1877-1977

One of the jobs I had to do, being a junior and printer's devil on the staff, was to... I finished one and then... (the day not long after) I turned my job in to the printing plant. I decided to plant the flower that apparently hadn't been thrown in some one's... (obscure) time.

"J.J." came along and said, "how are you making out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor. "J.J." laughed very heartily. He thought the remark pretty good and said:

Sometimes the gasoline engine is a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and the "Man" for a man had patiently worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without results. Man would then stand back and cursing, quit strenuously then he would immediately start working. "See," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of coaxing."

On other occasions when some soldier refused duty for the and seemed to be "kicking the can" would say, "use a little oil" and note would often that is all it took. These often since have I thought of the value of that remark and the actual need of "oil" in many life situations, applied at the most basic right place and in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are, like the time I told "Mac" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1928 got together just before dark one evening and decided to utilize the newly built outdoor Penn Hotel swimming pool which had just been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just west of the pool; nobody else seemed to be around except the four boys, no thought or time for bathing suits, so in the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in. The rest quickly followed and across the pool the swim-

"Mac" listened to the story and hardly said anything, but the next "Dugby Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story went something like, "Four Boy Scouts Officially Ope O' Pines Hotel Swimming Pool." Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Earl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars, second world war; Kenneth, was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Smith, now prominent draghead, for many years in Dugby; Clayton D. Snow, Dugby wholesale importer; Clayton and myself.

As a young teenager I tried to be doing some writing about different events interesting to myself and mostly for myself. One day I was asked to contribute about writing your version of the story told about "The Marooning of Jerome". I did and read at least two somewhat different versions of the man who was found marooned on a beach at some point on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Dublin County. When I read this man's name and how cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

morning, all for some mysterious reason. Jerome appeared to have been a man of considerable social standing and, possibly, considerable wealth. However, the only thing I could remember was that after having heard of him by some family in the French colony something that sounded like Othello, before either could tell, or would tell, why he was there or why he was left there, it was, and to, one of Digby's Council, and, different ideas have been heard of yours concerning this man. However, "Mae" was, I felt no urge to say anything different about this man. The only thing I have been very well acquainted with was, and he was a sort of

The Treen Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles distant from the land of H. Mery's. This land and town, the water's edge, partly is level ground, and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and glebaunt, and having on an eastern aspect a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth at that name. free trade with the U.S.A., especially with the New England States. The question was then debated by some Digby High School students one of whom was J.J.'s daughter, Florence (now Mrs. Abbott of Tibet, Prescott, Digby Co.). Some days later the debate a man from some part of Nova Scotia came to the printing shop looking for Florence, one of the successful debaters. I had the impression that this man was interested politically but, maybe I was wrong.

Well, I felt that I had learned considerable from my short experience at "The Wallis Job Print." I was learning to do beginner jobs, receiving some knowledge about things like embossing, stamping, perforating, counting, cutting and stitching paper stock, mixing inks for certain desired colors, and so forth, but, the only experience I had at setting type was just enough to make a "go," the printers name for a confused mess.

There was a taste of trying to sell your wares outside the plant. Work was a little slack one early fall day and so "Mac" said to me, "how about trying your hand at taking orders for printed personalized Christmas cards?" I tried it, made several calls around town, spent most of the time at one particular street town, spent much time and got no order, but

FULL TIME FISHERIES MINISTER FAVOURED

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU

Influenced by Atlantic members of the Liberal Caucus, the Right Honorable Pierre Elliott Trudeau said in Digby on Wednesday evening that he now favors a full-time Minister of Fisheries. The Department of Fisheries had a short time ago been coupled with the Department of Environment much to the disappointment of fishermen in various areas. Mr. Trudeau said he now understands how important it is to the fishing industry to have a full-time minister and he promised to revert to that policy. Stabilization of the fishing program, he said, was a necessary step for stabilizing income and for producing the food so necessary to the nation and the world.

Coline Campbell, Liberal Candidate for South Western

Nova in the July 8 election was mistress of ceremonies when the Prime Minister and his wife, Margaret, were greeted by crowds outside the Evangeline Shoppers Mall on Warwick St. Others in the party were Premier Gerald Regan; Senator Ernest Cottreau, Yarmouth; Senator Al Graham, Cape Breton and Joseph Casey, M.L.A., Digby.

Premier Regan gave his whole hearted support and that of his government to the Trudeau administration and congratulated the Liberals of South West Nova in choosing Miss Campbell as their candidate. He felt there was a disadvantage in Nova Scotia to have one only representative in the government in Ottawa. He felt both the provincial and federal government could do much to work things out together.

Mrs. Trudeau, in her message, said she felt her husband's government had the answers to the problems of the Canadian people. She expressed pleasure in meeting Miss Campbell and wished her success.

A bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. Trudeau by Michele Margolian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Margolian, Digby. A mounted copy of "Desiderata" so much quoted by the Prime Minister was presented to him by Marcel Desmond. Both Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau expressed delight with the presentations and Mr. Trudeau quoted from the ancient writing before they mingled with the audience and departed for a private dinner at the Pines.

Other names submitted were those of Miss Majorie Tupper and former councillor, Mrs. Ina Dillon. Although the names had not been regularly submitted in response to the Town's advertisement, honorable mention was given to the services of V.G. Cardoza, William Hanson and Sidney Eisner.

Mr. Smith had been mayor of Digby for six years, having retired and succeeded by Mayor Willard Kinney in the Fall of 1973. His services during that time were considered outstanding and resulted in many benefits to Digby.

Miss Ann Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Powell, Weymouth was valedictorian at the Weymouth Consolidated High School graduation exercises.

Miss Powell was awarded a $400. entrance scholarship to Acadia University and Grade XII trophy awards in Physics, French and Math.

larger boats are capable of competing effectively with foreign operations.

"After all is said and done inflation is the basic issue," argued the candidate and added the P.C.'s are the only party determined to take steps and hopefully stop it. The dangers inherent in failure, or not trying are hard to over-emphasize. Last year the Consumer price index rose by 7 per cent. This year more than 11 per cent, and next year it will be 20 per cent unless action is taken. Remember the Diefen dollar 1962-well it now takes nearly two Trudeau bills to buy what one dollar bought in 1962."

Since 1968, when Mr. Trudeau took office, Mr. Haliburton said, Gov't spending has exactly doubled, so have taxes. "Gov't spending and taxing absolutely must be curbed, we are prepared to do it." "In 1970 Gov't spending in Canada equalled something less than 30 per cent of the gross national product. The figure in 1974 was over 40 per cent, and Mr. Trudeau is not satisfied with that, forecast is a 7 per cent growth in GNP for 25 per cent growth in Gov't spending. That is inflationary. It is time to stop it. "The time is now"

Haliburton Emphasizes Fishing By Fishing Boat Trip

Campaigning in a fishing boat is a new idea, Charles Haliburton, P.C. candidate in South Western Nova for the federal election, July 8, said in his news release on Monday, and it emphasized the importance of the industry and facilities which must be provided by the government for the people. His release recognized that the "Election for 1974 is just about over" and he was pleased that the campaign conducted by the P.C. party in the South Western Nova riding has drawn much attention by the media across Canada. He was pleased, he said, to be able to focus national attention on the riding.

Because of the campaign, Mr. Haliburton concluded, there has been actions taken by the Liberal government which have been gratifying. No less than five trips by senior ministers have been made. The premier and several provincial cabinet ministers, he said, have also been campaigning vigorously so that the riding has not received so much attention from either the Liberal federal or provincial governments in the entire history. He was pleased, he said, that because of actions the P.C.'s took during the campaign, they were able to get certain government regulations either changed or abandoned. They took the view, he said, that government control regulations should be kept to a bare minimum.

Mr. Haliburton commented "from a personal stand point one of the most rewarding aspects of the campaign has been the number of people who have told me how pleased they have been with the information I have been able to furnish from Ottawa. There have been many comments on both the weekly letter carried by this and other local papers, and the individual letters to all constituents which have gone out periodically. The hours spent in preparing and writing these things seem to be worthwhile."

The issues of concern to this riding Mr. Haliburton said, are much the same as across the country. Inflation and the spiralling cost of living must be stopped.

Regional disparity has grown over the past several years, partly because the government, representative as it is of Ontario and Quebec simply doesn't understand the problem and partly because regional development policies are utterly useless unless they are complemented by transportation policies which provide a fair deal for those of us who don't happen to live in the "golden triangle" of Windsor and Toronto, Montreal.

Fisheries policies are of course the subject of a good deal of discussion during this campaign, he remarked the Liberal government seems to have some pretty severe handicaps in developing and implementing appropriate fisheries policy. He continued "since several years our party has been calling for an extension of our ability to carry out surveillance of foreign fishing fleets. While foreign natives fishing our continental shelf have increased their catches by 5 and 10 times- our catches have by comparison remained almost static. What the fishing needs is encouragement. Policies must be put in place that will be fair to these engaged in the inshore fisheries while encouraging

TO WELCOME M.S. VICTORIA

A welcoming committee from the Town of Digby, the Digby-Annapolis Recreation and Tourist Council and from the Digby Board of Trade has been set up to welcome the liner M.S. Victoria when she arrives here from New York on August 28, September 7 and September 11. It is estimated she will carry 500 passengers.

On the committee are Gary MacKenzie, Ernest Ryan and William Troupe, chairman, along with Councillor Joseph Hattie and Councillor Gordon Ellis with power to add. The committee will work closely with the Nova Scotia Department of Tourism and the Annapolis Valley Affiliated Boards of Trade. Plans for the three trips are well underway and the committee has been in touch with the travel agents.

This is the first such cruise of its kind to Digby for considerable years and its importance to the future tourism in Digby can be readily seen. The ship will anchor off and passengers conveyed to shore by boat from 9 o'clock a.m. to 11 p.m. when they will be able to enjoy tours, walking, fishing and other vacation activities.

The town has been requested to supply banners and flags, a welcoming dinner for the captain and dignitaries and 250,000 gallons of water, the last named while not impossible causes concern with available transmission facilities.

WELL EARNED TRIBUTE

Chief of Police Webster Dunn, retires from his position as Police Chief for Digby with well earned tributes for twenty-two years of service to the town, four years as constable and eighteen as chief. Mr. Dunn will continue to serve the town as meter reader while policing duties in Digby are now being carried on by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

To some, the word policeman conjures the thought of a totally severe law-and-order man. Probably this stems from childhood when parents warned the children, "Be good or the police will get you." Sure, a bit of respectful fear of police is necessary for law and order, nevertheless a good effective policeman has other worthy qualifications. He must be understanding, informative, vigilant and caring. People must mean something to him and their best interest served whether the people are offenders or those to be protected from offenders. Besides a man to carry out the role of law-and-order, a policeman needs to be a friend.

These and other attributes were characteristic of Chief Police Dunn who served the Town of Digby for 22 years. Well done are deserving words to pass on to Webster Dunn, who has relinquished his ardent policing responsibilities.

Hodge Podge

— Want to know how weekly newspapers find it so easy to thrive financially? Just read these. "If advertising service is free, please use the enclosed," and "Enclosed is a copy of an open letter to Honorable Gerald Regan, Premier of Nova Scotia, which will appear as an advertisement in three of Nova Scotia's daily newspapers, Thursday, June 27, 1974." The latter came as a news release.

— We've been told by one who knows that to be in politics is a rough game and you ride rough shod. Seems to us that political attendants in the echelons of the media game readily are influenced by the political rough-shod methods.

— We don't mind praying for twenty others besides ourselves. Really, we wouldn't mind writing a prayer in each of twenty letters and send them, in their way if that letters of any kind can be legally mailed. Just can't see our prayers getting off the ground, much less reach heaven, when they are written under the scare of something awful happening on day four if you fail to do it or the anticipation of something especially joyful to happen on day four if you send the letters. Somehow, that line of reasoning doesn't go along with our prayers. We might be all wrong. Who knows. Nevertheless day four has passed.

SMITH'S COVE

A warm welcome to our community is extended to two new families who have moved here recently. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dickie, formerly of Digby, have moved into the former Hattie McWilliam house, W.O. and Mrs. Philip Goguen, and family of CFB.

Cornwallis have moved into the former Nelson Speights house. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Speights are now residing in the former Fred Bigelow home. Mr. and Mrs. David Banks, Lisa and Laura have moved to Bear River.

We will miss them from our area as well as their Lassie, a

Digby County Firm Gets Incentive Grant

The Honourable Don Jamieson, Minister of Regional Economic Expansion, announced that 17 firms across Canada have accepted development incentive offers from his Department. An estimated total of 289 jobs are expected to be created by these projects.

Included in the incentive grants is one to St. Mary's Bay Fisheries Ltd. of Meteghan, Digby County, Nova Scotia. The company has accepted an offer of approximately $25,000 for the expansion and modernization of its fish processing plant. The project is expected to create five additional jobs. The offer is based on a rate of 20 per cent of the approved capital costs, estimated at $125,000.

The Minister also confirmed that Clyde Everett, 1972 Lumber of Bridgetown, Nova Scotia, which also has a plant in Digby, has accepted a regional development incentive offer from his Department for a new plant to manufacture concrete blocks. Two jobs are expected to be created by the project. This offer of approximately $99,000 is based on a rate of 20 per cent of the approved capital costs estimated at $495,000.

Souvenir Of Digby

A booklet printed about 70 years ago entitled Souvenir of Digby was brought to the Digby Courier last week by Mrs. Alfred McGee of Montreal who was then visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Titus, Digby.

The cover had a picture of a side wheel ship which plowed the Bay from Digby to Saint John and the inside contained pictures of the Old Post Office and clock; the railway train "Bluenose" coming into the station where horses and buggies and crowds of people were waiting; hotels, Manhattan, Lour Lodge, the Trefry House at Culloden and the old Pines Hotel. Scenes along the waterfront were included, a glimpse of Digby Gap from the road, dirt road and a fish drying scene at the Canon Banks, West Granville off Digby Victoria Beach was among the pictures.

The booklet was a possession of Mr. McGee's grandmother, Mrs. Mable Briggs, of Edmonton, the former, Mable Elliott of Cross P.O. near Maple Creek, Saskatchewan.

Graham Report Tabled

The 7000 page Graham Report, was tabled in the Nova Scotia Legislature. The Commission received a total of 575 written briefs, listened to 394 oral presentations at 39 public hearings, held in 25 provincial centres.

Numerous private hearings were held at which the commission received the views of organizations and individuals on the full range of issues under review.

Copies of all briefs are to be deposited in the Nova Scotia Legislature library and in the public archives of Nova Scotia.

An equally important and complementary part of the commission's task was its own independent research and investigation.

The commission operated with a small research staff of four including the commission secretary, Lawrence E. Sandford. Other staff members were Gerald J. McCarthy, Zilpha Linkletter and John R. Cameron.

The regular staff was supplemented by approximately 12 consultants with special expertise in various areas.

Considerable assistance was received from various departments and agencies of the provincial government.

Commissioners and members of the commission staff travelled extensively, both within and without the province and to the United Kingdom, consulting various groups and individuals to obtain information and advice.

The commission states that its work is a collaborative effort of commissioners and staff. All three commissioners have participated in the preparation of all drafts at all stages and have made all of the decisions about contents and recommendations of the report.

More than 90 meetings of the commission were required to arrive at its findings and recommendations, in addition to the public meetings and over 140 private meetings with individuals and groups.

The commission says it paid considerable attention throughout its deliberations to ensuring that all its recommendations are feasible.

"We have felt an obligation to say not only what should be done and why, but also how it should be done," it states.

"This part of our work has been particularly time consuming but it was essential in order to test the practicability of our recommendations."

The commission explains in detail how the major changes recommended can be implemented and provides what it considers a reasonable timetable for implementation.

The commission recommends an appointed day, the day the new municipal structure would be formally established.

"It would not matter if some other name was chosen," the commission states, "perhaps it could be initial day. We attach no importance to the name."

The date proposed is April 1, 1976 and the commission states that implementation would have to be started in the fall of 1974 to meet that objective.

The commission is unanimous in support of its recommendations.

new feed grains policy

The federal government's new Feed Grains Policy becomes effective August 1, 1974. Whether you are a producer or user, the new policy is designed to meet your needs by:

- providing a fair and equitable base price for feed grains across Canada;
- encouraging growth of grain and livestock production according to natural potential;
- maintaining order and stability throughout the grain and livestock sectors.

MAIN FEATURES:

- farmers will have direct access to feed grains in all parts of Canada; buyers are free to shop for the best bargain, sellers are free to find the best price for their crops;
- a nation-wide information system through the Canadian Livestock Feed Board will keep everyone informed on selling prices across the country;
- the Canadian Wheat Board will continue to be the sole buyer and seller of feed grain for export market;
- prairie producers have the choice of selling their grain to the CWB or to others on the domestic market;
- cash advance payments and initial payments, similar to those provided to Prairie grain producers for many years, will be extended to growers across the country to encourage feed grain production;
- a new storage program, costing the federal government $40 million a year, will be instituted to provide for security of supplies for Canadian markets; it will also lead to additional grain storage on the West Coast, in inland terminals, on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence and in the Maritimes;
- steps will be taken to bring into balance freight rates between meat and grain; this will progress according to trends in grain and livestock prices, and the degree of regional self-sufficiency in grain production.

Kareen's Yoga ... Returning To ATV

The story of Kareen Zebrowski is one of seemingly instant success. In only a few years, she has changed from an unhappy, overweight housewife into a noted lecturer, author and television personality.

The friendly, entertaining style of Kareen's Yoga is certainly a major factor in its success. She stresses exercise rather than meditation, and viewers are reassured by the practicality of her approach. This approach has proved equally appealing to international audiences. While Kareen has been vacationing in Germany last year, she appeared on a nationally televised talk show. Viewer response was so great, she ultimately returned to tape three thirteen week series of yoga programs.

In her four years on the CTV Network, Kareen has developed a loyal audience. She's received over 60,000 fan letters, and she and her staff answer every request for advice.

"Kareen's Yoga and Nutrition" will retain her present following, and add even more. It would be a rare woman in today's diet-conscious society who doesn't want to be slimmer, healthier and more energetic. Kareen Zebrowski is living proof that yoga and nutrition can give women what they want.

Sailing And Steamship Alive In Nova Scotia

The age of the windjammer is still vigorous in Nova Scotia, Canada, as evidenced not only by the growing number of yachting enthusiasts in Canada's Atlantic province, but also by the rising popularity of Maritime Provinces, a major role involved the building of fleets of ships, both warships and cargo vessels.

Among them were the fastest sailing ships in the world.

The schooner "Bluenose", built in Lunenburg in 1921, and still portrayed on the Canadian dime, was one of the most effective fishing schooners and undefeated champion of the international schooner races.

An earlier Maritime product was the square-rigged "Marco Polo". In 1887, the year Canadian Confederation came into existence, she covered the run from Australia to Britain in 76 days, beating by a week the time of the latest STEAMSHIP.

The tall square-riggers once built in Nova Scotia sailed best with following winds. Trade routes to Europe, Pacific America, Australia, or Pacific Ocean ports, were planned to take advantage of prevailing winds.

A photograph of an old shipyard is surrounded by a display of tools used to build the wooden ships. A broad-headed axe, an adze, wood-block planes and other tools are on display.

A chart of ship silhouettes shows the different rigs used in the oldtime sailing craft. Visitors can see the differences between a fully-rigged ship, a barque, brigantine, or schooner.

A series of slides show paintings and drawings of sailing ships, some heeled over by the wind with white foam drenching the deck. Some of the slides show close-ups of 18th century seamen high in a ship's rigging, clinging to yard-arms as they furl the stiff canvas of the square sails.

Across This Land

"Across This Land", starring Stompin' Tom Connors, Canada's King of Country Music, will be telecast by ATV on Wednesday, July 17, 9:00 - 11:00 pm ET.

"Across This Land" is a musical - journey through Canada, looking at the people and places that have been the inspiration for many of Tom's songs.

Stompin' Tom does his standards in the film "Bud The Spud", "Suburb Saturday Night", and "Round The Bay And Back Again", as well as performing new songs he wrote especially for this feature.

Also appearing are some of Canada's best country performers: Sharon Lowness, Chris Scott, Bobby Lalonde, Kent Brockwell and Joey Tardif.

This unique movie is as much a documentary on the audience as it is on the performer. Tom is filmed performing before a crowd of enthusiastic fans in Toronto's Shrine of country music-the Horse-Shoe Tavern. The result is a happy expression of musical magic which naturally follows when people are having a good time.

Stompin' Tom's songs are happy, sad, down home numbers that have a universal appeal. His style is his own, his humour is infectious. And he's Canadian through and through.

"Across This Land" was filmed by DAL productions Ltd., in co-operation with Boot Records.

"I suppose you could say it all began when I cut my thumb the day I had my first jack-knife," Jesse Saunders said, with that boyish twinkle in his eye that makes it impossible to believe he's pushing eighty. "At any rate I can truthfully say I've been fascinated with Indian snowshoes for over sixty years." Which is five years longer than he's been married to his wife Hazel, who thus had to wait until he was 85 to get fair warning that rawhide and wood chips and snowshoe talk were to be dominant themes in her long married life.

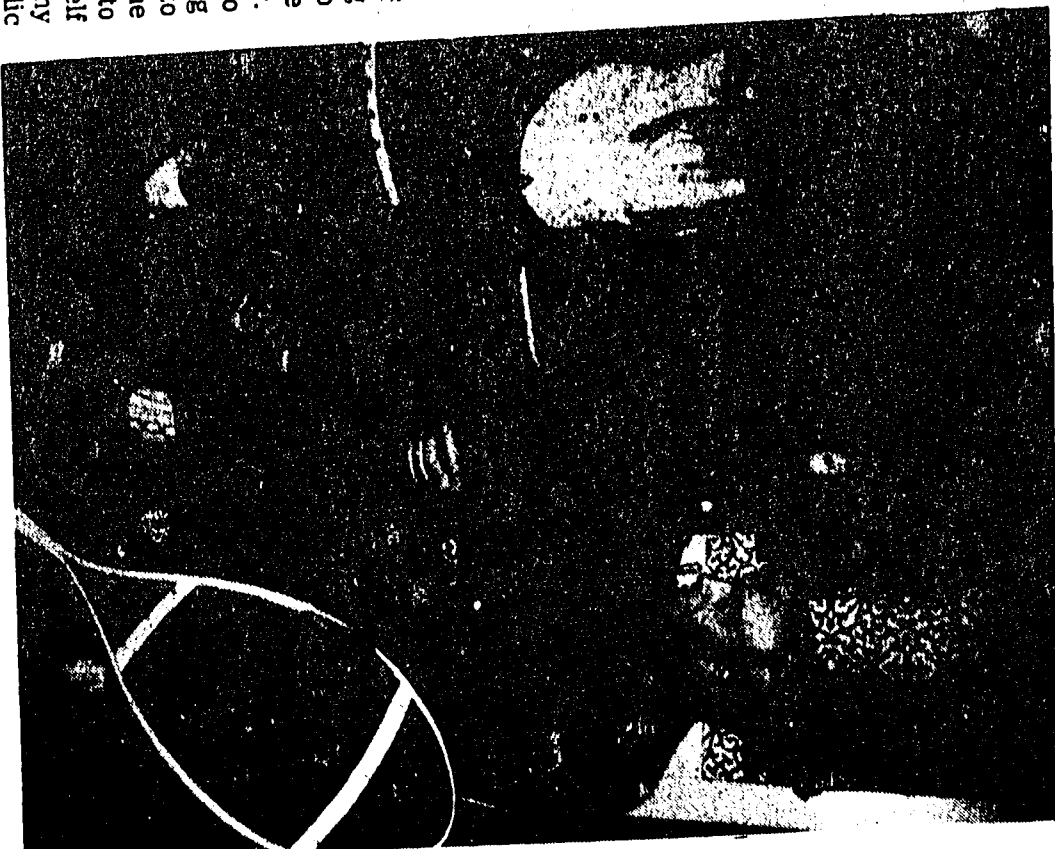

In the old days, crafts of this sort were a mystery, and their practitioners deliberately kept them that way. Jesse has a document which indemnured an ancestor of his to a cordrainer and harness maker in 1844, binding him not only to study diligently, to forego marriage and to eschew all forms of recreation, gambling, drinking and idleness, but also to preserve the mysteries of the craft. Today, however, Mr. Saunders is only too happy to pass on his skills, and nothing would please him more than to find a young person with the same sort of burning desire to master the craft that he himself had sixty years ago. That is why he will be giving public demonstrations of snowshoe making at the Western Nova Scotia Handicraft Demonstration and Sale next month in Annapolis Royal.

Jesse Saunders is a very articulate man. It's worth half an hour of anyone's time to hear him explain how he goes about selecting and preparing his materials and making the shoes for which he is known across the continent. Even those who scoot off to Florida each November will be enthralled. For interspersed with all the talk of hides and bows and fillings will be all the love and adventure and down-to-earth philosophy of his many years of living. He has the quiet wisdom and assurance of a man with roots. All his life he has lived on and worked the century farm at West Paradise, just as his father and grandfather lived on it and worked it. Running the farm has given him life direction and purpose, and the making of snowshoes - making them probably as well as anyone alive - has given that life an extra depth and dimension.

He tells of that morning in his youth when he awoke to unexpected snow, snow deep and unsullied everywhere, and remained sober and chaste and waiting. Waiting for him. For several years already he had been "obsessed by the fantastic idea" of Indians going into the forest and bringing out wood and fashioning it into the beautiful, inevitable shape that is the Indian snowshoe. Now he suddenly the yearning he had been feeling all those years to find out how it was done became too imperative to hold down any longer. He floundered nearly a mile across the deep-drifted fields to the railroad, thinking it would be easier walking where the plow had been. It wasn't. But he made his way several miles to where an old Micmac and his family had established

Snowshoes, Anyone?

by H.R. Percy

themselves by squatters' rights on railroad property.

"Providence must have led me there," Jesse says, "because when I walked in there was the old Indian and his two daughters making snowshoes." The old man wouldn't undertake to teach Jesse how it was done but he let him sit there all day and watch. It was enough. Jesse felt sorry for the girls when their father's wrath descended on them for the small errors they made, but he was quick to learn by their mistakes. This basic knowledge he improved upon by constant practice and experiment - to such advantage that he still has (and uses) a pair of snowshoes he made fifty years ago, with the original deer-hide fillings, and you have to look very closely indeed to see any sign of wear.

He soon realized that the secret was in the fillings. "With good fillings you could make a serviceable snowshoe out of a barrel hoop, but the good frames in the world are no good if the fillings are wrong." So he sought out his father's second cousin, who presumably had remained sober and chaste and unmarried for the requisite four years, for he now had a thriving business as a harnessmaker and what he didn't know about leather probably wasn't worth knowing. Even so, Jesse continued to refine the knowledge he gained from his expert relative, varying each time the amount of wood ash and lime he used, and experimenting with the curing time, until now he casually mentions that a well cured hide should last a thousand years. Who's going to argue? After seeing the condition of the fillings in those half-century-old shoes I'd be the last to doubt it.

The day I was there he had a pair of frames made of horn-beam, but commonly he uses white ash. He still goes out in search of his own wood, brings it home and whittles and steams and bends it. He talks of how the Indians must have heated their wood in the fire until it was hot to touch, and then bent it to shape around a tree, and from the glow in his eyes as he says it I shouldn't be surprised to find him trying it one day, out there in the woods.

When a hide is cured to his satisfaction he cuts it in halves, or in quarters if it is very large. Working round the perimeter he cuts it with a knife into a continuous "thread" which varies in width according to the part of the snowshoes it is needed for. A good hide yields from 1000 to 1200 feet of thread. This thread is soaked in water for a day and a half, then wound skin-fashion on a board about five feet long. A toggle is inserted between the turns on each side of the board and twisted up to stretch the threads. This twisting squeezes out the water and after four or five days when the toggles have removed the threads have stretched so much that shingles can be placed on edge between the board and the turns, like the bridge of a violin.

Then begins the exacting work of filling, beginning at the toe. Every knot, every twist, every loop is important, or the worker may end up in the middle of an end of thread and nowhere to go. The work of filling takes a real expert half a day. Like everything else about the well-made snowshoe, the varnish on the filling is purely functional. The shining beauty it imparts is a bonus. Its real purpose is to keep off the flies, which swarm about an untreated filling and very soon make the shoe unpleasant and unsightly. There is one exception to this strict fidelity to function. As a boy, Jesse used to ask why some of the snowshoes he saw poking out of Christmas packages had red tassels round the toes and heels. He was told they were ladies' snowshoes. The association became so firmly fixed in his mind that to this day every pair of snowshoes he makes for a lady has red tassels.

A hand-made snowshoe is as individual as a painting. The maker leaves the imprint of his personality upon it. It reveals his own unique style. Mr. Saunders has records of nearly a hundred pairs of snowshoes he has made for people all over Canada and the United States, and he could identify any one of them as his own.

One word of advice to snowshoe owners: always hang your shoes up. Nearly all of the scores of pairs brought to Jesse Saunders for repair have been nibbled by mice.

So if you would like to see the skillful hands of a snowshoemaker at work: if you'd like to soak in water for a day and a half, then wound skin-fashion on a board about five feet long. A toggle is inserted between the turns on each side of the board and twisted up to stretch the

"Nakia"

A NEW HOUR-LONG CONTEMPORARY WESTERN SERIES THIS FALL ON ATV

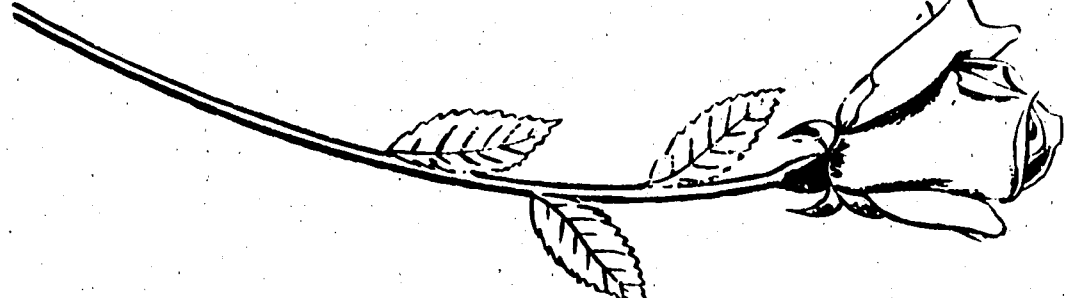

"Nakia" tells the story of an Indian deputy sheriff on contemporary New Mexico. It is a modern morality play in that the hero is totally consumed by honor.

Deputy Sheriff Nakia Parker is particularly aware of the difficult position he holds in his community because of his Indian heritage.

It is his respect for the law and the almost mystical quality of his very presence, stimulated in part by his Indian blood, which creates the aura of respect for him held by the people of Davis County. In the toes and heels. He was told they were ladies' snowshoes. The association became so firmly fixed in his mind that to this day every pair of snowshoes he makes for a lady has red tassels.

"Nakia", a present day western dramatic series involving a peace officer in situations and dramas as exciting as those faced by a frontier town sheriff a century ago, but with the added edge of conflict provided by living in the complexities of a computer age.

Robert Forster is the actor portraying that hero of legendary proportions who is faced with modern problems in a southwestern town, where the way of life and age old system of honor may not have yet caught up with the 20th century.

A young Valley resident who specializes in puppetry and the Nova Scotia Department of Recreation will be working together this summer on a series of Creative Puppetry Workshops which are now underway at various Valley region community centres.

The program, to include 27 two-day workshops to be held in centres from Burlington to Bear River and involving nearly 700 children, is a response to the success of a pilot program sponsored by the Recreation Department last summer.

More than 500 children at various Valley playgrounds had the opportunity to watch puppeteer Darlene Armstrong show them how to create their own play, make and work their own puppets at that time.

"This is last year's pilot program launched on a grand scale," says Bill Spurr, Valley representative to the Department of Recreation. "Last year we used area playgrounds, but this year nearly all workshops will be held in Little Red School Houses."

Creative Puppetry Workshops Being Held

asked to make a 25-cent donation, to assist in cost of materials, and the community in some instances will be asked to provide accommodation for the leaders.

A native of Kingston, Darlene has studied at Mount Allison University and the Three Schools of Art in Toronto. She has worked for Mernard Theatre. "In fact, Tom Miller not me interested in puppets," she says.

Last year with funding from the provincial Department of Recreation, she went to Michigan State University where she attended a festival of International Puppeteers of America, taking courses on puppetry and working out her own program.

She has taught speech to new immigrants in Toronto and worked with mentally handicapped children in Windsor, Nova Scotia.

Judge Oxner Addresses Weymouth Graduates

Miss Sandra Oxner, Halifax, Judge, Provincial Court of Nova Scotia, was the guest speaker at the Graduation Exercises of the Weymouth Consolidated High School on Wednesday evening, June 19. She was introduced by the Vice-Principal, Willard Clayton and thanked by C. E. Edwards, Bridgetown, Inspector of Schools.

In speaking to the Assembly in a charming manner, Judge Oxner said that it was a "thrill to be here as the speaker for it was the usual role of judges to be listeners rather than speakers."

In her address, Miss Oxner reviewed primitive procedures of convicting murderers and how the succeeding generations have changed them, spoke of the Legal Aid System in N.S., and told the students their heritage was hard work and integrity. Though she did not wish to belittle their hard work, Miss Oxner reminded the students that the state provides the opportunities for them. She said no graduating class had been faced with more problems than those of today. She also spoke of the Women's Liberation Movement saying it was the most significant thing of our time and that not all changes will be good. Speaking to the girls, she said if you chose a male field as your career, to succeed, you must be better than the male or luckier.

The graduates and guests entered the auditorium, which was filled to capacity, to the procession played by Vernon E. Sabean of the school staff, following which the Invocation Prayer was given by Sandra Hatt. In welcoming the guests, Mrs. Seretha (Grant) Sabean, a member of the Board of Trustees, spoke briefly on "Attitudes", what the wrong attitudes can deprive you of and how the right ones can give you all those things as well as make your life interesting. "Everything depends on your mental attitudes."

The Class History was given by Douglas Hankinson, President of the Student Council; the Last Will and Testament by Miss Edna May Marshall and the Class Prophecy by Miss Velmar Johnson.

The Chairman of the Municipal School Board and Warden of Digby Municipality, Wilfred Swift, Westport, congratulated the graduates on reaching their first milestone and suggested they have a positive outlook on life; "Be honest with yourselves, be slow to criticise, quick to praise, have faith in yourself and most of all have faith in God."

The Diplomas, 30 to the Grade eleven Academic and general students and 38 to the Grade 12 Graduates were given by Mr. Hanscomb, assisted by Mr. Clayton. For the first time this year the school graduated nine students from a Grade 12 Commercial course, including two married students, as follows: Mrs. Stella Anthony, Sandra Bell, Paulette Cromwell, Alma Deveau, Nancy Melanson, Mrs. Ruth Mullen, Susan Sabean, Joanne Sullivan, Dianne Wagner.

Valedictorian was Miss Ann Powell and the program was closed with the benediction and a few words of congratulation by Rev. Merle Zimmerman, the singing of "God save The Queen" and the Recessional.

Weymouth Day Drew Crowds

Weymouth Day proved to be beyond everybody's expectations on Monday - the weather proved to be adaptable, cool at times, and warm enough to suit everyone when the sun shone. It was estimated that about 10,000 were on the grounds during the day, with paid attendance of $3500 for adults. Other receipts had not yet been recorded.

The evening was finalized when fire works display which always seems to attract a large audience.

The Kiwanians worked hard to make the day a success, and financial results will be used to further their work for the young people in the area.

Children's Dental Plan

Who qualifies?

The Children's Dental Plan is available to all children currently resident in Nova Scotia, born on or after January 1, 1967. Once a child qualifies under the plan, his or her coverage will continue automatically.

Do I need to register my children?

No registration is necessary. Your up-to-date MSI card is proof of eligibility. The year of birth shown on the card will identify for the dentist those children eligible for the Children's Dental Plan. Make sure you bring your MSI card with you.

May I select my own dentist?

Yes. You continue to have free choice of any qualified dentist who is willing to accept you as a patient.

May the dentist make a charge to me for his service?

Yes, if your dentist wishes to make a charge for his services, which is in excess of the MSI tariff allowance, he may do so. However, he must notify you if he intends to make this extra-charge and inform you of the amount. You must also sign the claim to indicate your agreement to this arrangement.

What about dental service outside the province?

If your child is temporarily away from Nova Scotia, such as during a vacation, and the services of a dentist are required, payment should be made directly to the out-of-province dentist and an itemized receipt obtained. ### Relinquishes Police Duties

Former Chief of Police, Webster Dunn, was at the regular Digby Town Council meeting on Tuesday evening, engaged as Meter Reader for the town. Mr. Dunn who had served the town's police force for 22 years retired from that particular service when town police duties were taken over by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police this week.

Words of appreciation for services were extended to Mr. Dunn who had been Chief of Police for eighteen of the 22 years. Mr. Dunn responded in assuring that he at all times tried to be fair and to give the town people good service. "It was my town and I tried to do my best," he remarked.

In his report for June the chief revealed 31 complaints laid, fifteen needing field investigation. Ten needed court action, one is still under investigation. All outstanding charges were turned over to the R.C.M.P. There was one stolen bicycle and one bicycle accident. Mileage was 2791 for the month.

Strong approval of Coline Campbell, Liberal candidate in South Western Nova, was voiced by Nova Scotia Premier Gerald A. Regan at an enthusiastic rally in the Islands Consolidated School in Freeport on Monday.

Premier Regan, who accompanied Miss Campbell while she was at the July 1st., celebrations in Weymouth, noted her enthusiasm in meeting people, and her knowledge and concern for the people of the areas. He said that South Western Nova would be well and capably represented by Miss Campbell in the federal house and urged support for her on July 8th.

In his address, Mr. Regan referred to the support given the Atlantic provinces and Nova Scotia in particular by the Liberal government of Prime Minister Trudeau. He said that all polls indicate a return of that government on July 8th. and he stressed the value in having a representative on the government side of the House.

Support of Premier Regan's efforts to rehabilitate the heavy water plant at Glace Bay; the support of the Atlantic provinces Premiers with regard to the oil price and supply situation and the efforts of the Trudeau government with regard to the 200 mile limit and management of the fishery within this limit, were cited by Premier Regan as examples of the cooperation and support given the Atlantic provinces by the Trudeau Liberal government.

Digby M.L.A. Joseph Casey introduced Coline to the audience and in so doing pointed out the importance of having solid, united representation from South Western Nova both in Halifax and Ottawa. "It makes sense to me, he said, that this area, which now has six

M.L.A.'s three of whom are Cabinet Ministers, representing us in Halifax, will do better with a Liberal member on the government side of the House in Ottawa."

Mr. Casey traced Miss Campbell's education, her career as a teacher and her involvement in legal practice, particularly in the field of legal aid. Her intimate knowledge of this area, her family background and her own deep concern for her home area in Nova Scotia, all combine, he said, to fit her ideally for the job of representing this area in Ottawa after July 8th.

In her address Miss Campbell pointed out the need for greater communication between the district of South Western Nova and Ottawa. She stated lack of two-way communication was working against the best interests of the people of the areas. If I am elected, she said, I will work full time to restore that communication. She stated she would open a full time office in the constituency so that she could keep fully in touch with the needs of the area and its people on a year round basis. There is now provision for such a service and I will see to it that the service is provided, she said.

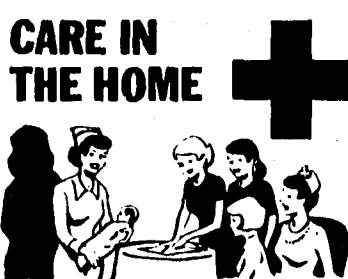

Speaking of the needs of the area, she said these included greater attention to fisheries, to industrial development and to transportation. She pointed out that Prime Minister Trudeau had full supported the appointment of a full-time Minister of Fisheries while in Digby recently. Such a Minister will be appointed by the Liberal government after July 8th., she said.

In her remarks Miss Campbell also referred at length to the policy statement adopted by the Liberal candidates of the Atlantic provinces in Halifax. She pointed out these included an expenditure of $150 million for wharves, breakwaters and haul-ups in the Atlantic provinces. "The constituency of South Western Nova, she said, has a high proportion of need for upgrading of its wharves and breakwaters and will receive a major share of this expenditure."

Speaking of the law of the sea conference with regard to fishing rights, Miss Campbell noted that she strongly supports the Liberal government's stand in this matter and expressed confidence Canada's position would win out. It is of vital importance to our fisheries that this be the case, she said, and the government of Mr. Trudeau will continue to stand firm in its support of this position.

In concluding her remarks Miss Campbell stressed her desire to represent the area and its people in Ottawa; her ability and willingness to give full-time, undivided attention to the needs of the constituency and her intention to set up a full time, staffed office in the district to provide additional linkage between the people of the area and Ottawa.

Digby Red Cross Branch Presents Awards

The presentation of two service awards highlighted the final business session of the Digby Red Cross Branch before closing for the summer holidays. Mrs. Loran Hayden and Mrs. Willard Kinney were the recipients of the service pins and scrolls which were presented by the Branch President, Harold Emerson, in recognition of their long and faithful service to the Canadian Red Cross Society. A similar award had been received by Mrs. Blair Daley at an earlier meeting held at the home of Mrs. H. M. Warne and attended by Mrs. Flemming and Miss Pearl MacAdams, Chairman and Secretary of the Provincial Women's Work Committee, at which time illness prevented both Mrs. Kinney and Mrs. Hayden being present.

The business meeting was held at the Court House with seventeen members in attendance. In the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. P. Robert, Mrs. J. J. Brittain served as Secretary-Treasurer, reading both the minutes of the May meeting and the June financial report.

The main item in the financial statement was a report on the Digby Branch contribution to the special "Money Crisis Fund" of the Nova Scotia Division, the total amount raised thus far being $148.10, of which $103.10 was received from the quilt sold by ticket. The winning ticket was drawn by Mrs. Flemming at the special meeting and the delighted recipient was Mrs. John Comeau, of the Digby Public Health Nursing Staff. In connection with the quilt raffle, special thanks were expressed for the assistance rendered by the Elite Shop in displaying the quilt, as well as for the many tickets sold there, also at Val's Beauty Salon and by members of the Red Cross Youth Group.

The report of the Ways and Means Committee showed a balance of $88.71 on hand after the purchase of six additional pairs of children's adjustable crutches. It was moved that a donation of $50 be contributed from this balance toward the new Kiwanis Swimming Pool, a motion which the President and members heartily endorsed in view of the fact that one of the major Red Cross projects is Swimming and Water Safety.

The Sickroom Loan report, presented by Mrs. Winfield, showed how much benefit the public is receiving from this part of the Red Cross program. An itemized report showed the following articles belonging to the Digby Branch on loan at the present time: 8 hospital beds; 10 wheelchairs, 14 pairs crutches; 8 walkers, 2 canes and 2 bedpans. On hand, available for loan, were the following: 4 hospital beds; 8 pairs crutches, 1 walker and 1 cane, but no wheelchairs.

Mrs. H. M. Warne reported for the Women's Work Committee that with the closing of the workroom for the months of July and August, a shipment of the finished articles on hand would be forwarded to Headquarters immediately. Two quilts, a dozen tropical afghans, also other assorted articles were ready for packing and would conclude the work for this season, but it was good to know that some members had taken out yarn for summer knitting so that there would be some finished work ready when Red Cross reopened in the fall.

The President, reporting for Mr. Fabian O'Neil, Campaign Chairman, stated that the sum of $2029 had been received to date. The Digby quota had been set at $2050, and with three canvassers yet to complete their returns, it was assured that this quota would be reached and probably exceeded. Mr. Emerson commended Mr. O'Neil on the success of his efforts.

After deciding to reconvene on September 11th, the meeting adjourned for the customary refreshments served by the Ways and Means Committee.

Digby Seaside Striders

The Digby Seaside Striders Track and Field Team has been functioning in Digby for the past three years. This team has become recognized as one of the best Track and Field Teams in the province. Much recognition has been brought to the Town of Digby because of the success of the boys and girls who make up this team.

This year the team has received financial support from both the Royal Canadian Legion and the Department of Recreation, but the team has received very little support in terms of people participation. The biggest problem the team has is that no one in the community has come forth and shown a willingness to coach or offer the transportation which these young 15-18 years olds need to get to the track meets.

These athletes are well trained and have the potential to do very well this summer, but it would appear that they will not get the opportunity to prove themselves.

There are a number of meets coming up which will enable these athletes to qualify for the Atlantic Provinces Track and Field Team. If any person is interested in working with youth and has some free time, how about helping these young people.

Yours truly,
Members of Seaside Striders
Track and Field Team

Kiwanis Take Merchants 5-3

In the first meeting of these two teams this season, the Kiwanis edged Merchants by the score of 5-3. It was a crowd pleasing game in all respects as the score would indicate. Kevin Mosher pitched and batted the Kiwanis team to victory. He allowed three hits, struck out seventeen and walked six while at bat he collected a single, triple and home run in three trips. Jeff Skinner did the mound chores for the Merchants, he allowed five runs on four hits, struck out sixteen and walked four. Jeff also connected for a home run in fifth inning with Ricky Kynock on third. Incidentally, Ricky Kynock had two triples in three trips to the plate in a losing cause.

K of C Knock Off Fireman 22-11

The Locke coached K of C outslugged a game but outclassed Firemen team in a game played on June 28th by the score of 22-11. This game produced two grand slam home runs, one for the K of C in the person of Kirk Mackintosh who had two singles, a double and triple as well, in five trips. Probably the most electrifying play of the game was a clout by David Titus in his second appearance at the plate with three men aboard when he drove a long ball into centerfield on a two and two pitch, this is David's first year in Little League and he is just eight years old. The winning pitcher Joey Hattie and the losing pitcher was Burnell Burgoyne.

Insects

Halifax - Insects in stored food can be problem for any householder.

"Insects that live in stored foods like dry cereals can get into your home from infested packages and then crawl into other foods. Bean weevils, grain beetles and meal moths are a few examples," C.J.S. Fox, Entomologist with the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture and Marketing stated today.

"If you find a package food infested with insects, investigate further to find the proper source. It may be a long-neglected box of meal, crackers or paprika," Mr. Fox stated.

"All foods infested by insects should be disposed of, preferably burned. However, non-food material may be saved by heating it to 150 degrees for 20 minutes. This destroys most insects."

"Kitchen re-infestation can be prevented by removing all the food and utensils from cupboards and cleaning the area thoroughly with a household type of spray containing pyrethrin, lindane, chlordane, or methoxychlor." "Force some of the spray into cracks and crevices. When completely dry, the contents of the cupboard may be replaced," he said.

Province Lags In Art And Music

In the field of arts and music, Nova Scotia "lags regrettably, behind much of the world," according to the recently published report of the Royal Commission on Education, Public Services and Provincial-Municipal Relations.

While recognizing that notable improvements are taking place in the schools, such as the highly successful instrumental music programs in a few of the districts, the report says "there is a clear call from the Nova Scotian public for even more attention to these areas, and this call is justified."

The expressive arts, that is, the visual arts, music, theatre, dancing, etc., should have a key place in schools, as an integral part of the experience of all students, the Commission states.

"To take music as an example: the development of an understanding and appreciation of music, particularly if it is accompanied by an opportunity for sustained instruction and practice in the playing of a musical instrument, alone and in groups, will enrich people throughout their lives.

"It is probably as valuable to the student and to the community as anything else in the school program

"For students with special talents and interests, specific opportunities to develop their potential should be provided. Outstanding ability in these fields is not now generally accorded either the opportunity or the recognition given to equal or even inferior capacity in case subjects of the traditional program of studies."

The report says the schools are criticized, more than for any other fault, for their failure to notice and to honour creativity and imagination.

Campaign Almost Over

The Federal Election Campaign is nearly over and for my money it has been a rather bizarre campaign in many respects. We have the situation where the leader of the Government and the Leader of the Socialists have devoted most of their time to criticizing the platform of the Opposition Party. What a tremendous leader of the Opposition the Prime Minister would be. This unit of purpose of Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Lewis is, of course, nothing new, and their mutual fear of Mr. Stanfield's policies has once again united them publicly, as indeed they should be. The policy on the part of the Liberal Party of flirting in public and co-operating in private with the N.D.P. is a dangerous game for the Liberals. Remember what happened in Britain. This practice is very evident in the Legislature here in Halifax.

Mr. Stanfield has a policy to help fight the present 20 per cent devaluation of our dollar. Mr. Trudeau says he will fight inflation by increasing production, while at the same time condoning programs which encourage people to stay out of the work force. Indeed, he has even been heard to say, and I quote: "it is the right of any Canadian not to work if he or she so desires." Not much incentive to increase production in that philosophy, eh?

Do you realize that at the present rate of dollar evaluation (and that is what it amounts to) those of you who are paying into a pension fund should either be doubling your payments or else expect one half as much in five years or less? In other words, the dollar you put away today will only buy 90 cents worth next year, and so on-year by year. This has to stop. Sixty percent of inflation is home grown. Isn't it better to slow down or stop 60 per cent of it than to do nothing? After all Mr. Trudeau has been telling us for years that he has inflation "licked" (to use his term). After six years of this, do you really think he deserves another chance?

To this date, June 27-74, the net cost to the taxpayer of Mr. Trudeau's promises in this campaign amounts to a whopping $3,700,000,000.00, which is about $309.00 of taxpayers' money for every man, woman and child in Canada. This fantastic figure, after he states six weeks ago that he is not going to make any promises. I ask you, the reader, to seriously ask yourself: "Are the promises he makes to the electorate any more valid than the promise not to make promises?" Is this man credible? I don't think so and I will give one example.

In June of 1968 in the closing days of a Federal Election Campaign (once again with Mr. Trudeau as Prime Minister) the Liberal Candidate for Annapolis Valley announced that the Margaretsville wharf would be repaired. What did they do? I'll tell you. They trucked $17,000.00 worth of granite rocks from many miles away and dumped them over the end of this dilapidated structure. I invite anyone who is doubtful to look at that wharf today. Now, once again, one of our area wharfs is in the limelight. It has been announced that Hampton wharf will be repaired. Tenders will be called soon. The people of this constituency must indeed pray that this commitment will not end up in the same manner as did the one described above.

I am pleased with the apparent intent contained in the many statements being issued from the Liberal Camp. I ask only one question. If these intentions are sincere (and I believe the Candidate feels they are) why the delay? This party has been in power for eleven years. Our problems have been with us all this time. Can we depend on implementation of these promises? I don't think so. It is time to elect a new government. One that at least has the courage of its convictions and a plan of attack. I believe we have had enough of throwing up of hands and saying nothing can be done. It is just not good enough to elect a government which is content to run an election campaign on golden promises, gallic shrugs and warped criticism of the Opposition.

New Horizons Centre News

With the opening of the New Horizon Social and Activity Centre being officially opened by the Hon. Allan MacEachern on June 12th, the New Horizon Group now are anticipating a full and active programme. This will be it is hoped, not only advantageous and enjoyable to the active participants but an outreaching programme especially of visiting to those who are not able to take an active part, those who are housed, bed-ridden and lonely. Condolence and get well cards are being sent to all those known about. Monthly birthday parties are enjoyed. Participants play games of their choice and the afternoon ends with refreshments of tea, coffee, ice cream and cake. A list of names are read off whose birthday occurs in that particular month. The June party increased by several more attending than previously. The Hon. Charles Haliburton and Dr. McBean from Sydney of the N.S. Mental Health Association, attended during the afternoon as guests. The Centre is well furnished throughout, the carpenters were most helpful and imaginative in doing the kitchen especially, which is well equipped with a sewing centre between kitchen and lounge. The lounge carpeted throughout with panelled walls and decorative drapes at the windows, is furnished with chesterfields and easy chairs. When games are in progress, card tables and chairs are set up. The ladies and men's work rooms are separate at each end of the Centre. Walls of both rooms are painted in light yellow with shelves and colorful floor covering on ladies work room. Two wash rooms and clothes closet complete the interior. Ample shelf and storage space is also in the furnace room.

SIXTY-FIVE FROM DIGBY GO TO CONVENTION

The Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society has revealed plans for 85 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses in the United States and Canada in 1974.

Ross Specht, presiding minister of the Digby congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said there will be 74 assemblies for English-speaking delegates and eleven meetings in Spanish, French and Italian.

Specht said approximately 65 delegates will represent the Digby congregation at the convention scheduled for Moncton, New Brunswick, August 1 through 4.

He added that 5,500 delegates are expected to attend the Moncton convention set for the Coliseum.

"Hundreds of thousands of persons are looking forward with eager anticipation to the series of 'Divine Purpose' District Assemblies of Jehovah's Witnesses this summer," Specht said.

The combined attendance is expected to reach one million persons this year. Young and old, family groups and even the infirm will be there," he said.

The highlight of the convention program will be the public discourse on the subject "Human Plans Failing as God's Purpose Succeeds."

A baptism service will also be featured. Last year, 6,305 were baptized in Canada as Jehovah's Witnesses. This represents 12 percent of the total Canadian membership in only one year.

Do you remember the immigrant adjustment program ... certainly Keith DeWolfe of the Yarmouth immigration office does.

He remembers the program because it was the first time he'd been kissed in the office twice in the same day by women he didn't know.

Keith was just leaving his boss' office when all of a sudden a pretty looking girl grabbed him, gave him a big kiss and began thanking him for "making me legal".

And then, just when he had settled down, Keith was confronted by an elderly woman who hadn't slept for days and was in tears because she felt she might be thrown out of the country.

After reassuring the woman that there was no chance of her being sent back, the woman was much relieved and thanked Keith over and over again. She still thanks Keith every time she sees him.

These two women, a 22 year-old nurse's aid from Michigan and an elderly woman from France, were among the more than 4,100 people in the Atlantic Provinces who had their immigration status straightened out under the federal government's special Immigrant Adjustment Program.

The special program was introduced to help people who may have been "caught off guard" when the government revoked the right of immigrants to apply for landed immigrant status while in Canada after 1972.

Initially people in the Atlantic Provinces did not react to the program.

R.M. Casselman, head of the immigration operations in Atlantic Canada; said "we had no idea how many illegal immigrants there were living in this region and based our projections on the normal influx of immigrants".

"We discovered, however, that in certain areas hardly anybody was coming forward and we simply had a deep-down feeling that the numbers just weren't right," he said.

In Saint John, N.B., for instance, with a little over a month to go in the program, only 16 people had come forward ... not a very realistic figure for a port city visited by foreign vessels on a regular basis.

"Kisses Of Joy"

An intensive promotion campaign to make more people aware of what we were trying to do was launched. The campaign included news releases, feature stories, news conferences, media appearances and a special region wide open-line show.

The results speak for themselves. Prior to the promotion efforts, less than 1,000 people had come forward compared with 4,167 for a final total. In Saint John the final tally was 305.

On the final day of registration over 1,000 people registered under the program. Only Ontario had more registrations on the final day.

Mr. Casselman said that nearly 1,500 of the original 4,167 registrations have been cancelled following immigration research. It was discovered that they were already Canadian citizens or eligible for Canadian citizenship.

He said that 2,686 remaining cases have been approved to date and slightly more than 2,000 of these have been granted landed status. He expected the remainder to be cleared up in the very near future.

The program brought out many interesting cases. Included in these cases were:

Henrich Putten, a 69 year-old designer living outside Fredericton, jumped ship over 50 years ago and never bothered to register for landed-immigrant status. Although eligible for the old age pension, for nearly four years he had been afraid to apply for fear of being detected as an illegal immigrant. Reports indicate that he is now getting his pension and even received a year's back payments.

An immigration officer so involved in other people's problems under the program almost forgot about his wife. American born, his wife had no papers to show that her parents had brought her to Canada as a youngster ... a quick check with headquarters in Ottawa proved everything to be in order.

A 78 year-old wood turner in Charlottetown had been in Canada since 1939 but was not granted landed status until April of this year. An orphan, he ran away when he was 14 and left his native Sweden for a career on wooden sailing ships. He married a Canadian girl and thought everything was alright until the special program came along.

Another case involved an immigration officer who was being interviewed about the special program. When the interview was over, the radio broadcaster said he would like to register under the program immediately as he had come to Canada illegally about two years prior.

Graham Report On Education

A major recommendation of the Graham Commission, tabled in the Nova Scotia Legislature today by Premier Regan, is that Education should be financed entirely from Provincial Revenues. "In no other way," the commission states, "can equity be assured and Educational disadvantage, resulting from residence in less affluent regions or communities, be ended."

The Commission adds that in no other way can the Provincial Government determine the appropriate financial resources to be made available to Public School Education, having regard to the Government's priorities and to the demand for other services.

"What is needed and desired by most Nova Scotians," the Graham Commission reports, "is a reorganization of Public School Education that will return to parents, citizens and teachers, in individual school communities, a large measure of authority and responsibility for school programs, while making available to them the resources and support services they cannot possibly provide for themselves."

The report says the Provincial Authority must define the broad purposes of Education and provide for evaluation of school performance to assure that the purposes are being achieved.

In very specific terms, the Royal Commission spells out the general goals of education which it says should be established by the government:

- (1) To develop competence in effective communication, particularly through language;
- (2) To develop competence in basic arithmetic and understanding of the basic principles of mathematics;
- (3) To develop the habits and methods of critical and disciplined thinking;
- (4) To provide in school programs and activities opportunities for students to express and exercise originality and imagination; to develop civic, social and moral responsibility and judgement; to have their curiosity encouraged and to develop knowledge and understanding of themselves, their fellowmen, their environment and the relationship among the three; and family, to acquire habits, attitudes and intellectual skills that will be helpful in employment and in training for employment.

The Graham Commission states that all planning, development and implementation of Educational Institutions and programs should be based upon and related to these general goals.

In summary, the report says: "The general goals should be carefully and constantly distinguished from programs, courses and subjects of study, which are means of achieving these goals. These means vary from time to time, from place to place and from student to student."

"The goals remain constant. No school should be judged to have discharged its responsibility simply by teaching a course intended to further progress toward a goal, and no students should be assumed to have made progress toward any goal simply because they have successfully completed a course. The inclination to make such assumptions has been a principle weakness of current practice."

In other recommendations, the Graham Report stresses the need for the Province, through its Regional Educational Offices, to assure that schools meet the needs of ethnic and other minority groups. The Province should provide assistance in these efforts. It points out the unique requirement of Acadian Nova Scotians for instruction in the French language and for Bilingual Education.

The Province should also accept responsibility for the provision of special education services through schools and other institutions. The report states that in relation to the schools in general, and with particular reference to special education, the province should ensure the co-ordination and integration of services provided by Health, Education, Social Services and Recreation Departments and Agencies, to make the best services available and to guarantee the most effective and efficient use of personnel and resources.

The Commission says that beyond the schools, educational services should be made available to the community and people of all ages. Continuing Education should be greatly expanded, providing programs in response to need and demand, largely on a self-supporting basis.

Provincial efforts, the Report urges, at both the Central and Regional levels, should be devoted both to providing Continuing Education directly and, more particularly, to facilitating and coordinating the efforts of other agencies and of communities.

Mere extension of present programs and practices of formal educational institutions will not suffice. The Graham Commission states.

Imagination and flexible approaches must be developed and a major study of the field should be undertaken.

It is in this area, The Graham Report says, that the greatest developments and challenges in education will likely occur in the foreseeable future.

The vital importance of Vocational and Technical Education should be recognized, The Commission urges.

"The long standing attitude that Vocational and Technical Education are of less worth and significance than General Education must be corrected," The Report says.

It proposes that all Vocational and Technical Training should be placed together in a distinct division of the Department of Education and should be responsive to Manpower Development and Economic Policies as well as personal needs.

In the chapters dealing with the Universities of Nova Scotia, The Graham Commission says that the Universities should be made more accountable to the public, while maintaining the principle of academic freedom and engaging in more effective and orderly planning and coordination.

It suggests that the bulk of instruction cost should be borne by the students but that there should be ample provision of financial assistance to students, principally in the form of loans. This Report stresses that University Education should be readily available to all students who have the necessary capacity and interest, regardless of economic status.

The Royal Commission emphasizes the importance of the maintenance of high standards by Provincial Universities so that they will not be diverted from their essential functions of providing an opportunity for higher intellectual study, for the advancement of knowledge and the attainment of self-knowledge and for the preparation of people for the intellectually demanding professions.

"To do otherwise," The Graham Report says, "would jeopardize their discharge of these responsibilities and result in the wasteful expenditure of resources."

The Report says that the Universities must be strongly supported and assured of adequate financing to perform their central academic functions. "They should not have to depend on attracting large numbers of students without having regard to whether these students are capable of or interested in higher intellectual study," The Commission says.

It adds that if the Senior (Secondary) Schools do an effective job with general education and if programs of Continuing Education Art other than University levels are readily available outside of the Universities, there will be no need for the Universities to provide programs that are not of University level. The Universities have an important function in continuing education, but only at levels appropriate to a university.

In other specific recommendations, the Report says that the Province, through its Regional Offices of The Department of Education, should provide all administrative and professional support services to schools: advice, leadership, in-service training, personnel office, bookkeeping, custodial and maintenance services, supply and professional consultant services.

The Graham Report underscores the fact that the services and staff of the department of education should be largely regionalized so that both the Central and Regional Offices of the Department should be seen as providing necessary services to schools, not as directing or controlling them. It stresses that the authority of Regional Offices over schools should be confined to matters relating to finance and special education services.

The Report states that School Councils and the professional staffs should determine the best method of achieving the goals of education, within the limits of them.

Thursday, July 4, 1974

The school councils, partly elected and partly representing parents, citizens and teachers of the area.

Such councils would be established by the Department of Education, in each of the province's 11 regional offices.

The Regional Boards of Education in each region would represent a school or a cluster of schools.

largely elected but would also include representatives of parents and would co-ordinate schools and assisting in regional services, working through regional offices of the Department of Education.

The Graham Commission Report says that school autonomy proposed in its recommendations would have greater freedom but with greater responsibility.

The Report therefore recommends the establishment of the Nova Scotia Teachers College, Metropolitan County of Halifax, in affiliation with Dalhousie University. Minimum Degree would be established.

The Program for teachers education would include University-Level General Education, Training and a year of Internship during which teachers would spend about 80 per cent of the staff of a school and about 20 per cent in studies.

The Commission recommends that the Teachers College be established throughout the province and would be responsible for implementing the evaluation of practice teaching and internships for the provision of in-service training in cooperation with the Assistant Regional Director of Teacher Education.

The Report suggests these Field Centres be located in the Sydney Area, Antigonish, Wolfville, Truro, Dartmouth and perhaps one in Bridgewater. The Field Centres would preferably be located in existing centres now devoted to teacher education.

The Commission states that it attaches great importance to expanded and improved provisions for the training of teachers.

It suggests that each Regional Office of Education appoint as Assistant Regional Director of Education, who would have a primary responsibility for training as well as responsibilities in connection with the Nova Scotia Teachers College, for pre-service and internship.

The Report stresses that in-service training be regionalized to be fully effective.

The Graham Commission proposes that a single basic certificate for teachers be granted to graduates of the new Nova Scotia Teachers College. It also proposes a single salary scale be adopted for all teachers who accept equivalent duties. These two items would be in effect for a time period of perhaps seven years.

A crucial recommendation of the Graham Report is the establishment of the Nova Scotia School Councils, a representative, semi-independent body which would meet with the responsibility of ensuring that the Provincial Educational goals are met and are accountable to the public.

The School Council would be responsible for the evaluation of the performance of Schools, Regional Boards, Central and Regional Offices of Education and would recommend necessary educational practices, policy and financial

The School Commission would be appointed by the Governor in council on recommendation from the Minister of Education.

"The importance of the Nova Scotia School Commission in the proposed structure," The Graham Report says, "cannot be overemphasized. Largely autonomous schools will have to accept, together with their freedom, full responsibility for their performance."

"The Commission will provide the principle assurance to Government that this performance is satisfactory."

"At the same time, Regional Offices of the Department of Education and the Regional Boards of Education will be required to demonstrate to the satisfaction of this same body that schools have available the support and leadership they require."

The Graham Report continues: "The essential demand for Nova Scotians is for more freedom and local autonomy for their schools accompanied by Provincial financial support, adequate administrative and support services for schools, and a credible monitoring and evaluative system."

"The key to the success of a structure intended to meet these demands is the establishment of a Nova Scotia School Commission that has the prestige and independence necessary to discharge its heavy responsibilities."

Provision of an effective, impartial monitoring and evaluating agency, giving regular and full consideration to public satisfaction and opinion, will make it possible for administrators to administer, for teachers to teach, and for parents and students to regain their primary position in education, while protecting the financial and social interests of the larger provincial society."

Grant Building Permits

Building permits were granted at the regular Digby Town Council meeting on Tuesday evening to R.B. Bell, W.E. Cosman and J.E. Ritcey. A vote to permit Arnold Haines to erect a 14 x 68 mobile home on Victoria St. was defeated. The Cosmans will alter the exterior and interior of the Wilson's Hardware store, J.E. Ritcey will make additions to his house on King St. and R.B. Bell will erect a house on Queen St. The disrespect for authority in starting construction procedures without permission was brought up by council and will be given further scrutiny in the future.

The Minor Hockey League was given permission to hold tag days, July 19 to 20 to earn money for Natal Day purposes. The Digby Kiwanis Club was granted use of the ballfield for the Circus to be held on July 16 provided hydrants were attended to by town employees.

Chief assessor, Philip Don-dale, will be asked to supply figures of estimated loss to the town in revenue should the $4500 exemption of assessment to widows be followed. Consideration to the matter will be given at the next regular council meeting.

Bills for the month of June to the amount of $11,896 were passed.

The clerk was advised to write to Graham, Napier, Hebert and Associates Ltd. advising that there is no evidence of a contract between the Digby Town and their company for architectural services for renovating the Information Bureau for a Town Hall. The town had received a bill for more than $4000 for services.

Authority was given to borrow $18,000 from reserve funds for paving of Victoria St. and St. Mary's to King St.

The town signed an agreement with the Digby Kiwanis Club to lease property for a community swimming pool for 25 years at one dollar per year. The property is to be kept in good repair by Kiwanis. Further urging will be made for a ferry service between Digby and Welshpool, N.B.

In his report town clerk, Glen Pitman, announced that the twenty-five percent rebate on taxes is expected to be mailed out in about two weeks.

The town Information Booth opened on July 1.

Education For The Handicapped

HALIFAX—A bill concerning the education of visually or aurally handicapped persons in the Atlantic Provinces was introduced in the House last week by Hon. William Gillis, Minister of Education.

Known as the Handicapped Persons' Education Act, the new bill provides for facilities, personnel, programs and opportunities to be established, through the co-operative efforts of the Atlantic Provinces, for such handicapped persons. The legislative provision would take the form of special resource centres to be established in the Atlantic Provinces, under the authority of an incorporated body—the Atlantic Provinces special education authority.

Resource centres to be established would include centres in Amherst for hearing-handicapped persons, as well as for the technological and vocational training of handicapped persons. A resource centre for visually handicapped persons would be located in the Halifax-Dartmouth Metropolitan area. The authority would have the power to establish additional resource centres in the Atlantic area, if necessary.

Approval of the participating provinces would be required for all plans and specifications for each resource centre.

Dr. Gillis points out that the proposed resource centres are planned primarily for children and adults up to the age of 21, who normally reside in areas where there is no suitable provision for special education by the local school board. In every case, a first step in providing education for the visually and aurally handicapped would be to attempt to place candidates in a suitable educational program in their local school districts. Otherwise, the Atlantic Provinces special education authority would be required to provide education.

Under the proposed legislation, resource centre personnel would be employees of the special education authority, and, accordingly, provincial civil servants. The property at present belonging to the Institutions of the Halifax school for the blind and the Inter-provincial school for the deaf in Amherst would revert to the province of Nova Scotia, to be used for the purposes of the Atlantic Provinces special education authority.

Financing of the capital construction required for the resource centres would be proportionate, with Nova Scotia bearing 37 per cent of the cost; New Brunswick-30 per cent;

Newfoundland-28 per cent; and Prince Edward Island-5 per cent. Operational costs would be shared by the provinces in proportions equal to the percentage of handicapped persons admitted to the resource centres from each province.

Overall direction of the proposed resource centres would be by a superintendent appointed by the board of directors of the authority. In planning the facilities and programs of the resource centres, there would be provincial and local input from a provincial special education co-ordinating committee, working with locally appointed special education advisory committees. Mainly, membership of the special committees would be drawn from consultants and other experts in governments, teaching and other professions and occupations involved with services to handicapped persons.

Should the legislation be proclaimed as presented, the board of directors of the Atlantic Provinces special education authority would also appoint an executive committee for each resource centre, with representation from the provincial and local special advisory committees.

Movie Review

THE STING

THE STORY:

In six acts, an old con game is played. Robert Shaw, banker and racketeer, runs a numbers empire in Illinois in 1936. A Joliet runner, James J. Sloyan, is victimized by con artists Robert Redford, Robert Earl Jones and Jack Kehoe. When Jones is killed, Redford swears revenge. He contacts Jones' friend Paul Newman, a master con man now down on his luck. With backing from Harold Gould, John Heffernan and girl friend Eileen Brennan, Newman puts a plan into operation. He beats Shaw at poker during a game on a train, using Redford to lure Shaw to his phony Chicago betting parlor. Redford is constantly hounded by crooked cop Charles Durning and Shaw's hired gunmen, one of whom turns out to be a woman, Dimitra Arliss, posing as a waitress. Gould is set up as a Western Union executive with first-hand information on the outcome of horse races and Shaw starts betting as Redford's partner. The last act involves Shaw's placing $500,000 on a false tip and FBI agent Dana Elcar being in on the showdown.

Three of the top talents that previously collaborated on the classic "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" (1969) are reunited to make the b. o. hum again. Stars Paul Newman and Robert Redford and director George Roy Hill have given a new look to an old con game in an original screenplay by David S. Ward. Film cashes in on the nostalgia craze by being set in 1936. This isn't overdone, the costumes and backgrounds being authentic looking without resorting to drowning out the soundtrack with Thirties tunes. The old Universal trademark of the mid-30's, in b & w, provides a good mood-setting opening. The story is divided into six segments and concerns the two stars' efforts in swindling racketeer Robert Shaw out of a small fortune. Newman's role is actually secondary to that of Redford, who is constantly being beaten up, shot at and pursued. It's the kind of film an audience really responds to; the plot has two major twists, the climatic one being so neatly done that an invited per-view crowd bursts into spontaneous applause. Few movies today can boast of such ingredients. Tony Bill and Michael and Julia Phillips produced the Richard D. Zanuck-David Brown presentation, in Technicolor. In all, it's one of the year's funniest.

Mr. Smith was born in Yarmouth, January 16, 1917 and graduated from Yarmouth High School.

At the outbreak of war, September 2, 1939, he was called up for active duty with the 84th Field Battery. He received commission in 1941 and served in England and Northwest Europe. At the cessation of hostilities he was serving with the West Nova Scotia Regiment with the rank of Captain. He received the E.M. and Bar for Returning to Yarmouth in 1947, he joined the Department of Fisheries as Fishery Officer Grade 1. He was transferred to Lunenburg Co. and stationed with headquarters at Bridgewater as Inspector and Protection Officer. He served in Lunenburg Co. for thirteen years where he took an active part in organizing youth of that area and served as Vice-President of the Canadian Legion and was also president of the South Shore Senior Hockey League for a number of years.

Mr. Smith was a successful candidate for a Grade 11

Trudeau Gets Majority Government

Miss Coline Campbell, a Digby native and a legal aid lawyer, won the South Western Nova seat in Monday's federal election for the Liberals with a 1027 majority over the Conservative incumbent, Charles Haliburton, also a Digby lawyer. Miss Campbell polled 12,855 votes, Mr. Haliburton 11,849, Mrs. Yvonne Coe, Weymouth, 389 votes for the N.D.P., and Mrs. Cecilia Zwicker 148 for Social Credit.

Coline is the first woman in the province elected to represent a constituency in Nova Scotia in the federal government.

Monday's election saw Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau lead the Liberals to victory and a majority government by the Liberals capturing 140 of the 264 Canada wide seats. At latest reports, the Progressive Conservatives won 95, the N.D.P. 16, Social Credit 12, and an independent seat was won in New Brunswick. On the leadership level, Robert Stanfield retained his Halifax seat while the N.D.P. leader David Lewis, lost to Liberal Ursula Appolloni, in York South, Ontario. Social Credit leader, Real Caouette retained his seat in Temiscamingue.

Miss Campbell, who presently lives in Yarmouth, had made her home principally in Digby, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. L.F. Doiron and the late Dr. Doiron, following her mother's death. She is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Campbell who had lived in Belliveau's Cove, Digby Co. and in Yarmouth.

Coline, who is bilingual, received her B.A. degree from Saint Francis Xavier University, and her B.Ed. from Laval University in Quebec. Miss Campbell taught school for five years in Halifax, CFB Cornwallis, Digby and Montreal, before attending the University of Ottawa to receive a degree in law.

She is a member of the bar society of both Ontario and Nova Scotia, and has been a legal aid lawyer since March, 1973.

Other Nova Scotia winners are J. Patrick Nowlan, P.C., Annapolis Valley, 3,559 majority; Rev. Andy Hogan, N.D.P., Cape Breton-East Richmond, 4,564; Hon. A.J. MacEachen, Liberal, Cape Breton-Highlands-Canso, 5,472;

Robert Muir, P.C., Cape Breton - The Sydney, 1206; Elmer MacKay, P.C., Central Nova, 5275; Robert Coates, P.C., Cumberland - Colchester North, 4106; J.M. Forrester, P.C., Dartmouth - Halifax East, 3701; Robert McCleave, P.C., Halifax East Hants, 6478 and Lloyd Crouse P.C., South Shore 4976. The majority of Hon. R.L. Stanfield P.C., in Halifax was 2653.

Third Senior Citizens

Home Started

The third Senior Citizens Home for Digby got a start on Victoria Street on Tuesday under a contract with Boyd and Garland Company for $309,344.00. The arrangement is with the Central Mortgage and Housing on the federal level and the Town of Digby on the municipal level.

There will be twenty units and one common room in the tri-level building.

A recently completed Senior Citizens Home is on St. Mary's West street and one, constructed several years previous, is on King Street.

Donates $200

The Digby Board of Trade executive on Wednesday evening July 3, voted to give the M.S. Victoria Welcoming Committee $200 to help defray expenses when the cruise ship comes to Digby in August and September. On the committee from the Trade Board and the Digby Annapolis Tourism and

It was decided not to choose a Tourist of the Week in Digby in 1974.

Membership dues of $50 in the Canadian Chamber of Commerce were passed for payment.

Tuesday evening, July 9, the Digby Board of Trade failed to obtain a quorum for its regular meeting. No business was transacted but the president Ernest Ryan read a letter from Lloyd Hill, executive manager of the Annapolis Valley Affiliated Boards of Trade which revealed June passenger traffic in 1974 on the Princess of Acadia was down ten per cent over last year and to date in July it is down fifteen per cent. The executive manager indicated that the raise in rates might be responsible for the decrease since traffic on the Bluenose and Prince of Fundy increased for the same periods and the Bolero held its own.

The son of the late Capt. Frank E. Smith, who is well known in the coastal area of Digby, who also served with the R.C.M.P. and passed away while serving the Royal Canadian Navy. Glen Smith is married to the former Lorraine Martin, has seven children and is at present residing at 189 King St.

During his six years as Mayor of the Town of Digby, Mr. Smith had been influential in organizing numerous projects for the benefit of the town.

Maude Lewis Paintings Displayed Until August 14

About 50 paintings by Digby's famous primitive style artist, the late Maud Lewis, will be on display at the art gallery at Mount St. Vincent, Halifax until August 14. The show which opened there two weeks ago in conjunction with a display of naval paintings continues and is open to visitors, it is understood. In March of this year an exhibition of the Maud Lewis paintings was held by the Sackville (N.B.) Art Association at the Owens Art Gallery in Mount Allison University. Above in the picture is seen Mrs. Ruth Stanley, Association president, holding the attention of children to whom she described the life and work of Maud Lewis. Mrs. Stanley holds the Buggy Ride painted by the famous artist.

Those in and around Digby who contributed Maud Lewis paintings for the exhibit in Sackville were Mrs. Helen Anthony, Miss Marjory McCormick, Mrs. Lloyd McNeil, Mrs. J.M. Wallis, Dr. D.E. Lewis and Mrs. J.E. March, Weymouth. Letters and newspaper clippings were also on display.

Information Bureau Opened

Digby town Information Bureau opened on July 1 with Mrs. E.B. Tufts, Birch St. in charge assisted by Mrs. Valerie Hersey and Miss Brenda Smith, it was announced at the regular meeting of Town Council on Tuesday evening.

The financial statement presented by Glen Pitman, town clerk, revealed the finances for the first six months of 1974. Should the next six months reveal a similar statement there is every expectation of balancing expenses.

Mayor Willard Kinney, who presided, gave a report from the Home For the Aged and Infirm, Tideview Terrace, which showed the Home to be 95 per cent filled and now on a paying basis.

There were two calls for Digby Volunteer Fire Department in June, both being in the municipality with a loss of $9400.

Hole In One

Another Hole In One was scored at the Digby Pines Golf Course on Monday by Donald Brown, Digby, while playing with Gerald Buckler and John Langley, Bear River. Scoring was par three, second hole, 178 yards, four iron.

FIRE CAUTION

Vacation time is here. That means picnic time and camping time. That also means that the forests are dry unless there has been an extra fall of rain to dampen them. It is a time for extreme caution by picknickers and campers or anyone enjoying a summer hike through the woods. The tiny spark from a lighted match, a campfire or a burning cigarette can turn a tinder-dry forest into a raging holocaust, said Guy Masland in his article written on behalf of the N.S. Communication and Information Centre.

In minutes the beauty which has taken nature many years to create can be destroyed by fire and the lives of birds and animals which are so valuable to our environment can be snuffed out. Fire can scorch the earth with such intensity that we will not see the land return to its normal state in our lifetime, he cautioned.

Mr. Masland's article noted the protection afforded through the Department of Lands and Forests equipment and its means of reducing the number of serious fires. The best protection, however, is "Don't let fires start." That's up to you and me. Have fire-caution a by-word.

ANOTHER FIRST FOR DIGBY

Being the first woman in the province of Nova Scotia to be elected to a seat in the federal government is certainly not the most important aspect of Monday's election in South Western Nova and we are sure that the winning candidate, Miss Coline Campbell, would be the last to suggest that such a status is the most important feature. There are problems to be tackled and Coline knows it. Nevertheless, the fact that Coline is the first woman to represent Nova Scotia in the House of Commons is significant to us and behooves us to add our congratulations to a hometown girl on this score as well as on others. It was a first for Digby and the honor of a first in Nova Scotia which came to Digby. We are proud of that fact as well as being proud of a Digby girl who has achieved so much in her few years and is willing to shoulder tremendous responsibilities for this end of the province. We wish Miss Campbell well and hope that South Western Nova (and especially Digby where our interests be) might do well with a "first woman" responsible to spading the pathway to success.

That responsibilities will not be light is a surety. Maybe the first problem to tackle will be inflation, the seeming issue of the July 8 election. Most of us are not economists and have little to offer in the field other than such slogans as "Waste not, want not", "Don't Buy Beyond Your Means", "Pay As You Go" and "Look to the ant thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise" etc. The last bit of philosophy intrigues us and seems to have some bearing on the correction of some of our problems today. The ant is a very busy little creature, intent on making its own way, finding its own food, building its own structure for lodging. Would it that we in this economic plight consider his value in production. High wages, welfare cheques and handouts without comparable production lines are bound to give way under "fleecing".

Yes, inflation is only one of the hurdles to overcome. We offer no cure, only a few words of old-fashioned common sense, but we hope that "Digby's first woman elected federally" and those with whom she works, whether Liberal, Conservative, N.D.P., Social Credit or Independent might find an answer to the inflation riddle.

Congratulations to "Another First For Digby", Coline.

Hodge Podge

To be praised from each of two broadsides and likewise, blasted from each of two broadsides must put one fair square impartially in the middle with only the splinters being neglected. Remember when you were told to cut down on bread and potatoes. Bad for the waist line. What did we read the other day but to keep down weight, eat more bread and potatoes. Soon this health racket will get as confusing as politics.

By the traffic downtown on Monday morning, the tourist season must be in full swing. The polls didn't look busy enough for the election to cause the traffic.

Has time changed or is there a change in times? Do you find the time long we asked a recently retired lady. Simply can't find enough hours in the day for doing nothing, was her reply.

Demonstrate Floral And Artistic Arrangements

The monthly meeting of the Admiral Digby Horticultural Society, held at the home of Miss Elsie Robertson, on the evening of July 3rd, was chaired by Mrs. Bruce Hutchins. In attendance were twenty-three Garden Club members.

Reports were given by committees in charge of the Admiral Digby Park garden, Loyalist Cemetery, the garden at the former Tourist Bureau, and the garden at the War Memorial Monument. All are in good condition with a pleasing appearance. Trash containers are needed at the various locations.

Mrs. George Winfield, in charge of the arrangements for the afternoon tea at the Flower Show, reported all in readiness. Mrs. A. Wentzell will arrange the small flower vases for center of each tea table and Mrs. Bruce Hutchins will arrange the large flower bowl for serving table.

It was with regret that members decided not to participate in the Natal Day parade as there was not sufficient time to make the necessary plans.

There is a possibility that clinics may be held for garden club members and non-members in several locations with a Department of Agriculture representative being present to give advice. This is something that was discussed at the District meeting at Bear River in May. Clinics may be held in the spring or fall. It would be an opportunity for owners of new homes to learn about landscaping, preparing flower beds and gardens. It was understood that the clinics would be open to the general public.

At the close of the business meeting, three Garden Club members demonstrated displays suitable as entries for the Flower Show being held on August 14th at the new Fire Hall. The theme for 1974 being for adults - "Our World in Flowers" and for children - "It Is A Small World".

Mrs. A. Wentzell demonstrated a low container filled with white iris with green touches for balance. This was Class No. 2 "The Waters".

Mrs. H. Warne showed a dark vase filled with white flowers and weeds with shades of green intermingling. This was Class No. 5 "The Atmosphere".

Honor 90 Year Old

The Women's Missionary Society of the Smith's Cove Baptist Church met on Wednesday, July 2, at the home of Mrs. Oakley Smith. Miss Sue Winchester, president, conducted the meeting which opened with the singing of a hymn, prayer and reading of chapter 7 in Romans. The Roll Call word was JOY.

Members were asked to send a shower of cards to the only charter member of this society

Mrs. Warne also had a display representing Class No. 2 "Forestry". The container was a large round piece of driftwood filled with branches of ash, maple and pine with small green sprays throughout the arrangement.

Mrs. Louise Stephen demonstrated a long, low container of garden and wild flowers ranging in shades from pale lavender to deep purple with sprays of apple mint for color co-ordination. This represented Class No. 4 "The Arts."

Miss Tupper thanked the ladies for their hard work and imagination in preparing the arrangements and commenting upon how each one was planned.

A social hour was enjoyed by the Club members and Miss Robertson was assisted in serving refreshments by co-hostesses Mrs. W. Como and Mrs. B. Ellis.

Plan Tuna Week Festival

Hugh Tinkham, Yarmouth M.I.A. this week told the Tuna Week Festival Association that the Department of Tourism would provide funds for a week long Tuna Festival from Aug. 26th to Sept 2nd. The Tuna Week Festival Committee has only needed the confirmation of available funds before putting their plans for the Festival Week into action.

The Committee has the plans; the Department of Tourism is providing money and the committee is looking forward to the enthusiastic participation of all the people of South West Nova Scotia. The aim of the Committee is to attract many visitors to this part of the province and to involve the people of the area in the greatest participation possible. Plans are underway for; a Ladies Golf Tournament in Clare; a tuna barbecue at St. Mary's Anglers Association Club House; a dory race in Wedgeport; male and female bike races in Wedgeport; a clam bake in Tusket.

The Tuna Tournament Queen Pageant will be in Yarmouth on Saturday, August 31st. During July and August the princesses who will be contestants in the Queen Pageant will be chosen at events held in the Municipalities of Argyle, Clare, and Yarmouth. The staff of C.I.S. will help arrange events to choose the princesses and will make arrangements for the Queen Pageant.

Mr. Ricky Burke, chairman of the Tuna Tournament Parade in Yarmouth on Labour Day already has plans underway for the Parade.

LETTER

Dear Mrs. Wallis:

I wish to thank you for the opportunity of doing research from the Digby Courier. It contains a wealth of information. Such a paper is the nucleus of a small town like Digby.

I also wish to express my admiration of you as editor of the Digby Courier for these many years. A small town without a local paper is like a man without a mouth. Such a paper provides a forum in which ideas can be expressed and exchanged. Thus the owner and editor of such a paper provides a vital service to the community.

Thank you again for your co-operation.

Yours sincerely,
Barry Jennings

Little League Baseball News

By Bob McVeigh
MERCHANTS HAND LIONS
SECOND LOSS 19-7

Led by the heavy bats of Kynock, Scott, Skinner, Theriault, the Merchants easily defeated the Lions on July 3rd by the score of 19-7. Ricky Kynock had a walk, two triples and a home run in five trips while doing a solid job behind the plate. Paul Scott had three singles, scored three runs in five trips and pitched an inning and half in relief. Jeff Skinner did the mound chores for four and one half innings, he allowed three hits and four runs while striking out eleven and at bat contributed home run, triple and single. Paul Theriault had a home run, and three singles in five trips and scored four runs. The Lions scored one run in each of the first two innings, two in the fourth and three in the sixth. John Connolly scored two of these runs on three walks in four trips for the Lions. Brian Jefferson and Kirk Mackintosh were the only ones to get extra bases - (3) off the pitching of Paul Scott. Probably the most significant part of this game was the number of men caught on the bases by the Lions, in other words, the Lions base running needs improvement. The Merchants were coached by Laurence Comeau and the Lions by Linden Garron. Line-Ups: Ricky Kynock, Paul Scott, Jeff Skinner, Paul Theriault, Linden Turnbull, David Comeau, Keith Mackintosh, David Margolian, Paul Gidney (Merchants).

Jamey Walsh contributed a single, two doubles, a triple and home run in five trips to lead the batting onslaught of the K of C. According to all reports this game produced good ball and was a crowd pleasing game to watch. Kevin Mosher continued to lead his team in batting with three hits in as many trips (single, double and home run), incidentally, this game gave Kevin a 1-1 record in the pitching department for the Kiwanis. Randy Gidney, Randy Wilson and Arnold Englehart scored five runs between them on four walks and a hit for the Kiwanis. Coaches were Jack Ritcey (Kiwanis) and Stan Locke (Kof C) and the umpires were Murray Mont and David Riley.

Summertime Serenade At Digby Pines

"Summertime Serenade" will visit the area and perform at CFB Cornwallis on Thursday, July 11 at 8:30 p.m. and at the Digby Pines Hotel on July 12.

In the summer of 1973 a group of twelve musicians wended their way around the towns and villages of Nova Scotia giving performances of everything 'from Bach to Bacharach' sometimes in the village hall, on the local church lawn and with the odd performance at the major hotel resorts in the province.

This year's edition of "summertime serenade" is bigger and better and will travel further afield. The group will visit New Brunswick, Quebec, Prince Edward Island and Ontario, with performances at 'Man and His World' where they will also sign the golden book at Montreal City Hall for Mayor Jean Drapeau. They will also perform at the Charlottetown Festival and present over 30 performances throughout Nova Scotia. This busy schedule will be topped with a week of performances at the Nova Scotia Festival of the Arts in the James Dunn Auditorium.

The project is funded by the Opportunities for Youth Programme and with assistance from the Nova Scotia Department of Education (Adult Division) and the Department of Recreation - other stores and companies have assisted in this venture.

The entire preparation and production of the show is by A.G. Scott-Savage, the Music Advisor from the Department of Education (Adult Division).

"SUMMERTIME SERENADE" The programme includes choruses from Nova Scotia, French Canada, operatic arias, songs from Broadway shows, Folk songs...in fact 'Everything from Bach to Bacharach'.

ATV Looks At Ethiopia: The Hidden Empire

An isolated, still legendary land, where blazing desert wastes lie 15 minutes from cool 10,000 foot highlands and tribesmen carrying spears and hippopotamus-hide shields dwell in an easy drive from a neon-lighted capital...this is Ethiopia, a land whose very name spells mystery and romance. On Sunday July 14, 7-8pm ADT, the ATV Television Network visits this fascinating country in "Ethiopia: The Hidden Empire", a "National Geographic Society Special". From Debra Damo, a monastic community located a cable ride up a steep cliff to the seldom penetrated jungles of Gamo-Goga and Ilubabor, the program searches this land of geographical, cultural and linguistic barriers. Among the unusual sights captured are the gentle monks famous Gougs Faras horsemen who for centuries dominated the Ethiopian highlands and Gondar, Ethiopia's capital in the middle Ages, where travelers from the West first reported on this mysterious land.

Finally, in the modern capital of Addis Ababa we meet the King of Kings, the Lion of Judah, His Imperial Highness Emperor Haile Selassie. This truly remarkable man legendary descendant of Solomon and Sheba, is filmed for the first time while praying in the basilica of Mehan Alem. This is followed by the Grand Parade commemorating the liberation of Ethiopia in 1941 from Italian occupation. The festivities are concluded with a diplomatic reception at the Grand Palace.

"Ethiopia: The Hidden Empire" is narrated by Joseph Campanella, and produced by the National Geographic Society in association with Metromedia Producers Corp. Robert C. Doyle is executive producer of the National Geographic Society and Jack Kaufman of MPC is executive in charge of production for the series.

EXCUSE MY FRENCH

"Excuse My French" makes its appearance this fall on ATV. Written by Paul Wayne ("The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour," "All In The Family") and directed by Jack Shea ("The Waltons," "Sanford & Son") the story takes a humorous look at the "two solitudes" of Canada and their unexpected collision. Set in Montreal, "Excuse My French" revolves around the trials and tribulations of Peter and Marie-Louise Hutchins, a young married couple, and the constant interventions of their not-so-well-matched relatives. The main characters in "Excuse My French" are Peter Hutchins, a law student struggling to keep up his studies, adjust to married life and escape the grasp of his wealthy father; and Marie-Louise Hutchins, Peter's new bride and the family breadwinner, who is constantly dodging a plentiful supply of kinfold.

THE DIGBY COURIER

"Jewels of the Depths", gems of the oceans - Venus Comb, Triton Trumpet, Jewel Box, Butterfly, Spiral Staircase, Sun Dial, Sea Shells. The very names conjure up visions of tropical isles, but you don't have to travel to far away places to find these beauties of the deep. We have them right here in the Bay of Fundy and the Annapolis Basin. Beneath the sometimes cold, gray waters of Fundy lie shells of rose, mauve, deep purple, ivory tinged with pink, yellow, orange and red.

I recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Avyn Ellis of Victoria Beach, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia, who has a collection that would arouse the envy of any collector.

Their museum is in their home, a white house set high on a hill, overlooking the Basin of Digby Gut and it is open to the public from July to September.

Housed in their sun porch which goes around two sides of the house, the museum is well worth the trip from Annapolis Royal, or if you are visiting the Basin, drive the extra five miles and see this fine collection of marine life. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have a view that money can't buy.

At their feet are the blue waters of the Annapolis Basin, dappled with sunlight and across the narrow passage, green wooded hills. At their back, the North Mountain rises up and runs up through the Annapolis Valley.

Looking out through the Gut, I saw fog banks, like a gray mirage, towered hills, and above them a sunset of rose, edged here and there with touches of pure gold. The sleek, white Princess of Acadia was making her way down the Basin, trailing misty plumes of white smoke. I couldn't resist taking a picture of her before entering the house. Mr. Ellis, a World War II veteran, has been a fisherman for many years. His wife comes from Black River, Kings County and has been a teacher for many years at the Annapolis Royal Regional Academy.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis didn't plan to become collectors, it just happened. First it was a deformed claw from a lobster in his traps, then a white lobster, a claw from a 25 pound lobster and so it went, on and on. His latest addition to the lobster is spotted. Alive when I saw it, it had spots of yellow, red, orange, brown and black. He calls it his leopard lobster.

Prior to 1967, Mr. Ellis had a few oddities garnered from the sea. Now he has over 500 catalogued species of marine life and many more not yet identified.

I took one look at the mass of colour, design and shapes and I wondered where to start. It only takes one question. "How did all this begin?" They are such hospitable people and so willing to explain all about the shells that I soon found it hard to keep up with my notes.

From a small collection for their own enjoyment, it has mushroomed into a capsule museum. Many of the shells and forms of marine life are local, some have been sent to them by friends and others come from tourists who have visited them.

One box arrived, and Mrs. Ellis told me she was sure the donor had forgotten to put anything in the box. They gave me a magnifying glass and there I saw a tiny spiral shell almost too small to be believed. They have our own delicate green and gray Sea Urchins with their beautiful intricate markings. From England they have large Sea Urchins four of five inches across, in shades of purple and brown, mauve and white. The Sun Dial Shell has circles marked off like a sun dial and was used by the ancient Chinese to tell time. The Atlantic Sea Limpet looks exactly like a tiny coolie hat. The Butterflies, when open, look as if they could fly to the nearest flower.

The Murex Snail was used by the Phoenicians to dye their cloth. They hold a yellow secretion, which, when boiled down makes a permanent purple dye. They have three of these lovely shells. One is rose and ivory, one rose and white and the third a striking combination of rose and jet black. The Venus Comb, it is very fragile and delicate with large, slender teeth on three sides. It is chalky white, a comb for a mermaid. The Big Rock Scallops, snowy white, has a half inch band of deep purple around the edge. This one has coral growth in the centre.

Abalone - Shimmering mother-of-pearl, holds all the colour of the rainbow inside. Helms come in all shades of yellow and orange with brown markings, spots, stripes and bands, no two are alike.

The Fluted Clams are large and heavy. They are smooth as satin from the ceaseless action of the waves. Pink tinged with white, they have a deep fluted edge, and the feel of heavy china.

Spiral Staircases from Japan. They look like a tiny ivory staircase. The real name is Thacherta. The Cup and Saucer delighted me. Tiny fluted shells like fine Balls are rung.

Princess of Acadia on the beautiful Bay of Fundy.

bone china and inside each, Comes come in all sizes and another smaller edition of the first, with the same dainty, fluted edge. A fairy Cup and Saucer from Mexico. There are also local varieties of this shell.

Sea Spiders - rose and ivory. There is a Left Handed Whelk with spines that look like spider legs and a head of crusty white beads. I thought Mr. Ellis was putting me on, but there are left handed Whelks and right handed Whelks - the spirals are clockwise and counter-clockwise.

The lovely little flat Sand dollars are white and a soft gray. In the centre of each are five perfect petals looking as if they had been drawn by an artist. Mrs. Ellis makes lovely pins of these. She presented me with one - a gray one.

Then we come to the Coral, Bow Coral, Brain Coral, Feather Coral and on top of one case a large piece of Stag Horn Coral, a gift to a young couple in Granville. Ferry on the occasion of their marriage in 1965. The Hairy Triton, a cousin of the Trumpet Triton, striped orange and black. A sea Tiger, perhaps? Dainty little Florida Tree Snails are less than two inches long. Each shell is made up of bands of pastel colour divided by a line as fine as if it had been drawn by a penman.

The deep Red Coral comes from the Red Sea and there is a piece of Coral dated 1963 from the West Indies.

This is long, slender, spiralled, with a tapered tail making it look exactly like a mouse. Mrs. Ellis handed me a small shell and asked me what it looked like. In the centre two or three small white teeth, one looking as if it had just come through. I told her it looked like baby teeth. "What else?" she asked. "As if they had bled a little?" She said, "That is it exactly," they are called Bleeding Teeth.

Baby's Foot looks as if it had a tiny plaster cast of a foot in the centre of the mother-of-pearl shell. Slipper Shell is foot shaped and has a toe band very much like our scuffs.

They have recently started a collection of sand, our own fine grain brown-white sand, black volcanic sand from Hawaii, also black sand from Lorraineville, New Brunswick. A sand that looks like crushed shell from Fiji and a coarse sand called Mystic sand from Connecticut.

Mr. Ellis handed me a stone, gray and heavy, with perfect circles drilled all the way through it. I put my finger in one and it was as smooth as glass. How did the holes get there? The Pigot Clam drills them.

The tiny deep blue Sailor Shells float on top of the water. Pink Chitons come from Florida and the blue Chiton from British Columbia. There is local coral with tiny starfish still clinging to it.

They have Starfish of all colour and sizes, purple, red and the pink-beige starfish we are better acquainted with. Basket Starfish is so intricate and interlaced it looks like tatting or crochet, fan shape and flat.

When the starfish loses a leg it can grow another, and Mr. Ellis has one with two wingy new legs just starting and one with an extra leg. There is a Baliseen Whale Bone from Resolute Bay, N.W.T. given to him by a friend and found six feet under the ice by a bush pilot.

There is a Petrosky Fossil and a Petrified Twig from Georges Bank, a Horseshoe Crab so strong that it moved with Mr. Ellis standing on it. In another part of the sunroom they have many bottles of marine life. Dogfish puppets six inches long, a tiny sea horse, a seeded crab, a sea mouse and a sea bat, which is really a sea worm. Egg cases from the shark and Rock Eel eggs in jelly, much like our frog eggs only much larger. There is a small octopus in a jar and a sea cucumber in full blossom. Who would think that a fish with the ugly name of Lump Fish would provide caviar for export to Japan?

One quite rare specimen is a Sea Robin, which is not often found in this area.

I have left the most interesting shell for the last. It is the lovely Chambered Nautilus. This beautiful creature is striped brown and cream. The adult can have as many as thirty chambers, which are connected by a canal. By means of an extremely complex arrangement the Nautilus uses these chambers to enable itself to rise and sink. By means of absorption and secretion they act as gas ballasts. It is one of Nature's most complex inventions and is only found in the Nautilus and to some extent in the Cuttlefish. A Chambered Nautilus is really a living fossil. It is one of the rarest forms of life. Jacques Cousteau studied the Nautilus for months in order to adapt the same principle for a mini-sub. Mr. Ellis has several Chambered Nautilus. Four hours flew by before I knew it and I had spent one of the most rewarding evenings of my life. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis are so interesting to talk to that I hope not only tourists, but local people who have not seen their collection will avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing this museum and learning more about sea life. They also have handcrafts - lobster traps in all sizes even coffee table size, candle holders made from Sea Urchins, quill pen sets, the pen hooks and jigs, sail needles and the leather palm thimble used in making sail, buoys, and Planters from net, shells set in polished hardwood, pins and As for me, I don't think I will go back. I could easily get hooked on shells!

B.A.R.N. '74

July 30th to August 3rd

IMPORTANT DOCUMENT.

Dear Friends,

We are sending this letter to everyone in the mid-valley area hoping you will make time to read it. At the end of July we are holding a series of meetings at the Barn and we wish to invite you personally to attend and bring with you your family and friends. The meetings will be known as B.A.R.N. 74 (Born Again Revival Now 74). There is no clearer directive in the whole Bible than the one in John 3 where we are told that if we want to experience the Kingdom of God we must be Born Again, or, in other words, become spiritual persons led moment by moment by God's Holy Spirit. The choice is ours - either we can continue to live aimless defeated lives, slaves to bad habits and despair, or we can ask God for the supernatural act of being Born Again and start straightaway to live the abundant life He intended for us on this earth to be followed with certainty by Eternal Life in Heaven. Our meetings will explain how easy it is to be Born Again.

After many years of being defeated, ineffective so-called Christians the organisers of these meetings have quite recently been Born Again. We discovered that a life time in a church no more made us Christians than putting a wheel-barrow in a garage makes it a Buick. There are even some church officers who still labour ineffectively under their own power because no one has ever bothered to show them the spiritual power available from being Born Again. Moreover, there are few homes that are incapable of improvement and we urge you, with all the power we can, to come to our meetings and hear what God will do for you and your loved ones, your family life and relationships once you have taken the initial step of being Born Again. If you are already Born Again we still welcome your presence to pray while others hear the message.

We must stress that we are NOT asking you to join or change your particular denomination or church. But we ARE asking you to come and consider Christ's command that you be BORN AGAIN.

In the service of Jesus,
The Helpers of the Born Again Barn.

'Clare Suffering Lack Of Identity'

The municipality of Clare, located in the western part of the province is suffering from lack of identity and efforts should be made to make the area better known, the president of College Sainte Anne said Tuesday night.

Louis R. Comeau, a former MP for the area, said the municipality of Clare is "losing out on many things" because it is not identified with any known location in the area.

Mr. Comeau explained that Clare is not named on road maps or other literature promoting the area because Clare is the name of the County and not a particular village or community.

Better identification of the name would be an asset for the whole area, Mr. Comeau suggested.

The tourist industry, in particular, would benefit from attempts to better publicize the county.

He said strangers hearing about the Clare Festival, the Clubs of Clare or even the Municipality of Clare have no idea of the exact location of the event.

To remedy the situation, he suggested the name Digby be included with the name Clare so that people would get a better idea of just where Clare is located.

He admitted that the name Clare dates back to the 1760's and is well-known in the western part of the province.

But, he suggested, people in many other parts of the province are unfamiliar with the exact location of the County of Clare.

Serious thought should be given to better identifying the area, he said, adding that he has brought the matter before the municipal council of the district of Clare.

"The matter has been bugging me for some time ... so I decided to do something about it," he added.

Movie Review

THE GOLDEN VOYAGE OF SINBAD

Dynarama, the combining of animation and live action, enhances a new version of the Sinbad legend. The Arabian Nights hero encounters the creations of special effects wizard Ray Harryhausen, who wrote the original story with Brian Clemens (screenplay by Clemens) and co-produced with Charles H. Schneer for the latter's Morningside Productions. The monsters, particularly the half-man half-bat homunculus, tend to be more interesting than the live actors. Audiences, whether adult or children, may be rooting for the creatures rather than the heroes, but just about everyone should enjoy the new Columbia release. Three years in the preparation and filming, "Voyage" was shot in Spain and follows the course of action employed in such earlier Dynarama films as "The Seventh Voyage of Sinbad" (1958) and "Mysterious Island" (1961). John Philip Law is a manly Sinbad, Caroline Munro displays an incredible amount of cleavage for her part and villainous Tom Baker is reminiscent of Conrad Veidt in the classic "Thief of Bagdad" (1940). Some of the dialog is unconsciously funny while all of the actors speak with accents to add a realistic touch. Music by Miklos Rozsa. Considering a lack of fantasy films and G product, "Sinbad" looks good. Starring: John Philip Law, Caroline Munro, Tom Baker, Douglas Wilmer, Martin Shaw, Gregoire Aslan.

THE STORY: "THE GOLDEN VOYAGE OF SINBAD"

An amulet dropped by an albatross is retrieved by Captain Sinbad (John Philip Law). The evil Prince Tom Baker, accompanied by Takis Emmanuel, knows that the amulet is part of a medallion which will lead to a fabulous treasure. Vizier Douglas Wilmer, who wears a mask to cover his burned face, accompanies Law on a voyage to find the treasure. Law's companions include slave girl Caroline Munro and merchant Gregoire Aslan's worthless son Kurt Christian. The island of Lemuria provides the location for a confrontation between Law and Baker. Using his magical powers, which age him considerably, Baker brings to life a homunculus and a six-armed idol to menace Law's group. A centaur and a griffin battle over Munro. Revitalized by a fountain of youth, Baker dons a cloak of invisibility to duel Law.

Noted Artist Visits Digby

Trudy and James Doyle, of Gananoque, Ontario, were visitors in Digby last week where they renewed acquaintances, having been posted here at CFB Cornwallis in 1952, and lived on Montague Row, Digby, for a short time. Among those Mr. and Mrs. Doyle visited was Howard Oliver, who is employed at the Digby Post Office.

Trudy Doyle is a professional artist and James Doyle is a writer and their children follow their parents in the fields of art and journalism. On some of the projects Trudy does the art work and her husband writes the scripts, e.g., a hard-covered book depicting scenes and life in Kingston, Ontario.

Trudy Doyle, born in Coventry, England, won her first art scholarship at age 12 which signalled the start of her long and classic formal art education. She studied under the direction of Royal Academicians, Walter Ashworth and Robert Candy and twice won Britain's coveted Sir Thomas White Award for painting, which enabled Trudy to continue her advanced education for her career as a professional artist. Following graduation from the Coventry College of Art and the termination of World War 2, Trudy painted throughout England, Wales, Scotland and Continental Europe.

She became a Canadian after marriage to writer James Doyle and concentrated on the fishing coves of Nova Scotia. Her seascapes of this period in the early 1950's gained her an international following of art patrons. She still completes two Maritime painting trips each year in constant search for new inspiration in the magnificent and rugged coves of the Canadian and American maritime provinces and states.

In the winter her wide-ranging painting trips take her from the snow-covered cabins, barns and mills of the Ottawa Valley to the picturesque ports of the Caribbean, Bahamas, and Mexico. Her paintings are in collections all over the world and she is currently exhibiting in galleries in Halifax, Ottawa, Toronto, and other parts of Canada as well as England, and the United States.

Mrs. Doyle, in an interview with The Digby Courier, said that her pictures of Digby attract most attention and are most readily saleable.

Liverpool Seniors Visit Digby

The Digby New Horizons Club entertained members of the Liverpool Friendship Club for senior citizens here this week. Some forty members of the Liverpool group made a day-long excursion trip to Digby, lunching at the Digby Pines and spending a social hour at the new activity centre of the Digby senior citizens' organization.

The Liverpool Friendship Club has an active membership of some 65 senior citizens. Altogether some 175 seniors participate in activities sponsored by the club. Included in the activities is the "Merrymakers", a combination band-choral group numbering about thirty. The Merrymakers, under the direction of Mrs. William VanZoost, provide entertainment, not only in the Liverpool area but have also accepted invitations beyond the local area.

Membership in the Liverpool Friendship Club is open to all citizens 60 years of age and over. The club, which pre-dates the New Horizons movement, was organized by the Association of Churches in the Liverpool area. Its chief aim is to provide sociability and friendship for senior citizens. President of the club is Mrs. Paul Wywie of Liverpool whose energy and enthusiasm is responsible for much of the club's activity.

Since it was organized some two and a half years ago, the club has sponsored an exchange trip for senior citizens to Hamilton, Ontario; entertained senior citizen visitors from Hamilton, developed an active visiting committee and a hospital program in addition to the Top Generation band-choral group. The club has also purchased a former school bus which they use for trips about the province. The bus has been turned over to the local Lions Club who operate it for the senior citizens group.

Students Study Marine Ecology

The Study of Marine Ecology of the Annapolis Basin Youth Project began as scheduled on July 1, 1974. The project is divided into three groups, with two people in each group, in which each have a specific job to carry out. The groups are as follows: Underwater Film Study-Tom Lawley, Michael Grace; Land Planning-Robert Adshade, Heather Connell; Study of Bear Island, Sundae Nesbitt, Marlene Morehouse. Each job is being carried out as follows:

1) Underwater Film Study:- The main aim of this division of the project is to create a slide series on the marine life that is personified in the area. Michael Grace and Tom Lawley, who both are qualified N.A.U.I. divers, have the use of a Nikonos II and a Honeywell Strobner camera and flash unit to take the slides. The slides are to be put together with a taped sound track and will be available towards the end of the summer for presentation to interested groups. At the present time they have organized and obtained all necessary equipment and have already made several dives, two of which were for the purpose of locating and identifying marine organisms in our selected area. The remaining dives will be devoted to taking slides.

2) Land Planning:- The purpose of environmental planning is to discover what actually is happening in an area and how various land uses will change it. An account of land characteristics may be analyzed by compiling a land inventory through the study of the land naturally and specific reference maps on geology, hydrology, vegetation, etc. Once the area has been accessed one may then decide what is appropriate and inappropriate in terms of long range benefits. Environmental planning is of great concern to today's fast growing world where land must be developed wisely to extend its full potential. The scarcity of available land assures that conservative usage will be of great benefit.

3) Bear Island:- This aspect of the project is controlled by Sundae Nesbitt and Marlene Morehouse. They have visited the island on several occasions and through the aid of authorized contact persons have started plans for converting the island to a sanctuary for natural wildlife. They are now also working on a town survey to see how many people would like to have Bear Island made into a sanctuary. In doing some oceanography of the surrounding waters of Bear Island, they have received over $3000 worth of equipment, such as an electronic PH meter, an electronic salinity and temperature meter, a device to take water samples at different depths and a device to detect light penetration. These were loaned to the project by Dr. Robert Fournier of the Oceanography Department of the Life Sciences Center, Dalhousie and from the Bedford Institute of Oceanography.

Digby's Famous Curler Now 90

William H. Hanson who curled at the Digby rinks in the winter of 1973-74 looks forward to the 1974-75 season despite the fact he will be celebrating his 90th birthday on Sunday, July 21. His team won every game but one in the 1973-74 season, he remarked, and if I do not feel any worse I will play again. He has about a dozen different curling trophies.

Mr. Hanson was born in Falmouth, Hants County and moved to Digby when the new Pines Hotel was built in 1931 and remained as the Pines green-keeper for 22 years.

The late Mrs. Hanson was the former Edna Wilcox. Mr. Hanson's daughter, Eleanor, Mrs. Philip Nixon lives in Berwick and his son, Leigh in Halifax. There are five grandchildren and a number of great grandchildren.

Mr. Hanson watches T.V., walks down town and does his own housework in his apartment 19 at the Senior Citizen's Home, King St., Digby. While Mr. Hanson is a curling "chief", he has also been a golfer but gave up active participation in that recreation about 20 years ago.

ticularly pleased to see so many young people in attendance. It is hoped that the classes in swimming, water & hunting safety, wood lure, fly casting, etc., will be well attended.

Citizen Of The Month

Edward (Chub) Connell, Conway, was on Monday presented with a certificate which recognized him being chosen jointly by the Digby Detachment R.C.M.P. and the Digby Kinsmen Club as their Citizen of the Month.

Mr. Connell was especially chosen Citizen of the Month for assisting the R.C.M.P. with an incident at Conway early in the morning on May 20th. Mr. Connell was driving by when he noticed the R.C.M.P. in difficulty with a number of youths who had committed offences. Mr. Connell assisted in the arrest and lodging the offenders in the Digby County jail.

CHERRY CARNIVAL

The Bear River Cherry Carnival has been an attraction in the area for a number of years. The small town of Bear River is to be commended for being able to rally forces each year to produce so fine a Carnival with parades, sports, excellent meals and entertainment.

The Cherry Carnival this year is to be held on July 27 and indications are that the day will come up to the traditionally fine occasion. Six girls having entered the Cherry Carnival Queen contest already shows enthusiasm and augurs well for a successful performance. With favorable weather those responsible for the day can look forward to the usual large crowd of spectators lured to the fair through good reports of past performances.

Again, we commend the people of Bear River for staging this July event which attracts tourists and native Nova Scotians not only to Bear River but also to the towns and villages near by. Another feature for consideration in estimating the efforts of the Bear River people is that they also bear the bulk of the responsibility of the Digby County Exhibition which is held less than a month later.

Our best wishes go out for a successful July 27th.

WATCH OUT FOR UNDERTOWS AT TIDAL BEACHES

With two drowning fatalities (both young people) so close to us and so recent, it is well to heed the information given by Red Cross.

Although 11 Nova Scotia beaches are lifeguarded this summer the Red Cross reminds swimmers to be careful of undertows and rip tides. The supervisor of the Beach Programme, Mrs. Anne Smith, said that lifeguarding beaches was begun to make swimming a safer recreation for Nova Scotians and tourists - but still people should know the hazards.

An undertow, Mrs. Smith explained, is created by a volume of water moving back out to sea after striking the shore. If you are caught in an undertow - don't struggle. Allow yourself to be carried out by the current force with your body diagonal to the surface.

Rips, another danger to swimmers, are caused by water moving over sandbars or reefs. If you are caught in one, either swim diagonally out of it, or allow yourself to be carried out to where the rip is no longer effective, then swim back to shore on a safer route.

Cramps are often common to swimmers, Mrs. Smith said and if you experience one - don't struggle, but instead, try to maintain a floating position. Signal or call for help, and attempt to relax until assistance comes.

When you are swimming - don't take unnecessary chances. Swimming alone, or when you have been drinking, or at night could yield dangers you are not prepared for.

If you are a boating enthusiast, be alert for submerged rocks, debris and sudden drop-offs. Also, be extremely cautious where swimmers are present.

Hodge Podge

Summer calls for an extra safe driving effort because of increased traffic. Don't demand the right of way. Instead make courtesy and patience your constant companions, the Nova Scotia Highway Safety Council asks. Share the road is more than a slogan—it could save your life.

If a tire on your car suddenly blew out, would you slam on the brakes? That's the natural reaction, the Nova Scotia Highway Safety Council reports, but wrong. Proper procedure is to keep a firm grip on the steering wheel, let the car slow down naturally and brake smoothly until you can safely pull off the roadway.

Nice to get word from friends, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Scott, newspaper editors in Gananoque, Ont. through their neighbours, James Doyle, writer and Trudy Doyle, painter.

The thirteen year old had a summer job in Halifax. Curious about the wages of a thirteen year old in the city, we asked. Two dollars an hour was the reply. At that rate what should an experienced adult be worth? And at the adult rate, how many small businesses can stand it. Ere long we'll price ourselves out of the market and more prudent countries will benefit.

Bear River East is never behind the door when community activity is on. Three of the six Cherry Carnival princesses come from Bear River East.

One thing about fitness, you can tell the players without the program.

New Water

Mains Planned

Robert Morgan, chairman, presided at the regular meeting of the Digby Water Commission on Monday evening when it was decided to install larger water lines down Digby Neck Road and Sydney St. in order to give the residents in these areas more water pressure. The mains will be installed at the same time as the sewer project is processed in order to save costs. W.H. Horner Associates were represented at the meeting.

A regular flushing out system was also discussed and plans made to undertake a flush-out in the near future with water users being notified prior to the work being done.

It was reported that the chlorinating plant would be installed soon.

Bible Class Closes

The International Bible Class closed for the season in June when the group met at the home of Mrs. Layton Hinxman for the regular meeting.

There were 13 members present.

The Devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Layton Hinxman and the class was under the leadership of Mrs. Carman Frankland.

The hostess for the evening was assisted by Mrs. Douglas Hapeman during the Social Hour when refreshments were served. On June 25 the group motored to the Circle Drive Restaurant in Annapolis for a time of friendship and Fellowship. To conclude the season the 21 members present gathered around one long table to enjoy a turkey dinner.

Young Voyageurs Visit

About twenty young people, participants of the "Young Voyageurs" program from Ontario area, are visiting in the Tiverton area. They are guests at the homes of Mrs. Melbourne Elliott, Mrs. "Gwen" Outhouse and Mrs. Aubrey Elliott.

A number of young people from Tiverton, including Gregory Elliott, Wendy Cann, and Mildred Outhouse expect to take part in the program and will visit Ontario.

Winner Also Enjoys Trip

Miss Alicia Elliott has returned from Montreal where she attended the University to further her studies in the French language. Miss Elliott previously won a $600.00 scholarship following successful grade XI passing at Islands Consolidated School, Freeport, which permitted a six-week course in French at Montreal.

The vivacious teenager said she had a wonderful time during her stay in this historic city. She commented on the friendly hospitality extended to her and in celebrating her birthday, she was taken to the finest, most expensive restaurant in the area where she was served a steak dinner and a beautiful birthday cake that had been specially requested and prepared for her in advance.

Among the highlights of her stay in Montreal was a visit to Quebec where she thrilled to the simple, quiet way of life as it was lived in the early eras of time.

Miss Elliott is now, "getting herself together" to participate in the "Voyageurs" program.

Mrs. Ruggles and Mrs. Cossaboom attended C.W.F.

Retreat held at Johnsons Christian Park, South Range, N.S. during July 5-7. Theme for the event was, "In His Steps." Twenty-three Nova Scotia women attended this camp experience.

expresses sincere appreciation to the patients whom he served during his six year stay in Digby and thanks all the friends who extended so many kindnesses to himself and family during those years.

He regrets that he was not able to visit and see each one personally before leaving for Truro.

THANK YOU

Over the past eighteen months it has been a privilege and an honour to represent the electors of South Western Nova as your Member of Parliament. I would like to thank my constituents for their support and advice during my term of office.

I would like to thank the large number of electors who voted for me, and especially all those who supported or assisted in the recent election campaign.

It is not possible to express my appreciation to those who worked so diligently on my behalf and gave me their active support. The democratic process requires a great deal of effort by supporters of a political party, and the only reward must be the satisfaction of knowing that every possible effort has been made to place their candidate and the issues before their fellow electors. While this election is over, the next election is not so far away and we will have to begin now to prepare for that time.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Miss Campbell on her election. I know she will represent the constituency with ability and energy.

Sincerely,
Charles E. Haliburton

"Zeke" On The Beach

No fewer than seven well behaved dogs accompanied the masters to Sandy Cove beach on Saturday afternoon. What was thought to be number eight was not a dog but it was "Zeke", a pet raccoon.

"Zeke" was found in the woods alone some three or four months ago when he was three inches long and less than two weeks old. He is the pet of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Merritt whose dog accepted "Zeke" along with her puppies for nursing.

In the picture are, left, Mrs. Merritt and her sister, Mrs. Robert Cosman of Fredericton with the pet which received much attention at the beach on Saturday.

Over 1000 Attend Smith's Cove Fair

It was a gala, sunny day in Smith's Cove on Saturday, June 13th, when over a thousand people participated in the FUN DAY and AUCTION sponsored by the Smith's Cove Fire Dept. and Smith's Cove Historical Society and held in the renovated Old Meeting House in the center of the village. Gerald "Bud" Winchester is Chief of the Fire Dept., and Mrs. Cecil Raymond is president of the Historical Society.

Mrs. Sylvia Irvine, chairman for the Fair, reported that it was a tremendous success. Working with Mrs. Irvine were the following: Mrs. Mary Winchester, and Mrs. Frances Freeman, Arts and Crafts; Mrs. Pauline Hill, bake table; Mrs. Louise Hinton, attic treasures; Miss Elizabeth Winchester, plant sale; Mrs. Helena Wightman, local artist's display and sale; Mrs. Cecil Raymond, lampshade making; Mrs. Angie Francis, and Roger Freeman, Hope Fellowship table; Mrs. Brenda Oikle, tea; Mrs. Mary Lou Raymond, hot dogs and steamed clams and pop booth; Guy Adams and sale of lobster; Lovett E.R. "Bud" Winchester, Bingo; Mr. and Mrs. Eric Kinsman, square dance. The latter two events were held in the evening in the Casino at Harbour View House.

Not to be outdone by the grown-ups, the younger generation pitched in enthusiastically in selling tags made by Hope Fellowship-Ann Raymond, Suzanne Thompson, Cindy Robbins and April Warren- not only selling them, but selecting the proper color for a lady's outfit; Peter and Marshall Webb with Geoffrey Irvine were original in their spiel as they sold the hats and balloons or commemorating this FUN DAY in Smith's Cove.

Others too numerous to mention backed up these key people in preparing and working to help make this fair a success.

While the above was going on, Mrs. Alice Landers and Mrs. Frances Freeman were working on a lovely quilt, assisted by Mrs. Myrtle Robinson of Upper Clements.

The auction, held throughout the afternoon, was ably conducted by Bud Winchester and his corps of workers of the Fire Dept. Also Harold A. Sullis and his committee were in charge of the various game booths placed on the grounds.

Y.M.W.B. Service

On Sunday evening June 30th a special service was held in the Digby Wesleyan Church when members of the Young Missionary Workers Band under the leadership of Mrs. Allan Potter presented a program.

The display of small table decorations in front of the Church added to the effectiveness of the Missionary program. These consisted of such miniature items as coffee bags to represent Mexico, monkeys to represent South Africa, radio towers represented Haiti and the Philippines. Elephants represented India and a figurine of an older lady depicted Pilgrim Mamm Nursing Home, and two small Indian dolls the Braided Indian School while other miniature items shown were homes, flags, and fruits as well as some pictures of missionary folk serving in some of the various fields.

Previous to the special service the Pastor conducted a brief song service and following this the Chair rendered a number entitled, "Now I Belong to Jesus" and the congregation participated in singing "Because He Lives."

Two Y.M.W.B. members, Mark Chute, and James Bremner, acted as ushers during the receiving of the offering.

Eight certificates were issued to the members of the group who had successfully completed the required reading course.

Six awards were presented to the Y.M.W.B. Group by their leaders for the highest number of points received. Three awards were presented to the youngest group with Crystal Bremner receiving the highest and three others were presented to the older group with Wanda Wilson receiving the highest.

The members of both Y.M.W.B. Groups joined together to present this special program in which a number of songs were sung by the group.

The group quoted their memory verses for the year. These were from Psalm 96 Verses 1-13 inc.

Rev. Douglas Hapeman Pastor of the Church, gave a brief message to the members of the Congregation speaking especially to the younger ones. The Pastor's subject was "A SMILE." He told about the value of a smile and that a smile is priceless.

Mojave - The Land That Supports No Man

Journeying east, away from the Pacific ocean, over California's high Sierra Nevada mountains, the traveller enters the Great Mojave Desert, a silent and brutal landscape of twisted deformed rocks, arid plains and sun drenched dry lakes. The Indians call the desert the "land that supports no man".

Wednesday, July 28, 7:00-8:00 p.m. ADT. ATV presents the "National Geographic Society and naturalists have all made Special : The Great Mojave Desert".

"Land that supports no man" has in fact been the home for many men. The Shoshone and Paiute Indians have roamed throughout the desert wilderness. discovered. An incredible variety of highly adapted plants and animals inhabit the barren land. Colin Fletcher climbs high in to the White Mountains to admire the majestic Bristlecone Pines, the oldest living things on earth. Below he sees a frightening phenomenon that may soon kill them - murky polluting smog blanketing Death Valley and slowly spreading over the entire Mojave.

"The Great Mojave Desert" was filmed for the National Geographic Society by Metromedia Producers Corporation. The program was written, produced and directed by Nicholas Clapp. Robert C. Doyle is the executive producer for the National Geographic Society. Canada's Lorne Greene will be off-camera narrator for the program.

Romper Room On ATV This Fall

ROMPER ROOM will be seen once again this fall on ATV... continuing to provide excellent morning programming to entertain and inform the younger set.

This coming season Miss Betty plans to take her youthful audience, via film to Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus while she performs as a clown; to Disneyland for a look at one of the world's top tourist attractions; and to Germany to find out if the life-style of a European child is different from that of a Canadian. Miss Betty will also travel to Eastern Canada to show Canadian boys and girls the Maritimes.

ROMPER ROOM encourages the participation of children at home; it is a program for doing, rather than just for viewing. With this in mind, a large portion of the program's format is devoted to activities with physical exercise, games and skills.

ROMPER ROOM teachers must be college graduates who are certified to teach nursery school, and must have had experience with children. Once a teacher is selected, she must go to Baltimore to train with ROMPER ROOM staff. During the period of training, the teachers are completely familiarized with the ROMPER ROOM philosophy and its wide variety of learning experiences. Only after this training is a teacher prepared to conduct a live television classroom.

Encourage your little ones to watch for ROMPER ROOM - this fall on the Atlantic Television System.

What Did Your Grandfather Call

An OX?

(THAT BEARS REPEATING)

by H.R. Percy

In most parts of Nova Scotia a single ox in harness used to be called a Smiley or a Smiley, but in Digby, Annapolis and Kings Counties it was called something else. I can't tell you what because I haven't found anyone yet who knows how to spell it. But maybe this is one little mystery you can help to clear up by coming to the Museum Room at the handicraft show this weekend. Or, if you can't make it, drop a note to Mrs. Margaret Wagner at the regional library and tell her what your grandfather called a single ox (as opposed to a pair or team or yoke of oxen).

This is the sort of interesting local lore you can pick up by nosing round the museum room. You can see pictures of the tall ships that once lay alongside the wharves at Granville Ferry.

You can learn the names of their captains (your ancestor, perhaps, among them), study an itemized bill of lading, even go through the accounts for the building of one of them, complete down to the last detail. But most fascinating of all, not only can you see accurate and detailed scale models of some of these ships, made by Mr. Arthur Baxter of Karstale, but you can see Mr. Baxter demonstrating how he does it.

THE DIGBY COURIER

ROSSWAY

(W.R. Comeau)

ROSSWAY - Dr. Paul Tedesco of New Haven, Conn. U.S.A. arrived last week to spend his 6th summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walters Comeau. You may also like to study an old chart of Upper Fundy, copied in 1866 from a chart made in 1876. And if you weren't aware of it before, you're sure to come away proud to know that the first ship-building in Canada was done right here in 1665.

For those less nautically inclined there will be much more. Jim How from the Fortress at Louisbourg, who owns the Entertainment House at Granville Ferry, will be there in 18th century costume, demonstrating the ancient craft of weaving rush seats for chairs. Miss Ruth Ward will be there in costume too. You will find her sitting in a chair made in Nova Scotia at that period, and she will gladly explain to you how the many strange craft tools on display were used.

Paul Jodrey will display equipment used in making yarn from flax, and will demonstrate how the raw flax was prepared. There will be charts with recipes for making natural dyes from plants, and samples of wool and yarns on which these dyes have been used. A 19th century hand-woven rug made from naturally dyed wool will be on display. And to supplement the quilting demonstration taking place in the main room there will be in the Museum Room a collection of old quilts, including an autograph quilt of about 1860. Among the many pictures that will tickle your tear-ducts with nostalgia are photographs, both interior and exterior, of a long departed tailor's shop in Annapolis Royal, once run by a Mr. A.M. King. And did you know that Annapolis Royal and Bridgetown each had a larrigan factory? There will be pictures of these and many, many other departed landmarks. Mrs. Wagner believes that on the occasion of an assembly of skilled craftsmen from all over the western end of the Province, it is important to remember our heritage and to pay tribute to the men who settled the area and by their talents built up the society we are privileged to inherit. That is what the Museum Room is all about, and that is why Mrs. Wagner and her staff have worked to compile an index of craftsmen who worked in this area from 1730 to 1890.

Smith's Cove and Barton Students In Recital

A piano recital at the Digby Regional High School Multipurpose room on June 22, marked the end of the piano classes for the year taught by Miss Sherry Thomas of Barton in the Smith's Cove and Barton schools. The classes were held under the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music.

Pupils age five to seven participating in the recital were Peggy Marshall; Laura White; Jeanne MacGillivray; Suzanne White; Cheryl Bain; John Waterman; Lisa Rice; and Mrs. Wagner believes that on Wentzell.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Westcott and family of P.E.I. spent last Tuesday evening at the home of the former's brother, Claude and Mrs. Westcott. Brian Westcott stayed and spent the night.

Mr. Keith VanTassel has returned home after being a patient at the Victoria General Hospital in Halifax for the past several weeks.

Halfway Houses

North Range

Wage Increases

The term "halfway house" might, in the days of the Stagedoach have referred to an inn at Middleton, halfway between Windsor and Digby. It was a place to stop to prepare for the rest of the journey. Persons being discharged from mental hospitals frequently need such stopping places. Hospital life is not like home life. In hospital a patient is cared for, protected, directed - at home the patient may not get the same attention and understanding, and instead of being directed he may have to take responsibility for organizing his own day and for the results of his activity or inactivity.

The Valley Mental Health Planning Council believes that such a halfway house may be needed for patients of our mental hospitals.

Many authorities believe that a complete cure may not be possible within a hospital. One author sees hospitals "as total institutions in which patients are mortified, depersonalized, disfigured and defiled." This is an extreme view in which, however, there is some truth. Another author states: "When the patient leaves the mental hospital for a rehabilitation programme he brings with him two sets of functional limitations, each with their own etiology. While not easy to separate in practice, they can be distinguished for the purposes of considering their application to rehabilitation techniques. These functional limitations can be described as (1) the residuals of the mental disorder which originally brought the patient into the hospital and (2) the handicapping social and behavioural characteristics acquired as a result of a period of prolonged hospitalization."

Another reason for a halfway house is that many families and communities still believe that mental illness is disgraceful so no matter how hard they try they cannot make the ex-patient feel comfortable. Then, the extreme situation is one where the home or community environment is exactly what caused the mental illness in the first place. If this has not changed what hope is there that the discharged patient may remain well.

"Living in a halfway house permits patients to maintain continuity - keep jobs, friends, contacts - while escaping from tensions with which they or their families cannot cope."

If you have opinions concerning the need for such a facility in The Valley, please write to: The Secretary, Psychiatric Hospitals, Kings County Hospital, Nova Scotia.

The mornings are occupied with children from ages 5 to 7 who are kept busy with a story time, puppet shows, singing, sports and arts and crafts.

During the afternoon period, 1:00 to 4:30, children ages 8 to 14 attend. Their program consists of activity periods in music, which is varied with reading and games; arts and crafts; sports and other supervised outdoor activities.

The project participants are satisfied with the afternoon attendance but would encourage a better morning attendance. However they are delighted to work with all the children and find them to be a great bunch.

P.E. Island was united in marriage to Norman Phillip Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Everett, Bear River, N.S. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Wallace Jordan, pastor of the United Baptist Church, Deep Brook.

The hall was decorated with large baskets of summer flowers suitable for the occasion. Mrs. David Parker presided at the piano.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Aubrey Ellis, Granville Ferry. The bride wore a floor-length gown of pale blue crimpelene, a broad-brimmed white hat and carried a white Bible and a miniature bouquet of yellow rose buds. Miss Paula Feehan, sister of the bride, was the only attendant; she wore a floor-length gown of pink floral organza, a wide-brimmed white hat, and carried a basket of white shasta daisies.

The groom was attended by his brother, Nolan Everett, Clementsport, as best man. The ushers were David Dugas and Donald Robbins.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Landry chose a floor-length-gown of pink crimp with white accessories. Her corsage was pink roses and white carnations. The groom's mother wore a rose-colored crimp dress with white accessories, and a corsage of coral-colored roses and white carnations.

Following the marriage ceremony, delicious refreshments were served at the Legion Reception Hall with seventy-five guests in attendance. Misses Debbie and Heather Rosso and Miss Donna Hodley, Halifax, served the guests. Mrs. George Douglas, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Donna Burbridge, friend of the bride, served tea and coffee to members of the bridal party. Mrs. Paul Law was in charge of the guest book.

Mr. Nolan Everett proposed a toast to the bride, and a toast to the bride and groom was proposed by Mr. Harry Rosso. The groom responded to these toasts in a few well-chosen words.

The beautifully decorated wedding cake, made in the traditional style three-tiers, with a miniature bride and groom, was served to the guests by the bride and groom.

The Dutchmen furnished music for the dance that followed the reception.

Following a two week's honeymoon in Prince Edward Island, the newly weds will reside at Bear River where the bride is employed at the Royal Bank of Canada and the groom with the Fundy Auto Salvage, Digby.

On Tuesday P.M., July 9th several car loads of ladies from New Tuskent enjoyed a motor trip "up the Valley". They were former members of the ladies Guild that had been in existence the past 25 years and which has now been turned into the Womens Institute.

During their drive they visited the National Historic Site at Lequille and enjoyed the beauty of the surroundings and to watch the water wheel at the site of the old grist mill at the power station. It was a real treat for anyone to see, that has never seen a water wheel turning.

The ladies enjoyed a few hours shopping in Bridgetown before going to the Continental Kitchen at Upper Granville when 23 ladies sat down to a lovely smorgasbord supper, complete with an anniversary cake very prettily trimmed with the 25 year inscription on it.

New Creation Drive-In Service

Lic. David Keith, pastor of Westport United Baptist Church, and the NEW CREATION group will be presenting the Gospel message in word and song at the Drive-In Church Service this Sunday, July 21st, at 7:00 p.m. in Smith's Cove. The service is held on the Smith's Cove Consolidated School Grounds.

In November, 1973, a group of young people started to meet and sing together in a Church, and the home of one of the members. The outcome of these gatherings is a new sound in the Gospel Music scene.

The choice of a name is not an accident. These folks have a strong conviction that even the name of the group should tell forth the name of the Saviour and His wonderful love. Every song is chosen for its message, its impact; no songs are chosen that are simply religious or inspiring, they must tell some facet of the Gospel of Christ-His love, death, resurrection, or coming again. The songs must testify to His great saving and keeping power. The name chosen springs from the strong belief and the personal experience of each member of the NEW CREATION - that "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature (or creation); old things are passed away, behold all things are become new" II Corinthians 5:17.

The personnel of NEW CREATION is as follows:

Janice and Linda Clayton soprano; fine Christian teenagers, these girls sing from love of Jesus.

Lou Outhouse sings lead. He was formerly a member of the group "We and Him" and loves to sing. Lou also plays the 12 string guitar.

Crystal Rafuse is the alto singer. She is a schoolmate of Janice and Linda and is active in serving the Lord in her Church as well as singing the Gospel and playing guitar for NEW CREATION.

Odile Boyd is the tenor singer. Odile is from Bridgetown and was a student at the United Baptist Bible Training School where she travelled to many parts of the Atlantic Provinces singing in Church services. Odile is possessed of a voice which those who have heard her claim is one of the finest anywhere.

Herb Taylor from Bear River sings baritone and occasionally plays the trumpet. Herb is a fine Christian young man and possesses a fine baritone voice.

Dave Keith plays guitar, handles much of the M.C. duties, and tries to handle any their annual vacation here.

Need New Nursing Home

The council of the Municipality of the District of Digby made no definite plans to build a nursing home in the municipality but they decided that in the near future consideration should be given to such a project. The council was presided over by Warden Wilfred Swift.

The nursing home project was brought up in discussion on the cost of keeping elderly patients in the hospital, yet the people cannot go home to care for themselves when discharged from the hospital. As borderline cases they are not sick enough to need hospital care but they need more care than other institutions can give. Joseph Casey M.L.A. for Digby attended the meeting, said the matter should be looked into right away and he would get as much information as he could on the subject.

Douglas Corkum of the Nova Scotia Housing Commission advised council on government participation in family housing senior citizens homes and low rental homes. In dealing with the nursing home, councillors thought there might be possibility of a joint project with Clare Municipality.

A letter read by William McMillan, clerk, advised councillors that the maximum widow's exemption on assessment for taxation purposes is now $4,500 when their income is less than $3500.

Municipalities make their own decisions on exemptions in their own case not exceeding $4500.

Mr. McMillan also advised council that the budget for school capital expenses had not been fully approved by the Department of Municipal Affairs, having cut the budget by $8,556 from $46,378 to $37,762. Paving the causeway at the Weymouth school was considered by councillors as a priority and other priorities would be the decision of school supervisor.

With three councillors absent on Monday, it was decided to forward letters to absentees expressing disappointment at not being at the meeting and hope that they will attend the next meeting. Council felt it an obligation for every councillor to be present unless they had legitimate reason to be absent.

It was decided to give the municipal office staff three weeks vacation instead of two. Warden Swift complimented the office staff on their diligence and efficiency.

The Digby County Ambulance service was granted a second loan of $500 at Monday's meeting, to be paid back when Mr. Gray receives a cheque from the government for services. Mr. Gray is in the process of replacing one of his vehicles. In presenting the request, Councillor R. Winchester made sure that this was not a grant but only an advance until the cheque is received by the municipality.

It was suggested that there should be a revised committee slate. Councillors felt that too much is loaded on some councillors while other go practically free.

Warden Swift resigned from the Airport Committee because of not being able to attend the meetings. Erwin Marshall was appointed in his place.

Four requests were placed before Mr. Casey M.L.A. for highway paving. They were the Sissiboo Road, the Old Post Road in Smith's Cove, the approaches to the Weymouth Bridge and the Jordantown road.

Auction Raises $2100

During the summer months of the years 1970-1972 perhaps you read about auctions held at Bay View on the property of Harold Emerson. Both events were a success and proceeds were for the Anglican Churches at Digby and Weymouth.

On Thursday July 18th once more the Village Street closely resembled one of the busy streets of New York when people again gathered from various points to attend another auction for the Trinity Parish Church. Cars lined the street for a considerable distance that day when antiques, collectors items and handcrafts etc. were sold.

H.G. Webber who very kindly donated his services for the day was the auctioneer for the event.

Refreshments were served from one of the several tables located in the field which displayed various items for sale.

The day was a glorious one and the 1974 Trinity Parish Church Auction was the most successful one yet. Successful not only weatherwise but money wise because the gross proceeds realized were approximately $2100. This being about $800 more than the last one held two years ago.

Receives $300.00 Scholarship

"Pop" Hanson 90 Years Young

Open house was held in the lounge at the Senior Citizens Apts. on King St. on Sunday. The oldest resident living in the apts was the honored guest. Mr. Wm. Hanson, best known to all in Digby as "Pop" celebrated his 90th birthday.

THE GOSSIP GAME

Most of us take delight in discovering the follies and sins and shortcomings of others and in chatting knowingly about them. Gossip does bring us some cheap comfort, giving us nice feelings of superiority. Our weaknesses and failures do not seem so serious when we can compare them with the monstrous ones of some people we know. We like to gossip because it generally makes us feel much better about ourselves.

Behind much of our gossiping is the mechanism the psychologists call "projection". There is the tendency to attribute to others our own reprehensible attitudes and feelings. A London psychiatrist, Dr. J.A. Hadfield, has commented on this tendency:

"In judging others we trumpet abroad our secret faults. We personalize our unrecognized failings, and hate in others the very faults to which we are secretly addicted. Like the lark fluttering with agitation over her nest, we exhibit most flagrantly the very thing we would hide."

Think about that the next time you are tempted to assist in the distribution of malicious rumors about someone you know.

Censorious gossip generally tells more about the person who does the gossiping than about the victim. In Albert Camus' novel, The Fall, the narrator gives this warning to his companion: "People hasten to judge in order not to be judged themselves... The judgment you are passing on others eventually snaps back in your face, causing some damage." Unchurched Editorials.

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK, 25-31 JULY 1974

Farming is a physically hazardous occupation these days. The farmer operates complicated machinery, handles livestock and heavy supplies and potent chemicals. He is subjected to dust, heat, cold, rain, snow and sun. Although basically a business man he must also be a mechanic, a trouble-shooter, a carpenter, and a handyman. In no other occupation is one person faced with such a variety of hazards which explains, in part, why farming is the nation's third most dangerous industry.

Other industries have long used personal protective equipment to minimize worker injuries. Many farm injuries could be prevented or reduced in severity by the use of this equipment. Hard hats, safety boots, heavy duty gloves, chemical or petroleum resistant gloves, respirators, dust masks, mono-goggles, chipper goggles, welder's helmets and face shields are some of the items which farmers should consider as essential to their personal safety.

Personal protective equipment is meant to be used only when it is impossible or impracticable to eliminate a hazard. Wearing this equipment tends to prevent injury but the hazard remains a potential danger. It is better to remove a hazard than to try to safeguard against it by means of special clothing or equipment.

WHERE DO THEY GO?

Despite the excellent hospital and welfare services in and around Digby, the Digby Municipal Council in session on Monday saw another need. Particularly referring to the aged, their question was "Where do they go on leaving the hospital?" That indeed is a question for consideration.

No longer in need of hospitalized care, a patient is discharged but is not able to return to his home and care for himself. Families who cannot take in an aged kin must find a nursing home where the discharged person can get proper care. This necessitates sometimes to locate the person far from his home and family since Digby, and area has not sufficient institutions to accommodate those discharged. True, there is Tideview Terrace, a home for the aged, but they take only patients who need no more than two and a half hours nursing care a day, it is understood. There are small nursing homes privately owned in the vicinity but these do not offer enough beds to accommodate all the needs. The result is that these patients frequently have to remain in hospital longer than necessary but at the expense of the municipality. Besides the expense to the municipality there is the factor of occupying a hospital bed that is desperately needed for a more severely ill person. Public health nursing services do not exactly fill the need in this respect either. Families are not always in the position to supply the proper care.

Here is an area overlooked by our health and social service departments and one which has come to be a necessity. It is wise of the municipal council to thoroughly look into the needs and provide accommodation of this kind of patient if feasible. Knowing there is care available is good for the morale of the aged, too.

Where do they go after hospitalization is a question which has bothered individuals for some time. We commend the Digby Municipal Council for giving it consideration.

Hodge Podge

The man who wouldn't admit to being fined for "unorderly consumption" declared he was fined for "speeding". That rate of walking, must certainly have come under the novel idea of streaking.

Witnesses To Convene In Moncton

Jehovah's Witnesses will assemble this summer at 85 'Divine Purpose' District Conventions throughout the United States and Canada. Additional assemblies will be held world wide.

Ross Specht, presiding overseer of the Digby congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said the conventions are designed to keep delegates spiritually enlightened concerning the times in which we live.

"The 65 representatives from Digby are looking forward with enthusiasm to the convention at the coliseum in Moncton.

Citing figures on international growth, Specht revealed that according to the organization's 1974 YEARBOOK there are now 1,758,429 ministers in the field around the world. During 1973, statistics show 193,990 baptized in 208 lands.

"In fact," he said, "they registered a five-percent increase during the last twelve months and 11,334 persons were baptized in these countries."

Specht said there are now 31,850 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses around the world.

"At a time when church attendance is declining and clergymen express concern about a lack of interest in religion, Jehovah's Witnesses are expanding as never before," Specht said.

In explaining his reasons why the growth is taking place, Specht, said the Witnesses' adherence to Bible principles on such things as morals, conduct and behavior set them apart from many religions in a time of change in 'life style' and moral attitudes.

Sea Cadet Camp Cornwallis

Each year approximately eighteen hundred Sea Cadets 'invade' SEA CADET SUMMER CAMP CORNWALLIS. This year is no exception as cadets from Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes attend a general military training course, bugle band and Leadership course.

RCSCC CORNWALLIS, Cornwallis, under the command of Lt. (NR) D.A. McClafferty has selected 13 Sea Cadets to attend the two week general military training program.

Cadets: - M. Balser, R. Francis, R. Griffiths, C. Hubley, T. Kenley, S. Lewis, G. Morgan, G. Robicheau, K. Ryan, W. Troupe, B.K. White, R. Wilson, and W. Wright arrived at the camp, Saturday 20 July.

The training day starting at 6 a.m., saw the cadets sailing, attending fire and drug abuse lectures, jackstay transfers and parade training, rounding off a complete day with recreational sports or a movie. The cadets are in bed by 10 p.m. Cadets will broaden their knowledge by touring historical sites and other points of interest in the province.

Whether the cadets are on a two week course, or a more advanced six week course, he is fulfilling a dual purpose. He is furthering his own personal development, as well as preparing himself to play a larger role in his home corps.

The camp is under the command of Commander (NR) Donald A. MacIntyre of Wabush, Labrador, who has been with the cadet movement for many years, in many staff positions at the camp.

Sea Cadet attend a general military training course, bugle band and Leadership course.

David Hand-spiker with a home run, double and single in four trips was the leading batter for the Legion, the Legion scored seven runs in the first and six in the second and never looked back. Brian Haynes with a home run and two singles and Charles Jeffrey with a home run with one on were the top battery for the Merchants. In this game the Merchants were without the services of their main pitcher and the team played poorly in the field.

This game had to be postponed because of wet grounds and threatening weather. It will be played at a later date, incidentally, this has been the first game to be postponed this season.

LEGION TAKE FIRST PLACE BY DOWNING K OF C 31-19

In a real slugfest the Legion came out on top by the score of 31-19 in a game played on July 22nd, this game had all the earmarks of a battle for undisputed possession of first place but the Legion scored six runs in the first on no hits and seven walks, and fourteen runs in the second and at that point in the game lead the K of C by the score of 20-1 but the K of C battled and at the end of the game made it 31-19, as in several games this season key players have been away on vacation, thus accounting for the high scores. This game produced eight home runs, five triples, five doubles and thirty-two walks. Several of the younger players, were very instrumental in helping their team effort as they received numerous walks and scored many runs, namely Richard McVeigh for the Legion, who received five walks and scored four runs and James Gidney who received three walks and scored two runs for the K of C. This game gave an inkling as to how the play-offs are shaping up. Mark Jordan went the distance for the Legion and gained his fourth victory in as many starts.

Club Builds Airport Service Building

While bulldozers and operators donated their services to dig wells and clear away bushes at the Digby Airport a few weeks ago, others are donating their time on Saturday, July 27 to erect a service building on the property.

In keeping with its original agreement with the Municipality of Digby that no public funds would be spent by the Digby Flying Club in improving the Digby Airport, a volunteer building crew, using material supplied by the Flying Club, will erect a small service building at the Airport on Saturday, July 27, 1974.

With the arrival of the Cessna 150 airplane purchased by the club now only a matter of days away, a shelter for scheduling training flights and carrying on other work at the airport was essential, and when President Wyles called for help, he got it. Other matters at the regular meeting of the club on Monday evening, July 22, were scheduling of showings of the Grand Prize in the ticket drawing - a Chevrolet Vega, 1974 - at various events around the area. The car will be on exhibit at the Cherry Festival in Bear River on Saturday, and members of the club will accompany it to sell tickets for the Labour Day Drawing, which will conclude a three-day Airport Days Festival at the Airport - August 31, September 1 and Labor Day. President Wyles called upon all members of the club to exert every effort on ticket sales and hoped others would volunteer as crews to accompany the display to other events in the area.

Two kinds of flight training kits were also on display at the meeting, and the membership present voted to accept one as the official flight training kit for the almost 20 members who intend to earn their wings as private pilots under the guidance of qualified instructors.

It was voted at the meeting to hold weekly meetings from now on, due to the pressure of preparing for Airport Days and completing the present work at the airport. The next meeting will be held on Monday, July 29, 1974 at a place to be announced. Mr. Wyles urged strongly that members who have not been able to attend meetings recently to make every effort to lend a hand during these final weeks before the Airport Days and the Labour Day drawing.

Women Hold Picnic Meet

WESTPORT - The Annual Picnic Meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Baptist Church, Westport, was held on Tuesday, July 2nd at the home of Mrs. George Sharpe - the table being set inside due to the cool weather. There were twelve members present. The regular meeting of devotional, business, programme, etc., followed the supper with the President, Mrs. Lawrence Shaw, presiding. Mrs. Richard Welch was pianist, and the hymn, "For The Beauty Of The Earth", opened the meeting. At prayer time Mrs. Sharpe led with several others following. The roll was called to which members responded with a Scriptural "Beauty" passage. The devotional was given by Mrs. Albert Bailey, the theme being The Voice of God and to those He spoke Adam and Eve in the Garden, Saul on the road to Damascus, Abraham the great Patriarch and Jonah and He too calls us to leave all and follow Him.

Mrs. George Clements, treasurer, gave a report on the financial status of the Society. The secretary read a letter from the Mission Station in Zaire, requesting a food parcel. The decision was made to send the parcel which will be packed the latter part of August in the home of Mrs. Sharpe, who convenes the White Cross work.

The programme presented by Mrs. Earl Webber was most interesting as told of the progress and expansion of the Baptist work in the last century in Western Canada. The first church being formed in 1872 in Winnipeg with seven members. The August meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Harold Denton.

PROVINCIAL TAX COMMISSION PROVINCE OF NOVA SCOTIA

SUMMARY OF CHANGES IN THE HEALTH SERVICES TAX ACT

The Health Services Tax Act has been amended recently to incorporate certain changes and the following information is provided for Vendors and Consumers:

- Prepared Meals consumed on the premises are now tax exempt when purchased for three dollars or less, the previous level for exemption was two dollars. Section 10 (p) refers.
- Medicaments are now exempt for animals as well as humans, therefore drugs purchased for animals are not taxable. Section 10 (g) refers. Regulation 2 (j) defines Medicaments.
- Concrete sold and delivered in liquid form is now tax exempt. The concrete operator will pay tax on the taxable ingredients. Section 10 (ggg) will be inserted.
- Goods bought outside the Province and brought into or received in the Province for consumption or use on which tax has not been paid are taxable, and tax must be forwarded to the Commissioner along with a copy of the invoice. Section 5 refers.
- Clothing and footwear was granted exemption from tax November 28, 1973, and a directive was issued December 6, 1973. In an attempt to clarify the taxable status of sports clothing and footwear, a further directive was issued effective May 1, 1974. The May 1, 1974, directive is to be rescinded and the following will apply:

Clothing and footwear for everyday use is tax exempt including those items worn for casual or leisure sport activities, and which are not designed primarily as sport clothing or footwear. Tax exempt items include swim suits, beach wear, sneakers, golf caps, golf sweaters, golf jackets, gymnastic clothing, jogging suits, ski, and sno-mobile suits, tennis shorts and skirts, and like items to be used as casual or leisure sportswear.

In the taxable category will be sports equipment such as golf gloves, golf clubs, golf shoes, hockey uniforms and equipment, baseball uniforms and equipment, football uniforms and equipment, ski boots, bowling shoes, skates or other sport equipment which by design and construction would not normally be used outside that sport activity. Section 10 (x) and (y) refer.

- Section 14 and 17 of the Act pertaining to the Records and Returns of Vendors and the failure to make returns or remittances have been amended to provide better administrative control.

The changes above will be incorporated into the Health Services Tax Act during reprinting.

Hinders Fish Operation

No immediate relief for the current serious marketing situation facing the western Nova Scotia fishing industry is in sight, area fish processors said.

The situation which has been created by a drop in meat prices on the U.S. market and an invasion of that market by cheaper foreign processed fish, has also been aggravated by much larger than usual catches of fish in the western Nova Scotia area this spring and summer.

Joseph Casey, of Casey Fisheries Ltd., said one solution to the problem would be purchase by the federal government of at least some of the fish stock already in storage. The fish, he said, could be canned and supplied to countries where famine conditions exist.

Mr. Casey said that in many cases, Canada is already supplying financial aid to these countries. Providing their people directly with a high protein food such as fish would be of much more direct assistance to the starving, he said.

Canning facilities should be available in Canada for processing at least some of the fish stock now over crowding all available freezer space in this part of Nova Scotia, Mr. Casey said. The canned fish would no longer require refrigerated storage either here or in those countries.

This is of particular importance, he said, because in those countries refrigeration and cold storage facilities are lacking for both bulk storage and individual use. Boneless and hard dried cod, already processed and taking up space in coolers could also be moved out to needy countries in order to provide essential storage for heavy current catches.

Mr. Casey said he hoped the retail trade would bring their fish prices in line with the current market situation in the fish industry. This is quickly done with chicken, beef and other such commodities, he said, and should also be the pattern with fish.

An Evangelistic Christian Rally, known as B.A.R.N. '74 (Born Again Revival Now 1974) will open at the Born Again Barn Paradise, Annapolis County on Wednesday evening 31st July. There will be two main meetings each evening until Saturday 3rd August.

At 6 p.m. each evening Rev. Bill Hunt will be speaking on marriage and family guidance with strong emphasis on what the Bible has to teach us about these things. There is no charge whatsoever and nursery care will be provided for children.

At 8 p.m. each evening there will be Revival meetings with Rev. Virgil Hull and Bill Hunt. There will also be three singing groups from Florida singing at this time: the Salt of the Earth, the Greater Love and Dave, Gwen and Vicki. The soloist, Elizabeth Hunt will also be singing. During the course of the meetings Bill Hunt will also present his chalk artistry evangelistic drawings with the use of black light.

Both the Rev. Bill Hunt and Virgil Hull are ministers of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ. This denomination was the first denomination to be founded in its origin on this continent in 1789. The denomination is evangelical in doctrine and seeks to reconcile men to Christ without undue emphasis on minor details of doctrine which so often divide God's people. At the B.A.R.N.

74 meetings the emphasis will be on the command of Christ that we must be born again. Participants will be encouraged to seek to do this within the framework of the denomination or church to which they now belong. Those with no church will be encouraged to find one.

For those coming from a distance there will be free camping in the Barn meadow from Sunday 28th July. All meetings will be outside if it is fine so insect repellent and something to sit on the grass should be brought. There will be opportunities for private rap sessions and free marital counselling during the daytime.

On Saturday 3rd August there will be a JESUS RALLY beginning at 4 p.m. at which all the visiting groups and many local ones will be singing. There will be a short break at 5:30 p.m. for a barbecue ($1 per plate) During the course of this Rally there will be many messages and Bill Hunt will again present his chalk artistry.

YOU CAN PROFIT FROM A MONETARY CRISIS

Sky-high interest rates, galloping inflation, fluctuating international currency rates, an ominous slowdown of the American economy - such is the cloudy and uncertain scenario facing investors today.

Some of the biggest fortunes in history have been made by men and women who have acted positively. Investors today are paralyzed by fear and a feeling of helplessness. The key to investment strategy today is agility and imagination. Gold stocks or gold bullion this week - a sharp run-up in silver prices next week. And by late summer it could be the right time to buy a wide selection of blue-chips.

ORGY OF THE LIVING DEAD
WARNING:

It has been reported that John Austin Frazier now resides at a Mental Hospital, the result of attending a showing of our triple horror program, Orgy of the Living Dead. Because of this tragic event, we, the producers, have secured an insurance policy insuring the sanity of each and every patron. If you lose your mind as a result of viewing this explosion of terror, you will receive free psychiatric care or be placed, at our expense, in an asylum for the rest of your life! We urge you to take advantage of this protection! The insurance is free-anyone entering the theatre without it does so at his own risk. Remember We Warned You!

SUGARLAND EXPRESS

"The Sugarland Express," based on an event that happened in Texas in 1969, combines humor and tragedy quite like "Bonnie and Clyde." Business prospects look good. Produced by Richard D. Zanuck and David Brown, the film explores the dynamics of a young couple whose child has been put up for adoption while the two parents are in prison. While husband William Atherton would be happy to be alone with his wife Goldie Hawn, she is more than willing to sacrifice Atherton for her baby-and in the end loses both. Hawn, as the gum-chewing, half crazy mother and Atherton, as her quiet, loving husband, give fine performances. Ben Johnson seems reasonable and dignified as the chief of police, although his final decision may be unjustified to some. Fresh out of training and not quite tough, Michael Sacks is well cast as the young patrolman they kidnap to chauffeur them to Sugarland and their baby. Director Steven Spielberg and cinematographer Vilmos Zsigmond have captured well the feel of the Texas landscape in its dusty roads and ramshackle small towns. In Panavision and Technicolor. STARRING: Goldie Hawn, Ben Johnson, Michael Sacks, William Atherton, Guich Kooch, Louise Latham.

ALL IN COLOR

Goldie Hawn visits her husband (William Atherton) in a Texas prison and tearfully tells him that while she was in prison the state declared her an unfit mother and put her baby up for adoption. She threatens Atherton that she will leave him for good, if he doesn't escape and go with her to Sugarland to get her baby back. Reluctantly, Atherton dons the civilian clothes she brought and walks out the gate with her. After stealing and crashing a car, the young couple kidnaps a patrolman (Michael Sacks) and his car, ordering him to drive them to Sugarland. When word of this kidnapping spreads, hundreds of police cars line up behind the stolen car and follow it, waiting for a chance to free the kidnapped victim unharmed. The parents have the public's sympathy and well-wishers crowd the car as the "Sugarland Express" parades through towns. Police chief Ben Johnson promises them that they can have their child in Sugarland, but arranges a fatal trap instead at the baby's house. Atherton is mortally wounded. Rated RG.

OKLAHOMA CRUDE

money-maker for Columbia. Star names of George C. Scott, Faye Dunaway, John Mills and Jack Palance are a powerhouse combination that few patrons will want to miss. Just by coincidence, Scott and Mills are the male winners of 1970's Academy Awards, while Miss Dunaway and Palance have three Oscar nominations between them. Each one is in top form. Original screenplay by 31-year-old Marc Norman earned the second highest price ever paid for such a script and it's a first effort at that. Resorting to outhouse humor once or twice, the earthiness of the dialog, particularly Miss Dunaway's, is enough to keep the customers satisfied. Almost completely unglamorous, Miss Dunaway plays many scenes clad in long Johns. Scott matches her in unkempt appearance. The Oklahoma oil fields of 1913 were photographed in color and Panavision near Stockton, Ca., by Robert Surtees. Henry Mancini did the score and music for the theme song. Those who speak of moviemaking in the classic Hollywood tradition of action, comedy and drama will delight in "Oklahoma Crude" as a perfect example of a neglected art. STARRING: George C. Scott, Faye Dunaway, John Mills, Jack Palance, William Lucking, Harvey Jason, Rafael Campos.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE "TECHNICOLOR" PANAVISION PG PARENTAL GUIDANCE SUGGESTED

In 1913, independent driller Faye Dunaway challenges the powerful Pan-Oklahoma Oil Co. with her well. Father John Mills, who deserted his family many years before, wants to help his strong-willed daughter. He hires itinerant George C. Scott, whose main interest is money. Any affection for Dunaway is squelched by her attitude, particularly her talk of a third sex. A trouble-shooter for the oil company, Jack Palance forces them off the field and has them beaten, Indian helper Rafael Campos being killed. Mills nurses Dunaway back to health; they and Scott are advised by lawyer Woodrow Parfrey to take the claim back by force. Palance, his men and Harvey Jason, son of the company president, set up a campsite as the three work the rig. When Mills replaces the broken cable, he's picked off by the sharpshooters. Dunaway mourns his death and then turns to the willing Scott for comfort. The well brings forth oil, which quickly pans out. Scott is about to leave but Dunaway has other plans for him. Rated PG

Clam: Beds Closed

The federal Fisheries and Marine Service, Environment Canada warns that shell fish areas of Yarmouth and Digby Counties are closed to the harvesting of Bar Clams because of high toxicity.

The areas in question are in what is termed "Shellfish Area N.S. 16 inches, which runs from Cheboque Point, Yarmouth County to the lighthouse at Little River, Digby County.

This is an annual occurrence and is brought about when water temperatures reach the point whereby marine organisms rapidly increase in growth. These minute organisms are absorbed by clams and any person consuming the infected shellfish could become seriously ill. This area displays posters with warnings not to take bar clams during the closed period.

Regular toxicity tests are being conducted by the Inspection Branch of the Fisheries and Marine Service and when the toxicity level reads safe the public will be notified.

As a matter of course, toxicity tests are being carried out in all Shellfish areas of the Maritimes and when toxicity reaches a certain point closures will be made for health interests of the public and when toxicity levels decrease these areas will be opened for the harvesting of clams and other shellfish.

97 Years Young

Mrs. Gertrude Tufts, formerly of Digby, but now making her home at the Barton Nursing Home, was honoured on the occasion of her 97th birthday over the weekend.

Although Mrs. Tufts' birthday was actually on Monday, July 29th, a reception in her honour was held on Sunday. She was visited by many friends and relatives on the occasion and messages and greetings were received from a host of well-wishers. Included in those who extended their good wishes were Digby M.L.A. ## Crafts Program A Success

The arts and crafts program of the Digby New Horizons Club, first started in the basement of the Digby Community Mental Health Centre, and now operating in the new Social and activity centre of the club, is already a successful venture. A sizeable number of sales of handcrafted items has been recorded and orders are reported to be on hand for many more.

Displays of items handcrafted by members of the Digby New Horizons Club at the Western Nova Scotia Arts and Crafts Exhibition in Annapolis Royal recently resulted in sale of many of the net bags being made by club members under the direction of Dominic Melanson. Orders were also received for the redecorated lamp shades being produced by the club under the arts and crafts program of the Digby New Horizons Club. Another item which received a ready sale at the exhibition was decorative notepaper, made by Mrs. Patterson.

At the July birthday party sponsored by the club in its new home quite a number of handcrafted items were on display. These included a miniature lobster trap, made by Mr. Loran Shaw and many items made by the ladies who are involved in the handcraft program.

It is expected that by fall the tempo of the arts and crafts program of the Digby New Horizons Club will pick up a good deal. It is hoped standing orders for handcrafted items may be received so that classes may be organized to meet needs. One of the classes to get underway in the fall is for young people. This is a class in fly-tying to be conducted by Mr. Oakley Smith.

$365 Raised in Walkathon

District No. 8 Fire Commission Smith's Cove

The Smith's Cove District No. 8, F-1, Fire Commission held its quarterly meeting on Thursday evening, July 25th, in the Smith's Cove Meeting House. President David Irvine conducted the meeting.

It was noted that Mrs. Penny Gott had resigned as treasurer of the Commission and Arthur Hill was now the treasurer.

The Executive Committee was increased to include the Fire Chief of Smith's Cove Fire Company, who is at present "Bud" Thompson, and the Chairman of the Fire Company, who is Brian Coker.

The need to clarify procedure for hiring of the hall was discussed and the past system was changed by the cancellation of a committee of three which formerly dealt with this matter. It was then so moved that in the future, the secretary of the Commission would handle the responsibility of keeping a calendar of events scheduled for the hall and to be the contact person for this purpose. All organizations are advised that requests for use of the Smith's Cove Meeting House

LIFE NEVER ENDING

FOOD PRODUCTION NECESSARY

The Bear River Cherry Carnival, sponsored by the Bear River Firemen, is over for 1974. It was such a successful event in so many ways that the firemen, merchants, and citizens in general, must feel a great satisfaction with their efforts. Bear River, however, won't lull itself to sleep as an aftermath. Right now there isn't a full three week period before the Digby County Exhibition takes place. Bear River has, without a doubt, borne the brunt of the Exhibition through the years, despite the fact that it is the Digby County Exhibition. Many of the same people who work so diligently for the Cherry Carnival also become involved in the exhibition program so they have few idle moments between events.

Exhibitions are show windows. The best of everything is displayed for others to see. Participants have an opportunity to discuss with one another subjects of mutual interest and pick up ideas for improving their own situations. Exhibitions are always good places to see friends whom we had not seen for some time.

Exhibitions have changed in the past few years. More entertainment has been demanded and booths are often stocked with entries unrelated to the life on the farm or life on the sea. No fault can be found with change and the change in exhibitions simply followed the trend away from the farm and country life to the urban centres. But, the trend is again coming back to rural life, whether for farming and fishing occupations or just to get away from the urban rush and breathe some unpolluted air.

We like to think that the return to the rural life will mean more production of foods, be they farm or sea foods, but especially farm foods which declined as people found more revenue and less strenuous employment in walking to the office or factory. The world is in demand for food. It is a time to influence people to increase their farm production to supply the demand. Quoting from R.J. Turner of Avon Foods Ltd., who addressed the Annapolis Valley Affiliated Boards of Trade, "One acre of land is required to properly feed each person on the earth. The acres of land devoted to crop production and the number of people in the world are now about equal so to-day's acre-per-person must produce two per cent more food with each passing year just to maintain present consumption levels." Mr. Turner warned that the task of food production and preservation over the next decade would not be easy. He suggested concentration be on the fruits and vegetable crops we grow best.

Exhibitions are show windows displaying usually the best of the crop. At this time when emphasis is being placed on more and better farming, it is hoped that greater production will be encouraged by many more fine farm exhibits at the Digby County Exhibition on August 21, 22, 23, and 24.

TEN SAFETY COMMANDMENTS

1. Thou shalt hold nothing but thy steering wheel.
2. Thou shalt not make a God of thy horsepower.
3. Thou shalt not take the centre lane in vain.
4. Remember the driver behind, to let him pass.
5. Honour thy father and mother and thine other passengers.
6. Thou shalt not kill any pedestrian.
7. Thou shalt not commit drunken driving.
8. Thou shalt not steal thy neighbour's eyes with thy headlights, nor his ears with thy horn, nor his enjoyment with thy litter.
9. Thou shalt not bear false witness with thy signals.
10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's right of way.

Hodge Podge

—Long hours of work are expected on the farm ... and most farm accidents occur late in the day when the farmer is fatigued. Take regular rest breaks, relax and eat meals at regular times. You'll work better, and more safely.

Heard a 90 year old say last week "I never lived in a town where I had so many friends as in Digby." It reminds us of the saying "People make a country, not the scenery." So Digby is blessed with both.

Spent some time on Monday morning at the Children's Home. One must marvel at the care given the Home and the love given to 47 children. Spic and span were all the bedrooms and corridors and the children were as neat as could be. It is surprising what even the most severely handicapped can learn and the amount of patience the staff has in dealing with the handicapped. Mrs. Dorothy Smythe, superintendent, deserves much credit. She calls each by name and it is quite evident by the response that the children clamor for her loving attention.

Young innocent children living in a world of their own Knowing nothing about anything but what they've been told Having no idea of what life holds, of what they're to see Having no concern and knowing not of what is to be Teenage adults so preoccupied with growing of age
The wonder and beauty of sight, life is played on a stage
So very unfortunate to think that all can be bought
So much to be learnt it would seem no time for quiet thought
A parent busy with too much to do, taking in hand
A child to bring up in this changing world alone to stand
A turn or two around and then it's gone for ever by
As you share the joys of the wedding and silently cry
Needed once more as you share your time and patiently sit
With a part of yourself, sound asleep, as you proudly knit
This grandchild of yours, it's the best that could possibly be
And a better one this world will surely not again see
The candle is starting to flicker and will soon be out Much too narrow the road to have and share, to love and doubt
Too short a time for golden dusk to come and then be night
It seems too short a time to live with life and then lose sight
A child is born this night to walk with us and learn to pray
This night a life is borrowed to give joy and with us stay
A life of wonder to cherish and hold has to us come
To stay and enjoy until His purpose is served and done

Written by Nora Comeau, Brighton, in tribute to her grandparents, Nora and Simon Babin, Meteghan, on their Golden Anniversary, Saturday, August 3.

Letters To Editor

Dear Madam:

When I was in to call on you a year ago I offered a suggestion to help out the older readers of the Courier in particular those who are no longer residing in their place of origin.

You felt that the idea might have merit but as it would entail a certain amount of work by the various correspondents, it should come as a request from a reader to start the ball rolling. Circumstances beyond my control have caused me to fall off writing this letter, not the least being sheer laziness.

However two events in the Province, during the spring and summer have brought to my mind that there would not be a more favorable time than the present.

I have been away from Bear River for nearly 30 years, during that time many of the friends whom I used to know have moved from their former homes: new homes have been built some by former friends and some by strangers. So that in a number of cases I am at a loss to find a house.

The Provincial and Federal elections which have been held this year, both requires a voters list to be printed and they should be reasonably accurate as to who lives where.

If these lists could be edited to show the streets, with the names of the house owners and or tenants and the name of a parent living with a married daughter, it would be a great help to the visitors who come to Bear River.

I have used Bear River as an example but I am sure that the same would be appreciated by the visitors to the other places as well.

Thanking you for your kindness and wishing you the continued success of the Courier.

Yours sincerely,
Voorheis M. Ditmars

A COLLEGE FOR ALL

In a recent article I praised the many talents the Acadians have.

Add to these boat and house building, woodworking, mechanics, and a host of other spheres where the Acadians are far from being the last of the simpleton.

Although loaded with talents, these people do not only aim to please others. They want to do more and to do it better. The proof of this is in the many persons who each week take courses in painting, ceramic and pottery, sewing, baking, in song and in music, etc.

College Sainte-Anne wants to be of service to those people who want to better themselves. To look at the college only for the chosen few is false. The doors of the College are open to all without any distinction of religion, color or social standing. The lumberjack with his saw, the fisherman in his rubber boots, the housewife with her apron should feel at ease, as does the professor with several degrees.

In 1974-75 the college will offer courses for fishermen, small business owners, housewives, artists and musicians, etc..

It will also gather people of all ages and positions who wish to join the regular students. Sciences, mathematics, literature, economics, sociology and all other courses will be offered to those who wish to register.

Become a student once again! Rediscover the joy of learning new things or rediscovering things forgotten! You will find a lot of pleasure in the student life.

Leger Comeau, Director

must be called in to the secretary, Mrs. Karl Abbott, at 45-4201 or 245-4811.

Ratepayers of District No. 8, F-1, both men and women, are reminded that this Commission is their organization and needs their active support at all meetings. The Commission was formed in 1954 for the purpose of securing fire protection for the area which in years past had been handled by Bear River or Digby departments. In 1972 the Fire Commission organized the Smith's Cove Volunteer Fire Company. The Commission is in charge of securing and receiving funds from the fire tax paid by the ratepayers, to raise funds for the needs of the Fire Company, and to be constantly checking on improvements for future fire protection needs. Therefore, ratepayers of Joggin Bridge, Lansdowne and Smith's Cove are urged to attend the meetings of the Commission in order to keep abreast of the work of the Commission.

The next meeting will be on Thursday, October 3rd.

profession of dressmaking as a young woman and later said this stood her in good stead as a wife and mother. Much of Mrs. Tuft's life was lived in Aylesford, Kings County. She came to Digby some 12 years ago. A widow, she has two sons and a daughter, Eva (Mrs. C.L. Ogilvie) who lives in Aylesford.

Directly descended from United Empire Loyalist stock, Mrs. Tuft's grandfather, Edward M. Jordan, was born in Nova Scotia in 1848. He went to Caribou, Maine, in 1876, bought land, cleared it and farmed there until returning to Nova Scotia in 1899. On Thursday afternoon forty-two Senior Citizens motored from Yarmouth by bus to the New Horizons Centre. At noon they enjoyed their own packed lunch with the Digby New Horizon ladies serving them tea and coffee. After lunch several went to the Mall where they enjoyed a "shopping spree" before returning to the Centre to relax, play cards or just chat before leaving on their bus again for Yarmouth at four o'clock.

Tuesday afternoon was "open house" as usual. One kind lady sent in delicious treats for the refreshment hour in the afternoon which all those "dropping in" enjoyed with tea and coffee.

In Memoriams

MOULAISON - In loving memory of my husband, George who passed away on August 1, 1973.

Little things that mean so much;
His smile, his touch, his cheerful way
Will last forever, though he's gone to God's great garden faraway
Forever loved and always remembered by his wife Madeline and his eight children. 51:1p

COOK - In loving memory of our dear mother, Zoie Margaret, who passed away suddenly, August 4th, 1970
We lost a Mother with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold.
Without a good-bye she fell asleep,
With only memories for us to keep.
Quickly and quietly came the call.
Her passing was a shock to all.
Peacefully sleeping is one of the best
A loving God called her home to rest.
Always loved and sadly missed by son, Gordon, daughter-in-law, Laura, and grandchildren, Kevin and Wendy. 51:1c

DUKESHIRE - In memory of Clarence Dukeshire who passed away July 29, 1967.
Sunshine fades and shadows fall,

On the eve of his 40th year in movies, producer-director Stanley Kramer offers one of his most satisfying films—his best in some time and a certain moneymaker for Columbia. Star names of George C. Just by coincidence, Scott and Mills are the male winners of 1970's Academy Awards, while Miss Dunaway and Palance have three Oscar nominations between them. Each one is in top form. Original screenplay by 31-year-old Marc Norman earned the second highest price ever paid for such a script and

The Digby New Horizons' Activity Centre has been a busy place this past week. On Thursday of last week, July 11th, thirty eight Senior Citizens from the Liverpool Club visited the Centre. They all had very complimentary remarks about it. They inspected the work rooms and the crafts already made and then relaxed in the lounge before boarding their bus back to Liverpool.

Several donations of finished articles in knitting and crochet work have been received and these are being held until there is sufficient quantity for a craft sale.

On July 12th, a successful home baking sale was held at the Centre. Many delicious goodies were brought in and all quickly sold, the sum of sixty-four dollars being realized from the sale, including tickets sold on a beautifully decorated cake made and donated by Mrs. Freda Wilson. Mrs. Mildred Dukeshire is also selling tickets on a quilt made by one of the participants and which is on display at the Centre.

Tuesday is "Open House" from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. On July 16th, a meeting was held with several participants attending. Mr. and Mrs. Jogoe have recently moved to Centreville from the U.S.A. After the meeting everyone stayed and enjoyed tea and refreshments.

DIGBY READY FOR NATAL DAY

Five Year Paving Program Planned

Digby Town Councillors have planned a five year program for paving the town streets, it was learned at the regular meeting of Digby Town Council on Monday night. The plan was announced in response to a presentation to the council by Guy Van Tassel who lives at the South end of town on an unpaved street. Several others accompanied Mr. Van Tassel who made it plain that he was not speaking for himself alone but for all the residents of the area on living on non-paved streets.

Mr. Van Tassel said he had paid taxes for 31 years and promises have been made to fix up and pave these streets but nothing is done. He felt that all persons who pay taxes should be treated alike. He claimed that new areas get the streets paved but not those who have paid taxes for 31 years. He felt their taxes helped pay for the existing pavement and now it is time to have these people help to pave these long-time unpaved streets. Mr. Van Tassel was promised that grading would be done in the area but only $25,000 has been budgeted this year for paving the Saint Mary's street as part of the five year plan.

Ervin Marshall, South Range, appeared before council requesting their moral support for the Digby Flying Club. The reason for the request was to give more impact in applying for grants from the Department of Recreation. After making clear that this involved no expenditure of money the council granted the Flying Club support and a letter to that effect will be written.

The Canon Bank, it was found had been exempt from taxes for some time but when and why this had been done was not clear. A bill for $580 tax was presented this year to the Marilion Realty which they acknowledged by payment but a counter claim of $222 was sent for property which the town leases from Marilion Realty.

It was reported that the province had exacted amendments to the Assessment Act whereby the assessment exemption for persons over 65, widows and unmarried women was increased to $4500 (maximum) if their earnings are not more than $3500. The council passed a resolution which would raise the exemption in this category in the town to $3500. The previous exemption was $1500. The new exemption goes into effect in 1975.

It was decided to search the title of the "Iron Duke" property in order to find a roadway for a pumping station for the new sewer project. A special sewer meeting is called for to-night.

Former Police Chief, Webster Dunn, made his report as parking meter reader for July which showed collection of $536.23. Tickets issued were 178, tickets collected were 130 and cancelled were 5. Forty-three are still to be heard from. Frank Robinson gave his report on water and streets.

The financial statement of the Digby Electric Utility from January to June 1974 showed an increase in revenue for 1974 of $143,000 against $104,000 in 1973. Expenses in 1974 were $136,000 and in 1973 they were $117,000. Gain in 1974 from January to June was $6,200 and for the same period in 1973 it was $4,800. It was noted that $4,076 under expended funds are available for capital uses.

Gordon Ellis of the finance committee presented accounts amounting to $7,206 for the month of July. The bills were passed as presented.

The town's share of welfare costs in July was $167.88. Nursing Home care for eleven patients cost the town $742.50 of a sharable cost of $2,227.49.

A report on the Tideview Terrace showed one hundred percent occupancy at present.

It was announced that the cruise ship, M. S. Victoria, would not be visiting Digby on August 28 as planned because of lack of facilities to transport fresh water to her.

Councillor Patrick Comeau announced that he was made chairman of a new Development Committee and brochures would be used to supply information.

Mr. Ellis reported that 1800 visitors had been at the Town Information Centre to date in 1974.

Sergeant Abel of RCMP which has taken over policing the town requested a by-law be instituted to cover squealing of car tires. A resolution regarding unnecessary noise and disturbance in the operation of a motor vehicle in town was passed.

On Monday, August 12th, the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Band from Cadet Camp Cornwallis will take part in the Digby Natal Day Celebrations.

Boasting a large repertoire, the fifty-four man band which is under the direction of Capt. (SR) Marcel Perrault, has taken part in many events throughout the province.

Capt. Perrault, bandmaster, Laval, Quebec, has served as a director of Music for the past twenty years.

The average age of the Sea Cadet Bandsmen, who come from Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes is sixteen (16). Spending the months of July and August in training at the camp in Cornwallis, the cadets will receive bandsmen certificates and training (cash) bonuses.

Group Discounts On Fundy Service, Dance A Success

CP Rail will introduce group incentive fares on the Princess of Acadia beginning August 1.

Under the new group rates, a party of 30 to 50 people will get 10 per cent off; the group reduction for 51 to 100 people will be 15 per cent and for 101 or more, 20 per cent.

Group discounts apply to one-way, regular return and one-day return fares.

These rates are particularly designed for vacation tours, club and employee association trips, school visits and senior citizen outings.

The new fare program is part of a continuing effort by CP Rail to encourage increased use of the Saint John-Digby service.

CP Rail also reports that dance cruises on the vessel will continue to the fall.

"These dances have been a huge success," says T.G. Fox, manager of CP Rail's Bay of Fundy Service. "More than 1,800 people have attended the weekend dance cruises since they were implemented June 15."

"We have had a particularly good response from residents of the region taking out-of-town visitors on the dance cruises. People are recognizing the Bay of Fundy as one of our finest assets."

School Bus Drivers Want Increase

Harold J. Martell Representative of the Canadian Union of Public Employees reported a breakdown of negotiation has resulted between the Municipal School Board of the District of Digby. For Drivers and local 1185 of C.U.P.E.

The Settlement reached and reported on May 29th, 1974 of $450.00. Regular part time Bus Drivers $565.00 full time Bus Driver and $630.00 per month Bus Driver mechanic were rejected by the Municipal School Board in June.

Further negotiation resulted with the SchoolBoard offering a 20 per cent increase plus a cost

Philip Robertson, Chairman of the Natal Day committee in Digby, in an interview with The Digby Courier expressed confidence that the Natal Day, August 12, would be successful. A full program has been arranged and entries are coming in for the grand parade under the chairmanship of Mrs. Donald MacDonald.

The grand parade will be led off by three bands. There will be the CFB Cornwallis Cadet Band, the pipe band of Saint John and the Bowaters Mersey Band.

Mr. Robertson will be chairman of the program which begins with a children's parade at the shopping mall. At one o'clock p.m. the fishermen's memorial wreath will be laid and Glen Smith will be proclaimed Citizen of the Year. The grand parade begins at 1:30 p.m.

Throughout the day, a wide array of entertainment will take place including sporting events such as baseball.

A variety of refreshments will also be served during the day-long ceremonies. They will entail a special fish chowder sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the town's fire department and a chicken barbecue under the auspices of Digby Kiwanis Club.

The festivities will end with a dance and a giant display of fireworks.

of living clause. In 74 and 10 per cent increase plus a cost of living clause in 1975 on top of the present monthly salary of 300.00, 380.00 and 440.00.

That offer was rejected at a meeting held with the Bus Drivers August 6th and the conciliation officer. Gordon Keeler, from the labour Dept. will make his report to the minister of labour this week. The union is prepared to sit down to negotiate at any time.

Appeal Heard

The case of Mrs. Avis Manzer, Weymouth North, school teacher at the Weymouth Consolidated High School who was suspended by the Municipal School Board for five days, April 18 to April 22, was resolved at the Court House on Digby July 31.

Reasons given for the suspension was misuse of time during two years and seven months when not in the classroom, refusal of corridor duty, refusal to remove a poster which blocked the view of classroom and refusal to go to the supervisor's office when called. The Municipal School Board considered this insubordination and issued suspension.

Mrs. Manzer resigned and the Board revoked the suspension so that there would be no friction detrimental to the students.

The appeal was heard on Wednesday when John Comeau acting for the Municipal School Board read the resolution passed by the Board revoking the suspension. Merlin Nunn Q.C. acted on behalf of the Teachers Union and Mrs. Manzer. J. Irving Pink Q.C. was appointed by Hon. William Minister of Education, as arbitrator.

Ask For Clarification

Glen Pitman, Town Clerk, in his report to the Digby Town Council on Monday evening asked Council to reaffirm existing policies or established policies relating to work done by town employees on private properties and also a policy on sewers and culverts. A motion was passed which provides for no private work to be entered into by the Town of Digby.

Consideration was given to the raising of interest on outstanding taxes from ten percent to fourteen percent beginning in September.

New Fish Curing, Storage Plant Announced For Digby

A new fish-curing and storage establishment for Digby has been jointly announced by Bernardin Comeau, president of Comeau Sea Foods Ltd., Sault Ste. Marie; Joseph Casev Digby MLA, and Coline Campbell, newly elected MP for south western Nova Scotia.

The new plant, Canpol Fisheries Ltd., a subsidiary of Comeau Sea Foods, will be located in the former ferry terminal building on Digby's waterfront. It will process salt herring for export.

Mr. Comeau, who is also president for Canpol Fisheries Ltd., said the new plant is expected to be in operation in about a month. He said it will provide a ready market for the larger herring being caught in the area of south western Nova Scotia.

Until now, market outlets for these larger herring have been uncertain.

Renovation of the ferry terminal building to prepare it for the operations of the curing and storage plant are now underway.

It is expected the new plant will employ some 30 workers directly and in addition employment will be increased for fishermen in a wide area of the south western part of the Nova Scotia coastline.

Manager of the new firm will be Audrey Frankland of Digby, who has had a lengthy experience in the herring industry and in fish processing generally. Mr. Frankland operated a herring canning plant in Church Point for a number of years.

Mr. Frankland also processed marinated herring for export and smoked bloaters. For the past four years, he has operated Alan Fishery in Digby where he processed clams and scallops along with herring.

Digby MLA Joe Casey said efforts had been underway for some time involving Mr. Frankland, fishery officer Glen Smith, the ministry of transport and himself to secure an expansion of the herring processing operation in the area. This is necessary he said, if a reliable market is to be found for all sizes of herring.

The new plant will provide a market for the larger herring and efforts are underway to secure markets in the local area for other sizes of herring.

Coline Campbell, MP for South Western Nova said she welcomed the new development. Through efforts undertaken, she said, an alternative use has been found for the ferry terminal facilities in Digby that became vacant with the building of the new terminal and the establishment of the new ferry service between Digby and Saint John, N.B.

Until the development of the new industry, she said, no alternate use for the old structure had been found.

Miss Campbell said the new firm should provide needed employment in the area and an enlarged market for herring. Fish caught in the coastal waters of the south western part of Nova Scotia should be processed in the area whenever this is feasibly possible, she said.

congratulated on his completion of four years study on municipal administration through Dalhousie University. The announcement was made the Institute of Public Affairs.

His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney, Mr. Pitman and Councillor Joseph Hattie were granted permission to attend the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities Conference in Sydney, September 8 to 11.

Digby Man Drowns

Douglas Maurice Woolaver, 53, Digby, drowned in the Bay of Fundy on Thursday after a pleasure boat containing three men capsized near Victoria Beach.

A fishing boat owned by Casey's Fisheries Ltd. went to the rescue when the plight of the boat was seen by Art Hudson. He said the boat got into the rip and capsized. Philip Robertson Jr., Digby, and Carl Comeau, Halifax, were brought safely to shore.

Born at Hantsport, N. S., he was a son of the late Edwin and Pearl Harvey Woolaver. A veteran of the second world war, he served overseas with the R.C.A.S.C.

He is survived by his wife, the former Geraldine Denton; a daughter, Julie (Mrs. Michael Sayeau), Waldwick, N.J.; five brothers: Lloyd, South Range; John, Digby, N.S.; Philip, Bear River; Robert, Fredericton; Edward, Bridgetown; two sisters: Mrs. Regina Warner; and Mrs. Greta McNutt, Digby, N.S.

Funeral service was held on Saturday at 2:30 from the Baptist Church, Digby. Rev. A.D. Mac Pherson conducted the service and interment was in the United Church Cemetery, Digby.

Monday Civic Holiday

Digby Town Council in regular session on Monday evening declared Natal Day, August 12 a civic holiday in the town. Some of the stores, they noted will be staying open and this is permissible, it is understood.

Digby Fire Department was given permission to hold the annual Country Fair at the fire hall on Labor Day.

Councillors Philip Robertson, William Reid and Deputy Mayor Paul Winchester were named a committee to consider Christmas decorations for the town in 1974.

It was suggested that the Salvation Army choose another date than August 12 for a Tag Day as requested.

Permission was granted to Gordon Van Tassel to erect a dwelling on Second Avenue.

Landers Ltd. were given permission under existing conditions to erect a dwelling on First Avenue, West side, between St. Mary's St. and St. George St.

A trailer having moved into town without permission gave council cause for concern. A committee of full council will be called to deal with such situations.

Robert Robinson was granted renewal of his license for operating a mobile canteen.

House Of Wong Opens

The exterior of the attractive new House of Wong which opened to the public on Thursday.

More than two hundred and fifty persons on Wednesday evening were hand at the new restaurant, House of Wong, when His Worship, Mayor Willard Kinney declared the establishment open for business and Mrs. Kinney cut the ribbon held by Mrs. Winning Wong and Mrs. Joe Wong.

In his remarks Mr. Kinney congratulated the Wong family for serving the town for 30 years in the restaurant business. He commended them for adding the fine new building in the rapidly expanding town.

Warren Wong, who thirty-five years ago established the Cornwallis Cafe, a predecessor to the House of Wong, responded to Mr. Kinney's remarks. Mr. Wong thanked those who came to help celebrate for their opening and congratulated the younger generation on the hard work and dedication in the erection of such a fine restaurant for the people of Digby and patrons from far and near.

Receiving the guests with Mr. Wong were his son, Soon, and Mrs. Wong and his cousins Joe Wong and Mrs. Wong and Ivan and Mrs. Wong.

The Wongs and their staff served their guests with Egg-rolls, Bo-Bo and fried Wan-Ton as the main course. Chinese Fortune Cookies served as dessert.

The entire building made of brick and white siding was designed by Ivan Wong, who with his wife, arrived recently in Digby from Hong Kong. Baskets of flowers and flower arrangements, gifts from friends, adorned the dining and the booth area.

Chinese features, mottoes and trimmings are prominent in the House of Wong. Underneath the electric sign displayed over the front entrance are the mottoes in Chinese which say "Double Happiness" and "Long Life". The spacious and attractive interior gives a pleasing effect with panelled walls and velvety surfaced wall paper in reds and black and green bamboo effect. Carpeting is wall to wall in red and black shades. The cherrywood furniture is upholstered in gold leather in the booths and chairs at the dining tables. Picture windows, both in the front and overlooking the Basin, gives guests and visitors an excellent view of the town and harbor.

Editorial

BEYOND OUR REACH

The fact that the visit of the cruise ship, M.S. Victoria to Digby has been cancelled is a keen disappointment to many, especially the committee which worked so hard to make the plans materialize. The committee deserves credit. The coming of the Victoria to Digby would have been a great tourist boast and the cancellation of the visit here is a distinct loss to Digby.

The loss is not felt so greatly because of the money 500 persons would leave in town in only one day. All their needs could be supplied on ship. The loss comes in the fact that 500 persons cannot go back to New York and tell their friends what a beautiful place Digby is to spend a vacation.

Digby had everything to accommodate the ship. A plentiful supply of fresh water. Only one thing lacked. A way to supply the 250,000 gallons of water in a short day. Digby is a small town, a town of which we can be proud but this one factor was beyond our reach to supply. The idea, however, should not be lost or forgotten. Something similar should be tried again.

ECOLOGY AT SCHOOL

E. Carolyn Brown

There is "No Away" was the title of a book on ecology which sparked the interest of a high school teacher in Digby to start formulating plans for a grade XI Ec-English course for 1975 and which eventually took her, and three other Digby teachers to pursue a three-week intensive workshop course at Mount Allison University during the month of July.

The term "ecology", barely one hundred years old, was coined by the German biologist, Ernst Haeckel; however, the study of ecology per se, can date back even to the time of Aristotle (384-322 B.C.), when he and his pupil Theophrastus, both attempted to classify living organisms.

As ecology developed from natural history, it is usually considered a branch of the biological sciences and often called environmental biology.

A precise definition of ecology is difficult, if not impossible. Basically, it is a science that studies the interactions between living organisms and their environment.

Ecology is an attitude, a way of thinking, and a philosophy. By putting ecology into the school curriculum, students should become more aware of our endangered environment and develop a concern for its well-being. The school can offer knowledge to help insure the intelligent use of the environment by our scientists, technicians, planners, engineers and land owners of the future.

To develop environmentally literate citizens who are able to make decisions and choices as producers, consumers, voters and recreationalists, is part of the task of the school. The Digby students are fortunate to have easy access to streams, lakes, marshes, shore, woodland, farms, urban and old cemetery areas where field studies of various plant and animal habitats can be studied.

The outdoor classroom is at our disposal. Why not use it?

Hodge-Podge

His older brother had recently acquired a route for delivering newspapers and from overheard conversations he concluded his doctor father was also a delivery man, so he piped up with the question "Daddy, how much do you earn delivering babies?" His reaction to daddy's reply was "What, you get all that money just to knock on somebody's door and hand them a baby."

Got a lot of business from that one advertisement, said one of our customers as he placed the second adv. —

Could this be the new math? The grade IV student was ciphering how much money he could make off 20 newspapers. He put down a long vertical row of twenty threes. Then he counted one, two, three, four, five, six until the end of the row where his final figure was 60 cents. What difference when you get the correct answer whether or not you know that 20 times three is 60. —

The piper of Joggins. Be it what it is you still have to have the rats to co-operate and Orrin Pulley had their co-operation. He caught two rats at the same in the same trap. He reset the trap and, behold, he caught two more rats at the same time in the same trap.

— Our down-town benches need mending. We had a complaint from an out-of-towner that the one or ones at the monument were a disgrace to the monument and to Digby. Out-of-towners make use of those benches when waiting for Banks to open or transportation arrives or just a place to rest the weary feet from shopping. A few repair boards and a little paint might do the trick —

— Speaking of the monument, one of the town councillors on Monday evening remarked that the youngsters are not using the cannons at the monument for a sitting-out place so much. More respect is given to the monument and all it stands for —

— Had a visit from an Alberta couple on Tuesday. They simply can't see the town or municipality letting the Maude Lewis name to be forgotten. They thought she was marvellous. They suggested the town or municipality try to purchase the property to memorialize the artist. —

On opening the House of Wong on Wednesday evening His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney, digressed from his script to pay tribute to Warren Wong who began the Cornwallis Cafe, now the House of Wong, in Digby some thirty odd years ago. He referred to Mr. Wong's capacity for remembering people's faces and names. Warren has been noted for his ability for remembering people ever since he first operated a restaurant here. It has been said that once he met a person he always knew him after. What a gift! Wouldn't the rest of us wish to have half that capacity for remembering. And while we are on the Wong subject we'll offer our congratulations on their successful and most pleasant opening. The new House of Wong is, indeed, an asset to Digby just as the complete Wong families have personally been decided assets to the community. They came to Canada from far away China but they were never really strangers. Their own friendly and courteous approach to the community made lasting friendship from every walk of life. May they continue to be blessed in their adopted country. The community needs the Wongs and more fine, friendly families like them.

Cruise Ship Trips Cancelled

The anticipated three trips to Digby by the M.S. Victoria out of New York has been cancelled for want of water facilities. Digby, it has been found, has plenty of water to supply the 250,000 gallons necessary but it fails to have proper facilities to transport the water to the ship during the time the ship would be in the harbour. This announcement was made by William Troupe Jr., Chairman of the Committee set up to finalize plans for the reception of the M.S. Victoria on August 28 and September 4 and 11.

The plans were to have the ship anchor in the Basin and transport passengers ashore by launch to the Fishermen's wharf. The ship draws 28 feet of water while the capacity at the wharf is 21 or 22 feet. To dock at the C.P.R. wharf on Shore Road would necessitate moving the ship to accommodate the Princess of Acadia schedule.

Arrangements for the M.S. Victoria visits were done by the Travel Trade Mission, the Nova Scotia Department of Trade; Joe Casey M.L.A.; Lloyd Hill, executive director of the Annapolis Valley Affiliated Boards of Trade and the local committee. Mr. Troupe reported tremendous co-operation with definitely a positive approach from all the above, from the Digby Board of Trade, the Town of Digby and the Digby-Annapolis Tourist and Recreation Council. "It was just beyond our capacity", Mr. Troupe said when speaking of supplying the necessary gallons of water.

Day Care Centre Opened

A day-care center opened on Queen St., Digby, under the management of Mrs. Donna Lee Wigmore and Mrs. Yvonne Durkee. Mrs. Wigmore, the former Donna Hazelton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hazelton, Digby, moved here recently from Montreal and with her husband will be taking up permanent residence in Digby. Mrs. Durkee is a sister to Mrs. Wigmore.

The Queen Street Day Care Center consists of the whole main floor of an older house. A modern kitchen and full bathroom with all required equipment necessary for the dietary and sanitary needs of the children are provided. There are two separate bedrooms, one of which is furnished with cribs for the infants. A large playroom equipped with shelves, work tables, chairs and activity supplies indirectly connects with two outdoor play areas.

The outdoor play areas are on two levels at the rear of the house. A small walled lawn area for small children is separated by a fence from a larger area for the older boys and girls. The area for the older ones is equipped with swings, slides, teeter-totters, and sand boxes.

The day schedule includes free play time, special activity indoor and outdoor, hot dinner, snacks, stories and music.

Flying Club Meets In New Building

Another was added to the growing list of "firsts" for the Digby Flying Club on the night of Monday, August 5.

The regular meeting was held for the first time in the Club's small, new building at the airport. The number of members present for this historic occasion was small, but the significance of the progress being made was great. The greater part of the meeting was devoted to plans for the upcoming Airport Days, August 31, and September 1 and 2 - Labour Day. The need for full cooperation by all the membership in getting the plans for the celebration - including the drawing of prizes on Labour Day - completed was stressed again and again by President Wyles.

It was agreed at the meeting that any organization in the area desiring booth space at the Airport Days should immediately contact the Club - and all such groups are urged to do so, since full cooperation by the community will go a long way toward bringing wings to Digby.

In other business, the design for a club insignia was approved by the members, and the receipt of the courses for those planning to take flight training was announced. The courses are expected this week. Each member who has signed up for the material is urged to pick it up at his earliest opportunity.

The next regular meeting will be held Monday Night, August 12 at the Airport.

Could You Be The Parents Sally Needs?

Sally is a very sweet and lovable nine year old girl who is looking for a home with kind and understanding parents. She has not been able to live with her natural parents since she was a year old.

This brown haired, brown eyed girl is a bit shy around strangers and at times will do things that she knows are not right just to test and challenge people. But, once she has the feeling of being wanted, she puts on her pleasant little smile and will do most anything to please you.

Sally will be going into grade two in the fall. She has a corrected hearing problem and is considered to have average potential which could be developed given love, understanding and a feeling of being wanted.

In order for her to progress, she needs parents with a great deal of patience and who will show her a lot of affection. Could you be the parents Sally needs?

Sally is one of many children who need a home. For further information on becoming a Foster Parent, please contact the Department of Social Services, Digby, N.S. Phone 245-2581 or write to P.O. Box 399.

Kiwanis Drop First In Quarter-Final

Series "A" between the Legion and the Kiwanis opened with a victory for the Legion by the score of 15-2. It was played on August 5th, 1974 and was the first of a two out of three affair. Once again, the Jordan brothers, Derrick and Mark combined to allow the Kiwanians two hits, six walks, strike out twelve and allowed two runs. Kevin Speicts and Kevin Mosher were the only Kiwanians to get hits, both singles. Bernie Germaine and Randy Wilson drew walks and scored the two runs for the losers. David Handspiker with two home runs, Robert Cummings with a triple, double and single, Paul Ritchie with a single and double, Mark Jordan with a grand slammer, triple and single were the leading hitters for the Legion. The score does not indicate the play, this game gave the fans a pleasing brand of ball, there were several outstanding plays by both teams. Kevin Mosher went the distance for the Kiwanians, he allowed twelve hits (seven of which were for extra bases), struck out nine and issued seven walks. These same two teams will meet again on Wednesday, August 14th, 1974.

Uses Words And Sign Language

The regular Church Service at Bear River United Church on Sunday Morning August 4 was conducted by Rev. Frank Gyle, Ecumenical Chaplain to the deaf in the Maritime area. He also held a service at Clementsport. In one of the most fascinating and moving services ever witnessed by the congregation, Mr. Gyle preached simultaneously with the spoken word to the congregation and universal sign language to several deaf persons. At the close of the service Mr. Gyle outlined his work and the way it is being jointly financed by several Denominations including United Church, Baptist, Anglican, Lutheran, Pentecostal and others. The Ministry of Mr. Gyle is well known in the Halifax area where he has regular services.

This project will show the public who have very little knowledge of the industry the many people and jobs tied to weir fishing and the many risks taken.

The project is broken down into five ways:

Outline of weir fishing. Production of the Master Script. Interviews of Fishermen for Narration.

Shooting of Film and Production of Final Product.

The project depends on the grateful co-operation of the community who help in every way possible.

The Project participants and jobs are as follows:

Grant Merritt: cameraman; Faye Gidney: secretary; Michael O'Neil: Public Relations and Equipment man; Judy L. Task: Interviewer and Script Girl and Doug Johnson: Producer and Director.

To Appear During N.S. Festival

Catherine McKinnon, who has been seen on television more frequently than any other single Canadian performer - even Pierre Boudreux - during the past year, will be heard in one of her rare live concerts during this year's Nova Scotia Festival of the Arts, August 19 - 25. Her appearance is slated for Tuesday, August 20 at 8:30 p.m. in the Rebecca Cohn Auditorium of the Dalhousie Arts Centre in Halifax.

She just seems to fit in everywhere, says her Toronto agent, Paul Simmons, by way of an explanation. "She is the most versatile pop singer we've got. She performs anything from the classics to folk, and not many performers can do this." By her agent's count, she has performed in a staggering 144 television shows during the past 12 months including guest spots on everything from the Ryan's Fancy and Ian Tyson shows to Don Messer, Elwood Glover, Juliette and the Irish Rovers, and even a couple of appearances on Hee Haw, where her husband of five years, Don Harron, is a regular.

Her Halifax appearance has been fitted into a busy schedule of concerts at Toronto's Ontario Place, more TV work, including a mini-series for CBC, called En Route, scheduled to start Friday, August 9, and a featured role in the Nantico exhibition.

Catherine McKinnon's first public appearance took place at the age of seven in St. John's, Newfoundland, singing children's songs on a radio show. Her breakthrough came after the family had moved to Halifax and she became a regular performer on CBC's Halifax's Singalong Jubilee and the Don Messer Jubilee.

Nourished by the musical tradition of the Maritimes, she soon found a style of her own and is today regarded as one of the brightest stylist in her field.

Although her appearances before live audiences have become increasingly rare, she has found the time to branch out into other fields. When CBC recently dramatized the life of the famous Canadian artist, Emily Carr, and named it "The Wonder of it All", Catherine played the lead with vigour and finesse.

Oswald Mullen, Vacation Bible School at the Baptist Church hall in conjunction with the Government Sponsored Puppetry Demonstration and Workshop which is being carried on at the Rossway Community Hall, and at the Christian Conference Centre here, where he rides and pony rides are also enjoyed by young and not so young.

Seven tables of cards were played in the Rossway Community Hall on Tuesday evening. The door prize, donated by Save Easy, of a five dollar food voucher was won by Miss Vera Gidney. The cake was won by Heide Nesbitt.

Complete Course

Over three hundred children from the parishes of Meteghan Church Point and Concession have completed swimming and water safety courses at the swimming pool at the Clare Recreation park. These courses are organized by the Canadian Red Cross in collaboration with the Richelieu Club of Church Point.

On Tuesday morning, July 29th, the children from the parish of Saulnierville started the swimming courses which will last two weeks. Children from Salmon River and St. Alphonse will follow at the termination of the Saulnierville area courses. This will end the swimming courses for the year 1974 at the Clare Recreation park on the Meteghan Station road, on the shores of the Meteghan River.

A bazaar will be held on the grounds of the Clare Recreation park on August 18th. The bazaar is an annual affair organized to raise funds to assist in the operation of the park which includes the swimming pool. The Bazaar will also serve to show the people, by drawing them to the park, what had been done in organizing and installing equipment for the amusement of the children. It will also show the parents how their children are looked after by a special staff.

DIGBY TOWN OBSERVES NATAL DAY

Glenn Smith, former Digby Mayor, was on Monday proclaimed Digby's Citizen of the Year, 1974. Above (left) is Mr. Smith receiving from His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney a scroll and citation, the town crest and a key to the town. The ceremonies were part of Digby's Natal Day program.

Former Mayor Glen Smith was on Monday proclaimed Digby's Citizen of the Year 1974 when he was presented by His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney with a scroll and citation, a Town of Digby plaque with crest and a key to the town. The ceremony took place at the Memorial Bell on the Federal building lawn.

In making the presentations Mr. Kinney reviewed the accomplishments of Glen Smith during his term of office as mayor and his activities in the community in general. He mentioned Mr. Smith's leadership in securing the Children's Home, the Senior Citizen's Homes, Shell Housing, Public Housing, Tideview Terrace and his initiative in Digby's sewer project. His interests took him into church, school, community and industrial projects. As a fisheries supervisor he knew the needs of Digby's leading industry, fishing and did much to boost the tourist industry in the area.

In his reply, Mr. Smith said he accepts the honor with much happiness but with much humility. He said that no man can accomplish much alone but had to have the co-operation of the citizens. He pledged his continuance in being a good-will ambassador for Digby.

The ceremonies at the Memorial Bell began with the invocation by Rev. Isaac Butler of Trinity Anglican Church. John Waterman was Master of Ceremonies and His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney extended a welcome to all the visitors.

Mrs. Edith Wallis, Digby's Citizen of the Year 1973 introduced Gerald Handsaker of Culloden who laid the wreath at the foot of the Fishermen's Memorial Bell in tribute to those in the area who had lost their lives at sea. Mr. Handsaker is the son of the late Wallace Handsaker, a veteran seaman who had laid the wreath on several occasions. Mr. Handsaker (Gerald) had a sea career in the Navy, merchant marine, on Gypsum boats and also as a fisherman from South Shore ports and in the Bay of Fundy.

Present for the occasion were Dr. J.R. McCleave, Digby's first Citizen of the Year and Rev. Dr. T.W. Hodgson, the 1972 Citizen of the Year along with provincial and town leaders and their wives.

Other speakers for the afternoon were Lt. Col. E.N. Allen, CFB Cornwallis; Coline Campbell, M.P.; Joseph Casey, M.L.A.; Warden Wilfred Swift and Queen Annapolis, Miss Jane Harlow, Bridgetown. Greetings from Premier Gerald Regan and the government were extended by Mr. Casey. The Kiwanis Steel Band, Saint John, N.B. provided music at the Bell.

Reverend Raymond Brown gave the closing prayer. A reception for participating guests was held later at the House of Wong.

Other attractions for Digby's Natal Day besides the Children's Parade and the grand street parade were ball games, bingo, dance, Thomas Shows, Dunking Pool and canteen service. The day ended with a giant fireworks display.

Although attendance at Digby's Natal Day on Monday did not measure up to previous years, the parades and ceremonies were of the same fine calibre staged by the committee in charge each year.

The day began with the Children's Parade at the Evangeline Shoppers Mall at 10:30 a.m. This was in charge of Mrs. Victor Kynock and judges were Mrs. Douglas Myra, Mrs. Aiden Mullen and Mrs. Bruce Robertson. Glen Smith was Master of Ceremonies for the parade which resulted in the following prize winners: Claudia Amero, Pocohantis; Debbie Pyne and Kim Roy, Wedding on Wheels; Anne Raymond, Bo Peep; Joan Warner, Little Bo Peep; Richard Hudson, Old Farmer; Cathy Ritcey, Humpty Dumpty; Jeffrey Locke, clown; Bonnie Hutchins, Snow Queen; Susan Ritcey, Scallop Queen; John and Pam Kynock, Bam Bam and Pebbles and Greg and Jeff Fletcher, wrestlers.

Following the ceremonies at the Fishermen's Memorial Bell and presentation of the Citizen of the Year, the grand parade under convenerhip of Mrs. Donald MacDonald wended its way down Water Street from Queen Street and to the Mall. Judges for the grand parade were former town councillor, Mrs. A.J. Dillon and Lt. Col. E.N. Allen and Mrs. Allen, CFB Cornwallis. The result of the parade saw the following prize winners: Town of Bridgetown with Queen Annapolis, Jane Harlow, Most Outstanding Float; Digby East Fish and Game Association, most original; Weymouth Motors Ltd., best commercial; Jocelyn Robicheau, Bear River, best horse or pony; Digby Royal Canadian Legion, best decorated vehicle; John F. Roop, Plumbing and Heating, Judge's Prize and special mention went to Nova Scotia Light and Power Corporation.

The Cadet Band from CFB Cornwallis and Bowaters Mersey Band from Liverpool were in the parade and Majorettes from Yarmouth and New Minas participated.

Laying the wreath at the Fishermen's Memorial Bell in memory of those of the area who lost their lives at sea is a Culloden fisherman, Gerald Handsaker. Assisting Mr. Handsaker (left) is His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney. The ceremony was held on Digby's Natal Day.

Enjoy Camp-Out

Members of the Junior Red Cross Unit of Digby enjoyed a three-day camp out under sunny skies at the Smith's Cove Tenting and Trailer Park on August 6-9. These young people have been attending the Junior Red Cross Club in Digby during the summer where they've participated in arts and crafts, as well as instructions in First Aid. This camping trip was a break in the routine. Here, in addition to arts and crafts enlarged by the finds of the outdoors, they also enjoyed the beach and walks in the surrounding countryside.

Counsellors were: Mrs. Nellie "Nanny" Hinkman, loved by all; Mary Saulnier, Linda and Julie Mackintosh.

The Senior Red Cross gave $10.00 toward expenses for this outing and the young people shared the costs through a registration fee. On Wednesday evening, August 7, Harold Emerson, president of the Digby Red Cross Chapter, and Mrs. Emerson arrived at the Park to surprise them with a special treat.

While getting names and information from Julie MacKintosh, she excitedly told of looking forward to leaving on August 10th for Ottawa to attend a seminar on Current Events. She and Pam Graham were chosen by Digby Regional High School to represent the school at this seminar sponsored by the Carleton School Board of Ottawa. 250 students from schools all over Canada were expected to attend. The students will participate in discussions with prominent people as well as enjoy tours in the area and a trip to Montreal.

Testing At Depuration Plant

Provincial Fisheries Minister A. M. Sandy Cameron and the Director General of Federal Fisheries, H. Douglas Johnston, announced that the experimental pilot depuration plant at Digby commenced testing runs on August 13, 1974.

This experiment is designed to test whether or not soft-shelled clam stocks from areas affected by domestic contamination can be successfully depurated or cleansed by an ultra-violet light process. Clams will be harvested from contaminated areas within the Annapolis Basin and taken to the Digby plant for depuration. Because of the present paralytic shellfish poison closure placed on the Basin, it will be necessary to reseed the depurated clams in the original areas of harvest under the surveillance of Federal Fisheries personnel.

Depuration removes only bacterial contamination, it does not remove the toxicity of paralytic shellfish poison. Initial testing is expected to be terminated by September 12, 1974.

The selection committee consists of Academic Deans, the Directors of Schools, Registrar, and three other faculty members elected by faculty.

Respirator For Smith's Cove Fire Company

(1. to r.) Errol Goudey, manager of Mountain Gap Motel, Rae McCleave, Ass't. Fire Chief, Smith's Cove Volunteer Fire Company.

A respirator for use in emergencies and fire fighting was presented to the men of the Smith's Cove Volunteer Fire Company on Wednesday, August 7th, Errol Goudey, manager of Mountain Gap Motel.

In presenting the respirator, Mr. Goudey, representing Gordon Price and Mountain Gap Enterprises, again expressed the appreciation of Mr.

Price and himself for the quick response and efforts of the men in saving a motel unit in an early morning fire in late July. As a result of this event, they had checked with the men as to equipment needs and learned the lack of such a piece and immediately made arrangements to give one to the Company. The eleven men present expressed their appreciation to Mr. Goudey and

Mr. Price for the gift of the respirator.

The men of the District 8, Smith's Cove Volunteer Fire Company, proudly displayed a portable pumper, on August 7, which had been given to the Company recently by the Annapolis Royal Volunteer Fire Dept. This makes a total of three pieces of equipment the Company now has since organization in 1971. The first unit was an 1800 gal. tanker, No. 1, followed by the acquisition of Tanker No. 2, with 600 gal. capacity. The portable pumper already had No. 3 painted on it so fits right in with its place of acquisition.

Present for this event were eleven of the twenty-four members of the Company: Ass't. Chief, Rae McCleave, Brian Coker, Chair. of the Company, Harold A. Sulis, Harold Dunn, Jim Martin, Neil Adams, Eric Kinsman, Chesley Robbins, Lawrence Comeau, Karl Abbott, and Arthur Hill, who is also treasurer of Dist. 8 Fire Commission. Chief Gerald "Bud" Thompson was not present as he was on vacation.

In talking with the men, it was expressed how important it was to have the support of the entire community in the work of the Fire Commission and Company in attending the Commission meetings held quarterly in order to have a voice in the management of and raising of funds to help liquidate the present loan balance. The company began with a loan of $7,000 which has been brought down to $4,900 in the short time of its existence. To date funds have been raised by card parties, auctions, and latest event, on Gala Day in Smith's Cove on July 13th, another auction and fair jointly sponsored by the Fire Commission and the Smith's Cove Historical Society.

The men have been working hard to renovate the old Meeting House where the Commission meetings are held, also social events and meetings of organizations within the

IT COULD HAPPEN TO ME

The Smith's Cove Fire Commission received two gifts recently to help the fire fighters do a better job. Annapolis Royal gave them a pumper and the Mountain Gap Inn (Gordon Price) gave them a resuscitation. Both these gifts add to the other equipment and will greatly facilitate the rendering of protection by the volunteer firemen.

The Mountain Gap gift was in appreciation of the splendid job done by the Smith's Cove fire department when a fire broke out in the late Spring at the Inn. Mr. Price has always been a friend of the firemen but after experiencing the happening at the Inn, his appreciation of good fire fighting equipment was much more profound. The firemen were most grateful for this extra recognition for their services.

At Smith's Cove, as well as in other places and organization, there are only a few who take the interest in the concerns of the fire department. Most go along day by day just taking for granted that all is well while the few members of the Commission do the worrying and fretting on their behalf. But a note of warning should be sounded "It Could Happen To Me".

The firemen at Smith's Cove are appreciative of the co-operation when special financial drives are put on but attendance at regular meetings leave much to be desired, we were informed. If each citizen of the village could remember that fire is no respecter of persons and "It Could Happen To Me" they would shoulder the responsibility of the Fire Commission and attend the meetings more readily to help with decision making.

The Smith's Cove fire fighting force deserves commendation. In a short time they have renovated a building and acquired considerable equipment. They welcome gifts at any time.

None are immune to the hazards of fire. All have a responsibility. Remember "It Could Happen to Me" and help bear the load of decision making.

Hodge Podge

—How is one to know who spells his name S-a-b-i-n-e or who spells his name S-a-b-e-a-n? Just like the name Wallis. We have a hard time convincing the Wallace's that they do not spell their name correctly! The best we can do when introduced is to remark "the name is i-s and not a-c-e." The Sabines and the Sabeans might have to follow our example if they want the name to appear right on the printed page.

—Natal Day in Digby has been here and gone. The crowds were not as big as some years. Might be that we didn't hang our posters in the right places. You have to drop the bait where you know there are interested fish—

—The Natal Day grand street parade was a success and the committee deserves commendation. But what would we ever do if we couldn't fall back on our neighbors—

—As much as we enjoy these weeks of fine weather and making our tourist happy because of it we all have to think about the coming winter. "Twould be just too bad to have all this fine weather in the summer and go hungry for vegetables in the winter. We need rain.—

Presents $646.00 Cheque

Meldrum, president of Digby Kinettes and Mrs. Carol Ann O'Neil, member of the projects committee. On display is some of the handwork made by the children at the workshop held at the Hope Fellowship Centre in Conway. Mrs. Josephine LeBlanc, honorary member of the Kinettes and a member of the projects committee, is

The money donated was the result of a walkathon with 19 participants. It will be partly used to send the retarded children to the Kiwanis Camp in Truro. This is but one of the several projects which the Kinettes have undertaken since their organization has been instituted.

Young Voyageurs Visit Islands

It is with great pleasure to write that the Young Voyageurs from Niagara Falls came to the Islands last month, some 20 in all with their two chaperones, conducted themselves in the best manner, and according to all reports all had a thoroughly good time while here. On the morning of their departure, quite a few tears were shed at parting and most were heard to say "I'm coming again to visit the Islands". We are sure for the most part those that had anything to do with entertaining these young ladies and gentlemen will say that they enjoyed the activities as well as the young people did.

The visiting students arrived at the Islands School about 8:45 Thursday July 11 and on hand to greet them were the 20 Island Voyageurs who were to be their hosts, plus many parents and the two chaperones for our group, Miss Heather Williamson and Mr. Wayne Shako. After introductions, sandwiches, sweets and punch was served by members of the Islands Home and School, then they were taken to the homes they were to be visiting during their stay on the Islands. Several were to be at Tiverton, some at Westport and the rest at Freeport.

Friday the visiting Voyageurs were taken on a fishing trip for a few hours and from then on over Saturday and Sunday a rest period in which their visiting hosts were responsible for their entertainment. Monday, found them at Flower Cove the guests of the Islands Home and School.

Here they were introduced to beachcombing, bonfire over which they cooked their own hot dogs and marshmallows (comments heard, "we never did this before") besides eating the salads and other food provided for them. From there they proceeded to the school and played basketball and volley ball for a few hours, followed by ice cream, sandwiches and sweets.

Tuesday the Westport Churches sponsored a tour of Long Island, at which time they visited Boars' Head Light House and toured the Fish Factories at Tiverton and Freeport, then to Westport for a Social Evening.

On Wednesday they were taken on a tour of Brier Island by the Westport Home and School Association, ate their lunches on the beach, supper was served at the Hall, then a bonfire on the shore.

Thursday, the Womans' Auxiliary of the Freeport Legion was host of a bus tour to Annapolis Royal and C.F.B. Cornwallis. Lunch was eaten on the grounds at Fort Anne and after a grand tour of the "Base" all the students were served supper in the Officers Mess. Friday was set aside as a rest period during the day than at 7:00 p.m. all the students attended a Closing Banquet at the Islands School sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion. At this time speeches were made by the visiting students, chaperones and local students, presentations of a picture of Niagara Falls and a book were made. These are to be kept at the school. Thanks were expressed by the chaperones as well as the students for the good times had while here and the hopes that many will be able to return and perhaps bring their parents to visit with us again in the future. Following the banquet the group was taken to the Legion Hall where a dance was held for them and their friends.

On Saturday at 5:30 a.m. the visiting students left via chartered bus for Hal. where they were to fly via Air Canada to Niagara Falls.

On the 24th, 20 students and their chaperones from the Islands left from the school at 5:30 a.m. by chartered bus for Halifax, where they were to entrain for Ottawa to stay for a few days then on to the Hull, Quebec area where they are to be entertained by students from that region. We hope that they have a good time while away and will conduct themselves in the same manner as those visiting here.

Church Has Picnic

The annual picnic meeting of the Smith's Cove Baptist Church, Women's Missionary Society, was held on Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 7, at the home of the treasurer, Mrs. Alice Landers.

With the weatherman cooperating by supplying a sunshiny, breezy afternoon, the women gathered in the yard surrounded by trees, flowering shrubs and flower gardens blooming with a variety of flowers, and the background of chirping birds, a brief business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Edna Adams, Vice-President, in absence of Miss Sue Winchester, Pres.

Mrs. Irene Speichts opened the meeting with an inspirational message from the TIDINGS entitled "Toward the Enrichment of Our Spiritual Lives."

During the business meeting, the loss of two valued members of the Society was noted. Mrs. Emma Weir, a charter member of the group, who passed away on July 20th. Mrs. Weir had observed her 90th birthday on July 5th, and in spite of being bedridden for many years had

OPEN LETTER

Municipal Council
Digby Editor
Digby Courier.

Dear Sirs:

I would like at this time to bring this to the attention of all parties.

We living in the area of the municipality from Highway 101 to Digby Town, should have a crosswalk installed in the best interest and safety to all.

As a citizen, and tax payer of the municipality, urge the above parties to take some form of action to have at least three crosswalks installed from Sunset Tavern to Digby Town line.

Since the provincial government has not seen fit to build a new Trunk Highway from 101 to Digby Town or Ferry area, we should in the interest of safety for all have crosswalks installed.

Yours truly,

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Editor,

Natal Day this year was a confusion as far as business was concerned. A holiday was declared about five days before Natal Day was to take place. Was it disorganization within our town council? I believe we have very poor town planning.

When town council first sat down to discuss Natal Day they decided not to declare a holiday this year and business could go ahead and put their specials in the newspapers. After this was done the town council sits down and decides to declare Natal Day a holiday. Some businesses close but others can't because they have spent money to have their advertisements put in the newspapers. The public was notified that they could shop in most of the stores in Digby, but as it turned out this was not the case.

I feel this confusion was the town councils' fault and I also feel that any business who put advertisement in the newspapers should send their bills to the town council. Not only am I the only one who feels this way but quite a few others.

What this town needs in better town planning in the future. If our present town council can't do the job then it is up to the public to elect a better one. We need a real leader. Lets have the people express their ideas and let them be known.

Maybe next year our Natal Day will be planned two months ahead of time.

Sunday morning Church Service comes to you this week from New Minas Baptist Church at 11 a.m.

Westport, Westport, how beautiful you are.
You have so much to offer to a sightseeing man.
I stood on the bank, beside turbulent waters,
And in the beauty there, I saw The touch of God's Hand
No manmade thing could here compare
With rocks a century old
A land of freedom is all I see
A sight far to behold
I couldn't crave more beauty
Than what I now can see.
If you're in doubt, what I talk about Come sit awhile with me.

Digby Teachers At Mount Allison Science Workshop

Four teachers from Digby have completed a three-week workshop course in Ecology at Mount Allison University, Sackville, New Brunswick.

Mrs. Carolyn Brown, of the senior English department, registered for the summer session in order to use the course as a foundation for Ec-English, a course she will be offering grade elevens during the second term of 1974-75.

Mrs. Brown interested Mrs. Seddie Balser of the junior social studies department to join her in the venture of studying ecology as it would relate to social studies. The Digby ecology circle enlarged as Larry Hicks of the senior math and physics department decided to join the venture. The circle was completed when Barry Jennings from the elementary, grade six department registered for the course.

The class of nineteen, of which seventeen students were from Nova Scotia, was a cosmopolitan type of group ranging from teachers of primary, to grade twelve who work with all levels of learning including students in auxiliary, learning disabilities, general and academic classes.

Mr. J. Alan Morton of the University of Leicester, England who taught the course, was a specialist in the field of ecology, as well as a teacher of students, studying to become teachers; therefore, the course was designed to give teachers tools to take back to the classroom.

The course was based on exercises involving the principles of ecology, the properties of populations, and community structures and functions. Classes were from 8:30 to 4:15 with time for lunch. However, students worked late at night and during the weekends to complete exercises assigned and to prepare projects and seminars.

Field work for the class in-involved the study of freshwater, shore, woodland, farmland, urban, marshes, and quarry habitats. Mr. Morton focused the course of ecology on the place it has in the schools and showed how to use various modifications of the subject for different class situations, student ages and abilities and teachers' preferences.

Classes for the last three days were spent on campus, when the students presented seminars involving some phase of ecology in simulated teaching situations.

Mrs. Seddie Balser chose as her two-week unit, a survey of The Forestry Industry Across Canada dating back to the time of the early explorers, beginning with Jacques Cartier and bringing the study up to the present time. She showed the comparison of the various needs for timber, past and present; including exercises on conservation and reforestation. A film and slides were a part of the unit, but due to technical difficulties, were not shown during the seminar session. Colorful posters and classroom materials were on display. A classroom terrarium was a part of the simulated experience. In linking social studies and ecology, Mrs. Balser showed the great dependence of humans and woodland creatures on forests.

Barry Jennings simulated a grade six science class situation showing through the study of ecology that all living things are dependent on plants and that all life begins with green plants. He used examples of food chains from higher animals to the photoplankton in the sea and green plants on land. Using an overhead projector, he traced several food chains and the students viewed other material which would be suitable for bulletin board displays. Mimeographed sheets showed exercises involving food chain links. The unit ended with a drama entitled, "The Farmer and the Ecologist" written by Mr. Jennings and read by various members of the seminar group.

Mrs. Carolyn Brown and Larry Hicks presented a team-teaching effort, using the hypothesis that "Ecology can play a role in the Language Department." Their scheme, based from the English lab, using the Math-Bio-Physics labs as a ready source out to include knowledgeable people within the school area.

The two-week unit was part of a six-months Ec-English course planned for study at Digby Regional High School for 1975. The simulated first week was spent at a Woodland Camp involving the students in a workshop of fourteen ecology tasks with special emphasis on written and oral communication. The tasks included the writing of personal and class logs, essays, summaries, letters, preparing notes, scanning materials, literary writing, study of newspaper and periodicals for items on ecology, designing posters and book jackets for environmental to the five senses and the planning and plotting of a nature trail.

The second week of the simulated study was school-centered using the Woodland Camp exercises for English tasks and science-oriented lab work.

The students were able to view bulletin board items and displays which featured books, periodicals, topographical maps, aerial photographs, pictures, a board of deer jaws and a poster showing grouse feathers from the young to mature stages.

Applications and evaluations of the high school Ec-English program finalized the seminar presentation which proved that the study of ecology can play a role in the Language Department of the school situation.

The Digby group appreciated the loan of information, maps, photographs, and woodland displays from the Nova Scotia Department of Lands and Forests, Hillgrove Depot; the Department of the Environment, and Ducks Unlimited of New Brunswick; and the New Brunswick Department of Lands and Forests.

Peter The Cat

By Mrs. John Outhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald (Marion) Estey and son, Steven of Saint John, N.B. spent several days with her grandmother, Mrs. Ella Sollows. Also visiting Mrs. Sollows were her daughter, (Althea) Mrs. A. Finnamore, Mr. Finnamore and their cat, "Peter" of Saint John, N.B. Thereby hangs a tale.

About four or five years ago an illness hospitalized Mr. Finnamore. During his illness Mrs. Finnamore left her cat home one day to do a bit of shopping. On her return she found a cat sitting on her doorstep. Being a generous person she took him in, fed him, and let him go. Not long after, the incident was repeated but with a difference. This time when the kindly housewife opened the door, puss just walked in without being invited and made himself at home.

Whether Peter just dropped in for a few tidbits or a friendly "tete-a-tete" or if he felt Mrs. Finnamore needed cheering up, one will never know. But the certain fact is he is there to stay as part of the family.

There is nothing spectacular about Peter's appearance, he is just a common, gray, maltese cat but he does possess a captivating personality that won the affection of both Finnamores (their children are married and living elsewhere). Wherever they go Peter goes. For the past four summers he has travelled on the Princess of Acadia from New Brunswick to Nova Scotia proving himself an excellent sailor and an all around good traveller. When visiting Mrs. Finnamore's mother, Mrs. Ella Sollows at Tiverton, Peter is every bit a gentleman.

One might say Peter's lucky day was the day he strayed to the Finnamore's doorstep, and perhaps fortunate for his new owners, too, they have become so attached to him. In fact they have been quoted as saying, "where we go, Peter goes. Any place he is not wanted we don't go."

India Caravan Visits Digby

Above are Nancy and Ed Fenton, missionaries to India, who have many articles on display in their India Caravan situated presently at the Evangeline Shopping Mall parking area. The Caravan, open each day from 10:00 o'clock a.m. to 9:00 o'clock p.m. will be here until August 17.

It was in 1963 the Fentons went to India where Ed was asked to do construction work and enjoyed being a "Mr.-Fix-It" for the Canadian Baptist Foreign Mission Board, returning to Canada in 1969.

In their travels from teeming cities to remote tribal areas they were interested in the lores and customs of the people. The fine craftsmanship displayed, items they felt that Canadians would enjoy seeing. They have had an enthusiastic public response to viewing them, they said.

Contained in the trailers are beautiful and simple everyday articles, typical scenes found in the rural atmosphere of India which depict village life in the tribal and urbanized sections. Reptiles, birds and insects found in the Asiatic country.

And for the traveller an ox cart and two bicycle rickshaws of the type used in all sections of the country.

They are travelling in Canada, having toured from Vancouver, British Columbia, on their own initiative. It is from this personal project they derive their living and travel expenses, and are able to contribute to the needs of others in our own country, other countries and in India. The admission is by donation, minimum of twenty-five cents each.

Concentration is a game.

Concentration is a matter of life or death.

The biggest single cause of traffic accidents is inattention.

When your mind wanders, your car is likely to do the same.

You know how it is.

You're talking to a passenger, or looking at the scenery, or fiddling with the radio, or lighting a cigarette.

A businessman might be rehearsing what to say at the meeting he is headed for. A housewife could be working out the week's menus.

The point is, your mind is somewhere else. Maybe that was all good and fine in the horse and buggy days, but traffic moves a little too fast now. There usually isn't all that much time between an accident that's about to happen and the accident happening.

Even in a car creeping along at 20 mph, that car will travel 22 feet before the average driver even starts to react to an emergency situation. At 70 mph, you will travel 77 feet before you react. And you will need a total of 343 feet to come to an emergency stop.

Think about it.

Realize that it takes more than your hands and feet to drive a car.

You have to use your head.

Remember, with highway safety

It all depends on you.

The Last Nomads of Iran

The outside world knows Iran as a country of history, magnificent mosques, priceless jewels and supplies of the famed Caspian caviar. Lastly, but by no means least, is the reservoir of black gold, oil. This is not the Iran that Daniel Bortolotto and his film crew went to see in the sixth episode of the "Primitive Man" series entitled "The Last Nomads of Iran", telecasting Sunday, August 18, 11 p.m. - 12 a.m. ADT on the ATV Television System. A less glamorous side of Iran is explored by the film crew as they become witnesses to the lifestyle of the Kashkai. They are a nomadic people, like their ancestors, and traverse the mountain passes and barren flatlands of Southern Iran in search of pasture for their sheep and goats.

They carry with them everything they need and are self sufficient for five or six months at a stretch. As they move, they travel in clans. Traveling together, all share strong links of friendship and brotherhood, despite some obvious economic differences. The Kashkai, like all nomads, are great lovers of verse music and song. Like our minstrels of old, they reveal in a simple but stirring way their thoughts on nature around them and their life in its midst. Even as the time comes to put the infants to sleep, the mothers sing the lullabys they know so well.

In the old days, they considered themselves as lords of the mountain passes, cheerfully terrorizing the villagers below, who cultivated fields and stayed home each night. But those times are past, the times of tribal wars, raids and looting. Now the last nomads of Iran are satisfied to go their own way, live their own life without bothering other people. Almost as a tribute to their way of life these desert nomads have consistently and successfully resisted government efforts to settle them in one area.

"Primitive Man" is produced by Les Productions Via Le Monde for CTV. Produced and directed by Daniel Bortolotto with Francois Fiquet and Anik Doussan. "The Last Nomads of Iran" is written by Nicole Duchene and David Balstow.

Outdoor Service Held

On Sunday, August 4th, in the beautiful setting of Johnston Christian Park, South Range, Digby County, an impressive outdoor worship service was held under the sponsorship of Ashmore-Riverside United Baptist Churches of the Weymouth area.

Rev. W.P. Clayton, minister of the above churches, welcomed the large contingent of cars, where most of the "congregation" worshipped, some choosing to sit on benches provided. Rev. Willard Clayton expressed the hope that services such as this would become a regular part of summer worship in the area in future in addition to the usual church services. Thanks was also expressed to W. E. Cosman, Johnston Christian Park Supervisor, for making the facilities available. Mr. Cosman also led the congregation in a short Hymn-sing accompanied by group members of the "New Creation".

Lic. David Keith, Westport, leader of the Gospel-singing group called "New Creation" explained that the group's name was derived from the scriptural verse 2 Cor. 5:17, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature..." Mr. Keith introduced members of the group who are the Misses Janice Clayton, Crystal Rafuse, Linda Clayton, Odile Boyd and Messers Herbert Taylor, Lou Outhouse.

Displaying youthful zest and enthusiasm, the young people won over the attentive congregation with their sincerity and talent. More than once, car horns were honked in appreciation after various numbers in place of applause. The versatile group sang old familiar favorites as well as several more contemporary selections and interspersed them with brief testimonies by each member. Guitar accompanists were David Keith, Lou Outhouse and Crystal Rafuse. Prior to the service, recorded music was enjoyed on Rev. Clayton's Public Address system. The sound equipment, though new to the group, greatly enhanced the melody and harmony of their singing.

From the rousing singing of their theme hymn, "Look What Happened to Me", through the girl's quartette, solos, duets to the outstanding singing of the popular hymn "The King Is Coming", the group captured the full attention of the congregation. In all fairness, special mention must be made of the two solos by Miss Odile Boyd whose rich, low voice beautifully rendered the selections, "Through it All" and "More About Jesus".

Ushers were Daniel Hankinson, Riverside Baptist and Ronald Kinney, Ashmore. Offertory Prayer was given by Rev. Mr. Clayton.

In a simple, yet eloquent manner, Lic. David Keith gave a Christ-centred message stressing the "A, B, C's" of the Gospel. A - "All we like sheep have gone astray"; B - "Believe on the name of Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved"; C - Confess your sin to Jesus Christ as your Saviour. Mr. Keith closed with prayer.

Rev. Mr. Clayton thanked the group on behalf of the sponsoring churches and all present. He mentioned that plans are underway to have the "New Creation" return for another engagement with the churches in the near future.

Noted Artist Visits Home

Glenn MacNutt, A.N.A., A.W.S. of Dorchester, Mass. recently visited his mother, Mrs. Donald MacNutt, Birch St. Digby. Mr. MacNutt was born in London, Ontario but grew up in Digby and returns each summer to visit relatives. While Mr. MacNutt's talent for art had been early recognized, it was after he lived in the United States that his work gained fame. His work has been acquired by public and private collections including the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Harvard University and the Farnsworth and New Britain Museums. Other collections including the Glenn MacNutt art are Museum of American Art, Wheaton College, Mather School, National Shawmont Bank of Boston, Ford Motor Company and First National Bank of Boston.

Since 1942, Mr. MacNutt has received thirty awards and honorable mention for his paintings. In 1973 he won the C.R. Kingham award in the American Watercolor Society. Other awards captured were the Ford Times Award, E. Heitland Award, Grumbacher Award and the H.L. Pratt Award. Further awards received by Mr. MacNutt were from the National Academy of Design, Allied Artists of America, Boston Water Color Society, Jordan Marsh Annual, N. E. Artists, North Shore Exhibition, Ogunquit Art Association and the Concord Art Association.

Mr. MacNutt's works have been displayed in sixteen group exhibitions and eight one-man exhibitions in England, Ontario, Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati, Seattle, Maine, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Mr. MacNutt studied at the Massachusetts College of Art and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts School. He is a member of the Associate National Academy of Design, American Watercolor Society, Allied Artists of America and is on the Board of Managers of the Boston Guild of Artists. His name appears in "Who's Who in America."

Following his exhibit at Westwood, Mass., the media high lighted his dramatic contrast between light and dark for which Mr. MacNutt is well known. Quoting from a newspaper article "The dramatic contrast between light luminous areas and rich deep color makes many of his paintings unforgettable. In "The Point," the light sky and buildings serve as a foil for the deep colors of the foreground. "In Acaciaville, Nova Scotia," the foreground of grass and Queen Anne's lace is light, and the distance moves into the deep blue of the river and dark of forest green beyond. The "Old Road," again Nova Scotia, catches the magic light that affects all color near farm country that borders the ocean.

The technique exhibited in these paintings is varied and skillfully combines media to enrich the paper surface. For example, casein white is sometimes employed to serve as a fresh surface to be retained. Some of the acrylics are fluid as water colors, others are more solid."

Flying Club Plans Airport Days

Intense planning for the celebration of AIRPORT DAYS on Sunday, September 1 and Labor Day, September 2, from 11 AM to 7 PM at the Digby Municipal Airport featured Monday night's regular meeting of the Digby Flying Club at the Club building at the airport.

Some of the events on the schedule include a chicken barbecue, opportunities to play a number of games including the Color Game, inspection of several booths from a group of organizations in the town, souvenir booths and other attractions. Labour Day, of course, will feature the drawing for the Chevrolet Vega, the color TV and the 30.06 Hunting Rifle. President Wyles urged that any group in town wishing to erect a booth at the airport during these festive days get in touch with him at 245-4138. "The more the merrier," he said. "We'd like to see this a truly community effort, since the airport is designed to furnish services to the entire community."

Reports from work parties, busy improving the runway and approaches to the airport, showed that steady progress is being made, although it could be immensely speeded up if more of the regular members would volunteer a few hours of their time.

Further details of the features and activities for AIRPORT DAYS will be communicated to the public as they develop, and any and all help in making these days a significant mile-stone in the history of Digby Aviation—of bringing wings to Digby—will be thoroughly appreciated.

Married For 60 Years

On Saturday evening, August 3rd, relatives and friends gathered in the Church of Christ Hall, Weymouth, to offer their congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mullen of New Tuskett who were celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullen, the former Bertha Greene, were married 60 years ago at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Greene, New Tuskett, by Rev. Josiah Webb, the Baptist pastor at that time.

They have one son, Carl, of Windsor, who is married to the former Agnes Payson of Weymouth; two grandsons, Peter and Vaughn and one great-grand-daughter, Michelle, the daughter of Peter and the former Linda Yates, now living in England.

After the guests had offered their congratulations an hour was spent enjoying an old fashioned hymn sing as well as a number of solos and duets. The women of the Christian Fellowship served refreshments. The bridal table was appropriately decorated.

To Run At Winnipeg

Pat Theriault, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Theriault, King St. has qualified to represent the Atlantic Province in the 10,000 meters (6 miles) at the National Track and Field Championship in Winnipeg on August 27-28.

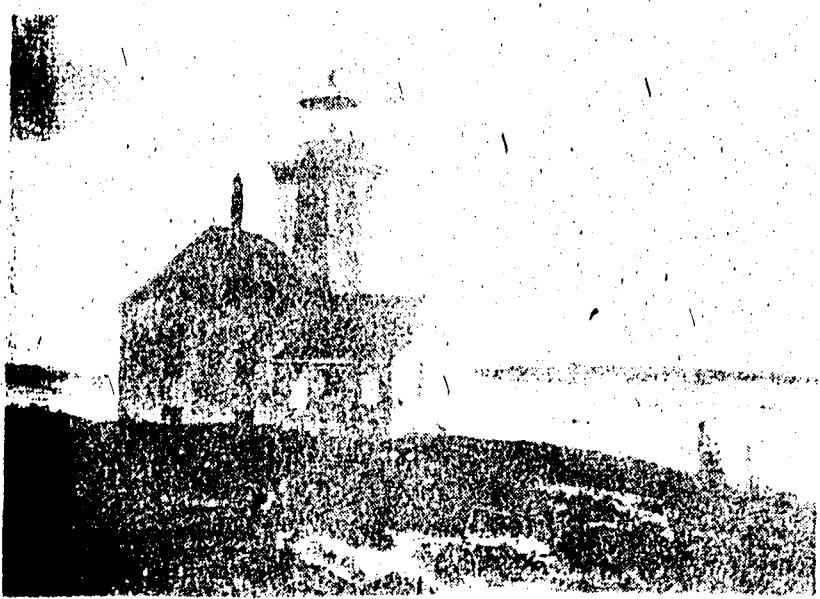

Pat is one of the most outstanding distance runners to represent Nova Scotia in the past few years. Last year Pat ran in the Summer Games in Vancouver and also in the Cross-country championships in Victoria B.C. This year Pat qualified to represent the Atlantic Provinces by placing second in the Atlantic Provinces Selection meet held in Halifax on July 27.

Pat has been running with the Digby Sea Side Striders for the past four years. He has dedicated himself to running and has shown the potential to become an international calibre distance runner over the next few years.

Pat's normal training program consists of 10-15 miles per day and on weekends as much as 20 miles per day. Pat usually runs twice a day, 6:30 am when he will run 6 miles and after work 6:00 pm he will do 6-10 miles. His average mileage per week is around 80-100 miles of running.

Although Pat is only 17 years old, when he runs in Winnipeg he will be running against some of the best distance runners in the world, many who are much older and more experienced. Pat is hoping to set a personal record for himself and hopefully will be right up there with the front runners in Winnipeg. Pat has many years of top calibre running ahead of him and he should be given the support which an athlete of his calibre deserves. Ron Fraser.

EXHIBITION NOW ON

The Digby County Exhibition got away to a good start on Wednesday. Plans were finalized and entries placed on Tuesday evening so that all was ready to greet the opening day. Favorable weather added its own incentive to attract a good attendance to view the exhibits and watch the official opening ceremonies last evening.

While it is too late to get many or any exhibition reports in this issue of The Digby Courier, a full account will be printed in the coming issue. In the meantime we would like to urge local people and visitors to make use of the opportunity an exhibition affords by attending.

Exhibitions are show cases. The biggest and the best are displayed with a sense of pride. There is a great satisfaction to find your own entry has won first prize. It has triumphed over all the similar entries. But, to be proud is not the only satisfaction achieved by the fine entry. Exhibitions have a purpose. That purpose is to further develop farming, fishing, cattle raising and handicraft skills and other benefits. By displaying the best, others see what can be accomplished and will try to raise the standard of their product and skills through observation or by conversation with those of similar interests.

Exhibitions then are educational. They also provide social contact with those people whom we would otherwise see infrequently. Exhibitions are also entertaining. They give the hard worker a day or more to leave the farm or exacting business and enjoy the fun and excitement. They return to the grind feeling somewhat refreshed and with a new lease on life so far as their occupation is concerned.

There are varied reasons for people to attend exhibitions. One good reason would be to support a worthy project and show appreciation for the efforts of the all too few who have shouldered the responsibility of such an event.

Whatever is your reason for attending the Digby County Exhibition today, Friday and Saturday, we urge you to do so. If you have no reason to do so, do attend anyway. You'll find your reason when you get there. There is much to see and learn.

Hodge Podge

Such people as Glenn MacNutt do more for advertising Digby than we ever think about. Many of Mr. MacNutt's paintings are scenes of Digby area and they appear in exhibitions and art galleries over much of U.S.A., Canada and England.

Whoever in the world of ten years ago would purchase a new garment that had been washed once, much less seven times. Today labels on jeans read "washed seven times" and "guaranteed to fade." Far cry from the orders of some years back when mother cautioned the children not to get the new dress or suit dirty or it would have to be washed.

The recent rain was a blessing this past week. After days of no rain and parching gardens the outlook for the vegetable crop was discouraging. Even the Digby County Exhibition might be feeling the effects of the dry spell.

Just One Of Those Days ...

Going to hospital with the steering wheel of a car is a bit unusual. The Digby Fire Department was called to the scene of a freak occurrence on Monday at Conway. A lady caught her finger in the steering wheel of her car and could not get it released. The Fire Department personnel cut loose the steering wheel and transported the lady complete with steering wheel to get relieved of her burden at the Digby General Hospital.

MARRIED FOR 60 YEARS

the centerpiece being a beautiful three tiered wedding cake.

Seated at the table with the bride and groom of sixty years were members of the family. Two foster daughters, Mrs. Donald Barr and Mrs. Maynard Mullen served the bridal table. Mrs. Lura Schofield of Mass. U.S.A., and Mrs. Blanche Churchill of Wolfville, cousins of the bride poured. Misses Kimberly Barr and Lori Mullen, foster granddaughters were in charge of the guest book.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullen then opened their gifts which included flowers and a chair from their family, crystal, money and a silver tray from the United Baptist Church to which the family has contributed so much. For many years Mrs. Mullen was pianist and Mr. Mullen was a member of the choir.

Mrs. Carl Mullen read the accompanying messages of congratulations and good wishes. After Mr. and Mrs. Mullen expressed their appreciation a closing prayer was offered by Rev. W. Clayton.

Out of town guests were present from Mass., U.S.A., Ontario, and Wolfville. One who was absent from this anniversary and was missed was Mrs. Emma Greene of Wolfville, aunt of the bride, who will be 100 years old on December 8th.

Lodge Member Honored

An impressive ceremony was held during the Annual Assembly sessions of Oddfellows and Rebekahs at Yarmouth Wednesday when the highest honor of the order, the Degree of Chivalry was bestowed on three members.

What made it important to members in this area, especially to Etta Rebekah Lodge members was that one of these members was Sister Viola Cress, a member of Etta Lodge for 54 years.

The degree, performed by the Canton Lodge of Halifax consisted of Oddfellows and Rebekahs and was beautifully done, making it something that those present will never forget.

The degree is given those who have sincerely been faithful and given outstanding service to the Lodge their church and community organizations to which Sister Cress has been most worthy.

Many members and friends attended the ceremony including members from USA who were attending the sessions. Those from Bear River attending were Sisters Phyllis Read, Mary Darres, Mary Mayo, Hazel Bell, and Norma Fraser, also T. Real, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Wright, Howard Wagner and Mrs. Cress' daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Isles.

Members of Etta Lodge were proud of Sister Cress and wished her many years to enjoy her beautiful jewel and the honor bestowed on her.

They Had A Ball

A word for Nova Scotia hospitality. Last week a young cyclist was hit by a car near the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tustin in Plympton. Fortunately the girl wasn't seriously injured but she had to be taken to the hospital for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Tustin opened their home to the group the girl was travelling with and they stayed with the Tustins until the girl was released from the hospital and arrangements were made for the group to return home. On the day the young girl was released was her birthday (16th) Mrs. Tustin made her a cake and they made a day of it. While speaking to Mrs. Tustin she said "THEY HAD A BALL." That's hospitality!

Develops Youth Recreation Area

Under the Opportunities for Youth Program, young people of Conway and Acaciaville are developing a recreation area for the youth of the villages.

Heading the project, for which they had a $3000. grant, are Heather Elms and Sherry Barton, both grade 12 students of Digby Regional High School for the 1974-75 term. Others participating in the project are Rowann Barton, Melvin Barton, Ben Elms, June Miller and Roland Miller.

The project occupies the youth for six weeks and includes cutting trees on the four acre lot across the road opposite the home of deacon Whitfield

Barton; bulldozing, removing the rocks, raking and weeding. The field is presently being made ready for baseball, the youth having erected the backstop for the game. Some benches for the Recreation field were donated by the Acaciaville Baptist Church and others were made by the youth. This is the second summer that the young people have been working on the same.

Plans are being made to have volleyball, picnic area and special recreation for small children.

Miss Elms is looking forward to specializing in the teaching of history.

Therese Theriault

Therese Theriault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Theriault, Bellevue Cove, passed away peacefully in the Digby General Hospital, on August 10th, at the age of 23, after a life-long illness. Her remains were exposed at the Deveau Funeral Home, in Meteghan, and then taken to St. Bernard's Church, for burial. The spacious church was all but filled for the occasion. Principal celebrant was Msgr. J. Nil Theriault, assisted by Fr. Edward Theriault, Fr. Paul Belliveau, Fr. Claude Cote. In his homily, Msgr. Theriault emphasized the joyful character of these rituals, since they marked the entrance of a little saint into the Father's House. Therese has been chosen by God for suffering, and by her suffering to bring many blessings upon her community.

Chosen songs were sung by Fr. Edward Theriault and by young Adrienne Savoie, of Moncton. Marcel Belliveau carried the Processional cross, being a cousin of the deceased. The pallbearers were Jean Comeau, Jean Deveau, Daniel Deveau, Marcel D'Entremont, Donald Deveau, Jean Blinn, The floral cortege was composed of fifteen young ladies, all friends or cousins of the deceased. ## Church Holds Annual Memorial Service

A profusion of bright summer flowers adorned the altar and choir platform in the little United Church at North Range for the Annual Memorial Service. The little grey church was filled to capacity as descendants and friends of the former congregation met to honour their memory on Sunday afternoon, August 11th.

The service was conducted by Lic. E. E. Wiltshire, pastor of the St. Mary's Bay Baptist Churches, who took as his theme, Faithfulness, basing his message on St. Matthew 25: 14-29, the unfaithful steward.

Music was provided by the Weymouth Falls Choir who rendered several spirituals to the guitar accompaniment of Alfie Bright. Two solos were given "Then Jesus Came", by Mrs. Cora Johnson and "Just a Rose Will Do" by deacon George Longford, both of the Weymouth Falls group. The singing five of the North Range Baptist Church, composed of Mrs. Len Hamman, Mrs. Ivan and Donna Haight with Scott Haight accompanying on guitar, sang three selections: "While Ages Roll, In the Upper Room and Oh What A Happy Day".

The little "Methodist" church is one of the oldest in Digby county and although regular services have not been held for many years, it is kept in a state of good repair by faithful friends who gather once a year to revive old friendships and to contribute to its upkeep, as well as that of the adjoining cemetery.

The interest in the memorial service is kept alive by Mrs. Florence Bacon of Barton whose untiring effort brings rewarding results. The offering this year amounted to over $335.00 which will be used for cemetery and church repairs.

W.M.S. Holds Picnic

The Freeport Baptist W.M.S. once again held its annual picnic meeting at the summer camp of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Thurber.

Miss Eleanor Tucker, Vice-President, presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Harold Crocker who is convalescing at her home. Members were happy to know she is much improved and hope soon able to be back to the meetings.

The Devotional by Mrs. T. Teed was entitled "Why We Believe God's Book, The Bible". This consisted of a meditation on this theme, the hymn "Wonderful Words Of Life," a Poem and Prayer.

During the business session, plans were made for a church service to be held September 1st.

The lesson period in which all took part consisted of readings, poems and a missionary quiz by the various members.

A pleasant duty was performed when Miss Thurber presented gifts to Mrs. Thelma Finigan and Mrs. M. Chapman two faithful members who have recently taken up residence in the new senior citizen's apartments in Digby.

Roll call showed fourteen members present and several guests, namely Miss Pauline McNeil, Mrs. Clara Perry, Mrs. Raymond Thurber and Mrs. George Harvey (nee Carol Finigan).

At the supper hour Angela and Derek Thurber, Donna Wagner and Mr. Thurber joined the group.

Open Your Home To Joey

Joey is a lovable nine year old boy who likes all types of outdoor sports; especially camping and baseball. Like most boys his age, he is very curious and enjoys doing all sorts of new and interesting things.

This husky little brown-eyed, brown-haired boy has been unable to live with his natural parents since he was four years old. At one time he was a rather sick little boy; but, now he is very healthy, rough and rugged with a great appetite and an almost inexhaustible supply of energy.

Joey has been progressing well in school and will be entering grade three in the fall. He needs parents who will encourage and help him with his school work so that he may continue to progress at a normal level.

When first meeting him, Joey appears rather shy; but, before long he will warm up to you and begin telling you all sorts of stories as well as asking numerous questions.

Joey needs parents with a great deal of love, kindness and understanding and who can appreciate and encourage all of his various interests - Why don't you open your home to Joey?

Joey is just one of many children looking for a home and parents. For further information contact the Department of Social Services, Digby District Office, P.O. Box 399.

Seventy-Five Take French Course

Seventy-five men and women have returned home after a six-week total immersion course at College Sainte-Anne. They were mostly English-speaking high school students who had little knowledge of French and who cheerfully pledged to speak French only during their stay in Church Point.

"This is the third French Summer Session at College Sainte-Anne and we are delighted with the results were the remarks by College president LOUIS R. COMEAU.

"For the past three summers we have had people who came here to learn French and they were not disappointed," he continued. "It is a pleasure to work with motivated students who heartily agree to integrate in a rural Acadian community and to live the language, the culture, and the history of the people while acquiring a second language. We have accepted the challenge of making the two official languages accessible to Canadians who are motivated to learn a second language and College Sainte-Anne and its graduates can foresee a bright future", said Mr. Comeau.

Thirteen adults also enrolled for the program. Some French speaking teachers and students followed a more advanced course in order to perfect their mother tongue.

ALICE HALE from Cambridge, Nova Scotia, has been a student at the Summer Session for the past three years. She graduated from Nova Scotia Teachers' College last Spring and will be teaching French at the elementary level in Avonport next year.

"In my opinion to learn a language you have to speak it. You want to be in a group where you will have confidence, and know the people you are speaking to are your friends and that they are willing to take the time to speak with you. This is possible only in a small College like College Sainte-Anne."

The outstanding success of the immersion program is due in large measure to the social and cultural activities which stimulate student participation. Students live on campus and throughout the day and evening the use of French is compulsory, be it in the classroom, at mealtime, in sports, drama, music, or the varied social activities.

Students attending the courses are eligible for bursaries from the department of the Secretary of State through the Nova Scotia Department of Education.

A Renault which was completely demolished in Ashmore near the Weymouth North sign at 12:25 a.m. on Thursday. It was driven by Andrew Matan. Ward, of Dept. of Fisheries, who recently moved into the home of the late Demetries Amirault at

New Edinburgh. Mr. Ward, age 29, had been in Halifax to visit his wife and infant daughter, and was returning home when he apparently fell asleep. He died shortly after entering hospital. Digby R.C.M.P. investigated.

Berry Hill Farm An Active Summer Resort

Not too many years ago the Berry Hill Farm in Centreville was casually called "Dakin Hill". Not far from the lane that leads from the "shore" road was the Ing Dakin home and beside it the Harry Dakin home.

It was in 1947 that the "village" from the old Robichaud house in Centreville was moved to the first rise on the Dakin Hill to be from then on the summer place of Dr. and Mrs. Reginald Berry of Boston. Dr. Berry was at that time a career chaplain in the U.S. Navy.

When Dr. Berry was transferred from the Naval Disciplinary Barracks at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, to Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, Mrs. Berry and the two boys, Paul and Ernest, came to occupy the "Berry Box" on the Dakin Hill for a period of about six months while new quarters were being built at Camp Lejeune. From then on Mrs. Berry and the two sons spent as many summers as possible at the "Berry Box".

Naturally there were summers when Dr. Berry's duties in the Navy did not permit his coming to Nova Scotia.

Smith's Cove

Guests at the home of Hort Crosby who recently left for their homes in Cobourg, Ontario, were his sister, Mrs. Albert Webster, his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Ronson, and Mr. Ronson's parents.

Sgt. Mary Linda Warren has returned to her duties at District Headquarters, Administration of the Militia, Halifax, after attending a Warrant Officer course at Esplanade, B.C. Prior to her trip to B.C., her mother, Mrs. George Warren, enjoyed visiting Linda for a week in Halifax.

Recent weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Kinsman were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Saunders of Berwick. The Kinsmans have also been enjoying several weekend camping trips around the Province, and attended the Bridgewater Exhibition.

Mrs. Josephine Cassell of Dartmouth is enjoying a vacation visiting friends and relatives in the community while here she is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Adams.

Mrs. Kathleen Holliday of St. John's is visiting friends in the "Cove" while staying at the Harbour View Motel.

Mrs. John Okie was a patient in the Digby General Hospital for several days this past week. We regret that some of the items in this column have been delayed due to special coverage of recent events in the Digby area, which is understandable. ## Witnesses Told U.N. Will Fail (DIGBY) - A vast audience of 6,913 persons heard the principal address of the "Divine Purpose" District Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses at the Coliseum in Moncton.

R. A. Grant spoke on the subject: "Human Plans Failing as God's Purpose Succeeds." "It is comforting to know," he said, "that, whereas human plans for mankind are failing, the purpose of a loving Creator is succeeding."

Pointing to the League of Nations and its successor, the United Nations, Grant said they have failed to reduce international tensions and produce a world free of military armaments and weapons of tremendous destructive potential.

Speaking of the end of World War II and the introduction of nuclear power, Grant asked what protective device would men responsible for world planning now provide? Something that expressed a wisdom superior to that of mortal man?

"No," he said, "the nation that exploded the atomic bombs took the lead in arranging with its allies for another society of nations. Just the old political league with a new dress and facial makeup, under a new name, the United Nations organization."

Group Discounts On Fundy Service

CP Rail introduced group incentive fares on the Princess of Acadia beginning August 1. Under the new group rates, a party of 30 to 50 people will get 10 per cent off; the group reduction 51 to 100 people will be 15 per cent and for 101 or more, 20 per cent. Group discounts apply to one way, regular return and one day return fares. These rates are particularly designed for vacation tours, club and employee association trips, school visits and senior citizen outings. The new fare program is part of a continuing effort by CP Rail to encourage increased use of the Saint John-Digby service. CP Rail also reports that dance cruises on the vessel will continue into the fall. "These dances have been a huge success," says T.G. Fox, manager of CP Rail's Bay of Fundy Service. "More than 1,800 people have attended the weekend dance cruises since they were implemented June 15. "We have had a particularly good response from residents of the region taking out-of-town visitors on the dance cruises. People are recognizing the Bay of Fundy as one of our finest assets."

SHUH CHALLENGES YOUNG PEOPLE AT EX OPENING

J.E. Shuh, Truro, vice-principal of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, threw out a challenge to young people to take their places on the farm. Mr. Shuh made the challenge on Wednesday evening when he officially opened the Digby County Exhibition. Above left to right, are the Bear River Cherry Carnival Queen, Miss Jane Fraser; (hidden) Bruce Gilliat, Digby County Agricultural Representative; standing, Wilfred Swift, Warden of the Municipality of the District of Digby; Mr. Smith District of Digby; Mr. Shuh; Joe Casey M.A. and Ruben Mervin, president of the Digby County Exhibition Association. A.E. Denton in the rear was master of ceremonies and also as warden, represented the Municipality of Annapolis.

Mr. Shuh in his address said that exhibitions are show windows where one farmer can see what another farmer is doing and get together in friendly competition. Entertainment is an important item on the exhibition program, he said. Another use for the exhibition is to encourage the production of food to feed the ever increasing population. By the year 2000 the population is expected to be seven billion in the world and technology will have to be used to feed the hungry. He asked, how will Digby County help to meet the challenge and especially urged the young people to take up the challenge.

Mr. Shuh remarked about the good farm lands in Digby County and the Valley where much less food is produced than there ought to be and in some cases no food is being produced. People, he said, must believe that it is possible to feed the world's people and use top production methods and good marketing.

Mr. Shuh was introduced by the president and Warden Swift brought greetings from the municipality.

Wednesday was 4-H day at the exhibition. Garments, vegetables, cooking and hand-crafts were displayed by Meteghan 4-H Club, St. Bernard's and Granville Ferry.

One of the newest sections was that of the "over 80 years" entries where knitting, crocheting and other handwork was entered by persons over 80 years. Mrs. Myrtle Dunn of Tideview Terrace offered first, second and third prizes for knitting and crocheting. This section was in addition to the usual "over 70 entries".

Oils and water color paintings were displayed liberally in the second floor main building where the "Clam Diggers" by D.C. MacNutt brought much comment because of the life-like diggers. Judges, it is understood, considered the painting as exceptional.

Vegetables entered seemed to have both greater quantity and quality than the 1973 exhibition but flowers and fruits were down in quantity. Quilts and other handwork, also cooking, were on display in the main building and measured up to the usually good standard.

The oldest exhibitor in the exhibition was Fred Woodworth who has been entering items for display for the past 45 years.

Results of the show were: Best tea cloth and serviettes, Linda Rawling, Clementsport; best collection of jelly, Helen Woodworth; most outstanding arrangement of show, Mrs. Dorothy Emin, Digby; chocolate cake, Helen Woodworth; work done by lady over 80, Mrs. Grace Longmire; spice box, Helen Woodworth; best gingerbread, Mrs. Donald Turner, Litchfield; most outstanding flower entry, William LeForte, Weymouth; Best plate of ripe tomatoes, Mrs. John McLeod; Acadia; special loaf cake and tea biscuits, Heler Woodworth; best pet of show, rabbit, James Langmire, Bear River.

Prize for the best vegetable collection went to Howard Dill, Windsor, Grand champion Hereford bull, Keith and Gwen Alcorn, Round Hill, who also had the Grand champion Hereford female prize.

Senior tractor tilt was won by Kenneth Hebb, Granville Centre.

Ox and horse pulls resulted in Brian Conrad, Branch LaHave, getting first in the free for all double horse haul.

Poetry Accepted

Mrs. Anne Kaye, Digby, above, has received word that her poem, "Peggy's Cove," has been accepted by Poets of Canadian Anthologies, Ottawa.

Mrs. Kaye also had another honor come to her when the government of British Columbia informed her that they were considering using her poem, Beautiful B.C., in their Beautiful B.C. Magazine. Mrs. Kaye wrote the poem, which can be found elsewhere in this issue, on her return this summer from a visit to British Columbia.

Mrs. Kaye's poetry has been accepted at various times by the Chronicle Herald and some of Nova Scotia's weekly newspapers. Her poetry has also been used by radio stations and has been set to music for use by the Annapolis Valley Apple Blossom Festival. Mrs. Kaye is a member of organizations in the literary and poetic fields.

New School Board Appointee

Mrs. Vivian O'Neil was on Monday, August 19, given a welcome to the Digby Regional High School Board by the vice-chairman, Mayor Willard Kinney. Mrs. O'Neil was recently appointed by the government, succeeding Mrs. Shirley Woolaver who had been chairman of the Board.

Austin Morehouse, Sandy Cove, was elected chairman of the Board at the meeting and Mr. Kinney re-elected vice-chairman. Others on the D.R.H.S. Board are Mrs. Ina Dillon; George Barton; Mrs. Helen O'Neil, Municipal Councillor and Councillor Parker Thurber, Freeport.

In his report, the school supervisor, C.C. MacInnis noted that three positions on the staff are yet to be filled. One position is for the new program of Intermediate Industrial Life Skills; Industrial Arts (metals) which was made vacant by the death of Fred Giles and a study hall supervisor.

Mr. MacInnis, reporting on the renovating of the cafeteria said that another cook should be hired, more dishes purchased and heavier electric entrances installed.

Mr. MacInnis' report revealed also that a French teacher is required to replace Jean Pierre Vallee, whose resignation was accepted.

Widows Assessment Exemption To $3500

Widows, spinsters and those over 65 years in the Municipality of the District of Digby will be exempted up to $3500 on their assessment for tax purpose if their income does not exceed $3500 per year. This was passed at the regular monthly meeting of the municipal council on Monday. The maximum exemption provided by the Department of Municipal Affairs was set at $4500. The $3500 figure in the Digby Municipality is in line with other areas within the Digby-Annapolis Regional Assessment. A standing vote was called to decide on the issue as some councillors questioned how many widows, spinsters and over 65 there might be in the municipality and where that leaves the ones left to pay.

A letter was read from the Department of Municipal Affairs which advised that ambulance operation claims after September 30, 1974 will be forwarded directly to the provincial department instead of the municipality as is presently being done. Councillor Parker Thurber hoped that the public could be informed that the council did not give a grant to the Digby County Ambulance at the last session. It was just an advance payment.

A letter was read from Lunenburg and Queens Municipalities which supported

School Bus Drivers May Strike

Unless the two parties concerned can get together to solve the dispute, the bus drivers for the School Board in the Municipality of the District of Digby will go on strike. This was the decision of the majority of drivers who met with Harold Martell, Halifax, representative of Cupe, on Tuesday evening. Twenty-six bus drivers are involved and the disputing issue is for the most part higher wages.

Mr. Martell met with local 1185 at the Digby Regional High School.

The first round of negotiations was on March 20, 1974 when they were assisted by the conciliation officer, Gordon Keeler in trying to reach a settlement of the dispute. The report was given to the Minister of Labor on August 8 but the law requires a 14 day wait before a strike can be taken.

Mr. Martell said the Union is still available for negotiations to try to resolve the dispute and maybe prevent a strike. He expects to get in touch immediately with Mr. Keeler with the hope that the two parties concerned can get together.

New School Program

The new program, Intermediate Industrial Program, planned for the 1974-75 term at the Digby Regional High School is not simply to learn skills, C.C. MacInnis, school superintendent, informed the Digby Municipal Council on Monday, but it is also designed to give the student a taste of success and self esteem after years of failure and not being able to cope with the regular school program.

Mr. MacInnis was invited to appear before the municipal council in regular session by Councillor Helen MacNeil, also a member of the Digby Regional High School Board. The Intermediate Industrial Program has already been approved by the D.R.H.S. Board and Alfred Warner has already been engaged as teacher. It is expected that $1500 ($800 for 1974 and $700 for 1975) will be needed to launch the program so far as equipment is concerned. It is understood that this money has already been budgeted for. Councillor MacNeil felt that the money for the program should be taken from the idle sum of $35,000 left over from the construction of the composite wing. The new program will take place in a room or rooms now unoccupied in that wing. The idle money can be used only for that wing or rooms in the wing.

Mr. MacInnis informed council that the adjusted program, started about five years ago had been designed also for students who could not cope with the regular program but it is found that the adjusted program as such has not been working well and students are drifting into the regular program. The new program is one of several pilot programs being undertaken in Nova Scotia schools. The program will consist of a shop oriented course and a work experience in the work-a-day world and experience with resource people. Fifty per cent of their time will be with a regular teacher for basic education.

Mr. MacInnis admitted that the program in some respects is similar to the Vocational School in Middleton but that is fifty miles away. It is hoped, he said, that following the course the student will go on to a vocational school or get employment.

Mr. MacInnis said it is not the intention to drop the adjusted program immediately. It will be kept for a year. The framework will be kept until the staff is better acquainted with the students coming in from outside areas.

Mr. Warner, who has had experience with such programs at Shelburne also came before council to answer questions put by the councillors. Mr. Warner said he would want the programs to get the students to think, try to develop their skills, bring out their capabilities and a desire to learn.

Many questions were posed by councillors regarding students not applying themselves and the lack of ambition, unwillingness to work, how the students managed to grades seven, eight or nine where this program would begin, and how prepared the students would be to go out into the world without knowledge of the three r's.

Councillor MacNeil felt if only a quarter of the students in the program came out not confused, not destined for welfare

HOLIDAY SAFETY MESSAGE

Motorists were told today to "drive as if your lives depend on it" during the Labour Day holiday weekend.

Hon. Leonard L. Pace, Minister of Highways talked of the "determination, skills and dedications" that had gone into construction of the province's 15 thousand miles of highway, and told drivers that "no lesser skills are required of the motorists on those roads".

The minister warned, in his annual Labour Day safe driving message, of impaired driving and said that use of an auto is a privilege, not a right. If there is drinking and driving, the driver becomes "a mobile menace on four wheels", subject to full penalties of the law. He spoke of the human terms of highway accidents: remorse, high costs and blighted lives.

As Labour Day is on the eve of school opening, Mr. Pace sought co-operation from the public in efforts to further safety in school zones. Though youngsters are not always mindful of traffic hazards, he urged motorists to "keep a wary watch when you're going through school zones".

Labour Day weekend is a time of rejuvenation" so that we return to work as contributing, productive citizens", he concluded.

DIGBY FIREMEN'S DAY

Again this year, as in past years, the Digby Firemen will hold their "Country Store" type of Fair on Labour Day. Instead of going out of town to spend the holiday, the firemen give up the holiday for you and for me. How does that figure? Simply because the money earned by the firemen on Labor Day goes toward purchasing equipment to protect all of us from property loss, injury or death by fire.

Digby Fire Department has had an excellent record. Many can thankfully recall times when prompt and efficient service saved us from suffering homelessness or a wiped-out business. To continue that standard of efficiency the fire fighters need replaced or more modern equipment. Who has taken the responsibility through the years to acquire the equipment? For the most part the firemen, themselves, supplied equipment through fund-raising projects such as the Labor Day Fair. This is why we urge the citizens to patronize the Firemen's Day on Monday.

Advertisements in this paper advise the attraction for the day. What is donated is returned double-fold in protection of the citizens of Digby and surrounding area.

Hodge Podge

-We are pleased to insert the story and picture of the Citizen of the Month who found a purse of money and passed it over to the RCMP. We like to add another name to the list of honest finders. Billy Whitman, Bridgetown, formerly of Smith's Cove, it is understood, found a purse containing a considerable amount of cash. He also turned the find over to proper authorities. We can have lots of faith in the honesty of our youth.

-Who's afraid of the water? Not our 84 year old lady who enjoys her summer swims just as much or more than those of younger years—

So nice to get a subscription renewal from Halifax on Friday which said "I get the Courier faithfully every week. The mail is quite good as I usually get the paper on Friday and no later than Saturday. Too bad we can't get the same information from all our subscribers so that we can write "Amen" to "the mail is quite good".

NEW SCHOOL PROGRAM

but given a chance in life the program would be worth while. Mr. MacInnis estimated that 200 students would take advantage of the program.

Councillors were not against the program and some expressed the wish to see the program tried, out but no definite action was taken by council regarding financing $1,500 from the $35,000 laying idle. Since the money had already been budgeted and a teacher engaged they expressed themselves being confused on what was expected of them.

Plan Christmas Lights

Philip Robertson Chairman of the Christmas Light Committee for the Town of Digby has called a meeting for to-night to discuss the possibility of adding to the town's Christmas decorations in 1974.

In 1973 a meeting was called for the same purpose which resulted in the merchants of the town and the Town of Digby sharing in the expense of the new Christmas lighting for the town.

The meeting at the Town Hall at 7:30 tonight is expected to again have the co-operation of the merchants of the town.

Letter To The Editor

TO THE DIGBY COURIER AND TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I visited my home town of Plympton, Digby Co., Nova Scotia and I saw Mrs. Alice Amero and her family, (distant relatives). It should have been happy time, but instead, I came home hardly believing this was Canada.

Mrs. Amero is 51 with a husband, 61, who works at labor part time and she has a daughter of 8 and one 11. She used to get a blind pension, as she was accidentally blinded at birth. She used the pension to buy food, clothes, and little gifts for her daughter, ... a little something to give besides love.

A year and a half ago her blind pension was stopped because Mr. Amero had made $3,700.00—$700.00 too much. They said it would only be stopped for a year, but now, after a year and a half past they tell her that she lost the pension for good. The Welfare said they would help by giving a $25.00 grocery order a month. Mrs. Amero said "I don't want welfare, I just want what belongs to me" ... and refused.

The Ameros have no car, no luxury whatsoever, ... They have an old tractor and they don't drink or smoke. They are trying to get the children through school. I can't see why Mrs. Amero's cheque was stopped. Just because she's married doesn't mean she's going to see again. She still has to live.

What are we paying taxes for? Some get pensions and are drunk from one month to the next. I don't think its one bit fair, (and they don't get a raise either). The people who took her pension away get more holiday vacation pay then she got all year.

Writing this letter was not hard at all compared to speaking to Mrs. Amero and seeing tear drops come from non-seeing eyes. Sometimes we are very selfish and forget how lucky we are that we have eyes. This letter is not out to get anyone but to help someone who needs help.

I hope someone will help this family out.

Terry J. Amero, 79 Princess St., St. John, N.B.

Educanada Trip

by Julie Mackintosh

On August 10th our jet took off from the Halifax Airport on its way to Montreal. At Montreal Pamela Graham, and myself, Julie Mackintosh, got off the plane and onto a bus which took us to Ottawa. This started us on a busy seminar week in the nation's capital. We were taken to the seminars headquarters and residence. This residence was Gloucester High School, a modern high school specially fitted with Educanda equipment. The school had dormitories, recreation and lounge areas, a kitchen and cafeteria and a tuck shop. From this residence the Educanda buses left every morning at eight o'clock sharp, on their way to different parts of the capital city. We visited the Parliament Buildings and viewed the impressive "Changing of the Guards". We went on a tour of the East Block and saw the Prime Minister's office and many of the offices of the high ranking government officials. On one evening we went on a cruise on the Ottawa River. All of the students were divided into groups of approximately 50 people, both French and English. Thus divided we went about our tours of the Supreme Courts Museum of Science and Technology, National Aeronautical Collection, National Art Center, the Mint, the National Art Gallery and many, many, many more places of interest. We visited the departments such as the Department of External Affairs and the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. We toured the Governor-General's house and Sir Wilfred Laurier's House. One of the major highlights was a day spent in Upper Canada Village. Another high point was a day in Montreal, touring the older section and shopping at some of the boutiques. We then spent a rainy but enjoyable afternoon at Expo.

We had picnics, swims and dances. In the evenings we saw films and had some interesting discussions. Most of the English speaking people there could not speak French, and most of the French speaking people there could not speak English. Therefore we had a lot of fun trying to communicate, but we had some help from our Educanda guides who were all bilingual.

All 259 of us had a terrific time and most were sorry when it was time to go home. We made many new friends, all of whom we will treasure for a life time. These friendships were very special because they will always remind us of a week in our lives when we were entertained and educated at the same time.

recipient of a shower of cards from friends and from members of the Missionary Society of the Hill Grove Baptist Church of which she is a life member, and also a Dominion Life Member of the U.B.W.M.U. Friends who called came from Ontario, New Minas and Kentville.

She has eight grandchildren, twenty-four great grandchildren and one great great grandchild.

Celebrates 92 Years

Mrs. M.H. Porter, Halifax, celebrated her ninety-second birthday on Monday. Mrs. Porter recently spent a week with her son, I.E. (Bud) Winchester and Mrs. Winchester, Smith's Cove. She was accompanied here by her daughter, Mrs. Edith Harvey, Halifax, and enjoyed a day spent in Yarmouth.

LIONS EDGE FIREMEN IN EXTRA INNING 30-29

On August 21, 1974, these two teams met in the second game of the quarter-finals which had to be called because of darkness and completed the following evening. It was a real dragged out affair before the Lions emerged the winners. The Haynes coached Lions had won the first game of this Series "C" and thus eliminated the Firemen for this year. This game produced seven home runs, six triples, five doubles, twelve singles and thirty-six walks. The Mont coached Firemen showed good sportsmanship and keen play, although the team was weak in all departments, these qualities are the "backbone" of Little League Ball and our hats go off to Murray and his boys for their efforts.

Lions- 616 2942 LIONS GET "BYE" INTO FINALS

In the draw which took place on August 22, 1974, of the three remaining teams namely, Legion, Lions, K of C, the Lions received a "bye" into the finals.

Legion, who won all their games to date meet the K of C, who only lost one game and that was to the Legion. This semi-final series is a two out of three affair and should be a real thriller in every respect.

LITTLE LEAGUE RECEIVES GRANT

On August 13, 1974, word was received from the Honourable A. Garnet Brown, Minister of Recreation, Government of Nova Scotia's Grant Program-Capital Construction of Recreation Facilities that a grant of $1,100 was approved for Digby Little League. The purpose of this grant is to assist in the construction of fence and dugouts for the ballfield.

K OF C TAKE FIRST GAME IN SEMI-FINALS BY SCORE 9-8

In the most thrilling and best played game of the season the Stan Locke coached K of C edged the Jordan-Perry coached Legion by the score of 9-8 and in doing so handed them their first defeat of the season but more important, went one up in games. Joey Hattie went the full game for the K of C, he allowed seven hits, struckout eleven, walked eight and gave up seven runs. The Jordan brothers, Mark and Derrick handled the pitching for the Legion, they allowed eight hits, struckout eleven and walked four and gave up eight earned runs. The most outstanding player in the game was Brian Haynes with two singles, double and grand slammer in four trips and played errorless on third base, he tagged out Perry Goucher who tried to steal third to end the game. Derrick Jordan put the K of C down in the bottom of the first with no runs and the Legion lead 1-0. In

The Legion added two more in the third and lead 5-0 in the bottom of the third, Barr was struck out, Hattie hit a sure home run only to have Robicheau make a sensational catch, with two out Haynes doubled Kirk Mackintosh singled scoring Haynes and stole second and third and then scored on a single by Jefferson who eventually scored on an error, Porter, Theriault and Hattie (second appearance) walked to load the bases and Brian Haynes homered cleaning the bases, Kirk Mackintosh flied out to second ending the inning; having scored seven runs the K of C lead by the score of 7-5. The Legion got one run in the top of the fourth and retired the K of C in their half of the inning by striking out Jefferson, Porter and Theriault. In the top of the fifth David Handsper drove a long ball to centrefield and went all around the bases but failed to touch second and eventually he was called out the next two batters were retired, the K of C scored two runs on three hits in the bottom of the fifth and lead the game by the score of 9-6 going into the top of the sixth.

Learn and Richie went down by the strikeout route, McVeigh drew a walk, and Mark Jordan poled a home run to right field bringing the Legion within one run of the K of C, Goucer received a walk and Derrick Jordan hit a ball to Hattie which he knocked down but failed to get Jordan when the throw was off first, thus with runners on first and second and Handsper with a two and two count Goucer was tagged out when Mackintosh threw to Haynes at third ending the game.

Maritime Senior Golfers 50th Anniversary

The Maritime Seniors Golf Association has selected the Digby Pines Golf Club as the site for their 50th Anniversary celebration

Approximately two hundred golfers from clubs in the Maritime Provinces and bordering areas in the State of Maine with be competing, probably the largest sporting event ever to be held in Digby.

The tournament starts officially Thursday, September 5th and extends through Saturday, the 7th.

Additional caddies are urgently required, as this is one condition that Digby must meet if the Tournament is to continue to be held here every second year, as has been the case for the past forty. (See ad in Classified Section).

Mayor Willard Kinney has advised Jack Harris, assistant Tournament Chairman, that students-boys and girls-who caddy will be permitted to be absent from school on the Thursday and Friday...a limited number also on Wednesday the 4th, after school registration.

The students must have their parents consent.

The pay which is good, will help to cover back-to-school expenses.

Official Social activities are centered around the Pines Hotel with close to 400 expected for closing banquet Saturday evening.

Digby Flying Club Plans Weekend Fair

by Ed Knowlton

Parachute jumping! Booths! Chicken barbeque! and the drawing for three big prizes!

Those are only a few of the events in store for those who want to spend an exciting and different few hours at DIGBY AIRPORT DAYS - September 1 and Labour Day.

In the words of President Wyles at last night's meeting of the Digby Flying Club - "things are shaping up pretty well for a couple of good days at the airport."

When asked just what it is that the Flying Club is trying to accomplish, Mr. Wyles replied with words to this effect:

The Flying Club was organized to take over a dying airport and try to bring it back to life - and expand it into a meaningful service to Digby and all of western Nova Scotia. When the Municipality of Digby voted to buy the land of the old airport and add a little more to develop a cross-wind runway, the Flying Club agreed to carry on the development by itself - costing the Municipality nothing except an original small grant.

Since then, it's been push, push, push, for memberships, for voluntary donations - and we've had many and we're very grateful for them - for raising funds through ticket sales and now by staging the AIRPORT DAYS - so that everybody in the community can see how much has been accomplished - and also how much still remains to be done.

One of the promises made at the time of taking over the airport was that the Flying Club would have at least 20 members. To date, this has been exceeded with a membership of about a third more than originally promised. Another promise was that work would go forward, funded by the Flying Club through its own efforts.

To date, there has been a major change in the appearance of the airport. Razing of the old building. Building of a new approach road. Construction of a small service building. Widening, grading and compacting the dirt runway. Beginning of the cross-wind runway - to name only a few of the changes. For the rest, anyone who comes to AIRPORT DAYS can see for himself that here is an important new facility for the Digby Community - something that in the future promises employment, recreation of all types, and of course the chance for any able-bodied person to get his wings as a private pilot.

But for this weekend the word

To enjoy some real, old-fashioned home-cooked food. To play some games. To take home a souvenir of the first, but by no means the last AIRPORT DAYS AT DIGBY!

Beautiful British Columbia

I saw the deep-seamed face of mountains, silently sombre in the early, misty dawn. Like stern sentinels, keeping watch o'er the valley below. Each wearing a crown of silver, gleaming in the sun. Supreme giant castles in the sky. And I thought only God can make a mountain. A structure so unconquerably serene appearing like Sentinels of Time or Keepers of Eternity. So, as I gazed with pure enchantment at the supremacy of it all, I saw, as if by magic, a cathedral in the blue. Where silent, majestic evergreens were soft and warm in the fading twilight-glow. As little heart-stopping streams thread the countryside, like silver ribbons, through a velvet robe of green. Then, I reached out my hand to touch and hold this land and keep it close to me. A place where God created beauty and left it here for all mankind to see.

is FUN. Fun for all in Digby's newest and most exciting development.

There will be one - and possibly more than one - parachute jumps on both Sunday and Monday during the hours of AIRPORT DAYS - 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. both days, with the drawing of the prizes on Labour Day. There will be games, food, and exhibits by many organizations of the community. Most of all, there will be a chance for everyone and his family to come out, enjoy the excitement and activities, and see for himself how exciting the idea of flying can be. What better way to spend a few hours of your time? What better way to see for yourself and to show your family what the future will look like as efforts go on to BRING WINGS TO DIGBY?

And if you have not yet bought your $2.00 ticket for a chance to win a Chevrolet Vega Notchback Sedan - 1974, an Electrolux Colour Television or a 30.06 Hunting Rifle - why you'll have the chance right up to the hour of the drawing on Labour Day!

Make a note to come out. To watch the parachute jumping. town; and Brother Ken Norris, Sherwood Church, P.E.I.

Others sharing in the program were: Neil Burt, Sherwood; Justin Marshall, Danvers; Maurice MacCabe, River John; and David Haddon, L'Etete, N.B.

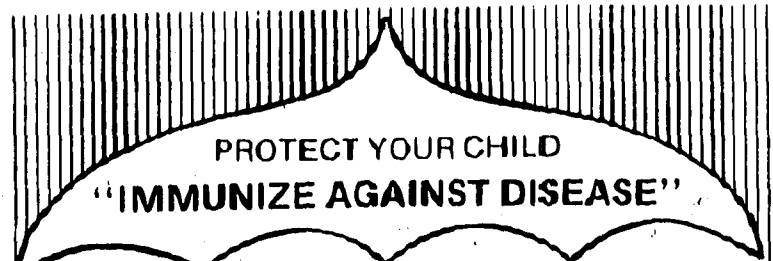

Rankin McKinnon, minister to the Sherwood Church, P.E.I. brought the closing message, "You Are A Christian - Anticipate it!" This service was held in the Weymouth Church building, Sunday evening.

Meals for the Conference were provided by the churches of this area, with Winnie Marshall and Helen McCullough undertaking the main cooking responsibilities and other ladies assisting.

Those who desired, enjoyed a boat ride to Sandy Cove, Saturday afternoon, with Roy Thurber providing the transportation.

The highlight of the Conference was the Sunday afternoon open-air service in the "grove" which concluded by four persons being obedient to their Lord in baptism.

Evening campfires were thought provoking and all-in-all, everyone came away refreshed spiritually.

WAGNER - WEAVER

A lovely summer wedding was solemnized on June 22nd, at two o'clock, when Carlotta Mae Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burgess Weaver of Ashmore, became the bride of Brian David Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Wagner of Plympton. The Rev. W.R. Clayton performed the ceremony in the Bethel United Baptist Church, Ashmore. Mrs. Sifford Doucette was organist, and Mrs. Ray Cosman sang two solos, "Morning Has Broken" after the Bridal party had assembled at the sanctuary, and "Touch of the Wind" during the signing of the register. The nuptial was decorated with bouquets of Dentzia, Lapins and Alacs.

The bride was radiant as she entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was gowned in white flocked polyester over taffeta, in princess tucks to the hips. From the sleeves, flowed wing-trains, and gathered to a bouffant puff wrist. Her dress flowed into a mini-train in back, and the stand-up collar was formed by the bodice tucks. Her veil fell into a long train, and was held in place with a floral arrangement of satin and mother-of-pearl. Her bouquet was a nosegay of red roses on a white Bible, with camers carrying rosebuds. Mrs. Stephen Langdale, sister of the bride, was matron of honour. Her blue floor length gown was made of flocked polyester on taffeta in A-line style, with a tucked and ruffled bodice. The long sleeves were of sheer polyester, and were tucked from the shoulder, falling into a bouffant puff at the wrists. She wore white accessories with blue daisies in her hair. She carried a Testament covered with blue taffeta, with a single rose at the top.

Marilyn Wagner, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore an identically styled gown as the matron of honour, in a mauve shade, and her Testament was covered with mauve, and a white rose.

Brenda Weaver, cousin of the bride was second bridesmaid with identical gown in pink and pink covered Testament and white rose.

Pamela Weaver, sister of the bride was flower girl and looked winsome in her miniature gown of yellow. She carried a basket of white and yellow shasta daisies.

A second flower girl, Lisa Mullen, cousin of the bride wore a gown in blue, matching the matron of honour, and carried a basket of blue and white shasta daisies.

Mark Wagner, brother of the groom was ring bearer and wore a double knit suit of blue fleck with matching accessories.

Gary Wagner, brother of the groom of Dartmouth, was best man. The ushers were Stephen Langdale of Barton, and Robert Wagner, brother of the groom, of Halifax.

A reception was held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, following the ceremony.

The bride's mother chose an A-line gown of multi-shades in a floral design for her daughter's wedding. She wore a corsage of blue and white carnations, and silver accessories.

The groom's mother wore a pink A-line dress of polyester crepe, with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink and white carnations.

The bride's table was centered with a beautifully decorated wedding cake, and floral arrangements. Mrs. Gerald Wagner, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Fraser Mullen, aunt of the bride, presided at the tea tables. Friends of the bride and groom served at the bridal table, and the bride and groom served their wedding cakes. Mrs. Robert Wagner was in charge of the guest book. A toast was proposed by the best man, and graciously responded to by the groom.

For travelling, the bride chose a pink pant suit, of polyester crepe, and the happy couple visited points in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. They will reside in Wolfville where the groom is employed as stationery engineer at Acadia University, and the bride is clerk-typist at Acadia University Vaughan Library.

MacALPINE DALEY

Mr. and Mrs. Alston Brooks MacAlpine are shown following their marriage in the Trinity Anglican Church Digby N.S. The bride was the former Miss Peggy Ann Daley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Daley, Digby, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis MacAlpine, Weymouth N.S. Rev. Isaac Butler officiated at the ceremony. Miss Margot Levy, Digby, and Mr. Raymond Winchester, Smiths Cove, were soloists accompanied by Mrs. Donald Robertson, Digby.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Laura Robicheau, Digby, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Margot Daley and Miss Kimberly Daley of Oromocto, both nieces of the bride. Mr. Charles MacAlpine of Newcastle Ont., brother of the groom, was best man, Mr. Earl MacAlpine of Ellershouse and Mr. Howard MacAlpine, Digby, both brothers of the groom were ushers. Miss Melissa MacAlpine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John MacAlpine, Digby was the flower girl and Mr. Danny Rigby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rigby, Toronto, was the ring bearer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the new Digby Fire Hall and guests enjoyed dancing to the music of "The Bonded Stock". Mr. Edward Connell (Chub), of Digby was the Master of Ceremonies, with Mr. Richard Daley, brother of the bride, giving the brides' toast. Mrs. Nancy Denton, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Evelyn Glancy, godmother of the bride, both of Digby, served the guests tea and coffee.

Alcohol causes the chemical to change color, and the Galvanometer determines the difference in light balance between the two vials

The Face Plate registers the Galvanometer reading and expresses it in milligrams. In this case showing a blood alcohol level of 0.08%

The Breathalyzer is a photoelectric instrument. It does not indicate ability but it does determine the amount of alcohol in the bloodstream. In Canada, a person with a blood alcohol level of 0.08% is regarded as being impaired

From the mouthpiece breath to be tested travels into an open vial of chemicals

There are two chemical vials. One is closed, the other is open to receive the breath sample. Both vials are then exposed to light from the photoelectric cell

One way or another we have to face up to the problem of drinking and driving.

You're facing up to the problem when you're standing in front of the breathalyzer.

And even if the needle doesn't get to 0.08%, and the police don't lay any charges, you still have a problem. You have a problem because you were driving after you had been drinking.

You have a problem because, on cold and sober reflection, you know you shouldn't have been behind the wheel.

Why all the fuss about drinking and driving?

Simply because 50% of all fatal traffic accidents involve drinking drivers.

And the vast majority of serious injuries from traffic accidents involve drinking drivers.

Maybe you are prepared to risk killing yourself or someone else.

Maybe you are prepared to risk losing your license. And your insurance coverage. And paying a large fine, or spending some time in prison.

Maybe you figure: "It just couldn't happen to me." Don't you believe it. The odds are getting shorter every day.

And is it really worth it for a few drinks?

Don't wait until you find yourself in front of the breathalyzer before you face up to the problem.

Accept the responsibility for safe driving. Have the guts to say "No", to the second drink.

Or even the first.

Remember, with highway safety

It all depends on you.

THE ROOKIES—“The Rookies” are a group of young policemen right out of college, government social programs or the armed services who are concerned with the problems that trouble every major urban community. Cities are changing, getting bigger, more violent and more impersonal. To many people the law means nothing. But if people are to live in safety the law must be enforced in the most effective way possible. This means that a new solution has to be implemented for each new situation. Hard and fast rules just don't work.

A new breed of cop is being trained to meet these new demands. They are young men right out of college, government social programs and the armed services. The rookies, more than anything else, are concerned with community service.

Rookie Terry Webster, played by George Stanford Brown, is a strong, independent person, aware that being black creates a reasonable, but he can also be tough, and that's what the rookies need.

Labor Day Monday

Following is the text of a Labor Day message from Hon. Walter Fitzgerald, Minister of Labor.

1974 marks the 80th observance of Labor Day in Canada. As Minister of Labor, I have the honor to pay tribute to the hard-working men and women of this province whose efforts, in large measure, have guaranteed Nova Scotians continuing prosperity.

All too often, I am afraid, the plans we make for the long weekend overshadow the real significance of this day. Enjoy the holiday, by all means, but take time to reflect on the contribution of Nova Scotia's workforce which has, in large measure, made the good life we all enjoy possible.

In 1974, as members of what some categorize as a "Rat Race," and others as a "Challenge," we demand, quite rightly, our share of the benefits society can offer. We have worked hard... for ourselves, for our families. While one day a year is set aside as "Official recognition" of this hard work, I hope we will use Labor Day to reflect on our successes and, in some cases, our failures over the past year.

It is significant, in my opinion, that, by and large, industrial peace has prevailed in 1974. Labor and management have proved that by working together, working very hard together, collective agreements can be developed without disruption in profits and pay cheques.

One of the major obligations of the Department of Labor is in assisting, whenever asked, labor and management in their attempts to negotiate collective agreements. The concept under which the department operates is a laboratory itself. Often, two parties attempt to work out an agreement to carry on their business. The laboratory of the department is a place where the two parties can go to get help. The laboratory is a place where the two parties can go to get help. The laboratory is a place where the two parties can go to get help.

Indeed, to expand upon this point for a moment, I would like to point out that many of the services of the Department of Labor offer Nova Scotians help to ensure a steady pay cheque, good working conditions and protection against certain injustices which may, from time to time, occur.

Constant efforts are being made to ensure safe working conditions. Safe working conditions help to ensure that pay cheques will not be interrupted or lost forever because of on-the-job injuries. Skilled tradespeople are developed through apprenticeship training. These men and women are vital to a rapidly growing industrial area. Maternity leave, paid holidays and vacations, minimum wage guarantees, pay protection and other protective provisions are acknowledged as basic rights of working men and women. The department ensures that the rights of all workers given to them by labor laws are protected and that these laws are enforced firmly, fairly and impartially.

Indeed, to disgress for a moment, the minimum wage board has asked me to again briefly outline upcoming increases in the province's minimum wage scale. As of Oct. 1st, the rate for experienced adult workers will increase to $2 an hour. This will again increase to $2.20 on Jan. 1st, 1975, with a further rise to $2.25 on March 1st.

Labor, management and government are working together to establish the rights and create a good life for all Nova Scotians. We are deeply aware of our obligations and it is with confidence and strength that we are continually working for the men and women who make Nova Scotia's prosperity possible.

I am privileged to be Minister of Labor. As I thank you for your efforts over the past 22 months, I pledge that I will continue to work for the betterment of Nova Scotia and Nova Scotians.

FIVE YEAR PROPOSED BUDGET REACHES $970,000

At a special meeting of Digby Town Council on Thursday evening, the Mayor and councillor drew up a five year capital budget totalling $970,000. Items in the budget consist of upgrading and paving streets $185,000; new town hall $150,000; storm sewers $50,000; fire equipment $10,000 water lines $250,000; electric utility $25,000; sidewalks $50,000 and recreational facilities, $50,000.

Although all the above items might not be attempted in the next five years, it is understood that the Department of Municipal Affairs each year requires a five year forecast of possible undertakings. Priorities are considered.

Included in the 1973 budget was the sewer system estimated at $850,000. This is expected to be completed by 1975. This year also will see St.

Mary's street paving completed at $25,000. With the change in Digby police protection, the new police car budgeted for in 1973 will not be needed. Other items budgeted for in 1973 and now completed were the new fire hall and the purchase of a loader back-hoe.

The necessity of a new town hall and recreation for the children were discussed at length.

Another matter brought up at the special meeting was that of sewer entrances. Town Clerk, Glen Pitman requested a definite policy on private companies installing sewers and often breaking the pipes. A motion was passed whereby the private company will come as far as the property line and the town will undertake the section from the property line to the sewer.

Children enjoyed Fire Engine Rides on Monday afternoon when the Digby Fire Department held their annual Labor Day fair.

Meteghan Harbour Improvements

The Honourable Charles M. Drury, Minister of Public Works, announced today the award of a contract of $399,750 for harbour improvements, Phase I, at Meteghan, N.S. The contract was awarded to a firm from Little Brook, N.S., B. & M. Comeau Construction Ltd.

The successful firm offered the only bid in response to a public call for tenders.

Phase I of the improvements requires construction of a 400 foot rock-mound breakwater extension and the removal of wharf ruins. Undertaken on behalf of the federal Ministry of Transport, the work should be completed in six months.

Plans and specifications were prepared by the Department of Public Works, Halifax District office. A.L. Sallaj of that office is project manager.

Also an $81,335 contract has been awarded to Stanley Reid Construction Ltd. to build an addition to the public wharf at Parker Cove, N.S., the Honourable Charles M. Drury, Minister of Public Works, announced today. Parker Cove is about eight miles north of Annapolis Royal.

The Port Hillford, N.S., firm submitted the lowest of five bids in response to public advertisement. The highest bid was $121,475.

The project will provide required additional wharfage for the fishing industry. The addition to the wharf will be T-shaped, with the stern measuring 60 by 20 feet and the "T" measuring 100 by 20 feet. Two breakwaters will also be constructed. The work will be completed in five months.

Plans and specifications for the project were prepared by the federal Department of Public Works. The project manager is J.W. MacKay of the department's Halifax office.

Firemen Have Successful Day

Digby Firemen's Day on Monday Labor Day got away to a good start at one o'clock p.m. when children eagerly boarded the fire engines for a ride around town. Above is one load ready to take off.

Booths of pantry items, chance wheels, and dunking occupied the down floor of the spacious new fire hall. The auditorium above accommodated tables of bingo and provided the area where the fish chowder supper was served.

Prizes which were raffled went to the following persons—Dora Hutchinson; Miss Louise Daley, cake; Emily J. Theriault, Plympton, pots and pans; Mrs. James Farrell, $50 prize number 304211 ticket; Mrs. Gaudett $25 prize number 304227; David Van Tassel, 40 oz. Glass Turkey and Reginald Ross, small Glass Turkey.

Prepare For Town Election

Digby Town Council which sat in regular session on Tuesday evening prepared for a town election in October by appointing H.M. Warne and Harry Titus as presiding officer and Mrs. Alice Winfield and Frank Collins as poll clerks. Retiring as councillors in 1974 are Deputy Mayor Paul Winchester and Councillors Philip Robertson and Joseph Hattie.

The re-elected or new councillors will take office in November. Nominations for councillors are received from September 24 to October 1 and the election will be October 15.

French.

It was also decided to install sewers on West St.

By regular motion the Town Council decided that merchants should be given opportunity to sign their intention to donate to the Christmas lighting in Digby's business centres before the fixtures are purchased. An amount of $30 each as in 1973 will be asked from the merchants. The Evangeline Mall has already offered $300 towards the lighting, it is understood.

The request to the town for general street lighting at Mount Pleasant was tabled until Councillor Joe Hattie can get in touch with Stuart MacNaughton at the Digby County Power Board for installation figures.

Town Clerk, Glen Pitman was authorized to write a letter to the owner of a house on Queen St., under the unsightly Premises Act.

Bills from August passed for payment amounted to $12,205.14. The dog catcher is to be advised of a letter regarding a dog nuisance.

The meeting opened with prayer by Councillor Joseph Hattie and was presided over by his Worship Mayor Willard Kinney. Parking Meter for August amounted to $848.42. There were 149 tickets issued. The report was given by Webb Dunn. Other reports included streets, police, and welfare.

More Christmas Lights For Digby

The committee in charge of Digby Town's Christmas lighting have decided to order more decorations for 1974 in a similar arrangement as the 1973 project. In 1973 a committee was formed after the merchants and town agreed to share expenses for new decorations, which amounted to $30 per merchant for their share.

Attending the meeting at the Town Hall on Thursday evening were Councillor Philip Robertson, Chairman; Councillor William Reid; Mayor Willard Kinney; Fabien O'Neil of the Digby Branch Canadian Bank of Commerce and Ronald Van Tassel. On the committee in 1973 were Mr. Robertson, Mr. Reid; Deputy Mayor Paul Winchester, Mrs. Virginia Graham and Jack Walker.

The lighting in 1974 will extend from the Kingfisher Motel through the town.

Bus Drivers Dispute Not Settled

The threatened strike by Digby school bus drivers reported in last week's edition of The Digby Courier was still not settled at time of going to press. The decision to strike was made by CUPE local 1185 at a meeting on Tuesday evening should their wage demands not be met by the Digby Municipal School Board. No date had been set for the strike but legally the drivers can strike by a 48 hour notice.

Meanwhile the School Board have been making preparations in the event of a strike but hopes are high that a settlement might be reached shortly. Parents are being advised to be ready to transport their children to school by other means in the event of a strike.

It is understood school bus drivers employed by the board receive $300 per month. Their employment is considered part-time as they work from two to five hours daily, depending on the length of the bus run.

The board has offered the drivers $375 monthly plus up to 100 days accumulated sick leave and other fringe benefits.

The drivers, are reportedly asking $450 monthly for regular part-time drivers, $565 for full-time drivers and $630 for driver-mechanics.

In addition, a clothing allowance, sick leave accumulation and other benefits are being sought.

The school board claims that no increase in wages for school bus drivers was included in the 1973-74 or 1974-75 education budget submitted to the provincial department. Any increase would therefore have to be borne directly by municipal taxpayers, the board claims.

Buses were on duty Wednesday transporting children for the opening of school.

Declares Senior Citizens Week

His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney has declared the week September 15 to September 21 as Senior Citizens and Homes for Special Care Week in Digby.

Mr. Kinney said the main objective of the week is to acknowledge senior citizens who are active in the community and those in homes of special care. The mayor felt Digby was particularly a town to honor the seniors by a special week where there is a New Horizons Club and Tideview Terrace, a home for special care.

The special week has been established by the Nova Scotia government to promote understanding and support in all matters relating to aging. Mr. Kinney urged all in Digby to give special emphasis to the week of September 15 to September 21 and focus on the needs of the elderly.

His Worship Mayor Kinney made special mention of the week on Monday evening when the Digby New Horizons and their guests from Manitoba were entertained by a dinner given by the town. Mr. Kinney welcomed the guests from Killarney, Manitoba, and related some of the history of Digby.

His worship presented to Kenneth Hartwell, president of the Killarney New Horizons with a crest of the town.

FIRST IMPRESSION LASTING

Among other capital expenditures forecast for the next five years in the Town of Digby was included a new town hall at a cost of $150,000. These items of course are just proposals and need not be attempted. In fact, such a proposal at first appears to be an extravagance, an unnecessary expenditure. A new town hall produces no direct revenue to offset the expenditure so such a proposal can readily be argued down especially at a time when a new sewer system, so necessary for health protection, is in progress.

Nevertheless, a new Town Hall for Digby has almost become a necessity whether it be a completely new building or a renovated place. One might consider the present structure unsanitary or a fire hazard. Of course, we agree that a pile of hot water and soap could work wonders but still there is left that long flight of stairs to climb and the uninviting and depressing atmosphere to overcome. In comparison to most modern structures of the day the Digby town hall neither lifts the spirits of employees or guests. We are not proud to show off our town hall to visiting dignitaries.

Digby has put first things first for many years but soon it must be faced that first impressions are often lasting and we wonder what impression we make on visitors through our town hall. The day might not be too far away when a new town hall will be considered a necessity, if not for other reasons, in order to make a favorable impression.

DRIVING ADVICE TO YOUTH

You'd think it would be self-evident from the construction and design of a car's front seat, that it was built with the intent in mind that passengers should ride abreast and not in tandem, but it's surprising how often you meet some ardent young couple, snuggled up in 10 per cent of the front seat area, barrelling down the highway at 60 miles an hour; one hand on the steering wheel and the other - well, free for any kind of emergency.

I don't want to appear critical of snuggling. As far as I'm concerned it's one of the world's great institutions and my only regret is that it's so often wasted on the young, who don't appreciate its finer points.

I'm convinced that no one can realize the full potential of the art while he's travelling at sixty miles an hour. So take some advice from an old pro. When you want to neck pull over to the side of the road or go somewhere where you can concentrate on what you're doing - then when you get back on the streets or highways - concentrate on what you're doing there too.

That way we'll both live to enjoy the finer things in life.

-Saskatchewan Safety Council

A STANDARD OF LIVING? (Red River Valley Echo)

The very thought of food rotting in one part of the world because market prices are too low to bother selling them, while humans are starving in another part of the globe is abhorrent.

A recent report that there is over-production of eggs in Canada, and that they are being left to rot so that the price can be maintained seems immoral.

We are not suggesting that farmers in the egg producing industry should not be adequately recompensed for their labors. What we are saying is that to let food go to waste while people are starving is immoral.

Governments of the world and their economists should be addressing themselves to ways and means of distributing food where it is needed, regardless of monetary cost.

Maintaining a high standard of living for the "haves" by letting the "have nots" starve is unconscionable (PVP)

ARTHRITIS

Health Minister Honourable William MacEachern has endorsed "Arthritis Month" in Canada.

In his statement, Mr. MacEachern said: "I am pleased to add my personal support to 'Arthritis Month' in Canada."

It is a month with special meaning to the more than 50,000 Nova Scotians who have arthritis but it should also command the attention and support of the general public.

Arthritis is not only a disease of the aged - it can strike anyone. But because of effective and progressive research during the past few years, early diagnosis and modern treatment enables many sufferers to live nearly normal lives.

Arthritis research has been spearheaded by the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, organized in 1949 with the objective of improving methods of treatment and care, and reducing the incidence of the disease.

During September, hundreds of Society volunteers - your neighbours and mine - will be calling at homes in many of our communities. They will be asking for our support for the programs of the Arthritis Society as it strives to achieve its goal - "arthritis control".

I commend the work of the Society to all Nova Scotians and urge you particularly during "Arthritis Month" - to support its important efforts."

Hodge Podge

—It was our pleasure recently to visit the Ross Farm at New Ross on the way from Kentville to Chester. It is a worthwhile experience to visit the farm occupied by five generations of the Ross family. The articles on display represent a span of life from 1600 to beyond 1900. Those responsible for the collection of these items deserve our commendation. It is no easy task to locate these relics dating back for centuries. It is surprising how the life at childhood can so easily be forgotten until reminded by such display of the country store, the little red school house and other reminders of the past. Ross Farm has both of these, the old cottage, barns, horses and cattle, a cooperage where barrel making is demonstrated and rooms where early handicrafts are demonstrated.

It looks as though both Labor Day events so close together at Digby made out well on Monday. At least, we understand, the firemen surpassed last year's gross intake.

Tideview Guests Marry At 80 And 83

Tideview Terrace was the scene of an interesting event on Friday afternoon when Mrs. Margaret Perry, age 83, became the bride of Thomas Rowlett, age 80. Father Leo Maillett performed the ceremony before friends and relatives at Tideview.

The happy couple were attended by the bride's son, Stanley and Mrs. Perry.

Mrs. Rowlett was attired in a light blue street length dress and wore a corsage of pink carnations and Mrs. Perry wore a deeper blue street length dress with a corsage of white carnations.

A reception followed at Tideview and later in the evening the couple were given a reception by the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 20 and the Auxiliary at the Legion Hall.

Gerald Campbell, Legion president, was master of ceremonies and Mrs. James Webb, president of the Auxiliary welcomed the guests and congratulated the bride and groom. Gerald Handspiker offered prayer and others who extended wishes of happiness were E.B. Tufts and Jack Nichols.

Miss Joanne Currie had charge of the guest book.

Appreciation to the guests and the sponsors of the reception was given by the groomsmen and the groom.

Gifts were received by the couple and among them was a Patient Lucy plant which along with candles and mums made beautiful table decorations. A three tier wedding cake was cut in traditional fashion by the bride and groom.

Mrs. Rowlett has four sons, Stanley, Perry, Willard, Gordon and Dennis and three daughters, Mrs. Vera Cumming, Mrs. May Jelleau and Mrs. Lena Maillett. She was the daughter of Isaac and Mary Jane Amero.

Mr. Rowlett, who was born in Hingham, England, came to Nova Scotia at 13 years of age and lived at Hectanooga, Digby County and Norwood, Yarmouth Co. Mr. Rowlett is a veteran of World War I and has been the recipient of various medals for bravery. He is a past president of the Digby Branch Canadian Legion. This is his first marriage. Before entering Tideview Terrace Mr. Rowlett lived at his home in Seabrook.

ternoon all departed to Defoga Lodge where a sea-food chowder was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The two lucky people who had specially marked chowder bowls were Mrs. Florence Leslie who got the "Bluenose in a bottle" and Mrs. Olive Fairhall a ceramic lobster graciously donated by the Fish and Game Association. Both ladies were from Killarney.

Words of welcome were given the guests both from Killarney and Digby Groups by Mr. Stanley White, President of the Fish and Game Association.

Certificates of The Order of Good Times were given each Killarney guest by Joe Casey who greatly appreciated these. At the closing "O Canada" and "This Land of Ours" was sung.

Deep Brook Post Office Moved Next Door To Parish Hall

(Lillian M.D. Henshaw)

"HAVE MAIL—will travel" seems to be the slogan of the Deep Brook Post Office.

Monday, Sept. 2, saw the moving of the present post office building from Harold Purdy's property to that of Dr. Allan Purdy, next to the Parish Hall, partly due to the retirement of Harold Purdy, postmaster for the past 17 years. Mr. Purdy is being replaced by P.O. 1st Gerald Shaw, a retired veteran, who with his wife and daughter, have purchased a home in this area. Mr. Shaw was stationed at CFB Cornwallis before he retired and is from Saint John, N.B.

Looking back over the years it is found in 1869 Deep Brook Post Office was listed W.O. (Way Office) with Henry F. Vroom as postmaster. Mr. Vroom was followed by Cereno Purdy who after 35 years retired from duty in 1908, the Post Office then being located in the Cereno Purdy House.

Walter Payson continued to serve the public for sometime in a building on Vroom property, succeeded by James Ditmars, assisted by Henry Sulis, passing out the mail from a room on the street level in the house then owned by Mrs. McBride.

In 1935 Major Robert J. Vroom took over the postal duties in a building on Vroom property, from where he and Mrs. Vroom served the public for 22 years.

This was still in the "Horse and Buggy" days. Loran Adams following James Ditmars with the rural route delivery, getting the mail from the train at Deep Brook Station (now gone) and delivering, including Waldec, daily, summer and winter.

After Mr. Adams' retirement Keith Harvey and Mrs. Harvey took over the rural route delivery with a car. Following Mr. Harvey's passing, Mrs. Harvey still continued the delivery with a jeep, after about 28 years of faithful service.

After Deep Brook Station was removed Mr. Harvey drove to Clementsport twice daily to pick up the mail, until the mail truck took over the service from the train. In 1935 Major Robert J. Vroom retired, with Laurence Snell operating as post master for approximately one month. Harold Purdy and Mrs. Purdy at this time operated the postal service in the same Vroom building. After a couple of months the site of the Post Office was moved to a building on Harold Purdy's property, near his home, remaining there for 17 years until this week when the same building, having been purchased by Dr. Allan Purdy, was moved again to Purdy property.

Over this period of time letter postage has gone from 3 cts to the present 8 cts, mail delivered by train, now comes by mail trucks twice daily, and rural route delivery has changed from horse and buggy to jeep. Who knows, it may yet be dropped from helicopter, a vast change from the Pony Express Delivery of 1813!

ENTERTAIN ROUND HILL NEW HORIZON

The Digby New Horizon Activity Centre was filled almost to capacity Tuesday afternoon where twenty-five men and women from the Round Hill New Horizon Club visited the Digby Centre and helped the seventy-five Digby group celebrate their August birthday party. Several played games-some ladies quilted, several just enjoyed chatting with friends-piano and accordion music was enjoyed with several joining in song. Before the refreshments of cake and ice cream were served the names of both groups having birthdays in August were read off with everyone singing "Happy Birthday" to them, with accordion music.

Sixteen young Maritime ladies have just completed seven weeks of Wilderness training at Kejimikujik National Park. The Conservation Corps commenced on July 7, 1974. The camp participants received training in the following subjects: First Aid, Ecology, Search and Rescue, Map & Compass, Backwoods survival, Entomology, Limnology, Air Photo, Interpretation, Fire prevention and suppression and Water safety. This was the first all girl camp held in the Maritimes. This course was centered around and designed to provide the members with an in-depth study of National Parks programs to each member. The corp members were billeted under "canvases" in a secluded section of Kejimikujik National Park. Course certificates were presented to each member at the conclusion of the course.

Teachers Adamant On Bargaining Rights

The Nova Scotia Teachers Union is calling for meetings with the three provincial party caucuses to press home fine points of impending legislation concerning teachers' bargaining rights, NSYU president Dominique Henry said.

He spoke to news media people at the completion of two day sessions held in Halifax by presidents and executives of 45 provincial NSTU locals, delegates to the leadership conference represented close to 11,000 provincial teachers.

Mr. Henry said the conference had taken a strong and unanimous stand on the need to have politicians made aware of the adamant position of teachers regarding bills 63 and

64 now in law amendments committee of the house. The Bills provide negotiating machinery for teachers to bargain with government for Salaries and outline membership in the bargaining unit. "Premier Regan has assured us these two Bills will be passed in the October sitting of the Legislature," Mr. Henry said. "And our membership is insistent that they are passed without further change, delay or compromise."

The NSTU president said the Nova Scotia School Boards Association has attempted to force the Government to make changes in the legislation proposed, in order to split the teaching force into two or more bargaining units. "Our stand, as expressed by delegates to our annual council last March, and by the school administrators association, is that there be no imposed division of membership."

Mr. Henry said the teaching profession is not designed on strict management-labour concepts as in industry. "Rather it is a cooperating team of professionals, any breakdown imposed on this professional relationship could only result in an immediate and continuing disruption of the existing level of educational services in the province."

The teachers union president said the issue of splitting the professional team is a "confrontation issue with teachers, however, we are confident the Government will pass the legislation which has been discussed now for close to three years and has passed the education committee of the house with apparent understanding and approval."

Another issue discussed during the conference, Mr. Henry said, was the matter of a cost of living adjustment for teachers. "Our provincial leaders are very distressed to find, as everyone is finding, a serious deterioration in buying power. This as a result of a 29-month letter of understanding between the provincial Government and the Nova

BISHOP—COLE

St. Matthews Anglican Church in Weymouth Falls was the scene of a lovely wedding on the 24th day of August, 1974, when Miss Marilene Frances Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cole, became the bride of Henry Vernon Bishop, of that place. Mr. Bishop is the son of the late Barry Bishop and Mrs. Mimi Bishop.

More than eighty-five guests and relatives witnessed the rites, (which were performed by the Reverend Isaac Butler of the Anglican Church), and who afterward were invited to a reception and supper at the Legion Hall in Weymouth.

The bride's attendants were: her maid of honor, Miss Charlene Langford; and Miss Joy Cole, bridesmaid, a sister of the bride. Mr. Bishop had, as his attendants, Benson Bishop (his best man) and Wade Cole, brother of the bride. Miss Cole wore a white gown and veil. Her maid of honor was attired in yellow; while her bridesmaid wore a petal pink gown. All of the bridal party ladies carried flowers (red and white roses and gladiolas) to match the alter decorations.

The mother of the bride wore a green gown with matching accessories. The groom's mother wore a mauve color gown with matching accessories.

Mrs. Isaac Butler was at the organ and gave a short recital before the ceremony.

The groom will be attending the N.S. College of Art and Design in Halifax; and Mr. and Mrs. Bishop will reside in Dartmouth where Mrs. Bishop will be with Kay Mart, Halifax, as a secretary.

PIERCE-BURRELL

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized on August 24th, at 3:30 p.m. when Rev. Mr. Edgar A. Robertson, Lawrencetown, united in Holy Matrimony, Vivian Burrell, Deep Brook and Ralph Pierce, Bear River East, at the home of the bride's brother, Bryson Denton and Mrs. Denton, Lighthouse Road, Digby.

The attendants were Mrs. Charles Hird, Garland, Kings Co., sister of the bride, and Howard Pierce, Bear River East, son of the groom.

The marriage ceremony was followed by a small reception after which the happy couple left on a short trip to P.E.I.

Architects Arrive

"Public needs and greater efficiency will be better served through growing regional cooperation, says President of the Nova Scotia Association of Architects, Gregory Lambros, commenting prior to the September 5-8 meeting here of Atlantic architects.

More than 120 architects and wives are expected to attend the four-day session scheduled for the Mountain Gap Inn, which includes a combined meeting of the four provincial councils.

"Regional organization is well suited to our requirements and brings four provinces together in order to strengthen the profession and the service we provide to the public", said Mr. Lambros. "Through pooling our resources last year, we formed the Atlantic Regional Council of Architects and significant progress has been made to date."

Since last September, the four provinces have been able to make headway in fields such as reciprocity permitting architects to carry out their professional services in any of the four provinces.

Moves have also been made in the direction of effecting a greater degree of uniformity in the various legislatures relating to Architects' Acts as well as fees, inter-professional relations and public information.

An executive committee comprised of representatives of each provincial association meets four times a year, once in each province, in order to transact business in between the Joint Council Meeting.

An expanded work load to be proposed for the forthcoming year will be discussed at Digby and it is expected that it will include: a task force on uniform fees and standard specification, financial management, a regional library, tendering procedures, regional design awards, continuing education, scholarships, administration of minimum syllabus, public relations covering exhibitions, newsletters and information.

The subject of professional liability, which concerns the responsibility that an architect assumes through his exercise of professional judgement will be examined during the sessions.

Special speakers and panelists dealing with this subject include: Mr. Stewart McInnes, NSAA solicitor with the firm of McInnes, Cooper and Robertson of Halifax; Mr. Jack Farquhar of Farquhar, Bethune Insurance Limited of Ottawa; and Mr. Eric Clarke of Montreal who acts as legal counsel to the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada in these and related areas.

Among special guests attending the sessions are the president of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, Mr. Bernard A. Wood of Edmonton, and RAIC immediate past president Mr. Allan F. Duffus of Halifax.

Couriers Found

Two old Couriers of April 9 and April 16, 1897 were brought to the Courier office. They were found by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Winchester when doing renovations at their home.

We note that F.M. Letteney's were not giving away their Well and Vale bicycles. They were charging $100, $85 and $70.

At the G.I. Letteney and Brothers bedsprings and lace curtains were going at 33 cents to $5.00 a pair and curtain poles were 25 cent upward.

The Digby Boot and Shoe Store had ladies shoes (Oxfords) for 75 cents up to $2.00.

One store advertised confectionary, tobacco and cigars in exchange for butter and eggs.

W.F. Journeay in Weymouth had shirt waists for 70 cents and a dollar. Material for making shirt waists could be bought for 20 cents a yard up to $1.50 per yard.

One of the most interesting articles in the April 16, 1897 issue was on the Reverend Roger Viets. The article was written by T.M. Lewis on a book of sermons preached by the Rev. Mr. Viets and giving his opinion of the place and people in his mission to Digby. The issue in 1897 said that the contents of the book were penned more than a century ago which would make the date before 1797.

Rodger Viets was an Episcopalian of the town of Simsbury in the State of Connecticut, New England and after the war came about 1795 as a missionary for "the society for the propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts" to Digby, N.S. One of the sermons in the book was preached at Digby on October 26, 1788 and the volume is dedicated to Right Reverend Charles Inglis, D.D., the learned the pious, the respected bishop of Nova Scotia. Another sermon in the book was preached at the funeral of William Huggford, son of Dr. Peter Huggford at Digby, N.S., January 7, 1789.

The book gives the reasons or inducements to come to Digby and his opinions of the place. Mr. Viets book describes the location and physical make-up of Digby but states that "none of these circumstances recommend the county to my choice, so much as the worthiness and good disposition of the inhabitants, gentle, amiable, kind and hospitable". "I have not heard one obscene word and few profane words". He continued that any idle, dissolute people who would not labor and had profligate morals had emigrated to New York and "there is great hope that the few of such character who remain might follow their example."

Married 50 Years

Friends and relatives gathered at the North Range Baptist Church Hall on Wednesday evening, August 28, 1974, to honour Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thomas of Quincy, Mass., on the occasion of their Golden Wedding.

The hall was appropriately decorated with white and gold crepe paper streamers; candles of the same hue flanked the floral centerpiece arrangement on the bride's table to complete the color scheme.

Seated at the table with the bride and groom of yesteryear were the original attendants, Maid of honour, Mrs. Doris Dingwell, sister of the bride; Mrs. Tom Dudley, the groom's sister, as brides maid and Joseph Speicht who supported the groom.

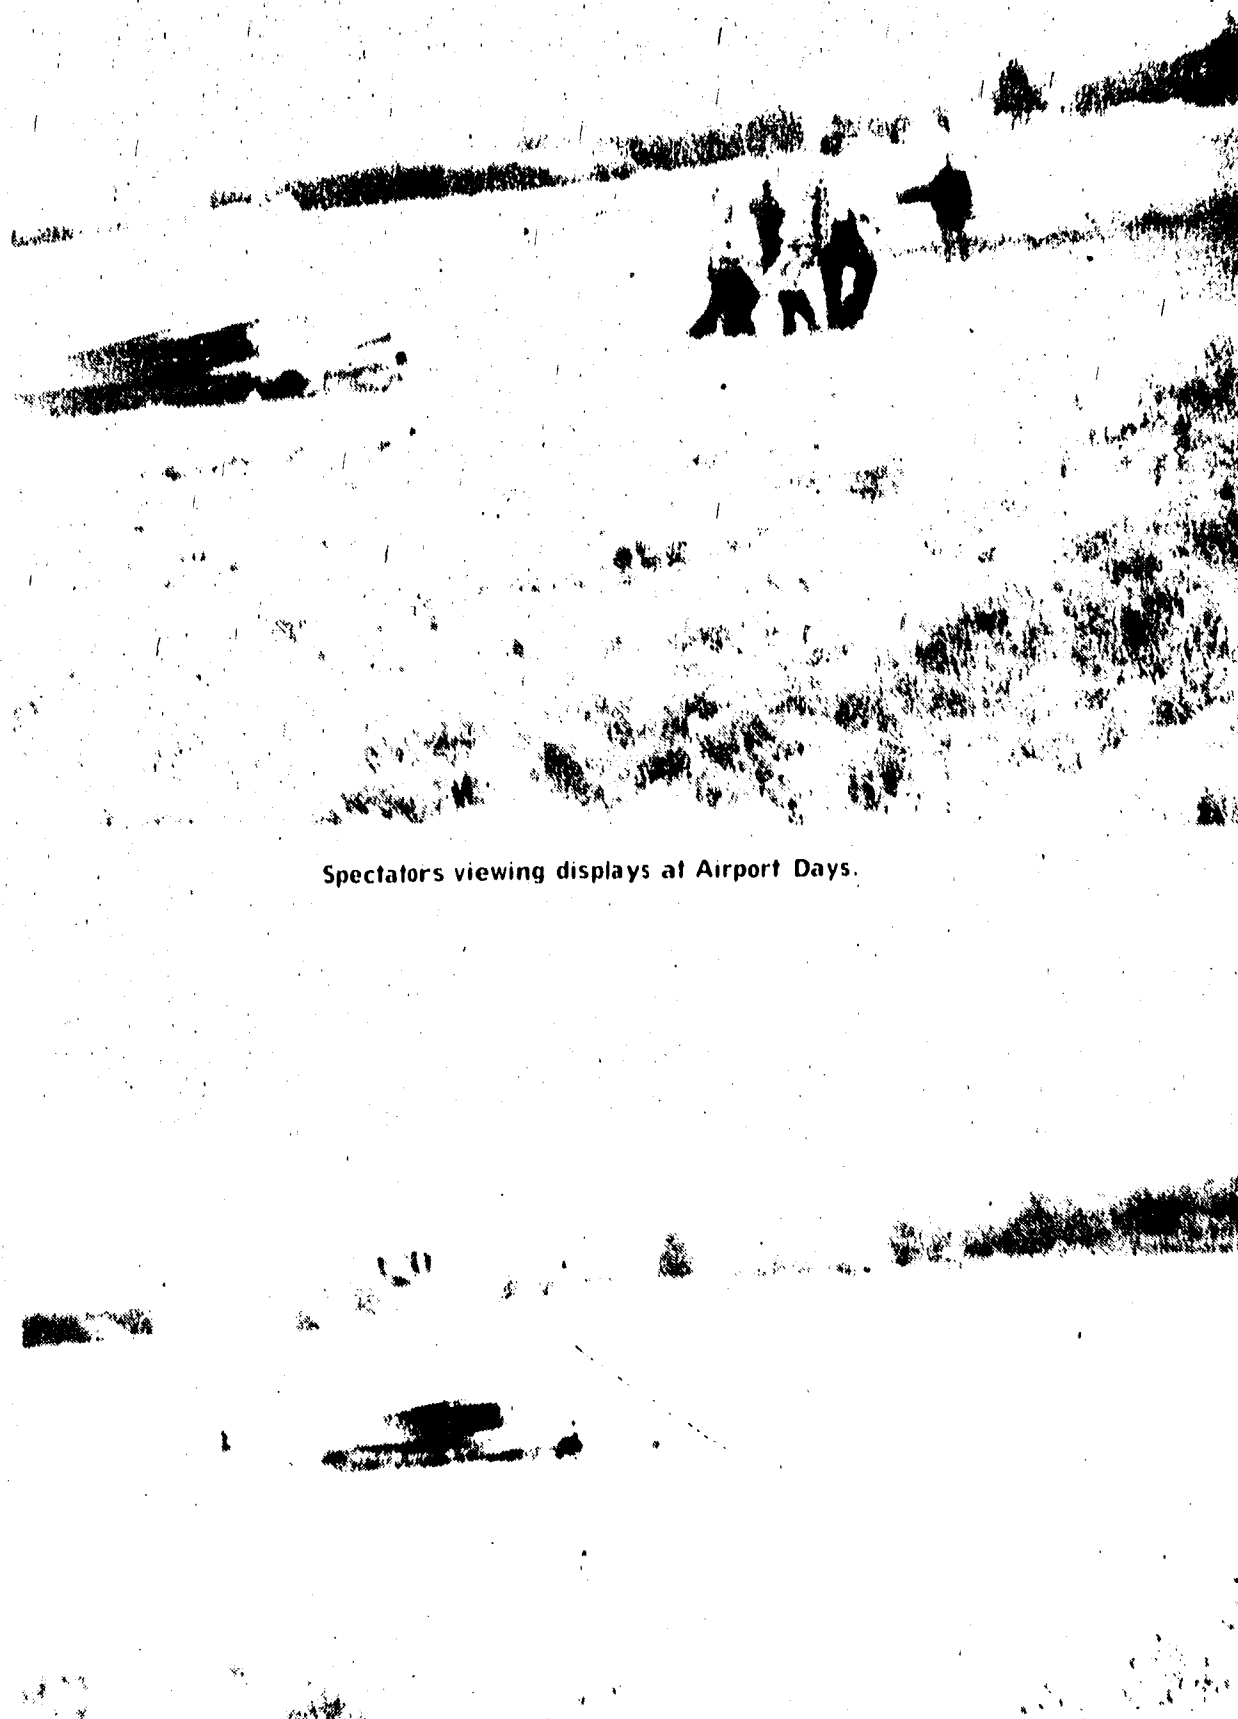

John E. Andrews of Pointe Claire, Quebec acted as master of ceremonies. A toast to the bride was proposed by Tom Dudley and responded to by the groom. Two poems relating to humorous events in the lives of the couple were read by Dean White of South Range and two folk songs with guitar accompaniment were presented by Miss Kim Andrews and her friend.

Rev. Howard Washburn of Maine gave the prayer of blessing after which over one hundred guests partook of buffet refreshments which included a beautiful three tier anniversary cake cut in traditional manner by the honored couple.

Mrs. Thomas was born in South Range a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Mallett. Mr. Thomas is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thomas of North Range. They were married August 28, 1924, by the Rev. A. G. Pentz at the South Range United Baptist Church with the reception at the bride's home. They have three daughters: Mrs. Margaret Ammons of Tallahassee, Fla.; Mrs. Joan MacKenzie, Quincy, Mass., and Miss Wendy Thomas at home. Two daughters and three of their seven grandchildren were present at the anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have resided in Quincy for forty years returning to Nova Scotia each year to spend the summer. They maintain a home in Brighton, Digby Co., where their generous hospitality is enjoyed by many vacationists. Before retiring Mr. Thomas was Master Mechanic for 25 years in the town of Wellesly, Mass.

The couple enjoy travelling and have just recently returned from a trip which took them to Switzerland, Holland, Scotland and England.

From four to six planes were on hand most of the time at the Digby Municipal Airport, Hill Grove, on Sunday and Monday to help the Digby Flying Club with entertainment for visitors on their Airport Days.

Brought Back Memories

Mr. and Mrs. Winford Garron, Digby, spent August 17, 18 and 19 weekend at Westport, N.S., their former home, and visited the South West Ledge. On arriving back to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Clements, they heard the news that Charles Lindbergh had died. This brought back memories for Mr. Garron who from the very same ledge had watched Lindbergh pass over there on his solo trip which brought him to fame back in 1927. That was the first time in the forty-seven years that Mr. Garron had gone back to the South West Ledge.

Other fisherman also watched the plane head over to Cape St. Mary's over Sable Island and listened on radio until he landed in Paris.

Mr. Garron gave up the fishing business fourteen years ago and moved with Mrs. Garron to Digby where Mr. Garron has a barber shop in Conway.

Resigns From

Water Commission

Howard Cottreau on Wednesday evening resigned as a member of the Digby Water Commission. The resignation was accepted at the regular meeting of the Commission presided over by the chairman, Robert Morgan. Thomas Cleveland was on Tuesday evening this week appointed by the town to take Cottreau's place.

The commission decided to run a new water line down First Avenue and also on West Street where a new apartment building is being constructed by Douglas French.

In Memoriam

BALSER - In memory of Mildred I Balsler who died September 4th

The things you loved I have not laid away
To moulder in the darkness year by year.

The love you gave, the kindness shown each day,
Is all about me, intimate and dear.

I do not go apart in grief and weep

For I have known your tenderness and care.

Such memories are joys that we may keep

And so I pray for those whose lives are bare.

I may not daily go and scatter flowers
Where you are sleeping neath the sun and dew

But if one lies in pain, through lonely hours,

I send the flowers, there, dear heart, for you.

Life claims our best, you would not have me waste

A single day in selfish idle woe,

I fancy that I hear you bid me haste

Lest I should sadly falter as I go.

Perchance so much that now seems incomplete

Was left for me in my poor way to do,

And I shall love to tell you, when we meet

That I have kept your loved ones close, for you,

By daughter, Teddy. 4:1ic

BAIN - In loving memory of a dear mother, Annie B. Bain, whom God called Home, September 5th, 1970.

In my chest of cherished memories,

I locked up thoughts of you.

Your smiling face, your tender love,

And the things you used to do.

And now and then when I'm alone,

I open up this chest.

And spend awhile just thinking of

The one I love the best.

You were travelling down life's highway

The road was getting rough.

God saw you could not make it

So he said that's far enough.

Though you have gone before me.

Just linger at the gate.

God too will call me higher.

You won't have long to wait

I know I have not lost you for that could never be

You are only on a journey where

God guards you constantly.

Loved and remembered by daughter, Sylvia. 4:1ic

When The Sun Of Life Is Settin'

by: A. Warren Lewis

When the Sun of life is settin'
And the years have swiftly flown
Time will bring back to your memory
Things for which you can't atone.

Life is earnest; Life is real
As the poet has portrayed,
Fondest hopes then for the future
By the hand of Time is stayed.

All the good deeds still unfinished
Things one day you hoped to do,
Has by Father Time been halted
And there's nothing left for you.

Naught but broken resolutions
That brings grief and untold pain,
In the wake of Time fast moving
Has dispelled all hope of gain.

But there is one consolation
That the God in whom we trust,
Will sustain the soul that falters
For His judgements all are just.

Then when life's brief voyage is over
And our journey has an end,
Even tho' friends may forsake us
Yet on Him we can depend.

For he'll see us safely over
Jordans rough swelling tide,
Hand in hand we'll journey
Homeward
Ever with Him to abide

Blessed are the undefiled in the way who walk in the law of the Lord

Psalm 119-1

LEGION DEADLOCK SEMI-FINALS BY DOWNING K OF C 10-6

In a "must" game the Legion exploded for six runs in the bottom of the third and went on to defeat the K of C by the score of 10-6, thus tying the semi-finals at a game apiece. The Legion again used Mark and Derrick Jordan as their pitchers while Kirk Mackintosh pitched the full game for the K of C. The game was tied at 2-2 when the Legion scored six runs in the bottom of the third. Paul Ritchie singled to open the bottom of third for the Legion, only to be caught trying to steal third, Mark Jordan reached base on a single and his brother Derrick homered scoring Mark ahead of him. Ronnie Comeau drove a hard hit ground ball between first and second and reached second on an overthrow, Wayne Robicheau tripled scoring Comeau, David Handspiker singled scoring Robicheau from third, Richard McVeigh and Perry Goucer walked loading the bases. Robert Cummings grounded out but Handspiker scored on the play and McVeigh stole home on a wild throw with sixth run of the inning, Mark Jordan in his second appearance of the inning flied out to third ending the inning. The Legion were blanked in the fourth and scored two more runs in the bottom of the fifth. K of C scored one in the fourth and three in the fifth but Mark Jordan struckout Mark Theriault, John Barr, and Joey Hattie in the top of the sixth to end the game, the score being 10-6. Paul Ritchie and Derrick Jordan had home runs for the winners, while Joey Hattie and Brian Haynes homered for the K of C. The tie-breaking game should be a real thriller.

FREE PERIOD NON-EXISTENT FOR DIGBY TEACHERS

In its regular meeting on August 27, the Digby Municipal School Board discussed at length the so-called free time for teachers which resulted in a motion moved by Arthur Rice, Weymouth and seconded by Ronald Morehouse that the Board adopt a policy that the staff of the Municipal School Board be under the supervision of the administration at all times during the hours they are paid and free periods are non-existent. The motion continued that during such periods, teachers are only free from formal classroom duties. So called free periods are to be used for planning, organizing correction and preparation of future lessons.

By regular motion, a previous motion re Miss Legere, Weymouth, was rescinded and that Miss Legere be rehired.

The resignation of Mrs. J. Morehouse, Digby Neck Consolidated School, was accepted and it was recommended that Mrs. Betty Denton be asked to accept the position. Mrs. Laura Robicheau was engaged for the Smith's Cove School.

The Board was informed of the resignation of Robert Chisholm, teacher at Weymouth. It was reported that the chairman had contacted Mrs. Avis Manzer and the Union for a public apology.

Bills amounting to $31,912.22 representing expenditures of the last two and a half months were passed for payment. Quotations on school supplies will be sought with anticipation of central purchasing.

The Digby Municipal Board gave full hearted support to the Nova Scotia School Board in action they had taken regarding a teacher's strike. To beat time the pledge of support was given by telephone.

Mrs. Nelson Comeau had requested that her son be transferred from school in Digby County to the Clare district.

The next school board meeting will be September 17.

Government To Provide School Milk Program

A new school program, that of providing milk for pupils of elementary grades in the province with milk was launched September 1. The program is sponsored by the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture and Marketing and areas of the Market Development Board and Extension of the Economics Branch.

Responsible for providing information to the local schools is the agricultural representative who does so through the superintendent and principal of the school. In Digby during the past week Bruce Gilliat, Weymouth, Agricultural Representative for Digby, has contacted all the schools in the Municipality of Digby and also the town schools. School milk will be provided to all primary students up to and including grade VI at five cents per serving per school day.

Registering in the milk program is strictly voluntarily done. All schools and each school must register with the Nova Scotia Agriculture Market Office in Truro.

Milk may be served in eight ounce cartons or bought in bulk and dispensed by a school official in whatever system is adequate for the particular school. The subsidies apply to all unflavored milk sales in the Province of Nova Scotia by distributors of the Nova Scotia Dairy Commission.

Pilot milk projects in 1973-74 were carried on in schools at East Hants and Colchester Counties. During the year milk was served to elementary students at five cents rate with excellent results and all schools co-operating in the program. Because of the good result of the pilot program, the high cost of milk for students and encouraged by the support of local Home and School Associations, the province decided to make the program province wide and in all the schools in the year 1974-75. At present many schools in Digby County and area are now on the program.

Pilot milk projects in 1973-74 were carried on in schools at East Hants and Colchester Counties.

Bruce Gilliat, Digby Agricultural representative, told the Digby Courier that the response to the program was quite favorable and much encouraging. Great interest has been shown by school boards and school officials concerned.

Killarney New Horizons Depart

Early Friday morning the forty three New Horizon visitors from Killarney, Manitoba, took their departure on their Grey Goose Lines Bus for their homes. They will be a week going as they were coming - staying at hotels each night.

Since the news went in last weeks Courier on Tuesday-each day since has been filled with activity for the visitors and their hosts. On Tuesday two buses came from CFB Cornwallis and drove visitors and their hosts, around seventy-five in all, down to Church Point. Due to rain, the President of St. Annes College, Mr. Louis Comeau, kindly offered the facilities of their cafeteria to eat their lunch. Later the buses drove back to Cornwallis where a tour of the Base was enjoyed before sitting down to a sumptuous supper hosted by Cornwallis. Wednesday due to rain, the visitors stayed at the homes of their hosts until after lunch when all drove down Digby Neck to "The Islands" where they were all hosted to supper by the Sunrise Rebekah Lodge.

Next, Old St. Edwards Church at Clementsport was visited, then the O'Dell Museum, which was thoroughly enjoyed and lunch at Fort Anne before going on to the Habitation at Port George. On returning to the Centre around 4 p.m. coffee, tea and rolls were enjoyed before supper was served at 6:30 served communities in many ways in peace time. She commended the Legion for their initiative and accomplishment with the dedicated hall and their providing of space for the New Horizons. So often talent has been passed by from one generation to the next.

By means of the New Horizons methods of craft production is kept alive and passed on to others.

Ninety years later, in 1848, Nova Scotians won for themselves responsible government-the first in Canada.

Senior Citizens Week

The Nova Scotia government has established September 15 to September 21 as Senior Citizens Week. Here in our own town His Worship Mayor Willard Kinney has declared the week Senior Citizens Week.

What have we done in Digby for senior citizens? Well, we have senior citizens housing, at least two occupied and another complex in the process of being erected. And we have Tideview Terrace for the aged and infirm. Digby has really done much for her senior citizens. We can walk with our heads held high as we proudly enumerate the quantity and quality of the physical work that has been done to make life easier and better for the senior citizens. We are greatly blessed with facilities to care for the aged. For this we are profoundly thankful. Possibly there is one area not covered when an elderly patient is not sick enough for one institution for instance, but too ill for another and there is nobody in the private home to give the care needed.

Yes, we have done nobly for a small town in providing the physical comforts for the aged. But the aged, like infants, need to have personal attention; someone who shows genuine love and caring. It might be comparatively easy although there is a waiting list to find accommodation in one or the other of the homes. But physical comfort is only part of the battle. It would be cruel to place an aged person in a home and then the family forget as they go about their round of pleasures and duties.

Others besides the immediate family, the relatives and friends, also have a moral obligation to senior citizens and we might mention Tideview Terrace where the Kinettes in Digby remember each senior citizen with a birthday card and where the Girl Guides hope to carry on the game of bingo. There are other ways in which individuals or groups can make living for senior citizens enjoyable. A group or an individual can adopt any one of the senior citizens to whom they could send cards or gifts regularly. Senior Citizens enjoy a change of scenery and seeing new faces. How about a car ride to perk up their spirits somewhat.

How about reading for an hour to the Senior Citizens whose eye sight is not so good. There are many suggestions which can be carried out to make our Senior Citizens feel that they are not put aside and out of the way for convenience sake. You can think of many ways to bring them enjoyment and make them feel important to society.

Senior Citizen Week is a splendid time to volunteer your services to add that extra left to an otherwise drab existence. Senior Citizens Week, then, can be lengthened out to fifty-two weeks of the year when people's lives become useful, important and happy both in receiving and giving. Observe Senior Citizen Week.

Hodge Podge

This is the greatest column for rectifying one's mistakes and easing one's conscience, like for instance printing the name of H.M. Warne as presiding officer for the town election when it should have read Herbert Warren. Oh, yes, we know that school psychologists might classify that as inattentiveness, lack of concentration or failure of the teacher to inspire and motivate interest. Couldn't be the last named for what could be more interesting than two or three hours of a Town Council meeting. The only solution we can come up with is to have either one of those two esteemed gentlemen change his name to Tom, Dick or Harry. Our apologies to Herb. We know you would preside well under either name.

This going to school is serious. You need to get right down to work. The little six year old made her debut at school, on Wednesday, when she went home for lunch at noon all the household were eager to hear the tales about school. She liked school but disgustingly said "We haven't learned anything yet."

— Doing any head scratching? Watch out, Dr. H. B. Calford, Director of Nova Scotia's Child and Maternal Health and Communicable Disease Division, warns us that head lice have reached epidemic proportions in Nova Scotia. Bet if you didn't scratch your head before, you'll be scratching after you've read this. Are you sure that you can differentiate between dandruff and those nits that hatch into lice that cause pediculosis. The main symptom of pediculosis is scratching and it takes more than soap and shampoo to get rid of pediculosis, so Dr. Calford says. —

— God must be wonderful to have made such wonderful people. The driver with the Killarney New Horizons group was referring to Digby people when he made that remark. Doesn't it sound wonderful? And doesn't it make you feel that the bus driver must be a wonderful man. —

Fall Notes From Bird Haven

It has been a long time since there has been any news from Bird Haven, in fact there have been very few birds during the summer, however they are collecting now for their long flight south. The swallows have already left.

Wasn't able to join the annual fall trip with the Bird Society to my beloved Westport on account of the fog, a great disappointment. It is the first year I have missed it.

Had quite a lot of young birds brought in during the summer, most of them were raised successfully and released. Now they are being brought in victims of picture window. They fly into them expecting to go right through. Draw one drape if the windows are opposite. They are temporarily knocked out but after a rest in a quiet place come to and are able to be released. A few are not so lucky having broken necks.

My large cage has had a complete house cleaning, paint job and all, while this was going on I used a smaller cage, this had been left on the back porch until I had help to return it to the garage.

Was surprised when I returned home the other afternoon to find a large young gull settled in it. I knew he would have to go to the beach as I am not equipped to handle such large birds. However, I gave him some bread which he refused to eat and told him I would take him to the beach in the morning.

When morning came I put on heavy gloves, got a feed bag and opened the big gate expecting him to take right off. Oh! No! decided to have his breakfast before he left his motel and proceeded to clean up every bite then took off. Not being able to fly, he just streaked across the lawn to the next yard with me after him. Quite a sight! Finally I caught him and he is now with the rest of his kind on the beach.

A dear Cedar warbling was brought me from Annapolis a couple of weeks ago with a crippled wing. I kept him in the hospital cage until yesterday when I put him in the large cage with the other ten cripples.

"Joey" now is very much at home with the others.

Please let me know if you see any unusual birds during the fall migration. All for now, The Bird Lady.

Women Defy Downpour

Six members of the Smith's Cove Baptist Church Women's Missionary Society braved the downpour Wednesday afternoon, September 4th, to attend the monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Irene Speights.

The hostess graciously loaned dry apparel to one member who was caught in the deluge while walking to the meeting, and then brightened the surroundings with the glow of the fire in her fireplace.

President Miss Sue Winchester led the group in the reading of Psalm 121 to open the meeting followed by prayer offered by Mrs. Phyllis S. Winchester.

Following a brief business meeting, Miss Winchester led the devotional thought of seeking the lost, using the parables of Christ of the lost sheep, lost coins and the prodigal son which was read by Phyllis Winchester, and an inspirational poem read by Mrs. Speights.

The members responded to the Roll Call by giving Scripture verses containing the word "serve" or "service."

Mrs. Phyllis Winchester used the text Acts 5:29-32 for the basis for her program on witnessing and serving.

New Horizons Visitors Entertained

The forty New Horizon members from Killarney, Manitoba, were tendered a dinner given by the Knights of Columbus in Digby and a farewell party sponsored by the Digby New Horizons Club on Friday evening. In the

The party program included a sing-song and viewing a film, showing villages on the Nova Scotia coast and the rise and fall of the Fundy tides.

Many words of praise were given to the Digby Horizons for their hospitable program enjoyed by the visitors. The bus driver, Mr. Cooper spoke highly of the courtesies and remarked "God must be wonderful to have created such wonderful people."

Before the party broke up the visitors sang a song which they composed enroute, as follows—Killarney lies out to the westward But distance means nothing to you Just wing your way out to the prairies And see what westerners can do.

Come out, come out
Come to the land of waving grain
Come out, come out
Visit again and again

We've vistas of prairies lovely
And quiet lakes deep in the hills
Our sunsets are marvels of beauty
We guarantee quite a few thrills.

Killarney we'll tell you is Irish
We've leprechauns blarney and stew
We've also got turtles and treasures
And all are just waiting for you.

The people of Digby are splendid
We couldn't have made nicer friends
We'll always remember your kindness
Long after our journey here ends.

Farewell To Pastor

On Sunday evening, August 25th, Mr. Robert Johnson, pastor of the Westport Church of Christ gave his farewell sermon. He is leaving to take further theological studies and will be preaching at North Street Christian Church in Halifax. Following the service members of the church and visitors from the United Baptist Church were invited to a social in the church vestry. Edgar McDormand presented gifts to both Mr. and Mrs. Johnson to which they responded and thanked everyone for being so kind while they have been here. Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Spence and daughter, Joanne were present for the service.

Enrollment Slightly Up

Registration in the Digby Regional High School and the junior level remains practically the same as 1973-74, according to C.C. McInnis, superintendent. The junior high students are slightly more in number while the senior high was slightly down. The elementary school registration was also up.

The Intermediate Industrial course has two phases, James

Gregg and Alfred Warner have the new Living Life program. No replacement to date has been found for the Industrial Arts carried on last term 1973-74 taught by the late Fred Giles. Students of these classes are assigned to study areas to work on their own.

Teacher aides are on duty with the Municipal School Board.

Dr. Harry Roberts Visits Digby

Dr. Harry Roberts of Longmeadow, Mass., a family their accomplishments.

Comrade Arnold Banks, president presented a fine report on the work of the Legion but interjected much humor to the delight of his entire audience. Mr. Banks began with the purchasing of the building, which was dedicated in the afternoon, during the presidency of Ruben Mervin. He said they had little money but they had an understanding bank manager. It was Comrade Rev. Foster Hall who had the idea of allowing the New Horizons the use of part of the building.

Mr. Banks told the audience that their organization is not self centred but does all it can to help the community people whether young or older. He commended Willard Wiles in his work with the young boys in baseball. Arthur Isles was thanked for the job on the ball field.

The next objective of the Bear River Legion is to join together the Legion Hall as had existed and the one dedicated that day. He expected all Legion members and friends would head for the Hall for the successful conclusion of the project.

The evening continued with dancing to the Dutchmen orchestra.

Commander Fred Whalley spoke on the 1974 Poppy Campaign and congratulated Bear River Legion on keeping their organization as a Legion and not letting it become entirely a service club.

The extension which was dedicated has been made pannelled for a community room. The wall to wall rug is in gold and chesterfields and chairs harmonize with the rug and tangerine window drapes. A planter with brilliant flowers makes an appealing entrance and tables are attractive and conveniently placed. The kitchen is in blue and washrooms are in beige.

doctor in Digby during the 1920's made a visit to Digby over the weekend. He was accompanied by Mrs. Roberts. They visited Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Warne, Mrs. Digby Baxter and other friends and acquaintances.

They visited The Digby Courier where Dr. Roberts poured out his pleasant memories of his practice in Digby and exclaimed at the changes and progress in Digby as revealed by the tremendous construction which has taken place within a few years.

Dr. Roberts particularly admired the health and medical progress and stated that Digby, though a small town, has health facilities surpassing many larger towns and cities. He remarked, "They have everything. They do not need more."

Attitude Affects

Development

A change of attitude within the Atlantic region is one of the most important factors in encouraging the development of Atlantic Canada, Paul S. Creaghan of the New Brunswick Department of Economic Growth, said Monday.

Mr. Creaghan, addressing the delegates of the Atlantic Professional Engineers Conference, said a negative attitude and lack of confidence in prospects for the development of the region is much in evidence.

"The lack of confidence," Mr. Creaghan said, "has been reinforced by insufficient understanding of the development effort being made."

Mr. Creaghan said the government's two major functions in promoting Atlantic provinces development are to provide industrial promotion and financial assistance to new or expanding industries.

"Not only does the region have inherent natural advantages for industry but we also possess an enviable quality of life," said Mr. Creaghan.

Governments have the responsibility to try to change attitudes that can impede development, Mr. Creaghan said.

"Joint involvement and joint action can co-ordinate a change of attitude in the Atlantic region and can greatly assist in the development of the region," Mr. Creaghan said.

Mr. Mitchell explained he does not advocate this procedure because decisions are often made on socio-economic basis rather than on a

LEGION TAKE DECIDING GAME IN SEMI-FINAL 12-1

In a real thriller the Jordan coached Legion eliminated the Locke coached K of C 12-10 in the deciding game of the semi-final. The game had everything, hitting, pitching and some brilliant plays in the field but above all keen sportsmanship. Every member of each team gave his all and were a real credit to the Little League. Mark Jordan pitched an outstanding game as well as contributing three home runs and a double to lead his team to victory. It was the clutch pitching by Jordan that won the game for the Legion, he struck out the side in the third inning with the K of C leading 5-4 and again in the fifth retired the K of C while his team trailed 9-8, the Legion scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth on a homer, two doubles, triple and walk. In the top of the sixth, Jordan faced the top batters of the K of C, he struckout Brian Haynes, Jamie Walsh doubled and eventually scored, then Hattie and Jefferson went down by the strikeout route to end the game and the series. These two teams gave the fans excellent games in their three meetings this season, remember, someone has to win, but it is how you play the game that counts. Kirk Mackintosh was the leading batter for the losers with a triple, double and single in four trips. The game was handled by Budd Abell, Ben Cullen and Junior Smith. The Legion will now meet the Lions in the finals.

Round-Up Day

"Round-Up Day" was the theme Sunday morning when the combined service of the Sunday School department and Church was held at the Smith's Cove Baptist Church, September 8th. The service was the first of the new Fall and Winter sessions of the Sunday School, and emphasized the roll of the family unit as participants of this department of the Church.

The Pastor, Rev. Wallace H. Jordan, conducted the service which included a commissioning of teachers for the new year. In keeping with the theme, Pastor Jordan used a lasso as the object of his story for the children. Chorus were led by Mrs. Phyllis S. Winchester with Ron Harrison at the piano. Articles depicting a western round-up decorated the Vestry where the service was held.

A family film entitled, "Strangers from Galilee" was shown which told of the experiences of a family from the Western Hemisphere as they spent several weeks in the Holy Land. This was not the usual tour-type of vacation, but one that had been planned by the family as an experience in faith, that their being there was for a buisnesslike basis.

Government appears headed in this direction, Mr. Mitchell said, and this was given by him as the reason for bringing the question of whether or not government participation in industry should be used as a vehicle for development.

More creative people of all nationalities are needed and we must take advantage of all opportunities, Dr. J.H. Maloney stated.

Captain Calvin F. Granville

Captain Frederick Granville, one of the great 'landmarks' of Weymouth, died September 8th, Sunday, at the Digby General Hospital. He was in his 87th year; the son of the late Odber and Amanda (Hawx) Granville of Cumberland Bay, N.B.

One of the few remaining wooden ship captains, Captain Granville started his career at the age of 17, and at 21 years of age was one of the youngest master mariners sailing out of Saint John, N.B. His last voyage was as Captain of the famous schooner, Cutty Sark in 1923.

In Memoriam s

THERIAULT - In loving memory of a dear father, Wilfred Theriault, who passed away September 26, 1955 and mother, Ruby (Theriault) Gidney who passed away September 17, 1970.

When family ties are broken and loved ones have to part, It leaves a wound that never heals, And also broken hearts.

Their end was very sudden. It made us weep and cry. But the saddest part of all dear parents.

You never said good-bye. How can we explain to others The loss we feel inside. We only know we miss them And the tears are hard to hide.

So please, God, take a message to our dear parents up above. Tell them how we miss them and give them all our love. Lovingly remembered by daughter Edith, son-in-law Henry.

5:1ic

DeLANEY - In loving memory of my dear husband, Llewellyn DeLaney, who passed away September 21, 1972.

From a hospital bed to a heavenly rest.

God called you home to be his guest.

I lived in hope and prayed in vain, That soon you would be well again.

He eased your pain and broke my heart, No length of time can take away.

The memories I have from day to day, For in my heart you are always near.

Still loved, still missed in every way. Always loved and sadly missed by wife Harriett and sister, Helen Stevens.

5:1ic

Days of sadness will come o'er us. Many think the wound is healed, But they little know the sorrow

That lies in the heart concealed. Always remembered by wife, Hilda and family.

Missing Boat At Weymouth

Interest is being aroused in the large Catamaran, which has been beached on the New Edinburgh side of the Sissaboo River since the first of the year. August, 20th it was removed with the assistance of H. M. Coldwell & Son's bulldozer, and towed to the government wharf at Weymouth North, by Clifford Thurber.

When The Catamaran first attracted attention, a story circulated that the owner from Montreal had brought the boat here to store it for the winter months, but when it remained throughout the spring and summer, questions began to arise. However, a gentleman arrived who, apparently satisfied authorities with the legality of his passport and ownership papers, said the boat was his, and it had disappeared from Miami about eighteen months ago. He said the yacht had been built in Toronto, and had attracted attention wherever it docked.

The name of the yacht had been painted out, and much of the equipment is missing, he said, including personal possessions of his family, and two engines. The two rudders were damaged when the yacht was hauled into the river, as it had previously been hauled well up on shore on the extreme high tides.

The owner said that the loss of the yacht had been advertised in some papers, with a picture, and had been recognized by someone on holiday here.

Society Hears Flower Show Report

Mrs. Bruce Hutchins, President, presided at the monthly meeting of the Admiral Digby Horticultural Society held at the home of Mrs. A. Robinson on the evening of September 4th.

The various committees gave reports on the projects they had carried on during the summer. Vandalism was reported at the area of the War Memorial Monument, the Library window boxes and the concrete flower container facing the post office. Flowers had been removed and thrown on the ground.

The main business of the evening was reporting on the Flower Show and Tea, held at the new Fire Hall in August. Expenses this year had caused a deficit which is hoped will level off for future shows as items purchased this year can be used again. The spacious Fire Hall had made a good background for the many entries, the placing of the tea tables, the display tables and benches used for the flowers and specimens. This year a greater number of competitive entries were made and the children's arrangements were most attractive, showing the benefit of work shops that were held previous to the Flower Show.

Opinion was expressed that the general public was unaware that non-members were eligible to enter specimens and arrangements for competition. The Garden Club would appreciate having them participate.

Miss Mary Marshall gave an interesting report on the annual Convention of N.S. Association of Garden Clubs, which she had attended as a delegate in August at Truro. The program had consisted of talks by guest speakers on assembling hanging baskets, care of flower and vegetable gardens, cultivation of blue berries and subjects of interest to gardeners. Social events were held and demonstrations given on flower arranging.

The scrap book, compiled by Miss Mabel Marshall, was displayed winning third place. The Digby Garden Club came third in the N.S. Activities contest for the year and awarded a prize of five dollars. In the slide contest, Miss Mary Marshall came second and Mrs. Hutchins, third.

Mrs. MacNaughton, Mrs. F. Larche, Miss Mabel Marshall and Miss Marjory Tupper were appointed to name a slate of officers, to be presented at the annual meeting in October.

At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Hutchins thanked Mrs. Robinson for her hospitality and extended a welcome to Mrs. Weir, who had returned from a vacation in England and to her niece, Mrs. White, Edinburgh, Scotland, who is a guest of Mrs. Weir.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Robinson with co-hostesses Mrs. Hutchins and Mrs. Butler assisting.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Louise Stephen, with a pot luck supper being served at 6.30 P.M.

Fisheries Officers Appointed

Mr. Muise

Mr. McDormand.

Seven provincial fisheries representatives have been appointed and will begin work in their respective areas immediately, Hon. A.M. (Sandy) Cameron announced today. Among them are Richard McDormand of Westport and Joseph Muise in Digby County.

"The representatives are residents of the districts they serve and will be providing a liaison function between the Department, fishermen and other segments of the fishing industry," Mr. Cameron said.

Region 7, Digby County, north of the Sissiboo River including Digby Neck and the counties of Annapolis, Kings and Hants, will be served by 30-year-old McDormand Mr. McDormand's life. His fishing career runs from ordinary crewman to engineer to first mate and on to captain. Mr. Muise's knowledge of the herring industry is considered to be an asset to the Department.

Other officers appointed were Robert (Bob) Nelson, Riverport, Region 4; John Coulton, Barrington Passage, Region 5; Owen MacDonald, Lyon's Brook, Pictou County, Region 1; Adolphe Kehoe, Petit de Grat, Region 2; Elliott James Pellerin, Larry's River, District Region 3.

In announcing the appointments, Mr. Cameron stated that the new staff members will be working directly in Nova Scotia's fishing communities in an effort by the provincial Fisheries Department "to provide better assistance and information to fishermen and the industry in general."

Mr. Cameron concluded that the Department will be able to get a better province-wide pulse on the needs and aspirations of fishermen through the newly appointed representatives.

Miss Olmstead Does Well At Congress

Judy L. Olmstead of Bridgewater has returned home after attending the 16th annual Congress of Strings, an eight-week study program for talented string players, held at the University of Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Ohio. The 18-year-old violinist studied at the Conservatory under a scholarship provided by the Atlantic Federation of Musicians and the American Federation of Musicians to the amount of $1200. She was successful in the examinations. Peter Power, president of the Musicians' Association said it was the first time a student was sponsored under this program by Local 571 and with a full string orchestra.

The Congress of Strings was created by the American Federation of Musicians, which is the largest union of professional performers in the world.

Over-Bed Table Presented

On Thursday afternoon members of the Southville Digby General Hospital Auxiliary presented the hospital an over-bed table.

Others of the Southville Auxiliary present for the occasion were Miss Jessie Comeau, Madeline Comeau, Mrs. Joseph Sabine, Mrs. Sherwood Marshall, Mrs. William Steele, Mrs. Russell Lewis, Mrs. Lloyd Fulton and Mrs. Leigh Sabine. The Southville Auxiliary consists of twenty-five members. Miss Marjory Tupper, Digby, Hospital Auxiliary president thanked the Southville ladies on behalf of the Digby Auxiliary.

The Southville Riverdale Auxiliary was organized in 1950, when a few ladies did some sewing for the hospital.

In 1952 these ladies sponsored their first booth at the Hospital Fair and have had a booth at every Fair since then until the Fair was discontinued. Of the original members there are still nine workers left.

In 1960, ladies from Danvers joined the group and have helped in many ways.

Mrs. Oressa Steele, one of the first members, in whose memory the table is presented, was a steadfast worker and faithfully attended every meeting. Since her death in 1964, her four daughters have followed her example and are faithful workers in the auxiliary.

"The Road To Armageddon"

David Wilkerson, Youth Crusades, has just released a new film depicting the events foreshadowing the last world war at Armageddon. The forty-five minute full color film features David Wilkerson, author of "The Cross And The Switchblade," narrating the dramatization of five calamities that are coming to the world.

The film is based upon insights into final events Wilkerson received from God this past year in a vision. "I saw coming to the World: A terrible recession; a major earthquake and world-wide famine; a flood of filth on TV and on the newsstands; hatred against parents by teenagers; and a persecution madness directed against all Jesus people," said Wilkerson.

Wilkerson states, "The purpose of this film is to awaken the young and old alike to the reality and nearness of the coming of Christ. This believable, low profile film has such an impact that every viewer will have to decide what he must do about Christ's imminent return."

"The Road To Armageddon" is now being premiered in churches throughout Canada, the United States, and is soon to be released in Europe.

The public is cordially invited to a special presentation of this film on Saturday, September 14th. The film is scheduled to begin at 8:00 P.M. in the Digby Wesleyan Church located on Victoria Street in Digby. Admission is free. Doug Hapeman.

Switzer, the rest of the entertainment being in a lighter vein.

Improvements Made At Victory Cemetery

On Thursday evening a party of nine workmen converged on the old burial ground in Victory to give it the final clean up of the season. They dug out rocks, hauled fill, mowed the grass and clipped around the flowers. This work was undertaken by interested men several years ago. While the rest of the settlement has not progressed, the cemetery has been improved to the surprise of everyone who drives by and views the lovely flowers along the fence and the nicely mowed hillside with the well tended graves.

Anyone having relatives buried there should appreciate the many work hours freely given by these busy men.

on Wednesday. After a delicious lunch, Mrs. Parson gave an interesting report to the members of F.F.N.A. Western Valley Branch of her trip to the convention at Toronto in June.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Wheelhouse recently were Mr. and Mrs. James Wheelhouse and Tommy, Cornwallis, James Wheelhouse, Jr. and friend, Brenda Tutti, Halifax. Other guests at the same home on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Theibert Read, Bear River, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Potter, Clementsvalle and Mrs. Miles Thompson, Truro.

Mrs. Marjorie Tibbetts, Bear River and Mrs. Marshall Wheelhouse attended the U.B.W.M.U. meeting at Sackville, N.B., Aug. 26-28.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hayden and family Rossway and Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Frost visited Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Munro and family, Coldbrook on Sunday.

Kojak Two Hour Premiere Show

A young Chinese street gang kidnaps the head of an underworld family and Detective The Kojak, played by Emmy Award-winner Telly Savalas, races against time to prevent mass retaliation, in "The Chinatown Murders," a special two-hour movie which will be the second-season premiere of "Kojak" airing Sunday, September 15, 10:30 pm-12:30 am ADT on the ATV Television System.
Kojak tries desperately to prevent a massive gangland war between two traditional, organized crime factions, who, unknown to them, are being framed by three young Chinese-American hoodlums.
Sammy and Calvin Loo, together with Leonard Wong, have worked out an elaborate plan to separate the two organizations from their lucrative spots by a series of robberies and kidnappings.
Murder, however, complicates their perfect scenario. Kojak has an additional complication R. Kearney as story editor.

Literary Contest Sponsored

Rules and regulations for the comprehensive literary competition jointly sponsored by the Nova Scotia Department of Recreation and the Nova Scotia branch of the Canadian Authors' Association for citizens of the province have now been released.

The contest, announced in August by Recreation Minister A. Garnet Brown "to encourage and stimulate interest in writing", will be held between September, 1974 and March, 1975. Chairman of the contest committee will be Lester B. Sellick of the Nova Scotia branch of the C.A.A.

The competition includes prizes in five categories: book-length manuscripts for prizes of $500, $200 and $100; and prizes of $150, $100 and $50 in the other four categories of poetry, articles of 10,000 words length, original scripts for a stage play, screen or radio, and for short stories. Prizes will total $2,000 and all submissions must be previously unpublished.

An additional special prize will be presented to the submission adjudged the best "historical" entry published by Petheric Press. The prize will equal the fee paid by the publisher.

The literary contest is open to all residents of Nova Scotia with the exception of members of the contest committee, the screening committee and employees of the Nova Scotia Department of Recreation.

Further rules include the following stipulations:

All entries in the contest must be written under a pseudonym and be accompanied by an entry form. Name and address of the contestant must only appear on the entry form which must be enclosed in a sealed envelope bearing the pseudonym and title of the work on the outside. In order to ensure strict impartiality, manuscripts showing the author's name, or identifiable in any other way, will be disqualified.

Only one entry per person will be allowed in each category.

All entries must be typewritten, double-spaced, on one side of standard 8 1/2 x 11-inch white paper, with approximately one-inch margins.

A large stamped envelope must accompany each manuscript if its return is desired.

All entries remain the property of the author.

Judges reserve the right to withhold awards in the event that work received does not meet their standards. If two of equal merit are received, a tie may be declared and the prize divided between the contestants. In all cases the decision of the judges is final.

All possible care will be taken of manuscripts; however, the contest committee will not be responsible for any loss or damage incurred. Contestants are advised to make carbon copies for their own records.

The contest, which runs for six months beginning September 30, 1974, closes March 31, 1975, and entries postmarked later than the closing date will not be considered.

Manuscripts, marked clearly on the envelope as to entry category, should be mailed to The Canadian Author's Association, P.O. Box 2902, Armdale Post Office, Nova Scotia. Entry forms may be obtained at the same address.

Wise Use Natural Resources Imperative

Wise use of our natural resources is imperative if Nova Scotians want to preserve its great outdoor heritage for survival of future Nova Scotians. This was the key thought which ran through two addresses given at a Wildlife Federation meeting sponsored Saturday evening by the Digby East Fish and Game Association. Speakers were "Dick" Parker, president of the Nova Scotia Wildlife Federation and Merrill Prime, director of Wildlife for the province.

Jack Nichols, who is vice president of Wildlife Federation for Nova Scotia was master of ceremonies at the dinner meeting. Mr. White extended a welcome to the guests and commented on the Digby East Fish and Game Association having double its membership to 634 again this year. The previous year they won a trophy for doubling the membership.

Chief speaker, Mr. Parker, put emphasis on preserving renewable resources like forests, birds, fish, etc., which are different from iron, and other renewable metals which are non-renewable.

He also stressed the importance of having land available and warned that Nova Scotia is the most thickly populated of the provinces in Canada. There is little place to go on to develop. At present, he felt, there is a good balance in Nova Scotia between the population and resources but we've reached a point, he said, where the future must be considered. If woodland is stripped the land will suffer. He said it is exceedingly important to protect river green belts. Mismanagement has far reaching effects. Unless the wildlife is protected one can see what might happen. Each year, the speaker said, finds more and more people taking out hunting and fishing licences. With this in mind, we must plan the future and how to care for many people.

Mr. Rawling credited hunters, fishermen and other outdoor enthusiasts with being the first to question the alteration of forests streams and wet lands.

They were first, he said, because their love of the outdoors had made them aware of the beauty of Nature and the necessity of protecting wildlife habitat and scenic grandeur. Outdoorsmen were the first to plead for conservation measures because they were the ones who were travelling the forests and fishing the streams.

Today, Mr. Prime said we consider wildlife to include all forms of animals, harvestable and non-harvestable and give much attention to their habitats, thus including consideration for plants, air, soil and water that support them.

Historically, he told the audience, wildlife managers have emphasized five things: (1) regulation of harvest, (2) predator control, (3) establishment of sanctuaries, (4) artificial propagation, and (5) habitat manipulation. Today all five, are used but primarily the first and last, harvest regulation and habitat manipulation. Mr. Prime, a native of Long Island, Digby Co., quoted King George VI who made the statement "Wildlife of today is not ours to dispose of as we please; we have it in trust. We must account for it to those who come after". He felt this statement expresses quite well that we as conservationists should be pursuing a basic philosophy of insuring the preservation, development, wise use and enjoyment of the resources. So that we can pass this legacy on for others to enjoy as we have.

Mr. Prime spoke of the programs which he hopes will be implemented viz preservation of wetlands and unique islands, acquisition of major wildlife areas, develop resource management plan for western Nova Scotia, mandatory hunter education, strengthen the enforcement effort and develop educational programs in schools. He argued for better communication with sportsmen, general public and agencies in charge of managing resources.

Mr. Prime said he wanted to make certain that everybody is aware of the high stakes that are riding on resource management. Public attitudes must be strengthened, time is at a premium. Our efforts must be broadened; he said. Law enforcement programs or a reduction in bag limits alone will not for example ensure a healthy deer or fish population if a watershed is denuded or key wintering areas for deer are removed.

Joe Casey extended congratulations and pledged support for the work done by the Wildlife Federation and the Fish and Game.

Mr. Nichols, the master of ceremonies remarked that the D.E.F.A.G.A. is now 16 years old. He thanked H. M. Warne who gave a 99 year lease on the land; Harold Nichol for being instrumental with the Secretary of State for their successful $5900 grant; Donald Brown, Land and Forests Director; Glenn Smith who assisted in getting the lake stocked with trout; Robert Hawkins; Joe Casey who spoke on behalf the organization in the House, to the Ladies Auxiliary and biologists in all departments.

Fish Chowder and boiled corn were on the evening's menu and dancing was enjoyed.

The lake was in its most glorious beauty for the function. The place was "calm as a clock". Many visitors not only admired the scenery but noted also the vast amount of work done at the wharf and building during the past year.

Five hundred students from six to 16 years had swimming instruction at the lake under five college graduates. The grounds were given without charge to Boy Scouts, Brownies and Guides and Senior Citizens.

Promotion

Mrs. Jean Raymond, employee at the Digby Branch Royal Bank of Canada, has been given a promotion to Loans Officer, it was announced on Monday by the branch manager, James Gillis. Word had come through via the head office in Halifax.

Mrs. Raymond has served for 20 years in the Royal Bank of Canada here. She entered the Bank after completing her elementary education at her home, Plympton, and her high school in Digby. Starting as a junior, Jean soon worked up to teller and assistant accountant.

DeMille and Jean Raymond reside in Digby with their two children, Mark, age ten, and Matthew, age eight. Mrs. Raymond was the former Jean Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Warner, Plympton.

Mrs. Hilda Cossaboom, above, receives flowers presented to her by Victor Thompson, treasurer of the Digby General Hospital, from her family. The presentation was made on behalf of Mrs. Cossaboom's family at a reception given by D.G.H. Board on Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. Cossaboom who retired last winter.

Other presentations were made by F.C. Purdy, chairman of the Board (watch) and Ralph Stacey, administrator, on behalf of the hospital staff.

Buses Still On Duty

To time of going to press Digby Municipal School buses were still on duty although Digby Municipal School Board had been notified of the intention to strike if their demands were not met. It is understood the forty-eight hours after the notice was given would take up to noon hour on Wednesday. This gave rise to speculation by parents and school officials that a strike might be called in the middle of the day while children were still in school. It is further understood that some bus drivers indicated that they would see that the children were transported home in such an event. Consideration of such an event also was given by School Supervisors in alerting parents to such an event.

At the Digby Municipal School Board on Monday evening the Commissioners made plans to set up an offer to the bus drivers. At time of going to press no definite action has been learned.

Accident Claims Life

Glenn Robert Morehouse, age 21, of C.F.B. Shearwater, Halifax, formerly of Sandy Cove, Digby County, died on Saturday following a car accident on highway 217 (Digby Neck) at 8:05 p.m.

It is said that Mr. Morehouse was attempting to pass another car when his wheels apparently hit a soft shoulder throwing the vehicle out of control.

Born in Digby, he was a son of Austin and Clara (Gidney) Morehouse. He attended Sandy Cove School and graduated from Digby Regional High School. For the last two years he has been a member of Canadian Armed Forces stationed at CFB Shearwater. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Stephen, Sandy Cove and Brian, Terrace, B.C.

The body was at Jayne's Funeral Home, Digby. Funeral service was held 3:00 pm Wednesday in Sandy Cove United Church. Rev. Ronald Stevens officiated. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Recreation Commission Making Winter Plans

Captain Reginald Hazelton presided at the meeting of the Digby Recreation Commission on Monday evening when the prospects of the coming winter season at the Forum were discussed.

A new ice cleaning machine has become necessary and work must be done on the building. The meeting expressed hope that the different clubs and organizations in the area will help financially with these necessary expenditures.

Three Area Men Sentenced

Three area men are serving nine month terms in Kings County Correctional Centre for robbery with violence under section 303 of the criminal code in connection with an incident which occurred at Doug's Irving in Conway on May 20.

Michael John Cowan of Digby and Bruce Arnold Handspiker of Mount Pleasant were sentenced by County Court Judge Hanson T. Dowell on August 28, with Robert Roy Cole of North Range receiving the same sentence on September 11.

A similar charge against Sheldon Scott Miller of Acadiaville was dismissed.

To Whom Does It Belong

Thirty thousand dollars, approximately, and possibly more is laying idle in a chartered bank since the Composite Wing had been constructed on the Digby Regional High School. The money had been designated for the Wing but the Wing was completed and used before the money was fully expended. The question which has arisen in Digby town and municipal councils and in the D.R.H.S. Board and Municipal School Board is "To whom does the money belong". The D.R.H.S. Board on Monday evening on motion of Mrs. Ina Dillon and Mrs. Vivian O'Neil decided to have the situation clarified by writing to the Department of Education for clarification. The D.R.H.S. Board is desirous of spending the money on a cost sharing basis for necessities in the Wing. The meeting was chaired by the vice-chairman, Austin Morehouse of Sandy Cove.

Prior to the Digby Regional High School Board meeting, the Board of School Commissioners chaired by Mrs. Dillon met Jack Ritcey, supervisor of curriculum for Digby County, announced at each meeting that the International Reading Association would be meeting at C.F.B. Cornwallis on October 3rd and fourth when a reading expert from Minnesota would be present. He requested as many teachers as possible to attend the seminar. Both Boards passed a motion to pay six dollars per teacher for the expense of going to the seminar.

Mr. Ritcey and superintendent C.C. MacInnis, also urged that as many urban teachers as possible go to the Conference on Learning Disabilities to be held at Dalhousie University on October 17 and 19. The conference co-sponsored by the Education Department and Dalhousie Student Union is geared to both teachers and parents.

In the Board of School Commissioners, Mr. MacInnis reported on the new school milk program where students up to grade six can buy milk at five cents for each serving. The rest of the cost is subsidized by the provincial government.

Mr. MacInnis reported that the buses were running on the same schedule as last year. Emergency planning in case of a bus driver strike was considered particularly should there be a strike called during the day after students were in school.

Reporting on summer maintenance, Mr. MacInnis, said the fence was completed at the elementary school, the teacher's rest rooms nearly completed but the weather-man did not co-operate for the roof repairs.

Some of the teacher aides who were employed found that the time they were needed was too short to warrant travelling to the school.

The superintendent reported that the French program has been organized and set up for grades 4.5 and 6 levels.

It was decided to contact Webster Dunn to see if he would again carry out the duties of trustee officer.

Bills for the month of August for the Board of School Commissioners were passed for payment at $1400 and the DRHS Board at $8500.

The DRHS Board advised the teachers once with the Driver Education course, two teachers, Larry Hicks and Ed Dunn, are available to undertake the course.

Following the meetings Board members were taken on a tour of the newly renovated and decorated cafeteria. Emblazoned with a rising sun pattern wall covering on part of the back wall, the cafeteria brings a gay appearance to the eating quarters. For most part the walls are bright yellow with orange accents tables are in beige arborite and the chairs are yellow plastic to blend with the walls and steel legs. New counters are being erected and a new dishwasher installed. Trays and dishes have been added making a sanitary and pleasant atmosphere for the lunch hour students. The cafeteria is not used for a study area.

Award For School Bus Safety

A letter from the Hon William Gillis, Minister of Education, was read at the Digby Municipal School Board meeting on Tuesday evening informing that the Division of School Planning and Conveyance had won the first place award in its size category in North America's Associations School Bus Safety Award Program.

The resignation of Robert Chisholm, teacher at Weymouth was accepted by the Board under protest. A motion advised the secretary to report the incident to the Nova Scotia Teacher's Union and the Department of Education. The recommendation of supervisor James Halscomb to engage Miss Janice Baird, Clementsport on the Weymouth teaching staff was accepted.

Mrs. Kenneth Hankinson was given permission to give piano lessons in the Weymouth School music room for which she would organize a school choir. Permission was given on a trial basis.

The Board gave permission to all schools in the Municipality to register in the Provincial Milk Program when pupils pay five cents per serving of milk and the remaining cost come under government subsidy.

Permission was given to Weymouth, the Islands and other municipal schools to have representative teachers at the Administrators Conference in Kentville on September 27-28; conference on Learning Disabilities, Halifax, October 17 & 18; technology Conference at Annapolis Royal, October 9 and an International Reading Association Conference at CFB Cornwallis on October 3 & 4. Keith Manzer of the Islands Consolidated School reported structural defects in the newly renovated wash rooms. The contractor will be advised of this.

The meeting was presided over by the chairman, Wilfred Swift. The next municipal school board meeting will be in Weymouth.

TOWN ELECTION IN THE OFFING

Three town council seats will be vacant when the terms of Councillors Paul Winchester, Joseph Hattie and Philip Robertson expire this year.

Already these men have given their intention to seek the seats for another term with sewers, town hall, paving and sidewalks the focal points. This is good. The three have served well. To offer to run another term is encouraging. Town Council work with all the committees entailed is time consuming. These men are willing to go the extra mile to serve the town they love. These men have had problems to bear, they've had insults and accusations to face, but none of these have bent their broad shoulders. The very fact that they are willing to shoulder more speaks well of the calibre of men who are running the town.

With all their merits one might readily say "Close the deal. We already have chosen our candidates." But that would not be exactly democratic. There are also other good men and women and that is as it should be. The three councillors above, we are sure, will agree that there is much satisfaction in realizing they have been definitely chosen by the will of most town residents and not by the few necessary to sign the nomination papers.

So, let's do it up right. Nominations for the three seats begin at nine a.m. on September 24 and close at five o'clock p.m. on October 5. By all means, see that nominations go in for our three toiling candidates but to be really democratic and for creating interest in the town, let's have a little competition.

Of course, we would not advocate just anybody for these council seats. They must be willing, as the three named above, to sacrifice personal time and pleasure to look after the interests of their charge, the Town of Digby. They must be persons who realize they are answerable to the people but also persons who do not let every wind blow them off course. Conscience and knowledge work hand in hand for a good councillor. Honesty, truth and justice must be bulwarks of the elected candidate on the municipal level (town or county) as well as provincially and federally.

Digby is our town. Let's choose the best to run our affairs. Be thinking, be talking, be doing and be ready for September 24 and then for October 15 -- election day.

THANKS FOR "BOUQUETS"

To do justice to a one hundred anniversary edition of a newspaper would take many hours of research and production and many, many reams of paper. Knowing this we made little effort to excel in this issue, we simply wanted to recognize the fact that The Digby Courier has been in existence for one hundred complete years. Although our presses rolled out the issue Volume 100, number 52 in August of this year, it actually was in September, 1874, when the paper began. We could not see the 100th anniversary go unobserved and we are happy to know that many of our friends had the same feeling. We heartily thank those who contributed in any way to this issue and sincerely appreciate the "bouquets" presented to The Digby Courier and staff in the thoughts expressed in the advertisements and other messages throughout this special edition. We sincerely hope that our readers enjoy the issue.

It was in 1949 when The Digby Courier put out a magnificent seventy-fifth anniversary number. V. G. Cardoza, who spent eighteen years on The Digby Courier staff, was responsible for that splendid effort. Others at the shop assisted. One only of the 1949 back shop staff, Paul Snow, is on the present staff. Front office staff, too, has changed except for the present editor.

What was history in 1949 is still history in 1974. For this reason we took the liberty of reproducing much of the 1949 anniversary edition and added the happenings of the past twenty-five years to bring us up to date. For most of that material our thanks are extended to Mr. Cardoza and R. B. Powell. There were other contributors whom we wish to thank also. Barry Jennings, Alphonse Deveau, Vincent Snow, Mrs. Carolyn Brown's English students and others.

While we leave our appreciation to Norman Wright until now, it certainly is not that his contribution was less important. Rather the opposite is true. This edition would be not half as effective without the many pictures loaned to us by Mr. Wright. Our only regret is that it wasn't possible to use all the pictures he so kindly lent to us.

In preparing this edition there were several things revealed to us. There is a tremendous amount of history and interesting reading found in a file of weekly newspapers covering one hundred years. (We have only one issue of Volume One. It is number three. There are other missing files also). It has occurred to us that week by week some historical item should be revived in the paper so that the younger generation can read them and events and occurrences be kept alive. Digby has so many interesting news items of the past. There are submissions for this issue which will not make the pages but we hope to make use of them as time goes by.

Should the length in years (100) be the only asset of The Digby Courier we would feel we didn't measure up. A newspaper can make or break a person, a

LETTERS

To the Editor: Mrs. Wallis

It is indeed a pleasure to extend my congra- tulations on the 100th anniversary of the Digby Courier.

It is truly remarkable that the Digby Courier has carried on for so many years in its fine tradition. One of the prime reasons for this can only be that it was under your editorship and the Wallis family.

Once again congratulations on your success. Yours truly, Coline Campbell M.P.

As mayor of the Town of Digby I would not want to let the opportunity go by to express gratitude to a business in town which has stood the stem of tide for a full century. Personally, I extend congratulations to the Digby Courier and express admiration to all who have contributed to make the Courier an outstanding organ of communication through so many years. Words cannot express the real value of a good newspaper in the building and shaping of a town and its surroundings.

It was more than a hundred years ago when Joseph Howe stood before the courts and said "Gentlemen, come what will, while I live, Nova Scotia shall have the blessing of an open and unshackled press."

This is the same sentiment which can be found as one reads page after page of the volumes of the Digby Courier on file. While using little or no spectacular methods to achieve their ends, The Digby Courier through the years has stood for freedom, for justice and equality for all.

More than ever the files of the Digby Courier dating back into the 1800's are valuable for historical reasons. Through the years this fine community newspaper has led the way and presented the case for those things which have made Digby town and county what it is.

It is with great pleasure and honest pride that I congratulate The Digby Courier and wish them success through the years ahead.

Willard Kinney

business or a system so with the power of a newspaper there must always be responsibility. The publisher holds a sacred trust. The trust is to fasten truth, justice and general community betterment. A good newspaper will educate, inform, influence and inspire its readers to brotherhood and good citizenship. A good editor will strive to be as close as possible to the life of the community. He will publish without prejudice, fear or favor. He will expose wrong where it exists and commend what is good. As we look back over the years we find for the most part The Digby Courier has held to these principles. Herein is where our assets lie. For these as well as for length of years our have extended your compliments to us. For them we say again "Thanks for the bouquets."

Hodge Podge

The beautiful trip to Freeport on a recent Sunday had only one flaw in it. It was the reckless driving of a car with trailer attachment. Anywhere on the Neck and Islands seemed to be considered a passing zone by our friend with the house trailer. Even the corner near the ferry wharf, just past the Wooden Keg was not respected. That one was very dangerous but it didn't phase the operator of the vehicle. He made his way past a car right around the bend. It was no surprise then when a summer visitor came to The Digby Courier on Monday of this week asking if the Courier could do something about the dangerous driving on the Islands. We certainly do not want to tar everyone with the same brush and we might even be courteous enough to say the culprits are not native to the Islands but we figured it was time to have something to say anyway. We can readily see the concern felt by the Chronicle Herald resulting in the publishing of horrible highway accident pictures on their front page. If these pictures have the desired effect we bless their use and also hope these few words might serve as a detriment to the drunk with power speed kings.

The Girl Guides and Brownies organizations are preparing to begin their fall work. One thing they lack; interested parents and adult leaders. Can you help them out? Would be a shame to drop these organizations because of parent disinterest.

We understand that several ladies have "organized" to lend assistance to Tideview Terrace, such as supplying comforts and necessities. An account will be opened at one of the chartered banks and the "band of ladies" wish it to be known that "tax free" receipts are available for donations.

Re-Elected Chairman

Mr. Desire Boudreau, Wedgeport, Inspector of Schools for Argyle and Clare, has been re-elected chairman of the Board of Directors of College Sainte-Anne. This will be Mr. Boudreau's fourth year as Chairman. The vice-president is Mr. William Deveau.

Mavillette, principal of Clare District High School. Dr. Gilles Brissette, Annapolis, is the new secretary. He succeeds Dr. Alderic Legere whose term of office has expired.

The officers of the board were elected at the annual meeting of the board held at the college.

Thefts Occur On Weekend

Two weekend breaks in Digby County are currently under investigation by the Digby Detachment of the R.C.M.P. Bear River Aluminum Products was broken into on Friday night and the Weymouth

Drug Store was broken into on Sunday night.

A quantity of cigarettes and money were found missing from the Weymouth Drug Store, entrance to which was gained through a window.

First Visit And Liked It!

(Mrs. John P. Outhouse)

TIVERTON

Mrs. Violet White, wife of Rev. Reginald White of Oshawa, Ont., her daughter, Imogene, Mrs. Lester Bush, Mr. Bush and their four children of West Dublin, Lunenburg, N.S. spent three days at the home of her niece, Mrs. Lillian Prime, Mr. Prime and son, Ray.

As this was her guests first visit to the Island, Mrs. Prime took them on tour of both Long Island and Westport. At Westport they visited the lighthouses and the youngsters, while exploring, stumbled on a path which led them abruptly and unexpectedly to the monument commemorating Joshua Slocum, they were delighted.

A visit to Leonard Small's Fish Plants and to Boars Head Light and Alarm system, also the churches were greatly enjoyed by the guests. Many photos were taken to preserve the memory of their visit to the Islands.

The highlight of entertainment for the older members was a nostalgic look into the past preserved in a scrapbook of photos, etc. compiled down over the years by Mrs. Prime. They also found great enjoyment in playing the chord organ.

The youngsters were happy just dangling a fishing line over the side of the wharf hoping for a nibble from a herring, macheral or pollock that swim about in profusion there.

When Mrs. Prime asked her guests their opinion of the Island they answered that they found the Island so different in comparison with its appearance on the map - they had not expected to find it so thickly settled or so industrially active. They felt it is lovely and are hoping to return and make a longer visit.

We'd much rather he got two than none at all but we'll rectify it. By the way Ralph Trask, a former barber in Digby, says "hello" to everybody.

The neglected middle years! Heard someone say, "Everybody does something for teenagers and senior citizens. And what do they do for us in the middle? Nothing."

Our five-six year old, Nancy, has been in school a whole week and still hasn't learned anything. Her first morning at school brought the comment "We didn't learn anything." She's made a lot of one's and b's but she hasn't learned anything yet! So she said after a full week went by.

Let's get it straight. When the government gives a gift to a Digby municipal unit, it could be Digby Town or the Municipality of the District of Digby. Each to eyes on provincial levels is classified under municipal. "A Digby teacher" could be one from the Town of Digby or one from the Municipality of the District of Digby. Oh, well, if you can't make head or tail out of a heading, the meat of the story will put you straight.

Every once in awhile we convince ourselves that our hearing isn't like it used to be. We felt better after we read this paragraph in the Canadian Weekly Publisher "There might be mention made of the fact that the council gathers around the table with no need to increase the volume of their voices more than is necessary to carry a few feet. The reporter is over in the corner and sometimes misses the odd pearl of wisdom which is expressed in the normal speaking voice. That's the way things are and that's the way they're going to be, unless the reporter gets a hearing aid or becomes more efficient in his mind-reading techniques."

Our trouble with the Town Council or Municipal Council isn't half as bad as with the School Boards on that score.

Worthwhile program has been started in our schools by the government supplying milk to the students. This program provides nutrition for all the students, including those children whose parents cannot honestly afford to purchase milk, those whose parents find other drink to use up the money, those whose parents are unconcerned about nourishing foods, those children who neglect eating because of other attractions more exciting to their young lives. Whatever the reason, the serving of subsidized milk to all elementary grade pupils is a worthwhile project.

We hate to put perfectly good news into our waste paper basket but it is most necessary to have you sign any copy you forward.

MAXWELL-HERSEY

Saint Patrick's Church, Digby, N.S., was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, August 10, 1974, when Karen Faye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hersey, Centreville, Digby Co., was united in marriage to Mr. Vance Maxwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vance Maxwell Sr., Jordan Falls, Shelburne Co., N.S. Father Leo Maillet performed the double-ring ceremony. The organist was Sister Gallivan and Miss Margo Levy delighted the congregation with her singing.

The church was beautifully decorated with an array of assorted flowers, tall baskets of gladioli and baby's breath and lighted candelabras.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father looked radiant in a Mid-Victorian style gown of white satin with train, frilled gathered yoke, long full sleeves gathered at the wrist. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by a Juliet cap of white flowers. She carried a cascade of red roses.

Mrs. Rosalind Ensor, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Patricia Maxwell, sister-in-law of the groom, while Miss Shelley Ensor, niece of the bride was junior bridesmaid. All wore identical floor length flowered polyester gowns in blue, pink and yellow respectively, with matching picture hats. They carried dainty nosegays of colored mums, baby's breath and long streamers to match their gowns.

The flower girl, Miss Crystal Stanton, another niece, wore a long pink polyester gown and carried a white basket of shasta daisies and baby's breath.

Mr. Brian Maxwell, brother of the groom was best man. Mr. Gary Hersey, Halifax and Mr. Kevin Ensor, Yarmouth, were the groom's attendants. Ushers were Mr. E. Ensor and Mr. Hogg.

The mother of the bride wore a deep rose polyester gown with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother was unable to attend.

Following the ceremony a reception for 150 guests was held at the Canadian Legion Hall. Mr. Edgar Ensor proposed the toast to the bride, responded to by the groom.

Miss Debra Stanton was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Bernice Morehouse, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Kay Connelly, personal friend, presided at the silver service. Miss Kendra Gidney, cousin of the bride, and Miss Jill Raymond, friend of the bride, served the bride's table.

For travelling, the bride wore a pink polyester flared dress, white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell are now residing in Jordan Falls, Shelburne Co., N.S.

helping hand to make the evening a success.

Approximately thirty relatives and friends attended the shower. During the evening games were played and a delightful lunch was served. A beautiful shower cake centered the table of many lovely and useful gifts.

While Mrs. Wagner read the shower cards, Mrs. Melanson wrote the gifts in the bridal book. The bridal book was then signed by everyone there.

At the end of an enjoyable evening a door prize was drawn. The bride-to-be thanked everyone who attended and those who could not attend for the lovely and very useful gifts she received.

How It Came About

J. J. Wallis

Co-owners of The Digby Courier were the late James John Wallis and his son the late James MacNaughton Provo Wallis. Mr. Wallis Sr. was editor and Mr. Wallis Jr. was associate editor until his death in 1949. Both were interested in newspapers, associations and community and church affairs. Mr. Wallis Sr. had been a president of the Nova Scotia Weekly Newspapers

Without the help of V.G. Cardoza, the 100th anniversary edition of The Digby Courier would probably not have materialized. We appreciate the copy which Vic prepared for us and we have inserted in this special issue. Furthermore it was Mr. Cardoza who made the research and prepared the copy for that prized 75th anniversary edition in 1949. Vic was then a member of The Digby Courier staff. We have used much of the 1949 copy for this edition and for that reason we are doubly grateful to Mr. Cardoza.

Victor G. Cardoza was born in Waterdown, Ontario in 1916 and came to Digby in 1923.

Elected in 1938, he served as a member of the Digby Town Council for 16 years, 14 as Deputy Mayor. Vic served as Mayor of the Town of Digby for the years 1959, 1960 and 1961 and served as a Member of the Legislative Assembly of Nova Scotia; first elected in 1953 and again in 1960 as Liberal Member for the Electoral District of Digby.

Always interested in education he served for a number of years as a member of the Digby Board of School Commissioners and the Digby Regional School Board. Vic was for a number of years Secretary of the Digby Board of Trade and later president.

He served for a number of years as a member of the Digby Recreation Commission.

He was president of the Digby Area Home and School Association for a number of years; also served as Regional Vice President of the Nova Scotia Federation of Home and School Associations. Mr. Cardoza was a Board member of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities and of the Nova Scotia Association of Rural and Urban School Boards.

In the field of health Victor

Association (now Atlantic Community Newspapers Association). Mr. Wallis Jr. served for a number of years on the Digby Town Council.

The Digby Courier, published by Wallis Print Ltd. remained in the Wallis family from 1931 to 1973, when it was purchased by the Mailman Publishing Company in Bridgetown.

Cardoza served for a number of years as a member of the Digby General Hospital Board of Directors and served as Chairman, Valley Regional Advisory Committee to the Nova Scotia Council of Health. He is an immediate Past President and long-time Board member of the Digby County Mental Health Association; immediate Past President Mental Health, Nova Scotia, which organization gave to Vic their highest award for services and member, Board of Directors, Mental Health-Canada.

Vic is chairman, Valley Mental Health Planning Council; Vice Chairman, Board of Management, Nova Scotia Hospital; Vice Chairman, Digby-Annapolis Mental Health Service Board. Vic has served on many associations, he was former President, Digby Branch, Canadian Cancer Society; President, Digby Branch, Nova Scotia T.B. & R.D. Association; Member, Hope Fellowship, C.A.M.R.; Chairman, Digby Unit, Commission on Drug Dependency; founding secretary and member, Digby Christmas Daddies Fund Committee; member of a number of other associations in the field of health and welfare. Vice President, Digby Liberal Association. Highly respected for his services, Mr. Cardoza has held honorary positions:

EDITH M. WALLIS

Mrs. Edith M. Wallis, editor, began part time work at The Digby Courier in the year 1947 when her husband, J. MacNaughton P. Wallis, became ill. It was in 1949 at the death of Mr. Wallis that Mrs. Wallis began to spend full time at the office and with her father-in-law, J.J. Wallis, as editor, became associate editor. She became editor in 1955 on the death of her father-in-law.

For two years, 1958 and 1959, Mrs. Edith Wallis was president of the Nova Scotia Newspapers Association (now the Atlantic Community Newspapers Association). This was the first time a woman had held the position and to date Mrs. Wallis has still been the only woman to have held the presidency.

Mrs. Wallis, in 1962, also had the distinction of having been the first woman president of the Digby Board of Trade or of any Board of Trade in the Maritimes.

In 1973, Mrs. Wallis was proclaimed Digby's Citizen of the Year which was recognized on Digby's Natal Day with presentations of citation, crest of the town and the key to the town. The presentations were made by His Worship, Mayor Glen Smith.

Mrs. Wallis and The Digby Courier were recognized in 1967 by the Shriners of North America for splendid contribution to the work of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children through the newspaper.

The Digby Courier columnist, Mrs. Janet Louise (Wallis) Garnham, was winner of the first award given by the N.S.W.N.A. (now A.C.N.A.) for best column.

Mrs. Wallis, during the years has been active in church and community affairs.

She was the former Edith M. Corkum of Middle LaHave, Lunenburg Co. There are two daughters, Mrs. Garnham, Halifax, and Mrs. E. Ruth Chappell, Upper Granville.

Honorary Vice President, Admiral Digby Library and Historical Society; Honorary member, Digby Fire Department; Digby Lions Club and Digby Kinsmen's Club.

Roy V. Mailman, Publisher

It was on September 24, 1973 when Roy V. Mailman, Bridgetown, N.S. purchased the Wallis Print Ltd., including The Digby Courier from Edith M. Wallis, Janet (Wallis) Garnham and E. Ruth (Wallis) Chappell. Mr. Mailman also publishes the Annapolis Spectator, the Bridgetown Monitor and the Nova, a newspaper begun in March 1974 in Middleton.

Mr. Mailman has been active in newspaper circles having been past president of the Nova Scotia Weekly Newspaper Association, now known as the Atlantic Community Newspaper Association and having served on various committees. One of these committees dealt with "training on the job" employment through Canada Manpower.

Mr. Mailman is presently serving as director of the Canadian Community Newspaper Association.

Always a community minded man Mr. Mailman has served as president of the Bridgetown Lions Club and the Bridgetown Board of Trade.

Born in Dalhousie, Annapolis County, Mr. Mailman became an employee of the Bridgetown Monitor. In 1966 he purchased the Monitor and Spectator from the Beattie family.

Mrs. Mailman was the former Freda Clarke of Bridgetown. They have two sons, Stephen, age 20, and Bruce, age 10

Purchase Old Academy For Agricultural Hall

An old minute book of The Digby Weekly Courier from back in 1894 had in the front pages minutes of four meetings of the Agricultural Hall committee in 1890 and 1891. Two meetings were at the Royal Hotel with T.C. Shreeve Esq. in the chair. Others mentioned were Captain Allen A. Nichols, John Daley and Emery Turnbull.

At the September 16, 1890 meeting a motion was passed that the four town lots of land in the Alley be leased from Ed Bacon for the term of 20 years at a yearly rental of $72.00 with the privilege of purchasing at any time during the 20 years for the sum of $1200. It was passed that a call of 25 percent be made through the columns of the "Courier" to commence operations that the proceedings be printed.

At the September 22 meeting plans were made to have J. Jones Esq. of Clementsport, architect, prepare plans for the new Agricultural Hall at $20 with detailed plans later at an additional cost of two dollars. The building was to be 80 x 50, twenty foot post, octagon in shape and costing $3000.

On November 11, 1890 the meeting was at the Court House when the land situated by the committee be adopted and the land was leased and plans approved. E.W. Bacon, A. Nichols, Botsford Dakin and John Warrington were named outside district councillors and John Daley and C.H. Jalleor for the town to solicit subscriptions

One of those to whom we are grateful for assisting us to get the Anniversary number out is R.B. Powell, who himself has used our columns in research for his widely read books, "Scrap Book I of Digby Town and Municipality" and "Scrap Book II of Digby Town and Municipality". We appreciate the article in the issue by Mr. Powell. (Editor)

Mr. Powell was born in Westport, the son of Captain Byard and Mrs. Celestia (Gilliland) Powell, where he lived to the age of seven. The family moved to Yarmouth where it resided until he was eleven years of age. The next move was to Little River, Digby Co. and Baden lived there until he was sixteen when he returned to Yarmouth to complete his high school education. The following year he attended the Teachers' Normal College, Truro, following which he went to Manitoba and taught school for one year.

The following year he went to Alberta where he remained until 1928. While in Alberta he contributed articles and short stories to western magazines and journals.

He returned to Nova Scotia

Dorothy and Janet. Dorothy is now Mrs. Tedlie and lives in Winsconsin and Janet is Mrs. Mutch and lives in Kentville, N.S. There are nine grandchildren.

At the outbreak of the Second World War he was given a commission in the artillery, which he resigned in November, 1939, to join the 1st Cdn. Survey Regiment and then proceeded overseas in December of the same year. In 1942 he became the Educational N.C.O. of the regiment. Late the next year he was drafted for the Mediterranean area and attached to the 3rd Brigade workshops in Italy. In 1944 he was posted to his original regiment and went with them to the Western theatre of war in 1945. While in Italy he was mentioned in despatches.

After the war Mr. Powell returned to teaching and the following year was employed to teach full time in Digby Rural High. He retired from teaching in 1963 and the following year was nominated as the Conservative candidate in the provincial general election. He was elected and re-elected in the 1967 election. He did not offer in 1970, due to poor health.

and lived with his parents in 1928, and became engaged in poultry raising and selling feed and flour. In 1930 he taught school in Ashmore and the next year taught in Weymouth North where he remained for six years.

In 1933 Mr. Powell married Rae Hankinson of Weymouth and they had two children,

Vernon L. Bent

On the staff of The Digby Courier was one employee who gave more years of service to The Digby Courier than any other. He was Vernon L. Bent. Mr. Bent, who was a councilor and mayor of the town, spent 45 years in the employ of the Courier except for three years with the Canadian Armed Forces in the Second World War. Mr. Bent was foreman of the plant for many years until his death in 1969 following a heart attack on the golfing greens.

Presently employed in the job printing department at the Digby Courier are, left to right, Willis Gaudet, Paul Snow, Murray Baxter, and Fraser Handspiker. Mr. Snow has been employed at the Wallis Print Ltd., (publishers of The Digby Courier) continually since 1949. Mr. Baxter first came to the staff in 1951. While Fraser Handspiker has put in fourteen years of continuous service.

Paul assisted in getting out the seventy-fifth anniversary edition in 1949. He had until the past year been employed as linotype operator. With the advent of offset methods the necessity of hot metal became not so great. Mr. Snow has taken on job printing along with any linotype work which must be done. He spends one day a week in Bridgetown where The Digby Courier has been printed since August of 1973.

Mr. Baxter has had experience on the linotype as well as other machinery and is foreman of the printing department.

Fraser does general printing and also spends one day a week preparing and printing The Digby Courier offset method in Bridgetown. Willis, who had taken a course in printing is relatively new on the staff. They stand by one of the new modern presses, the Heidelberg.

Little League Baseball News

LEGION WIN LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

The Jordan-Perry coached Legion won the League Championship by defeating a game but outclassed Lions team by the scores of 30-2 and 31-3. As it has been all season the Jordan brothers lead their team to victory with their pitching and batting. There is no doubt that it was a team effort by all members of the Legion. On the other hand, the Lions knew from the start of the series that they were outclassed but gave their all in a losing cause. Our hats go off to each and everyone of the Lions and their coach, Harold Haynes.

Congratulations, to the winners, and to the men who handled the games for their dedication and patience in this series.

SUMMARY

Little League registered seventy-two boys and sixty-six played on a regular basis. The schedule was as follows-fifteen League games, eleven play-off games and one exhibition, for a total of twenty-seven games.

The coaches were Jack Ritchey, Donald Brown, Stan Locke, Stan Perry, Arnold Jordan, Harold Haynes, Randy Cummings, Murray Mount, Laurence Comeau, Tommy Wood, and the Umpires were Carl Saulnier, Budd Abell, Steve Vantassel, Jr. Smith, Ben Cullen, Donald Scott. As you can see from this list many adults gave of their time and energy to make this another successful season. To each and everyone of the above my heartfelt "thanks" for a job well done. It would be remiss on our part if we did not mention the people that donated monies personally and to all the clubs, namely, Kiwanis, Legion, K of C, Lions, Firemen for their generous support. A special mention must be made in recognition of the Grant received from the Department of Recreation, Province of Nova Scotia towards the construction of facilities of the Little League ball field. Finally, to all the Little Leaguers for their keen interest and competitive sportsmanship over the past season, one can say, it was beyond reproach. To Murray Baxter and his staff at the Digby Courier and to station CKDY for giving Little League such sport coverage, our sincere thanks.

WINNERS OF LITTLE LEAGUE DRAW

Des G. Woods - Digby General Hospital, - Second Prize $15.

Plan Work On Forum

The directors of the Digby Recreation Commission on Monday night decided to go ahead with repairs to the Forum even though they are not sure where they can find the funds with which to work. Ice cannot be developed in the arena before the roof is fixed but the Commission is hoping a matching grant or some other form of assistance might be forthcoming. If we can't get the money, a spokesman said, we just can't open the Forum.

It was noted that one of the Digby Regional High School classes under Brian Coker were doing cleaning, painting and odd jobs as a project to raise money. It was decided to try this class for cleaning, painting, etc.

The meeting was presided over by Reginald Hazleton, president.

Gets $300 Scholarship

Miss Maureen Mullen, Weymouth, is the recipient of a $300 scholarship which will be used for a four year nursing course at Mount St. Vincent, Rockingham, Halifax County.

Miss Mullen is a 1974 graduate of Weymouth Consolidated School where she won the staff award.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Mullen.

700 Student Enrollment

Weymouth Consolidated School has re-opened for the 1974-75 term, with an enrollment of approximately 700 pupils.

About 60 other pupils are attending the Vocational School in Middleton. A full state of teachers and all programmes that were offered last year are in operation, with the exception of a full time music teacher and the one year Business Education course. However two teachers, Mr. Nelson Muise and Mr. Clayton Lewis have volunteered to meet with individuals and for groups to do instrumental work, and Mrs. Eleanor Hankinson has volunteered to form a choir—so pupils will be afforded the opportunity to have some musical needs met.

Only four students registered for the Secretarial course, so it was cancelled, but typing is being offered to all the Senior High School grades.

Art Classes are being continued this year by Mrs. Nadeen Boudreau, and the school is fortunate in having the services of a professional librarian, Mrs. Margaret Estov, who has a masters degree from Dalhousie University in Library Science.

Multicultural Program Closes

Among those who attended the closing of the Multicultural programme held at Weymouth Falls on Friday evening, were Joe Casey, Sam Baney, Susie Mills and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Johnson. The Multicultural programme sponsored by a Government 2500 grant, and presided over by Mr. Ralph Jarvis, has been holding at least one meeting a week, in the Community Center, where speakers from various parts of the province have spoken, held discussion groups, and general studies have been taking place. Among the speakers have been Art Criss, Frank Boyd and Gordon Harris, all of Halifax. Children and adults have taken part in the session, during which they studied deeply into their black heritage, from their invitation into slavery, to their present day status.

A banquet was held on Friday, which was followed by a programme including a talk by Susie Smith on Black Culture, Miss Mills said she was proud of the way the youths were making so much of themselves in this area. Several musical numbers by Alfie Bright and his group of young musicians Mrs. Doris Jarvis, who recently sang at the Multicultural Festival in Ottawa, rendered the solo "Alone," and by special request, she sang "Where Will I

Be When The First Trumpet Sounds." Mr. Casey congratulated all those who had taken part in the programme, and said that this Community was really active, and helping themselves. He said that the world today, needed "togetherness," and this multicultural programme was helping to make more togetherness in this growing world. Mr. Casey mentioned the famous slave, Rose Fortune, of Annapolis, who, after her freedom from slavery was obtained, began a business of her own, hauling luggage in a wheel barrow—her business increased, and today, her descendants still run the Lewis Trucking Business in Annapolis. Where there is the will to work, and improve oneself a way can be found.

Mr. Tony Johnson, the new director of Ethnic services for the Dept. of Education said he was very much impressed with the fact that the adults of the Community, as well as the Youth were so interested in this programme. Mr. Johnson's purpose is to assist Ethnic groups to discover themselves in their communities, and to give them help. He felt that the programme here had been very successful, and that those in charge were to be congratulated on their efforts.

Digby Red Cross Resumes Meetings

The Digby Red Cross reopened after a two-week holiday with a meeting in which the autumn summer work plans made for the season. The meeting was held at the Court House, presided over by the President, Emerson, with Mrs. Percy Robert, treasurer's report presented by Mrs. Robert being adopted.

Members of the Work Committee were at work quilting at the meeting, and it was Mrs. H.M. Warren, materials for the sewing were being sent to the Halifax Headquarters for near future. The Red Cross workers were to the fore by the report of the Women's Work Committee published, which decrease in the finished articles, also of dressings for Transfusion Service, been made during the months. The amount done by the Digby compared favourably with the larger centres in the province, but the need for workers in our branch is evident, if we fill the requirements for clothing, quilts and dressings urgently needed.

The report of the Social Loan Committee, presented discussion followed regarding future plans for Red Cross activity, which include a Blood Clinic announced for October 16th, and the Branch Meeting to be held at 3 p.m. October 23rd. In preparation for the latter, a Planning Committee was formed, comprising Mrs. Robert, Mrs. Allan and Mrs. Elliott Van.

It was left with Mrs. Brittain to make arrangements to hold the meeting, if possible, in the Church Hall, at which it was hoped to have the Vice-President of Red Cross as guest speaker. Further fortifying of both the meeting and the Blood Clinic were to be arranged by the Publicity Committee, and in reference to Mrs. Warren called for an excellent article in the Canadian Red Cross Service which had been in the September Reader's Digest.

They Give The Gift Of Blood, the sub-title states: "More than 750,000 Canadians helped build the largest blood donor system in the world," and the article follows gives many details of the service. The meeting adjourned, followed by refreshments for members of the Ways and Means Committee.

To Celebrate 100th Birthday

Frederick Stewart Adams who will celebrate his 100 birthday on Wednesday, Nov. 20th of this year was born in Bay View only two houses from his present abode. He reminds his friends that after living almost a century he got no further away than two houses. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Adams.

Prior to World War I and an early age, Mr. Adams went to work for Mr. William Troop of the Manhattan Hotel. For a period of about two years he took many tourist parties from the hotel out fishing. After this Mr. Adams went into a similar business for himself. He said he was in the tourist business for about 4 of his life. He said that in those days both tourists and fish were numerous, however, today such is not the case, because both appear to have diminished to a large extent.

Like his ancestors before him, Mr. Adams was a seafaring person. He said he boarded a boat at an early age and spent most of his life in one until he was 75 years old.

When he was 16 years of age he began fishing with his father and in later years he fished with his only son. He was a lobster fisherman for many years.

Prior to World War I, Mr.

Adams joined the original crew of the Bay View Lifeboat. He went with the crew to Saint John, N.B., to get the first boat which had been shipped by rail from Bayonne, N.J.

In those days Mr. Adams said the personnel of the boat changed with the government and he was relieved of his post during such a change after serving for 10 years. He is the last surviving member of the original crew.

Mr. Adams, after leaving the Life Saving Station continued in the tourist business and in the fishing industry for a number of years.

On July 16, 1970, Mr. Adams was visited and interviewed by two men from CBC Radio who made a tape for TV. During this interview Mr. Adams told of his experiences with the Life Boat.

He also told that once he had many Indian friends and even learned enough Micmac to carry on limited conversations with them. He remembered their hunting in Digby Gut for porpoise and the uses the Indians found for them.

There are four generations in Mr. Adams' family. In recent years Mr. Adams has been living with his son, Capt Harry Adams and family. He has two grandchildren, Mrs. Reginald

W. M. S. At Westport

The Womens Missionary Society of the United Baptist Church, Westport, met in the home of Mrs. George Clements for the September meeting on Tuesday the 3rd. Mrs. Lawrence Shaw presided.

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. Lloyd Frost her theme "My responsibility in love and prayer".

Prayer time was led by Mrs. George Sharpe. The roll was called to which members Bremner and Master John Adams, age 11. He also has three great-grandchildren all of Bay View.

Mr. Adams recalls that weatherwise his last birthday was one of the finest ones. He has said many times that he was born on a stormy day and that most of his birthdays were stormy ones.

During the past century, Mr. Adams notes many changes in the village of his birth. He said one time many years ago tourists were numerous here. In these days a big building boom is noted in this village and the trend is learning toward more full time residents in this village.

Tradition still seems to survive. Mr. Adams' son, Harry Verdun Adams, joined the crew of the Bay View Life Saving Station for about a quarter of a century served as a crew member, over 20 of those being in charge of the boat as coxswain until the closing of the Bay View Life Saving Station in the spring of 1970.

Sept. 3rd. John entered the Youth Training Center at Truro where he will be attending school this year. During the trip Mr. and Mrs. Adams were overnight visitors at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Elbert Jennex and Mr. Jennex of Dartmouth. They were also callers of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bartheaux of Moschelle. Mrs. Horace Snow of Port Wade was also a visitor of her granddaughter, Mrs. H. Bartheaux.

May we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the family of the late Mrs. Arch Bremner who recently passed away. She was 91 years old and one of the older residents of our village. She was deeply loved by those who knew her and better known to many as Aunt Fanny.

DIGBY NEWSPAPER HISTORY

It was 100 years ago when R.S. (Dick) McCormick published the first issue of the Digby Weekly Courier. Since that time the Courier has rolled off the press regularly every week. For many years the publication date was Friday of each week but this was changed some years ago and now the Courier appears on the street every Thursday morning.

Many changes have taken place in Digby and Digby County since the first Digby Courier was published. These changes and happenings have been faithfully recorded down through the years by the Digby Courier.

The Courier was not, however, Digby's first newspaper and, for the newspaper history of the County we have resorted to Isiah Wilson's History of Digby County to record the early history of newspaper publishing in this county.

From Wilson's History it is learned that "In 1857 a deaf mute named David A. Nicholson, circulated the prospectus of a weekly newspaper, devoted to local interests, which would be issued in Digby from the beginning of 1858, to be called the "Digby Athenaeum." But this commendable enterprise failed for want of sufficient patronage. A second venture was launched on Tuesday, December 6th, 1859, by Messrs. Albert E. Dodge of Annapolis Royal and Ingram B. Gidney, son of Angus Gidney, formerly editor of the Yarmouth Herald, a native of Sandy Cove, in this county, who, then issued in Digby the first number of the Acadian, an eight page weekly paper, twelve by eighteen inches, under the partnership of Dodge and Gidney. (Reprints from copies of this paper which are still in possession of the Courier, appear in this issue). The office was in stood on Water Street, between Sydney and Birch Streets two doors north of the old Andrews homestead, known as the Waverly Hotel. The motto of this paper was "Mind with Mind Direct Communication Holds." Subscriptions $2.00 per year paid within six months, other wise $2.50 per year. The venture was not a flattering success financially, and consequently the junior partner withdrew December 14, 1860, and Mr. Dodge assumed all liabilities and collected every debt due the late firm. The latter continued the paper unchanged until 1861, but reduced it to four pages the following year, though issuing regularly until the building and the entire plant were accidentally burned in the autumn of 1863. The next paper was the weekly Examiner, having four pages, sixteen by twenty-four inches. This paper commenced in the county town on Friday, May 12, 1865, with John A. Cossett and son as proprietors. The latter John Bryon Cossett was editor and was the great grandson of Lewis G. Cossett, of Smith's Cove. It was designated "A journal of art, science, literature and general information." This continued until the close of 1867. Subscription prices and advertising rates were identical with its predecessor.

The county was without a printing establishment until Friday, September 18th, when R.S. McCormick published the initial number of the Digby Weekly Courier, having similar dimensions of the Examiner and independent in politics. The Courier has continued uninterrupted until the present. Following McCormick, Charles E. Farnham and W.T. Ford were editors. In 1887 it became of Liberal policies. Consequently, The Canadian was inaugurated on Thursday, December 10th, 1891, by the Canadian Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd., on the east side of Water Street, one lot north of the foot of Church Street, as the exponent of Conservative tenets, being 4 pages, 22 by 28 inches. It was edited by J.E. Jones, M.D., with Charles Farnham as business manager. At the same time Mr. Ford wielded the editorial pen for the Courier. A lively warfare of words with a thorough canvass for subscriptions now commenced. After finding both papers could not flourish on such limited ground, with two in Weymouth and one in Clare, the Weekly Courier again donned political independence and the Canadian ceased publication 3, 1893.

While the Courier was being published by a company, Rev. E. d'Homme, Cure of St. Vincent, Salmon River, obtained a column on the fourth page for the benefit of the Acadians, to be printed in that language. It was not, however, fully satisfactory to that class of citizens. Valentine A. Landry, a descendant of Rene Landry, who married a relative of Charles de La Tour, a school teacher, began L'Evangeline in Digby on November 23, 1887, assisted by Joseph A. Cullen.

It was about the size of the Canadian, published weekly at $1.00 per year. Meanwhile, Weymouth was thriving rapidly and attracting a large share of public attention. Newspaper ventures were invading nearly every vacant centre. The great lumbering mart could not remain unoccupied. Eugene J. Hainer, formerly of Oshawa, Ont., but a representative in the fourth Congressional District of Nebraska in the United States House of Representatives from 1892 to 1894, issued the first copy of the Weymouth Times, Wednesday 7, 1888, in a building on the Western side of the highway southward from Weymouth Bridge, formerly occupied by Edward Egan. After several months spent somewhat unsatisfactorily, to himself at least, he sold the plant to Nathaniel Butler, a native of Yarmouth, but a citizen of Weymouth for a number of years, who had efficiently taught school in Digby county. This was a four page weekly 18 by 26 inches, devoted to general news, literature and county interests. After a successful and commendable but brief career, the entire business was purchased by the editor and proprietor of L'Evangeline who coupled with a commodious residence in Weymouth, a few rods north of the Egan building, removed the latter journal thither, amalgamated the Times with L'Evangeline and changed the name to Weymouth Free Press on December 13, 1889. They were both issued from the same office on Wednesdays and Fridays respectively. Later but by no means least, "L'Acadie Liberal," a weekly periodical of four pages reaching in dimensions the Weymouth Times, appeared on October 18, 1890. It was published at Meteghan boldly espousing the Liberal cause. But, like others advocating the claims of a particular party, its life was short and comparatively uneventful.

(The above concludes the excerpts from Wilson's account of county newspapers and the following is gleaned from later records).

Trouble in the Free Press office in Weymouth resulted in the withdrawal of certain members of the staff who established The Sissiboo Echo and L'Acadie, both being published in the Muise building. Both were good papers but the area could not support them all and they eventually discontinued publication. L'Evangeline was moved to Moncton where it continued for many years.

In Digby John T. McBride established a small daily called The Telegraph. Its life was brief, however. He made another attempt in 1908-09 to establish a paper and published for some months a weekly, The Digby County Record, printed first at Weymouth and later at Annapolis.

In 1906, J. J. Wallis, the Editor of the Digby Courier, established the Weymouth Gazette and a year later took into partnership L.H. Sabine, now of Raymond, Wash.. This paper was active about three years but was never a financial success.

The Digby Courier in the meantime had, despite the reversals suffered by others who entered the field, been pursuing the even tenor of its ways. Several editors wielded its editorial pen during the years. Among them were Aubrey Fullerton and Oakes Dunham. Mr. Dunham, who moved to Bridgetown, was succeeded by George E. Chisholm, who left the Courier in 1918 for a position in Kentville where he is still employed. Mr. Chisholm was succeeded in December, 1918, by James J. Wallis who held the editorship of the Courier until 1924, when he opened, on his own account, the Wallis Print and went into job printing. Eugene S. Stratton succeeded him as editor, although Mr. Wallis maintained a close connection with the paper, being a director of the publishing company. Stratton was succeeded by R.C. Mills.

In 1929, Clarence Jameson, the president and principal owner of the Courier, died and Frank Jones K.C., became its owner. At this time J.J. Wallis again became editor and some two years later secured the stock owned by Mr. Jones and became the principal figure in the ownership of the paper. Still later Mr. Wallis incorporated the firm as a limited company under the name of Wallis Print Ltd., which still continues to publish the Courier.

In 1931 the Weymouth Gazette was again established but continued for only a short time because of lack of advertising support. After three years the paper was discontinued.

Several attempts were made to establish a paper in Bear River. The first to try was Fred Mulhall of Lawrencetown, who, on March 17, 1896, brought out the first issue of the Bear River Telephone. After a short while he sold the plant to Jack DeVany, then a teacher at Indian Hill. Mr. DeVany operated the paper for a short while but it eventually came into the possession of the Bridgetown Monitor and was continued by them as a separate paper, with local managers, for some time before they amalgamated it with the Bridgetown paper. Following this, George I. Brooks, who had been connected with The Telephone, started the Bear River News, which ran for some time. In 1931 an attempt was made to revive the News, but after a year the paper again suspended publication.

In any account of the history of newspapers in this county, failure to mention The Tiny Tatler, published at Central Grove on Long Island could be an oversight. This little paper attained world wide recognition as the world's smallest newspaper and received government recognition, an honour very few amateur publications ever attain. It was edited and published by Ivan Shortliffe, then a fifteen year old schoolboy,

Storms

Took Their Toll

An Account of the loss of the sailing Packett Ship Caroline. A summary taken from "A Geography and History of the County of Digby, Nova Scotia" by Isiah W. Wilson — 1900.

The last month of 1831 was especially noted for severe storms in the Bay of Fundy.

The Caroline, a sailing packet, owned by James Crowley, was chartered to carry the mails between Digby and Saint John in winter seasons. On December 17th, a fine Saturday, she left Digby with fourteen on board, nine being passengers, and a considerable freight.

Before reaching her destination, the wind changed suddenly driving her up the Bay of Fundy to Isleaux Haute where she stranded on the shore.

The following comprised those on board, all of whom perished.

James R. Bryant, of Smith's Cove, Captain; John Henry Hayes of Grand Joggan, Mate; George Eldridge of Sandy Cove; John O'Callaghan and Richard Day, of Saint John, seamen. Passengers: Thomas Harris, a son of Samuel Harris of Annapolis, then residing on Spurgeon Weir's farm at Smith's Cove; Elijah Carty, son of James B. Carty of Sandy Cove, whose foot was caught in the rigging; Solomon Marshall, Sr., a son of Anthony Marshall, living at Marshalltown; David Cosseboom, and Ebenezer Washburn, Jr., of Gulliver's Cove; and Mrs. John O'Callaghan and three children. Mr. Marshall was found in the cabin; Mrs. O'Callaghan and children in the hold; Mr. Carty on deck as already noted. No other bodies were ever recovered.

The article in the book includes a poem written by an unnamed, retired sea-captain in which he dramatically describes the dreadful struggle as he imagined it while the crew fought to gain to Spencer's Head" where they might find a lea.

The figure head on the prow of the Caroline was a portrait of Miss Caroline Crowley (daughter of the owner) for whom she was named. (By Katharine McCrackin, California, great-granddaughter of Mr. Hayes.)

Courier Business Records

The earliest records available of business meetings of the Digby Courier Publishing Co. seem to be June 1, 1894, twenty years after the first publication.

The first proprietor and editor was R.S. McCormick. In the June 1, 1894 minutes the directors are looking for someone to run the newspaper either under salary or lease. They decided to ask Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Ford, Mr. Far-nham or any other party desiring so to do, to submit in writing the best terms they can offer to run the Digby Courier newspaper. Names mentioned in the June 1, 1894 minutes were Major John Daley, E. Bur-nham, E.E. Tupper, Captain John Benson, Captain James Raymond, David Sproule and Charles Mason.

The next meeting June 8 saw tenders opened and the offer of R.S. McCormick accepted provided the 25 per cent for collection to be withdrawn.

Insurance on the property was placed at $2000 and a dividend of five per cent on capital stock was declared.

The usual general business seemed to carry on in each succeeding meeting with the unusual happenings such as minutes of the annual having been cut out of the minute book and not available and Mr. Ford making a claim for back wages.

New names appearing were H.A.P. Smith, J.L. O'Peters and Israel Burrill. The back wage dispute was settled in June 13, 1895 when Mr. Ford accepted $75.00, withdrawing the suit and paying his own expenses.

Somewhere between December 1896 and July 1897 the death of Mr. McCormick occurred as the minutes revealed that the balance of loan $725.65 had been received from the estate of R.S. McCormick. G.L. Stone and W.W. Wade appeared among directors names in 1897 and 1898 added the names of E.E. Rice and A.H. Comeau. At the same time the name of Fullerton is found recorded as leasee.

Minutes skipped from June 1899 to May 1904 when additional names to the directors were Charles Warner, John Snow and Mrs. R.S. McCormick. At this meeting Major Daley reported having sent the Provincial Secretary the annual fee of $5.00 for registration according to the new regulations of the provincial government. It was in 1904 when the plant was leased to John Daley for a term of ten years.

The next minute is dated July 20, 1912 when a special meeting had been called to fill vacancies on the directorship. Included were names of H.B. Short, Mr. Tupper, W.T. Troop, C.H.

Purdy, M.A. Candan, W.H. Covert and C. Jamieson. It was at this time that $110 was invested in a wire stitcher.

By June 20, 1914 the ten years lease to John Daley was nearly up and a meeting was called at that time for the shareholders to decide what would be done with the property. In the meantime the name of M.C. Denton appeared on the books. The manager, O.S. Dunham presented a report on property, machinery and plant. The directors were authorized to purchase a site and erect a building for the company not to exceed $3000. The meeting decided to again lease the plant and they changed from "Chairman of the Board of Directors" to "President" since it was customary in this country to have a president instead of the English custom of a chairman.

At the June 1918 meeting the name of J.H. Keen was put on the directorship to replace the name of C.H. Purdy (deceased). In 1919 the name of the company Digby Printing and Publishing Co. appeared with the Digby Printing and Publishing Company and names as Dr. E.D. DeVernet and Stanley Keen, still remembered by many today, appeared on official documents. The Digby Printing and Publishing Company Ltd. were members of the Courier Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd. and entitled to vote at meetings of the latter.

On September 28, 1925, S.A. Keen secretary, passed over the minute book, seal and bank pass book showing a balance of $19.16 to H.H. Marshall, secretary.

In April, 1929, a resolution was passed to "wind up" the Digby Printing and Publishing Company. The Courier Printing and Publishing Company was reinstated.

How We Lived

In 1904

The Digby Weekly Courier record books show wages paid to the staff week of July 2, 1904 (seventy years ago to be O.S. Dunham (editor) $12.00; George Chisholm $10.00; John Dakin $3.50; Eva Dakin $3.00; Ethel Moore $2.50; Chas Moore $2.00 for a total weekly payroll of $33.00. It is noted that by October of the same year Maggie Turnbull was employed at $1.00 a week. By July of 1905 the total weekly wage rose by $3.50 to $36.50. Five years later July 9, 1910 the total weekly wage reached $39.00 with the staff consisting of Dunham, Chisholm, Harold Kiley, Eva Sakin, Lois Marshall, Ernest Letteney, Jack Tinker and Marion Morgan. By 1913 there were nine on the staff and the weekly payroll totaled $46.00.

New names or replacements included Maggie Snow, Helen Shortliffe, and Annie Welsh.

The Juggernath

Car Festival

A frightful accident, which terminated fatally, happened at Berhampore, in connection with the dragging of Juggernath's car. The poor unfortunate man was a carpenter, and for three or four months had been employed in constructing the car which cost him his life. At the time the accident occurred he was sitting on one of the axles, and it was his work, when the car was running off the road, or against a house, to block the wheels with a piece of wood. In pulling the piece of wood from under the wheel he lost his balance, fell down, and, as the car was pulled along at the same instant, the wheels passed over his arms and legs, which were completely pounded. The poor fellow was at once conveyed to the civil hospital, but he never recovered consciousness, and died early the next morning. This year the car - with the view of using it in future years - has been made stronger and heavier than usual. The wheels, too, which are made of solid wood, and twice the width of ordinary brandy wheels, have been girt with tires, and so rendered more dangerous and destructive in cases of accident. - Madras Athenaeum.

The Show Of Barmaids

A correspondent of the Globe thus describes the show of the pretty barmaids recently held in the North Woolwich Gardens: - Up and down the hall, in two double lines, backed by a sheet of looking-glass, stood the 26 competitors. Blond and Brunette, tall and short, slender and embonpoint, gentle and simple - all varieties of form and colour seemed by some magical means to be represented among the 25. Nor was this all: one of the competitors had surpassed by artificial means the most arduous achievements of nature, by appearing in hair of the most delicate straw colour, with large dark eyes glittering picturesquely beneath. The triumph of the show was the giantess barmaid, a weight 42 stone, for whose special accommodation a separate tabernacle had been arranged in one of the corners. Here, behind a sort of reredos, stood this substantial Hebe, soliciting in no bashful tones the "favours" of the crowd which unceremoniously stared at her ample proportions. Cigars she had, and a roaring trade she seemed likely to do. But one could not expect too much, and the energies and talents of this lady had apparently been pretty well used up in the feat of growing stout, leaving not much room for the development of conversational powers. Votes, however, were recorded for her in great profusion, the most slender men and most angular maidens proving especially amenable to her charms. In fact, if no jury were at hand to modify the effect of free and unrestricted sufferage, it is more than probable that weight would tell, and giantess receive the prize.

Automatic Printing by Telegraph. The Montreal Telegraph Company have now in use a wonderful little machine by which, says the Star, they are enabled to send into the banks and brokers' offices a continuous string of quotations of stocks, gold & c., from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The instrument is self-acting and superior to any in use in the States, the improvement being due to Montreal inventiveness.

Old Courier building which was demolished and replaced by Pyne's store, now occupied by Digby Home Furnishings for display of carpets and appliances.

This picture of George L. Thompson Jr. (whose years were then not so junior) of Saugus, Mass., was captured in 1973. It is typical of the interest generated to the readers of The Digby County newspaper in its 100 years of service to the communities. The next 100 years begins with highest confidence and great expectations for the County newspaper. Interest passes on from father to son as in the Thompson family from George L. Thompson, George L. Thompson Jr. and George L. Thompson III.

THE TEMPERANCE SITUATION IN DIGBY COUNTY

With the aid of the Digby Weekly Courier, (1920-1929) the author of this paper will investigate the temperance situation in the Digby area. To do this the author will look at the influence of two temperance organizations, these being the Sons of Temperance and the National Women's Christian Temperance Union (W.C.T.U.). The investigation of Temperance will begin with a brief look at these two organizations. These organizations did a great deal of educational work. Their association with and influence upon the school will be examined. The author will next look at the reasons people joined these societies. It will be shown that the Women's Christian Temperance Union offered women fellowship, an opportunity to use their talents and a realization of their importance in society. The main concern of the members of the Sons of Temperance, like the members of the W.C.T.U., was showing love by safe-guarding their "brothers" from the evils of intemperance. It will also be shown that these societies were social centers at a time when there were few activities other than Church activities. The author will examine the two high-points of the Temperance situation in the Digby area. These are the repeal of the Scott Act followed by the introduction of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act (N.S.T.A.) and the ending of the N.S.T. Act and bringing in of Government control of the sale of liquor. The provisions of the N.S.T.A. will be examined and it will be noted that although the temperance situation was better after the introduction of the N.S.T.A., it was not completely satisfactory to the temperance people. The controversy that arose because of the plebiscite to be held on the N.S.T. Act will be examined. The arguments of those favouring the Government control of the sale of liquor and the arguments of those favouring retention of the N.S.T. Act, will be stated. The author will conclude this paper with the result of this "hot-debate" between Mr. Government Control and Mr. Prohibition. At last the controversy about the use of intoxicating liquor was brought to an end but the influence of the temperance societies did not die with it.

Unlike most American reform movements of the nineteenth century, many of the temperance societies of North America, including the Sons of Temperance, became international in scope. The Sons of Temperance was begun in New York City (September 29, 1842). It moved into Canada by the late 1840's. The order was introduced in Digby County in January of 1848. The Order of the Sons of Temperance of North America still survives in 1974 after an existence of over a century and a quarter's history. The Order continues to adhere to the principle of total abstinence for the individual and prohibition for the state. By this pledge of total abstinence, the member is to refrain from the manufacture, sale, purchase, and intake of all known or doubtful intoxicants. The Sons of Temperance also worked with youth organizations such as the Cadets of Temperance and the Band of Hope. Another closely allied temperance organization was the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The National Women's Christian Temperance Union (W.C.T.U.) was first organized in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1874. It was formed for the purpose of unifying the work of women in temperance and social reform. This temperance organization was very active in the Weymouth area in the 1920's. The methods it used were preventive, educational, evangelistic, social and legal. Its badge was a knot of white ribbon and its motto was "For God and home and every land."

Schools, at this time, were highly influenced by the Sons of Temperance and the National Women's Christian Temperance Union. Soon after the organization of the W.C.T.U., Miss Willard (the leading spirit of the organization) was responsible for having laws passed requiring Scientific Temperance taught in the public schools of each state. In Nova Scotia the government had issued text books to the Normal Schools in order to prepare teachers so that they might "instill into the minds" of the school children a scientific understanding of the real nature and effect of alcohol. To the W.C.T.U. also belongs the credit of having one temperance lesson each quarter in the Sunday Schools.

The Courier (April 16, 1920) reports on a W.C.T.U. meeting in Weymouth North at which Miss Rooney, principal of Weymouth school, gave a prepared paper which showed how alive she was to the dangers threatening the children and how ready she was to co-operate with the Union. The leader of this meeting of the W.C.T.U. closed with: "What a responsibility and what an opportunity rests with every teacher. We were glad to have our teachers show their interest in this vital work by their presence in the meeting and their help with the programme."

At a meeting of the Weymouth W.C.T.U. on April 30, 1920, a paper was given on the "Co-operation of Teachers and Parents in Relation to the Moral Welfare of our Children." At this meeting many helpful suggestions for parents and teachers were considered such as care in the choice of companions, the evil effects of the cigarette and the systematic memorizing of scripture passages and quotations. In Mrs. Fuller's address to the Weymouth W.C.T.U. meeting of June 17, 1921 entitled "Moral Education," she had a "heart to heart" talk about the dangers of school life. A line from her speech reads: "But with this great blessing comes a great responsibility to so guard and guide the children committed to our care as to keep them pure."

This meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held in the principal's room at the Weymouth North School house. At the close of the meeting the leader thanked the teachers for their aid in making the meeting a success.

Both the W.C.T.U. and Sons of Temperance organizations sponsored essay contests on temperance. On February 1, 1924, the W.C.T.U. sponsored a High School Contest the subject being, "Total Abstinence and Modern Industrial Organization." At the same time they sponsored a Common School Contest on the subject "Five reasons why one gains by Total Abstinence." A note after the advertisement read: "In High and Common School Contests each pupil in the room is expected to write."

On June 23, 1923, the Home Division No. 169 of the Sons of Temperance held a public meeting. One of the most interesting items on the program (according to what was reported in the Courier on that date) was the presentation of prizes for the essays on temperance by the pupils.

It can be seen that the women of the Weymouth W.C.T.U. were very active in temperance work. What attracted women to this organization? — At the time, the W.C.T.U. organization was the largest organization of women in existence. Women at this time realized that with numbers there was power. It was realized that with co-operation many things were possible that single individuals could not bring about. The women also became aware of their importance. To women was entrusted the moulding of the men and women of the future.

"The home is women's kingdom, and the Christian Temperance work must begin in the home. Society is composed of households, and women reign in the household. She must therefore mould society. If women form society she must aid in reforming society. To do this individual effort is not sufficient. Organization is most effectual."

It can be seen that women had a new realization of their importance, however, they saw their role in traditional terms — that of a homemaker. The W.C.T.U. also began to work away at the myth of a "double standard", one for women and one for men. The W.C.T.U. urged the maiden to ask "purity for purity." The organization taught that there was an equal standard of purity for both sexes. They felt that boys should be taught that there is not one code of morals for them and another for their sisters.

One of the fundamental reasons for joining the W.C.T.U. and Sons of Temperance was a concern for one's fellow man. This could be demonstrated by shielding men from intemperance. The motto of the Sons of Temperance is, "Love, Purity, and Fidelity." This motto denotes love to God, and universal love.

These are fine and noble sentiments, but these organizations offered more. They served as social centers. The W.C.T.U. helped the women socially and intellectually. The division rooms of the Sons of Temperance were a suitable diversion to take the place of the barroom. Here there was an attempt to keep men from temptation by occupying them with "rational and innocent excitements."

The W.C.T.U. meeting was a place of comradeship. Women were often tied down with home duties and didn't have an opportunity to mingle in society. The W.C.T.U. meeting provided an opportunity to mingle in society. The W.C.T.U. meetings provided an opportunity for the women to escape the house one hour each week and share the fellowship of friends. This would help women to bear more patiently the daily chores that most women experience.

The Digby Weekly Courier (November 25, 1921) reports that after a W.C.T.U. meeting at the home of Mrs. William Hankinson, a social hour was enjoyed.

"A dainty afternoon tea was served and pleasant chatter over tea cups brought the happy event to a close". Women belonging to the W.C.T.U. also had a chance to discover unused talents and to use them against the curse of strong drink.

An examination of "Coming Events" in the Digby Weekly Courier leads one to conclude that there were few social events other than church and temperance activities in the early 1920's. A more exhaustive examination of the Courier during these dates (1920-1929) will provide much evidence that the meetings of the Sons of Temperance were indeed, social events. In the November 3, 1922 issue of the Digby Weekly Courier, it is reported that the Royal Division, No. 37, held a very successful Halloween party. The meeting consisted of an opening speech, readings, piano duets and a solo. After this a peanut race was enjoyed and games were played and "enjoyed by all". Refreshments were then served and a peanut hunt ended the meeting. On March 9, 1923, the Digby Weekly Courier reports that a big team load of members of Home Division, Smith's Cove paid a visit to Hope Division, Acaciaville. A fine musical and literary program and lots of eats were prepared by the Hope Division. The same report also states that the Hope Division and Royal Division (of Bear River) were guests of the Home Division. After the evening's program, refreshments were served and an hour "was spent in games and sociability." In the local news column, it was reported that the Home Division of Smith's Cove returned a social visit to the Hope Division of Acaciaville noting that "these friendly visits are much enjoyed by all."

In the local news column of September 26, 1924, of the Digby Courier it was reported that the Hope Division of Acaciaville held a corn boil near the Pines Hotel. The Hope Division, according to a report in the Courier of May 29, 1925, entertained the Smith's Cove Division and an enjoyable time was spent. On April 8, 1927, the Courier reported that the Hope Division was holding rehearsals for a concert which was to be held in the near future. Another corn boil was held near the Pines Hotel by the Hope Division. This was reported in the Digby Courier on September 7, 1928. These reports indicate the extent of the social aspect of the Sons of Temperance Organizations and help explain its appeal.

Great enthusiasm was shown for temperance work in the first part of the 1920's. At this time Digby and Guysborough counties were the only two counties of Nova Scotia under the Scott Act. The Scott Act (The Canadian Temperance Act - 1878) was so called after its sponsor, R.W. Scott. This law stated that the majority of voters polled at an election could prohibit the sale of liquor. This law no longer satisfied temperance workers who wanted a temperance act which would prohibit the sale and consumption of liquor. A vigorous campaign was begun to have the Scott Act repealed and the Nova Scotia Temperance Act introduced. The Digby Weekly Courier aided this campaign. On January 21, 1921 an article entitled "Boost the Petition for Repeal" appeared. In this article all those who believed in temperance and moral reform were urged to sign. It was stated that signing would be a practical act of patriotism. On November 3, 1922 the Digby Weekly Courier carried an open letter alleging that five young boys had visited a booze joint in the town and had "got full" on several occasions. An Article entitled "Progress of Prohibition" (Nov. 7, 1922) states that:

Businessmen, employers of labour, social workers, clergymen of all denominations bear testimony to the moral and economic value of prohibition."

It is not surprising that, in the face of this opposition, the Canadian Temperance Act ("Scott Act") was repealed by an Order-in-Council, on November 21, 1922. The "Scott Act" was replaced by the Nova Scotia Temperance Act. The Nova Scotia Temperance Act was a prohibitory law. It forbade sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, including hop beer, barley beer, and home brew. The penalty for first offence was from $200.00 to $500.00 or imprisonment for one month. On each subsequent conviction, the penalty was to be imprisonment from four to twelve months. The jail penalty had to be imposed after the first offence. The Nova Scotia Temperance Act gave druggists and vendors the right to sell liquors for medical purposes to a person having a certificate from a physician. Any physician who gave a certificate for non-medical purposes was liable to a fine of one hundred dollars and on each subsequent conviction to one month in jail.

A town council or municipality could appoint a vendor to sell liquor according to the N.S.T. Act. When a town or municipality appointed a vendor, he had the exclusive right to fill the doctor's prescriptions and sell liquor for the town or municipality appointing him.

Therefore if this law was strictly enforced, illegal selling of liquor and the practice of bootlegging would be completely stopped.

It was the duty of the Council, Police and Inspectors to enforce the Nova Scotia Temperance Act. The Inspectors and officers, under warrant, could search any premises for liquor. They could enter such a premise at any time, using force if necessary, and search the person of anyone suspected of keeping liquor in his pockets or in any receptacle or vehicle and arrest the person if liquor was found. Without warrant, any Inspector, Constable or other Peace Officer could, at any time, enter and search any place where he believed liquor was kept. They might also search the person of any one who was reasonably suspected of selling liquor and could also search any bag or other receptacle in his possession. Any person who interfered with any Inspector or other officer in the discharge of their duty was liable to a fine of one hundred dollars.

In an article entitled "The Temperance Situation" which appeared in the Digby Weekly Courier, (July 13, 1923) H.R. Grant stated that prohibition had brought great moral and economic benefit to the Province. However, he goes on to state that much had to be done before conditions were satisfactory and that the law in some municipalities was not being given a fair trial. Thus it can be seen that although Nova Scotia had a prohibitory law against the consumption of liquor for beverage purposes, conditions for the temperance people were less than satisfactory. However, temperance people felt conditions were much better than they would be if prohibition had not come into effect.

In 1928, Dr. Grant, Rev H.R. Grant and Dr. Grant reports that under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act there was less drinking, less poverty, less drunkenness and misery. The Digby Weekly Courier agrees wholeheartedly with Dr. Grant's report of conditions. To substantiate the truth of Dr. Grant's statement of Courier reports:

"We have it on the authority of one who made a competency collecting empty bottles behind hotels and barns and hang-outs, that the people in one industrial town are very much better off than they would be if prohibition was not in effect." Dr. Grant also reports in the Courier ("A letter from Rev. H.R. Grant", January 4, 1929) that bootleggers were being driven out of business. He states that in 1926 there were twenty-two bootleggers sent to jail while in 1927 there were forty-nine sent to jail. He gives credit for this to more energetic enforcement of the Act. However, he states that there is much to be done. If the business of the bootlegger is to be suppressed, "vigilance" is needed in Digby County. It is also noted in this letter from Dr. Grant that under prohibition court records show a steady decrease in offences for drunkenness.

These glowing reports of the benefits brought by the Nova Scotia Temperance Act were those of a "temperance man." Apparently there were people in Nova Scotia who did not recognize these benefits as a plebiscite on the Nova Scotia Temperance Act was held on October 31, 1929. Two questions would be decided by the vote. These questions were:

1. Are you in favour of continuing the Nova Scotia Temperance Act?

2. Are you in favour of the sale of alcoholic liquors under a Government Control Act?

The two candidates in the field were Mr. Prohibition and Mr. Government Control. A heated controversy arose among supporters of each candidate.

It was believed that the "Dry" were getting organized to put over a big vote in favour of retention of the N.S.T. Act.

It was thought that this was not being done because the N.S.T.A. was any good but because:

"the devil you know is better than a devil you don't know." Indeed, the devil that existed in the Nova Scotia Temperance Act was known to the people.

The Act had proven to be unworkable in spite of efforts to give proper law enforcement. The tariff in intoxicating liquor had not been lessened. The distribution of liquor had fallen into the hands of:

"Notorious bootleggers, thugs, and the undesirable dregs of the underworld."

Smuggling and bootlegging had become the rule, and the bootleggers were mainly young men and boys who were employed by older and larger operators. Some of these operators often pretended to be respectable. It was difficult to secure convictions against them but at the same time the authorities knew they were selling liquor.

This disregard for the Nova Scotia Temperance Act which was openly violated led to a decreased respect for law and order. Even the attempt to enforce it had weakened. In Digby County there had hardly been a prosecution for illegal selling of liquor during 1929 although it was sold illegally everywhere. Perjury in liquor cases became very common. Juries, faced with the strongest evidence, rarely convicted for smuggling liquor.

It was also felt that the bootleggers were getting rich at the expense of the public treasury. It could use the revenue from the sale of liquor to build good roads, assist public services and reduce taxation. The need for money was great and the towns and municipalities were imposing fines for the illegal tariff of liquors. This, said Chief Inspector, D.C. Grant, was condoning the sale of illegal liquor and prison terms should be handed out. However, imposing the cost of boarding a prisoner on a town or municipality, when a revenue could be collected by imposing a fine, was not always good business. The authorities had to rake in every possible cent in order to maintain the different civic and municipal departments.

The Courier of October 4, 1929, stated that the drinking man was not only being "fleece" by the bootleggers and smugglers but also be the brewers and distillers, by the Dominion and local government, through the customs and excise acts and the N.S.T.A. It said that the difference between the original cost and the retail price of intoxicating liquor was "out of all reason." Allowing for dilution of the liquor before it reached the consumer, the retail price was at least fifty times the original cost. Thus the whole liquor traffic was described as a sordid game of grab with the consumer paying for it. It was suggested that if liquor were sold legally for one dollar per quart, under proper restrictions, its use would decrease and smugglers and bootleggers would be put out of business.

The Courier on October 18, 1929, stated that impartial observers seemed to agree that drinking had not been suppressed. On the contrary, it was apparently increasing, especially among young people of both sexes.

While the activity of the "wet" forces had increased, those of the "dry" forces had decreased. During the early 1920's these forces had done a great deal of educational work by means of total abstinence societies, lecturers, and home, school and church instruction of the young. These activities had so aroused public sentiment that the Nova Scotia Temperance Act became possible. However, after the Act was passed, the dry forces thought that their work was done and that the law would enforce itself or be enforced by officials. They, therefore, relaxed their efforts. As a result public sentiment in favour of prohibition weakened.

Another factor which favoured the abolition of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act was that public opinion was equally divided in regard to moderate drinking. The evils of excessive use of intoxicating liquor were not denied. However, a large percentage of the population, including the very best people, valued the privilege of drinking in moderation or leaving it alone as they saw fit. "They resented any attempt at coercion." It was argued that:

"All forms of pleasure are harmful if carried to excess. Smoking, car-riding and dancing are injurious when not indulged in discreetly. Yet they are not prohibited."

No good reason could be seen why a man who relishes liquor and only uses it sparingly, should be deprived of the right to legally take a drink when he wanted to do so.

In 1929, there arose an organization known as the Temperance Reform Association. Its members were a group of responsible and respectable citizens who felt they had the best interests of Nova Scotia at heart. They were the leaders in the commercial, industrial, and professional life of Nova Scotia, and many were total abstainers. After coming to the conclusion that the N.S.T.A. was a failure, they signed a manifesto stating that a proper system of Liquor Control was the best system of promoting True Temperance.

The members of the Temperance Reform Association may have considered their motives beyond reproach but temperance workers did not. As reported in the October 11, 1929, issue of the Courier (Supporters of N.S.T.A. Hold Large Meeting), Rev. John Coburn, Toronto, states that in a recent customs investigation, admissions, under oath, that representatives of brewers and distillers had been contributors to defeat prohibition and establish government control in Nova Scotia had been obtained. Rambler declares that if one was to look hard, it would be seen that money was at the bottom of the whole movement. Rev. Coburn warns the people that they are not battling with a few high-minded gentlemen but are engaged in a tremendous battle with the liquor monopoly that is seeking to "alcoholize" Canada. However, he feels that they are winning as "right always shall win".

Those who favoured the retention of the N.S.T.A. put forward all the arguments against the evils of the liquor tariff. They claimed that in liquor control provinces there had been an increase in drinking and little, if any, decrease in the number of bootleggers. Rev. Coburn, who was from Ontario, made reference in the Courier to a report by one Department of Trade and Commerce showing that the per capita consumption of liquor in Ontario had a little more than doubled. He also referred to the fact that the number of convictions for drunken motorists had increased 900 per cent. There had also been a steady increase in crime and in deaths from alcoholism.

Rambler in "her" column of October 25, 1929, could not understand the merchants of Digby who were talking government control. She warns that if government control comes into effect, it will be harder for them to do business for their male consumers will spend their cash on booze. Having no cash for groceries, the grocer will have to extend credit.

Those in favour of the repeal of the N.S.T. Act stated it was difficult to enforce. A temperance worker in the Courier (October 25, 1929) cites two reasons why the Act is not enforced better than it is. These are political interference and hostile courts. He goes on to refute the charge that the Act has been responsible for disrespect and perjury. He argues:

"No good citizen will show disrespect for any law that has for its object the welfare of the community. If people commit perjury, it is because they are perjurers, and the circumstances reveal the character."

He declares that the N.S.T.A. cannot be blamed for the fact that there is smuggling of liquor. This is due to lax enforcement of customs which is a Federal responsibility. In conclusion he states that the N.S.T.A. is the best law yet produced in Canada for the suppression of the sale of intoxicating liquor and that it is unfair to blame all evils connected with liquor on it.

Mrs. Ella Boole, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, urged people to drink fruit juices as a legal substitute for alcohol because they:

"appeal to the taste, are attractive to the eye, are refreshing to the spirit, have only good effects the morning after," and are service in much the same way as alcohol.

The editor of the Digby Courier also has clear ideas in regard to alcohol. In an editorial on September 20, 1929, he declares his vote for retention of the N.S.T.A. This he does realizing that there is too much bootlegging and illegal use of alcohol. He does this because he distrusts government control. The pressures of brewers and distillers, he fears, would cause the government to refrain from controlling the liquor traffic and encourage the sale of liquor. This would lead to increased consumption of alcohol and the bootleggers would not be completely abolished.

To the argument that Nova Scotia's government urgently needed revenue which it would gain at the expense of the bootlegger, G. Osborne Troop makes a reply. In reference to the large revenues being derived in other provinces, he says:

"They have made millions indeed, but at the price of their honor. Stainless honor is of more value than all the money in the world."

And so the "dry" force went to the polls believing that they had truth and reason, and logic and decency on their side.

The results of the plebiscite appeared in the Digby Courier under the heading - "Government Control Sweeps the Province." The article began with the statement, "It is time for everyone to get rubber boots and rubber suits - the country has gone wet." The final figures were: for the retention of the Act - 61,353; for the

and will turn out to be a pond of Government Control - 84,688; majority for Control - 23,335.

Digby was the only county in Western Nova Scotia to go wet poisoned water in the midst of a Sahara Desert," says the Digby Weekly Courier.

Sisyphus was forever doomed to pushing the stone up to the top of the mountain only to have it roll back again to the bottom.

However, the liquor question was no longer like this problem - it had been finished. It had been answered and the temperance supporters grieved. Those inclined to drink could now do so legally. Those who had abstained from drinking continued to do so. For many years the "dry" forces had carried on splendid educational work by means of total abstinence societies, lecturers, and home and school instruction of the young. The Sons of Temperance and Women's Christian Temperance Union members had fought for the Nova Scotia Temperance Act and, although somewhat drowsy, they had fought against Government Control of liquor. The achievement of a temperance utopia, with abstinence for the drinker and Prohibition for the State, had not been realized.

New Hot Air Balloon -

Some experiments are about to be tried at the Royal Arsenal Woolwich on Mr. Menier's new hot air balloon. Mr. Menier has discharged gas, and returned to the more primitive agency of fire, his balloon being an improved adaptation of the old fire balloon. It is composed of fire-proof calico, and is very large, the material of which it is made being half an acre in extent, and the balloon, when inflated, is more than 200 feet in circumference. The car beneath it is contrived to carry 14 persons, and is formed of light iron and wickerwork. It is fixed on wheels like the body of a carriage, in which when travelling on land, it will carry the folded balloon and the rest of the apparatus. In this is included a large oil lamp and copper tube or chimney, and it said that with these appliances the balloon can be filled with heated air sufficient to raise the car and its occupants within half an hour of lighting the lamp.

European situation of these cases would, according to the thinking of Defense officials, provide more concentrated States voted in Washington, D.C. that ended June 1929. The League of Nations was established in 1920. The League of Nations was established in 1920. The League of Nations was established in 1920.

DIGBY IN THE LAST 25 YEARS

By Victor Cardoza

In the twenty five years that have passed since the Digby Courier marked its 75th anniversary - on September 9th., 1949 - a great many changes have taken place, not only in Digby but also in the Courier itself.

So far as the Courier is concerned, some of the changes that have taken place may not be too visible to the general public in that they are somewhat internal in nature. For instance, the ownership of the paper has changed, even though the masthead still says, "Published Every Thursday by Wallis Print Ltd."

Actually, the ownership of the paper - or of the firm which publishes it - has changed a number of times in the 100 year history of the Digby Courier. Established in September, 1874, by R.S. McCormick of Bridgetown, the Digby Courier was later published by the late Oakes Dunham who also edited the paper. Later the Digby Printing and Publishing Company was formed and took over publication.

The principal owner of the Digby Printing and Publishing Company changed over the years with the late Clarence Jamieson, a former M.P. for this area, at one time controlling the company. The late Frank Jones, K.C., was the immediate predecessor of J.J. Wallis as principal owner.

Following acquisition of the firm by the late Mr. Wallis he incorporated The Wallis Print Ltd. which continued ownership until the recent purchase by the Mailman Publishing Company of Bridgetown.

In connection with the ownership of the Courier, it is interesting to note that it began publication in 1874 under the ownership of R.S. McCormick of Bridgetown. One hundred years later the ownership again returns to Bridgetown interests.

Among other changes that have occurred at the Digby Courier in the past 25 years is the change-over from letterpress printing to offset. This has resulted in a very great change in the preparation of material for printing. Former staff members of the days when long hours were spent in setting columns of copy by linotype; casting cuts; hand-setting headings and advertising body material, find the new operation a marvel to behold. For the readers of the Courier generally, however, the extent of the change may not be at all apparent.

The fine new offset press on which the Digby Courier is now printed is capable of a least two-colour printing and already evidence of this capability has been demonstrated. In this connection, the only experiment conducted in using a colour other than black for the Courier occurred in the publication of the Christmas issue in 1950. It was an almost total disaster and resulted in a flood of letters of protest from subscribers unable to read the pastel green type. For many years after that sad occurrence any suggestions from the idea man responsible for that disaster were treated with suspicion.

In the past twenty five years while changes were taking place within the Digby Courier, the paper was also busily recording for the edification of its readers the changes taking place in the community and area which it has served for the past 100 years.

As in all the years it has been published, the Digby Courier continued over the past 25 years to record faithfully, if seldom spectacularly, the happenings of the area. The joys and sorrows that were visited upon the area and its people were reported both in feature stories and in "village notes", and the Courier continued to maintain its position as the recorder of the happenings of the area, both for the edification of present day readers and as a reference for "history buffs" interested in reviewing both the immediate past and years that are long gone.

While time and space will not permit a "blow by blow" accounting of the changes that have occurred in Digby and area which have been recorded in the Digby Courier over the past 25 years, a "once over lightly" review indicates that these changes have been very significant, and for the most part in the progress that has been a hallmark of the passing years in this area.

Perhaps the most spectacular developments that have occurred in Digby over the past 25 years have been associated with the expansion of what might be referred to as "service oriented" programs.

When the Digby Courier marked its 75th anniversary in 1949, the Digby Rural High School had opened only the previous year. Enrolment in 1949 at the Digby Rural High School was recorded in the Courier as 321.

By 1957 the new Rural High School, built at a cost of $358,000, had become inadequate to the need and an addition, costing some $235,000, was built. In 1954 a seven room primary school had been added to the Digby school complex and in 1960 a junior high school was added to the rear of the regional high school. The new St. Patrick's school was provided in 1965 and the composite wing of the regional high school, built and equipped at a cost of some $900,000, was opened in 1970.

The expansion of the educational program in Digby was reported in the Courier as each addition was developed. In 1970 the Courier ran a special section marking the opening of the new composite wing. This section carried a comprehensive history of Digby schools which traced the progress of education in Digby from Lt. James Foreman's school located in his home and opened in 1783-84, to the opening of the composite wing. The research and writing of this history was an enjoyable activity for its author.

Over the 25 years since the Digby Courier marked its 75th anniversary great strides have been made in Digby in the field of provision of health and welfare services. The progress made in this field has also been faithfully recorded in the columns of the Courier. In its reporting of the developments in health and social services, the Courier, as it did also in education, reported the struggles, the differences of opinion, the misunderstandings and the disputes that accompanied the changes, developments and expansions of these services. In each case the resolution of these problems was also fully reported.

Included in the changes in health services recorded in the Courier over the past 25 years is the completion of the new Digby General Hospital in 1965. The Courier issue of March 2, 1967 records the re-opening of the old Digby hospital building for use as a Children's Home, operated by the provincial Department of Public Welfare.

The turning of the sod for the new Children's Home is recorded in the Courier in March of 1972. This new building, costing some $800,000, was officially opened in August, 1972.

During 1964 the Courier recorded the opening of the new Digby Community Mental Health Centre and in following years the establishment of other health and social service centres in the area were also recorded. These included the Department of Public Welfare building, later enlarged, and the McCleave Medical Centre which opened in 1972. The latest building, whose opening was recorded in the Courier, June 20th, 1974, is the New Horizons Social and Activity Centre.

The opening of the senior citizen's centre in June, 1974 in a way rounds out a human services complex centred in the general area of the community mental health centre. The view from the grounds of that centre includes most of the education complex, the children's home, senior citizen's activity centre, the department of social services, McCleave Medical centre, Digby General Hospital, the home for aged, Tide View Terrace, opened in 1973 and the former hospital building. All of these structures except the old hospital and the original Digby Rural High School, were built since the Courier celebrated its 75th anniversary, most of them within the past 10 years. Still under construction as the Courier nears its 100th birthday is the Kiwan's Swimming Pool which is also located in the general area of the complex.

Actually, the columns of the Courier for many of the 25 years just past have recorded many construction projects in Digby, not only in the field of health and social services but also commercial enterprises.

In the spring of 1973, for example, the opening of the Evangeline Shopping Mall was announced in the Courier. This modern mall, costing in excess of a million dollars, has done much to make Digby even more of a trading centre for the area than previously. So far, the dismal predictions regarding the effect of the mall on downtown Digby businesses have not come to pass.

Among other building projects of a commercial nature recorded by the Courier over the past 25 years are the IGA store; the former Metropolitan Store, now Greenberg's; the new Stedman Store; the rebuilt Capital Theatre, now the Little Cinema; the new Bank of Nova Scotia; the greatly enlarged Canadian Tire Store; the South End Riteway, built after fire destroyed its downtown predecessor in January, 1972.

It is interesting to note in going through the Digby Couriers of the past 25 years how much of the building of commercial establishments in Digby has occurred within the immediate past few years. The pattern in this is parallel to that of the building program in the health, education and social services sector. It could be speculated that these service establishments are creating the favorable economic climate that is stimulating a speed-up of commercial building.

While it not intended that this article be a complete record of all the changes that have taken place in Digby since 1949, the developments in construction are certainly worthy of prominent mention. In most instances the building projects, especially those in the human services and commercial sectors, were heralded in the Courier by special congratulatory messages. While this might be construed by some as merely a seeking out by the Courier for additional advertising revenue, these messages, generally contained in a special section of the paper, did much to draw attention to the growth and development of the community and thus stimulated others to become a part of this growth process.

Some of the other new construction in Digby, since the Courier celebrated its 75th birthday includes the McCleave funeral home, the extensive remodelling of Jayne's funeral home, the new fire hall, Wilson's hardware store; the Scallop Bowl alleys; conversion of the NSLC store to self-service; the Kingfisher motel and restaurant; the renovated Fundy Restaurant and lounge; the Admiral Digby Inn; the House of Wong; the rebuilt Marla Motel; the Sesta Motel; the list is almost endless, especially if all of the private residences are added and if the public housing projects are also included.

In 1968-69 the Courier reported a building boom and each year following that stories appeared indicating that the building boom was continuing. The partial list of construction contained in this article gives real evidence that the Courier reported the construction trend in Digby quite accurately.

While it can be said that the past twenty five years in Digby and area have been generally years of growth, there were some areas of disappointment. The Courier, for instance, reports the rise and fall of the Digby Horticultural Farm Project. During the years 1965 through 1969 a good deal of front page coverage was given in the Courier to this experimental agricultural project which was plagued with all sorts of problems until these finally overcame it.

Still later came the Gourmex Seafoods plant and the on-again, off-again hardboard plant. The latter did not materialize although for a time it appeared to be almost a surety. Headlines in the Courier in 1972 and 1973 drew attention to the changing fortunes with respect to this potential development. A story in the issue of August 8, 1974 did announce the establishment of a new herring curing and storage plant for Digby. A sizeable expansion for Alan Fisheries was reported in the Courier of April 24, 1972.

The 100th Year Of Service

By Baden Powell

The "Digby Weekly Courier" cannot claim to be the original weekly journal of Digby. But it is the one which has survived a century of service to the reading public and to the advertisers of the area. Other papers preceded it in this order: "The Weekly Athenaeum", "The Acadian" and the "Examiner". The "Examiner", the last of the trio, ceased publication when its plant was destroyed by fire.

For a number of years Digby Township was without its local journal. It was R.S. McCormick, who became convinced that there was sufficient population to support a paper. He took up the challenge with his version of the "Digby Courier".

A century ago the life style in Digby was somewhat different from that of the present. McCormick fashioned his paper to the needs of the period. He recognized that his journal must record a percentage of local news, news that a daily would not supply for a larger reading public.

For a century the "Courier" has had almost continuous circulation—ten decades of service to generations of readers. It is almost impossible to vision the changes which have taken place in that space of time. However, in this centennial year of the "Courier", it may be of interest to trace the highlights of each of the first nine decades. What was written as news in these periods is now recorded history.

It may be as well, before we proceed with the review, to think of the "Courier" and its service to the public; to think of the paper and its plant as an industry. In this category it is the oldest single industry of the County, which has retained its name and identity for a century. During the past century it has provided employment to scores of people. At present it still is an industry which provides a source of income for ten persons. To create an enterprise in the town of Digby with this employment provision, would require approximately a million dollar capital investment. Possibly not in the mercantile trade or in a primary industry, but in a secondary industry. And this is what the Wallis Print is at present.

Now let us to our primary task of tracing, as space permits, a few of the interesting events recorded for us by the journalists throughout a century.

The first decade (1873-1883) in the life of the "Courier" was a prosperous one. We found townships instead of an incorporated town and village. Shipbuilding was an important industry. Never would this activity again reach the same proportions and importance in the area.

Bear River, in this decade, was a booming port. Three masters were launched regularly from its yards for its shipowners and for owners in other parts of the Maritimes, principally Saint John. These vessels carried forest products from Bear River to many ports of North America and of Europe. Before the end of the decade the boom was over. The demands for ships and shipping dropped off. Ship owners of Bear River lost many of their vessels at sea. The financial loss was approximately $100,000, with very little insurance coverage.

Weymouth was also heavily involved in ship construction and use of three-masters during this period. It shipped lumber to the world markets in its vessels.

The Digby-Annapolis-Saint John ferry was improved in this decade. The steamships Emporer and Empress began service on the Bay.

An item in the "Courier" of February 14, 1879, gives us a glimpse of the highway conditions of that period: "The coach horses on the Western mail, about a mile east of Gilbert's Cove, between Digby and Yarmouth on Wednesday morning, sank through the melting snow on the side of the road and one of them nearly drowned by being submerged in the large pond of water."

There was an alternate route to Yarmouth from Digby in the summer of 1879. The steamer Edgar Stewart was on a regular route from Halifax to Annapolis, touching at Digby, Yarmouth, Shelburne, Liverpool and Lunenburg en route. This service was of short duration. After a few trips, the route terminated at Halifax and Yarmouth.

It was in this decade of the "Courier's" life that the Western Counties Railway sent its first train over the tracks from Yarmouth to Digby.

During this decade S. Stailing and son ran mail coaches from Digby to Westport. The S. Dakin Express was in operation from Digby to Petite Passage. E.A. Hamm carried on an express service between Digby and Yarmouth before the railroad became operational.

A steamboat advertisement in the "Courier" in 1877 is interesting to the student of the time: "The Empress For Digby and Annapolis connecting with the Windsor Railway for Kentville, Windsor, Halifax and intermediate stations, and with stages for Yarmouth and Liverpool, N.S."

The second decade, 1883-1893, of the "Courier's" life saw improvements in the life style of the people of the area. Travelling conditions had improved and a person was not forced to place himself at the mercy of the Bay of Fundy to make a trip to Yarmouth. Neither did he have to subject to the bone-jarring mail coaches. The Western Counties Railroad was in operation, and made regular trips between the two towns.

Some improvements were noted in the journey down Digby Neck as witnessed by a correspondent in the October 31, 1885 issue: "Leaving Digby, Thursday morning, arriving at Sandy Cove in time for dinner. Had a comfortable dinner at Mr. Sypher's house (One of the employees of Messrs. Stailing and son). Remained an hour and proceeded to Tiverton, where we met another of Messrs Stailing's employees, Mr. George King—we then crossed Petite Passage with Mr. Blackford, who is perfect in every respect in attending to his business. On arrival at Mr. Smith's Hotel remained all night. In the morning proceeded to Freeport by coach. The conveyer, Mr. George Hogan, was very pleasant—at Freeport put up at Mr. Eaton's for dinner. Drove to Pleasant—across this passage with Mr. Morrell, a Grand Passage, crossing this passage with Mr. Morrell, a ferryman. At Westport we put up at the "Central House" kept by Mr. Payson."

It was in the second decade of the "Courier" that the Maitland Telephone Company completed the construction of their line from Yarmouth to Digby. Two years later the Westport-Digby Telephone Company went into operation. These two events were hailed as important accomplishments. They were for that period!

The construction and operation of a swimming pool was much to the fore in the second decade of the "Courier". The following item, which appeared in the paper on July 11, 1886 testifies to this: "A meeting of the stock holders of the Digby Bathing House."

Company organized. They propose to dam up McNorton's Creek and erect a building 61 feet long containing 11 rooms and an office, also an open shed for bathers."

The "Missing Link", the section of railroad from Digby to Annapolis, was surveyed, bridges built and tracks laid in this period. The road was opened in 1891.

This notice appeared in the "Courier" in February 1890: "Public Notices, under the provisions of the 'Town Incorporation Act', have been posted announcing that a poll will be held at the Court House on Monday the 24 inst. to determine whether the town of Digby shall or shall not be incorporated." Two weeks later the citizens of Digby voted for incorporation by a majority of thirty-one.

Until the 1880's the greatest single source of income from Digby's fishing industry was from smoked herring. The product became widely known as the "Digby Chicken". In the 1880's and the early part of the 1890's the fishing industry turned its attention to fresh and smoked ground fish. The finnan haddie processing plants sold approximately $50,000 worth of smoked haddock a year.

There were about twenty to thirty vessels engaged in haddock fishing. This industry kept the fleet on the banks during the cold weather; during the time it was possible to preserve the fish in prime condition until delivered to the consumer. Captain Robert Austin of Smith's Cove introduced the processing technique finnan haddie to North America. The "Courier" devoted considerable space in its columns to this activity.

At the beginning of the third decade of the "Courier", (1893-1903), the paper recorded the introduction of the deer to Western Nova Scotia. Major John Daley was the prime instigator of building up a herd in this area. He released the animals, which he obtained from New Brunswick, in the woods near Bear River. The hunters of today have this energetic citizen to thank for this game animal in our woods.

From the files of the "Courier" we receive the information concerning the construction of the waterworks in the town of Digby. It was in the file of 1895 that we read: "The contract for the construction of the waterworks was awarded to Sidney Wood of Digby and G.A. Vye of Bridgeville, Pictou County. Their tender was $17,444.20. The tender of Burrill-Johnson Iron Co., for valves and boxes was accepted; Londonderry Iron Co., for pipes; Toronto Engine Co. for hydrants; Truro Foundry for specials. The amount of these tenders for materials is $14,490.20."

It was in the third decade that the "Courier" recorded the tragic death of Annie Kempton. The arrival of the Stelhelin family from Alsace to establish the settlement of New France was also news of the period.

The third decade of the "Courier" was the period in which the D.A.R. carried on its successful struggle for dominance over the New Brunswick Steamship Company and over the Yarmouth Steamship Company. Both the latter companies were forced out of business and the D.A.R. became operator of the steamship lines between Saint John and Digby and between Yarmouth and Boston.

The decade had its full share of sea tragedies. The loss of the tern schooner "Asia" was one of the saddest. Captain Dakin of Sandy Cove, his wife and daughter, were drowned when the "Asia" was wrecked on the New England coast. The item of April 8, 1898 gives the concluding chapter of this tragedy: "The bodies of Captain Dakin and his daughter, wrecked from the ship Asia some weeks ago, were brought home last week and reached Sandy Cove by ferry from Weymouth on Saturday. The funeral was held Sunday morning."

Digby's worst fire to date was recorded in the February issues of 1899. The stories gave in detail the losses sustained by the citizens of the town.

From the December files on 1900 we learn that Wilson's History of Digby County was placed in the hands of the printers August 1, 1895. It was released for sale in 1890. Three styles of bindings were made available at $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50.

It was near the close of the third decade of the "Courier" when the construction of the Federal Government building was recorded. The building was constructed to house the post office and other federal government offices.

The beginning of the fourth decade of the "Courier" (1903-1913) recorded the construction of the original Pines Hotel. This industry, through the years, has provided considerable seasonal employment and has been a boost to the local economy. The Old and the New Pines have made their contributions towards the promotion of Digby as a tourist center.

The fourth decade of the "Courier" witnessed the construction of the Court House and the Jail.

In 1905 the area saw the most severe winter on record. Ice backed up in Bear River and, in the spring, a large section of Victoria Bridge went out when the breakup occurred. For months the road traffic had to cross the river through the village.

The fourth decade was a promotional period. Two transportation schemes were advanced. Neither matured. The first was a railroad from Bear River to Caledonia. The survey was carried out, but little actual work done. The second plan brought about the incorporation of the Yarmouth and Digby Electric Railway Company Ltd. This projected railway was to run from the northern limits of Yarmouth through Yarmouth and Digby Counties to Digby Town with a branch line to Bear River. This project died in its infancy.

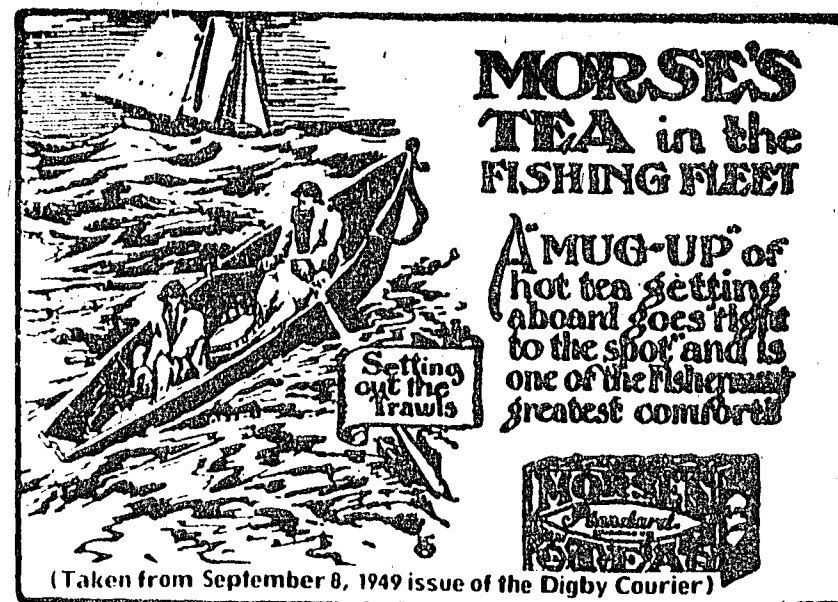

The following extract from the "Courier" in a September, 1911 issue gives us a glance at political action during the "Courier's" fourth decade: "The first speaker was Mr. A.F. Wall, the Liberal candidate, who was allowed one hour. He gave a splendid address on the merits of Reciprocity between Canada and the United States, and received the closest attention of the large audience present and was loudly applauded at different times, as he brought out points of particular interest to the friends of the Liberal Party."

"The next speaker was Mr. Clarence Jameson, the Conservative candidate, who made an excellent speech against Reciprocity, the great issue before the electors today, and received the same attention and cheering that was extended to Mr. Wall. He was allowed an hour...Mr. Jameson spoke a few minutes in French."

"Mr. Wall was then given ten minutes to reply, after which the meeting closed, the candidates being carried off the Court."

House grounds and loudly cheered by their friends. We regret to state that some disturbances and a few fights occurred among some of the crowd present, which was soon quieted down."

The beginning of the fifth decade (1913-1923) of the "Courier" saw the opening of the Victoria roller and ice skating rink. The "Courier" issue of June 27, 1913 informs us that: "Mr. C.E. Walker has purchased a new military band organ for Victoria Rink at a cost of $2,000. It is driven by an electric motor and is operated by perforated paper rolls running over 44 keys."

The Life Saving Station building was constructed in 1913. It was also the year that: "All the employees on the Digby pier, from Steamship Agent McBride down, are now under the Atlantic Division of the C.P.R. Digby Station does not come under this head, still being part of the D.A.R. system. This change was brought about Saturday (October 18) when auditors from both the C.P.R. and the D.A.R. finished up the necessary transfer."

1914 ushered in the First World War. During the following four years the "Courier" gave space to events, that conflict projected into the local area. Accounts of the training programmes in the district, stories of some of the men who enlisted and then, in 1919 final accounts of the termination of the world tragedy.

Brief items of the Weymouth pugilist are to be found during this period, as on December 4, 1914: "Sam Langford knocked out Harry Willis in the 14th round of a scheduled 20-round fight Wednesday December 2."

Items similar to the following are to be found in the "Courier" files of the early part of its fifth decade (1913-1923): "The Digby detachment of the 219th moved from Digby June 1, 1916, under the command of Captain M.C. Denton."

On March 15, 1918 the "Courier" recorded the following: "A bill is before the Legislative Assembly to change the name of Westville, a suburb of Digby, to that of Conway."

The "Courier" recorded the local effect on the Digby area when the news of the "Armistice" was received in 1918.

The ill-fated Bear River Pulp Mill was started in the later part of this decade.

The following appeared in the June 23, 1922 issue of the journal: "The Digby Electric Plant was purchased in June 1922 from John Daley for $17,500 and $229 for insurance and for taxes paid by Daley prior to purchase."

The sixth decade in the life of the "Courier" (1923-1933) saw the start of hospital operation and construction of a hospital in Digby. The first movement for a hospital was recorded in the issue of May 23, 1924: "A delegation composed of the medical men of Digby appeared before the Town Council on Monday evening April 28, 1924 and outlined the scheme to start a semi-private hospital in Digby at once."

"The Council agreed that the Mayor, Town Clerk and Finance Committee be representatives of the Hospital Board of Management."

"Miss Agnus Hill has decided to offer her home to be used as a cottage hospital."

In 1933 the Digby General Hospital was constructed. Dr. DuVernet was the first chairman of the Hospital Committee.

In 1924 the village of Weymouth came under the Village Supply Act. The first commissioners were: Dr. Pothier, Dr. Hogan and Louis Stehelin.

It was in the sixth decade of the "Courier" that the Digby Red Ravens made their bids for the Nova Scotia hockey championship.

The October 4, 1929 issue of the "Courier" carried the following item: "A quarter of a million dollars in property loss, 25 stores, factories, dwellings and smaller buildings completely destroyed by fire at Weymouth Bridge. Fire departments from Weymouth, Digby and Yarmouth fought the blaze. Less than $20,000 insurance was carried."

The following item in a January issue of the "Courier" lists the construction projects of 1930 in Digby: "Biggest item on Digby's construction programme for 1930-the construction of the new government pier. Next the 18-hole golf course built in connection with the New Pines Hotel of some 280 acres. New dormitory at the Pines was constructed by M.A. Condon & Son. Connor Brothers of Black's Harbour built and put into operation a modern canning factory at Freeport. The S.S. Princess Helene was placed on the Saint John-Digby route in August. She has accommodation for 500 passengers, 50 cars and double the freight capacity of the Empress."

In March, 1931 Digby waterfront suffered "worst storm in years. Damage to the extent of many thousands of dollars was caused on the waterfront...Practically all the abutments in the town, wooden and concrete, were washed away by the seas which battered the shores for two or three hours, while the tide was at the flood...The water fronts in Tiverton and Westport received considerable damage."

The "Courier" of March 25, 1932 lists the teaching staff of the Academy: F.C. Purdy, Miss E. McWhinnie, Mrs. Wm. Driffield, Miss Bertha Curry, Miss Vera Mason, Miss E.B. Turnbull, Miss Ina L. O'Brien, Mrs. Dorothy Moses.

The following item, found in the May 27, 1932 issue starts us on a memory search: "The Digby 9-hole golf course will be opened to the public on June 1st. The course will be under the management this year of Vernon Franklin and James Franklin, who have leased it from the Digby Golf Co., Ltd."

The seventh decade in the life of the "Courier" (1933-1943) saw the worst years of the depression and the beginning of the Second World War. But, in spite of the trying times, affairs in Digby and surrounding area went on with much the same tempo. The people of the area had not been carried very high on the crest of the boom, so had less distance to fall when leaner years arrived.

On September 15, 1933 the "Courier" carried the following article: "The corner stone of the Hospital was laid by Dr. I.M. Lovitt of Yarmouth and he dedicated it to the memory of his father and mother, the late William D. and Mrs. Lovitt of Yarmouth. The affair was a very quiet one and of a semi-private nature. The matter had been held over for some time in accordance with the wishes of the Hospital Board, who were anxious that Dr. Lovitt, through whose generosity, in large measure, had resulted in the erection of the hospital, might be present and carry out the ceremony. Dr. Lovitt made some munificent gifts towards the building."

The following item is part of an article in the "Courier" on January 26, 1934: "The Bear River Academy and the St. John's Anglican Church were destroyed by fire on January 19, 1934. It is possibly the most destructive fire of the village. It was first discovered about 9 o'clock in the evening. The school was built in 1892 and was insured for $12,000."

On February 16, 1934 the "Courier" recorded the following which backs up Dad's and Grandad's tall weather stories of long ago: "During Tuesday night Digby was visited by the worst snow storm of the season, and once again highways are blocked in every direction. More snow fell in the winter of 1922-23 than has fallen this year, but since November there has been very little let up to the cold; fifteen and sixteen below zero has been common readings in many parts of the county-local business has suffered to a large extent as there has been practically no communication with the out-of-town districts since the middle of December."

On July 31, 1936 this item found a place in the "Courier's" news: "The contract for building a 2-room addition and an auditorium to the Digby Academy and for installing a hot water heating system was awarded to M.A. Condon & Son of Kentville. Two tenders were received. The tender of M.A. Condon & Son was for $13,980."

In case you argue about the time of the first pavement on No. 1 Highway in Digby County, the following item of August 4, 1936 may settle the dispute: "The work of hard surfacing a 17-mile stretch of highway between Weymouth North and Meteghan, which was done by the Acadia Construction Company, is now completed and the Company has now moved its equipment to the South Shore."

"The Acadia Construction Company are now preparing the stretch of highway between Weymouth North and Digby."

Scallop dragging began in the Basin and in the Bay of Fundy in the 1920's. By the 1930's the industry had become one of the main sources of employment. The extent of the growth is indicated by the following article which appeared in the "Courier" in the October 2, 1936 issue: "In the 1935-36 season, scallop fishermen of Western Nova Scotia landed approximately 107,000 gallons scallop meat; in 1935-36 they landed 126,000 gallons."

"Out of the total N.S. landings of 126,000 gallons, Digby and Annapolis fleet accounted for nearly 122,500 gallons, valued at $215,000. Over 60 draggers fished out of this area."

Weekly journals are privileged to note personal items that dailies so often pass by. Even if recorded in the larger papers, they are lost in the greater volume of news and advertisements. One such local item bears repeating. It appeared on April 2, 1957: "Bernard Havey, age 96 years, tendered his resignation as Stipendiary Magistrate of the town to take effect as soon as a successor can be supplied. He has held the position for 26 years."

The Second World War had its beginning in the seventh decade of the "Courier's" life. Scattered throughout the pages are found recordings of some of the men lost in the conflict. The first was noted in the October 31, 1940 issue: "Lawrence V. Frost of Westport was the first casualty of Digby County in the Second World War. Lawrence V. Frost was lost at sea when HMCS Margaree was sunk on October 12, 1940."

The war prompted revival of ship building in Weymouth. The "Courier" records this on January 2, 1941: "Contracts for construction of 20 anti-submarine vessels of a new type have been given. Orders for two of these vessels have been placed with John H. LeBlanc of Weymouth."

The fore-runner of things to come, in education was indicated by an item in the "Courier" issue of June 12, 1941: "The closing of a number of rural schools in the Municipality of Digby, with a view to consolidate with larger units, was advocated by the School Commissioners for the Municipality of Digby at their annual meeting at the Court House, Digby."

A national event, which still has its effect on present day economy, was recorded June 12, 1941: "Unemployment Insurance becomes an actuality in Canada from July 1, 1941."

A new constitution for the operation of the Digby General Hospital was announced by the "Courier" on December 25, 1941: "On January 2, 1942 a meeting is called to put into effect a new constitution for the Digby General Hospital. The meeting is to form a Hospital Trust and elect a Board of Trustees."

On January 21, 1943 the "Courier" recorded the creation of the Municipal School Board for the Municipality of Digby. The following persons were named by the Council to the new Board: W.F. Woodman, S.E. Woodman and William Woodman."

The following item in the February 18, 1943 issue caught our attention: "C. Fred McBride retired after 45 years in the employ of the D.A.R. and C.P.R. He entered the employ of the D.A.R. in November, 1898 as a wharf hand. The following year he was named to succeed William H. Dakin as baggage master. In 1901 he was appointed to succeed A.W. Williams as agent on the wharf, which position he held up until his retirement..."

Another personal item, this one in the March 4, 1943 issue, caught our attention: "An increase of $50. was voted in the annual salary of Stipendiary G. H. Peters at the monthly meeting of the Digby Town Council."

"In a letter to the Council, Mr. Peters, who contended his work had greatly increased because of present activity of the area, felt some increase of his present salary of $150. per year was justified. On considering the matter, the $50 increase was voted."

The eighth decade (1943-53) in the life span of the "Courier" witnessed the closing phases of the war, and the expansion of educational facilities in the Digby area.

Travel between Digby and Annapolis became impeded in this decade as recorded by the "Courier" in its issue of June 15, 1944: "Victoria Bridge is still open and therefore closed to the traffic. On June 5, 1944 the bridge was jammed after it was opened to allow passage of a ship bound for Bear River. All efforts to close it were in vain, and special engineers have been designated to do the job. In the meantime traffic is routed along the Bear River road or up through Landsdowne, making a detour of several miles."

Occasionally we are reminded of our schooner history by items as recorded in the January 4, 1945 issue: "Captain Wm. Snow died at Digby December 27, 1941 at the age of 80. His death ended the line of four brothers who were sea captains...For many years he sailed out of Portland Me., Gloucester, Boston as well as many Canadian ports. He was known for many years as the "Halibut King". Following his retirement from the seas, Captain Snow was in charge of the life saving station at Bay View for a number of years."

The above item reminded us of the day when fresh fish schooners brought prosperity to many Digby citizens.

It was in the 1943-1953 decade that Maritime T. & T. purchased the Westport-Digby Telephone Company's holdings. On August 30, 1945 an item read: "The Public Utilities approved sale of the Westport and Digby Telephone Company's line to Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company."

Stories of sea tragedies also found their places in the issues of the "Courier". Possibly the worst was the loss of the coastal vessel "Robert Cann" which foundered in the Bay of Fundy on February 8, 1946. Eleven members of her crew were lost, another failed to survive after reaching shore. All told twelve persons, one woman and eleven men failed to survive the ordeal of a winter's night in an open boat on the Bay of Fundy. Only one person, the mate, Captain Ellis of Port Greville, recovered from the ordeal.

The "Courier's" eighth decade was the period which saw the beginning of extensive school construction. This article of July 16, 1946 noted the start: "The Digby Town Council went on record at their regular meeting of July 12 as favoring the erection of the proposed new Rural High School within the Town."

A personal item in the September 26, 1946 issue announced the change of operation of the Petite Passage service: "The Petite Passage Ferry was taken over by the Provincial Government on September 17, 1946. Baden Outhouse and Howard Cossaboom, two returned men, were appointed as ferrymen. The ferry service over Petite Passage has been operated by the Blackford family for nearly one hundred and fifty years. It was established by Martin Blackford in 1803 and was passed from father to son until "By" Blackford became the ferryman which service he performed as a boy of 14, on the death of his father. He continued the service for 60 years. The ferry equipment was purchased by the N.S. Department of Highways and transferred to the new ferrymen."

Occasionally the "Courier" gave a flashback to make us conscious of the past. In the issue of January 6, 1948 the editor picked this out of the files: "In August, 1898 the Digby Yacht Club was born and among the members were: A.J. Lutz, Sandy Adams, Dave Young, M.L. Oliver, J.A. Irving, E.R. Smith, Charles Danford and others."

The March 17, 1949 issue of the "Courier" gave the readers the following information: "The lumber and box shock plant of H.T. Warne Ltd. is one of Digby's major industries and provides employment for well over two hundred persons in Digby and the surrounding districts."

In the May 15, 1952 obituaries we found the following: "Dr. Edward DuVernet died at Digby General Hospital, May 14, 1952 at the age of 84 years. He was born in Gagetown, N.B. in 1868. After graduating from McGill University in Medicine in 1893, he came to Digby to practise and continued until July, 1951, when he was taken ill and forced to retire. Dr. DuVernet was one of the pioneers in the move to establish the Digby General Hospital and was the first president of the Board of Directors of the Hospital."

Then in the issue of Sam Langford: "Sam Langford weighing 149 pounds fought Jack Johnson weighing 195 pounds in 1906. In the 12-round bout Langford won the decision over Johnson. Langford was never able to get another match with Johnson." (According to the information that we now have Johnson won the bout on a split decision).

"In 1952 Langford was totally blind and living on $49.50 a month-interest on a fund set up for his support by his friends."

In the September 17, 1953 issue of the "Courier" informed its readers of the arrival of television service to the area: "The new television station CHSJ-TV, to be in operation January, 1954, will cover the Annapolis towns from a point above Joggin down to and below Weymouth, including Parrsboro, Wolfville, Middleton, Bridgetown, Annapolis Royal, Digby and Bear River."

The "Courier's" ninth decade (1953-1963) saw the beginning of a period of construction which continued and expanded into the tenth decade.

It was in the April 29, 1954 issue that we found the following: "The Warren (Maritimes) Ltd. have been awarded the contract for paving the highway from Centreville to East Ferry. This firm did the paving job from Digby to Centreville in 1953 and from Victoria Bridge to Bear River."

Then in the same year on November 4 the following item appeared in the "Courier": "Official ceremonies for the newly paved mainland section of the Digby Neck Highway was carried out on October 28, 1954."

It was the sad duty of Mrs. Edith Wallis to record the death of her father-in-law, J.J. Wallis: "J.J. Wallis died at Digby April 24, 1955 at the age of 81 years. He was born in Birmingham, England and came to Canada with his parents while he was a child. His family settled in Yarmouth."

"Mr. Wallis began his career as a printer in Salem, Yarmouth County when only 14 years old. Later he worked with his father on the Yarmouth Times for 25 years, trying his hand from printer's devil to managing editor."

"During his career he was editor of weekly newspapers in Bridgetown, Lunenburg and Weymouth and came to Digby in 1918 as editor of the Digby Courier, and later with his son J.M. Wallis, organized the firm of Wallis Print."

"For a time Mr. Wallis served on the editorial staff of the Halifax Herald, about the beginning of the century..."

The August 28, 1956 issue of the "Courier" reminds us that the dayliner (diesel) began passenger service between Yarmouth and Digby on August 20, 1956.

The "Courier" on October 24, 1957 recorded: "The Digby Neck Consolidated School at Sandy Cove was officially opened October 18, 1957..." Then in November it informs us: "The Weymouth Consolidated School was officially opened on November 8, 1957."

From the November 27, 1958 issue of the "Courier" we are reminded that the contract for the construction of the new Federal Building was awarded to Vernon C. Woodworth of Kentville for $157,150. Then it was in the issue of October 3, 1963 that the "Courier" recorded that the old post office building was demolished in September and October of that year.

June 11, 1959 issue of the paper told us of the second disastrous fire at Weymouth: "A disastrous blaze which started in a restaurant owned by Lennie Ford on June 5, 1959 caused damage estimated at approximately $200,000..."

The December 7, 1961 issue carried the following item. "The official opening of the initial stage of the Sissiboo power development was held on December 8, 1961 by N.S. Power Commission. The initial stage of the development covered the installation of generating facilities at Sissiboo Falls and at Weymouth Falls..."

On March 28, 1963 the following item gave the public information concerning the new hospital: "The Municipal Council approved the borrowing of $340,000 in support of the construction of the new Digby General Hospital. The amount to be turned over to the Digby General Hospital as a loan, which will be payable to the Municipality from hospital revenue, including the annual per capita tax and certain preferred revenues derived from the hospital services to its patients."

"Estimates of the total cost of construction: - Kenny Construction Co. - $823,000; Roy Germaine (mechanical trades) - $573,500; Total contract price - $1,387,000; architect's fee - $84,000; equipment and furnishings - $95,000; interest on borrowings - $24,000. Total cost - $1,800,000."

An item in the April 11, 1963 issue of the "Courier" reminds us that: "We snow and high winds completely disrupted the electrical service throughout the town and surrounding district on April 29, 1963."

We will not scan through the tenth decade (1963-1973) of the "Courier". The events are still fresh in our memory.

A perusal of the "Courier" files gives us a sensation of sitting on the sidelines and watching a hundred years of history being re-enacted for our benefit. It also alerts us to the dedication of its editors, in their efforts to write up the events of the week. We are grateful to them for leaving this legacy to us; news when written, but history today.

Especially we are grateful for the work of "J.J.", "Mac" and to "Edith" for carrying on this work of service for us since 1918. Quite proper that "Edith" in the hundredth year of the "Courier" should have been proclaimed Digby's Citizen of the Year.

Now we are informed that the Wallis Print and the "Courier" have been sold. We wish the new owner success. Their success will be to our benefit. We feel the following extract from the September 27, 1973 issue is a fitting one upon which to close off this article: "It is our intention to increase our staff, install new equipment and otherwise modernize the Digby plant to give our customers good service."

Digby's First Fire Engine

Digby's first fire engine was secured in 1886. In January of that year the Courier published an editorial urging that a fire engine be secured for the town and pointing out that an increase in the insurance rates for the companies that year, should induce the citizens to give serious consideration to the matter of securing an engine.

In its issue of November 5th., the Courier tells of the meeting held in the town to organize a Fire Company. The account is as follows: "A firemen's meeting was held on Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing a company and appointing officers. G.A. Viets was elected Captain; John Daley foreman, and Henry Pakin assistant foreman; James M. Keen, 1st. engineer and F.C. Dodge, 2nd. engineer; Thomas S. Farnham, fireman; J.S. Copp, secretary; F. Sidon, treasurer. Thirty firemen volunteered their services. A committee was appointed consisting of Captain Viets, Foreman Daley, A.J.S. Copp and John Bingay to prepare by-laws. The engine is expected to arrive about the first of the week, when electric bells will be put up throughout the town. In the course of ten days, Digby may be expected to have fire protection equal to that of any other town in the province."

The Courier of September 17, 1886, states definite arrangements for the securing of the new steam fire engine for Digby, ten tanks and an electric bell system to connect the home of every fireman. "The tanks, which are to contain about 1200 gallons each, have been contracted for by Mr. John Lockward and will be located as follows: at the head of the Long Wharf; at the old Beaman tannery; at the spring above the Methodist church; behind Oakes' building on Water Street; in John G. Rice's yard; opposite Episcopal school house; near Temperance Hall; at M.L. Oliver's corner; Quirk's tannery and near McRay's house at the extreme end of town."

The Courier of November 12, 1886 gives a description of the new steam fire engine for Digby. The article is as follows: "Dropping in at the works of the Burrill-Johnson Iron Co. at Yarmouth we were shown the fine steam fire engine built by that firm for the town of Digby. The engine is named the "Digby" and makes a very handsome appearance. The boiler is steel, fitted with copper tubes.

The frame is "crane necked" to allow short forward wheels to turn short around, and while light and graceful in appearance, is very strong and stiff. The water tank is mounted over the forward axle, forming a seat for the driver, carrying a pair of handsome side lights—one on each side of the seat.

The engine, a single one, is placed with the pump vertically, just forward of the boiler. The large burnished copper air chamber stands just in front of the steam cylinders. All the ornamentation is of brass, highly polished.

A reel, carrying the drag rope, is fitted to the forward axle, and the tongue is arranged for running the machine either by hand or by horse. Two polished brass hose pipes are mounted just in rear of the driver's seat, and the suction hose is carried in three lengths on brass brackets.

The "Digby" is supplied with one two wheeled hose reel, carrying 700 feet of hose and a light four wheeled hose cart capable of carrying a like amount of hose when required."

The Courier of November 18, 1886, carries an account of the arrival of the new fire engine which, according to this account, was named the "Victor."

This account tells of the fire tanks, which were located about the town holding large quantities of water for fire purposes. The Victor was tested from the one near the Methodist church and three streams of water were thrown a long distance with great force. After half an hour of this, it is reported the water in the tank only lowered three feet. A detachment of the Yarmouth Fire Co., accompanied the Victor to Digby where they were met by Digby's firemen in uniform. Following the test, a banquet was held at the Royal hotel, which was situated where the Royal Bank now stands.

Barton and Brighton In 1903

From the articles which appeared in the Weymouth Free Press on February 20, 1903, written by Helen Bancroft, aged 13, and Marion Morgan, aged 15, we have gleaned the following information about Barton and Brighton in that year and some knowledge of their early history.

Miss Bancroft's article states the earliest account of settlement at Brighton was in 1765 when Borden Thurber with his three sons made their home there. They later removed to Freeport. In 1783 a party of Loyalists came to Barton and Brighton and Barton received its name from Lieutenant Joseph Barton.

From Miss Morgan's article it is learned that among the earliest settlers at Barton were the Shortliffe, Porter, Specht, Marr and Lambertson families. In Brighton were the Saxtons, Graftons, Adams and Smiths.

During the period from 1783 both places enjoyed prosperous times with shipbuilding the main industry. This declined with the advent of steel ships. There were shipyards at O. Morehouse's wharf and at Specht's and Bingay's wharves.

The first church built in Barton was the Anglican church which was constructed in 1819. This was later torn down and

The turning on of hydro power down Digby Neck is recorded in the Courier of January 25th.

The death of E.C. Bowers at Westport on January 19th is recorded. Mr. Bowers was born in 1845 and served as Liberal representative for Digby County at Ottawa from 1891 to 1896.

Death of O.B. Sproule, former Digby Mayor, in Edmonton, is recorded as occurring on January 25th.

replaced with the present structure. In 1838 the Baptist Church was built on land donated by Neil McNeill. Before 1848 the Baptists formed part of the Weymouth church but on July 28, 1848, the church was inaugurated with John Clements and 61 others as members. The present house of worship was built in 1877.

In Miss Bancroft's article she does not fully identify the community about which she speaks when she says, "sometime after 1837 the Methodists held service here with good results." In 1842 the church was built across from Mr. Morehouse's shop. "A church was later built on the ground across from the school house and this was again rebuilt in 1876".

Miss Morgan in her article says the industries of Brighton in 1903 were the Comet Stove Polish factory, owned by Letteney's of Digby, and VanBlarcom Bros' shingle mill. Stores at Brighton were owned by Messrs. Morehouse and Charles VanBlarcom.

Destruction by fire of Whoneda Lodge, Smith's Cove, owned by Fred McHugh, is reported by the Courier of April 26.

Installation of the fire siren was made in April of 1929. Visit of the French warship, Aldebaron, to Digby on June 23, 1929 is recorded.

Opening of a drive for $60,000 for the building of a new Digby Hospital is recorded in the Courier of August 2nd. The drive opened August 5th.

Dr. J.E. Janes was again elected mayor by acclamation in 1909, after serving in 1893 and 1894.

According to the Courier of December 17, 1909, Wayland McDormond and his brother, William of Gulliver's Cove, were blown across the Bay of Fundy in an open dory in a fierce gale that swept the bay that Tuesday. Fortunately they landed safely at Beaver Harbour after a terrible experience. Their dory was one purchased from the wreck of the schooner, "J. W. Cousins".

were destroyed and the loss was estimated at a quarter of a million dollars.

Digby County voted in favor of government control of the sale of liquor by a majority of 1134 in October of 1929.

Jerome, Mystery Man of Digby County

Perhaps no man in the entire history of Digby County has had so much written about him as Jerome, Digby County's mystery man, and yet, despite all that has been written; despite all the investigations that have been made of him, nothing is definitely known of him or of his background or of the strange circumstances that prompted his being left on the shores of Digby Co. many years ago.

It was in the summer of 1866 that a strange ship was seen in the Bay of Fundy off the coast of Digby Neck. The vessel was first seen at sundown and her strange appearance and suspicious maneuverings drew the attention of the fishermen. Some of them thought she was a man of war, others guessed her to be a private ship. Her appearance was unlike any other ship that had ever been seen in the vicinity. She hovered along the coast until the sun had gone down and she could no longer be seen from the shore.

The next morning two fishermen of Sandy Cove, Eldridge and Allbright, coming down to the Bay of Fundy shore to gather rockweed, found, not far from the ring of seaweed that marked the reaching of the high tide, the huddled form of a man. On closer inspection they found that the man's legs had both been amputated just above the knees. Beside him was a jug of water and a loaf of coarse black bread.

His legs had been amputated by a skilled person and only recently had the job been done for the stumps were still bandaged and were bleeding. He was also suffering from cold and exposure.

The two fishermen carried the man, who did not utter a word in response to their questions concerning him, to the home of a Mr. Gidney in Mink Cove where he was wrapped in warm blankets and given hot drinks. He again was questioned as to who he was and where he had come from and still no answer was forthcoming. All that could be understood from what he said was a word that sounded like the name, Jerome, and by that name he was henceforth called.

He was cared for in the Gidney home for a time and then it was decided it might be wise to send him to the Acadian side of the Bay where someone might be found who could perhaps converse with him in a tongue he might understand and to which he might respond. From his dark, swarthy complexion it was thought by some he might be an Italian so he was taken to Meteghan to the home of a Corsican who was living there by the name of John Nicholas. This Corsican, nicknamed "The Russian," spoke not only Italian but several other European languages. He cared for the mysterious castaway and tried in every tongue that he knew to probe the mystery that surrounded him but without success. After some time the story of Jerome reached the ear of the Nova Scotia government and an allowance was officially set up for the family who were giving him shelter to the amount of $2.00 a week.

After he had been with Nicholas for some time it became evident to The Russian that his strange guest understood Italian for, when spoken to in that tongue he seemed to understand. It was also evident from his manner that he lived in deadly fear of someone or something and the only times he ever spoke, and then only in guttural utterings, were when he was taken off guard. It is said that he did answer, in response to a question in Italian as to where he came from, "Trieste" and as to the name of the ship which brought him to the Nova Scotia shore, "Columbo." After these utterings he became terribly fear stricken and for days would tremble with fear.

Jerome learned to walk quite well on his stumps, but never went anywhere. He shunned all companions and spent most of his time crouched behind the stove in the kitchen with his head bowed and hands folded. Persons in Digby who saw him during his stay in Clare report that when they would visit the house where he was he would hide behind the stove and, if spoken to, glare angrily.

He spent seven years at the home of John Nicholas. After the death of Nicholas' wife he was boarded with Mrs. Dedier Comeau of St. Alphonse de Clare, then known as Cheticamp. At this home, he seemed to enjoy watching the children play and would mingle with them quite freely. Sometimes, when no adults were around, he spoke to the children, but would revert to his taciturn manner with the approach of grownups. It is reported the children on one occasion asked him why he would not speak to their parents and he replied with a shake of his head and the words, "No, no." Another report is that, when the children asked him how he lost his legs, he answered "chains" and then answered then "sawed off on a table."

It is also said that proof he understood and could speak English was had when, on the occasion of a visit from someone who wanted to see him, Mrs. Comeau coaxed him to come out of his room and he replied in perfect English, "I'll bite you."

He was a man of extraordinary strength but never at any time offered to help with the chores or work about the Comeau home. He also was possessed of a violent temper but his outbursts were short-lived except when the word "forban" (pirate) was mentioned, when he would fly into a rage that lasted for days. He spent many long hours gazing from the windows at the ships passing up and down the bay.

Occasionally the government printed notices in the press of Jerome, in the hope that some information could be obtained. As a result of these many persons visited the Comeau home and tried to converse with the strange man. Many letters were also received with suggestions the mystery man might be some particular person who had disappeared. One of these was received from two sisters in New York named Mahoney, who thought Jerome might prove to be their long lost brother. Mr. Comeau and his brother, Francois, visited New York and talked to the two sisters. They learned from them that their brother, Jerome, had run away from home three times before he was 11 and had finally disappeared completely. Although their father had spent the remainder of his lifetime trying to trace him he had been unsuccessful. The age of this Jerome when he left home for the last time and the apparent age of the Jerome found on the St. Mary's shore 25-- would tally satisfactory but the mystery of the life of the mysterious Jerome of Digby County who had evidently lived in foreign lands and travelled the high seas before his strange abandonment and the equally strange amputation of his legs, were still as much a mystery as ever, even were he the brother of these women.

Many other theories were advanced as to whom this strange man might be. It was suggested he might be a lumberman from the New Brunswick woods, injured in a logging accident and brought to Nova Scotia so that he would not be a charge on his own district. Another theory advanced is that he was of the Hapsburg family.

Not long before his death in 1908 Mrs. Doucet, daughter of John Nicholas, called to see him. She had played about him as a child and was one of the children to whom he had befriended and she had many kindly memories of him. As she entered his room he raised his eyes and looked at her and then dropped them down again. At her repeated appeals for him to speak, he uttered something which to her sounded like "I cannot" and it is thought the long disuse of his vocal cords had rendered it impossible for him to speak.

In 1908 when he died, after living forty-two years in the district, he carried with him to his grave in the peaceful Acadian land the mystery still unsolved. Since his death countless numbers have tried to unravel the threads but without success. The mystery of Jerome, of who he was, where he came from, why he refused to speak and why his legs were amputated still remain an unsolved one, locked forever in the tomb of this strange man. Perhaps some pirate band of his day could have told his story, perhaps some hidden treasure still lies guarded by his silence, perhaps a simple, prosaic happening holds the key to the mystery who knows?

Thomas Edison's Father Digbyite

Proof of the fact that Thomas Edison, the great inventor, had a close connection with Digby is found in the columns of the Courier of August 18, 1893.

In that paper a letter from Mrs. M.L. Rayne is carried which records an interview which she had with the father of the famed inventor, Samuel Edison, who was then 90 years of age.

During this interview, Mr. Edison stated, "I am a Bluenose. I was born in Nova Scotia in 1803 and left there in 1811. My native town is Digby, N.S. I came of Holland Dutch stock and visited the homes of my ancestors in the Hague and Amsterdam six years ago." He also stated his son, Thomas, was born in Milan, Ohio, in 1847.

A 1930 storm drove this three master up to the former Salvation Army building.

100th Birthday

The hundredth anniversary of the Digby Weekly Courier has brought to mind some fond memories as contained in the following historical chapter of the writer. But first, I wish to congratulate the current editor of the Courier, Mrs. J.M. (Edith) Wallis, for a job well done over the years and still being well done; good service rendered with great fortitude.

According to any record I have at hand, the Digby Courier, in one hundred years of publication, was controlled under the same family management for 42 years, 1931 to 1973, under the control of Wallis Print Limited. The late J.J. Wallis became editor of The Courier, the second time, in 1929, and at the same time operated his Job Printing business, which he had been running for some years previously and which became Wallis Print Limited sometime between 1929 and 1931.

I well remember the last year of the twenties when I worked in the Wallis Job Print shop with the husband and father-in-law of the current editor of The Courier. Sometime in 1928 or early 1929, the late J.M. Wallis (Mac), son of "J.J." engaged me to work every day after school hours, Saturdays, and for some months after finishing school. The place of work was in the building, now a home, south of the present Digby town hall on First Avenue. J.J. Wallis then worked occasionally at the print shop but mostly across the street at the Courier office which was then located on land in the general area where The Royal Bank of Canada is now situated on Water Street.

Wallis Job Print operated in 1929 with a staff of four consisting of: J.J. Wallis, J.M. Wallis, Miss Eva Haynes, who later became Mrs. George Kilcup, and myself. I was added to the staff in early 1929.

Eva's job was setting type, all by hand, in the loft up-stairs. "J.J." occasionally worked at the job printing plant but mostly at the Courier office. "Mac" worked nearly full time at all the different jobs at the Job Print, and I worked at various duties, most of the time being spent at operating printing presses.

We worked ten-hour days, six days a week. "J.J." and "Mac" sometimes worked overtime. I worked only the regular hours being paid a weekly wage which was comparatively good for those times and my lack of experience. I received four or five dollars a week for working after school hours to six o'clock and on Saturday all day, and nine dollars a week for full weeks after finishing school. A two or three dollar a week raise was offered to me in the fall of 1929 for me to stay on at printing, but, I had made up my mind to enter a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, starting salary of $500. The bank salary figured out about the same per hour as for the printing job. Nevertheless, the congenial atmosphere of the printing plant those days, and, experience however short, were helpful and appreciated by me.

"J.J." was very jovial in his occasional trip to the Job Print and did considerable kidding all in good fun. "Mac" was a witty person who mixed in a good natured sarcasm now and then for one reason or another. Eva most always had good answers to all the kidding she was called upon to take, and, generally held her own in a quiet sort of way, always busy setting type. We four all got along very well indeed. However, I do remember that some days did seem long and weary because of the monotony of some repetitious jobs.

In spite of the great demand for printing those last boom days of the twenties, business generally being brisk, it looked to me that people had to work long and hard to make any decent profit. There was less rush then but, less leisure time.

There was a good number of seasonal tourist resorts in Digby and area at that time of which a good percentage served meals and wanted printed menus. The stock market crash came in October 1929, the same month I began work in the bank after leaving the printing shop.

We did not have coffee breaks those days but, occasionally on a long hot summer day, "J.J." would arrive at the shop and say, "Let's all stop for a cone of ice cream" which he would have with him for each of us. That break with ice cream was like a few minutes of Heaven to me in my young life.

One day when printing a fairly large order of menus, I had printed several dozen and then noticed that something didn't look right and so asked "Mac" if there should not be a "T" preceding the letters "ea" in one particular spot on the menu. "Mac" rather appreciated this way of putting things and letting him know about it.

On another day I must have grown too weary running the smallest press which was powered by foot and leg action and fed by hand. The only other two presses were run by power, one by electrical and the other by gasoline engine. This particular time on that particular day, I caught the ends of my fingers on one hand in the press and the press actually rolled slowly over. My finger tips including the nails came out very flat indeed - I can still remember a lot of how it felt, like a shock up my arm and across my body to my heart. When I dared to look at what happened to my fingers, I was quite scared, I showed "Mac" who heard my cry of pain and, he was also frightened and very sympathetic, not knowing just what to do or say but, then quickly saying, "My God!" followed by, another few quick words - "take the rest of the day off, another few quick words - 'You see my fingers were take a week off with pay!' You see my fingers were still miraculously all there but still very flat on the ends."

I went down the street and the first person I met was one of the town doctors and I showed him my fingers. "Go home," he said, "as quickly as you can and, run water from a cold water tap, over the fingers where they are flat until you see decided improvement, you may save the ends of your fingers including your finger nails" I now wonder if that treatment would be recommended these days. However, nails and finger ends were saved and I was soon back to work.

Now and then a printing job had to be done on parchment paper which required a special kind of printers' ink which smelled very badly those days. I always dreaded it when "Mac" would do that job on the largest press, in spite of the fact that we always opened an outside door to lessen the affects on the constitution.

One of the jobs I had to do, being the junior and printers' devil on the staff, was a lot of cleaning now and then. One day not long after I started my job at the printing plant, I decided to clean the floor that apparently hadn't been cleaned for some considerable time.

"J.J." came along and said, "how are you making out Vince?" I assured him that I thought I was beginning to see the floor - "J.J." laughed very heartily, he thought the remark pretty good and suitable.

Sometimes the gasoline engine or a piece of machinery would refuse to work, and after "Mac" the fix-it man had patiently worked for a certain length of time to get it going again, without results, "Mac" would then stand back and cuss quite strenuously, then he would immediately start working - "See," he would say, "all it needed was a bit of cussing."

On other occasions when some gadget refused duty for me and, seemed to be broken "Mac" would say, "use a little oil", and sure enough, often that is all it took. How often since, have I thought of the value of that remark and the actual need of "oil" in many life situations, applied at the right time, right place and, in the right way.

Other things that sort of stick in my memory and come to mind now and then are, like the time I told "Mac" of four teenage boys who in the spring season of 1929 got together just before dark one evening and decided to initiate the newly built outdoor Pines Hotel swimming pool which had just been filled with water. Clothes were taken off near the road just east of the pool; nobody else seemed to be around except the four boys; no thought or time for bathing suits; up to the pool they went. They stood on the edge of the pool and looked at the chilly water, one soon jumped in, the rest quickly followed and across the pool they swam. "Mac" listened to the story and hardly said anything, but, the next "Digby Courier" had a good story on the episode. The heading of the story went something like, "Four Boy Scouts Officially Open Pines Hotel Swimming Pool" Who were the four? Many years later they are known as: the late Dr. Earl H. Anderson, veteran of two wars (second world and Korean), was awarded the Victoria Cross; Sidney L. Smith, now prominent druggist for many years in Digby; Clayton D. Snow, Digby wholesale lobster king merchant; and myself.

As a young teenager I used to like doing some writing about different events interesting to myself and mostly for myself. One day "Mac" said to me "how about writing your version of the story told about 'The Marooning of Jerome'". I had heard and read at least two somewhat different stories about the man who was found marooned on a beach at some point on the French Shore of St. Mary's Bay, Digby County. When found this man's tongue had been cut out and his legs quite freshly amputated, were surgically well dressed and bound. He was presumably left by some vessel before dawn one morning, all for some mysterious reason.

"Jerome" appeared to have been a man of some considerable social standing and, possibly of some considerable wealth. However the only thing the man could or would ever say after being found and cared for by some family in the French shore was, something that sounded like the word "Jerome". He either could not, or, would not, write anything about who he was or why he was left the way he was. Well, it was, and is, one of Digby County's mystery stories, and, different ideas have been expressed over the years concerning this man. However, my response to "Mac" was, I felt no urge to write anything more or different about this man. The mystery seemed to have been very well explored in the mind of many people, and, he was a sort of curiosity for many people who visited where he lived for many years.

There were three printing presses in the shop in 1929, one press was quite large with a bed or plate of steel that moved back and forth making a loud clanking noise, powered by a rather noisy gasoline engine. On this press the larger jobs were printed, one of which was a publication called "The Templar", and as I remember it, it was a temperance paper. "J.J." was a noted temperance man.

The late Mr. R.C. Mills, editor of the Courier for a time previous to 1929 was not so temperate. In 1927 or 1928 during the time Mr. Mills was editor, repeal of the Scott Act (Prohibition Law) was being talked about and advocated by some people. At this time I attended a boys' conference in Bridgetown, N.S., and a resolution was passed opposing any such repeal. The resolution was to be published in a number of newspapers and, it was left to me to have it published in the "Digby Weekly Courier". I took a copy to Mr. Mills who, having looked at it, did not seem well impressed. When the next issue of the Courier came out with no such resolution, I went to Mr. Mills about it and he grumbly explained that it apparently had been lost.

Years passed and sometime in the early sixties I saw Mr. Mills again. The place was Windsor, N.S., at the United Baptist Church and the late Rev. Ernest Churchill, former Digby clergyman, was the minister. The occasion was an annual meeting of the organization now known as the Federation On Alcohol and Other Drug Problems. Mr. Mills (now deceased) was then very helpful in helping some of us form resolutions, and, did a good job of reporting to the Halifax Chronicle-Herald.

Another interesting piece of memory is, when "J.J." told me of his giving a small hand press, type frames, etc. to a teenager conceived and published what he then called the smallest weekly in the world, "The Tiny Tatler". I believe that teenager was, and is now the same person, now a staff reporter for the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, Mr. Ivan Shortliffe.

There was some interest way back in 1929 by some people for Maritime Independence for sake of Digby in the early days. Date on picture 1774.

Digby 172 Years Ago

Compiled by David Sanford

From the files of the Courier of January 28, 1887, the following account has been copied concerning Digby in 1802.

"Among a number of old newspapers kindly sent to us by friends is a copy of the Saint John Gazette of May, 1802, says the Telegraph and among other advertisements contained in the issue before us is one describing the town and township of Digby, and offering for sale certain lots in the town. In this area we are told the township of Digby extends from the Gut of Annapolis westward to the extremity of the province of Nova Scotia, and contains about 150,000 acres." The town plot is thus described:

"The Town Plot is situated at the east of the township just within the entrance to Annapolis Basin, and twenty miles from Annapolis Town, and six miles across land from the head of St. Mary's Bay. This laid out from the water's edge, partly on level ground and partly on the declivity of a modern hill, dry and pleasant, and having with an eastern aspect, a view of the Annapolis Basin and its cultivated shores for twenty miles in where it terminates with the Fort and River's mouth of that name. It was settled by Loyalists from New York in 1783, the most of whom went early to farms, or, moving to older countries, left the whole side to be bought up and improved by about sixty families who now reside in it, having detached, but comfortable dwellings with little gardens and orchards, and carrying on some fishery and foreign trade. It has communication with all parts of the county of Annapolis, provisions in it are plentiful and cheap, building materials readily to be procured, and from many local circumstances, there is a probability of its becoming a place of some consideration for shipbuilding, the fisheries and the West India trade, as well as a cheap and comfortable place of residence."

This advertisement was dated at Digby on the 29th December, 1801, and inquiries were to be addressed post paid to Mr. Wiswell at Digby.

65 Years Ago

The first steamer ever to use wireless telegraph on the coastal run into the port of Digby was the "Calvin Austin". The equipment was installed and was seen for the first time on her trip to Digby on December 18, 1909.

The new light on Peters Island was put into operation on January 15, 1910. It replaced the old lighthouse at Grand Passage and stood 40 feet on the Northeast of it.

Loss of the schooner "James W. Cousins", is recorded in the Courier of January 22, 1909. The ship struck Old Man's Ledge, Lobster Bay among the Tusket Islands, and was a total loss with her cargo of 57,000 pounds of fish. All the crew was saved, rowing to Harry's Island. The vessel was skippered by Capt. Harry Ross. Loss was estimated at $7,000.

A fancy dress ball was held at the Pines Hotel in February. The dance continued until 1:30 a.m. with the lights being kept on the extra time free of charge by A. D. Daley. Among those present and their costumes were Mrs. G. H. Peters, Queen of Night; Mrs. F. W. Nichols, Fluffy Ruffles; Mrs. S. DuVernet, Hearts; Mrs. L. H. Morse, Red Cross Nurse; Miss Gertrude Oliver, Merry Widow; Nettie Dakin, Ace of Hearts; Doris Munroe, College Girl; Bessie Turnbull, Japanese Girl; Blanche Sproule, Starlight; Dr. F. E. Rice, South African Volunteer; Dr. E. DuVernet, student; Fritz Dakin, sailor; W. E. Tupper, Domino; L. B. Eldridge, Yachtsman; G. H. Peters, Clown; Fred A. Graham and S. E. Fuller, Twins.

Erection of Percy Wormell's new cottage on the Lighthouse Road is recorded in the Courier of March 5, 1909.

THE BIG FIRE OF 1899

Fire on February 13, 1899 destroyed Digby's Front St.

One of the most disastrous fires ever to strike Digby occurred on Monday, February 13th, 1899. The fire was first discovered in the basement of G.I. Letteney and the large store on Water Street about 9:45 p.m. the evening during one of the worst north-east gales and blinding snow storms known in Digby's history.

It is reported in the Courier of February 17, 1899, that "The alarm was sounded at once and the firemen rushed to the building in which the fire apparatus had been stored since the sale of the engine hall. Two snowbound D.A.R. teams were in Digby at the time and one of them was across Sydney Street, entirely blocking the way to the fire."

"As soon as possible the team was backed up and the hose reels proceeded to the nearest hydrant and a stream was turned on the burning building, but it was soon realized the entire south portion of the town was in danger owing to the heavy north-east gale that was blowing and that seemed to be constantly increasing in force."

"Many of our leading citizens were enjoying themselves at the residence of Mayor Shreve, celebrating the 10th anniversary of his marriage when the alarm was sounded. This broke up a very pleasant evening and the ladies and gentlemen were soon turning in all directions to reach home and look after their property some of which was already surrounded by fire."

"The flames and sparks from Letteney's immediately ignited the Saunders building, occupied by Gupta and Young, general merchants on one side and the building occupied by L. A. Komiesky, dry goods on the other."

"In the meantime the flames had crossed the street and caught the Wilson Block containing S.M. Wilson's fruit and confectionary store and R.G. Monroe's law office."

"The flames then spread both ways on both sides of the street but the building to the south and the ones on First Avenue were considered to be the most in danger of being caught by the flying cinders, including the D.A.R. station. A train of freight cars sidetracked in front of the station were in immediate danger, but were miraculously saved from the flames. The railway station was surrounded by sparks from the burning buildings and was so hot at one time that the telegraph operator was obliged to leave the building. However, after the fire had been checked from spreading northwardly, the operator returned again to his post, and shortly after the building was considered out of danger, having escaped with minor damage."

"Things at that time were not so promising on Water Street and it was still thought by many that we would lose the entire business portion of the town including some fine residences on Queen Street. The cold was intense and many of the citizens as well as the firemen were covered with ice."

"The fire continued to spread and dry goods, boots and shoes, household furniture, show cases, etc. were being carried out of the adjoining buildings and piled in the streets, the increasing snow drifts covering a large portion of the already damaged goods."

"Large crowds of people by this time were present but all communication between the northern and southern boundaries of the fire was cut off except via Queen Street that time seemed almost impassable."

"It was soon discovered it was impossible to save the Landon House and in a few minutes this large building, owned by G.F. Stone, and nearly its entire contents were consumed in the blaze."

"The next to go was the small vacant building formerly occupied by Frank Jones as a law office. The next and last on the north end of the east side of Water Street to burn was the premises of Capt. James Dillon. The building contained Dillon's Grocery Store and the upper storey was occupied by Capt. Dillon and his family. This building was destroyed with nearly its entire contents."

"On the other side of the street things were becoming worse and the fire had now reached Mrs. McMullin's general provision store, having burned everything on the west side of the street north of Letteney's including a small building owned by Miss Maggie McCormick and occupied by Miss Georgie Beaman as a bakery; Otis Warne's large confectionery store known as the Bijou (the building was owned by E. Biden of Amherst); the millinery establishment of Miss Janie Wright; the large building belonging to the estate of E.B. Nicholls, containing law offices of Jones and Nicholls, H.L. Dennison and the Sheriff's office, also Edmund Jenner, apothecary, known as the New Drug Store."

"During all this time the fire was still spreading in a southerly direction up Water Street. On the east side of the street, the next to burn was the two storey wooden building owned by George Bishop and occupied by James A. McNeil as a tailoring establishment on the lower floor and George Trohon's tinsorial rooms were in the upper storey. The building was totally destroyed with some of the contents saved."

"The next to go was the Burnham block, generally known as the Brick Grocery, occupied by E.E. Burnham and containing a large stock of groceries. G.I. Letteney and Bro's. Also had a large stock of furniture stored in the upper part of this building. This was the most valuable structure that burned and the only brick building in the business portion of the town."

"The next was the Turnbull block containing the Post Office and the grocery establishment of E. Turnbull. About all the contents of the Post Office were saved and a few barrels of flour were saved from the grocery store but the building was entirely destroyed."

"The next and last building on the east side of Water Street to burn was the building owned by Henry Titus and occupied by Mrs. B. Morse, who carried on a stationery and fancy store for T.S. Patillo and Co., Truro, and occupied the upper part as a dwelling. This building was also totally destroyed."

"On the west side of the street the fire had meanwhile been devouring a large amount of property, including the buildings owned by John Robinson who, since the loss of the tug "Clipper," had gone into the restaurant business, lost everything. The next to burn was C.A. Young's fruit and confectionery store with its entire contents."

"The next was the new jewelry store built less than two years ago by R.E. Feltus of Lawrence town and occupied by C.A. Lindstrom. The upper storey of this building contained Dr. Morgan's dentist rooms. Mr. Lindstrom had a large supply of valuable jewelry, books and stationery that were totally destroyed with the building. He was in Fast Ferry at the time and knew nothing of the fire until some hours later."

"The next to suffer by the flames was the small building owned and occupied by John Russell as a harness shop and Edward Young as a shoemaker. The building and contents were totally destroyed."

"About this time the Waverly House, owned by Miss Forsythe and Mrs. Joseph Merritt and occupied by Miss Woodman, was discovered to be on fire, having caught from flying cinders. The guests had hardly time to escape and Miss Woodman lost nearly all her furniture. It was now discovered we must lose the large Shreve block (formerly the Oakes building) containing the large and well furnished law offices of T.C. Shreve, also the town clerk's office, as well as the Digby Boot and Shoe Store, occupied by its proprietor, H.B. Short. Part of the contents of this building was saved from the flames."

"By this time it looked as if we would certainly lose the entire business portion of the town but the vacant lots on the east side of the street greatly assisted the firemen whose attention could now be almost entirely given to the west side. From the Shreve block sparks were blowing up the hill and for a time the Digby House and other buildings were threatened."

"From the Shreve block the fire leaped to Mrs. Louisa Bacon's store and residence which were soon wrapped in flames and burned to the ground. The firemen and citizens who had worked constantly and faithfully seemed here to put forth an extra effort, and for the first time during the night, seemed to be getting the fire under control. A stream was turned on Oakes' fruit store and with extra effort, that was

"The fire now turned its course to a northwardly direction and after burning a small building in Mrs. Bacon's yard, crossed First Avenue and caught in the roof of Messrs. Keen and Hutchinson's Carriage Factory and undertaking shop. Nearly all the contents of this shop had been removed about midnight and carried to safety. It was now known that the large stables belonging to the estate of George Stading and Sons would be the next suffer. The building was soon on fire and burned very rapidly."

"The wind now seemed to baffle and sparks were now going up the hill between Mr. Braman's house and the Digby House owned by Capt. James Wright. Both buildings escaped with slight injuries."

"While the latter buildings were burning a stream was still on Oakes' building and the double tenement building, owned by the E.B. Nicholls estate, and occupied by the Jamesons and R. G. Monroe. The furniture had been removed from the building, but was almost totally destroyed by snow, water and ice, having to remain so long in the street. Although the building was saved, it was almost entirely ruined by water."

"It was now 3:30 Tuesday morning and the fire was under control and confined to the burning foundations. About this time the wind blew even harder and large snow drifts filled the streets. The crowds began to disperse and seek shelter."

"The tug, Marina, Capt. Lewis, after much difficulty owing to ice in the harbor, got away from Letteney's wharf and proceeded to the government pier where she was safe from the flames. A small building back of the town was burned to the ground, thought to have caught from flying sparks."

"At daylight Water Street presented a sad sight, one not to be forgotten. The foundations were still slowly burning and the street was filled with furniture, dry goods, etc., half covered with snow drifts. Two D.A.R. locomotives were on Wood's siding covered with snow, nearly to their smoke stacks. To the north of the station was a train of freight and passenger cars fast stuck in the heavy snow."

"A few interesting sidelights to the fire are recorded in the Courier's story. It is reported only one telephone was saved from the burned buildings, that was No. 19 and was saved by Gilbert Ellis from the Digby Boot and Shoe Store. Eleven instruments were destroyed. It is stated great credit was due Fred and Bernard McBrude who, assisted Mr. Robinson in saving the mails from the Post Office. The story also relates that when the Waverly House chimneys were hauled down the next day

Turnbull opened business in a building near his residence on Water Street and H.B. Short was assorting out his stock in the Oddfellow's Hall. H. L. Dennison, who lost his entire law library, occupied a room in Cherry Tree House. The Courier concludes its account by stating it hopes no buildings will be built, to replace those burned, on the water side of the street and that "we will have an unobstructed view of the harbour from our principal street, which will greatly be enjoyed by our summer visitors."

Early History Of Bear River

from Illustrated Magazine number of THE DIGBY COURIER 1897 SETTLEMENT OF BEAR RIVER-

Settled by the Loyalists and Veterans in the Revolutionary War who were granted lands in Clements.

The interests of Bear River are in many respects associated with those of Digby and so closely have the two places become acquainted that mention of one in such a connection as aimed at in a series of historical articles is not complete without mention of the other. Bear River is a place of comparatively recent history and of the few facts available we can give no better summary than in quoting from the writings of the late W.A. Calnek:

Several explanations have been advanced as to the derivation of the name of this town. A recent writer claims its origin as derived from the French pronunciation of Imbert, a gentleman who formed one of the party visiting it in 1611.

From the date of the French occupation of the county, 1604, to the date of their expulsion in 1755, it is believed no settlement was made, as no remains have been found on which to ground an opposite assertion, and the town is, doubtless, of exclusive English origin. With the invasion of the United Empire Loyalists, the settlement of the district commenced, and in 1784 the township of Clements, including both sides of the stream, was granted to certain English, Hessians, and Waldeckians who had served during the old revolutionary war, and who, at its close, received grants of land, in lieu of other pay, for the services they had rendered in that unfortunate struggle. The first framed house was erected by one Capt. O'Sutherland and stood nearly midway up the slope of the eastern hill, and adjacent to the residence of Captain J. Harris.

A number of log huts had been built and occupied by both German and English settlers, and the work of clearing the soil for cultivation had commenced, but with so little success, owing to the ignorance of the proprietors, that much want and suffering was felt by their families for several years to come. Towards the close of the century there was a considerable movement from the townships of Granville and Annapolis to the hill country on the shores of Bear River. It was in this period that the Clarks, the Millers, the Troops, the Dodges, the Rices, the Chutes and the Harrises bought lands and settled in the district after a course they were induced to take in the belief that wheat and other cereals could be produced in larger quantities and of finer quality there than could be raised, on the same sized areas, elsewhere in the country, and the descendants of these men today constitute a large percentage of the population, both of the village and its immediate vicinity. Still, up to the date under review, 1790-1810, there had been no village visible, but soon after sawmills began the work of transforming the timber up the streams into lumber, necessitating the inception of shipbuilding, which was almost contemporaneously begun, stores were erected, and a thriving town was the final result.

It was in this thriving little town where the Digby County Exhibition got its start in 1893 and continued to be held here until now. It began as a Field Day thought up by John V. Thomas and Wilbur Ryerson and other interested friends of Bear River. Agricultural products and stock were shown on the grounds where the B.A. Alcom mill is situated. The following year it was held on church grounds on the Lansdowne Road. In 1895 an effort was made to alternate each year the places of event to Digby, Weymouth and Little Brook, but in a few years interest waned and it again fell upon Bear River to carry on.

In 1908, the organization with $1000 donation and donated labor bought land and erected the main building. Also the Hillsburg Horticultural Society was formed. This was later changed to the Bear River Agricultural Society which continued to sponsor the Digby County Exhibition generally referred to as the Bear River Exhibition. Approximately a year and a half ago the Digby County Exhibition Association was formed in addition to the Agricultural Society.

Thirty-eight Years Ago In Digby

Compiled by David Sanford.

(Interesting items from the Courier files of 1935).

Digby's largest business block, the Warne Block, was burned to the ground on the night of January 6, 1935. Less was estimated to be in excess of $50,000. The efforts of the fireman, coupled with the efficiency of the new fire pumper, which was purchased only a month previously, confined the fire to the Warne building.

E.C. Sollows was elected President of the Digby Board of Trade at the annual meeting in January 1935. He succeeded Dr. W.R. Dickie.

A.D. Daley narrowly escaped electrocution while replacing a light bulb on the Long Wharf during the week of January 18, 1935.

The residence of Clifford Farnsworth was destroyed by fire on Thursday morning, February 7th. Eight were left homeless by the blaze.

An organization meeting of the Labor body of the Fraternal Union of Messengers of Peace was held in the Fireman's Hall on March 5th, 1935. A Digby Labour Union, under the auspices of the Fraternal Union, was formed. There were fifty-five in attendance and Rene A. Richard, organizer of the Fraternal Union, was elected County Council Chairman.

Installation of the X-ray machine at the Hospital was made during March of 1935.

St. Patrick's Hall, now the basement of St. Patrick's Church, was opened on May 28, 1935. An interesting program marked the opening ceremonies. Included in this was a pantomime number commemorating the opening of St. Patrick's Church here in 1835 and the opening of the new hall one hundred years later.

The town streets were prepared for paving during the Spring of 1935. It is also recorded that the Red Indian service station between the Royal Store and Wright's was being torn down in preparation for the erection of a modern two storey building.

The tourist season of 1935 opened the arrival of the cruise ship "Acadia" from New York via Yarmouth on July 4th. The sister ship of the Acadia, the Saint John, arrived July 5th from Boston via Saint John. The Saint John made weekly trips to Digby during the summer of 1935.

Paving work in the town was reported as "Progressing satisfactorily" in the Courier issue of July 12, 1935.

Organization of the Digby Junior Fire Department by Fire Chief Harry Hersey is reported in the Courier of July 26. The brigade had fifteen members ranging in ages from 10 to 15 years. It was said to be the first of its kind in the Province.

The sinking of the scallop dragger, "Tryme", off Gulliver's Head on Oct. 17, 1935, is recorded. Three lives were lost in this, the worst tragedy in the history of the Digby scallop fleet. Lost in the mishap were Capt. Charles Hayes Van Tassel, Lea Clements, Eel Brook, and Gerald Stark,

Our impressions of this County are formed less from visual observation than from the oral delineations of others who are thoroughly acquainted with the localities described. In some of these places there are facts and incidents, connected with their settlement and growth, of historic tendencies, which aged people still vividly remember, and which the younger ones talk of as events of interest in by-gone years.

Weymouth is situated on the mouth of the Sisseboe river, which has its source far in the wooded solitudes of the interior, where lakes, and streams and fountains abound, in the waters of which the beaver builds his dam, and the moose slakes his thirst. Humble in its origin as respects volume and force, this river in its course towards the sea, is ever and anon enlarged by the confluence of tributary streams, till it mingles with the briny tides of St. Mary's Bay. The Sisseboe has supplied a water power, which has been appropriated by scores of sawmills that have contributed largely to the marine and mercantile interest of Weymouth and the surrounding districts. In its course it leaps over rocky ledges - rushes and roars as it forces its impetuous way through narrow gorges - or silently glides through green meadows, which are not indebted to human culture for their perennial fertility. About three miles above its mouth, where it is crossed by a long bridge, it meets the flow of salt water, and there navigation long ago obtained a footing.

Robert Mills. He succeeded Mr. Stratton.

Prices advertised from Yexxa's were best ground the coffee, 60 c per lb.; 13 lbs white beans 99 cents, six cakes Castile soap 25 cents; brooms 55 cents; six rolls toilet tissue 25 cents; three lbs raisins 50 cents.

B.J. Roop store offered ladies' winter coats from $24 to $65 and Wrights $38.50 down to $9.50. Shoes at the A.J. Dillon store were $4.35 and $3.95.

The September 3, 1926 issue of the Courier was found by Harold Thompson, Westport, while doing renovations.

IMPRESSIONS

Here many a cargo has been shipped, to be conveyed over ocean's waves to some foreign port; and there valuable importations from abroad have been landed.

Around "the Bridge" (a local designation) the land is somewhat elevated and beautifully picturesque. In some places the primeval woods have not been wholly cut away; and in summer, when their robes are green, or at this season, when the faded foliage is invested with all the gorgeous hues of the rainbow, they exhibit an aspect that is pleasingly beautiful. Thence downward, all along the banks of the river, the scenery is varied and very fine. In some quiet nook, shaded by stately trees, and embowered in shurubbery, may be seen an elegant cottage; while not far away on the rising ground, stands a capacious mansion, in the structure of which are recognized architectural skill and taste. Such charming cottages and more showy dwellings are characteristic of Weymouth; and their beauty is increased by blossoming gardens and ornamental trees - some of them fruitbearing. As respects attractive scenery, there are few places in the Province which transcend the landscape that is formed of this part of Sisseboe river and its surroundings. On a fine Summer day, when there is no intervening fog to obstruct the view, and no cloud to intercept the golden sunshine, from Jones's hotel, the eye has an expansive survey of St. Mary's Bay, and of Digby Neck in the distance. On the surface of the Bay are seen light fishing-boats and vessels of varied tonnage, with white-winged sails spread to the breeze, passing to and fro "like things of life."

A bar near the mouth of Sisseboe river renders its safe entrance by a large ship somewhat difficult; and it should not be attempted without a competent pilot. A light-house, recently erected, assists the mariner in avoiding the obstructions of the bar, especially in the darkness of night. For many years, however, Weymouth has carried on a prosperous navigation; and many a ship of large tonnage has been built near the mouth of the river: As a ship-owner, Colin Campbell, Esq. as well as others, has been successful in the gradual acquisition of wealth.

The respectable looking places of public worship, and the school-houses at Weymouth, indicate that its inhabitants, are not indifferent to the interests of religion and education.

Weymouth has for many years furnished representatives of the County to sit in our Legislative Assembly. Within the memory of living men, the following gentlemen, residents of that locality, have thus enjoyed the confidence of the County: Colonel Moody, Cereno U. Jones, Samuel Campbell, Colin Campbell, and W.B. Vail. Two of them have had seats in the Executive Council, and one of them has recently been sworn into a governmental office at Ottawa. Mr. A.G. Jones who represents Halifax in the Canadian House of Commons, is a native of Weymouth.

There must be unwonted salubrity in the air of Weymouth, which can show more instances of remarkable longevity, perhaps, than any other locality of the same population on this continent. An aged friend informs us that he remembers quite a number that lived far beyond the allotted term of human life. We have pencilled down a list: Captain Barr, Captain Greeg, Payson, Journeay, and Mrs. Jones, all died above ninety years of age, and two or three about a hundred; also, Josiah Jones, Stephen Jones, Cereno U. Jones, Cossman and others died above eighty. He mentioned several other very old people of that place whose names we forgot.

Weymouth, in many respects, is indeed a remarkable and interesting locality.

The New France Railroad

It is recorded in the Courier of October 8, 1897, that the "pole railroad which Messrs. Stehelin are building between their lumber mills at New France and their wharf property in Weymouth has been attracting great attention since the first sod was turned. It is recognized as a new departure in the Digby County lumber industry and needs but the trial to prove its excellence. When completed it will be the second of its kind in the province and in many respects it will surpass the one now in operation."

"A vast amount of work has been necessary to build this road. It is not yet finished but the main constructive work may be said to be practically completed. In its stretch of 12 miles there have been not a few heavy cuttings found necessary..."

An illustration of the "Maria Theresa", the second engine of the railroad accompanies the article. From the picture she seems a neat locomotive of conventional design. It is recorded it required ten pair of oxen to transport it from the station at Weymouth to the New France mill. It was tested on part of the road at the time completed and worked satisfactorily.

COU'RIER:

running messenger
(according to the Oxford Dictionary)

For 100 years the Digby Courier has been something more than a "running messenger." It has been a "trusted messenger," bringing news of community happenings to generations of Digby residents.

The Courier has brought good news and bad news. It has reported regional events and editorialized on regional problems. It has carried ads telling where the bargains are and printed pictures showing where the fun was.

We congratulate the Courier on its record of community achievement over the past 100 years and extend sincere wishes for an even more impressive future.

Improvements and changes in transportation also occupied a good deal of space in the Courier over the past 25 years. Efforts by the Digby Board of Trade and other like groups to secure improved service between Digby and Saint John were fully reported as was the replacement of the Princess Helene by the Princess of Nanaimo (later the Princess of Acadia) in the spring of 1963. The Courier announced that the change would be made in its issue of January 24, 1963.

In its issue of May 2, 1963, the Courier described in a front page story the royal welcome given the Princess of Acadia on her arrival in Digby. Nostalgic feelings about the Helene were expressed by a number on this occasion, including Captain Roy Conley who spent 33 years on the Helene. In an editorial the Courier comments on the fact that a great effort was put forward to get the Helene replaced and yet when it actually happened there was a feeling of loss.

since the Courier celebrated its 75th anniversary, there has been considerable progress in.

The contract for building the new ferry terminal in Digby was announced in the Courier in January, 1970 with the amount given as $3,000,000. An announcement of an $8,000,000 ferry for the Saint John-Digby service was carried in an issue of the Courier in February, 1969. In the issue of the Courier for May 27, 1971, a really great welcome was expressed for the new Princess of Acadia which made its maiden voyage between Saint John and Digby that week.

In the field of transportation and public works a number of other advances are recorded in the issues of the Courier between 1949 and 1974. Here also much of the most significant progress is reported in the immediate years preceding 1974. For instance, the opening of the new $3,000,000 Bear River Bridge is reported in the issue of June 21, 1973. The new ferry Joshua Slocum provided for Petite Passage is reported also

In actual fact, as has been noted previously in this article, the period of the past 25 years the whole local area served by this weekly journal. While it may be the most visible examples of this progress can be drawn from recent issues, the fact remains that the columns of the Courier over the full 25 years do record a somewhat steady growth and improvement in the area, highlighted by some peaks of achievement, as well as a few valleys of disappointment.

So far in this article reference has been made to a number of fields of endeavour reported by the Courier over the past 25 years. These include construction, transportation, service oriented programs and commercial development. No effort has been made to completely cover every development but, hopefully, the examples chosen do serve to indicate the extent and nature of change that has occurred over the years in these fields

A review of the columns of the Courier for the past 25 years, which could not be exhaustive because of time constraints, reveals some very interesting information in addition to the new items referred to in previous paragraphs.

For instance, it is very interesting to note that Digby had four of the town's Apple Blossom Princesses chosen for the Royal office of Queen Annapolis between 1949 and 1974. The first of these was Miss Olive Lewis, chosen in 1950 as Queen Annapolis XVIII. Miss Marilyn Campbell was chosen as Queen Annapolis XXI in 1952 and the following year Miss Patsy Matheson was chosen as Queen Annapolis XXII. In 1973 Miss Cathy Abbott was crowned as Queen Annapolis XLII.

Actually, it could be said Digby had five Apple Blossom Queens between 1949 and 1974 since Miss Connie Adams of Digby was crowned Queen Annapolis XXXVIII in 1970. She represented CFB Cornwallis at the festival, however, although the Courier appeared to take pride in noting her home was in Digby.

A number of items picked at random from issues of the Courier during the immediate past 25 years of its existence should serve to round out this lengthy and rambling article. In this connection it is interesting to note that the winter of 1953 was a particularly rough one in Digby. According to the Courier, three successive weekend storms in February extensive damage to the town.

The first of the storms, reported in the Courier of February 12th, 1953, caused thousands of dollars damage when melting snows flooded basements and stores on the town's main street. The Courier of February 19, 1953 reports that high tides and wind caused extensive damage to the railway lines, the Racquette bridge and the Adams road.

The pictures that accompanied the front page story showed the extent of the damage. The Courier of February 26, 1953 reports the third weekend storm which also did heavy damage.

An extremely heavy run of herring in the Basin along the shoreline of the town is reported in the Courier of March 5, 1953. The story noted that New Brunswick seiners were reaping a huge harvest. The Courier of January 15, 1953 reports the ramming of the Centreville fishing craft, Phyllis W. by a U.S. dragger. The deck combings and planks of the Phyllis W. were damaged and her spar broken. Crew of vessel were Arnold Banks and Harold Titus.

The Courier of January 21, 1957 reports that Dr. Hodgson, who had headed the local Red Cross branch for 18 years, was presented with a travel clock on the occasion of his leaving on a vacation trip to England. Ten years later the Courier reports a reception for Dr. Hodgson in honour of his 50th anniversary of ordination. Still later, in 1972, the Courier carries the story of Dr. Hodgson's selection as "Citizen of the Year".

The imminent completion of the schools at Sandy Cove and Weymouth is reported in the Courier of April 27, 1957. Years are also expressed in the Courier during 1957 that sale of the Digby Pines could make Digby a "ghost town". Actually, the Pines has continued, under the ownership of the provincial government, to operate very successfully and to attract many thousands of visitors of Digby.

A reminder of wartime r

Digby was reported in the Courier for September 19, 1957 with a news story concerning the gift of an anaesthetic machine to the Digby General Hospital from the crew of HMCS Buckingham.

Undoubtedly, there are many other items from the Couriers of the period 1949-74 that could be recalled and many, perhaps, that readers might feel more significant than those which have been used. Unfortunately, however, it has not been possible because of time and space limitations to review more than those which have been used. It is hoped that memories will be sharpened by the recollections in this article so that readers will on their own recall many of the newsworthy happenings recorded in the Couriers of the last 25 years but not reproduced in this article.

Abbe Sigogne Revered By Acadians

Abbe Sigogne, who for fifty years was a Catholic priest, missionary and benefactor of his people from Pubnico through the ancient county of Annapolis, is still greatly revered by his people.

Wilson's history reports he was born in Tours, province of Touraine, France and was christened Jean Mandetus Sigogne. In 1790 while his father was Mayor of Lyons, he escaped from his residence in Paris at the outbreak of the Revolution and reached London, England, where he lived for nearly two years. He emigrated to Halifax in June 1799 and soon visited Clare where he remained as missionary and pastor the residue of his active life.

No person ever labored with greater constancy, zeal, completeness and success to advance a principal. Father Sigogne was an excellent Parish Priest, as well as practically the legal advisor, Judge, Notary Public for all the Acadians in Clare, Tusket and Pubnico. He wrote all the deeds and contracts of his parishioners and he constantly taught them to avoid litigation and strife. Beside a knowledge of French, English, Latin and Greek, he acquired Micmac dialect and the latter greatly admired and revered him. He began and carefully preserved all the records of his mission and these have become invaluable. While performing High Mass in St. Marie Chapel, Church Point, on November 9, 1844, he passed away suddenly.

Writing in the Digby Courier of June 28, 1886, Judge Savary paid high tribute to Abbe Sigogne. He said: "Abbe Sigogne was undoubtedly the principal character in French Acadian history in Nova Scotia.

Besides being a preacher and pastor, he was the legal advisor (the only priest I ever knew who drew up the wills of his people) and political guide of his flock which then embraced the whole French Acadian population from Annapolis to Pubnico, a district extending over one hundred and fifty miles, a large portion of the main roads which were paths through the woods.

He was a close personal friend of my father's and I often saw him when a boy. On one occasion he embraced me and gave me his blessing. Small of stature and of slight build, he was a genial, kindly, whole souled Christian man with refined and courtly manner, venerated by his people and esteemed by all who knew him.

He was the son of the Mayor of Lyons, fled from France during the Reign of Terror and finally found his way to Nova Scotia, learned the story of the sufferings of the French Acadians, and cast his lot in with them. He was highly educated and a fairly good preacher. The fact he was from France and his deep interest in the welfare of the Acadians, at once revived all the fond recollections of the home of their ancestors and drew forth their love and confidence.

"Abbe Sigogne's thorough and unselfish devotion to the interest of the Acadians, his sympathy with them, his keeping alive the traditions of Old France, then comparatively fresh, his great personal magnetism and his deep piety not only gave him a religious influence over them, but enabled him to largely mould their character for domestic purity, and all the social virtue for which the people of Clare have generally been distinguished."

Bear Population On Increase

Donald Brown, superintendent for the Department of Lands and Forests; Neil Van Nostrand, wildlife biologist and Arcade Comeau, forest technologist appeared before the regular meeting of the Council for the Municipality of the District of Digby on Monday. The men were present by request of council to discuss the increase of the bear population in the area. The council felt they were working at odds or had a double standard when the municipality tried to protect sheep from the bear while the department protects the bear. Municipal councillors, while not wanting to eliminate the bear, could see no reason why the municipality should have to compensate for destroyed sheep when the department protects the bear. They felt some compensation should come from the Department of Lands and Forests as an incentive for sheep rearing.

Areas where the bear population seems to be increasing in the Municipality are Lansdowne, Morganville, Sissiboo and Seabrook. It was felt by the visiting trio that garbage in these places was accessible to bear.

The bear is protected, the department men said for the benefit of hunters, for humanitarian reasons and the general feeling that the bear should be protected.

Mr. Van Nostrand said they had constructed sheep raisers and bee keepers to assess the problems and damage. Even with bounty on bear the problem would not be solved and sheep would still be lost. Action has been taken to increase the harvest of bear by extending the trapping season.

The Council meeting was presided over by the warden, Wilfred Swift and opened by prayer, by Councillor R.E.L. Winchester.

At the August council meeting a motion was passed exempting widows, spinsters and those over 65 up to $3500 assessment if their income was not more than $3500 per year. On Monday a motion was passed to write to the Department of Municipal Affairs in regard to a joint tenancy. Councillors felt that the exemption should be in income not exceeding $3500 for the joint tenancy.

The Council made plans to contact Digby's town and Clare municipality regarding the joint expenditure on prisoners board. James Wambach, caretaker, had requested a raise in their allowance for meals.

Councillors decided to write to all fire chiefs in the Municipality regarding an attempt to meet and discuss blanket coverage for all the municipality in fire protection service. They also decided to write a letter to the Weymouth Village Commissioners to see what their fire prevention needs are.

The matter of over $30,000 allocated for the Composite Wing in the Digby Regional High School which is still in chartered bank account came in for more discussion. The DRHS Board had requested furnishing and equipment for the room but councillors felt they were not clear on the needs as presented by C.C. MacInnis and Mr. Warner at the August meeting. The new equipment is to establish a new industrial program for students. Councillor Winchester had visited the school to see what the needs were and suggested that a budget be submitted for review and then have the school authorities decide what to purchase with the money which the Council decides to expand. Councillors were not in agreement with the DRHS board in proposing to write a letter to the Department of Education for clarification of the idle $30,000 or more.

By regular motion it was decided to place advertisements in the news media to ascertain the approximate municipal residents who would make use of low rental housing or Senior Citizens Home should the municipality attempt construction of these.

The afternoons sessions dealt with the matter of vandalism in the municipality. They passed a motion to advertise in the news media that vandalism will be dealt with to the full extent of the law.

The benefits for and against central purchasing for school supplies were debated. A report will be brought to council comparing prices in purchasing in small quantities and bulk buying. Interest on money in relation to purchases was to be a consideration. Also a comparison will be made as to the expense of a maintenance man for school as has been used during the past year and the previous year's operation.

Councillor Ervin Marshall reported on the airport at Hill Grove where the airstrip has been graded and gravelled to the extent of 2500 feet, the brush cleared and meeting rooms and washrooms built within the past three months.

Mr. Marshall reported Airport Days were most successful with as high as 500 persons there at one time.

Mr. Marshall reported that applications for L.I.P. grants and federal grants for upgrading have been submitted and also application made for Education and Recreation grant.

The Municipal clerk, William MacMillan, will contact the Department of Highways requesting signs pointing to the direction of the airport.

Remanded To Nova Scotia Hospital

Seventeen year old Mallory Logan Miller Jordantown was remanded to Nova Scotia Hospital for thirty days when he appeared before Judge Philip Woolaver in Court at Digby on Tuesday morning. Miller had been charged under section 218 (2) of the Criminal Code of non-capital murder in the case of Harold Bernard Simms, age 64, of Jordantown.

Mr. Simms died of the result of a beating which it is assumed happened on September 20. He was found at his home by relatives, it is understood.

Born in Bridgetown, Mr. Simms was a son of the late Charles and Sadie Simms. Surviving besides his wife, the former Myrtle Miller, are three daughters: Evelyn (Mrs. Roy Mansfield) Bridgetown; Muriel (Mrs. Gordon Holmes) Saint John; Margaret (Mrs. Charles Seals) Saint John. Three sons: Vernon, Jordantown; Harold, Jordantown; Vincent, Halifax; one brother: Clifford of Paradise and several grandchildren.

The remains rested at R. McCleave Funeral Home Ltd., Digby. Funeral service was held Monday at 2 P.M. from Acacia Baptist Church with Rev. Donald Robertson officiating. Interment was in Maplewood Cemetery, Marshtown.

Bluenose Second Comes To Digby

On September 28 the schooner Bluenose II will sail for Digby where three cruises will be made for school students on September 30. The Digby visit is one of several in the province during the week.

The schooner was in Lunenburg for the start of the annual Fisheries Exhibition and Fishermen's Reunion, and later visited Liverpool and Shelburne.

The schooner will be in Yarmouth where four cruises for students will be held September 26 and 27.

On September 28 Bluenose II leaves Yarmouth for Digby.

On October 1, she leaves Digby for her return trip to Halifax and on October 15, Bluenose II will tie up for the winter season.

Islands Had One Day Bus Strike

School classes were held at Islands Consolidated School Freeport, N.S. regardless of school bus drivers strike.

Over 50 per cent of the school children got to classes on time even though the two Island school bus drivers were involved in the strike that effected the whole Digby County.

Supervising principal, Keith Manzer sent notices to parents of school bus children informing them of the impending strike and said they hoped to continue school classes on the usual basis even though no bus would be transporting the children.

In an effort to continue classes Mr. Manzer suggested parents of school bus students form a car pool to transport students to and from the school until the strike was resolved. As a result of his suggestion most students made it to school in time on the one day the strike action was in effect on the Island.

Transportation for the students was provided by teachers, students who own their own vehicle and parents. However, there were several car owners in the area who refused to transport children other than their own because of the serious liability charges involved should a highway accident occur during the trip to and from the school.

But the strike is over and classes have resumed their regular routine. School bus drivers, Robert Ruggles and Allan Outhouse both of Tiverton are carrying on as usual.

FIFTH TIME WINNER IN TRUCK ROADEO

Ronald Winchester, Digby was on Saturday an award winner in the Truck Roadro held at Truro. Mr. Winchester's award was in the Professional Conduct and Attitude class in the tractor-trailer division. He received a trophy plus $25.00.

Mr. Winchester had previously won awards at Truck Roadros. In 1960 - he won the Straight Truck Division and also entered the National Truck Roadro in Toronto; 1962 - he won the Straight Truck Division; 1963-he placed 2nd in the single axle-semi trailer division and in 1965-he placed fourth in the four axle tractor-trailer division.

Over 1500 persons attended the nineteenth Atlantic Trucks Roadro on Saturday. There were sixty entrants in from different classes of the most successful events in the history of the Roadro. Mr. Winchester won over twenty-seven in his class. Attending from Digby were Mrs. Ronald Winchester, Deputy Mayor and Mrs. Paul Winchester and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brinton.

The truck roadro included skill tests in the classroom, on the driving field and in pre-check inspections.

Roadro master was Larry Delbridge on the Nova Scotia Highway Safety Council. Chairman Harry Marsh, Truro, said the event far surpassed his expectations.

"We were delighted with the large turnout and the quality of competitors was exceptional," he said. "Without question, this roadro had made a big impact on the industry and has helped to make the future of trucking a rewarding career."

Highways Minister Leonard Pace presented trophies at the concluding banquet. He praised professional truck drivers of the Atlantic Provinces for their excellent highway safety record.

To participate in the competition, drivers must have had an accident free record for at least twelve months prior to the event. They also had to be driving professionally and full time for a year before the roadro. A total of 425 points were possible in thirteen separate categories.

HERBICIDES A SYMBOL OF WESTERN SELF-INTEREST

Herbicides have become the Vietnamese symbol of Western man's self-interest and reported mortality figures among children, alleged as a result of their use, desperately need careful study, said Dr. A.H. Leighton, in Halifax last week to take part in the sessions of the Atlantic Provinces Psychiatric Association.

"Herbicides have become a serious psychological symbol of resentment and disillusion", said Dr. Leighton. He said he visited Vietnam in 1972 when he and his wife, Dr. Jane Murphy, embarked on a two year study into the consequences of massive use of defoliants and herbicides. These chemicals were used extensively for military purposes by the U.S. during the war in southeast Asia.

The study was a project of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences. Psychologists, biologists and others concerned with public health took part. They sought a total assessment of the physical and biological consequences of herbicides on plants, soil, eco-systems and people. Dr. Leighton's particular area of concern was the social consequence.

In their reconnaissance to plan the study they travelled by plane in the province of Kien Hoa in the Mekong delta and over terraced land to the north in Long Kahn.

Dr. Leighton said most of the spraying was done in the north, but because of many difficulties among the spring offensive of 1972-they were unable to obtain much direct information in the worst hit area. Refugees were interviewed, however.

The paddy field farmers and coconut growers are convinced herbicides were very bad, Dr. Leighton said. Farmers related accounts of destroyed crops, animals, chickens, ducks in particular. They said sick or old people and young children died when they suffered direct spraying. Overall, Dr. Leighton said, the villagers and the farmers do not like the war. They faced bombing, their villages were fought over, they were dragged out of their homes in the night. Herbicides are just another part of the war. Dr.

Leighton said, which they do not like.

The chemicals do not stay in the soil, according to the study, Dr. Leighton said. In rice growing areas, herbicides - destroyed only one season's crop and did not do much harm to people except to cause a runny nose, cough and perhaps a temporary skin rash. Coconut farmers were most upset, however, because when a tree was destroyed it took up to eight years to grow another.

The Vietnamese were bombarded with South Vietnamese propaganda about the claimed necessity for the spraying and told they would be compensated. The National Liberation Front also bombarded them equally, saying the spraying caused abortions, deformity and would dry up the soil. Dr. Leighton stated it was difficult to obtain figures that were reliable on deformity or abortions. Records were difficult in a war torn country.

Greatest emotional impact of massive use of herbicides was among the educated classes who had a very live literature, Dr. Leighton said. From 1972 there was a great wave of disenchantment on the part of the upper classes with the U.S. and its influence in Vietnam. "They felt they had been used in the self-interest of Western man," he said. Herbicides became a symbol, in a literature which was influenced a great deal by exaggeration and quotes from more hysterical reactions around the world.

Dr. Leighton said his experiences during the Vietnam study had affected him. The greatest impression was the utter devastation he saw as he flew over the coastal area where the mangrove forests had been destroyed. It was not just destroyed trees but comprehensive devastation. He said his first day in Vietnam evoked the same feelings he felt at Hiroshima...almost a nausea. Herbicides are a symbol, only a part of the total human misery in Vietnam. To the farmer herbicides were a bad thing; to urban intellectuals they are a symbol of a disastrous experience with the U.S. Dr. Leighton concluded.

ENTERTAINS

FLYING CLUB

LeRoy Brooks was host on September 9 to the Digby Flying Club at his cottage on Haines Lake. Twenty were present, including three new members. September ninth being the birthday of the Louis Wyles, president of the Club, he was presented with a gift and birthday cakes.

It was reported at the meeting that an inspection by the Department of Transport was made on September 3 which revealed more work to be done, but it is hopeful that licensing will be achieving shortly.

The next regular meeting will be at the Court House, Digby at eight o'clock p.m.

CELEBRATES

95th BIRTHDAY

Mrs. William Burrell of Clementsport celebrated her 95th birthday at her home on Wednesday, Sept. 18. On hand to help her celebrate were her son Edwin and daughters Dorothy of Digby and Marian, at home; also her sister Lillian. Friends also dropped in to extend congratulations.

Although a semi-invalid, she takes an interest in everything about her. She received numerous gifts, cards and three beautifully decorated birthday cakes, one a gift from Berwick Bakery.

Co-Chairman For Christmas Daddies

The committee in charge of the Digby Christmas Daddies program elected Mrs. Daneen Robbins and Steven LeBlanc as co-chairmen at their meeting on Monday morning. Mrs. Barbara Mount was elected secretary. Joe Tanner was re-elected vice-president and Mrs. Ina Dillon re-elected treasurer. Due to pressure of work Gerald Walsh resigned after serving for three years as president. He will be used in an advisory capacity. Date for the Christmas Daddies show was set for Sunday, December 8.

CALL TO TWO FIRES

On Monday evening Digby Fire Department was called to the Hillcrest Apartments on Warwick St. to a fire located in the furnace room. No damage was done.

On Friday at 9:30 p.m., the fire department was called to Jordantown to a fire at the home of Harold Simms. There are four people by the name of Harold Simms, it is understood. The fire above was not connected to the tragedy at another Jordantown home by the same name.

Editorial

TWO MORE NAMES ADDED

Town business is big business. It is important enough to use these columns two weeks in succession to emphasize its importance.

We again want to remind our citizens that an election is brewing. We reported last week that the retiring councillors, Paul Winchester, Joseph Hattie and Philip Robertson would again be offering their services. Their experience will stand them well, we are sure. On the other hand we have learned, though not yet officially nominated, that two other names are being brought forward. They are Mrs. Eileen Chipman and Guy Van Tassell. This is good and promises an interesting election and to arouse people to the concerns of the town. Mrs. Chipman generally attends the regular and special town council meetings and is versed on many of the proceedings. Mr. Van Tassell is a man who has always been active in the community where he has served for twenty-seven years on the Digby Volunteer Fire Department and has been a strong Legion member, serving as its president for a term. He is employed at the C.P.R. wharf.

With the three incumbent councillors offering and two new names added as anticipated, we can get away from this being elected by much frowned upon acclamation. Actually it would not be out of place to have others offer to run for election and there are good prospects that there might be others before the nominations close.

Digby's town business gets heavier and heavier with each passing year. Digby grows and one good example of that is the mushrooming of housing seen on the south end of town during the past year. These as well as other housing and construction call for water, sewers, light, streets and all those things which make for a good town. These are huge expenses and call for your tax dollars. The council takes on the responsibility of spending your tax dollar wisely. This requires qualified and able citizens in the town seats. It is up to the voters to see that the best of the candidates secure the seats when October 15 rolls around.

PASS THE BEES. PLEASE.

Dragonfly flambe.
Butterfly wings au gratin.
Grasshopper mousse.

That may be an exaggeration, but a University of Toronto zoology professor does say that if current population trends continue for another 25 years we'll probably be eating insects to stay alive.

It's projected that the world's population will more than double to eight billion by the end of the century, and William Friend thinks insect farms may be the answer to soaring food demand.

"Insects would have to be disguised in some way," admits Mr. Friend, a specialist in insect nutrition. "The problem is that food is an emotional subject."

But the fact is that while a mound of custard-like insect larvae may not be as appetizing as a slab of roast beef, the two are chemically similar. Insects are about 15 percent protein and 4.5 percent fat. In fact, insects are already eaten in many countries.

An acre of good land and a year of effort is required to produce about 800 pounds of beef. Insect larvae, on the other hand, can be raised anywhere, can be fed waste, and often increase their weight several hundredfold a week. An insect farm could raise tons of larvae every day.

Mr. Friend feels that the larvae would initially be used for animal food, but ultimately would be processed for human consumption.

ARTHRITIS

The conquest of arthritis will come from the laboratory and the clinic. The key to a cure is research. This is the thought behind CARS and medical advisers.

To those who know the research program, supported by The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, it is redundant to state its aims and objectives. But the reiteration may help to keep our eyes fixed on the goal.

The ultimate goal is, of course, to find new ways of preventing arthritis in its more than 100 forms. Coupled with this is the objective of a comprehensive program for arthritis control.

To achieve these goals, The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society is intensifying its program of research and education. More well trained research workers and adequate, long-term financial support of these men and their laboratories is needed.

Recent research has revealed whole new avenues of investigation for the physician and the scientist.

Hodge Podge

—Our short editorial on Arthritis on September 5 did some good. We opened a letter from Mrs. L. A. Habig of 44 Galen St., Brockton, Mass., containing five dollars, not for a subscription (she looks after that each year) for the Arthritic Society. Mrs. Habig has had arthritis for 15 years and can't find anything to stop the pain. She has heard that Canada has something that helps and she sure would like to know what it is. Mrs. Habig was formerly from Plympton, N.S. "I sure do enjoy your paper, she adds, also she says, "Tell them that an ox is called a dagon and was used like a horse. Many good rides I've had on a cart pulled by one ox, a dagon." We enjoyed Mrs. Habig's letter and shall pass on her five dollars to the correct party.

Distractions and wandering attention can so easily be the cause of those sudden, inexplicable accidents that happen very quickly, and quite often affect only one car. The vehicle simply went out of control. Driver fatigue can be one of the major causes, especially on a long tiresome drive, alone at night, or following some wearying activity.

How it should have read: "The meeting was chaired by the vice-chairman, Willard Kinney, in the unavoidable absence of the chairman, Austin Morehouse of Sandy Cove". Our type setters missed one whole line in the School Board story last week:—

Could be we should do something about our penmanship. Words like "foster" get in print as "faster" and one has to wonder what it all means.—

Just a little reminder that when October comes in we'll be having Fire Prevention Week. What is more important than fire prevention? Begin early to think about it, enter fire prevention week activities and then observe fire prevention for the next fifty-two weeks.

The compliments on the production of our last weeks' hundredth anniversary number were profound and certainly made us happy. As usual there is always the wish that we could have done better but with so many telephone calls and other acknowledgements, even we began to feel more satisfied with our attempt. Thanks to all of you.

—Digby has had its share of firsts. Our attention was called last week to one of them. "This is the first time I ever knew of having to bail water with three artesian wells" our informant said.—

Guests At Picnic

During SENIOR CITIZENS' WEEK, SEPTEMBER 15th to 21st, 1974, the staff of Tideview Terrace, along with a number of interested citizens from both the Town and Municipality of Digby, made a special effort to brighten the days of the guests of Tideview.

On Sunday, September 14th, Rev. Raymond Brown, added a service at Tideview Terrace to his busy schedule. These services are enjoyed and looked forward to by everyone.

Tuesday, as always, the members of the Salvation army brought music and worship to cheer the guests.

Thursday was a beautiful warm and sunny day so all the guests, who were able to be taken out, went for a picnic on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Olive Pearce, Mount Pleasant.

The guests had a wonderful time playing Bingo, listening to old time music, having a Singalong of some of the old tunes we all know so well. All this was topped off with a picnic supper.

It would have done your heart good to see members of the staff giving of their own time to transport guests, wheelchairs, etc. to the picnic" said a spokesman. They stayed and enjoyed themselves too as they called Bingo in a loud clear voice, helped place the markers, cooked the food, and everything they could to make the picnic a success. Before leaving Mrs. Christy Thompson thanked the hostess, Mrs. Pearce, on behalf of all the guests.

Each month the ladies of the Kinette Club hold a monthly Birthday Party when all who have had a birthday during the month are honored. This month there was only one birthday, Mrs. Gertrude Titus, who received her gift at the party on Thursday evening.

Senior Citizens' week was closed on Sunday the 22nd with a visit from the Christian Mens Fellowship of the Church of Christ Disciples. This was especially enjoyed by guest Victor Jarvis, as he used to sing with this group.

The guests and staff of Tideview Terrace would like to thank all those who helped in any way to bring joy to Senior Citizens this week.

REMEMBER we need you every week to bring a little change and variety into the lives of the people who live at Tideview. We hope to see you real often - friends and relatives. There will always be a warm welcome for you when you come," said the Tideview Terrace guests.

"Rheumatic diseases are beginning to yield to a varied research attack," says The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society. "But more-much more-remains to be done to abolish the needless disability due to arthritis and the other rheumatic diseases."

This is where the public can assist by educating others to the truth about arthritis and donating money for research.

Three Got Life Memberships

Three women were given recognition on Tuesday evening at the United Baptist Church, Digby, when Dominion Life Memberships in the United Baptist Women's Missionary Union for services rendered presentations and pins were presented by Mrs. J.J. Britton and Mrs. Bruce Robertson. Those receiving recognition were Mrs. George Kenney, president Digby W.M.U.; Mrs. Donald Robertson who has been program convener and who with her husband, Rev. Mr. Robertson and family will be taking up service in Fredericton; Mrs. Shirley Clayton who had been secretary for Digby W.M.U. for a number of years.

Mrs. Clayton conducted the devotional on Tuesday evening and Mrs. Kenney presided over the business sessions.

The program consisted of a film on Dr. A.B. Masilamani of India who was a special guest at the Atlantic Baptist Convention held recently in Sackville, N.B.. Dr. Masilamani will be in Digby on October 8 at the Crusade meeting (W.M.U.) at the Digby Baptist Church.

Dr. Masilamani is an internationally recognized preacher and Christian leader who has preached in many parts of Asia and North America. He has acted as interpreter for Dr. Billy Graham and the late Dr. E. Stanley Jones. He has been a speaker for World Vision pastors Conferences in India. Masi, as his friends know him is the son of a Christian Missionary father and Bible Woman mother. His father was on the staff of the Baptist Hospital at Pithapuram Christian Medical Centre. Masi's wife earned her B.A. and B. Ed and was raised in a Christian home.

Tall Dahlias

Dahlias growing to a height of ten and a half feet were reported to The Digby Courier this week by Miss Ada Winchester, Joggin Bridge. Besides, Miss Winchester said that the blooms were large and beautiful and in several gorgeous colors. The special dahlias are at the home where Robert Winchester and his three sisters, Ada, Sue, and Hilda, live.

Miss Winchester asks "Have there been any taller dahlias reported?"

Letters To The Editor

Miss Coline Campbell, M.P.
Yarmouth, N.S.

Dear Miss Campbell,

As a member of the South Shore Environmental Protection Association and of your constituency, I am writing to urge you to look deeply into the possible results, and the impact of these on southwestern Nova Scotia, from the proposed nuclear power plant at Point Lepreau, N.B. To ascertain if any real studies have been made as to thermal pollution of the Bay of Fundy and its effects on the fisheries which support so many Nova Scotians in your constituency on the spawn and small fish of various species, including lobsters, which our fishermen seasonally report in great quantities in the Bay? And if you find, as I am sure you will, that the dangers of such a plant outweigh the money which it might bring to government coffers—and fishermen forced on Welfare should be considered—to take a firm stand against the participation of the Nova Scotia government in the project.

I am sure you have read, as I have, of the increasing distrust and disillusionment of international scientists, who at first had such high hopes of nuclear power as a source of safe energy. A recent article states, "The danger of cancer and leukemia as a result of radiation is twenty fold higher than the experts thought less than ten years ago. And what if a nuclear reactor went out of control or was sabotaged by a hostile power?"

Why are Premiers Hatfield and Regan bent on establishing a nuclear power plant, with so great a source of energy as the Fundy tides so near at hand?

Premier Regan bowed to the wishes of the voters of Southwestern Nova Scotia and—at least—delayed the establishment of a nuclear plant on Stoddart's Island. Does he think that these voters will be any more pleased to have a plant at Point Lepreau? Has he consulted the people of Nova Scotia regarding the investment of their taxes in a plant which may well destroy the livelihood of many, and add the risk of radioactivity to an environment already more than sufficiently threatened?

Traditionally women have had a greater respect for lives, and for the welfare of future generations, than have men. The women of our area will be watching you as controversy continues over the Point Lepreau plant.

With all best wishes for your successful representation of the people of Southwestern Nova Scotia, I am, Sincerely yours, (Mrs.) Evelyn M. Richard
Barrington R.R. 1

Letter To The Editor:

I sure enjoyed reading the last Courier. But was disappointed not to see the picture of the Old back-boards they used to drive 68 years ago. That is what they used to drive passengers from Bear River station to Bear River. They had about 5 seats up well in the air. I have been in them many a time in pouring rain storms and no cover, only umbrella's, rain pouring down between each person. They also drove passengers to North Range to Mr. Leonard Comeau's Hotel where Mr. and Mrs. Comeau had lots of chickens in pot. No telephone but she could prepare one of "the loveliest dinners in 1 1/2 hours that any one could ever eat. They also had a lovely garden. I'm 86 yrs. old but I just thought I would mention this as what I worked with 69 yrs. ago.

Mrs. Annabell Marshall

A THANK YOU NOTE

I wrote to the editor
Mrs. Wallis is her name
Although she does not know me
She answered just the same.

I said "Dear Lady," if you please.

Wrap my Courier in paper,
The Post Office people here think it's junk

So I get it from weeks later."

And now what joy to hear from home,

Each and every week
The postman puts it in my door
As he walks all down my street

So thank you, Mrs. Wallis
For the trouble you have taken
May the good Lord bless you every day
You're an angel in the making.

New Zealand Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. A. Algie from New Zealand were vacationing in Digby on Tuesday. Mrs. Algie called at the Digby Courier office. She was formerly from Saskatchewan and wished to have a look at Canada again, her childhood country. She wanted to see the colored fall leaves as New Zealand's seasons do not change. They flew to Vancouver and came across Canada by bus and train. Their son and his wife had come to Canada to visit two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Algie appeared to be enjoying their few hours in Digby.

Lawlessness

A general meeting has been called by the Town Commissioner, Freeport, for October 1st at the Community Hall at the request of citizens to see what can be done to curb the lawlessness taking place in and around our village. Chains and gates of school were torn out by speeding cars, drunken drivers etc. Gangs of teenagers disturbing the peace at night to name but a few of the things bothering the Community. ## Flashback - Digby County

TIBBETTS-SPRAGUE

A lovely summer wedding was solemnized in High Park Baptist Church in Toronto, Saturday July 20th, at 3:00 p.m. when Linda Mae, second eldest daughter of Mrs. Lillian Sprague and the late George Sprague of Doucetteville, became the bride of Curtis John Tibbetts son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tibbetts of Bear River. Rev. Melvin Donald officiated at the double ring ceremony and Mr. Ross Richardson was organist.

Entering the church on the arm of her brother, Arnold Sprague, the bride was radiant in a full-length gown of white peau de soie. It was empire waist line with a round neck line and long nylon lace sleeves. The train was of nylon lace coming around to the front of the dress meeting a bow. She wore an elbow length two layer veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations and red roses.

The maid of honor, Judy Moulaison, sister of the bride, of Doucetteville and bridesmaids Eva Emmerson sister of the groom, of Halifax and Valerie Thibault, cousin of the bride, of Toronto, were charming in identical full-length gowns of pale blue polyester crepe, styled with empire waist line and round neck line with long bell shaped sleeves. Their head-dress was made of pale pink roses and they carried bouquets of pale pink carnations and roses.

The best man was Murray Trask, friend of the groom, of Little River. Ushers were Danny Moulaison brother-in-law of the bride, of Doucetteville and Steve Emmerson, brother-in-law of the groom, of Halifax.

Following the ceremony an European style dinner was served at the Sir Nicholas Tavern in Toronto. The bride's table was centered with a three tier cake and two four stick candle holders. A toast to the bride was given by Jack Trayling, and was responded to by the groom.

The bride's mother looked lovely in a floor length gown of pink polyester crepe fashioned with lace top and V lace front in the skirt. It had a round neck line and long sleeves. Her corsage was pink roses and she wore white accessories.

The groom's mother chose a floor length gown of light blue acetate and nylon boucle knit. Jewel-neck had roll collar accent and flirty mariboo trimmed wrists of long set-in sleeves. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

The happy couple will be residing in Toronto, following a honeymoon trip to Winnipeg and Ottawa. For travelling the bride chose a two piece double knit suit of beige with tangerine trim and a corsage of tangerine roses.

The groom is employed at Continental Can. Co., Toronto and the bride is employed at Workmen's Compensation Board, Toronto.

Out of town guests were from Halifax, Dartmouth, Vancouver, Kitchener, Sudbury and other parts of Nova Scotia and Ontario.

BEALS-LANGFORD

A pretty wedding was solemnized on September 7th at the Weymouth Church of Christ, when the Rev. Merle Zimmerman united in marriage, Georgina Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Langford of Weymouth Falls, to Henry S. Beals, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beals Sr. of Halifax. Mrs. Audrey Zimmerman sang "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride was charming in a floor length ensemble of black and white crepe. She wore a shoulder (length) veil and carried a bouquet of red roses and carnations.

Her sisters, Mrs. Martin Bright and Mrs. Douglas Clements were her attendants, and both wore gowns of blue nylon. Shelia Bright was flower girl, who wore a white crepe halter-back suit with hooded cape.

The groom was supported by his brothers Leigh and Nelson, both of Halifax. George W. Langford and William Sparks were ushers.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Baptist Hall in Weymouth, Falls. The couple received many lovely and useful gifts, and a large amount of money. A supper was held at the hall, prepared by the bride's mother, and a dance followed at the Legion Hall.

The happy couple will reside in Sudbury Ontario where the groom is employed.

HOLMES-ROSS

A quiet marriage ceremony took place on September 21st, at the home of Rev. R.R. Winchester, Bear River, N.S., when Christina Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Holmes, Leback, Ontario, became the wife of Alan Eugene Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, Roxville, N.S. Attendants were Mrs. Valerie L. Hersey, aunt of the bride and Maynard W. Hersey friend of the groom. The happy couple will reside in Roxville, N.S.

PROJECT: TINY TATTLER

A group of grade eleven students, Mrs. Carolyn Brown's room 227, English class, during the third term, did a study of several phases of newspaper work.

One day, Mr. Richard Ross, teacher at DRHS, mentioned to Mrs. Brown the tiny newspaper which was printed at Central Grove years ago. The next day, Mr. Ross brought two copies of The Tiny Tattler to school for the students to see. They measured approximately 5 1/2" by 8". Mrs. Brown recalled seeing copies which had been in her home years ago of an ever smaller size, 4 by 6 inches.

Later, Rebecca Theriault in grade eleven, brought a copy, belonging to her grandmother, dated March 3rd., 1934 and measuring 4 by 6.

Thus, a project was sparked from a chance conversation between two teachers discussing work a class was doing.

Students working on the project during the summer, included Laura Brown, Julie Macintosh, John Rogers and Rebecca Theriault.

For material and information about the original Tiny Tattler, the group wish to thank Mr. Ivan Shortliffe of the South Shore News Bureau, on The Chronicle-Herald and the Mail-Star Staff, and Mrs. Edith Wallis to the Digby Courier Newspaper Staff.

ORIGIN OF THE TINY TATTLER:

On February 1st, 1933, J. J. Wallis, editor and publisher of The Digby Courier, gave Ivan Shortliffe, then just fourteen years old, a small, used letter press. As the size of the press was small, the newspaper had to be limited in size too.

When asked about the name of the newspaper during a letter interview, Mr. Shortliffe replied, "I was toying with a name, mulling something like 'the tiny...tim...The tiny?????' when my father, Burton Shortliffe, came up with the name Tiny Tattler. It immediately caught on...everywhere."

The paper was published for twelve years at Central Grove, Long Island, Nova Scotia. Mr. Shortliffe left before the end of the twelve years, but hired Rupert E. Cann to keep the paper going. When Mr. Cann joined the Army for active service overseas duty, publication for the Tiny Tattler ceased.

It is interesting to note from an article of March 3rd., 1934 issue of the Tiny Tattler that the Weymouth Gazette "one of Digby County's wide-awake weekly newspapers has bidden farewell to its readers and gone out of business, due to the non-support of the merchants in advertising."

Mr. Shortliffe was asked if he thought such a paper as the Tiny Tattler, could become saleable again He replied, "The Tiny Tattler sold because it was unique at that time. It was actually printed on a regular printing press, by a young school boy, only because the means was made available and not because of any clever writings. With today's TV, modern newspapers and magazines, it wouldn't stand a chance. School children today do far more clever things than print a paper."

IVAN SHORTLIFFE NEWSPAPERS AS A CAREER

Ivan Shortliffe began his career in newspaper work one month after his fourteenth birthday when he began the publication of The Tiny Tattler at Central Grove, Digby County, Nova Scotia. He was interested in newspaper work and greatly encouraged when several of his school assignments were accepted by several larger publishing houses. Mr. Shortliffe had a great interest in becoming deeper involved in newspaper work.

When he was given a printing press by Mr. J. J. Wallis, the publishing of THE TINY TATTLER was sparked, and soon, young Ivan was in business. Not only did he publish the weekly paper, but soon he printed letterheads, tickets, billheads, envelopes, personal stationery, shipping tags, gummed labels, and check books.

The business was advertised in a May 20th., 1943 edition of The Tiny Tattler as THE ISLAND PRINT. "We also did commercial printing with more orders coming in than we could handle from all over the Maritimes."

Being in school, and printing the newspaper, too, had a few drawbacks. He had to quit printing before Grade XI exams because he had crushed a finger in the printing press.

Rupert E. Cann a friend and next door neighbor of Mr. Shortliffe's, helped in the publication of the paper and wrote poetry. Mr. Cann's sisters, Flora and Winnifred, were hired to fold and wrap the newspapers. Ivan Shortliffe did his own editorials but had news correspondents, as does the Digby Courier today. Mr. Cann now living in Texas, is a hospital administrator and office manager.

After the Tiny Tattler ceased publication, Mr. Shortliffe became a foreman on the staff of the Digby Courier, and ran the linotype machine. He worked for a while on the staff of the Canadian Press in Halifax and then in the mechanical department of the Herald and Mail.

For five years he managed and edited the weekly paper the Shelburne Coast Guard, and after another five years as the manager and editor of the Yarmouth Herald, he returned to the Chronicle Herald where he has worked since that time.

Five years ago when he went to Bridgewater for two months to organize a news bureau for the Chronicle Herald and MailStar, he liked it so well that he asked to stay on there as a staff reporter.

Mr. Shortliffe has commented that "working for the Halifax newspapers has been interesting and rewarding. I consider myself very lucky."

To the left is Dr. Desmond Woods, radiologist at the Digby General Hospital who attended the reception for Mrs. Hilda Cossaboom when she was honored recently on her retirement as supervisor of foods at the hospital. To the right is MacLeod Rogers, Q.C. Dr. Woods was introduced by C.F. Purdy, Chairman of the hospital board.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) said Friday that 1975 American automobiles will get about 13.5 percent better gasoline mileage, on the average, than 1974 models.

The improvement, which was not distributed evenly among manufacturers, was attributed generally to a range of engine modifications adopted in connection with the new models' required anti-pollution systems.

The over-all national savings of gasoline, however, were expected to be a little lower because of the expected increase in sales of large cars, the EPA said.

All of the top 10 were small foreign cars, but U.S. manufacturers placed in the second 10 virtually neck and neck with their foreign competitors.

Not all manufacturers showed the same improvements in fuel economy and some even managed to lose some miles a gallon.

On the average, and taking into account the expected sales of large, medium, and small models, EPA said General Motors showed the highest improvement, increasing its average miles a gallon from 10.5 in 1974 models to 13.5 in 1975 models, a 28.3 percent improvement.

American Motors raised its average mileage to 16.9 from 14.5 miles a gallon while Chrysler's new models averaged 13.6 miles a gallon, compared with last year's 11.9 miles.

Ford models, on the average, got less fuel economy in 1975 models, registering 11.5 miles a gallon, down from 12.4 last year.

EPA reported that Volkswagen improved slightly from 22.2 to 22.9 miles a gallon, averaging all its models; Toyota dropped from 19.2 to 18.8 overall; Datsun increased from 20.7 to 21.4.

Volvo decreased from 16.6 to 15.6 miles, Audi increased from 19.1 to 20.3; Peugeot increased from 17.5 to 19.1; Saab increased from 19.2 to 21.4; Mercedes-Benz increased from 11.4 to 12.8; and BMW dropped from 17.5 to 14.8.

The poorest gas mileage was turned in by large luxury cars and especially their stationwagon models with the Ford Wagon and Mercury wagon at the bottom of the list, each with nine miles a gallon in simulated city driving and 14 in simulated highway driving.

Gas Mileage On '75 Cars Increases By 13.5 Per Cent

EPA REPORTED THE BEST FUEL MILEAGE PERFORMANCE WAS BY THE DATSUN B210, WHICH ROLLED UP 27 MILES A GALLON IN SIMULATED CITY DRIVING AND 39 MILES A GALLON IN SIMULATED HIGHWAY DRIVING IN THE EPA TESTS.

New Police Program

A joint RCMP-Nova Scotia emergency measures organization program to recruit volunteer policemen was announced.

Details of the program were outlined by Attorney General, Allan Sullivan, Hon. Harold Huskisson, acting minister-in-charge of EMO (N.S.) and Chief superintendent John Mudge, Commanding officer of 'H' Division RCMP.

While the program will be under the jurisdiction of EMO (N.S.), the RCMP will be responsible for recruiting, training and operations.

The volunteer policemen will be trained at the local RCMP detachments level in such topics as the criminal code, crowd control and traffic control which will give them the necessary experience to assist the regular RCMP in times of civil emergency.

Initially, there will be six weeks of classroom training, one to two evenings a week, followed by in-service training which will consist of accompanying a member of the RCMP on patrol.

The men will act strictly as volunteers, without pay, although they are granted incidental expenses. Their employment is on a part-time basis, except in the case of emergencies.

RCMP auxiliary policemen have the power of a peace officer although they must be accompanied on duty by a member of the regular RCMP. Although they will not carry firearms the volunteers will receive instruction in the proper use of this equipment.

Volunteers will eventually be recruited on a one-to-one basis at the local detachment level.

The long-term goal is to recruit and train approximately 200 volunteers in the province. Once they qualify, they wear the uniform of the RCMP with the exception that their uniform shoulder insignia bears the name "Auxiliary".

Physical requirements for enrolment are less restrictive than those of the regular force. The age range is 18 to 55 years. The volunteer may be single or married, must be of good character and be in good physical condition.

Location of training centres where individuals may apply to be interviewed will be selected in the near future.

The new program will not affect the existing EMO auxiliary police organization which has members in a number of provincial centres.

To Develop Food Production Industry

"The first goal of the Department of Agriculture is to assist in the development of a viable food-producing industry that will make the province as self-sufficient in agricultural production as is economically possible," Deputy Minister C.A. Douglas said.

"If we are to do this successfully," he told a staff conference, "We must always be mindful of the fact that we can only expand production in the fields where our producers can obtain returns that will provide them with a net income comparable to that which people in similar occupations in other fields, requiring similar management skills, can receive."

Church Observes Anniversary

Tiverton Christian Church observed their anniversary by holding the annual roll call service.

Special guest speaker for the event was Rev. Douglas Hapeman of Digby, Lic. Robert Johnson of Halifax lead the singing.

A mixed choir made up of members of the Tiverton Baptist Church and the Christian Church united to sing two special numbers "God Gives His People Strength" and "God Gave Me A Song," Mrs. Robert Ruggles was organist.

The roll was called by clerk of the church, Mr. Melbourne Outhouse.

A number of Westport residents, including Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ingessors and their daughter, Edith; Miss Jeanette Denton; Miss Faye Lent; Miss Mary Thompson also Lic. Robert Johnson and Mrs. Johnson attended the event.

Lic. Robert Johnson, former pastor of Tiverton Christian Church for the past two years completed his ministry in the area August 25, and has accepted a pastorate at Halifax.

At present the Christian Church does not have a regular pastor. Rev. Wood of Ontario and Rev. Roy Mansfield of Milton held services. Rev. Byron Howlett of Wendelyhome Church at Dartmouth is expected to hold Sunday evening Service September 29.

Motorcycle Course

The Department of Highways will conduct a motorcycle driver's training instructor course in Yarmouth on October 1, 2 and 3.

Millard Wagstaff, supervisor of safety programs, says the purpose of the course is to promote safe driving and reduce the accident rate. Applicants are currently being considered.

The program was established this year and courses have been held at Glace Bay and Halifax. Duration in twenty hours during which students are given classroom instruction and actual motorcycle driving training. Mechanics of the vehicles are also taught.

Graduates of the free daytime course will receive driver proficiency certificates and go on to teach motorcycle drivers in their areas. The department of Highways co-ordinates with the Canada Safety Council in this program.

Complete information on enrolment can be obtained from the safety program section, Registry of Motor Vehicles, P.O. Box 2433, Halifax.

He urged members of the department to work closely with farm people, individually and through commodity groups and farm organizations, both to develop programs and to take advantage of the opportunities for development now available.

Mr. Douglas also listed the following priorities to achieve these goals:

Agricultural education, both formal and extension;

Policies developed in co-operation with farmers, to stabilize agricultural income and provide a long-term expansion base;

Policies that will encourage and promote expansion of the agricultural industry and policies that will allow for orderly transfer of present farming operations to the younger generation of farmers.

He reviewed the beef and sheep production programs, the benefits of the livestock loans guarantee act, soil fertility, and fruit industry programs and the hog situation in the province.

Referring to the Canadian Egg Marketing Board, Mr. Douglas said that "Many problems arose when supply management was applied to the egg industry."

"Facilities to house layers were much greater than that required to supply a market, hence a very substantial cut-back was necessary," he said.

"An adequate monitoring system was not found. This led to a serious financial drain on the Canadian Egg Marketing Board. A management committee was formed to correct the cash flow problem.

"This is being done, but I want to say in the process the Nova Scotia Egg Board and hence, producers are being placed in a very critical situation.

"At this time I can say every effort is being made to correct the problem, and in the long term consumer and producer will benefit from stable, uniform prices."

Writes Another Book

A book of interesting and unusual recollections from a varied ministry of almost half a century has come off the press from the pen of Rev. T.B. McDormand, Th.D., D.D., LL.D., now living in Amherst where he retired four years ago. The 157-page book records experiences in the author's widespread ministry in all sections of Canada and in the U.S.A. He entitles the book, "Unforgettable Encounters", and includes a chapter of hymns and poems he has written, and a chapter of quotations from sermons and addresses given on special occasions over the years.

Summer Student Jobs Up

The number of students who found summer jobs through Canada Manpower Centre (CMCs) in the Atlantic Provinces this year jumped by 7.7 percent over the comparable figure for the summer of 1973.

There were 20,658 student placements made from April 1 to August 30, 1974, compared to 19,185 for the same period last year, according to figures released today by the Department of Manpower and Immigration.

The figures also show that post-secondary (university) students had more success in finding jobs than secondary students, and males more success than females.

Male post-secondary students accounted for 25.4 percent of the registrations, and 40.7 percent of the job placements; female post-secondary students 20.7 percent of the registrations and 19.5 percent of the job placements; male secondary students 29.6 percent of the registrations and 27.9 percent of the job placements; and female secondary students 24.4 percent of the registrations and 11.9 percent of the job placements.

The number of students who registered at CMCs as part of their search for jobs also showed a marked increase over last year. In 1974 - 58,814 registrations took place compared to 50,010 last year, an increase of 17.6 percent.

Fire Fighters

Two hundred firemen drawn from volunteer fire-fighting departments in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, over the next two days, will be attending classes at the Maritime Fire Fighters Training School, Waverley.

It is quite possible, too, that some fire-fighters from Newfoundland may also attend. The two-day refresher training course will be officially opened by provincial fire Marshal Robert Kerr at 8:00 A.M. tomorrow and will continue throughout Saturday.

During this period visiting firemen will not only attend classroom lectures, but, also will participate actively in actual fire-fighting activities. Highlight of the course on Saturday will be the presentation by the Hon. Walter R. Fitzgerald, Minister of Labour, of a cheque for $169,000.

This amount will be used in the construction of a fire academy building, 80 feet by 100 feet, with residential dormitory accommodation included for 20 students. This, it is believed, will enable fire-fighters from far afield to use the training facilities for extended periods.

The Directors of the School, and the areas they represent are:

Harold Parker, Chief of the Sackville Volunteer Fire Department Chairman; Halifax County - Glen Slaunwhite, George Ograndy, Roy Ritchie, Charlie Robertson, Peter Grant, and Don Howard; South Shore - Dave Beck, Clarence Lilly, Alternate; Yarmouth - Dave LeBlanc; Valley - Bev Wade, Walter Stevens, alternate; Colchester-Fred McNutt Pictou - Jim Christensen, Art Andrews, alternate; Baddeck - Shane MacFarlane, Kenneth MacDonald, alternate.

Visit Lunenburg Exhibition

Westport students visit Lunenburg Exhibition at six thirty Saturday the twenty first of September, the grades three to eight of the Westport School left their Island accompanied by their teachers Mr. Tudor, Miss Thompson and Miss Thompson's sister, Miss Mary Thompson in Freeport. They boarded the bus driven by Alan Outhouse and started their journey to enjoy the exhibits and amusements of the Lunenburg Exhibition.

While driving in the bus they sang and enjoyed the scenery. At approximately ten o'clock at a roadside picnic spot along LaHave river near Lunenburg they ate. After boarding the bus again it was a short ride to the exhibition grounds.

When they arrived they first viewed the exhibits and participated in some of exhibits. They then went to the midway where they met Mrs. Garrison, another teacher of the School. They split into four groups, each teacher taking a group. They enjoyed themselves here for four hours, going on rides trying their luck at the booths.

They met at the grand stand and again boarded the bus and were on their way back home to the island arriving in Freeport at approximately 8:00 p.m. where the trip ended with three cheers for the bus driver.

In Memoriams

GERMAINE - In loving memory of my dear wife, Mary N. Germaine, who passed away September 29, 1971.

From a hospital bed to a heavenly rest
God called you home to be his guest.

I lived in hope and prayed in vain
That soon you would be well again.

He eased your pain and broke my heart
No length of time can take away
The memories I have from day to day,

For in my heart you are always near.

Still loved, still missed in every way.

Always loved and sadly missed by husband Bill and son Wayne.

7:11c

TRIMPER - In loving memory of "Edna Beatrice", wife and mother who passed away Sept. 30, 1964.

Wonderful mother gone to rest,
For each of us you did your best.

Your love was true, your heart was kind,
A better mother none could find.

The memories we have from day to day
No length of time can take away,

For in our hearts you are always near.

Still loved, still missed and always dear.
Always remembered by husband Norman and daughter Edith.

In Memoriams

TRIMPER - In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Edna Beatrice, who passed away very suddenly on Sept. 30, 1964.

As summer slowly leaves us,
And flowers fade away
We remember when you left us

Ten years ago today.
Memories drift to scenes long past
Time rolls on but memories last

Like falling leaves the years slip by
But memories of you dear mom will never die
Sincere and kind in heart and mind

What a beautiful memory you left behind
Precious forever are memories of you

Today, tomorrow and all life through.
Sadly missed by daughter Viola, son-in-law Lewis and family.

7:11c

GERMAINE - In loving memory of our dear sister, Mary Germaine, who passed away Sept. 29, 1971.

As summer slowly leaves us
And flowers fade away
We remember when you left us

Three years ago today.
A golden heart stopped beating
Two busy hands at rest
God broke our hearts to prove to us

He only takes the best
Fondly remembered, never forgotten by sisters and brothers.

7:11p

Joshua Slocum Changes Schedule

The Department of Highways new (as of March 1974) ferry boat, the Joshua Slocum in service at Petite Passage, Tiverton, N.S. has changed her schedule of operation from every hour to every quarter hour.

Some residents of the Islands complained of the former schedule on the grounds they had to wait too long at the ferry landing for the ferry to make the crossing from the Island at Tiverton to the mainland at East Ferry and vice versa. Others were concerned about the speed involved in driving through the Island in an effort to catch the crossing on the hour. Failure to do so meant another hours wait which could prove detrimental in the event of doctors appointments, etc.

The ferry boat which left the Island at Tiverton wharf on the hour to make the half mile crossing to the mainland at East Ferry where it remained at the landing until the half hour when the return trip was made. Now, under the renewed schedule the Joshua Slocum leaves Tiverton and stays to the half hour, etc.

While the schedule seems appealing to most residents, it is understood some are doubtful as to whether the motors which operated the ferry can withstand the more continuous operation involved in the renewed schedule. On the previous schedule the ferry made only two crossings per hour-one from Tiverton on the hour and one from East Ferry on the half hour-with the exception of emergencies. On the present schedule the ferry is making four trips per hour.

Driving the ferry are two 185 horsepower Caterpillar motors. The ferry was said to be designed to cope with the tide and current conditions encountered at Petite Passage. She is capable of transporting 15 cars.

To date only one incident has occurred involving the ferry. While attempting to dock at East Ferry recently, the motor refused to go into the proper gear and as a result the ferry rammed the side of the wharf snapping off one of the timbers of the wharf. This crashed down on a passenger car and shattered the windshield. So far as is known no injuries were involved in the incident.

Prior to the coming of the Joshua Slocum to the Tiverton area last March, Donald Sollows, Grafton Outhouse and Wilson Outhouse entered a Navigation School at Halifax where, at the completion of the course, they received papers certifying their ability to captain the ferry. Mr. Grafton Outhouse was a former Captain of the Coast Guard vessel, "Lamanda".

Crew members, Woodrow Outhouse, Welton Ossinger, Edwin Ossinger, Malcolm Bates and John Thurber also underwent an engineering course at Halifax.

Islanders in general feel that Joshua Slocum has provided them a good, much improved method of travel across the ferry, Petite Passage with skilled men to operate and maneuver her. However, about 90 percent feel the ferry operations have made little advancement since 1808 when Martin Blackford operated the first ferry in the area. These are the days, they feel when bridges and causeways span the gaps which separate the lands and people which make them all one united country. This too, according to residents, would allow all peoples to be free to travel, to transport, to import and to export at will.

Lands Christmas Cabbie

A newspaper columnist in the small town of Greenfield Park, Montreal, had the following to say about her trip to Digby, Nova Scotia. (We thank Sid Morash and his son, Stan and wife, Diana for forwarding the copy.)

WEDNESDAY KNIGHT
Leo Knight
GREENFIELD PARK
MONTREAL

You'd expect a man with a name like Christmas to be a special type of person, and a certain cabbie in Digby, Nova Scotia won't change your mind. I drove down to Saint John, New Brunswick and left my car at a relative's house, planning to take the ferry across the Bay of Fundy to Digby and grabbing a hack to the nearest hotel or motel. Everything seemed so easy, I figured I could check in for the night at almost any place in or around Digby...I mean, after all, who stays in Digby.

MISTAKE NO. 1.
I arrived in Digby around 7:30 p.m. and armed with an ACME "Where To Stay In Nova Scotia" book, I went to the nearest phone booth and proceeded to phone every hotel and motel listed under the Digby section of the book.

Everything was booked and I began wondering if I was going to see my brother's graduation from basic training in CFB Cornwallis.

By this time the boat had left to go back to Saint John and I still hadn't found a place to stay. I then called Nova Scotia Tourist Information bureau. MISTAKE NO. 2. They referred me to the largest hotel in Digby...whom I had already called.

Then came Christmas. He studied my plight and decided he was going to find me a room come hell or high water. We searched for a motel from Digby to Cornwallis and back again.

All else failing he brought me to a friend's house who rents rooms to tourists. Christmas charged me only half the regular rate for the miles he drove me around and then promised to pick me up the next day to bring me to Cornwallis for the graduation ceremonies. After making his friend promise to take good care of me, he bade us farewell.

I explained to "Moe" Van Tassel, my host, the adventures I had undergone in trying to find a bed for the night, and all the help that Christmas had provided. He just turned casually and said, "He's a heluva man."

I was told to make myself at home, which I did, and "Moe" and I got to talking about Christmas over a beer.

"Chris," as his friends call him, and there are many, is a cabbie. He is also a philosopher, and doesn't hesitate to give anyone advice if he thinks you need it. He is like

Dear Abby and Sigmund Freud all rolled into one.

Chris has worked in Chicago, Detroit and Boston. He has driven as a cabbie for over 10 million miles. The coldness of the big city or the length of those many miles have not hardened this man one bit. He's the type of guy who'll go 20 miles out of his way to help someone. "Allus was, an' allus will be I guess," said the man.

Chris was born and raised in and around Digby. He left to find his fortune in the big cities in the States. But he came home. Why?

"Allus' member your roots an' preserve a good rep'tation an' you'll be a happy man." he said, "I come back 'cause this is my home an' no matter whar' I live, this'll allus be my home an' these'll allus be my friends an' nobody can change that."

Chris picked me up the next day and brought me to Cornwallis. He picked me up after the ceremonies and brought me back to the Van Tassel's, who were good enough to hold my baggage for me for the day when checking out time was 11 a.m.

This trip taught me that the world is not hopeless. Some people do care, people who are still willing to help a stranger in need. I tip my hat to these people for they are a vanishing breed.

NOVA SCOTIA

BLUEBERRY SHIPMENT TO EUROPE

Over 1,100,000 pounds of frozen blueberries from Christy Crops Ltd. were loaded this month aboard the E.M. Eskimo at Parrsboro for shipment to Rotterdam and Copenhagen.

This is a first for the port of Parrsboro and the first major shipment of blueberries from Cumberland County direct to overseas markets. Two trailer loads from Maine topped off the load, but the bulk of the shipment-one million pounds-was Nova Scotia product.

Last year 200,000 pounds were shipped by Christy Crops to Sweden. The product was well received and resulted in this year's order. Christy Crops reports that they have another shipment of one and one-quarter million pounds planned for October.

This shipment, valued at $400,000 has a spin-off effect of stevedores, truckers, etc. Freight costs alone will amount to $50,000.

It is interesting to note the involvement of the refrigeration ship Eskimo as it was this vessel which was used for two shipments of Nova Scotia apples from Port Williams to the Caribbean last fall. It is pioneering new markets for Nova Scotia products.

Last year the Nova Scotia crop of lowbush blueberries was 10,075,000 pounds, the third largest crop on the North American Continent. Last year's record price of 28 cents per pound brought a total value of $2,821,056 to our producers. Eighty per cent of the crop is grown in Cumberland County.

Only Maine, with 22 million pounds and Quebec with 13 million pounds, surpassed Nova Scotia, but the province's total was 25 per cent more than the combined total of the three other Atlantic Provinces.

This year's crop estimate is down from last year and so is the price, but the lowbush blueberry industry is still one of the bright spots in Nova Scotia's farming picture.

If the present shipment is any indication of a new market in Europe, we can look optimistically to the future of the blueberry industry.

RETURN TO COLLEGE AT 40

Many adults feel a need for higher education. At 30 or 40 years of age, they begin to feel that they stopped studying too early in life. They were often the victim of circumstances. Earning money became an urgent matter. And then marriage and children arrived. Failing health sometimes limited their activity.

Today, the children have grown up. The mother climbs the walls of a quiet and desolate home. And she wonders what to do with her life.

She chooses a hobby: ceramics, painting, etc...She plays golf, bridge and indulges in a certain amount of gossip. She finds some satisfaction in this partly renewed life.

Yet many dream of much more. They seek a more varied and fulfilling life. One needs to return to the classroom is felt.

College Sainte-Anne heartily welcomes all persons wishing to pursue further studies, either for credits towards a diploma or simply for the sake of learning. Doors are open to persons of all ages and social condition.

The College Administration and Faculty would appreciate the presence in class, side by side with regular students, of

Film Has Capacity Audience

An extra large audience composed of people of various denominations was present at The Digby Wesleyan Church on Saturday evening when a new film, just released by the David Wilkerson Youth Crusades, was shown. "The Road to Armageddon" was the name of the impact filled film which depicted the events foreshadowing the last World War at Armageddon.

In a vision David Wilkerson was shown some of the final events and in this full color film he narrates the five calamities he saw coming to the world. They are namely: a terrible recession; a major earthquake like we have never seen before; a world wide famine this is already evident in some places today; a flood of filth on T.V. and newstands, hatred of parents by teenagers. This is especially bad for the younger generation and all must try to guard children against it and persecution of all Jesus people.

Some of these calamities are at present taking place in other parts of the world today.

During the first showing of the film The Road to Armageddon, the church was packed to standing room with a good 200 people present. Others were turned away until the second showing when about 50 people gathered to see the film which is now being presented in various churches throughout the U.S. and Canada. The film is being made in French and it will be released in Europe soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wallace of the David Wilkerson Youth Crusades accompanied the film here and following the showing of it some books written by David Wilkerson were available as well as other materials.

COLLEGE SAINTE-ANNE THE LAST 25 YEARS

College Sainte-Anne, Church Point, was founded in 1890 to "serve the needs of repatriated Acadians." It pursued this aim throughout its first sixty years with unswerving faithfulness. In these years, this small institution, tucked away in a small rural community could count among its alumni an array of bishops, priests, doctors, dentists, lawyers, teachers and businessmen that could be the envy of much larger institutions.

By the 1950's the basic aims of the founders had not changed, nor had the discipline and the rules prevalent in colleges of the Eudist Fathers in France during the nineteenth century. It remained entirely geared for a classical education oriented towards the religious life and liberal professions and limited to men only.

That orientation prevailed throughout the fifties and early sixties. However, during these years the student body changed drastically. Up to that time it had come mostly from Acadian communities with a sprinkling of Americans and Anglophone Canadians. In the fifties came such an influx of students from Quebec that the college became practically a Quebec classical college.

These students brought a new intensity and a new dimension to college life by their knowledge of French, their varied talents in art, drama, literature, music and sports, especially hockey, as the old Western Valley

Hockey League can well remember.

This influx also brought its problems as the courses at College Sainte-Anne had to be adapted to the school programmes these students had followed in their native province and they also had to be geared to the university programmes of that province to which most of these students would return. As a result the college course at Ste. Anne's did not fully comply with the needs of the Acadian students of the province.

The campus itself took a new look by the addition of the skating arena in 1957 and the men's residence in 1965. In the sixties also came a major break in the long tradition of the colleges of the Eudist Fathers. College Sainte-Anne became co-ed. The first girls to graduate with a B.A. did so in 1964.

Until 1967 College Sainte-Anne had always been the sole responsibility of the Eudist Fathers who operated the institution on a shoestring budget. However the rising cost of operation and the higher remuneration of the faculty and staff rendered it impossible to continue under the past regime.

As a result, a board of advisors was formed in 1967 to advise the administration of the college on the course of action to take in order to renovate the campus, meet the financial requirements, increase the enrollment and adapt the academic programmes to the needs of the community it was designed to serve.

That same year option courses were introduced in the programme for the first time and also parallel courses some taught in French and some English. The college preparatory course, which had been offered since the beginning of the college was dropped.

Through the University Grants Committee, the N.S. Government became more and more concerned with College Sainte-Anne and named a one man committee, Msgr. Jacques Garneau to study its situation and make recommendations as to its survival. Thus began the "Years of Crisis" as the years from 1968 to 1972 is called by the Faculty and student body.

There followed numerous recommendations and counter recommendations by other commissions and tribunals and other bodies as to courses to offer, site to relocate the college, language of instruction, staff and type of college.

Needless to say this uncertainty concerning the college shook the old institution down to the bedrock on which it stands, resulting in a number of changes in the faculty and the administration and a drastic drop in enrollment.

Finally in 1971, a firm stand on College Sainte-Anne was taken by the provincial government. College Sainte-Anne was to remain at its present site which would be developed to make it a fully competent bilingual college and cultural centre. At first this programme was Junior-College oriented, offering the first two years of the B.A., B.Sc. and B.Comm. courses. Now the college offers a Bachelor of Arts degree, with major in official languages of Canada, and also a wide array of extension courses at Church Point, Cheticamp, Yarmouth and Cornwallis.

With government support and under the leadership of its dynamic president, Louis R. Comeau, the college has refurbished its historic old wooden buildings, added a gymnasium due to open in October and will begin construction of a swimming pool to be ready in 1975. A new library and cultural centre is projected for the following year.

In conclusion it is appropriate to quote from the president Louis R. Comeau's 1973 report:

"Our journey has often been turbulently hindered, but we now envisage a period of calm in which to reach our goal, our rightful place in the educational system of the Maritime provinces."

Some of the entries have even found their way into anthologies." In addition to the $1,000 prize the Permanent gives a total of nearly $5,000 in prize monies. The top three entries in each province receive $300, $125 and $75 respectively. firemen-paramedics was trained to operate as a rescue squad for the Los Angeles County Fire Department. "Emergency!" centres around this new and exciting concept in which quick action and flawless teamwork spell out the difference between life and death.

John Gage (played by Randolph Mantooth) and Roy De Soto (played by Kevin Tighe) are "Emergency's" team of paramedics. They are firemen who have seen too many people die before they can ever reach the hospital. One of the chief causes of death is cardiac arrest. Now Gage and De Soto can do more than stand by and watch.

HEADLINE HUNTERS

This Fall "Headline Hunters" returns to ATN, telecasting Fridays 9:30-10:00 pm ADT. How well do you know the news? On "Headline Hunters" it pays to know.

Each week host Jim Perry welcomes three guests who turn their memories and their wits to the challenge of deciphering headline or picture clues in an attempt to identify the mystery story. The events relate to well-known people, places, and events from Canada and around the world.

Everyone who competes has a chance to win a prize and the contestant scoring the highest on the clues wins the grand prize of the evening plus the chance to earn cash prizes in a rapid word association game held at the end of the program.

Each week Jim Perry welcomes a mystery guest, usually a well known headline personality from show business, sports or politics who attempts to stump the panel.

Points are awarded for the clues on the basis of difficulty and the number of clues. The faster the contestants answer, the more they score. But you have to be careful—an incorrect answer is subtracted from the total. The results are fast moving and it's anybody's game until the final clue. Each evening there is also a bonus prize for the first contestant who uses the "mystery word" hidden within the answer.

Learn To Care For Patients At Home

With the waiting period for admission to hospital getting longer and longer, the demand for hospital beds has caused hospital stays to be shorter and shorter, meaning recovery takes place at home.

To provide the public with the basic training on care of the sick, several Continuing Education Programs, with St. John Ambulance, are sponsoring the course "Patient Care in the Home."

It is a complete and comprehensive course which deals with body mechanics, getting a patient out of bed, giving a bed bath, how and what to record in a chart, temperature, pulse and respiration, first aid measures for common ailments, nutrition, special diets and still more.

For more information contact the office of the Continuing Education Program in your area or St. John Ambulance, 5519 Almon Street, Halifax, N.S. Phone 423-6189.

College Course for Over 60's

Those who are sixty years of age or more will be welcome to follow the regular college courses without having to pay tuition fees. The only expenses would be books and meals, if required.

"At the end of an active career, many people are able to pursue activities which time did not permit when they were employed", said college president, Louis R. Comeau. "For those who would find pleasure in acquiring new knowledge, the classroom doors at College Sainte-Anne are wide open."

There are no admission requirements. A high school certificate is not required. Those who enrol will be free to select one or more courses to be followed with the regular students. Courses will begin in October.

Screen In Review:

'Benji' Good For All Ages

By WILLIAM A. PAYNE

A lot of motion pictures starting or featuring animals have come along in the years of movies, but we believe that no animal has reached the heights of acting skill that 14-year-old Higgins achieved in the title role of "Benji," first film to bear the banner of Dallas-based Mulberry Square Productions.

There is no Oscar for animal actors, but perhaps there should be. At least the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences should create a special honor for this remarkable performer. His acting in "Benji" is better than that of some of the performers who have received Oscar nominations.

"Benji" is the simple story of a dog who happens upon some information that certain humans need to know and the problems he encounters in struggling to communicate what he knows to these people. The film will have its world premiere performance at 6 p.m. (Wednesday) at the Cinema North Park as a benefit presentation for the Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

JOE CAMP, Mulberry Square's president and writer-producer, directed "Benji," set out to achieve in live animal action the same kind of identification and emotional involvement that the Walt Disney people get from their animated characters which speak. "Benji" is a superlative realization of this aim; the dog does not speak, but he is real and the viewer can quite reasonably believe that he knows what he is trying to do.

Of course, the remarkable success with the dog could not have been achieved without the patience and skill of a trainer, and Frank Inn, who has been training animals for television and films for years, was the man who interpreted the director's wishes to the dog.

Inn has won more than 40 Patsy Awards (given to performing animals by the American Humane Association) and certainly Higgins should win the 1974 honor (if there is no Oscar forthcoming) for his portrayal of Benji.

The story revolves around the kidnapping of two young friends of Benji and the kidnappers are more comic than menacing until the latter stages of the film.

And, too, the film has a slow pace, which is not unduly annoying since the dog is the central character, and the dog must be shown in action as he calls on his friends, witnesses the kidnapping and finally, after several desperate attempts, gets the point over to the humans that he knows where the children are and can lead the way to them.

THESE ARE MINOR flaws in an otherwise thoroughly enjoyable film that provides a generous measure of entertainment. There are many plus factors — such as cleverly devised script by Camp, the music by Euel Box with Charlie Rich singing Benji's theme "I Feel Love", the bright color photography of Don Reddy, the excellent production design of Harland Wright.

Mulberry Square calls "Benji" a "Family Film by Joe Camp" — and it is that, with a "G" rating from the MPAA and "Suitable" classification from the City Film Board.

Do not let the "family film" tag scare you away from seeing this picture; it is entertainment which we believe all ages can enjoy. IN A WORD: You've never seen a movie like this one.
