, Digby, that her son, Flight-Sergeant Jack Nichols was wounded by shrapnel during an operational flight over Sicily on August 7, and is confined to hospital. This is the second time Flight-Sergeant Nichols has been wounded within a few weeks. On June 13, during the fall of Tunisia he was injured and confined to hospital as the result of a forced landing. Flight-Sgt. Nichols has been on active service in the Middle East for the past two years.

Yes, We Have No Lawyers Today

In Digby if you wish to divorce your wife, sue your neighbor for damages, or to take any other action requiring the services of a lawyer, you will simply have to wait until the boys get back from the Reserve Army Camp at Aldershot.

Digby's three lawyers, E. J. Theriault, H. A. Nichols, and M. S. Leonard, left town on Saturday night with thirty other men and boys from this vicinity to go into training at the Reserve Army Camp at Aldershot. E. J. Theriault is the commanding officer of the local Reserve Army unit, and Mr. Nichols and Mr. Leonard are both second lieutenants.

The exodus of the lawyers also temporarily deprives the town of its mayor and town clerk as Mr. Theriault is Digby's chief magistrate, and Mr. Nichols, town clerk and treasurer. Incidentally, Mr. Leonard, is president of the Digby Board of Trade and Mr. Nichols, secretary of the local Ration Board.

Farewell Party Held

Miss Inez Shortliffe, North Range, was agreeably surprised one evening recently when members of I. W. Wilson Division and friends held a farewell party in her honour at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Shortliffe. During the evening the guest of honor was presented with suitable gifts from friends assembled. After a program of entertainment refreshments were served by Mrs. Shortliffe, assisted by Miss Marguerite MacNeill, Miss Myrna Haight and Master Floyd MacNeill.

Miss Shortliffe leaves this week for Saint John, where she will enter the nursing profession as student nurse in the Saint John General Hospital. Her many friends wish her every success in her chosen field of duty.

Lieutenant William Christie R.C.N.V.R., who has been spending a furlough at his home returned to Halifax on Sunday.

New President For St. Ann's College

Announcement was received last week from Very Reverend Albert D'Amours, Canadian Provincial of the Eudist Order, of the appointment of Reverend Wilfred Hache, C.J.M., as president of Saint Ann's College, Church Point, succeeding Reverend J. C. Comeau, C.J.M., who has been transferred to Sacred Heart University, Bathurst, N.B.

Reverend Father Hache, the new president, was born at Robertsville, N.B., the son of Joseph Hache and the late Margaret Hache. He received his early education in the local public schools and later attended Saint Ann's College, where he completed his Arts Course in 1921. He then entered the Eudist Order and pursued his theological studies at the Sacred Heart Seminary, Gros Pin, P.Q. After his ordination in 1927 Father Hache was appointed to the staff of the Holy Heart Seminary, Halifax, as professor of philosophy. The following year he was transferred to Saint Ann's College as Head of the Science Department, which position he held until his appointment as Prefect of Discipline in 1940. As head of the Science Department Father Hache completed the equipment of the laboratory and placed the department on a par with the best science departments in Canadian colleges. He also contributed several articles to scientific reviews, which won the praise of prominent scientists in Canada and the United States. With his well-rounded education and his wide teaching experience Father Hache is excellently equipped for the prominent position to which he has been appointed.

Elected President

Rev. J. W. Derby, pastor of the Church of Christ (Disciples), Westport, was elected president of the Maritime Conference of the Church, which concluded its annual session on Sunday last. The convention was held in the Church of Christ, Coburg St., Saint John, and was considered a great success from the standpoint of attendance and enthusiasm, all meetings being largely attended and messages were centered around the theme "The Pre-Eminence of Christ."

Harry Lewis, Jr., Weymouth, and E. B. Pugh, of Westport, were named among the members of the Board for the ensuing year.

Roll Call Service

A Roll Call Service was conducted in the Tiverton Baptist Church on Sunday evening, August 15, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. R. C. Eaton.

Special music was rendered by Mrs. Arnold Westcott, of Winnipeg, and Mrs. Egbert Crocker, of Freeport. Roll of members was called by the clerk, Mrs. Herman Elliott. Rev. Arnold Westcott, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Winnipeg, delivered a very able and inspiring sermon, basing his remarks on Nehemiah 6:3. "I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down." An offering of $101 was taken.

Bear River Booth Digby Hospital Fair

August 27 - 28

Will all citizens of Bear River keep in mind the date of the Digby Hospital Fair—changed this year owing to changed circumstances. Although it is our intention to have just as much Bear River cooked food — cookies, cake, rolls, brown bread, etc.—as possible, we will accept any articles, other than food, as well, and endeavor to have the returns as large as possible. Each home will be solicited between now and Fair Day, and in the meantime donations may be sent to the home of Mrs. A. B. Campbell, who will accept and take care of same. Don't wait to be solicited—send your donation along if it is not perishable. Canned vegetables, jam, jelly or canned fruit, are acceptable also. Bear River has won an enviable reputation for fine cooking, and we hope that this year, in spite of rationing and other difficulties, we may be able to carry on without too drastic a curtailment of supplies. Mrs. A. B. Campbell.

Celebrates 90th Birthday

Mrs. Remi Thibault, of Hectanooga, celebrated her 90th birthday recently. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anselme Thibault, and was born at Meteghan River, her maiden name being Miss Sophie Thibault. When she was twelve years old her parents left thriving farms at Meteghan River, in the vicinity where the Clare Creamery now stands, and came through the forests, and founded the settlement of Bear Lake formerly called Thibault Settlement. She married Remi Thibault, a son of the late Cyriac Thibault and Elizabeth Doucet, who died some years ago. In those back settlements she had thrilling encounters with wild animals. Her home was a centre of French Acadian hospitality, where the poor were never returned empty handed from her door. She has eight children living, six boys and two girls, Ernest and Edward, of Hectanooga; Gervais, of La Belle Anse, Clare, Alphonse, Vincent and Eddie, at home; Mrs. Celina Ward, of Digby and Mrs. Charles Gaudet, of St. Bernard. Also a large number of grandchildren and great grandchildren, some of them in the United States. She has seen her fourth generation in the baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. Simon C. Deveau, Hectanooga.

"That Ditty Bag—Like a Bit of Heaven"

(A Letter from a British Sailor to a Worker of the Navy League of Canada.)

Dear Miss — I am the sailor who received your parcel and I want to thank you and tell you how much it meant to me, especially this year, for I looked forward to a Christmas without even a letter and away down deep in my heart, I admit I was just a bit sad. This life on the sea takes you away from home and family and sometimes Christmas doesn't mean much to a sailor—it is all in a day's work and one day is the same as the next. When I got your ditty bag, it made me feel different and it was the only parcel I received but it was a grand one.

I won't give you a life history of myself but perhaps you would like to know a little about me. My father was a Sea Captain but died when I was 10 years old. I will be 19 years old in April. Our home was in Coventry and I worked and lived with my mother and little sister until I was 18, when I joined the Navy. Life at sea is not an easy one but I like it. It has been bitterly cold and we have run into some bad storms. For days we don't know what it is to have dry clothes on and they almost freeze on you, but I want to do my bit to win this war—for win we must and will—There'll always be an England, but we must all fight. It was nice to know someone like you and your organization remembered us and tried to make our Christmas brighter.

I said our home in Coventry but it is no more, nor have I a mother or sister for both were killed in that brutal bombing. The day they were bombed, I had received a parcel from mother containing two pair of socks, a picture of herself and Mary and a Bible of my father's. Those socks seem too sacred to wear. The picture and the Bible I prize very much, for it is all I have left. My return trip is with a sad heart for our home was blown to bits, so I have nothing.

Perhaps you will understand better why the ditty bag seemed like a bit of mother and heaven, coming as it did, and everything so nicely wrapped in Christmas paper and tied up just as though I was some swell person. Those long sea socks were grand and I sure needed them. Some lads didn't get any parcels so I shared the cake, candies, nuts and dates and cigarettes with them. The First-Aid articles and mending supplies and all the other games, books and parcels were grand. We had a good time opening them. Thanks a thousand for everything. We sure appreciated them all and it is nice to know the Canadians don't forget us.

I'm sorry I haven't any address to give you just now for I don't know where I will go when I land on the other side. I hope you don't think I have written a sissy letter but it was grand just to have someone to write a letter to again and mother liked me to write and tell her as much as I could and how I liked my presents.

Again I want to thank you, the League, and your friends for remembering us, and for your encouragement and cheer to a sailor lad.

With best luck and good wishes.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Bob

Ditty bags may be obtained from the Committee, who will also accept cash donations to fill same: Mrs. J. A. Grant, Mrs. H. M. Warne, Mrs. C. E. Walker, Mrs. F. J. Thibault, and Mrs. L. E. Shafford.

About This and That

"What happened to Hamburg shouldn't happen to a dog," in the opinion of the German propaganda machine. But the effectiveness of the allied air blitz on the second city of the German reich is admitted in the next breath when Robert Ley, leader of the German labor front, says that "the reality and horror of the bombing of Hamburg surpasses every report, every letter, and every imagining possible." Hamburg, Germany's most important seaport and a city of 1,600,000 population, is today a shattered ruin. Casualties are reported as high as 200,000 in dead, injured and missing. In ten days, thousands of allied planes rained more bombs on this one city than all England received in the eight-month blitz of two years ago. "The danger cannot be escaped, so therefore must be faced," says Berlin newspapers. And the German capital, believing itself to be the next victim of allied air power, is hurriedly evacuating hundreds of thousands of its citizens. For the first time in a century, the greater part of which it devoted to war, Germany is feeling at home the destruction and suffering which hitherto she has been so free to inflict on other lands. So once again is fulfilled the prophecy: "He that soweth the wind shall reap the whirlwind."

An English scientist says Hitler is suffering from "hysteria, persecutory mania, compulsory psychosis, and megalomaniac." In plain English, he's a screwball.

It is becoming more evident each day that the United Nations "missed the boat" so far as Italy is concerned, says an American exchange. Our leaders had to complete plans beyond the invasion of Sicily. When Mussolini was suddenly and unexpectedly toppled from power and the fascist bubble collapsed, we weren't prepared to take advantage of this break. Any time within 100 hours after Mussolini quit, Sunday, July 25, allied troops probably could have landed in Italy with little opposition, then occupied the southern half of the Italian peninsula with not much fighting and very small losses. We know that now, when it is too late to benefit thereby. Instead of such an audacious policy, Churchill and Roosevelt chose to temporize. The result was that Badoglio gained precious days to stifle the demands of the people for peace, and to permit the importation of German troops to back up his policy for a continuation of the war at the side of his nazi master. Eventually we shall invade and conquer Italy. But the cost in lives, equipment, and time, will be far greater than would have been the case had we been ready to act promptly when the big opportunity arrived. We "missed the boat" in the case of Italy. We must not repeat this mistake when Germany collapses.

As we understand the matter now, it was the price of beef and not the cow that jumped over the moon.

Are the people of this country patriotic? We think so. Then, if our boys are willing to leave excellent positions and enlist in the service where they know they are to receive less remuneration, why cannot the ones at home do likewise? We refer to very necessary farm labor. There has been a time when office and factory workers looked upon those who did farm work as beneath them. This is not the case any longer. Those who have a knowledge of the various duties pertaining to farm life are looked up to, today, and they are at a premium. Production on farms, if our boys are to receive sufficient food to carry on, is an absolute requirement, and the boy or girl who is willing to step out and help with this production will be in the direct path of a future that may prove both interesting and beneficial. Healthy, too.

A mocking bird has been found which changes its tune thirteen times in one minute. That's just the bird to issue directives from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

"It will bankrupt the government to win the war," says the unthinking citizen. He doesn't consider what it would mean for us to lose it. But he can't rid himself of the old, old idea that it is reckless and dangerous to spend money more lavishly than it is earned. In early times, when work was hard, conditions still harder, and money scarce, our ancestors had to be frugal. Fortunately for our country—and for the world, in the present global crisis—we have always had good business men. Work, wages, salaries, keep money circulating. With "something to pay with" people can pay taxes. Governmental spending is not the same as individual spending. What the government spends today in its gigantic war effort it receives back in taxes again tomorrow. And so we should not worry about the cost of the war; we should worry only to win it.

Missing On Active Service

No doubt you read it in the paper. I am sure you did, especially if you have a loved one on active service. It was merely a name: Jones, John H., Sgt., listed under the heading "Missing on active service." Oh yes, there were other names too, but that one was the one we really knew.

"Missing on active service." My Johnny, our Johnny, father's and mine. He was only a lad, too, just past twenty-one. And such a strong wholesome lad, the image of his father. It doesn't seem so long ago that he burnt his finger on the stove and came running to me, his eyes filled with tears. How well I remember that hurt look on his young face. It seems only yesterday that he came running home to tell me that he had passed his entrance examinations and could go to the "big school" next year. He was a bright boy, was our Johnny, and I am sure that someday he would have been a famous lawyer, that is if—

I remember the day he came home, his face very sober, to tell me that he had joined the services. And the day he left. His smile of confidence as he said goodbye and told me not to worry, that he could look after himself. I cried that night, not because I was afraid. No, it wasn't that. But Johnny, my own little boy, had become a man and had left me that he might protect me from the evils that had fallen on the world. And then that telegram: missing. My own son, the thing I had feared had come. My Johnny....

"Missing on active service."

My Johnny, our Johnny, mother's and mine. Such a young lad he was too. There in the corner are his baseball shoes. I remember the little shaver of twelve that I took out on the back lot and hit balls too because he wanted to be the 'best' player. And he was too. And there are his trophies for running when he was in high school. He was a good sport, my son was, and a good loser too. I taught him to be. He must have thought I was a bad father the time I sent him to his room for throwing his bat when he struck out. But after I explained to him, he never did it again. Missing, young Johnny missing. Well, he expected it as he so often told me when his mother wasn't around. I had better go to mother now, she will be needing me....

when it was all over, but now... oh Johnny, I'm still proud of you, of this ring I am wearing. Your mother is proud of you and so is your father, and Mr. Brown, and everybody. We're all proud of you Johnny, and we all love you. Our Johnny, my Johnny....

Yes, you probably read it in the paper. Just a name, John H. Jones, there amid many others. But we knew Johnny.

The Garden

of Our Mind

Our mind is like a garden: It may be beautiful and fair, Full of lovely flowers; Or full of weeds; or bare.

For each of us are gardeners, And each one plants the seed That either turns to flowers Or into useless weed.

Or it may, like a desert, Through lack of nourishment and care.

Be void of any useful thing But desolate and bare.

We should be trying daily Within our garden wall To root out any useless weed Leaving flowers fair and tall.

Life's Laws

Two stars met, passing through the sky,
One winked and wished it could stay nigh,
But could not fight the laws of universe;
Two souls met, passing through the earth,
One gazed and saw the other's worth
But could not stay, life's laws had left their curse.

Another Butter Record Established

Creamery butter production for the month of July totalled 1,048,391 lbs., which was an increase of 17.9 per cent over the production of 889,251 lbs. in July, 1942, according to a report issued from the office of W. J. Bird, Nova Scotia Dairy Superintendent. The July, 1943 production established another production record in Nova Scotia, it being the first time that July production ever reached the million pound mark, and it was the third time the million lb. mark had been topped, the other two times being June of 1943 and June of 1942.

Creamery butter production for the first seven months of 1943 totalled 4,606,906 lbs., being up 14.8 per cent over the first seven months of 1942 when production totalled 4,013,480 lbs.

Breed, Don't Butcher, Early Ewes

The Nova Scotia Sheep Committee has issued an appeal urging early ewe lambs, of good quality, be bred and not sent to the butcher. Although these early lambs are worth more cash than the later lambs, it should be kept in mind that an early-bred ewe will in all probability have a lamb next spring, whereas a late ewe, will have none. More lambs, next spring, says the Sheep Committee, mean more meat and more wool, two things the country needs and for which the producer gets favorable returns.

With the increased interest in sheep throughout Nova Scotia that has been very evident within the past few years, there has been a marked trend towards this policy of breeding early ewes. Final figures are not available, but it is believed that the number of ewes bred in 1943 was up more than fifteen per cent when compared with the number bred in 1942.

During the past two or three years a great deal of work has been done with the purpose of improving the number and the quality of sheep in Nova Scotia. Emphasis has been laid on the better handling of sheep, including effective treatment against parasites. Favorable results have followed. Today those who have been paying proper attention to production and have been marketing on a graded basis are finding their sheep business reasonably profitable. More ewes are being kept for breeding, and indications point to increased flocks next year. Right now, it is essential that sheep producers think in terms of saving a year realizing that every early bred lamb should have a lamb next spring.

Any farmer wanting to increase his flocks or start a flock should be able to make arrangements with some near neighbor for good ewes. There are good type sheep in practically every part of Nova Scotia.

The Sheep Committee recommends that farmers endeavor to get their ewes as near home as possible and that every good ewe in the province be retained for early breeding.

Lime Sales Greatly Increased

The use of lime for agricultural purposes in Nova Scotia has been increased during recent years. This is shown by any review of data available. Thus, in 1932 the amount used was 3,370 tons. The last pre-war year this had been increased to 13,583 tons, that is, 1938, while by last year this has been further increased to 34,370 tons. It is expected that this will reach 40,000 tons this year.

This has been brought about in part by a reduction in price, thus, as a war measure in the fall of 1939 the price was reduced to $1.50 per ton in carlots at railway station, or at quarries. In making this reduction in price the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture further bonused the production to make this possible, also paid the railway transportation and as an added incentive gave some assistance in truck transportation.

Since that time the price has been varied from $1.40 to $1.60 per ton in order to assist in distributing the movement throughout the year. This has materially aided in the labour situation at the quarries, enabling them to maintain operation for a longer period. The price of $1.40 this year is for deliveries up to September 5, the price of $1.50 holding until April 15, when the price will be advanced to $1.60 until June 16.

A large number of guests were present at the afternoon tea and work display held on Wednesday of last week at the Court House Digby, under the convensorship of Mrs. H. M. Warne and other members of the Red Cross Work Committee.

Work was in progress on two quilts, while a group of ladies were also busily engaged in sewing. One side of the large room was entirely devoted to an interesting exhibit of finished articles, including coats, adults and children's dresses, sweaters, boys' shirts, undergarments, layettes and quilts. These 200, represent the work of the Digby Branch and the auxiliaries for the past month, and are ready for shipment to Red Cross headquarters to be used for civilian relief. The tea table was presided over by Mrs. T. E. G. Lynch, who was assisted in serving by Mrs. G. W. Connell, Mrs. Monohan, Mrs. James Stewart and Mrs. Todd Pearen. A hand-painted tray, sold for the benefit of the Red Cross, was drawn for at the close of the tea, the winner being Mrs. J. R. McCleave. Proceeds of the afternoon amounted to nearly $20.

THE ROUT
OF ROMMEL

Sorry Folks!

We are sorry, but we had to "kill" most of the village notes held over last week. It seems to be the only way we can catch up with the vast amount of country correspondence that has piled up on us. Lack of experienced help and paper rationing make it impossible to add extra pages to the Courier to care for these items that have been crowded out during the past few weeks. Our readers and correspondents will understand advertising matter must be given preference, as advertising is the newspapers main source of revenue.

It would help a lot if correspondents would send in their items earlier in the week. We start work on the next issue of the Courier immediately after the current issue has come off the press, and try to go to press with the first run on Monday or Tuesday. Usually, during this first stage of preparation, there is somewhat of a dearth of local copy, and we have to fill up with other material. After the first run is off the press, news notes from outside commence to pour in, and we are swamped. Last week we had material for more than seven columns of local matter held over — some of this was set in type.

Some of the notes that are in type will be used. We will clean up our copy desk by destroying the rest and see if by this way we can find more space for "fresh" local news in the future. The policy of "no held over news" will probably be continued for a few weeks.

The Chinese Need Your Help

A campaign is now under way in Canada to raise $1,000,000 to provide relief for our brave Chinese allies. Dr. T. L. Rogers is heading the campaign for the Digby area. Brave China needs your help. In their magnificent battle against the Japanese the Chinese are fighting our battle as well as their own. China's war against Japan, probably the most powerful and most dangerous enemy we face today, is now entering its sixth year, and if, through exhaustion, through lack of supplies, through a feeling of hopelessness, China should be lost as an ally, the whole military picture might easily be transformed, and the course of human history changed.

To a large measure the success or failure of the United Nations depends upon China. We must be generous and give China what help we can.

Funds contributed through the Chinese War Relief will not only help relieve the vast suffering of the people of China, but will also act as a humble tribute from Canada to their magnificent courage and endurance; will carry to them new strength to carry on until Victory is won. Funds raised for the Chinese War Relief are distributed in China by a committee of Canadian residents in China in collaboration with Madame Chang Kai-shek.

Mail your contributions to Dr. T. L. Rogers, Digby—it will be much appreciated if communities and clubs in Digby should stage some special benefit for this worthy cause. The campaign closes August 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shinner returned to Halifax after spending their vacation with Mrs. Albert Grant, of Weymouth-North.

Mrs. Gordon Ellis and young son, Keith, returned home on Thursday last, after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Bowles, Waterville, Kings County.

Monday Night's "Blackout"

Monday night's "blackout" from all we are able to gather was quite successful insofar as the town was concerned. The blackout, we believe, was the shortest experienced here; and was only of about ten minutes' duration.

However, in our opinion it was another absolute farce, although, please understand, we are not knocking the local A.R.P. in this connection. Their work on Monday night and on all other occasions in the past has been almost letter perfect. The fault is from matters over which they have no control.

This paper will never recognize a "blackout" as such until the lights on the wharf and railway switches are extinguished. In the event of an actual air raid the enemy would be justified in extending "a hearty vote of thanks" for illuminating the most vulnerable targets in the town of Digby for them. These would be their first objectives.

Dedication of St. Patrick's Convent

Next Sunday will mark an historic occasion for parishioners of St. Patrick's Church, Digby, when His Grace Archbishop McNally, of Halifax, will pay an official visit to the parish.

In the afternoon at 3 p.m., the Archbishop will bless a large Union Jack to be hung in the church as a memorial to the young men and women of the parish who are in the armed forces. Immediately afterwards the formal blessing and dedication of the new Convent-School will take place, with a special sermon by Very Rev. Dean Curran, of Halifax.

A cordial invitation to citizens of Digby generally is extended.

"Teddy" Walker is spending a week's vacation at his home. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson and son, Sammy, accompanied by Mrs. James Gilmour and her two sons, all of Halifax, were week end visitors of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wilson, Shore Road.

MARRIAGES

VanTassell - Melanson
A quiet wedding took place at the Baptist parsonage, Digby, on Friday evening, August 6, when Rev. J. Earl DeLong, pastor of the Digby Baptist Church, united in marriage Theresa Margaret Melanson, of Digby, to Gunner Ronald Sidney VanTassell also of Digby. The bride looked attractive in a street length dress of blue crepe with hat and accessories to match. She wore a corsage of pink roses. They were attended by the groom's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Henshaw, of Deep Brook. The happy couple left Thursday for Halifax where the groom is at present stationed.

Tupper - Dickson
A pretty wedding took place at Trinity Church, Digby, on Monday evening, August 23, at 8 o'clock, when Frances Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dickson, was united in marriage to Sgt. James Howard Tupper, C.D.C., only son of Mrs. Harriett Tupper and the late Forbes Tupper, of Clementsport. The church was beautifully decorated with summer flowers, and guest pews were marked with nosegays. The wedding marches were played by Miss Ena Robinson, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. F. B. Gaskill, rector of the church. As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, she looked lovely in a gown of slipper white satin and net made with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves trimmed with net, extending into points over the hands. Her skirt was bouffant style with an overskirt of net. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a halo of flowers matching her bouquet of pink and white roses and bouvardia. Her only ornament was a gold and pearl necklace worn by her mother on her wedding day. The bride was attended by Mrs. Fred Cookson as matron of honor, and Misses Phyllis Dickie, June Campbell and Asaphine Hazelton as bridesmaids. They wore gowns of blue, pink, green and yellow organza, made with sweetheart neckline and short sleeves, and torso bodice with full skirt with large off-the-face hats to match. Each carried a nosegay of summer flowers. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The table was beautifully decorated with summer flowers and centred with a three-tier wedding cake. Mr. and Mrs. Tupper left on Tuesday for New Brunswick and will spend a two weeks' honeymoon in that province, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia. For going away Mrs. Tupper wore a powder blue suit with fuschia accessories, and corsage of white carnations and cornflowers. Prior to the wedding the bride was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Fred Cookson and Mrs. Donald Deming. The happy couple received many beautiful gifts including a lamp from the staff of the Navy League Hostel, Digby, where the bride is employed; and telephone desk and chair from the staff of the Dental Clinic of H. M. C. S. "Cornwallis" where the groom

Has Special Significance

Annual observance of the memorial and decoration service at Old St. Edward's Church, Clementsport, on August 19, marking the 146th anniversary of its consecration by Bishop Inglis, held more than usual interest. This was due to the presence of so many of the members of the Naval Service, both men and women.

Rev. A. W. L. Smith, rector, was in charge, and the service itself was conducted by Rev. E. B. Gabriel, Annapolis Royal. The first lesson was read by Rev. Frisby Smith, Halifax, and the second by Rev. Canon E. Underwood, retired, Annapolis Royal.

A welcome was extended by the rector, particularly to the Naval personnel. The ratings, who paraded to the church were in charge of Lieutenant C. Brown, R.C.N. V.R., and the Wrens, Sub-Lieutenant J. Languedo. Rev. Mr. Smith referred to the fact that it was the first time that the Navy had come in numbers to worship at this historic edifice.

Rev. W. Hills, B.A.M., L.Th., R.C.N., Chaplain at H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis," Deep Brook, delivered the sermon. He said that he could use no better text than "St. Edward's Crowning the Hilltop," and stressed three points: history, endurance and example. That church which served as a beacon a century and a half ago is still performing that duty, today, he said.

Work Resumes

The Clare Shipbuilding Company was in operation Friday after a three-day lay-off. The majority of the men have returned to work; approximately 200 of the 340 men who are employed in ship construction work. It was expected the full number would be working by the first of the week.

The following statement was issued by the company:

"The Clare Shipbuilding Co. resumed operations this morning, 200 men returning to work, after having been temporarily closed for reorganization of the launching schedule. The Company has consistently declared that there was no such thing as a lock-out at the shipyards, but that the temporary suspension of operations was due to lack of a suitably dredged berth for fitting out the vessels under construction. This has now been rectified by the receipt from Ottawa of a work order enabling the company to extend its wharf accommodations. As work progresses, further employees will be engaged, commensurate with the work."

is now stationed. Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Eric Williams, Clementsport; Mrs. J. W. Andrews and daughter, Ola, Saint John; Rev. and Mrs. Douglas Tupper, Kennetcook; Mrs. James Tupper, Middleton; Miss Maude Cover t, Bridgetown; Barry Cummings, William Beeler and Barney Goldsmith, Annapolis Royal.

About This and That

The reiterated warnings of President Roosevelt to neutral nations that they should not give asylum to fleeing axis leaders would seem to indicate that the allies are not going to repeat one mistake they made in 1918. There will be no more Kaiser, Wilhelms sawing wood in peace and plenty at Doorn.

We acknowledge the sovereignty of neutral nationals, and we have every respect for their neutrality. But we have no intention of permitting them to provide hiding places for axis rats as they run from their holes. We meant it when we said that old World leaders who forced this terrible war on civilized nations must pay for their crimes. We have promised to bring the criminals of Germany and Italy to justice.

It is believed that neutral nations will heed these warnings from Washington and London. They know the allies won't send armies into their lands after fleeing axis leaders. But they also realize that economic sanctions so severe can be imposed that it would be useless to struggle against them.

It's been a long time since a housewife brought home more than the family could eat.

Leaders of Nazi Germany, foreseeing defeat in the present titanic world struggle, have begun looking ahead to the next war, which they predict 20 years hence. Foremost in their plans and preparations for this third global conflict is their demand for German women to produce more children, another batch of cannon-fodder to be sacrificed on the altar of the war god.

"The German people must not be short-sighted," says the publication "Das Schwarze Korps," official organ of the dreaded Nazi storm troopers. "Twenty years from now Germany will need a strong army. Our children and our grandchildren must do the work which we have been unable to do. Every one must see to it that the cradle in his house is never empty." And, it may be said, the German mothers are responding, for the German birthrate is up nearly 12 per cent over last year.

Here is something for the peace-makers of the allied nations to think about when present hostilities cease. The task will be to devise a peace that will last more than the predicted 20 years, that will not crumble at the touch of another crazy paperhanger. We must not only devise in all wisdom and fairness a peace that will be just to all, but we must provide the means of enforcing that peace, even if it means grinding trouble-seeking Germany into the dust. Our children are not going to be cannon fodder in another decade or two. We shall not repeat the mistakes we made at the close of the First World War.

The old-fashioned girl blushed when she was embarrassed. The modern miss is embarrassed when she blushes.

Under present circumstances, you are the first person about whom you have to think. Your neighbor may not be conforming to all regulations pertaining to this all-out war. But are you? Your fellow workman may not be putting into his job the best there is in him. But are you? Other families may be spending freely for what they want yet may not need, but is yours saving to the point of sacrifice? Some people are buying war bonds only as they conveniently can, but are you so measuring your own loyalty to your country? In these and other matters pertaining to good citizenship, are you making yourself an example for emulation? Are you?

Another thing resented by the average Canadian is being bossed by a bunch of kid lawyers at Ottawa.

"Housecleaning" Our Subscription List

The Courier's subscription list is now in the best condition it has been in years. A year ago we determined to put this list on a strictly cash in advance basis, and each month we have struck off names of subscribers thirty days in arrears for that month. We have now gone around the calendar.

Nevertheless, there are still a few subscribers in arrears, chiefly those who promised to pay in a specified time (some kept those promises, some didn't) and one or two others who have been kept on the list for various reasons.

Commencing with September the list will be thoroughly purged. Subscribers who are

MARRIAGES

McDormand - Gilmour

The United Baptist Church at St. George, N.B., was the scene of a very pretty wedding Friday afternoon, August 20, when Miss Hazel Frances Gilmour, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gilmour, of Bonnie River, N.B., became the bride of Rev. Donald Freeman McDormand, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McDormand, of Bear River. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas B. McDormand, Toronto, brother of the groom. The bride entered the beautifully decorated church on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage, and was attractively gowned in a floor length dress of white georgette crepe with the conventional veil of tulle held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms, and carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses. She was attended by Miss Ruby Taylor as bridesmaid, who wore a light blue georgette gown, floor-length, and carried an arm bouquet of gladiolas. The flower girl, little Joan Campbell, looking very winsome in pink organza, carried a basket of sweet peas. The groom was supported by Second Lieutenant Corey Smith, who sang "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Frank Trysol. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and a buffet luncheon served to about eighty guests. The bride and groom left by motor for Saint John, en route to Nova Scotia, the bride travelling in a costume of dusty rose wool with matching hat and top coat of black. On their return they will reside in St. George, where Mr. McDormand is pastor of the United Baptist Church.

Announces Fertilizers For 1943 - 44

At a recent meeting of the Maritime Fertilizer Council, it was pointed out that the probable available supplies of fertilizers for next year will be normal for both Nitrogen and Phosphates, but down somewhat with regard to Potash. Visible supplies of the latter are only 72.8 per cent of 1943.

It will therefore be necessary to make some changes in the formulae of mixed fertilizers as well as regulate the amounts of Potash to be sold for home mixing.

For the present the chemicals: Superphosphate, Potash and various Nitrogen carriers, as well as the mixed fertilizers: 0-14-7, 2-12-4, and 4-12-6, are available for fall pastures.

Moreover subventions will still continue up to $25 per farm on such fertilizers purchased before November 10, 1943, for application to the land this fall, and on the same basis as last spring.

Chicks Reach All Time High Record

An all time high record for the production of baby chicks in Nova Scotia was reached this year according to statistics compiled by C. M. MacMillan, Halifax, of the Federal Poultry Marketing Services and presented to the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Poultry Council at Truro, August 18. The total number of hatchings reported from the 32 hatcheries of the province was 1,330,210. This was an increase of 349,055 or 35.5 per cent over the 1942 total.

The capacity of the hatcheries of the province this year was 367,462. Eggs set totalled 1,852,016. Percentage of hatchability was 71.1, while the average number of chicks hatched per egg capacity of machine was 3.6.

The favorable development that has taken place in Nova Scotia chick production during recent years may be seen when a brief backward glance is made. In 1942 production totalled 981,155. In 1939, the total was 428,141, while in 1932 it was 53,000. A jump from 53,000 in 1932 to 1,330,210 in 1943 means an increase of 2500 per cent in 11 years.

Hatcherymen Elect Officers

At the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Hatchery Approval Association held at Truro, August 18, the following officers were elected: President, Howard Roper, Princeport; Vice-President, Walter Smiley, Newport; Secretary, Donald Ellis, Port Williams; Director, G. H. Purdy, Amherst.

Two important proposed amendments to the Nova Scotia Flock Approval Policy, discussed and passed were as follows:

1. In Order to be eligible for approval flocks having more than two per cent reactors must be retested until the percentage of the reactors in the flock is two per cent or less. No flock showing five per cent or more positive reactors or a total of ten per cent inclusive of doubtfuls shall be eligible for retest to supply eggs to an approved hatchery during the hatchery season.

2. Yearling hens or older will be blood tested free of charge to encourage the retaining by flock owners of old hens as breeders.

9 Exhibitions To Be Held

Nine county and district exhibitions are to be held this fall. The list of fairs, as announced from the office of A. B. Banks, Superintendent of Exhibitions, Nova Scotia Dept. of Agriculture, follows:

Annapolis at Annapolis, Sept. 21, 22, 23; Cape Breton at North Sydney, Sept. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10; Cumberland at Oxford, September 15, 16, 17; Colchester at Truro, Sept. 8; Digby at Bear River, Sept. 22, 23; Hants at Windsor, Aug. 31 - Sept. 1; Lunenburg at Bridgewater, Sept. 28, 29, 30, Oct. 1; Queens at Caledonia, Sept. 21, 22, 23; Yarmouth at Yarmouth, Sept. 14, 15.

Every effort is being made this year to have the exhibitions expressive of the accomplishments of the people in the community served. Exhibition managers have expressed a desire to make the entertainment features as local as possible, the idea being to do everything that can be done to encourage home talent.

Hon. John A. McDonald, Minister of Agriculture, while thoroughly conscious of the need of stepping up wartime production has expressed the hope that the various exhibitions will be well patronized, both by exhibitors and visitors. These district fairs, says the Minister, have educational value, help to raise standards of production, and afford the overworked men and women on our farms an opportunity for getting together in a manner that should be refreshing and stimulating.

Egg Receipts Show Big Decline

Receipts reported from the Registered Egg Grading Stations of the province indicate production in the first week of August was only slightly more than one third what it was at the first of April. The number of cases of eggs reported for the week ended April 3, was 1,806, while the number reported for the week ended August 7, was 672.

Change in the School Year

The Council of Public Instruction has made a change in the school term, providing for 190 teaching days instead of 200. Many schools in the province, particularly rural, formerly opened in the last week of August; but under the present regulation all schools, rural and urban, will open on the Wednesday following Labour Day. This will make for uniformity and put an end to the variation of opening school from year to year and from section to section.

The Department of Education has drawn up the calendar for the coming year, opening on September 8 and closing on June 23, with the half year ending not later than February 8. The Christmas vacation period may be set by the local trustees as long as a minimum of eleven days are provided. Provincial Aid will no longer be paid for Saturdays which are substituted for regular school days, and this will ensure the full term of 190 effective teaching days. Provincial examinations will henceforth be written after the close of school and will begin in 1944 on June 28.

The new regulation is intended to shorten the school term to 190 actual teaching days and lengthen the holiday period by eliminating teaching in August and the last week of June. Thus children attending school will receive more benefit from the summer weather and will be able to give more assistance to agriculture during the present shortage of farm labour.

"Wrens" Give Demonstration at Hospital Fair

Starting at the corner of Queen and Warwick Streets, and lead by the band of H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" a procession of smartly uniformed members of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, generally known as the "Wrens," paraded through the town of Digby on Saturday afternoon.

The occasion was a special observance of the first anniversary of the organization of the Wrens inception into the service of the Royal Canadian Navy. This first natal day was observed at various establishments across Canada. We doubt if any were able to put on a much better demonstration than our Wrens at H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis." Deep Brook.

The demonstration, which tied in with the annual Digby Hospital Fair, was brought to a close when the procession marched in on the grounds of the Myrtle Hotel where the fair was held.

In welcoming the Wrens Mr. Warne made the public announcement that the Lour Lodge Annex was soon to be opened as a hostel for that organization and would be operated under the supervision of the Y.W.C.A. Mr. Cardoza formally presented 3rd Officer Longueudoc with a beautiful lamp.

In her reply, officer Longueudoc expressed thanks on behalf of the Wrens for the lamp, and to the citizens of Digby and to Nova Scotians in general for the wonderful hospitality that has been given them. She said that those who were fortunate enough to be stationed at "Cornwallis" were the most fortunate of all.

The conclusion of the ceremony marked the opening of the hospital fair program for the afternoon and evening. The fair, which got under way on Friday evening, opening with a concert by H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" Band, and continued Saturday afternoon and evening, was the most successful in the history of the hospital, and was attended by thousands.

There were many booths devoted to the sale of fancy work, baby clothing, fruits and vegetables, bingo and other games. Special mention is made of the booths operated by boys from Greenwood Air Base, who came to Digby especially for this occasion, providing entertainment in the way of games and other amusements.

In the evening a dance was sponsored by the Wrens with music furnished by the "Corn-

MARRIAGES

MacLean - Morehouse

A charming wedding, of interest to a wide circle of friends was solemnized at the Church of Nativity, Sandy Cove, at two-thirty o'clock, Thursday afternoon, August 26, when Miss Margaret Morehouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orwell H. Morehouse, became the bride of Rev. Horace MacLean, son of H. B. MacLean and the late Mrs. MacLean, of North Sydney. Canon Ernest Underwood officiated at the single-ring ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated, the work of friends of the bride, and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows and clusters of sweet peas. The bride, entering the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Harry Anthony, was given in marriage by her father. She was a picture of loveliness in her wedding gown of white tulle with long lace sleeves ending in a point at the wrist, high neck with lace Peter Pan collar. Her floor length veil fell from a halo of net and rosebuds. She carried a bouquet of red roses. Her only ornament was a pearl and amethyst brooch, the gift of her uncle, Rev. G. T. Bryant. The bridesmaid was Miss Shirley MacLean, sister of the groom, who wore a gown of pink sheer with veiled head dress and carried a nosegay of summer flowers. Little Miss Patricia Ann Everett as flower girl looked very winsome in a blue net and taffeta floor length dress with matching hat and carried a basket of sweet peas. The best man was Rev. R. Murphy, of Saint John. A Rhodes Cooper, of Halifax, and J. Osborne Morehouse, brother of the bride, were ushers. During the signing of the register Miss Louise Bishop, Bridgetown, sang very beautifully "O Perfect Love." Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to some fifty guests. They were admitted by little Miss Ann Brayton, of Boston. The bride's mother was attired in a gown of blue crepe with white picture hat and corsage of roses. She was assisted in receiving by Miss Elsie Titman, R.N., of Bridgewater. The bride's table was covered with a lovely lace cloth centered with a three-tier bride's cake. Presiding over the silver services were Mrs. Margaret MacKay and Mrs. Bernard Elsner. Those assisting in serving were Mrs. Harry Saunders, Mrs. Emdon Morehouse, Mrs. Lawrence Goodwin, sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Jack Morehouse, sister-in-law, Mrs. Roy MacEachern, Georgia MacLean, sisters of the groom, also Dorothy Saunders and Helen Snow. The guest book was presided over by Mrs. Harold Coggins. Gifts to the organist were crystal nut bowls, to the soloist, Evening In Paris cosmetics, to the flower girl signet ring, bridesmaid, opal ring, groomsmen cuff links, and ushers bill folds. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Murphy and responded to by the groom. Immediately following the reception Rev. and Mrs. MacLean left for a two weeks' honeymoon in Bridgewater. For going away Mrs. MacLean wore a blue embroidered rose silk jersey and navy coat with matching accessories. Previous to her marriage the bride was tendered showers at her home and in Bridgetown. Out-of-town guests were from Boston, Cape Breton, Bridgewater, Bridgetown and Annapolis Royal.

Cameron - Titus

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the United Church in Centreville, recently, when the Rev. R. H. Barker, assisted by Lic. L. R. Atkinson, of the Digby Neck First Baptist Church, united in marriage Ruth Lorraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Titus, of Centreville, to Roy Cameron, of Saint John. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of white satin with finger tip veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations and phlox. She was attended by her sisters, Misses Esther and Georgeina, as bridesmaids. The former wore a dress of fuchsia satin with velvet bodice and carried fuchsia gladioli, the latter wore pink net over pink taffeta and carried pink roses. After a reception held at the home of the bride, which was attended by only the immediate family and a few intimate friends.

Horton - Stark

On the evening of August 28, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's brother, Ellery Lewis, Danvers, when Mrs. Ruby E. Stark, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Budd C. Lewis, Danvers, was united in marriage to William A. Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Horton, Brockton, Mass. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Roy Johnson, pastor of the Southville Christian Church, in the presence of immediate friends and relatives. The bride was becomingly attired in a street length dress of blue crepe with navy accessories, carrying an attractive bouquet of cut flowers. Her only ornament a gold locket, gift of the groom. The bride's gift to the groom was a gold tie-set. The bride was attended by her little niece, Betty Lewis, who also carried a bouquet of cut flowers. The groom was supported by Douglas Stark, small son of the bride. The double-ring ceremony was used. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ellery Lewis. The brides travelling suit was of navy blue wool with navy and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Horton will reside in Brockton, Mass., where he is a Custodian at Keith School, Brockton.

Archbishop McNally At Digby

His Grace, the most Reverend Archbishop McNally, of Halifax, officiated at three services in this Parish Sunday. The Archbishop celebrated Mass in St. Patrick's Church, after which he administered the Sacrament of Consecration to nearly one hundred candidates. The Consecration sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Penny, of Yarmouth.

At a later service in St. Patrick's Church he blessed a large Union Jack, to be hung in the church as a memorial to the men and women of the congregation who are now members of the armed forces and merchant marine.

Before the blessing took place, Rev. Leo Murphy, pastor of St. Patrick's, explained to the large audience that this was a ceremony which will mean much, now and for years to come. He reminded them members of the congregation were now serving in the army, navy, air force, and merchant navy, in Africa, Sicily, England, Iceland, and in all parts of the world. He asked that as they looked upon the flag, they pray to God to bring these young men and women safely back, and pray for peace and security.

His Grace then dedicated the Union Jack, after which Very Reverend Dean Curran, of Halifax, delivered a sermon in which he congratulated the people of the parish on the convent to be established in their midst to be set apart that day.

He paid especial tribute to the Sisters of Charity who came here from Saint John to establish their community, and reminding the congregation that the educational program will be motivated by religion, without which, education is incomplete.

Following Dean Curran's address, the congregation, headed by altar boys, visiting priests, representatives of the Ordination at Centreville

A house packed to capacity witnessed a very impressive ceremony on Monday evening, August 30, in the United Baptist Church, Centreville, the occasion being the ordination of Lawrence R. Atkinson, in the Baptist ministry. Rev. G. D. Brydon, of Bear River Baptist Church, was chairman, army, air force and navy, sisters of charity, and the girls and boys upon whom the sacrament of consecration was administered that morning, proceeded to the Convent-school where they lined both sides of the long concrete stairway leading to the verandah where the altar had been erected. In an impressive ceremony His Grace dedicated the convent.

The Blessing of the Flag, he explained, signified our patriotism, which in reality, is love for our brother men, our loyal devotion to one another. He went on to say our patriotism is now surely being put to a test, declaring that if any people are rising to their responsibility, Canada is doing so.

In our flag we find a symbol of our rights and decency of living. Canada has joined with those nations that stand for hope and decency to crush barbarism, paganism and all that is vile.

The Sacrament of Confirmation represented the coming of the Spirit of God upon the candidates, giving them the peace that will strengthen them for the battle of life that they may travel on the right path and reach the real home God has made for them.

The purpose of the Convent and school is to teach children to make their way nobly through life; to mould them that they may make themselves acceptable in the face of their Maker.

"The people of St. Patrick's should thank God for this day," he said.

and service opened by singing the hymn "All Hail The Power of Jesus' Name." This was followed by Scripture reading and Prayer by Robert Smith, formerly of Smith's Cove, and now supervisor of Y.M.C.A. work with the Army in Newfoundland. After singing "How Firm a Foundation" Rev. E. R. MacWilliam, of Liverpool, who had baptised the candidate and had ordained him as Deacon of the Liverpool Baptist Church, preached the Ordination Sermon. Rev. Mr. DeLong, of Digby, gave the Ordination Prayer, after which Rev. Mr. MacWilliam gave the charge to the candidate, followed by the charge to the church by Rev. Mr. DeLong. Rev. Mr. Brydon welcomed Rev. Mr. Atkinson in the Baptist Ministry. Service closed by singing "Faith of Our Fathers," and benediction by Rev. Mr. Atkinson.

Many from the nearby churches attended the ceremony, and relatives came from Liverpool to be present.

Bear River Exhibition

Owing to the pressure of work in our office, and also to the fact that the copy and proof were delayed in reaching us, the Digby County Exhibition Prize List has not yet been completed, but it will be out in a day or two. We make this explanation so that those who are planning exhibits for the Exhibition which will take place in Bear River on Wednesday and Thursday, September 22 and 23, will know the reasons for the delay.

This year's exhibition is expected to be a good one in spite of the bad season we have been going through. Some lines will probably fall off but other lines will show an increase. As this exhibition has become a county affair instead of what was formerly a Bear River Exhibition, more interest should be manifested generally, and it is hoped that more county farmers will take advantage of it.

About This and That

General Franco, Spanish dictator, is reported to have asked the governments of Great Britain and the United States to provide him with captured German and Italian arms, presumably so that he may be able to stifle any internal rebellion in Spain. He has his nerve. Has he forgotten that he is the dictator who stifled popular government in Spain, even though he had to call in Italian and German help to do so? Has he forgotten he has sided with and given every assistance to the axis powers he possibly could since the outbreak of the present war? Has he forgotten that he mobilized his troops on the Spanish Morocco border making it necessary to hold three or four American divisions from the Tunisian front to watch him? We have not forgotten those things, and we hope our governments have a memory just as long. We are told, however, that Franco's request is being "seriously considered." We hope this isn't true. It would be disgraceful if it were. If Franco is on the verge of downfall, our role should be to hasten that blessed day, not give him arms to keep himself in a dictator's seat.

Yes, politics makes strange bedfellows, but all use the same bunk.

The church must play an active role in political life so that Christian principles become related to the social and economic problems of the moment. Vague, idealistic platitudes, unrelated to the structure of society or the burning problems that vex our people, will do little good. It is universally recognized, that the church should be concerned with individual conduct, but many people dispute the right of the church to lay down principles governing the action of corporate groups—trade unions, employer federations, and national organizations. Such distinction between person and corporate life is untenable, for the broken fellowship of society rests on the materialism of our habitual outlook.

One of the finest things about this summer is that so few of us have to recuperate from a vacation.

The problem of juvenile delinquency is reaching alarming proportions largely because parents have dodged responsibility so far as properly bringing up their children is concerned. Too often parents have turned their children over to the church or to the school with no thought of supplementary training in the home. Neither institution can work effectively without full co-operation from parents. Too many parents don't care whether their children attend any form of religious service. Many parents aren't concerned if their children are not present regularly at school. A surprising number of parents don't know what their children are doing when they are away from home. We can't afford to have delinquent parents in this fast-moving age. Parents must prepare their children for the problems of life, and they must spank them occasionally if the children need it.

It sure beats all how many deer one victory garden can support.

Red Cross News DIGBY BRANCH

At the regular business meeting of the Digby Branch of the Red Cross the report of the War Work Committee was presented for the month of July and the first half of August. The report stated that the work meetings were continuing each Wednesday as usual, and that although the summer attendance was not as large as might be desired, much work was being accomplished, as was evidenced by the recent display of civilian relief clothing held in connection with a Wednesday 10-cent tea. A large number of visitors were present on this occasion, and were most complimentary in reference to both the quantity and quality of the work. Much credit goes to the auxiliaries for their assistance, and special praise should be given to the Digby Red Cross Sewing Group, under the convenorship of Mrs. Ernest Deming, whose well-tailored boys' shirts and girls' serge dresses were noteworthy. The girls' cloth coats represented a great deal of effort and the showing of children's sweaters elicited many comments on the excellent knitting and attractive styles. Proceeds of the tea, together with items sold, amounted to $21.

Donations received by the Work Committee during July and the first half of August were gratefully acknowledged as follows: Trinity W. A., 10 quilts; Ever Ready Club, Ross-way Auxiliary, 3 quilts each; Barton Auxiliary, Centreville Auxiliary, Victory Club, Baptist Guild, Service Wives' Club, 1 quilt each; Mrs. Curtis Young, 2 quilt tops and linings; Mrs. George Dunn, Mrs. Edward Winchester, 1 quilt top, lining, batt each; Royal Store Club, Miss Charlotte Deming, 1 sweater each; Barton Auxiliary, 3 dresses, also 2 boys' shirts (per Mrs. J. E. Spechts), 12 pairs shelter slippers (per Mrs. Fream); Ross-way Auxiliary, 1 boy's trousers; Mrs. Donald Deming, 1 cap; Mrs. Fritz Dakin, Mrs. Hugh Perry, Mrs. Ganong, materials; Mrs. P. W. Holdsworth, Mrs. Fritz Dakin, Mrs. George Muise, Centreville and Ross-way Auxiliaries, second-hand clothing.

In reference to the preceeding report for May and June, the Work Committee wishes to correct an error in connection with the donations from the South Range Patriotic Club. In addition to quilts and materials received, the sum of $7.50 was reported. This amount should have been $17.50, including $10 received previously.

Following the work display one large shipment was packed and shipped to Red Cross headquarters as follows: 23 large quilts, 6 small quilts, 10 girls' coats, 30 women's and girls' dresses, 6 skirts, 11 slips, 10 sleepers, 12 nightgowns, 1 bedtacket, 24 sweaters, 3 caps, 12 pairs felt slippers, 25 boys' shirts, 3 pairs boys' shorts, 2 pairs pajamas, 5 pairs trousers, 86 baby garments. Total, 269 articles.

Clayton Rudolph Pugh, of Westport, was one of a group of Leading Aircraftmen who graduated from the Service Flying School, Moncton, receiving their wings and sergeant's stripes, recently. Some of the students honored were from Great Britain.

"Somebody Is Thinking About Me"

New York, 18th Dec., 1942.
Miss —: A few days ago, I was in Halifax where I received Christmas Present (from Navy League of Canada) just YOURS. At first, I am a Yugoslav, I am no so good in English, but I hope you will understand my words. Anyhow, you will be able to understand the meaning of my words—that's enough.

You have not idea how I was happy when I received Christmas Present. Now, I shall try to say to you in which poor position I am. During war time I am constantly on board the ship. My country is occupied by wild Germans and other aggressors. I am two years without any news from my parents. Do you believe I am really poor when I can't say to my parents few words as only Merry Christmas. Can you imagine it? Yes, you can, maybe you have somebody from your family far away. Such is life. I am sure you perfectly understand my present position.

Long time ago, I have received Presents from my parents. Now is impossible, but I have impression that your present is Christmas Present from my country and my parents. Thank you very much, somebody is thinking about me.

I wish to you and your family Merry Christmas and Good Luck for New Year 1943.

Labor Board Cuts Wages.

To the Editor of the Courier: Sir—At Centreville, the Lunenburg Sea Products fillet cutters' wages were cut 3 cents per hour and the eight-hour day changed to ten hours with a bonus of three cents an hour. Is there anything fair about this for men who are mostly part-time workers, with the factory closed two months of the year? Workers in other places are receiving 11 cents per hour more for a nine-hour day with a bonus of eight cents per hour, time and a half for overtime at the same work. Why cut down on the poor men's wages with the cost of living going up? X. Y. Z.

History of St. Mary's Bay Baptist Church

The following paper was read at the recent Roll Call meeting in the St. Mary's Bay Baptist Church by the pastor, Mr. Bernard Manser:

Friends, we have met here this evening to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of this church. It should be pleasant on an occasion like this to look back over the century that has passed and see how the Lord has led us. To praise Him for His rich mercies to us during the hundred years is the happy privilege at this present hour.

For the organization and early history of this church we shall read the original minutes which were written when the first organization meeting was held on July 28, 1843, and also the minutes of the meeting which were held at various times up until September 2 of that same year. Then we will give the list of ministers and officers during the century and also the total addition of members for that period.

Original Minutes

Organization of the Baptist Church of St. Mary's Bay, July 28, 1843.

Met according to previous appointment in the meeting house of St. Mary's Bay, July 28, 1843, at two o'clock. The services were commenced by Rev. William Burton, pastor of First Baptist Church, of Yarmouth, who, after singing, read appropriate portions of the scriptures from Psalms 132, and from Ephesians, Chapter I and offered prayer.

The persons dismissed from the Church of Sissiboo to be organized into a separate church, seated themselves together and requested Elder William Burton, late pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Yarmouth, and Elder Charles Randall, late pastor of the Baptist Church of Sissiboo, to organize them into a church. Elder Burton was chosen moderator and Elder Randall, clerk. Elder Randall read the names of the persons dismissed.

(This is the letter of dismissal received from the Sissiboo Church.)

Dear Brethren: We have considered your petition, and trusting that you have been influenced by proper motives, in asking for your dismission, and that it will tend to the glory of God, and the good of His cause, that you be organized into a separate church, we freely dismiss you for that purpose.

Done at Sissiboo, at a general church meeting on Saturday, July 22, 1843. By order, and in behalf of the church.

Charles Randall, Pastor. After the reading of the names and the letter of dismissal, Elder Burton then addressed the members to be organized relative to the constitution of a Christian Church. Elder Randall read the articles of the Nova Scotia Baptist Association, and examined the members relative to their belief in them, their union with each other, and desire to be organized into a church of their faith and order of the Baptist Churches composing the N. S. Baptist Association. The examination being satisfactory, Elder Randall proceeded to read the covenant, the members standing. Elder Randall offered the consecrating prayer, presented the hand of fellowship to the church and gave an appropriate charge.

The church then chose brother Henry Green to the office of deacon, and brother William Warner, clerk.

Sabbath July 30—Preaching at 4 o'clock by the Rev. W. Burton, after which the church commemorated the passion and death of their ascended Lord.

August 4, 1843—The church met at the meeting-house at 2 o'clock to make arrangements relative to calling a minister to take the pastoral care of the church when brother Holmes Chipman was appointed moderator, and the following resolutions passed unanimously. 1st: Resolved that Elder Charles Randall be invited to take pastoral care of the church.

2nd: Resolved that it be left to the discretion of Elder Randall to appropriate such a portion of his time to the service of this church as he shall think proper.

3rd: Resolved that the clerk be requested to communicate to Elder Randall by letter, the resolutions of this meeting, and request him to accept the call.

The following is Elder Randall's answer:

Weymouth, Sept. 1, 1843. Beloved Brethren:

I thank you for the confidence which you placed in me, as manifested by your choice of me as your pastor, and I cheerfully respond to your call, and am now ready as far as in me lies to preach the gospel to you.

Yours faithfully,

Charles Randall.

The following are the ministers who served this church from 1843 to the present:

August, 1843 to July, 1865—Rev. Charles Randall.

October 17, 1883 - 1885—Rev. A. L. Powell.

October 1, 1886 - 1888—P. R. Foster.

One year without a pastor.

1939 to 1943—Rev. F. E. Roop.

The following are a list of student pastors who supplied during the summers:

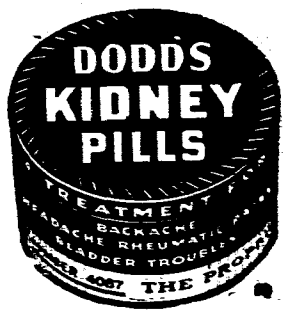

R. T. Torgent	1886
G. A. Davis	1892
W. H. Dyas	1893
Mr. Chandler	1909
Mr. Newcomb	1916
Herbert Hart	1920
M. E. Bala	1921
Harvey Denson	1929 - 30
Henry Weston	1931
Charles Blakeney	1932

The following are the clerks who have served this church during the one hundred years from 1843:

William Warner 1843 - 1865.
John M. Smith 1865 - 1869.
Nathanel Westcott 1869 - 1918 and W. W. Kinney has been the clerk since 1918 and is still carrying that office.

It is interesting to note that there have been only four clerks for this church in the one hundred years.

The grand total additions to the church during the first fifty years from 1843 - 1893 were 460 members and the membership in 1893 was 230 members.

The total additions to the church during the fifty years from 1893 to the present is 472 members and the present membership is 238.

It is interesting to note how little the membership of the last fifty years has varied from that of the first fifty years.

May God bless this church as she goes forth for the advancement of His Kingdom in the next century.

COAL WILL BE SCARCE NEXT WINTER !!!

Prepare your home now for adequate warmth with smaller fuel consumption

✓ HOW TO GET MORE HEAT

Pipes and furnaces must be clean, and grates in good order. If one or two rooms are hard to heat, you are wasting fuel. A minor adjustment can probably remedy this. Have a competent man check your heating system, and make necessary repairs. Insulate your furnace and pipes when necessary.

✓ HOW TO AVOID HEAT LOSSES

Storm windows and doors must fit snugly and be weather-proofed. Lack of storm windows can cause as much as 25% heat loss. Caulking should be done around windows, doors and in cracks in brick work. Home hardware stores have caulking guns for rent. Broken glass should be replaced, and loose panes painted. Small expenditures on such work will save much fuel.

✓ HOW TO SAVE STILL MORE

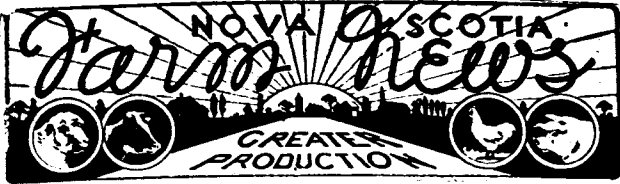

You can save fuel and money by having your home properly insulated. It is a proven fact that in many cases lack of adequate insulation in drafty storm windows results in unnecessary consumption of fuel—up to as much as 50%. Watch for later instructions on how to fire your furnace properly.

HAVE YOUR HOME INSPECTED FOR HEATING AND INSULATION DEFECTS

Get advice now! Skilled workmen and supplies are scarce. If you delay in getting your home ready for winter you may not be able to get the services you need.

THE DEPARTMENT OF MINISTERS AND SUPPLY

No Pay on Stormy Days

Farmers employing soldiers to work on their farms do not have to pay for days when the weather is unfavorable for farm work, according to information received from Ottawa by Hon. John A. MacDonald, Nova Scotia Minister of Agriculture. Under this new arrangement, the farmer is required to pay three dollars a day for work days, while on bad weather days he will have to supply board and lodgings only. Mr. MacDonald, commenting on this change from the former arrangement whereby the farmer was called upon to pay three dollars a day as long as he had a soldier worker on his farm, expressed the hope that this change will make it possible for many farmers to benefit by the supply of men available in the armed forces.

There are many men with farm experience in the armed forces and any farmer wanting to get such help should apply at once to the Selective Service office if there is one in the near vicinity, if not, application should be made to the county agricultural representative or to William Milligan, Truro, Provincial-Federal Farm Labour Officer. Farmers wanting men from the armed forces may get them for a period of thirty days or less and in cases where a longer term is desired an application for an extension of the period may be made.

Transportation to and from the farms is supplied by the farmer where the distance is a short one, and where it is a longer one, transportation may be arranged by the Provincial - Federal Labour departments.

Farmers in any part of the province may apply for help of this nature.

Manure Piles are Unsightly and Wasteful

Manure left standing for months piled against the side of barns is unsightly, but what is more serious it is wasteful of valuable plant food. According to actual tests, made with great care, the loss of the liquid portion by leaching means that half the plant food in the manure pile is lost. While the acute farm-labour situation may interfere with the work of spreading manure it should be kept in mind that unless the manure is infested with weeds, it is usually desirable to draw it fresh from the stable to the field each day. A leaflet on "Farmyard Manure" in the War Time Production Service, which is available on application to Federal or Provincial Departments, states that as a general rule a suitable rate at which to apply manure is four tons per acre in a rotation. Thus a three years rotation would receive 12 tons per acre and a 5-year rotation 20 tons. The manure should be worked into the soil as thoroughly as possible but not too deeply. Disking it in or ploughing it in to about four inches deep is recommended.

What should be kept in mind by those who are inclined to stack manure and leave it stacked for spring or summer spreading is that manure is very perishable. It is subject to loss in a number of ways. The loss of the liquid portion through holes or cracks in the stable floor may be very large. This liquid portion contains nitrogen and potash which materials when purchased as commercial fertilizers are expensive. Loss in storage is also high. Experiments show that manure stored for six months in a weather tight shed lost 58 per cent of its organic matter, 19 per cent of its nitrogen and three per cent of its potash. In an exposed bin the loss was 65 per cent organic matter, 30 per cent nitrogen, 12 per cent phosphoric acid and 20 per cent of the potash. Losses may also occur in the fields after the manure is spread due to the effect of drying winds carrying away the ammonia or to the loss of nutrients by leaching or erosion during periods of high rainfall.

Qualified Vets Should Be Consulted

Owners of farm animals are warned to be guarded against employing unqualified men for treating livestock ailments and livestock dentistry. This warning is issued following reports of unqualified workers attempting to do such work in various parts of the province. Qualified veterinarians should be consulted. This is urgent today due to the present high value of livestock which may prove to be a total loss if given the wrong treatment.

Home Made Plucker Is Popular

Close to 200 sets of the pictures and specifications for the home made plucking machine designed by Prof. Angus Banting, Agricultural Engineer, Truro, have been received to date at the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture at Truro. The sets, available at 25 cents give complete instructions for the making of the outfit which as a labour saving device is proving its worth in many parts of the province and elsewhere. During the past week requests for instructions were received from New Brunswick, while during the past year instructions have been sent, on request, to every province of Canada, various parts of the United States and two sets have gone to England. A demonstration of this plucking machine to be given by G. K. Samis, Chief Poultry Promoter, will be one of the features of the Cumberland County Exhibition, being held at Oxford on September 15, 16, 17.

Giving Talks On Nutrition

In co-operation with the National Nutrition Program, members of the Women's Institute Staff, Miss Katherine Shang and Miss Mary Powers, are continuing with their visits to the Institutes of this province. They are giving illustrated talks on nutrition, dealing particularly with the use and preparation of essential foods to conserve food value and flavor. Institute branches in Digby, Yarmouth, Shelburne, Queens and Lunenburg counties will be visited during the month of September.

W.I.N.S. Leaders Confer at Truro

A conference of the officers of the District Executives, Women's Institutes of Nova Scotia, was held on August 11, at Truro, when over 40 women from all parts of the province met at the Agricultural College for the purpose of discussing plans for future Institute activities. Miss Helen J. Macdougall, Provincial Superintendent, and members of her staff, as well as several members of the Provincial Executive, spoke on various phases of Institute work. Branch organization, Red Cross work, home economics, public health, use of conducted studies, agriculture and price control were among the subjects discussed.

Boy Scouts Help Relieve Farm Labor Problem

The Boy Scouts of Sydney are proving to be a valuable source of help for farmers in Cape Breton County. Some time ago it was arranged through the Cape Breton County Agricultural Representative for about twenty scouts from the Sydney troops to go to farms around Marion Bridge to clean up the weeds in the turnip fields. The farmers were so well satisfied with their work that the boys have been busy ever since, whenever there is weeding to be done.

District Commissioner W. C. Carter, the Local Association and the Scout Masters are behind the idea one hundred per cent and are pushing it to the limit. The boys love to get out on the farms and through their Scout training are useful at many jobs.

There are fifteen hundred scouts in the industrial area of Cape Breton County and from the excellent results obtained so far it is believed that they will be of great value to the farmers in relieving the acute labor situation.

ASTHMA
FOR ASTHMA & HAYFEVER

The Scouts are of special value to the market gardener, especially in places where last year there were many fields of turnips, potatoes, etc., which could not be harvested due to lack of help.

Paint may be removed from clothing by saturating the spot two or three times with spirits of turpentine and ammonia and washing with soap and hot water.

After fruit jars are sealed place on side until cool. This prevents the berries from coming to the top.

In Memoriam

IN MEMORY of Leonard Allen, who died September 2, 1940.

You are not forgotten loved one, Nor will you ever be, As long as life and memory last.

We will remember thee. It is lonesome here without you.

And sad the weary way, For life is not the same to us Since you were taken away.

Ever remembered by his daughters, Dorothy, Margaret and Norma. 51:1ip

IN LOVING MEMORY of our dear mother, Mary Van-Tassel, who passed away September 2, 1941.

So quietly and quickly came the call.

Her sudden death surprised us all.

A sudden change in a moment fell.

Without a chance to say farewell.

And the wound is just as fresh today.

As in the hour she passed away.

It is not at the time the tears are shed

That tells of the hearts that are torn.

But the lonely tears of the after years.

Of remembrance silently borne.

Retiring Pastor is Honored Guest at Farewell Event

A farewell reception and covered dish dinner, honoring Dr. and Mrs. Lyman M. Denton, was given recently by members of the First Baptist Church of Bellflower, California. Dr. Denton, who has served as pastor of the church for the past eight years, recently presented his resignation, and concluded his work with the local church last Sunday.

Music at the dinner and reception was provided by the Robbins Trio and vocal solos were presented by Miss Ruth Murphy, accompanied by Mrs. Esther Pate.

Dr. and Mrs. Denton were presented with $200 in cash by the church membership and received many beautiful gifts. A total of 140 persons were present at the farewell event.

Dr. Denton is recognized as a Greek scholar, his name having appeared in "Who's Who" for the past several years. ITALY OUT OF WAR

"Italy is out of the war." This stupendous announcement was made shortly after one o'clock yesterday afternoon, with General Eisenhower's announcement of the unconditional surrender of Italy's armed forces. The announcement stated a military armistice was effective immediately. It also stated the armistice was signed in Sicily on September 3rd, the 4th anniversary of England's declaration of war against Germany, although the signing of the armistice was kept a secret and was put in force "at a moment most favorable to the allies, and simultaneously announced from both sides."

The signing of the armistice was carried out without knowledge of Germany. Invasion of Italy was made as a gesture.

Roll Call Service

On Sunday evening, September 5, a Roll Call service was observed in the Christian Church, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Derby. The choir was in attendance and a duet, "Alone" was rendered by Mrs. Allison Morehouse and Blair Leeman. The roll of members was called by W. H. Cossaboom, and interesting letters were read from non-residents. A short Memorial Service followed for seven members who had passed to the "great beyond" during the past year. The choir sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul." Rev. Roy M. Johnson, of Milton, Queens Co., delivered the sermon of the evening, which was very impressive and inspiring to all present. He based his remarks on Matthew 16, 18. The theme of the sermon was "The Early Church." An offering of $146.35 was received.

Mossman - Murley

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Murley on Monday evening, September 6, when his eldest daughter, Mary Estelle, became the bride of Chief Skipper Harris Vernon Mossman. Rev. J. Earle DeLong performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives of the couple. The bride, given in marriage by her father, entered the room on his arm to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by her sister, Ethelyn. The bride wore a two-piece dress of Queen's Blue, ornamented with sequins, with white accessories, and a corsage of red roses. The bride has taught school in the province for several years and after a honeymoon in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, will take up her duties as vice-principal of Chester Academy.

VanTassell - Hudson

A very pretty wedding took place at Port Wade on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hudson, when their eldest daughter, Dorothy Bernice, was united in marriage to Harold Stanley VanTassell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George VanTassell, of Digby. Rev. Harold Hopper, pastor of the Baptist Church, officiated. The double-ring ceremony was used. To the strains of Loehengrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. Ernest McGrath, the bridal party took their places beneath an arch that was beautifully decorated with fall flowers. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly attired in a street length dress of Diploma Blue with navy accessories and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Audrey Hudson, who was dressed in sky blue with navy accessories. The groom was supported by James O'Neill, of Digby. Immediately after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. The dining room was decorated for the occasion. Two white wedding bells hung from the ceiling, from which extended blue and white streamers which hung gracefully around the bride's table that was centered by a pretty three-tier wedding cake. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. VanTassell left on a motor trip to White Point Beach via Chester. The bride's travelling suit was blue with navy and white accessories. On their return they will reside in Digby. The bridegroom is employed as electrician at Deep Brook.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Forman Wright

The death of Florence A., widow of Forman Wright, occurred on Thursday evening, September 2, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loran Wright, Deep Brook, after an illness of several weeks. She was seventy-five years of age and born at Clementsvalle, Annapolis County, one of a family of four boys and eight girls, children of Anthony Potter, and Elizabeth (Jefferson) Potter, and lived practically all her life in that vicinity until four years ago she and her husband moved to Smith's Cove. In August, 1942, he passed away after a heart attack, since then the deceased resided with her children. She is survived by three sons, Lloyd, Plympton; Loran, of Deep Brook, Rev. L.

B. Wright, pastor of the Baptist Church at Annapolis Royal, and one daughter, (Violet) Mrs. George Larra-more, of Smith's Cove, also sixteen grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews. After a short service Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larra-more at Smith's Cove, a funeral service was conducted in the Baptist Church at Clementsvalle by Rev. T. F. McWilliam, taking as his text, "She has done what she could." Hymns sung were "Nearer My God to Thee," "Face to Face," "When My Life's Work is Ended" and a duet, a favorite of the deceased "Looking This Way." The pall bearers were four nephews, William, Maurice, and Hebert Potter, and Donald Baird. Interment was beside her husband in the Clementsvalle cemetery. The floral tributes showed the high esteem in which Mrs. Wright was held in the community where she had lived.

Dr. H. M. DeWolfe

Word has been received in Digby of the sudden death of Dr. Henry DeWolfe, which occurred at Braintree, Mass., on Friday last. Dr. DeWolfe, who was a native of Winthrop, Mass., is well-known in the Maritimes. Coming to Nova Scotia as a boy he graduated from the Yarmouth High School and Dalhousie Medical College. He later did post graduate work at Harvard University. For the past fifteen years Dr. DeWolfe was commissioner of public health for the state of Massachusetts. He is survived by his wife, the former Seretha Daley, of Digby, and two small children. He was also a brother of Rev. H. O. DeWolfe, of the Baptist Church, Glace Bay, and Mrs. George B. Pace, of Lockport.

Ship Yard Strike

The arrival of a commissioner from Ottawa, appointed under the Industrial Disputes Act was expected at Meteghan yesterday. He will investigate the strike now tying up production at the plant of the Clare Shipbuilding Co. Ltd. This Company has approximately 380 men on its pay roll.

The strike at the ship yards went into effect Tuesday morning as the result of a decision reached Monday at a special meeting of Local No. 6, Industrial Union of Ship Workers.

According to labor officials the dispute hinges on the matter of union recognition by the management of the shipyard, and the strike is the aftermath of a lockout enforced by the management following the organization of the Union.

At the time following a meeting with H. R. Pettigrove, conciliation officer of the department of labor for the Maritimes, and Mr. Purvis, deputy minister of Labor, work was resumed with the understanding all employees would be reinstated within two weeks. It is alleged by union members the management has not kept its part of the bargain, and for this reason the strike was called.

About This and That

The Nazis, like some people newly come into riches, profess to admire the culture they do not possess. What they certainly admire is its possible monetary value. At any rate, while stripping the occupied countries of everything good to eat or usable, either in German homes or factories, they have not forgotten treasures of literature and art. Libraries and museums, public and private have been stripped, and the contents removed to Germany. Remembering the similar plundering, on a far smaller scale, done by Napoleon, which enriched French museums, the Germans have counted on being able to keep their loot after the war. Apparently they are due for a surprise. The appointment of a commission, headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts of the supreme court, has been announced by the State Department. This commission, which included, besides several museum heads, Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress, and ex-Governor Lehman, of New York, now director of foreign relief and rehabilitation operations, aims to recover the stolen objects. This is a field of reparations into which most peace commissioners would not care to wander without expert guidance. The Roberts commission is in a position to give this, and to remedy some of the Nazis' most blatant outrages.

One U. S. senator says that "food costs are far too high." It beats all how news does get around.

The announcement that Lord Louis Mountbatten, head of the famous commandos of England, has been named supreme allied commander in the Eastern Asia war theatre is indicative of two things. The first is that Japan may soon expect attack on another section of her far-flung front. The second is that China is to get more aid in her long struggle against Japanese invaders. It is no secret that the allies have been building a big army in India. Just how large it is we don't know. Nor have we any idea how soon it will be able to move. That is the problem of supply. But it is almost certain that Burma is its goal. And we can hazard a guess that the time will be the close of the present monsoon season in Eastern Asia, providing of course, that the Mediterranean area will have been cleaned up by that time, thus permitting the shift of more sea power into the Indian Ocean to act in conjunction with land operations. A campaign in Burma is not going to be a walk-over, largely because of the difficult terrain. But if successfully complete it will make possible the reopening of the Burma road to China, and it will also become a serious flanking threat to Japanese occupation of Thailand, Indo-China, and the Malay Peninsula, at the tip of which lies Singapore. The Chinese will hail decision to fight it out with the Japs in that section of the globe, for victory there means the first step in their own liberation.

This old earth has been made rich enough for everybody's needs, but not for everybody's greed.

First axis criminal to attempt to escape from the punishment promised by the United Nations is Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Benito Mussolini and former foreign minister of Italy. The Berlin radio said that the count and his family had "disappeared" from Rome after eluding guards and had fled to an unknown haven. From other sources came reports that Ciano had cached a fortune of no less than $60,000,000 in foreign banks, as a result of his graft from government operation of business in Italy before the fascist regime and Mussolini tottered out of the picture. The United States and other allied governments have warned neutral nations not to provide refuge for axis criminals, as Holland did for the German kaiser at the close of the last war. Ciano is on the allied list of axis criminals because of his part in the fascist program of aggression and because he was closely associated with Adolf Hitler, as mouthpiece for Mussolini, in the axis program of overwhelming the small countries of Europe. Ciano, Mussolini, and many other former fascist leaders had been under arrest in Italy since the dictatorship collapsed several weeks ago.

We don't know where these barelegged girls get the idea that this stuff they buy in bottles improves nature's handiwork.

The United Nations, America and Great Britain in particular, have promised the world much, perhaps too much, in case they win the war. The Chinese will say that "he who promises runs in debt." And, this being true, these nations have run deeply into debt, though they be victorious.

The trouble is, promises are made in hope but are performed in selfishness and fear, as already manifest. It would seem wise to do more post war planning and less promising until all our enemies "unconditionally surrender."

If the dear Canadian public isn't beefing about the gas, it is gassing about the beef.

It was January 3, 1943, that the Waverly Hotel burned down, and although that is more than nine months ago, we who look at the ruins every day, can truthfully say "it looks like yesterday." Perhaps it would be more to the point if we said "they looked like ——" Early this spring it looked as though some effort was being made to clear up the mess, but that effort was short-lived. The ruins, located in one of the most important sections of the town, and passed by all who arrive or leave by either boat or train, are most unsightly. It is time some steps were taken at doing a thorough job at cleaning them up.

Some girls want to grow up to be women people will look up to, while others are content to be the kind that people will look around at.

People of Digby Unite In Prayer

The congregations of the Anglican, Baptist and United Churches and the Salvation Army, joined last evening in a service of prayer, conducted in the Digby Baptist Church, with the pastor, J. Earle DeLong, presiding. Joseph MacDonald, R.C.N.V.R., a rating at H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis," presided at the console of the church organ. The service was one of many held throughout the empire at the request of His Majesty, George VI. The offering, taken for the Chinese Relief Fund, amounted to $44.75.

The Scripture lesson, Matthew 7:1-12, was read by E. Burton, captain of the local Salvation Army Corps, while Rev. F. B. Gaskill, rector of Trinity Church, offered the Prayers of Intercession.

Rev. T. W. Hodgson, minister to Grace United Church, delivered the address. He said our position was not like that of the mariner who cried "All is lost, to prayer! to prayer!" Instead, prayer is one of the ways by which we can co-operate with God whereby His will may be done on earth.

The speaker went on to say that we are engaged in a titanic struggle. All the powers of darkness seem to have been let loose on this earth, and without a doubt this is a conflict between right and wrong. The vast majority believe in ultimate triumph of righteousness, and in God's good time the kingdoms of this earth will become the Kingdoms of our Lord, Jesus Christ.

"None doubt the need of material weapons," he continued, "but these alone will not put an end to this or any other conflict. The weapons with which we fight are human weapons. We need to put on the armour of God, and prayer is the mightiest weapon God has placed at the disposal of all who would follow Him."

He asked: "Can anyone say God has been inactive during these months? Has He ever left us alone? Things might have been much worse had we not prayed—our prayers have not been in vain. They have doubtless accomplished great things we know not of. We must exercise faith, these are testing and trying times."

Final victory rests with the forces of right under the guidance of God. Dr. Hodgson continued. The last word will be with Him, for only God can bring about a speedy and lasting peace.

Dr. Hodgson concluded his address with these words, "We shall find in God the secret of peace the world cannot give, and which the world cannot take away."

TWO-THIRDS of the total number of loans outstanding in Canada's Chartered Banks average less than $500 per loan.

Through bank loans, Canada's Chartered Banks help Canadians to benefit themselves, their fellows and their country. Many of these loans are small—but all contribute their share to the day-by-day activities of Canadian enterprise.

Some further facts about Canada's Banks:

Chartered Banks' loans related to agriculture as shown on the last official return to Parliament, totalled $340,118,473. This sum included loans to farmers, ranchers, fruit raisers and to grain dealers and grain exporters.

Every general manager today heading a Chartered Bank entered the bank as a junior in some small branch.

Up to and including February, 1943, no fewer than 6803 men and 154 women bank employees had enlisted in the armed forces.

Canadians in every walk of life and in every part of Canada are served by more than three thousand branches and sub-agencies maintained by the Chartered Banks to facilitate the nation's business.

Here and There in the County

The space problem was worse than ever at the Courier office last week—we were only able to find room for two budgets—Smith's Cove and Clementsport, so, once again we will go over the held-over copy and pick out the items we believe will be of most interest to our readers. There is a big pile on our desk and we see the Freeport notes are on top, and believe me, our Freeport correspondent certainly excelled herself. She sent in seven pages of notes. She will have to forgive us, but we cannot mention all those to whom she has made reference.

Her budget began by stating Mrs. Percy Stevens, of Saint John, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harold Crocker. Next she tells of Erna McCullough's visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Morrell.

Other interesting personals from Freeport are that Miss Phyllis Crocker, R.C.A.F., of Summerside, P.E.I., is spending a few days with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. George Crocker. David Perry, also R.C.A.F., and Mrs. Perry are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Perry. We also see where Miss Grace Morrell left on Tuesday of last week for the west, where she will be engaged as teacher.

Perhaps the most important bit of news in the Freeport notes is the report of the annual Roll Call of the Freeport Baptist Church. It is quite apparent this service was successful from both the spiritual and material point of view. The first part of the service was a memorial to Dr. Fred Lent, well-known educationalist, who died in Massachusetts some months ago, and to Hamilton Prime, R.C.A.F., and Glendon Farnsworth, R.C.N., both war casualties. Dr. Lent and Hamilton Prime were both Freeport boys. Glendon Farnsworth was born at Tiverton, but spent a great part of his life at the home of his sister, Mrs. Blanchard Thurber. Rev. R. C. Eaton, pastor of the church, delivered the memorial address. The Roll Call sermon was preached by Rev. S. A. Westcott, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Winnipeg, Man., who with Mrs. Westcott, have been spending their vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Westcott. Rev. and Mrs. Westcott have since left to return to Winnipeg. They were accompanied as far as Digby by his parents and Mrs. Cora Powell.

We mustn't forget to mention that the offering at the Roll Call Service reached the splendid total of $400.

Now we'll take the ferry across Grand Passage from Freeport to Westport. We learn that Shirley McDormand, R.C.A.F., of Halifax, has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McDormand and that Rev. and Mrs. S. Ricker and two children have returned home to occupy the Baptist parsonage after spending three weeks' vacation in Minnesota. Herman Shaw, of Moncton, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaw, and Mr. and Mrs. George Welch have returned to their home in New Glasgow; they were accompanied by Mrs. Odbur Welch and Virginia Welch. P.O. Clayton Pugh has left for Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, Ottawa, are spending three weeks' vacation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thompson.

While we are wondering how the pollock fishing has been at Westport, we will return to Long Island and visit Central Grove. Our correspondent there tells us that Mrs. Elwood Tibert is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Robar at Virginia East. Pte. Alvin and Pte. Andrew Elliott are spending a 30-day leave with their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Austin Elliott.

We'll leave the Islands and see what is happening on the Neck. An occasional correspondent from Little River writes that Ella Frosst is now employed at B. P. Collin's store, and that William Frosst has recently built a new sun parlor on his home. Our Centreville correspondent tells us that Roy Westcott, of Waltham, Mass., spent a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Westcott. From Rossway we are advised of an event of interest in that village, the marriage of Anna DeBlassie, formerly of Rossway, to Victor Weight, R.C.N.R., of Ontario.

Other Rossway items tell us that Miss Muriel Raymond has returned to Grand Manan, N.B.; that Edith Gidney will be in charge of the Rossway school this year; and Mrs. Fred Lewis has returned from Shelburne where her husband is stationed—Mr. Lewis accompanied her home and is spending a few days with his family.

Near the foot of this Rossway news budget, we find another very important item, which says, "Pte. Victor Lewis arrived home on Saturday from Sussex, N.B. He was met at Digby by Miss Louise Haight, and were married before they returned to Rossway. The good wishes of their friends follow them."

Now we will ramble about Digby and Annapolis Counties first of all stopping to visit Church Point, where Canada's largest wooden church and St. Ann's College are located. Our correspondent there tells us that Mrs. Emdon Thibodeau is spending a week in Digby with Mrs. Denis Comeau, and that Phillip Blinn, of Haverhill, Mass., is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emile C. Thibodeau.

Nearer home, at Mt. Pleasant, of visitors from the Islands to that village—Mrs. Pyne, of Freeport, has been visiting her brother, Walter Thomas, and Mrs. Horace Johnson and daughter, Dorothy, of Central Grove, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson. Louise Johnson is spending a week with friends in Saint John.

Our correspondent at Milford, Annapolis County, has written us that Mrs. John Lohnes recently made a brief trip to Saint John to see her son, Pte. Britton Lohnes, who is a patient in a hospital there. Britton, who has been in England since the spring of 1941, has been invalided to Canada. We wish him a speedy recovery and join with his friends in the hope that he will soon be well enough to return to his home in Milford.

Port Wade

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mus sells spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Oliver at Granville Ferry.

Rev. Claude Olmstead and two sons, James and Vaughn who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ansil Casey have returned to their home in Elgin, N.B. They were accompanied by Clare Casey, who will visit them for a time.

Captain and Mrs. George Kinghorn and Miss Sally Johnson, who have been visiting Mrs. Alice Johnson, have returned to Saint John.

Mrs. Chester Nauss and baby Meredith have gone to Sydney, where they will remain while Sgt. Nauss is stationed there.

Mrs. Veron Cooper and family and Mrs. George Hayne and family have closed their cottages for the summer and returned to Saint John.

On Wednesday evening September 1, a number of friends gathered at the home of Miss Dorothy Hudson and gave her a miscellaneous shower at which she received many nice gifts. Miss Hudson's marriage took place September 4.

Callup Is Extended

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 — (CP) — Men reaching the age of 18 this year and married men up to 30 years of age now are subject to call for compulsory military service under an extension of the call-up classes announced by Minister Mitchell over the weekend.

The new orders drop the minimum call-up age from 18 to 16, but provide that men shall not be served with notice to report for military examination until they reach the age of 18 years and six months.

The extension makes married men between the ages of 17 and 30 subject to call for the first time. Previously married men, and as the law stands, those who were 25 when the previous extension was made now are 25 and still liable to call, with their birth-year class.

Volunteer NOW and Avoid the Call-up!

EVERY red-blooded Canadian, not already enlisted, should realize now that he must do something for his country in her hour of peril. He must get overseas with his friends and townsmen and HELP WIN THIS WAR!

But don't wait for the Call-up. Be a proud Volunteer and give your services gladly to your country NOW so there'll be no stigma of compulsion afterwards.

If you are medically fit for active service, are not engaged in an essential war industry, and a woman or an older man can do your work, DROP EVERYTHING and join up... Now, about it!

The Salvation Army Carries On.

Brass bands marching men off to war may cloak its music with harsher, martial strains, shuffling feet on crowded pavements may muffle its trumpets, many-colored uniforms of half the world now on the sidewalks of Nova Scotia towns may subdue its once unique uniforms — but the Salvation Army band, like the great force it symbolizes in the public mind, still carries on. In war, as in peace, it summons to Thought; it is the outward evidence of a great work that silently and ceaselessly goes on in the world — among men broken by adversity and their own weaknesses, among children who are waifs, among mothers, the aged, the sick or the despairing.

The Salvation Army is an amazing organization, though today its achievements, no longer unexpected, may often be overlooked. It is backed by no church, but is possessed of faith. It boasts no titans of finance or industry among its leaders, but is built, instead, upon the broad shoulders of common, Christian folk.

Started in a London slum's degradation, it reaches today to the topmost levels of a thousand communities in a hundred countries.

Survivor of One Great War, it finds in this second world conflict new trials yet greater opportunities to serve.

With all it is doing for men and women in the armed services of the United Nations — in enemy lands it is banned because Christian and democratic — it has not neglected the field to serve which it began: the meeting of human emergencies wherever found with an understanding and compassion born of experience and with practical measurable help.

May Bar "Whopper" Told by War Pilot

As boss prevaricator of the Burlington (Wis.) Liars' Club O. C. Hulett has a yarn he would like to enter in the 19-43 contest, but he is reluctant because he thinks it might be true. He explains:

"I got the story in a letter from Flying Officer, Ralph W. Ritchie, stationed in the Middle East with an R.A.F. squadron, who says he is an American, born at Ottumwa, Iowa, and is trying to transfer to the American air forces."

Ritchie says his story is more true than he cares to state.

The following is his story: "My plane was badly hole during an operational flight. Two hours later I sighted what appeared to be an enemy submarine. I decided to Pupils May Help In Apple Picking.

To the Editor of the Courier:

Sir—Due to the acute shortage of farm labor in certain districts in this province, considerable difficulty will be experienced in the harvesting of apples, potatoes and other vegetables.

Representations have been made to the government of this province by many people urging us to go so far as to close the city schools to enable pupils in the higher grades to give their services to the farmers who are in desperate need of harvest labor. This the government would not care to do unless it is found absolutely necessary.

However, the government would suggest that any pupils who can assist in any way should secure permission from the school authorities to be absent from classes for a sufficient length of time to enable them to render the assistance which is now so necessary to our farmer.

POST-WAR PLANNER

"Sure there will be changes after the war... some are overdue. But I'm no robot. Whatever our post-war plans, I still want to see hard work rewarded and dividends paid on brains and initiative. I want the privilege of going into business for myself if I choose. Above all I want my kids to grow up where success depends on work, native ability and enterprise."

Weymouth Boy's Fine Work

Murray Langford, of Wey-mouth (colored) is doing fine work in Halifax as part of his war effort. He is now en-gaged as a riveter in the building of one of Canada's new Tribal Class of destroyers. He takes particular pride in the record he and his fellow workman have just carried out by driving 3,400 one-half and seven-sixteenth inch rivets in three days. By the way, Murray has been telling a newspaper reporter that he is a great-nephew of the in-comparable Sam Langford, the Boston Tar Baby of forty years ago, rated as one of the best fighters who ever drew on a glove. Sam was born in Weymouth, as everybody knows. "I'm punching these rivets home for Canada, just like Sam punched them out in the prize ring," Murray told the reporter with a laugh, dis-closing gleaming white teeth. Before going to Halifax Ship-yards, Murray said he was a lumberjack in the employ of a Yarmouth lumbering firm.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Seleda Stevens
Friends in Digby County and elsewhere will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Seleda Stevens, which occur-red at the home of her daugh-ter, Mrs. Harley Brooks, Ashmore, on Tuesday, August 31, following an illness of about two weeks. She was the daughter of the late Han-nah and Willabough Powell, of Freeport, and reached the age of ninety-three years. She was twice married, her first husband being the late Capt. Samuel Milbury, of Plympton, and her second the late James Stevens, of Freeport. Her fine spirit of devotion with her friends and all others with whom she had come in personal contact, marked her as a Christian lady. These things she has left will be cherished in the hearts of her friends. Her Bible, which she loved so well, was her constant companion. The old Bible she had read eight times and the New Test-ament, four. When very young she became a member of the Baptist Church, and spent her life working for the Master. Few can look back with greater feelings of satis-faction and a life well lived, than Mrs. Stevens. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harley Brooks, Ashmore, and three great - grandchildren. Following a brief service at the home on Thursday after-noon, the remains were taken to Plympton Baptist Church where service was conducted by Lic. Bernard Manzer, friend of the deceased. Burial took place in the Barton Cemetery. Pall bearers were Hugh Potter,

Heating and Housing Problems Discussed

An appeal from the Digby Town Council to the Digby Board of Trade requesting the board endeavor to take steps to relieve the housing shortage and to find suitable boarding places for newcomers in town, was considered at Tuesday night's meeting of the Board. This appeal was prompted by the difficulty experienced in finding boarding places for the school staff.

During the discussion one member stated he had a large house and would be glad to find room for a few desirable boarders, but, he had received word from the fuel administrator that should he take in boarders he could not get oil for winter heating. His furnace, he said, could not be connected for wood or coal.

It was also understood the fuel problem for this winter was the reason many have not opened their homes. This difficulty does not only involve oil, but includes wood and coal which are very scarce.

A motion was made that the secretary write strong letters to the fuel administrator and to the Wartime Housing Board, in the latter case asking that a representative be sent to Digby to look over the situation.

The athletic field also came in for some discussion. Although progress on the field was not as planned, constant wet weather making it impossible to carry on operations, the committee was given authority to continue their work in regard levelling off the field.

No action was taken by the Board with regard to a rink. R. B. Murray, president of the Navy League, told of the League's intention to construct an open air rink in the space now occupied by the tennis courts at the Hostel. This rink will be open to the public.

A motion was also passed that the secretary contact the Maritime Telephone & Telegraph Co., with regard to installing a dial system here. It being pointed out that telephone traffic has increased to such an extent in Digby during the past few months the present system is not adequate.

Country Schools Come to Town

Digby schools were an hour late in opening on Monday morning this week in order that the pupils would have an opportunity to "get acquainted" with newcomers to the school from outside of town. It was on that morning buses made their first trips from Acadiaville and Bay View, the schools in those sections being unable to open because of the impossibility of obtaining teachers.

Thirty-six children came in from the Acadiaville district to attend school here. They were accompanied on their first trip by Mrs. John Murley, of Acadiaville, president of the Digby County Home and School Association, and by Mrs. Benjamin Marshall, and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin, both of Acadiaville.

Nine children came in from the Bay View District.

All these pupils are distributed in classes from Grade I to Grade XI.

Short addresses were given by J. Vian Andrews, of North Bangs, Chairman of the Municipal School Board, and S. E. Woodman, another member of the Board. They were also welcomed by Mrs. D. M. Bishop, secretary - treasurer of the Board; principal C. E. Eaton, Mayor Theriault, and members of the Digby School Board, and T. A. M. Kirk, inspector of schools.

We understand from Inspector Kirk that by conveying pupils from these schools to Digby, teachers have now been provided for all schools in the Municipality.

Registration in the Digby schools is considerably below that of last year because of the opening of the new St. Patrick's Convent - School, which we understand has a registration of about 80. The opening of the convent has done much to relieve the congestion that has existed in the town school.

Since the new Courier subscription rates came into effect and in spite of the fact notices were mailed out to all subscribers four weeks in advance of the change, which was also advertised in the Courier for two weeks, we still have requests by mail and in person to extend subscriptions at the old rate for another year!

The answer is "No."

In future all letters making such requests will be ignored. We might add that subscription remittance, received by mail, with enclosures at the old rate, postmarked after August 31, have not been credited a full year, but only for the period covered under new rates.

Padre Hills, of H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" Addresses Trade Board

"No town in the British Empire has grown quite as fast as Cornwallis" declared Rev. William Hills, chaplain of H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" at nearby Deep Brook, in an address to the Digby Board of Trade at a supper meeting held in the Baptist Vestry Tuesday evening.

The first portion of the padre's address concerned the problems that have faced the municipalities since the development of the base. When he made the remark quoted above he was referring to the tremendous expansion that has taken place since April of this year. In this connection he stated the average age of recruits now arriving at Cornwallis is 17 to 17½ years.

These boys, he said, are the "Tom Sawyers" of this age. Many are away from home the first time, they are impulsive, they are lonely; they represent the very best and the very worst of the country, and how they behave depends a good deal on the men with whom they come in contact during their period of training.

He went on to say that a few of them may be a source of annoyance, but pointed out the fact they were not boys of Hitler's Germany, but were representatives of our own Canadian homes, the products of our educational system and our home life, and although effort was made at Cornwallis to maintain rigid discipline, it takes more than a ten weeks' period of training to change characters that have already been moulded.

He assured the citizens of Digby they would get every co-operation from the discipline corps, and that additions would soon be added to the naval patrol to deal further with those who are inclined to cause impatience and annoyance.

The second portion of Padre Hills' address dealt with the post war world. He warned his audience not to get too excited over the fact that Italy has signed an armistice. "We cannot rest content until Berlin has been taken by storm," he said, "if we do not penetrate into the very German heart, this war will merely end in an armistice. . . there is no difference between a Nazi and a German; Nazism is only the expression of what is on the German heart and soul."

He then referred to conditions in Canada, deploring especially the tendency of some to divide the Canadian people into three distinct groups, namely, English, French, and Armed Forces. He went on to say these groups are not separate minorities, they are all Canadians. Once we allow anything to divide us, we open the way to our own destruction, he added, and suggested a conference of all those who have "given" in this great cause to be made up of representatives of those who have stayed at home to do what they could to keep things running properly on the home front; those who fought and the mothers who have sacrificed so much.

"They believe in Canada and will do all in their power to prevent the seeds of disunity from blossoming. . . let them build the Canada of our future."

Padre Hills went on to say our greatest hope for the post war world is in the type of man who will come back after the job is finished. He prepared to tackle the problems of the post war world just as he has tackled the problems of today.

During the course of his address he pointed out that much of the burden of this war has fallen on the shoulders of Eastern Canada, and deplored the fact this does not appear to be properly understood at Ottawa. In the east, he said, local conditions have been disrupted because of the war, more than in any part of Canada. These disruptions should be the concern of Ottawa, and not ignored.

H. T. Warne, senior member of the board, was called upon for a few words at the conclusion of the meeting. Mr. Warne made brief reference to the address of the guest speaker, and then spoke of Digby as he knew it in his youth—before the time of electricity, and telephones, and when the population of the town was less than 1,000 inhabitants. Mr. Warne said that in 1930 he wrote in his diary of his belief the town's population would increase to 10,000 by 1950. He still believes his prophesy will come true.

Each black service chevron on a soldier's sleeve means a complete year of service in the present war. A silver "stripe" below them means that the officer or man was appointed or enlisted before September 10, 1940.

How a hen's egg got into a pigeon's nest is a mystery in Miami, Fla., where the strutting fantail pigeon hatched a chick. Miamians of the locality could find no chickens to account for the presence of the egg.

If you want to test that parcel you're sending to a soldier friend overseas the most effective way, according to the Canadian Postal Corps, is to stand on it. If it won't take your weight it won't take the weight of several thousand bulging mail bags.

MARRIAGES

Hilbert - Trask

A pretty wedding took place at Little River Baptist Church Wednesday evening, September 8, at 8 o'clock, when Wilda Maud, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Trask, was united in marriage to Cpl. Woodrow Fredrick Hilbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Hilbert, London, Ontario. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers. The wedding marches were played by Mrs. George Cheyne, of Saint John, and Bernard Morehouse, uncle of the bride, sang "Because" during the signing of the register. Rev. L. R. Atkinson officiated and presented to the bride and groom a leather bound copy of the Holy Bible. As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father she looked lovely in a gown of pastel blue, shadow sheer, with a rose slip, a low neck, matching hat and a rose veil extending to the finger tips. The gown was made on torso lines with the skirt falling in graceful folds from a tiny ruffle. The bride carried a bouquet of rose gladioli and baby's breath tied with orange satin streamers. Her only ornament was a string of pearls. The bride was attended by her only sister, Barbara Alberta, who was wearing a gown of rose taffeta with a sweetheart neckline, short sleeves, made on torso lines with the skirt falling in graceful folds from a tiny ruffle. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a halo of roses, and she carried a bouquet of pale pink gladioli tied with pink satin streamers. The bride's mother wore navy blue with matching accessories and a shoulder bouquet of roses. The groom was supported by Cecil Morehouse, cousin of the bride. The ushers were Kingsley and Guy Trask, brothers of the bride. After the ceremony the reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was beautifully decorated with lovely flowers and the bride's table was decorated with pink and white streamers hanging from the circle of wedding bells and the three-tier wedding cake in the center. The refreshments were served by Mrs. Osborne Trask, Miss Elnora Outhouse, Mrs. Buddy Abramson, cousins of the bride, Miss Greta Denton, Mrs. Weldon Trask, and Donald, brother of the bride. Corporal and Mrs. Hilbert spent a few days at the home of the bride's parents before returning to Saint John, where they will reside. For going away Mrs. Hilbert wore a powder blue coat, princess lines, with navy accessories. Prior to the wedding the bride was honored by a shower given by Mrs. George and Mrs. Gladys Small, at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. E. Trask. The happy couple received many beautiful gifts, including a check from the groom's father. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Bernard Outhouse, Miss Elnora Outhouse, Ronald Outhouse, of Port Maitland; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cotter and family and Douglas Cotter, of Berwick; Mr. and Mrs. Stergeon, of Saint John; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Morehouse, Mrs. Weldon Trask and Dianne, and Mrs. Dorety. The bridal party took their places under a pretty flower banked arch, a Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Miss Avis Tidd. The officiating clergyman was Rev. C. L. Chute, of Caledonia. The bride, looking very lovely in her gown of white satin cut on princess lines, with veil and wreath of gardenias and carrying a shower bouquet of gladioli and roses. She was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Arlington Merritt, who wore pink organdie and carried an arm bouquet in harmonizing colors. The groom was supported by his brother, Ainsley Tidd, of the R.C.N. During the signing of the register, Lyndon Collins sang, "O Promise Me." The wedding, and reception which followed, were attended by a large number of guests and the numerous and beautiful wedding gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple. Before her marriage Mrs. Tidd was the guest of honor at a shower given by Mrs. Clyde Denton, Little River, and another held at the home of Mrs. Bradford Merritt, Sandy Cove. After their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Tidd will live in Dartmouth, where the groom is stationed. They will be followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

About This and That

THREE SCORE YEARS AND TEN

Another year has rolled around . . . another birthday has arrived . . . the first issue of another new "volume" has been printed.

This issue of the Digby Courier is issue No. 1 of our 70th year of publication, and once again we are celebrating our birthday without fanfare.

We wish we could have got out a special "birthday number" for this occasion. Even with paper rationing we might have spared paper for such an issue, but, the help situation makes such an effort impossible at the present time. Our "birthday number" will have to be postponed until "after the duration." We pray that will not be long.

Seventy years of continuous publication is something to be proud of. For seventy years the Courier has been rolling off the press once a week, fifty-two times a year; at least once a week, fifty-two times a year we have had brick-bats and bouquets thrown in our direction. We have yet to publish an issue of the Courier and get away without a "kick." Bouquets are not so plentiful, but we get 'em.

Some of the "kicks" aimed in our direction are over most trivial matters and afford many laughs; others are over errors that are bound to creep into any newspaper's columns; still others are those who disagree with our "policy." Occasionally some reader gets "mad" and stops his or her paper.

Yet, all this goes to show the Courier is read from beginning to end. Without our readers' comments — their criticisms, their "kicks" we could not feel our efforts are appreciated.

Remember the taxpayers our fathers worried about in the last war? That's us.

Only the highest military authorities of the United Nations have any idea as to the time and place for opening a second "major front" in Europe. But, on the authority of both Prime Minister Churchill, of England, and President Roosevelt such a front will be opened, and that the prime consideration will be the chances for military success.

In this connection it is well to remember that the present invasion of Italy by General Eisenhower's armies was not considered by London or Washington as a second front, but merely a secondary operation to knock Italy out of the war.

We are anxious to help the gallant Russians in their battles with Hitler's armies on the European continent. But it is good to know that we are not to be stampeded into hasty action by the clamor from Moscow for such a "second front." We, too, shall be marching on Berlin with the Russians. But we are first going to make sure that the marching will be good before we attempt it.

Prime Minister Churchill said in his most recent speech: "Whenever the allies strike their great blow at Hitler and his hordes, you may be sure that it will be because we are satisfied that there is good prospect of continuing success, and that our soldiers' lives will be expended in accordance with sound military plans and not squandered for political considerations of any kind."

These are heartening words. They mean that we shall not subscribe to any deliberate waste of our manpower, that we shall not make useless sacrifice of lives. We must have the necessary men and tools for victory before we strike.

The output of hosiery may be increasing, as reported, but a lot of girls don't seem to have heard about it yet.

So many big things are happening everywhere that we may forget that this world is still a world of individuals. If we are to help solve world problems effectively, we must begin with the individual right under our own hat. We have world problems in the miniature right in our front yard. The way we solve these immediate personal problems is our contribution to the composite efforts to meet the big world problems that make the headlines of our newspapers.

Yes, there probably is some good in everybody, but that isn't what people talk about.

Under war-time regulations, economy is essential to eliminate extravagance, and it may not be amiss to suggest that all penitentiaries and prisons as well as county jails be designated as draft headquarters and regional offices, by putting all prisoners to work doing clerical and manual work. That way the thousands of men and women who are now drawing lucrative salaries could be released to work in war plants. It is about time that the prisoners were put to work in return for the free board and shelter they receive. By doing this thousands of dollars could be saved. And penal institutions can render services because a large number of the prisoners are highly educated men and women, some of them lawyers, others accountants and clerks. They can

Just what kind of peace will we have and what can be done to make that peace enduring for all? In our opinion treaties must be made on the basis of brotherhood, with due consideration for the rights and needs of all peoples. The old nationalistic greed and striving for advantage must give place to the thought that what is done to help another race or nation benefits the one that is aiding. The idea that one race which has not must annihilate the race which has, must give way to a spirit of mutual love and helpfulness. Instead of a desire to rob, destroy, crowd out or make slaves of other peoples, all must help those who need help. If the above Christian spirit can be attained and maintained on earth, war and strife will cease. A very high ideal no doubt, but we see no other way out.

Scientists say we shall soon be driving a mixture of gasoline and alcohol in our automobiles. Which is just what a lot of people have been doing.

There's altogether too much politics in Parliament. No matter what the measure under consideration the Conservatives and C. C. F.'s fight it if it may place them at disadvantage, and the Liberals push it if it will give them advantage. Both forget the "dear" public, and sometimes the nation. Now is the time to put away petty individual seeking of political favors and to think only in terms of national good. This is also the time for patriotism instead of politics, for personal as well as national preparedness, and for national solidarity.

Women Will Stay

Director Mary Anderson, of the United States Women's Bureau, proud of the record of women war workers, said that when peace comes "women have a chance of staying in the aircraft factories." "But," she added, "they probably will be pushed out of other industrial work back into clerical jobs."

Neil Saulnier, assistant light keeper at Point Prim, is on vacation at his home in Meteghan. His brother, Perrot, is taking place during his absence. Our Bay View correspondent also writes us that there will be no school at Bay View this year because of the impossibility of obtaining a teacher. The pupils will be transported to Digby by bus. Pictou Lodge, the well known summer home of Mrs. Justice, has been closed for the season, and Mrs. Justis, with her sisters Mrs. Greenwood and Mrs. Heller, and Sydney Greenwood, have returned to Philadelphia. Other Bay View summer visitors who have returned home are Mrs. Asbury and her grandson, Gordon Greenwood.

We also learn from Bay View that Wallace Abbott, of the Veterans' Guard, Fredericton, N. B., has been spending a few days with his family; that Mr. and Mrs. D. M. VanTassel, of Saint John, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ellis, and recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Turnbull included Mr. and Mrs. Perry Porter and Miss Ruby Porter, of Hill Grove; Mrs. Harry Trask, Douglas and Jeanne, of Digby; Margaret Porter and Bruce Baxter, of Halifax.

Mrs. Oscar Dugas was also a visitor at the same home; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster, Mrs. Helen Bell and Mr. and Mrs. D'Arcy Roope and Johnnie were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Whittaker, Cheggogin, Yarmouth Co. Mrs. Whittaker was the former Evelyn Foster. Mrs. Clarence Height and son, Malcolm, and Mrs. Height's father, Stewart Goldsmith, have been visiting friends in Saint John.

The Acaciaville - Hill Grove notes also told of a shower given recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Murley in honor of his sister, Mary. (The account of the Mossman - Murley wedding was published in last week's Courier.)

Down Ashmore way a chicken supper was held at the home of Mrs. Carl Kinney, and the sum of $36.18 was raised for the Bethel Baptist Church. Pte. Alfred White, of Halifax, and Pte. Irven Durling, of Yarmouth, have been visiting their homes in that village.

From our correspondent at Lower Concession we learn that Miss Jacqueline Comeau, of Comeauville, and Mrs. Disa LeBlanc are teaching in the advanced and primary departments of the St. Francois Xavier School there, and that Mrs. Priscilla Comeau is teaching at St. Joseph. Miss Catherine LeBlanc is teaching this year at St. Bernard. This correspondent also tells us Miss Florence Melanson, of Corberrie, has left for Montserrat, N. B., where she will be a student at St. Joseph's Convent.

Week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burke, Port Wade, were Mr. and Mrs. Chester Johns, of Salem, Mass.; Mrs. Jack Smith, of Plympton, and Mrs. Edward Johns, of Kenville. We are glad to note that Deacon Watson Anthony, who has been a patient at the Annapolis General Hospital, has returned to his home in Port Wade.

Frederick Condon, of Hillsburn, is the teacher at Parker's Cove this year, our Parker's Cove correspondent tells us.

From Centreville we learn the annual Sunday School picnic was held recently, the schools of both the United and Baptist churches joining for this occasion. It is needless to add: "a good time was had by all." This correspondent also says that Master Ralph Morehouse has left for New Waterford, C. B., where he will attend school this year, and that "Bud" Graham, R. C. A. F., and "Jim" Graham spent the week end at their homes in Centreville.

Miss Angele Doucet, daughter of Jos. P. Doucet, leaves for St. Georges-ouest, P. Q., and Miss Simone Belliveau, daughter of Prof. Willie Belliveau, St. Ann's College staff, leaves for Monimigue, Que., on Monday, where they will take special courses in home economics, says our Church Point correspondent.

Reducing Time Loss

(Editorial by The Evening Citizen, Ottawa)

Since the outbreak of the war a number of changes have been made in the Labor Department's conciliation machinery with a view to bringing about quicker settlements of industrial disputes. A study of statistical information published by the department makes it evident that these changes have resulted in a very considerable reduction in the loss of man-power through strikes.

In 1942, the third year of the war, the number of wage earners in Canada reached the highest peak in all our history. There were about 69 per cent more wage earners in 1942 than there were in 1917, the third year of the last war. This higher number of workers no doubt accounts, in part at least, for the fact that in 1942 there were 113,916 workers involved in strikes as against only 50,255 workers in 1917.

However, in measuring the effects of strikes upon production the important thing is not so much the number of men involved as the number of man-days of labor lost to the nation's productive effort. In 1942 there were more than twice as many men on strike as in 1917. But the actual man-days lost was considerably less than one-half—the man-days lost in 1917 being 1,123,515 as against 450,202 man-days in 1942.

From these figures it is seen that in 1917 the average time each man remained out on strike was 22 days, whereas in 1942 the average for each man amounted to slightly less than 4 days.

While it is not possible accurately to determine all the factors leading up to this very great reduction in manpower lost there can be no doubt that much of it has been due to the improved machinery set up in recent years by the Labor Department for the speedier handling of industrial disputes.

Find Body of Culloden Fisherman

The body of Devere Hand-spiker, 26-year-old Culloden fisherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Handspiker, was found early Friday afternoon off Anderson's wharf, Digby. It is believed Handspiker must have fallen off the wharf in some manner and drowned, late Saturday night or early Sunday morning, September 4.

The young man came to town Saturday evening, and was last seen alive shortly before midnight. At that hour he was walking in the direction of the waterfront. Earlier in the evening he had told friends he would not return to Culloden with them at that time, but would come home later.

No particular fears were felt for his safety when he did not arrive at Culloden on Sunday, and up until the present time no general search had been conducted. Some had expressed the opinion he may have fallen off a wharf. Others were inclined to believe he had met friends and gone away for a few days, although he was not in the habit of leaving home for any length of time.

It is understood a suggestion was made that the Digby waterfront be dragged. The body was sighted at ebb tide near the edge of the low water mark. After an examination by Chief of Police Thibault, the remains were taken to Ramsay's Funeral Parlor, and identified by his brother, Glendon Handspiker.

It was decided death was accidental, and an inquest unnecessary.

Forest Fires Greatest Menace

A united effort of the daily and weekly press of Canada to curb the national menace of forest fires was urged by John Bassett, President and Managing Director of the Montreal Gazette in an interview issued by the Canadian Forestry Association.

"The country's storehouse of timber is still our greatest source of employment and one of our ace cards in future industrial expansion," Mr. Bassett pointed out. "It is absurdity in wartime Canada that our nation's wood resources should be turned into ashes when we know that the replacement of them will require fifty to a hundred years. Government statistics show 5 to 6,000 forest fires a year, indicating that the destroying forces number from five to six thousand persons. Out of our population of eleven millions, the curbing of that body of anti-social or careless elements should not be difficult. A vigorous public sentiment will turn the trick and nobody can create that sentiment with such force and finality as the newspaper editors. After all, the newspaper presses of Canada roll off their editions from spruce and balsam fibre. In the case of the largest city papers, between two and three hundred pulpwood logs are devoured daily in furnishing the newspaper for a single issue. There could be no more useful a mission for the publishers and editors of Canada than to use their powers to subdue the forest fire menace which sabotages the only assets growing on 58 per cent of our provincial areas."

More than two million parcels of cigarettes and tobacco were sent to Canadian soldiers overseas during 1942 and of that number only about three per cent were lost due to enemy action.

A beautiful wedding of interest to many friends took place on September 6 at Sacred Heart Church, Doucetteville, when Alma Thibault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Thibault, became the bride of Steve Demytruk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Demytruk, of Geraldton, Ontario. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. L. Gaudet in the presence of many friends. The bride wore a floor-length wedding gown of white sheer crepe with a full-length veil and carried a bouquet of gladioli, maiden hair fern and baby's breath. The bridesmaid, Miss Jean Thibault, friend of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of petal blue net and a crown of roses, carried a bouquet of pink gladioli and fern. The groom was attended by Gordie Thibault, brother of the bride. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Clifford Thibault. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. The happy couple then motored to Digby while a big reception awaited them at the bride's home for dinner. Eighty guests were present: the bride received many lovely gifts including silver, china, linens, and a purse of $130. After two weeks at the bride's home the happy couple will leave for Ontario where they will reside. Out of town guests were: Peter Demytruk, Ont., brother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Delphis Comeau, Saulnierville, and Charles Amero, Yarmouth.

Better PAY for the C.W.A.C.
And Dependents' Allowances!

Here's good news for thousands of girls and women... the basic rates of pay in the C.W.A.C. have been RAISED from 15% to 30%. You now start at $1.05 per day and get increases after four and six months for good conduct and efficiency. Trades pay has also been substantially increased and now equals that of the men's. This adds 25¢, 50¢ or 75¢ a day to your basic pay, depending on your trade and efficiency.

You will also receive the same allowance for your dependents as service men. And wives of soldiers will NOT lose their allowance upon joining the C.W.A.C. Remember, too, that these newer and better rates of pay are a CLEAR SURPLUS because everything is provided free, even medical and dental care. Women are urgently needed to serve in a wide variety of occupations and replace "A" Category men proceeding overseas. If YOU could realize how critical the need is you would join the C.W.A.C. at once and get behind your men for victory. Enlist NOW!

Molasses Prices Affect N. S. Dealers

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has set the figure at which an importer or wholesaler may sell Barbadoes Extra Fancy Molasses in a puncheon ex dock at his port of discharge. The order took effect September 3.

It is not expected that the order will increase consumer prices. The restriction in the number of grades of canned molasses will benefit the industry to some extent and the restrictions on the amount of molasses that may be packed in cases will ensure a fair balance to the consumer between the sale of higher priced canned molasses and the lower priced drought molasses.

In Nova Scotia, as in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, the maximum price per imperial gallon is 69 cents. This quality of imported cane molasses is sold under the trade name of Bema Extra Fancy, Bema Fancy or Bema.

The retail price of Barbadoes Extra Fancy molasses allows a markup not exceeding 25 per cent of the actual price per gallon paid by him plus the cost of transporting the molasses from the supplier's base to the retailer's place of business.

Mail Christmas Parcels Overseas By November 1

Christmas boxes will have a much longer distance to travel, entailing more handling and reshipment to reach many members of Canada's Fighting Services this year. To enable all the Dominion's men and women overseas to receive their gifts from home in time for Christmas Day, the Postmaster General, Hon. William P. Mackay, K.C., M.P., calls on the public to Mail Early for Christmas Overseas—now and during October—the earlier the better to ensure the timely arrival of the anxiously awaited gift. The more distant our forces may be from Canada, the earlier their Christmas mail should be sent.

No Sugar

One of the editors of the Bennington, Banner writes: "Our forefathers did without sugar until the 13th century, without coal fires until the 14th century, without buttered bread until the 15th without potatoes until the 16th, without coffee, tea and soup until the 17th, without pudding until the 18th, without gas, matches and electricity until the 19th, without canned goods until the 20th century, and we have had automobiles for only a few years.

Now, what was it you were complaining about?

ACADEMY ACTIVITIES

School children from Bay View and Acaciaville Schools are being transported to Digby by buses. This is due to the lack of teachers in those places.

There have been several changes in the teaching staff this term. The following are the new teachers: Miss Durling, Grade IX; Miss Mills, Grade VIII; Mrs. Kaye, Grade II and Mr. Embree, Manual Training.

At a recent meeting of the High School Girls' Club, the following officers were elected: president, Frances Woodman; vice president, Dorothy Cook; secretary, Mildred Hazelton; treasurer, Thelma Wood.

War Savings Stamps will be sold again beginning Friday. A new system of buying has been arranged. The school has been divided into three teams. Army, Navy and Air Force. Each grade has its own captain for each team. The idea is that a certain number of stamps will move these teams toward an objective and of course each team will try to get there first.

Navy League Tea

The Y.W.C.A. Centre, formerly well known as the Lour Lodge Annex, was the scene of a pleasant social gathering on Thursday afternoon, September 16, when the Ladies' Committee of the Digby Branch of the Navy League were hostesses to the wives of Navy men living in the Digby area. The spacious rooms were decorated with fall flowers and throughout the tea hour were thronged with guests, who were welcomed by Mrs. Helen Anthony, convener of the Committee, assisted by Mrs. R. B. Murray and Mrs. E. Scott Eaton.

The tea table, centred by roses and tall tapers, was presided over for the first hour by Mrs. F. W. Nichols and Mrs. L. A. Shatford, and for the second hour by Mrs. F. L. Anderson and Mrs. H. M. Warne. Mrs. Roland Moore, of Yonkers, N.Y., replenished. Members of the committee assisted in serving, among those officiating being Mrs. J. W. Christie, Mrs. A. J. Dillon, Mrs. L. F. Doiron, Mrs. J. A. Grant, Mrs. Loran Hayden, Mrs. H. E. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Chas. Ramsay, Mrs. H. E. Reicker, Mrs. F. J. Thibault, Mrs. J. Tobin, Mrs. G. V. Turnbull and Mrs. C. E. Walker.

In addition to the many local navy wives who were entertained, special guests were Mrs. J. C. I. Edwards, wife of the officer commanding H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" and Mrs. McClintock and Mrs. Tummonds, also from Deep Brook. Other guests included Navy League members and also Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. McLennan, the Y.W.C.A. hostesses, who have recently opened the hostel for the Wrens, to supplement the work of the Navy League in Digby, and through whose courtesy the rooms were made available for the occasion.

Newspapers Come Under New Order

New manpower regulations announced recently regulating the resignation or dismissal of all male employees in "A" and "B" priority industries are applicable to all male employees of firms affected, regardless of their position, Arthur MacNamara, Director of National Selective Service, told The Canadian Press.

The publication of newspapers and dissemination of news, for instance, comes within "B" priority. The new order means that no man employed on a newspaper or by a news service may be dismissed or may leave his job without the written permission of Selective Service officer, and that applies to employees from the managing editor to the janitor.

In practice, it is expected that the decision as to whether a job-change permit is to be issued will be a matter for the discretion of the local Selective Service officer.

Robert Wright Wins Scholarship

Word has recently been received from Queens University, at Kingston, Ontario, that Robert Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Wright, has been awarded the Regional Scholarship for the Province of Nova Scotia.

Each year Queens University awards nine of these scholarships to students of Canadian schools. One scholarship is awarded to each of the Provinces. It is indeed an honour to Mr. and Mrs. Wright, to the Town of Digby, and to Digby Academy that Robert Wright has been awarded this scholarship.

The Regional Scholarship has a value of nine hundred and ninety six dollars to last for a period of three years. Each year for three years the winner of this scholarship receives the sum of three hundred and thirty two dollars.

The people of the town and the students of the Digby School wish to congratulate Robert Wright on his fine work thus far and hope that he will carry the name of the town and the name of his family further in the scholastic field.

Where Are We Heading?

To the Editor of the Courier,

Sir—It was interesting to read in your columns last week the prophecy of a Digby business man that the population of the town would reach the 10,000 mark by 1950. It is hoped that this prophecy will be fulfilled and that the town will grow to that extent. In considering this prophecy, however, certain factors which will have a profound bearing on the future of the town come immediately to mind.

Digby's growth since its incorporation has been slow and steady. From 1931 to 1941 the population only increased by 200. Many people have been lead astray by that tremendous increase of the past two years. They do not seem to realize that this increase is not a permanent thing and will disappear at the close of the war and to some extent even before that time. Construction work at the base will soon be completed. The men and their families will soon be leaving for new fields of endeavor. At the close of the war our "navy-wife" population will disappear. While it is true the base may be in operation after the war, the wives of the permanent staff will find permanent homes, not in hastily prepared flats or apartments in Digby but in homes of their own nearer the base.

From the above paragraph it can easily be seen that Digby is going to suffer a sad depletion in population immediately following the war. Other contributory factors that lead to this could also be mentioned. Chief of these is, or will be, the lack of opportunities for employment in returning service men and women from this area.

The outlook for Digby's future is not a bright one and would hardly lead, after careful study, to prophecies such as have been made. The future, however, need not be dark nor Mr. Warne's prophecy so far removed from fact. If such is to be the case, though, action must NOW be taken; IMMEDIATELY; not when Digby has become a post-war casualty.

All through the Dominion plans are now being made to cope with the problems of the post war period. Digby must do likewise. A complete assessment and evaluation of Digby's position and possibilities in the post war world must be made. Action must be started to ensure that her resources and possibilities are employed to their fullest extent to improve and better her position in the post war years.

Government spending on public works will no doubt increase after the war to tide over the period while private industry adjust itself to post war conditions. Action should now be taken to see that Digby has its share of this spending. Improvements in harbour and docking facilities, utilities should now be planned so that industrial expansion will be possible. Surveys should be made with a view to bringing about an increase in the rural population in the area around Digby through a planned immigration scheme. Plans for the rebuilding of the tourist business should be laid.

A few of the methods that could be employed to bring about an assured future for Digby have been enumerated above. There are many more that could be put into effect to good advantage. The thing that must be realized is that these things must be done NOW. There can be no waiting if the town is not to become a post war casualty as it nearly became a war casualty. It is very worthy indeed for various bodies in the town to promote hostels, ski jumps, rinks, etc. They are no doubt necessary in the present set-up. All attention however must not be given to present day problems and conditions. These will disappear overnight and will be replaced with new problems and conditions that must be coped with. Chief of these problems will be that of the town's remaining alive and progressing or of becoming a ghost town where the few remaining citizens will be entertained by the mournful sound of the winds wailing through the empty hallways of deserted tenements. The pattern of Digby's future will be shaped now in these years of war. What will it be—a population of 10,000 by 1950 or a return to the sleepy, slow progress of pre-war days? Where are we heading?

Exhibition Gets Under Way

The Digby County Exhibition got off to a good start at Bear River, yesterday morning, with large numbers of exhibitors of produce, fancy work, household arts, school work and livestock. The official opening of the show took place at 7.30 last evening.

Judges were busy making their decisions most of the morning of the opening day, and the first of the main events on the programme was the ox hauling contest which took place in the afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock. Other events on the programme for the first day included a tug-o-war between the seamen and stokers of H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis," log sawing, kettle boiling and pie eating contests.

A record crowd is expected on the fair grounds today when H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" band will be in attendance both afternoon and evening, their afternoon concert beginning at 3 o'clock, and the evening performance at 8. The evening band concert will be followed by a physical training display by the "Cornwallis" boys—a feature that should not be missed as those who have seen these boys go through their paces will tell you.

Other events this afternoon include the horse haul at 2; a pie eating contest in the evening. The final tug-o-war between the winners of yesterday afternoon's event and a group of Bear River strongmen promises to be an exciting feature. This will be staged at 7.45 this evening.

Hill Grove Community Fair Held Despite Bad Weather

The Hill Grove Community Fair, sponsored by the Maple Leaf Agricultural Society, was held at the farm of James Roope & Son on Wednesday of last week. Although the skies were overcast and not too promising, labor and transportation conditions were such that it was decided to hold the fair. The judges were Mr. Porter, retired herdsman of the Kentville Experimental Farm; R. Longley, agricultural representative for Kings County, and Miss Helen Amoro, of New Edinburgh.

A large list of exhibits and the number present promised a record fair, until the rain came and ruined the afternoon programme, including the Horse Haul.

About This and That

This wartime rationing is all right but when it begins to interfere with a Scotchman and his haggis, or a Maritimer with his dulse, then there must be a real war on. Out on the Pacific Coast the New Brunswick Association held a picnic recently in Vancouver and all went merry as the proverbial wedding bell except for the fact that only five pounds of dulse could be obtained for four hundred people. Dulse is a dried seaweed obtained along the shores of the Maritime Provinces. It is purplish in color and its taste, well, when first tried by a novice it tastes like a dishrag impregnated with salt but to the initiated it's just delectable. Dulse has a high iodine content and the eating of it seems to have been handed down by way of medicinal lore.

If a lot of women did not make so much effort to look younger than they are, nobody would suspect their real age.

Three Indian chiefs were taken to the airport at Winnipeg recently and saw a Trans-Canada air liner coming in, also a TCA hangar, the first time they had ever seen a modern airport. The Indian chiefs were given a trip to the western metropolis in recognition of the work they had done in raising contributions to the Red Cross. The Indians of Manitoba and Ontario have made generous contributions to the Red Cross in money and furs. The three Indian chiefs were Chief Henry Fidler, head of the Indian Reserve at Island Lake, who speaks only Cree! Chief Prince of Hodgson, and Chief Thomas Fidler, a cousin, of Favorable Lake, Ont. After viewing the electric lights, street cars, the big buildings and the greatest wonder of all, an airliner and a modern airport, Chief Henry Fidler was heard to express in the Cree language, "Lots of white men say there is no God, yet they use the gifts He gave them to make all these wonders."

According to a government announcement, "Durability is the best thing about women's stockings this year." Is that so? That isn't what we've been looking at.

"The residue of the abnormal—chronic idlers, shirkers and obstructors—would be dealt with, along with other mentally unfit persons, in corrective institutions." That is not a quotation from Mein Kampf or from a Gestapo manual—although it might well have been derived from one of those sources. It is contained in one of a series of editorial articles on "Planning Postwar Canada" that have appeared in The Canadian Forum, the high-brow organ of the C.C.F. party. "The residue of the abnormal" is particularly good. An Oxford Englishman might say, "It is extremely funny, by Jove!" But it was obviously coined by the delicate hand of a female socialist or a professor of the same ilk, and a humorous interpretation can therefore be dismissed. The same applies to the words "corrective institutions," which is the C.C.F. equivalent for "internment camps." These Canadian socialists are more refined in their terminology than the forthright Nazis, and their corrective methods as applied to "obstructors" of the C. C. F. postwar plan would, presumably, be a form of refined torture. But there is something to be said for the Nazi method of shooting or chopping off the heads of the obstructors of the National Socialist plannings. It is more business-like and effective, and perhaps more humane. Anyway the Forum's pronouncement on what will happen to the "obstructors" of the C.C.F. postwar plan should come as a timely warning to the "residue of the abnormal."—The Printed Word.

We marvel at these German pronouncements that the nazi troops are "disengaging themselves from the enemy according to plan." But whose plan?

Prices Then and Now Compared

The following letter taken from the Truro News, tells an interesting story:

Prices Today and In 1920

The Editor, News, Dear Sir:

I thought I would write you about something me and Martha was arguin' about the other nite. She was complainin' about the Wartime Prices Board not givin' her enough sugar to make tomato chow, pickles and what not, an sez I, "I think they are doin' a pretty good job with all they have to contend with — running the war, tryin' to feed and clothe all them there soldiers, sailors and airmen." Martha sez she didn't think the figures them statistical fellers put out were right about the cost of livin'. I sez I thought they were—so to settle the argument, she went up in the attic and dug out the old trunk we kept our receipts in and we found we kept the old charge slips from the store for stuff we bot from 1918 to 1920, then we started comparin' slips we had behind the clock this year and there seemed to be such an awful difference I thought we would send them to you to print.

I know they will start a lot of arguments, perhaps a worse one than me and Martha had. However, we have all the slips to prove it.

I ain't got much use for the Prices Board myself at times when they make me pretty near take out a permit to kill the old red rooster and to go through a whole lot of red tape to get a tire for the old Ford, but if they can keep on keepin' prices down, I won't do very much kickin'.

Yours truly,
UNCLE EZRA

Infants Canned Food Rationed

According to information received in the regional office of to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, there is an apparent misunderstanding regarding the sale of strained, crushed and pureed fruits for infants' diets including baby foods that are all fruit or part fruits. These baby foods definitely come under the new ration pertaining to other canned fruits, jams, jellies and marmalade, according to Major J. E. Campbell, Deputy Eastern Director of rationing for the Maritimes and are obtainable on presentation of the yellow "D" coupon in the new No. 3 Ration Book.

Merchants are again warned that maraschino cherries are included among the rationed commodities and therefore require the use of the yellow "D" coupon.

Toward a Better World

Here and There in the County

We are sorry we could not make room for the South Range notes last week—in fact, we are sorry we could not find room for all of the notes—but we make special mention of South Range because we so seldom hear from that village. Our correspondent sent us three full pages, but as much of this news would be "stale" by the time this comes off the press we will only review a portion of it.

Miss Pauline Griffith, of Sandy Cove, is teaching at South Range this year, our correspondent writes us. The school at South Range West got off to a bad start, and has been closed for the past week due to the illness of the teacher, Mrs. Kenneth White.

Pte. Donald Sabean, of Aldershot, has been spending a short leave at his home; Gerald Marshall, R.C.A.F., is also home on leave, and Pte. Fred Sabean, of Debert, spent a recent week end with his family. Miss Velma Robicheau and her friend, Miss Comeau, have returned to Halifax, after a visit with Miss Robicheau's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robicheau; Hilda and Melba Shortliffe have returned to Rotheray, N. B., after spending their vacation in South Range with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Shortliffe.

Our Lansdowne correspondent tells us Miss Eleanor Morine, of Bear River, is in charge of the school there and that Mrs. Wilfred Miller and Roy have returned home after a two weeks' visit with friends in Clarence. Recent visitors to Lansdowne include Miss Ethel Woolf, of Waverly, Mass., who is spending her vacation with her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Woolf; Judson Munro, of Grand Pre, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Morgan, and Pte. Earle K. Drew, who spent a week end with his family. Miss Margaret Lynch and Harry Dunn have returned to Boston after spending three weeks with Miss Gertrude Dunn and other relatives.

From New Edinburgh we learn that Pte. I. D. McCormack, of Aldershot, spent a few days' leave with his parents. During the time of his visit he was honored by a birthday party given him by many friends in the village. Another of the New Edinburgh's McCormacks in the news is Pte. Roger—he has just written home telling friends he is with the 1st Division of the Canadian Army in Sicily.

Mrs. Adolphe LeBlanc, New Edinburgh, recently underwent an operation for appendicitis in the V. G. Hospital, Halifax.

The opening of school seemed to rank high in news value last week. Our correspondent at Clementsvalle says "School opened Wednesday, September 8 with the Misses Gower as teachers in the advanced and primary departments. Local girls who have left for their various schools are Miss Doris Sanford to Liverpool Academy; Freda Potter to Bear River Academy; Helen Potter to Waldec East; Hazel Sanford to Torbrook, and Bessie Sanford to Milford Corner."—Now, boys, you know their addresses!

A pie social in the Forrester's Hall, Clementsvalle, realized $57. This money will be used for repairs on the Baptist parsonage.

Sub-Lieut. Otis Sanford and Mrs. Sanford are spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sanford, Pte. Fred Potter, of Aldershot, spent the week end at his home in Clementsvalle. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Pyne have taken up residence at the home of William Crouse; Mrs. Annie Verrill, who has been visiting relatives in Clementsvalle, has returned to her home in Portsmouth, N.H., and Miss Patricia Holdbrook has returned to Hartford, Conn. after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. George Dukeshire, and Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Sanford.

The last item of these Clem-entsvalle notes tells of more teachers who have left for their schools. It says Miss Marjorie Pierce left for her school in Dayspring Miss Audrey Pierce to her school at Lower Granville, and Miss Rene Burrill to Round Hill where she has charge of the primary department.

We should find space for all the Barton - Brighton notes, but, we are afraid that can't be done. However, we will start off again with the school teachers. This year Miss D. Sanford is in charge of the advanced department and Miss M. Porter of the primary department of the Barton-Brighton school. Ruth Specht has returned to La-Have to resume her duties as teacher there, and Mrs. Bernard Manzer is teaching at Gaspereaux.

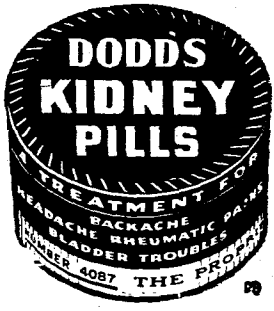

An afternoon tea at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Harris realized $15.50 for the Red Cross.

Included among the "personal" items from Barton and Brighton are the following: Miss McHale, of Halifax, and Mrs. Poulette, of Vermont, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pangborn. (Mr. and Mrs. Pangborn recently purchased the "M. M. McNeill house"); Margaret Specht has returned home after visiting her brother in Lynn, Mass., and her uncle in New Hampshire; Mrs. K. Brown, of New Hampshire, is visiting her sisters, Dorothy and Hattie Perry; Miss Mamie Amero and Mrs. Ina Franzago are spending their vacations at Barton; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Grant have returned to Massachusetts after visiting relatives; Mrs. Florence Bacon is visiting relatives in Cambridge, Kings Co.; Mr. and Mrs. Morse have returned to the United States after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Welsh; Mrs. Herman Harris has returned to Toronto after visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Harris; Mrs. Marjorie Caldwell has returned to the United States after spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. B. Warner; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Syda have returned to Boston after visiting friends and relatives in Barton and Digby; Mrs. Margaret Appleby, of Digby, was a recent visitor at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joshua Haight.

Our Rossvalle correspondent doesn't tell us who is teaching school there this year—nevertheless she sends in a newsy budget of personal items. She writes us Mrs. Kenneth Peters is visiting her son, Reginald, in Saint John; George McKay, of Halifax, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Frances McKay; Cortland Worthylake, who recently joined the R.C.A.F., is now stationed at a Manning Depot in Quebec; Mrs. Joseph Heisler has returned home from the Digby General Hospital where she has been a patient; Miss Phyllis Walker, of Boston, is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Robbins; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Enicolo, of Revere, Mass., has been visiting Mrs. Enicolo's sister, Mrs. Lottie Lewis, and Mr. and Mrs. William Hutchins have returned from Yarmouth County where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Manning Mullen on the occasion of Mr. and Mrs. Mullen's 50th wedding anniversary.

Callup Is Extended

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 — (CP) — Men reaching the age of 18 this year and reaching the age of 30 years of age are now subject to call for compulsory military service under an extension of the call-up law announced by the Minister of National Defence.

The new orders drop the minimum call-up age from 18 to 16, but provide that men shall not be called with notice to report for medical examination until they reach the age of 18 years and six months.

The extension makes married men between the ages of 27 and 30 subject to call for the first time. Previously married men up to 25 were liable to call, and as the war has gone on by date of birth those who were 25 when the previous extension was made now are 26 and still liable to call with their birth-year class.

Volunteer NOW and Avoid the Call-up!

EVERY red-blooded Canadian, not already enlisted, should realize now that he must do something for his country in her hour of peril. He must get overseas with his friends and townsmen and HELP WIN THIS WAR!

But don't wait for the Call-up. Be a proud Volunteer and give your services gladly to your country NOW so there'll be no stigma of compulsion afterwards.

If you are medically fit for active service, are not engaged in an essential war industry, and a woman or an older man can do your work, DROP EVERYTHING and join up . . . Now about it!

HOW TO ENLIST

Apply to any of these Recruiting Stations: Halifax (Cape Breton St. next Hospital), Yarmouth, Kentville, Truro, New Glasgow, Sydney, Charlottetown. Or mail this coupon to District Recruiting Officer, M.D.A., Halifax, N.S.

On Wednesday of this week the regular weekly Prayer Meeting was held in the United Church, this meeting having been discontinued for some weeks past owing to other activities.

Mrs. Addie Read suffered painful injuries on Friday when she fell downstairs in her home. Though no bones were broken, she received a severe shaking up, and will be confined to bed for some days at least.

Eleanor, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Chute, entered the Digby General Hospital on Sunday night for treatment for a severe bruise suffered while riding a bicycle, luckily escaping further injury.

Leslie Rice, who captured a young bear not so long ago, was able to take a very interesting picture of the young fellow before capture. The young bear had climbed far up the trunk of the dead tree, and thus showed up against the sky, as other trees nearby did not approach close enough to spoil the silhouette. "Les" had to climb the tree to make the capture.

In a letter received last week from James C. Brown, a former resident of Bear River, now at Goose Bay, Labrador, he speaks of the weather conditions during the past winter, and other interesting items, and sends best regards to his many friends. No doubt one would expect the temperature to be much colder there than in some parts of the Maritimes, but it was not so. Mr. Brown flew to Ottawa on business since going to Goose Bay, and later expects to spend his vacation in Fredericton.

Young Lloyd Paul was a patient at the Digby General Hospital for removal of tonsils one day last week.

An unusual accident occurred when William Dondale, while changing a tire on a truck, was struck in the face by the rim, which flew off, cutting his upper lip and smashing his teeth, so that two of them had to be removed, and several stitches taken to close the cut. This rim was very heavy, and if it had struck higher might have caused a very severe injury. As it is, Mr. Dondale considers himself lucky to escape with these injuries and a soreness through his jaws and head. The injury is healing nicely and he has been able to continue at work.

Sheridan - Rawle
St. John's Church at Bear River, N.S., was the scene of a pretty wedding on Sunday, September 19, at 1:30 p.m., when the Rural Dean, Rev. A. W. L. Smith, M.A., united in marriage Wren Joan Agnes Rawle, eldest daughter of Petty Officer and Mrs. Walter Rawle, Bear River, and Pte. Gordon Lester Sheridan, R.C.E., son of Mrs. Lloyd Dixon, of West Paradise. The church was decorated with greenery and white hydrangea, the altar vases contained beautiful gladioli, and white satin ribbon bows and sprays of white roses marked the pews reserved for the invited guests. Mrs. O. Jarvis, of Paradise, played appropriate nuptial music, softly, throughout the ceremony. "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" and "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" were sung by the choir. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slipper-length gown of white brocade satin, and her veil of bridal illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms to the hem of the full skirt, her slippers were silver and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Olive Rawle, wearing a floor length gown of delphinium blue sheer with matching flower halo and the groom was supported by his twin brother, Pte. Borden Sheridan. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a buffet luncheon was served to about thirty-five guests, including a number from out of town and among those who assisted in serving were the bride's aunt, Miss Frances Rogers, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bernard Rawle, and Mrs. Wilfred Miller. For travelling the bride donned her service uniform and after a short honeymoon at Sandy Cove they will resume their duties. Wren Sheridan at H.M.C.S. "Kings," Halifax, and Pte. Sheridan, R.C.E., at Camp Sussex, New Brunswick.

When it comes to saving coal - Patriotism and common sense go hand in hand

HEATING SYSTEMS MUST BE EFFICIENT: HOMES SHOULD BE ADEQUATELY INSULATED.

Here are some jobs you should be doing NOW!

- 1 Have your entire heating system inspected. Order necessary repairs.
- 2 Have your furnace thoroughly cleaned by a competent man. Insulate furnace and pipes where necessary.
- 3 Be sure that you have sufficient storm windows and that all windows and doors fit tightly. Have cracks in walls repaired. Weatherstrip wherever it is necessary. Consider seriously the insulation of ceiling and walls.

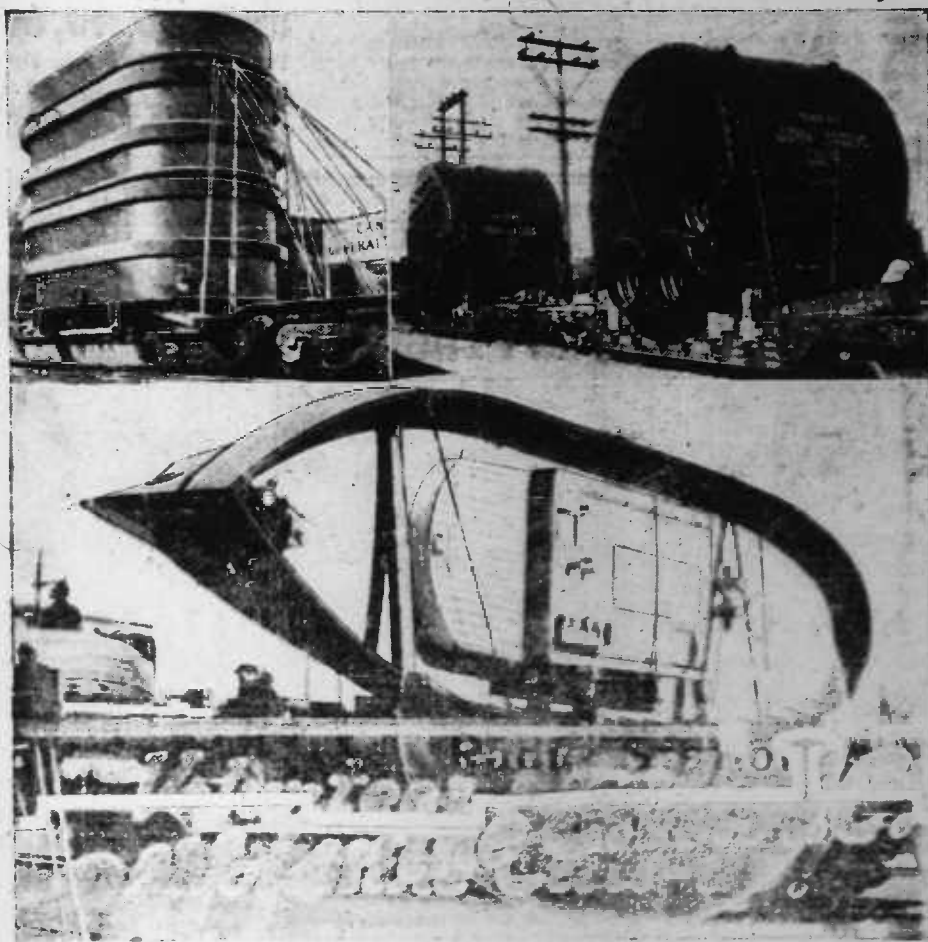

Many homes waste as much as 60% of their fuel through inefficient heating equipment, inadequate insulation and other heat losses. Winter is just around the corner. Prepare NOW!

Do's and Don'ts For Letter Writing

By A. D. McCrindle, Senior Overseas Supervisor, Canadian Legion War Services. (Reprinted from the Legionary.)

During my leave home this spring I had several opportunities of stressing in my speeches the great importance of the right kind of letters being written to our boys over here by their relatives and friends in Canada. My humble efforts of course, could only be effective so far as my immediate audience was concerned, and as the matter is one which seriously affects the morale of our men overseas, I have drawn up ten rules for the guidance of relatives at home. If these could be published in The Legionary they would no doubt be reprinted by a good many daily and weekly newspapers and in this way would be read by a very large number of families of our troops in all parts of the Dominion. Here are my suggestions:

Keep Letters Bright

- 1.—At all times keep your letters bright and new.
- 2.—DON'T tell them about all your aches and pains.
- 3.—DO tell them about the interesting happenings at home. For example:—
The dog had pups, the cat has had kittens, the cows are giving more milk, the hens are laying more eggs, the old mare is back on the job again, you've had the old buggy painted up, etc.

The boys (those who are left) at the lodge are always asking about you. The minister often comes in and talks about the time when you were in Sunday School, etc.

Little Jimmie is now using your wheel to go to school on but takes good care of it. You wouldn't know your room now as we have bought you a new bureau with lots of big drawers in it to hold your civies when you come home.

The boys down at the factory, warehouse, roundhouse, office, gasworks, tennis club, golf club, Legion branch, store, depot, poolroom, fire station, etc., are looking forward to the time when you will be back among them.

Avoid Gossip

- 4.—DON'T write idle gossip that you overheard about so-and-so's wife, relations or girl friend. It may cause many a heartache to those overseas and may be absolutely false.
- 5.—DON'T write nagging them about their behaviour. Remember they are your husbands, sons and brothers and were brought up in your own family.
- 6.—Be sure to write and congratulate them on any promotion they may get. Encouragement is the best spur for success.
- 7.—Never complain about the weather, food conditions, or anything not important. Remember they have a darn sight more to contend with than you.
- 8.—Remember birthdays, anniversaries, coming of age, etc.
- 9.—Never forget to acknowledge letters, parcels and cables you receive from them. Do it right away as sometimes mail takes a long time.
- 10.—Last, but not least, write often, as there's nothing worse than to be in a gang when the mail arrives and there's nothing for you. Never let your boy feel that he is the forgotten man.

N.B.—The same applies to any of you who have daughters in the forces overseas only more so.

Blackberries Plentiful

Home canners felt they were up against a real problem this season when they found the strawberry crop was practically a failure; then came cherry season and cherries were none too plentiful. The blueberry crop was just fair, and raspberries, well—except for the wild varieties, they are not plentiful in this area.

By this time Mrs. Housewife was beginning to feel the government had foreseen these conditions when she was only allowed 10 pounds of sugar for each member of her household. Before she knew there would be a scarcity of small fruits she was wondering how she would get along with this limited amount of sugar, especially as she knew canned fruits had been virtually off the market for months. She had made up her mind the family would have to get along with almost no homemade jams and preserves.

Rich, Refreshing "SALADA" TEA & COFFEE

The blackberry crop has now come to her aid. Wild blackberries were never known to be more plentiful than they are this season. . . it is not even necessary to travel miles in the woods "for a good picking" . . . they seem to be growing everywhere . . . the like of which in size, quality and profusion have never been known.

There is going to be lots of blackberry jams and jellies, preserves and conserves this winter.

Gunner on Fortress Killed in Action

Sergeant Paul Prescott Had Flown Over Twenty Bombing Raids

The Union, Manchester, New Hampshire, September 7.—Sgt. Paul H. Prescott, of Antrim, Flying Fortress gunner, has been killed in action, according to an International Red Cross message to the boy's father.

Prescott, previously reported as missing in action after the plane in which he was turret gunner was seen to crash, was later reported to be in a German prison camp, having apparently bailed out of the plane with most of the other occupants.

Prescott was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross with Oak Leaf clusters, and other decorations for "heroism and extraordinary achievement while participating in an aerial flight." He took part in many bombing raids on Germany, including a major raid on Emden.

On one raid, the Flying Fortress in which he was turret gunner, was attacked by 26 planes. The Fortress accounted for six of the foe's aircraft and returned to its base with no losses. He had participated in more than 20 bombing missions.

Born in Antrim, he was 25 years of age at the time of his death. He attended Antrim High School and Mt. Herman school in Northfield, Mass. He enlisted for a three-year stretch in the Army Air Corps before war was declared and was discharged at the termination of this enlistment. When the war broke out, he re-enlisted.

Survivors are his father, William E. Prescott, who is a shipping clerk at the Goodell Cutlery Company; his stepmother, and a brother, Arthur Prescott, of Bradford.

(Paul was a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Harris, of Morganville, and spent several summers with them when a small boy. A number of relatives and friends reside in the vicinity of Bear River.)

A navy patrol boat launched on the west coast was built entirely by inmates of the federal penitentiary at McNeil Island, Wash.

Many Fish Products Unusable as Fertilizer

Nearly a score of animal, fish and other organic products may no longer be used as fertilizer or in the production of fertilizers.

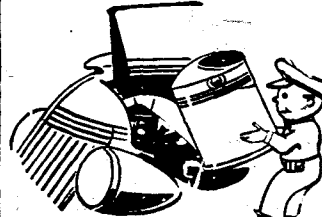

The order is issued by G. S. Peart, administrator of fertilizers and pesticides for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Certain exceptions are granted under permit.

Officials point out that in the nation's great need to economize to get the most from the least, these products are more valuable as protein feed for livestock and poultry.

Applications for permission to use the products, among which are bone char, bone meal, bone phosphate, dried blood, fish, scrap, and others, for fertilizers must be made to the Feeds Administrator of the Board, Confederation Building, Ottawa.

Parachutists Help

The Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten reported that twenty parachutes had been found in Denmark along the Aarhus trunk railway which was blasted in five places a few days ago. This and other reports from Denmark suggested that air borne saboteur Commandos were being flown from Britain to help the Danes in their revolt against German occupation forces.

Any person who failed to secure a new ration book during the recent distribution campaign can still obtain one by applying at any of the 16 local ration board offices in the province. The old books should be retained as they contain meat coupons valid until November 25.

Canning sugar coupons may be used after September 30, until declared invalid, according to a recent announcement of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. When these coupons were distributed it was intended that they would expire on September 30. The extension of the date will enable housewives to do late fall preserving.

Positive action by the Provincial government in carrying out its originally suggested plan to organize 1,000 Boy Scouts, ranging in age from 14 to 18 years, to assist in harvesting the potato and apple crops of the Annapolis Valley is declared by executive officers of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers, to be of immediate and vital necessity.

In Eastern Canada are between 12,000 and 13,000 abandoned farms, covering about one and one-half million acres, which have been abandoned and have been idle for some time. This condition exists despite the fact that many thousands of acres of new wooded land have been cleared and settled in some parts of Eastern Canada during the last ten years, says P. C. Stobbe, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

American postal authorities, at the request of Canada, have agreed to a reciprocal arrangement by which letters, properly censored, from members of the Canadian armed forces, mailed from Canadian warships at sea or field post offices abroad will be delivered in the United States without collecting of postal charges. The privilege does not apply to mail from Canadian forces stationed from within the Dominion.

More than six times as much rain fell in August, 1943, as fell in August, 1942, according to reports issued from the Meteorological Station at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, Truro. The precipitation for this August was 4.24 inches, compared with .68 inches last August, and Truro was not the wet spot of the Province. Reports from the Government Station at Kentville show a rainfall of 6.60 inches. To be sure, the northern part of the province had sufficient moisture, but it was considerably less than in the central and western parts.

The marriage took place in Bedford last week of Miss Maxine Corinne Giles, daughter of Mrs. Giles and the late A. N. Giles of that place, and Petty Officer Howie Watkins, R.C.N., youngest son of Mrs. Watkins and the late Augustus Watkins, Digby, formerly of Brazil Lake.

Rev. Raoul Deveau, curate of St. Thomas R. C. Church, Annapolis Royal, enjoyed a visit last week from his mother, Mrs. A. J. Deveau, Meteghan, and his sister, Rachael, whose husband, Sub-Lieutenant Adelard Comeau, is at present stationed at the naval base, Deep Brook.

Miss Harriet Green, of Bear River, and Miss Esther Robichaud, of Meteghan, were members of a group of six young women who were photographed in Halifax at the Air Force Recruiting Centre, just before boarding a train for a manning depot. The six, all from this province, took their seats in the train with a big smile of anticipation over the prospect of service in the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. The picture is a fine one, showing the girls to good advantage.

Beef Order 'Now' Covers all Parts Nova Scotia

Retail meat dealers in all sections of Nova Scotia have been sent the new beef price chart along with instructions for its use.

A copy of the new order on retail beef prices has also gone out from the Halifax offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to all dealers.

Standard cutting and pricing practices have been in successful operation in Halifax and Sydney for some months. Now the entire province of Nova Scotia is brought within the scope of the beef regulations.

The new chart must be displayed by the retailer at all times so that customers coming into his store can see at a glance what quantities of beef are up for sale and the price of each cut.

The dealer's price is based on the average carcass cost per pound of his previous week's purchases.

ACADEMY ACTIVITIES

The High School social activities got into full swing with a corn boil which was held on the Pines beach in spite of the damp weather Friday evening. A large number of students attended and everyone seemed to enjoy the evening's entertainment. Refreshments were provided by the girls while the boys bought the coffee drinks. After the lunch the students sang songs.

The Sea Cadets have been formed in the school. This will come as a change to the boys who belonged to the army cadets last year. There seems to be some misunderstanding in connection with the Sea Cadets. Some parents feel that there will be dangers. There are no more dangers in the Sea Cadets than in any other cadet organization. So far as possible all cadet instruction will be given during school hours. This will have to be done because of the school busses leaving after school for Acadville and Bay View. Should there be any instructional work on Saturdays it will apply only to the older boys. Those who have jobs will have a reasonable excuse for being absent. It is possible that the boys may be invited to attend parade on Sundays at "Cornwallis." Transportation will be provided for this. A Surgeon - Lieutenant will be present this week to examine the boys. There will also be a man from the stores department to measure them for their uniforms.

At Assembly of the High School last Friday, three captains were appointed for the War Savings Stamps teams. Robin Connell was appointed captain of the Navy team; Kitty Burnham, air Force, and Thelma Wood, Army. Miss Mills was put in charge of the competition. The Navy led the stamp sales on Friday by purchasing $57.00 worth of stamps. The Air Force was next with $35.75 and Army last with $23.75, making a total of $116.50 for the school.

"Mildred LaVaugh" Launched.

Last Tuesday, September 21, was an interesting day for old and young in Centreville, when Kenneth Gidney's newly built scallop boat was moved out of his yard and started on its way to the Bay of Fundy, where it arrived on Friday. Moving operations were directed by Fred Dakin. This boat was built in the owner's yard, about a half mile from the shore by Kenneth Lewis, who has built several fishing boats the past few years, and is 60 feet long, 16 feet 8 inches wide. Work on it began May 31, and has been carried on all summer when material was available. The engines are now installed and in the course of a few days will go to Digby to be registered, from which port it will operate during the winter.

Oddfellows Observe Memorial Day

The annual memorial service of St. George Lodge, Independent Order of Oddfellows, was held in the lodge room on Sunday afternoon. Considering the bad weather there was a good attendance. Rev. Dr. Hemmon, of Annapolis Royal, who has been serving Grace United Church during Dr. Hodgson's vacation, was the guest speaker. His subject was "Paying Our Debts to the Dead" and his address was very interesting, pointing out that we can pay our debts to the dead by emulating their good points. As the names of the dead were read by the secretary a flower was placed on a stand in front of the presiding officer. After the service these flowers were carried to the various cemeteries and deposited on the graves.

Celebrated 92nd Birthday

Invites Editor to Open "Town Planning" Column

To the Editor, Courier: Sir—To begin, I have been associated with the business of Digby for a number of years; I have known Digby during prosperous times and during depressions: I have known the town's ups and downs, and in fact, my own ups and downs have generally coincided with those of the town.

Personally, I had intended making some comment on Mr. Warne's prophecy of a Digby of 10,000 people by 1950, but didn't get around to it. Now I find that in a large measure, "Digbyite" expressed many of my views in his letter published last week. I quote his closing sentences: "The pattern of Digby's future will be shaped now in these years of war. What will it be—a population of 10,000 by 1950, or a return to the sleepy, slow progress of pre-war days? Where are we heading?"

Perhaps he is right when he refers to the "sleepy slow progress of pre-war years," but to my mind Digby's progress, especially during the past quarter of a century has been steady and is certainly nothing to be ashamed of. In my own opinion, Digby's post-war prospects are far from dark, although I cannot visualize a 10,000 population by 1950.

Regardless of what the future population of the town may or may not be, plans for the post-war Digby should not only be in the making, but all of us should be doing everything in our power to have them put in operation, and to see that they are carried out. One of Digby's great faults in the past is that it has been a "town of planners"—great and promising plans for the future have been made, then dropped and practically forgotten just as they reach the blue print stage.

If our planning is to materialize our plans must be carried out. The practise of quitting when hurdles are encountered will never get us anywhere. I have said that during the past quarter of a century Digby has seen a steady progress. I mean it, and those who think back to the Digby of 1918 will agree.

with me, but, most of that progress has not been due to the collective efforts of the citizens of the town, but due to those who have had gumption enough to go ahead with their own ideas when others have said "it can't be done," and to the efforts of "outsiders" who have had a stake of their own in the town of Digby. With more collective planning and less of the "can't be done" spirit, Digby's progress since 1918 might have been greater.

I suggest, Mr. Editor, that you open a "Town Planning column" in your paper for the purpose of inviting your readers to state some of their plans for the post war Digby, and that at least a synopsis of all these ideas be published. Due to the fact there are a great many bashful souls in the community, I further suggest you do not insist on contributors signing their names to such contributions, but that you use your own discretion as to what should or should not be printed. These ideas might later be considered at a Board of Trade meeting, a meeting of the Town Council, or a meeting called especially for their consideration.

You know as well as I do that many ideas that might concern Digby's future are discussed on the street, and while we admit these may be good, bad, or indifferent, many of them deserve consideration, and although their authors may not relish bringing them forward at a public meeting, they might welcome an opportunity of expressing them through the press.

PLANNER

(Editor's Note—O. K. Mr. "Planner," we accept your suggestion. We will open a "TOWN PLANNING" column with our next issue, and invite anyone who has any contributions to send them along. No signatures necessary, although items printed in this column must be subject to our approval and editing. Please be brief as possible—both "Digbyite" and "Planner" have been a trifle long-winded.)

Pasadena Flyer Dies in Action

Announcement by the Navy of the death of Lt. Robert Dakin Menning, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Menning, Pasadena, Calif., came on the heels of a telegram received by the parents earlier in the week from Rear Admiral Jacobs, in charge of Navy personnel.

The telegram stated that the young naval flyer was killed August 31 in the performance of duty in the service of his country and that his body had not been recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Menning knew that their son's squadron was carrier based but never knew the name of the carrier. A member of the squadron, home on leave, told them the last time he saw Bob the squadron was headed for Guadalcanal the latter part of July.

Reading between the lines in recent letters from their son, the Mennings had come to the conclusion that he was somewhere in the South Pacific.

Lieutenant Menning's 22nd birthday was August 27, four days before he died. He was born in Visalia and had resided in Pasadena since 1924, attending Longfellow Elementary High and P. J. C. from which he was graduated in 1941.

Receiving his wings at Corpus Christi, Lieutenant Menning took further instruction at Miami, Fla., and was stationed in San Diego before being assigned to overseas duty last May. He was a member of St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church and served as president of the Newman Club at P. J. C.

Besides his parents Lieutenant Menning is survived by two brothers, Charles E. ("Tuck") Menning, 18, who is in training with the Naval Air Corps in Pasco, Wash., and Tom, 16, and a sister, Mrs. Marjorie Whisenand, of Pasadena.

(He is a nephew of Ted Dakin, of Digby. His mother was formerly Miss Mildred Dakin, Digby.)

Rebekahs Hold Annual Roll Call

Zelma Rebekah Lodge, Independent Order of Oddfellows, held its annual roll call on Monday evening. Supper was served at 7:00 o'clock. There was a large number present. A charge of 25 cents was made the money so received to go towards paying for the materials for the ten Digby Bags the lodge has undertaken to fill. Besides this there was quite a number of donations in cash and goods for the same purpose.

After three layers of paint were removed, a "worthless" painting at Moscow was identified as one by the famous master, Rembrandt.

MARRIAGES

Potter - Milner
Potter - Zwicker

A quiet double wedding took place at the Deep Brook parsonage Monday evening when Rev. T. F. McWilliam united in marriage Trueman Oscar Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Potter, Clementsvale, Annapolis County, and Isabelle Rose Milner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Milner, Princedale, Annapolis County; also Murray Eldon Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Potter, and Carrie Anna Zwicker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Zwicker, of Wilmot, Annapolis County. The happy couples left by auto and will reside in Clementsvale.

Anderson - Mattland

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. Matthew's Church Friday evening, when Rev. A. W. L. Smith united in marriage Bertha Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mattland, of London, Ont., to Leading Seaman Samuel Anderson, R.C.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, Port Glasgow, Scotland. The bride was attired in a wine ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. Their attendants were Wren Lillian Peterson, Kelbington, Sask., and Wm. James Hartwell, R.C.N., Verdun, Quebec. Mrs. Eric Adams rendered the wedding music. Mrs. Anderson, before coming to Deep Brook, was an aircraft mechanic, while the groom and attendants are stationed at H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis." The happy couple will reside in Deep Brook.

Digby County's Quota Set at $550,000

It was announced on Tuesday that the Minimum Objective for the Province of Nova Scotia in the Fifth Victory Loan as set by Ottawa is $36,500,000. The announcement continues, "the Objective for the new Loan which opens on October 18th is substantially larger than that set in any previous campaign. At that, it is pointed out that $36,500,000 is Nova Scotia's Minimum Objective only, and it is confidentially expected that the people of this Province will exceed the amount raised in the Fourth Victory Loan."

The Nova Scotia Division of the National War Finance Committee is prepared to undertake the greatest task it has ever had to face. A largely attended meeting of the Provincial Executive Committee, that is, all the Unit Chairmen and the members of the Management Committee, was held at Halifax on the 13th September. At that meeting the Provincial Objective was discussed and it was then disclosed that Victory Loan Workers in all parts of Nova Scotia were ready, with determination and confidence, to face the challenge to obtain and exceed this Objective. Nova Scotians have never failed in the public duties in the past and, with so many of her sons on Active Service, Nova Scotians have a special reason to rally to the support of the coming Victory Loan. The quota for Digby has been fixed at $550,000.

Sea Cadets Latest Digby Organization

The Navy League Committee and the School Board met in joint session last Thursday evening to hear Lieutenant Commander Brett give a talk on Sea Cadets. Mr. Brett spoke of the growth of the Sea Cadet work in Canada and of its value as a youth movement, as a builder of character, and as a builder of citizenship.

He also spoke about the joint service commission which had recently met in Halifax. Army, Air and Navy were represented on the commission. Certain schools were granted to one service while other schools might be taken from that service as far as cadet work is concerned. The main purpose was to see that cadet work should be more or less balanced in the province and to see that there would be no further overlapping.

Uniforms for the Sea Cadets are provided by the Navy and financed by the Navy League. Mr. Brett suggested that a Sea Cadet Committee be set up. This committee should consist of a chairman and several members. The purpose of the committee is to keep a check on the training and instruction of the boys and to work along with the commanding officer.

The committee has to sign a Bond for $500 to cover any liabilities of the corps. The corps is supplied with rifles, compass cards, boats, flags, bandages, etc. Should any loss of this material occur the bond covers the loss.

Mr. Brett announced that the Army Cadets for Digby had been officially cancelled, and on the strength of that statement it was moved by J. J. Wallis, seconded by Mr. Shatford that the Navy League sponsor the Sea Cadet Corps in Digby to be known as Digby Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Cornwallis."

Moved by Mr. Shatford, seconded by E. S. Eaton that H. M. Warne be chairman of the Sea Cadet Committee. It was left for Mr. Warne to appoint his own committee.

C.P.R. Diesel-Electrics Speed Up War Freight

The sleek new diesel-electric locomotive pictured here is one of two which the Canadian Pacific Railway has added to the rolling stock in its Outremont, Que., yards to speed up the heavy flow of wartime freight passing through Montreal terminals. Within the next few months three more of the same type will be in service, capable of doing highly efficient work on a 24-hour basis in contrast to steam-powered locomotives which require servicing at 16-hour intervals.

With the new diesel-electrics on the job steam locomotives can be released from yard service for longer haul runs where they are urgently needed to move war freight. Needing to be refuelled only once every three days and inspected once a month as compared to the daily refuelling and inspection necessary with steam locomotives the diesel-electric units can haul a 5,000-ton load on level track at slow speed and have a starting tractive effort of 69,000 pounds. Their loaded weight is only 115 tons and they are powered with one six-cylinder 1,000-horsepower supercharged diesel engine which runs at 740 revolutions per minute. Their short length of 45 feet, 6 inches and four-wheeled driving trucks allow them to operate anywhere a box car can go—a decided advantage on private sidings where track curvature is sometimes severe. In preliminary tests the locomotives have been easy on fuel, doing a strenuous eight hours of work on only 30 gallons of fuel oil. Objectionable features found in the early designs of this type of power of some 20 years ago have been eliminated, according to H. B. Bowen, chief of motive power and rolling stock. The new engines were built by the American Locomotive Company, of Schenectady, N. Y., with the electrical equipment supplied by General Electric. The controls are so simple that little instruction was necessary to familiarize the driver, shown in the lower picture, with the operation.

About This and That

There still appears to be no change for the better in the supply situation for Digby and vicinity in spite of all the protests that have been made by citizens, merchants and organizations of the town, and in spite of the "partial promises" made by representatives of the War Time Prices and Trade Board.

It almost appears the board has made itself blind to the fact there has been a tremendous increase in population in the area extending from Annapolis Royal to Digby; and that it is impossible for those living in that section to get along on the allotment set for the 1941 period, and unless some provisions are made, we can foresee real hardships during the coming months.

Not only are sufficient quantities of food and clothing almost impossible to obtain in local stores, but the housing situation is more than desperate, and produce from nearby farms is virtually off the market. The reason for the latter shortage, we understand, is due to shortage of crops, and to the fact that the bulk of these products are finding their way to Deep Brook.

Action, we believe, has been taken in other areas that have experienced rapid growth because of the establishment of military camps and war industries. The need for prompt action in this particular section is urgent. Action, not buck passing, is what we want.

As soon as the self-made man gets married his wife begins making alterations.

No army in the world has served humanity better than the Salvation Army—that magnificent organization born during the latter half of the 19th century to meet a human emergency in the slums of East London, and to which has now spread to ninety-seven countries to win the respect and love of all races and creeds.

There are countless thousands who, today are able to thank God for the Salvation Army.

And now all of us have the opportunity of showing the Salvation Army something of our respect and appreciation by generously supporting their Red Shield Home Front Appeal. The campaign is now under way. We urge that when a canvasser calls on you that you make your contribution a generous one, for that contribution will be your gift to one of the finest of all Christian organizations.

Through its great work among the poor, the despondent and the distressed, among the sick and the sad, among the orphans, the widows and the unmarried mothers, among the aged, the friendless and the helpless, and with those behind prison bars, the Salvation Army has brought new hope and courage who now believe in all sincerity "He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

Surely, the words of our Lord: "For I was hungry and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in: Naked was I and ye clothed me: I was sick and ye visited me: I was in prison and ye came unto me," apply to the Salvation Army. Help them to carry on their great work by your contribution to the Red Shield Home Front Appeal.

Better spend plenty of time on that woodpile the next couple months. Advance showing of Christmas cards reveals unusually thick icicles.

We all know goods are hard to get and salespeople are overworked. The working world is hurried and harassed, but that is no reason for people to be rude. One would think kindness and smiles, and even politeness, were rationed too. So many salesmen and waiters are grumpy these days that a jovial one is a treasure, and you'll find yourself going back again and again to be served. Where are all the "service with a smile" attitudes we had a few years back? Gone with the depression? Do jobs for all and money in the purse give license for rudeness? We think not.

Reform makes more fuss and does less good than anything else in the world.

A boy just enlisted was stepping in a bus—not so far away—to go for his "medical." A second before the bus pulled out the father of the young man stepped in and grasped his hand. In a voice that was firm and steady he said simply, "Son, be a man!" That was all. He might have preached the boy a sermon of great length, but he must have realized that nothing he could say would carry such weight as those four short words. We should like to imagine that when that boy faces a changing world in camp, when he fights amid temptations that camp life always brings, when he listens to the roaring guns in battle that those words with so much meaning will hold and steady him in his decisions and actions. They are words which might be a guide to any individual during our times of stress.

LET'S BE DOING

... while we're planning

Everybody is thinking a great deal about the future these days... planning... getting ready for the period to follow the war. All realize that the war may bring surprises—but the tide is turning in our favour.

Chemists and engineers, producing things needed for war, are making discoveries which will mean comforts and conveniences for all of us when peace comes. New methods of making things, new processes, new materials, now being filed away in blue prints and formulae, will bring us many new and useful articles. Many things not available now will be replaced by better models and designs.

You may have plans for a new home, remodelling your present home, new home furnishings. If you are a farmer you will need new and improved equipment and machinery.

Now, while you are thinking and planning, you can do something to insure that your plans can be carried out. Victory Bonds—which can be bought on convenient instalments, with money as you get it—provide a means of keeping your savings intact, earmarked for things you want.

Most Canadians are saving money. Most of us are buying Victory Bonds and when we buy Victory Bonds we are helping to win the war. We are helping to speed the day of victory and we are doing something that will benefit ourselves.

WHAT IS A VICTORY BOND?

A VICTORY BOND is the promise of the Dominion of Canada to repay in cash the face value of the Bond on the date of maturity with half-yearly interest until that time. A Victory Bond is the safest investment in Canada backed by the entire resources of the Dominion. Canada has been issuing bonds for 75 years, and has never failed to pay every dollar of principal and interest when due. A Victory Bond is an asset readily marketable at any time.

Admiral Nelles At Deep Brook

Vice-Admiral P. W. Nelles, Canadian Chief of Naval Staff, left Wednesday of last week for Saint John, after completing his first inspection of H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" since the base went into operation early this year. He proceeded to Ottawa after a day or two in the New Brunswick port.

Admiral Nelles followed Navy Minister Angus L. Macdonald, who with Mrs. Macdonald visited Cornwallis the day before, later leaving for Saint John. It was also the Minister's first visit to the newly-built base, and he expressed himself as well satisfied with progress made. He was keenly interested in recreational facilities provided for the men.

After taking the salute from ranks of sailors and Wrens that took 20 minutes passing the salute base, Admiral Nelles watched a demonstration of physical drill and later addressed the officers in the wardroom.

He said he was "thrilled" at the sight of the huge base which now occupies over more than 800 acres. The last time he saw it, he added, there was exactly one building here. That was just a year ago.

National Parks In Wartime and After

Despite increasing travel difficulties, attendance at the national parks is still running to substantial figures. In 1942-43 more than 126,500 persons visited Banff National Park alone, and the figures for this year are holding up surprisingly well. About 25 or 30 per cent are men and women from the Armed Forces, including many airmen from Great Britain and the other Dominions. Such visits should have an important effect in promoting interest in the national parks in other countries within the British Commonwealth, and also in the United States.

It is apparent that due to war-time conditions a great desire for travel and change is being dammed up which will express itself with the return of peace. Before the present restrictions came into effect the national parks were receiving more than a million visitors each year. It may be expected that the demand for recreation and travel after the war will be greater than ever before, and as the national parks rank among the greatest of Canada's playgrounds, they will be called upon to play a leading role in post-war recreation.

Apart from promoting understanding and good-will between neighbors, an annual influx of visitors from other countries brings a market for Canadian agricultural products, handicrafts and manufactured goods right to the door of the producer. It also furnishes increased revenues to transportation companies, hotels, and all the other enterprises catering to the travelling public.

The preservation and promotion of good health among Canadians is likely to occupy a place of prominence in post-war planning. An annual vacation with pay is being advocated in many quarters for people of all income brackets. Travel education is becoming part of our curriculum.

Many of the young men from the Armed Forces of the United Nations who visit the national parks express a determination to come back after the war, and are forwarding literature to their friends and relatives abroad in the hope of inducing them to visit Canada when final victory has been achieved. Canada may, therefore, during the early post-war years, be called upon to cope with an influx of visitors from other lands such as this country has never experienced in the past.

There have been no changes in football rules since 1942.

FAST ACTION HELPS PREVENT MANY COLDS

May Become Business

Raising Ships Likely to Become Larger Post-War Activity

The Normandie has been righted after more than a year on its side in New York's North River. In the Fifth of North, the British have lately completed a job of salvage on another ship which in its day was the largest afloat—the naval training ship, Caladonia, formerly the Majestic, of the Cunard-White Star fleet.

The account of its salvage is typical of stories, now not used or relegated to back pages to make room for tidings from the battle front, which in better times would command the fascinated attention of the world. The Majestic, a 56,600-ton ship went down several years ago in deep water after an outbreak of fire.

Ordinarily it is a cargo which attracts the salvagers, but in this case it was 40,000 tons of precious steel needed for the war. The work was put in charge of Captain C. G. Bonner, holder of the Victoria Cross for heroism in the Q-boat war on submarines in '17. Eighteen hundred ports, as well as hull openings, had to be sealed by divers before the great ship was pumped dry. This done, she was raised at the first attempt.

In the past, jewels and bullion and even ivory have been the lure. It may be that mining the sea and river bottoms for metal in the shape of sunken hulls will become a larger post-war activity.

The Russians in the one year of 1936 raised 53 vessels among them a British sub-sunk off Kronstadt in 1919. With improved salvage methods and an abundance of victims of the present war to be worked on, an enterprise essentially romantic even in its quest for prosaic steel may become a business.

She was charmingly gowned in light blue crepe with navy accessories and wore a shoulder bouquet. Miss Marion Thibodeau (daughter of the bride) was bridesmaid. She was also dressed in light blue and wore a shoulder bouquet. Loran Wagner, of Plympton Station, was best man. NEW SCHEDULE PRESERVES RATIONING

EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 30, 1943

Preserves rationing gives the consumer a number of choices both of products and sizes of containers. Because of the wide range of container sizes and the variation in buying habits across the country it was necessary to put the system into operation and then make adjustments on the basis of experience.

Now that preserves rationing has been in effect for several weeks, it is possible to make some increases in coupon values. The new schedule is announced below and is effective September 30th.

The new doubled ration allowances for molasses, extracted and comb honey will enable consumers in areas where consumption of these products is heavy, to buy more and still leave enough for districts where the total demand is light.

The increased ration allowances for corn, cane and blended table syrups and maple syrup are adjusted to bring coupon values more closely into line with the great variety of container sizes now in use.

 Pte. GLENDON ALCORN

On Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, a Memorial Service for Lance Corporal Richard Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ellis, and Pte. Glendon Alcorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Alcorn, who gave their lives in the service of their country, was held in the United Church of Canada, to which both families belong. The large attendance of friends from not only the village but the surrounding countryside, testified to the sympathy felt for them, in the loss of two fine young men.

The service was attended by members of the Bear River Legion and the members of the Reserve Army, under the command of Colonel A. V. Banks who marched to the church carrying their Standards, these being placed before the pulpit, which was draped with a large Union Jack, and banked with beautiful flowers, sent by relatives and many friends.

Rev. James Brooks, the pastor of the United Church, conducted the service, which was most inspiring in feeling, and comforting to all present. The service opened with prayer and The Lord's Prayer in unison, followed by "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and responsive reading "The Souls of the Righteous." During a period of silence, standing, the Legion Standard-bearers, Max Isles and Harry Benson, lowered the flags in honor of those departed. This was followed by prayer, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" was sung feelingly and with faith by the congregation. Mr. Brooks chose as the text for the sermon "Except a grain of corn fall into the ground and die, it is lost—but if it falleth into the ground and die, it bringeth forth much fruit." The choir then sang "Does Jesus Care." The service closed with the singing of "The Lord is My Shepherd," and benediction by Mr. Brooks.

Among the many lovely floral tributes were those from the parents of the two boys; a large pillow from the West Nova Scotia Regiment; from the Bear River Legion; The Ladies' Aid of the United Church; the Community of the Bear River Road, from Mrs. William Morine and Sunday School Class, and from many friends of these families. These flowers were placed at the War Memorial, Mount Hope Cemetery, and sent to those ill at home in the village, spreading their message of God's love wherever their beauty may be seen and their perfume fill the air. No one attending the service could leave feeling that these young men gave their lives in vain—but that they, like the grain of corn which fell into the ground, will bring forth much fruit, making the world a better place in which to live.

Digby Co. Exhibition Big Success

The annual Digby County Exhibition, a two-day fair, opened at Bear River last Wednesday and despite handicap of somewhat unfavorable weather, gate receipts were reported about usual. There was a good showing of horses and oxen, although dairy cattle entries were slightly down. Naturally, after an unfavorable growing season, the vegetable display was smaller. The swine entries were considered fair.

In the evening, a tug-o-war, a team of Stokers winning from a team of Seamen, from the H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" base. Another feature was the ox-pull, with winners being William Dondale, Genos Sanford and Bernard Alcorn, respectively.

Official opening took place with Dr. Saxby Blair officiating, and A. S. Banks also being a speaker.

Second day of the exhibition, while encountering not entirely favorable weather, still drew an exceptional attendance, and gate receipts were considered more than gratifying.

Judging finished earlier in the day, and while the women's department always attains a high standard, the showing this year is considered exceptional.

The afternoon saw the horse-pulling contests, with winners being: 1. Genos Sanford; 2. Allan Taylor; 3. Glendon Robbins.

A silver cup for the four best ewes went to Fred Pulley, who now retains it permanently, having won in four successive years, and Bruce Reid, having been victor three years, also retains a silver cup for the best herd of dairy cows.

In the tug-o-war the winners of the opening night, the H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" stokers, met a Bear River team, the contest being declared a tie. "Cornwallis" Band was present afternoon and evening, adding much to the enjoyment of the throng. The members of Bear River Exhibition Society are being generally congratulated upon the worthy success of the two-day fair.

(From Another Correspondent)

The Digby County Exhibition opened in Bear River on Wednesday morning, September 22, with a good showing of livestock in excellent condition. The exhibition of farm produce, fruits and flowers, were of a limited quantity owing to the adverse climatic conditions during the growing season.

The fancy work and household arts were splendid in class and workmanship but fewer in numbers than in former years.

Oakdene School exhibits including handicraft, drawings, and needlework needs special mention showing the adeptness and talent displayed by the pupils.

Two very attractive booths sponsored by the Women's Institute and Loyal Workers, were active centres both days: foods and miscellaneous articles were on sale at both with a Fish Pond in connection with the Institute which was an attraction for the children.

Two cakes sold by ticket at the Institute booth were won by J. H. Farwell, Smith's Cove, and Wren Audrey Porter, H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis," also a box of apples, sold by ticket, was won by E. J. Payson, Smith's Cove. The cakes sold by ticket by the Loyal Workers were won by Mrs. Charles Coombs and Fred C. Harris.

In spite of the inclemency of the weather Thursday, all preceeding records were exceeded with an estimated attendance of four thousand.

C.P.R. Saves Rubber With New Machine

SHOWN above, with the safety guard removed from the knife for this picture only, to illustrate the operation of the cutter, is a new machine developed at the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus Shops in Montreal as part of a programme for reclaiming rubber, latest phase of the company's Dominion-wide conservation campaign. The machine prepares worn and burst sections of rubber hose from air and signal connections to be put back into service. The good sections of the used hose are spliced with the aid of a small malleable iron adapter and the reclaimed product meets all safety requirements. In the short time the programme has been in effect five and one-half tons of rubber have been saved with 5,394 air hose and 1,058 signal hose reclaimed to make up that total, according to H. B. Bowen, chief of motive power and rolling stock, who is in charge of the rubber-saving plan. Over the year it is estimated there will be a saving of 30 per cent. in the rubber hose used on the 84,139 pieces of company rolling stock—with locomotives, passenger equipment, freight and work cars included in that total.

I wonder why I do it.
Tis not because I should.
But perhaps because a deed well done
Does everybody good.
It makes me feel some good inside.
So p'raps I show it out.

10 Wartime Rules

1. Thou shalt not pretend to know more than thy neighbor upon the coming or going of ships, munitions or men.
2. Thou shalt not use petrol to take thy family or thy wife's family to the movies on Wednesdays; or to the market on Saturdays; or to the bargain sales on Mondays.
3. Thou shalt not bring thy family for shopping trips on to the trams at hours when the workers returneth from their labours, for lo, thy family cluttereth up the works and taketh all the seats.
4. Thou shalt not harass thy son because he hath not a commission; neither shalt thou make him to feel that to enlist as a private is to lower the good name of the family.
5. Thou shalt not hoard as the squirrels hoard, for the life of a squirrel is but short and thou wouldst desire to live long.
6. Thou shalt not get ants in thy pants to put on a uniform only because thou art vain and hast no courage to work hard in the place where thou art most needed.
7. Thou shalt not strike; neither shalt thou walk out; neither shalt thou lock out or sit down on thy job; for thou desireth that thy days shall be long in the land that thy fathers have given thee.
8. Thou shalt not in thy confidence count the miles from Britannia, or Australia, or Russia, unto thy home town and rest contented, for lo, it might come about that thine enemy hath seven-league boots.
9. Thou shalt not criticize the other fellow for the things he hath not done or for the things he has done, for verily thou art not too hot thyself.
10. Thou shalt not lose faith, for thou hast lost nothing beyond recovery if thy faith be but sound.

"Victory Parade" With Mart Kenney Entertained H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis"

The "Victory Parade" Stage Show and Broadcast, featuring Mart Kenney and his Western Gentlemen, is back in the Maritimes on its second trip and on Monday evening, September 27, was at H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" entertaining the officers and ratings of the Navy. The show started at 8:15 p.m. and originated from the huge Drill Hall at the Naval Station. The broadcast portion went on the air at 9:00 p.m. over the basic CBC network.

The "Victory Parade" entertainment, which is sponsored by the Coca-Cola Company of Canada, continues to enjoy top popularity with service-men across the Dominion. The show has made one complete trip from coast-to-coast this year and now returns to the Maritimes for the second time. The stops are all at Armed Service Centres and occasional War Plants which were not reached on the previous Eastern trip. Since February 1st of this year the "Victory Parade" has entertained well over 150,000 sailors, soldiers, airmen and war-workers, and has rolled up 16,110 Spotlight miles on its march across the country.

This entertainment sent by the Coca-Cola Company direct to War Camps and War Plants has proven to be a real morale-builder. In many cases the show has played in out-of-the-way places where top-flight entertainment seldom reaches the men and women there. Many letters from members of "Victory Parade" audiences and their families have testified to the appreciation that is shown for the program, and the enjoyment with which it has been received.

Mart Kenney and his band is Canada's top contribution to the field of big-name bands. This, the country's "most-travelled" band have a host of fans in all parts of the country from East to West. They are popular with more people in more places because of the versatility of their style and the fine quality of their distinctive music. From a humble beginning in Vancouver, Mart Kenney has gained a national position in the dance-band field, and claims many admirers in the U.S. from his Blue Network broadcasts of the recent past.

One of the many highlights of the "Victory Parade" program is a "Salute" to the officers and men or war-workers at each point of origination, which pays tribute to the high calibre of their personnel, and the fine job their doing.

Art Hallman's romantic baritone and versatile instrumentalist, is the featured vocalist with the band. Art is one of the veterans with Mart Kenney whose singing has made him a great radio favorite. Jack McCabe, well-known director, travels with the show, and looks after the thousand and one details that make up a production of this kind. Den Sims is the new master of ceremonies for the program.

A. L. Gilliat, who is the Coca-Cola bottler at Granville Ferry, was on hand to take a bow as host of the evening, as the 69th stop on the "Victory Parade" got underway for the Navy, on Monday night.

The young have had no chance to learn and no experienced pilots to follow, yet they go south anyway.
